New and Larger Midway for Exhibition is Attraction This Year

New Midway, Etc.

No fair can be called a fair, if it has no midway. In most cases it is the midway that people go for first. Ormstown Exhibition has always been noted for the very excellent midway attractions it provides for patrons of the exhibition. This year it is believed that it has secured an even better midway than in previous years.

The midway attractions are being provided by Model Shows, and twenty railway carloads of shows and amusements of various kinds will be unloaded and set up on the space designated for this purpose. No longer will patrons be bothered by having to watch for cars driving through the midway. All this has been changed and the midway will be found set up farther into the grounds and away from the roadways.

The children should be well pleased with the many rides and shows especially for them. Mama and Papa will also be able to try their skill or their luck at the games the barkers will be crying to them to take a chance. They may perhaps visit some of the sideshows and thus enjoy the fun of the fair. There may be screams of fear or delight as the rides take a sudden or unexpected swerve, but everyone will enjoy it and go for more.

Ormstown Exhibition bids you welcome to enjoy whatever you wish, but don't fail to visit the midway during your visit to the fair.

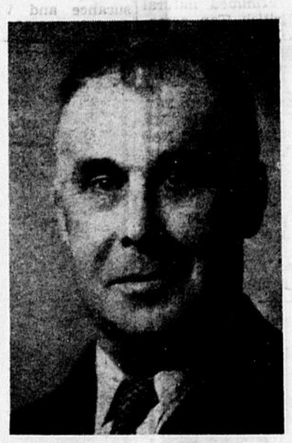

Improved Grounds Make For Bigger Fair This Year

Patrons of Ormstown Exhibition, especially those who have attended in former years, will this year note many improvements in the arrangements at the grounds. All the time the officials are looking for ways of making exhibitors, animals and patrons more comfortable and make their visit to the Exhibition more pleasant.

Probably the most important change this year is that the race track has been moved farther back onto a new piece of ground that was purchased about two years ago. By moving the race track over, much of the congestion around the main entrance will be eliminated and allow for more room for cars and people coming into the grounds. To further assist in eliminating congestion, a by-pass has been built under the new race track and cars can drive under the track to the new parking space without interfering with the races or stopping while horses are running. The by-pass is a two-lane driveway and thus traffic can travel both ways without interfering in any way. This also eliminates the cars driving through the midway and the crowds usually assembled there and thus cuts the danger of accidents. Cars are easily parked in the space in the centre of the track and can be moved to and fro at any time. The Grandstand has also been moved over to the race track and provides the same opportunity for viewing the events in comfort. A very

When Ormstown Exhibition opens its gates on June 9th for its thirty-fifth Exhibition, visitors will be greeted with a changed scene. The purchase of additional land has provided ample space for the midway and booths away from the main entrance thereby avoiding the congestion of previous years. A double lane driveway will lead through an underpass to the parking space inside the race track which it is hoped will expediate the movement of cars. Both entries of livestock and exhibits in the Industrial Section are ahead of former years, so that visitors can be assured of getting value for their admission in what they will see. Every effort has been made by the management to make the forthcoming show the best in the long history of this organization. For years Ormstown Exhibition could rightly boast of exhibits of dairy cattle equal to anything outside of our National Exhibitions, and it is now becoming apparent that it can make the same claim for light horses. The jumping and harness classes this year will bring together one of the finest groups of light horses ever seen in Canada. The making of a complete success, however, remains with the general public, and we would urge that every resident of the district embraced by the show, attend at least once or twice. Ormstown Show has become one of the most valued institutions we have for giving publicity to this fine farming section, and for that reason alone is deserving of your generous support.

Local general conditions are much more favourable than they have been for a year or two, and if the weather man continues to be co-operative we are confident that all former records will be broken, both in point of exhibits and attendance. It is felt that the extra space will now allow visitors more comfort to spending their time with whatever class of exhibits with which their interests are identified.

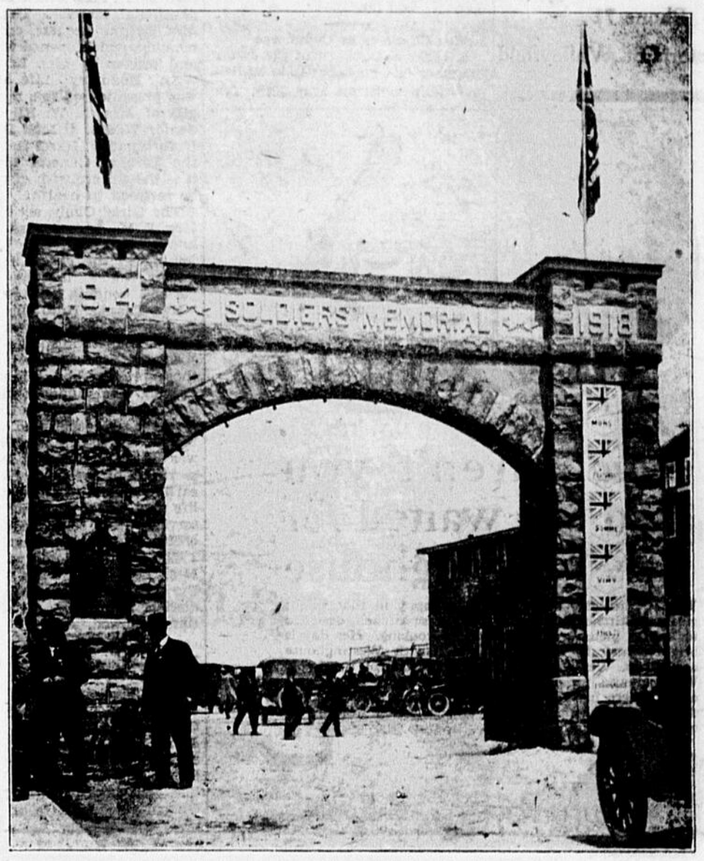

If you have a boy or a girl you wish to keep interested in the farming profession do not fail to have them see the Junior Club exhibits on Saturday, June 12th, or better still have them enter the Junior Competitions.

On behalf of the Management and Directors we extend a hearty welcome for your presence on the evening of June 9th or any of the following days.

A full programme will be maintained to the closing hours on Saturday evening.

Memorial Arch Entrance to Exhibition Grounds at Ormstown

Memorial Arch

This main entrance which patrons to the Ormstown Exhibition will pass through on June 9th until June 12th, is in the form of a Memorial Arch built to commemorate those who fell in World War I from the Ormstown District. The fund that was raised to build this Archway, was contributed to by the people of Ormstown. It makes an imposing and beautiful entrance to these grounds and serves as a reminder to all who pass under it that Ormstown remembers its sons and the sacrifice they made. It is built of stone with wrought iron gates which are kept closed when the grounds are not in use.

Immediately inside the gates is the dining room which is now operated by the Ormstown Community Centre War Memorial Committee, an organization formed since the end of World War II to raise funds for the purpose of erecting a suitable war memorial to the memory of those who served in this more recent war. Funds have been raised by this organiza-

BEAUHARNOIS—On Saturday, May 29th, the Hobby Show will be presented by the pupils of the B.I.S. This annual event was instituted last year and it is to be hoped that it will continue for many years to come.

An interesting feature of this year's show will be the display of work done by the pupils for the Junior Red Cross.

The Hobby Show itself contains examples of varied interests on the part of the children. Knitting, sewing, woodworking, shellcraft, and scrap books form only a small part of this interesting display. The show will take place in the afternoon only, and the doors will be opened at 1.30 p.m.

Evening Auxiliary of the W.M.S.

The Evening Auxiliary of the W.M.S. met for their May meeting at the home of Mrs. H. S. Spencer, Tuesday, May 18th. This was the 15th anniversary of the Auxiliary and the guest speaker was Mrs. S. Ruddock, of Huntingdon. The Aux. was glad to welcome also, Mrs. McCoy who accompanied Mrs. Ruddock, Mrs. Gordon Dunn of Ste. Martine and Miss Bilder of Toronto, latter a guest of Miss B. G. Kilgour and formerly a missionary in North India, but due to ill health, was forced some years ago, to return home. Miss Bilder later led the devotional exercises. The president, Mrs. Arthur Leggett, convened the meeting, which opened with a hymn and prayer by Mrs. Leggett.

An Honorary Life Membership was presented at this meeting, the gift of Mrs. J. W. Kilgour of the Senior W.M.S. to Miss Hazel Dunn. Unfortunately, Hazel is a patient in the Toronto General Hospital and it is the sincere wish of all that she be restored to health.

The Girls' Choir, accompanied by Mrs. I. M. Anderson sang the well known hymn "In the Garden" all joining in the chorus.

Miss Bilder led the devotional period, reading the 105th Psalm, "Give Thanks Unto the Lord" closing with a short prayer.

Mrs. Leggett introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Ruddock. Some of those present had the privilege of hearing Mrs. Ruddock on a former occasion, when she had spoken before the "Mother and Daughter" banquet of a year ago. Her address was based on the 51st Psalm — the sacrifices of the Lord. She made an earnest appeal to all to submit their life to Christ, spending it in his service — this could be done in the ordinary routine of each.

The meeting closed with a hymn, Mrs. Leggett offering prayer and the repeating of the Mizpah Benediction in unison. A short social time followed.

HEARTY EATING

Heart rates high in the estimation of the thrifty homemaker, not for any romantic tendencies but rather for the low cost. When her budget weakens she "takes heart" literally and cooks it so that it is a real delicacy.

Beef, pork, veal or lamb hearts are all good. Lamb hearts or small pork hearts make nice individual servings; large pork hearts and the average calf heart will serve two. One beef heart of good size will be sufficient for a family of six.

The home economists of the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture, suggest several ways to cook heart. They say that dressed beef heart is equally good when served hot or cold.

DRESSED BEEF HEART

1 beef heart, 3-3½ lbs.
2 cups well-seasoned, bread dressing

Remove veins and arteries from the heart with scissors. Slash centre to form a large cavity. Wash thoroughly and dry well. Stuff with dressing, skewer or sew up the end. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and roll in flour. Place on a rack in an uncovered pan and bake in a moderately slow oven, 325°F, until tender, 3 to 3½ hours. Baste occasionally.

If the heart is to be cooked in the pressure saucepan, brown well in 3 tablespoons fat in the pressure saucepan then place on the trivet, add ½ cup water, cover and cook at 10 lbs. pressure for 1 to 1¼ hours depending on size of heart. Yield: six to eight servings.

BRAISED LAMB HEARTS

6 lamb hearts
2 cups well-seasoned bread dressing
½ cup flour
¼ cup fat
1½ cups water
⅛ teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper

Wash hearts thoroughly and remove veins and arteries. Dry well. Stuff cavities with dressing and skewer to hold end closed. Roll in flour and brown on all sides in hot fat. Place browned hearts in a casserole. Add water and seasonings. Cover closely and cook in a slow oven, 300°F, for 1½ hours. Yield: six servings.

FRICASSEED HEART

1 beef heart (or 3 calves' hearts)
¼ cup flour
3 tablespoons fat, melted
2 onions, sliced
1 cup diced carrots
1 cup canned tomatoes or tomato juice
1 cup hot water
1 teaspoon salt

Wash and clean heart. Cut into ¾ inch cubes. If beef heart is used, slice and simmer for 30 minutes before cubing. Roll cubes in flour and brown in hot fat. Place in heavy saucepan or Dutch oven. Add onion slices, carrots, tomatoes, hot water and salt. Cover tightly and simmer for 3-3½ hours. More water may have to be added from time to time during the cooking period. Thicken gravy with flour mixed with cold water. Yield: six servings.

Care of the New Born Foal

(Experimental Farm News)

The strong, healthy foal is generally up on its feet and ready to nurse within thirty minutes to two hours after birth. Some foals, however, are weak at this stage, and may need some assistance in getting up and some help while nursing. The old adage of leading a horse to water is likewise applicable to helping a foal to nurse. They should be coaxed — not forced, says J. G. Stothart, Division of Animal Husbandry, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

It is extremely important that the foal get the mare's first milk, or the colostrum. It contains antibodies which protect the foal against infection, as well as acting as a natural purgative.

Constipation may cause trouble. If the foal is sluggish and does not nurse it may be because of constipation, and an enema may be necessary.

In the case of scours, on the other hand, it may be that the mare's feed should be cut down and part of the milk taken away by milking her out at intervals. Other causes of scours include unclean surroundings, fretfulness or high temperature in the mare, or cold and dampness. The best remedy is to eliminate these conditions.

An orphan foal should, if at all possible, be shifted to another mare. If this is not feasible, cows' milk can be fed but it should be made up to as near the composition of mares' milk as possible. This can be done by taking a pint of milk, low in butterfat, and adding a tablespoonful of granulated sugar and three tablespoonfuls of lime water. This should be warmed to body temperature and fed in small quantities every hour. As the foal grows the amount can be increased, and the number of feedings reduced. After about three weeks to a month the sugar can be left out and the mixture gradually changed until the foal is getting skim milk alone.

Pasture is the ideal place for a mare and foal, and as soon as the weather permits they should be out every day and eventually all the time.

In the "Curtain Tests" hundreds listened to music played behind a curtain on RCA Victor and competitive sets. One stood out. In that model, RCA Victor engineers, backed by RCA's 27 years of electronic development and Victor's 48-year musical heritage, had achieved an acoustical system with speaker, amplifier and cabinet in exact co-ordination. The result was the full tonal beauty of an RCA Victor Record. Listen to it on the new Victrola radio-phonograph.

Model 62—A smartly sophisticated cabinet that will be at home in the most modern setting. The solid wood front is accentuated by a simple block treatment of its woods. Maximum tuning visibility is achieved through extraordinarily easy-to-read dial scales of light-attracting lucite. Powerful 6 tube Superheterodyne with superb standard and shortwave reception through the "Golden Throat" — 540-1600 kcs. and shortwave 19, 25 and 31, 49 meter bands. Built-in magic loop antenna. RF Stage for greater sensitivity. Height 11", width 17¾", dept 8¾".

Partial History of the First Two Ormstown Shows and the Live Stock Breeders' Association Of the District of Beauharnois Inc.

The only record that we can find of the first Ormstown Show is a two page programme of the District of Beauharnois Live Stock Spring Show, New Skating Rink, Ormstown, Que., May 18-19th, 1910, printed by the Bulletin Print, Ormstown.

The cattle exhibits for this show were sheltered under a large tent on the grounds now owned by Mr. S. J. Cottingham, the Ormstown Bowling Club and other Eastmount residents.

The programme states the first semi-annual Live Stock Sale commences 10 A.M. May 19th, 1910. A net profit of $584.00 was made at this Show of 1910 and at a meeting held on May 31st, 1911, ordered handed on to be used for 1911 Show.

The first minutes of the Live Stock Breeders' Association recorded is of a meeting of the Provisional Directors held on October 22nd, 1910, at 10 o'clock a. m. those present being Dr. Duncan McEachran, Chairman, Messrs; J. E. Charbonneau, John Holmes Brittle, Louis A. David, and Henry J. Elliot, K. C. all charter members and of a meeting of the shareholders of the Association held on the same day at 10.30 o'clock. As a matter of interest and to show the changes time has wrought the following are the names of those present, Messrs; Robert Ness, Thos. A. Cunningham, D. J. Greig, James Bryson, D. A. McCormick, J. B. Walsh, Alex Steele, Wm. Greer, Henry Winter, James Donaldson, R. R. Ness, James McClintock, Neil Sangster, P. H. Curran, J. H. Tomson, John McClintock, Wm. Bryson, Alex Mills, Robert Henderson, Peter Caves, Thomas Hanna and above named Charter members.

The directors elected at this meeting were; Dr. Duncan McEachran, Robert Ness, J. Holmes Brittle, Louis A. David and Henry J. Elliot, K.C.

The directors meeting held same day appointed Dr. Duncan McEachran, President, Robert Ness, Vice-President, Dr. Archibald McCormick, Secretary Treasurer.

At a meeting of shareholders held on November 14th, 1910, Messrs. Henry J. Elliot, K.C. Louis A. David and J. Holmes Brittle resigned as directors and Messrs. Neil Sangster, T. A. Cunningham and James McClintock elected.

A meeting of the Directors was held on November 18th, 1910, at which a letter from Henry J. Elliot was read stating that on account of an informality of not registering the notice of meeting held on November 14th, and also the manner in which the ballots for election of directors was conducted the meeting was illegal, therefore, the directors decided to call a special meeting of shareholders on November 30th, 1910, at 10 A.M., after discussion of various matters until noon meeting adjourned and re-convened at 1- p.m. for election of three directors, the vote resulted in Neil Sangster, receiving 584 votes; T. A. Cunningham 525; James McClintock 374; H. W. Walker 344; the first three named being declared duly elected directors.

The catalogue for the Show held on May 23-24 and 25th, 1911, states it is the Second Annual District of Beauharnois Live Stock Show. Under the auspices of the Department or Agriculture, Province of Quebec, and the Agricultural Societies of the Counties of Chateauguay, Huntingdon and Beauharnois and contains the following announcement; Pending the incorporation of the District of Beauharnois Live Stock Breeders' Association and the organization of spring and fall shows and sales, the present temporary Association has been formed for the purpose of holding a preliminary Show during three days, the 23rd, 24th, and 25th of May, in the Ormstown Skating Rink.

The building is 175 feet long by 60 feet wide, is well lighted during the day and by electric light by night, is admirably suited for the purpose. Through the liberality of the Curling Club their building will also be used for temporary stabling. The townspeople of Ormstown have also generously offered the use of stables, so that large as the entry may be, it is expected that ample accommodation will be provided.

Arrangements will also be made as far as possible for catering of the visitors.

The executive of this Show were Dr. D. McEachran, F.R.C.V.S., L.L.D., D.V.S. President, Robert Ness (Sr) 1st vice president, W. H. Walker 2nd vice president, Archibald McCormick, D.V.S. Secretary Treasurer, James McClintock, James Bryson, Malcolm McNaughton, Edward McGowan, D. H. Brown, John McGerrigle, W. F. Stephen, Chas. Moe, Homer Laberge, Robert T. Brownlee.

