Regular Meeting Of School Board Held Thursday Evening

The Huntingdon Protestant School Board held a regular meeting at the Huntingdon High School, on Thursday evening, with all members present. Following the reading of the minutes and passing a number of bills, it was announced that a corner stone for the addition to the school, had been ordered and would be suitably lettered.

Secretary E. C. Martin informed the Board that he had received a cheque for the sum of $7,865.00 as a grant from the Dept. of Education toward the cost of transporting the pupils to school.

Some letters were read from the contractor for the new building and the architect, relative to a matter that had been taken up in the interval between the present and the last meeting of the Board. The Board had decided that they did not think the window cleaner bolts for the new building were needed. Both letters stated that these bolts were needed and called for under the contract and in fact were already on the job and paid for by the contractor. The contractor asked that further consideration be given the matter and the architect advised that the bolts had better be used and thus avoid trouble later on. The item is an extra to the price of the contract and amounts to about $453.99.

A request was made from the organizing body for the Huntingdon Playground Association for the Board to name a representative from the school to go on the committee of this Association. It was decided that Mr. M. Melnyk be appointed and that he attend the next meeting when it is called.

Since the last meeting, Mr. Melnyk had obtained several prices and specifications on a public address system and he presented these to the Board. After some consideration it was decided to seek one more estimate before deciding to purchase.

Some difficulty with the furnaces was discussed and the contract with regard to the work to be done on these, was checked upon. After some discussion, it was decided that two of the Commissioners would meet with the contracter for this work with a view to getting the work done on the furnaces without delay.

Work on the new building seems to be progressing satisfactorily according to reports, although it is reported that there is a bad crack in at least one of the basement cement walls. The matter had been taken up with the architect and the contractor and the crack is to be filled with some bonding material.

The Board felt that in view of the interest which the Government has in the building, that it should be notified of this defect in case they may wish something different done. A member of the Board will meet Mr. Somerville and inform him of the matter.

First Report On Blind Fund Campaign Shows $434.85

The first report of progress in the Campaign Fund for the Blind shows the sum of $434.85 has been collected to date out of an objective of $1,500 for this county. There are still many canvassers to hear from. Contributions have been very generous and it is hoped by the committee that it will not be too long until the objective has been reached.

The fund is well managed and local citizens are the ones who reap the benefit in time of need. Much work has also been done with regard to the prevention of blindness, by providing examinations and in cases where needed, glasses. If blindness can be prevented, much greater benefit can be accrued and citizens can be helped to retain their sight. If blindness does occur, then the victims need all the help that can be given them.

Following is a list of the canvassers and the contributions received:

Cherry Bank Dairy Commenced Deliveries In Howick On Monday

Cherry Bank Dairy of Howick commenced operations on Monday with first deliveries to every householder of that town. The dairy is owned by Allister McArthur, of Cherry Bank Farm, who as a shipper to Montreal was having trouble getting a good price for his milk. Consequently he decided that he would install his own pasteurizing plant and market his milk in Howick and vicinity.

The new dairy is located in a concrete two storey building near the farm home. The building houses the dairy, a large refrigerator, two garages, etc., as well as a storeroom and an apartment which is to be rented on the second floor.

All processed milk, for the time being, will be the milk production from Cherry Bank herd. It is planned that the dairy capacity will be 300 quarts of milk per day and as more and more orders come in, increased production will result. Maximum capacity of the new dairy will be 5,000 quarts per day.

The milk that will be processed will be four per cent Ayrshire milk. Only Pasteurized and pasteurized and homogenized milk and cream will be made at the moment. During the summer months, chocolate milk will also be made.

The milk arrives in cans at the receiving part of the building. The cans are dumped into a receiving vat with the milk being pumped through several filters and into the pasteurizing vats. The receiving vat holds about 300 lbs. at one time though with the pumping of milk through the filter and into the pasteurizing vat, a continuous flow of milk is maintained until the pasteurizing vat is filled. Incidentally, the two pasteurizing vats each hold 150 gals. of milk.

Following pasteurizing, which consists of heating milk to 140 degrees Fahrenheit and keeping the milk at that temperature for 30 minutes, the milk is pumped through the homogenizer, if so desired, before going through the heat exchanger (plate cooler). This latter machine consists of a number of metal coils cooled by water.

From the heat exchanger, the milk which is now 38 degrees, is pumped into the small receiving tank at 2400 lbs. per hour from which it is forced through the fillers on the capping machine. Cherry Bank Dairy uses glass bottles which are specially washed and steamed before travelling to the capping machine by conveyor belt. After the bottle is filled, (16-24 per minute) it moves along a conveyor where it is capped and then on to another machine which adds a cellophane cap. From this latter machine the bottles are put into cases and stored in the large refrigerator. This cold room is capable of storing 5,000 quarts of milk.

The dairy will be using glass bottles which are lettered in red. The milk caps will be in three different colours as will the cellophane caps, to signify different types of milk. At present an amber colour cap shows that the bottle contains cream. A red colour cap is for pasteurized and a green colour cap is for homogenized.

The personnel in the new dairy will consist of Allister McArthur as manager; Harold McLean, recently retired from Fry-Cadbury Ltd., Huntingdon, who will be foreman of the dairy; John McArthur, Bert Hardgraves and Mrs. Allister McArthur.

At present the McArthurs will service only Howick, however, it is expected that within the near future, that Cherry Bank Dairy milk will be sold in other municipalities of the Chateauguay Valley.

Huntingdon Branch Canadian Legion Remembrance Day Dinner Held Saturday

"Remembrance Day" was most fittingly observed in Huntingdon. Saturday evening, Canadian Legion No. 81, Huntingdon Branch, held its annual Remembrance Day dinner in the Legion Hall, under the chairmanship of President Irvin Laberge.

The dinner opened emblematically by the Torch of Freedom. In carrying out this most fitting solemn ceremony each person lit two wooden matches, holding one in each hand. The electric lights were dimmed and as the matches burned, two minutes of silence were observed in remembrance of the fallen comrades, at the close of the observance the Legion ode was repeated by the chairman and Legionaires.

Grace was pronounced by the Legion Padre, the Rev. W. S. Hatcher. Following the fine dinner served by Messrs. Wilson and Galbraith of St. Francis Rod and Gun Club, a becoming and appropriate programme took place.

The guest speaker of the evening was the Rev. William Brown of Georgetown Presbyterian Church. His address was highly commended by the attentive gathering. "Remembrance Day" is a day of serious thought to Legionaires in particular, which is but quite natural as it is a day when serious reminiscences are recalled and likewise to the Rev. Mr. Brown, who lost three brothers during World War II.

The text of Mr. Brown's address follows :

Voices and Words

Mr. Chairman, officers of Legion Branch No. 81, distinguished guests, ladies and gentlemen, in the time at my disposal this evening, the subject matter of my address to you will be "Voices and Words."

Now, I know that may not appeal to you as a very interesting or attractive subject, yet I am convinced I am dealing here with two of the greatest factors in human life and history.

I believe there is no other influence in life which can be compared to the human voice. We are continually listening to voices, and each one of them strikes a responsive chord in us.

There are some voices which we have all heard and know — like the voice of our late King George, the Sixth, "I said to a man who stood at the gate of the year — 'give me a light, that I may safely tread into the unknow.'"—and he replied. "Go out into the darkness and put your hand into the hand of God — that shall be to you better than light, and safer than the known way."

The voice of our beloved Queen — "I want to ask you all, whatever your religion might be, to pray for me. To pray that God will give me wisdom and strength to carry out the solemn promises I will be making, and that I may faithfully serve Him and you all the days of my life."

The voice of that great man, Sir Winston Churchill: "We have forces and science, hitherto the servants of man, now threatening to become his master—What ought we to do? I find it poignant to look at youth in all its activity and ardour, and, most of all, to watch little children playing their merry games, and

To Hold Referendum On Bylaw To Borrow $88,000.

There was considerable interest in the meeting of taxpayers called at the County Building, on Wednesday evening, to decide whether a referedum should be held in connection with the By-law to authorize borrowing a sum of $88,000 for municipal purposes. The council chamber was filled to overflowing by the time of the opening of the meeting.

Secretary E. C. Martin read passages of the act with regard to the purpose of the meeting and also how many taxpayers were required to have a referendum held. The by-law was also read and this gave a clear view of what the money was needed for and the method of repayment, interest and other particulars. Parts of this were also read by Alderman Fournier in French, translating from the English copy.

At first some questions were asked, until Mr Paul Lefebvre said he believed it only required twenty persons to oppose the by-law for a referendum to be demanded. He was assured of this and he said he was opposed. Several more came forward and the secretary took down a list of their names until he had twenty-eight which was considered sufficient.

The meeting of the taxpayers then adjourned and the Council carried on to set a date on which the voting will be held. Certain time has to be allowed for the requirements of public notices and the printing of ballots, so it was decided that the voting will take place either on Novemebr 24th or December 1st. If the various matters can be arranged, the voting will take place November 24th. This will be made known officially when notices are printed.

It was evident from the meeting, that at least a large number of those present were against the By-law. No discussion was held, so there was no indication as to the grounds they based their disapproval upon. However, the referendum will decide the final outcome.

Dundee

Dundee W. I.

DUNDEE — The Nov. meeting of the W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. Earl Gardiner. Special guest for the afternoon was Miss Mabel MacMillan of Huntingdon. Miss MacMillan, who retired as a teacher last June, taught in the Huntingdon High School for many years. She is remembered by her pupils as being a teacher who was fair, a good disciplinarian and one who made them learn. Last year she was honoured by the Department of Education for her many years of faithful service by being presented with the Order of Scholastic Merit. Miss MacMillan is very modest about her accomplishments and only after much urging did she show the Dundee members the medals she received at the time as well as a large picture of the 16 teachers who received similar awards at Macdonald College. In her talk about reminiscences of her teaching days she recalled how she was able to produce good spellers—quite an accomplishment, how she believed that grammar had to be taught, how much more interesting today's geography and reading books were. She mentioned that the teaching of Scripture used to be a must at school then was partially dropped and now is being taught again. In her last years of teaching Science was a new subject added to the curriculm and that it meant much study for her, but nevertheless she enjoyed it. She spoke about the Huntingdon School library which is one of the best and of which she is very proud. With some of the members she discussed different marking systems of daily and yearly work and told what she liked or disliked about them. She believes the Home and School Organization to be a good one but that the parents must do their share of shouldering responsibility. Miss MacMillan does not believe a youngster should have homework except to finish work begun at school. Although Miss MacMillan is no longer teaching in the school she is by no means actually retired for she has taken on new duties which more than fill her days.

