Brutal Triple Murder at Anderson's Corners

Culprit Gives Himself Up Few Hours After To Police In Montreal

Trio - 2 Men and Woman All Aged, Terribly Beaten

The citizens of Huntingdon were aroused when they heard of the brutal slaying of three elderly people at Anderson's Corners, during Monday night. The news slowly began to leak out, but it was not until several broadcasts over the radio were heard that it became generally known on Tuesday morning. By that time police from Montreal had visited the scene of the crime and had the case well in hand.

Fortunately, the police's work was made easy, for the culprit gave himself up and this was really the first time that the police knew of the murder, which was then only a few hours old. A man walked into a Montreal police office in the early hours of Tuesday morning and said he had killed three people and told where. Immediately the police got in touch with the police at Ormstown, Lionel Chartrand, who in turn phoned Constable Leduc at Valleyfield. They then went to the scene of the crime and discovered the bodies of the three people in a shed at the rear of the little store owned by two of the victims.

It was a particularly ghastly sight which met the eyes of the arrivals and showed that a very brutal murder had been committed of three elderly, and no doubt, inoffensive people. The victims were Aristide Allen, age 67 years; Cezarie Johnson Allen, his wife, age 74 years and Narcisse Cusson, a neighbour, age 72 years. The two Allens had received terrible blows and wounds on the head, while Cusson had been stabbed many times in the body. So badly had the Allens been wounded that it was hardly possible to recognize they had faces. The bodies were piled one on the other like sacks and they lay in a pool of blood in front of a car in a shed at the rear of the little store. With the two policemen were Ernest and Arthur Allen, sons of Aristide Allen, one of the victims. Coroner Dr. George Lefebvre of Huntingdon was called and the bodies were ordered removed to Huntingdon.

The culprit is given as Alcide Martin, age 31 years, and a grandson of Mrs. Allen, who had been married before. Martin is a married man with a wife and four children, his address being given as R.R. 1, St. Henri de Mascouche, L'Assomption County. After the crime, as was stated above, he went to Montreal and gave himself up to police and stated what had happened.

The police in some reconstruction of the case and with help of some confession from the accused, believe that this is what happened. Martin, who is a private in Canada's Royal 22nd Regiment, slated for overseas service and on leave, went to visit his grandmother at her little store at Anderson's Corners. It is hard to say just what happened when he arrived, but police believe the motive was robbery as the rooms at the rear of the store were all ransacked and upturned as though a search had been made for something. On the other hand there is a possibility that a quarrel took place over something. In any case they believe that the accused enticed the old couple, perhaps singly, to the shed at the rear of the store and here made an attack on Mr. Allen first which resulted in his death. The wife hearing the commotion may have gone out to see what was the matter and then she was attacked and murdered. Mr. Narcisse Cusson, a neighbour of the Allens and living in a house only 75 feet away, was also probably aroused by the disturbance and he too came to find out what was going on. Thus he fell a victim to the vicious attack of the murderer.

To substantiate this theory are a few facts that were discovered at the scene of the crime. First there were no signs of a struggle in the house or store, nor were there any blood stains in any of the rooms to suggest that the victims had been attacked in the house. The bloodstains were found right where the victims themselves were found in front of the car in the shed. To indicate that the neighbour was attacked outside, the police found bloodstains at the side of the little store and leading toward the shed at the rear. It is therefore assumed

"Any Hope For Today?" Is Title of Talk to Rotary

Steer Toward An Objective Is Advice Of Stuart Richardson

Mr. Stuart Richardson of Northern Electric Company, Montreal was the speaker at the Rotary Club meeting on Monday and the subject of his address was "Any Hope Today?"

Introducing his topic through the story of the Relief of Lucknow, he explained how those who were besieged in the garrison at Lucknow, India, used to ask each other was there "Any Hope Today?" This question was of course as to whether there was any news of their relief or probable relief.