At a meeting of the Directors of the Live Stock Breeders' Association held on June, 5th 1911, the Secretary read a letter from Dr. Duncan McEachran stating that on account of ill health and of advice of his Physician, he was obliged to resign as President of the Association. Moved by Mr. Neil Sangster, seconded by Mr. James McClintock, that we, as directors of the Live Stock Breeders' Association of the District of Beauharnois, regret very much that our President and leader, who has done so much for the advancement of Agriculture and the breeding of high class Clydesdale horses, is obliged, owing to ill health, to resign as President of the Association, we take this opportunity of thanking him very sincerely for his valuable services rendered in connection with the success of our two Spring shows of 1910 and 1911, and we sincerely hope that his health will continue to improve and that he will allow his name to remain as President of the Association until November, 1911.

At a shareholders' meeting held on November 30th, 1911, Dr. Duncan McEachran was elected Honorary President; Neil Sangster, R. R. Ness, Geo. E. Baird, D. J. Greig, W. F. Stephen elected directors. Directors' meeting following, Neil Sangster elected President, Geo. E. Baird 1st vice president, D. J. Greig 2nd vice president.

At a meeting held in March, 1912, it was decided to purchase the John Orr farm at a price of $9,000.00, and on April 23rd, 1912, a contract was given the International Signal Company of Ottawa to erect a steel frame for Show Arena purposes at $6,000.00. This steel frame, partially erected at the time of the 1912 show, was blown down during the summer and a new contract was given for a heavier steel frame; the stables and seating were erected around the frame under supervision of Geo. W. Simpson.

The present Dining Hall was built in the spring of 1920 and meals were served for the first time on the Show grounds by the North-Eastern Lunch Co. of Montreal and for several years until 1946 by St. Paul's United Church and in 1947 by the Women's Auxiliary of the War Memorial Committee of World War II.

The Annual Show Prize List of 1913, stated that the Show would be held on June 18-19-20th and that The Greatest Auction Sale of Pedigreed Live Stock ever held in Eastern Canada will take place in the Mammoth Show Building on the last day of the Show, Friday, June 20th, at 10 a.m.

Over 150 Head of High-class animals will come under the hammer.

A. Philps, Auctioneer.

The Board of Directors at this 1913 show were Messrs. Neil Sangster, President, Geo. E. Baird, 1st Vice President, D. J. Greig, 2nd Vice President R. R. Ness and W. F. Stephen and from this date to the present time the only other directors have been Gilbert McMillan, Jas. A. McBain, H. H. Chambers, Alfred Greig, Alex. Younie, P. D. McArthur, W. W. Pringle, D. J. O'Connor, Peter Dickson, D. A. McCormick, D. E. Black, M.P., Douglas Ness, W. R. Graham, A. A. McCormick and Albert Ness, Neil Sangster, President from 1911 to 1925 R. R. Ness, President from 1925 to 1945; Gilbert McMillan, President from 1945 to present time.

This small number of Directors and only three Presidents from 1911 to 1948 must show to the general public that any troubles or difficulties were smoothed away by the good judgment of these Presidents and Directors and the success of Ormstown Show has been due to the splendid leadership of these men and there is no doubt that the success of the Ormstown Show has far exceeded the hopes of the organization. Ormstown Show has been referred to by different agricultural papers of Toronto and Ottawa as the Little Royal. Previous to World War II it was a common thing to read of cattle exhibited at Ormstown taking the top prizes at the C.N.E. and the Royal Fair, Toronto.

At request of James Morris, M.P., the Prize List of 1915 Show was increased so that at least $5,000.00 would be paid out in Prize money in order that the Association could claim a government grant of $2,500.00 from the Federal Government. At the present time the prize list offers around $16,764 in money prizes.

Horse Trotting was introduced at the Shows of 1915 and 1916 by the Ormstown Driving Club and has been more or less a feature of the Show to the present time. At one time the cattle exhibit and heavy horse exhibits were the main attractions, but, of late years the Light horse men have stolen the show as is evidenced by the crowds that pack into the Arena for at least three nights of the Show. When Miss Viau was first induced to show her horses at Ormstown they created a sensation and several local exhibitors felt this was a detriment to the Show. This was far from so, for it was the beginning of light horse classes that would be a credit to any Show in Canada.

A Sports Day was put on for the first time in the summer of 1920. It was a financial success as $466.00 was cleared after all expenses had been paid. This feature was dropped after being operated for 3 years.

That portion of the farm north of the creek not wanted for Show purposes was sold in 1921 to the late Mr. Neil Sangster for $5,000.00.

In 1921 a Soldiers' Memorial Arch was built by a Citizens' Committee on ground donated by the Association and used as an entrance to Show grounds in memory of those who lost their lives in World War I.

Bull Sales were held from 1920 to 1926 and numerous bulls were sold at high prices.

One of the most important steps of the Association was in 1923, when the directors took the lead in making the District of Beauharnois a T.B. Free Zone Area.

President R. R. Ness in his address to the Annual meeting of 1927, stated that Ormstown Show was a unique feature in community effort and is the talk of live stock

One of the most notable features of the Ormstown Exhibition is its outstanding Horse Show held in the arena. This year a greater number of entries than ever before have been registered. Such interest insures that the patrons to the exhibition will see one of the finest shows of horsemanship ever seen before. Lovers of horses will thrill to the jumps taken by the jumping classes, marvel at the many fine rigs in the driving classes and the fine horses being driven by some of the best in horsemanship. All these entries will be competing for a large sum in prizes as well as providing the patron with a real ring show.

On the race track there will be races on three days of the fair, which always prove exciting as the carts and horses go around the track to close finishes which are never sure until announced by the judges. They're off! always makes the blood tingle and every neck is craned to follow the particular favorite right around the track in the hope that it will come home a winner. Don't miss these horse events.

Those lovers of fine horses will find plenty of these animals on display for the prize money in the various classes of this part of the exhibition. You will have the opportunity of seeing them in their stalls or watching them as they are being judged in the show ring.

Ormstown Exhibition Has Varied History

men wherever you go throughout Canada and it behooves us to keep the good work up.

Loud speakers were installed for the first time at Ormstown Show in 1935, by Morris Hunter and have been used at every show to the present.

A feature of the opening night of the Show for some years past has been the splendid School Parade put on by the Ormstown High School which has been a credit to the School and the Exhibition.

Continual new building and purchasing of additional land for accommodation has been a problem of the directors over the years. In 1930 the Industrial Hall was built at a cost of around $18,000.00, and in 1931 for the first time a ladies' department for the exhibits of Domestic Science, Flowers, etc., was opened. This building also housed Industrial exhibits and is already too small to supply the demand for space.

The Secretary's office is also in this building.

In 1938 additional property was bought in the Village of Ormstown on which new cattle barns and poultry house was built by James Wilson on plans drawn up by himself, at a cost of $16,000.00. These barns are all under one continuous roof and all poultry, cattle, sheep and swine can be seen without being in the open and have been said by cattle exhibitors to be among the best in Canada for the purpose.

The 1940 Show to be held June 4-5-6-7th was cancelled at a meeting of directors held on May 18th, 1940, on account of 2nd World War, and withdrawal of all Federal Grants. This was a great disappointment to the directors as all printed matter and contracts for the Show had been made and meant a complete loss to the Association. The Show remained cancelled from 1940 to 1944 and re-opened June 1945.

The Junior exhibit at the 1945 Show was an outstanding feature as 60 or more girls and boys exhibited their animals.

In the fall of 1946, around 5 acres of land was purchased from Greig Bros., on which the old race track was moved in 1947, and to which the Racing Grand Stand will be moved this spring. A tunnel has been made under the race track for cars, etc., to pass through to parking space.

An agreement was made with the Ormstown War Memorial Committee to use the Arena for a Skating and Hockey rink for 5 years from the season 1946-47.

The Ormstown Show has been of great benefit to the Chateauguay Valley, and the District of Beauharnois without question, as through it the live stock of the district has been improved to a greater extent than it would have been if there had not been the keen competition it created among exhibitors and it has advertised the district as a live stock district as nothing else could have done.

High Prices Paid For Canadian Holsteins at Auctions in UK

High prices were paid for pedigreed Canadian Holstein Friesian cattle at two auction sales held in Britain last year, and the success of these public sales, in addition to private purchases during the past two years, is evidence of the favour in which this breed is now held by British dairy farmers.

Holstein Friesians shipped to Britain prior to 1939 created a good impression, but Canadian exports of these cattle were halted for the duration of the war. Since 1946, however, representatives of the British dairy industry have come over to Canada on buying trips, and a considerable number of Canadian Holstein Friesians have been sold, both to specific United Kingdom buyers, and at auction sales in that country. At one such auction last summer, the average price for Canadian heifers was approximately $950.

As a result of the rapid development of the financial crisis in the United Kingdom, all further imports of Canadian cattle have been suspended for the time being. Although this promising trade in dairy cattle from Canada to Britain is held up for the present, the demand is growing and enquiries are numerous. It is confidently expected that purchases of Canadian Holstein Friesians will be resumed as soon as dollars are made available to the British importers.

Resolutions Passed At W.I. Convention

The following resolutions were passed at the recent Twenty-fourth Annual Convention of the W.I., held at Rockburn, Que.

1. Whereas the members of Chateauguay-Huntingdon W.I. realize that health protection is a very vital part of our organization and that the Convention go on record as supporting the present Cancer Campaign, morally, financially and educationally,

2. Whereas the organization desires to obtain new members, be it resolved that County and local W.I.'s pay more attention to social projects, that we support the two hospitals to the best of our ability, also the local school and community projects.

3. Resolved that the heartfelt thanks of this Convention be tendered to the Franklin Branch, who have so kindly entertained us, to the Home Bureau of Malone, to the speakers, and all members who have made this Convention such a success, and also to the trustees for the use of this hall.

The singing of the National Anthem brought the 24th Annual Convention to a close.

Get Ready For That Foal

(Experimental Farm News)

The care of the new foal should begin by making preparations before it is born. If there is warm, dry weather the ideal place for foaling is a clean, open pasture, away from other live stock. But whatever the season, it is best to be prepared by having the mare used to a roomy, well-lighted, well-ventilated, quiet box-stall which has been cleaned, disinfected and bedded for the occasion. The mare should become accustomed to these surroundings a week or ten days before foaling, says J. G. Stothart, Division of Animal Husbandry, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

Disinfection of the box-stall is important to avoid possible infection. This can be done by scrubbing with hot lye water, made by using a can of lye to 20 gallons of water (one-half this strength should be used on mangers and grain boxes). The floors should be sprinkled with air slaked lime, and then covered with clean fresh bedding.

Light and laxative feeds such as wheat bran should make up a considerable portion of the ration approaching foaling. If there are any signs of constipation, wet bran mashes should be fed.

If a mare has had proper exercise, good feed and good handling, she seldom has much difficulty at foaling. A good rule for the attendant is to be near but not in sight. In a normal presentation the fore feet and head of the foal come first. A mare generally foals quite rapidly, but in cases of prolonged labour or malpresentation it is advisable to call a qualified veterinarian.

After the foal has been delivered the attendant should see to its breathing, treat the navel cord, and leave the mare and foal alone to rest. The treatment of the navel cord is important to avoid infection. The cord breaks about two to four inches from the body. If it does not break, it may be scraped in two with a knife. Do not cut it across. The cord may be dipped in a wide-mouthed bottle nearly full of a 10 per cent solution of iodine and the bottle up-ended and pressed against the body. The cord should then be dusted with a good antiseptic powder.

After foaling, the mare should be given small quantities of lukewarm water at intervals. The first feed should be a small warm bran mash. Usually a mare can be back on full feed within a week or ten days, and the quantity of feed can be governed by the milk flow, and the appetite and condition of the mare.

DDT is Not Safe To Use on Most Varieties of Cucumbers

(Science Service News)

Though the striped cucumber beetle is chiefly a pest of cucumbers in the Ottawa district, it also attacks melons, squash and pumpkins. It is about one quarter of an inch in length, and yellow in colour with a black head and three longitudinal black stripes down the back.

While DDT will give excellent control of the striped cucumber beetle, growers are warned that it is unsafe to use on most varieties of cucumbers, and for that matter, on melons, squash and pumpkins, either as a spray or dust, says W. G. Matthewman, Division of Entomology, Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa. In an experiment at Ottawa in 1947, repeated applications of DDT dusts on cucumbers stunted the plants, reduced the yield and caused a yellowing and deformation of foliage. Certain varieties were much more susceptible to DDT injury than others. Of the 11 varieties under observation, Straight Eight, Cubit, and Midget Bush were very susceptible to DDT injury, Early Fortune and A. and C. were susceptible and National Pickling, Delcrow, Marketer, Boston Pickling Burpee Hybrid and Perfection Pickling were tolerant. With the five susceptible varieties, as few as 4 applications of DDT cause a 50 per cent reduction in vine lengths by the end of July. With the 6 tolerant varieties there was no significant reduction in vine length on the same date.

It would seem from what the tests disclosed that two or three applications of a 3 per cent DDT dust might be made on the tolerant varieties with reasonable safety, but that it should not be used on the 5 susceptible varieties under all circumstances. Even with the tolerant varieties, DDT should not be used when the plants are very young.

A ¾ of 1 per cent rotenone dust, obtainable at most seed-stores, is effective against the beetles and unlikely to injure the young plants. A home-mixed dust composed of calcium arsenate and talc or gypsum, 1 part of the former to 15 parts by weight of the latter, will also give good results. Hydrated lime can be substituted for the talc or gypsum, but like DDT it sometimes stunts the plants. In recent years, so-called cucumber or melon dusts have become popular for striped cucumber beetle control in parts of Ontario, as they also contain copper for disease protection.

Canadian Garden Service

A little Co-operation Will Help

Nature is pretty generous, and it is surprising how she will make things grow even if the soil is poor, the location not the best and the climate discouraging. But nature expects and appreciates a little co-operation. This means, first of all, that the proper seed or suitable nursery stock should be chosen.

There are certain things that will grow well in the United States or Great Britain, but that will not do well in Canada. And there are great degrees of hardiness and special likes in the things that we can grow in Canada too. A little study of these special requirements will pay the gardener rich dividends.

o—O—o

Use Best Seed

In seed, for instance, it is important to use only those recommended for Canadian conditions. Those listed in any reputable Canadian seed catalogue will be suitable because they have all been tested for Canadian conditions. The best seed costs only a few cents per packet, but without the best then it does not make much difference how well we prepare the soil or look after the resulting growth. But cultural directions should be followed.

If there is still danger of frost, then only the very hardy types of vegetables and flowers should be sown. These are listed as hardy, semi-hardy and tender in the catalogue. Nothing is to be gained by rushing the season. With tender things like tomatoes, melons, squash, peppers, petunias, begonias, dahlias, gladiolus, etc., experts caution against planting until soil and air are warm.

o—O—o

Guard against Pests

With certain things, too, it is advisable to treat the seed against rots and other diseases that may be lurking in the soil. This is especially true of gladiolus and potatoes and some other things that may be specially mentioned in the seed catalogue or government bulletin. There are preparations on the market now for this purpose. These protect from disease and encourage that quick growth that is so necessary if we are going to get early, undamaged bloom and tender vegetables.

After the plants start to grow, too, the good gardener will keep an eye open for insect or other pest damage. He will guard against this by encouraging growth by frequent cultivation, by spacing or thinning for room and by sprays, dusts or other protection applied just as soon as the first attacks are noticed. Unfortunately for almost every variety of fruit, vegetable or flower in Canada or any other country there seems to be a special pest. But it is amazing how easily these can be controlled if measures are taken promptly. The careful gardener will be ready with sprays or dusts and get started with these before any damage gains headway.

o—O—o

There is no Hurry

There is plenty of time yet in any part of Canada to have a real garden. Practically all sorts of hardy flowers and vegetables can still be sown and they should continue to be sown at intervals of ten days to two weeks until well into summer. Spreading out the garden in this way makes the work easier and more pleasant, but it also spreads the harvest of blooms or vegetables over weeks and months instead of days. In these times of high-priced, scarce vegetables there is a real dollars-and-cents saving in having a plentiful supply of vegetables coming in right until fall.

Ormstown Fair

Published in 1924

Hurrah for Ormstown Fair!
Get your best bib and tucker on,
Give the limousine a shine,
Take the wife and kids along;
But don't miss being there.

You'll wonder at the fine display
You'll find new pleasures every day;
You'll meet old friends from far away,
You'll take glad mem'ries home to stay.

Remember this, where'er you go—
'Tis hard to find a finer show
Than Ormstown's with its—Oh, you know—
Its horses, cattle, pomp and glow;
Hurrah for Ormstown Show!

We've popcorn, peanuts, lemonade,
Ice-cream, soft drinks in the shade;
Lunch booths to greet you unafraid,
And here you'll find a spade's a spade,
At Ormstown Fair.

But when beneath our arch you move,
Don't forget the names above,
Of those who bled and died for us,
Whose deeds compel our noblest love,—
Who died for Ormstown.

Then breathe a prayer for those bereft;
And the fair young nation they have left;
Let nobler thoughts our visions lift,
And reverently accept their gift—
To Ormstown.

Says Education For Restaurant Help Necessary

Regulation plus education is essential if high standards of sanitation are to be the rule in all public eating places, it is stated by H. Cecil Rhodes in an article "Regulation plus Education equals Sanitation" in the current issue of HEALTH, official magazine of the Health League of Canada.

The author, who is Director of the Health League's Division of Community Health Services, states that regulations are useful only if they are taken seriously by those concerned. Regulation alone had proved inadequate because of a widespread tendency on the part of restaurant operators to ignore, or not insist upon staff observances of some of the requirements, and because there generally were not enough inspectors available to do the necessary checking.

Mr. Rhodes expresses the opinion that "voluntary application of good work practices, brought about by knowing why such practices are good and desirable, will assure more satisfactory observance of the regulations." These regulations were made necessary because, from the public health point of view, restaurant sanitation is a serious matter.

It is stated that the value of practical health education programs for restaurant employees is rapidly receiving acceptance in Canada. The author describes a plan, available to any community or group in the Dominion, developed by the Health League when it decided to tackle the restaurant sanitation problem through educational processes.

Training its sights on careless foodhandling practices, the League decided to direct its efforts toward the more obvious and easily corrected faults, such as:

Careless handling of food with unclean hands, insanitary dishwashing methods; exposure of food to dust, flies and rodents; unhygienic service practices (such as fingers on drinking edge of cups and glasses, and thumb in soup); sub-standard personal hygiene; inadequate or inefficient cleaning methods; and insanitary preparation and storage of food.