Mrs. Gardiner and Mrs. Stowell attended the Semi-Annual Convention held in Ormstown. They reported on the work accomplished that day. Next year's meeting is to be held in Howick with Dundee replying to the address of welcome.

The annual plant sale is to be continued as well as the sale of other articles. The president's travelling expenses—6c a mile—are to be paid by each branch entertaining her.

On Thursday, November 13, Miss Janet McEwen of Macdonald College is to demonstrate the making of sandwiches in the afternoon and suggestions for packing lunch boxes in the evening. It is hoped that the general public will take advantage of this demonstration. This is one of the many ways the Quebec Dept. of Agriculture helps Quebec rural people for it pays the expenses of these demonstrators. Both sessions are to be held at Mrs. Earl Gardiner's.

Letters of appreciation were read from Mrs. Holmes, the new Q.W.I. secretary and Mrs. H. G. Taylor who has been promoted as secretary in national office in Ottawa. A delicious supper was served by the hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Steven their son Jimmie, also their three foster children of Rochester, N.Y., visited Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Steven on Saturday.

The United Church W.A. held a crokinole party in the church hall on Friday evening. Crokinole was played at 14 tables. Prizes for the games were as follows: Ladies, Mrs. Hattie Black. Consolation, Mrs. Wesley Thomson. Men's, Gordon Deschambault. Boy's, Douglas Watterson. Consolation Larry Ferguson. Girl's, Audrey Leslie.

A bazaar table of useful articles were on sale as well as homemade candy during the evening, which helped to swell the proceeds which amounted to over $60.00. Refreshments were served at the close. The committee in charge are very grateful to the members of the congregation for donations of food, bazaar articles and money which all helped to make the evening such a success. The ladies are planning another such event for November 28.

Mrs. E. Fleming has been spending the last several weeks in Montreal staying at the home of Miss Craig. Her son Ronald who was badly injured in an auto accident about October 1st has been a patient in the Montreal General Hospital for surgical treatment. Mrs. Fleming has been with him as much as possible during his convalescence. Latest reports are that he is up around the hospital on crutches and expects to return to Huntingdon County Hospital in the near future where he was a patient for a time following the accident.

Miss Fern Sutton who was also seriously injured in the same accident and was a patient in the Huntingdon County Hospital for several weeks, is home now but is still confined to the house. She will be unable to return to her regular employment in the Bell Telephone Company offices in Montreal for some time yet.

Most anything can fall prey to hijackers these days. A report in a border newspaper states that unauthorized persons removed a $6,000.00 Lycoming aircraft engine and $1,000.00 worth of radio equipment from a plane owned by Julian Reiss of Lake Placid, after a crash in the woods, 10 miles from Placid. Reiss and his 18 year old daughter were forced to crash land in deep bush after the plane iced up on a flight from Philadelphia, Pa. to their home in Lake Placid on October 31. Five Hundred Dollars reward is being offered for the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who took the equipment. The owner's son, Lieut. Peter Reiss, who went to the scene of the crash after his father and sister walked from the woods themselves almost unharmed except for scratches, said due to the terrain it would have taken at least four men to carry away the equipment. Mr. Reiss manages the North Pole, N.Y. tourist attraction.

Mr. Guy Stowell, local game warden, recently returned home after spending several weeks in the north country around Verendry Park where he acted as special warden in company with Mr. Milburn during the moose hunting season. In his section he reports about 160 moose were taken out through the gates this year in the area. Duck hunting on the St. Lawrence is very quiet right now. There are plenty of ducks but very few are flying and when they do they don't decoy well much to the exasperation and frustration of the hunters who come out from the city all steamed for a week-end of good hunting. Last week-end one party of 5 men only bagged 7 ducks in two days, a pretty small average. The river level in the St. Lawrence dropped nearly 15 inches during the past week.

Miss Thelma McMillan left on Tuesday by car for Schenectady, N.Y., where she will visit her mother, Mrs. H. S. Smith. She and Mrs. Smith expect to come back to Dundee over the week-end.

Mr. Junior Locey and his daughter Anne of Harrison's Corners, Ont. were guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Smellie on Saturday. Little Miss Lynne Locey, who was staying with her grandparents, returned home with them.

WEDDING

Brown - Pennington

The marriage of Miss Melda Rose Pennington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. Clifford Pennington, Camden, N.Y., to Mr. Henry Keith Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold K. Brown, Camden, took place recently in the Camden First Methodist Church.

The Rev. Allison C. Wood performed the double ring ceremony. Miss Marion Scoville was organist, and David Pennington, brother of the bride, was soloist, singing, "I Love Thee" and "Because".

Miss Gartha Pennington was maid of honor for her sister, and bridesmaids were Mrs. Richard Campbell and Miss Katherine Colman. Best man was Glenn West, and ushers were Richard Campbell and Wayne Clemens.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose a gown of white nylon tulle with neckline trimmed with Chantilly lace, cap sleeves and gauntlets. The floor-length bouffant skirt fell in a cascade of ruffles over taffeta with an overskirt of tulle and lace trim. Her finger-tip veil was caught to a tiara of sequins and pearls. She carried a bouquet of fleurs de meurs, white carnations and snapdragons with corsage inset.

Her attendants wore sleeveless ballerina gowns in shades of lavender, fashioned of lighter lavender, starched tissue organdy over darker net and taffeta. Light tucked lavender organdy in a bertha effect outlined the rounded necklines. Wide streamers fell from large bows at the shoulder lines.

The honor attendant carried a colonial bouquet of asters in shades of lavender to match her gown, mixed with light pink asters. The bridesmaids carried similar bouquets of shades of light pink asters with ribbon streamers to match their gowns. All wore matching sweetheart picture hats.

Following a reception at Pine Hill Inn, the couple left on a trip to the Adirondack region and Canada. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Brown will be at their trailer home, Taberg, Rd., Camden, N.Y.

Mrs. Adah Pennington, grandmother of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. William Brown of Ormstown, were among the guests.

A Tribute To A Life-Long Neighbor

Death came quietly and kindly to Mrs. Arthur Watson at her home here, in Glenelm, early Sunday, October 26, 1958.

The late Mrs. Watson was born, educated, and raised her family and lived her entire life in this vicinity.

During the past five years, since the death of her husband, Arthur, she has been lonely and in poor health. In spite of this however, she has been able to maintain her home, keep up her duties in the Grange — of which she was a Chartered Member.

In her church work too, she still attended regularly and worked for the Missionary Society and the Women's Auxiliary. Added to this was her usual generous share of nursing, visiting and 'helping out' throughout the community.

"Liza" as she was affectionately called by those who will sincerely miss her, was a gracious lady with a sympathetic ear, matched with a generous heart and an able hand. In offering this humble tribute, a life-long neighbour may be allowed the privilege of mentioning the careful preparation for Sunday, on the last Saturday through which Liza lived, the long letter written, the cleaning and baking, the phone calls made. What a privilege to live each last day such!

Fiction nor Fancy can give no finer example of "Life joining Eternity."

"Then for each of us, the moment comes when the great nurse death, takes Man, the Child by the hand and quietly says "It is time to go home. Night is coming. It is your bedtime, child of earth. Come you're tired. Lie down at last in the quiet nursery of nature and sleep. Sleep well. The day is gone. Stars shine in the canopy of eternity."

At the cenotaph the Band played "O' Canada" and "God save the Queen". Wreaths were duly deposited at the Cenotaph by Huntingdon County Warden Angus McNaughton and Secretary-Treasurer James E. Barrett, for the Town of Huntingdon by Ald. Roy McWhinnie, for the Legion by Vice-President Alton Warden, for the Ladies Auxiliary by Mesdames Rose-Mary Cosgrove and Mrs. Gordon Ferry, Air Cadets by John L'Heureuse, and for the Boy Scouts by Grant Hawley and Kenneth Merson.

David lent his appreciated assistance at the R. C. Cemetery whilst the Rev. Robert Beal did likewise at the Protestant Cemetery.

Obituary

The Late Ovide Duheme

St. Anicet and surrounding district was shocked and saddened by the sudden passing of one of its well known and respected citizens in the person of Mr. Ovide Duheme on Thursday October 30th.

Mr. Duheme was thought to be in good health and was in the general store of Aurele Robidoux in St. Anicet, when he suffered a heart attack. Mr. Robidoux immediately summoned a doctor and the priest, also phoned his family. His sons Cecil and Hughen rushed to their father's side. It was considered advisable to have him taken to hospital. Dr. Lefebvre and the son Cecil had just started for Huntingdon when he took another heart attack and immediately passed away.

Mr. Duheme was born in St. Albert, Ont. April 22nd, 1891 ,the son of the late Joseph Duheme and his wife Melvina Benoit. When quite young, he, with his parents, moved to Huntingdon. His boyhood days were spent on the farm, now owned by Leo Duheme.

In April, 1920, he married Myra O'Leary and two years later bought the John Leahy farm in St. Anicet, where he and his family have lived ever since.

Mr. Duheme was an excellent farmer, a kind neighbour, a good husband and father whose large family are a credit to him. He was also a good citizen and took an active part in local affairs, such as councillor, school commissioner and church warden. In politics too, he was always appointed chief organizer for the Liberal party in his district.

He leaves to mourn his loss, his wife, six sons, Nelson of Montreal; Edmund of Huntingdon; Cecil, Percival and Hughen at home, Carl employed in Huntingdon Post-Office, two daughters Genevieve (Mrs. Francis Dineen) of St. Anicet, Valencia (Mrs. Frederick Manson) of Fort Covington, N.Y. Two brothers, Leo and Elsem of Huntingdon, two sisters, Miss Laticia Duheme also of Huntingdon and Mrs. Albert Caza of St. Anicet and 9 grandchildren.

The funeral, one of the largest in recent years in St. Anicet, took place Monday morning, Nov. 3rd, in the parish church. The solemn High Mass Requiem was sung by Rev. Father George Quenneville of Beauharnois, with the pastor Rev. Father Deguire as deacon and Rev. Father Dufresne of Montreal as subdeacon.

The pallbearers were: Rene Duheme, Stewart Holmes, Raymond Caza, Austin McDonagh, Joseph O'Connor and Francis Finnegan.

