Rev. and Mrs. Hatcher Feted On 25th Wedding Anniversary

Congregations of St. Paul's and St. John's Honor Them With Gift

The basement hall of St. John's Church, Huntingdon, was the scene of a gay party on Saturday evening, when over 100 persons gathered there to honour Rev. and Mrs. W. S. Hatcher on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary. The gathering comprised members of the congregations of St. John's and St. Paul's churches as well as several neighbors and friends of Rev. and Mrs. Hatcher. The hall was tastefully decorated in streamers and flowers suitable for the occasion and a table well laden with sandwiches, cake, etc., and centred by a decorated cake went the full length of the hall.

Rev. and Mrs. Hatcher had been entertained by their sons during the day and had been taken on a long drive. It was about nine p.m. when they arrived and were surprised to find the lights on at church and stopped to make enquiries. It was then that Mons Duke played on the piano "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows" and they realized that a surprise had been prepared for them.

After meeting the various members of the gathering they were taken to seats at the end of the hall and addressed by Mr. Mons Duke who spoke on behalf of the congregation of St. John's Church, who in turn handed the ceremony over to Mr. B. A. Rankin who acted as chairman. Several persons were called upon to speak and each in turn offered congratulations to the guests of honor. Mr. Walter Levers of St. Paul's Church congregation, assisted by Mrs. B. Goundrey, carried in a silver tray loaded with silver dollars which they presented to Rev. and Mrs. Hatcher with the best wishes of the company present and those who were unable to be present. (The tray was not part of the gift).

The evening was spent in a social manner when refreshments were served at the close.

Both Rev. and Mrs. Hatcher expressed their surprise at the gathering, not knowing that anyone was aware that it was their anniversary. They also expressed their thanks for the thoughtfulness of their friends in planning the event and for the splendid gift they had received. Pleasure was expressed at seeing so many people present who were not members of either of the churches, in addition to the large representation of both churches. It was most gratifying to know that one had so many friends and who would gather to remember an occasion such as this. All together they had spent a wonderful day with their family, and then with friends, and members of both congregations.

Lawrence Sunday to Stand Trial at Next Assizes to Be Held at Valleyfield

The preliminary hearing of the case of Lawrence Sunday, an Indian of St. Regis, accused of the murder of Jake Buckshot, took place last week in Valleyfield before Magistrate Maurice Fortin.

The court was filled with people and many Indians were on hand who had travelled a long distance to assist in the hearing of one of their compatriots.

Mr. George A. Meloche represented the Crown and the accused was represented by Mr. Raymond Daoust of Montreal.

The report of Dr. Rosario Fontaine given at the Coroner's inquest at Huntingdon, said the victim, Jake Buckshot, received several wounds, a large one on the left arm, which cut the muscles completely, another cut 5 inches deep along the shoulder, and a deep incision in the abdomen, this last one causing death. Dr. Fontaine said all these wounds were made with a sharp instrument.

Frank Sunday, brother of the accused, was called as witness. He told the Court that during the night of the incident, he was out to a party and when he came back home around half past three of the morning of July 20th, he was insulted by the victim, Jake Buckshot, who was living in the next house and who looked completely drunk. A violent discussion followed during which stones were thrown by each side. Frank Sunday said also that Jake Buckshot used profane language and threatened to kill him. It was at this time that the accused who was sleeping, was awakened by the yells and came out of the house in the direction of Jake Buckshot. Frank Sunday said that Buckshot when he saw him coming, tried to strike him, but the accused escaped and struck him in return. The brother of the accused did not remember having seen him with a knife when he was going in the direction of Buckshot. A violent battle followed and a few minutes later the accused went back to his home, leaving his victim unconscious and bleeding profusely.

The lawyer for the defences asked many questions of this witness to make him admit that Buckshot had provoked the quarrel and had insulted Frank Sunday and his brother, threatening to kill.

The other witness hear was Mike Arquette, another Indian, who was living with Buckshot at the time of the incident and who claimed to have seen the affair completely. According to his version, Lawrence Sunday came out of his home with a long butcher knife in his right hand at the moment of the discussion between Frank Sunday and Jake Buckshot and jumped on the latter trying to hold him with his arm. The defence tried to shake this witness by asking many questions, but Mr. Arquette sustained what he had said. He claimed Jake Buckshot, the victim, had no weapon at the time of the battle but after much interrogation he declared he was not sure of this fact.

The court immediately proceeded with a voluntary examination and as the defence had no witnesses to hear, the accused will have to stand trial at the next assizes at Valleyfield.

'Glad' Growers Hold Field-day

60 Visit Bulb Farm, Gladioli Nursery

Sixty members of the Province of Quebec Gladiolus Society, from as far as Quebec City, Windsor Mills and Ste. Martine, attended the successful field day held Saturday at the bulb farm of Walter White, at Ste. Therese, and the Perry-Lee nursery of Perry Preising, at St. Eustache.

The visit was a prelude to the 1952 exhibition of gladioli, to be held by the society in the Legion Memorial Building, 1191 Mountain street, Montreal, Aug. 27-8. Six trophies are up for competition, as well as the usual rosettes and spoons awarded by national and regional organizations.

Mr. White, a retired decorator, showed the visitors his thousands of seedlings, from which he is trying to breed a true blue variety. Delphinium blue, he explained, is not a true blue. His interest in his hobby is so deep, that he has a record of the parentage of all his seedlings for 25 years. He has been growing gladioli for 52 years.

Members of the society had a still busier time at the Perry-Lee nurseries where Mr. Preising has 25 acres under "glads." As he plants 100,000 bulbs to an acre, he has now 2,500,000 growing, many of them already in bloom. Only the apricot yellow of Mr. White's farm was missing from the Preising collection which included the Australian Sierra Snow, the deep maroon of the Royal Robe, and every pink, red, yellow and orange shade in between.

Mr. Preising, who is president of the society, explained that good bulbs brought between $8 to $10, though there was a time when collectors paid as much as $100 for a Mother Machree, a "smoky", and $25 and $50 a bulb was not uncommon.

ST. AGNES — Irene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aimé Latreille of St. Agnes, Que., took the nuns' habit at a solemn ceremony held in the Dominican Convent on July 1st, 1952, at which her parents, relatives and friends were invited guests. They believe, as do all other religious groups, in intimately living with their God, and are constantly offering prayers both for themselves and for those who are in need of spiritual aid.

Sister Mary Juliette, in the company of five other nuns, left Quebec City on the steamship "Sedia", on the evening of July 30th, her destination being France, where she will further train to be a Missionary in the Dominican Order. She was also accompanied by her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Aimé Latreille, and smaller sister, Denise, who travelled to Quebec to bid a fond farewell and God speed to their beloved daughter, who had heard the divine call of God to His service.

This Week In Quebec

QUEBEC (CP) — Steps will be taken to avert riots in Montreal's Bordeaux jail following the two recent outbreaks. First step, Premier Duplessis announced Friday, will be to keep hardened criminals apart from first offenders and young prisoners. The Premier criticized newspapers for giving "wide" publicity to the August 10 riot, because this "might constitute an encouragement for the rebellious criminal."

Damage in the second outbreak was "considerable", said Mr. Duplessis, who gave no exact figure. The jail population averages 800 men sentenced to terms of a few days to two years less a day. The government leader did not comment on reports that the jail inmates rioted over the quality of food, the same reason given following the first riot in May.

The jail cannot be considered a fashionable hotel where honest persons hold conventions, said the Premier, who blamed the riots on a state of unrest existing through the world and particularly in the United States and Canada. Similar riots occurred in different Canadian provinces and states south of the border he pointed out.

An investigation was almost completed on causes of both riots and what should be done to prevent further disturbances.

There was good news for the hunter last week when the Quebec Fish and Game Department announced the ring neck pheasant will be added to the list of game this Autumn.

Hunters will have two week-ends, Sept. 20-21 and 27-28, to hunt the brightly-colored bird whose flesh is a delicacy. Each hunter will be allowed to bag three males.

The Department announced that 4,000 pheasants were released in different districts, all carrying leg bands which must be returned to the Department when the bird is killed.

Hunting will be allowed on the Island of Orleans, Ile Aux Coudres, South of Montreal and Southeast of Quebec along the South Shore of the St. Lawrence River upstream from Kamouraska.

The Quebec Attorney-General's department is studying a report from the Beauce County coroner on failure of a six-man jury to reach a verdict in the case of Alphonse Veilleux, 65, a Ste. Clothilde farmer who died in hospital from a skull fracture suffered during a political argument at St. Ephrem de Beauce.

The coroner's jury was split 5-1 in favor of exonerating a 25-year-old unidentified youth who pushed Mr. Veilleux during the argument July 9 — nomination day in the July 16 Quebec Provincial Election. The sixth juror wanted the youth held responsible for the death.

Dr. Rodolphe Maheux sent a complete report to the Department which now may order the case reopened or accept the jury's majority decision.

A St. Joseph de Beauce widower, Gedeon Cliche, 82, has 262 descendants reaching as far as the 5th generation. The father of 12 children, he has 101 grandchildren, 148 great-grandchildren and one great-great-grandchild.

Georges Bougie Leads in "Player of Distinction"

Valleyfield's "Player of Distinction" voting for the Lord Calvert Trophy again features Georges Bougie in the lead in the closely-fought race for first position with no less than five players in the thick of the ballot battle.

Bougie recently took over the lead in the "Player of Distinction" voting from Joe Lavallee. But the difference of votes is still very close. Bougie has been given a season's total of 2,246 points which represents a slim margin of only 30 over Lavallee. In the Valleyfield voting for the Lord Calvert Trophy, three points go to a first-place selection, two for a second, and one for a third.

Runner-up Lavallee is followed by three players who are threatening to take over second place. Marcel Bessette is a close third with a total of 2,181 which is only three more than Johnny Jepson in fourth. And nearby in fifth position is Gerry Claude with an even 2,100. This means that only 146 points separate the leader and Claude in fifth place.

As the season rapidly nears its climax, the voting will be closely watched by all concerned. Business manager Lucien Leduc reports that interest in this ballot battle for the Lord Calvert Trophy is heavy. At the end of the season, the player awarded the most points by the public will be awarded the Lord Calvert Trophy. Making the presentation will be Frank McKercher, district representative for Calvert Distillers.

While the "Player of Distinction" race features a hot struggle between five players, other personnel are far from being counted out of the picture. They are very much in the picture. Sammy Samcomb is in sixth with a total of 1,993 while Mike Notte is right behind with 1,929. Rocky Robitaille is eighth with 1,896 followed by Paul Lockary (1,846) and Bernie McGuinnity (1,729) in tenth to complete the first ten "Player of Distinction" rankings.

N.S. River Famed For Striped Bass

TRURO, N.S., (CP) — Striped Bass, the stock battler that puts tall stories into the mouths of fishermen, are populating the Stewiacke river to such an extent that it now ranks tops in Nova Scotia as as angler's paradise.

More than 400 stripers, averaging eight pounds each, have been taken from the river this year, considered a poor season because of high waters. Last year 600 were landed.

This river, along with the Shubenacadie, is at the head of Cobequid Bay and the run of bass begins about May 10, lasting for a month.

Bass weighing as much as 40 pounds are caught in the Stewiacke river with both plug and fly. A local man who has been fishing in the river since boyhood, says the best bait to use is a "Hennon" river runt plug, with a four-foot steel casting rod, a 20 to 25-pound test line, and a six-inch fine steel, nylon-covered leader.

Athelstan Boy Finds Something New in Insects

About two years ago there was an invasion in these parts of some queer types of insects and many were the kind that were brought to the Gleaner Office by those who had caught them. Some of these were rare and some others were native to the country but had not been seen for several years in these parts.

This week Bobby Bernhardt of Athelstan, Que., brought in a queer looking specimen that he had captured on the screen door at his home. It was about three inches long and the body resembled a small twig of a bush or tree, light brown in color and complete with the notches as though a branch or bud had grown there. Attached to this twig were three long legs on either side which were dark to the first joint and then a bright green. From the head two long slender feelers went out. Sitting on a bunch of leaves, it looked for all the world like the stalk of the leaves, until it was made to move. Not only did Bobby bring in the insect, but he brought along his Book of Knowledge which had a complete description of this "Walking Twig" and here it is:

"Like the leaf insect the walking stick (also called the stick insect and the walking twig) is an almost unbelievable creature. It is to all appearances a twig or stick that can walk and eat. Walking sticks, living on the twigs of trees have long irregularly twisted bodies; those living near thorny plants are sometimes provided with formidable looking prickles.

"Walking sticks are to be found in tropical regions and in the southern areas of temperate zones. They are sometimes several inches long (one New Zealand species reaches the astonishing length of ten inches. The insects do not move about much during the day; they remain perfectly still for hours at a time. At night they begin to walk about they have no wings) in search of food. Walking sticks feed on the green parts of plants. In most areas they are not numerous enough to do much damage. However, in certain regions of Australia where the walking sticks are very large, they do considerable damage to trees since they are apt to strip them of much of their foliage.

"A close relative of the walking stick is the bloodthirsty mantis (or Mantid.")

It was a new one on us, and it is likely that some other people may have seen this type of insect and not know what it was. Thanks to Bobby, if anyone sees one now, they will know what it is and what it does.

Useful Information on Trust Companies and Wills Given at Rotary Meeting

Col. I. P. Rexford, Pres. Crown Trust Company Is Guest Speaker

Colonel Irving P. Rexford, President of the Crown Trust Company, Montreal, addressed the Rotary Club in the Chateau on Monday. Colonel Rexford's topic dealt with Trust Companies and Wills.

Wills are nothing new for actually it is known that wills were in existence in Egypt 4,500 years ago, one being inscribed upon stone in the year 2548 B.C. And the contents of wills even in those days was quite like those of today in that the family dependents of the deceased were given the first consideration.

Trust Companies first came into being in 1822 and that was in the United States. The first such company was known as Farmers' Fire Insurance and Loan Company. Primarily these trust companies were what we would term insurance companies.

The first Trust Company in Canada was in Toronto and was accorded its charter in 1882 and in Montreal in 1889.

The modern Trust Company has established a record for a perfect record of safety for during the Bank Holiday in the U.S.A. the various trust companies continued to operate and with no loss of trust funds.

What is a trust company, would be a fair question to ask. It is a source of experienced personnel who can offer guidance, sympathy, understanding to thousands of clients and their families and dependants in times of prosperity, panics, depressions and World Wars. They will act as executor, trustee, agent or financial adviser.

Executor and Trustee—managing, conserving and settling estates under Will.

Trustee—by personal or corporate appointment for the safeguarding and management of property and the protection of rights.

Guardian—of the property of, or Tutor to, a Minor; Committee of the property of a person of unsound mind or Curator to one who has been interdicted.

Attorney—under General Power of Attorney to act continuously, during absence of a client, for a specific transaction or only if, as and when an emergency occurs because of accident or illness.

Employees' Pension Trustee—to administer pension trusts and profit sharing plans.

Estate Planner and Estate Analyst—to plan estates so that taxes are reduced to a minimum and the maximum security and protection are provided for the dependants.

General Agency Service—in any capacity connected with the care or management of property and the protection of rights.

Safety Deposit Vaults—Safe Deposit Boxes to rent.

Let Us Talk on "Wills"

Three kinds of wills are valid in the Province of Quebec—Holograph, —English Form,—and Notarial When it comes to witnessing a will it must be witnessed by two or more persons in the company of one another. The date and place of will drawn must be noted in the will and this is extremely important. Nothing written below the signature of a will is valid. The will of most recent date replaces former wills that may have been drawn. Never alter an original will —better rewrite it or amend it by Codicil.

Who Can Make a Will—

Every person of full age and of sound intellect, who is capable of alienating his property, may make a will.

Married women can.

Minors cannot, even through their tutors.

Persons interdicted for imbecility, insanity or madness cannot. The will of a prodigal or drunkard might be good under some conditions.

One of the greatest privileges given to man is the right to state by will just how he wants his property dealth with after his death.

Law respects his wishes when so expressed and strongly opposes any attempt to alter the clear meaning of a will.

The making of a will is truly a great privilege and right of every adult and furthermore it is a real responsibility he or she should exercise when in good health. Everyone should know just how the law, if applied in default of making a will, would deal with his particular estate and family. He should consider the advantages to his estate and family to be gained from his making a careful will. He should also have a proper plan for the handling of his estate.

In community or with a marriage contract, or married in another domicile from where presently living, special conditions set forth in a marriage contract, are points to be inquired about when having a will drawn. Husband and wife prepare joint wills, would such wills be suitable no matter which party dies first—even suitable if both die at the same time. These are important matters to be taken into consideration.

