MONTREAL TODAY WELCOMES PRINCES AND PREMIER

Distinguished Visitors Spent Pleasant Sunday On St. Lawrence

Busy Day For Visitors In Canadian Metropolis Go To Ottawa Tomorrow

Numerous Addresses Presented Over Week-End—Prince and Premier Reply—Premier Baldwin Gives Interview—Addresses Canadian Club of Montreal Today—Social Functions for Prince in Montreal—The Sail Up the River Yesterday Delightful Feature of Visit—Greeted by Towns Along Banks—British Columbia Wants Distinguished Visitors.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

MONTREAL, August 1.—Following their day of rest, the two Royal Princes and Premier Baldwin today face an ambitious programme. For their one day's stay, the city is gaily decorated. On government buildings, across the larger business blocks run flags and streamers. In every window of the City Hall are flag shields.

Today's celebrations open with a civic reception. From their hotel to the City Hall, the Prince of Wales and Prince George will have the Royal Canadian Dragoons as travelling escort. Immediately behind the car of the Royal brothers will be that of Premier and Mrs. Baldwin. The Canadian Grenadier Guards, of which the Prince of Wales is Colonel-in-Chief, will provide the guard of honor.

Following inspection of the guard of honor, Princes and Premier will be escorted to a dais in the salle d'honneur where Mayor Martin will present addresses of welcome in French and English. There will be brief replies and distinguished visitors will then be conducted to the mayor's chamber where there will be a reception. The golden book will then be signed.

In the afternoon there will be a divided programme. The two Princes will go to Laval Sur Le Lac for golf. Premier Baldwin will address the Canadian Club. Subsequently the British prime minister will make a tour of the city, viewing different points of interest. Later in the afternoon their Royal Highnesses, and Premier and Mrs. Baldwin will attend a garden party given by Senator W. L. MacDougald.

The day closes with a dinner given to the gentlemen of the two parties by President Beatty of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

THE SUNDAY TRIP UP THE RIVER

MONTREAL, August 1.—Sunday was a leisurely day on the St. Lawrence for the Princes and the Premier of Great Britain. A small informal party made the day trip from Quebec to Montreal on board the S.S. St. Lawrence. There was an easy restful atmosphere about the voyage perhaps appreciated after the busy official day in Quebec.

The Prince of Wales spent nearly two hours in the very bow of the ship with cap and pipe in conversation with Senator Dandurand, watching the Quebec shores slip by. His Royal Highness never failed to respond with a wave of his cap to the greetings from the lighthouse keepers and barge crews along the river's course. Several rusted freighters dipped the red ensign as the ship with the Royal standard flying moved up the river.

At Three Rivers and Sorel small fleets of motor boats put out burdened with passengers who waved and cheered as the ship went on. From one small boat came salutes from a shotgun. Presumably it was a Royal salute for the "Patriot" was still firing in the air when the ship left him far behind.

Prince George joined the ship's orchestra for a short time and tried a few brief notes on the clarinet. He suggested a few for the musicians, complimented them on their playing, and Mrs. Munroe, the daughter of the Prime Minister, played the piano for a few minutes.

Both the Princes and Mr. Baldwin made separate tours of the ship from bridge to hold early in the day.

Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin spent the day on the decks in the open air chatting with many of the passengers who made up the party. The Prime Minister, puffing a pipe with a particularly generous bowl, kept a map of the St. Lawrence river close at hand and talked with several members of the Dominion cabinet.

ATTENDED SERVICE AT QUEBEC.

Both the Royal party and the Prime Minister's party attended divine service in the Cathedral of the Holy Trinity in Quebec before sailing at eleven o'clock. The service was brief and the church crowded. The Princes, with the staff occupied the historic Royal pew, while Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin were in the front pews in the main body of the church, accompanied by Colonel Hon. J. L. Ralston, Minister of National Defence.

DINNER ON THE BOAT.

At dinner on the St. Lawrence in the evening both parties were in the main saloon. The Prince of Wales sat with Senator Dandurand on his right and Hon. J. C. Elliott, Minister of Public Works on his left. Across the table sat Prince George with General Trotter and Colonel Ralston. The Baldwin party took a separate table.

As the dusk came on the progress up the river became more colorful and rockets began to sear the evening sky and bonfires lighted the shore. A new moon was rising and their Royal Highnesses and Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin both left their tables before the dinner was over to step out on deck to watch the spectacle.

The "St. Lawrence" crept slowly up the harbor and the clamor increased with the flashing of the lights from the shore, searchlights played to and fro. Then the sirens of the ships echoing back again. Even the freighters were dressed with flags and as the "St. Lawrence" moved the crews gave cheer after cheer.

THE WEATHER

WEST WINDS AND COOLER

Pressure is now in Ontario and eastward and high west of the Great Lakes. Showers have occurred in Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island; elsewhere the weather has been fair. It is quite cool in the West.

Forecast: Moderate to fresh winds, mostly fair today and Tuesday, probably a thunderstorm. Northwest winds and cooler on Tuesday.

PRINCE AND PREMIER SPEAK AT QUEBEC

Interesting Replies of Distinguished Visitors to Greeting on Arrival in Canada.

QUEBEC, Aug. 1.—At the official luncheon tendered today to the Royal Princes, and Premier Baldwin, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, in an address, said: "I thank you all very heartily for the way you have drunk the last toast, with a kindness which sets the seal on the friendly welcome back to Canada that I have experienced since I landed. Last January, I had the pleasure of attending the Wolfe Bi-Centenary Dinner—one of the many and varied occasions which, from time to time, during my life in London, serve to bridge the Atlantic for me, and bring me into direct touch with the Dominion, which, I hope I may say, I am beginning to know so well.

"I said then that to everybody, when from the deck of his steamer, he watches the Heights grow nearer and nearer, must always come a moment of reflection on the great battle that was fought there 143 years ago, and on the two great generals who fell in it; and I remember going on to say that they and those who died with them were singularly fortunate in having as their last memorial the great united Dominion of Canada, whose foundations were laid on the battlefield of Quebec.

Many Recollections. "To me, however, that inevitable recollection is only one of many which now come to me when I approach Quebec. I found, as the Empress of Australia steamed up the St. Lawrence, that I had such a store of recollections that I had not half got to the bottom of them before the voyage was finally over; recollections of wonderful days in the open air, and of pleasant Canadian gatherings all over the Dominion from coast to coast; other recollections, more serious, perhaps, but no less happy, of glimpses into the way in which this land of infinite promise is abundantly fulfilling that promise, in politics, in industry, in the march of education.

"On this particular occasion, more recollections have a special significance for me, from the fact that my present visit to Canada, which has begun so happily today, differs from the three previous ones in two respects.

"In the first place, this is a year memorable in the history of Canada—and therefore of the whole Empire; the year, when, with gratitude for the past and with high hopes for the future, we celebrate the Diamond Jubilee of Confederation.

"Secondly, on this occasion, I do not come alone. "I bring with me my younger brother, who has so far only experienced Canadian hospitality in a single hurried journey from west to east, when returning from naval service in China. As a sailor, he, like myself has done a good deal of travelling; but this time we are travelling together, and you will understand, I know, that it is a very real pleasure to me to have him with me now in Canada, where good fortune has taken me so often in recent years.

An "Old Timer". "With me, too, comes the Prime Minister of the Old Country. "Mr. Baldwin has, of course, already been here in the days before he assumed his high office, so I have had to forego the temptation of treating him, on the way over, as a tenderfoot.

"But I have this advantage over him—that he has, I believe, never yet been out West, though I shall love even that in a few days' time. None the less, I have found his knowledge of Canada generally, and of things Canadian, quite encyclopaedic, though I like to look or myself as almost an "Old timer". I believe that Mr. Baldwin after his one visit will have learned as much about ranching, for instance, as I have learned in three.

To Mrs. Baldwin, however, the Dominion is new territory, and if I may for a moment be permitted to say so, I should like to bid her and her family a true welcome to this land where people speak the word "Welcome" from the heart and do not say "Goodbye" but "Come again" and mean it.

"For myself, when I get back to Canada, I have only one regret, and that is for the number of times I have to say "No" to those who are kind enough to send me invitations from every province and from all the four quarters of the Dominion. I make it a rule in life to make each 24 hours go as far as possible, and to see as much of the world as opportunity offers.

"But, even so, this principle cannot be expanded indefinitely and if, I am afraid, inevitable that lack of time must prevent me from visiting more than a small proportion of the many localities whose names I have to say "No" to.

NAVAL PARLEY BALDWIN GIVES IS ON VERGE OF COLLAPSE AN INTERVIEW TO THE PRESS

Hope of Agreement Seems to Have Vanished—How to End Conference With Least Damage Now the Problem.

(Associated Press Despatch)
GENEVA, Aug. 1.—That nothing short of a miracle can prevent a break-up of the three-power naval reduction conference before the week ends, either by a quiet agreement among the delegates to separate or by a showdown in the plenary session called for Wednesday or Thursday, was the general impression prevailing in Geneva today.

The fact that the plenary session, originally called for today, was postponed to Wednesday or Thursday was looked upon by commentators as a victory for the "treaty at any price" party, which has adherents in all three delegations. The postponement was not at all to the liking of the experts of the British and United States delegations who are said to realize that there can be no reconciling of the British and American viewpoints and to feel that nothing can be gained by the delay.

The Japanese, thanks to whose mediation the breathing spell of two or three days was obtained, seem satisfied. They feel that nothing should be left undone, because in their opinion if Great Britain and the United States separate without an accord on limitation, and if the latter particularly starts a big building campaign, Japan would be hard put to follow suit.

Among a number of nationals of countries which are not participating in the conference the opinion is frankly expressed that the conference is being allowed to drag on too long. French observers feel it will be exceedingly unfortunate to permit the parley to collapse in a public session and that it will be indefinitely better in the interest of good international relations for the delegates to separate quietly after issuing a communique setting forth their respective views on the main points at issue just as did the delegates to the League of Nations preparatory commission on disarmament when earlier in the year they failed to agree on the text of a satisfactory draft treaty on a general reduction of armaments.

The week-end saw a quickening of individual efforts to effect some sort of a compromise on the cruiser problem, on which the fate of the conference hinges, but nothing developed to warrant even the slightest optimism. There were talks between Viscount Ishihara, chief Japanese delegate and Right Hon. W. C. Briggeman, First Lord of the Admiralty, and between the viscount and Hugh S. Gibson, head of the United States delegation, after which Mr. Gibson conferred individually with Mr. Briggeman and

IMPORTANCE OF FAMILY AND CHILD IMMIGRATION IS TOLD E.T. SOCIETY AND TRADE BOARDS

Miss Charlotte Whitton, Outstanding in Child Welfare, I.O.D.E. and League of Nations Work, Declares Selected Family and Child Immigration Most Important—Hopes for Ideal Experiment of Plans in Townships—Canadian National Official Suggests Farm Training in This District.

