WESTMOUNT HOLIDAY Gift Guide

Holiday gift ideas from Westmount's array of amazing shops

Foumagerie's camembert baker is a great gift for cheese lovers.

Elysha Krupp

It's that time of year again. Holiday displays are decorating store windows and the Christmas tree lights are out on McGill College Ave. And while everyone knows it's the thought that counts, you're probably going to need to figure out something to put in a box to represent that thought for a few people in your life. Since things are still a little tight for some folks, our annual compendium of gift ideas is arranged roughly in order of most inexpensive to spendiest.

When five-year-old Charli (seen here on the right) wanted to help fundraise for women's cancer, Charli4Charity bracelets were born, each individually designed and hand crafted. So far the bracelets have raised about $1,400. Get them at Sox Box Accessories, 1357 Greene Ave., Alain Assiedo Opticians, 4933 Sherbrooke W., or Avanti le Spa, 6775 Decarie Blvd. All proceeds from the bracelets benefit the Segal Cancer Centre at the Jewish General Hospital as part of Montreal's 2011 Weekend to End Women's Cancers. Each bracelet is $10.

Remember, everything is okay in love, war, and holiday eating. Stop by Foumagerie, 4906 Sherbrooke W., for their cheese oriented gifts and consider their camembert baker. It comes with four canapé cheese plates, and a recipe booklet for $27.99. Recipes include a fondant with sun-dried tomatoes and pine nuts, a fondant with strawberry preserves, or a fondant with mango chutney.

They won't disappoint. They've also got a perfect swivel cheeseboard knife set made of bamboo sourced from sustainable forests for $30.

You can find Green Toys products at Art-enfant, 4968 Sherbrooke St. W., made from 100 per cent recycled plastic. The California-based company manufactures a whole line of hardy plastic toys, all locally sourced and made. At this age the kids won't care that Green Toys are a smart, ecological minded company—but we do, and they will too, eventually. Tea sets, recycling trucks, dump trucks and fire trucks all cost $34.95.

You've got to trust that a florist who takes two weeks to set up his window display will make you a flower arrangement unlike any other. At Flore, 5008 Sherbrooke St. W., owner Gilles Lord likes classic arrangements. If you don't know what to get someone who has everything, you can never go wrong with a bouquet of hyacinths and roses. Arrangements start at $35 but $75 is the average price.

People like to say the printed word is dying. But when it comes to a bookstore that offers cooking demonstrations and wine tastings, the choices are endlessly yummy. Give a gift certificate for a class of choice at Appetite for Books, 388 Victoria Ave. Classes range from $85 to $135 and the schedule for 2011 should be available on the store's website by December, says store owner Michelle York.

If you thought you couldn't gift wrap relaxation, now you can. With minimal effort but loads of love, order a gift certificate for Victoria Park, 376 Victoria Ave., on their website and your card will be delivered in beautiful gift packaging, ready for giving. To make it even better, when you purchase a gift card, you receive a Thann body kit gift for yourself, valid until December 22. They make it easy with pre-selected package options like Couples Therapy, Prenatal Paradise or Pump and Pamper, but you can always check off a gift card amount instead.

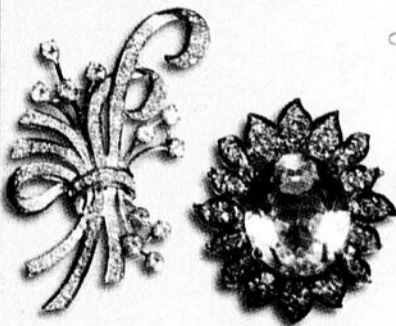

Green Toys products at Art-enfant are made from 100 per cent recycled plastic.

Classic G&S comes to Vic Hall

Members of the Montreal West Operatic Society have fun performing 'Trial by Jury' last Wednesday evening, Dec. 1, in Victoria Hall. The early Gilbert & Sullivan operetta was enjoyed by all who attended this holiday concert and fundraiser for the Montreal Children's Hospital. Photo: Justine Cotton

Harmonia Westmount
rings in the holiday season

Victoria Hall was filled with the sweet sounds of the holidays on Saturday afternoon, Nov. 27, as the popular Harmonia Westmount choir presented its annual Christmas concert. And the sounds were not the only sweets to be savoured, for the event also doubled as a holiday bake sale for the community. Kicking off the well-attended concert with a clever, seamless medley of Christmas carols and other holiday favourites, the all-woman choir presented an afternoon of musical delights that was enjoyed by all.