Flower bearers were: Wayne Dineen, Ralph Duheme, Jacques Caza, Raoul Caza, Bruce Manson and James Cosgrove.

The flowers, telegrams and innumerable Mass Cards attest to the respect in which the deceased was held.

Among the friends and relatives from a distance attending the funeral were niece, Rev. Sister St. Maurice accompanied by Rev. Sr. M. Florence Shone of Mercy Hospital, Watertown, N.Y.

84 Year-Old Man Beaten In Hold-Up

For a second time, Kenney's store of Hemmingford has been the scene of a hold-up. On the night of November 9th and 10th at about 3 a.m., three individuals forced their way into the store by breaking the glass in the front doors. They went upstairs to the apartment above and held Mrs. Kenney, while they forced her 84-year-old husband to go into the store and open the safe. Only about $25.00 was in the safe, so they beat Mr. Kenney with the idea of making him tell where he had more money. In the battle Mr. Kenney had his eyes blackened as the individuals tried to discover more money which they believed to be there.

However, they were unsuccessful in this and left.

Investigation into the hold-up is being carried on by Det. F. Wilmot.

CHERRY BANK EQUIPPED TO HANDLE 5,000 QUARTS DAILY

Cherry Bank Dairy of Howick, owned by Mr. Allister McArthur, began operations on Monday morning, with first deliveries of milk to Howick householders. The above photograph shows some of the machinery which has been installed in the new concrete building at Cherry Bank Farm, Georgetown. No. 1 is the filler and capping machine. This machine receives the pasteurized milk from the plate heat exchanger (4). The milk is pumped through at a rate of 2400 lbs per minute. The glass bottles are filled and capped twice. Nos. 2 and 3 are the pasteurizing vats. Each vat holds 150 gals. of milk. The vats are heated to about 144 degrees Fahrenheit and the pasteurizing process requires 30 minutes at this temperature. From the two vats, the milk is pumped to the Heat Exchanger (4). This machine cools the milk from 140 degrees to 40 degrees, the temperature when the milk reaches the filler and capping machine. The plate exchangeer cools milk by water coils. No. 5 is the Homogonizing machine which is used for homogonized milk. The milk is pumped from the vats (2 and 3) and the cream is mixed in with the milk.

The parade, led by the Ormstown Band formed up at the Legion Hall and proceeded to the Park where wreaths were laid at the Cenotaph by Mrs. Clarence Baird, and Messrs. B. Brittain, Arnold Bryson, G. Lecavalier, Merrill Barrington, and Charles Roy and Mr. Lindson Cullen sounded the Last Post and Reveille. Legion members from Beauharnois, Caughnawaga and Chateauguay joined with the local Legion in the service and Rev. Westin and Father Lavigne assisted with the service.

The parade re-formed and marched to the Presbyterian Church to attend the regular service conducted by the Rev. J. C. Hood.

Following the opening Psalm, a Silence of Remembrance was observed and Mr. Mervyn Barrington gave the Memorial Sentences. The Choir rendered the Memorial Hymn "Lest We Forget" by Kipling and the minister's sermon "Our Dreadful Debt", was most fitting.

Successful Fashion Show Under Auspices Of Huntingdon Home And School

The Fashion Show sponsored by the Huntingdon Home and School Association, at Huntingdon High School, on Thursday evening, was well attended and a great array of fashions for ladies and children was on display. The various clothes were modelled by local boys and girls and ladies and came from the local stores of Elite Dress Shop, Mercedes Dress Shop and Kiddy Town.

Mrs. S. J. Liversidge did an excellent job of commentating on the various styles which the models portrayed, describing each in detail as they came forward on the platform. The furniture used was supplied by Marchand Frere, Huntingdon.

Those modelling the various items were as follows: Dianne and Brian Ouimet; Ann Parent,

BAD ACCIDENT AT MEIKLE'S CURVE NEAR ORMSTOWN

A late model Jaguar owned by Dr. Bruce Philips of Montreal, was proceeding towards Huntingdon on Route 4, when it went out of control on Meikle's Curve near Ormstown, at 11 a.m., Sunday morning. The car went onto the side of the road and rolled over several times down the riverside embankment. Due to the doors of the four door sedan springing open, the car was able to stop before tumbling into the river. There were two women, two children and Doctor Philips in the car. The two women were injured, the others only shakened up. The women were taken to the Barrie Memorial Hospital. (Photo by J. Lynn Robb)

Royal Exhibits

By the time this issue of The Gleaner is in circulation several railway carloads of Ayrshires from the Howick-Huntingdon Ayrshire Club area will be en route to Toronto, to be exhibited at the Royal Winter Fair.

As in the past, in fact, ever since the first Royal, the Burnside herd of R. R. Ness & Sons, Howick, will be represented by a carload at this year's Royal.

Similarly so will be the Alderwood herd of J. Gemmill Wilson of St. Valentin, which herd has been continuously represented for a considerable number of years.

H.-H. Club Exhibit

This year, however, a group comprised of several other members of the Howick-Huntingdon Ayrshire Club have combined to send a carload to the Royal. The first such in several years. Doubtless, together with the Burnside and Alderwood exhibits, the largest exhibit at this year's Royal from any Ayrshire Club area in Canada.

Leading Winners

The group carload already referred to are from the herds of J. Grant Whyte (President of the Club), Huntingdon; Allan Wilson, Franklin Centre; Alex McCaig, Ormstown; Russell Logan and Archie Roy, both of Howick; Oscar Vaillancourt of St. Chrysostome.

We are not aware at present of the names and classification of the Club group exhibit, except that several of them have been leading winners at either Ormstown Exhibition or the Rod and White Show at Havelock. We understand, however, that the group will include J. Grant Whyte's cow Elm Manor Ella which was first at Havelock; Russell Logan's Meadowcroft Commander, a brother of the bull which was sold in the recent Cobleskill Production Sale for $10,000.00.

J. Grant Whyte and Oscar Vaillancourt will be in charge of the Club exhibit.

Royal Dates

The four main dairy breeds: Ayrshires, Guernseys, Holsteins and Jerseys — will be judged at this year's Royal on Monday and Tuesday, November 17 and 18. The Ayrshire Judge will be Dr. Rene Trepanier, owner of the Mille Roches Ayrshire herd of Oka, Que., and Deputy Minister of Agriculture for Quebec.

The Sales of Stars of three of the above breeds will be held: Monday evening, November 17: Jerseys; Tuesday evening, November 18: Ayrshires; Wednesday forenoon, November 19: Holsteins.

Cherry Bank Dairy

Congratulations to Allister McArthur of Cherry Bank Farms, Howick, on his initiation of a direct producer to consumer sale of milk — Cherry Bank Quality Ayrshire Milk. Also best wishes for the success of that venture in which the housewives of Howick and vicinity can obtain their "Full Quality" Ayrshire milk direct from the farm on which it was produced.

The Cherry Bank Ayrshire herd has long held a premier position in the Ayrshire World, let's hope that its milk products will be equally appreciated.

REMEMBRANCE DAY ASSEMBLY

Senior Grades

At 10:40 A.M., on Nov. 11, the Senior class (VI-XI) gathered in the Gym for a Remembrance Day Assembly, led by Grade Ten, under the chairmanship of Janet Ovans.

An article stressing the purpose of Remembrance Day was read by Betty Fraser after a hymn by the school, and a Scripture reading by Bobby Foers,. Anna Tannahill led in prayer.

The students then united in a second hymn "Lest We Forget". During the remaining short interval before 11 o'clock, Victor Hatcher played softly on the piano. Following the customary period of silence, Heather Robb sang one verse of "For All The Saints" in a very pleasing manner. Wilbert Macfarlane then introduced the guest speaker: Col. Rick, explaining that since the Colonel had served in both World Wars, he was well qualified to explain what Remembrance Day should mean to students.

Like most veterans, Col. Rick would prefer to forget the havoc, suffering and death which he witnessed. He reminded the boys and girls that these tragedies were the result when a skillful leader such as Hitler decides to use his gift of leadership for evil rather than for good. As a contrast, Churchill has always used his golden oratory for good, and what a valuable contribution he has made to the welfare of mankind.

Since students, even at university level, are easily swayed by a plausible talker, Col. Rick urged those of his listeners who have the ability to influence their companions, to use that influence for good, whether it be in sports, amusements or classroom matters.

Since there are still evil leaders in the world, we must at all times be prepared, otherwise we shall lose our precious freedom, which has been purchased by the sacrifice of so many fine young lives, and by years of suffering and disability on the part of countless others.

The speaker stressed that it is the duty of all to observe Remembrance Day, not only in honour of those who paid the supreme sacrifice, but also of those who still bear on their bodies and souls the scars of conflict.

Winston Rennie expressed the appreciation of the senior classes, and thanked Col. Rick for taking time from his busy career to bring such a worthwhile message.

The Assembly closed with "God Save the Queen".

Junior Grades

The Remembrance Day Assembly for the Junior Grades was in charge of Grade 6A, Mrs. Rutherford's class.

Eric Small acted as chairman for the program which opened with the singing of "The Maple Leaf Forever" by all the classes. The Scripture lesson was read by Shirley Weir. This was followed by a Remembrance Day prayer by Lynn McIntyre. Again the school joined in the singing of "Stand up, stand up, for Jesus."

Gail Middlemiss then read a message entitled "What Remembrance Should Mean To Us". This was followed by the reciting of "In Flanders Fields" by Helen Bulow.

The Assembly closed with "God Save the Queen".

Candy Sale

Grade 4A held a candy sale to raise money for the Red Cross. Donations of candy were generous and the class is grateful to all parents who made this sale so successful.

During the past week two Sunshine boxes were sent to members of the class who are sick.

Senior Girls Basketball

Friday evening, Nov. 7th, the senior girls played their first basketball game of the season. There was an excellent turnout and the girls won the thrilling game. The scorers for Huntingdon were as follows, Sandra Stark 12 pts., Dorothy Taylor 11pts., Susan Faille 7 pts., and Dawn Graham 2 points. The final score was Huntingdon 32, Ormstown 12.

Boys' Basketball

November 7, marked the opening of the boys basketball season for Huntingdon. A thrilling game was played between Huntingdon and Ormstown at Huntingdon. The final score of the game was 26-22 in favor of Ormstown. The leading scorers from Huntingdon were Kerry Johnson 8 points, Kenneth Lindsay 2 points and Kenneth McClatchie 12 points. The cheerleaders in their colourful uniforms added considerable spirit to Huntingdon support.