He explained that it was a situation these people were in that they could not see what was to come, they could only hope. We are in a situation the outcome of which we cannot see, he said. We have a vast picture before us of all that is going on in the world and the probability of what may happen, but we have no means of knowing just what hope there is. The miracle of communications brings us news and happenings from all parts of the world in the shortest possible space of time, but it tends to make everything more confusing. We read various stories in the newspapers which tell us that such and such a thing is so and then we are told that it is not so. Just as we feel every thing is once more plain sailing we are told that there is more trouble. One columnist will tell us that a certain thing has happened and we will think things are right, while another one will find something we had not thought of and prove to us it is all wrong. We are then a bewildered people not knowing what to believe or how to proceed in the face of things.

This is perhaps no different to what has happened in the past, but then we are not living in the past and therefore we do not know what did happen and are apt to believe our own troubles are worse than they were with other people.

One thing that we can learn from the fighting in Korea, that is that the war there has not spread as it did in other theatres of war in the past. It has shown us that the United States is coming out as the leader of world power. In this young country it means that they have produced men of leadership at a much greater rate than did Great Britain. The most outstanding significance is that the United States has changed from isolationism to leadership. Canada has also produced great men of leadership in the past few years. Canada has done much in Korea, right in the beginning the navy had three ships in Korean waters and instituted an airlift to Korea in the early days. Later an army was in the field.

Just the same, the situation is a complex one. We cannot stay a bewildered people, we must be stouthearted, we must have hope. The situation is a challenging one, we have got to decide the issues. One thing that looms up is it the citizen who is to rule or is it the state. The world must survive and we must all help it to survive. If it is going to survive, then we must have a place to steer for, an objective. We must raise our heads and look for the place to steer for and the objective. Then there is need of hope because it is an infectious quality. While we hope we can survive. Perhaps, then, we should lift our heads and look for the landfall, then we may be able to see our hope for today.

THE SCENE OF THE CRIME AT ANDERSON'S CORNERS

The top photograph taken by The Gleaner photographer, shows the store owned by Mr. and Mrs. Aristide Allen, who were victims of a brutal murder on Monday evening. To the left is the house in which Narcisse Cusson, the third victim of the murder, lived alone. The men in the photograph are provincial police officials—left, police photographer, centre, Det. Gaston Archambault and right, Det. Merle Lawton. The three old people were seated on the bench in front of the store at about 9 o'clock on Monday evening and this was the last time they were seen alive. The lower photograph shows the shed which was just at the rear of the store and the car in front of which the bodies were found piled on one another. The man standing back of the car was unidentified. Reading from left to right, the other group composed the following: Police photographer; Lionel Chartrand, policeman from Ormstown; Det. Merle Lawton; Chief L'Heureux; Constable Leduc of Valleyfield who together with Chief Chartrand were the first on the scene and Det. Gaston Archambault.

Cornerstone For Addition to Gault Institute, Valleyfield, Laid by Dr. J. A. McDonald

Impressive Ceremony Held on Thursday Afternoon Before Friends of the School

History was made again in Valleyfield, on Thursday afternoon, when the ceremony of laying the cornerstone for the extension to Gault Institute took place.

Although the gathering was not as large as expected, a fair attendance was on hand to witness the event. The ceremony opened with a prayer for the good of the school and for all those who had taken a part in it and for those who were working on it to bring it to a successful conclusion. Lt. Col. W. G. E. Aird was chairman for the occasion and before calling upon Dr. J. A. McDonald to lay the cornerstone, gave a brief address on the school.

Mr. Aird's remarks follow:

I have been asked by the Board of Trustees to act as Chairman for the Ceremony taking place this afternoon, and which I appreciate very much.

I would like to give you a few details with regard to Gault Institute, and which has shown a constant increase in the number of pupils attending since the original building was erected.

In 1895 the Gault Institute was founded and endowed by the late Alexander F. Gault, then President of Montreal Cotton Company, the building being erected at a cost of $40,000 plus an endowment of $15,000. At the time of erection, the building which is of stone, was considered the most modern of schools, with six classrooms and an assembly hall fitted with a stage, and capable of accommodating nearly three hundred people. Its founder left nothing lacking that would add to the efficiency of the school.

In 1901, a free gift of lots of land was given to the school by the Montreal Cotton Company, to provide a campus.

In these early days, there were two schools under the direction of the Dissentient School Trustees. The Gault Institute and another, then known as the Old Academy School located in the main section of the City of Valleyfield. Population shifts caused the closing down of the Old Academy School, with a bringing of all Protestant pupils under the one roof. From that time on, the Gault Institute has been overcrowded and this condition has been accentuated by changes in curriculum and improved methods of teaching.