Sons of the Soil

The folks on the farm, who struggle and toil
From dawn's early light to the setting sun,
Through foul and fair weather their work's never done:
A toast to these toilers of priceless worth
Whose joy and delight is a fruitful earth!

What playthings of Fate! So often distressed
By blizzard and broker, by drought and pest,
Yet carrying on with their heads held high,
A-hoping and praying that ere they die
Good luck and good harvests will ease life's load —
And brighten their days at the end of the road.

Yet slowly the ways of a back-breaking past—
The days of the ox and the hoe—they at last
Are bowing to the Tractor's resistless sway,
And the gadgets that herald a brighter day.
Oh, who then would barter his lot on the land
For the 'prisoning walls of the city grand?

And who shall be nearest The Master's side
When glory's great gates are at last flung wide?
No gold-braided warrior, who loosed a grim flood
Of destruction that drenched His earth with blood—
The Victor I see, with a crown on his brow,
Is the man who invented the humble plow!

The fearful creations of science, that kill,
No products are these of the men who till
The earth's friendly breast! They give us instead
The good things of life for our daily bread.
And who are more blest in the sight of God
Than they who make fruitful His hallowed sod?

Though industry, commerce, may all do their part
And pour their rich blood through a nation's heart,
The Keepers of Civilization still
Are the sowers, the reapers, and the men who till!
And ever the world's true wealth shall remain
The dairy, the orchard, and life-giving grain.

Now, here's to the Farmer, on whom we rely—
May his home be blest and his barns piled high!
My heart pays its homage to all who toil—
So I give you, today: "The Sons of the Soil!"

CANADA'S health

VITAMIN C SOURCES

It has become common in the last 30 years for nutritionists and health authorities to recommend oranges and other citrus fruits, as well as tomatoes, for vitamin C, although vegetables can supply all the vitamin C needed for health. The reason for this has been that these sources are especially rich, are palatable, and may often be eaten without cooking. Cooking wastes vitamin C by dissolving it into water and destroying it. The loss in some cases may be 100 per cent so that if no raw fruits or vegetables are eaten, there is a real danger of vitamin C deficiency.

TEACHING THE "DRY HABIT"

By the age of three the average child had good bladder control and will not wet his bed. But many children at this age have not yet learned the "dry habit" and their parents are faced with the problem of the bed-wetting child. Medical authorities say a number of factors may be at the root of the child's trouble and if the parents can isolate the cause they may be well on the way to controlling the habit. It is always a mistake to treat the child's bed-wetting as "just a bad habit". Not only is this unfair to the youngster but it may make the problem worse. Understanding and patience are needed to help the child overcome his habit.

CHILD OBEDIENCE

How can I make my child do what he is told? Doctors say this is the question most frequently asked by parents about the training of a child. The answer is not simple and, if it is to be effective, must be followed day in and day out with persistence and patience. First, the child must be expected to obey. As few demands as possible should be made on him. The parents should always see that the child does as he is told but should follow the same general rules from day to day to avoid confusing the youngster. Parents must also learn to keep their temper, to avoid bribery and coaxing and to teach the habit of cooperation.

DIVIDENDS FROM DIET

A well planned lunch box, well packed and attractively prepared, pays dividends in the health of industrial workers or school students. Foods for the lunch box should include four main groups—milk, fruit or vegetables, meat or fish and buttered bread or rolls. Nutritionists say that substitutes such as poultry, beans, peas, nuts, eggs or cheese are satisfactory for meat. Muffins may be used instead of bread or rolls. The health-minded housewife can plan her lunchboxes to include the widest variety and the most tempting taste and appearance.

ANGLES ON EYESTRAIN

Reading habits have an important effect on one's eyes, medical men say. Continuous reading of poor print, improper lighting or poor posture are common causes of eyestrain. Optical specialists say lighting should be sufficient to produce comfortable seeing. Good lighting means the even distribution of a pleasing, soft light. There should be no harmful glare and no deep shadows.

THE ONLY SAFE MILK

Medical science has proven through intensive research that pasteurized milk is the only safe milk. Pasteurization eliminates bacteria which cause such milk-borne diseases as bovine tuberculosis, typhoid fever, undulant fever, septic sore throat, paratyphoid and dysentery. Pasteurization does no harm to milk's nutritive value.

Pamphlet Tells How Produce Clean Milk

There is no more important item in human food than milk. Just now, because of the heavy demand for it, every pound is required and if it is clean or pure then it will make better cheese, better butter and other products; and mean more profit to the farmer.

To produce pure milk requires constant care on the part of the dairy farmer. He must have clean, healthy cows, clean, sterilized utensils and milk must be cooled promptly and put in storage at low temperature. These are the three first essentials to be observed if bacteria is to be kept out of the milk. Bacteria are living organisms or germs, many of them disease germs. They get in milk when cows and utensils are not kept clean and thrive most in warm milk causing souring, bad flavours and other defects.

Even when cows are groomed daily, the long hairs on udders and flanks kept clipped, the udders washed or wiped off before milking some dust or hair may get into the milk. When cows are dirty, then it is very difficult to keep the milk pure as manure and dirt contain harmful bacteria.

There are some helpful suggestions on the subject in Special Pamphlet No. 7, entitled "Producing Pure Milk", issued by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Joe Basile and His Madison Square Garden Band

Joe Basile, who will appear in person at Ormstown Exhibition, June 9th to 12th, to conduct his Madison Square Garden Band has never been identified by his hundred of thousands of followers and devotees with any particular branch of public entertainment. The reason for this is simple. Maestro Basile has appeared at everything.

The Madison Square Garden Band has been engaged for conventions, County, State and Industrial Fairs, celebrations, rodeos, Wild West shows, athletic carnivals, home-comings, and harvest festivals, National Advertising motorcades, dedications, patriotic and fraternal parades, concerts and radio.

An internationally acclaimed band conductor and soloist, Basile was a particular favorite of the late Tex Rickard, magnate sports promoter and boxing impressario, who engaged him for the new Madison Square Garden, where he has been ever since, specializing in tunes at the hockey games.

His entry into the world-famous New York sports arena and rally hall was no "fluke" for Joe Basile and Band had been the harmony contributors at the old and historic Madison Square Garden, eventually rebuilt by Rickard and a syndicate of millionaires, including the late John Ringling, of the circus, and now occupying the site between 49th and 50th Streets on Eighth Avenue in New York City:

For a period of 10 years he appeared for John Chapman at the Newark and New York velodromes and six day bicycle races; for seven seasons at famous Dreamland Park, in New Jersey and at World Series Baseball classics, professional football at the Polo Grounds and Yankee Stadium and at many conventions, many of them national and international in scope, and at many other important functions,

Just a little over two years ago Basile was given a testimonial banquet by his friends and admirers in New Jersey and New York as a tribute to his 25th Silver Jubilee anniversary as a musical scholar and sponsor. The word sponsor is used because Basile maintains a musician's clubhouse and rehearsal hall in Newark, N.J., where no musician, great or small, is ever turned away.

The Basile brand of brass instrumentation knows no limits in the matter of novelty and musical merit. Everyone of Basile's musicians is a master instrumentalist, half a dozen of them of whom will reflect this mastery by offering solos, duets and group instrumentation following special arrangements. Basile, himself is a world-renowned cornetist, and in his possession are dozens of trophies and silver mementos attesting to his excellence in that branch of wind instrumentation. His band has won scores of such trophies at State and National Conventions.

Making Most of Space

Where vegetable garden space is limited it is best to stick to smaller and heavy-cropping things like beets, carrots, spinach, beans, etc. All of these can be grown, if necessary, in rows no more than 12 inches apart, and a 10-foot row will supply many delicious meals. Slightly more room between the rows will make cultivation easier and also give a better chance to keep down weeds.

Space can be saved with larger growing vegetables by following a few tricks of the experienced gardeners. Take tomatoes, for example. If left alone to grow the natural way these plants will need a full 24 inches at least each way and, better still, 30 inches or a yard. However, if they are staked, they can be grown about 15 to 18 inches apart and better, earlier and cleaner fruit will be produced. Stakes should be about 6 feet long and firmly driven at least a foot in the soil close to the plant. All side shoots are nipped off and growth confined to a single shoot. Care must be taken not to pinch off flowers which will come at every joint in the main stem. The latter should be tied loosely to the stake with soft twine or raffia about every foot.

Melons, squash and other climbing or trailing vegetables, or perhaps we should say fruits, will take up less valuable space if planted around the outside of the main garden. They can trail over paths or even fences. Most of these things, however, require as much sun as possible, as well as good, rich, open soil. Incidentally, around the outside of the garden and especially the North and West side is the place for the fruit trees. Here they are out of the way and they will not shade the garden.

Spread out Annual Flowers

With bedding plants like petunias, asters, cosmos, marigolds, etc., most amateurs make the same mistake as they make with shrubs and trees—they plant them too close together. This is not only expensive but it results in less bloom and poor, spindly growth.

It is really surprising how much space a well-grown petunia, nasturtium or any other of these plants will cover. Instead of putting the larger sorts 6 or 8 inches apart the experts advocate a foot or even two. This will allow easier cultivation which, or course, is vital, and encourage the plant to spread and grow sturdily. In a few weeks these annuals will have occupied all the space between.

For very long beds such as those along driveways petunias, zinnias, cosmos, big marigolds, etc., are often planted in wavy rows far enough apart to permit tractor cultivation for the first week or two. By mid-July they will be making a wonderful show.

Keep planting Vegetables

Two much stress cannot be laid on continuous planting of the standard vegetables like lettuce, radish, beans, carrots, beets, corn, etc. These taste much better when they just begin to reach proper maturity. Beans, lettuce, corn and such things begin to get tough if left too long. In most parts of Canada it is quite possible to keep planting many vegetables right up to mid-July.

Transplanting

Boxes of bedding plants and nursery stock should be kept moist and newly set out plants watered frequently for the first week. Setting out, if possible, should be done in the evenings or on a cloudy day. A little protection from the hot sun for a day or two will help.

MAYOR OF ORMSTOWN WELCOMES ALL EXHIBITION VISITORS TO ORMSTOWN

Exhibition week is always a big week for the Village of Ormstown, for during that time the Livestock Breeders' Association of the District of Beauharnois hold their annual show known as the Ormstown Exhibition. This year the exhibition will be held from Wednesday evening, June 9th, to Saturday evening, June 12th. During that time we, the people of Ormstown, expect to meet many old friends and we hope to make the acquaintance of many new friends. Each year, more and more people are attending this great exhibition in our town and the people and business men welcome all who come here.

You will find our business people courteous and solicitous of your welfare. You will find the Exhibition officials anxious to give you every consideration during the days of the fair and an office is maintained at the grounds where information can be obtained. Car parking space is available both in the grounds and at outside points. Suitable accommodation may be found in private homes, hotels, etc., Meals are served on the grounds and can also be obtained at establishments in the town doing this kind of business. Bus, rail and taxi services are also available. In case of emergency, Ormstown has a well equipped hospital and medical services.

On behalf of the Village of Ormstown, Mayor A. A. McNeil wishes to extend a welcome to the visitors and the public to attend the Ormstown Exhibition and feels sure that the welfare of all will be well looked after.

Mayor A. A. McNeil

Improvement to Grounds ..

decorative steel wire fence has been placed all around the track and the open approaches to the show grounds and eventually this will be used to enclose the entire grounds.

The midway will be set up on the ground originally used for the race track and thus will be away from the main entrance and in a position of its own. More room for the various amusements will thus be allowed.

Model Shows has been engaged this year to supply the midway attractions and they will bring twenty carloads of rides and shows to thrill young and old. This is the first time that these shows have been to Ormstown Exhibition and they promise something different in the way of rides and shows.

A new Horse Stable has been built on the ground just past the space where the Grandstand used to be. The size is 30 by 120 feet and it will have 40 box stalls. This is only part of a project to provide space for about 300 horses and to take out the stables from beneath the arena. It is considered that this one improvement will be greeted by horse owners as a real step in the right direction and provide much accommodation for their animals.

It is not necessary to mention that the Ormstown Exhibition is ever popular with all who visit it and more and more exhibitors and patrons are visiting this exhibition each year. Special seats and special stands are sold out for the following year before the current exhibition has ended. Such speaks well for the farsightedness of the management in seeking those improvements which will provide the most benefit to the majority. It is these improvements that make the Ormstown Exhibition the greatest little fair after the big shows.

You are invited to attend Ormstown Exhibition this year and see for yourself that these improvements really mean a benefit to all.

Memorial Arch ...

tion for the purpose of building a Memorial Community Centre. An objective was set and has been oversubscribed, but the building of the Community Centre is being delayed on account of the high costs of building today. Meanwhile the committee is using various means to continue raising funds to increase the sum already collected and thus assure a better building and more equipment. The profit made on serving meals to patrons of the Exhibition will be added to the fund and thus all who visit the show will be helping to boost this fund while being served with an excellent meal at a reasonable price.

It is fitting probably, that this latest project should be in such close proximity to the one already completed, and one which should serve to remind patrons of the other and keep the thought of the aims and objects constantly to the fore.

It is thus that Ormstown Exhibition has co-operated with the citizens of Ormstown Village in trying to further the aims and objects of the citizens in their endeavour to foster the memory of those who served and gave their lives that all Canadians might retain their liberties and way of life. When the patrons walk under this Memorial Arch, please remember that Ormstown not only has a progressive annual exhibition, but it is a progressive village in itself. You will find the business men of the village willing to serve you and advise you during your visit to the exhibition and you will find the general run of Ormstown citizens courteous and solicitous of your welfare.

W.C.T.U. Resolutions And Plan of Work

The following resolutions and plan of work were passed at the recent County W.C.T.U. Convention, held at Ormstown, Que.:

Resolutions

The County W.C.T.U. assembled in Convention realizing the difficult days through which the world is passing humbly petition our Almighty Father to give peace to all the World.

2. Resolved that we declare our allegiance to our country and our loyalty and devotion to King George VI and Queen Elizabeth, rejoicing in their sympathetic and generous attitude in these days of reconstruction.

3. Resolved that we give more time to earnest prayer so that we may fight more successfully the great forces allied against us.

4. Resolved that we place on record our interest in the Woman's Missionary Society's "World Day of Prayer" program which goes forth to all parts of the world in many languages, and we would respectfully urge that the subject of Temperance be given a definite place on its program and in our Woman's Missionary Society publications and in all our church and community organizations.

5. Believing that gambling is out of harmony with the spirit of Christianity, resolved that members should abstain from all forms of gambling, including bingo and sweepstakes and that we call upon all in authority to enforce the anti-gambling laws.

6. Resolved that entrance to Canada be refused to publications of an immoral nature and that there be a more rigid censorship of magazines, also that objectionable comics be eliminated from the comic books and Sunday papers.

7. Resolved that we affirm our steadfast belief that the eventual solution of the problem of beverage liquor control is the total prohibition of the manufacture and sale of alcoholic beverages.

8. Resolved, that we as members of this Christian organization do all in our power to preserve the sanctity of the Sabbath, both as individuals and as an organization; that we urge upon the churches the duty resting upon them as a body to present the evils of the liquor traffic to their congregations and to their young people's groups frequently.

9. Resolved that an earnest effort be made to increase the number of subscribers to Tidings.

10. Resolved that we feel very strongly that in a world in which so many people face starvation, no precious grain should be used to manufacture alcoholic liquor.

11. Resolved that our heartfelt thanks are due to the Session of St. Paul's United Church for the use of their hall; to the entertaining Union; to the speakers and soloists and to all who have helped to make this Convention so successful.

Mrs. R. J. Blair,
Convene

Plan of Work

1. At this time in our national history, when the world is being reconstructed; when, more than ever before, there is need for spiritual regeneration, we urge upon our members to make spiritual fitness the basis of all our work, and that a devotional period will open all our meetings and conventions. Also that every member continues to keep the noon-tide watch.

2. Whereas an appeal has been made by the World's W.C.T.U. for help in supporting a Missionary, we will plan to continue this work by making World's life members.

3. Recommended that each Superintendent keep memos of work done, a report completed and presented at Annual meeting, then forwarded immediately to higher Superintendent.

Also that we prepare a list of Superintendents to be printed in the Year Book.

4. Whereas the Woman's Christian Temperance Unions in rural areas, find it difficult to get suitable program material for their meetings, we recommend that use be made of the suggested programs printed in White Ribbon Tidings.

5. Also we recommend that each Union repeat the pledge in unison at some time during each regular meeting.

6. We recommend that the sin and disgrace of drinking be emphasized in our Temperance propaganda as well as the effect on the body.

7. That we bring to the attention of our members the subtle attempts of the brewers to gain the admiration and goodwill of our people.

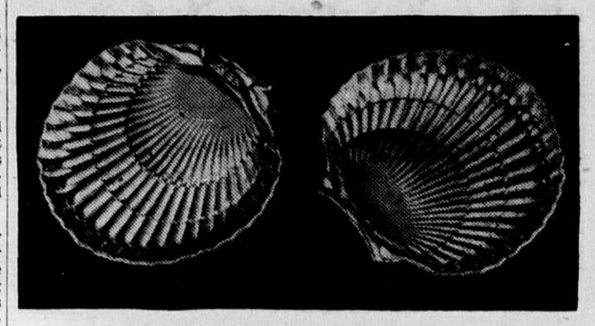

8. That each Union undertake a definite objective so as to promote interest.

9. That we try to organize an L.T.I. in every group, as we feel that is a very great work.

10. That an effort be made to raise the balance of the $25,000.00 required for the Sarah Rowell Wright endowment fund, before the next biennial convention, so that the Interest from the full amount may be available for extension work.

Mrs. McNeil,
Convener.

WHY DO YOUNG FOLKS LEAVE THE FARM?

You ask why young folk want to leave
The farm where they were born and reared,
The acres their forefathers cleared,
The home round which fond memories weave.

Some say that youth must have its fling,
And there's a lure in city life,
The maddening crowd's ignoble strife;
But youthful fancy's on the wing.

Some tire of rising with the lark,
Or when the early roosters crow;
Impatient cows begin to low,
And there are chores from dawn to dark.

Sometimes 'tis Father on the Farm
Who fails to give the boy a break,
The budding farmer in the make,
For whom the home has lost its charm.

