Kennedy scored for statements about Ulster

LONDON (CP) — Senator Edward Kennedy's speech urging withdrawal of British troops from embattled Ulster has aroused a rare degree of bitterness among the British, who are normally tolerant of criticisms.

Some reactions disputed the senator's description of the Ulster crisis as Britain's Vietnam.

But the Kennedy speech was by no means the first critical assessment of the Northern Ireland tragedy to mention this comparison.

Even within Britain, left-wing opponents of the Conservative government's Ulster policy have been insisting that the Northern Ireland conflict may be luring London into the same kind of interminable conflict that resulted from Washington's at-first-limited efforts to keep South Vietnam non-Communist.

Unless strategy on Ulster is changed, "we shall be unable to extricate ourselves from an unwinnable civil war which corrupts our political morals and destroys our army as a fighting force," argues the leftist New Statesman in the latest reiteration of the Vietnam analogy.

INTERFERENCE SEEN

But such similarities between the lines taken by critics on both sides of the Atlantic don't account for the intensity of the resentment with which Kennedy's remarks were received in Britain.

What seems to have made the speech particularly insufferable for many Britons was its alleged status as—in the words of a typical hostile comment—"a gross interference in the internal affairs of a friendly nation."

Security for the Soviet leader's visit was the tightest seen here since the funeral of Pierre Laporte, former Quebec labor minister, at the height of the Quebec terrorist crisis a year ago.

The mayor, proposing a toast to the 67-year-old premier, who had arrived in Montreal a short time earlier from Ottawa, said:

"The two groups historically recognized as the founders of Canada are still working ... at the art of getting along together."

"While working together towards this goal, these two groups will pursue their task of building a great country suited to their own aspirations. For them, it is a duty, a responsibility, an honor, a common destiny."

The luncheon took place at an elegant restaurant on St. Helen's Island, one of the Expo 67 islands in the St. Lawrence River.

MONTREAL (CP) — Mayor Jean Drapeau of Montreal told Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin Thursday that French-speaking and English-speaking Canadians are working together to build "a great country suited to their own aspirations."

The mayor chose the occasion of a city luncheon for Mr. Kosygin to expound in eloquent phrases the theme of a united Canada.

Security for the Soviet leader's visit was the tightest seen here since the funeral of Pierre Laporte, former Quebec labor minister, at the height of the Quebec terrorist crisis a year ago.

The mayor, proposing a toast to the 67-year-old premier, who had arrived in Montreal a short time earlier from Ottawa, said:

"The two groups historically recognized as the founders of Canada are still working ... at the art of getting along together."

"While working together towards this goal, these two groups will pursue their task of building a great country suited to their own aspirations. For them, it is a duty, a responsibility, an honor, a common destiny."

The luncheon took place at an elegant restaurant on St. Helen's Island, one of the Expo 67 islands in the St. Lawrence River.

The decor of the place has a heavily French colonial flavor.

Later, Mr. Kosygin made a quick visit to a container terminal in the port of Montreal, and stopped briefly at a Soviet cargo vessel tied up in the same vicinity.

Then, in pleasantly warm, Indian-summer weather, he was taken for a sightseeing drive through the city.

Everywhere he went, Mr. Kosygin was enveloped in tight security, with columns of motorcycle police escorting his car and scores of plainclothesmen running interference when he moved about on foot.

A noisy demonstration greeted the premier when he stepped out of the Queen Elizabeth Hotel, above the terminal of the Ottawa-Montreal train, to begin his round of activities.

The demonstrators carried signs saying: "Liberate the Russian Jews," while a group of young people chanted in rhythm: "One, two, three, four, open up the iron door; five, six, seven, eight, let our people emigrate."

Since arriving in Canada Sunday for an eight-day visit, Mr. Kosygin has been plagued by protest groups demanding better treatment of Soviet Jews and the lifting of bars against their emigration.

Drapeau-Kosygin: Old mayors meet

Jews protest Soviet policy

One small incident occurred as Mr. Kosygin's fast-moving motorcade went from the luncheon to the container terminal. An unauthorized car got into the line of official vehicles but was quickly shunted off to the side by police.

Early in the day, a man hurled an object at Mr. Kosygin as the premier left the Queen Elizabeth.

The object was identified as a flag or homemade banner, but its nationality was not given. The man, who shouted "Take this home as a souvenir," was hustled away by plainclothes police but was released after questioning.

In his luncheon address, Mr. Drapeau said other ethnic groups have combined with the French and English to give Canada a "multi-ethnic tinge which we welcome as a source of moral and cultural achievement."

The mayor referred indirectly to the attack on Mr. Kosygin in Ottawa Monday, when a lone assailant jumped the premier and manhandled him briefly.

He asked Mr. Kosygin's understanding so that neither in heart nor mind would he keep "a blemished memory of your stay in this part of the world so different from your own."

Finally, Mr. Drapeau said he hoped the premier's visit would help cement between the Soviet and Canadian people a friendship "holding as much promise of peace as the friendship we have so long enjoyed with our great North American neighbor."

Friendship with the U.S. was something to which Canada had become accustomed, and it "cannot be affected despite occasional upsets at another level."

...consulate damaged

MONTREAL (CP) — The Soviet consulate in Montreal was pelted with stones and tins of paint Thursday night as about 1,500 persons demonstrating for the liberation of Iron Curtain satellite countries gathered before it.

The demonstration, organized by the Canadian Ethnic Council to coincide with a visit to Montreal by Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin, quickly became orderly again when about 75 riot equipped police emerged from a nearby park.

By that time, however, several consulate windows had been broken and the building was stained with red paint.

Premier Kosygin was attending a state dinner several blocks away during the demonstration at the consulate. The demonstrators, however, had twice chanted slogans a block from hotels housing the premier.

When the demonstrators reached the consulate, they at first waved flags and sang national anthems, while shouting condemnation of Mr. Kosygin. The Canadian Ethnic Council is made up of organizations representing persons from 12 East European countries.

CALLS FOR CALM

Some stones were thrown after police appeared following the initial stoning of the consulate, but Lubomir Kwasnicky, one of the leaders of the demonstration, called on the crowd to demonstrate peacefully. The crowd responded and police did not move in.

The demonstration began about 7 p.m. with about 2,000 persons, many of them in their 30s and 40s, gathered in Dominion Square, a block from the Queen Elizabeth Hotel where Premier Kosygin was staying in Montreal. The demonstrators shouted in unison:

"What do we want? Freedom, what do we want? Freedom!"

When Premier Kosygin's motorcade left the hotel for a Quebec government state dinner at the Ritz Carlton Hotel seven blocks away, the crowd in Dominion Square formed a tightly knit parade. A block from the Ritz Carlton, they faced the hotel and shouted: "Kosygin assassin; Kosygin assassin!"

The chanting continued for five minutes until the crowd moved off toward the Soviet consulate.

Unemployment answer? Socreds propose retirement at 60

OTTAWA (CP) — Old-age pensions for workers who retire at age 60 were proposed by the Social Credit party in the Commons Thursday as one way to ease Canada's unemployment problems.

"We should realize that a family in which the breadwinner is unemployed is more costly to the state than a retired couple," argued Charles-Arthur Gauthier (SC—Roberval).

Mr. Gauthier was introducing a motion expressing regret that "the government has not deemed it advisable to provide old-age pensions to persons between the ages of 60 or 65, or to the wife of a retired pensioner, whatever the age."

He said Canada has lagged behind other wealthy nations for 35 years in developing an adequate pension system. Only in 1967, he said, was age 65 recognized by the government as a proper retirement age.

Earlier retirement would open places in industry for family men now unemployed and would strengthen not only the economy but the family, Mr. Gauthier said.

He added, however, his party believes decent pensions must be offered — as large as the resources of the country permit.

"We want a good pension, not just a facsimile of a pension," The Social Credit motion was debated under House rules that permit an opposition party to choose the discussion topic for a day from time to time. The motion does not come to a vote.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) voiced support for the motion, but added an amendment calling for the amendment of the old-age pension to be "increased substantially."

The Social Credit motion said it should be "such as to enable anyone to live as decently as the physical, material and human resources of Canada would allow."

Mr. Knowles said the basic monthly pension, now $80, should be $150.

Under the current system, a single person over 65 may get up to $135, including the basic, universal pension and the guaranteed income supplement, which is based on financial need.

Mr. Knowles, 63, supported the proposal to lower the minimum age to 60.

The day will come, he said, when great numbers of people will not be required to work in the traditional way. They will be free to enjoy life in various ways.

Instead of bumbling into that era, why not recognize now that 60 is a good age to change pursuits? he asked.

Oza Tetrault (SC—Villeneuve) said public opinion advocates that the old-age pension eligibility age be lowered so more people may withdraw from the work force, making room for others.

Canada had been left far behind in this regard by countries such as New Zealand, Australia and China, said Mr. Tetrault, 63.

Charles H. Thomas (PC—Moncton), 56, said no section of the population has suffered more from the government's "outmoded economic policies" than had old persons.

Rose returns to courtroom

MONTREAL (CP) — Paul Rose, 28, evicted from his trial for "interrupting proceedings," was readmitted to the Court of Queen's Bench Thursday, despite his refusal to promise to "behave properly" during the remainder of his trial for kidnapping Pierre Laporte.

Mr. Justice Fernand Legault had refused Wednesday to allow Rose to ask a prospective juror whether he ever held discussions with his wife.

"That has no bearing on the case," the judge said. Rose began arguing, was ordered to sit down and remain quiet and was ejected when he persisted.

Rose refused to sign a statement promising he would "behave," contending such a statement would be illegal, but was allowed by Justice Legault to return to the courtroom.