Inheritance taxes have to be paid, but it is quite in order to safeguard inheritance of the inexperienced. By that I mean, paying the tax required in the first instance in order that the inheritance may be passed on to say the widow and the family without being taxed a second time.

Actual drawing of wills should be performed through the use of a notary or lawyer, who in turn will take note of the matrimonial status, Community and Marriage Contract if any, as information he must have, to draw up a commendable will. Trust companies will help in planning a will. In spite of the importance of this matter, many put off making their wills until it is too late.

What does it profit a man to spend a lifetime accumulating wealth or providing life insurance for the care and welfare of his family if he fails to take ordinary business precautions to protect such accumulations from unnecessary waste and avoidable loss.

The Executors

One or more executors may be appointed in a will and they may be individuals or a Trust Company or both. It is well not to worry the widow at the time of her greatset sorrow with the burden and responsibility of financial management and of making momentous decisions.

Executors serve without remuneration unless the will specifically authorizes them to be paid. Executors have no power beyond those given them in the will and they must unanimously agree unless the will says a majority can decide any point at issue.

Trout River Flood Control Fund Is Set

The U.S. Army engineers said today that $6,000 had been allotted to clear debris from the Little Trout River near Constable to prevent recurrent flooding of farm land.

In a letter to Rep. Clarence E. Kilburn, of Malone, Brig. Gen. C. H. Chorpening, assistant chief of engineers for civil works, said it appeared that the clearing of obstructions from the river channel in the affected area "would be advisable in the interest of flood control".

The $6,000 was alloted to the district engineer in Buffalo under general authority for snagging and clearing "subject to the fulfillment of necessary requirements of local cooperation". General Chorpening said the work would be accomplished "as expeditiously as practicable".

Ray Maloney, owner of Maple Ridge farm at Constable, had written to the congressman, complaining that the river was filled with "large trees", and when the spring ice jams occurred the water ran over the meadows, "which are our best land". About 20 acres were damaged.

The Franklin county highway superintendent, Mr. Maloney said, claimed he could do nothing about the problem.

Mr. Kilburn referred it to the army, and the Buffalo district engineer, acting under orders from the Great Lakes division, made a report to Washington.

The engineers' report, according to General Chorpening, said, "An investigation of the Little Trout river in the vicinity of Constable revealed that the stream for a distance of about half a mile is obstructed by large fallen trees, which have collected brush and debris and in heavy flows the stream overflows its banks and floods the adjacent fertile farm lands.

"The damaged area amounts to about 20 acres ,some of which could not be planted this season because of flood waters, and the remainder flooded after being planted so that the crops were ruined".—Malone Evening Telegram.

SPECTACULAR CATCH

TRENTON, Ont., (CP) — After a 25-minute battle on Wesemkoon Lake Carl Austin landed a 17 pound grey trout by plunging his left hand down the fish's throat and heaving it in the boat. He had no gaff or landing net, and his right hand was in a cast from a recent accident.

Safety Tires Set New Sales Standard

Demand For Tubeless Variety Wheels Past Production

By W. L. Dack

Next to the automobile business itself, there's not much keener competition anywhere than selling tires.

And seldom has competition been keener than it is today.

The reason: the safety-tire.

Just about everybody in the business is offering a safety-tire of some kind or another.

The latest and one of the strongest bids is being made by B. F. Goodrich Tire Co. of Canada with its "tubeless" tire.

It is being hailed as the biggest development since the balloon tire appeared in 1924.

Butyl the Secret

Like other safety tire combinations, the secret of the tubeless tire is butyl rubber, the revolutionary wartime development that made aircraft fuel tanks puncture-proof.

In the Goodrich tire, the butyl is put over an inner cord frame and the whole thing vulcanized to the tough outer carcass wall. Along with a special "sealant," the tire to all intents and purposes is puncture proof.

It is said to be a big step beyond the standard safety-tire which uses an orthodox but high grade tire with a blow-out but not puncture-proof tube.

Big Sales Question

The big sales question: Who's got the right answer for the car of tomorrow?

Goodrich is betting a lot it has. "It appears highly probable that the tubeless tire will become the standard tire of the future and that tubes, as such, will eventually disappear," Ira G. Needles, Goodrich president, said this week.

He could be right.

Goodrich pioneered the tubeless tire in 1947 but only introduced it to the Canadian market this spring.

Sales reception has been excellent, says Goodrich. Demand is currently running about two months ahead of production.

Price-wise the tubeless tire seems to be in a good position. In Canada it sells for about 10% less than the standard tire with safety tubes and around 30% more than first grade conventional tire and tube.

Auto Makers Impressed

Impressed with the reaction, several auto manufacturers are now putting the tubeless tire through its paces.

There's a better than even chance that at least one major producer will introduce the tire as standard equipment in 1953.

If so, tubeless tires will get a grand-slam build-up.

Among the rubber companies, Firestone has already jumped on the bandwagon in the U.S. Its model should be on the Canadian market in a few weeks.

Other tire firms are watching carefully to see what happens. If it looks like a swing to tubeless, they will jump in fast.

Firms like Goodyear with a big investment in standard safety-tube and tire combinations, are weighing the pros and cons.

The Other Side

On cost, Goodyear admits the tubeless tire is cheaper initially than their top-grade tire with Lifeguard tube. But they claim lower long-term cost since they say their safety tube usually outlasts two or three carcasses.

This point is also made: an ordinary tire and tube can be serviced at nearly any garage. The tubeless model requires special handling.

But there's another important reason for the wait-and-see policy. Developments along other lines may be just as important.

At the moment, nearly every tire manufacturer is trying to turn out a lighter tire which generates less heat, will herefore last longer for the car of tomorrow.

Wire-Mesh Frame

There's considerable interest in a French firm which has a tire with a wire-mesh frame instead of cottton or rayon. The reason: cooler running.

Use of nylon is being watched carefully too. Nylon can take far more abuse and is stronger than either cotton or rayon.

Some think nylon will take over as the leading tire fabric in a few years. At the moment there isn't enough to go around. Besides, it raises the cost about 30%.

Another development is the use of high abrasion carbon black which promises a good deal more wear for your tire dollar. It is used as a reinforcing filler in tire rubber stock to strengthen the mix.

How the safety tire sales race is going is something the cash registers should indicate before long.

FROM TOYS TO TRACTORS

Much of the recent improvement in the design of everyday articles ranging from toys to tractors came from the efforts of these talented Canadians whose job is to help make consumer goods better looking, easier to handle and more efficient in use. They belong to the new profession of industrial designers. To recognize and honour Canadian talent in this field, a photographic index of Canadian product designs of merit is now maintained by the Industrial Design Information Services of the National Gallery of Canada, Ottawa.

Encouraging Canadian Talent in the Design of Useful Articles for the Home and the Farm

The production in Canada today of toys and tractors, salad bowls and sight-seeing autobuses, cream separators and camera tripods, helps keep the wheels of Canadian industry moving. Nowadays, the men and women planning and working in industrial concerns from coast to coast are realizing that the design of the products they produce plays a front-ranking role in the acceptance of those products by fourteen million Canadian consumers. Today, the industrial designer is coming into prominence. Through his work, he is affecting the lives of people in cities, towns, and rural areas, and the work of the Canadian industrial designer is not only being felt on the Canadian scene, but his designs are now developing goods which are finding their mark in other countries of the world.

But what is good industrial design in everyday objects? How many times has it been the experience of a Canadian housewife, in using a new sink strainer, to learn that while it's nice to look at, it won't strain properly, the legs being too short, or that it twists in hot water? Or perhaps it's the lot of the man of the house to put his hand on a neat little lamp table, only to find that it falls over at the least provocation. Although perhaps you've never thought of sink strainers or lamp tables just in those terms, the fact that they don't strain properly, or that they tip over easily, indicates faulty industrial design at the source of production.

The industrial designer today, in his daily work, is concerned not only with how things are made and how they will work when they are made, but whether they will sell! Just as the Canadian farmer in the operation of his dairy or wheat farm or market garden concerns himself with certain feed supplements and fertilizers, so the Canadian industrial designer, in the designing of the multitude of everyday objects for home, industry, office and garden, concerns himself with the answers to these questions: Does the product look well? Is it comfortable to handle? Does it give pleasure in use? The Canadian consumer can be assured if the answer is "Yes", that creative talent in industrial design has been applied to the manufacture of the goods in question.

To record permanently the work done in Canada by Canadian industrial designers, a file of Canadian designs is maintained in Ottawa. This file is called the Canadian Design Index. Selections for it are made by an advisory group of architects and designers acting in co-operation with the Industrial Design Section of the National Gallery of Canada.

Good designs contained in the Index list come from large firms and small. And what is most remarkable to some people is that, in some instances, they come from Canadian branches of American corporations where it has been found that a design of an ice cube tray, automatic electric iron, arm chair or dining table, carefully thought out and prepared to meet Canadian needs, can often better serve the purpose than a product made from imported American or other foreign design blueprints.

A great number and variety of manufacturing firms exist in Canada today. Naturally, they compete, one with the other, in offering articles of diverse types and styles, made to sell at cheap, medium and luxury prices. As someone recently put it: "If you want to buy things that are good to look at and convenient to use, as well as being sturdy in construction, you will, if you're an enterprising consumer, keep on searching until you discover exactly what you want in products of good design to suit your needs and purse." And he added, "In so doing, you'll be encouraging the greater use of creative Canadian talent in design."

For You Madam

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

"All about Australia," was heard at the Women's Institute when Miss Marie Walker described her native land in a talk at the Institute picnic held at the home of Mrs. Wallace Rennie, on Tuesday, Aug. 5.

Miss Walker presented a very interesting word picture of the land "down under". Although an island, she said, Australia's dimensions are 2300 miles from east to west, and 1300 miles from north to south. It is divided into several large states, each of which have their own government and their own system of education. All together form the Commonwealth. She showed their flag, which has a Union Jack in one corner, besides the stars of the Southern Cross. The emblem of this country is the kangaroo.

The white population live mostly on the eastern coastal region, while the interior belongs to the blacks, or original natives, who live in the woods by hunting and fishing. Animal and bird life is very different from ours. Besides the kangaroo and emu, there are the wombat, opossum and wild dogs, the laughing jackass and platypus, the latter a freak of nature, being part bird and part animal. The birds are very bright-colored and black swans are plentiful in certain parts. Flowers have vivid colors and grow abundantly. The eucalyptus or gum tree is the common native tree of Australia.

Sheep farming is a great industry, some of the farms as large as 2000 acres. The climate varies from tropical to fairly cool at the south. This ensures a large variety of fruits and vegetables, making the country almost self-sustaining. It is quite common to have spells of drought. At other times, as at the present, floods do great damage. Wild rabbits are so numerous as to be a menace to the country. It was interesting to note that the women in Australia meet together in a form of the Women's Institute, showing that this association is world-wide. The homes are nearly all bungalow type, and like our own country, there is a housing shortage, with building materials difficult to get.

Mrs. Alex. Robb moved a vote of thanks to Miss Walker. The president, Mrs. C. Reid, conducted the business meeting. It was decided to have a booth at the Fair this year, plans for which to be in the hands of the executive. Proceeds from the booth will be used for our County Hospital Fund, and any donations for this will be gratefully accepted. The September meeting will be in the High School. This will be an open meeting, and will feature a fashion parade of clothing and other articles made from feed bags.

A Flower-naming contest then took place, Mrs. Burgess being the lucky winner. The picnic lunches, with a cup of tea, were enjoyed by guests and members, followed by a social hour.

A number of pictures and articles native to Australia which Miss Walker had brought with her, were examined and admired by all present.

The Low Cost Housing Project

IT was Father A. Pigeon who raised his voice with regard to a housing project for Huntingdon, at the annual Board of Trade dinner and he certainly got the citizens thinking. Quite a number were of the opinion that such a project could not be tackled, but there were others who thought it could.

During the intervening period members of the Board of Trade and the Junior Chamber of Commerce have given the matter considerable thought and have made much investigation of the possibilities. It has been found that considerable help can be obtained through the Central Housing and Mortgage Corporation, which would loan up to 90% for such an undertaking. There are also private associations who would be willing to help in financing the remainder. The matter was taken up at a recent meeting of the Huntingdon Town Council when the proposition was put that the Council should handle the administration of the housing project after the houses had been built.

The proposition was that a four apartment building would be erected as a start on the low cost housing project and these apartments would be rented out to suitable tenants at a reasonable rental. The building to be financed through the Central Housing and Mortgage Corporation loan and the balance from private enterprise. If this proved satisfactory, more of these type units would be built to accommodate other suitable tenants. The council would be required to look after the rentals, upkeep and so forth after the building is completed and ready for occupancy. This would include payment of the mortgage loan over a period of perhaps as much as fifty years, fire insurance, keeping the houses in repair, supplying sewer and water facilities where needed and perhaps in accepting reduced taxes for a period of years. It is presumed that the rentals would have to be of such an amount as to cover the required monthly mortgage payment as well as to build up a sum against repairs and other incidentals that would no doubt accrue during the years.

The first unit was proposed to be built on Poirier Street ,as water and sewer facilities are already in existence at that point and there would be little expense in this direction. If the council is willing to assume the responsibility of the administration, it is posible that the first unit would be started at an early date.

Not being able to discuss the matter in full at the last meeting, no decision has been reached by the council on the matter. It is to come up again when more particulars will have been secured in the meantime. We believe however, that it is only by the council agreeing to administer the buildings that the loan from Central Housing and Mortgage Corporation can be secured as they do not recognize a body like the Board of Trade as the signers of a mortgage of this type. We are not sure of this however and could stand to be corrected on it. But we believe the Corporation requires a body like the council because it will remain in existence for the required period of the loan, whereas the Board of Trade could be dissolved. However, any agreement of this kind would have to be binding on all councils, that is despite the change there may be in personnel over the years. There are many details that need to be worked out before a satisfactory arrangement could be arrived at, but we believe these can be concluded when all facts are known. One question is, to whom would the property belong both during the period of administration and upon completion of the payment of the mortgage. We understand that the properties cannot be sold to individuals and that renters must abide by certain regulations as to standards and so forth.

It certainly looks to us like a start to improve the type of dwelling in certain parts of town and could well bring forth a pride in the citizens to obtain this type of living accommodation. The members of the council should give the matter their best consideration both as to the present and with the future in mind. According to the facts already placed before the council it has been assured that the project can be carried out. It need cost the council nothing as long as the details are carefully worked out, but it could lead to great improvement in the housing in Huntingdon.

Milk Reports Need More Attention

A few years ago there was considerable trouble with the milk that was sold to the consumer in Huntingdon and it required the services of a competent inspector to put this right. For some time now the Town has been without an inspector and the condition of the milk in so far as bacteria content is concerned has slowly deteriorated. The reports for the last two samples taken in July and reported at the recent Council meeting were particularly bad in all cases but that of Elmhurst Dairy. In two cases the bacteria content was in the millions and in one instance it was up to 9,000,000cc.

The Town bylaw says that the bacteria content of any milk sold in the Town of Huntingdon should not exceed 50,000cc. It is very easy to see from this that the milk being sold for consumption in this town is far away from meeting the requirements except in the instance mentioned. It would not be fair to make a report on just one or two of the reports on samples taken by the Health Dept., so we looked up all of those available for the period from the beginning of this year. Looking over these reports we find that except in a few instances shown in the chart, the bacteria content is high over the months in this period. There are many factors which enter into the bacteria count being high and this is especially so during the summer months and when milk is carried on a vehicle around the streets for some time before being delivered. However, the situation is one that the Council should make it a business of checking into for the safety of the public.

With an inspector making the rounds, the reports were much better and it shows that there is no need for the condition to remain for long periods or time. The occasional rise is to be expected, but the continual presence of bacteria should not be allowed. According to the list there are six dealers delivering milk in the Town of Huntingdon and if all are allowed to deliver milk with high bacteria content without any check up, the situation ca nvery soon be out of control. Milk is a vital food and as such should be delivered according to the regulations which have set a safe margin. Montreal will not allow such milk for sale or acceptance and any one shipping to that city must live up to exacting standards or they are soon cut off the list until they have righted the situation. Should the people of Huntingdon be expected to accept a far lower standard than those of Montreal? We do not think so and we think the Council should take a more serious view of the reports that are read to them. A few of the aldermen make exclamations at the amount of bacteria in some of the reports and say something will have to be done about it. It will require more than that and in the interests of the consumer and for their protection, action should be taken to have this condition cleared up or the dealers stopped until they can give satisfaction.