Article No. 11, Summer Meeting (E. T. Boards). Miss Charlotte H. Whitton and Mr. J. S. Mcowan had the interesting things to tell the summer meeting of the E. T. Associated Boards of Trade and E. T. Immigration Society at Rock Island on Friday, regarding immigration. They spoke at the afternoon session held in the Haskell Opera House.

Besides being executive secretary of the Canadian Council of Child Welfare, Miss Whitton is a delegate to the League of Nations in the capacity of assessor to give technical advice on women's problems, being one of six to act in this position among all the nations in the immigration committee of the National Chapter of the Daughters of the Empire in Canada. She is a graduate of Queen's University, Kingston, and was formerly secretary to the Hon. T. A. Low, Minister of Trade and Commerce.

Mr. Mcowan is executive superintendent of the department of colonization and agriculture of the Canadian National Railways, with headquarters in Montreal. Miss Whitton told the meeting that Mr. Blair, the deputy minister of immigration for Canada, had told her to accept the invitation of the E. T. Immigration Society to speak at the meeting if she possibly could, for they were "one of the best outfits in Canada". Child welfare, with which she was connected, and immigration were closely bound up, she remarked.

After saying that the fact that Europe had 120 people to the square mile showed why people from the old lands came here, Miss Whitton continued: "We must attract immigrants, but not without providing for resources to hold them. To develop such resources we must have considerable capital, and the chief resource which we must develop with this capital is agriculture."

Two Forms of Immigration. "The Imperial Conference wisely decided, with the backing of the Canadian Government especially, to go in for two forms of immigration, selected family and child immigration. I will not deal with the first since it is not within my province, but will only say that it is a very important type. But I will say a few words about the other. There are three kinds of societies dealing with child immigration. There is the sheltering home which sends its children out to Canada as one method of getting rid of them; there is the child welfare society which has immigration as part of its work; and there is the large agency which makes a business of bringing out children to place on farms. This last named brings big social problems, for among the children brought out are the outpourings of criminal courts and reform schools. We do not refuse to receive this kind of child, but we insist that we be informed what are the problem cases.

"Up to the time of the enforcing of the Empire Settlement scheme which settles up to 5,000 children a year, there had been much immigration of very young children, but under the new arrangement there is a restriction to the age of 14 unless they are accompanied by parents or are proceeding to join them."

Miss Whitton explained the system of medical inspection of all immigrants and declared the department was not faddish in being strict, for such strictness was necessary in order to build up a strong and virile young population. The young boy and girl coming here have very new conditions to contend with, and it is the purpose of the Government to prepare them for those conditions. Previously there had not been sufficient thought given as to the real vocation of the boy or girl. It had been taken for granted that all were ready for farm work, and though a boy might be inclined to a seafaring career he was nevertheless put on the farm. This was now being changed.

Experiment in Townships. "We are hoping," the speaker continued, "that in the Eastern Townships, by a policy of co-operation between our Child Welfare society and the department of immigration, we shall have an ideal experiment to see if we cannot develop a true Canadian spirit in these child immigrants. And we appeal to the Eastern Townships Boards of Trade to aid us in that task."

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—James A. "Bud" Stillman and bride the former Lena Wilson sailed early today on the Olympic for Europe, where they expect to remain five months.

They made no effort to avoid reporters and posed for fifteen minutes for news photographers. "We're going to Paris," Bud said. "I'm taking my car and we'll motor through Europe. We expect to be away five months. I don't expect to study medicine at Harvard next year, for I'll probably spend a year in travel and will begin my medical course a year later."

Bud's father accompanied them to the ship to bid them farewell. A solitary figure, who explained he had come "all the way from Grand Anse" and had known Lena since she was fifteen, stood at the door of the Stillman suite and was the last to leave. He declined to give his name.

Scotch Laddie's Penny Brought a Family to Canada

A Scotch woman and children on her way to join her husband in the Canadian West

"WHEEL, Mither—are ye no glad ye gied me yon penny?"

The apple-cheeked, red-headed Scotch laddie, bonny in his kilts and Glengarry bonnet, stood on the deck of the Metagama as she sailed majestically down the Clyde, under sunny summer skies, on May the twenty-eighth, in this year of grace, 1927. There was a smile on his lips, but his steady young gray eyes were full of dreams.

The boy's father and mother stood with him, and, with them, seven—"count 'em seven!"—"little brothers and sisters!"

"Aye," replied his mother, with a smile, "I'm gied glad, Hamish, that I gied ye yon penny!"

This is the story:

A cottar's wife, some six months ago, gave her eldest boy a penny—for being a guid laddie. When there are eight little blessings in the ham, pennies are few and far between, and young Hamish gave much thought as to the investment of this windfall. When he sat at the kitchen table that evening to study his geography lesson, the precious penny was clasped tightly in his fist.

His mother had spread a paper—the Edinburgh Scotsman—over the neat table cloth, that the young student might not spatter ink thereon.

It was a strange coincidence that as Hamish pored over a map of Canada, and his eyes wandered to the newspaper beneath the school atlas, he saw the word "Canada," and a brief notice regarding the three thousand families settlement scheme. It gave the address to which to write for information, should the reader consider emigrating, bag and baggage, chick and child, to the great dominion overseas.

Hamish carefully put his name and address on the dotted line. Unnoticed by his father and mother, he cut the advertisement out of the Scotsman and put it in his pocket. The next morning he invested his precious penny in a postage stamp, and sent the application for further information, off to Inverness.

In Inverness the Canadian government agent for the north of Scotland was called upon by the postman to pay excess postage—for Hamish didn't know that it costs a penny, ha'penny, to send a letter these days.

To the emigration agent the application seemed quite in order; she took it for granted that it was sent by the head of a family—for who would dream that a thirteen-year-old boy would do such a thing, on his own? She replied, telling all about the scheme for settling British families in Canada and, according to custom, asked if she should visit Hamish and his family at their home, to discuss the matter further?

Hamish haunted the post office until that letter came, a day or two later. He carried it off for a walk down the glen, gave the matter serious thought and—replied to the lady agent, requesting that she come and discuss the matter at some length with himself and his family.

Then there arose in the young mind of Hamish the question as to whether or not this visit of the emigration official had better come as a pleasant surprise to the feyther and mither. Finally, concluding that mither would likely want to have the cottage even more spic-and-span than usual for the occasion, he seriously announced, at the mid-day dinner, a day or two later, the expected coming of the lady official.

Hamish's feyther was still scolding and Hamish's mither was "flyin' about the hoose, and sortin' the wee lads an' lassies," half an hour later, when the visitor arrived. She was met with a thousand apologies, and the information that the family had no intention of emigrating. As Hamish's father explained; through a long life of hard work and thrift, he had not saved enough money to emigrate himself—much less take a wife and eight bairns to the land across the sea. (He didn't know that all children under seventeen years of age are, according to this scheme, carried free to their destination in Canada.)

The wee hoose was scrupulously neat; the man, quite evidently, the finest type of Scottish cottar; the mother, a sweet-faced gentle and rosy-cheeked woman from whom Hamish had inherited those steady gray eyes so full of dreams. And the children—what! gorgeous specimens of sturdy Scottish childhood!

The Canadian emigration lady stayed for tea—such crisp oat cakes spread with home-made butter and jam—and, because that subject filled her heart, she talked of Canada, of its future, of its rare opportunities for the British-born. She told of the splendid village schools in the west, of the health service given by the provincial government to little Canadian citizens in the making, that they might grow up with strong bodies, fit temples for their little pioneering souls. She told of the agricultural colleges where so many sons of emigrating farmers have worked their way through college, and have made outstanding farmers of the finest type. Aye—and she told of distinguished men and emigre builders in Canada to-day who had come as emigrant lads to Canada, not so many years ago.

She said to Hamish's father: "It's not pioneering in the sense that it once was—there are greater comforts—but its hard work, sometimes discouraging work, and it takes a lot of courage and bull-dog grit to carry on, sometimes. A man of middle age can't look forward to riches—not with eight little children to support—just to a simple home of his own, hard work, and enough money to feed and clothe his children."

"But for the children," she told him, "there are opportunities in the years to come which are unknown in this country. When your laddies have reached middle age, they will not be where you are to-day—where your father was before you—with no money in the bank, with nothing but an old age pension to look forward to, in your declining years."

Now Hamish's father was not what we would call a chatty soul, but he could do no less than ask a few polite questions here and there, when the enthusiastic emigration lady paused for breath, and he learned that the Canadian government was providing farms at reasonable cost and with suitable buildings, to be paid for in twenty-five equal annual instalments with interest at five per cent., the first payment to be made at the end of the second season. And he learned that the British government had agreed to furnish funds on the same repayment plan for live stock and equipment—the maximum £500.

Hamish's father learned that, after the family was placed on the chosen farm, the grown-ups of the family, with the exception of the mother, must gain Canadian farming experience by accepting employment on farms in the vicinity, for a year, while the mother cared for the little children, the chickens and cows, and garden on the home farm.

And Hamish's father learned that the Canadian government wouldn't have him and his family at any price, unless their agent spoke highly of his industry, thrift, physical, mental, and moral fitness to be a worthy citizen of Canada.

Now, Hamish's father, as you know, read the Edinburgh Scotsman, and he knew of men, now distinguished Canadians, who had gone to Canada with their families as little lads, and had found good and profitable opportunities impossible in Scotland. He had read of a certain cabinet minister of the Dominion—minister of cointrization and immigration—the Hon. Robert Forke, who had been a bumble Scotchie lad.

Hamish's father was no fool. He knew that such cases are necessarily exceptional, but he knew also that, if one laddie could do so grandly, others could, at least, make prosperous and dignified places for themselves as thrifty Scotch-Canadian farmers. He thought of his own life of thrift and toil—with nothing to show for it but the barest living for himself and his bairns. And his father's life had been just like his.

Not an impulsive man on his native heath, and the hard-working feyther or Hamish spent many a month of deep thought, and, nae doot, prayer, as he toiled in the fields or sat by the peat fire in the cottage in the evening, with his little brood of Scots about him. Then, the emigration offices received a letter from the self-same cottage—but this time it was the "head of the hoose" who wrote.