Waterloo man killed

PORT HOPE, Ont. (CP) — Provincial police Wednesday night identified two Quebec men killed when a tanker truck carrying gas and stove oil exploded.

Alfred Russell, 53, of Waterloo, and William Russell, 56, of Zotique, Que., were killed Tuesday night when the truck left Highway 28 nine miles north of here.

Richmond MP Beaudoin pickets US White House

WASHINGTON (CP) — Two Canadian MPs, one from the Eastern Townships, and a United States senator picketed the White House Thursday, calling on President Nixon to cancel a proposed nuclear explosion on Amchitka Island in Alaska.

For 20 minutes, bearing protest placards, the three legislators and a small group of protesters paraded in front of the presidential mansion as television and news cameras recorded the unusual event.

Mark Rose (NDP — Fraser Valley West), Lionel Beaudoin (Cred. — Richmond) and Senator Mike Gravel, Democrat from Alaska, carried signs saying "Canada Opposes Cannikin" and "Cannikin a Threat to Alaska and Canada."

The five-megaton device — equivalent to five million tons of TNT — was originally scheduled to be detonated early in October but has been delayed by court action.

The three legislators said it was the first time they had carried a picket sign in their lives.

The Canadian government has formally protested the planned explosion, and conservationists in the U.S. and abroad have opposed it because of fears it could set off an earthquake or damage wildlife.

Rose told reporters the two MPs had come at the invitation of Senator Gravel, "otherwise I wouldn't have come." He explained that he would not be pleased to see American congressmen picketing the prime minister's residence in Ottawa without being invited by a Canadian counterpart.

WANTED SUPPORT

The NDP member said he had tried to enlist an all-party Canadian delegation to make the trip because all parties had supported the government resolution in Parliament last Friday opposing Cannikin — code name for the Amchitka blast — and all other nuclear testing.

The Conservatives had planned to send someone but the plan had fallen through, he said. He said he "has it on fairly good authority" that Liberal MPs were discouraged by the government from taking part "because picketing was somehow undignified or something."

Gravel said he "still thinks the chances are 50-50" that Nixon will cancel the test, although no word has leaked from the White House about the president's views. Nixon has not replied to a recent Gravel request that the senator be allowed to present the anti-Cannikin case to him personally.

"The lunacy of this escalation of size of devices being tested has to stop somewhere," Rose said. "And this is a perfect place to stop."

Gravel suggested jokingly to the MPs that, since Canada has "done all the peaceful things" to protest the detonation, "the next possibility is maybe to go to war."

Rose and Beaudoin are both parliamentary observers at the United Nations session in New York.

Landslide Tory victory in Ontario

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis's jubilant Progressive Conservatives steamrollered to a whopping Ontario election Thursday that left opposition parties with little more than token representation.

The grinning 42-year-old Conservative leader told 2,000 cheering supporters in his hometown of Brampton that he was "very humble, very gratified" in winning his first province-wide election mandate since succeeding John Robarts as premier and party leader last March 1.

Results of the last three elections:

	1971	1967	1963
PC	78	69	77
Lib	20	28	24
NDP	19	20	7
Total	117	117	108

Mr. Davis won a tremendous personal victory in the Peel North riding he has represented since 1959, finishing 19,061 votes ahead of a New Democratic Party opponent. The win was indicative of the premier's widespread personal popularity which was in large measure responsible for the Conservative gains elsewhere in the province.

Within minutes of the polls closing it was obvious that Mr. Davis had successfully defended 28 years of unbroken Conservative government under five different premiers. The only cliffhanger was which party would form the opposition.

As the situation stood when counting ended for the night it looked as though Robert Nixon's Liberals would continue as the official opposition. But they held only a one-seat margin and official recounts were expected in a number of ridings.

At dissolution of the house Sept. 13, the Tories held 68 seats. The Liberals 27, New Democrats 21 and there was one independent, a former Liberal. Following the last election, in 1967, there were 69 PC members, 28 Liberals and 20 NDP seats.

The leaders of both opposition parties retained their seats. Mr. Nixon, a 43-year-old farmteacher, won comfortably in Brant. But NDP Leader Stephen Lewis, 33, saw his plurality cut to 415 votes in the Scarborough West riding he won by 4,821 votes in the 1967 election.

Mr. Davis, who served as Ontario's education minister prior to becoming leader, commended both Mr. Nixon and Mr. Lewis "for the clean and constructive nature of their campaigns."

"But at the same time I think it (the win) indicated very clearly that the people of this province are looking for leadership, they are looking for new direction."

"And I feel very humble, very gratified at the confidence that has been expressed by all the people of Ontario in me, in my colleagues. We will make every effort to justify the confidence that was placed in us."

The result was never in doubt. The Conservatives surged out of their eastern Ontario stronghold minutes after the polls closed and lapped into Toronto, Northern Ontario and the southwestern section of the province with far more electoral muscle than had been anticipated.

In the final hours of the grueling 35-day election campaign both opposition parties, and a number of political pundits as well, were predicting a minority Conservative government. Early returns showed a definite PC trend and at 8:39 p.m. EDT The Canadian Press reported a Tory victory just 39 minutes after polls closed in eastern time zones.

QCFU asks for subsidies

LEVIS, Que. (CP) — The Quebec Catholic Farmers' Union has asked the provincial government for a $16-million subsidy for pork, egg and chicken producers to make them more competitive with western farmers.

Pork, egg and chicken producers in Eastern Canada have to pay twice as much for feed grains as those in the west because of Canadian Wheat Board policy, the union told a producers meeting Wednesday.

Under provisions of the board, a free market for grains is maintained only on the Prairies.

Agriculture Minister Normand Toupin told the 500 producers he would try to get $5 million to help them, but the budget was very tight.

Companies fined

TROIS-RIVIERES, Que. (CP) — Judge Maurice Langlois of Sessions Court Thursday fined three newsprint companies a total of $700 for failing to conform to a Quebec water board order on dumping solid wastes into rivers.

Domtar Newsprint, Canadian International Paper and Consolidated-Bathurst were fined under an order that went into effect Oct. 1.

Plans here of the three companies were fined $200 each, while a Consolidated-Bathurst factory in nearby Cap de la Madeleine was fined $100.

PQ supports unification

QUEBEC (CP) — Claude Charron, Parti Quebecois education critic, told a news conference Thursday his party will support the unification principle of Bill 28, despite the opposition voiced by party leader Rene Levesque.

"Contrary to what happens in most parties when the party leader's opinion constitutes the party program, the unification principle has been party policy since 1969," Mr. Charron said.

It was the subject will vote for it when the bill comes up for second reading in the National Assembly, said Mr. Charron, MNA for Montreal-St. Jacques.

Mr. Levesque voiced opposition to the bill in an interview published Thursday in Montreal Le Devoir, opting for withdrawal of the bill "because in this matter everybody, even the Parti Quebecois, are all literally going to the madhouse."

The Memorandum—well worth seeing

LENNOXVILLE (DM) — A mixed cast of seasoned regulars and theatre freshmen wrestled with a demanding and sophisticated European play last night at Bishop's University Theatre and came away with a tenuous moral victory.

Assuredly, the play "The Memorandum" was not a solid theatrical success. It might be argued that it did not aim to earn storms of applause, but shock and entice the audience through a gamut of reactions and perspectives. The small opening night crowd paid the production the greater compliment of watching seriously and closely the uneven development of the subtle satire.

"The Memorandum," by Czech playwright Havel, is a satiric fantasy which follows the agonizing efforts of District Supervisor Gross to stamp out, then compromise, with the plot to develop a synthetic language which would revolutionize office memos. Office politics are endless, the absurd language sweeps to power, then falls dramatically, and office ritual routine goes on and on and...

The play must inevitably confuse an audience, because the target of the play's satire is not one single political system, or bureaucracy or organizational man. It is all of these. So the satire alternates between rollicking burlesque to which we react with laughter at the absurdity, and character revelation which if we consider seriously is tragic. The language teacher shrieking at teacher's pet is ridiculously funny; the same teacher dressing down the Dubcek-like Joe Gross is not at all.

Notes director Tom Lytle, "Such an up and down structure of dramatic incident and reaction necessarily involves different dramatic modes. Hence the exceptional difficulty." Director Lytle has a knack for making difficult plays more difficult by a passionate attention to theatrical innovative embroidery and blithe disregard for the consistency of the whole. Individual scenes and vignettes succeed so well that their connection to the play's theme is obstructed.

Strobe flashes, robot movement, quick takes, ensemble tableaux are all used in this play. The house reacted to this variety night display by awarding equal applause to individual scenes and the entire production.

The production demanded frequent and profound changes in acting styles, often in the course of a few seconds. Here Mr. Lytle's flair for innovation and attention to detail was well rewarded. Experienced actors like Patrick Neilson (Joseph Gross) and Miles "Indiarubber" Cohen, despite a sometimes evident uncertainty about what they were doing and who they were, gave their finest serious performances to date. The play is worth seeing just to watch these two in their scenes together.

Comic-roule-of-the-season award goes to Alan Davies, who as Mr. P. had the best non-speaking role in ages, and John Corbett who I guarantee will teach you more acting as the language prof than you may have picked up in twice the number of French lessons. Of course they're good kudos to Paul Comeau as the teacher's pet and David Bednar as the official translator.

A demanding play is good for theatre and theatre-goers. Valuable for actors, since it makes them think and work at what they're doing onstage. Essential to the training of the technical staff of a theatre, particularly in a university like Bishop's starting a drama department. Good for audiences because it enlarges their experience of theatre and their understanding of the worlds around and inside them. "The Memorandum" at Bishop's Centennial Theatre tonight and tomorrow night at 8:00 p.m. Well worth seeing.