If the Health Dept. did not think it necessary, they would not take the samples and make the reports. The reports are made to acquaint those in authority of what has been found. From then on it is up to the authorities to act and act quickly. Food and food handling are the important matters and should not be treated as something not requiring more than nodding attention. The following are the reports from the beginning of 1952 and as reported at council meetings since that time:

Date	Elmhurst	Pringle	Monique	Goodfellow	Belle Vallee	Salaberry
Jan. 14	6,400				2,300,000	78,000

Another Trouble Spot

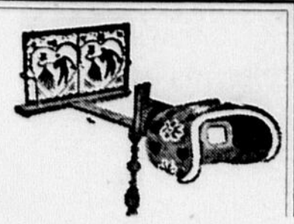

THE middle East is usually good for something in nature of fireworks at any time, next to Europe it is probably the greatest powder keg for a big explosion. During the past week there has been trouble between the Bulgarians and the Greeks. The dispute is over the invasion of Gamma Islet on the Greek-Bulgarian frontier and which the Greeks claim the Bulgarians invaded on July 25th. Shots were fired into the territory to drive out the Bulgarians and it is reported that there are still a few shots being fired at Gamma.

The old Iranian oil dispute is again in the news and it looks like Iran may be willing to settle with Britain. They have not sold much oil since Britain quit and it is not much good owning wells and refineries if you cannot sell the product. Perhaps they will come to their senses in time. Meantime there is fear that Russia may be seeking to cause trouble there so as to be on the ground floor to make a deal for the oil.

The trouble in Egypt seems to have slowed up for the time being, but could develop into something big as bids are being made for financial assistance.

It is natural that the eyes of the world are on these trouble spots today in view of what Russia is aiming at continually, the upset of the world. At the moment the most potential spot is Gamma and if it should break out into a full scale shooting war it could easily become a bad break. Great Britain found the situation serious enough to call special cabinet meetings to discuss the possibilities. There is a constant tension whenever a trouble spot looms up on the horizon and there are movements of warships and other armed forces personnel so as to be on hand in case there is grave necessity at any time. Everything is so uncertain in these days and especially if Russia is mixed up or is close at hand. We must not be caught napping at any point and we never know just how bad anything can be, so it must be watched carefully no matter where it takes place. The most remote spot may well be the one that touches off the spark to ignite the flame.

September 2

Monday is a legal holiday so that councils will meet on Tuesday instead. It is foolishness to continue Labor Day as a legal holiday outside of Towns and Cities, but so our legislature has decreed. The sooner the law is changed to exempt rural municipalities the better.

September 9

On Saturday an elderly woman went around the streets begging, representing she was from Ogdensburg, and making her way to Montreal. On Sunday she and her husband got drunk and acted so outrageously that they were put in the cooler and left to go their way next morning. This is the first time a woman has been drunk and disorderly on Huntingdon's streets.

September 30

Ormstown again leads the model schools of the province and Huntingdon the academies. The grants are as follows: Ormstown $140, Valleyfield $115 and Hemmingford $90. The Academy received the same grant as last year, $450.

The abutments of the Murray bridge are completed and ready for the iron superstructure, which is expected next week. The contractor, John Elder, and the mason he engaged, Wm. Kirkland, have given the municipalities a handsome bit of masonry in the abutments and their long wing walls.

On Saturday afternoon the annual road race of the Montreal bicycle club was run off on the Lower Lachine road, distance of 15⅝ miles. E. A. McNaughton of Huntingdon captured second prize in 49 minutes and 30 seconds. Time made by the first man was 45 minutes, 40 seconds.

October 14

There is a keen demand by U.S. buyers for young cattle and as high as $10 has been offered for one-year-olds.

October 28

One of the most successful stock sales yet held in the district was that conducted by auctioneer Philps last Friday, on the farm of George Bustard, near Vicars. Grade cows sold from $31 to $50. 14 cows brought $490, averaging $35 per head. Three purebred cows brought $175.50 or $58.50 per head. One cow brought $76. Two year old grade heifers sold from $17 to $31. Purebred two year old heifers (grade) brought from $15 to $18. One yearling bull brought $62. Calves sold from $7 to, $15 apiece.

November 18

Athelstan—There have been a few changes made in property in this vicinity recently. Jasper Haws has purchased the property known as the Munro farm, adjoining the village; reported price $2200. John and Alexander Brown have jointly bought John Henderson's farm on the road leading to Boyd Settlement. The farm consists of 57 acres and brought $2800. Malcolm M. Elder bought from Mrs. D. McLaren her, house and lot in this village.

Millar C. Bruce, for a number of years in the Athelstan mills, has bought from McKenzie estate, the grist mill at Constable, N.Y. Duncan McDonald and Isaac Helm have each about completed themselves neat and commodious dwellings, which will be an improvement to the street.

The paint brush too, has been used freely by several in the village and vicinity, much to the improvement of their property. The outside of the church and spire also received a coat of paint, the first since it was built. Mr. C. H. Crawford had the contract for building the spire scaffolding and Mr. Beaudin the painting; the work was completed safely and well.

January 20

The electric light was put in operation after a rest of two months on Saturday evening. The difference it made in brightening up the village was remarkable. There is a disposition among the ratepayers to help to make it pay the village and many who declined before are now preparing to install the light in their houses.

The Liars' Bench

By LEWIS MILLIGAN

Like many good, bad and indifferent Canadians, I went a-fishing on my holidays, and have returned with the usual fish stories which my friends insist upon my relating. This curiosity on the part of friends, and even strangers out on the lake, is a peculiar thing. Your friends will look you in the eye and say: "Well, how was the fishing?" You feel that the question is put in the form of a challenge, as much as to say, "Now, come on, tell the truth; none of your fish stories." One hates to disappoint them, or to admit, if the fishing has been no good, that one has spent two weeks dangling a hook or casting a plug in mysterious waters and has caught little or nothing. The temptation to lie is irresistible and the best one can do is to tell the truth with a little elaboration "intended to give artistic verisimilitude to an otherwise bald and unconvincing narrative."

I would not go so far as to say that all fishermen are liars, but they all have a tendency to exaggerate or romance a little, and even loyal members of the angling fraternity, when they foregather, accept each other's stories with more than the proverbial grain of salt. I am reminded of a cartoon which appeared in Punch many years ago, depicting an angler returning from a fraternal dinner along a country lane at dusk. He had evidently dined unwisely and too well and was peering through the gloom at a scarecrow with arms outstretched over a fence. "Liar!" he said.

At The Opinicon Lodge in the Rideau Lakes, where I spent my holidays, there was a seat against the store on which the fishermen sat in the evening. On the wall above the seat, painted in the form of a scroll with a hand at each end, were the words, "LIARS' BENCH." It struck me that, to complete the picture, there should have been an opposite bench inscribed, "THE SEAT OF THE SCORNFUL."

As for my own experience in fishing, truth to tell, I had nothing but bad luck. In the first place, I lost my rod and the fish had to wait for two days before I could borrow another one. I decided that I would be careful and confine my fishing to Chaffey's Locks with live bait. Frogs and minnows were the only bait available, and I found that there was no price control on those commodities. The high cost of living had extended to fishing. Frogs had jumped to twelve cents a piece, and minnows to six cents! Being part Scotch, I hesitated and asked the reason for this high jump in live bait. I was reminded that everything had gone up, and I enquired if the frogs and minnows had organized themselves into a union. Finally deciding upon the minnows, I bought a dozen and sallied forth with a pail and fed them to the fish from the lock wall.

Strangely enough, nobody asked me if I had caught anything, and one man, taking pity on my innocence, informed me that I was fishing in the wrong place. He advised me to go to the end of a point below the locks and cast from the rocks with a live frog, letting it float out with the current. This I did and put myself "on the rocks" literally and fishingly. Having slipped on the rocks several times, I was returning disgustedly along a rough pathway when I stepped in a hole and I went down, rod, hook, line, pail and myself the sinker, with the remainder of my precious frogs hopping around me, laughing at my distress.

Picking myself up in pieces, as it were, I found that I had sustained a wrenched ankle, a bruised knee, a badly sprained right wrist, and a sad loss of personal dignity — to say nothing of the frogs. I was able to recover one of the latter, however, with which I later caught a big bass in the locks, but was unable to land him. With the privilege of the Liars' Bench, I had material for a credible story of "the big one that got away." I displayed my swollen and crippled hand and a broken reel as convincing evidence of my futile struggle with the monster.

Howick

25th Wedding Anniversary

HOWICK—Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Kerr were honored recently when about 100 relatives and friends gathered at their home in Fertile Creek to offer congratulations on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary. On their arrival home from a supper party given by their family, they were pleasantly surprised to find their yard filled with cars and their house with well wishing friends. A social time was enjoyed. Old time musical selections were rendered by Reid Kerr on his violin, accompanied by Helen Kerr at the piano. Delicious refreshments were served, including an attractively decorated wedding cake, which the bridal couple cut in the traditional manner.

Rev. Mr. Edwards, on behalf of all present, addressed the bride and groom, extending best wishes and commending them on the many neighbourly acts and the co-operative community spirit shown by them throughout the years. He then called on Mr. Robert Anderson, who in his usual jovial manner, presented a mantel clock with Westminster chimes as a token of the esteem of the assembled guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Kerr, in turn, sincerely thanked everyone for their thoughtfulness, expressing the wish that all would come to see them again soon.

WELL-BRED PHEASANTS

WOODSTOCK, Ont., (CP) — Twenty-five English ring-necked pheasants, placed in a store front at Otterville when they were tiny chicks, grew so fast that before six weeks were up they were turned loose in South Norwich township. They proved quite capable of looking after themselves.

VISITOR FROM WOODS

EDMONTON, (CP) — Cecil Jackson, Alberta mines department statistician, reported seeing a good-sized buck deer on his front lawn here. The deer was seen also by several neighbors.

The Week At Ottawa...

OTTAWA (CP — Many residents of the capital remember the winter night in 1916 when fire destroyed most of the Parliament buildings with the loss of seven lives. The only thing saved then was the wing housing the Library of Parliament.

So when two alarms were rung in quick succession last week from the tinder-dry old Library wing, most people expected that it would go the way of the old centre block.

But quick work by firemen, helped by more modern equipment than was available 36 years ago, confined the fire to the cathedral-like spire of the building and it was saved.

Nevertheless, untold damage was done to many of the 1,000,000 books and records housed in the 85-year-old structure. The volumes, old and new, took a 12-hour soaking that will leave some useless and others permanently defaced. Just what the toll of this fire will be remains to be seen when Librarians overhaul the sodden stacks.

Helping in the job of restoration was a United States expert, Alvin Kremer, Keeper of the Collection of the United States Library of Congress. He described the damage as a catastrophe but said the task of saving the books was by no mean hopeless.

Mr. Kremer estimated that about 75,000 books came in direct contact with the water. They ranged from damp to soaking wet, and were spread out to dry along Parliamentary corridors and the halls of the Supreme Court building. The greatest danger now is from mold.

Increase in Immigrants

Canadians learned last week that more immigrants arrived in the Dominion during the first six months of this year than in each of the years 1946, 1947, 1949 and 1950.

The Immigration department announced that a total of 98,057 new citizens entered the country in the six-month period compared with 79,785 in the corresponding period of 1951.

The rate of arrivals is expected to drop during the latter part of the year. Otherwise, this might be a near-record year for immigration.

Last year a total of 194,391 immigrants were admitted to Canada—the largest number of any year except 1913 when 500,000 came in.

Since the end of the Second World War, Canada has admitted 722,837 immigrants, about one-third of them British. In the first six months of this year, the number of British immigrants arriving increased 63 per cent. They totalled 23,001 compared with 14,130 in the first six months of last year.

The number of French immigrants increased slightly to 2,767 compared with 2,272. Newcomers from all northern European countries totalled 28,478, compared with 27,427.

Anthrax in P.E.I.

Canada has had a tough time this year with livestock diseases. First it was foot-and-mouth disease in Saskatchewan which resulted in loss of the United States markets to Canada cattlemen.

Now the agriculture department says a mysterious disease that appeared in Prince Edward Island recently was anthrax, terror of the animal world until Louis Pasteur invented a successful vaccine 71 years ago.

The Department says all the necessary steps have been taken to eradicate the disease, including quarantine of three farms and vaccination of animals exposed to it.

Meanwhile, the "foot-and-mouth outbreak in Saskatchewan, now on the way to being eradicated, got back in the news in an indirect fashion. The government announced an extension of its beef price support program for another month, until Sept. 30.

Agriculture minister Gardiner said the support program—initiated shortly after foot-and-mouth was discovered—will continue as long as the United States market remains closed to Canada. The current floor price is 25 cents a pound, basis good steers at Toronto.

Japanese Trade

Canada and Japan will open discussion within the next few weeks to negotiate a bilateral trade agreement.

Canada likely will agree to reduce some of its high tariffs in exchange for specific rights to impose a dumping duty on the reduced items if Canadian officials consider Japan is selling in Canada at abnormally low prices and undermining Canadian competition.

The conference will be a halfway measure in dealing with persistent Japanese demands for lower tariff rates.

However, it is questionable if Canada will agree to admit Japan into the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade which extends most-favored-nation tariff reductions to 34 member countries.

Most - favored - nation tariffs are considerably lower than the general tariffs to which Japan now is subject. Japan's application for admittance to the General Agreement comes up for discussion at the next G.A.T.T. meeting in Geneva Oct. 2.

Although reluctant to see Japan in the Geneva tariff pact, Canada cannot ignore the Japanese trade demands. Japan now is the fourth largest world market for Canadian exports. Canadian exports to Japan last year amounted to $73,000,000.

JUNIOR JUDGING CONTESTS

Last week a group of 4 H Dairy Calf Clubs met in competition at Macdonald College. The objective of that competition being the selection of the team from the area embraced by these clubs which will represent same in the final contests which will be held at Sherbrooke, at the time of that Exhibition. The purpose of the latter being to select the team which will represent the Province of Quebec in the Inter-Provincial Junior Judging Contests staged by the Canadian Council on Boys' and Girls' Club Work, at the Royal Winter Fair. In this instance we are referring to the purebred dairy heifer Calf Clubs, but there are also similar Regional, Provincial and Royal Winter Fair competitions for beef cattle, swine, potatoes, etc., etc., Clubs.

EIGHT CLUBS COMPETED

The Dairy Calf Clubs represented at the Macdonald College competition were as follows:

Argenteuil, Arundel, Cowansville, Howick, Hudson, Huntingdon, Ormstown and Rupert.

HIGHEST SCORES

Bernice Ness of the Howick Ayrshire Calf Club scored highest in the individual placings with 368 points out of a possible 400. Second high score was made by Patricia Irving of Laguerre and a member of the Huntingdon 4 H Calf Club. Incidentally, this is the last year in which these two young ladies can compete in the Provincial Judging contests. They both completed their first year at Macdonald College last spring, and second year College students are debarred from competition in Provincial contests.

HUNTINGDON TEAM WON

When the combined scores of the two highest contestants from each Club were totalled, the Huntingdon Calf Club team won first place and was therefore named as the team to go to Sherbrooke Exhibition for the final Provincial contest. The two members of the winning Huntingdon team are Patricia Irving, of Laguerre of the Ayrshire Section of that Club; Basil Kelly, Lost Nation Road, of the Holstein Section of that Club.

As already noted Bernice Ness was top individual scorer but the highest individual score of one of her Club mates was not high enough to enable the Howick Ayrshire team to take first place. The Howick team therefore had to take second place. We are not aware as to the scores made by same but the other Howick competitors were Billy Templeton, Hazel Elliot and Muriel Cairncross.

Two members of the Ormstown Calf Club team made third place. The Ormstown team members being Milton Hooker, Grant Cameron and Ronald Duncan.

Congratulations to Dan Murphy, the Huntingdon Club Leader, and J. A. Beaudin, Agronomist, on the success attained by the Huntingdon Calf Club. Also congratulations to Patricia Irving and Basil Kelly and best wishes for their future success, first at Sherbrooke, and then, if they win there, at the Royal.

TOURING MARITIMES

Gilbert MacMillan, Huntingdon, left on August 6, by car for Prince Edward Island, where he will judge the Ayrshire Show at Charlottetown Exhibition, this week. It is understood that he will also look after several matters connected with Dairy Farmers' of Canada of which he is President.

Accompanying Gilbert MacMillan is Walter S. Brown, Jeweller and Optometrist, Huntingdon. It is understood that, after leaving Prince Edward Island, they will make a tour of the coast side of Nova Scotia from Halifax to Digby, from whence they will cross the Bay of Fundy by boat to Saint John, N.B. From the latter city, they will proceed, via St. Stephen, N.B., through Maine, and New Hampshire on their trip back home.

N.S. AND P.E.I.

We also understand that Douglas A. Ness of R. R. Ness & Sons, Burnside Farms, Howick, Que., was leaving on Friday last for the Maritimes. His first stop was to be at Lindwood Farms of Col. S. C. Oland of Bedford, N.S. From there he was to be conveyed by car to Charlottetown, P.E.I., for that Exhibition by Alex Lamond, Manager of Lindwood Farms.