There are now eight classrooms and a library on the two main floors. Chemistry and Household Science are taught in the basement. The library and the rooms in the basement are also used when free for the teaching of other subjects.

While the basement is adequately provided with artificial lighting, it does not afford sufficient daylight, nor can the location of these rooms be considered in keeping with the present health standards.

A moment's reflection will show the serious inadequacy of the present school when the number of pupils attending is considered. It is only through the most careful housekeeping that we have been able to avoid serious consequences. These deficiencies will be overcome when the extension now under construction is completed.

At the present time, there are ten teachers full time and one half time—arrangements have been made for the coming season that twelve teachers be engaged full time, as it will be necessary to have a greater staff in order to take care of the number of pupils. This new building will also make it possible to separate classes which are now being taught in the same room under difficulties.

The value of Protestant property has steadily declined over the years. Evidently not due to a reduction in the number of Protestant families, but the fact remains that the property is moving out of the hands of those of the Protestant faith. From a taxable property of $678,150 in 1933 to $200,000 in 1950. The present tax rate standing at 12½ mills. The amount of tax received from property held by Protestant families was only $2,761 during the year 1950.

At a gathering held on the 26th April, 1949, in connection with the Official opening of the school, after the repairs were made during the Summer of 1948, I was one of the invited guests, and during my few remarks, I made the statement that "I still had in the back of my mind the possibility of raising sufficient money whereby additional classrooms, locker rooms, lavatories, playrooms, etc., as well as a large gymnasium would be constructed in connection with the school."

On my way out from the gathering, I was approached by a representative of one of our Manufacturing Firms who asked the question, "Were you serious when you made the statement with regard to the possibility of obtaining further monies to complete the extension to the school?" My reply was, "Yes."

Since that time, considerable work has been done, and I must say that the Industries in our Town, as well as a number of leading citizens, and some of the old scholars, have contributed very liberally towards the fund we set out to raise.

A very large contribution towards this extension has been made by the Provincial Government, and our thanks are extended to the Honourable Maurice Duplessis, Prime Minister of the Province of Quebec, as well as the Honourable Omer Cote, Provincial Secretary, Mr. O. J. Desaulniers, Supt. of Education, Doctor W. P. Percival, Director of Protestant Education, and Mr. Edgar Hebert, Member for our county in the Provincial Government. I would like to make special reference to Mr. Edgar Hebert, who has been untiring in his efforts in helping to secure the special grant from the Provincial Government.

It would not be right if I did not at this time take the opportunity of thanking publicly the Manufacturers in our City, as well as those who have contributed towards the new building, and which as you see