Yesterday, with some of the emigration officials at Glasgow, I boarded the Metagama, and sailed as far as Greenock, down the Clyde, in company with some fifty families going out to Canada under the "assisted settlement of approved British families scheme."

It was on the deck of the ship that I heard the boy ask: "Are you no glad, Mither, that ye gied me yon penny?" and heard the mother's heartfelt reply: "Aye—I'm gied glad, Hamish, that I gied ye yon penny." I stood beside them on the deck, and talked a bit, and mither and Hamish, with the rather-inarticulate feyther putting in a word here and there, told me the whole true story.

"Just chance, it was," said Hamish. "If Mither had no gien me yon penny—"

Chance? The penny? The fateful Scotsman spread neatly over the table, beneath the school atlas open at the map of the far-flung dominion of Canada?

"Was it chance, or destiny?" I asked Hamish's feyther.

The big man smiled understandingly. "God is guid," he said simply.

What does the future hold for that Scottish family—for Hamish of the flaming red head and the steady blue eyes? May God bless them all with the gift of happiness, prosperity, and understanding friendly, Canadian neighbors!

I strolled about the ship and I talked with many a Scot, bravely starting out with his wife and family; talked with the wives; held wee babies for their tired mothers, and had a wonderful time generally.

There were modest families of four or six children, but there were several parents with nine, ten or eleven young doopels to their credit. The children laughed, played and shouted about the decks. Never in my life have I seen so many flaming red heads, so many pairs of gray eyes, flecked with brown, in a sort of "heather mixture."

Gladness seemed to fill the air; then I began to notice that the eyes of some of the elders were red with weeping. (Aye—aloud feythers and mithers must be left behind, alas! That their grandchildren may be given a chance in the new world.) There were fifty girls going out to be domestic servants, neatly dressed, and rosie-cheeked, but some of them with their poor little noses and eyes pathetically pink—for were they not leaving behind feythers, mithers, we brithers and sisters—and their own childhood too?

WOMAN COULD HARDLY WALK

Mrs. Horn Tells how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health

Hamilton, Ont.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and would not be without it now. I had a female trouble so badly I could hardly walk and I was all run-down and could hardly get around to do my household work. I would be in bed three or four days at a time. I was told by a friend to try your Vegetable Compound. I did, and by the time I took two bottles I was beginning to get around again. I took ten bottles in all, and now I am all right again and doing my own work. I have six grown-ups to look for, so I have plenty to do. I also used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash, and I think it good. But I owe my health to the Vegetable Compound, and I think if more of it was used women would be better off. I would not be without it if it cost much more."

Mrs. Horn Tells how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health

Hamilton, Ont.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and would not be without it now. I had a female trouble so badly I could hardly walk and I was all run-down and could hardly get around to do my household work. I would be in bed three or four days at a time. I was told by a friend to try your Vegetable Compound. I did, and by the time I took two bottles I was beginning to get around again. I took ten bottles in all, and now I am all right again and doing my own work. I have six grown-ups to look for, so I have plenty to do. I also used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash, and I think it good. But I owe my health to the Vegetable Compound, and I think if more of it was used women would be better off. I would not be without it if it cost much more."

Mrs. NELLIE JAMESON, 805 East Cannon Street, Hamilton, Ontario.

Do you feel broken down, nervous and weak sometimes? Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is excellent to take at such a time. It always helps, and if taken regularly and persistently, will relieve this condition. Get

Miss Ruth Stowe Saved Miss Ina Emmett After Current Had Carried Her Over Dangerous Part of River Known as "Deep Hole"—Other Items of News.

COWANSVILLE, QUE., August 1.—Miss Ina Emmett, of Freeport, had a narrow escape from drowning in the river here on Tuesday last. But for the prompt action of Miss Ruth Stowe, who while fully clothed, plunged in and brought her to shore, would have in all probability lost her life. Miss Emmett, who is unable to swim, was floating and was carried by the current near a dangerous spot known as the "deep hole." When Miss Emmett realized her dangerous position she became excited and began to sink, when Miss Stowe, without any hesitation, went to the rescue. Congratulations are extended to both young ladies. Mrs. S. W. Boyd spent a couple of days at Bondville last week the guest of the Misses Thompson. A bridge party was held at the Golf Club House on Thursday afternoon. Mrs. E. A. Tuning in on your Bank Account

'HENRY,' said Mabel to me the other night, 'I'm beginning to worry about our future.' 'What's the matter with our future?' I asked her beligerently, and Mabel proceeds to tell me that it isn't protected. 'I'm not thinking selfishly of myself after your demise, dear,' she said brightly. 'What I'm thinking about is the long years ahead of us when you're too old and feeble to work. How're we going to live then, Henry?' 'About the same as now I guess,' I told her. 'A man's never too old or feeble to work if he's hungry and hasn't anything to buy food with. Besides Mabel, we won't be on the town.' 'Your endowment policies come due when you're fifty-five and sixty, and we haven't anything else and we couldn't live on the interest of twenty thousand dollars, could we Henry?' 'We'd have a mighty hard time starving on it,' I told her, and then to end an uneasy conversation, I turned on the radio and tuned in. 'As a matter of fact, I have it all figured out. If we could save a hundred dollars a month, say, from now on, we'd be very comfortable and even able to travel discreetly,' announced my wife in competition to the radio's static. 'I'll cut down on the housekeeping and—' 'I'm going to have my bacon and eggs for breakfast, so don't start economizing on my stomach,' I warned her. Listen, Mabel, I think I've got Seattle—

'Anyway, I shall save all that is possible to save, do without everything except the actual essentials, and show you that I am a real helpmate in these days of fluttering waves.' 'We don't give enough attention to our outside areas.' 'If every woman gave as much attention to her outside areas as you do the department stores, it would institute a twelve-hour day to take care of heads.' I stated.

A Sign of Trouble

WHEN I noticed that Mabel was looking thoughtful. It's a sign of trouble. 'Nevertheless, I think there is a great deal in what he says,' she declared. 'We don't give enough attention to our outside areas.' 'If every woman gave as much attention to her outside areas as you do the department stores, it would institute a twelve-hour day to take care of heads.' I stated.

'I knew there was something else,' she beamed

'I was not speaking of my personal appearance,' she told me coldly. 'I was referring to our garden. This year we are going to have a real garden, Henry, with carefully chosen blooms which will follow each other in rotation so that we will have a constant riot of color about us all summer. Are Seller's seeds good?' 'I don't know, but I'll bet a cent you got this garden bug while that guy was talking,' I said, and I was just about to tune in on something else when the announcer spoke: 'We would appreciate comments on our concert, and if any of our listeners would like to avail themselves of it,

'I knew there was something else,' she beamed

we should be glad to send them a copy of our brochure, 'The Ideal Garden for the Average Home.' Address this station at—' 'Henry, switch back there this minute.' 'They're finished, and I—' 'Henry!' I tuned in again, just in time to hear 'Station WXYZ now signing off at 7:55 eastern standard time.' 'I'll follow their directions and you'll be proud of our garden,' Mabel informed me, writing the station call down, and then she took up the lamp again and I tuned in on another station. For about ten minutes we listened to perfectly good jazz, which included 'Marquita' and 'In a Little Spanish Town,' and then the announcer interrupted: 'You have been listening to the orchestra of the Marble Company of Montreal, makers of monuments, fountains and statuary for the home and garden.' I tuned out. Mabel gave me a nasty look, and then, with ominous quiet she said that she's been thinking that a little figure, something like Peter Pan in Kensington Gardens only not so large, or even a sun dial would look cute in the garden, and what'd I think. 'Not the same as you do,' I told her, and another station gave us 'Marquita' and then announced that the concert was given by the courtesy of the Radiant Home Corporation. 'I don't want a radiant home. I prefer these soft indirect lights which we haven't had long enough to hardly get used to them before you think up something different for us to spend money on,' I told the announcer. 'You'd better order the good 10-cent

too,' and she made a trio out of the duet on my memo. 'I went down cellar, but I'd hardly get there when I heard the shrieking and howling which told me that Mabel was monkeying with the radio. 'Leave it alone, I had it where I wanted it,' I yelled at her. 'But Henry, I want to get... and then a couple of cats got mixed up with the aerial, and spit and howled, and a pair of well trained band-shoes who's been saving up after a long rest arrived on the scene. 'Let it alone. Shut it off. You'll have the neighbors in here telling me off,' I hollered, taking the steps two at a time, and when I reached the living room a silence, utter, cold, and reeking of injured dignity met me. Then Mabel's voice interrupted my rest again. 'Don't you ever yell at me again like that, Henry Robinson. I guess I sacrificed as much as you did to get this radio set. I guess I can work it if I feel like it. I guess I can get KMW if I want to, but if you think I can't get it for me yourself.' 'What do you want KMW for,' I asked suspiciously. 'From the newspaper account they seem to have a good concert on,' she retorted, and I tuned in on somebody who thought it was last Fall and gave us 'The Waters of Minnetonka' for a cure. After that we heard a lady with a cold in her nose sing 'I took it from you now I'll give it back,' and a boy wonder with an excellently developed set of adenoids sang 'Tootsie Goodbye.' 'This is the home of the Silver Service, broadcasting through station K M W, and now you will hear our expert speak on correct table service in the maidless home.' 'This ought to be interesting,' smiled Mabel. 'Henry, isn't the radio the most educational force?'