OUTSTANDING RECORD FOLLOWING MILK FEVER

A Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada news release gives the following interesting details regarding the recovery of a cow from a severe attack of milk fever and her subsequent achievement. Here is a story of Maple Lea Fern Buttergirl, the cow concerned:

At the start of her nine-year-old lactation Maple Lea Fern Buttergirl, a purebred Holstein bred and owned by Master Breeder Lorne B. Reid, Ripley, Ont., had a severe case of milk fever and was almost given up by her owner. However, a massive injection of calcium saved her and she went on to complete the remarkable record of 26,038 lbs. milk containing 1,014 lbs. fat, average test 3.89 percent butterfat in 365 days on twice-a-day milking.

This is the largest record for either milk or fat ever made in Bruce County and rates as one of the top dozen twice-a-day milking records ever completed in Canada.

Fern was milked by Marion and Gladys, daughters of Lorne Reid. The two girls milked together one on each side, a most unusual procedure. Fern was a steady producer, her highest day being 96 lbs. while she was still milking 70 lbs. at the end of her lactation.

This was Fern's sixth consecutive Record of Performance test, she having a twice-a-day lifetime total production of 116,196 lbs. milk and 4,383 lbs. fat. Her best previous record was made as a six-year-old when she produced 804 lbs. fat from 22,406 lbs. milk. She also exceeded the 20,000 lb. mark as an eight-year-old with 747 lbs. fat from 20,237 lbs. milk.

SUNNY SIDE NEWS

Russel Logan, Sunny Side Ayrshire Farm, Howick, recently sold a 3 year old heifer to Miss Sally Wilson, Alderayr Farm, Lacolle, Que. The heifer, Sunny Side Rosebud, was sired by Balquhidder Top Grade and as a calf she won second in the heifer calf class at Ormstown Exhibition.

GOOD RECORD

Russell Logan is naturally gratified over the report of the latest record made by the Ayrshire cow, Royalview Future Dream, dam of his junior herd sire, Royalview Golden Comet. Royalview Future Dream is owned by R. W. Harrison & Son, Sarnia, Ont. She recently completed a 5 year old R.O.P. record of 14,818 lbs. M., 612 lbs. F., 4.13%, in 336 days. At the time Mr. Logan received the above information Royalview Future Dream had calved again and was producing 60 lbs. per day.

It will be recalled that Royalview Golden Comet was a considerable winner before being purchased by Mr. Logan. His winnings included first in the junior bull calf class at Western Fair, London, Ont., and the Royal Winter Fair; also the reserve junior championship at the Western Fair.

This year, for Mr. Logan, he won first in the junior yearling bull class and the reserve junior male championship at Ormstown Exhibition. He was also first in his class at Lachute Spring Fair.

CENTRAL CANADA EXHIBITION

W. E. Richmond, Secretary-Manager, Canadian Ayrshire Breeders' Association, reports that the 1952 Ayrshire exhibit at Central Canada Exhibition, Ottawa, Ontario, will be one of the largest on record for that section and show. Eleven well-known Eastern Ontario and Western Quebec Ayrshire herds have entered between them 135 head.

The Ayrshire classes will be judged on Wednesday, August 20, by Allister McArthur of Cherry Bank Farms, Howick, Que.

A committee representing former graduates of Macdonald College, his associates and friends, has established a Fund which will be used to pay for a painting of Dr. G. H. S. Barton, C.M.G. This portrait, when completed, will be hung in the library or some other appropriate place at Macdonald College. The purpose of this effort is to honour Dr. Barton and to maintain at the college a lasting remembrance of those who have contributed to that college's welfare.

Dr. Barton was appointed Professor of Animal Husbandry of Macdonald College in 1907 and Dean in 1926. He held both positions until he resigned in 1932 to become Deputy Minister of Agriculture of Canada. Upon retirement as Deputy Minister he was appointed Special Assistant to the Minister of Agriculture, from which position he recently retired. The Secretary-Treasurer of the Fund is Professor L. H. Hamilton, Macdonald College, Que.

HUNTINGDON COUPLE CELEBRATE GOLDEN WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

An elaborate programme was prepared to celebrate the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Lasalle of Huntingdon last Sunday, August 10th.

This couple is well known, not only in Huntingdon, but also throughout the Beauharnois district, where Mr. and Mrs. Lasalle have many friends and relatives.

The marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Lasalle took place 50 years ago in St. Urbain, Chateauguay County. Shortly after their wedding, they came to Huntingdon and they now reside at 92 Wellington Street.

Mr. Lasalle is a harness maker, a trade at which he worked actively until a few years ago. While he is living a retired life he still works at his trade for those who need his services and can be seen early in the morning and late at night working in his big garden. Mrs. Lasalle is no less active. Like her husband she has always been interested and ready to help in her church and the progress of town or county.

Mr. and Mrs. Lasalle have three daughters and three sons: Eliane of Huntingdon; Lucille, Mrs. Gaston Brissette, of Montreal; Georges of Huntingdon; Charlemagne of Ste. Martine; Madeleine, Mrs. L. P. Brisson of Valleyfield and Jean-Claude, of Montreal.

On Sunday morning at 10 o'clock at the parochial church of St. Joseph, Huntingdon, Rev. Father Benoit Fortier, nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Lasalle, sang the high mass. At noon a banquet was served at the Huntingdon Chateau and the elaborate program continued during the afternoon and evening.

The Gleaner joins the community in congratulations and best wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Lasalle.

A very intertsting and instructive address was given by Mr. Alton Barrington on the use of the Food Locker and the different ways of preparing foods to be put in the locker. A lamp called a germicidal is used in the locker and a trained butcher is always in attendance.

Mrs. Harold Parkinson thanked the speaker.

Mrs. James Hunter kindly offered her home for the members to process vegetables or fruit and the same to be put in the Ormstown Locker for the cafeteria of the Ormstown High School. Members are kindly requested to bring whatever they feel like giving towards the cafeteria at September meeting. All donations will be appreciated.

Mrs. Le Baron and Mrs. Ellard were appointed Provincial delegates for Quebec at the A.C.W.W. Convention that is being held in Toronto in August of 1953. An article read by Mrs. Ward Rember entitled: "It was a lovely gathering but oh, those party faces!", was much enjoyed by the members.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. George McClintock. The meeting closed with the National Anthem. Refreshments were served by Mrs. A. Marshall, Mrs. K. McCarthy and Mrs. H. McAdam.

Canadian Cheese—and How It Is Used ....

How do Canadians like their cheese? A recent study of consumer demand in Ottawa, Toronto and Vancouver, reviewed in "The Economic Annalist", a publication of the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, gives some indication of the trends in consumption.

Almost all families in these three cities use some type of cheese and less than five per cent of housewives interviewed indicated that they never had cheese on the family menu. Processed cheese is somewhat more popular than cheddar but most families eat both these types. But cheddar cheese is used in 90 per cent of Ottawa households as compared with 80 per cent in Vancouver and 70 per cent in Toronto households. Cottage cheese is used in many more households in Vancouver — three-quarters of all households — than in either of the other two cities. Other kinds of cheese, such as Gruyere, Oka, and Danish Blue, are used by one-third to one-half of all families in each of the three cities.

Cheddar cheese is classed as mild, medium and old, according to the length of time it has had to age. The longer it is kept under normal ageing conditions the stronger is the flavour. A different kind of strength was found to be the most popular in each of the three cities. In Ottawa, the favoured strength was mild; in Vancouver, medium; and in Toronto, old. However, many families use two or even all three different strengths, according to the use to which the cheese is to be put, or to preference of different members of the family.

The addition of colouring matter in the production of cheese does not affect either flavour or food value. Nevertheless, coloured cheese is used more than uncoloured by over three times as many families in each city. The fact that almost all of the mild and medium is coloured partly explains this situation, but it is also possible that many of the families who prefer old cheddar — which is usually uncoloured in Eastern Canada — also prefer coloured cheese. The main reason given for preferring coloured cheese was that it looks more appetizing and has eye appeal. Among those using uncoloured the frequent reason for this preference was that it is a stronger type of cheese.

Cheese is served in a variety of ways. One-third of the families served cheese in each of the following ways: pieces served at mealtime, for snacks, in plain sandwiches, in toasted sandwiches, and in cooked dishes. Many people use cheese in salads — generally cottage types.

In summary the interviews show that most Canadian families use some cheese. Processed cheese is slightly more popular than cheddar but most families use both of these types. It is common practice to serve cheese in a variety of different ways quite frequently. Cheddar cheese is preferred by most families for pieces at mealtime and in cooked dishes. Cottage cheese is the type frequently used in salads. Processed cheese is most popular for both toasted and plain sandwiches.

U.S. Scientist With Glass Jar Makes "Saucer" Phenomena

Washington, (AP) — A U.S. Army scientist experimenting with a glass jar has succeeded in producing fiery objects that look just like some of those seen shooting through the night skies in recent weeks.

A spokesman for the Army Corps of Engineers said these findings of physicist Noel Scott are being made public because they explain at least some of the many "flying saucer" reports the air force has been investigating lately.

By introducing molecules of ionized air into the partial vacuum of his bell jar, Scott reported, he has created the orange-red bals, discs, mushrooms and "ice cream cones" familiar to hundreds of excited sky-watchers.

Scott said these miniature masses of illuminated air have sufficient body or substance to be picked up by radar.

Thus they may account for the shower of mysterious "blips' seen on radar screens around Washington recently. Jet fighters based at Newcastle, Del., were sent into the air to investigate the phenomena. They climbed to 15,000 feet, but reported nothing unusual.

The Army Engineers' spokesman said the crops did not consider that Scott's findings represented a solution of all "flying saucer' reports. But they explain some of them, he said, and may shed light on the mystery generally.

Scott used a jar three feet high and 1½ feet in diameter to produce his effects. He pumped air from the jar to create a partial vacuum and simulate conditions in the upper atmosphere. Then he injected several molecules of ionized air into the jar to get his orange-red fire-balls.

An ionized gas is a conductor of electricity. The use of various gases would produce other colors, Scott said.

The Washington Star, in a copyright article about Scott's work, said the experimenters at Fort Belvoir believe that two forces—very low air pressure which is balanced against static electricty in a way to give off light—"are the primary factors responsible for saucer sightings by competent observers."

Allied Police Forces Seen As "First Line of Defence"

QUEBEC (CP) — Som police believe Allied police forces constitute "the first line of defence" in their home countries and would like their respective governments to recognize this.

The international relations committee of the International Association of Police Chiefs, which met behind closed doors here recently, passed resolutions embodying this view.

The committee plans to submit the resolutions to the association's annual meeting in Los Angeles Sept. 21-25.

The committee, headed by Lt.-Col. Leon Lambert, assistant director of Quebec Provincial Police, has members from Canada, England, the United States, Honolulu and Puerto Rico. The association groups police forces from all Allied nations except France and Belgium.

Lt.-Col. Lambert announced adoption of resolutions after the meetings closed.

"The first action in a world war is infiltration by the enemy," he said. "They even get into army and police forces of Allied countries." This was a field for police investigation.

He said armed services of Allied nations had a specific place under the North Atlantic Treaty Organization but the police forces of these countries which played a first-line defence role at home did not have recognition or support of their governments as such.

Police forces also played an important part in civil defence, he said.

Treason, sedition and loopholes in the law's application in both Canada and the United States were studied by the committee.

Quebec's padlock law, adopted in 1936, was discussed by the committee as one type fo anti-Communist security measure. Under the law Communist propaganda may be seized by police and premises employed for propaganda padlocked.

Canadian Gifts Mean Happiness In Greek Homes

Ottawa (CP) — Cheeks pinched with hungar and eyes bright with hope, 10,000 men, women and children trudged into the village of Megalo Chorio, nestled at the foot of Greece's barren Karpensi mountains.

It was a big day. Word had spread through the mountains that the red-haired Canadian woman with her food and clothing was in the "big village".

The woman was Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova, director of the Unitarian Service Committee of Canada.

Dr. Hitschmanova spent four days in drab, drought-ravaged Megalo Chorio. During that time she distributed 500,000 pounds of Canadian flour and supplies of cloth to 10,000 mountain dwellers from 27 villages in northern Greece.

Each man, woman and child, was given a 50-pound bag of flour. The bags were strapped on backs and carted to the 27 villages, some of them 12 hours away, where the cotton was used for clothing and the flour for bread.

"It sounds like enough", said Dr. Hitschmanova recently on her return from a 15,000-mile, 2½-month tour of Europe, "but that flour will only last three months".

Years of Misfortune

"Last year the people of the area starved because their crops couldn't grow in snow and sleet. This year it is drought. It seems hard for Canadians, who have all they need and more, to realize that 5,000 miles away more than 250,000 people are starving to death".

Dr. Hitschmanova also travelled through Italy, Austria, Switzerland and France during her seventh tour for the committee.

"But Greece is hardest hit by the aftermath of wars", she said.

The Unitarian committee, a relief organization aiding the countries that the doctor visited, is spending 80 per cent of its funds in Greece.

It was Dr. Hitschmanova's fourth visit to Greece. The Greek parliament voted special thanks to the blue-eyed international social worker. The archbishop of Greece presented her with the medal of St. Paul expressing gratitude of the people.

"But the most heartening thanks was the look of hope in the faces of the villagers as they looked at the flour and clothes and said 'Kala, Kala'—beautiful, beautiful".

Intersection Amber Lights Put Onus On All Drivers

What is the duty of a motorist approaching an intersection where there is an amber light flashing? Does it supersede the right-of-way a motorist enjoys when on a "through" highway?

A judgment by the Ontario High Court indicates that it does, and that any driver approaching an intersection, where an amber light is flashing, must do so with caution. Right-of-way rule does not apply.

The case in question arose out of accident in Kingston in which a motorist driving a private automobile collided with a tractor-trailer transport.

The corner was equipped with signal lights but at night there was a flashing amber light at each of the four corners.

It was claimed that the fact that lights were established there did not establish one of the crossing streets as a through highway.

The court ruled that a flashing amber light was to warn an approaching driver of danger at the crossing, and that such a driver was not entitled to rely on a right-of-way.

Even if the right-ofway rule did apply, it was contended that a driver had a duty to exercise caution. Otherwise there would be no purpose in having an amber light.

On the evidence, the court found the truck driver was driving at excessive speed, having regard to the fact that his vehicle had a gross weight of 24 tons and that he was driving through a thickly populated city. It found no evidence that speed was reduced or any precautions taken on approaching the intersection through which the law, (by virtue of the amber light) required him to proceed with caution.

The driver of the passenger car did enter with caution, the court found. He (the driver) stopped at the cross-walk before entering, looked to his right and had a right to expect motor vehicles coming from his right would be driven at a reasonable speed and cautiously if they were about to enter the intersection.

The truck entered the intersection substantially after the passenger car, and as he could see and there was no evidence of him applying the brakes, there was a "heavy preponderance of negligence" against him.

But the court also ruled that the driver of the passenger car while he stopped and looked to the right, should have shown greater vigilance because his vision was obstructed by the angle of the intersecting street. "It was not unreasonable to say that as he proceeded further he should have looked again to the right and that his failure to do so was a contributing factor."

The court assessed degrees of fault at 80% to the transport driver and 20% against the passenger car driver.

An appeal was launched but the actions were settled later without the appeals coming to trial.

Seven Come Eleven

The Chateauguay Street stores weren't open on the night of Aug. 5th, but the softball Merchants were in business at their Fair Grounds stand, business wasn't bad either for they rang up eleven runs on the cash register to visiting Ormstown's seven.

The season's largest crowd was kept waiting over half an hour by Ormstown's late arrival, that shouldn't happen. We noticed the likeable League President, George Renaud, among those present up in the stands, George doesn't miss many games.

Tommy Kirnan did the tossing for the locals and started out as though he didn't need his mates behind him at all. Tom fanned five of the first seven men to face him, giving up one hit in the meantime, but simmered down when the Ormstown lads started to find his deliveries in the fourth.

Merchants got away to a three run lead in the first on walks to Senecal and Paul Derepentigny, Moniqui doubled scoring two, and scored in Kirnan's single after McCallum and Bernhardt went down swinging. "Squirt" McCallum is back in his old spot at second after Cape Codding for a couple of weeks, and he didn't even bring back one little codfish.

Ormstown counted one in the second when F. Primeau tripled and came in on an error, Kirnan whiffed the next three to come up.

Huntingdon added three more in the second, Laberge singled, Pringle sacrificed him to second, Senecal and Paul Derepentigny both got on on errors, Laberge was forced at home when Moniqui reached first on a fielder's choice, with the bases loaded, McCallum rapped out a sharp double cleaning the bases and died on second as Bernhardt fanned.