This Thursday, Huntingdon will play at Howick.

Nitro

NITRO. — Mrs. Frank Burke entertained her bridge club last Thursday evening. The first prize was won by Mrs. Ted Kennedy with Mrs. Stan Clendening taking the consolation.

Mrs. A. Brown and son Barry spent the week end in Hawkesbury.

Messrs. A. Brown, Stan Clendening, Anselm Roy and Ted Kennedy motored to Duhamel for the week end but were unsuccessful in their hunt.

We are happy to say that Mrs. Bruce Clarke is home from the Barrie Memorial Hospital following an appendectomy last week.

Miss Jane Clandinan was hostess to fifteen of her Nitro friends on Saturday afternoon. The group was divided into three teams for a scavenger hunt. Each team had a different list of ten items and as a consequence many a neighbouring door bell was rung in search of "pink bow ties", "15 inch rulers" and other unusual items. The winning team was captained by the hostess. Following the hunt a hearty lunch was served and the party continued with an afternoon of dancing.

Mr. Harold Dando had an unfortunate accident with his car last week in the Lennoxville area. While parked, and off the highway another car drove into the Dando car causing considerable damage. Fortunately no one was hurt.

Mr. E. S. Kennedy was in Ottawa last week attending an Industrial Security Officers' Conference.

wonder what would lie before them — if God wearied of mankind."

What an influence these voices have exerted on our world and us. Some voices strike a chord of gladness in us, others, sadness; some — courage, some — fear, some — faith, some — despair, but every one of them strikes a chord, and demands a response.

Then again, words are the medium of expression of thought, and exchange of ideas. They range in power from the cheap little words of common chatter, to the trumpet tones that can electrify a nation, or change a culture.

Words can sing with joy in victory, or shout defiance in defeat. They can mumble in abject surrender, whimper or cry aloud in fear. They may rise like sweet incense in prayer, or burn with the acrid smoke of profane cursing.

They may grow in stature, or they may shrivel and shrink, and so cease to communicate thought to a living generation, because they have become like empty casks, hollow shells, mocking the ideals for which they stand, making them useless, meaning nothing. Has that happened in our day? Have we all become cynics? Of what vital importance are voices and words.

It has been said that this age has "taken the mark of interrogation as its emblem. A famous cartoon by Max Beerbohm depicts a tall, immaculate and slightly stooping youth, who looks across a wide landscape at a great question-mark which dominates the horizon, and the caption beneath it is — "The twentieth century looks at the future."

This question mark dominates our thinking, because this is an age which is uncertain about almost everything. This age peers into the future, looks at that great question-mark, and expects all the answers, to be disappointing and bad. Why? How has this come about? I want to try and answer that question.

Naturally, to-night, our thoughts carry us back to other days, and other years, and I want to go back to that first Armistice, Nov. 11th., 1918. It remains indelibly stamped upon my mind. As a young boy in my native Scotland, I had attended school through the four years of war, and had accepted the austerity and sober conditions of life as natural.

Then suddenly, everything changed. People were acting altogether different. They were crowding into the streets, and the whole gamut of human emotions was expressing itself in joy and sorrow, laughter and tears. They were tearing down black shades from windows and lights, and the lights were burning brighter than I had ever observed before — it seemed to my young mind that this was a new world.

People were saying that it was all over, the end had come, and that soon things would be as they used to be. They were thinking that the values they once held dear, would return, and have meaning again.

But that was not really the end — it was the beginning. It was the beginning of the greatest forty years in the world's history. A period of amazing development in every sphere of human relationships. A period of unparallelled prosperity and advancement in all nations; a period in which our world has become very small, and every man is our neighbour.

Of course the price had to be paid, as it always has to be, and we are here tonight to acknowledge our debt to those who paid the price with "greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends."

We know that other voices were heard, and other words spoken — the voices of Hitler, Goebbels, Ribbentropp, and Mussolini.

One of the most memorable and terrible reminders of the Nazi perversion is a painting of Hitler in the early days of his movement. The artist has portrayed Hitler addressing a group of people in a beer cellar in Munich. There are only a few folk gathered about him as he speaks, but the intensity and passionate longing in their faces suggests the fierce and fanatical devotion that was soon to sweep that nation, and mar the peace of the world. That picture was titled by the artist: "In the beginning — was the word."

That seems to us a blasphemous caricature of the words in St. John's gospel, but it illustrates paradoxically the same profound truth. The word — spoken or written, can be the most powerful instrument in world for good or evil.

To-day we stand on the verge of climatic possibilities. What voices shall we hear? What words shall we listen to?

In one of his early novels, "A Farewell To Arms", Ernest Hemingway gave expression to the post-war dissillusionment of his generation, after 1918, a disillusionment that has been largely duplicated in our time.

Remembrance-tide does but sharpen the queries in our minds. We remember the men and women who laid down their lives in two world wars, and the very uncertainty of our peace makes us wonder what they gained.

Such tremendous sacrifice can only be justified, we think, if it secures what it was made to gain, and we are inclined to doubt the worth-whileness of anything. We are cynical of all ideals, doubtful of every promise, pessimistic about the outcome of almost everything.

Cynicism, the loss of faith in ideals, and in the words they express, is a virulent disease that can attack any man when he becomes disillusioned. It is a loss of faith in the things one once believed in.

Some cynics laugh in affected bravado, or in supercilious mockery. They protect themselves by satire and irony. But, in any case, the great words for them have become sounding brass, hollow echoes, broken cisterns, empty and useless.

However, what all cynics forget is that every abstract word is hollow until we pour life into it. Honour, glory, sacrifice, loyalty, love, joy and peace; courage and endurance, faith and faithfulness, chastity and sobriety, democracy and brotherhood, justice and mercy — what are these?

Words. Abstract words. Hollow words, empty and meaningless — until we fill them with deeds, and life, and thence with meaning.

No thoughtful person has ever escaped a period of storm and stress when the sure foundation of the earth seemed to tremble and the sky threatened to fall; it is part of the process of maturity for man and the world, and the great words can never be filled by men of little faith, nor by those who have never confronted the horror of the world, who have closed their eyes and turned the other way.

Because some men fail the great words, (and we all do at times) because some betray them, deny them, deride them, it is easy to become cynical about ideals. This cynicism has taken hold, even in our colleges and universities.

It is supposed to be smart to be cynical about virtue and honour and integrity, about faithfulness and sacrifice and love. But the person who truly observes life, will discover these great ideals ALIVE in some man or woman, boy or girl, here and there, and so long as an ideal is incarnate in a single life, the word describing it will stay alive and begin to recover its meaning in life.

It ought not to need saying that the law of God stands over all mankind without exception and without favour. The basic purpose of mankind is to glorify Creator God. If we expect order in the house, within the city, across the land, over the whole world, we must make the Master-Will our will.

"In the beginning was the Word — and the Word was God." I say, without fear of contradiction, that there is no hope for a general recovery of the great words in the life of our Western Society until the Word of God to man is heard afresh. Until that Word is revealed and spoken with power, until that Word is listened to and heard, all our best words, all our great words, will remain unfilled, and unfulfilled.

Our faith in God should deliver us from cynicism. It should deliver us also from a blind and comfortable optimism. It enables us to see the beauty and wonder of the world, even as it confronts us too with the evil and the horror of the world, but the great thing is it challenges us to transcend our world and transform it with the "fierce and patient purity" of the redemptive love that is born of sacrifice — even unto death.

So, again I ask you — "What voices shall we hear?" "What words shall we listen to?" Tomorrow I shall hear again the voices of three of my brothers who never returned. What words shall I hear? Will they speak words of hate, and bitterness, and envy and strife? O no, a thousand times no. The first word will be "Home" — followed with Love, Sympathy, Compassion, Understanding, Loyalty, Honour, Courage, joy and peace, faith and glory. The great words — no longer hollow and empty, but filled to over-flowing with incarnate life.

Tomorrow, in our remembrance services, as the voices from the past speak to you and me — Let us remember their gay grim courage — and be ashamed of our fearfulness.

Let us remember their utter dependability — and be ashamed of our hedging and excuses and laziness.

And, above all, let us remember their basic goodness — and be ashamed of our smooth evasions, our clever duplicity, our immoral pharisaism. AND —

As you march in parade tomorrow — remembering that they served till death — because they wanted to fill the great abstract words with pulsating life— will you hold your head a little higher, square your shoulders to the world, because you too have resolved to listen to the voices which put life into the great words — love and loyalty, justice and mercy, joy and peace. If you do that —

"They shall not grow old,
As we that are left grow old;
Age shall not weary them
Nor the years condemn.
At the going down of the sun,
And in the morning —
We will remember them."

Mr. Brown was introduced by Adam Sellar and thanked by Past President Reg. Daniel.

Chester M. Oney was presented with a Legion Life Membership by Prssident Irvin Laberge on behalf of Canadian Legion No. 81, Huntingdon Branch in acknowledgement of his Meritorious Service during World War I, parts played in the Organizing of the Great War Veterans Association in Huntingdon, likewise of the Huntingdon Branch of the Legion Services for the benefit of Legionaires, The Legion Cemetery Lots, and many other services accorded veterans and legionnaires, plus the Red Cross, community welfare matters in general.

Mr. Oney accepted the badge and membership scroll with thanks stating that what he had done was but what others would do, and could only be accomplished with the support of others.

Mr. H. A. D. Somerville, M.P.P. with feeling toward the members of the Legion, commended them for the work they were doing and urged them to carry on the good work, and especially so that now the Huntingdon County War Memorial was erected. Mr. Somerville urged the Legion to take a part in making certain this new Memorial Building was so maintained so that it would constantly be impressed upon the rising generation that the Memorial Arena was indeed a hallowed shrine erected in remembrance of the fallen heroes of two World Wars.

Major Strover, 3rd Vice-President of the Legion Provincial Command, Montreal and R. Bryce McGregor, Chateauguay Heights, District Commander, brought greetings and impressed upon the Huntingdon Branch that this particular unit of the Legion was one of the strongest in Quebec Province. They urged the Legionaires to carry on their good work and to extend it wherever possible.

Mayor Cappiello extended words of congratulation to the Legion which did itself honour in bestowing such a fitting and becoming tribute to C. M. Oney. The Mayor also appealed to one and all to attend the Cenotaph ceremony on Sunday afternoon and the vsits to be made to the Legion plots in the Roman Catholic and Protestant cemeteries.

