World News In Brief

Ottawa, June 6.—(CP)—Here's Labor Minister Gregg's theory on how to choose a career:

With guidance and counselling for a 16 or 17-year-old high school graduate should pick his future career and then go out for about two years and work at what he can get in that general field. Then, if he still has the urge, go back and start at a university.

Mr. Gregg, speaking last night to delegates to the sixth annual conference of University Advisory Services, told guidance and placement experts from 13 Canadian universities that if they agree with this theory "your main task will be to persuade the doting parents."

Paris, June 6—(AP)—The Big Three Western powers are expected to hand Russia their answer today to the qualified Russia acceptance of the west's invitation to a Big Four Foreign Ministers meeting.

The answer to Russia's note is due to be handed here to Andre Gromyko Soviet Deputy Foreign minister. Gromyko two days ago agreed to hold a Big Four meeting in Washington July 23—as proposed by the west—but only on condition that the North Atlantic treaty and U.S. bases overseas be discussed at the conference.

Taipeh, Formosa, June 6—(Reuters)—The Chinese Nationalist government today accused Chinese Communist authorities at the mainland coastal port of Swatow, opposite Formosa, of recently executing nine local newspaper men.

A military spokesman said altogether 20 newspaper men had been arrested. The fate of the remaining 11 was not known.

London, June 6—(Reuters)—British miners dug nearly 3,000,000 long tons more coal in 22 weeks this year than during the same period in 1950, the Ministry of Fuel announced last night. In 21 weeks this year, exports totalled 2,399,000 tons compared with 6,452,000 tons in the same period in 1950.

Edmonton, June 6—(CP)—Police across the country today were asked to watch for cloth bootleggers attempting to dispose of $28,000 worth of imported fabrics stolen from a downtown Edmonton tailoring establishment. Enough material for 800 suits was stolen while racks of finished clothing, desk drawers and the store safe were left untouched. Police said the robbers could find a market "among smaller tailors in other cities."

United Nations Troops Make Minor Gains Despite Stiff Red Resistance And Mud

Advances Of Mile Or Two Are Reported But Censorship Curtain Cloaks Details.

By OLEN CLEMENTS

Tokyo, June 6.—(AP)—United Nations troops smashed forward a mile or two today through Korean mud and communist defences.

Tight censorship blacked out just what happened. Or how close allies pressed to the vital Red Chorwon - Kumhwa - Pyonggang triangle facing the central front.

Censorship often screens important battlefront actions.

Eighth Army troops gained one to nearly two miles around Yonchon on the western approaches to Chorwon.

A tank patrol stabbing out toward Chorwon, probed 2½ miles in front of allied lines. It ran a gauntlet of heavy fire from communists dug in along ridges on both sides of the road.

On the eastern approaches to the troop and supply triangle, Reds pulled back as much as three miles between Hwachon and Kumhwa. They withdrew to stronger defences under cover of night, protected by small rear-guard forces.

U.N. troops followed cautiously. They combed the wooded hills as they moved up, taking no chances of walking into a Red trap.

The Eighth Army gave this picture of the front Wednesday:

West: Only patrol action on the the dragging left flank south of the 38th parallel. Gains of up to two miles near Yonchon, six miles north of the border.

Centre: U. N. forces gained a little more than a half mile in the Yongpyong area; one to two miles to the east and northeast. Limited gains were made in the Hwachon area.

East: Reds put up heavy resistance north and northeast of Yanggu at the eastern end of Hwachon reservoir. This was the communique's only reference to heavy resistance.

AP correspondent George A. McArthur said fierce fighting flared all along the eastern sector from Yanggu to Inje.

North Koreans, fighting stubbornly from their dugouts in the hills, held attacking allies to slight gains above Yanggu.

The Fifth Air Force reported that with a let-up in the rains it mounted 456 air strikes during the day. Pilots complained a low haze hampered their effectiveness.

The Eighth Army described virtually all ground fighting as light to moderate.

Field reports said allies were less than 10 miles from Chorwon, western gateway to the wide and long Pyonggang valley. The flat lands beyond the rugged ridges over which the infantry men are fighting, is ideal tank country.

The Pyonggang valley leads almost due north to the east coast port of Wonsan, which allied naval guns have battered daily for nearly four months.

Clearing weather opened the way Wednesday for planes to get at Red troops concentrated in a defence arc around the triangle.

Air force and navy planes got through low clouds and rains Tuesday for 845 sorties, mostly against Red supply areas to the north.

Three days of rain slowed the slogging ground advance. Roadway churned by tank tracks, were channels of slimy mud.

Tightening censorship prevented correspondents from indicating how close allies moving up the mucky road from Hwachon had approached to Kumhwa.

They were about 12 miles away at Chipo on the southwestern approach.

A closer pincer tightened on Chorwon. U.N. forces were about 10 miles distant.

As they advanced they ran into heavier artillery fire and bigger mine fields.

Strong Red defence of both Chorwon and Kumhwa is expected. Field officers said if either city falls, the other is doomed by swift moving allied tanks and armor able to manoeuvre on the level ground.

Reds hit back in four counter-attacks Tuesday. Three were on the U.N. east flank. They were beaten back. But in the far west one allied force was driven back a short distance near Korangpo, south of the 38th parallel.

Resistance in the west and central sectors was officially described by the Eighth Army as light to moderate Tuesday.

Guidance Of Government Sought On TV

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, June 6—(CP)—Canadian broadcasters look to the federal government for some guidance regarding the development of television as result of recommendation of the Massey royal commission of arts.

Officials of the publicly-owned CBC plan to proceed with the development of TV stations in Montreal and Toronto. Further expansion likely will stem from action by the government and by Parliament.

Some persons connected with privately-owned radio stations say the future depends on whether the government accepts the majority or minority report of the commission, headed by Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey of Toronto.

Prime Minister St. Laurent has said the government will study the report in the next few weeks. He indicated legislation will be presented to Parliament at a fall session.

Private broadcasters favor the minority report of Dr. Arthur Surveyer of Montreal. He recommended that a separate body—to be known as the Canadian broadcasting and telecasting control board—be established to supervise both privately and publicly-owned broadcasting and telecasting stations.

Four other members of the commission, including Mr. Massey, recommended that the CBC retain control of both private and public broadcasting and telecasting Some private operators said the majority report made an "unrealistic and impractical" approach to television development.

They said they were not clear in some instances on what the majority mean. For example, the majority recommended that "no private television broadcasting stations be licensed until the CBC has available national television programs and that all private stations be required to serve as outlets for national programs."

A spokesman for the commission explained this did not mean the CBC should have a network of TV stations across Canada before a private operator is allowed in the field. The commissioners felt no private stations should be licensed until the CBC can supply at least a percentage of their programs.

The commissioners did not say what percentage of CBC programs private stations should be obliged to carry or when they should be carried.

The spokesman said it will be possible for the CBC to provide

Conscription Is Urged By Gen. Potts

Ottawa, June 6.—(CP)—The commander of Canada's 6th division in the second world war says it is imperative that Canada bring its reserve forces to full strength now—and not tomorrow.

Maj.-Gen. A. E. Potts, who gained fame and the nickname "Pirate" as leader of the Canadian raid on Spitzbergen, last night called for conscription of manpower for Canada's reserve troops.

He told 200 former C.W.A.C. officers and other ranks at their annual reunion that the army's method of gaining recruits by press and radio campaigns isn't good enough.

The 60-year-old veteran of two world wards and now in charge of veterans affairs at Kingston, Ont., drew prolonged applause from his feminine audience.

The former C.W.A.C.'s also responded favorably to several new features which will be incorporated in uniforms for the Canadian Women's Army Corps reserve when it launches its expected recruiting drive soon.

The uniform retains the peak cap, brass buttons, form-fitting jacket, brown tie and shoes to match. But the skirt is three inches longer; nylons replace wartime rayon hosiery. The greatcoat is padded for extra warmth and a near-green khaki gabardine coat replaces the rubberized raincoat.

"We're ready to join just as soon as they want us," a group of C.W.A.C.'s said.

Maj.-Gen. Potts in his address said it is a "pathetic sight" to see a reserve force unit on parade today.

"For years our reserve force commanders and officers have been trying every possible means to cajole men into joining their units . . . for the most part it is a dismal failure."

"I am convinced we will not bring our reserve forces up to strength by these means. I am equally convinced that it is imperative that we bring these forces up to strength now — not tomorrow.

"I believe that the only way this can be done is by some form of compulsory service."

$1,000,000 Blaze

A spectacular oil-fed fire destroyed a 150-foot section of the Army's big Central Ordnance Depot in Ottawa, second largest depot in Eastern Canada. Forty firemen were overcome by the smoke as huge stocks of equipment including oil, alcohol, paint and ammunition were blown skyward in a series of explosions. It took firemen and volunteers nearly all Saturday night to bring the fire, in the centre of the capital, under control. Loss was estimated at $1,000,000. (CP Photo)

Canada's Papers Should Get Favored Price For Newsprint, Premier Says

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Quebec, June 6.—(CP)—Premier Duplessis, of Quebec, suggested last night that newspapers of Canada, the pleace where newsprint is produced, should have special consideration in the matter of price.

And he broadly indicated that if Canadian newspapers, or, at least province of Quebec newspapers, did not receive this consideration, he would consider some form of control. He made his suggestion in a dinner address to the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

Quebec, he said, speaking in English, produces 51 per cent of all newsprint made in North America, and added that it is only "common sense" that newspapers here receive different treatment from that accorded newspapers elsewhere.

The Premier, though he did not mention a recent $10 a ton increase in the price of newsprint announced by a number of companies, apparently was referring to it. He did not indicate what sort of control he might have in mind, but newsprint companies lease their timber limits from provincial governments.

The $10 increase, effective July 1st, would put the price of newsprint at $116 New York base, and $112 in Canada, in line with a traditional $4 a ton difference in the two countries. As Canadian newspaper pay a federal 10 per cent sales tax, their total price comes to around $122.

Canada produces about 5,400,000 tons of newsprint, of which nearly 90 per cent is sold in the United States.

The Premier's address to the manufacturers came after they had spent a day listening to Production Minister Howe and government officials outline a gigantic program of activity in defence and the opening up of natural resources.

Mr. Howe said the government will directly spend about $1,000,000,000 a year for the next three years in defence production, while private industry will spend $1,500,000,000 in bringing strategic materials into use.

H. J. Sissons, director, priorities division, department of defence production said priority regulations announced a fortnight ago are in reality priority powers, so that action can be taken only to the extent that it is necessitated by day-to-day developments.

He advised industralists, because of the state of steel supply, not to embark on any construction whatsoever if it can be avoided.

Frost Urges Action On Seaway

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., June 6.—(CP)—Premier Frost of Ontario says Canada must be prepared, if necessary, to go ahead with the St. Lawrence seaway without United States assistance.

Addressing the annual Chamber of Commerce banquet in this booming northern Ontario steel-producing city of upwards of 32,000 persons, he said last night that Ontario should be ready to help build an all-Canadian canal and enter into a joint arrangement with New York state for use of St. Lawrence power.

Ontario would need an additional 1,500,000 horsepower within five years and its development would take all that time.

Mr. Frost said that if the Canadian government decides to undertake the project, it can count on the full co-operation of Ontario and of its hydro commission.

"I, of course, would express the hope that the American government would go into partnership with us. I have great admiration for our neighbor."

(Almost as he spoke, a Detroit delegation said in Toronto that five states on the Great Lakes had started discussions on the legality of joining with Canada in the work of building the seaway.)

The Premier revealed plans to link this district's iron ore properties with the Trans-Canada highway in a move to expand Canada's steel industry.

He said the iron-mining centres of Wawa, Hawk Junction and Michipicoten Harbor, about 190 miles north of here, "will be will and reasonably connected with the Sault." Aerial and ground surveys were being carried out to pick the best route.

"We have had some spectacular developments in Labrador and Steep Rock, but still I am inclined to the view that probably Algoma is greater than them all."

Los Angeles, June 6—(AP)—Clark Gable yesterday turned his fourth wife's divorce suit into a court battle. He filed an answer denying her charges and cruelty and contesting her claim to community property. The actor said the former Lady Sylvia Ashley has a fortune of more than $1,000,000 and needs no financial aid from him.

Acheson Goes Before U.S. Senate Again

Washington, June 6 — (AP) — State Secretary Dean Acheron received a chance today to reply to a Republican's charge he distorted his account of administration Far Eastern policies.

Acheson, testifying in the Senate inquiry into the dismissal of Gen. Douglas MacArthur as Pacific commander, has spent much of the last two days reviewing American policy toward China.

The Cabinet member was recalled to the stand before the Senate armed services and foreign relations committees. It seemed likely he would be asked to reply to an accusation by Senator Owen Brewster (Rep. Me.) of "bare faced distortion" in some of his testimony.

Brewster applied that term to Acheson's statement that a report of Lt.-Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer—the committees' next witness—had only mentioned the "desirability" of giving American military aid to Chiang Kai Shek's nationalists in their civil war with the Chinese communists.

Senator Wayne Morse (Rep. Ore.) said Acheson "is laying out a cold, logical case, but he ought to punch harder."

"He ought to hit hard enough to show the American people clearly that the issue is whether to put into effect immediately policy that means a war before we are prepared for it, or to prepare ourselves and then give Russia the opportunity to sit down

Postal Rates For Papers Protested

Quebec, June 6—(CP)—A special committee appointed by the Canadian Daily Newspapers Association to interview Postmaster-General Rinfret concerning postal rates issued a statement yesterday declaring the new rates are "discriminatory" and "would prevent the daily newspapers from servicing a large number of their rural subscribers."

The statement was issued by A. F. Mercier, general-manager of Quebec Le Soleil and chairman of the special committee which saw Mr. Rinfret Monday in Ottawa.

The committee urged the postmaster-general to defer final adoption of a new postal act increasing mailing charges for newspapers and periodicals.

Mr. Rinfret said the delegation wanted deferment of third reading of the bill until it could present a brief containing suggestions for modification of terms. He could not agree with the request.

The C.D.N.A. special committee statement included text of a letter to Mr. Rinfret dated June 4 in which the association members "express their appreciation of your courtesy in meeting their committee this morning and trust you will find it expedient to defer this matter pending the submission of a written argument in support of the newspapers' case."

Quebec, June 6— (CP) —Two French-language afternon dailies, Le Soleil and L'Action Catholique, said yesterday in a joint telegram to Prime Minister St. Laurent and Postmaster-General Rinfret that new postal rates, up for third reading in Parliament, "strikes arbitrarily" at them.

Telegrams of protest were also dispatched to the Prime Minister and Mr. Rinfret by Mayor Lucien Borne of Quebec and the Retail Merchants Association, Quebec section.

Mayor Borne's telegram said the postal increase "does not seem equitable" while the Quebec merchants said it was "unreasonable and discriminatory."

Both telegrams asked that the new rates not be put into effect.

Le Soleil and L'Action Catholique said in a three-point telegram drawn up in French:

"1. According to the post office department, the new rate of four cents a pound for the transportation of dailies in Canada would produce annual additional revenue of $1,000,000, another $1,000,000 coming from weeklies and magazines.

"2. Of this additional $1,000,000 revenue two newspapers, Le Soleil and L'Action Catholique would be called upon to pay nearly ¼, $113,000 in the case of Le Soleil and $120,000 in the case of L'Action Catholique.

"3. If it is considered there are about 100 dailies in Canada, it is evident that the sharing of this new postal rate strikes arbitrarily at Le Soleil and L'Action Catholique.

"We hope that in the circum-

Detroiters Are Adjusted To Transportation Woes

Detroit, June 6—(AP)—Detroit, fifth largest city in the United States, with a population of 1,838,000 persons, has been without mass public transportation for more than six weeks.

The April 21 strike of 3,500 Detroit street railway employees left 1,000,000 week-day riders to find transportation as best they could.

Yet it was hard to tell that a better transit strike was on.

There were signs of disruption. Hitchhikers dotted occasional street corners. Downtown parking lots were jammed.

In downtown stores, business dropped perhaps 10 per cent. "Cocktail hour" bars were hard hit, and major repair work in garages tapered off sharply.