Good-Bye, Old-Age Money

'ORCE is right,' I said, trying to smile, and then I held the paper up to my face and dozed through an exposition on where the various utensils should be placed on the table in relation to their courses, what simple dishes would suffice to make it imperative to have everything ever invented for the table, and how to carve without running into a skewer or scattering the painter ropes of the roast over the cloth. 'You ought to have learned a lot from that, Henry,' said my better or worse, when it was over and she had written down the address to which she was invited to write and request a book on table service. 'You know dear, before we have the Eltons to dinner or attempt to entertain the bridge club we simply must have new carvers and some salad forks.' 'According to that mine of intelligence who just signed off, the carving should be done in the kitchen,' I reminded her. 'And I do wish that we had bought then we could have those cute little bouillon spoons, but I suppose... and she broke off wistfully. 'Supposition sustained,' I agreed. 'They didn't suggest silver service plates. They must've forgotten that.' 'I knew there was something else,' she beamed. 'Now-a-days everyone has the loveliest service plates, and I want you to get me a set for my wedding anniversary,' and she put them on the memo list. 'It was my wedding too,' I reminded her beligerently. 'The service plates will be for both of us,' she said graciously, and I sat my brethren what can I follow do? Well, we heard the band from a leather tannery and that reminded Mabel that we'd have to have a new suit-case before we could take the week-end trip to the Springs, and after that a carpet company's contract reopened the sore subject of a new rug for the dining room and trees matting for the verandah. A fine concert of Irish songs from the Land of the Linn followed, and we discovered that our sheets and pillow cases were only good for bandages to use after we had attempted to save a couple of dollars by cleaning our own furnace pipes, as we did last year, and a travelogue by a famous tourist agency reminded Mabel of a long suppressed desire to bathe in the Ganges. 'We'll do that on the discreet travel we're to enjoy on the money you were going to save for our old age,' I suggested caustically, and then I tuned in on a motion picture theatre orchestra and thought I was saved, but Mabel looked up the film in the paper, and were going to-morrow night. I was just ready to call it a day when I happened to get a baritone of beauty and power who was singing 'When the Sands of the Desert Grow Cold,' and I shut my eyes and leaned back to drink it in. '... sung by Vincent Vintage of the Weture Wylie Company, manufacturers of the palest of dry-ginger ale and... 'Henry, couldn't you enjoy a drink of it right now, icy cold and appetizing?' asked Mabel archly, and I knew better than to argue. I struggled into my hat, coat, muffler, rubbers, gloves and pipe with her watchful wife eye upon me, and then, just as I went out the door and was about to shut it softly-behind-me, I heard a rich voice announcing that Miss O. Besity, succulent soprano of the Chosen Choralists of the Connoisseur Company, would favor her radio audience with: 'The Kind of a Perfect Day.' I saw Mabel rise from her chair, an eager look in her eyes, but I sneaked into the alleyway, and she must've thought I was Tom Long-bone's brother to have got so excited about it. I knew I'd get a calling down for leaving the door open, but I'm so used to little things like that that I don't mind it like I used to. 'I don't want you to get the idea that I'm a mean man, but even the price of a box of soap is getting something when you've got to pay an evening with someone who's got no talent, taking in a box of soap for

JULY BANK CLEARINGS SHOW
DECREASE
The bank clearings for the month of July, according to figures furnished by the Sherbrooke Clearing House, were $2,900,074.93, which is a decrease of $176,351.72 as compared with the same month last year, when the clearings were $4,076,926.65.
An increase of $154,187.49 is shown for the past month when compared with the corresponding month in 1925, when the clearings were $3,745,887.44.

SERVICES YESTERDAY AT TRINITY UNITED CHURCH
The subject of yesterday morn-ing's sermon in Trinity Church was "God's Need of Men of Vision." It was based upon the text from the prophecies of Jeremiah, "Son of Man, what seest thou?" During the service, in addition to the anthem by the choir, Mr. Rhys Lloyd sang
"If With All Your Hearts," from Mendelssohn's "Elijah." Announcement was made during the service that Rev. Dr. Road, of Plymouth United Church, will be in charge of the two United Church congregations throughout August, and that the services will be held in Plymouth Church. The Sunday School, however, will meet in their usual places of meeting. A strong announcement was also made concerning the addresses to be given by Rev. W. C. Poole, of London, England, in Trinity Church on Friday afternoon and evening of this week. Dr. Poole is one of the leaders this year, along with Rev. Dr.
F. B. Meyer, at Knowlton Conference.

The evening gathering in Trinity Church took the form of a Gospel song service, and was largely attended. In addition to the anthem, three quartettes, a solo by Miss Dorothy Dean, and a number of fine old hymns were sung. The address by Rev. Dr. Leason, which was brief, was entitled "The Last Hymn Jesus Sang," and was based upon Matthew 26, verse 30. The preacher explained to his congregation that because it was the Jewish custom to sing the "Hallel" (Ps.
118 to 136), in two parts at the Passover, it is almost certain that the song or hymn last on the lips of Jesus as he went to Gethsemane and Calvary was the 118th

BOYS' CONFERENCE
The seventh annual Eastern Townships Older Boys Conference will be held on September 30th to October 2nd, when it is expected that Mr. L. A. Buckley, the most popular leader of the past conferences, will be on hand also. Rev.
Norman Coll of the United Church of Canada, The Inter-High School Athletic Meet, which for the past four years has been run in conjunction with the Older Boys Conference, will be held on the Saturday afternoon, when it is hoped that teams from every High School in the Eastern Townships will be entered.

MR. KEENE'S PETS ATTRACT ATTENTION
Large and interested crowds could be seen during the past couple of days grouped about a fenced-in yard outside the automobile service station of Mr. Forest T. Keene at the corner of Wellington street south and Aberdeen avenue. The cause of the interest of the people was the new set of pets owned by Mr. Keene and kept in the little closed yard at his station. The pets consist of a little bear cub and several raccoons.
The bear is very friendly with his master and eats out of his hand quite contentedly. Bruin is tied with a long chain to a post and has a gun-dred of people have stopped to see him and the raccoons. Mr. Keene has had offers to buy the latter animals, but so far has refused them and says he may go in for breeding his new pets.

HEALTH OFFICER WARNS AGAINST THROWING
REFUSE INTO RIVER
Dr. A. Demers, city health officer, speaking to the Record this morning, called attention to the condition of the river banks in the city. Dr. Demers stated that for over a week the health department had spent much time cleaning up the river banks, along both the St.
Francis and Magog Rivers, and had removed all the refuse and rubbish which had accumulated there.
Shortly after the banks had been cleaned up, the health department continued their old custom of dumping their refuse into the river with the result that this morning, with low water in the rivers, the banks presented a very unpleasant sight.
Dr. Demers further pointed out that it is strictly against the law to dump garbage or any other refuse into the rivers and if the practice continued it will be necessary for the health department to take legal steps to put an end to the practice. Many warnings and notices have already been sent out by the health officer said.

BISLEY TEAM RETURNS
TODAY
Cups, prizes and medals won at the annual meeting at Bisley, England, of the National Rifle Association, during the past month, are aboard the Canard liner Auroria which is expected to dock at Mon-real this morning. They are the fruits of the efforts of the Canadian team which, drawn from all parts of the Dominion, won glory at the world's greatest service rifle shoot. And amongst the members of the team returning on the boat is a Lennoxville man, Private F. J.
Glas, member of the rifle team of the 1st Sherbrooke Regiment of this city. Others on board who shot at Bisley are: Brig.-Gen. J. Duff Stuart, commanding officer of the team, Major McManus, Lieut. Mc-Avity, young R.M.C. cadet, Sergt.
Besumont, Corp. Douglas, Sergt.
Emery, Sergt. Emalie, Sergt. Gray,
C.E.M. Hawkins, Pte. Holden, Pte.
Pond and Corp. Stock.

They are bearing with them two of the outstanding team prizes competed for at Bisley, the Kolapore Cup and the MacKinnon Cup, while among the individual prizes is the Prince of Wales prize, won by C.E.M. Hawkins, which is the greatest individual award except for the King's prize. And the Canadians have the satisfaction of knowing that one of their number, Lieut. D.

Oscar Archambault, Thirty-Two Years Old, Giving Staff of St.
Vincent de Paul Hospital Much Trouble—Was Found Unconscious at Little Lake Yesterday —Attack Came on Him While Bathing at Little Lake.

Refusing to eat or carry out a physician's orders because he fancied that an attempt will be made to poison him, a man calling himself Oscar Archambault, thirty-two years old, residence not known, is at present giving the staff of St. Vincent de Paul Hospital a great deal of trouble and will in all probability be examined as to his mental condition as the result of his peculiar notions and fancied grievances.
Archambault was brought to the hospital on Sunday afternoon after having dropped unconscious by the side of Little Lake, where he had been bathing. The man was very surlily and refused to answer many questions concerning his predicament, but from what can be ascertained it appears that he was on his way to Granby to visit a sister, and, on passing the lake, decided to go in for a swim. He had hardly reached the water when he felt dizzy and postponed his dip. Archambault had just completed clothing himself when he dropped unconscious. Nearby bathers at once went to his assistance and summoned Jalbert's ambulance, which took the man to the St. Vincent de Paul Hospital. What exactly is wrong with him has not been ascertained, for he is apparently in good health, though somewhat weak this morning.
It is understood that the local authorities will be asked to take Ar-chambault in charge following his discharge from the hospital.

PRINCE TO DRAW
FIRST TICKET AT TORONTO DEPOT
Imposing Ceremonies Will Mark
Opening of New Union Depot
Next Week.

QUEBEC, Aug. 1.—Tickets No. 1 from the New Union Station at Toronto will be issued to His Royal Highness, the Prince of Wales, a few minutes after the Royal train, drawn by the king of locomotives, made in Canada product from beginning to end—enters the station at Toronto.
The magnificent travelling home of the Prince, supplied by the Canadian Pacific Railway, will be drawn from Kingston to Toronto by a Canadian National Railway locomotive of the 6100 class, and immediately it comes to a standstill the Prince of Wales, accompanied by Prince George, Premier Stanley Baldwin and Mrs. Baldwin will walk across a carpeted way to the Canadian National Railway ticket office, and will, in the order named demand a railway ticket.
No. 1 will be issued to the Prince of Wales, No. 2 to Prince George,
No. 3 to Premier Baldwin and No. 4 to Mrs. Baldwin.
Then they will cross the hall and stop at the ticket wicket of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and demand transportation.
These same process will be gone through the first C.P.R. ticket issued from the Union station, bearing No. 1 will be handed to the Prince of Wales, and the others in the order previously named.
Thus in a formal manner will the two railways join in the opening of the Union station, a composite train, and the purchase of similar tickets at the two booking offices.

Combined Meeting of 1st Troop
Cubs and Scouts Thursday
A combined meeting of Scouts and Cubs of the 1st Troop will be held on Thursday evening next at which a "going up" ceremony will be held for one of the cubs who is entering the troop. The members of the Mothers' Auxiliary and the mothers of the boys are invited to attend.
A very enjoyable week-end camp was held by members of the 1st Sherbrooke Troop at Orford. On arrival, the boys climbed the mountain where camp was pitched and the night spent. Before their return to the city yesterday afternoon a bathing parade was held. The S.M. was in charge.