Mrs. Kay Williams, in excellent voice, sang three numbers to the accompaniment provided by Mrs. Grace Thomas, Malone.

A lighter vein of entertainment was provided by our gifted humorist Rupert Hawley. Mr. Wm. Murray presided at the piano for the singing of the National Anthem. The George Lennox Legion Dance Band held sway for the balance of the evening when a social time was had in dancing.

Editorial Notes

That Question Of The School Bus

IN this section of the Province of Quebec, the members of School Boards and all School Bus drivers are conscious of the possible danger to their charges from the unthinking car and truck drivers. Since a few accidents have taken place in this area and a life or two has been lost, more attention is paid to having traffic stop in either direction when a school bus is loading or unloading its passengers. We would say that a majority of the car and truck drivers are now obeying this rule, but there are still individuals who ignore it, either through ignorance or from just plain disregard of the law of safety.

At a recent meeting of the members of various school boards and bus drivers from both Protestant and Catholic schools, held at Ormstown, the request was made that signs should be placed along the highways warning the motoring public that they should stop when a school bus has stopped.

We believe this request is one which the Provincial Government should give earnest and immediate consideration and that these signs be placed throughout the province so that they are uniform. Our reason for this is that, a few weeks ago an eight year old girl was killed when she got off a school bus in the area of Lachute, Que. The child got off the bus, passed in front of it and was knocked down by a car which was passing the stopped bus.

Later reports show that this driver was arrested and was a 50-year-old Lachute business man, he was held criminally responsible by a coroner's jury. He has since been charged with manslaughter and has chosen a trial by jury. The preliminary hearing has been set for December 10th. He has been released on bail of $1,000 property. The section of the law was quoted to him and he said he saw the bus some 300 to 400 feet away, but saw no flasher or "stop" warning. He was too close to the bus before he realized it had stopped.

It is evident from this that the driver of the car was not familiar with the law in this respect, or disregarded it, for he had no business passing the bus at this time. It is also evident that the signs asked by our own local school boards to be posted along the highways, are as necessary in other parts as they are here. This should therefore give more weight to their request and the need that this measure be taken immediately before more lives are lost needlessly. It is quite possible that drivers from other parts of the Province who pass through this section would not be aware of the ruling and could account for the fact that school buses in this area are passed by other drivers.

A case of this nature was reported to us this past week and concerned a bus which was stopped in Dewittville for the purpose of disembarking its passengers. A child had alighted from the bus and was carrying a balloon. The balloon slipped the child's grasp and of course he went after it. The bus driver seeing the possibilities, went to the aid of the child and got him across to the other side. He and the child were stooped over picking up some books, etc., when a car coming from the opposite direction at a good speed, sped by the bus and could have easily knocked both these people down. Meantime two or three other cars which had been following the bus were waiting behind it until it should once again be on its way. The latter of course were following proper procedure, but the one which passed, did so in contravention of the law. It is possible the driver of this car was not aware of the regulations requiring that he stop when he saw the bus was at a standstill. This is further evidence that if signs were posted at all points throughout the Province, much as they are seen in the United States, there would be more chance that all motorists would become familiar with the requirement.

It is therefore that we add our appeal to the local members of the Provincial Parliament to bring pressure to bear upon the powers that be to have these signs posted at the earliest possible moment. This is also a matter which the Provincial Safety League could take into consideration for it certainly is a great part of Safety First. Once the signs are posted, the next important step would be to see that they are obeyed.

Remembrance Service Better Marked

THE Remembrance Day service at the Cenotaph in Huntingdon, on Sunday afternoon, was the most impressive for several years past. It was very simple, but its simplicity was probably the element of its impressiveness. The parade from the Legion Hall was one which showed more concentration of the purpose. The R.C.M.P. members made a colorful lead followed by the color party and then members of the Legion. There was a much better representation of these members. Then came the members of the Air Cadets of St. Joseph's School and the Boy Scouts. The public representation was also much better. When the whole was gathered around the Cenotaph, it created an impression that here was a community which really felt it owed something to its war dead and those who served in the wars. The ceremony was carried out quietly and efficiently, following which the parade continued on its way to the two cemeteries for decoration services at both.

We do not know whether the urgings through publicity in the weeks prior to this observance had an effect on the people, or whether it was due to the very mild weather which prevailed. Usually, the day of this observation is very bleak and there may be even a trace of snow and few flakes falling, which is not conducive to standing around outside, nevertheless, the public attendance was much better.

The years may have passed and we may feel more secure in peace, but war is an ever present danger. No one wants another war and it is therefore hoped that the sacrifices already made will in truth be for the end of all wars. Many fine speeches have been made on this subject in the past, but somehow we cannot just feel that they have a basis of fact. We look around and we see and read of all the acts that are going on in the world and we cannot quite come to believe that war is a thing of the past. Wars of the past will never again be repeated insofar as the manner in which they were previously fought, of this we are sure. But with new and more terrible weapons ready to be let loose, war of the future may be much more swift and devastating. It is this which all of us dread. No longer will wars be fought among the armies, navy and airforces of the world, although these groups will figure just as prominently. Future wars will involve whole countries, whole peoples and all resources. It is very hard to predict just who will be the successful group, the victor or the vanquished. The world has reached such a high state of advancement with its modern inventions and materials, that high devastation could wipe out nations if not entirely through the effects of bombardment, then through the effects of the aftermath and the road to recovery. The replacement of all the damage which can be done today by a single modern weapon, would put us back many, many years. This damage is not only the material things, but the loss of life which could take a large number of the best brains available.

The years have passed, but what does the future hold? It is possible that this uncertainty has gained an unconscious hold on the people and has made them think of the terrible sacrifice of war. It has probably caused them to think — does war actually serve any real purpose. It is not that we are becoming pacifists, but the terrible consequences seem too much to behold and suffer should another war come about. There is no guarantee that we can permanently outlaw war, attempts have been made toward this end in the past, but to no avail. It may be therefore, that we are beginning to feel that we must observe more closely the sacrifices that have been made in the past with a view to trying to prevent their occurrence in the future.

The Portent Of Political Events In U.S.A.

THE recent elections in the United States would seem to indicate that the people of the country are not content with their governmental leadership. It would seem that when Presidential Elections loom once again, that a new President will be chosen more in line with the group presently in power.

The policies in the United States have been under question in more ways than one for several years now. The policies to which we refer have more to do with international than domestic affairs. A number of these policies have had an affect on Canada as well as other parts of the world. There has been friction which has had a bad affect on relations between the U.S. and other countries. Fortunately they have not been of the kind that cause a disruption, but they did cause many an unfortunate misunderstanding which could have had graver consequences. The list is long too, thus showing that there has been reoccurrence of instances. The biggest rift was possibly at the time of the Suez crisis and which did much harm to relations between Great Britain and the U.S. and still has its repercussions. The Norman affair which affected Canadian relations was another instance.

It would seem that the officials of the United States have not yet learned the true art of diplomacy. If they had, they would be more careful before allowing many things to become public knowledge before they have weighed all the possibilities and they would not allow their representatives to make announcements without first giving full considerations to the impacts of such announcements. It would further seem that much of their domestic affairs are handled in the same way and that some of them have not met with public approval within the U.S.

All of this of course reflects upon the President, whether he is entirely to blame or not. It would therefore seem to the outsider, that although the people cannot do much about it at the moment, they are showing in other ways that they are not entirely satisfied. The portent is that when the time comes for a Presidential election, that some changes will be made. The Eisenhower regime has been a difficult one in many ways. The U.S. is so embroiled in World affairs today, that to be head of a government in that country is no longer contained within its borders. It is therefore that rulings have to be made on international affairs as well as those within the country itself. Diplomacy then, is a must for the officials of the United States today. The greatest care must be taken of everything that is undertaken — domestically and internationally. Many of the stands taken by the President have met with deep criticism both in the States and in other countries of the world. Several times the peace of the world has been threatened as much by decisions made in the U.S. as well as by those of other countries. Unfortunately certain decisions made by other countries have been severely criticised in the U.S., while the U.S. has been very much upset when its own decisions have been questioned. As events have shown later, the U.S. was not always right in its views and perhaps made a blunder or two, the same as any other country may have done.

The President will have a big job on his hands from now on to work with a Government which will have a different political leaning to his own. It could prove to be an impossible situation and create one crisis after another for the remainder of his term.

The impression Vanderberg strove to leave on his hearers was, that Hampton was still waiting at Four Corners expecting to unite his force with theirs when notified. In private conversation he came to know how widespread was dissatisfaction with Wilkinson and of the existence of forebodings that, under him, the expedition would be a failure. When, next day, an orderly came with the message that the General was ready to receive him, Vandenberg was in no sanguine mood. Ostentatious in everything he did, Wilkinson received him in a large marque, with his staff in full uniform around him. Vanderberg handed him a letter, which curtlly informed him the bearer would verbally explain the condition of Hampton's command and his intentions. Wilkinson ordered him to speak. With soldierlike directness and brevity, he stated how, in response to General Armstrong's order, Hampton had left Four Corners for the St. Lawrenec to meet the flotilla, how he had advanced sixteen miles into Canada and there halted, because of a despatch overtaking him with the information that the boats had not even reached Ogdensburg.

In a consequential tone Wilkinson demanded, "How dared Hampton act on hearsay intelligence to abandon his invasion of the enemy's territory? His orders were peremptory and precise, to march to the mouth of the Chateauguay river. It was his imperative duty to go on and beard the lion in his den. You see, gentlemen, how the cause of the Republic is served by this man in whom it has foolishly reposed its trust".

"Major-General Hampton did not act on his own motion", replied the Colonel. "He called a council of his officers and they all agreed it would be folly to go farther when you, General Wilkinson, would not meet his army at the appointed rendezvous".

"You see", responded Wilkinson, "how artfully our companion-in-arms, General Hampton, shifts on my shoulders his failure of duty. Oh that he had a spark of the patriotism that glows in this poor breast. Depressed though I be by overwhelming cares, and a prolonged sickness that befits me more for a pallet in the hospital than head of this glorious expedition, I shall not hide behind others; I go on or perish. Tell me, Colonel, is your commander ready to co-operate?"

"By this time I expect he is in his old camp at Four Corners waiting to receive word from you at what point he is to meet the flotilla".