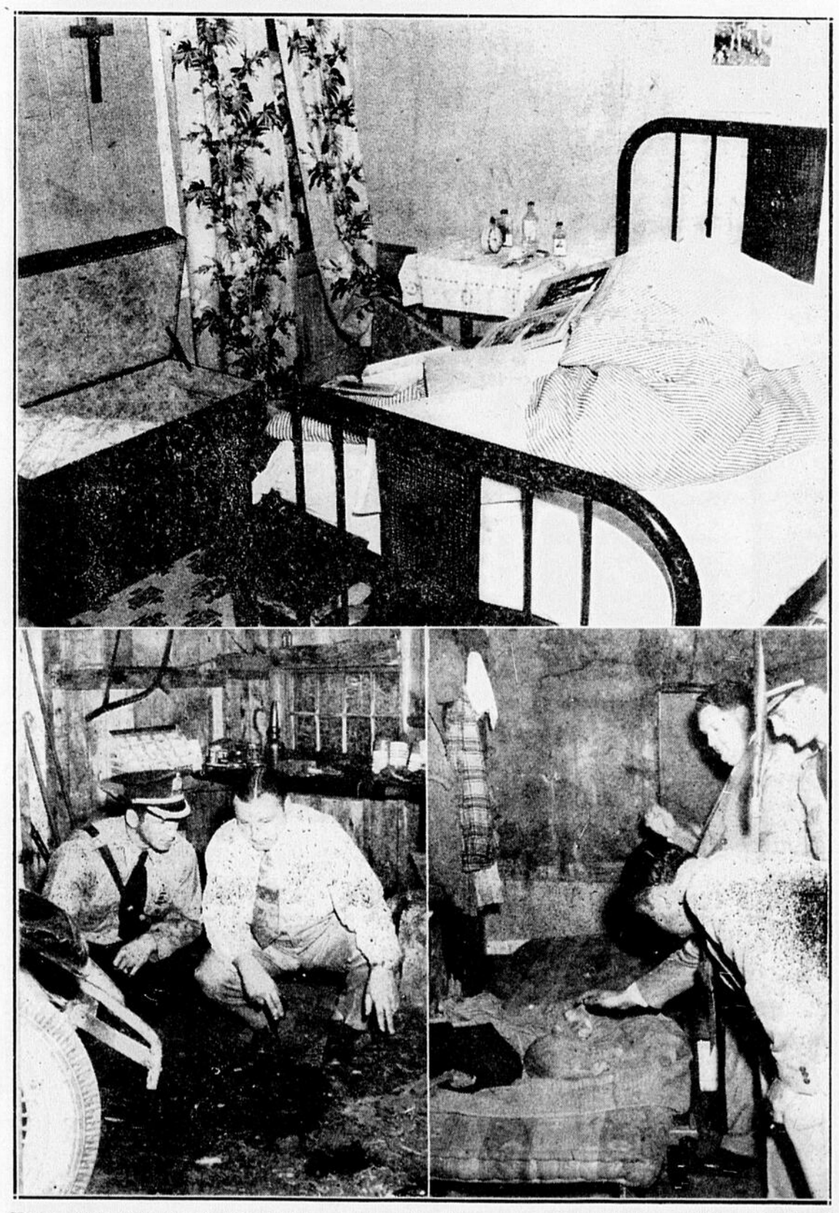
SIGNS POINT TO ROBBERY AS MOTIVE FOR BRUTAL CRIME



Upper photograph shows one of the bedrooms in the apartment behind the little store at Anderson's Corners where a brutal murder occurred on Monday night. As will be seen from the picture, the room was thoroughly ransacked as though the accused had been looking for something he wanted. This was so all through the house. Below left, Chief L'Heureux and Det. Archambault are shown looking at the huge pool of blood where the three bodies were found in front of the car in the shed at the rear of the store. Lower right, is the inside of the house in which the neighbour, Narcisse Cusson lived. His cat is shown waiting for the return of a master it will never see again. Police officials are shown petting the cat as carrying out their investigations with regard to the brutal slaying.

Wrestling and Variety Acts At Show at Fair Grounds

Proceeds to Go in Aid of Two Worthy Local Projects

The Huntingdon Rotary Club and the War Memorial Committee is looking forward to a good attendance at both nights of Wrestling and Variety Show they are sponsoring at the Fair Grounds on Friday and Saturday, August 3rd and 4th.

No effort has been spared to bring good entertainment and other features to Huntingdon to provide a real top-notch two evenings fun for young and old. There will be two nights of wrestling matches with Chief J. L'Heureux of Huntingdon taking part in at least one of the matches and the Masked Marvel as a contestant in another bout. It is possible that the Chief may have to meet the Marvel if they should both win their bouts.

There will be acts of mystery, songs and gaiety, acrobats, frivolity and what not, with never a dull moment. A complete change of program will be given on the second evening.

Huntingdon Citizens' Band will be in attendance on both evenings and from the time you enter the grounds until you leave, you will be entertained.

The proceeds will be divided between the Rotary Club and the War Memorial Committee to be used for two local projects. One, for the creating of a fund to sponsor a local girl to train as a nurse and two, to add to the War Memorial Committee's fund for a war memorial centre in Huntingdon. Thus your money will be put to good purpose while you will have the enjoyment of one or both evenings' fun.

The response to the canvassers has been most gratifying to date. Refusals were almost negligible and in the majority of cases were explained to the satisfaction of the canvassers. The majority of people contacted were loud in their praise of Huntingdon Citizens' Band.

Due to the fact that many people are out of town on their holidays, it has been found necessary to continue the drive one more week, that is, until Saturday night. If, at the end of that time, a canvasser has not contacted you, please phone Bandmaster Moore or Keith Howden and your contribution will be called for.