FOR RE-ELECTION

Alberic Dussault
Rock Forest

Alderman for 4 years and mayor of Rock Forest for 6 1/2 years. Ten years to sum up sincere and conscientious contribution towards the betterment of the whole Rock Forest Municipality.

This year, however, I seriously thought of retiring from municipal administration. Your desire to have me remain your Mayor, your encouragement and support, the regrouping of municipalities, experience at the City Council. All those are important factors which compelled me to weigh the pros and cons of such a decision. I finally made up my mind.

Today, I willingly accept another mandate and promise to serve the whole population of Rock Forest as I always did in the past.

To help me keep my promise, I need your help. All of you know that to achieve success, I need honest and competent men, men willing and ready to cooperate.

In ending, I would like to ask one favor, take your responsibilities, make this campaign a clean one and go to the polls on election day and vote for the man whom you think can serve your interests better.

Signed
Alberic Dussault.

Happenings at BCS

LENNOXVILLE — Two major attractions highlight an interesting weekend of activity at Bishop's College School tomorrow and Sunday.

Another in a series of lectures will be presented at Bishop's College School tomorrow, when the voice of the CBC National News, Lloyd Robertson, will be the guest. Mr. Robertson will speak to the students of BCS and King's Hall, Compton, at 7 p.m. in the BCS auditorium.

Mr. Robertson was born in Stratford, Ont., and was "absolutely fascinated with radio" from his early childhood. At 37 he is probably one of the most respected news and special events broadcasters in Canada.

After finishing school, he applied to the Stratford radio station for a job — any job — and was hired on a part-time basis. Two years later he moved to Guelph, and soon after joined the CBC in Windsor, Ont.

In 1956 he was transferred to Winnipeg, where he worked on a local show called Quest. The years 1960-1962 were spent in Ottawa, where he broke into special events.

Mr. Robertson is married to the former Nancy Barrett of Stratford. They have four daughters, two of them twins.

The Island City Singers and Instrumentalists will perform their popular Festival Folkmass at Bishop's College School Sunday at 10:30 a.m. in St. Martin's Chapel.

New forms of music for worship have been the chief preoccupation of the choir for the past two years, and under the direction of Donald Patriquin, a former Lennoxville resident, it has performed about every three weeks.

Since the music was first written for the Folkmass by Mr. Patriquin, Ross Paul and Donald Gartidge, the group has performed about 40 times. This is a return engagement at BCS, the only time the ICS have performed twice in the same place.

The Singers will be accompanied by the Canadian Brass Quintet from Montreal, an accomplished group of musicians who have worked with the ICS on many occasions.

The latest product of their combined efforts is the record Gloria, which will be in record stores later this month. Gloria is a must for collectors of musical Canadiana, and presents a new sound for brass, singers and guitars. The recording was made in June of this year.

Students from both BCS and King's Hall, Compton, will be attending the Folkmass, and it is expected that a number of local residents will be interested.

Ecologists at AGRHS this weekend

LENNOXVILLE (LH) — Drs. Lorus and Margery Milne, internationally known wildlife photographers from the University of New Hampshire, will present the film "Cloud Jungles of Central America" this Saturday night, at the 18th Annual Bird and Wildlife Revue of the St. Francis Valley Naturalist Club.

The film, to be shown for one night only at the Alexander Galt Regional High School in Lennoxville at 8:15 p.m. Saturday is open to the public. Admission is $1.50 per person and tickets may be purchased at Clark's Drug Store and from naturalists' club members.

The Milnes, an eminent husband and wife ecology team, divide their time between teaching and travelling, the latter going hand in hand with their photographic studies of the environment. They have logged over three quarters of a million miles so far to study and photograph natural environments. One of their books, "Water and Life" was made into a television color film.

The Milnes, who will be appearing in the area until Oct. 26, when they will deliver their final program at 8:00 p.m. in the Centennial Theatre of Bishop's University, will undoubtedly increase our interest and knowledge of the problems of environment.

Sherbrooke citizens escape tax increase

SHERBROOKE (BSL) — Sherbrooke citizens narrowly escaped what can be considered to be a sizeable school tax increase.

The Sherbrooke School Commission made the decision to keep the school tax evaluation at $1.36 for every hundred dollars, Wednesday, despite the government's recommendation to increase it to $1.41 per $100. This recommendation by the government had as its purpose the standardization of school taxes throughout the province.

A few school boards in the province enjoy a mill rate of 1.36 whereas in the majority of the province it is fixed at 1.40 mills and in certain regions it is as high as 1.45. To normalize this situation the government has restricted the maximum mill rate to 1.40 while attempting to make municipalities with a lower mill rate to increase it to the desired proportion.

It should also be noted that the mill rate is evaluated on the real municipal evaluation. The school commission has had to draw from its fund reserves established through over evaluation in the past, to enable it to maintain the present mill rate.

It is the city who fixes the annual school rate but the school commission has to be advised of the rate before October 25.

The Belanger Commission on fiscal policy recommended that the municipal school tax should eventually decrease to 25 per cent of the school commission's total revenues.

The present frontal school tax in Sherbrooke is fixed at 28 per cent which means that the tendency in the future should be towards a decrease in the municipal taxes and an increase in government subsidies. If this is the case, with the use of the reserves to pay the increase in mill rates this year, and government subsidies next year, there should in fact be a decrease in school taxes in the near future.

One can of course speculate that there will be an increase in provincial taxes to sponsor these subsidies, but be that as it may, the citizens of Sherbrooke will be paying five cents less than the established rate for municipal school taxes fixed by the provincial government.

August storm costly

WATERLOO (BSL) — The torrential rains which covered the South-Eastern section of the province and which particularly affected Shetford and Bromo Counties last August 28 and 29 caused damages estimated at more than $200,000.

This figure was sent to the provincial roads ministry by the local roads office in Waterloo. The report states that gravel roads suffered $38,000 in damages while bridges in the area were damaged for more than $176,000. The regional office will ask for special subsidies since it used its reserve resources to repair the roads and now needs money to continue its operations.

Approximately 20 routes were wiped out by the rains in the region, particularly Ste-Anne de La-Rochelle, Lawrenceville, Bonsecours, and Lake Bowker. In many areas large holes were caused on most secondary routes by the rains.

Brome County was particularly hard hit by the rains. Many of the bridges and small crossings were carried away or damaged when the little streams suddenly became veritable torrents.

Beliveau scores

SHERBROOKE (IH) — Jean Beliveau scored another goal last night. Speaking at 11th annual "Carriers Dinner" of the Quebec division of the Canadian Industrial Traffic League (CITL), Beliveau entertained the 300 association members with anecdotes, and opinions on his long career in professional hockey.

Briefly recalling the days when he used to visit Sherbrooke while playing for the Quebec Aces of the old Quebec Hockey League, Beliveau then answered questions from the floor.

He had this to say on the following topics:
Expansion: Beliveau said that though expansion had to be examined from many points of view, from the players point of view it was "the best thing that could happen to them." Instead of being sent to a farm team, players remained in the NHL and enjoyed all the benefits of a major league career.

Montreal Canadiens: Speaking of the highly publicized rookie, Guy Lafleur, Beliveau discussed the difficulties and pressures Lafleur must endure because of all the publicity he has recently been receiving. "The poor kid," he said, "is sitting at home, reading these articles and wondering what is going on. But," he added, "NHL stars must learn to live with the pressure of publicity." He said he remembered how he was the product of a big publicity campaign 18 years ago.

Ontario's choice

Premier William Davis' Progressive Conservative government received an overwhelming vote of confidence from a record turnout of Ontario voters in yesterday's provincial election, leaving the Opposition in a shambles.

As of early this morning, the PCs had won 78 seats, re-electing in the process all 24 members of the Davis cabinet, while the Liberals dropped from 27 to 20 seats and the New Democratic Party from 21 to 18. One riding remained undecided, the Conservative candidate leading.

Mr. Davis' resounding victory, greater than expected despite his favorite's role, was won on the basis of a sound and responsible program which attracted the voters' loyalty over the typically precarious platforms of the Liberals and NDP.

Mr. Davis matched the three-per-cent personal income tax cut announced by the federal government and, in addition to pledging 41,800 winter works jobs, took a long-range view in announcing plans to assist industries seriously affected by the current United States economic program and which are not being aided sufficiently by an $80 million federal program.

The electorate seemingly had no difficulty in choosing Mr. Davis' plan of attack over Liberal leader Robert Nixon's more expensive winter works project, tax credits and provincial loan fund and NDP boss Stephen Lewis' plans to rescind a $125 million tax credit to business for machinery purchases and $75 million winter works scheme.

Mr. Lewis, who barnstormed the province in a chartered plane nicknamed Air Socialism, presumably a hot-air craft, also wanted to add a point to corporation taxes, institute a capital gains tax, increase to five from two per cent taxes paid by mining and pulp and paper firms, and establish Crown corporations to oversee specified resource industries.

The voters said no to this collection of counter-productive flashes of insight in such emphatic terms that Mr. Lewis barely escaped with a 415-vote plurality in his home riding.

The Conservatives' resounding win, however, only the third occasion in nine provincial elections since 1968 that saw the government returned to power, was notable for more than the personal humiliation of Mr. Lewis, a 33-year-old radical in moderate's clothing donned for the election.

The NDP's socialist menace had gained footholds in election upsets in Manitoba and Saskatchewan in 1969 and this year respectively, although the party had its representation in the British Columbia legislature reduced by the Social Credit government in an election Aug. 27, 1969.

With the answer Ontario gave to the socialist call yesterday, one can at least hope that the NDP wave has been broken and that the tide has turned towards a return to responsible democratic alternatives in Canadian politics.