2ND TROOP MOTHERS' AUXILIARY HELD ENJOYABLE PICNIC
The members of the 2nd Troop Mothers' Auxiliary, together with their families gathered together on Saturday afternoon last for a most enjoyable outing. This, the first picnic ever held by this organization, was a great success, due in some measure perhaps to the excellent weather which prevailed.
The party left by truck and automobile from the headquarters of Bank Street at 1 o'clock and proceeded to Sangster's cottage at Little Lake Magog. Arriving there, a very happy afternoon was spent there amid ideal surroundings.
Swimming and games were indulged in, following which ice cream was served by Mrs. Bert Jones, vice-president of the Auxiliary, assisted by Mr. Jones and ladies of the Auxiliary.
The 2nd Troop officials wish to express their hearty appreciation to Mr. A. M. Sangster for kindly permitting the party to hold the picnic on his land, and to Mr. C. F. Waller for donating the ice cream.
Outdoor Programme for 2nd Pack An outdoor programme has been planned for the Second Pack meeting tonight, weather permitting.
If weather conditions do not permit, the Pack will hold an indoor meeting at headquarters commencing at 7.15 sharp. A.C.M. Hume will be in charge.

Miss Lottie Cromwell, twenty-three years old, daughter of Mr. F.
R. Cromwell, ex-M.P., and Mrs.
Cromwell, Cookshire, is in the Sherbrooke Hospital, suffering from injuries received on Saturday evening last at about eleven o'clock, when the car in which she was riding ran into a tree on the Sherbrooke-Quebec highway near Birch-ton.
According to accounts of the accident, Miss Cromwell, accompanied by her sister, Miss Evelyn Cromwell, and Messrs. Keith Hea-derson and Darel Darey, of this place, were returning to Cookshire from a drive. A truck was seen approaching in a zigzag fashion and Mr. Darey, who was driving, in order to avoid a collision, drove his car off the road, striking a large tree. Miss Cromwell, the other occupant of the front seat, was thrown into the windshield and was badly cut about the forehead and chin. A nearby farmer drove the party to Sherbrooke and Miss Cromwell was at once taken to the Sherbrooke Hospital. Dr. W. E.
Hume was summoned and on examining the cuts, found it necessary to take ten stitches. The other occupants of the car were not injured. The front part of the car was somewhat damaged.
Latest reports from the hospital are to the effect that Miss Cromwell is progressing favorably.

Ends Hygienic Worry
for Women Wearing
Thin, Summer Dresses
By ELLEN J. BUCKLAND
Registered Nurse
THE lovely flowered chiffons and pastel crepes of this season—one loves their gay lightness, but sometimes fears to wear them.
Kotex makes them safe. Filled with Cellucotton wadding, the world's super-absorbent, it ends the risk of old-time "sanitary pads" by being 5 times more absorbent!
Deodorizes, too. Discards easily as tissue; no laundry or embarrassment. And thus ends most women's greatest hygienic worries.
To 8 in 10 better-class women, Kotex means more than a mere sanitary pad—it means proved and positive scientific protection. See that you get the genuine.
If a name
"Kotex"
is not on the box, don't accept it.

Gentleman Usher at Buckingham Palace Has Fund of Stories About Great

FOR twenty-five years Mr. Percy Armitage has been a gentleman usher at Buckingham Palace. In that time he has had opportunities of meeting most of the exalted people of the day. He has also collected a fine store of information about the customs and traditions of our court, which is generally admitted to be the pattern upon which all other courts strive to model themselves. Added to these, Mr. Armitage has an excellent style as a raconteur, so that his book, "By the Clock of St. James's," is one of the most delightful of recent books of reminiscences.

Perhaps the most amusing and characteristic story told by Mr. Armitage is one about Lord Charles Beresford. He had received an invitation to stay at a great country house, and he telegraphed, "Sorry, can't come, lie follows by post."

It is a common remark how well-trained horses in royal processions must be to withstand the noise of booming cannon and blaring band. On one occasion, when parliament was about to be opened by Queen Victoria, Smith, the coachman, brought the coach and horses through the archway into the quadrangle of Buckingham Palace, and drew up before the Grand Entrance in magnificent style. Beckoning to Mr. Percy Armitage's father, who was in command of the guard of honor, Smith bent down and whispered:

"Will you do me a favor, colonel?"
 "Of course, Smith, if I possibly can."
 "Keep that big drum of yours quiet as we go out; the ponies are very fresh."
 "Yes; but, Smith, what would her majesty and the prince think of 'God Save the Queen'—without the big drum?"
 To which Smith replied: "I've got these 'orses in, but if that big drum of yours goes I don't know 'ow I shall get 'em out!"

A New Scottish Title

SCOTTISH lairds, especially of the minor variety, have a weakness to be known and addressed by the names of their estates. "Sir Frank Lockwood was once at a party in London where many of the guests were Scotsmen. Hearing several men who preceded him announced in this quaint Scottish fashion, Sir Frank astonished the butler by giving his name as 'Twenty-six Leanox Gardens and Lady Lockwood.'"

Another amusing story of the difficulties to which names sometimes give rise is the one about Sir James MacGarel Hogg, who, when he was made a peer, chose the difficult Irish title of Lord Magheramorne. A butler, who knew him well as Sir James, tried hard to make himself acquainted with the new title on his way upstairs. "The new peer repeated it emphatically several times, and the poor butler arrived at the drawing-room door thoroughly rattled; he solved the difficulty by throwing it open and announcing: 'The late Sir James Hogg!'"

Mr. Percy Armitage, in virtue of his abilities as organizer, was called upon in the course of his services at Buckingham Palace to make arrangements for all kinds of state visitors from all over the world. Some of these guests were Orientals and had no idea of European decorum. A certain Shah of Persia was a strict fruitarian, and at a luncheon party at Windsor he ate cherries and calmly dropped the stones on the carpet. Remarkably acute, he observed the other guests putting their stones on the plates, whereupon he began groping on the floor for those he had already discarded. It was an amusing sight to see a gorgeous royal footman, who at first probably thought his majesty had dropped one of his famous jewels, pick the stones up and solemnly hand them to the shah one by one on a salver.

Another eastern guest was Nasrulla Khan, heir apparent to the throne of Afghanistan. "During his stay he exhibited a mild mania for testing telephones, and wanted things put on the chimneys of the neighboring houses for this perfectly innocent, but rather tiresome, purpose."

Protecting the President

DURING the preparations for the state visit of President Loubet, King Edward came over with a large suite to see how the arrangements for the fitting up of York House for the president were getting on. "There were a number of empty bookcases about and, on his majesty's enquiring what was to be done with them, Sir Arthur Ellis informed him that I had planned to have them filled with French books. Whereupon the king called me up and said in a loud whisper, 'The French literature—not too loose—if you please.'"

"Everyone, including myself, laughed heartily, tickled by the idea of safeguarding the morals of good Monsieur Loubet."

Mr. Gunter, the well-known confectioner of Berkeley square, whose fees are famous, was extremely fond of sport. He subscribed to Grantley's Hunt, and was frequently out with hounds. "On one of these occasions Lord Alvanley, who happened to be riding beside the postchaise, turned to him and said:

"Mr. Gunter, that's a fine horse you are on."
 "He is, indeed, my lord," responded Gunter, "but he's so hot I can scarcely hold him."
 "Then," drawled his lordship, languidly, "why the devil don't you tee him?"

At a royal performance Sir Herbert Tree had to make a speech at the end. "He consulted everyone as to how he should begin it. Should he say, 'Your majesties, your royal highnesses, your graces, my lords, ladies and gentlemen' I have an idea that Tree, who loved to o'ertop old Fellon, had a sneaking fondness for the grandiloquent formula. We said, 'Better leave out 'your graces.'"

To this he agreed with some misgiving. It did not seem to him quite respectful to omit the first order of the peevage. Then he asked, "What did the court officials think?" At last he seemed to be persuaded that "May it please your majesties" would amply cover everybody. He wandered up and down in the wings muttering to himself, "May it please your majesties; may it please your majesties."

"At the conclusion of the program Tree walked on to the middle of an empty stage. This seemed to disconcert him completely. He bowed profoundly to the royal box and began, lamely, 'Ladies and gentlemen,' while Ellen Terry and I, convulsed with laughter, watched him from the wings."

SUSPICIOUS Friend: "Are you perfectly sure your husband does go fishing?"
 Wife: "Absolutely certain, my dear—he never brings home any fish!"

Sidelights on Men and Women in the Public Eye

Their Ages Total Nearly Four Centuries

Robert Fowler, over ninety-four years old and still in good health.

Left, Robert Moon, eighty-six years old.

Right, Joseph Carscadden, a centenarian.

John Buckley will be ninety-two years old next December. He came to Canada in 1854.

IT is doubtful if many sections of Canada can produce a quartet whose record will equal that of four citizens and ex-citizens of Ontario. The combined ages of the four is three hundred and seventy-three years, one of them has passed the hundred mark and two others are over ninety.

Joseph Carscadden, the centenarian, when a young man, resided in the Kendal district near Orono and with his own hands helped to clear the land in that region. He was married at the age of twenty-one in Peterboro, his wife having died

Archives Official Makes New Find For Canadians

Rocheport, He Discovers, Was Point From Which Orders Were Given for Dominion Activities

IT may come as a surprise, but Theodore Beauchesne of the Dominion Archives Department, Paris, has discovered Rocheport, near Bordeaux. At least it is a surprise to Canadians. Hitherto they have confined their interest in France to such historical places as Honfleur because Champlain sailed from that port; to Rouen because La Salle was christened in its cathedral; or to Dieppe because the first Canadian settler, Louis Hebert, came from that place.

Of course, if other parts of France were mentioned, Canadians thought of Troyes because Maisonneuve, the founder of Montreal, came from a neighboring village, Neuville-sur-Vanne; of Nîmes, near which at Vestris-Candiac, the Marquis de Montcalm was born; or of Saint Malo, a few kilometres from which in the manner of Limoulin, Jacques Cartier first saw the light of day.

Now Mr. Beauchesne comes along and tells us that those places are all right in their way, but the real, simple, historical spot for Canadians to visit is Rocheport. Besides they have seen the other places and it is time to have a new Mecca. Rocheport is to be the Mecca—just from now on.

The fact that it is one of the five military ports of France with an arsenal and strong coastal forts is but a detail. Ottawa has now more than 100,000 documents pertaining to the early relations between France and Canada. But the archives of the department of marine at Rocheport have been almost ignored.

"Contrary to general opinion," according to Mr. Beauchesne, "Rocheport has played an important role in the history of Canada. It was at Rocheport that armaments were turned out and there the minister gave his orders about everything concerning the colony. Officers and civil servants gazetted for service in Canada invariably embarked at Rocheport. And it was there Canadians who desired to become officers in the navy made their initial studies. Several finally located and founded a family in the city. Vaudreuil's home, for instance, still exists, as, indeed, does that of Admiral de Tilly."

Canadians must now visit Rocheport. If they go feeling about with a camera and cause a diplomatic incident all they have to do is to apply to Mr. Beauchesne to explain their legitimate curiosity.