"He shall not wait long. The order goes to him this hour to meet me at St. Regis. The eyes of the Republic are now centred upon me, and I shall not fail in their expectations. 'Where is Wilkinson'? is asked in every corner of the land. My reply is, Wilkinson, sick and worn by his services in defending the Republic, is where duty calls him, and will capture Montreal or leave his bones on the field of battle".

"I trust", interjected the Colonel, "you are casting no reflections on my commander?"

"I scorn imputations; I merely ask my fellow citizens to judge between us. Me, a poor invalid, rising above my maladies to lead my army to victory; my brother-in-arms, Major-General Hampton, retreating from his advance. What say you?" directing the questions to his officers. "I pause for your reply".

The leading officer replied, "Our chaplain, who arrived only yesterday, and is fresh from Utica, will voice our sentiments".

As Vanderberg afterwards learned the staff played on the vanity of their General by seizing occasions to flatter him, especially if strangers were present. The young man styled chaplain stepped in front of Wilkinson and, with a low bow, spoke to this effect: "An occasion I have ardently desired has come, and I find myself face to face with the commander-in-chief of that great army which fills our infant Republic with pride, and which, under your consummate leadership, is going to add new stars to the resplendent banner that strikes tyrants with terror, and join new states to our glorious union. You, sir, who learned the art of war under the father of our country, are on the eve of meeting the foe whom he disgraced, degraded, and humbled. You, sir, about about to repeat the lesson he taught them by driving into the Atlantic the scarlet clad slaves of the royal tyrant, and to tear the laurels from proud Britannia's brow. In this you are not alone. Assembled around you are gallant and accomplished troops led by officers of approved skill and daring, to whom there are no dangers too great to be overcome, no difficulties too great for them to subdue. The soil of our Republic is not only fertile in the development of statesmen, who are not merely the peers of those of the effete monarchies, but of those of Greece and Rome — it is also conducive to the development of military genius. Time and again we have seen men leaving the plough,

The Week At Ottawa

OTTAWA, Nov. (CP) — A global club which costs Canada $50,000,000 a year in membership fees holds its annual stock-taking this week.

Ministers of Colombo Plan Countries were meeting in Seattle, Wash., to get up to date on the post-war partnership aimed at aiding 16 countries in South and Southeast Asia.

Canada in September announced it voluntarily was increasing its own fee to $50,000,000 annually for the next three years from its former annual contribution of $35,000,000. Some feel Canada should contribute even more.

It is that sort of club, being variously styled as a global partnership in services to humanity and as one of the most constructive creative ideas of the century. Since it was established in 1950, Canada has contributed $230,000,000 of the total $3 500,000,000 that has gone into the program.

Broad Basis

Originally it was conceived as a Commonwealth project, with aid going to Burma, Ceylon, Malaya, India, Indonesia, Laos, Nepal, Pakistan, the Philippines, Thailand, South Viet Nam, Singapore, Brunei, Sarawak and North Borneo.

The contributors now are Canada, Australia, Japan, New Zealand, the United Kingdom and the United States. The plan's advantage to these countries can't be "rung up on a cash register," as one Ottawa official said.

"I think the plan is working well. On a long-term basis, we are building up a nucleus of people who know what makes western civilization tick, who will be able to understand North American and Western thinking."

One thousand persons from Colombo Plan countries have received training in Canada, and Canada has sent 120 experts to these countries to show them ways of improving their economies.

How It Works

In spite of its cost, the Colombo plan has some immediate economic advantage for contributor countries. While most of the contributions are in the forms of capital projects and technical assistance, part is made up of commodities.

For instance, last week Pakistan agreed to accept $2,000,000 worth of Canadian wheat as part of Canada's Colombo Plan contribution this year. This wheat, some 1,100,000 bushels, is badly needed in Pakistan, and at the same time Canada has a surplus of some 700,000,000 bushels in its bins for which it is only too glad to find a market.

Pakistan may agree to take another $2,000,000 worth of wheat in the current fiscal year. It took $4,000,000 worth of the total $15,000,000 worth Canada disposed of through the Colombo Plan last year, most of the remainder going to India. Canada disposed of another $35,000 000 worth last year, to India and Ceylon through long-term, low-interest loans to these countries as a sort of side arrangement to Colombo Plan exchanges.

Cut Trade Deficit

On the subject of trade, Canada's chronic deficit in international commodity exchange has been reduced to less than one-third of what it was a year ago, the bureau of statistics estimated.

The deficit — excess of imports over exports — dropped to $197,800,000 in the first nine months of the year from $659,500,000 a year previous.

But although imports dropped sharply, exports slipped a bit to $3,616,500,000 from $3,641,100,000 last year. Imports during the nine-month period dropped by $486,300,000 to $3,814,300,000.

The proportion of Canada's total trade, that was transacted with the United States dropped to 58.9 per cent from 59.9 last year.

Meanwhile, Canada's trade position with the United Kingdom improved, her exports rising to 15.6 per cent from 15.1 and imports from Britain rising to 10.2 from 9.1.

Farming Good

Agriculture Minister Harkness predicted here that Canadian farmers generally will have a "reasonably favorable" year in 1959, although the country likely will face surpluses in hogs and dairy products.

He anticipated also that for the first time in some years all surplus Prairie wheat may be removed from farms and delivered to elevators by next July. He estimated producers have some 545,000,000 bushels on farms, some of which will be used for seed and feed. Last year Prairie marketings totalled 378,000,000 bushels.

The government already has started buying surplus hogs in the West for the first time in six years, at the federal support price of 25 cents a pound delivered at Toronto or Montreal. But "a good hog producer can still make money at 23.15 cents," Mr. Harkness said.

But generally, the livestock market looked good. In the first half of 1958 farm income from livestock sales was higher than at any time since 1951. Indications for 1959 were that cattle the mart, the forum, who have out-generaled, beaten and disgraced the be-feathered, scarlet coated officers of the tyrant George, who affected to despise them. Those minions of a despot cannot stand before free-men whose only capital is their virtue and their unsullied patriotism. I must not, however, lose sight of that other wing of our service, that in which our Republic takes special pride and which is her boast — the naval. You are about, General Wilkinson, to commit your army to the bosom of the St. Lawrence, and to make it and its rapids your servant to sweep you on to the chief stronghold of the enemy, to repeat the inspiring message: 'We have met the enemy, and they are ours'. This you are going to do with Chauncey as your assistant — Chauncey, who aspires to repeat on Ontario what Perry has done on Erie, whose crowning achiement surpasses that of all naval commanders, for even the great Nelson never captured an entire fleet — a victory never surpassed in lustre, however it may have been in magnitude. Fling to the breezes of the north our starry banner and go forth on your triumphant career — Chauncey wrestling the trident from the mistress of the sea and you, General, facing troops whose boast is they have come from the overthrow of Bonarparte, shall humble their pride and send an exultant throb through the length and breadth of our Republic, which, young as it is, will yield the palm to no nation in the world. Go forth, I say, to the triumph that awaits you, and upon which the guardian-angel of America shall smile with exulting gratification".

Applause followed the speaker as he took his former position. Wilkinson thanked him and hoped his words would inspire every officer to do his best and realise that the eyes of the Republic were upon them.

Colonel Vanderberg spent the remainder of the day in viewing the preparations for the invasion of Canada. They were on a scale that far surpassed his expectations and greatly astonished him. He left next morning for Sackett's Harbor, whence he was to find his way to Utica, satisfied that such an army with such an equipment could not fail of success, and, before the end of the month, he would hear that the Stars and Stripes were flying over Montreal.

Leaving Col. Vanderberg to pursue his way to Utica, the reader is asked to return to his friend Morton, and see with him what was doing in Canada to meet the avalanche of men and boats that was about to descend the St. Lawrence to capture Montreal.

Arthur Lang Carries On

Hundreds of Quebec school children over the years have been taught by Arthur William Lang. Both in his home-town, Ormstown, and in Montreal's N.D.G. schools — Kensington and Willingdon — Mr. Lang was reputed to be a stern but just disciplinarian who, on knowing, turned out to have quite a sense of humor.

Now 69, retired for the past 10 years but as spritely as ever, Mr. Lang still finds himself very involved with Quebec education in his role as executive secretary of the Quebec Association of Protestant School Boards. "I took on the job in the fall of 1951 and find it is a full-time one which I like very much because it keeps me on the go and in touch with people — attending school board meetings and teachers' conventions, addressing service clubs and school groups and commencements," he said during an interview at his comfortable home, 4245 Oxford street. "My home is my office and I conduct my affairs from here."

Of the 270 school boards in this province, 116 are under the jurisdiction of the QAPSC. Of the 104,000 Protestant pupils in Quebec, 87,000 are under the care of QAPSC," he said. "I have found that in Ontario they think our Protestant school population in Quebec is dwindling but that is not the case. Fifteen years ago it was 65,000 and today it is over 100,000 which represents a fair increase.

"You know the little red school house has almost disappeared now that we have central boards and consolidations with buses picking up children for miles around and taking them to school. The motto of the Quebec Association of Protestant School Boards is to assist school boards in their many problems, both financial and educational. All across Canada school boards have two main problems.

"The first is to obtain sufficient money to carry out programs the times demand and need and secondly, getting enough reasonably good teachers. The more immediate and pressing need is the financing for maintenance on up-to-date schools everywhere but the fundamental problem is a supply of good teachers."

'On Permit'

Mr. Lang regretted that there were 100 teachers "on permit" in Quebec. "It isn't easy to find well-qualified teachers who are willing to go to remote and sparsely populated areas and the Board has not the money to offer inducements," he said.

What had induced Mr. Lang to take up teaching in his youth? Perhaps it was his mother's influence. A widow with four children — three girls and Arthur — to bring up, she went back to teaching at her husband's death in 1905 when her son was 15. Some years later Arthur was appointed principal of the school where his mother taught. "It was a unique situation but it worked out well," laughed Mr. Lang. "I remember my mother's teaching salary in those days was $250 a year."

Mr. Lang was born and brought up in Ormstown where his father was a wheelwright. In 1906 on graduating from school he got himself a teaching permit and taught in a country school a few miles away. "I made $190 that time," he said.

That same fall he received a $100 scholarship and went off to Queen's University in Kingston, graduating in 1911 with an Arts degree. "Our university fees in those days were $100 for four years' tuition," he said. "During those college summers I went West and taught in Saskatchewan and British Columbia."