Mr. Davis, having been elected as Premier in his own right after assuming office March 1 upon the resignation of John Roberts, now faces a task far more difficult than merely getting elected. He must exercise the considerable power the people have bestowed upon him in a manner worthy of their confidence and respect, something neither Mr. Nixon nor Mr. Lewis could win.

The electorate of Ontario in its collective wisdom has, in a time of crisis as in times of prosperity, called on the PCs to manage its affairs. Returning Mr. Davis to office after 28 uninterrupted years of Conservative government, the Ontario people have demonstrated once again their trust in the conscientious and competent organization that has maintained their province as the richest in Canada.

French press opinion

This is a selection of editorials on current topics, translated from the French-language press of Canada.

Montreal La Presse: The Canadian economy is in a state of growth. All economic indicators confirm this. And it's because Canada has been more successful than the United States in overcoming inflation, that the latter has had to resort to strict economic measures.

In short, it is Canada which is threatening the United States and not the opposite, as we are led to believe if we listen to what the parliamentary opposition says.

The fact that the number of unemployed is increasing has nothing to do with the state of the Canadian economy. This factor can be attributed to the premature entry of youths into the labor market, to the greater number of women looking for work instead of being content with welfare.

What is needed is to restore the confidence of business and Canadians in general, and this was the major objective of the measures announced by Mr. Benson.

The fact that the Canadian economy is in a state of growth does not excuse the fact that the level of unemployment in Canada is intolerable. To inject a few hundred million dollars into the economy periodically does not change its structure.

Mr. Trudeau does not seem to fear the inflationary effects of a massive injection of a billion dollars, that is 10 per cent of the country's annual budget, into the economy. Everything is going on as if Canada wanted to leave to the United States the job of battling inflation in its own country by such drastic measures as wage and price control.

In short, if the United States controls inflation in its own country, we will automatically benefit without having to take unpopular measures ourselves.

The United States is causing our problems and also solving them without being aware that they are doing it.—Jean-Paul Desbiens (Oct. 16)

Moncton L'Evangeline: Canada was host to the second annual conference of the Agency for Cultural and Technical Co-operation of French-speaking Countries. The meeting grouped representatives of the agency's 22 member-countries, countries entirely or partially French-speaking.

In certain aspects, one can compare the Agency for Cultural and Technical Co-operation to the British Commonwealth. We know the attraction that the Commonwealth has for a great many English-Canadians and the ties which link them to the mother country. On the contrary, French-Canadians do not nourish the same sentiments for France and the other Francophone nations.

The role Canada plays in this co-operation agency is very important, not only in terms of finance and personnel but also in terms of experience and available services. The secretary-general of the agency is a Canadian, Jean-Marc Leger, giving Canada a position of influence with Francophone African nations.

Canada has already been a witness to and profited from some activities of the agency.

While participating in these projects, Canada must however remind herself that while she is helping other foreign countries to benefit from our experience and knowledge, Canada must get something out of it herself.

As for the agency, it must consider making itself better known to Canada and the federal delegation.—(Oct. 13)

Quebec Le Soleil: In several aspects, Canada was founded and developed along a similar line to that of its powerful neighbor to the south.

But in the United States the immigrants have all been mixed together in the Anglo-Saxon "melting pot" while in Canada more room has been left for the existence of various cultural groups. Far from wanting to reject this situation, Canada is seeking to strengthen it.

Prime Minister Trudeau has just presented a document to the House of Commons which supports the multicultural aspect of Canada.

This document establishes a distinct difference between bilingualism and multiculturalism. That is, as a nation where bilingualism is official Canada hopes to develop and take advantage of cultural groups other than the two principal ones, French and English.

It goes without saying that cultures other than English and French are still marginal in Canada and are condemned to stay that way, becoming weaker if they rely only on their mother tongue in their daily life.

Even if they adopt one of our official languages, or both in some cases, several Canadian ethnic groups have remained faithful to their mother tongue.

In a young nation like ours, where the continual challenge is to resist the powerful attraction of our southern neighbor, anything that can distinguish it tends to help it forge a much stronger personality. The French factor is an element of prime importance in view of the marked identity of the Canadian personality.

But west of Ontario certain ethnic groups such as the Germans and Ukrainians are more numerous than the French minorities. If we can exploit the cultural characteristics of these other minorities they will help to distinguish Canada even more from the United States.

The more Canada becomes an Anglo-Saxon country existing beside another Anglo-Saxon country, the more it risks becoming confused with the United States.

Canada's cultural groups, other than Anglo-Saxon, form Canada's big chance to remain itself and to confirm its own personality in North America.

It must know how to exploit to the maximum the resources of its various cultures, while guarding against becoming bogged down in nationalities which would be a surer form of suicide.—Gilles Boyer (Oct. 18)

Montreal Le Devoir: Which one, the Taiwan shadow or the Peking reality... should occupy the seat in the General Assembly of the United Nations and have the right of veto in the Security Council?

Both Albania and the United States feel that the Peking government should occupy the two seats allotted to China in the ranks of the international organization.

But that's where the similarity ends. While the Albanian resolution says nothing of the government which purports to represent China (Taiwan), the American resolution proposes that the government of Nationalist China keep its seat in the General Assembly.

By word and action, Peking has for the last 20 years consistently maintained that it will never accept co-existence with Taiwan in any international event, be it ping-pong tournaments, Olympic Games, meetings of any kind, the parliamentary forum in Ottawa, the diplomatic corps of any country and the United Nations.

A revision of the Chinese policy on Taiwan... is not incompatible with Maoist ideology, which gives a large place to self-criticism, at least in theory.

For once Washington has done some self-criticism; it is now Peking's turn to start discreetly its own self-criticism. This self-criticism will happily be less harrowing than that which President Nixon finally resolved last summer.

It will not be less painful and Ottawa, which enjoys a certain influence with Peking, must do all it can to facilitate this...—Claude Lemelin (Oct. 18)

Freshness from north

MONTREAL (CP)—The bird-like little Eskimo lady from the Arctic confided with a smile:

"When I tell them I had my own movie in my own room, they'll never believe me."

The wise old eyes of Pitseolak twinkled briefly at this allusion to hotel television but most of the time they were tranquil and remote as she recalled her joys and sorrows as child, bride, mother, widow, grandmother—and artist—in the Arctic.

Pitseolak, one of the most gifted of Eskimo graphic artists, born in an igloo or perhaps a skin tent, was holding court at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel for publication of her dictated autobiography, containing many of her art works.

AFTER SEA PIGEON
Something fresh, poetic and child-like permeates the new book, which is said to be the first ever published in English and Eskimo and opens this way:

"My name is Pitseolak, the Eskimo word for the sea pigeon. When I see pitseolaks over the sea, I say, 'There go those lovely birds—that's me, flying!'"

"I have lost the time when I was born but I am old now—my sons say maybe I am 70."

The book, Pitseolak: Pictures Out of My Life, is not a chronology but a story of the things that occupied the mind of the author for so long—domestic felicity, home-life in snowhouses and camps, childhood games, hunting, how to sew a sealskin tent, how to make mukluks. And how it feels to lose a husband and 12 of 17 children.

Moreover, the book's 90 engravings, stone cuts and drawings in color and black and white—all by Pitseolak—portray in an unique way the imagination and vanishing life-style of the Eskimo race, say the publishers, Design Collaborative Books, Montreal, in association with Oxford University Press, Toronto.

ONLY ONE NAME
Pitseolak—who has only the one name—speaks only Eskimo and represents the old tradition, in which men were hunters and women took care of them.

Her words were translated by Mrs. Ann Hanson, a beautiful miniskirted Eskimo woman who looks younger than her 25 years, is married to a government supply clerk and went to school in Toronto. Mrs. Hanson translated for the Royal Family during their 1970 visit to Frobisher Bay, where she is a town councillor.

Much credit for the book goes to author Dorothy Harley Eber of Montreal, who interviewed Pitseolak extensively at her home in Cape Dorset, Baffin Island; with the aid of interpreters, Mrs. Eber edited the interview into one continuous narrative of striking simplicity and vivid detail, and wrote a foreword.

Can the white man learn anything from the Eskimo?

"Yes, but I don't know how," said Pitseolak. "If the white people could stay in the North for a time, watch the Eskimos and see that they do not fight, perhaps the Eskimos could give a good example."

ANCIENT WAR
Her father had told her that in years long past something like a war occurred among starving Eskimos, and her father termed them the "frightful ones."

How is the women's liberation movement doing among the Eskimos? Pitseolak, reaching for another cigarette, looked puzzled when the question was relayed by the smiling younger woman.

"While the men were looking after the women, and women were doing so much work for the men, it was better," said Pitseolak. "All people my age say this."

"The happiest part of life was childhood, when we all played together the games described in the book."

During a conversation pause, Pitseolak suddenly spoke for the first time without having been asked a question.

"My happiness is only on the outside today," she said wistfully. "Inside I am wishing I could once again see my youngest son return to our settlement."

"I wish they could have brought me to Montreal a year ago. My son Ottochie was in hospital here then but he has died and I never saw his body. Perhaps when I see his grave I will really come to believe that he is gone."

"Just thought up a few more annoying restrictions Canada should dump..."

READER FORUM

Young poet

Dear employees of Sherbrooke Record,

I, who am a student of Sherbrooke Elementary School, have written the enclosed poem of the Loyalists. It was made for our history project.

When the class heard it, Miss Anto's pupils thought it was good enough to send to you. If you'd like to use it, I give permission to have the poem published.

THE LOYALISTS

Of all the things in History
There is a sad, sad tale,
All about the Loyalists
Who would soon set sail.

Sail away from their beloved land
By force you know it's true.
They didn't want to leave their homes
And cross the ocean blue.