A sadder and a wiser sire,
This farmer of his son bereft;
For him there seems but little left,
Since now the help he has to hire.

A happy sequel one might trace:
The son in town makes lots of "jack"
And later to the farm comes back
To lift the mortgage off the place.

But others find the grain is chaff;
Weary and homesick, they would fain
Retrace their wayward steps to gain
The homestead and the fatted calf.

We never knew a man regret
That he was born a farmer's son,
But how he grew the farm to shun—
That question is not answered yet.

But let us look at it again
And ask how we could keep alive
Our industries; could they survive
Without the farm-bred brawn and brain?

WELCOME TO ORMSTOWN FAIR

Message of Sec'y.-Manager

CARLYLE DICKSON

o—O—o

The Ormstown Exhibition Grounds have taken on the New Look. Everyone who calls around these days takes a look at things and then says "why you have space now". The reason for this is because 7 acres of land were added to the grounds from the adjoining farm. The location of the race track has been moved 200 feet further from the Arena.

Such things have been accomplished this spring as moving the seating Grand Stand to alongside the newly located race track. Making a 25,000 square feet exhibition lot for farm machinery alongside the Industrial Building so that visitors may see both the indoor exhibits and the outdoor exhibits in the one tour of inspection. Another accomplishment is the construction of a new horse stable 200 feet long with 40 box stalls to accommodate the largest entry of horses in the history of the Exhibition.

The days previous to the opening will see horse vans rolling into Ormstown from points as far west as Kitchener, from as far East as Sherbrooke,, from as far north as Ottawa and as far south as Carolina.

The management extends a cordial welcome to all those who can enjoy "a day at the Fair" to visit what can be truly re-said, "The Bigest Show in the Smallest Town in the Dominion of Canada".

INDUSTRIAL BUILDING, ORMSTOWN

One part of the Ormstown Exhibition that always attracts the visitors, is the Industrial Building, where the industrial exhibits are housed. Here will be found exhibits of various kinds that appeal to the farmer, the home lover, the builder and most everybody. This year there will be a special wool exhibit sponsored by the textile concerns of Huntingdon and Ormstown and it will be well worth seeing by all who visit the fair. Exhibitions of electric apparatus for the farm and for the home will be on display in profusion with attendants to explain all you may want to know about them and also to give demonstrations. Home lovers will be able to view the latest in home furnishings and perhaps dream of the time when they will own something of the sort themselves, or arrange to become the owner.

All the industrial exhibits cannot be placed in the Industrial Building and outside on the grounds nearby will be found various farm machinery exhibits and other items such as cars, etc. These always attract a great deal of interest and no one feels they have seen the fair if they don't browse around these exhibits at least once.

You are assured of a profitable and educational period by visiting the Industrial Building. Also if you are looking for the Fair Officials or want to make reservations for seats in the arena, you will find the secretary's office in this building also. It is situated right in front of you as you enter the main gate and to the left of the midway.

Annual Lawn Bowling Meeting Shows Club's Position Sound

New Officers Elected—Mr. Dan Grant President For 1948

At the annual meeting of the Huntingdon Lawn Bowling Club held on Thursday evening, Mr. Dan. Grant was named President for the 1948 season; C. L. B. Wheeler, Vice-President; Adam L. Sellar, Sec'y-Treas.; J. R. Fox and Fred Stark, Green Committee; Alex. Fawcett, Games; Arthur Spivey and John Holmes, membership committee.

Various reports presented were received and that pertaining to the "Buster" indicated that as a result of same the Club had received $139.50. A year ago it was a question as to whether the Club should fold up, or make an energetic move to liquidate its debt, which was in excess of $800. This debt represented an unpaid balance due on the real estate, municipal and school taxes and an advance made by a bowler of over $150. Many generous subscriptions were received so that during the season of 1947 to the date of annual meeting $1,041.37 was received. All the debts have been paid off but the $150 item. In the interval of time the Club facilities have been greatly improved. Thanks are due the many who so willingly contributed so generously toward maintaining the Lawn Bowling Club as a going concern.

In recent years a few firms have paid lump sums into the Club in lieu of memberships for employees of the respective firms. The employees of such firms present at the meeting stated such memberships were appreciated but felt now would be a becoming time for each individual to pay his or her own membership, as they were all now more or less familiar with the game of lawn bowling. The membership fee for 1948 will be $5 for men, $3 for boys 18 years or under and $2 for women.

Prizes will be provided for various competitions that may be organized and carried out under the supervision of the games committee.

Has Varied and Successful Musical Career

Mr. Gilbert Hill, well-known Montreal pianist and organist, returned home a few days ago, after a memorable tour of Eastern Canadian cities as pianist-accompanist to the renowned Coloratura Soprano, Madam Erna Sack.

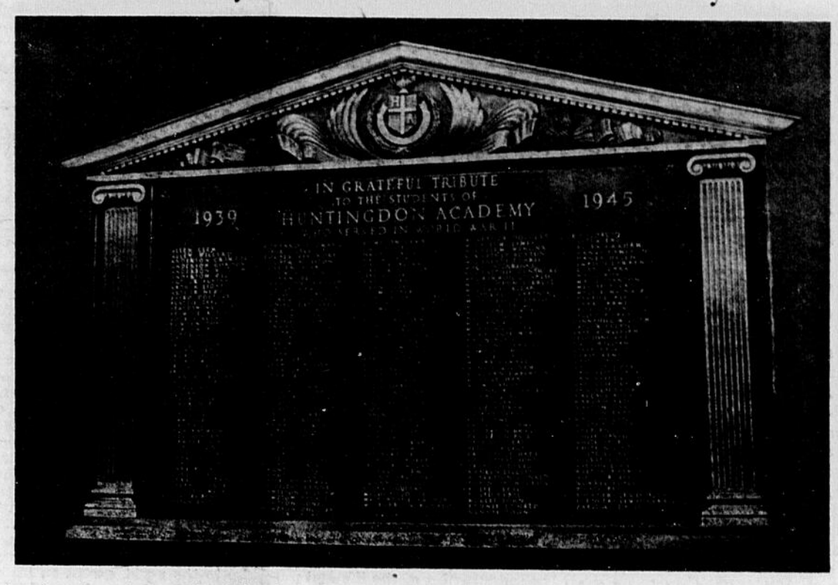

Under the sponsorship of "La Société Classique", concerts were given in Toronto, where Massey Hall was packed with an enthusiastic audience of 3,000 people, Ottawa, Rimouski, Chicoutimi, and Sorel, part of the territory being covered by aeroplane. Mr. Lucien Gagnier, flutist, played flute obligatos at some of these concerts.

The music critic of the Toronto Daily Star, Mr. Augustus Bridle, wrote: "Sometimes, Miss Erna Sack's voice, at incredible aviation altitudes, was an uncanny diatonic caper, in exact pitch with the piano, so deftly materialised by Gilbert Hill."

Before leaving last week for Brazil, Madam Sack presented her accompanist with a photograph, inscribed:—"To Mr. Gilbert Hill, my excellent accompanist in many concerts, with best wishes from Erna Sack".

Mr. Hill was heard over the air as a recitalist on Saturdays, May 8th and 15th, in two broadcasts over Station CKAC, on the pipe organ at St. Joseph's Oratory, Montreal, under the auspices of the Quebec Provincial Conservatory of Music. For several years, he has held a scholarship at the Conservatory, as an organ pupil of M. Conrad Bernier, distinguished organist at St. Mathew's Cathedral, Washington, D.C., and of the Montreal organist-composer, M. Georges Emile Tanguay.

Academy Honour Roll Unveiled Sunday

The above is a photograph of the beautiful bronze Honour Roll plaque that was unveiled at Huntingdon Academy, on Sunday afternoon.

Bronze Honour Roll Unveiled By W. R. Sellar, G.M.C. Sunday

Ceremony Attended at Huntingdon Academy by Relatives and Friends

Perhaps it might be permitted to say that Sunday was a great day in Huntingdon, in any event it was a great day in the history of Huntingdon Academy, as on that day the beautiful bronze plaque to the honour and memory of those from the school who served in World War II was unveiled.

There was not the attendance that had been anticipated and although all precautions had been taken to take care of any overflow, such were not needed. However, the auditorium was well filled, but not to capacity. The ceremony was simple, short, but sincere and all present were conscious of what it meant.

The School Band opened with O Canada and Rev. W. S. Hatcher followed with the Invocation. The gathering joined in singing "O God, Our Help in Ages Past", and Rev. T Knowles read the Scripture passages.

The unveiling of the Honour Roll was performed by Mr. R. Watson Sellar, G.M.C., an old boy of the school and preceding this he gave the following address:

An occasion such as this tempts one to dramatize, to retrospect in sadness or in joy. Yet it seems to me that were we so to do we would inadequately do honour to the names on this memorial. Those names are there to record the contribution of this quiet countryside to a call of duty, so that those who come after us may appreciate what was done in the years 1939 to 1945.

We have marched far in the past fifty years. A remote but clear recollection of my days in the old stone school is that of Principal Holiday bringing Trooper Smith into Miss Dixon's classroom. He was back from the South African War and wore his uniform. There may have been, and probably were, others from Huntingdon Academy who served in that war, but his is the only name that I recall. Across the way is the War Memorial for those who gave all in the First Great War. Today we chronicle the names of those who served in the war just ended. It is a long list of boys and girls we know. It presents no effort to recall their caprices and talents. They are our kith and kin. We know their family backgrounds and we share common hopes for their future. They served on land, in the air and on the waters of the seas. Happily, most of them are back with us again.

One man in 1899 against 243 two generations later! In a way, it is a symbol of our development. The national obligations of Canada multiply with startling speed. Our homeside of the Chateauguay Valley is no longer a quiet backwater; it now has a specific place in the national fabric. I am not one to deplore the fact that such a transition has taken place in a lifetime. Canada's growing place in world affairs exacts a price, but a consequence is that severally and collectively we are better citizens and enjoy a stronger community life. Our fathers would look with pride on the fact that we of today have a longer view that they enjoyed; that our community life has a balance, a perspective far more mature, a tolerance and a spirit of well-being which were beyond their reach. It is the cohesion of many elements—large and small—that goes to build a nation. What profits one benefits all. It is regretable that war necessitated so many of our young people journeying beyond our horizon, but their experiences, now that they are safe home, will profit Huntingdon and its environment. With sorrow we know that some will never return. We may well bow our heads and pledge that we will acquit ourselves in a manner which does not detract from the glory of their sacrifice.

So it is with pride that I, on behalf of students—past and present—and of the many friends of Huntingdon Academy, unveil this Roll of Honour to the 243 boys and girls who served that you and I and the community about us continue to enjoy freedom of thought, of body and of life in the years that lie ahead.

As the bronze tablet was unveiled, a spotlight was thrown upon it revealing it in all its shining beauty as a most beautiful and fitting tribute to the names it bore—243 in all. Mr. J. B. Macmillan, Principal, read the names of those who gave their lives and which are suitably shown in the list on the tablet. Seventeen are recorded as not returning. The "Last Post" was sounded by Ralph Connor of the Band.

Rev. J. B. Maclean, D.D., gave the address and said as follows:

I wish to acknowledge the courtesy of Principal Macmillan and of the School Board in inviting me to be present today on this notable occasion. And with all my heart I congratulate them on the accomplishment of their pious purpose of setting up in this School a fitting Memorial to the former scholars of their school who served in the Second Great War. They may well be proud of the beautiful Memorial Tablet with its long Roll of 243 names, of which 17 are specially marked with the Cross of Sacrifice.

This Tablet carries a 3-fold message.

I. It serves to remind us of the debt we owe to those who died for us. We recall once again today the Names, the Golden Names, of the gallant young men who made the supreme sacrifice.

"So young they were, so strong and well
Until the bitter summons fell—
Too young to die.

On every heart, lest we forget—
Secure at home—ENGRAVE THIS DEBT."

We are sad as we remember them—but we are proud of what they proved themselves to be when the testing-time came. Life was sweet to them—their homes were dear to them—they had much, so much, to live for; but they were willing to give all that they had and all that they were, because of the danger that menaced their country and their people and the dear ones of home. Ours will be the loss and the shame if we ever forget the price they paid in precious human blood for the preservation of our liberties.

"They shall not grow old, as we that are left grow old:
Age shall not weary them, nor the years condemn.
At the going down of the sun and in the morning
We will remember them.

"As the stars that shall be bright when men are dust,
Moving in marches upon the heavenly plain;
As the stars that are starry in the time of our darkness,
To the end, to the end, they remain."

II. This tablet also reminds us of the debt we owe to the comrades of the fallen heroes, who shared with them the agonies, discomforts and dangers of the Second Great War, but who have been spared to come back to us. Let us show our appreciation of what they, too, did and suffered for us. And as they seek to take up their old plans that had been broken in upon by the call to war, and to re-shape them to the new situation that faces them, let us help them as we may in their endeavours to get re-established in the life and work of our common country. Some of them bear enduring marks of the ordeal through which they passed. All of them have been set back in the plans they had for their future. The first duty of a country that has been saved, as ours has been saved, is to care for the war-broken lives that need care, and to help all who need homes and all who need places into which to fit themselves, in order that for our own sake as well as theirs, they may have opportunity to prove themselves to be among the most precious assets that make a country truly rich.

III. What will this tablet mean to the young people in our school today and in the years to come?

Youth is the age of hero-worship. It is well that the hero chosen for such worship should be worthy of admiration and emulation. In the school curriculum there are various subjects to be studied and there are textbooks that help in that study, if

English Ayrshire Breeders Visit Chateauguay Valley

Two distinguished old country Ayrshire breeders and their wives were overnight guests at the Chateau, Huntingdon, on May 20. They were also guests of Mr. Gilbert McMillan.

The visitors were Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Montgomerie of the world famous Ayrshire firm, A. W. Montgomerie & Sons, Ltd., Lessnessock, Ayrshire, Scotland; Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Beck of Darland Hall, Chester, England. Mr. and Mrs. Beck each own their own herds of Ayrshire cattle—one in Cheshire, England, the other partly in Cheshire and partly in Denbigshire, Wales.

The party flew across to attend the great United States Ayrshire events and to make a series of visits to leading U.S. Ayrshire herds. On May 20, Mr. McMillan met them at Rouses Point and brought them to Huntingdon. Next day Mr. McMillan drove Messrs. Montgomerie and Beck to visit the Burnside herd of R. R. Ness & Sons; the Cherry Bank herd of P. D. McArthur & Son, both of Howick; the Bois de la Roche herd of Senneville, Que. He finally took them to Montreal, where they entrained for Toronto, Guelph and Niagara Falls, and from thence to New York for their return by plane.

In the meantime Mr. Frank Napier, Secretary, Canadian Ayrshire Breeders' Association, had driven Mrs. Montgomerie and Mrs. Beck to Montreal, where these ladies were the guests at luncheon of Mrs. Napier and Mrs. John Telfer, and Miss Ann Black of Willowhaugh Farm, Lachute, Que., was also in the party.

Incidentally Mr. A. W. Montgomerie, head of that firm, has been a frequent visitor to Huntingdon. Mr. Wallace Montgomerie also visited Huntingdon at the time of the 1937 Ormstown Show—within a couple of weeks of eleven years ago.

Boy, 8 Years Old, Killed by Train Near Howick

An accident occurred at a level crossing between Howick and Ste. Martine, Que., on Tuesday morning, when Marcel Cote, age 8 years, was killed by train No. 79 going to Montreal. The boy and his brother were going along to school, when the victim told his brother he was going to touch the wheel of the engine as it passed. As he attempted to do this, he was drawn underneath and killed instantly.

Dr. Belanger, of Ste. Martine, was called and pronounced the child dead.

The two boys were foster children from Montreal and were staying with a Mr. Jodin, of Ste. Martine.

Fine Presentation of "Snow White and Seven Dwarfs"

Maple Leaf Mission Band Stages Play at St. Andrew's Annex

Walt Disney's Seven Dwarfs were in Huntingdon on Friday and Monday evenings, taking part in the presentation of the play "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs", under the sponsorship of The Maple Leaf Mission Band of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

For the Friday evening presentation of the play, the annex of the church was crowded to overflowing and every available point of vantage was taken. With so many characters to take part in this play, it was no small task for this group to stage, but it was successfully done. Miss G. Herdman, assisted by Miss P. Muir and Miss J. Robinson worked hard at the training of the players, which has meant practicing for the past three months. Mrs. F. G. McCrimmon was the accompanist and pianist for intermission periods and also instructed in the making of the masks and the scenery. Mrs. W. Baird, assisted by several other ladies, made the various costumes. As those who saw the play will know, these people had plenty to do to even get these things in readiness.

For the opening night, Miss Kimball made the announcements as Rev. Randolph Maclean was unavoidably absent due to a previous engagement.

The children did a splendid job of presenting the various characters and Sylvia Baird in her role as Snow White had a particularly hard part to play as it required that she be on stage practically the whole way through. She looked very charming in her various costumes. The Queen and Witch, Barbara Tillotson, also had a difficult part to portray, but did it excellently. The seven dwarfs —Doc, Harold Arthur; Happy, Bobby Laurin; Sneezy, Bruce Amyot; Sleepy, Russel Thornton; Dopey, Eric Leclaire; Bashful, John Rankin; and Grumpy, George Stark, all looked the part with their very descriptive masks. These young boys did not have to appear until the play was well under way, but when they did, they were on stage right until the end. Their voices were a little muffled by the masks, but they managed to make themselves heard. The way they walked and conducted themselves was very near like the famous picture that has been seen. All of them being about the same height, made them quite suitable to their parts.

Harold Merson, who was narrator for the parts leading up to the various scenes in the play, was quite clear in his enunciation and the play was easily followed as a result.

It would not be fair to single any one out for special mention, as each one took his or her part in commendable manner and carried through a two-hour show to the dramatic conclusion of Snow White finding her Prince Charming and the wicked Queen finding her just deserts. The various songs were well sung and the children have very good voices. Mrs. McCrimmon kept the children busy singing during the intermission and also provided further entertainment for the audience. A sale of candy was held on both nights and this was quickly sold out. Mrs. E. Cogland was in charge of this successful venture.