Almost every individual, too, reported some adjustment in his life. A waitress spent money for taxi fares; a worker got up earlier to share a ride; a housewife planned her shopping differently.

Such adjustments, repeated thousands of times, largely defeated the impact of the strike.

Peace talks between the city of Detroit, operators of the municipally-owned system, and representatives of division 26, street car and bus operators union (A.F.L.), moved into the courts before an arbitration plan this week brought hope of settlement.

When the strike began, the chief issue was wages. The union sought a 7½-cent raise, similar to that given other city employees.

Mayor Albert E. Cobo, pointing to the system's loss of $304,000 in eight months, said it couldn't afford such a boost. He offered a five-cent raise on condition that the union surrender an equivalent amount in so-called "fringe" benefits. These were said to bring a driver's pay to $2.55 an hour, from a base of $1.67½.

The union indicated that it would discuss other problems, but insisted on the raise. Its members voted four to one for a strike.

The strike was unpopular. Besides the more or less usual gripes about poor service, riders had seen their fares increase from five cents in 1942, to 15 cents in May, 1950. There was, perhaps, more than a normal amount of resentment against the system and the strike focused it on the drivers.

Detroit city council voted to invoke the state's 1947 Hutchinson act, forbidding strikes in public utilities.

The act, never tested, provided for the firing of strikers. It stipulated that they could be rehired only on reapplication, and must be placed on probation for two years. They also would forfeit all pay increases and seniority rights for one year.

On April 26 the city notified 3,500 of the drivers that they were fired. This quickly became the biggest stumbling block in the way of a settlement. The union maintained that the act was unconstitutional and did not apply.

Downtown business stores have resorted to unusual tactics to keep up their business during the strike.

There was a rash of "transportation" sales, with special bargains to lure shoppers downtown. Some stores remained opened Monday and Thursday evenings.

One large store took over television time A "shopper" went through the store, followed by the TV cameras. She explained the good points of various items. The viewer then could telephone the store and have the item delivered. Telephone sales expanded greatly.

The taxi cab business, naturally, boomed.

In addition to the 3,500 strikers, approximately 1,800 maintenance men and 350 clerical workers were idle. By the 43rd day, the strikers' losses in wages had amounted to $1,981,000, or an estimated $535 per man. The net revenue loss to the system was estimated at $1,409,700.

New Vote System To End Coalition

Edmonton, June 6—(CP)—Finance Minister Herbert Anscomb of British Columbia said yesterday the coalition form of government will automatically end in his province when a bill providing for the single-transferable vote in provincial elections is proclaimed.

Mr. Anscomb, also provincial leader of the Progressive Conservative party, said his party will continue to support the coalition until dissolution of the present Legislature in about three years time.

Montreal Police Puzzled By Discovery Of Jewels

Montreal, June 6— (CP) —Were the $100,000 in jewels belonging to the Hollywood producer's wife lost, stolen or both? That's the question tickling the curiosity of Montrealer's today.

Police recovered the jewels in a baggage locker yesterday. But after that fact and the few others police would release, the case took on the tinge of a magazine detective thriller.

These are the facts as police told them last night. Mrs. Archie L. Mayo, wife of a Hollywood movie producer, reported yesterday her jewels were stolen.

Somehow, police wouldn't say how, this led chief of detective Wilfrid Bourdon to question a "foreign woman" in the midtown hotel where Mrs. Mayo had been staying. Meanwhile, Mrs. Mayo left town for New York.

While questioning the "foreign woman," police said they found a baggage locker check in the bottom of a chocolate box. They said the woman had tried to go to the bathroom with the chocolate box during the questioning.

The locker check led to the locker where the jewels were found in a chamois bag. They include diamond-studded wrist watches, platinum earrings, diamond bracelets and several other items.

Police said the "foreign woman," whom they declined to identify, told them she found the jewels on a settee yesterday in the hotel where Mrs. Mayo had stayed.

They quoted her as saying two women sat down beside her in the hotel lobby and when they left, she noticed a chamois bag which she picked up and took with her.

All police would add to this was that they were not holding the "foreign woman," that she had booked passage for Europe on a passenger liner and that their investigation was continuing.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Mayo was coming back from New York to identify all the jewels, police said. Chief of detective Bourdon said some items had not yet been "all directly identified." But "most of them have been identified by Mrs. Mayo."

Montreal, June 6.—(CP)—International Paper Sales Company Incorporated last night announced a $10 ton increase in the price of its newsprint, effective July 1st.

The boost brings the price to $116 a ton in New York and $112 in Canada where there is an additional 10 per cent sales tax.

The announcement was the fourth by newsprint companies since last week.

Abitibi Power and Paper Company, Toronto, was the first to announce the $10 increase. This was followed by similar announcements by Consolidated Paper Corporation, Montreal, and Anglo-Canadian Pulp and Paper Company, Limited, Quebec.

The Powell River Company in British Columbia has announced it plans to increase the price of its newsprint. The announcement did not specify the amount.

International Paper's announcement of the price increase to clients said in part:

". . . we would like you to know that present costs of manufacture have increased by more than this amount ($10) since November, 1950, when our newsprint prices were last adjusted."

Opposition Fails In Bid To Alter Tax Proposals

Ottawa, June 6.— (CP) —Opposition groups tried unsuccessfully in the Commons yesterday to have the federal government alter 1951-52 tax proposals.

Some members protested against increases in the sales and excise taxes, others sought to have an excess-profits tax imposed on corporations to relieve the income-tax burden on persons in the low-income group. The government—once with the aid of the Progressive Conservatives—rejected suggested changes.

Finance Minister Abbott said revenues are needed to meet additional defence expenditures and the government has tried to spread the burden as evenly as possible.

The official opposition voted with the Liberals to defeat 129 to 19 a C.C.F. motion calling for a graduated excess profits tax on corporations. The Social Credit party voted with the C.C.F.

The motion was sponsored by H. W. Herridge, (C. C. F.-Kootenay West), after Mr. Abbott called for second reading—approval in principle—of a bill giving legal effect to the income-tax changes announced in the budget. The bill was given the reading following defeat of Mr. Herridge's proposal.

Given second reading and passed through committee was a bill providing for changes in the excise and sales tax. Members voted 42 to 28 against a move to force repeal of a 25 per cent increase in the sales tax. The budget boosted the tax to 10 per cent from eight per cent.

Given third reading and sent to the Senate was a bill providing for a number of minor changes in customs tariffs.

In moving his motion, Mr. Herridge said that the budget slapped a 20 per cent defence tax on the amount people already pay in personal income taxes. The C.C.F. believed this would work hardship on those in the low-income groups.

An excess profits tax on corporations would reduce inflation and would allow the government to ease the burden on those earning small incomes.

There should, said Mr. Herridge, be equality of sacrifice in the matter of taxation.

Spokesmen for all opposition groups called for repeal of the increase in the sales tax. Mr. Abbott said he considered it preferable to another increase in income taxes.

Progressive Conservative, Social Credit and C.C.F. members voted against the increase and won support from Matthew MacLean (L-Cape Breton-North Victoria) and J. L. Gibson (Ind.-Comox-Alberni). Other Liberals supported it.

Mr. Abbott said that unless over-all production is increased taxes "must and should" reduce the consumption of everyone if the demands of defence production are to be met. Living standards must be reduced.

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, termed the sales tax "oppressive" and said that if Canada is going to have such levies she should also have a line of tax-free utility goods, especially in clothing for working people and children.

Donald Fleming (PC-Toronto Eglinton) said Mr. Abbott had made no case for raising money through the "iniquitous" sales tax. What the Minister had said about the need for additional revenues to meet additional expenditures had been swept aside by the surplus in April.

(Mr. Abbott, who budgetted for a $30,000,000 surplus for 1951-52, reported a surplus of $121,000,000 for April, the first month of the fiscal year).

Ottawa, June 6.—(CP)—The elections committee of the Commons yesterday to extend the franchise to all members of the services on

GAL WHO TOOK FIRST TV PLUNGE DOESN'T REGRET IT

Hollywood—I had a session today with the first movie doll who scrawled her name to a contract for a television film and the scene, I'm doubled up with joy to report, wasn't skid row or the bread line.

It was a fancy Beverly Hills place where the tabs run high and twice the Johnson cheek was brushed with genuine silver blue mink.

Maria Palmer, the beauty who took a chance on TV, signed autographs for the waiter, a stout matron from Cleveland and a lad in a cowboy suit.

Maria, a Viennese dish with the coloring of paprika sprinkled on rich cream, flexed her aching wrist and said that she'd been riding high since she went in for video only.

She was being called "The Ingrid Bergman of TV."

She was right up on her income tax payments and nobody had slapped a lien on her mansion.

And bigger and better movie parts were coming her way.

My hair would stand up at attention on my noggin, Maria said, at some of the finger-shaking that went on when she took the plunge into the parlor channels back in 1948 in a half-hour film titled, "The Necklace."

"People tried to talk me out of it," Maria whispered. "One of my close friends told me that he'd seen Claire Booth Luce on television and that she had looked like a monkey.

"My agents threw up their hands in disgust and said that Hollywood would never give me a job again. And an actress friend of mine—I won't mention her name—predicted that I would wind up as a car hop."

Recognition

A woman in a print dress coughed politely at Maria's elbow and held out a blank card.

Would Maria sign it to Maude?

"She's my grandmother," the woman explained, "and hasn't seen a movie since she broke her leg 20 years ago. You're her favorite actress on television. Grandma says you're as good as Pola Negri and Dorothy Macaill."

Maria scratched some words and her name on the card.

"Autographs, autographs," she wailed after the woman had gone back to her table. "You should see the mobs who wait outside the television stations. Bobbysoxers too. I never thought bobbysockers cared about anybody but June Allyson and Peter Lawford. Let me tell you, they watch television. Most of my mail comes from kids."

Her shadow on the parlor screens?

Maria said she was glad that the subject had popped up.

So help her, she had looked more of an eyeful in the "Necklace" and the dozen or so television films that followed it than in movies like "Mission to Moscow," "The Other Love," and "The Web."

"Live television is something else," she added. "Sometimes your head comes out looking like the moon or the cameraman lops it off altogether. But I don't care. It doesn't bother me. You establish your TV face through film. After that, the audience knows when the lighting is bad. They don't blame you. Stars shouldn't be afraid of television. There's nothing to fear."

Didn't Scare

Maria laughed.

She was thinking about the people who had warned her that she'd be blacklisted by Hollywood studios.

Why, television had landed her smack in Ezio Pinza's arms in MGM's "Strictly Dishonorable."

"Nobody's admitting it, of course," she smiled. "But one night they showed my last TV picture, 'My Rival is a Fiddle,' on a Hollywood station. The next day the studio was on the phones saying that I was just right for the part of Pinza's—er—close woman friend, let us say."

Three more autograph customers surrounded Maria and a movie queen on the other side of the room arose from her chair and left hastily.

The television Duse wiped a flick of autograph ink from her pinky.

Yes, she'd heard the whispers that Pinza wasn't going to melt the chewing gum wads stuck under the theater seats as a movie lover.

Personally, she was voting for Pinza.

"He's like a gentle white bull," Maria sighed. "Outside of being just plain sexy, he has a quality that women will love. Tenderness. In a big man like Pinza, it's shocking."

Would she care to talk about her smooch scenes with the "Enchanted Evening" man or was it just automatic?

Maria blushed.

"It would be extremely difficult," she said, "to be automatic about a thing like that when it's Pinza."

JACOBY ON CANASTA

DON'T BE MISCAST IN CANASTA

Everyone knows the old legend about the clown whose great ambition is to play Hamlet. Some Canasta players are just like that; they can't seem to figure out which part they are cast for.

The confusion usually arises just after somebody has won the first substantial discard pile. For the sake of clarity, let's suppose that the South player has taken that pile. At that moment the cast is complete and each player should know exactly what part he is to play.

South's role is, of course, very easy. He should meld sparingly so as to keep a large number of cards in his hand. If he can keep about twenty cards in his hand the opponents will not dare freeze the pack. He is Simon Legree, and the cards in his hand represent his whip. If he melds too many cards, his whip is gone.

North's role is equally clear cut. He must attempt to win the second substantial discard pile. Then he will have his own whip, and the two partners have a chance to cut the opponents to ribbons.

It sounds cruel, but it's just a game after all. It may be healthful to play really cruelly in this way. You work off your savageness at the card table and can be a model citizen everywhere else.

The two defenders, East and West, must recognize their parts instantly. Otherwise they will be the lambs that get led to slaughter.

Since South has taken the first substantial pile the offensive has passed to North and South. This means that East and West must take the defensive at once. They must not freeze the pack, they must not fight for the discard pile; they must play to meld out as quickly as possible.

West is the first defender to act after South has taken the pile. He must meld at once if he can do so with cards that have some reasonable chance of developing a canasta. If his only melds are in ranks already melded by the enemy (or known to be in an opponent's hand), he should refrain from melding in the hope that his partner can meld more conveniently.

There is no longer any fear of too many cards from the hand. That caution is necessary when you are fighting for the discard pile. It is no longer necessary when the pile has been taken by the enemy.

Jenny Lind Sang In Toronto Hall Now Ballet Spot

Toronto. — (CP) — Jenny Lind once sang in the musty old hall here that is to become a headquarters for Canada's dance devotees.

The old St. Lawrence hall—a century-old auditorium not far from the waterfront—has been taken over by Celia Franca for her dance studio.

Beneath the ornate ceiling, gingerbreaded to 19th century tastes, Miss Franca will teach advanced ballet. She came here in February on the recommendation of Ninette de Valois, her former employer and instructor at Sadlers Wells in London. She also came at the request of some of Canada's best-known dance teachers who thought it high time to set up a national ballet.

"And I'm going to do it," said Miss Franca, "—if it takes me five years, 10 years or 20 . . ."

She doesn't seem to mind the fact that her studio is smack in the middle of a vegetable-market.

"It's just the sort of place I wanted," she said. "It couldn't be better. The city has rented it to me for a very nominal sum and has promised to brighten it up with some paint."

Meanwhile the hall in which Jenny Lind once sang, where a Toronto audience once heard a lecture on slavery, is filled with chairs piled on tables and mattresses. During the winter it served as a hostel for homeless men.

Soon however some 60 ballerinas will be climbing its rickety staircases to spend summer mornings and afternoons learning their routines.

They will be members of Miss Franca's summer-school which she will conduct this coming season, assisted by Betty Oliphant, fellow and examiner of the Imperial Society for Teachers of Dancing in London, and by Wendy Canetta of the Royal Academy of Dancing.

Students from across Canada are expected to attend.

Opium Profits Will Aid Reds In Indo-Cihna

By GRAHAM JENKINS

Saigon, Indo-China (Reuters)—On the windy foothills of northwest Indo-China's forbidding mountains, old men with keen three-bladed knives are bending again over a red sea of poppies.

With a dexterity born of countless generations, the thin, wrinkled tribesmen from the country's more remote areas are cutting the blooms with tiny, neat incisions.

Their sons and daughters follow in their wake, collecting in little cups the dark brown sap that oozes from the lacerations.

A few days' exposure beside their thatched-roofed huts in the sunny valleys and the new season's opium harvest is ready for the "market."

Today, opium production is illegal. The French, adhering to the 1946 Bangkok convention, have officially stopped buying. Theoretically, there will be neither opium smokers nor opium production in Indo-China by 1953. But the drug drawn from this year's poppy crop will be vital to thousands of unregistered addicts and some smugglers.

It will, Frenchmen fear, play an important role in the battle between the French union forces and the communist-led Vietminh (national resistance.)

French reports indicate the Vietminh are doing all they can to collect a maximum opium harvest for sale to China and Thailand in exchange for arms.

The "opium front," indeed, is said to be an essential factor in the "war of attrition" being waged in Indo-China by Vietminh leader Ho Chi-Minh.

Vietminh raiders and tax-collectors may get a large proportion of this year's opium crop. Also competing will be contact men working for opium smuggling rings.

The black-market price for a pound of Indo-Chinese opium averages about $635—more than double what the French official opium monopoly is prepared to pay or has the right to demand. But the monopoly will be out of business this year because it is reported to have all the stock it needs to sell to its diminishing list of legal smokers until it is abolished in 1953.