Support your local merchants

With Christmas fast approaching, our purchases are multiplying rapidly. Whether it's for food, clothing or gifts, we always have a long list of stores to visit. To better support our communities, it's important we try to buy what we need for Christmas from local merchants.

In the past, when the road system was not as developed, everyone did their weekly shopping at the stores nearest their home. Stores could be found in every town or village and they thrived by meeting the needs of their particular community.

Today, with the proliferation of huge shopping complexes surrounding large urban centres, many of us have developed a taste for exploring further afield. In the end, we buy the same products elsewhere... We spend money on gas with the hope of saving a few cents on our purchases.

However, if we thought about it we would understand that the savings realized are practically non-existent and that they endanger the very survival of local businesses. The alternative to this shopping habit is to buy local... A great way of saving both money and time!

Help your community flourish

For several years now economies around the world have become much more unstable. This is why it's so important to support our own communities to counter the devastating consequences of financial crises. By injecting money directly into our own communities we can succeed in keeping their economies afloat. More than ever we must develop the sense of belonging to our municipalities so they may flourish.

Holiday calendar campaign gains momentum

Marilynn Vanderstaay

The campaign for the Rotary Club of Westmount's calendar sales gained more visibility in the community last weekend.

Thanks to the generous invitation by Graham Fletcher of Metro Fletcher, 10 Rotarians spent a few hours each on Friday and Saturday selling calendars inside the store.

"Public response was great," said Rotarian Don MacKinnon. "We sold 59 calendars ... and also received donations."

This is the second year the service club has produced and sold calendars. The concept was proposed last year by photographer and incoming president Ralph Thompson, who offered to photograph images of Westmount to produce a 2010 calendar. Last year's project was so successful that the membership decided to produce the second annual edition, again courtesy of Thompson. Past-president and graphic artist Ted Sancton, owner of Studio Melrose, produced the calendar.

The calendar can be purchased at Westmount Stationery, 4887 Sherbrooke St., Hogg Hardware, 4855 Sherbrooke St., Campbell Gallery, 4916 Sherbrooke St.; the Westmount Y, 4585 Sherbrooke St.; Scotia Bank, 1326 Greene Ave.; and reception at Manoir Westmount, 4646 Sherbrooke St.

For more information phone Roberta at 514-935-3344. The cost is $15 and all proceeds go directly back into the work the club does in the community.

Peace, love and hope highlighted at MMFA Christmas event

Marilynn Vanderstaay

The Peace, Love and Hope project and the Asian Canadian Women artists are exhibiting a decorative Christmas tree at the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts' Christmas at the Museum event until Jan. 2, 2011. The tree is decorated by children's artwork created through the Peace, Love and Hope project.

In 2007, young people from five to 15 in Montreal schools, community centres, museums, and even private and public establishments were invited to do drawings in flour and water on fabric to create batiks, a traditional Indonesian dying technique. The drawings on fabric were then dyed. The project's goal is to eventually reach one million young people in Montreal and beyond to other parts of Quebec, Canada and, in the long term, to the four corners of the world.

Love, Peace and Hope began as a unique anti-bullying project initiated by Avy Loftus, a Montreal batik designer, artist and art educator who has worked extensively with community groups and schools.

"I started this project after my daughter, then 7 years old, experienced bullying at her school," said Loftus. "The impact was devastating, and I resolved that I would work to make sure others did not have to suffer." Loftus decided to tackle the problem in her own individual way by using art as the vehicle to promote the message of non-violence. To date Peace Love & Hope has reached more than 1,000 children in Montreal, Toronto, Chicago and Ballina, Ireland.

"The motivation of this project is the United Nations' Declaration and Programme of Action on a Culture of Peace, where a resolution states that through dialogue and negotiation among people, through creativity and hope, a culture of peace will eventually be attained," said Loftus.

For more information go to www.peaceloveandhopeproject.blogspot.com or phone 514-282-9111 or email paixpeaceproject@gmail.com