While he was born in Carlton, Bonaventure county, Quebec, he was educated at the University of St. Joseph, New Brunswick. Therefore he loves good adventure and has that gift of languages which can meet all situations.

Robert Fowler, over ninety-four years old, came to Canada from Ireland in 1867 and settled in the township of Clarke. He is still in good health and this year took part in the Orange parade on July 12th. Mr. Fowler has been a member of the Orange order for almost eighty years.

Theodore Beauchesne, Dominion Archives Department, Paris

John Buckley was born in England, ninety-two years ago next December and came to Canada, settling at Bowmanville in 1854. He has been a successful farmer, residing in the township of Clarke and is now living retired with his daughter at Orono.

Robert Moon was born within half a mile of Orono, eighty-six years ago last February and is now living retired in the village. He has a large garden, which he takes care of himself and where there is not a weed to be seen. Mr. Moon's parents came from Yorkshire, England, nearly a century ago. Mr. Moon himself has the record of never having drunk a glass of whisky in his life.

"I have been writing to your paper for years telling you some of the good and bad things about farming," writes "The Hired Man," who sent in the pictures from Orono. "These men I send you pictures of, were all successful farmers, every one of them strictly honorable and whose word was as good as their note—I have seen men whose note nor word was no good, but these men are not that kind."

"Mr. Fowler is a life-long Conservative, Mr. Carscadden the same. Mr. Buckley and Mr. Moon are both reformers and every one of the four of them feel that the country is going to ruin unless their party is in power."

"I have been trying for years to convince people that Orono is a good place to live and that it is just four miles straight north from Newcastle. I had an old man tell me one time that this world was not much use to a man when his wife was a

PICTURES BY CANADIAN WOMAN ADORN MANY EUROPEAN HOMES

Duke of Cambridge and Other Noted Collectors Have Acquired Paintings From Brush of Vancouver Artist

TO have the work of one's life adorn many of the stately mansions of the world is the proud achievement of one western woman in the person of Mrs. Adelaide Langford of Vancouver, B.C., many of whose canvases are hung in old ancestral homes in Europe, the late Duke of Cambridge, Sir Augustus Nanton and other distinguished collectors having acquired her work throughout England, Canada and the United States.

Mrs. Langford, whose pictures bear the signature "Adelaide Langford," is the widow of the late Capt. H. A. H. Langford, and is a truly western artist of no mean ability. She is a student of the Slade school, London University, England, and is also a graduate of the Art Institute of Chicago, having studied under Frederick W. Freer, W. M. R. French and John D. Vanderpoel of Chicago, and has completed most of her work in the west. She inherits her artist gifts from parents and grandparents who were painters. She is the daughter of the late Thomas Gladwin Hurd, formerly of Toronto.

Mrs. Langford paints in a broad, free style, which has the distinction of the Barbizon school and marked individuality. She is a wonderful colorist and her canvases are truly decorative as well as restful. They are pictures which one can live with from day to day, finding added charm as they become more familiar. Among her recent works is an oil painting of the buffalo at Banff, Alta., completed just before the big drive when so many hundreds were extinguished. This hangs in the rotunda of the Royal Alexandra hotel in Winnipeg.

In an exhibit she is presenting now at Vancouver she is showing a painting of the Indian reserve at West Vancouver and the Indian village at North Vancouver; these are particularly attractive. She is also displaying her "Fraser Canyon," painted at Yale, B.C., where the waters roar and tumble hundreds of feet below the railway line, and which is one of the beauty spots of the Rockies. In this Mrs. Langford has shown her knowledge and understanding of the great outdoors. The collection also includes pictures of English and continental scenery.

Mrs. Langford lost her husband during service of the late war; her son also served for several years in the motor boat patrol in the North Sea as well as Russia on special service and in the Arctic, for which he was decorated by the British and Russian governments. Mrs. Langford's own charitable work will always remain in the minds of those who were closely associated with her during that time, and she was never at any time too engrossed in her own troubles that she could not find time to aid those less fortunate than herself.

Mrs. Adelaide Langford

ONLY WOMAN TEA-TASTER

There is a London woman who tastes no fewer than 300 samples of tea every day. She is Miss Margaret Irving, and she enjoys the distinction of being the only woman tea-taster in Great Britain.

"The opportunities for women in the tea-tasting business are very good," she says. "If a woman has the ability and a sufficiently delicate palate she might earn anything from $1,500 to $15,000 a year, but it will be about three years before her judgment will be sufficiently developed to be relied upon."

"Some tea is judged merely by its appearance. Other tea I can classify by the smell alone, and when it comes to tasting, all I do is to roll a teaspoonful round my mouth."

widow. Why not move here—this is one sure healthy place."

Ex-Premier Briand Was Whole Newspaper Staff

Did Composer's Work as Well as That of Editor, Delivery Boy, Pressman and Mechanic

FROM an obscure editorship to the premiership of France is a big jump, yet such is the record of Aristide Briand, who half a dozen times has been called on to head the French government in circumstances that made him perhaps the foremost statesman in Europe.

It is recalled by the Cri de Paris that as a young man M. Briand was a struggling attorney at St. Lazare when he resolved one day to start a newspaper, which should be progressive in tone and strive to stem the current of conservatism and reaction then seeming to dominate the community.

As a result of an energetic canvass he succeeded in raising a capital of 2,500 francs, divided into shares of from five to twenty francs each. The paper, which by the way is still in existence, received the imposing name of The Democracy of the West. M. Briand was not only its editor-in-chief, but also wrote all its contents, including local items and the inevitable feuilleton. Moreover he conducted its business department and was its circulation manager. In order to avoid the expense of employing a compositor, he set the type himself. Finally, when it came from the press, he personally delivered it to the subscribers, carrying a bundle of papers from house to house.

After a time he felt the need of better mechanical equipment, and seeing in a Paris newspaper the announcement of a forthcoming sale of the apparatus of a bankrupt journal, he hastened thither and for 300 francs bought the whole outfit. Then the question arose, how to get the machinery conveyed to St. Lazare? He had no money to pay for having it carted in the usual way, so he resorted to the laborious device of personally taking it apart and carrying the pieces to St. Lazare, where he put them together again. In this way he secured an adequately furnished establishment, in which his paper grew prosperous and influential, and thus materially contributed to his progress in public life.

GRAIN THAT STEAD SOWED TURNED INTO PLAIN OATS

THE law of association so universally applied as an aid to memory was very strikingly and humorously demonstrated quite recently when a number of Canadian authors were guests at a distinguished social function.

"I suppose there are a few novelists here today," ventured an Englishman of some distinction who was present on that occasion.

"Oh, yes," replied his informant, glancing around. "There is R. J. C. Stead who wrote 'Grain,' inclining his head in the direction of the author who stood a few paces away."

"Oh, indeed!" came the interested rejoinder. A few moments later the author of "Grain" was approached in a very friendly manner by the gentleman in question.

"I hear you are the author of 'Oats,'" said he, sidling up to Mr. Stead.

That gentleman's reply was inaudible.

THAT BROUGHT HIM

FIELD MARSHAL EARL HAIG tells an amusing story illustrative of the readiness and resource of the British "Tommy."

It concerns a bandsman on leave in London who had arranged to call on a chum from his own corps, also on leave, and living in a certain nearby suburb.

He knew the street, but had forgotten the number of the house, and he did not like to knock at every door until he came to the right one. A boy scout with a bugle passed along. Tommy seized the bugle.

"I'm looking for a chum," he explained. Then he blew his own regimental call, followed by the dinner call. As the last note died away a window was hastily flung up and a soldier's head was thrust out.

"Ah!" said Tommy, as he handed back the bugle. "Thanks! I somehow thought that would fetch him."

It Wasn't Natural

LITTLE Tommy was inclined to laziness, and seldom put his playthings away before going to bed.

His grandmother, who was staying the weekend, decided to correct the young man's slackness. So she began to tell him a story.

"Once upon a time there was a little boy who became very rich because he always put his toys away—"

"Right," said Tommy, who was a modern child. "I'll tell you a story now, granmle, dear: 'There was once a very pretty little pussy-cat—and it barked!'"

CANADIAN NOVELISTS IN THEIR WORKSHOPS

Tell of Their Own Methods—Each Has His Individual Way of Getting Down His Inspirations

AT the Canadian authors' convention held in Ottawa recently a peep was permitted into the intricate mechanism of a literary workshop where the author labors long and faithfully fashioning a literary pair of shoes with which to enable him to stand on his own feet when he takes the perilous leap on to the moving stair to success.

For he who has not been walled to the top on a magic carpet knows full well the difficulties of making a landing with a potential "best seller" or worst seller tucked under one's arm. And it was learned that if one would maintain his equilibrium, he must be stoutly shod and stout-hearted indeed to withstand the sudden jolts and backfire to which he may be subjected en route.

Mr. Robert Watson of Winnipeg, author of "Spoilers of the Valley," "The Girl of the O.K. Valley," "Gordon of the Lost Lagoon," and others, with that delightful accent borrowed from the home of the bagpipes, told how he plies his tools. "In writing a novel, I work around setting first," he said. Then when setting is supplied, the characters will come forward of themselves, born of that setting. And sometimes," he smiled, "a character whom I have not invited will happen along. Once I saw a character leaning over my desk. 'What do you want?' I enquired. 'I didn't ask you here.'"

"No, but I'm going to stay," he said. And stay he did. And with that admirable Scotch reluctance to waste not even so much as a character, Mr. Watson said, he popped him into the story. "And he was a good character," the author said, "and proved, in the estimation of some, to be the best one in the book."

Mr. R. J. C. Stead of Ottawa, author of "The Homesteaders," "Neighbors," "Smoking Flax" and "Grain," said:

"I write but once a week and then only for two hours, every Monday night, following my rest on Sunday from the vacation which I follow during the week. But in the interval I get my ideas pretty well assembled and ready to jot down without much revision."

To know one's market by studying the magazines and the advertisements therein which give one a cue to the type of story required is one of the greatest assets to literary success, Mr. Stead claimed.

Mr. J. Murray Gibbon of Montreal, who compiled and translated "Canadian Folk Songs (Old and New)," gave a delightful "humming" demonstration of how to get the tune in one's head before translating a poem. While Mr. Gibbon is the author of many books, his works as a translator of poems is particularly valuable, and it was upon this phase that he dwelt.