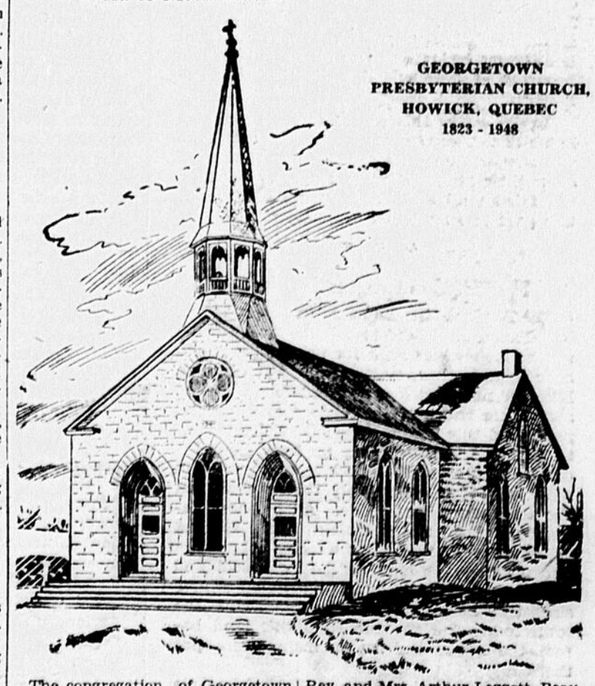

On Monday evening the annex was even more crowded than it was on Friday evening. The play was really worthy of a larger hall and stage for its showing.

The following are those who took the various parts in this production:

The Conductor, Harold Merson; the stage manager, Ross Brown. The Fairies of the Forest: Violet Ross, Nola Stark, Beverley Arnold, Barbara Ferry, Bernice Johnston, Catharine Thompson, Phyllis Baird, Nola Goodger-Hill. The Elves of the Forest: George Robb, Noah Beaudin. The Bunnies: Topsy—Sandra Stark; Flopsy — Bernice Beaudin; Mopsy — Betty Moore; Bobsy — Sandra White. Georgetown Church Observes 125th Anniversary

Congregational Supper and Special Services Held to Mark Event

The congregation of Georgetown Church rejoices this year in the completion of 125 years of parish life and history. Anniversary celebrations were held May 21st to May 23rd to mark the founding of the Church on January 26th, 1823, in which year the Rev. Alexander McWattie, of Bonhill, Dumbartonshire, Scotland, became the first minister.

On Friday evening, a congregational supper was held at 7 p.m., followed by a Service of Rededication, when the Rev. Rudolph J. Berlis, B.D., Minister of the Church of St. Andrew and St. Paul, Montreal, preached an inspiring sermon on the subject: "Going Back to Beth-El." The Rev. Dr. Allan S. Reid, Clerk of the Synod of Montreal and Ottawa, brought greetings on behalf of the Moderator of Synod, the Rev. C. Ritchie Bell, who was unable to be present. The Rev. E. J. White, Montreal, brought greetings on behalf of the Moderator of Presbytery, the Rev. Dr. F. Scott Mackenzie, who is at present visiting the Maritime Provinces. The Service was conducted by the Minister, the Rev. George Edward Bingham.

The Supper, which was under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society, was under the convenership of Mrs. Thomas Kerr and Mrs. Mervyn Craig. Guests included the Rev. R. J. Berlis, the Rev. Dr. Allan S. Reid, the Rev. and Mrs. E. J. White, the Rev. and Mrs. William C. McBride, Riverfield, the Rev. and Mrs. Francis W. Mitchinson, Howick; the Rev. and Mrs. Arthur Leggett, Beauharnois; the Rev. and Mrs. Randolph D. MacLean, Huntingdon; Mrs. F. Scott Mackenzie, Montreal; Mr. and Mrs. Allan Hooker, Ormstown; Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Craig, Riverfield; Mrs. Kenneth Mackay and Mr. Stuart Mackay, Beechridge.

On Sunday, May 23rd, special services were held at 11 a.m. and 8 p.m., conducted by the Minister, the Rev. J. Stanley Glen, M.A., B.D., Ph.D., Professor of the Chair of New Testament Studies in Knox College, Toronto, was the Anniversary Preacher. Dr. Glen preached with great power, speaking at the morning service on the text: "We know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them that are called according to His purpose", and at the evening service on the text: "The Word of God is not Bound".

The minister read a telegram received from the Moderator of the General Assembly, Dr. Charles H. Macdonald, of Lucknow, Ontario, in which were expressed heartiest congratulations to the congregation on completion of one hundred and twenty-five years of service and witness. Visitors at the Evening Service included the Minister of Riverfield Church, the Rev. W. C. McBride, who assisted in the service, and members from Riverfield and Howick churches.

The Anniversary was marked in a special way in the presentation of

Franklin Co. Agricultural Agent Tells of Projects

Provides Rotarians and Farmers With Much Information on Farming

Rotary Club of Huntingdon was favoured yesterday with a visit from Mr. Dale Brown, Malone, who is the Franklin County Agricultural Agent. Mr. Brown addressed the Rotary Club, which was attended by a number of our farmers who were invited to be present by Club members.

Mr. Brown stated that in conducting their agricultural work each farmer was expected to be a member of the Farm Bureau, the membership fee being $2 per annum. Of this amount 50 cents is used for State extension wark, 50 cents for general work and $1 by the local organization. A committee of seven farmers is appointed annually to look after the County activities and the County Agent is responsible to this committee.

This Bureau has been fortunate in having enrolled capable and active farmers as the executive committee. Four forms of extension work are carried on, first dairying, 2nd Potato growing, Poultry and Hops.

The farmers interested mostly in dairying have a meeting and set their objective plan as they feel it will do the most good. The press, radio, letters, pamphlets, demonstrations and many other ways of enlightening the farmer on how best to accomplish the desired results are used.

The dairymen decided that the question of growing feed and roughage was their biggest problem of today, so plans were made as to how best to meet this situation. The growing of Mohawk and Clinto oats was decided upon and last year 1/3 of the oats grown were of these varieties and this year it will be nearer the 50% mark.

The further improving of permanent pastures, providing for aftermath grazing and lastly feeding on Savan grass is aimed at as a solution to cattle feeding. Grass silage is to be commended, but do not try to make silage out of hay. Start haying earlier and make the orchard grass, clover, or timothy into silage. On the whole, grass silage was favourably thought of. Lands that have produced grass for silage make good ground for aftermath grazing.

The levelling off of milk production so as to keep it more in line in the fall months as compared to that of the summer, is being aimed at for it is felt if this can be accomplished, it will mean Franklin County can hold its place in the New York City fluid milk market with greater ease.

Improved breeding through the means or artificial insemination is now showing beneficial results. For ten years such a method of breeding has been going on in New York state. In Franklin County 6% of the cows have been so bred and we are now nearing the 10% mark. Through the use of the semen from these approved bulls, heifers from such breeding are now beginning to milk and commendable results are being reported. It costs no more for this type of breeding, and perhaps less. The farmers are well pleased with the results so far attained.

The disease control committee has done wonderful work, so much so, that Franklin County is rated as the foremost in the States. Actually farmers are getting so many herds tested that they can now make a bid for buyers to come and select animals from their herds. 60 farmers are now testing their herds, similar to the R.O.P. test now in effect in Canada. More cows are now kept on the farm due, I believe, to the efficiency methods being put into practice by our farmers.

The efficient farmer keeps an eye on how to reduce labour required to attain same or better results. The milking of cows by milking machines shows that some farmers report milking much faster and efficiently than is accomplished by others. Fast milking is preferred for it not only means a saving of time but is believed an aid toward reduction in mastitis.

Drainage laws in Franklin County are not as good as you have in this Province of Quebec but the farmers are working and making headway toward improving general farm drainage.

Potatoes

Potato farming is a culture of importance, for in Franklin County we have 4,500 acres of potatoes grown each year. Several farmers grow certified seed potatoes. Spraying is imporant and where farmers have not their own potato spraying equipment, such service is rented or operated on a co-operative basis.

Poultry

Franklin County is not great in numbers of farmers who make poultry farming their principal interest, but you would find sizable flocks on a great many farms. Collectively the poultry grown and produce sold from such flocks, amount to quite a sizable item.

Hops

Hop farming is carried on by more growers in Franklin County than in any other county in the State. Franklin County does not grow the largest quantity of hops, Oneida County surpassing Franklin, but it is claimed the Franklin County hops are of superior quality, and most favoured by the consumers.

This Week in Quebec

Specially Written for the The Huntingdon Gleaner By William Stewart

Quebec, -(CP)- A week's heavy rain in practically all sections of Quebec has slowed up seeding of field crops but so far has caused no serious damage, the provincial agriculture department reports.

Farmers whose fields have been drenched will have to wait for them to dry out before they can resume seeding which had been started under the best conditions in recent years.

Until the downpours began last week, Quebec had a better-than-average prospect for the farm season.

Heaviest damage from the rain was reported from southern Gaspe where coastal towns were deprived of railway communication for a week.

Rivers emptying into the Baie des Chaleurs became swollen to levels 10 feet higher than normal and riverside sawmills were swept away before they subsided. Coastal farms were left covered with gravel by the receding waters.

The storms coincided with spring high tides reported to have caused damage to fisheries equipment along the coast.

Earlier the agriculture department reported that Quebec's spring maple sugar crop will be about 75 per cent of last year's with a value of about $8,000,000.

The department warned that reputation of the industry was still threatened by unscrupulous producers who load their sugar cakes with stones.

The department also reported that the province's 1947 butter production amounted to 97,527,445 pounds compared with 85,355,140 in 1946.

Cheese production last year fell to 24,811,992 pounds from 43,195,420 the previous year.

A wage disagreement at Thetford Mines left nearly 2,000 pupils without teachers last week. Fifty-six women teachers employed by the town's school commission reported "sick" and for two days classrooms were shut up.

The teachers went back to work Thursday on the understanding that requests last September for pay increases will bring a decision from Quebec Municipal Commission before which they are under appeal.

Premier Duplessis informed the Provincial Chamber of Commerce he will recommend appointment of a special committee to inquire into methods of winter roads maintenance for the province.

World Supply Oils, Fats, Still Short

Serious shortages of oils and fats to meet world requirements are likely to continue through 1948, and indeed for some years to come. In 1947 exports of oils and fats were only about 3 million metric tons against pre-war exports of 5 million metric tons. Exports from all principal producing countries, with the exception of North America and the Philippines, were less than pre-war, the most serious declines being in Manchuria and India.

Though exports in 1948 are estimated at 3.9 million metric tons, it still leaves a serious gap between world supplies and world requirements. The countries which will suffer most from this scarcity are naturally those which normally import heavily and those whose domestic production has declined drastically.

New Convalescent Home to be Opened in Huntingdon, June 1

Miss L. Rankin, R.N., Mrs. Violet Beattie Will Operate Riverview Terrace Home

There has been a constant need in Huntingdon for a convalescent home where persons in poor health, or those recovering after a sickness or operation, could recuperate or rest. When the Huntingdon County Hospital was founded it filled a great need, but it was felt at that time that a rest or convalescent home was also needed. Such a place would relieve a great deal of the congestion in the hospitals and thus afford more accommodation for those needing more urgent medical treatment.

Such a home has now been provided in Huntingdon through the enterprise of Miss Lillian Rankin, R.N., and Mrs. Violet Beattie, in partnership. They recently purchased the Walker Farm belonging to Mrs. Newman, which is pleasantly situated on the Montreal-Malone Highway a mile from Huntingdon, at the junction of the Chateauguay and Trout Rivers. The house is a fine one for the purpose and has its own grounds of 200 acre area. The tree-shaded, flower bordered lawns, in quiet surroundings, will provide just that required amount of restful quiet and beauty that is necessary to the person who is recovering from illness or operation. The home will also provide a place of relaxation for those seeking rest and quiet. There is also a safe and sandy beach where one may just sit, bathe, or swim, as the desire may be.

Miss Rankin is a Public Health Nurse and served in the R.C.A.M.C. both in Canada and overseas. Following V-Day she was chosen by UNNRA to go to occupied Europe as Field Nursing Supervisor. Such training and experience gives her an understanding that is so necessary to the individual who is just recovering from illness. Her partner, Mrs. Violet Beattie, widow of the late W. F. Beattie, will be household manager and in charge of arrangements for meals and special diet. Other help is employed to make the stay of those at Riverview Terrace, as this home is being named, the most pleasant and beneficial they could wish for.

The new convalescent home will be opened for the first time on June 1st, and its services will be available to all who may have need of them from that time on.

Dedicated to Ormstown Exhibition

THIS edition of The Gleaner is dedicated to the success of the 1948 Ormstown Exhibition and to the farmers of the Beauharnois District, whose stock has built this exhibition to its present popularity. From a small beginning when a few interested parties formed a committee to hold a fair, Ormstown Exhibition has grown to its present dimensions as the story of its history as written in this issue by Mr. W. G. McGerrigle, will tell.

Since the inception of the Ormstown Exhibition from this small beginning, it has done much to help the farmers of the Beauharnois District and has been the means of advertising this district to people all over Canada and a good portion of the United States. In having done this, the district has become known as an excellent dairying district and one that breeds first class dairy cattle of various breeds. It is thus that when farmers from other points are seeking to improve their herds or to obtain good foundation stock, they seek such in the Beauharnois District. What is more, they usually find what they are looking for. Since the last exhibition several shipments of animals have been made to foreign countries from this district.

Ormstown Exhibition can be credited with much of the fame that has been brought to this district, because some of the very finest of the animals have been shown at the fair and the visitors come from far and wide every year to view these animals and become acquainted with their owners. It has also been the means of spurring the owners on to show their animals at larger fairs and in bigger centres. The name of Ormstown has been blazoned forth from these fairs as the winners have been announced as coming from some part of the Beauharnois District. This Exhibition is credited as being among the top ones in the country on account of the large number of exhibitors at this fair who show in other fairs and carry off the top prizes.

In this special edition we have gone to considerable work to provide something different for our regular subscribers and a large number of extra copies of this special section have also been printed for distribution. Advertisers in Ormstown have co-operated wonderfully in making this edition possible, which shows that they are all behind the exhibition and are doing everything in their power to make it a complete success. They therefore look to the people of the district to back them up in their hopes by planning to attend the fair in larger numbers than ever before. The Exhibition officials are sure that no one will have any regrets at having taken time off to attend the fair on at least one of these days—June 9th opening evening; June 10th, 11th and 12th, morning, afternoon and evening. Farmers are ahead in their spring work this year, which is different to last year, so all should be able to spend at least one day at their own exhibition.

In dedicating this edition to the Ormstown Exhibition, The Gleaner hopes that everyone will support the efforts being put forth and show their appreciation of same, by boosting the fair to all and boosting the attendance this year to an all-time record.

Huntingdon Progressing Again

THAT place in Huntingdon that Mayor Picard is pleased to call the "field where all the money was sunk for private gain" will soon show further returns in the way of taxes. Like all new developments, someone has to start them and Messrs. Manning and Fawcett purchased this land and had it subdivided into lots that were snapped up by various individuals. Naturally these lots were not given away, and it is quite likely that a profit on the transaction was made. All business demands a profit and is entitled to it. It must be remembered that taxes were paid by these two men on the land until it was sold and taxes have been paid by the individual owners since they bought the various lots. Thus the town received a revenue from this land before the sewer and water mains were put there.

When this land became available to people to buy it in lots, many did so and built houses there. Mayor Picard says there are only three or four on this property, but actually there are eleven. Each one of these pays taxes according to valuation, to the town. Each one is thus paying its share toward the cost of the services given this district. When the land was first opened up it was estimated that at least fifty houses would soon be built. Building costs have stopped this advance to a great extent and many of those who did intend to build, have delayed doing so. Had there been no sewer or water, it is not likely that anyone would have built here, as the by-laws demand that proper measures be taken for sewerage disposal within the town and this would have been contrary to health laws to build without sewers. As it stands now, there is every inducement to those wishing to build on this "field", to do so. It is certainly no white elephant as the Mayor would have people believe. Some day in the very near future it will no doubt prove to be one of the best revenue producing areas in Huntingdon.

Evidence of this came this week when word was received that four new houses are going to be built on Prince Street extension and that construction will start right away in order to have the houses ready by fall. Mr. Henry Roskies is the party who will be responsible for building these new homes and he has informed us that he is building them for sale. To be built on this street and according to the new Building By-law, they will have to be of good construction and thus will command a higher rate of valuation. This in turn will mean that these four houses will yield a good return in taxation to the town.

It has also been hinted that if and when a new hospital is built, it will also be on this street.

Farm Life is Best

AGRICULTURE, as we enjoy it in the Province, is not merely a vocation or an occupation. It is a way of life, and to a large percentage of the people in our province, it is the best way of life. This is not only because of the deep-rooted pleasure that comes from working with the soil, and with plants and animals given to the man or woman imbued with the true spirit of rural living. It is not only because the quietude of rural life and work give a calmness of spirit and a peace of mind that are destroyed by the noisy rumble of city streets and the frantic rushing hither and yon of industry and commerce. There is more than that to the rural way of life.

In rural living, doing the work of perpetuating the craftsmanship of the great Creator, there is an abiding sense of nearness to the source and fountain of all life. There is a close contact with the things that are fundamental in life. And there are the things which have given to our farm people a sturdy, upright character, a keen vision to look into the future, and a healthy philosophy of life to match healthy bodies and minds.

There is a satisfaction in rural living that cannot be found in the purely man-made existence in urban centres. There is beauty all around, beauty of colour and form and design, perfect because it has been made by the Great Architect of the universe. There is time for thought as the farmer works in the fields, plowing, harrowing, sowing and reaping. Working as an individualist, plowing the lonely furrow, following his cattle on the hillsides and in the valleys, or working in the woodlands, the farmer truly finds, "tongues in trees, books in the running brooks, sermons in stones, and good in everything". Robert Burns, Scotland's great national poet, composed his greatest works in his mind as he followed his team and plowed across the fields of his little farm. So our rural people, in the quiet loneliness of their daily tasks, find time to think and develop the philosophy of life that he who works as a natural servant of the Creator of all things comes closest to the ideal of a man at peace with himself and the world.

This rural way of life is the backbone of our country and its democracy. From it have sprung our great leaders in the sciences, the professions and in government, men who have in their younger days amidst rural surroundings learned to think for themselves, to have a proper evaluation of what are the first things that must come first, and an appreciation of the fact that man can only receive back from life what he puts into it. These are the things that make men the servants of humanity, which is the true role of our rural people as they live and work in the open spaces of the countryside.