The top of the fourth produced two runs for Ormstown on a walk to Brunet and singles by Primeau and Beauchamp.

The comedy touch was added in the last of the fourth when the Merchants got all tangled up on the base paths, we think they must have been reading Brooklyn's book on "How Not to Run the Bases". Paul Derepentigny walked, went to second on a wild pitch and stole third, scoring on Moniqui's single, from then on, any resemblance to sane baserunning was merely a coincidence. McCallum drew a pass and ,with men on first and second, Bill Bernhardt hit a sharp single, McCallum rounded second and dug for third, when he neared the bag, he recognized a familiar face there, it was "Monk", who, for some unknown reason had pulled up, so Walt skidded to a sudden stop and headed back to second, in the meantime, Bernhardt had seen Walt digging for third so he started for second, well, they both arrived at about the same time and for a minute it looked like "Old Home Week" at the keystone, Bill thought it was a little overcrowded so he shifted into reverse and started back to number one pillow where he was tagged by Guerin who pulled himself together in time to make the out, all the while Moniqui was standing on third taking in the amazing spectacle and apparently forgot to try and score. Shades of "Babe" Herman who, they say, tried to steal second with three men on. Moniqui finally steamed in on Laberge's single.

Ormstown recovered their composure enough in the top of the fifth to mark up four runs and come within one of tying up the ball game. Dandurand singled and was caught off first on a nice peg by Paul Derepentigny to Bernhardt, Guerin walked, T. Dandurand popped to McCallum, Brunet and F. Primeau singled and advanced on two consecutive errors, Brunet scoring and Primeau going to third, Gerry Primeau tripled driving in his brother and crossed the plate on another Huntingdon bobble, Beauchamp ended it by bouncing out Kirnan to Bernhardt.

The Merchants were still leading 8-7 when they came to bat in the last of the sixth, which isn't much of a margin in a game like that, Kirnan went down swinging, Louis Derepentigny worked a free ticket, Laberge got a life when Primeau dropped a third strike, Pringle flied out to right and, with two mates aboard, Rene Senecal produced one of those screaming line-drive home runs of his for three insurance markers, it was at least a 280 foot blow out past the lights in right-centre field, that man goes around the bases like a startled gazelle, and must have been rounding third before the ball hit the ground. Here endeth the scoring.

Tommy Kirnan fanned 5 and walked 2. Dandurand struck out 6 and passed 8.

Ormstown: Guerin, T. Dandurand, R. Brunet, F. Primeau, Lefebvre, G. Primeau, G. Brunet, Beauchamp, Duquette, R. Dandurand.

Huntingdon: Senecal, P. Derepentigny, Moniqui, McCallum, Bernhardt, Kirnanfi L. Derepentigny, Laberge and Pringle.

Friendly Franklin

Thursday's contest at the Fair Grounds was actually Franklin's home game but they elected to play it here rather than in Ormstown.

Huntingdon Merchants made it seven in a row by trimming the Flyers 7-2. The last game they lost was to the Flyers on July 4th by a 6-4 count.

Rene Senecal, first man up, tripled, "Squirt' McCallum walked, Senecal scored on Paul Derepentigny's infield out, Brisebois singled and Bernhardt's double drove in McCallum.

Merchants added one in the third when Brisebois walked, advanced to third on Proudfoot's double and came in on Laberge's single.

In the top of the fourth, Senecal got a base on ball and scored as a result of two infield errors.

The fifth was Merchants' biggest inning, marking up three tallies. Kirnan doubled, "Monk" Moniqui flied out to left, Senecal drew a pass, McCallum popped to short, Paul Derepentigny double in Kirnan, Brisebois singled scoring Senecal and Derepentigny, Bernhardt fanned ending the inning and Merchants scoring, it was then 7-0 for Huntingdon.

Franklin couldn't break into the scoring until the end of the sixth, when they averted a shutout with an unearned run, Breza singled and was safe at second when Proudfoot bobbled C. Waller's hard grounder momentarily, then made a bad toss to second, Lamb went down swinging, Derepentigny dropped the third strike but nabbed him at first. Jimmy Leahy singled scoring Breza.

Flyers added another in the seventh, after two were out,, Moneypenny singled and stole second and crossed the plate on Breza's one-baser.

Tommy Kirnan and Gerry Brisebois didn't seem very nervous for a couple of boys who will soon be marching down the middle aisle to have the ball and chain attached. Tom walks the plank on the 16th and Gerry the following Saturday. Tom and Gerry; that reminds us of something, "Here's Luck" fellas. Tommy had three for four including a double and pitched a nice game fanning six, gave up no walks and allowed eleven scattered hits. Gerry had two hits and a walk in four trips.

Rene Senecal led the scoring with three runs, he had a triple, a double and two walks in five appearances at the plate.

For the Flyers, Jimmy Leahy fanned four and passed five Merchants. G. Waller led the assault on Kirnan with three singles. By the way, Flyers didn't get an extra-base blow all evening.

Huntingdon: Senecal, McCallum, P. Derepentigny, Brisebois, Bernhardt, Proudfoot, Laberge, Kirnan, Monique and Bertrand.

Franklin: G. Waller, Blair, Moneypenny, Breza, C. Waller, Lamb, J. Leahy, D. Leahy, Oceanas.

Spectacular Spectacle

Ball fans are due to see something a little out of the ordinary at the Fair Grounds on Friday the 15th, when a four man softball team headed by the fabulous hurler, "Ace" Holden and with Maurie O'Connor behind the bat, will play an exhibition game against an all-star team picked from the Ormstown District League.

The visiting quartet has won fifteen games this season without a defeat, but our boys are determined to put an end to that winning streak.

This is one that nobody should miss.

Soiree—

Friends and well-wishers of Tommy Kirnan gathered at the Chateau, Friday night, in honor of his approaching marriage.

The "do" was ably managed by Johhny Brisebois (you know, Joe Brisebois' little boy) who acted as master of ceremonies. Tom was presented with a substantial amount to help start him off on the rocky road of matrimony.

Man From Missouri

We had an unexpected caller last Wednesday morning in the person of Joe Walka, scout for the St. Louis Cardinals of the National League, and he wasn't here to sign up your correspondent as a replacement for Stan Musial either, he is on the trail of promising young ball players.

It was an interesting hour with stogie-smoking Joe, who is a school teacher in the off-season, for he had many tales to tell about the happenings that have taken place during his long association with baseball.

Too bad Mr. Walka hadn't arrived a day earleir, for the St. Louis organization held a try-out session at Malone on Thursday, Friday and Saturday and they wanted all the likely young ball players of the district to be there. We would have been pleased to publish the invitation but, unfortunately, The Gleaner had already gone to press.

Ivory hunter Joe had departed for Oshawa, but the aroma of those big fat cigars lingers on.

Huntingdon Merchants played an all star team from Athelstan at the Huntingdon diamond on Monday night, score in favor of Merchants 7-5.

Ormstown girls paid a return visit to Huntingdon Royals Monday night. The game was late starting due to shortage of Huntingdon players (later enough were found) and had to be called at 5 innings.

It was an exciting game with Huntingdon taking the lead and having luck in their favor till the top of the fourth, when the visitors started clicking. They took some good hits and tightened down on the fielding bringing the score at the end of 5 innings 12-8 in favour of Royals. With Ormstown on the offensive the score could easily have favoured the visitors if the last two innings had been played.

Royals: catcher, Henderson; pitcher, Lefebvre; 1st, Sloan; 2nd, Mason; 3rd, Goldie; s.s. Templeton; l.f., Brown; c.f., Hutchins; r.f., Beare.

Ormstown: catcher, McCaig; pitcher, Hooker; 1st, McCaig; 2nd, Warden; 3rd, Cavers; s.s., Hatley; l.f., Marg. Ness; c.f., Marj. Ness; r.f., Greer.

Umpires: Brisebois and Hooker.

H'don Royals vs. Rockburn

Royals girls' team met Rockburn boys at the fair grounds, Thursday. The game was hard fought with neither side having any great advantage. Finale score was 3-2 in favor of Royals.

A return game was played at Rockburn, Tuesday night, the home team taking the lead and defeating the Royals 3-2.

Line-up for both games:

Royals: catcher, Williams; pitcher, Porter; 1st, Sloan; 2nd, Gaetan; 3rd, Goldie; s.s., Templeton; l.f., Brown; c.f., Hutchins; r.f., Wattie.

Rockburn: Catcher, Henderson; pitcher, Lefebvre; 1st, Porter; 2nd, Currie; 3rd, Cooke; s.s., Middlemiss; l.f., Tannahill; c.f., Currie; r.f. anonymous.

"HO! 'TIS THE TIME OF SALADS"

The Canadian Horticultural Council, supported by government departments and food industries, are promoting the greater use of Canadian farm products in salad making. Nothing is more attractive in warm summer days than a crisp colourful salad with the ingredients fresh from the garden or straight from the refrigerator. And of course the year-round availability of fast-frozen fruits and vegetables and the more general use of individual cold storage lockers, makes a really attractive salad a possibility even in the depths of winter. A salad can be a colourful addition to the meal any day of the year. Pictured is a favourite of the salad family—"A Tossed Salad" prepared in the Consumer Service Kitchen, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa. Crisp, cool greens combined with diced carrots onion and green pepper rings and sliced tomatoes, with garlic corutons springled on top. The salad is highly tossed with French dressing.

Runs Chicken Farm From A Wheelchair

Langley Lake, B.C. (CP) — Henry Oliver cannot walk, but has become so adept in handling his wheelchair that he operates a successful chicken farm here. His wife, a polio victim, can walk only with the aid of leg braces.

In 1930 Henry was struck by a loaded truck on his Saskatchewan farm and was paralyzed for life. He has used a wheel chair ever since.

Visiting his sister in Vancouver in 1940 he met Elsie Simcoff, attractive, dark-haired Winnipeg girl. They married and set up housekeeping in Victoria. Henry started a drygoods store in suburban Oak Bay, but his heart remained on the farm.

"I wanted to start a chicken ranch", he said, "but people kept talking me out of it. They all said the same thing—you can't farm from a wheelchair".

Wheelchair Runways

But the Olivers sold the store and bought a bit of woodland at Langley Lake, 15 miles west of Victoria and started in the poultry business.

Provincial Poultry Inspector Harry Pope suggested they adopt the Stacey method of multiple bird-laying cages evolved in England.

Under his guidance wheelchair runways were built so Henry could feed the hens, pack eggs and do other chores.

Their trim, white bungalow is the meeting place for many of their friends.

"We don't feel we are any different from anybody else", Mrs. Oliver said. "Actually I was one of the lucky ones. I had a wonderful mother and father". She said she had to do her share of the work "so that I wouldn't feel different from other members of the family".

When 19 she became a furrier's apprentice and stayed with that trade until her marriage.

Community Backs Crippled Editors

Toronto (CP) — Two arthritis and polio victims, Gordon and Verna Agnew, are providing community news for 5,000 residents of suburban Queensway, although they haven't left their home in the area during the eight weeks they've been putting out their four-page weekly.

Handicapped by the need for crutches and but three arms between them, the Agnews use telephone and typewriter to gather and put together news for "The Queensway".

Now they're eagerly awaiting installation of an elevator in the home built for them by the community, so that they can get outside to gather news in person.

The couple was invited to the Queensway by William Stroud, himself a cripple, after the newspaper they had edited in Newcastle, Ont., was put up for sale.

Stroud presented them with "The Queensway". He himself had tried to make a go of the paper last year, but pressure of his printing press business made it unsuccessful.

Queensway residents are co-operating to bring the Agnews the elevator and—business. Merchants feel "The Quensway" is such a good paper that they're buying advertising space in advance to ensure its future publication.

King of Denmark Visits Greenland

COPENHAGEN, July, (CP) — Aboard the Royal yacht, Dannebrog, King Frederik of Denmark is now on a voyage to Greenland ports —the longest trip ever made by a Danish royal ship. Greenland is a Danish colony and the king wishes to visit the settlement on the west coast which has only once before, in 1921 been visited by a reigning monarch.

The Dannebrog is being accompanied by the Greenland ship, "Umanak", in which 14 Danish and 16 foreign journalists are accommodated. The king's itinerary depends on ice conditions in the area.

Brysonville

BRYSONVILLE — Miss Phyllis Nussey is spending a few weeks' vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Nussey, after completing a six weeks' course in Remedial Reading at Temple University, Philadelphia, Penna.

Glenelm

Mrs. Weston Day and little daughter Helen, have returned to Montreal after spending a two weeks' holiday with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Lunan.

Ormstown

W.C.T.U.

ORMSTOWN—The August meeting of the Ormstown W.C.T.U. was held in MacDougall Hall, on Thursday afternoon, with only a small attendance, 10 ladies being present. Mrs. H. B. Patton conducted the devotional period. The Bible reading was from John 4: The story of the woman at the well. The leader reminded us of the many times "The Well" is used in the Scriptures as a means of spiritual refreshment, leading us on to the well of God, the more we drink of holiness, the more we want. A prayer of thankfulness closed this service. A few items of business were discussed, among them Little White Ribboners' Day which will be held on Saturday, Sept. 6th, at 2.30 p.m. under the superintendency of Mrs. John McKell. An invitation is extended to all mothers with young children to come and have their children enrolled as White Ribboners.

It was decided to get more temperance blotters for distribution among the school children.

Miss L. Bazin read news items from "Tidings" and "Onward". Mrs. McNeil read the poem "God's Plan" by Janet P. Graham.

Sick visiting committee: Miss L. Bazin, Mrs. Peter Dickson and Mrs. Thos. Duncan. Repeating the pledge in unison and the Aaronic benediction closed the meeting.

Good weather, good attendance, and good exhibits, reports Alfred Greig, of the Waterloo Exhibition, where he was judging horses last week.

Misses Jean and Anne McEwen are spending a few days with Mary Catherine and Alanne Hooker, Lalonde's Point.

Barrie Memorial

Women's Auxiliary

The regular monthly executive meeting of the Barrie Memorial Women's Auxiliary was held in the Board Room of the Hospital on Monday, Aug. 4th.

The tentative date set for the Bazaar and Tea is Sept. 30, to be held at McDougall Hall, to which all members are expected to contribute. Various departments of the Bazaar will be Knit Goods, Babies' and Children's Wear, Dolls and Toys, Aprons, Rugs, Quilts, Miscellaneous, White Elephant, Homemade baking, Candy. This will be our biggest money-making project of the year and it is hoped that members will really make an all-out effort to see that the booths are well stocked.

Members are going to be asked to sell tickets on a drawing for a Mix-Master and Electric Percolator, the drawing being made at our next open meeting the last of the year on Oct. 27.

Members who have not already seen the new furnishings of the Hospital lobby, purchased by the Auxiliary should drop by to do so. You will see that your support of the Auxiliary has provided a much-needed necessity which is beautiful, modern and practical. The Purchasing Committee of the Hospital deserves much credit in their choice.

Shower

On Monday evening, Aug. 4th, Miss Kathleen O'Connor was the surprised recipient of a shower in St. Joseph's Parish Hall.

The decorations were both unique and appropriate. A blue and white heart formed the background to the bride's chair, decorated in these same colors. From the centre of the heart swung a white wedding bell. In front of the chair was a blue and white wishing well, in which were placed her gifts, among which was a beautiful chest of silver cutlery.

Kathleen was presented with a corsage, this being the first gift drawn from the wishing well.

After receiving her gifts, the bride-to-be thanked in her usual sweet manner, her guests and hostesses, Mrs. Francis Brethour and Mrs. Frank O'Connor.

To add to the delight of the evening, Miss France Barrette, accompanied on the piano by Miss Carmen Bougie, sang, "I'll take you home again Kathleen," and "Santa Lucia."

The guests were served refreshments which included a piece of the bride's cake which was cut by Kathleen. Thus a very pleasant evening came to a close.

Beauharnois Gardener Is Deaf, Dumb and Blind

Carefully Planned Garden Has All Kinds of Flowers and No Weeds

If you are interested in a garden of beauty unsurpassed, you will then be interested in this story of unusual devotion, courage and perseverance. The garden of which we write contains hundreds of chrysanthemums, sweetpeas, asters, antirrhinums, stocks, gladioli and other flowers and not one weed. This would be an outstanding garden by any standards but the thing is that the owner who, unaided, has created such beauty around his home, is not just a good gardener. He's a gardener who has been deaf and dumb all his life and became blind four years ago. Surely no greater blow than blindness could fall on one who had already lived so long in unbroken silence. Undaunted, the owner planned the garden he loved, but could no longer see. On hands and knees he went around with a foot rule and measured and learned every distance. So that soon he "saw" every inch.