Mrs. Lillian Beynon Thomas of Winnipeg, who won a $500 prize for "Five Cents for Luck" in a recent short story contest, said:

"I have to write from 5,000 to 6,000 words in order to get an introduction of 1,000 words." Her belief that a character could not be properly developed in a 2,000 word story was endorsed by a very prominent New York editor who maintained that a character must have a breathing space of from 5,000 to 6,000 words in order to live. She believed that each country had a distinctive type of its own, and when that type was the product of a pioneer stock, one had a good story in the making, and one eagerly sought by editors.

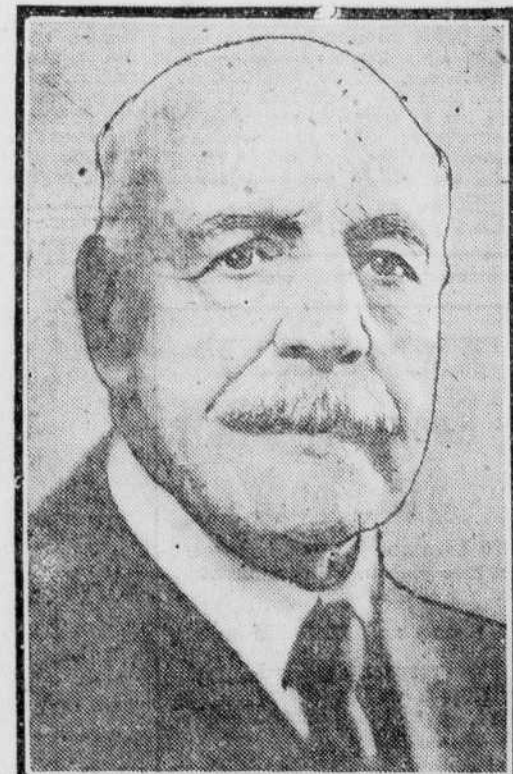

Former Bisley Commander Is Still Interested at 86

VANCOUVER this year supplied the commandant of Canada's Bisley team, Brigadier-General Duff Stuart. In the Pacific coast city, too, there is another Bisley team commander who despite his 85 years followed the fortunes of Canada's marksmen with keen interest.

He is Col. Alfred Markham, who is still serving his country as D.S.C.R. director at the Shaughnessy military hospital. Born in Lincolnshire, England, Col. Markham's arrival in the new world was marked with adventure. He was a passenger on the Bohemian which was wrecked off the Maine coast in 1864 with a heavy loss of life. He played a heroic role in rescue work, at the same time losing all his possessions.

After 25 years in New Brunswick during which he established the mining town of Markhamville and became colonel of the 8th New Brunswick Hussars, he went to St. John where in partnership with the late Dr. Scott he founded the St. John Star. In 1895 he commanded the Canadian Bisley team which carried off the Queen's Prize. He came to Vancouver in 1909. Although too old for military service in the great war, he was active in war work at home. Two sons and four grandsons were in the C.E.F., one of the former being killed.

MR. TRUMAN D. MERRILL, MARTINVILLE

The tragic death of Mr. T. D. Merrill of Martinville on June 24th, cast a deep gloom over the whole community. The funeral services were held from the United Church on the Saturday following. The service was conducted by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Fresque, of Compton, who spoke very feelingly from the scripture text, "At evening time it shall be light."

The Compton choir assisted by Mr. and Mrs. W. Rogers, Mrs. Richardson and Mr. C. Simons, of Bulwer, sang old familiar hymns. "The Beautiful Land" was very effectively rendered by Mr. and Mrs. Fresque, accompanied by Mrs. Fred Lundberg.

The casket was covered with beautiful flowers, tributes of love and respect from friends and neighbors. Interment was in the family plot in Martinville Cemetery.

A lifelong resident of the town, his passing leaves a vacancy which never can be filled.

DEATHS REPORTED

MRS. JOHN FREER, ABERCORN, QUE.

At Abercorn, Que., August 1st, 1927, there passed peacefully away one of the oldest and much esteemed citizens, Mrs. John Freer, after an illness of about two weeks.

She was tenderly cared for by her daughter, Mrs. J. Payne, where Mr. and Mrs. Freer have made their home for the past nine years. Mrs. Freer would have been ninety years old if she had lived until November 26th. Her husband, Mr. Freer, was ninety-three on April 10th, 1927.

Mr. and Mrs. Freer come from England in the spring of 1855 and brought their family with them, excepting two sons, who came the year before. They lived in Freighsburg a number of years and then moved to Abercorn about twenty-one years ago to be near their only daughter, Mrs. John Payne. Mr. and Mrs. Freer would have been married sixty-six years on September 21st next.

The deceased possessed a very amiable and hospitable disposition, greeting her many friends with an open hand and cheery word, which will be long remembered by them. She was a member of the Anglican Church.

The funeral was at her late home and was largely attended. Rev. H. Charters, of Sutton, officiating. Burial was in the new cemetery in Abercorn. The bearers were six grandsons, Messrs. George Payne, Kenneth Freer, of Richmond, Vt., John W. Payne, Abercorn, Richard Freer, Rochester, N.Y., Donald Freer, Cromwell, Conn., and Artie Raboty, Dunkin.

Mrs. Freer leaves to mourn the loss of a devoted wife and loving mother an aged husband, one daughter and four sons, besides grandchildren and many other relatives and friends. Those who attended the funeral from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Freer and son, of Cromwell, Conn.; Mr. Henry Freer and son, of St. Albans, Vt.; Mr. and Mrs. John Freer, daughter and nephew, of Morrisville, Vt.; Mr. and Mrs. C. Eirik, of Barre, Vt.; Mrs. T. Johnson and daughter, of St. Albans, Vt.; (Mrs. Johnson was a niece of the deceased); Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Freer and son, of Richford, Vt., and Mr. and Mrs. H. Eirik, of Richford, Vt.

MR. TRUMAN D. MERRILL, MARTINVILLE

The tragic death of Mr. T. D. Merrill of Martinville on June 24th, cast a deep gloom over the whole community. The funeral services were held from the United Church on the Saturday following. The service was conducted by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Fresque, of Compton, who spoke very feelingly from the scripture text, "At evening time it shall be light."

The Compton choir assisted by Mr. and Mrs. W. Rogers, Mrs. Richardson and Mr. C. Simons, of Bulwer, sang old familiar hymns. "The Beautiful Land" was very effectively rendered by Mr. and Mrs. Fresque, accompanied by Mrs. Fred Lundberg.

The casket was covered with beautiful flowers, tributes of love and respect from friends and neighbors. Interment was in the family plot in Martinville Cemetery.

A lifelong resident of the town, his passing leaves a vacancy which never can be filled.

of Martinville have been removed by death, but none who was more identified with the life of the place than Mr. Truman D. Merrill. Of a cheerful, kindly disposition his house was the home of hospitality, the gathering place of the young for social evenings, the resting place of the aged, the recruiting place of the convalescent and where the "home fires" were ever kept burning in the interests of the church and the good of humanity.

He leaves to mourn his death his wife, three sons, Messrs. Austin Merrill, of Camrose, Alta., Arthur, of Sawyerville, and Ray, who is at present at home, and two daughters, Mrs. W. P. Jordan, of Washington, D.C., and Mrs. M. P. Shtatman, of Hatley, also several grandchildren and a host of relatives and friends.

The sincere sympathy of all goes out to Mrs. Merrill and her family in their severe bereavement.

THE STAGE AND SCREEN

AT HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE

Raymond Griffith, the prince of laughs, will be seen at His Majesty's Theatre, today and tomorrow, in "You'd Be Surprised," a picture which is said to furnish nothing but laughs.

For Wednesday and Thursday of this week, patrons of His Majesty's Theatre will be offered for their approval, "What Every Girl Should Know," a Warner Brother production, featuring Patsy Ruth Miller.

This picture tells the story of three orphans, while there are also more than thirty roughneck kids in the piece and a number of other interesting people who add little things like love, hate, laughter or a good fight to this bright picture of youth. Featured are Ian Keith and Mickey McBan, the child-star. Others in the cast are Carmelia Geraghty, Carol Nye, Lillian Langdon and Hazel Howell.

For the last two days of the week and Sunday next, His Majesty's Theatre management will again carry out their usual week-end programme of a feature picture and five acts of high class vaudeville.

AT THE PREMIER THEATRE

"Bebe Daniels with a moustache!" The fascinating Bebe whose femininity has always been so characteristic a feature of her screen portrayals, is wearing a moustache, and wearing it effectively and with the utmost savoir faire, in "Senorita," a joyous, romantic comedy-drama, which will be shown at the Premier Theatre for the first three days of the week, beginning today.

In this picture Miss Daniels does not lose femininity, despite her moustache. She is still the fascinating Bebe. The moustache is but a part of the disguise that she assumes when she visits her father's ancestral home in South America to learn that her grandfather has always conceived her to be a boy, and that for him to learn otherwise at that late date would just about break his proud old heart.

And so Senorita Francesca becomes Senor Francisco with brief lapses into the feminine role—when her grandfather isn't looking.

A special attraction at the Premier Theatre on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, will be a new British film, "The Making of a King," in which the Prince of Wales appears. This picture will be run in conjunction with the regular programme. It is understood that the management of the Premier Theatre has received very favorable press clippings regarding this picture.

THE SOUND OF THE WHISPERING SEA

Summer by the sea; How restful and peaceful this sounds. There, under sunny skies, wandering at ease along the golden sands, the whisper of the incoming tide, all combine to make one's holiday the complete rest which is uppermost in everyone's thoughts. Those who for ever stay inland, have no idea how much they miss. We all love earth's green mantle, we all delight in scintillating colors, the running brooklets, and turbulent waters; yet, in spite of it all, there is nothing finer than sitting by the beach gazing out on that huge expanse of water, dreaming our day-dreams. Or, perchance, we may see in imagination, or yet in reality, the trusty old "Mayflower" coming slowly towards us, as in days of old.

representatives have been good enough to ask me to come.

"I can only assure them, and I do so very sincerely, that their offers of hospitality are no less valued by me than their hospitality itself would be if it were permitted me to accept it. But I am very glad, indeed, that it is going to be possible for me to cross the Rockies once more and to spend a few days on the Pacific Coast."

"Once more, Sir, I thank you and all in Quebec most sincerely for the welcome which has been given to my brother and to myself today."

Canada's Fortunate

"What we value most in coming over is this: We have a tremendous lot of problems in Europe, the legacy of the ages, problems that are peculiarly our own, and you are very, very fortunate that you have not these and can concentrate on the future."

"Sometimes progress seems slow. The war was a great blow to that progress, and we feel we can hardly get out of the fog sometimes."

"Over here is a new atmosphere, a new hope, and we shall go back full of confidence, we shall never lose confidence, and we shall try and speak it to others."