What Progress Re: Huntingdon Fair?

WITH all the talk about fairs in this edition of The Gleaner, we are reminded that there has been much said about making improvements at Huntingdon Fair this year. As time is wearing on and we have heard nothing of the proposals to make these improvements, we decided that it is time to revive the matter once more.

Plans were going ahead to make a new racetrack at the Fair Grounds, but apparently these are now stalled because the Fair Board has to meet the committee and discuss the ways and means of raising money to purchase the extra land. It appears that the committee working on the project has been given an offer on the necessary amount of land required, which can be purchased from the owner of an adjacent farm. They have looked the land over and decided that it would be suitable for the purpose intended. All these findings have been handed on to the Huntingdon Agricultural Society and the race track committee is now awaiting the call to put its proposals before the Agricultural Board of Directors.

We would like to point out that if improvements are to be made this year, now is the time to get going on them. Don't wait until a few days before the fair and then have a rush and bustle that will end up in nothing being done. It is such methods that have been making the people dissatisfied with Huntingdon Fair. One man remarked at the annual meeting that he did not think events should be advertised and then never take place. We are inclined to back this man up. If the Agricultural Board sanctions a willingness to investigate the possibilities of something or other, it should follow it through with all speed possible and make it an accomplished fact in the shortest time. We feel sure that if the Board signified a willingness to improve the fair and the grounds, that help in the way of grants would be forthcoming from either the Provincial or Federal Governments, or both.

Nothing will be gained by sitting around and telling one another the possibilities. There must be action, and action will bring results. First of all the Board must prepare a plan of what it proposes to do to improve the fair and the property, then it must arrive at an approximate amount of the cost of so doing. This should in turn be presented to the proper officials with a strong representation to press for some action.

No longer is Huntingdon wholly a farming community when cattle and exhibits of this nature are all that are needed to make a fair. No longer are the people confined to travel by buggy or wagon and afraid to travel much beyond a ten-mile radius of their homes. Today people travel in fast, high-powered motor cars and make distances of hundreds of miles in a day. They thus see more and are able to gather more knowledge of how the other folks are living and how they do things. No longer do farmers milk the cows by hand, pack ice for keeping the milk cool, hang an oil lantern in the barn or house for light. No they have all the up-to-date conveniences and appliances that it is possible for them to get.

This being the case, then why does Huntingdon have an annual fair that is years behind the times and which year after year, less and less numbers of people are attending? It is time that the people of Huntingdon began to bring pressure to bear to make Huntingdon Fair one that will attract people from near and far on both days. To do this it must have something beside the usual exhibits. Ormstown Fair Board has realized this and has gone ahead to build its attractions to such an extent that there is something of interest for everyone. The success or failure of a fair depends to a very large extent on its gate receipts. Greater interest in all departments would realize greater public interest both from an exhibitors point of view and from the patronage.

There seems to be a general feeling that a properly constructed and operated race track would be the means of increasing the gate receipts and of reviving greater interest in the fair generally. It is also reasoned that more and better midway attractions must be brought to the fair so that there is something to amuse the children and the adults. It is also felt that local persons should be encouraged to take concessions, especially in the serving of meals, soft drinks, hot dogs, etc.

Stalin's Sinister Strategy

By LEWIS MILLIGAN

"War is armed conflict between sovereign states, prosecuted by a systematic destruction of combatants and property (and increasingly in modern warfare of noncombatants also) and having for its purpose the imposition of certain conditions upon the opposing power after securing its defeat." That is an encyclopedia definition, and it sums up in cold, factual terms the world conflict through which we have recently passed.

Looked at in the cold light of this definition, the last two world wars — to put it mildly — were foolish and futile. They were wantonly destructive of the life and property of both combatants, and the victors failed in their purpose of imposing peace conditions upon the defeated. The Germans were beaten to their knees in the first war, only to repudiate the conditions of peace imposed upon them and rise stronger than ever to wage a second war of aggression. They have again been beaten, this time to the dust and rubble of their cities and the annihilation of their military forces and national leaders. And yet the purpose of the war, the imposition of peace conditions, has not been achieved — why? The answer to that question is to be found in the so called United Nations, which are not and never were united in purpose.

Britain and the United States entered the war with the utmost reluctance, and they were united in the sole purpose of destroying once and for all the military power of Germany and establishing peace and freedom in the world. Russia, on the other hand, avoided the war in the first place by entering into a compact with Germany to divide the spoils of Nazi aggressions in Europe. That compact may have been intended by Stalin as a counter-move against Hitler, but its purpose was the same as that of the Nazis — the conquest of the nations of Eastern and Central Europe. This is seen in the present Russian domination of those nations and Stalin's refusal to conclude a peace settlement and release his hold on Germany and Austria.

Whatever we may have thought about the failure of Neville Chamberlain to come to an agreement with Russia before the war, it is now quite plain that the Soviet was playing a double game. The war was the direct result of a clash between Hitler and Stalin for the domination of Europe. The only difference between the two was that Hitler was in a hurry and wanted to achieve his purpose at one blow, while Stalin was willing to wait and gain his ends by infiltration. Thus Hitler—played into the hands of Stalin, and we abetted the latter by going to the aid of Russia and signing the Yalta agreement for Russian zones of influence in Europe.

The result is that the Western democracies are now faced with the same dilemma that confronted Neville Chamberlain when Hitler broke his promise and took over the whole of Czechoslovakia. If Chamberlain put too much faith in Hitler at Munich, Churchill and Roosevelt outdid him by confiding in Stalin's promises at Yalta.

The past is past, and "what's done cannot be undone," but it is not too late to learn from experience. We have learned that we cannot depend upon the given word of Stalin any more than we could on that of Hitler. Good faith must be mutual, and if it is only on one side, the unfaithful party has the advantage; he can resort to deceit, delay and other sinister means of frustrating action, as the Soviet delegates to the United Nations have been doing for the last three years. It is as clear as daylight that Stalin does not want a peace settlement in Europe or anywhere else in the world, except on his own terms. The longer he could keep the nations of Western Europe in a state of political and economic chaos, the better his chances of success in extending his "zones of influence" over the whole of Europe.

But the Western Democracies are at last fully awake to the sinister strategy of Marshal Stalin's "cold war." Another Marshall has entered the field with an open campaign for economic recovery, and all lovers of peace and freedom shall diligently work and fervently pray for its success.

Letter to The Editor

Glenelm, Que.
May 20, 1948.

To the Editor,
Huntingdon Gleaner,
Huntingdon,

Dear Sir:

On April 19th, I made a statement in a letter to the Editor concerning the excessive taxes the Government derives from the sale of alcoholic beverages, this statement was ridiculed.

For the benefit of those who did not read this article and with the kind permission of the Editor, I would like to quote some of the results of the interviews from the Elliott-Hanes Survey Organization.

Last year Canadians drank eleven and a half gallons of beer each or 184 glasses for every man, woman and child. (With the exception of Mr. James Stewart and I.)

In 1945 Canadians polished off over three and a half millions of proof gallons of spirits, more than three and a half millions of gallons of wine, but upwards of 110 millions of gallons of beer.

Milk consumption the same year: over 543 millions of gallons, or nearly five times as much milk as beer.

In the same year, the Dominion Government collected upwards of $89 millions in licence fees, duties and taxes on liquor, beer and wine. (1945 revenue in gasoline taxes: $29½ millions).

The provinces made tens of millions of dollars in revenue from liquor controls too. Ontario headed the list with a tidy $19 millions. (Gasoline taxes: over $26½ millions.) Quebec came next with $17 millions (gasoline taxes: $12½ millions).

Thank you, Mr. Editor,
Alex. Thompson

This is Shawinigan's Fiftieth Anniversary, the year that marks half a century of serving the people and industries of Quebec Province.

On the whole, they were good years, years of determination and of belief in the future, years of facing problems and of overcoming them, years of growth and prosperity for the Province of Quebec, its people and its great family of industries—to which Shawinigan proudly belongs.

On this fiftieth birthday Shawinigan looks back on its years of service to the public—service which speaks of a job well done. No similar area on this continent has enjoyed better, more economical or more dependable electrical utility services than those supplied to the people and industries of this Province by The Shawinigan Water and Power Company.

It is Shawinigan's earnest hope, a hope that will call forth our every effort, that the years to come will be distinguished by the same progress that has made the past fifty years the good years that they've been.

AUBREY - RIVERFIELD — The May meeting of the W.M.S. of Riverfield Presbyterian Church was held on Tuesday evening, May 18th in the church hall. The meeting was conducted by the Vice-President, Mrs. John Gruer, and was opened with the Lord's Prayer in unison. Hymn 419, "My Faith Looks up to Thee" was followed by the roll call, responded to by a Bible verse containing the word 'strength.' Minutes were read and approved and a few items of business attended to. The Glad Tidings item, a letter from Rev. G. K. and Mrs. Agar, of Jobat, India, was read by Mrs. W. G. Allen, and the Glad Tidings prayer by Mrs. J. S. Carmichael. The devotional period was taken by Mrs. Finlay Milne, who read the Scripture lesson. A chapter from the Study Book, "Climbing", was read by Mrs. Gruer, telling of incidents and inspirations in the life of Mrs. Goforth. An interesting paper, "A Story of Prague and Czechoslovakia was given by Mrs. Donald Black, telling of the time when Charles IV built a bridge of mortar mixed with millions of eggs, and the present time when eggs are rationed three to four a month only to children under six years. This surely shows that what little we can do to help these friends across the sea is sorely needed. Mrs. W. G. Allen and Mrs. Chester Orr sang a duet entitled "In the Garden." Hymn 420 "Not What These Hands Have Done," was sung, and the meeting closed with the Auxiliary prayer.

On Saturday evening, May 22nd, Mrs. Harold Robertson was hostess at a miscellaneous shower in honour of Miss Muriel Cullen, whose marriage takes place shortly. Muriel was supposedly on her way to Ormstown, and calling at the Robertson home for a parcel, was completely taken by surprise to find about 35 guests assembled to greet her. She was escorted to a chair, nicely decorated in pink and blue, topped by an umbrella which showered her with confetti as Mrs. Ronald Reddick played "Here comes the Bride." After opening her many lovely gifts and passing them around for all to admire, Muriel thanked everyone for their kindness and invited them to visit her in her new home. A few amusing games were enjoyed and dainty refreshments were served, after which everyone departed, showering good wishes on the bride-to-be.

OBITUARY

The Late Oliver Robidoux

This community was shocked to hear the very sad news that Mr. Oliver Robidoux, one of Kilbain's oldest and most highly respected citizens had passed away in the early morning hours of Tuesday, May 18th, at the residence of his son, Mr. John Robidoux.

Mr. Robidoux was born in Huntingdon, in October, 1865, the son of Oliver Robidoux and Meline Monique. He married Catherine McConville, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Chas. McConville. Shortly after their marriage, Mr. Robidoux left for Montana to seek work in the mines there. He remained only a short time and returned home to take up farming and became a very successful and well-to-do farmer—always keeping a fine herd of cattle and was especially proud of good horses.

Fate did not deal too unkindly towards Mr. Robidoux as he was ill only about five months. He suffered patiently until the end and was lovingly and tenderly cared for by his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Robidoux and family.

Mr. Robidoux was held in high esteem by this community as was evidenced by the large number of relatives, friends and neighbors who attended his wake and funeral. The funeral was held at St. Bridget's Church, Trout River. Rev. Fr. Capron officiated at the solemn funeral Mass. Rev. Fr. Harold Murphy was in the sanctuary. Burial was in Huntingdon.

Surviving him he leaves to mourn his loss, three sons and two daughters, Alwyn of Glenelm; John at home; Terrence at White's Station; Mrs. Alfred Latulipe, (Annie), Valleyfield; Mrs. Thos. Murphy, (Mabel), Hamilton, Ont. One son, Clarence died of Scarlet Fever and two sons, Freddy and Oliver and one daughter, Florence were victims of the fire that demolished Mr. Robidoux's former home on the River Road, two miles east of Huntingdon. Mrs. Robidoux pre-deceased her husband six years ago. He also leaves 21 grandchildren.

The pallbearers were his three nephews, Thomas and Harold McConville and Earl Fournier, also his three grandsons, Leonard Latulipe and Leon and Gerald Robidoux.

Mr. Robidoux was in his 83rd year at the time of his death. He will be greatly missed by his sorrowing family, relatives and friends.

Howick

Y.W.A. Meeting

HOWICK—The monthly meeting of the Young Women's Auxiliary of the Georgetown Presbyterian Church was held Wednesday evening at the home of Miss Lyla Hamilton, with Miss Hamilton, hostess. The meeting opened with the singing of the hymn, "All People That on Earth do Dwell" followed by the Scripture selection. Psalm 91 was read by Mrs. Lincoln West and Mrs. G. E. Bingham led in prayer. The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Miss Laura Robertson and adopted. The treasurer, Mrs. Donald Ness gave a report. The president, Mrs. Arthur Buchanan, gave notice of the new camp at Lancaster, for which members of Y.W.A. were allowed to spend a vacation, their ages 18-30. The study was interestingly given by Mrs. Robert McCaig on "The Pioneer Days" which told of the difficulties and dangers the Rev. James Evans had to face in order to acquire the Printing Press and transfer the printing on bark as well as discover ink. The meeting closed with the singing of the hymn, "Now the Day is Over" and the Mizpah benediction, after which the hostess served refreshments and a social hour was spent on quilting a quilt.

The Evening Auxiliary of Howick United Church met at the home of Mrs. Archie Peddie on the evening of Tuesday, May 18th, with 17 members present. The meeting opened by the singing of Hymn 399, "Faith of our Fathers." The devotional exercise was given by Mrs. Lloyd Allen, followed by a prayer. The business period followed and plans were made to give a Hostess Tea the afternoon of Monday, May 24th. Mrs. Donald Templeton gave an interesting synopsis of the Study Book chapter. Mrs. Archie Peddie read a poem. The meeting closed with a hymn. Refreshments were served and another crib quilt was quilted.

W.M.S. Meeting

The regular meeting of the Howick United Church Woman's Missionary Auxiliary was held on Wednesday afternoon, May 19th, at two o'clock, in the church, with an attendance of 23 members.

The meeting opened with the Call to Worship and the singing of hymn, "Christian Seek not yet Repose." The devotional period was in charge of Mrs. Andrew Bennie, whose text was taken from Luke 2:15, "The Shepherds said one to another, Let us now go even unto Bethlehem." Mrs. Bennie read a beautiful story entitled "To Will to Go" which dealt with the life of a girl named Ann, who was unable to realize her own ambitions, as she was always serving others. On reaching the limit of her endurance, Ann sought the Saviour and was filled with a new spirit. When life's burdens become too great, may we like the Shepherds 'go even unto Bethlehem' to seek the Saviour—'for he that seeketh findeth.' This is the King's promise.

The roll call was responded to by the members with a verse containing the word "Seek." The secretary was pleased to be able to add the names of two new members to the roll. Special mention was made of Mrs. John Greig, absent owing to illness. Mrs. Everett Orr read an article on Christian Stewardship. Items on Temperance were read by Mrs. Arnold McKell, which included a very interesting story entitled "All is not Gold that Glitters." The Supply Committee packed a box containing three quilts and various articles of clothing to be forwarded to Montreal for distribution.

Study Book, Programme 4. "The Bible for Burma and India" was taken by Mrs. Bruce Chisholm. Among those who first translated the Bible into the languages of the Far East, four great names stand out—Adoniram Judson, William Carey, Henry Martyn and Robert Morrison. Mrs. Chisholm told an interesting story of what Judson did for Burma and what Carey and Martyn did for India.

The meeting closed by singing the hymn, "Jesus, Thou Joy of Loving Hearts" and a prayer by the president.

Mrs. Robt. McGregor and daughter Evelyn of Ottawa were week-end guests of Miss Martha Goundrey and Mrs. T. Goundrey.

Athelstan

ATHELSTAN — The May meeting of the United Church Woman's Missionary Society was held on Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John Graham. The meeting opened with the usual worship service, the theme being "Each for all and all for each". The study for the day was somewhat different and some might ask "Why a W.M.S. program on the Canadian Association of Consumers?" The answer is, because as a member of the National Council of Women, the Dominion Board of the Women's Missionary Society shared in inaugurating this Association which brought together for a common end 56 of the national women's organizations and major French-speaking groups in Canada. Because our Christian Citizenship department believes that every project in citizenship which concerns the welfare of people — of men, women and little children, of homes and families, should have the support of Christian citizens everywhere. Because we believe also in the unity of all the nationality groups in Canada and of all the various economic groups — consumers, farmers, labourers and business — and this Association does, and increasingly can, bring together all of these to work for the common good of all Canadians: "each for all and all for each". Plans were made for the June meeting, when a special speaker from Montreal will be present and address the women from the surrounding auxiliaries.

"For Ways That Are Dark"

by Lewis Milligan

"For ways that are dark and tricks that are vain, the heathen Chinee is peculiar." When Bret Harte wrote that he had never met or tried to negotiate with a Communist. A journalistic friend of mine, who had persistently endeavored to be kind to the Communists, recently referred to Mr. Tim Buck as "the mildest-mannered man that ever preached revolution." This reminded me of W. S. Gilbert's song, "A policeman's lot is not a happy one," which might be paragraphed thus:

When a Commie's not engaged in his employment,
Or maturing his subversive little plans,
His capacity for liberty's enjoyment
Is just as great as any loyal man's.
You'd think that he was such a harmless brother,
And that he was just doing it for fun.
Ah, take one mild-mannered Commie with another,
A Mountie's job is not a pleasant one.

I have never met Molotov, but judging from most of the pictures of him in the newspapers, he appears to be a polished and urbane individual. But he appears the same in his pre-war photographs where he is shown talking affably with the smiling von Ribbentrop. Stalin can also be affable on occasion, but his smile seems to be rather forced and his normal expression that of an astute poker-player.

But we are getting wise to these dark ways and vain tricks of Communist leaders. They are no longer fooling anyone but themselves. Even the iron curtain does not hide anything, for we can see through it. Unless Stalin has gone as crazy as Hitler, the last thing he would want to do would be to start another war. If the Russian people and armies suffered anything like as much as they claimed in the last war, they can hardly have recovered sufficiently in three years to wage another one against the rest of the world. Moreover, there is the atomic bomb, which they positively dislike — in the hands of the United States.