When they arrived at the appointed place,
All their hopes were gone.
For all they saw around them was Wilderness... Nothing done.

No place to go, no place to stay,
Just think what it was like.
To have to sit right in the street,
Through morning, noon, and night.

The tears were close,
They would not stay,
As people laboured
Through the life-long day.

But their hearts were brave
And their arms were strong.
Their spirits weren't broken
No matter what went wrong.

The Government helped.
And a lot you know.
But little was done
Before the first snow.

As a title of honour
That they'd rightly proclaim,
They put UEL
After their name.

That's the end of the story of the Loyalists.
Who remained loyal to our dear Britain.
If you want more details you'll find them
In the History Book in which the tale was written.

Wendy Webb,
11 years old.

Don't eat tainted food

By Ann
Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I have read in the papers about people dying from botulism after eating contaminated tuna and contaminated potato soup — both canned. Is there any way a consumer can tell in advance whether or not food is contaminated? You explain everything in such a simple language that you are positively the best source of education in the country. Please help us.

—Uptight Housewife
Dear U.H.: The best advice I can offer is simply this: NEVER taste canned or smoked food which appears to be off-color or smells "peculiar." Teach your children to exercise this caution also. The botulin toxin is so deadly that a cupful could easily kill everyone in the United States. If the contents of a can is suspicious, don't throw it out. Take it back to the store where it was purchased and let the manager know.

Also: Do not use the contents of a can that has bulges or leaks. The contents may or may not be poisonous, but it is never worth the risk. Such cans also should be returned to the store. And I remember that proper cooking is a defense against most food poisoning. Finally, if you think you've eaten contaminated food, don't try to treat yourself. Go to the nearest hospital immediately.

Dear Ann Landers: I have never heard such stupid advice in my life as what you gave to the man with the overweight wife. You said maybe HE wanted a divorce and used her fat as an excuse to unload her. Did it ever occur to you that maybe SHE wanted an excuse to drive her husband away? I assure you that is closer to the truth.

Any wife who thinks so little of her husband that she would continue to stuff herself like a pig deserves no sympathy. I have observed these horrors in the supermarket loading their carts with soft drinks, potato chips, ice cream, pies, cakes — all the things they shouldn't have. A woman who will not give up the fun of eating rich food so she can look like a human instead of an elephant does not deserve a husband's love.

Imagine carrying candy in her purse, like a baby with a pacifier. Disgusting! When I read that I blew up. And you come out with the absurd statement that some men love their wives in spite of their fat. How could they?

—Santa Cruz
Dear Santa: They could because they attach more importance to other things — such as emotional support, intelligence, ability to communicate, dependability, devotion, and let's not forget a sense of humor and a cheerful disposition.

Dear Ann Landers: "Retired Husband in Modesto" might sound like a "Pussycat" to YOU, but I'll bet his wife has another name for him.

So he doesn't want to be a flunkie or an errand boy? Did it ever occur to him that the only way his wife can get him out from under her feet is to send him someplace?

I live in St. Petersburg, which is a haven for the retired, and we wives help each other survive by exchanging ideas on how to keep the old boy busy and out of our hair. The best plan is to give him specific responsibilities. For example: lawn or garden work, taking care of the car, vacuuming, waxing the floors, minor carpenter repairs, window washing.

Demeaning? Heavens no! It takes a big man to do little things and those "little" things can add up to a lot of help. Spread the word, Ann.

—Learned in Time
Dear Learned: Consider it spread.

St. Peter's Guild

St. Peter's Guild held their monthly meeting, Oct. 4, at 8 p.m. in the Memorial Hall.

The meeting was opened with the Guild prayer, followed by prayers of the president, Mrs. R. Bartlett.

Final plans were made for the Harvest Supper which was held Oct. 14, from 4 to 7 p.m.

Thank you notes from shut-ins were read.
Looking ahead, plans were made for the Christmas Tea and sale to be held Nov. 27. If anyone would like any special Christmas novelty, knitting or sewing item, they are advised to call Mrs. J. Franklin, at 562-2848.

There will also be orders taken for Christmas cakes, mince and plum puddings, and shortbread. Orders for these will be taken by Mrs. R. Bartlett, at 569-2064.
At the close of the meeting, tea and biscuits were served by the hostesses, Mrs. M. Quine and Mrs. L. Wright.

St. Paul's Guild

The Ladies of St. Paul's Guild, of St. Paul's Church, McManamy St., Sherbrooke, held their annual country style Turkey Supper on Oct. 16.

The crowd kept coming until there were three sittings. Everything was served right on the table, even the pies.

Convenor of the kitchen was Mrs. H. Cox, assisted by Mrs. A. Edgecombe, Mrs. H. Graham, Mrs. C. Mayhew, Mrs. C. Coates, and Mrs. J. Drew.

The dining room was supervised by Mrs. Florence Lord; waitresses were Mrs. J. Dillon, Mrs. D. Lofthouse, Mrs. L. Garnsey, Mrs. G. Robson, Mrs. A. Smythe, Mrs. D. Flanders, Miss V. Flanders, and Mrs. F. Lord. Mrs. Mabel Peck and Mrs. A. Raymond looked after the pies. Mr. Woollerton acted as cashier, assisted by Mr. A. Raymond. Mrs. Sangster was in charge of tickets. Mr. J. Drew and Mr. Clarence Mayhew carved the turkeys.

St. Agnes' Guild

The St. Agnes Guild met in the Church Hall with 10 members present. The president, Mrs. F. Wark, opened the meeting with prayers.

Wallace, Dustin marry in Stanstead

STANSTEAD (IH) — The marriage of Linda Lois, daughter of Mr. Alvin Dustin, and of Mrs. Bernard Fowler, both of Toronto, Ont., to Mr. Barry Russell Wallace, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Wallace, of Stanstead, took place on Saturday afternoon, October 16 at 2 p.m. at Centenary United Church, Stanstead.

The church was beautifully decorated in autumn theme with arrangements of autumn toned, white and yellow mums and marigolds. The guest pews were marked with white satin ribbon bows and faced with an autumn toned leaf.

Rev. G. Joyce officiated for the double ring ceremony. The organ music was played by Mrs. A. P. Gordon.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was wearing a gown of her own styling and making, of white polyester crepe with satin ribbon threading light blue crocheted lace which accented the wedding band neckline, the long sleeves and the high rise waist and was used horizontally from the collar to the floor-length hem. Her fingertip length veil of silk illusion was held in place by a cluster of white with blue flower petals. She carried a colonial of white and blue tinted mums, and white rose buds having white satin ribbon streamers.

Mrs. Robert Ellis, cousin of the groom, as matron of honor, was in a floor length gown of tangerine peau de soie skirt having matching lace bodice with a round neckline and long pointed sleeves. She carried a nosegay of autumn toned mums with toning streamers and wore the same flowers in her up swept hair styling.

Miss Cindy Dustin, as junior bridesmaid, wore a gown of tangerine polyester crepe. Her sister, Miss Cathy Dustin, both cousins of the bride, was in a gown of autumn sky blue tulle, both fashioned alike in semi A-line with matching lace at the high collars, banding the long sleeves and the empire waists; they were matching ruffled lace crowns accented with tiny flowers. Cindy carried a basket of toned autumn mums and Cathy a basket of burgundy flower petals which she dropped for the bride to walk upon.

Mr. Robert Ellis was groomsmen and the ushers were Mr. Melvin Dustin and Mr. Lyndol Perkins, uncles of the couple.
Mrs. Fowler, mother of the bride, chose a light blue and white brocade ensemble, she wore toning accessories and a corsage of pink roses with pink baby's breath. Mrs. Wallace, mother of the groom, was in a three-piece ensemble of navy blue and white, her accessories were in navy blue and she wore a corsage of ruby red roses. Mrs. C. D. Perkins, maternal grandmother of the groom was in a navy blue tulle knit dress having red, white and navy sleeves and trim. Her accessories were in black and she wore a corsage of yellow roses.

Mrs. Alvin Dustin, step-mother of the bride, was in a dress of brown with white dots topped with a brown coat, she wore brown accessories, and a corsage of pink roses with blue baby's breath.

The reception was held in the church hall where the Allegro Unit catered. The tables, decorated by Mrs. Patrick Deslandes and Miss Arlene Probyn, were lovely with autumn colored zinnias placed in evergreen cedar. The bride's table was centred with the tiered wedding cake, made and decorated by Mrs. Horace Doyon in white with light blue flowers and topped with a bride and groom.

After a weekend honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace have taken up residence on Prospect St., Lennoxville.

Guests attended from Toronto, Ont.: Thompsonville, Willamantic, and Hartford, Conn.; Lyme, N.H.; Magog; Milby; Otterburn Park, Granville, Beebe and the Boundary Villages.

Induction service held

FITCH BAY — On Sunday, Sept. 26, between 50 and 60 people came to see the induction of Captain Ronald Smith.

The service was held in St. Matthias Church, Fitch Bay, by Bishop-elect T. J. Matthews, assisted by Archdeacon S. Meade, the Rev. Linton Westman of Danville being the guest speaker.

Canon R. H. L. Slater of Georgetown was organist for the occasion.

Captain Ronald Smith, Mrs. Smith and young son have taken up residence in St. Matthias Rectory following the service.

Thursday evening, October 28, at 8:15

A description of spiritual healing as "scientific in method and precise in its operation" will be set forth by a Christian Science lecturer in the auditorium of Westmount High School on St. Catherine Street West next Thursday evening, October 28. Speaking on the subject "Christian Science: The Discovery of the Healing Christ," Geith A. Plimmer, C.S., of London, England, himself a Christian Science practitioner, will illustrate his talk with accounts from his own experience of healings accomplished through spiritual means alone, including ptomaine poisoning, defective eyesight, and the effects of a severe beating. Mr. Plimmer comes here at the invitation of the Christian Science church in Westmount.