Now he sows seeds tinier than the head of a pin and recognizes seedlings by the touch of a leaf. When he transplants he knows what is true plant and what is weed by the feel of the roots. He digs and hoes guided only by some wooden boards which he lifts and lays as he goes along.

It has been said that nowhere is one nearer God's heart than in a garden. This gardener, working in his garden to bring vision to glorious life — surely God is very near to him.

a watch as an illustration he likened the Christian's life to it. All Christians should have an open face, busy hands, and be known for their good works and reliability.

Letter to the Editor

Rockburn, Quebec,
August 12, 1952

Dear Mr. Editor,

It has been brought to my attention that the sports column in your paper, entitled Covering the Sports, is extremely biased, narrow and windy. In all 12 issues since its introduction in regard to softball coverage ONE team has basked in the subjective case leaving this reader with the unpleasant taste of a one team league.

In the issue of July 30, my associates noted the following comment: "The general consensus of opinion after the game was that it would have been a much better contest if the umpiring had been more efficient."

May we suggest that this general consensus of opinion was that of a few old retainers over a long cold one. It seems rather certain it was not a spectator's opinion since there were very few at the game, nor does it seem to be that of the under-dogs.

May we also observe from a resume of the weekly columns that umpiring attracts either favourable or no comment only when this free-service-man hangs his hat in the same town or is of the calibre that may be persuaded, during the course of one the not infrequent heated discussions, to reverse his initial decision.

Couldn't we hear about a few more league games, at lesser length than in the past? How about a report once in a while from that new diamond at Hemmingford?

Trusting that we may see a change for the better in the near future.

Yours truly,
M. Janek.

Last Sunday, Mr. James Cummings again took charge of the Presbyterian service and gave what might be called a talk on "the superiority of the commonplace", drawn from the story of Naaman when he "turned and went away in a rage", because the prophet gave him so simple a cure for his leprosy. Mr. Cummings cited the common things from which Christ drew lessons, the sparrows, the lilies ,the woman putting yeast in her bread. Then he painted a word picture of the dreams a boy or girl might have of a spectacular future, but which dreams were apt to amount to nothing as the boy grew up to be a good farmer, and the girl developed into a capable housewife, both with opportunities to give help and right direction to other lives, whereas the dreams of youth were all self-centred.

The death of the late Mr. Henry Sayer caused a general feeling of sorrow throughout our community whose farmers he served so well for so many years by his excellent work as a blacksmith, and his skill in difficult repair work. Mr. and Mrs. Sayer had that friendly social spirit which attracted and held friends, and sincere sympathy is felt for the bereaved.

DUNDEE—On Wednesday, Aug. 6, Mrs. Earl Gardiner was hostess to 10 members of the Dundee W.I. who held their regular monthly meeting. An ice-cream social was discussed and it was decided that one would be held in August with Mrs. Earl Gardiner and Mrs. Thos. Stowell at the head of it with each members helping. Each member is to donate a cake and see that it reaches the social if she is unable to attend herself.

Several letters were read, among them one from Mrs. Franklin Cameron thanking members for their good wish to her and baby daughter, and one reminding members of the deplorable condition of women's jails in Quebec and urging members to try once again to get the government to help make conditions better.

Dundee W.I. has been trying to organize a home nursing course but so far has been unsuccessful due to lack of a suitable person to give the lessons. Huntingdon Red Cross has promised to help so possibly a course will be given soon.

The Huntingdon Liberal Association promised a hospital bed and mattress to Dundee W.I. This has not arrived as yet as the Simmons Company say it will be 3 months before they can deliver it. However, Dundee is having correspondence with other communities who have successfully loaned out hospital beds and will have a fixed set of rules concerning the loaning of the bed to all members of the community when it arrives.

Mrs. Thomas Stowell began a discussion about the high cost of farming by reading a statement which said that in 1949 a young man would need $14,000 to start farming and $15,000 for bare necessities. Since then costs have risen considerable and a young man needs help from home or he can't think of farming as his life work.

Mrs. Stowell then conducted a quiz on animal and bird sounds and common expressions. Much merriment was caused by it with Mrs. Chas. Smallman proving herself the champion and receiving the prize.

Donations are still wanted for the overseas box. Anything is acceptable but packaged foods are lighter and easier to pack than canied goods. Cake mixtures, milk powders, cheese, packaged soups, raisins, tapioca, meats, etc., are all good.

Mrs. Stowell ,convener of agriculture, gave some hints to be used by a gardener later in the summer. Grass can be cut higher on the lawn and the clippings left for a mulch, vegetables and flowers may be free of weeds but still need hoeing inorder to make a dust mulch which keeps the ground moist under it.

Mrs. Hugh A. Cameron, convener of education, read an interesting article called "You're not as important as that." It told that people are not noticed as much as they think they are. They have two fears, that of not being noticed and that of being noticed too much, the latter being the stronger fear. One might be exceedingly conscious of one's clothes but others will seldom notice how one is dressed.

Mrs. A. H. Fraser in publicity read a short report about the W.I. in England and also about Great Britain being the country chosen to be studied by the Q.W.I. this year. Representatives from Great Britain will be at the A.C.W.W. Conferencs next year in Toronto and closer ties between the two groups will be created if we know more about the work being done in that country.

Mrs. W. S. Smellie won the household hint prize by saying that by wearing old socks over one's shoes when painting, one could wipe up drops of paint on the floor with one's feet.

Mrs. John Fleming, Mrs. Mary White and Mr. Arthur Gordon returned home the latter part of the week after enjoying a motor trip to Saskatchewan and North and South Dakota. The trio left Dundee on June 16 and travelled by way of North Bay and Sudbury, Ont. They made the return trip by the southern route and crossing the Lakes at the Straits of Mackinaw. They visited the Alex. Arthur's in Grenfell, Sask., and other relatives in that area. The most of their time was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Brodie Gordon of Willow City, N.D. While in the Dakotas they visited the Bad Lands of North Dakota where the Memorial Park for Theodore Roosevelt is located. They also were able to see Mt. Rushmore in South Dakota where the busts of four of the Past Presidents of the U.S. are carved on the side of the mountain. The four Presidents are Lincoln, Jefferson, Washington and Theodore Roosevelt. In the Black Hills of South Dakota is located a natural amphitheatre at a place called Spearfish. Here the Passion Play is presented in a natural outdoor setting. Some of the original players from Oberammagau in Germany were on the cast and the play is very wonderful to see. While away the party also visited the Frasers in Washburn, Wisconsin. Altogether the mileage on the trip amounted to 6300 miles.

No Lifts, Please, For B.C. Pedestrian On 4,000-mile Hike

Prince Rupert, B.C., (CP)—James Cusack has started on a hike across Canada with a reminder to motorists that he isn't interested in hitching rides, thank you.

At noon, Wednesday, Aug. 6th, Cusack strapped a 35-pound pack on his back and, with supreme confidence in the toughness of his feet, began a 4,000-mile journey from Prince Rupert to St. Johns, Nfld.

He plans to hoof it all the way with the exception of taking a boat from the mainland to the island province.

The 47-year-old hiker, until recently an automobile parts manager for a garage here, said he made up his mind 15 years ago 'to some day walk across the width of Canada."

Cusack, who "hopes to be in Eastern Canada by New Year's Day," is carrying a message of goodwill from Stan Saville, president of the Prince Rupert Kinsmen Club, to the president of the St. John's Kinsmen.

Woman Crack Shot Hubby Her Mentor

MONCTON, N.B., (CP)—Mrs. W. R. Mitchell, wife of a reserve army sergeant, learned from her husband how to handle firearms but the pupil soon outshone the teacher.

Both were on the New Brunswick team taking part in the Maritime rifle meet in Charlottetown, won by the Nova Scotia team.

Mrs. Mitchell was one of the two women at the meet. Miss Elsie Strong of Windsor, N.S., became the first woman to shoot in a Maritime meet when she made the Nova Scotia team last year.

The way her husband recalls it, Mrs. Mitchell became a rifle enthusiast because he was away shooting so often she got tired of waiting at home and decided to take part in the sport herself. Soon she outshot him.

Her scores are consistently high. She has scored marks of 100 out of a possible 105 points, shooting at ranges of 200, 500 and 600 yards.

Wedding

CRAIGHEAD—BRADSHAW

The marriage of Audrey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Bradshaw, of Bedford, to Mr. Richard W. Craighead, son of the late Mr. R. L. Craighead and Mrs. Craighead of Bedford, took place on Saturday afternoon, July 26, at half-past four o'clock in St. James Anglican Church, Bedford, the Rev. F. W. Gedye of St. John's Church, Brome, officiating. Mrs. H. W. Jones played the wedding music and Mr. Alexander MacArthur sang during the signing of the register. White gladioli were used to decorate the church.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a gown of white lace over taffeta, having a moulded bodice with a Peter Pan collar, long fitted sleeves and a full skirt. Her veil of tulle illusion was held by a small lace cap and she carried a bouquet of baby's breath, Pinocchio roses and white heather, sent from Scotland.

Mrs. John Ewing, as matron of honor, and Mrs. William Jackson, sister of the bridegroom, and Mrs. J. F. Davidson and Miss Elizabeth Bradshaw, sisters of the bride, as attendants, wore frocks of net over taffeta, the matron of honor being in hyacinthe blue and the attendants in pale mauve, dusty pink and buttercup yellow respectively. They wore small caps caught with large tulle bows to match and bracelets of sweet peas. Little Miss Pam Davidson, niece of the bride, as flower girl, was in a short frock of white nylon, smocked in pale pink and blue. She wore a matching bandeau and carried a nosegay of rosebuds and cornflowers.

Mr. Eric Jones acted as best man for his cousin, and the ushers were Mr. William Jackson, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, Mr. W. MacIntyre Bradshaw, brother of the bride, and Mr. Fred Gilman.

Mrs. Bradshaw, the bride's mother ,was gowned in grey lace taffeta and wore a large black hat and a corsage bouquet of Pinocchio roses.

The reception was held in the Masonic Temple Hall, decorated with sweetpeas in pastel shades.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Craighead left for Cape Cod, Mass., and the Maritimes, the bride travelling in an off-white gabardine suit and wearing a natural color straw hat with brown accessories and a corsage of gardenias.

Changes in Unemployment Insurance Act Now in Effect

Unemployed Canadians who are covered by Unemployment Insurance are now drawing benefits at new, higher rates this week, Hon. Milton F. Gregg, Minister of Labour, announced today.

Mr. Gregg explained that the new rates were among the amendments to the Unemployment Insurance Act authorized by Parliament. The amendments were effective July 14 and the new benefit rates became payable this week.

The major amendments to the Act, besides providing for higher benefit rates with no increase in contributions, also reduced the number of "waiting days" and extended the time during which workers in seasonal industries can draw supplementary benefits.

The increased benefit rates apply to the top five of the seven benefit classes. In the top class, a person with a dependent is now entitled to $24 instead of $21 weekly, and the other groups have been raised proportionately.

The Unemployment Insurance Advisory Committee, which includes representatives of national labour organizations and of national employer's organizations, after review of the benefit rates, had decided that an increase was justified for these top benefit classes. The new increases raise the benefits in the top classes from 43.8 to 50 per cent of minimum earnings for the class. In the lower benefit classes, the rate of benefit for a person with a dependent was already 83 per cent of the minimum earnings for the class, and it had not been considered necessary to raise the benefits for these two classes.

Following is a table giving old benefit rates and the new rates:

Weekly Earnings	Rate of Benefit: Person without a dependent, Old rate	New rate	Person with a dependent, Old rate	New rate
Less than $9.00	$4.20	$4.20	$4.80	$4.80
$9.00 to $14.99	6.00	6.00	7.50	7.50
15.00 to 20.99	8.10	8.70	10.20	12.00
21.00 to 26.99	10.20	10.80	12.90	15.00
27.00 to 33.99	12.30	12.90	15.60	18.00
34.00 to 47.99	14.40	15.00	18.30	21.00
48.00 or more	16.20	17.10	21.00	24.00

A second amendment reduced from 8 days to 5 days the period which a person claiming unemployment insurance must wait in any one benefit year before drawing benefits. The purpose of "waiting days" is to eliminate claims for short periods and thus to keep the cost of contributions lower for all insured persons.

The unemployment insurance was in such a sound position that it was now considered possible to reduce this period by 3 days without increasing the rate of contribution.

The amendment relating to supplementary benefits for seasonal workers increases the period each year during which these benefits are payable, by 15 days. Supplementary benefits, introduced two years ago, provided for the payment of benefit, at about 80 per cent of the normal rate, to seasonal workers who had exhausted their regular benefits or who could not qualify for regular benefits.

At present, supplementary benefits are payable from January 1 to March 31. Experience had shown that this period was too short and the new amendment makes the benefits payable until April 15 each year.

A new clause was also introduced into the Unemployment Insurance Act to provide that there should be no discrimination by the National Employment Service in referring workers to employment on the basis of race, colour, creed or political affiliations. Mr. Gregg said that this was not a new policy—it had been included for a number of years in the manual of instructions of the Employment Service, but it had been felt desirable, however, to place the will of Parliament on record by including it in the statute. Also, since the Employment Service was closely associated with employers all across Canada, it had been felt that the amendment might help, by way of example, to further the progress that has been made in Canada in tolerance and non-discrimination.

The Minister said that other amendments to the Act, to go into effect on the same date, were designed to increase the administrative efficiency of the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

Language Students Make Queer Errors

Quebec, Aug. (CP)—Miss Valerie Fielden-Briggs of Toronto, teaching summer French courses at Laval University, described in light vein some mistakes made in French grammar and pronunciation by new students.

In an article which appeared in Potin, (Chit-Chat) weekly mimeographed organ of the university French courses, she explained the errors were mistakes anyone could make when studying a new language.

A girl being introduced to Quebec's lieutenant-governor, Gaspard Fauteux, slipped in acknowledging "Je suis charmante!" (I am charming) instead of the traditional "Je suis charmee" (I am charmed).

Another student translated "I was left behind" into "Je suis gauche derriere", which could mean "I am leftist behind".

Tough ones to explain in English are something like the student who said Joan of Arc died on the "boucher" (butcher) instead of "bucher" (at the stake).

Predicts Big Year For Niagara Falls

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., (CP) — Another record year is predicted for Ontario's Niagara parks system, The Niagara Parks Commission administers the 3,000-acre system which parallels the Niagara River from Lake Erie to Lake Ontario.

Despite prolonged wet and cool spells in the spring, travel in the parks system was comparable to the same period a year ago.

"Each year we feel that we have reached the peak, but the following year brings an increase," said Labor Minister Charles Daley, commission chairman, recently. He said that in a six-month period May to October last year 1,485,668 vehicles had entered Queen Victoria Park. That was 106,000 more than the previous year.

To warrant and accommodate this increasing visitor influx, the commission is alert to develop new facilities and improve those already serving the public. Mr. Daley pointed to the improved traffic handling facilities at Mather Park adjacent to the Peace Bridge at Fort Erie. It provides an entirely new highway entrance to Old Fort Erie built on reclaimed swamp land. The Mather Park project completes a program launched in 1936.

Considerable improvement has been made in the Dufferin Island park facilities where grading and a general clean-up of the area will increase its usefulness for the public, the chairman reported.

Despite cancellation of the steamer service between Toronto and Niagara-on-the-Lake and Queenston, which normally brought thousands of holidayers from the Toronto area, picnic bookings for both Queenston Heights and Queen Victoria Park are greater than 1951. In June, scores of thousands of school children from many sections of Ontario and neighboring United States points visited Fort George at Niagara and Old Fort Erie in groups, free of charge, to inspect the restored forts, clothing, and other articles of more than a century ago preserved in historic museums.

Continuing improvement in the fairways and greens of the 18-hole Niagara Parks Golf Course was noted by Mr. Daley. Opened a year ago, the course attracted close to 25,000 players last year. More than 3,000 played the course during May, a gain over last year.

Notable Antiques Sold by Auction

ROCHES POINT, July (CP) — Art-lovers were offered an unusual opportunity to buy antiques at an auction held on the McKinnon estate near this Lake Simcoe resort recently.

Such items as a Drambuie decanter, a Persian cigaret box, a gold lacquered Tibetan llama's cap and an Italian pottery tea set were quickly sold. Other sales varied from a 1790 Nailsea jug to a medieval carving in relief of a female figure.

Book lovers wasted no time in purchasing an eight-volume 1773 edition of the work of Shakespeare and a 12-volume collection of Samuel Johnson's writings, printed in 1793.

Constructed in 1925, the 28-room Tudor House with its 15 acres estate was sold recently to Ed. Smith, a Toronto stock broker. It is valued at $500,000.