Some opium from the remote northwest is sure to come down the rivers hidden in lumber logs, stuffed in truck tires or by a dozen other means.

From the smuggler rings, it will find its way into the opium dens of every town and village. Huge amounts will find their way abroad to places like Hong Kong, Singapore and Japan, and eventually to American and European capitals.

In the northwest opium is one of the tribesmen's few ways of getting money with which to buy consumer goods. It is as natural a cash crop for him as rice.

Apart from the fact it is a serious offence to sell opium to a soldier, there appears to be little supervision over smoking in Indo-China.

Much of Indo-China's addiction is said to be a legacy of the Japanese occupation in the second world war. Then production was encouraged. Japanese officers made money from the traffic and used it to bribe spies and informers.

CALDWELLS at UNION HOTEL

play musical chairs with instruments.

Alex Caldwell, a tall, dark-skinned man who is the head man of a vocal quartet named, appropriately enough, THE CALDWELLS, is probably one of the few people around today who began trying to sell an idea and wound up buying it.

As a music teacher in a Negro high school in East St. Louis, Illinois, Caldwell was greatly impressed by the singing talent of two of his female students: Oleatha Granger and Helen Stewart.

At first he urged them to become professional singers. He got so hot on the idea, eventually, that he threw up the teaching job, took the girls aside for further study and emerged with three-fourths of his present act. The fourth member, 22-year-old Fritz Jones, joined later.

For the past five years, Caldwell, who is 36 years old and married, has been steering the destinies of the three unofficial Caldwells — arranging their booking, writing some of their songs and looking after the group generally.

They started out by doing church socials and club luncheons, but that didn't bring much money into the till. Then one night the Caldwells wandered into a St. Louis night club, did a "surprise" show and got a one-year contract in the place. Before they had a chance to start, however, a better offer came along and they managed to switch.

Thanks largely to their solid musical background, the Caldwells are able to play a sort of variation on the old game of musical chairs — only they do it with musical instruments.

Most of their numbers start with Alex Caldwell on the string bass, Fritz playing piano, Oleatha strumming a guitar and Helen shaking a lone maracca. Between choruses, however, they are liable to shift. If the song is one Oleatha is scheduled to sing she merely hands the guitar to Helen (who, meanwhile, has ditched the maracca) and the song goes on.

Or if Professor, as the girls call Caldwell, is going to sing, one of them takes the bass. Fritz stuck behind the piano, is the only one who sticks to the one instrument — but the rest of the Caldwells, quick to spring to his defense, insist he could play other instruments if he had to .

Anyway, this rather refreshing routine goes on nightly in the air-conditioned "SPORT LOUNGE" at UNION HOTEL.

THE CALDWELLS opened there last Monday nite and it wasn't long before the couples huddled around the tables decided they liked the professor and his students.

Curfew For Children Will Be Established In Sherbrooke

Gigantic Band Festival, Featuring 2,500 Musicians, Held At Shawinigan

By ARNOLD BARON

Shawinigan Falls, June 6—Some 50 bands, mustering over 2,500 musicians, descended on Shawinigan Falls over the week-end for the 21st Festival of the Amateur Bands Association of the Province of Quebec.

By happy co-incidence, the Band Festival tied in with the 50th anniversary of this city, celebrations for which started over a month ago and will continue over the summer months.

It will be surprising, however, if the anniversary celebrations committee arranges to have another demonstration as spectacular as was the gathering of the bands.

The many musicians, dressed in the whole gamut of colorful uniforms, imparted a gaiety to the population (and the many visitors, judging by the numbers of people who didn't know locations of city streets) which will be hard to beat. Their music too, particularly when 2,500 of them were massed under the baton of the famous American conductor-composer Dr. Edwin Franko Goldman, was a thrill for this city, alive with bunting, colored lights and so many different kinds of flags that one would think that every last entry in the "National Flag contest" was on display.

Premier Maurice Duplessis was present Saturday evening for the musical activities in St. Marc Park. He praised the qualities of the people of Shawinigan Falls which, he said, had in 50 years made this city one of the most progressive and happy communities in Canada.

The Premier presented souvenir rings to the past presidents of the Provincial Bands Association, including Georges Sylvestre and George Duchesne, of Sherbrooke, Carolus Marquis and Herve Robichaud, of Granby, and J. H. Hains, of Drummondville.

After his address, it was announced by Edgar Genest, of Montreal, philanthropist of the amateur bands movement of Quebec, that Mr. Duplessis had made a personal gift of $5,000 to the Association.

Bands were present from all parts of the Province. It seems that every last widening of the road in Quebec boasts of a band, surely something of which their citizens can be proud.

In addition to the musical aggregations from the Province, there were two outside bands, the Scout House band of Preston, Ontario, and the High School Band of Holyoke, Mass.

It's difficult to say which of these two latter bands stole the show but the American youngsters, partly composed of girls probably got the nod because of this reason

Two scholarships were presented at the Festival. First prize was awarded Jean Guy Hetert of Iberville and second prize went to Onil Leblanc of Sorel. Both boys play the clarinet.

To the Sherbrooke Harmony Band fell the honor of accompanying the prize winners when they made their debut before the public of Shawinigan Falls. The Harmony was conducted by Harry Long.

Eleven of the Sherbrooke musicians were selected as part of a 120-piece band conducted Sunday evening by Dr. Goldman. They were: Harry Tinker, Irenee Langevin, Jean Paul Belisle, Donat Turcotte, Marcel Marcotte, Paul Pigeon, Gilles Garant, Serge Garant, Florent Garant, Jacques Pronovost, and Guy Dennencourt.

Also, the Sherbrooke Harmony teamed up with bands from Asbestos, Drummondville, Sorel, Thetford Mines and Victoriaville for several numbers under the banner, "bands of the Eastern Townships".

Thousands of people lined the streets of the city for both the Saturday and Sunday evening parades by the bands and the passing of several colorful floats, dedicated to Calixa Lavallee, composer of "O Canada", John Philip Sousa, Dr. Goldman music in general, French-Canadian folk songs, etc.

Besides the many bands and Dr. Goldman, several leading American artists were present. One of the foremost cornetists on this continent, Leona May Smith of the Radio City Music Hall orchestra was neard in several selections Sunday evening.

One of Miss Smith's selections was her own arrangement of several French-Canadian folk songs, dedicated to Shawinigan Falls. Her husband, George Seuffert, New York City conductor, was also present in his musical capacity and other artists included Ruth and Henry Curtis Ellison, mezzo soprano and bass baritone.

Hon. Dr. Antonio Elie was also present and in a duel capacity for the Saturday concert. Besides his governmental patronage, Dr. Elie was guest conductor for a selection during the concert. Men in public life seem to be musically inclined in this province. In the Sunday concert, the Mayor of Longueuil, Paul Pratt, was one of the "part-time" conductors.

The distinguished visitors were welcomed to the city by Shawinigan's mayor, Francois Roy. The mayor of Holyoke, Mass., Henry J. Toepfert, was present with the High School band of his city and spoke briefly.

"In coming to Canada," he said, "we crossed an imaginary line but the friendship which exists between Canada and the U.S.A. is not imaginary." By his visit, Mayor Toepfert was returning a compliment paid his city several years ago when Shawinigan's mayor and a delegation from this city visited Holyoke in conjunction with the 75th anniversary celebrations of the American city.

Fine Recital Is Given By Ballet School

The Sherbrooke School of Ballet has been in existence only three years but the tremendous strides made by the young local dancers were most evident last night at the fine recital given by the school at the Granada Theatre.

From start to finish "Ballet Impromptu" was a polished and colorful performance, with sufficient variety to prevent the evening from being dull at any point.

In moving into the Granada this year for the first time, the school management took a gamble on the support of the Sherbrooke public. This proved more than justified for the theatre was almost filled.

Miss Joan Stirling, the school's instructor, gave the younger children, ranging down to the age of three, the opening spot on the program and the eight little girls in pink, blue and green dresses almost brought down the house.

Children's numbers are always favorites at ballet school recitals and this one, called "Before the Ballet", was no exception. Taking part were Suzanne Latulippe, Denis Comtois, Jose Lacombe, Michelle Richard, Lise Donahue, Manon Duford, Danielle Vallee and Leslie Ann Lendrum.

The music for this number was composed by Miss Evelyn Robidas, who accompanies for the classes, and whose piano accompaniments throughout last night added greatly to the success of the recital.

Three little girls in gnome-like red costumes flitted back and forth across the stage with lighted lanterns in the second number, Will O' the Whisp, another pleasing performance which was enhanced by the lighting effects and red backdrop. These performers were Helen Huard, Linda Chankin and Nancy Rule.

"At the Ballet School" featured Pierre Jeanson as "professor for the day" and Louise Camirand, Shelly Slater, Sandra Schacter, Diane Codere, Louise Lavoie, Diane Marchand and Roger Codere as the pupils.

In this number Mr. Jeanson put his pupils, the girls in yellow and Roger Codere in yellow and black, through their exercises. If there were mistakes in this number it may well be they were intentional and they certainly added to the enjoyment of the audience as the toddlers occasionally got out of line and were restored to place by the stick-tapping professor.

A beautifully-dressed and well-executed Minuet, with the marquis in rich-looking blue and white and the marquises in pink, won much applause from the audience and was evidence of the progressive training of the age groups as these older (though still young) girls danced daintily with just the proper dignity.

The marquis were Lise Baillargeon, Celine Gregoire, Marie-Claire Roy, and Marie Delorme, while the marquises were Lise Brochu, Claire Rivard, Diane Bolduc and Celine Brodeur.

Two of this city's most promising young dancers, Manon Morrissette and Pierre Jeanson, danced a Pas de Deux as the closing number of the first half of the program and, in these classical steps, showed the great improvement that has been made in the last three years.

"La Gaillarde," a colorful and gay old French peasant dance, was a pleasing opening to the second half of the program and featured Helen Huard, Denise Duford, Marjorie Ann Barton-Slater, Suzanne Olivier, Suzan Chankin and Sheilagh Perkins. The timing and co-ordination of the girls was especially good in this dance.

Most effective was the following number, an interpretative Greek dance in which a green light played on the dancers as they moved barefooted across the stage in their chartreuse-colored dresses.

A difficult dance, calling for perfect team-work between the dancers, this number was an innovation to local recitals and was ably performed by Marie Amaron, Anita Doucet, Charlotte Courchesne, Helen Morgan, Claire Thibault and Barbara Wark.

Equally excellent was the Sicilian Tarentella, a colorful and fast moving dance featuring a well-executed pas de deux by Miss Morrissette and Barbara Wark and a solo by Mr. Jeanson.

The latter, a trifle nervous in the Pas de Deux with Miss Morrissette, was right at home in the Tarentella and danced with professional skill. The corps de ballet, Madeleine Couture, Catherine Wark, Ann Quintin, Lois Wallace, Helen Morgan, Aurette Duchesne, Jacqueline Denis and Francoise Perras, danced flawlessly and did much to make this one of the most-applauded numbers.

From the audience point of view the dancing highlight of the evening was the solo by Miss Stirling who not only dances well but is good to look at. Former member of the Winnipeg Ballet and the Ruth Sorel group, Miss Stirling danced "Sur les Points" to the recorded music of Chopin's waltz in C sharp minor.

From her effective entry through the centre of the back-drop, to her final bows, Miss Stirling held the audience in her grasp. She was recalled several times for an encore but this was her pupils' show, not hers, and she declined to

Council Approves By-Law Ordering Unaccompanied Children Off Street Between Nine O'Clock And Five A. M.

For the first time in the history of Sherbrooke, a curfew will be established in the near future, a by-law to this effect being given all three readings at the regular session of the City Council last evening.

Under the terms of the by-law, which will become effective fifteen days after its publication, all children under fifteen years of age are forbidden to be upon the city streets or other public places between nine o'clock in the evening and five o'clock of the following morning. Exceptions are children accompanied by a parent, a relative or an adult guardian or by a person over fifteen years of age charged by the said person, relative or adult guardian to accompany the child. Children returning from parish meetings, night schools or from night employment are exempt as are children who present a reason acceptable to the chief of police or the officer in charge of the nearest police station.

On the occasion of the first infraction of the by-law, a warning is to be issued to the parents. On the next offence a fine of not exceeding two dollars, with or without costs, may be levied by the Recorder against the offending child. In default of payment, the child may be detained for a period not exceeding two days. For subsequent offences, the fine will be levied against the parents or guardians—not exceeding five dollars and costs or one day in jail.

In introducing the by-law, Ald. Eugene Thibault declared the real purpose was to give the police the power to order youngsters off the streets, a right they did not possess at present, and not to interfere with children proceeding about legitimate business.

Another by-law adopted without discussion provided for the payments of grants totalling $33,375 to various institutions and organizations. These grants were contained in the 1951 budget adopted a few weeks ago.

Included in the committee reports was one of the public works department dealing with the activities of the grievance committee named to study the complaints of departmental employees. These were essentially administrative matters and for the most part provided for the rejection of the complaints.

A report of the industrial relations committee recommended the completion of a technicolor documentary film on Sherbrooke and its industries by Les Documentaires Lavoie of Quebec at a cost of $4,200 for an English and a French version. Additional copies will be provided at 18½ cents a foot.

The subdivision plans of several lots in various parts of the city were also approved.

Pro-Mayor Armand Fisette presided over the short session in the absence of Mayor Charles B. Howard.

A. A. Munster Addresses Rotarians

The prime purpose of Rotary Vocational Service Committees is to raise the standards of competitive practices in the community and in business generally, Past President Albert A. Munster, told his fellow Rotarians at their regular meeting last evening.

"Inasmuch as Clubs are organized on the principle of selecting one member from each business or profession," Mr. Munster said, "the obligations of Rotarians are all the greater. We hold Rotary Classification as a loan or trust and we are expected to interest ourselves actively in gaining the respect, confidence and friendship of others in the same line of work."

He pointed out that the second object of Rotary states vocational service in quite simple and practical terms: High ethical standards in business and professions, the recognition of the worthiness of all useful occupations and the dignifying by each Rotarian of his occupation as an opportunity to service society.

A breakdown of these recommendations is simply buyer-seller relations, competitor relations, employee-employer relations and trade associations.

The speaker said that since Rotary's participation and influence in civic and other objective activities require the goodwill of the community, Rotarians should conduct their businesses so as to merit respect and goodwill. He pointed out the importance of "a doctrine of service to others."

"Our greatest mistake as individuals," he said, "is that we walk through life with our eyes closed. We fail to create all the friendly associations that we should have and that make life so worthwhile and in our hurry and bustle we do not notice the chance to make friends or help others."

He suggested unselfishness and a desire to help others as opportunity to be simply human and supremely happy.

Men who are keenly interested in community work, he continued, do not resort to unethical practices.

"What does the future demand of us as Rotarians?" "Our contribution is an active and useful life dedicated to community leadership and achievement. The future of this club will be gauged by the contributions made by each Rotarian. We have a magnificent background, a heritage handed down to us through the past thirty years, that provides inspiration."

In conclusion he said "As Rotarians let us all be committed to not only a faith in our organization but let us adopt as creeds that "We believe in the worth of the individual, the right to life, liberty and happiness; implied responsibility; that law was made for man and not man for law; the dignity of labour; the sacredness of promise; that character is the essence; and truth and justice are fundamentals of endurance of social order. Moreover believe in the rendering of useful service and above all, I believe in a wise and loving God."

Past President D. J. Salls expressed the thanks of the Club to Past President Munster.

Guests at the meeting, who were welcomed by President Evans Joslin, were Ken Rooney, of Sarnia, Ont., Norman Garrick and R. Anderson, both of the C.B.C., Toronto.

President Joslin announced that the Charter night of the Lincoln, N.H., club would be on June 19.