C.A.C. warns against obsolete safety info

OTTAWA — Consumers' Association of Canada (CAC) has expressed grave concern that the Ontario Department of Transportation and Communications has given tacit approval to many child automobile restraints which have not been crash tested, or which offer less than adequate protection in accidents.

The Ontario Department of Transportation and Communications has, in recent weeks, mailed a pamphlet entitled The Child Passenger to concerned parents who request information concerning automobile restraints for their children. This pamphlet has been prepared by the Ontario Safety League and, in the opinion of CAC, contains misleading, outdated and incomplete information.

A meeting with Ontario's transport minister, Charles MacNaughton, to discuss the provision of accurate information to the public has been requested by CAC's national research committee.

STANSTEAD — A very valuable paper has been donated to the Stanstead Historical Society by Delmar White which came from the Canadian Customs.

The paper is a Canadian Customs receipt of duties paid by Wilder Pierce on a yoke of oxen. It was signed by E. M. Thompson, Collector of Customs. The date was September 20, 1844.

This item was found in the Maples Hotel in Stanstead, the former Pierce Home. The Stanstead Customs of those days was in what is presently the store of Mrs. B. Cote, the building just north of the Maples.

Former mayor reminisces

By DON MONTGOMERY
LENNOXVILLE — The Town of Lennoxville celebrates its 100th year of incorporation as a municipality Sunday with the unveiling of a Centennial Plaque which is to be placed on the Lennoxville Library building.

On the occasion of the town's 100th birthday, Arthur Speid, who was born in 1882 and who has resided in Lennoxville at his residential estate with his family since 1888, reflected on his experiences and memories of Lennoxville.

Mr. Speid's home, at the corner of Speid and Hunting Streets, is one in which he has spent 83 years. As a child he grew up there, as did his own children. It is a well structured building, as houses were in those days dating back more than 125 years.

In commenting on the house, Mr. Speid says, "There are very few homes left in Lennoxville that would be over 100 years old."

He does recollect a few homes of old friends, such as the A. A. McKindsey and Sutor residences, as being well over 100 years old. "All the area between Prospect Street and Wilson Street was vast fields and pastureland until the late 1800s and early 1900s and not as you see it developed today," Mr. Speid says.

The Speid, Bowen, Wilson and Clough families were the major landowners in those days, but as time passed they subdivided their estates into what is now the residential section on the upper side of Lennoxville. The Speid estate was the last to be subdivided and, as Mr. Speid says, he didn't get on the bandwagon until 1922.

Queen Street was as it is today, but the commercial section was less spread out and mostly concentrated around the Town Square. Lennoxville was at that time known as "The Crossroads" by virtue of the still-existing intersection of Lennoxville's main street with Belvidere and College Streets.

The old College House Hotel stood where the Catholic Church does today, and stores, shops and barber shops lined Queen Street past the still-standing Georgian Hotel where the townspeople would go if they needed anything in the way of services from the local blacksmith.

The roads were, of course, not as they are today. In those days, as Mr. Speid recalls, they were for the "horse and buggy" age, with the occasional group of youngsters using wheel barrows as the means of getting their fun in the transportation field. The streets were pure mud when it rained and turned to dust in the dry seasons.

Streetcars of the electric trolley type were introduced in the early 1900s, linking Sherbrooke's fashionable retail district with Lennoxville.

The mighty St. Francis River in those days was as pure as crystal, providing Lennoxville with its drinking water.

Mr. Speid, Lennoxville's oldest living former mayor, remembers his tenure of office, which was in the early 1900s.

"I had the usual administrative duties to perform as well as the very unusual. I recall people tearing up here madder than wet hens to discuss things that really were of no concern to me, or for that matter of relevance to the duties of the mayor."

"There were times when I would have to go to the village along with the constable to arrest some drunk and lock him up for the night."

"Hallowe'en always kept us busy. The constable and I would chase the youngsters, who were just having a great time but causing no real damage. Anything movable they would be sure to move," Mr. Speid recalls with a chuckle.

"One Hallowe'en the boys hauled farm and lumber wagons down to the Town Square and piled them at least 30 feet high. What a sight! That was one I will never forget."

"As a past mayor I am happy with the way the town has progressed from the gravel and lumber sidewalks to what the town is today."

In comparing today and yesteryear, Mr. Speid indicates that some of the times were very good indeed, while others were less pleasant, especially in comparison with today's comforts.

He says, "Lennoxville has changed just as every other town in North America has, with progress and just keeping up with the times as best as possible."

"Those of my friends who resided in the town enjoyed their days."

Friday and Saturday night activities consisted of going to the homes of friends to play cards, checkers, blind man's bluff and, if they were lucky, even billiards.

There were three or four dance halls in the town where one could take the lady friend for a night of dancing. The favorite dance hall for most was the top floor of the town hall which is still standing today.

Occasionally groups would go on hayrides in the evening as far away as Cookshire.

When winter laid its white blanket on the town, most of the townspeople would be snowed in. These were the times when Mr. Speid recalls going with his friends up to Pottery Hill, which is the present Lennoxville Golf Course, to go tobogganing on moonlit nights until as late as midnight. The only means of transportation at that time of the year were by horse and sleigh or by foot.

Commenting on the activities of his days, he says, "We had to make our own fun, as it was not manufactured for us as is the case today."

1874 Great Fire an inferno

LENNOXVILLE (DM) — Lennoxville has had some great stories to retell over the 100 years in which it has been a municipality. But the most spectacular event to have taken place is little talked about today, as there are very few people living who were around at the time.

This was the Great Fire of 1874, only three years after Lennoxville was incorporated as a town. The inferno almost wiped the town of fewer than 2,000 off the map.

Starting in a barn just up from the Town Square on Belvidere Street, it blazed through the Methodist Church, the livery stable and the Howes residence and then swept across the street to the C. Fisher home.

As a south wind began to fuel the flames, the fire drove its way furiously up Queen Street, gutting the C. Brooks home, Brooks' Store, Bucks' Hotel, a barber shop, the J. P. Cushing Store, Mr. Cushing's home, Mrs. Davies' and J. Chapman's homes, a storehouse, Murphy's tailor shop, Balfour's Shoe Store, a bakery, and the A. Taylor and H. Cutter homes.

With another shift of the wind, the fire changed its course at Depot Street, making its way across the street to the east side of Queen Street, raging in a northward direction, destroying the Dyer and Johnson Tin Shop and leaping backwards on itself to the south, razing Asselin's Store, a dressmaker's shop and the original town hall.

Lennoxville has built and has had to rebuild over the last 100 years, but it has progressed to the beautiful residential town that it is today only in spite of the severe setback inflicted by the Great Fire of 1874.

Sand Hill

Mr. Kenneth Laberee has returned home after being a patient in the Sherbrooke Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Hall, Red Rock, Ont., were supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. Sims.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Rothney, daughter Marilyn and Garnet Matthews of Cookshire were visiting Mrs. Mollie Cavers at Phillipsburg recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Sims entertained at a family dinner on Sept. 29, prior to the latter's brother Byron Labonte's departure for Melbourne, Australia.

Mr. Milton Laberee and Mr. Howard Caswell of Warden were visiting Mrs. Ada Sutor at the Connaught Home, North Hatley.

Mrs. Sutor was a former resident of this place, she was then Mrs. Ada Warner.

Pregnancy skin problems

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Dear Dr. Lamb—During my last two pregnancies I developed brown stains on my face, on my cheeks and around the lips and eye lids. Cosmetic creams, lotions, etc., don't help. My husband doesn't let me wear make-up (except eye make-up). Does age have anything to do with the stains?

Dear Reader—You are describing the "mask of pregnancy" which occurs in some women. It is the same pigment that occurs with a suntan but of course it occurs as a mask or in spots—one might say giant freckles. They are not harmful.

Pigmentation of the skin comes from cells deep under the surface cells. The cells of the outer skin continuously migrate outward as new cells are formed. Thus people are continuously shedding. The cells pigmented from suntan gradually scale off and the tan is lost. If the pigment cells keep on putting out increased amounts of pigment then the color is retained. This is what happens in the mask of pregnancy and the brown spots will remain for long periods in many cases. Creams and lotions are not likely to get at the source of the pigment deep beneath the surface.

They simply cover up the skin and prevent further tanning that brings out the spots. The best treatment is time and avoiding the sun.

Brown spots also occur with increasing age. These are usually over the hands or on the face and are stimulated by years of exposure to sun and wind. There is not much you can do for these either. It is wise to have them looked at by your doctor in case one of them might be a skin cancer. These can be completely cured if they are treated promptly.

Dear Dr. Lamb—I'm writing since my husband reads your column. I've sailed through the menopause without a problem. He still thinks I should be taking hormones. I am in better health now than I've ever been, more attractive. I keep my weight below 130 and am 5 feet 5.

I believe hormones are just for people with problems. I haven't any. Still being whistled at is 54.