USE FRUIT IN SEASON

Fruit is a refreshing addition to any meal — and it is tasty between meals too. The light delicate flavours of most fruits are good by themselves and they blend well with many other foods. When in season and plentiful, fruit is not only a good buy but a time-saving, easy way to serve better meals. Use it, not only as an appetizer or dessert, but with the main course as well. Fruit adds pleasing contrast to most meats — for instance, broiled or baked peach halves, spiced or filled with jelly, are delicious with cooked ham. Freshly made applesauce or cooked apple rings are standard fare with pork dishes while baked pears are refreshing with many other meat dishes.

Serve fruit in different ways for variety. One of the best ways is raw, so pack an apple or a pear in a lunch box for dessert or keep a fruit bowl on the table filled with ripe, luscious assorted fruits like grapes, apples, pears and peaches. For an appetizer or dessert, a fresh fruit cup is always a favourite.

Even in the midst of the fresh fruit season, stewed fruit is a welcome change. When stewing apples, pears, peaches and plums, simmer the fruit in water until tender before adding sugar to taste. This gives a better fruit flavour.

To make puréed fruit, quarter and slice the fruit (it is not necessary to peel it), then cook, covered, until tender in just enough water to keep it from sticking. When it is tender, strain to remove the skin and cores, then add sugar to taste, and reheat. For a change, add a little cinnamon or lemon juice.

Peaches should be peeled for baking, but pears may be baked in their skins. To bake just cut them in half, then sprinkle with either brown or white sugar and lemon juice, dot with butter and bake in a moderate oven of 350-375°F. These fruits can also be broiled. To do it place the prepared fruit on the broiler pan, sprinkle with sugar and baste with tart fruit juice. Dot with butter and broil until tender.

There are many other delicious dishes that can be made with fruit — tempting pies and tarts, mouth-watering puddings, whips, ice creams, ices and eye catching jellies.

When serving fruit, enhance the flavour with small amounts of spices. Cinnamon is commonly added to apple pie or applesauce but it can also be used with plums and peaches, either in pie or sauce. To complement the flavour of a sour cherry pie or cherry sauce, try a bit of mace. Ginger is good with a fruit Betty, and lemon juice or vinegar, used sparingly, adds a little tartness to blueberries. A fruit cup is most refreshing if mint is added to it, and a pinch of marjoram adds an unusual and fresh flavour to fruit salad. Another is to serve a favourite cheese with fruit. Whether it is a salad, a pie or just a plain fruit bowl, it is a superb combination.

As a special treat make some jam or conserve now for enjoying later in the year. Here is a recipe for Peach Conserve from the home economsits of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture.

PEACH CONSERVE

3 medium oranges
3 cups water
1 16-oz. bottle maraschino cherries
9 cups sugar
8 cups peaches cut into small cubes

Slice orange thinly then cut into cubes. Place in kettle, add water and simmer until tender but not soft, about 20 minutes. Meanwhile, drain cherries, reserving the juice, and cut cherries into quarters. To the cooked oranges, add peaches, sugar and the juice from cherries and cook until thickened, about 20 minutes. Add cherries and boil 5 minutes longer. Pour into sterilized jars leaving at least 1/4 inch headspace. Cool slightly then pour a thin layer of melted paraffin over the jam. Leave until hardened then add a second layer of paraffin.

CRUNCHY PORK SALAD

½ cup chopped mushrooms
1 tablespoon mild flavoured fat
2 cups diced cooked pork
1 cup diced celery
1½ tablespoons diced green pepper
3 tablespoons diced unpeeled apples

OR

slivered toasted almonds
Mayonnaise or cooked salad dressing
Salt and pepper to taste

Sauté mushrooms in fat until lightly brown. Drain and cool. Combine cooked mushrooms, pork, celery, green pepper and apple or almonds. Add sufficient mayonnaise or salad dressing to moisten and season to taste with salt and pepper. Yield: 6 servings.

JELLIED HAM ROLLS

1 cup cottage cheese
¼ cup prepared horseradish
1 tablespoon cream or milk
⅛ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon salt
6 slices cooked ham
2 tablespoons gelatine
¼ cup cold water
1¼ cup boiling water
1/3 cup vinegar
2 tablespoons sugar
Dash of cayenne
¼ cup seedless raisins

Make a paste of cheese, horseradish, cream, pepper and salt. Spread generously on thin slices of ham. Roll tightly. Arrange rolls in mould. Soak gelatine in cold water, add boiling water to which vinegar, sugar, salt and cayenne have been added. Cool. Pour over ham rolls, sprinkle raisins over gelatine portion and chill. When thoroughly set, cut each roll, oblong shape, and serve on crisp lettuce.

JELLIED FRUIT SALAD

2 tablespoon gelatine
¾ cup cold water
1½ tablespoons sugar
1¾ cups boiling water
3¾ cups of sliced peaches, diced cantaloupe and raspberries

OR

3¾ cups sliced pears, diced watermelon and pitted cherries

Soak gelatine in cold water for five minutes. Add the soaked gelatine and sugar to the boiling water and stir until dissolved. Chill until partially set. Fold in peaches, cantaloupe and raspberries. Turn into moistened jelly moulds and chill until firm. Yield: 5 to 6 servings.

Note:— To mould in small cantaloupes, cut a slice from the top of the cantaloupe, remove seeds and peel. Fill centre with jellied salad. When set, cut in slices and serve garnished on lettuce or other greens.

For You Madam

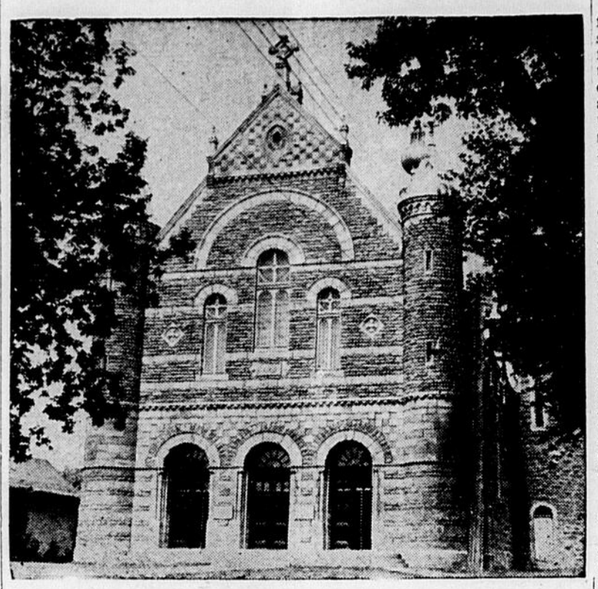

Quebec W.I.

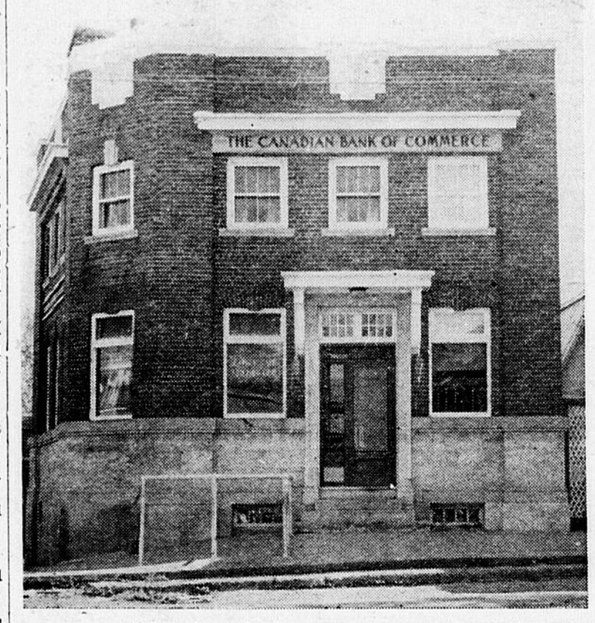

Winners of the scholarships offered annually by the Quebec Women's Institutes, in the School of Household Science, Macdonald College, have just been announced. These are Miss Lorna E. Fleming, Dundee, who receives the Macfarlane Memorial, and Miss Gertrude E. MacEwen, Buckingham, the Mrs. Alfred Watt Memorial. Both scholarships are valued at $50.

The first was established in memory of the first Q.W.I. demonstrator, Frederica Campbell Macfarlane, 1913-1919, and is awarded to a student from a rural district of this province who obtains highest standing in any of the first three years of the B.Sc. (H.Ec.) Course at Macdonald College. The second scholarship is to perpetuate the memory of the late Mrs. Alfred Watt, M.B.E., the Canadian woman who took the Women's Institute to Great Britain and later organized and became the first president of the Associated Country Women of the World. This is also given to a student of rural Quebec, and in the same course, but stresses other attributes such as personality, and qualities of leadership.

Both girls were highly recommended for these awards by the staff of that Department and the Q.W.I. executive was pleased to confirm the selection of such suitable candidates.

Were you able to identify the photos in last week's quiz? The top photo was a view of the Champlain Milk Factory situated on the Athelstan Road on the outskirts of the village of Athelstan. No doubt if you are a resident of Athelstan or any of the surrounding district you would have no difficulty identifying that photo correctly. In the lower picture is a church which is also simple for the residents of the Huntingdon or Athelstan districts. It is St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, situated on the corner of Prince and Bouchette Sts. in Huntingdon.

These pictures are published in the Gleaner with the thought of increasing your knowledge of this district. All you have to do is to identify the pictures and wait until the next issue to determine whether your guess was correct.

In this week's quiz the top photograph is, as you can see, a church. Can you correctly identify this church and tell where it is located? There is a bank building in nearly every town and city. Can you tell us the town or village in which the bank pictured in the lower photo is situated?

Health

Prenatal

Since the life of a baby starts before it is born, prospective mothers should guard their own and their future child's health by close attention to diet. Vitamin D, so necessary to the growing baby, is also advisable for the mother previous to the birth. Prenatal care supplying guidance as to exercise, choice of food and general health rules helps to protect both mother and infant.

Cheese For Health

Cheese is one of our tastiest and most nourishing foods. It makes an excellent substitute for meat since it is rich in proteins as well as in minerals and vitamins. With the wide variety of cheese available, both domestic and imported, there is plenty of scope for individual taste, ranging from the very mature and tangy kinds to the mild cottage or cream cheeses. Eaten plain, with just bread to accompany it, or cooked with or without other ingredients to make up an elaborate dish, cheese can make a wholesome, nourishing and flavorful dish.

Green Stuff

While homegrown vegetables are still in season, there should be plenty of salads and other vegetable dishes on the table. Although, thanks to modern refrigerated transportation, we are able to obtain most of them all year around, those that are grown on nearby farms are fresher and even more delicious than those that have been travelling for a long distance. It should be remembered that among the leafy vegetables, the darker outside leaves contain more vitamins than the paler inside ones.

Food and Fatigue

If during the morning's work, there is a growing feeling of tiredness, it is a good idea to check back on the breakfast that was or was not eaten. If it consisted of a hastily swallowed cup of coffee, with no solid food, that is probably the cause of the fatigue. A good breakfast is even more important than a good lunch since it is usually the first food taken after a foodless period of from twelve to sixteen hours. If there was no breakfast, then the body may actually be in acute need of nourishment. Fruit juice, hot cereal, an egg or bacon and toast, with a hot beverage, will help to keep the worker on his toes for the morning.

Sunshine Vitamin

To protect a child against rickets, weak or poorly formed bones and teeth, he should be given Vitamin D from birth to the age of sixteen. Usually called the sunshine vitamin, it is not supplied naturally in sufficient quantities in our country. It can be given, however, in capsule, tablet or liquid form, to the required amount.

Medicine Cabinet

The medicine chest which should hold many things that could save life in an emergency, may also be a dangerous article if it is not carefully guarded. Many bottles contain drugs and chemicals which might be quite innocuous to a healthy adult but which would be dangerous to a small child. Most youngsters promptly swallow anything their small hands may seize upon. By keeping the cabinet locked or at least placed out of reach, small children will be protected from a serious danger. It is a good idea, for everyone's protection, to place a band of adhesive tape around bottles containing any poison, as a reminder that the contents are dangerous. The name of the drug should be printed in large letters on the tape.

Germany's "Little Man's Car" Coming to Canadian Market

The Volkswagen,, the "little man's car" promised but never put out by Hitler, is coming to Canada.

The car's first stop will be at this year's Canadian National Exhibition, (Toronto, Aug. 22-Sept. 6) where it will be launched along a sales road which, it is planned, will eventually see the establishment of an importing company (probably Volkswagen Canada Ltd.) backed up by a coast-to-coast service-dealer organization.

Final sales destination, still in the dim future, but already being discussed, is the building of a Canadian assembly plant, probably in the vicinity of Toronto.

Today's Volkswagen is a small, well-built vehicle that is claimed to drive 40 miles per gallon, and to be the most economical car on the highways of the world. It has a seating capacity of five, three forward and one reverse gears, and can attain a top speed of 75 mph.

It's run by a four-cylinder, 25 brake hp, air-cooled engine in the rear. Luggage is stored under the front hood. "Unit construction" allows a complete engine change in no more than two hours.

With an eye on what the Canadian weather can do to the small car, the company boasts:

"The Volkswagen is unaffected by extreme weather, as the air cooling system will not suffer due to temperature changes."

History of the Volkswagen

The car was a dream-child of Adolph Hitler. In 1938 he built a factory and a town near Braunschweig, in Lower Saxony, to turn out a low-priced car in huge quantities. Money was raised through the Labor Front, whose members pledged their savings for the project in the hope of getting a cheap car.

War came before the factory was completed and its facilities were converted to making jeeps and amphibious armored cars.

When the Hitler regime was defeated, the plant was put under the custodianship of the British. A strange situation developed as no one really owns or can claim the factory or real estate, estimated to be worth nearly $100 millions.

The land belonged to a Nazi holding company, Neuland Inc., while the plant was held by Volkswagenwerke Inc. The British Military Government seized the assets of both companies and held them until 1949, when they were handed over to the newly organized West German Government for disposal. Since then, there has been strong agitation by the Socialists and Communists in the Bonn parliament for nationalization of the automobile company. The question of ownership remains unsettled and German courts are busy trying to untangle the situation.

Meanwhile, under the management of 52-year-old Heinz Nordhoff, originally appointed by the British, the plant's car output has been mushrooming. From 19,220 units in 1948, annual production jumped to 46,600 in 1949, 90,600 in 1950, and 105,500 last year. A finished car now leaves the plant every two minutes.

Part of Export Plans

The Volkswagen's trip to Canada is part of Western Germany's all-out export drive, designed to push the country back to its pre-war position as a world trader.

Though 12 German car manufacturers already export their products, the Volkswagen will be the first to enter the Canadian market. The company already sells its cars in 34 countries, including the U.S. Nearly 50,000 Volkswagens, roughly one third the estimated 1952 production, will be sold outside Germany this year.

The CNE exhibit, including a complete line of the company's output, (stationwagons, sedans, coaches, etc.), will be in charge of O. W. Jensen, a vice-president of the German automobile giant.

Napper in Barrington; the meeting was to be in the form of a weiner roast and the fire was to be outside and the weiners were to be roasted over the fire, but due to the weatherman changing his mind on the evening of August 2nd, it rained. Their spirits were not dampened by the weather, however, and Mrs. Napper was kind enough to let them have the use of her home and the weiners were enjoyed inside.

Canadian Farm Products Provide Year-round Salads

Most of the common Canadian vegetables were known and used in the days long before the birth of Christ. Herodotus the Greek historian tells us that lettuce was served at the Royal tables 2,500 years ago; wild cabbage, the common ancestor of cauliflower, was eaten by man over 4,000 years ago; cabbage and parsnips were known to the ancient Romans; carrots and asparagus go back to pre-historic times; records indicate the cultivation of beets in 300 B.C.; and celery, onions and tomatoes come of ancient lineage.

There is considerable doubt, however, whether the vegetables of those early days would be recognized beside their descendants of today. Ages of cultivation together with scientific plant breeding in more recent times, have doubtless changed them almost beyond recognition.

Not only has the plant breeder and the market gardener been responsible for today's attractive vegetables; where they have finished, other specialists have taken over. Probably at no other time is so much study and research being given to the storing, transportation, packaging, and marketing of Canadian fruits and vegetables, so that they may reach the consumer in appetizing and attractive form whether for fresh salads, for cooking, for canning or fast-freezing.

And probably more families today are realizing the nutritional value of plenty of fruits and vegetables and appreciating the many ways in which they can be served. It is not so long ago that vegetables were almost always cooked — often losing much of their goodness in the process. Today it is realized that many Canadian vegetables can be used raw, combined to make a crisp, colourful salad. Naturally the summertime, when heavier meals are not so attractive, is the ideal time for housewives to display their ingenuity with salads which will make the whole family ask for more. But canning, fast-freezing, individual storage lockers, all combine to supply housewives with the ingredients for tasty salads the year round. A meal is always a little better with a salad.