"Here everybody seems young, there is a youthful spirit abounding, and I hope that through it when we get back we shall be able to benefit the people there."

Mr. Baldwin's remarks ended here and he then asked whether any of those present would like to ask him questions.

Questions Are Asked

"It has been suggested that when here you might meet President Coolidge, and discuss the question of disarmament with him in order to try and arrive at a satisfactory conclusion."

The Premier raised his eyebrows ever so slightly.

"I have heard nothing of it," he replied, "and I cannot imagine that there is anything in it."

A question on the Disarmament Conference at Geneva followed.

"I have been at sea for a week," he answered, "and have been somewhat out of touch with things for the time."

"But I did not leave England until I was satisfied that the British delegates could go back to Geneva with a fair hope of arriving at a satisfactory conclusion. No efforts will be spared to reach that end on our part, and I feel confident that it will not be the fault of our delegates if the disarmament conference has unhappy results."

One reporter then asked him if he would care to say what he thought was the main difference made, since the War had been over for nearly ten years.

"I would take volumes to answer that," he replied, with a smile. "Ask a historian in fifty years' time: you might get a better answer."

In reply to another question he stated that he might discuss the position of affairs in England in a speech at some time later, and when another question was shot to him about the Disarmament Conference he again stated that he had been away for a week, leaving two days before the delegates went back to Geneva.

The final question was as follows: "We have had reports that there will be a re-education of the coal trouble in Great Britain; would you care to say anything on that?"

"There has been talk of that for months," he said, "but I do not anticipate it."

The audience then ended and the Premier went away to join the Prince of Wales and Prince George on the Government yacht Lady Grey, which by this time had reached the side of the vessel and was waiting to take the party to the shore, where the official welcome by the City of Quebec waited them.

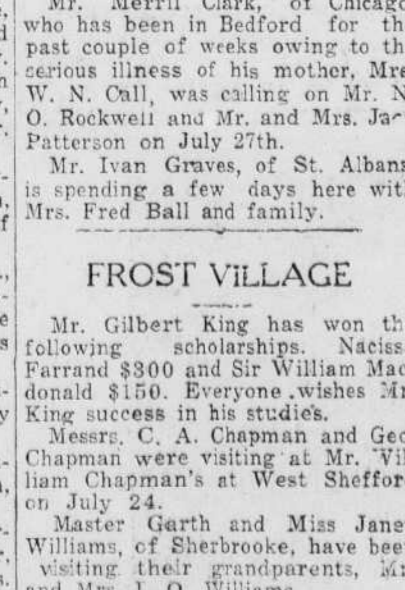

WHAT IS VACATION?

A brake on the wheels of life. Resting from labor, laboring for rest.

Two weeks' fudge after fifty weeks' drudge.

Two weeks' dolce far niente. Which we'd fain extend to twenty.

Disarmament Must Not Be Carried Too Far, Says Premier.

(Associated Press Despatch) SYDNEY, Australia, Aug. 1. - (Canadian Press Cable, via Reuters.) - In a speech at Maryborough, Victoria, Saturday, Premier Stanley Bruce, of Australia, said it was very important to Australia that the British Empire should not agree to any plan of disarmament which would imperil the supremacy of the British navy on the seven seas.

The chief efforts of the British delegates at Geneva, he stated, were directed towards the effective guarantee of the Empire's trade routes, and it was very important to Australia and if it was not assured Australia would be in a very desperate situation because it was necessary to send her produce over the seas to get the credit necessary to carry on Australia's trade life.

NEW YORK BISHOP PREACHES IN FRENCH CAPITAL

Criticizes Modern Tendency - Propaganda Going On Against Christian Morality.

(Associated Press Despatch) PARIS, Aug. 1. - Trial marriages, Paris divorces and other habits of modern day Americans were criticized yesterday by Bishop William T. Manning, of the Episcopal Diocese of New York, in a sermon at the American Cathedral of the Holy Trinity.

"We all know that there is going on at the present time open and shameful propaganda against the whole ideal of Christian morality and especially against Christ's teaching in sexual matters," said Bishop Manning.

"This attack on Christian morality has its full expression in Russia, where the avowed purpose is to destroy both morality and religion but it is going on with increasing boldness everywhere. It is doing its work in our literature, in the theatre, and even in some of our colleges and universities."

the other chief British delegate, Lord Cecil.

The British emphasized a desire for a public session, Lord Cecil being anxious to appeal to the opinion of the world not to let the naval conference separate without an agreement. It is the belief of the British according to the best information that a public debate would clear the atmosphere, and that even if no agreement resulted, the road might be smoothed for later meetings which might be finally successful.

CHICAGO CUBS MOVE NEARER TO LEADERSHIP

While Pittsburgh Pirates Were Idle Yesterday, Chicago Cubs Moved to Within a Half Game of Leadership—Yankees Halted by Rain and Will Play Double Header With Cleveland Today.

(Associated Press Despatch) NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—They are still working for one of the National League leaders to crack, but the first day of August found the select group of three making way for another contender—the Giants. While the Pittsburgh Pirates were idle yesterday, the Chicago Cubs moved to within a half game of the leadership. The McCarty Bruins slammed the ball to all corners of Wrigley Field and crowned Philadelphia 12-5. Charley Root hung up his eighteenth pitching victory of the year, while Pruetz and Decatur of the Phillies were ineffective.

The Giants by trimming the Cardinals, before a Sunday crowd of 25,000, made it four out of five games from the road trip to date. McGraw's club put on a typical late-inning rally to beat the Red Birds 7 to 5.

A home run by George Harper with the bases full in the eighth transformed a tight pitching duel into a slugfest. The Cards scored a run each in the sixth, seventh, eighth and ninth, but Virgil Burns tightened up in the pinches and allowed several threatening rallies.

When the Cincinnati Reds broke even in a double-header with Brooklyn, they ran their winning mark to sixteen victories in the last twenty starts. Cincinnati kept a half game ahead of the Dodgers. The Chicagoans took the opener 6-2, and dropped the second, 3-2 in ten innings. Adolfo Luque had the better of Jess Petty in the first game, although Brooklyn out-hit its rival.

Ford, Cincinnati shortstop, booted a double play in sight, but fumbled the ball on Stutz's drive. Horace Lisenbee set back the Detroit Tigers 7-2, in the only game played in the American League. Washington pounded three Detroit pitchers for ten hits, while Lisenbee was holding the opposition to five safeties. It was the third straight victory for the Senators over Detroit.

The Yankees were halted by rain and will play a double-header with Cleveland today.

TWO DRAWS AND VICTORY FOR 'Y' ON SATURDAY

Windsor Drew With Angus and Beebe With Magog in League Fixtures—Q.C.R. Lead Cut Down to One Point Over Magog Now—"Y" Defeated Regiment.

Quebec Central still leads the E. T. Football League as a result of Saturday's games, but their lead has been cut down to a single point over Magog. The latter hoped to even the score and join the Railroaders in the leading position, but only managed to tie Beebe and so only advanced one point.

It was in Magog that Beebe and the textile boys played, and the game was close throughout and resulted in a one to one tie. The referee was Mr. W. R. Southgate.

Windsor Mills sprang a mild surprise by putting up a fine contest in East Angus, and held down the boys who were playing at home to a 2 to 2 draw. The referee at this struggle was Mr. J. Plunkett. Angus and Y.M. are now tied for third place.

The score for Y. M. was 4 to 1 in Saturday's game with the Sherbrooke Regiment, but the game was not nearly as uninteresting as might be thought, for it was a good game nearly all the time, and in the second half was close, with the winners able to add only once to the large count which they had rolled up in the first. A good-sized crowd assembled on the Parade Grounds and they were awarded by seeing a neat display of soccer.

The Y. deserved their victory, though hardly by the large margin which they actually got. In the first half they had a clear edge over the soldiers all the time, but in the second it was close and the Regiment should have had another goal or two. Luck was against the losers, though the Y. also had a few instances of hard luck. The Y. played a nice combination game, the best in fact seen on the local field for several weeks. The soldiers showed decided improvement in their play and more combination, but lacked the punch which the others possessed and which sent them ahead to a win. The winners on the whole put in the best game they have for some time, while the Regiment was also satisfactory to its supporters, who had been disappointed in them of late.

Stoyles' work in the other nets. Play was carried down to the other end and Lougheed made a fine save from Bennett's hard shot. The soldiers again took the ball up to the other end and kept it in that territory for some time. Only the keen work of the Y. defence saved a score or two. Near the close of the game there was a mix-up in the 53rd goal in which Lougheed stopped good shots.

The whistle blew with the score 4 to 1. The Teams were: Y.M.C.A. goal Lougheed Stoyles back Beebe Lavery Pearce back Rice Wooten " " Webb halfback Buck Smith " " Bullock " " Alfred forward Miller Robertson " " Steer Maule " " Robertson Tiltan " " Smich Bennett " " Twyman Referee, A. Davidson.

SHERBROOKE ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION Tomorrow night's most important meeting of the Sherbrooke Athletic Association will be held in the Y.M.C.A. to consider and discuss resolutions of the Executive Committee and make preparations for the season's activities. Every member of the association should be on hand as also all desiring to make the teams this year.

LIFTS HIS WINGS

Captain Leslie Hamilton (above) and Colonel F. F. Minchin, British airman, plan to take wing from Clifden, Ireland, to New York. On their return trip they plan to fly to Vienna, thus establishing a new distance mark. A plane escort will accompany the fliers from the Irish coast far out to sea.

ing daunted kicked it up over his head in perfect manner so that it dropped down almost on the foal line and bounced in. The Regiment carried play down the field, but the Triangle defence stopped the rush and took it back again. Maule was going at a great rate and made his second goal when in a scramble he took the ball away and knocked it in to make it 3 to 1 for the Y.

The 53rd were now pressing hard and working good combination, though they had waited too long and it was only the strong defence against them that kept them off.

Close Second Half In the first few minutes of play after the half-time recess, the Y. scored its fourth and last goal. There was a melee in the Regiment goal and Lavery managed to kick the ball away from his citadel a few feet. But it was not far enough and Maule, who had brought it up with Robertson, got it again and sent it past Lougheed, Y. 4, Reimant 1.

The dark red and blue were now making flashy attacks and made Stoyles' work in the other nets. Play was carried down to the other end and Lougheed made a fine save from Bennett's hard shot. The soldiers again took the ball up to the other end and kept it in that territory for some time. Only the keen work of the Y. defence saved a score or two. Those Dempsey Blows as the Camera Saw Them

As Dempsey pulls back his left, Sharkey's knees give way and he starts falling for the count.