Past President Douglas Stevenson gave a brief outline of the recent Rotary International As-

City Police Will Receive Pay Increases

The long-awaited report of the arbitration commission studying the dispute between the City of Sherbrooke and the employees of the police department was received at the City Hall this morning. The report, binding on both parties, orders a one dollar a week increase in the basic rate for most employees, with two dollars extra for sergeants and detectives and three dollars for painter-constables. In addition, there will be a cost-of-living bonus of $4.80 weekly for married men and $3.60 for single men, to be adjusted annually on the basis of the living cost index. The city offered only the cost-of-living bonus while the Brotherhood sought a five dollar basic wage increase.

Overtime pay is increased from $1.00 to $1.25 per hour.

For employees with one year service or more, fifteen days annual holiday is provided, as formerly, while men with over twenty years will receive twenty-one days' paid vacation.

The compensation for accidents occurring on duty has been cut from full time as formerly provided to the two-thirds of the salary ordered by the Workmen's Compensation Board.

In the future, each employee is allowed seven days' sick leave annually cumulative for ten years. An employee leaving the service is not entitled to pay for his accumulated sick leave. The old contract provided for twelve days' sick leave cumulative for 120 days, the employee to be paid for unused time on leaving the service.

The new contract covers two years.

The arbitrators were Judge Dorais Panneton, chairman, Guy Blanchette, representing the city, and R. J. Lamoureux, representing the men.

The arbitration award for the firemen, expected today, is said to contain similar provisions.

Wesley Bradley Takes The Stand As Holland Will Case Resumes Here

After a week's adjournment, hearing was resumed briefly yesterday in the Holland case, with Wesley Bradley, K.C., one of the defendants, taking the stand.

Mr. Bradley, with Charles R. Jenkins, of Rock Island, is joint executor of the will of the late John C. Holland, publisher and editor of the Stanstead Journal. Action was taken to set aside the will by Mrs. L. H. McEwen, of Georgeville, cousin of the deceased.

Questioned by E. K. McDougall, Montreal, attorney for the Salvation Army, one of the residuary legatees, Mr. Bradley said that prior to January, 1948, he had discussed the matter of a will with the late Mr. Holland, on several occasions.

He said he remembered Mr. Holland coming to his office in August, 1945, and that he was sure of the date, because he invited the editor to his home for supper and at that time all the radio stations were broadcasting the news of the Jap surrender in the Pacific. "It was evidently the eve of V-J Day," Mr. Bradley said.

On that occasion he said that he and Mr. Holland had a general discussion about the latter's private affairs and that he indicated that he had not made a will.

"I presume I advised him that he should give some thought to it," witness continued, "because he was getting on in years."

"Did he express any intention as to how he wished to bequeath his property?" asked Mr. McDougall.

John T. Hackett, K.C., attorney for the plaintiff, objected at this point, on the grounds that intent does not count, it is the will itself. The objection was taken under reserve by Mr. Jusice William Mitchell and the witness answered.

In all cases, said Mr. Bradley, he spoke of the Salvation Army and the Red Cross as his beneficiaries.

On two or three other occasions when discussing Mr. Holland's affairs, mention was made of a will but it was discussed "almost in a conversational way."

In the fall of 1947, witness said, the making of a will was definitely discussed, to the extent that Mr. Holland told Mr. Bradley to prepare a draft will which he would consider on his next trip to the attorney's office. He never returned to Sherbrooke after that occasion.

Mr. Bradley repeated that the late publisher wished the Red Cross and the Salvation Army to be universal legatees.

In answer to cross-questioning by Mr. Hackett, Mr. Bradley said that Mr. Holland did not see the draft of the will and did not return to Sherbrooke before he suf-

KNIT GOODS INDUSTRY REVIVES

The Canadian knit goods industry, hard hit by the unprecedented imports from low wage countries since World War II, is nevertheless regaining a solid footing, according to a recent survey.

Revived civilian demands, coupled with substantial requests for defence materials, is bringing new life to the industry's 336 mills. In 122 Canadian communities some 25,000 men and women are busy supplying distinctive knitted goods, and activity is increasing.

However, current level of business could be temporary and producers point out that without defence orders, present and pending, they would still be hard pressed by imports, which in some cases continued to increase through 1950.

While some smaller defence orders are already being filled Ottawa has, since February 1, 1951, called for tenders for: 1,800,000 pairs of socks; 940,000 under-garments; 305,000 sweaters; 275,000 pairs of gloves and mitts. Contracts will be completed within the next 12 months.

The industry proved its ability to meet both cilivian and military needs during the last war. In 1942, for instance, mills turned out 2.17 million dozen garments 30% of which went to the Forces.

Since war's end the industry has spent $38 million on modernization, despite some trying experiences with imports of which these are examples: Imports of wollen half hose in 1950 totalled 4,500,000 pairs, mostly from the U.K. and 60% more than in 1949: Imports of knitted outerwear last year totalled 1,256,000 pounds, again largely from Britain, and 3½ times prewar volume.

Worst experience however, came in 1949 when heavy shipments of knitted gloves and mitts from Japan forced many Canadian mills to close, or to operate on short time. Altogether during that period, employment dropped by 3,000. Only timely intervention by the federal government in regard to Japan prevented elimination of the Canadian industry.

With this in mind producers are proceeding at top speed with demands for civilian and military this year, but not being too optimistic about the future.

RUNNING AROUND IN CIRCLES

"Wanted, a New Name for Capitalism."

Under this heading "Reader's Digest" for May condenses an article by William I. Nichols in "This Week Magazine." This is merely one more symptom of a rash of agitation in the United States designed "to check the world spread of Communism" by finding a new word for "Capitalism" which is regarded as an unsatisfactory "opposite" to Communism, comments Gladstone Murray in The Outlook. "Freedom" is the opposite to Communism and he maintains there can be no better word.

The illusion that Communism and Capitalism are opposites is a striking success for Soviet propaganda. Actually all economic systems are bound to be capitalist, otherwise they would not be economic systems. To say that an economic system is capitalist is to state the truth that it builds on investment. The structure of the Soviet economy is the most capitalistic in history.

TAXES AND INDUSTRY

One fact which too many legislators seem prone to forget is that taxes of corporations are a direct charge on the cost of production and that when the tax burden becomes too high the manufacturer must transfer his operations elsewhere or cease work entirely. A warning in this respect was given the state of Massachusetts last week by Ralph Durrin, commercial manager of the General Electric Company in New England. He said that his company, employing 40,000 persons in twenty plants in that state, would have "to expand our business in other states where tax conditions and business climate are more favorable" unless it could operate under "sane and sensible tax conditions."

While Mr. Durrin's comments were directed at one particular state, the warning he issued should be well heeded by provincial and municipal governments in Canada and might even be taken into consideration by the federal authorities. Too often there is a tendency to regard a corporation as something of a milch cow, the argument being that if their profits are not large enough to bear the increased tax burden, they can jump the price of their commodities to offset the bigger load.

Unfortunately for this theory, manufacturers must meet competition and if their tax burden in one locality is higher than that of a competitor established elsewhere, they have the alternative of closing up shop or moving their plants to a more favored tax area.

In either case, local labor and business suffers.

Press Comment

MERELY SUPERFICIAL

Toronto Globe and Mail

Two important agencies set up under the United Nations are seriously out of step in current recommendations concerning international trade and currency problems. The International Monetary Fund, which directed the devaluation of "soft currencies" late in 1949, wants the resulting structure of trade embargoes to be removed, on the ground that sterling is now a "hard currency" in wide demand. The United Kingdom, it argues, should abandon its discrimination against dollar imports. It makes no mention, however, of sponsoring any move for the upward revaluation of sterling.

On the other hand, the United Nations Economic Commission for Europe does make such a suggestion. It, too, wants a more free movement of commodities and goods between nations. But the device it favors is to raise the value of sterling in New York above its present fixed value of around $2.80. A valuation of from 10 to 20 per cent higher is unofficially suggested. But the advice that other European currencies ally themselves with sterling, rather than the New York dollar, is official.

The IMF, however, would hold to the low official levels of non-dollar currencies, but threatens the use of its authority, to compel the removal of "trade restrictions"—meaning Britain's policy of buying dollar goods in minimum amounts while pushing her own exports to the United States.

While the function of each organization is to promote economic stability and the mutual exchange of goods, it is left to the Economic Commission to make these groping gestures in the direction of currency convertibility. The IMF document deals almost exclusively with suggestions which, if adopted, would improve the competitive position of the United States as an exporter to sterling area markets.

Apart from the desirability of having these agencies pool their data and arrive at a policy which could be backed by the weight of their joint authority, the fact remains that neither of them deals with the basic problem. Both fail to recognize that arbitrary tinkering with artificial currency values, and with a complicated system of trade embargoes incidental to currency strategy, solves no fundamental problems. All countries in the western world are potentially heavy buyers, as well as exporters. What each is able to produce is the ultimate base of its currency's strength. Convertibility permits a free exchange of these goods. That formula both states the problem and offers the solution.

The suggestions of ECE and IMF do neither. They deal with superficialities. The whole economic climate of the western world has changed since these agencies began to operate. The ECE is a little closer to realities of today. But the IMF adheres to policies formulated in the ice age of postwar stagnation. They will not meet the new situation until they concentrate upon increasing productivity within the nations in their fields of influence and assist them toward the mutual satisfaction of each other's needs, first by making goods available and then by guiding them toward early convertibility of their currencies. If they cannot do that they should arrange to vacate their commissions and make way for a new agency that will deal with today's problems in terms appropriate to existing conditions.

RURAL READERS PENALIZED

Toronto Globe and Mail

The significance of the proposed increases in second-class postage rates was well placed before Parliament by Opposition Leader Drew. It is clear that there has been much misunderstanding over the purpose of the rates. They were originally established not with the intention of subsidizing the publishers of newspapers, but as an assistance to rural readers. They were intended to make it as easy as possible for citizens remote from the centres of population to maintain contact with the affairs of their community, province and nation. It was recognized by national leaders of an earlier day that this was important to the working of democracy—that people without information could not be expected to judge wisely the issues on which self-government depend. That they should be able to obtain this information and have freedom of choice about where they will obtain it is quite as important an aspect of the freedom of the press as the right to print it.

The newspapers of Canada have respected the purpose behind second-class mailing rates. In proof of this is the sharp differential to be found between home delivered rates and rural mail subscriptions. For this newspaper, the carrier-delivered rate is $13 a year; a mail subscription is $7. The postage rates are to be raised from one and a half cents a pound to four cents a pound. This will mean that $6.24 of the rural subscriber's $7 will go for postage alone. Obviously, with all but 76 cents of the present subscription rate going to post office, the newspaper will have no choice but to pass on the increase.

In the face of this Mr. Joseph Noseworthy, CCF member for South York, made an absurd attempt to represent second-class rates as a subsidy to the publishers, enabling them to make "considerable profit." Whatever he may feel about the content of newspapers is entirely irrelevant to the issue of second-class postage rates. Mr. Noseworthy and his party are now on record against the rural reader. It does not matter what he reads, if it comes by mail the CCF intends that he should pay more.

We are not going to attempt to rationalize Postmaster-General Rinfret's decision to increase the rates. In our opinion he has wrongly assumed that deficits on second-class matter are caused chiefly by newspapers. Relatively few of them are carried for any distance through the mails, and the proportion of their total circulations which is mail delivered is not substantial. A fair heavier burden is imposed by magazines, virtually all of which are exclusively delivered by the post office, but which will continue to have a preferred rate. This is of a piece with the no more defensible discrimination against newspapers brought about by the government's application of the 10 per cent sales tax on newsprint. The magazines do not pay the sales tax nor do certain weekly newspapers which for purposes of evading the tax claim to be magazines.

It is significant to many people that the government which is imposing higher rates on the distribution of newspapers is the same government which has justified heavy subsidization of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation on the grounds that it provides information and entertainment to rural listeners beyond the range of the big city stations. Its inconsistency may be explained by its power to command the services of one and not of the other.

THIS COULD SLOW UP THE GENERAL CONSIDERABLY

OUR BEST GOES OUT TO YOU

(A tribute of esteem and affection to Mr. and Mrs. Allison Blodgett, of Lennoxville, Que.—Mrs. Blodgett, 91 years on May 13th. Mr. Blodgett, 94 years on June 5th. Joined in wedlock sixty-eight years on June 3rd, 1951).

This little rhyme won't be on time
To help you celebrate,
Three special days, in both your lives,
. . . I'm sorry it is late.

You see, I did not get the facts
About you noted couple,
Until tonight, (and Time won't wait)
. . . My brains I guess aren't supple.

I hope this poem brings you cheer,
And surely lets you know
Folks think of you from year to year,
And want to tell you so.

Though better late than never,
It's better never late;
Yet I'll express friends' sentiments
For each outstanding date.

With Birthdays, Wedding date so near,
This poem is designed
To wish you both the best of cheer,
O'er ALL THE THREE, combined.

Yes! children, relatives, each friend,
Would take this chance to say:
"We wish you happiness, no end,
On each especial day."

The years have many changes brought
Some joyous, others sad;
But, each some new experience taught
Which now, seems not so bad.

You've proved a Father, Mother, GRAND!
As neighbors rated high,
And still at Ninety odd, you stand
A I, in every eye.

We hope you both may yet enjoy
More years of peace, and cheer,
With very little to annoy
And many loved ones near.

We'd like so much to let you know
We're wishing you the best,
As aging footsteps grow more slow
With Life's Sun in the West.

. . . God grant remaining years may bring
You lots of all that's fine;
May chimes of Memory sweetly ring
Recalling "AULD-LANG-SYNE."

And when your craft at last sets sail
Upon its final run,
May life's sure Pilot never fail
To class earth's work "Well Done."

THE TURNED WORM

By MARIE de NERVAUD

"Where you going, Ducky?"

Sally came to a reluctant stop at the sand-covered end of the board walk. She glanced up to the second storey of the wooden beach cottage, her heart tightening at the sight of her sister's lovely face framed in an upstairs window.

Sally's joy in the sparkling Summer day, the glistening blue water, the pungent salt smell of the ocean went into sudden eclipse. Be casual, she warned herself. Don't let her think you're escaping her—

"Only to the painting class."

"Wait a sec. I'll come along." The blonde vision in pink chambray disappeared to reappear a moment later at the front door.

"But, Lynn, you'd be bored to tears." Sally made one desperate last effort to save the day, to save all the days of the Summer that would be forever blighted if Lynn discovered Paul. "You——"

"I'm bored to tears anyway." Lynn sauntered across the porch her graceful body swaying from the hips in the assured, confident walk of the professional model. "I'll just stroll along with you and take a look at this Grandma Moses bunch you spend your mornings with."

Sally's inner flare of rebellion died away to the dull sense of fatality that Lynn's dominance always brought. From the earliest time she could remember, Lynn's will had beaten hers down. It wasn't only that Lynn was two years older. It was her supreme confidence in herself, her certainty that Sally's will would bend to hers.

And why not, when, from the time Lynn was a baby, everyone had admired her golden curls, her big blue eyes, her exquisite oval face with its perfect features? How could you hope to compete, Sally asked herself, when you had nondescript brown hair, freckles across a too-turned-up nose, too big a mouth and too wide-apart brown eyes?

"Dad does manage to pick out the deadliest summer places." Lynn tucked her arm in Sally's as they headed down the beach boardwalk toward the pier. "Thank goodness I missed the last two weekends. Believe me, this is the last one I'm going to vegetate down here. I haven't seen a male under 60. Dad's off fishing all day with his professor pals, and you don't really care whether I come or not—"

Sally knew Lynn's pause was to give her a chance to rush in with protestations, but for the life of her, she couldn't.

"I can have lots more fun in New York," Lynn went on, a slight edge to her tone, "and heaven knows, I can't seem to help you any." Her disapproving glance took in Sally's plaid shirt, open at the neck, her blue jeans with frayed ends turned up at the ankles and scuffed sneakers. "At 21 you ought to have some pride in your appearance. How you can expect to attract any man——"

"I don't," Sally's pent up resentment suddenly exploded. "Not when you're around, anyway. You see to that. You always have, since kindergarten——"

"Why, Ducky!" Lynn pulled out the injured innocence stop in her artificially modulated voice. "How can you be so unfair? You know you always come first with me. For the last 10 years, ever since Mummy died——"

"Oh, skip it," Sally threw out her hand in a helpless gesture. "You can't help it, I suppose. You just naturally go for every man you see——"

"It might be more tactful to put it the other way round," Lynn gave her rippling laugh. "But, honestly, Sal, you know I'd be thrilled to have you have some men around.——"

Sally's thought said, "Yeah! So you could snatch them!" but this time she suppressed the thought. What was the use? Lynn could no more resist vamping every man she saw than the waves could resist the pull of the tide. But she wasn't going to see Paul!