Constructive Salesmanship

Salesmanship deserves a high place in public esteem. It is the salesman who keeps the factory wheels turning, and all of us are salesmen of something or other.

Salesmanship calls for certain qualities which combine to make the sales effort constructive. Insofar as it is constructive, selling tends to be efficient.

These qualities have no definite number. Indeed, it is unlikely that any two sales managers in a hundred would list precisely the same characteristics they seek in their salesmen, and everyone knows how salesmen themselves disagree about the attributes of a good salesman. But there are basic qualities which it is good to keep in mind.

Salesmanship, which some describe as the art of persuasion, is as ancient as speech itself. Not everyone is a professional salesman, but all of us who come in contact with other people are engaged in selling. It might almost be said that the man living alone on a desert island sells too: he talks or thinks himself into doing things he believes will be for his lonely welfare.

Examples of selling which are not ordinarily classified as salesmanship are: the lawyer who pleads his case in court, the writer who presents a social cause, the politician seeking votes, the clergyman who delivers an axhortation to his congregation: all these are practising the principles of selling. It is paradoxical that even those who for political purposes run down the free enterprise system are using the techniques of salesmanship in promoting their viewpoint.

The presidents of many great corporations and financial institutions owe their positions primarily to their ability as salesmen, although many of them have never been actually engaged in selling goods.

The Need for Selling

Selling is not merely a device for increasing one company's sales over another: it is a contribution of great magnitude in maintaining our standard of living. A recent article in Fortune remarked that not even the most enthusiastic exponent of the rat would claim that selling can turn depression into boom, but it plays a preventive role.

One major purpose in business today is to develop markets big enough to keep the bulk of our labour force profitably employed. The progress in technology and production has posed a significant problem. Selling must match large-scale production with effective markets.

Some persons profess to believe in some future wherein salesmen will not be needed, because buying will have reached a saturation point. But human wants will never be satisfied, and there are always new devices being made to create new wants.

Not so long ago we took it for granted that inventors lived lives of penury and ended up as charitable cases. It took many years for the product of an inventor's thought to reach the people who could use it with advantage. Today's salesman takes care of that: he introduces the article, and in a few months or a year he has helped to build up a flourishing industry around the inventor's thought.

Creative selling of that sort is taken for granted as part of our economic system. It is followed by service selling which brings repeat orders and keeps the purchaser satisfied.

To put it in an elementary way, any reduction in selling activity would inevitably result in fewer orders, in consequent lower production and in unemployment.

A Salesman's Qualities

In addition to knowing his product, the salesman of goods or services is faced with the problem of learning how to sell his information in such a way that the prospect will want to buy.

The moral qualities needed in selling are the qualities of any good citizen, qualities which are shortly and completely covered by the Golden Rule. Sincerity is necessary — sincerity which means honesty of mind or intention. Unless a salesman has won the customer's confidence he has not made a complete sale. He has not gained prestige for his company, or honour for himself.

A salesman must have high confidence in his goods and in his company. He needs unbounded patience, based upon good knowledge of human nature. His skill in working with people so as to gain their merited confidence, leading them to agree to his proposals, must be of a high order.

The salesman who wins preeminence in his business is one who puts his heart into his work. He analyses every prospective customer to determine his needs, and this preliminary work is evidence of a frank effort to help solve the customer's problems. He takes stock of himself, every once in a while, to find ways in which he can improve his selling methods, his understanding of human qualities, and his service to people.

The good salesman knows that he will be very unhappy if he sells something the customer cannot use to advantage. He knows that his peace of mind and his pride in his job require strong, positive business qualities.

Enthusiasm is needed. It gives the salesman's effort a vital quality, makes him optimistic and forceful, and by creating a bond of sympathy between buyer and salesman it changes prospects' apathy to interest. Customers usually prefer to do business with a salesman who is enthusiastic about his product and his firm, because the salesman's loyalty gives the customer confidence in both product and company.

Personality, so much lauded as an asset of salesmen, is not a uniform put on for the occasion of calls on prospects. It is made up of all the qualities heretofore mentioned and many others arising out of mentality, education, beliefs and experience.

Mere geniality will not do as a substitute for personality. The smile with which a prospect is greeted needs to spring from knowledge of the service the salesman is in a position to give, confidence in his integrity, and a feeling of happiness that he is meeting the prospect with these in his mind.

Salesmanship demands study as well as experience. The study educates, while experience puts lessons to the test. Ambitious salesmen will read widely, not only in business and technical literature, but in cultural subjects — economics, philosophy, biography and travel, among others. It pays to be well-primed on topics of general significance which prospects will likely take pleasure in discussing.

Knowing Your Product

Among the many qualifications of a well-rounded salesman the most important is knowledge of his goods. And he needs to know in terms of interest of the man who is going to use them.

The more the salesman knows about what he is selling, the better he can shape his sales story. The more the salesman can show his acquaintanceship with the qualities and uses of his goods, the greater will be the confidence of the customer in giving an order. The customer cannot be expected to respect a salesman who has not enough respect for himself to become acquainted with the products he sells.

An ambitious salesman will wish to know more than anyone else about the articles he sells, because he knows that, when he becomes an authority on their make-up and their use, his value to his company merits recognition. The salesman who can give ten good, sound reasons why his product should be purchased is in much better selling position than he who has only five reasons. But his ten reasons must be founded on facts which he knows, so that his confidence becomes infective.

This sort of knowledge does not come from scanning catalogues, manuals or fly-sheets. It demands analysis: what is the article made of? what will it do? what are its particular strengths and weaknesses? how long will it last? can parts be replaced readily? what are the features which make the best selling arguments for this article? it is as good as the best in its field?

This analysis demands more than knowledge of his own article: it means knowledge of competing articles of a similar nature, so that the salesman can make clear why his particular article should appeal to this particular prospect. Perhaps the customer does not know, precisely, as much as he might about what he requires. The salesman who can enlighten him will be welcomed.

What is the Appeal?

There are many things that may serve as the basis of a selling talk. The clever salesman is the one who can light unerringly upon the one best suited to his prospect of the moment.

The customer's interests must be paramount in selecting selling points. From the very beginning, the salesman should be thinking "you" and not "I" or "my company."

He who relies upon argument is leaning on a weak reed. Persuasion is what wins sales. It is easy to win an argument and lose a sale. It is the part of the good salesman to persuade toward a sale and win a customer.

Persuasion is based, among other things, on knowledge of what makes men tick. It requires acquaintanceship with human instincts, which are still, in spite of our advancement in culture, powerful in provoking us to action.

Persuasion may be exercised in words or in direct appeal to one of the buyer's senses. It avoids, courteously, a head-on collision about some doubtful point. It doesn't talk down to the prospect, but keeps itself on the informative plane.

Persuasion means knowing the answers in advance. The salesman will try to anticipate every objection, and be ready with a persuasive reply. Sometimes it may be wise not to wait for an anticipated objection, but to work the answer smoothly into your conversation. Once let a man express his objection or criticism and you have a most difficult task to persuade him to abandon his position.

When your customer feels in his heart that you are genuinely interested in him, and want to help him understandingly, you have progressed a long way toward a sale. He feels important, because you have taken the trouble to study him and his needs. William James, the great psychologist, wrote: "The deepest need in human nature is the craving to be appreciated."

Why Do People Buy?

More sales can be made by the salesman who investigates carefully the reasons why buyers enter the market. Sometimes the prospect does not even know that he wants what the salesman has to sell; at other times he is wavering between wanting and not wanting.

Usually, buying is set in motion by one of these desires: gain, utility, prestige, pleasure. If the product promises to give a new benefit, or to protect a benefit the prospect already has, then the product has high appeal. There still remains the task of enabling the prospect to decide that there is a strong logical reason for his purchase, and that your product will satisfy his desire in a better way than others would.

These convictions must be presented by the salesman in a way to be understood, and the salesman must have put his finger on the compelling motive or much of his sales talk will be wasted or harmful.

From a long list of selling points, it may be difficult to select those that will best sell a product. It is here that the salesman has the apportunity to use his knowledge of human nature and his intelligent application of what he has learned about his goods. The selection needs to be made anew for each prospect on the basis of the salesman's observation and his summing up of the prospect's interests at the moment.

The art of creative salesmanship consists largely in showing people how certain goods may satisfy wants. He is a wise salesman who can discern with some degree of accuracy what rates highest in the prospect's mind, and then show how the product or service meets that requirement. When there is a meeting of the mind of the buyer with that of the seller, a sale results.

This is a programme for salesmen which demands hard work and straight thinking. Constructive selling is not the easiest of jobs. The solution of its problems calls for perseverance and courage and initiative and imagination. It is a programme, too, which requires planning. Many otherwise well qualified salesmen are being kept from advancement to more important positions chiefly because they shun system and defy orderliness in the way they go about their work.

On Sales Presentation

The salesman who does not think and plan ahead approaches his sales presentation at a disadvantage. He may be stopped at once by an outright adverse decision to which he has no adequate response, or by failing to look ahead he may lose the sale before making an opportunity to demonstrate the product.

Whatever qualities there are in goods offered for sale, they need to be reduced to terms of presentation. The qualities of the goods may be obvious, but the salesman must be able to draw attention to them in dramatic and favourable terms. His presentation should be clear, adequate and convincing.

Many sales executives believe that the first ten words of the presentation are the most important: they are to the presentation what the headline is to a newspaper report. Two of those ten words might well be "you" and "your." The salesman is there to say what the prospect will like to hear, and not what the salesman wants to say.

It is widely accepted that a demonstration should be worked into the presentation whenever the nature of the commodity permits. It usually displays the attractive physical qualities of the product, or the ease and effectiveness of use.

Words are often not so influential as a simple demonstration, particularly when it is possible to develop activity by the prospect. An invitation to test a sample, to note the purity of tone of an instrument, to handle and examine, and to operate: such an invitation rivets the prospect's attention, gives him a feeling of participation, and offers him the chance to show his knowledge.

There is this limitation to be observed: it is unwise to invite the prospect to operate a machine unless the salesman is sure that he is expert enough or adept enough to do the thing well. And there is this qualification needed in the salesman: he should use the equipment to illustrate his sales presentation, and not his talk to explain the equipment.

Important as is the zeal to talk and demonstrate during the presentation, a salesman must learn how and when to keep silent. Many a prospect will sell himself if he is left alone to think through in his own way. He may even take pleasure in doing so, but will resent any evidence of sales pressure.

Sales presentations all lead up to the point where the salesman sees the customer sign on a dotted line. The only sales that pay are sales that are closed.

Experts in merchandising like Dr. Nystrom believe that the closing begins at the opening of the presentation. The sole aim of the interview is to get the prospect to buy. At what stage that decision should be reached taxes the best understanding of the salesman. This moment may be at hand at the beginning of the sales presentation, or it may occur before the salesman is half way through his standard talk. It may be missed by an undiscerning man who is intent on telling his whole story as laid down in the manuel, or the opportunity may be lost if the salesman does not interpret aright certain little signs given by the prospect's questions.

When the closing argument is being worked up to, the salesman's effort should be to introduce into the prospect's mind some picture of himself as the central figure together with the commodity being sold: enjoying it, using it, or being admired or it.

About Avoiding Routine

Creative salesmanship doesn't recognize as salesmen those who spread out, in cafeteria style, what they have to sell, and wait for the customer to decide whether he can use it, how much and when, and give them an order.

Others use the standard form of sales presentation, without deviation. The prepared and tested presentation is useful to the beginning salesman. It provides him with a track on which to run till he sets up his own communications. It is useful, too, on days when, in spite of all his efforts, a salesman can't seem to be original. But as it is sometimes used the set talk sounds very like a schoolboy's rehearsal of a part in a play, something without spontaneity and conviction. The good salesman will modify and add to his standard talk in keeping with the need of tying his proposition closely to the prospect's interests.

Selling, whether by the representative of a great industrial concern or by a store clerk, is what the individual makes it. The salesman or saleswoman in even the most humble behind-the-counter position can add interest to life by applying, within the limits of the job, the principles that have been mentioned as good for the most exalted salesman: sincerity, courtesy, knowledge, and giving timely thought and advice to customers. They can turn routine wrapping of merchandise into an exciting adventure, good for both them and for their stores.

A Good Policy

Constructive salesmanship recognizes that there must be at least two beneficiaries to every sale: the buyer and the seller. It is not ethical, by today's selling code, to sell a person anything that he cannot use to advantage, any more than it would be to sell goods under false pretense as to their quality.

The average customer is not an expert in the thing he is buying. He doesn't know nearly as much about it as the salesman does. This lays upon the salesman an obligation to protect the customer, and to give him, if possible, something better than he would, according to the strict letter of the contract, expect to receive.

Salesmen, sales managers and firms which pursue such a policy will find that they are making their businesses financially better.

The success of a business, in all but a small proportion of cases, is based upon repeat sales. These depend mainly upon these points: the honest value (plus value if possible) given in the original sale; the sincerity of the salesman in thinking of the customer's interests; the integrity of the firm in seeing that the salesman's promises and pledges are lived up to; and the follow-through to make sure that best use is being made of the goods.

The perfect sale is never finished; the end of one sale is the beginning of another.

Piano Fights Back at Fighting Man

THE LONG-SUFFERING canteen piano, beaten and banged by the serviceman, is at last fighting back — at least so far as the British are concerned. Pictured trying to do the impossible — to park his glass on the sloping top — is a tommy. Sloping sides and keyboard also discourage similar attempts with glasses or cigarettes. Other fighting features: solid oak construction, brass kicking plate around pedals, copper keyboard ends (for ashtray use) and non-inflammable, cigarette-stainless, plastic keys. Already in use in a London barracks, the piano may soon be defying tommies where they stand against Communism in places like Korea and Malaya.

Skipper Recalls Atlantic Rescues

HALIFAZ (CP) — When old timers spin tales of the sea, Victor Brown can match them with the best.

Victor quit his active rescue role in 1940 when the government retired the Herring Cove Rescue Boat of which he was the skipper.

During that time he took part in the rescue of men from some 25 wrecks along the rocky coastline near Halifax.

Victor went back to his fishing when they retired the old lifeboat, confident he could forget life saving. But he was wrong.

In March of 1942, during a howling winter storm, an ammunition-laden British ship piled ashore on jagged rocks. The Navy couldn't get its boats near the doomed ship and her crew.

Navy men came to Victor then and asked if the old boat could stand another trip. It couldn't, but Victor and two brothers set out in a motor boat.

Battle with Seas

It took them 50 minutes to battle four miles through the spitting seas, arriving just in time to grab three men from the water. One was seriously hurt with both legs and his back broken.

Nine more men were pulled from the water, and sped back to Herring Cove and the shelter of Victor's home.

"I'll never forget that night," says Mrs. Brown, "the Lord was sure with Victor and the boys."

The Royal Canadian Humane Association thought so, too, and gave Victor a certificate for his heroic rescue.

There were other wrecks, too, like the three-master which foundered in heavy seas as Victor and his crew plucked the men to safety over ropes.

When the British man-of-war Dauntless rammed aground after the First World War, Victor and his men were there, too.

"I'm retired now," says Victor, "but I'd go out anytime if it meant a man's life."

Offer Seven-Point Atom-Bomb Fire Protection Plan

A seven-point program for protection against the atomic bomb fire hazard has been given the National Fire Protection Association by Horatio Bond, the Association's chief engineer and civil defence expert.

Mr. Bond said that while the atomic bomb gives off tremendous heat which will start many fires, people in cities can greatly increase their chances of survival in an atomic attack by the recommended measures, many of them inexpensive.

Here are Mr. Bond's recommendations:

1 More space between buildings.
2 Radical reduction in use of combustible materials.
3 Fire-resistant building construction.
4 Automatic fire protection of buildings by sprinkler systems.
5 Organized teams of citizens to fight fires with extinguishers and stirrup pumps.
6 Water for fire fighting to be stored in tanks at buildings because there may be no water in city mains.
7 Day-to-day attention by owners and managers of buildings to maintaining a high order of housekeeping and general alertness against potentially dangerous fire situations.

First-aid fire fighting by a citizen army, equipped with pump tank extinguishers, stirrup pumps, etc., can combat successfully many small fires, help avoid disastrous conflagrations and fire storms as a result of an A-bomb attack. A fire-storm or mass fire is most to be feared because it would cause high casualties it was stated. Fire storm casualties in World War II attacks were cited: Tokyo, 84,000; Hamburg, 60,000; Hiroshima, 70,000.

Automatic sprinkler protection in peacetime without manual assistance reduces fire losses to somewhat under 10% of what otherwise would be the case it was estimated. More general installation would mean a high rate of survival against A-bombs for both people and buildings, Mr. Bond believes.