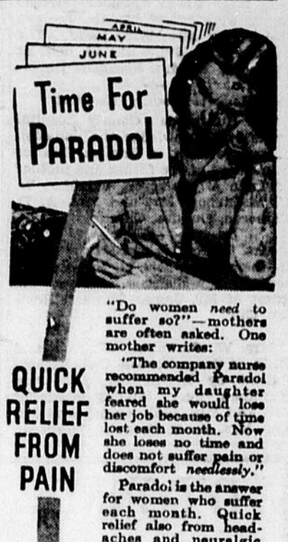

No, I don't think Mr. Stalin will deliberately start another war. He is too shrewd and far-seeing for that. He will play diplomatic poker for all it is worth, and he has some good cards in his hand, including the joker — the Veto. (I presume they use the joker in poker.) The question arises as to whether it is worth while for the democratic nations to go on with the game under such a disadvantage. What would happen if they eliminated Russia from the United Nations? One answer to that question lies in the fact that Russia does not want to be eliminated, for if Stalin thought it would best serve his purposes he would withdraw from that body.

Communist leaders here at home resort to the same dark ways and vain tricks in labor disputes. During a recent discussion on the causes of strikes, a labor relations man stated that he had found most of the union leaders reasonable enough in negotiation, but he could never make any headway with the Communists. He said that whenever he finally agreed with them on a vital issue they ceased to be interested in it and would raise some obstruction to a settlement. In this they observe the perverse Maxims for Revolutionists of Bernard Shaw, one of which is: "The man who listens to reason is lost."

QUICK RELIEF FROM PAIN

"Do women need to suffer so?"—mothers are often asked. One mother writes:

"The company nurse recommended Paradol when my daughter feared she would lose her job because of time lost each month. Now she loses no time and does not suffer pain or discomfort needlessly."

Paradol is the answer for women who suffer each month. Quick relief also from headaches and neuralgic pains. The name "Dr. Chase" is your assurance. Carry Paradol in your purse.

What this new "Security Plan" will do for him

The Mutual Life of Canada's "Security Plan" enables you to start your child's insurance at a very early age, and at a low cost.

Protection starts at $100 at birth, increasing annually to $1,000, at age 9 and grading up to $5,000, at age 20. If money is required for educational purposes when the child reaches university age, the policy may be surrendered for its cash value, otherwise it may be continued at the very low premium rate until age 60 or 65 when a retirement income is available. The Cash Value increases yearly, and dividends are paid annually as declared.

Ask a Mutual representative to give you all the facts.

The deceased, who was 67 years of age at the time of his passing, was born in Dundee, on Nov. 15, 1880, son of the late Angus Colquhoun and his wife, Janet McGibbon. At The Movies

THE BACHELOR AND THE BOBBY-SOXER

SHOWING AT O'CONNOR THEATRE ON MAY 30-31

Cary Grant, Myrna Loy, Shirley Temple and Rudy Vallee, a nice collection of names for any man's marquee, individually and collectively outdo themselves in this extremely entertaining comedy produced by Dore Schary, whose name, by the way, is another to bill, what with his "The Farmer's Daughter" impressing it firmly and favorably upon pleased customers' memories.

In this picture Producer Schary concerns himself with nothing weightier than the job of amusing the very wide and varied audience which the stellar names and unique title may be expected to attract, and he attends to his job with extraordinary success. The attraction is a natural in the full meaning of the term.

Sidney Sheldon's excellent original story and screenplay, directed with skill and a fine sense of timing by Irving Reis, presents Mr. Grant as a quite practical artist, Miss Loy as a judge, Mr. Vallee as an assistant district attorney in love with her, and Miss Temple as her impressionable little sister. Grant comes first to Miss Loy's attention as an arrestee, following a cafe episode, and although she disapproves of and scolds him, she acquits him for lack of evidence. Next day Grant comes to Miss Temple's attention when he lectures on art to her high school class, and she sees him (literally, via trick photography) as a knight in shining armor. Later on she crashes his apartment, while he's out, and is discovered there with him, following his return by her sister and Vallee, who have missed her from home and tracked her down. By the implications of the quite innocent situation, Grant is guilty of enough things to get him twenty years, including the punching of Vallee's nose, but the judge, advised by her uncle, a psychiatrist, arranges for Grant to go unprosecuted on promise that he will pretend to be Miss Temple's boy friend long enough for the latter to recover from her infatuation.

Amusing enough up to that point, the picture becomes hilariously funny as Grant escorts Miss Temple to a basketball game, a picnic, and so forth, aping the jive talk and adolescent mannerisms of her generation, and trying to restore to her affections the nice young man her own age who has been her boy friend up to now. There's no describing this section of the picture, which is far funnier than it can be made to sound on paper. Ultimately, of course, but by no means in the accepted formula of such eventuations, Miss Temple is made to see Grant in proper perspective, and he and Miss Loy find out they are in love with each other.

Hillside Cemetery Co. To Extend Site

ROCKBURN—A special meeting of Hillside Cemetery Co. was held Saturday evening, all members of the Board being present. The lots in the present Cemetery being pretty well taken it has been evident for some time that an extension of the grounds was necessary, and it was decided to buy a portion of land adjoining the East side of the Cemetery from Mr. Massey who had agreed to sell.

The Board of Trustees was pleased to accept from Mr D. A. Dinsmoor of Portland, Ore., a donation of $250.00 towards this purchase. Mr. Dinsmoor had visited the Cemetery and was gratified to see the grounds kept in such fine condition and this kind gesture is appreciated not only by the Board of Trustees, but by all in the community who are interested in this Cemetery.

Mr. Wm. Henry, of Montreal, was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. Oliver over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Booth and children, of Montreal, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Strange, Sr.

Mrs. M. Oliver, Mr. and Mrs. Lyell Graham and children motored to New London, N. H., Thursday, returning Sunday, to visit Mr. and Mrs. A. Granger and other relatives. They report finding Mr. Granger somewhat improved in health, but regret that Mrs. Granger was ill in the hospital when they returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. Tate are in residence in their home here for the summer, and Mr. Tate seems happy to be back in Canada after a busy but pleasant trip to South Africa.

Regret to report that Miss Dunsmore is in the Barrie Hospital as a result of a bad fall in her home here last Thursday. Latest news of her condition is that she is as well as could be expected.

a beautiful silk Canadian Ensign, the gift of Mrs. John Ross and the Ladies' Aid Society, which has been placed above the Memorial Tablet erected in tribute to those who paid the supreme sacrifice and to those who served in the Second World War. The Minister, on behalf of the Kirk Session, thanked the donors for this timely gift.

An interesting feature of the history of Georgetown Church is the fact that two of the ministers who have laboured in the parish served for forty-five years. The Rev. James Crichton Muir, D.D., served from 1836 to 1881. The Rev. George Whillans, B.A., D.D., was minister from 1887 to 1932 and Minister Emeritus from 1932 to his passing in 1939. Two former minister, the Rev. Donald B. Mackay, B.A., and the Rev. Calvin J. Hudson, B.A., served during the second World War in the chaplain service. The present minister, the Rev. George Edward Bingham, of London, Ont., was inducted in May, 1943.

they are rightly used. And the pupil has ever before him the examination day that is coming to test him as to the use made of his opportunity to learn. But the great lesson to learn, in school and out of it, is how to live nobly. Here in this Tablet there is a Text Book where the lesson is taught by example. Here are engraved the names of former pupils of this school who have given us proof by example of how noble a thing our life can be made. It is our hope and prayer that this noble record, cut in enduring brass, will serve the high purpose of inspiring successive generations of scholars with patriotic love and self-sacrificing devotion to the things that are most worthy, and so shall they prove themselves to be true successors of those whom we are honouring today.

Mrs. E. M. Wood sang a very beautiful and appropriate solo, accompanied by Mrs. N. W. Sparrow on the piano. Rev. Randolph D. MacLean, B.A., pronounced the Benediction. Mr. M. Ruddock, Chairman of the School Board acted as chairman of the ceremony.

The Honour Roll is installed to the right of the stage in the Auditorium and will be seen by all who attend the functions held in this hall from time to time. For the occasion it was fronted by Ferns and a vase full of beautiful Red Roses.

The various speakers were seated on the stage together with the members of the school board, during the ceremony.

Farewell to Andy Clarke

Well-loved "Neighborly News" Broadcaster Dies in 66th Year

Radio listeners in the rural communities of Ontario and Quebec have lost a good friend in the death of Andy Clarke, the CBC's "Neighborly News" broadcast for more than eight years. In ill health for some time, Andy died at his home in York Mills, on May 19, after a heart attack. He has left behind a legion of good "neighbors"—and a place that will be hard to fill.

Two listeners who dedicated a little poem to him and sent it in to the Gravenhurst "Banner" a few years ago dubbed him "The Mayor of the Little Places"—and the name stuck. In appreciation of his broadcasts and visits, Andy was in fact made honorary mayor of numerous Ontario towns and villages and was the guest of honor at many fairs and re-unions. Although he was unable to make his broadcast on the Sunday before his death, he was confidently looking forward to a trip he was to have made this week to Thornbury.

Andrew David Clarke was born on July 13, 1882, in Grimsby, the son of the late George and Mrs. Clarke. His father was a well-known butcher and veterinary surgeon. His uncle was William F. Clarke, reeve of Grimsby and County Council representative for many years.

After a few months in high school, Andy began working as a grocery salesman and then as a shipping clerk. He also worked at a power plant in Niagara Falls, N. Y., before determining to make a career in the newspaper world. He obtained a job as a cub reporter on the old Toronto "World"; then moved to the London "Advertiser" to become editor of their district page. Later on he joined the Toronto "Globe", staying for 16 years, 13 of them as news editor. It was at the "Globe" that Andy made his initial broadcast in 1926, becoming the first man in Canada to broadcast news of the day direct from a newspaper newsroom.

After he had left the newspaper field for private work, the CBC asked him to do a radio program similar to a homey column he had been writing for the "Globe". This was the beginning of his popular "Neighborly News" broadcasts.

For more than eight years Andy's kindly and slightly husky voice has been heard in thousands of homes on Sunday mornings, painting a picture of the week's events in what he always called "those important centres that lie outside the big cities."

He broadcast "Neighborly News" 425 times, and also did 179 broadcasts to British listeners through the CBC International Service. Since January he had been broadcasting on Saturdays on behalf of the Blue Cross Hospital plan.

Around this time of year, Andy's "Neighborly News" often gave hints of where the big ones might be caught, for he was an ardent fisherman. He had cast his line in many of the lakes and rivers of Ontario and Quebec; in the Caribbean, off Nassau, in the Straits of Northumberland — wherever he found time on his travels.

Andy Clarke is survived by his widow, the former Viola Dickens; his daughter Marie Theresa Clarke, residing in Montreal; and his son Frederick and Granddaughter Diane, of Toronto.

The Week at Ottawa

Specially Written for The Huntingdon Gleaner By HAROLD MORRISON Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA—(CP)—The budget which Finance Minister Abbott brought down in the Commons last week brought sharp criticism from the opposition.

It was described as a "whopping" big Yorkshire pudding with only a few stray crumbs for tax-weary Canadians.

The 1947-48 fiscal year's surplus was $670,000,000, the largest in history. Mr. Abbott forged the surplus into a tool to hammer down Canada's national debt.

Then he predicted a 1948-49 surplus of about $500,000,000 and said it would go the same way.

Mr. Abbott said the days of small budgets were over. He recited the cost of two wars and the widening responsibility of government. "We must be prepared to pay the price," he said. "It is in our budgets that the price is brought home to us."

This was a disappointment to Canadians looking for relief from the high cost of living.

However, there were concessions. Mr. Abbott reduced a year's taxes by an estimated $56,200,000, compared with $265,000,000 in last year's budget, and reduced tariffs by some $17,000,000 a year.

Canned Foods Exempted

He knocked off the eight-per-cent sales tax on virtually all items of food not already exempt. This, he hoped, would be reflected in a saving to the consumers of about $20,000,000 a year. The food items largely were canned, packaged or otherwise prepared. Altogether 21 groups were affected, bringing the total now exempt to 38.

Taxes on amusements and pari-mutuel betting were removed, costing the government about $23,500,000. These were 20 per cent on theatre admissions, 25 per cent on other places of amusement, and five per cent on the pari-mutuels.

Persons 65 and over were given an added income tax exemption of $500 and estates under $50,000 will no longer have to pay inheritance taxes. Bequests to charity, formerly exempt up to 50 per cent, now will be exempt in full.

But the opposition sided with the thousands intently listening to their radios Tuesday night. All three opposition parties told Mr. Abbot his budget was bad, and thought he should do certain things in order to give Canadians some relief and help them meet the rising cost of living.

Progressive Conservatives said the income tax exemptions should be increased by an amount equivalent to the jump in the cost of living during the last year. Small businesses should be given some tax exemption on money re-invested in their operations.

From the C.C.F. corner came calls for increases to income tax exemptions from $750 to $1,200 for a single person and from $1,500 to $2,000 for married persons. Sales and excise taxes should be lifted from clothing and other goods as well as from foods.

Social Crediors went a step further. Personal tax exemptions should be raised to $1,500 for single taxpayers and $2,400 for married taxpayers. Family allowances as well as old age pensions should be increased and new pensions put into effect.

Touch of Color

The gloom of budget week was relieved by a dash of red, yellow and brown all shining brightly in Prime Minister Mackenzie King's headgear.

It was a magnificent headdress of white eagle and Mr. King wore it with a smile. Rightly, it wasn't Mr. King at all but the Great Chief Counsellor so named by Saskatchewan Indians 12 years ago.

The occasion was the conclusion of a convention of Indians who came to Ottawa to study the proposed Indian Act before it became law. Decked out in full tribal splendor, they called on Prime Minister King and the Indian Affairs Committee of the Senate and Commons. Tomtoms were brought into the big railway committee room where they greeted the paleface law-makers.

As Mr. King smiled like a schoolboy and shuffled from one foot to another, Chief Frank Assu, of Steveston, B. C., stepped forward to adorn the prime minister with the bonnet. Drums beat and Indians shouted. Mr. King said: "I don't know what I look like, but I feel very happy."

His happiness seemed to be reflected by the Indians, too. But last week the Six Nations tribe got a jolt. An exchequer court suit against the government had been lost. The suit was for $1,289,000, based on disposal of lands and money which the tribes owned early in the 19th century.

Mourn Col. Ralston

Friends and former associates in Ottawa this week mourned the death in Montreal of Col. James Layton Ralston, wartime minister of national defence who resigned from the Cabinet in October, 1944, after a difference in opinion on conscription policy.

Death came suddenly Friday night to the distinguished corporation lawyer and former cabinet minister, while he slept. Friends said he seemed to be in good health the previous day. He was 66 years old.

On June 16, 1940, Col. Ralston was appointed to the defence portfolio after the death in an airplane crash of his predecessor, Hon. Norman Rogers. His resignation four years later highlighted the fiery issue of conscription for overseas service which divided opinion throughout Canada.

By 1944, Col. Ralston became convinced that recruits called into the forces under the National Resources Mobilization Act for home-defence service should be sent overseas. At the time, Prime Minister King declined to accept his advice, although later he found it necessary to impose compulsory service overseas. Col. Ralston retired, being succeeded by Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, but he retained his seat in the Commons as member for Prince constituency in Prince Edward Island.

When his successor, with cabinet approval, moved to send draftees abroad, Col. Ralston as a private member supported the move in a notable speech. He said that if the government had gone that far while he was minister he would have been satisfied.

Not a New System

Milk recording is not a new system. It was practised by the ancients thousands of years before the Christian era. In more recent times, before A.D. 900, milk recording was in common usage in the principality of Wales. In the summer time, the Welsh farmers migrated to the hills and turned their cows into untouched pasture. Every day, the yield of each cow was recorded and poured into a common churn, each farmer later receiving his equitable share of butter and cheese, according to the yield of his cow on that day. The record was made by what was known as the Venedotian measure, and not by weight.

The measure was in accordance with the code of Venedotia, the chief of the early States of Wales, and was a vessel of three thumbs width across the middle, nine thumbs across the top, and nine thumbs diagonally. A thumb was about an inch, so that the Venedotian measure held about a gallon of milk. A normal cow was expected to give about two gallons of milk a day. Three-times-a-day milking was also well known in Wales in the twelfth century, and the month of May was known as the month of three milkings a day.

With regard to the ancient recording of milk, a frieze, representing a farm about 3100 B.C., was recently unearthed in the excavations of Ur of the Chaldees. It shows men milking cows in the barn, and in a room close by, officials pouring milk through a strainer into huge stone jars. Calves, duly muzzled, are tied to the cows' headstalls, to encourage the cows to give more milk.

The Wants of Mankind

"What do we want?" is the great question of life.

The answer determines our career, colours our daily feeling, and leads us to view everyone and everything in the light of the effect they will have on this want of ours. It affects the development of our community and the nation and has its effect upon the economics of the world.

Many wants are common to all people: food, shelter and clothing, for example. One can easily conjure up a picture of millions of women standing at kitchen sinks all around the earth in time with the sun, peeling potatoes to satisfy their families' need for food; and of men building houses, and of looms turning out millions of yards of fabrics for clothing. But there are thousands of individual wants, in trying to satisfy which we escape the dissatisfaction of boredom.

In every country there have been some followers of the Buddhist doctrine that a placid serenity is the highest ideal of life, rooting out of existence as many wants and desires as it is possible to get rid of. They glory in subsisting on a handful of lentils, with no more clothing than a loin cloth, and only a woven weed hut for shelter. Cultured civilization has not been advanced by such people. We have a future only insofar as we have desires, for it is desire that stimulates our initiative and makes us reach out our hands to better things in a spirit of enterprise.

Wants and Needs

Our wants and needs are usually very different things. We really cannot say that our necessities for living extend beyond three nourishing meals a day, suitable clothing for the protection of our bodies against the weather, a comfortable room, and a place to sleep. But our desires are unlimited. Besides physical things, they include mental or physical activity, mastery over some technique or situation, association with other persons in a satisfactory community, and a feeling that one is a person of some consequence to others. From the economic point of view, anything is a necessary of life if the lack of it in any way impairs a man's efficiency or productive power; a desire or want is anything which makes a man willing to exchange some of his own labour for it.