Here in 1919

In 1912 he was appointed principal of his hometown school and stayed there until 1919 when he was made principal of Kensington School. "I succeeded Herbert Atkinson, my lifelong friend who went to West Hill High School," said Mr. Lang. "I stayed at Kensington for 10 years and in 1929 became the first principal of Willingdon where I stayed for 20 years. In 1949 I was retired although I was a few months short of the retirement age of 60."

Mr. Lang has been married for 36 years to the former Lillian Duncan of Ormstown. "My wife taught for several years in Ormstown and before that in Shawville," said Mr. Lang.

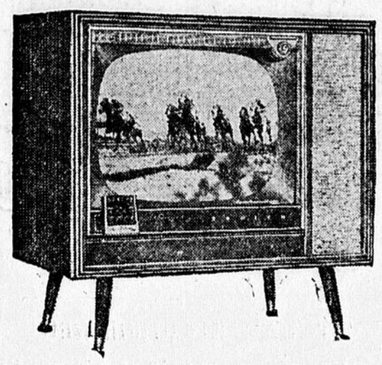

The Langs have one daughter, Jean, who is Mrs. Peter Brewer, of Rosemere, and daughter-in-law of Orlo Brewer, who was principal of Hampstead School for some years, and is now in one of the St. Laurent schools.

A member of Wesley Church, Mr. Lang served as corresponding secretary of the Notre Dame de Grace Community Council for a number of years. He also served two years as president of the Headmasters' Association of elementary school principals of Montreal and as corresponding secretaary of the Provincial Association of Protestant Teachers. He is a past master of the Masonic Lodge in Ormstown.

After a 38 year teaching career, Mr. Lang finds himself in good health. He likes gardening at his summer cottage at Port Lewis. "I still have a great liking for the country and frequently visit my hometown where my youngest sister still lives," he said. — The Monitor, Montreal.

Grants For Fairs Have Doubled

Fairs, show windows of Canadian agriculture, last year received about $1,000,000 in assistance from the Canada Department of Agriculture.

This money was spread among 111 fairs and was tagged strictly for agricultural purposes. To qualify, fairs had to meet rigid requirements of Exhibition Grants Regulations.

Assistance is beamed to fairs whose sphere of influence is not limited, but which serve sizeable areas.

For over two centuries, Canadian farmers have used agricultural fairs to display their products. In fact, the first one held on the North American Continent was at Windsor, Nova Scotia, in 1765.

Federal assistance began in 1915. Prior to World War II, grants were, in general, tied to prize lists. The program ground to a standstill during the war, and afterwards the department framed a policy for most fairs based largely on the erection and repair of buildings used for this purpose.

Grants Doubled

The new plan was designed to help exhibitions get back on their feet after an eight-year hiatus. Since it was started in 1947, the amount granted annually has more than doubled.

One development over the years has been the use of accommodation for purposes other than fairs. While the department confines its aid to agricultural purpose only, buildings are used for other community activities, and no longer sit idle 50 weeks out of the year.

Fairs fall into three classes:

Class A — There are 24. To qualify, these fairs had to pay out over $6,000 in prize money for specified exhibits for three consecutive years. They may receive grants of up to $3,000 annually for permanent improvements or repairs, providing they match the amount with their own funds. And they may receive up to $500 for judges and up to $1,000 for junior work.

Class B — There are 79. They pay over $3,000 in prize money in specified exhibits annually. They are granted up to $1,800 for improvements, if they spend a like amount themselves. They can get up to $200 for judges and up to $1,000 for junior work.

Winter Fairs — There are eight getting support under the federal regulations. Since they are held at periods of the year when revenue from midways and attractions cannot be obtained, the department pays grants on a prize list basis. They receive 80 per cent of prize money in specified exhibits up to $4,000, up to $500 for judges and up to $1,000 for junior work.

Assistance to fairs in New Brunswick and Newfoundland, although still coming under the Exhibition Grants Regulations, is on a different basis than elsewhere in the country.

The post-war policy further provides that fairs may receive capital expenditure grants applicable to the erection of new exhibition accommodation.

and poultry prices would remain strong, although the outlook for dairy export markets was extremely limited.

Airlines Hearing

The intricacies of airline operations was further discussed as the Trans-Canada Air Lines and Canadian Pacific Airlines continued to cross swords before the air transport board. CPA council peeked into every facet of TCA's business seeking arguments in favor of it getting a chunk of the TCA transcontinental monopoly.

On the witness stand most of last week was William S. Harvey, TCA comptroller. Under questioning, he said TCA would continue its services as usual if competition were allowed. He said he is no pessimist about Canada's future, but indicated doubts that economic growth will support two main line carriers in the foreseeable future.

Mr. Harvey also denied CPA suggestion that Trans-Canada over-charges on depreciation of its aircraft and that it has too large a wage bill.

Broken English A World Tongue

By LEWIS MILLIGAN

There have been several attempts to create a world language, the most ambitious of which was Esperanto, but although it was based on words in European languages and was widely promoted, it was just another language and only added to the existing confusion of tongues. And now yet another form of speech is being advanced for universal adoption, and this time it is not new, for it is already spoken in all parts of the world — Broken English.

An eminent Dutch physicist, Professor H. B. G. Casamir, has suggested that "the quaint broken English spoken by foreigners should become the world's international language." The whole thing is said to have started as a jest in an after-dinner talk at an international meeting of physicists in Copenhagen, when the professor remarked, "Let's regard Broken English as a language in its own right."

Coming from a Dutchman, it cannot be objected that the idea is an attempt to extend British imperialism to the realm of language. As a Dutchman the professor might have been tempted to suggest "Double-Dutch" as an alternative, for that is universal enough in political and other quarters. But he pointed out that Broken English has already become an important international language, being used by ambassadors in Washington, taxi drivers in Paris, waiters in Hawaii, businessmen in Buenos Aires. Even behind the iron curtain scientists from different Communist nations, he said, find that the only way to communicate successfully is by using Broken English.

"It isn't just Pidgin English," said the professor. "It's a crazy mixed-up English, yet clear enough to be understood by almost everyone with a smattering of the language — and even by English-speaking peoples themselves." For that matter the King's English, as spoken in various parts of the British Isles, is broken into different dialects. The Scots, the Irish and the Welsh break up the language with their accents and native idioms and the broad dialect of the Yorkshireman sounds like a foreign tongue to the Cockney. They used to say that the Dublin man and the Aberdonian spoke the best English. The Welsh, having a distinct language of their own, used to "put the cart before the horse" in their use of English adjectives. Canadians generally speak better English that the average Englishman, but the cultured French Canadian speaks the best English on this Continent. Sir Wilfrid Laurier and former Premier Louis St. Laurent spoke perfect English with little or no French accent — the latter — indeed, had a touch of Irish brogue, which he got from his mother. The Americans have their dialects which vary from North and South and East and West, but the cultured New Englanders still retain a remnant of aristocratic English, as do the Virginians.

Professor Casimir said it is already a fact that a fantastic number of people — from migrants in a dozen countries to innumerable Asians and Africans—speak Broken English well enough to communicate with one another. "We should," he said, "be taking Broken English far more seriously. It can become the world's first really universal language."

Beauharnois Staff Of S. W. & P. Co. To Move Into New Service Building

C&D personnel at Beauharnois—hub of a fertile and beauteous region bordering the St. Lawrence — in November will move into a spacious modern building which Shawinigan has built on the south fringe of the town.

Local superintendent Armand Letourneau and his staff will move out of the former garage on St. Laurent street which S.W. & P. inherited when it bought the Beauharnois Electric Company in 1926 and later converted into an office building.

The new building is at the corner of Edgar Hebert boulevard and Peladeau street, near the sub-station which receives 44,000 volt power from Quebec-Hydro and distributes it over lines supplying the sub-districts of Beauharnois, Huntingdon and St. Remi.

No one knows the old building on St. Laurent street better than Superintendent Letourneau himself. Mr. Letourneau joined Beauharnois Electric in 1922 as a lineman and has lived in Beauharnois ever since. During that time he has seen the district expand and progress, progress which is now being reflected in the new Shawinigan building.

When Shawinigan purchased the distribution system of the former Beauharnois Electric Company there were 1,500 customers and 25 miles of distribution lines. Now there are nearly 8,700 customers and 250 miles of line.

In 1926 the staff totalled four persons: the superintendent, W. H. "Pop" Fletcher, who retired in 1947 and died at Trois-Rivières in 1953; Allan Price, meter reader, who is now assistant comptroller in Montreal office: Mr. Letourneau, who was first lineman and later foreman before succeeding Mr. Fletcher as superintendent, and Marie Anne Leduc, who died in Valleyfield on August 25 this year.

Mr. Price joined the Canadian Light and Power Company in 1913 under president E. A. Robert, who was president also of Beauharnois Electric and Montreal Tramways. At the start of Mr. Price's career, Beauharnois Electric had its offices on the second floor of a building on Richardson street owned by Notary J. C. Trudeau. Another notary, Roger McGowan, owns the building now.

At the present time, in addition to Mr. Letourneau, the S.W.&P. staff at Beauharnois consists of 16 men. Here are their names, with the dates they joined the Company: Maurice Thibault, staff assistant (1946); Jules Laurin (1941) and Alex Haché (1956), clerks; Aldéric Masse (1935), foreman; Adélard Filion (1926), Henri Roy (1935), Réal Turcot (1941), Rodolphe Savard (1946), Florient Leduc (1946), Emile Rouette (1943), Laurent Sauvé (1954), Bertram Amos (1947), Georges Rufiange (1956), Conrad Cloutier (1956), Raymond Hogue (1944) and Guy Brossoit (1958).

Valleyfield

VALLEYFIELD. — The President of the Rebekah Assembly of Quebec, Mrs. Pearl Windle of Knowlton, Que., made her official visit to Bayview Rebekah Lodge No. 46 on Wednesday evening, November 5th. This meeting was very well attended with Mrs. Margaret McPherson, Noble Grand, presiding. Members from Pioneer Rebekah Lodge No. 1, with Mrs. Jennie Helm, District Deputy President, were present at this meeting.

The president Grand Lodge and Assembly officers were introduced by Mrs. Lois Wood and Mrs. Jean Colquhoun. The president gave a very interesting and inspiring address and urged the members to try and increase their membership. She also complimented the Lodge on its good work and wished them much success in their year.