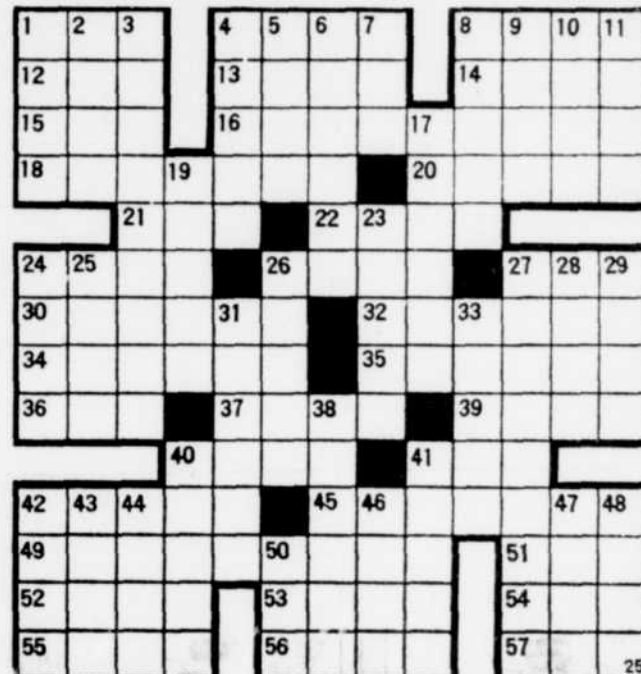

Dear Reader—Hormones do a great deal of good for women who need them. They do not, however, prevent wrinkles. These occur because of loss of elasticity and stretching of the skin.

There is a tendency to inherit the family skin characteristics. Exposure to sun and wind also create a problem.

If your husband is so sold on hormones tell him to take some himself. It might improve his whistle power.

The Day Under Your Sign

ARIES (Born March 21 to April 19) — Be careful not to arouse jealousy or enmity. Try to avoid people who are known trouble-makers.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) — You will be acutely conscious of your responsibilities now and tension tends to build up.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) — A visit to an out-of-the-way spot will prove worthwhile as an educational help for the youngsters.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21) — A friend's insight can steer you in the right direction. Listen without resentment.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Don't let negative attitude of a friend cause you to look at life through dark glasses.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — You can be self-assertive without being overly aggressive. A show of self-confidence will suffice.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Don't cling to out-moded ideas and methods, particularly in job areas. Be more flexible in your thinking.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Show an interest but try not to act pushy. Wait until you are approached instead of coming forward.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Late hours are discouraged, but you should have plenty of time to get finished early in the evening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Someone fails to take a hint and you may have to be a little blunt if you are to get your ideas across.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Pay particular attention to dress and manners today. Social scene is very active in Aquarian charts now.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) — Try a new tack if old methods have failed to do the trick. Seek ideas and suggestions of your elders.

Monday, October 25

The Day Under Your Sign

ARIES (Born March 21 to April 19) — A day to give your views but give others a chance to have their say also. You may look up some time.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) — Be quiet and without making a fuss. It's too late to complain now at any rate.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) — It will be easier for others to see your point of view now and for you to understand theirs.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21) — Send cheery notes to people you can't see often. Just a sincere "I miss you" means a lot.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Good day for socializing. People are friendly, helpful and anxious to please. Make requests.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — You are impatient to get moving, but you can't light a fire under the feet of the household.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — A day to give your views but give others a chance to have their say also. You may look up some time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Don't act about things you can't help and over which you have no control. Get on and bear it!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Inception is part of life. Look at a child and as an adult. You find it difficult to deal with today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — You may be late for work due to circumstances of home. You can make up for lost time, however.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — You have a lot on the mind. Don't let feelings of inferiority hold back your progress.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) — Don't get discouraged if your request is turned down right off the bat. People do change their minds!

Sunday, October 24

The Day Under Your Sign

ARIES (Born March 21 to April 19) — Someone may try to fool you, but a "know job" won't impress you. Aries are extra-alert at this time.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) — Since you're not in an agreeable mood, better not make social engagements for this evening.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) — Provocative verbal exchange early in day puts you in touchy mood. You will calm down before sunset.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21) — You could talk your self right out of an advantage by revealing too much too soon. Be discreet.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) — You may run into a financial snag this week, but benefic rays suggest help will be forthcoming.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — Good aspects for pushing pet projects. Plans seem to work out best when discussed with knowledgeable person.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Your sense of style isn't too reliable at the moment, so postpone purchase of winter wardrobe at this time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Even though you can prove you were right all along, try to resist the "I told you so" routine.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Adverse aspects suggest "staying put" rather than roaming around the countryside, especially late in day.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — No day to pussy-foot around. The direct approach brings best results. Don't let timidity deter you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Contradictory transits in Aquarian charts suggest that you may feel at sixes and sevens. Try to remain calm.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) — Go along with the crowd even though you do not particularly feel in the mood. You'll enjoy it when you get there.

UCW make donation to Children's Home

COOKSHIRE — Mrs. D. A. Bellam entertained the UCW of Trinity United Church at her home, with Mrs. J. H. Vogell in the chair. There were eleven present.

Miss Aletha Mackey was in charge of the worship period. She gave a meditation on the sin of judging other people too harshly, when you don't know all the circumstances. She suggested that each person size up his own weaknesses and then that person will be able to get his own value. She then gave a prayer, and the Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison.

Mrs. D. J. MacMillan read the minutes, and some thank you notes for gifts such as a wedding gift, In Memoriam donations, and sympathy cards.

Bills were presented and ordered to be paid. Mrs. Earl

Parker gave a favorable treasurer's report.

The church calendars had been received, and were distributed. The members were asked to bring fruit or vegetables to decorate the Birchton Church for Thanksgiving Sunday.

$50.00 is to be given to the Lachine Children's Home as a Live Love Project.

Tentative plans were made for the casserole supper and sale, which date has been changed from Nov. 13th to Nov. 27th. All the ladies are asked to bring articles for the sales tables.

The ladies were invited to the Birchton UCW on Wednesday, Oct. 13, at 8.30 p.m.

Mrs. Earl Parker will entertain in the next meeting on Wed. Nov. 3rd at 8.00 p.m.

Following adjournment the hostess served refreshments.

Church Meetings

Mrs. Wm. Cutler

838-4712

HATLEY — The Anglican Church Women met in the Church Hall on Wednesday afternoon Oct. 6 for a business meeting. Mrs. Stanley Whitcomb presided and led in prayers.

Plans were made for the card party in the hall on October 15 and it was decided to hold more 500 parties every two weeks during the fall.

It was announced that the joint fall rummage sale and food sale will be held in the United Church Vestry on Friday evening, Oct. 22 from 6 to 10 p.m. and from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 23, with the food sale on Saturday Oct. 23 only.

The Christmas sale and supper will be held on Saturday, Nov. 20 and plans for the supper to be completed at the next meeting in November.

Waterloo

A. Ashton — 539-1841

The Annual Chicken-pie Supper, sponsored by the Board of Stewards of St. Paul's United Church will be held on Saturday, Oct. 23, beginning at 5 p.m. in the Church Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hanna and son Mark of Warwick, R.I., Mrs. J. Boos, of Manassquan, N. J., and Mr. Howard Hanna, of Moncton, N.B. were guests at Thanksgiving week-end of Miss Edith Hanna and Mrs. C.L. Hanna.

Mr. Lyle Cooper attended the wedding of his niece, Miss Susan Potvin, of Nanticoke, Ont. to Mr. Wm. Lindsay, Port Dover, Ont. Mrs. Alice Stone has returned here after spending three months visiting relatives in Southampton, Stratford and Nanticoke, Ont. and also attended the wedding of her granddaughter, Miss Susan Potvin at Nanticoke.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Daigle and family, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Daigle and family of Toronto and Mr. and Mrs. Pat Daigle and family of Ville d'Anjou called here owing to the death on Oct. 8th of their father, Mr. A.J. Daigle. Sympathy of their many friends is extended to Mrs. Daigle and family. Mr. Frank Daigle of town is also another son.

South Durham

Recent visitors of Miss Lina Breton were her cousins Mrs. O. Normandin, and three daughters, Fabienne, Clare, and Francoise, from Upton.

Recent visitors of Mr. and Mrs. C. Proulx were Mr. and Mrs. Ange Emile Cardin from St. Nicéphore.

Mr. and Mrs. John G. Davidson of St. Bruno were guests on Sunday of their aunt and uncle Mrs. W. Robinson and Mr. W. Proulx and accompanied them to Acton Vale accompanied by Mrs. E. Stanhope of this place, and Mrs. G. Breton of Bethel, where they attended the yearly Anglican Church Service.

Rev. Canon Church from Scotstown conducted the service. Delicious refreshments were served on the parsonage grounds after the service.

Others attending this service from South Durham, were Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Johnston, Miss Irene Montgomery, Mrs. Quincy Richmond and Mrs. E. Richards.

Mr. and Mrs. Davidson were supper guests of their aunt and uncle on their return home, then went to Davidson Hill and spent the evening with their aunt and uncle Mr. and Mrs. Alex Davidson.

Mr. W. Proulx and Mrs. W. Robinson were recent dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Pilote in Granby.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Clifford's little daughter Charlotte, returned home from Sherbrooke Hospital on Sept. 29 much improved in health, and hopes to return to school on Monday.

give South a ruff and discard.

It looked like a hopeless choice, but after deliberation, West saw that it couldn't hurt him. South was going to make the trumps separately no matter what happened so the ruff and discard wouldn't do South a bit of good. West led his last diamond. South ruffed in dummy and could find no better discard than his last club. Then he lost the spade finesse and his contract.

It was a fine slam contract. It lost because clubs failed to break, the spade finesse was wrong and West put up a genius defense.

IN HOT PURSUIT — Graham Thomson, Mike Zinay and Dave Vaughan of BCS, dark sweaters, make it hot around the Alexander Galt Regional High School nets in yesterday's game. BCS came out on the long end of a 3-2 score.

BCS downs AGRHS 3-2

LENNOXVILLE — The final clash of the season between the senior soccer teams of Bishop's College School and Alexander Galt Regional High School of Lennoxville ended in a 3-2 victory for Bishop's yesterday afternoon.

In a game which was otherwise uninspired, Mark Stephen counted twice for the winners — both times on direct penalty kicks. Dave Vaughan gave BCS its margin of victory when he drove home a good pass from Graham Thomson.