"You know, I don't want to go to the painting class this morning after all," Sally burst out. "You haven't been here for two weeks, and if you really mean you aren't coming again for some time, why don't we make the day of it? Take the car and our bathing suits and a picnic lunch and go down to Little Rock Point? We might stop at Beach Cliff on the way back and have dinner at that Tidewater Inn place. There's a good movie there, too. I can leave Dad's supper all ready for him——"

Lynn's surprised look brought Sally to a panicky stop. Oh dear, she'd been putting it on too thick! Why couldn't she be more subtle, more——

"What's up, anyway?" Lynn refused to turn back at Sally's clutch on her arm.

"O—oh!" She narrowed her eyes at the group gathered on the pier. "Who's the man with all the old girls?"

"Man?" Sally's sickened glance caught sight of Paul striding down the pier easel under his arm, paint box swinging in his hand, the reddish chestnut hair topping his six-feet-two gleaming in the sun.

"O—oh!" Lynn said again, then she began to laugh. "Funny little Ducky! So, that's it. You've got a painting pal and you're afraid I'll——honestly, Sally, you're a scream."

A sweeping wave of Paul's free hand brought the deadening realization to Sally that it was too late for escape now. Lynn was already several paces ahead of her, and she followed miserably on, seizing on the meager comfort that Lynn wasn't Paul's type.

"Who is he?" Lynn demanded, and Sally found herself explaining that he was Mrs. Shelton's nephew, who was on leave from the State Department to recuperate from a bad attack of pneumonia.

"I suppose weakened vitality accounts for his interest in painting," Lynn commented, "and, I gather, his interest accounts for yours." She watched Paul coming to meet them with his wide friendly grin, and added a teasing, "I might even develop some interest myself."

Sally stood a bit to one side as Lynn and Paul and she waited at the station Sunday night for Lynn's train. Every muscle tense, every nerve taut, Sally watched Lynn laugh up at Paul with that provocative sidelong glance of hers.

Jealous, one part of Sally's mind jeered at her, but the other part refused the diagnosis. It wasn't only jealousy. The weekend had been one continuous hell watching Paul fall for Lynn's charms, for her assumed interest in painting, her flattering appeals for his help with her marine sketch. The disgusting part was that she did have a knack, an artistic flare——

But it wasn't all jealousy and envy that had made up the week end hell. It was seeing the mean streak in Lynn so unmistakably. For years Sally had adored Lynn, admired the success she'd made of her modeling, made excuses for her selfishness. Now suddenly, she didn't adore or admire her any more.

Paul didn't mean anything to Lynn. Yet Sally'd seen her go out to ensnare him, to destroy the lovely intangible thing that had been growing between Paul and her these last few weeks. Of course, if Paul had really cared for her—but it hadn't reached that stage yet. And now it never would.

In the midst of making plans for the next weekend, Lynn reached out and pulled Sally over to them. "Listen, Ducky. I've a mind to take my vacation these next two weeks instead of in August. I'll fix it up and come back tomorrow night——"

"No."

Sally was even more surprised than the other two at her almost shouted "no," but her voice went right on. "I don't want you now, Lynn. You'll have to come later."

"Why——" Lynn's stupefaction blazed to anger, "I never heard—do you think you can keep me away from my father's house——"

"No." Sally said, "I can't keep you away. But I'll go away. You can do all the cooking for him—"

The clang of the engine bell cut her off. Like a stone Sally stood, watching Paul put Lynn on the train, placating her excited talking. Then, he was back, drawing her to the far end of the platform.

"Sally!" He was laughing so hard he could hardly speak. "Oh, you darling! I knew you had it in you!"

"Had what——?"

"The spunk not to let Lynn make a downtrodden worm of you. Only I had to be sure. I had to play up to Lynn to really find out. I'm not particularly attracted to worms—but a turned worm! That's different." He was kissing her and Sally was kissing him back, even if he had called her a worm.

By OSWALD JACOBY

HIGH BID MAY THROW FOE OFF

East had the right idea when he jumped to five diamonds. His partner had passed and he himself had barely more than average strength in high cards. It was dollars to doughnuts that North and South had most of the strength, and the jump to five diamonds was intended to make it difficult for them to find the best contract.

What if East were doubled? He could surely expect to win his seven diamond tricks. There was also a very strong probability that he could make a heart trick—perhaps two hearts. Also he had his honors to help compensate for any loss that might develop. He'd have been delighted to give up 400 points (a three-trick set less 100 honors) instead of what he actually lost on the hand.

As it happened, South could just about muster up a bid of five spades. It was a risky bid, and South came literally within an ace of losing his contract.

West opened the eight of diamonds, and East won the first two tricks with the jack and queen of diamonds. East then led the ace of diamonds, and a very remarkable trick developed.

What should South play on the ace of diamonds? Decide on the correct play before you read on.

Right you are. South must discard the ace of hearts and ruff with dummy's ace of spades. Now declarer can safely ruff a heart, draw trumps, and reenter dummy to discard his losing club on a top heart.

If South fails to discard the ace of hearts at the third trick he loses his contract. For example, suppose South discards a club. West discards his singleton heart, and dummy ruffs. Now South cannot get to his hand to draw trumps. If he leads a heart, West ruffs; if he leads clubs, East ruffs.

It does South no good to ruff in his own hand. West still discards his heart. Now South must lead a trump to dummy's ace and still cannot get out of dummy to draw the rest of the trumps.

CARD SENSE

Q—The bidding has been:

| North | East | South | West |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 Heart | Pass | 1 Spade | Pass |
| 1 No-trump | Pass | ? | |

You, South, hold: Spades A-Q-9-8-3, Hearts J-5-3-2, Diamonds J-10-6, Clubs 4. What do you do?

A—Bid two hearts. Game seems unlikely in view of your partner's weak rebid, but you expected that the combined hands will play better at hearts than at no-trump.

TODAY'S QUESTION

The bidding has been:

| North | East | South | West |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 Heart | Pass | 1 Spade | Pass |
| 1 No-trump | Pass | ? | |

You, South, hold: Spades A-J-10-8-7-3, Hearts 5-3, Diamonds J-10-6, Clubs 4-2. What do you do?

Miss M. Shea Is President Of Jeudi Musical

Miss Mimi Shea was elected president of the Jeudi Musical at a recent meeting at the residence of Miss Camille Gagnon, with Miss Suzanne Gagnon, and Mr. and Mrs. Marcel Dufresne as hosts. She replaces Miss Luce Triganne.

Other officers elected were Miss Yolande Champoux, vice-president Laurent Dumont, secretary, Miss Camille Gagnon, treasurer, Mrs. Irene Leveque, program committee, and Miss Camille Nadeau, reception committee. Directors are Loinel Prefontaine and Etienne Paquin.

Miss Triganne, soprano, and Mrs. Paul E. Fortier, pianist, were soloists on the program, which follows:

Intermezzo — Op. 2. No. 2, A Minor ..... Van Dohnanyi
Mrs. Fortier

Three Songs from the Cycle "Winterreise" ..... Schubert
Der Lindenbaum
Die Post
Die Krahe
Miss Triganne

Etude Op. 8, No. 2 E. Major ..... Scriabine

Serenata Andaluzia .. De Falla
Mrs. Fortier

Scene and Air from Faust ..... Gounod
Le Roi de Thule
L'Air des Bijoux
Miss Triganne

Congratulations were extended to Miss Yolande Champoux for her splendid performance in the premiere of the operetta "Ozanam."

fered his stroke.

Earlier in the day, Charles Crawford, owner of a service station in Stanstead, testified that he often drove Mr. Holland's car. He said that the latter was no worse driver after his accident in 1939 than he was before. "He was never very good in my opinion," witness said, "but most of his accidents were minor ones, involving fenders and such things."

Two motions were presented yesterday, one by plaintiff's attorney to the effect that a correction be made in the transcription of Dr. Gauthier's testimony by the stenographer, and one by the defence attorneys, asking for security from the plaintiff because they claimed she left the province of Quebec to reside elsewhere.

The evidence on the main action was adjourned until tomorrow as the defence has an expert witness who is unable to be present until then.

Return Verdicts In Separate Local Fatalities

Verdicts of accidental death have been returned in the deaths of Guy Menard, 23, and Mrs. Philippe Shaker, 52, of 26 Meadow Street, Sherbrooke, in two inquests which were held here Monday.

Menard, proprietor of an East Sherbrooke restaurant, died on May ninth as the result of burns received when his restaurant was swept by fire five days earlier. The fire also claimed the life of 18-year-old Benoit Roy of East Angus, employee of a local oil firm, who had been engaged in delivering oil to the restaurant when the fire broke out, preceeded by an explosion.

Mrs. Shaker was killed in a motor accident on Sunday when the car in which she was a passenger ran out of control on the steep hill on Terrill Street, crashed into a tree and came to rest against the retaining wall at the bank of the St. Francis River.

Dr. Louis Gagnon, coroner for the District of St. Francis, presided at the inquests.

Taximeters Under Study In Sherbrooke

Suggestions for the introduction of taximeters to replace the present flat rate system now effective in Sherbrooke are being studied by local operators and the City Council. One company has installed meters on three of its cars and the drivers are making reports on the rates that would have been charged the customers by the meter system as compared with the existing rates. When enough of these reports have been compiled to make a comprehensive picture of the rates under the two systems, a definite proposal will be submitted by the operators to the city council.

The taxi operators claim the city has expanded so much in recent years that the present system is inequitable and causes a financial loss on the majority of trips.

At present the tariff is fifty cents for two passengers and five cents for each additional passenger within the old city limits, with a basic rate of sixty and seventy-five cents for trips to the annexed portions.

steal it.

The classical black and white Ballet Premiere brought the recital to a close and again the careful training and improvement of the dancers was evident. Possibly this number might have been shortened as some of the corps de ballet seemed tired at its close, but this was its only fault.

In the corps were Anita Doucet, Francoise Perras, Louisette Bousquet, Charlotte Courchesne, Rachel Turcotte, Claire Thibault, Andree Thibault, Therese Pronovost.

Manon Morrissette, Madeleine Couture, Suzanne Boisvert, Pierre Jeanson, George Hurley and Victor Roy danced the pas de six, while the pas de deux were danced by Mr. Jeanson and Miss Morrissette and by Francoise Perras and Miss Morrissette.

The evening's program was opened by Mrs. C. B. Howard, representing her husband the mayor. In her remarks, Mrs. Howard spoke of the value of a school of ballet in an era of juvenile delinquency, stating that when a young person's mind is occupied with such a project it is a step in the right direction.

The direction and choreography for the recital were the work of Miss Stirling, the general management and the very fine costumes were the responsibility of Miss Laurette Comtois. Raymonde Morin did the coiffures.

Recital Will Be Given At Coaticook

A recital featuring three well known Sherbrooke musicians, is to be given in Coaticook United Church tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock.

Elizabeth Dawson, 21-year-old pianist, who has just received her Licentiate from the Royal School of Music and who intends to continue her studies in England next year, will share the program with Jean Scarth, soprano, and Mrs. Robert Bell, organist.

Both Miss Scarth and Mrs. Bell are well known to local audiences and have only recently been heard in a splendid performance of Mendelssohn's oratorio "Elijah."

The three ladies were also soloists at a recital held a few months ago in Trinity Church. Those who heard this program know that it augurs well for the standard of tomorrow's which will repeat a few of the numbers heard at that time, in addition to other selections.

New Vote System

But "if Canada is at war, the coalition would not end," he said.

The bill providing for the single-transferable vote was passed at the last session of the B. C. legislature, but does not become effective until proclaimed.

Mr. Anscomb said party lines would be restored by adoption of this voting system. A coalition was "not feasible under the transferable vote."

Under the single-transferable vote system a candidate is elected if he has a majority on the first count. If no majority is obtained on the first count, the candidate having the least number of first choices is eliminated and his ballots are distributed to the second choices. This procedure continues until one candidate has a majority.

active service whether or not they have reached the legal voting age of 21 years.

The committee approved an amendment to the Dominion Elections Act proposed by Nelson Castonguay, chief electoral officer.

It provides that any service man or woman who on or after Sept. 9, 1950, is or has been on active service is entitled to vote regardless of age.

The amendment will have the effect of extending the vote in general elections to all service personnel under 21 years in the regular forces in Canada as well as abroad. All of Canada's regular forces have been placed on active service.

Committee chairman George Fulford (L-Leeds) said a man or woman in uniform should have the right to vote whether fighting in the field or not.

Leonard Stick (L-Trinity-Conception) agreed but George Nowlan (PC-Annapolis-Kings) and Edward Applewhaite (L-Skeena) thought there were going to be a lot of service people who would do little or no fighting.

The committee also agreed to another amendment which has the effect of including television in the restrictions on political broadcasts prior to an election or broadcasting of results prior to closing of the polls.

Recruiting Moves On Briskly

Recruiting in Sherbrooke for the 27th Canadian Infantry Brigade is moving ahead at a brisk pace.

So far, 86 have volunteered for active service and, of these, 32 have already been sent to Montreal for final processing prior to their enlistment leave.

Recruiting is being carried on locally at the Bedvidere and William street armouries.

Recruiting parties are at Windsor Mills and Waterloo today and will visit Danville and Asbestos again tomorrow as well as paying return visits to Stanstead, Rock Island and Windsor tomorrow.

Seeks Halt For Paper Increase

Washington, June 6—(CP)—Price administration Michael V. DiSalle was reported last night to have written a letter urging the Canadian government to try to halt a boost in newsprint prices.

An official of the Office of Price Stabilization said the letter went to R. M. Fowler, secretary of Canada's Defence Production Authority and president of the Canadian Newsprint Manufacturers, Association.

DiSalle has declined to disclose contests of the letter. He was not available for comment last night.

Representative Emanuel Celler (Dem. N.Y.) told a reporter last night that he had asked the U.S. Attorney-General's office to investigate the price boosts to determine if indictments can be brought for violation of the anti-trust laws.

private stations with TV programs on kinescope recordings or films as soon as production studios start operation in Toronto and Montreal.

In Toronto, the CBC has encountered some construction delays and does not expect to have a TV station in operation there before Jan. 1. In Montreal, a wrangle over granting the CBC a permit to construct a transmitter atop Mount Royal delayed work. The station there is not expected to come into operation until June next year.

Some of the private broadcasters have expressed belief they could operate a television station in practically any part of Canada within six months after obtaining a licence.

They doubted if the steel shortage would cause a hindrance. They could use wood or aluminum transmission towers while steel remained in short supply.

FIND THE PROVERB

HERE'S a proverb to work out with definitions. It will give you some good advice and may make you a happier person if you are a worrier.

In each numbered square of the diagram you will write one letter. A black square means the end of a word, so you will use only the numbered squares. When all of the numbered squares are filled you will have a proverb.

To find the letters look at the definitions. The first definition is: "To cast a ballot" and it is followed by the numbers 3, 33, 20 and 12. Well, what do people do on Election Day? They VOTE. So the first definition means "Vote." Now look at the numbers. Each number represents a square in the diagram in the order they appear in the word defined. So you will write V in the square numbered 3, O in 33 and so on. Now go on to the other definitions.

1. To cast a ballot. 3, 33, 20, 12.
2. Something used to wash clothes. 24, 16, 35.
3. The beak of a bird. 10, 21, 36, 29.
4. What you mean when you nod your head. 39, 2, 38.
5. Used to measure and draw straight lines. 5, 41, 18, 37, 14.
6. Sky color. 17, 23, 9, 30.
7. Opposite of "in." 15, 27, 6.
8. A foamy drink. 26, 4, 19, 25.
9. Part of a plant that is underground. 7, 40, 26, 31.
10. Food with a hard shell. 1, 34, 18.
11. Form of bread eaten hot. 32, 8, 22, 11.