Gifts were presented to the president by Mrs. Betty Stewart and Mrs. Hazel Knight.

A very interesting item was put on by the members of Bay View Lodge which was much enjoyed and the members were honored by the President, Mrs. Windle asking them to attend a dedication of the new I.O.O.F. Hall to be held in Knowlton in the near future and if they would present this same item at the dedication.

The table was beautifully decorated with pink mums, and pink and green candles in silver candelabra. In the centre of the table was a miniature house which represented the "Home", this being our president's project.The house was made and donated by Mr. Alex Ross and was much appreciated by the members and very fitting for this occasion.

Delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Ethel McFarlane, convener, Mrs. Ruby Ross, Mrs. Anna Crook, Mrs. Gladys McDonald and Mrs. Jennie Smaill, this bringing an enjoyable evening to a close.

An entertaining and informative evening was presented by the Rev. Gordon Imai of the Japanese United Church of Montreal and some of his members in the United Church Hall, on Friday evening, November 7.

There was a male soloist and two ladies. One gave two dances equivalent to our ballet, in appropriate costume. The other lady spoke on floral arrangements and gave four demonstrations.

They played some records of America music in Japanese style and they also showed Japanese articles, dolls, etc. Mr. Imai spoke briefly on Christianity in Japan.

Safer Cars By Super-Service

Trends do not happen, they are made... if you want the trends to go toward the service station, these things (construction, long range planning and hard work) must, in my opinion, be drawn that way by service to the car user... the fellow who will make the trend... In 1901 only 1/3 of Canada's population lived in urban areas... in 1951 two out of three did... in 1980, four out of five will be... by 1970 Canada will be supporting more than 21,000,000. Car population will be in vicinity of 6,000,000 cars...

At the present time about 59% of the households in this country have cars... by 1970 most probably 67% will have them... and by 1980 it is expected that 73% will have cars... There is developed, if not already arrived a new era for the service station, the day of the "Super Service Centre" is fast approaching. There is a great need to impress on your service station operators, the growing importance of their position in the modern-day community. He is in the same category as the bank manager, druggist, hardware man, the grocer and more is expected, on the whole, from service station operators with regard to advice, knowledgeable recommendations, than from other leaders in the community.

Safety is Obligation

Number one health problem in this country today is not heart disease, nor cancer, but automobile accidents. Of all death claims in ages under 40, 41.6% were caused by accidents; most of these by automobile (insurance policy coverage only)... it's fairly obvious that safety is of major importance on our highways and by-ways. The service station operator can do a great deal along these lines; be of service to his customer, to his community. We have a large number of organizations trying to do something on this serious subject. Operators in their communities should all take an active part and interest in these activities.

From an address by Ian H. Cumberland, president, Bear Equipment and Services, Ltd., at the 6th annual Conference of the TBA Group of the Oil Industry, as reported in "Service Station".

CITY TREES

REGINA (CP) — There was only one tree, protected by a picket fence, in this city 40 years ago, says George R. Walton. Today, after a battle against nature, the city has many.

The baby feels secure . . . but is he?

Family safety involves more than physical protection. There should be guaranteed financial security. Millions of Canadians get this through Life Insurance. They own more of this valuable property, in relation to national income, than any other people in the world.

Waste no time worrying about that small boy. He has a two-fisted grip on security. He belongs to a family which considers Life Insurance an essential part of its progress towards financial security.

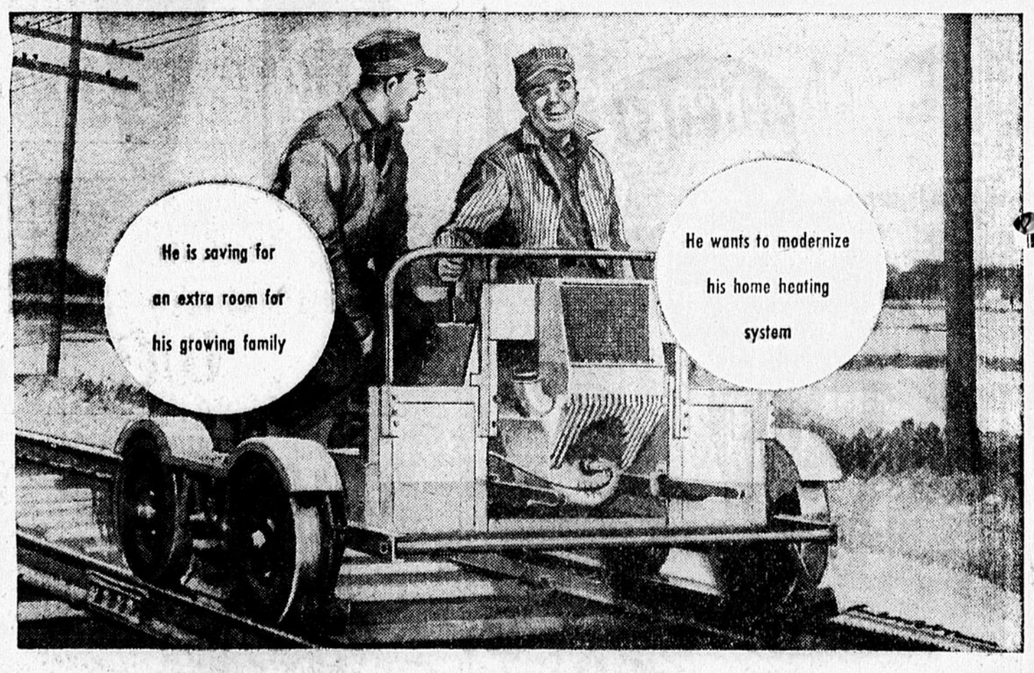

Canada is rich in families that treasure life insurance as a present pledge and future promise of security obtained by their own initiative.

Friendly, helpful agents have shown 7½ million Canadians what a valuable property life insurance is. Every year an increasing number of families buy life insurance as their major source of family and personal security.

Nowadays, living policyholders receive 5½ million dollars, every week, from the Life Insurance Companies in Canada.

...so both are building up bank accounts

Nowadays, practically everybody has a bank account.

Last year alone, forward-looking Canadians opened 450,000 new deposit accounts in the chartered banks—almost as many as the increase in population.

The owners of today's 11 million accounts know a bank is the safe, convenient, pleasant place to build up funds for every need and purpose.

They know, too, that in a chartered bank you deal with skilled, friendly people, ready to help with all your banking.

Local Ground Observers Scan Skies For Low-Flying Planes

Thousands of Canadians scanned the northern skies during the past week-end in a two-day Ground Observers Corps exercise.

From Baffinland to the American Border, and from Abitibi to Labrador, the civilian volunteers watched and reported as low-flying aircraft simulated an attack over the pole on the St. Lawrence-Maritimes area.

It will be a few days yet before the full evaluation of the exercise will be known but it looks as though the exercise will be a very successful one.

Locally, members of the Ground Observer's Corps were on the 24-hour alert for each of the 2 days. The men in the corps feel that such exercise helps to keep them on the alert and sharp so that in time of national distress they will be able to help their country.

During the course of the week-end several thousands of telephone calls were channeled through the six GOC centres. Whenever an observer sees an aircraft he picks up a phone and tells the operator he has an "aircraft flash". The operator immediately connects him with the control centre in Three Rivers.

At the centre, the report is taken and the aircraft's general type, heading, and the time of the sighting, are put on one of two big spotting boards. As reports come in this information shows a definite course, and trained RCAF personnel on hand are generally able to pin down its indentification.

The importance of the corps lies in the fact that all members are civilians with such professions as parish priests, mayors, lawyers, grocers, farmers, etc.

Why The Motorist Should Protect Right

An intersection which does not have a Stop sign at any of its corners gives the right of passage to the motorist to one's right, the Provincial Highway Safety Committee, (Prudentia) reminds everyone. This is the reason why the motorist often hears the words: "Protect your right." Remember, when you approach such an intersection look first to your right, and cede the way to any oncoming motorist from that direction if no other indications are present.

Ormstown

Ormstown W.I.

The November meeting of the Ormstown branch of the W.I. was held on Tuesday, November 4th, at the home of Mrs. A. Marshall, with 18 members present who responded to the roll call with "duties of a good citizen"—if one follows the Golden Rule they won't fall as citizens.

Results of the anniversary card party resulted in $39.75 being added to our treasury.

Some of the findings from the country semi-annual meeting were —Provincial fee $1.00, County .10cts, A.C.W.W. 25, Fair booth .50, each per member, while pooling of fares was $10.00 per branch.

May Convention deals with Public Speaking, sale of aprons and plants, also resolutions which had been drafted at Provincial Convention to be discussed. Reports of the various conveners were heard: Agriculture—Origin of the Baldwin apple.

Citizenship—Helping children through U.N.I.C.E.F. by sale of cards —5 boxes of cards at $1.00 per box gives 210 children each a glass of milk every day for a week.

Education—quoted Mr. Talbot, an optometrist as saying T.V. was hard on children's eyes and health in general, as it detracted from their play in the fresh air, etc.

Home Economics—mentioned some special dates, also birthdays of prominent people who had been born in November.

Publicity—mentioned work done by a W.I. in Dolman, cited the "W.I. as the greatest Country Club of all", also told of Canada being leading wheat exporter of the world, and spoke briefly of the Canadian Bill of Rights introduced in the House of Commons by Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

Mrs. Anderson read beautifully "A prayerful Remembrance" by a Grade VIII boy, and a touching poem by Mr. Hood.

Speaker for the day was Mr. Green, editor of the Macdonald Farm Journal. He spoke of the various changes being made in that Magazine, and articles and pictures needed to make it more interesting, interspersing his talk with illustrative stories.

He then turned to thoughts for Armistice Day, said he had heard the C.B.C. broadcast the moment Armistice was signed, as Norman Corby of C.B.C. had it ready for release to the world a few moments after the signing. He read a beautiful piece by Elma Dean on the young boys who had fallen. He asked "What makes men fight? Fear is the answer". Could we achieve fellowship with our fellow men, that would be our best defence. Women can do much to help peace—by showing the children the horrors of war, and not the music and glitter that it is so often clothed with.

Mrs. H. Parkinson moved a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Green for his very interesting and enjoyable talk. Mr. Green, who has lately come to take residence among us, interests himself in all local, educational projects and is a decided asset to our community.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem, after which dainty refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Marshall, Mrs. W. McNeil and Mrs. J. Bruce and a social half hour enjoyed.