No person of even reasonably high IQ can live without desires. A Greek philosopher who studied and wrote about these things more than 2,000 years ago, and who cannot be called old-fashioned since he believed in the atomic theory so recently confirmed and developed by scientific discovery, had this to say: there are three kinds of desires, those natural and necessary, those natural but not necessary, and those which are neither natural nor necessary.

Human experience started and developed from desires for better things, and today our wants are limitless. The more we have, the more widely our vision expands of what we would like to have. Every man has had this experience in himself. At 16 he thinks that if only he had $35 a week the world would be at his feet. At 25, earning $45 a week, he desires a car, a better radio, and a home of his own. Every successive increment opens new vistas, and every accomplishment means new desires.

Much of man's satisfaction comes out of achieving distinction. Men work not that they may barely live, but in order that they may get the most out of life. What this "most" is will vary from person to person. Some great things have been done by people who seemed to be gratifying merely frivolous desires. The men who discovered America were not seeking to lay the foundations of the world's greatest industrial commonwealths, but merely looking for spices. The men who opened up Canada were not earnest business men or statesmen; they were Gentlemen Adventurers.

There is a psychological hunger for goods that is just as real as the physical hunger, and this is the villain which gets people into financial trouble. Many of us—most of us—are just as foolish in this way as Wilkins Micawber. Dickens tells us in David Copperfield how Mr. Micawber often found himself in the debtors' prison. On one occasion when David went to visit him there, Micawber proclaimed his now famous principle about happiness falling upon the man who spent only 19 pounds, 19 shilling and six pence of his 20 pounds income, while misery followed if he spent twenty pounds and one shilling. Then Micawber borrowed a shilling from David to buy porter.

Satisfactions

Every man must work out for himself the nature of the wants whose satisfaction will give him the greatest pleasure, and whether he should wait for better things or take what are available. There is no way of measuring the intensity of feeling of two persons, and so we cannot judge which of two things equally available to them will give the greater satisfaction. The value of an article depends upon its utility to a particular person at a particular time and in particular circumstances. A man will gladly pay a dollar for a service in a crisis whereas he would hesitate to pay half of that in normal times. He does so because he believes the service is worth a dollar to him at that time.

If the choice lies between different articles, he will take the article which promises to give him most satisfaction. One man will spend his dollar for several cigars, which he may smoke in two days, while another will buy a half pound of pipe tobacco which will last him two weeks. The latter will think of the first as having a very extravagant taste, while the former will think of the pipe smoker as having a very low taste sense. The habit of going through life with the idea that everyone who doesn't share your particular pleasures is just a little queer has caused a lot of illogical trouble. There is more enjoyment for some people in climbing a mountain to contemplate a wonderful view than in sitting down to a rich and full meal. Each is right for himself and need not smile superciliously the other.

Increasing Wants

In a broad sense, man's needs gave rise to his activities in the early stages of his development, but at a later stage every new step upward gave rise to new desires. At first the needs dictated the advancement: latterly the advancement created the wants. All the way up from his cave to the elegant apartment, man has been developing new wants.

Anyone wishing to know the extent to which wants have increased need only look at the difference between 20 or 40 years ago and today. We are consuming very different quantities of the same goods, but in addition we have many new goods to consume. People now want, and demand, and can pay for, things which were unattainable or not even thought of by their parents or their grandparents.

Possession of these new things is far from killing desire. In fact, every new possession appears only to stimulate desire. All the world looks up to the United States as a country where people have satisfied more human desires than anywhere else. Yet the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta, Georgia, finds occasion to say in its January Review: "Throughout the United States (in 1947) most consumers seemed intent on showing that if they had the purchasing power to satisfy their unlimited wants they would spend it all on goods and services. They saved less of their current incomes, they dipped into their past savings, and they went into debt. They even paid higher and higher prices, though reluctantly, rather than forego the pleasure of satisfying their wants as much as they possibly could.

In Canada, the total personal expenditure on consumer goods and services amounted to $3,714 million in 1938 and $5,926 million in 1946, in dollars of the same buying power, an increase of 60 per cent compared with a population increase of 10 per cent.

As rapidly as supply has grown under the wheels of machines, demand has kept ahead of it. Today, the providing of things people want is far behind demand. With their tables laden with good things which would have seemed the undreamable heights of luxury to aristocrats of a century ago, today's ordinary people are crying in front of Mother Hubbard's cupboard for something more. Amid riches, we bewail what we lack.

Standards of Living

Much of our striving is connected with something we call our "standard of living." Standards differ between groups in one country, and between countries. They have changed, too, over periods of not so many years.

Some countries, limited as to natural resources, may have to be content with supplying the minimum needs of their people, but a new and rich country like Canada can go far beyond that, as indeed she has. Without saying that the standard is yet as high as it can be, it is a good thing, every once in a while, to look around the world and give thanks for what we have.

One of the results of a high general standard is that differences within the country are less noticeable. Stephen Leacock said in one of his essays: "As the land rises the mountains lose their apparent height and no new eminence seems to be equal to the old." Those on the lowest present-day level of living are higher than those who lived on the mountain-top standards of a few years ago.

What is a standard of living? It might be called the sum of the satisfactions arising from the use of goods and services. So many persons run away with the idea that a standard of living is set by possession of things. To have a car, or an electric refrigerator, or a television set, or a mink coat—these seem to typify certain "standards." Just as soon as the idea of satisfaction is abandoned in favour of mere ownership, all true standards are lost.

Some people talk about "standard of living" when they mean "pattern of living." Every increase in income urges them to some new pattern, and every new pattern raises new wants and desires. They may, or may not, have any relation to the necessities of life. When a man says "I want a chance to live" he means far more than mere survival. He wants to associate on terms of equality with other persons having the same interests. The feeling of "belonging" is important as a want. Men strive after recognition of their dignity as human beings having certain attainments.

Social pressure has almost as much effect upon stimulating wants as has the grim vision of the wolf at the door! Under its urge, people try to consume a greater quantity and a greater variety of goods than do their neighbours, keeping up with or ahead of the Jones's. The perfectly good car of two years ago is turned in on a new model with more chromium trimmings; the old-fashioned wide gold band which served well as a wedding ring is put into a safe deposit box while the ring finger is decorated with a new circlet; women's fashions change suddenly and extravagantly. A New Look, though it may seem to the detached observer like a throwback to something primeval, will be adopted by the socially-conscious person at whatever price in money and ridicule.

Horticultural Society News

The local Horticultural Society will participate in the flower show to be held at the 17th Hussars Armory, sponsored by the Quebec Horticultural Federation on August 25 and 26, it was decided at the Executive meeting of the Chateauguay and District Horticultural Society held at the home of Mr. C. A. Smith Friday night.

This show promises to be the largest yet attempted in Montreal. Ticket sales and advertising are being handled by the Canadian Legion. The Provincial and Municipal governments are providing grants to insure its success. Exhibits by the various horticultural societies and seed and bulb establishments should make the show a colorful event well worth a visit.

Local competitions for tulip, peony and rose blooms will be held at the peak season of each variety. The tulip judging will be held at the home of Bill Davidson in the near future, the date depending on the weather. Members are watching the buds and waiting for sun to bring them out. Three blooms per person are requested and all members are invited to participate.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. C. A. Smith.

Useful Household Hints ...

Retaining Flavours

In order to preserve the flavours of coffee, tea and all spices, keep them in tightly closed receptacles.

The Dishpan

The heat of the dish water will hold much longer if an aluminum dishpan is used.

Asparagus

To give a little different and delicious flavor to the next pan of asparagus, try adding a sprinkle of nutmeg.

Polishing Damp Shoes

When trying to polish damp shoes, or slippers, add a little paraffin to the blacking and it will adhere.

Mending Lace Curtains

To mend fine lace curtains starch a piece of mesh as near like the curtain as possible. Cut the starched patch one inch larger each way than the place to be mended, and with a warm iron press it over the hole. If done carefully, it will be difficult to detect the patches.

MARKS THE OPENING OF THE

FIRST CANADIAN INTERNATIONAL TRADE FAIR

May 31 to June 12

A new adventure in Canadian trade is the first Canadian International Trade Fair just opening in Toronto . . . as stirring an enterprise in its way as any in our history.

Thirty-two countries will be represented as exhibitors and twice that number as buyers. For two weeks the market place of the world will be in Canada—the first event of its kind ever to be held in North America.

On week-days the Trade Fair will be devoted entirely to business between buyers and exhibitors . . . but special arrangements have been made to admit the general public on the three Saturdays—May 29, June 5 and June 12.

Every Canadian firm interested in developing world markets for its products or world sources for its supplies will find it well worthwhile to send a representative.*

Canada's observance of World Trade Week has been happily timed to coincide with the occasion of the International Trade Fair as a valuable contribution to better understanding by the Canadian people of their own important stake in world commerce.

World Trade Week is sponsored by the following Canadian business organizations: The Canadian Chamber of Commerce, The Canadian Exporters' Association, The Canadian Manufacturers' Association, The Canadian Section of the International Chamber of Commerce, and the Canadian Importers' and Traders' Association.

* Interested businessmen who are not in possession of an invitation may secure admission, by presenting at the door, a letter of identification from their firm, mentioning their official position. A 50c registration fee is payable at the reception centre in the Coliseum Building.

Powerscourt

POWERSCOURT—Mesdames Elvin Wood, Gordon McClatchie, Russell Milne and Wm. Coulter attended a gathering of Foster Mothers at the Foster Home Centre, in Montreal, on Thursday evening. About 100 Foster Mothers from city and country were present and enjoyed a happy social evening. An interesting address was given by Mrs. McCrae, who gave some of the highlights of the work carried on. It costs the Foster Home $25,000 yearly to clothe the children placed in private homes, there being an average of 700 children placed per month. At the Home there are 18 on the clerical staff, 8 on the household staff and one janitor. Mr. John Wallace drove the aforementioned ladies to the city. They were accompanied by Mrs. Wallace who stayed over to visit with her parents at St. Lambert.

Mr. and Mrs. Szabo, of Montreal, spent the week-end at their summer home.

The Powerscourt Women's Association met on Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Douglas Cooper with about 35 members and visitors present. Mrs. Attwood of Montreal was present and gave a demonstration of brushes. A goodly number were sold, the Association benefiting thereby to the extent of $7.50. On account of the demonstration the business meeting was very brief. A vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. Cooper for the use of her home. A delicious salad supper provided by the members and hostess was much enjoyed. Proceeds of meeting $10.60. The June meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Gordon McClatchie.

Mr. and Mrs. Russel Milne spent Tuesday with relatives in Chateauguay, N.Y.

Miss Bella Anderson called on friends in Howick, on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Rodgers, of St. Lambert, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Wallace.

Mr. and Mrs. Churma and a number of guests spent the week-end at their summer home.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Lewis and family and Miss Carol Holmes enjoyed the holiday week-end at Primrose Cottage.

Mr. Gordon Lamont, of Montreal, was a week-end guest at the White home.

Miss Irene McHardy is spending her holidays with Miss Caroline Swanston at Richfield Springs, N.Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Elder and children motored from Toronto and spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ross.

Recent guests of Mrs. Carl Ewing were Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Johnston, Mr. F. Bush and Mrs. L. H. Bush, all of Chateaugay, N.Y.

Rev. and Mrs. Woodside of Northfield Station, Ont., were Tuesday overnight guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Wallace and called on other friends in the community.

Mr. Henry Wallace attended the Baker-Cornell wedding at Stanbridge East, on Saturday.

One sometimes hears the expression "The things you meet, when you haven't a gun." That is what Mr. and Mrs. Russel Myatt thought Sunday evening. Driving towards their home about 8.30 they were surprised to see a bear ambling along the road. Apparently the car lights frightened it for it crossed the road and disappeared in the brush and swamp.

Miss Elsie Atcheson was a week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. James Steele, Elgin. Harold Atcheson spent the week-end with his cousins at the Brooks home and George was a Monday guest of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Steele.

Mr. Elmer Platt of Waterloo, Que., spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Platt.

Mr. John Koski and Jean, of Montreal, spent the holiday week-end at their home.

Miss Gladys McHardy, of Montreal, spent the week-end with her parents.

Border Nine to Open Home League Season Sunday

The Constable Border Nine will be out to break into the win column Sunday when they meet the strong Brushton-Moira team at Constable in a St. Lawrence Valley League game.

Constable ran into tough luck in Bangor last Sunday, losing 10 to 2. The team, however, looked impressive in the field, committing only two unimportant errors.

Thursday evening at 6 p.m., Constable will play host to the powerful Clarkson College Freshman team from the Malone Branch in a 7-inning practice game. The Border Nine need this game to sharpen up their batting.

Comfortable bleachers have been constructed at the Constable diamond to accommodate the fine crowds that are expected.

The game on Sunday, which will start at 2 p.m., has all the earmarks of a thriller. The teams of the St. Lawrence Valley League play a fast brand of baseball and the games are all you would expect from such a well organized amateur baseball league.

Elgin

WEDDING

BROOKS-McGIBBON

A double ring ceremony was conducted by Rev. Randolph D. MacLean, in Elgin Presbyterian Church, Elgin, Que., on Saturday, May 22nd, when Miss Leah McGibbon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter McGibbon, Constable, N.Y., became the bride of Thomas Brooks, son of Mrs. Sarah Brooks and the late Mr. Brooks, of Glenelm, Que.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, and wore a gown of white embroidered nylon, with high fitted neckline, fitted bodice, double net ruffle on bottom of skirt. The bridal bouquet was of white lilies tied with white satin ribbon. Her cap was of lace net with shoulder-length veil. She also wore a heavy gold necklace with cameo brooch, which is an heirloom of the bride's mother's family. The two bridesmaids, Miss Janet McGibbon, sister of the bride, and Miss Bernice Brooks, sister of the groom, wore identical gowns of pink taffeta. These had net overskirts with insert of wide lace to match the lace jackets, and matching pink mitts. They carried nosegays of assorted sweet peas and carnations, with pink ribbons. Shoulder-length veils were attached to matching pink tiaras. The matron-of-honour, Mrs. Lyle McGibbon, sister of the groom, was gowned in aqua embroidered nylon, fitted bodice, sweetheart neckline and matching lace mitts. She also wore a shoulder-length veil of aqua net attached to tiara. She carried a nosegay of assorted sweetpeas and carnations tied with white satin ribbon. The bride's mother, Mrs. Walter McGibbon, and the groom's mother, Mrs. Sarah Brooks, were both attired in dusty rose with navy blue accessories with white gardenia corsages.

The best man was Mr. Lyle McGibbon, brother of the bride. The ushers were Mr. Arthur McGibbon, brother of the bride and Ross Elder, brother-in-law of the bride.

Out of town guests at the family reception, at the home of the bride's parents included: Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Woodside, Northfield Station, Ont.; Mrs. Martha Markell, Montreal, and Mrs. R. W. Johnson, New Malden, Surrey, England.

THE NATION'S BUSINESS

by ottawa observer

Discussion still continues on the budget announced in the House of Commons last week by the Minister of Finance, Hon. Douglas Abbott. Opinion and comment from all across Canada were carefully watched here. Economists are particularly looking for an answer to the question "Is an anticyclical financial policy possible in a democracy". This is described as a financial policy which builds up adequate surpluses in good times to enable the government, by large public works and public investment programs, to insure against any future depression and unemployment. There has not yet been time to assess the answer.

Anti-depression budgeting

An interesting sidelight on this question has been the campaign of one of Toronto's large daily papers, a persistent enemy of the Canadian government, against acceptance of such a policy. For some days before the budget this paper ran editorials criticizing government surpluses. After the budget came out, it attacked it without due recognition of its purpose to insure against depression.

Professor MacIntosh, well known economist of Queen's University, on being asked the above question said "something would depend upon how well people understood what the government was trying to do". A quick survey of opinion in two cities and on the trains, by this reporter indicates a considerable body of opinion in support of this form of economic insurance described by the Finance Minister as "putting away for a rainy day".

A national freight rates policy

As provincial elections are called in New Brunswick and Saskatchewan, added pulicity is being given to a new national Freight Rates Policy proposed by Walter Tucker, M.P., the Liberal leader in the western province.

Mr. Tucker points out that railways were built running East and West as a matter of national policy rather than following the natural course. This national policy took railroads through 1000 miles of unproductive country west of the Great Lakes in Western Canada and brought traffic from the maritimes provinces a long distance.

Mr. Tucker's proposal is that the freight haul over these stretches East and West be paid from the national treasury. This would bring both Eastern and Western sections of Canada closer to the central provinces. A new era in Canadian unity and prosperity is predicted if this proposal turns out to be practical.

The Federal health program

A great deal of speculation continues about the possibilities of co-operation from Premiers Drew and Duplessis with the new health schemes of the Canadian government. The announcement of 30 million dollars yearly expenditure by the federal government was made on Friday, May 14 by the Prime Minister. The expenditures include:

1 . Health survey grants to each province.

2 . Eight national health grants to the provinces.

3 . Grants to aid hospital construction.

As this is written no direct comment has been made by either Premier Drew of Ontario or Premier Duplessis of Quebec. All other provinces are cooperating.

This program is recognized as the foundation of a comprehensive national health insurance plan.

OBITUARY

The Late Ronald Robert Ovans

The community was deeply saddened on Friday morning, May 14th, when it became known that Ronald Robert Ovans had passed away at the early age of 21 years. Of a sunny and quiet retiring nature, Ronnie was esteemed and loved by all who knew him. He was educated at Ormstown and Huntingdon High Schools and was a great lover of the farm and his home.

He had been failing in health since November of last year, having been a patient in the Montreal General Hospital for over three months. He bore his suffering with great fortitude and patience until God called him home to his eternal rest.

The funeral service was held on Sunday afternoon, at St. Paul's United Church and was very largely attended by relatives, friends and neighbours.

He leaves to mourn his loss his father and mother, also aunts, uncles and cousins, to whom the whole community extends its heartfelt sympathy. The floral tributes were both numerous and beautiful.

The pallbearers were: Nelson Ovans, Glen Ovans, Clarence Ovans, Russell Ovans, Billy Cully and Edgar McIntosh.

Flower bearers were: Ross Ovans, Billy Sandys, Eric Rice, Laird Lindsay, Ainsley Helm, Raymond Elliot, Archie English, Arthur Gamble and Howard St. Louis.

Interment was at Ormstown Cemetery.