ANIMALS: 1—Giraffe. 2—Kangaroo. 3—Albatross. 4—Kookaburra. 5—Zebra. 6—Elephant. 7—Llama. 8—Rabbit or hare. 9—Penguin. 10—Leopard. 11—Emu. 12—Gorilla, 13—Koala. 14—Platypus (or duckbill). 15—Bat. 16—Whale. 17—Crocodile. 18—Cuckoo (also cowbird).

FIND THE PROVERB: Words 1—Vote. 2—Tub. 3—Bill. 4—Yes. 5—Ruler. 6—Blue. 7—Out. 8—Beer. 9—Root. 10—Nut. 11—Roll. Proverb: "Never trouble trouble till trouble troubles you."

Check

"Uncle Harry asked me if I wanted a small check or a large one for my graduation present," Rufus said mournfully.

"You said the large, of course?" his interested chum, Rudy, interrupted.

Rufus continued to look mournful. "Natch. So what comes in the mail from Uncle Harry today but a handkerchief with big checks on the border."

Oil Refinery In Britain Nears Completion

By ROMAN JIMINEZ

Fawley, England. — Britain and the United States have joined forces to push to completion Europe's biggest oil refinery six months ahead of schedule.

Representing an investment of £37,500,000 ($110,625,000), the project was started near here only two years ago by Anglo-American Oil Co., now newly-named Esso Petroleum Co., a subsidiary of Standard Oil Co. (N.J.)

Next October the refinery will be delivering 1,000,000 gallons of gasoline a day—well ahead of the January, 1951, deadline for the first phase of the project.

Its construction on a 450-acre site is a happy tale of Anglo-American co-operation. Only one per cent of the 1,000 employed on the project are Americans. They are the engineering supervisors.

The new refinery, which will produce 25 per cent of the refined output of the United Kingdom, will sharply reduce Britain's dollar expenditures for oil products.

Crude oil from the Near East will feed it. This will obviate Britain's need to import more costly refined products from the U. S.

Fawley is only one of the new refineries sprouting up throughout Britain. In Fawley itself there was a pre-war refinery, also built for Esso, with a capacity of 900,000 tons a year. Its younger, biggest counterpart will eventually produce 6,000,000 tons a year.

Other post-war refineries are the Shell units at Stanlow and Shellhaven—designed to process, on completion in 1952, 2,800,000 and 3,200,000 tons of crude oil a year each.

At Coryton, the American Vacuum Oil Company is building another one, to process 900,000 tons a year.

British imports of crude oil for refining were about one-sixth of total oil imports before the war. Now they represent 45 per cent. When the refineries now under construction are in full operation, practically no refined oil will be imported.

Czechoslovak Underground Groups Active

Camp Valka, Germany, —(AP)— A recent arrival from Czechoslovakia at this German-run refugee camp in Bavaria says underground groups scattered through his country are fighting communism, but they are not banded into a single group.

"There are one or two big ones," said the young man who uses the name Novak, "but mostly they are small. We had anti-communist groups as small as five or six in our school."

These groups, he said, print anti-communist leaflets and, at the risk of imprisonment or death, distribute them. Some young workers are engaged in sabotage in industrial plants.

"If they catch them—" and he drew a finger across his throat. Novak said there are many executions of underground workers "that never get into the controlled press."

"Sometimes they publicly announce executions, but not all. They only do so to frighten those remaining."

There have been cases of underground members killing communist functionaries.

Underground workers are capitalizing on experience from the period of Nazi occupation, the youth claimed. "They learned which mistakes are fatal and how to operate. It was a bitter but worthy education.

"They meet in secret—men, women, youths. They feel their job is to keep active, to keep going until the east and west meet in open conflict. Then they will rise with whatever means they have . . .

"The underground lives only in the belief that one day they can join with the forces of the west to fight Russia. They will keep working until that day comes. I suppose that now it can only be called a nuisance factor. But at least the communists know we are there and they know we are against them. That is something."

MARRIAGES

SCOTT—MOXON

Sweetsburg, Que., June 6. — A very pretty wedding was solemnized at Ste. Rose de Lima church at nine o'clock, Saturday morning, June 2, when Mrs. Ann Mary Lyons Moxon, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Lyons, of Sweetsburg, became the bride of Mr. Kenneth Peter Scott, son of the late Landon Scott and of Mrs. Alice Scott, of Scotsmore, Rev. Father Cassidy, Redemptorist Father, of Montreal, officiating. The wedding music was played by Mrs. Arthur Tanner, of Sweetsburg. The soloists, Miss Noella Graham and Mr. Frank Graham, of East Farnham, sang Ave Maria, and The Lord's Prayer.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an ankle-length gown of yellow nylon marquisette with white Dutch hat, bouffant skirt and lace bolero. She carried a bridal bouquet of Talisman roses.

Mrs. Herbert Forster, of Cowansville, her sister's matron of honor, wore an ankle-length gown of blue nylon marquisette fashioned on the same lines as that worn by the bride, and she carried a nosegay of pink tea roses.

The best man was Mr. Anthony Lyons, and the ushers were Messrs. Keith Scott and Herbert Forster, of Cowansville.

Following the ceremony, the reception, held by the bride's parents at the Yamaska Hotel, was attended by upwards of seventy-five guests.

Among those from out-of-town were Mrs. A. Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Scott, the Misses May and Helen Scott, Scotsmore; Miss Marion Scott, R.N., of the Orleans County Hospital at Newport, Vt.; Mr. and Mrs. de la Marre, Sutton Junction; Mr. and Mrs. Keith Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Raymond, Cowansville; Mr. and Mrs. Eric Scott, Waterloo.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Scott left on a honeymoon trip to the Laurentians, the bride travelling in a navy blue gabardine suit and hat with white accessories, and a corsage of pink 'mums. Upon their return they will reside in the Chamberlain apartments in Sweetsburg.

AYER'S CLIFF

Mrs. Homer Martin entertained at a delightful birthday party in honor of her granddaughter, Miss Patricia Martin, of Quebec, on her nineth birthday. Guests were eight friends of Pats. Games were arranged and each young guest in turn won a remembrance of the afternoon to take home with them. The tea table was attractively centered with a lighted birthday cake and surrounded by lighted pink tapers and the refreshments were dainty with small lighted individual cakes, and attractive favors for each young lady. Pat received some nice gifts with the "Happy Birthday wishes." A jolly good time was enjoyed by all.

The Municipality has awakened to the fact that the Town needed a "Full Time Policeman". Some citizens had been aware of the need for some time, but at long last, they now have some protection. Mr. Alex Galbraith, of Knowlton, has received the appointment, and has been on duty for a week. One citizen was heard to remark "Now the curfew was needed." Most of the rate payers feel that this is an important move, and hope that some of the reckless driving with many other things, may, in due time, be brought in under control.

Dr. R. S. Hamilton, of Port Angeles, Wash., is at the home of his father-in-law, Dr. C. L. Brown, "The Oaks." Mrs. Hamilton and son, Robert, will arrive in June, and they will spent the next five or six months here. Their friends are indeed pleased to know that they have purchased "The Grange," of the J. H. Burton estate, and will rebuild the portin which was burned last year, and that they plan to have a beautiful modern home overlooking Lake Massawippi. It is hoped that it will not be long before they will remain here permanently. All join with her relatives in welcoming them back to this community.

The business block owned by Messrs. Elwin Chadsey, and Arthur H. Slack has been undergoing extensive alterations. The gound floor is occupied by Mrs. G H. Clough, "Iona's Dress Shop," and the Post-Office, which has been renovated, enlarged and is quite modern and roomy. The second story has just been completed with two very nice and modern apartments. One is occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Shulver, production manager of the B. B. Glove Factory, the other one, by Miss Aline Bessette. On the back side of the block, a screened in full length verandah has been built, which not only adds to the comfort of the tenants, but greatly to the appearance of the building.

Mrs. George Gill and Miss Marguerite Gill were overnight guests of Mrs. Gill's sister, Mrs. Fred Leney and Mr. Leney, at Fitch Bay.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Turner, of Sherbrooke, and Mr. M. Turner, of Point St. Claire, spent the week-end at their cottage, at the lake. While there, Mrs. Turner and children, were guests of her sister, Mrs. G. Gaffield, and Mr. Gaffield, at Derby Line, Vt.

You May Be Commuting By 'Flying Windmill' In Two Or Three Years, 'Copter Makers Hope

By RICHARD KLEINER

New York — Before too many years go by, you may be travelling via "flying windmill." That's the fond, financial hope of America's helicopter manufacturers, who think they're closer to their goal than ever before.

The men who make the 'copters—and other students of aviation—feel that in two or three years helicopter transportation will be an important arm of commercial aviation. They see four possible fields for a passenger-carrying 'copter:

1. Commuter service, carrying people from suburban communities to downtown areas and back home again.

2. Shuttle service, carrying airline passengers from existing airports to the downtown area and suburban communities.

3. Shuttle service, running between airports that are scattered on the fringes of big cities.

4. Short-haul service, carrying passengers between cities for distances under 100 miles.

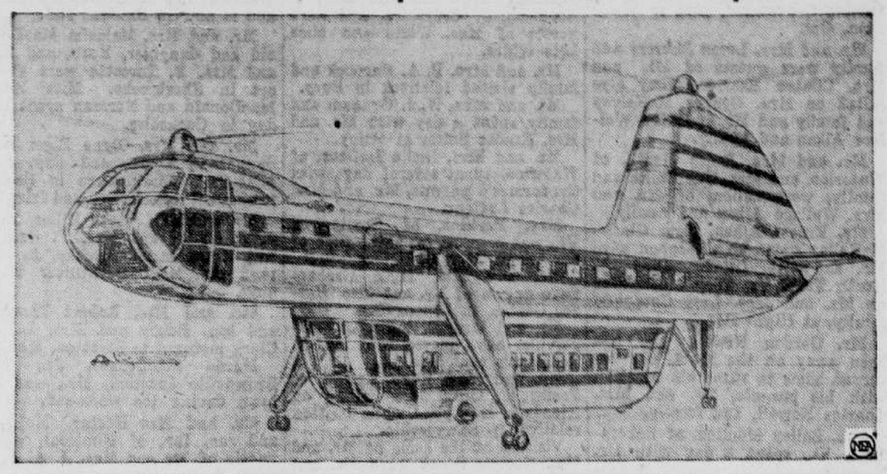
With graph and chart, the manufacturers build a pretty good case on how the helicopter can handle each of those jobs efficiently.



AIRLINE CONNECTION VERSION of a helicopter is this 40-passenger job, shown here in an artist's sketch. Now on the drawing boards at Piasecki's plant, it may be flying in seven years.

They admit, right off the bat, that penny for penny today's existing fixed-wing aircraft are cheaper to operate than even the most economical transport helicopter. And they further admit that said economical transport helicopter is still just a sketch on somebody's drawing board.

But, even though the helicopter costs more to run, it does have advantages for the four types of services it is shooting at.

Commuter service, the manufacturers claim, will be a natural for the 'copter. Costs will compare favorably with a taxi-ride, and speed will, of course, be much greater.

TEN-PASSENGER 'COPTER made by Bell for the U.S. Air Force could be forerunner of a commercial version for commuters.

The same story applies to the two shuttle services, bringing today's widespread airports closer to the cities and to each other.

But it is in the field of short-haul service, relatively new for the ambitious helicopter, that the manufacturers see the greatest revenue. And it is here, also, that they unleash their statistical big guns.

They prove that a passenger, going from one city to another less than 100 miles away, would save time by going via helicopter. The conventional plane has a faster cruising speed, but the helicopter travels from downtown-to-downtown. The passenger doesn't have a long trip by bus or taxi from downtown to the airport on both ends of his trip to catch a 'copter.

By the same token, he spends the same (or less) money. Even though helicopter fare may be higher than conventional plane fare, the traveler has no taxi or bus fare to take him out to the airport.

That logic doesn't work if the trip is more than 100 miles, or possibly 150. There the conventional plane's speed and economy win out.

Of course, there are hitches to the rosy helicopter picture. First, there have to be large transport helicopters, capable of carrying big loads. These are on the way.

All the big manufacturers are working with such craft. The Bell Feeder-Liner could carry 10 passengers and 480 pounds of cargo 100 miles. A commercial version of McDonnell's XHJD-1 would have a 12-passenger capacity. A commercial version of Piasecki's HRP-2 could carry 12 passengers on a commuter line, or 15 on a longer trip. The Sikorsky S-55 is built to haul 10 passengers.

Even bigger helicopters are on drawing boards. Piasecki is developing a ship for the Air Force called the XH-16, which they figure might work out commercially in seven or eight years. This one would handle 40 passengers.

One version of this helicopter-of-the-future has a "capsule" which is loaded beforehand with passengers. The mother ship clamps it on, flies off, deposits it at the airport, and clamps on another one. It would work like a truck-trailer, with the people riding in the trailer.

Another drawback to helicopter service isn't quite as easily written off as the problem of large ships. This is the 'copter-port, which must be close to the downtown area or it would defeat the purpose.

There are a lot of cities where airports of any type are now zoned out of the downtown area. This may be for reasons of safety, or nuisance, or noise. Such zoning regulations must be removed, or there'll be no helicopter-ports downtown.

And if there are no helicopter-ports downtown, the dream of a gold mine windmilling down from the sky will vanish.

New Dionne Tale Puts U. S. Blast On Quint Doctor

Toronto, —(CP)— A recent book about the Dionne quintuplets bitterly attacks Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, their famous physician, accusing him of everything from arriving at the quints' birth late to separating them from their parents.

The book is "The Dionne Legend: Quintuplets in Captivity," by Lillian Barker, published in the United States by Doubleday and Co. Inc. It was withheld from sale in Canada by Doubleday Canada Ltd., because of "certain inaccuracies in the text."

The book tells the Dionne side of the story in the long controversy which sprang up when the Ontario government took over guardianship of the quints shortly after their birth May 28, 1934. The guardianship ended in 1941.

Dr. Dafoe is given no credit for the seven years of care that brought five puny, premature infants into strong, healthy girlhood. There are only two references to his medical care of the children. Both grudgingly credit him with using common sense in early crises in their lives.

The accusation is made that Dr. Dafoe made a fortune from his association with the quints. Friends say he left a large estate built up after he reached prominence as the quint doctor but not from the funds of the quints, which now are about $1,000,000. The medical profession's approval of his conduct was indicated in the life memberships he received in the Canadian and Ontario Medical Association and the Academy of Medicine.

Miss Barker, an Atlanta, Ga., writer who is a friend of the Dionne family, writes as fact highly controversial matter. For instance, she quotes Dr. Dafoe directly on things he is alleged to have said the day the children were born. By her own admission Miss Barker did not arrive in Callander until 10 months later.

She attributes to him language that is in striking contrast to other writers' quotations. "Press reports" and "editorials" are quoted without any indication of their source.

Much is made in the book of the fact that Dr. Dafoe did not arrive at the Dionne home until two of the babies had been born and a third was arriving. Dr. Dafoe reported this fact himself in an article in the Journal of the American Medical Association, Sept. 1, 1934, three months after the babies were born.

Miss Barker's account of events on the night the quints were born differs from the account the doctor wrote from notes made in the first week and still in existence. She says that a midwife baptized the quints. Dr. Dafoe wrote: "I baptized them separately." Miss Barker writes that Mr. Dionne drove to Corbeil for a priest for Mrs. Dionne, who was very ill. Dr. Dafoe reported in his A.M.A. article that Mr. Dionne could not be found and he (Dr. Dafoe) drove to Corbeil for the priest.

Another criticism is that Dr. Dafoe left the Dionne home early in the morning the children were born, "went on about his business" and did not return until 5 p. m.

Modern medical practice is not to touch premature children unnecessarily for the first 24 hours. The quint doctor spent the day scouring the district in a successful hunt for a nurse.

The book says that Dr. Dafoe expressed the opinion several times in the first few days that the quints would not live. This was not an isolated opinion. The fact that they did live was called a miracle of medical care.