AGRHS scored first on a clever play by Michael Cote, when he drove a low ball past the prostrate BCS goalie, Harvey Simkovits in the BCS nets had made a superb foot save, but Cote got the rebound and made no mistake.

Within two minutes, BCS had tied it up when Stephen notched the first of his two goals. The second came after another three minutes and BCS went ahead to stay.

AGRHS had flashes of brilliance in the second half but failed to capitalize when in the BCS half of the field.

In other games, AGRHS junior and bantam soccer teams defeated BCS teams by identical 4-2 scores.

Bedford lady curlers Meet

BEDFORD (EJC) — A meeting of the members of the Ladies Curling Club was held in the clubroom on Thursday evening with the president, Mrs. Russell Blinco, conducting the meeting.

The secretary, Mrs. W. Jackson, read the minutes which were approved as read. The report of the treasurer, Mrs. Stanley Soule, showed a good financial condition, a bill for engraving was ordered paid.

The members voted $300.00 to the men's branch. The matter of purchasing table cloths was discussed. The entertainment committee of which Frank Creighton is chairman has set up a busy season. The opening dinner will be held on October 23 with Mrs. N. Lippert and Miss Jacqueline Monette to be in charge, a bonspiel will be held on November 13, also another on March 24, a car rally on April 15, followed by a supper. A successful Gaz-o-Rama was held on Saturday last at Blanchette's Station. A Halloween party will be held at the club on October 30, with a wine and cheese party on November 6.

Mrs. Harry Jones is the club's representative to the LAC. It was suggested that a member of the match committee be approved. There was some discussion as to whether the club should join the LAC again. The ladies friendly will be held on December 2, a tentative date being set.

The officers of the club for 1971-72 are Mrs. Jack Paton, past president; Mrs. Russell Blinco, president; Mrs. Allan Palmer, vice-president; Mrs. Stanley Soule, treasurer; Mrs. W. Jackson, secretary; Mrs. L. Dawes, chairman; Mrs. D. Traynor, Mrs. Stanley Johnson; Mrs. M. S. McCaw, business girls representative; Mrs. W. H. Baglow and Mrs. Allan Palmer, men's bonspiel; Mrs. Jack Paton, Mrs. L. Dawes, mixed bonspiel; Mrs. Bruce Kirwin, Mrs. C. Rich, friendly; Mrs. Harry Jones, special events; Mrs. Harold Palmer, Saturday games; Mrs. Lennox Ames, refreshments Saturday nights; Mrs. Jack Paton, prizes; Mrs. F. LA to present bursaries at Supper

STANSTEAD — The October meeting of Stanstead Frontier Branch Auxiliary was held at the Memorial Home with some 24 members attending.

The president, Mrs. Jack Heald presided and opened the meeting in the usual way. Reports were heard.

Mrs. Heald announced plans for Armistice day observance made by the Senior Branch. A parade to take place at 2:30 p.m. with a service at the Rock Island cenotaph. A supper will be held at the Memorial Home and it was for this the Auxiliary made plans for a family style menu with pies for dessert.

It was also planned that the Auxiliary will present three student bursaries at the supper of $50.00 each.

It was noted some Veterans of the area are ill and some hospitalized, all will be remembered with good wishes for a speedy recovery from the Auxiliary.

Mrs. Heald also noted the date of December 18 set for the children's Christmas party and tentative plans were made for this.

The meeting adjourned and refreshments were served by Mrs. B. Brosseau, Mrs. B. Trevaill and Mrs. G. Inglis.

Hull brothers lead Hawks

The Hull brothers are up to minutes of play for good measure.

Black Hawks in the National Hockey League.

Bobby and Dennis Hull scored three goals between them to lead the Hawks to a 5-2 victory over Buffalo Sabres Thursday night.

In the only other NHL game Los Angeles Kings routed Philadelphia Flyers 7-0.

A year ago the Hull brothers combined for 84 goals, with Bobby getting 44 and Dennis 40.

In seven games this season they have six, Bobby four and Dennis two.

Bobby got his fourth late in the second period against the Sabres to break a 2-2 tie before a record turnout of 15,451 at Buffalo's Memorial Auditorium.

Dennis' goals were his first of the season and the younger Hull brother said "it felt good to break into the scoring column."

Los Angeles goalie Gary Edwards kicked aside 34 shots as the Kings spoiled Philadelphia's home opener before 14,120 at the Spectrum. Bobby Berry and Real Lemieux each tallied twice to lead the Kings' offensive.

Meanwhile at Pittsburgh, defenseman Tim Horton will be lost to the Penguins for possible six weeks because of a broken ankle, the Penguins said Thursday.

The Penguins activated defenseman Bob Woytowich to replace Horton.

At Toronto, the Leafs reported that centre Dave Keon, who has missed five games with a knee injury, could be in the lineup tonight when Detroit Red Wings invade Maple Leaf Gardens.

Earlier it was reported Keon might not start skating until Oct. 27.

Boston forward Don Marcotte will undergo surgery today to correct a spinal disc ailment, the Bruins said Thursday.

Marcotte has been out of action since the Bruins' season opener.

Etcheverry facing problems

MONTREAL (CP) — Coach Sam Etcheverry faced several personnel decisions today as his Montreal Alouettes prepared to entertain Winnipeg Blue Bombers Sunday afternoon.

The biggest question mark remaining for the coach of the defending Grey Cup champions, was the status of quarterback Sonny Wade, hampered by a shoulder separation for almost two weeks.

While Wade had not been scheduled to start against the Western Football Conference Bombers, Etcheverry still had to decide whether or not to put him on the 30-day injury list or take a chance and leave him as backup to rookie Jim Chaisey for the game.

Chaisey was at the helm all the way in Toronto last Sunday as the Alouettes downed the Argonauts 28-7.

Wade was injured one week earlier against the same club here as the Argos dumped the Alouettes 35-5 to clinch the Eastern Football Conference regular-season title.

Wade was injured "slightly" in first reports, but his shoulder has failed to respond to treatment and he has been unable to throw the ball since.

Standing on the sidelines awaiting the decision was newcomer Jim Leclair, who previously performed here as a quarterback with Montreal Beavers of the Continental Football League several seasons ago.

Leclair, along with defensive end Tony Guillory, were scheduled to finish five-day trials today. Guillory, a former Bomber, would have to displace either Bill Whisler or Joe Blake, the Alouettes' current incumbents at the defensive end spots.

These last two years have not been prosperous ones for the Cadet footballers. What was once a perennial challenger has faded to the bottom of the new league.

The Gaiters, under head coach Bruce Coulter, faced a similar situation against University of Montreal Carabins two weeks ago. They answered it by splitting the duties between the starters and the reserves. The result was a 70-0 whitewash and many mistakes.

As a result of the one-sided scores turned in by the Gaiters, with the exception of a close 22-16 victory over McGill University Redmen, they have been rated No. 1 this week on the national scale.

When questioned last week about being rated second, coach Coulter replied: "We should be rated about fifth or sixth. That's not to run down our team, but our division has never proved itself against western competition. Until we do, we shouldn't be rated that high."

Another objection to the ratings is that the Bluenose Conference last week had two teams, St. Mary's University Huskies and St. Francis Xavier X-Men, rated above the western teams. They could well be, as could Bishop's, that good. However, there is no concrete evidence in the form of inter-league play to substantiate this yet.

For Bishop's, the big test should come in three weeks' time from this coming weekend. At that point, barring a double upset in their own division or a surprise from either Macdonald College Clansmen or University of Sherbrooke Green and Gold, one or the other of which will be the QUAA White Division titlists, the Gaiters should be making the trip to Winnipeg for a national semifinal contest.

For this weekend, the Gaiters should not be challenged. However, the RMC Redmen are always the best conditioned team in the league. On the basis of this, perhaps they should not be taken too lightly. Stranger things have happened!

Hunting and fishing in the E.T.

By NORM NICHOLL

This year migratory bird hunters have, or will have, an excellent opportunity to attain their bag limits. All reports indicate an excellent crop of geese and ducks in northern breeding grounds. On some of the sanctuaries along the St. Lawrence River below Quebec City the snow goose population has at time reached the 100,000 mark.

Here in the Eastern Townships the Canada goose traffic has been extremely heavy during the past two weeks. Many hunters have taken their first goose. With poor weather conditions to come, the duck population should show an increase for excellent migratory bird hunting.

However, there are those nimrods who must defy the challenge of hunting in the true fashion. During the past couple of weekends the use of motorboats to chase the birds has been prevalent on Lakes Massawippi and Memphremagog, a violation of the migratory bird law. In fact, we've been told that airplanes have also been used.

Hunters and residents should report these infractions to the conservation officers or to take the number of the boat if possible and pass the information along to the RCMP.

During the past few days, numerous stories have been going about regarding an incident in the Island Brook area. It seems that two moose were shot. Now the story seems to be that one moose was shot and knocked down. The hunter then saw what he supposed was the same moose stand and shot again. When the excitement died down, there were two dead moose. The matter is under investigation by local conservation officers and information has been passed along to the Justice Department for its consideration.

SPORTS AT BISHOP'S

Comment by Bryden Murray

How do you approach a game against a team that has lost every game this year, including one to a team which you have already defeated by 70 points? Do you start your second team in hopes that the game will be a more even contest? Do you play your regulars to avoid letting them get rusty, and thereby humiliate what should be a much weaker opponent? This is the dilemma facing Bishop's University Gaiters this weekend as they head into Kingston to face the winless Royal Military College Redmen in Quebec University Athletic Association football action.

These last two years have not been prosperous ones for the Cadet footballers. What was once a perennial challenger has faded to the bottom of the new league.