The charge is also made that the famous country doctor "looked down" on French-speaking Canadians. Miss Barker says Dr. Dafoe told unnamed persons in Callander on the day the children were born that they were "five little French frogs."

The statement seems out of character in view of Dr. Dafoe's references to French-speaking Canadians in his A.M.A. article.

Dr. Dafoe wrote of the "remarkably pure" home life of the French-speaking people in his northern Ontario district, adding: "They live close to the soil and have been unspoiled by civilization; a sturdy, simple, and law-abiding folk, loyal to their race and to their faith."

Miss Barker represents the controversy over custody of the quints as a "battle between the church and state, the French and English-speaking Canadians."

She says "French-Canadian leaders, politicians and ... newspaper editors (in 1935) took up the fight for the Dionnes, 'honest, honorable Roman Catholics,' caught in an unprecedented circumstances, who were unable to defend themselves against an autocratic protestant doctor and a powerful British Canadian government, also Protestant.

"The English-language press, for the most part, was ominously silent, but an undeclared war was on."

At another point Miss Barker says: "Dr. Dafoe, proud of his Flemish-Dutch blood, was Protestant. Members of the Liberal party in Toronto who had made the quintuplets government wards and supported and co-operated with Dr. Dafoe were English-speaking and Protestant." She makes an exception of the then welfare minister David Croll who, she points out, is Jewish.

The Ontario government is criticized for using the quintuplets as a tourist attraction, yet the book admits that their exhibitions were continued after the parents regained control and until the tourist business dropped off during the war.

Dr. Dafoe resigned as a guardian of the children in 1939 and as their physician in 1941, saying: "I feel my period of usefulness is over. I hope I have done a good job." The text of his resignation does not contain the statement attributed to it by Miss Barker that he resigned because "the quints were allowed to speak only French."

His resignation as guardian is represented as having been brought about by an agreement with the parents under which two law suits started by the parents were dropped. One arose from Dr. Dafoe's initiation into the Saints and Sinners Club in New York as a "doctor of litters," an incident for which the president of the club took responsibility, and the other asking an accounting of any sums Dr. Dafoe had made as a result of his association with the quints.

Mr. Dionne is quoted as having said he would like to fight both the cases through the courts. He had "heard, though, on good authority, about threats to pass legislation to stop both law suits, to keep them from ever being tried in Ontario. The threats came from official sources in Toronto."

The book accuses Dr. Dafoe of having advised Mr. Dionne when the babies were a few days old to sign a contract to exhibit them in the United States—the famous "Chicago contract"—and later denouncing Oliva Dionne for signing it.

The accusation that he gave such advice was never made publicly during his lifetime.

Details of Dr. Dafoe's private life are brought out in the book. It mentions, for instance, that the quint doctor failed in some examinations while at university.

Miss Barker also discloses that Dr. Dafoe's wife was ill mentally some time before she died following an attack of meningitis. Actually, she had a brain tumor. No mention was made of the country doctor's self-sacrifice in keeping his wife at home with him for some years and caring for her himself while he carried on his practice.

Polar Bear Is Looking For A Home

Churchill, Man.—(AP)—The fate of Nanook is causing much concern to the residents of this northern Manitoba town on the west coast of Hudson Bay.

Nanook is a baby polar bear.

About two months ago Charles Webber, pilot of a commercoal plane flying out of here, picked up two tiny cubs at Pelly Bay, 725 miles north of here in the Northwest Territories. The mother bear had been killed by a native.

Webber realized that the bears—they were only about 10 days old—wouldn't survive without special care so he loaded them aboard the plane for the return flight.

While in the Northwest Territories he landed at Repulse Bay, because one of the tiny orphans proved to be a problem in the plane. A priest, Father Didier, took him off Webber's hands and promised to give him a good home.

Nanook, without her brother, continued on and took to civilization. She soon became a source of interest and entertainment to everyone as she waddled around on her short legs and big feet, making friends and posing for photographers.

But it is the children she loves and they love her. She likes to show off, alternately cuddling and drinking from her chocolate-milk filled bottle.

However, Webber realized Nanook could not find a permanent home here. He applied to Ottawa for permission to sell her to a Chicago zoo.

He received a telegram in reply refusing permission to remove the bear from the Northwest Territories.

But to return her to the Territories would mean death because now Nanook knows nothing but friendship from the hands of man.

Health Rules Drawn Up For Pilgrimage

By OSCAR RIBEIRO

Geneva, Switzerland, (Reuters) —World Health Organization experts have drafted a new set of health rules for the annual Moslem pilgrimage to Mecca.

The great trek, with its hundreds of thousands of pilgrims, presents one of the biggest regional health problems of its kind in Asia.

The rules, which will be submitted to the world health assembly are aimed not only at preventing the spread of epidemics among the numerous pilgrims who visit the Holy Land at Hedjaz but also at protecting the health of the local Arab population. At the same time, the rules seek to ease some of the existing irksome health restrictions on pilgrims.

Mecca, birthplace of Mohamet, lies in Saudi Arabia. A pilgrimage to it is one of the five sacred duties which each of the world's 200,000,000 Moslems hopes to perform during his lifetime. Last year, 500,000 pilgrims visited Mecca.

The pilgrimage season is not fixed because by the Moslem lunar calendar the new year comes 11 days earlier each year. This year it is in September.

During the next 10 or 15 years, W.H.O. experts say, the pilgrimage will fall in a bad cycle of hot, unhealthy months when heat and sun stroke take heavy toll of the pilgrims.

But the main concern of the World Health Organization is epidemic diseases such as cholera and small-pox.

The spread of epidemics is helped by the absence of modern sanitary conditions in Saudi Arabia. W.H.O. hopes that with its active financial and technical assistance, these conditions will steadily improve. The new rules stipulate that there should be at least one doctor to every 1,000 pilgrims.

The Feed And Grain Co-Operative Banquet At Windsor Mills Was Honored By Members Of Both Houses

Windsor Mills, June 6.—A milestone was set marking the progress of this town on Saturday evening, where the very progressive Feed and Grain Co-Operative of Windsor Mills held a banquet at the Chateau Windsor.

Chief among the honored guests were the Hon. Laurent L. Barre, minister of agriculture in the provincial grovernment; the Hon. J. A. Bourque, minister of Lands and Forests; Mr. A. Goudreau, M.P.P., for Richmond and Wolf; Mr. Gerin, M.L.A., for Stanstead; Mayor Paquette and the aldermen of Windsor; Mr. McCourt, president of the Co-Operative and his executive; Mr. E. O. Gingras, M.P., for Richmond in the Federal House, was unable to be present and was represented by Mr. Evarest Paquet.

Lending their support to this interesting and distinguished gathering were members of all the co-operatives from the surrounding district, and Mr. Martin, representative of the federated co-ops, of Montreal.

Mr. Silvio Thibault acted as chairman and toast master. Among the speakers was Mr. Gagne, managing secretary of the local co-op. Mr. Gagne has held this position for five years and much of the success of the enterprise is due to his energy and iniative.

More than one hundred and fifty guests, including the wives of the gentlemen previously mentioned, sat down at the table, decorated with tulips and daffodils, and enjoyed the five course dinner. Later, an orchestra played for dancing.

Membership Supper Is Held By Richmond Sub-Division Of C. W. L.

Richmond, June 6. — In May, the Richmond sub-division of the Catholic Women's League held a membership supper at the Richmond Hotel to which the Junior sub-division was invited.

The guest speaker was Rev. Father Patenaude, Professor of English at St. Charles Seminary, Sherbrooke, who in a brief discourse, compared the C.W.L. with the holy women, who in the early days of the Church helped the Apostles in many ways. At that time there were no communities of Sisters so these pious women dedicated their lives to the service of the Church, lived in the temple, and fulfilled various roles. Church history tells us that there were ordained Deaconesses who devoted themselves solely to the service of God and the Church Today, the C.W.L. continues the work of these pious women, helping the needy, caring for the sick, consoling the sorrowful, and in every way collaborating with their pastors in parochial good works.

Mrs. Grant Campbell, in her usual charming manner, introduced the guest speaker and Miss Mary E. O'Donnell, president of the Junior group, graciously thanked him.

Several of the members added to the enjoyment of the occasion by favoring the diners with music, which was much appreciated. Miss Marthe Tremblay and Mrs. George Tremblay were heard in a piano duet. A vocal solo "Ave Maria", also an encore "Little Star" by Mrs. Leslie Rattray. A piano duet by Mrs. Gaston Desmarais and Mrs. Roger Cameron. Mrs. Jules Fortin and Mrs. Gaston Desmarais accompanied the singing.

After the supper the annual report was read by the secretary. Mrs. Wm. Lasonde, president, in a few well-chosen words, thanked the members for their cooperation in making the year a most successful one.

Annual Report, Richmond Sub-Division: The following report shows that the sub-division has not been inactive during the past year.

Membership stands at 134. Ten regular meetings and two executive meetings were held with a fair attendance. Spiritual Activities: A High Mass was offered on the feast of Our Lady of Good Counsel. One High Mass and many privileged masses were offered for the souls of deceased members, or for relatives of members; a privileged mass card was placed at the cenotaph on Armistice Day. This mass was offered for the souls of all servicemen from Richmond and vicinity, who were killed in war.

Members assembled at the home of bereaved families and recited the Rosary. An hour of Adoration was organized on the occasion of the Forty Hours' Devotions in both parishes. The members joined in the Procession on the feast of Corpus Christi, with their banner.

The amount of $3 was sent to the Lay Retreat Fund. A contribution of $25 was sent to Mgr. Vincent on the occasion of his Golden Jubilee. In union with members throughout Canada, each member offered a day of prayer for the intentions of Our Holy Father.

The amount of $25 was given to the fund raised in the Holy Family parish to send Father Dupuis to Rome, on the Holy Year Pilgrimage.

Education: Prizes to the amount of $6 were given to Mount St Patrick Convent and to the Sacred Heart College. Bus fares to the amount of $180.85 to and from school, were paid for a number of poor children. $10 was donated to the fund raised in the diocese to help needy students to continue in higher courses of study. All National and Diocesan obligations were paid.

Social welfare: An aged woman unable to work received a monthly allowance of $5 and a pint of milk daily, also clothing. A box of good used clothing, also three quilts, was sent to a needy widow with three children. 940 pints of milk were supplied to infants and small children.

Boxes containing stationery, cigarettes, etc., were sent to a patient in the St. Francis Sanitorium. Several cases of children not attending school were investigated, and proper clothing supplied. An aged and bed-ridden woman was found in a neglected condition, and was given care and medicine by one of the members. A little girl whose family had suffered loss by fire, was supplied with underclothing, stockings, shoes and overshoes. Tonics were bought for undernourished children. 17 well-filled baskets containing fruit, groceries, biscuits, value of $12 each, were distributed to needy families at Christmas. Besides boxes containing fruit and candy were sent to shut-in children. Gifts of fruit, plants, and toilet articles were sent to shut-in members.

A family, where the father, unemployed for some time, was working out of town, was visited. The mother had twin babies. There were three other children of preschool age. An order of groceries was sent, also clothing for the infants. $27 was paid for a maid to take care of the children. Three members volunteered to do the laundry for this family, and another member collected and delivered the laundry. A family of nine children, living in a deplorable state of poverty, were supplied with 16 suits of underwear, 13 pair of stockings, 3 pr. boy's pants, 7 pr. shoes, besides shirts, dresses, toilet articles, kitchen utensils, broom, etc. Five of these children were of school age, but had not been attending school for want of proper clothing. 13 pairs of mittens were given to small girls attending the Convent.

Conventions: A delegate was sent to the Provincial Convention held in Montreal. Many members attended the Diocesan Convention in Magog. Six ditty bags, total value $23.77, were sent to the Catholic Sailors' Club in Montreal. The amount of $5, also a box containing religious articles, books and pictures were sent to the Sisters of Service. $5 was donated to the Red Cross, $2 to the T. B. Fund, $2 to the Campaign for the Blind.

Twelve members subscribe to the League Magazine, and 67 participate in the Blue Cross. During the year the following activities were organized: two card parties, receipts $154.71; one food sale, receipts, $109.45; Guignolee, receipts, $261.; Drawings and Bingo, $82. Donations received amounted to $266.63.

The treasurer's report shows a balance at the beginning of year $129.54. Total receipts $1,128.14, and total expenses $970.

Missionary Is Speaker At Danville

Danville, June 6.—Dr. D. Dalziel who has made his headquarters at the Parsonage with Rev. C. W. and Mrs. Foggo while he visited other communities, was the speaker in the Trinity Church Hall on Tuesday, May 29, when a supper was put on by the Missionary Society and other helpers from the church in honor of the occasion. Dr. Dalziel is a recently returned missionary to Canada.

Dr. Dalziel graduated with an M.D. degree from the Faculty of Medicine in 1945 and later took post-graduate work in obstetrics and gynaecology. He served one year with the R.C.A.M.C. in Canada and England. He was appointed to the Monan Mission as a missionary to China in Metropolitan O.C. Toronto. He sailed in 1947.

After a period of language study, Dr. Dalziel worked closely with Dr. Bob McClure for about a year on the staff of Union Hospital in Hankow, when Dr. McClure returned to Canada Dr. Dalziel took charge of the female surgery for the hospital. The Union Hospital at Hankow is a union institution supported by the English Methodists the London Missionary Society (Congregationalists) American Episcopalian and Swedish Lutherians with Dr. Dalziel as the United Church's contribution to the staff. This hospital has two hundred and thirty beds which means it is about one quarter the size of the Toronto General our missionaries have done a tremendous amount of cancer work thanks to the gift of Canadian radium. Dr. Dalziel continued his work at the hospital until shortly before leaving for Canada. Mrs. Dalziel assisted in the hospital by teaching English as well as caring for her two small children. Dr. and Mrs. Dalziel arrived in Canada early in 1951.

Made With Glass, His Boats Bounce

Georgetown, Ont. — Leonard J. Bell, who manufacturers a line of small boats in this town near Toronto, has a novel way of testing the durability of his produce.

Occasionally he tossed a 15-foot boat out of a second-story window. But instead of going "crunch" the boat bounces. They're plastic boats made of fibreglass bonded with synthetic resins.

The boats are strong, light in weight and low in cost. Bell has government orders for several of the craft to be used in the Arctic, because they don't even get brittle at 80 degrees below zero.

An important feature of these boats is that they're resistant to animals. Porcupines, for instance delight in gnawing chunks cut of resin-bounded plywood but they find no nourishment in resin-bonded fibreglass.

Another lakeshore pest that doesn't like these boats is the teredo, a worm equipped with a sort of brace-and-bit head which loves to bore into the bottoms of wooden boats.

Q—Is the Gila monster poisonous?

A—Yes. The Gila monster is the only lizard known to be poisonous.

Shower Held For Miss Jones At Boundary

Rock Island, June 6. — Miss Reta Jones, popular June bride-to-be, was pleasantly surprised by her co-workers and friends, at a shower, on Wednesday evening, in the cafeteria of Spencer Supports. Miss Jones entered the cafeteria to the strains of the Wedding March, played by her sister, Miss Dorothy Jones, and was escorted to a prettily decorated table, laden with many beautiful and practical gifts.

After the gifts had been opened and admired by all, Miss Jones thanked her friends in a few well-chosen words. The guests then participated in a number of quiz games, which caused much hilarity and prizes were given for the best answers. A delicious lunch was served by the joint hostesses, Miss Francis Meigs and Miss Gladys Dustin, assisted by Miss Eunice Dustin.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

On Tuesday, May 29, after school hours, a birthday party was given for James Webb, Jr., at Tilton's cottage on Lake Memphremagog, who was that day fifteen years of age. The group were conveyed from Rock Island to the lake in Tilton's truck and upon arriving there, they all went on a fishing excursion in two boats returning to the cottage at dusk. The boys were very happy as each had a fine catch of fish.

Mrs. James Webb, Sr., then prepared lunch of hotdogs, etc., and served a birthday cake, decorated in white and blue, toasting marshmellows completed the delightful evening, which was attended by Laurie Tilton, Robert Laberee, Dale Coburn, Tommy Ritchie, Guy Bouchard, Mrs. Webb, Cheryl Webb and Fred Webb.

LADIES' AID MEETS

The Ladies' Aid of Stanstead South Church, met on Thursday afternoon, May 31, in the church hall, with twenty-five members and friends attending. Miss Mirabel Robinson opened the meeting by reading Psalm XXI and the Lord's Prayer, was repeated in unison. Mrs. R. E. Grow presided over the business session and executive reports read.

The sum of $5 was voted to be donated the Home Demonstration Group for the Derby Line Park equipment fund. A motion was made that cards, plants or flowers be sent to shut-ins this summer. The meeting concluded the activities for this season to be resumed in September, at which time, the hostesses will be Mrs. R. Grow and Mrs. Fayne Hovey. The meeting adjourned and a delicious tea of salads, home-made bread, etc., was served by the hostesses, Mrs. Carroll Smith, and Mrs. Charles Bliss.

Marriage Ties Are Weak In Germany

Bonn, —(Reuters)— Six years of war, 3,000,000 "superfluous" women and 10,000,000 refugees in West Germany have left deep marks on German family life.

One marriage in six in West Germany today ends in divorce. They are more frequent in towns than in the country.

Marriages between 1942 and 1944 have proved the least stable. Nearly half of all war-broken marriages have lasted less than 10 years.

The presence of children has little effect upon the durability of marriages, say German statisticians who find that 38 per cent of broken marriages are childless, compared with 43 per cent before the war.

Only fourteen per cent of divorces are granted on the ground of adultery. The usual grounds are "other offences against marriage" including sexual irregularities and what the law calls "the break-up of the marriage community."

Divorces are private affairs; nothing may be published about them in the press.

Statisticians estimate that about one-half of all married Germans are unfaithful to their wives. Even among women there is much more unfaithfulness than before the war.

An increasing number of married women, estimated at between 10 and 16 per cent, are unable to bear children, while three per cent of all babies are born dead.

Q—How far inland is the Amazon River navigable?

A—The Amazon Basin has a network of rivers which are navigable for 15,814 miles. The Amazon River by itself is navigable for 1700 miles, the extent of its course in Brazilian teritory.

LEAGUE LEADING GRANBY RED SOX EDGE ATHLETICS 5-4

Sherbrooke Rally In Last Inning Just Falls Short Of Evening Score; Farnham Pirates Play Here Tonight

The league-leading Granby Red Sox punched home two runs in the ninth inning and then cut short a Sherbrooke rally in the same frame to edge the Athletics 5-4 in a Provincial League baseball game at the Park Avenue Stadium last night.

A home-run by shortstop Vernon Thoele gave the Red Sox their winning margin but the Athletics gave the red-hot league-leaders a scare by tallying twice in the last half of the ninth to come within one run of evening the score.

This evening the Athletics will be at home again, meeting Farnham Pirates. Before the game begins, Les Fusiliers de Sherbrooke and the Sherbrooke Regiment will take part in a military demonstration marking the seventh anniversary of the Normandy invasion. This will be at 8.15 p.m.

Lt.-Col. Gaetan Roy, officer commanding the Fusiliers, will be in charge of the ceremony at which the bands of the two units will be present. Maj.-Gen. A. G. Morton, commander of the Quebec military region, also will be on hand.

Jacques Jeanneau pitched his first complete game for the Athletics last night and lost a tough decision. He gave up eight hits, the same number as Sherbrooke got off two Granby pitchers, struck out eight and walked five, one intentionally.

The locals jumped into a two-run lead in the second inning on two walks and two hits, one of them a double by second baseman Rutkay. Granby got these back in the third, Joe Monteiro connecting for a double and driving in the runs.

In the sixth inning the Red Sox scored a single and they went ahead 5-2 in the ninth when Thoele homered with one aboard.

The Athletics then came to life and after Duany flied out Pat Rooney went to first on an error. Pages singled and Gladu, pinch-hitting for Mantaras, clubbed out a double, sending in a run. Pascual also doubled, driving home the second run and Brown, pinch-hitting for Jeanneau, walked to load the bases.

Granby at this stage brought in Jones to relieve pitcher Malone and he stopped the rally by having Gonzalez fly out and having Rutkay nipped on a fielder's choice.

In other games last night, Farnham Pirates shaded Quebec Braves 4-3; St. Hyacinthe Saints downed Drummondville Cubs 6-1 and St. Johns Braves defeated Three Rivers Royals 6-2.

At Drummondville, the Saints got to Hooker for 11 safeties for their decision.

Drummondville, held to three hits by Pope, were only able to cross the plate once—in the sixth. The Saints got two runs in the fourth, another in the fifth and added three more in the ninth for their margin of victory.

Each team committed one error.

At Farnham one run in the seventh spelled victory for the Pirates.

The teams were tied 3-3 but Farnham produced in the seventh. Both teams played errorless ball but the Braves outhit the Pirates 9-8.

Morales was credited with the victory while the losing pitcher was Winn.

At Three Rivers, the seventh-place Braves held the cellar-dwelling Royals to two runs in the first inning.

Braves collected 11 hits off pitchers Olsen and James, tallying singletons in the first and sixth innings and two runs each in the second and fifth. Cabrera yielded nine hits to Royals who made three errors to Braves' one.

Argentina's Cesar Brion Wins Over U. K. Heavyweight King, Gardner

London, June 6.—(AP)—Argentina's rugged Cesar Brion won a bloody decision over Jack Gardner, Britain's heavyweight king, last night but two other British champions felled American opponents before 50,000 fans at White City stadium.

Don Cockell, British and European light-heavyweight champion, knocked out Nick Barone of Syracuse, N.Y., in 2:50 of the sixth round in the second of the three 10-round non-title fights.

Then Randolph Turpin, British and European middleweight king, dropped Jackie Keough of Cleveland in 2:20 of the seventh round.

Cockell unleached his guns on Barone in the sixth after a fairly quiet fight up to that point. He sent the American reeling into the ropes with two vicious left hooks and he finished him with a right cross. Cockell weighed 178¾. Barone was five pounds lighter.

Turpin floored Keough for counts of nine in the fourth and sixth and for two counts of eight in the seventh.

Keough, weighing 156 to 160 for the Briton, offered no attack but clung tenaciously to the British champion and blocked scores of normally-effective blows.

A terrific rally in the 10th round cemented the victory for the 24-year-old South American.

Cut over both eyes, Brion charged after his rival and belted away with both hands. A left started the blood flowing from a gash over Gardner's right eye to match the cut over his left.

The 24-year-old Gardner dropped Brion in the ninth with a left hook and a push, catching the Argentine off balance.

Blood started pouring from both fighters in the second round and from then on science disappeared.

The Associated Press scorecard called it five rounds for Brion, three for Gardner and two even.

Montreal Royals Have Slump, Lose Five Of Last Six Games In I. L.

Montreal fans are a bit worried today. The Royals still lead the International League by four games but are reeling as the result of five defeats in their last six starts.

The Royals dropped three out of four games to the third-place Syracuse Chiefs and have dropped two straight to the runner-up Rochester Red Wings.

Rochester came from behind and beat the Royals 11-8 in 10 innings last night. The Royals provided Chris Van Cuyk, towering lefthander, recently acquired from Brooklyn with a 6-1 lead in the first inning.

Van Cuyk lingered until the seventh when Larry Ciaffone chased him with a two-run homer to cut the Montreal lead to 7-5. The Wings tallied three in the ninth but Toby Atwell homered in the last of the ninth to send the game into overtime.

A 10th-inning single by Cullum started the winning surge. He moved to second on a sacrifice bunt and Don Richmond was purposely passed to set up a double play but the strategy went awry. Ed Mierkowicz doubled in a run, Ciaffone singled in another and the still another came on Hal Rice's infield out.

Ottawa Giants downed the Chiefs 6-2 behind the five-hit pitching of veteran Ed Wright. Wright clinched the game with a two-run single in the seventh inning.

Hank Biassatti blasted a home run with one out in the ninth inning to give Buffalo Bisons a 6-5 decision over Springfield Cubs. Archie Wilson homered in the eighth for the Bisons to tie the score at 5-5.

Lefty Irv Medlinger pitched Toronto Maple Leafs to a 5-2 triumph over Baltimore Orioles. The Leafs clinched it with three runs in the fifth. Johnny Sullivan singled home two of the runs.

Manager Billy Meyer's Future Is Uncertain As Pirates Keep Losing

Pittsburgh, June 6.—(AP)—Talk of firing Billy Meyer of Pittsburgh Pirates cropped up anew today as the team wallowed in its familiar cellar position.

But nobody admits the National League's 1948 manager-of-the-year is on the spot right now. General Manager Branch Rickey claims he hasn't given the matter any thought at all. He called Meyer at Boston and told him as much.

Rickey knows something must be done to help the floundering ball club which has won only two games in 16. Maybe Meyer will be the goat for the dismal showing, blamed mostly on sore-armed pitchers.

But Rickey insists Meyer is a top field general. He said it several times. Coming here from Brooklyn, Rickey decided to keep Billy after long consideration.

Reports that Meyer will be ousted come up every time the team drops a string of games. The rumors are more persistent now. Pittsburgh sports writers are hitting it hard. Some say he may be retired for ill health—he's suffering from ulcers.

"What does Meyer say about it?

"It is news to me."

And Rickey?

"I have never given it a thought and I'm not giving it any."

What is in store for Meyer or the team in general may be answered at a board of directors meeting today or the next day. But Pirate officials say it is just a routine business session.

If Rickey decided to change pilots there likely would be no outside interference. All the Pirate brass—from President John Galbreath to the secretary — agree that Rickey's running the ball club.

Among those named as likely prospects for the field job are Burt Shotton, Pirate second-baseman Danny Murtagh, Fred Haney of the Hollywood Stars, Rogers Hornsby of the Seattle Rainers, Joe Gordon of the Sacramento Solons, Clay Hopper of St. Paul, Pinky Higgins of Louisville and Walter Alston of Montreal.

Quebec — Fernando Gagnon, 117¼, Quebec, knocked out Claude Meunier, 113½, Three Rivers, Que., 4.

U.S. Women's Champ Wins In U.K. Golf

Broadstone, England, June 6—(AP)— Willowy Beverly Hanson, seeking to become the third American to hold the U.S. and British women's amateur titles at the same time, swept into the quarter-finals of the British women's amateur golf championship yesterday with two victories.

The former Fargo, N.D., newspaper woman who now registers from Indio, Calif., defeated 63-year-old Mrs. Charlotte Beddows, 3 and 2 in the morning, and then routed Mrs. Janine Addelcos, the Belgian champion, 6 and 5, with a brilliant display of sub-par golf.

The eight survivors will play another double round of 18-hole matches today. That will cut the field to the finalists. The 36-hole final will be played Thursday over the hilly, 6,040-yard Dorset golf club course where women's par is 73.

Jeanne Bisgood, the English Curtis cup player, defeated Miss D. M. Forster of England 2 and 1 in the fourth round. The other quarter-finalists are Lady Katherine Cairns, Frances (Bunty) Stephens, both of England; Moira Paterson and Jean Donald of Scotland; and two Irish challengers, Mrs. Catherine MacCann and Miss J. S. McIntyre.

FANNIN GOES TO LEAFS

Toronto, June 6—(CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League yesterday obtained right-hander Cliff Fannin from St. Louis Browns on a 24-hour recall basis.

The 27-year-old Fannin has won 34 and lost 47 in his last five years with the Browns.

COLLEGE ACE SIGNED

Chicago, June 6—(AP)—One of the most sought-after college players in the midwest has signed a contract with the Chicago White Sox class-A farm club at Colorado Springs, Colo., Sox farm director John Rigney announced yesterday.

He is Bobby (Ace) Winkles, star shortstop for Illinois Wesleyan the last three years. He hit .320, .350 and .427.

White Sox Keep Up Fast Pace, Win Fourth Straight From Boston; Dodgers Gain In National League

So you still think the Chicago White Sox are morning glories? Well, ask the Red Sox.

Boston stormed into Chicago last Sunday with the avowed purpose of pricking Chicago's bubble and putting the upstarts in their places. Hadn't the Red Sox just won 11 of their last 12 games? And weren't they ready to use the White Sox as a stepping stone to first place?

The Bostonians' confidence increased when they won the opener of a five-game series. Then came the debacle. The White Sox beat them four in a row.

Yesterday's amazingly easy 10-2 triumph over the power-packed pre-season flag favorites marked the sixth time Chicago has whipped Boston in seven games this season. The victory kept intact the White Sox' three and a half game lead over New York, conquerors of Cleveland yesterday, 8-2.

Elsewhere in the American League, the St. Louis Browns shellacked the Philadelphia Athletics, 10-1, and Detroit shut out Washington, 4-0.

Ned Carver hurled a four-hitter against the A's for his eighth triumph—an amazing accomplishment considering the cellar-dwelling Browns have won only 14. Gene Bearden pitched the Tiger shutout over his former Washington teammates.

Brooklyn's Dodgers eked out a 3-2 win over St. Louis to increase their National League lead over the Cards to four and a half games. It was the Brooks' fourth straight victory.

Sal Maglie registered his ninth straight victory as the New York Giants nipped the Cincinnati Reds, 3-2. Lefty Paul Lapalme, making his big league start, hurled Pittsburgh to an 8-0 triumph over the Boston Braves. Relief artist Jim Konstanty, making his first start since he lost the world series opener last fall, lasted only five innings as the Chicago Cubs whipped the Philadelphia Phillies, 3-2.

Two high scoring innings—the sixth and eighth—gave the White Sox all their runs as they handed Boston's Willard Nixon his first defeat. Rookie outfielder Jim Busby sparked a six-run eighth with a two-run homer. He also got a triple and single. Randy Gumpert scattered eight hits for his fourth success against no defeats. The Sox now have won 18 of their last 20.

Dom DiMaggio got three of Boston's hits to stretch his consecutive hitting streak through 25 games.

Allie Reynolds smashed Cleveland's nine-game winning streak with a five-hitter for New York. Yogi Berra and Bobby Brown paced a 13-hit assault on loser Early Wynn with home runs.

The Browns belted three A's hurlers for 16 hits. Catcher Sherman Lollar smacked a single, double and homer and drove in three runs. Garver chipped in with a single and double.

Detroit's George Kell collected four hits in as many times at bat. That equalled Washington's entire output against the left-handed Bearden.

Roy Campanella's double scored Carl Furillo from first in the ninth inning to break a 2-2 tie and win for Brooklyn. A three-base throwing error by Card pitcher George Munger of Pee Wee Reese's sacrifice bunt gave the Dodgers the tying run in the eighth. Blanked with one hit through six innings, the Giants snapped a scoreless pitching duel between Maglie and Cincinnati's Harry Perkowski with two runs in the seventh. Wes Westrum and Willie Mays drove in the runs. Maglie scored what proved to be the winning run in the eighth. An eighth inning homer by Ted Kluszewski and a ninth inning triple by Bob Usher gave the Reds their runs.

Pittsburgh supported Lapalme's five-hit pitching with a 21-hit attack against loser Johnny Sain and three Boston relievers. Ralph Kiner and George Metkovich collected seven hits and four doubles between them. The Pirates left 18 on the bases to tie a major league record first set by the 1905 Pittsburgh club and equalled by several others.

The Cubs got all their runs in the fourth off Konstanty, who went down to his fifth defeat. He has won only two. A triple by Dee Fondy, doubles by Smoky Burgess and Hank Sauer and Andy Pafko's single furnished the tallies. Bob Rush went all the way for his third victory.

Fernando Gagnon Defends His Title

Quebec, June 6—(CP)—Fernando Gagnon of Quebec successfully defended his Canadian bantamweight title last night with a fourth - round knockout over Claude Meunier of Three Rivers, Que.

Gagnon weighed 117¼ and the contender, 113½.

The hard-punching, faster Quebecer sent Meunier to the canvas twice in the second round. Meuner took an eight-count and was saved by the bell a few seconds later.

A wild exchange of right and lefts in a neutral corner ended the fight at 40 seconds of the fourth round. A driving right by Gagnon sent Meunier down for keeps.

Meunier claimed he got up before the 10-count but referee Ralph McNaught awarded Gagnon the win by knockout.