Editorial Notes...

Congratulations To Gault Institute

DURING the years since Gault Institute of Valleyfield was first established it has built up a fine reputation for itself. The standards of education required of its pupils have been such as to fit these boys and girls to go out into the world and make names for themselves. Such standards and such achievements have helped to make the name of Gault one that stands out in the education field.

A few years ago several additions were made to this school which gave it additional facilities and benefits, but still they were not adequate nor were they as complete as found in some other schools around. Gault still lacked sufficient classroom space and it had no assembly hall for games, etc. While the protestant population in Valleyfield has decreased, the student population for Gault has been on the increase and the classrooms have been used for teaching more than one class. It has therefore become imperative that more accommodation be provided. It was thus that steps were taken to secure assistance to provide for the building of a new addition to take care of demands. Gault Institute has been fortunate in securing the assistance required and in consequence the required addition is now well on the way to being an actual fact.

The ceremony of laying the cornerstone of the new structure was carried out this past week and it is hoped that the addition will be ready to be occupied within a few months. This will provide additional classrooms, a gymnasium and other facilities which will make Gault one of the most up-to-date of modern schools.

The Gleaner wishes to join with the Board of Commissioners, the school staff and the taxpayers in their expressions of joy in this accomplishment, for education is a great thing in these days. Its importance cannot be stressed too highly and with the reputation that Gault has attained, we feel sure that these added facilities will do much for the future generations. We therefore take great pleasure in offering congratulations to all who are interested in this school and to express the hope that students and staff will gain much more from the enlargement.

A Matter For Serious Thought

A matter that should receive some serious thought, yet when brought to public attention is passed to one side as something that just happened, or will not bear being talked of is, the large number of attacks on women and girls and even young children. One horrible incidence has been brought home to us this week in the case of the little girl who was brutally murdered at Verdun by a sadistic young man.

We have read where women and girls were lured into taxis on the outskirts of Montreal, robbed, beaten and criminally attacked. Fortunately the ones responsible for these crimes were apprehended after a lapse of time. But this sort of thing is on the uptrend and much of it concerns luring or enticing little girls. In one other case recently a little girl was thrown out of a car in a dazed condition and finally made her way home in serious degree of health.

A week or two ago we reported in this newspaper the case of minor having carnal knowledge, this week we report a case of criminal assault involving a little girl. Thus this sort of thing is creeping in our community. The police are doing what they can, but they are not always able to prevent the acts, it is only after they have happened that it is known about. Sometimes that is too late, for a body of some loved one may be found and a foul deed has been committed.

We can only say that parents should warn their children and especially the girls, to be careful who they go with and not be enticed away with promises or gifts of any kind. This is so with strangers in particular and even with those with whom the children may be acquainted, unless they are people who are very well known to all members of the family. The older women and girls should be better able to take care of themselves and their own common sense should warn them not to accept offers of a lift from strange persons at any time or anywhere. This is especially so if the person offering the lift happens to be alone.

We are not suggesting that there is any great need for alarm in this district, but merely that precautionary measures should be taken at all times no matter where one may be at the time. The time of prevention is before and not after. One must be on the alert wherever they may be for it is never known where the sadistic person may turn up. Children are particularly susceptible for they are more trusting of people and easily won over by gifts unless firmly warned of such things beforehand. Precautionary methods are always advisable and it is only in this sense that this article is written. We have no desire to publish such stories as have appeared in Montreal newspapers as well as many others in recent months and we hope we shall never have to.

Should We Feel Sorrow?

FOR some time it had been hinted that Marshal Petain was slowly nearing his death and the past week that death was announced. Petain died while under sentence as a traitor to his country, France, he was accused and found guilty of collaborating with the Nazis at the time of the fall of France in the early days of the last war.

There were many who felt compassion for this poor old man who was left to make a decision for his country. It must be remembered that France had been in a state of more or less chaos for several years before the Nazis invaded the country. It had a government one minute and none the next, there were a series of riots in one part or another and at times it was in almost a state of country-wide revolt. Then Hitler and his hordes decided they would start out on their campaign of taking over the countries of Europe. France was confident that its maginot line could never be penetrated and that the country was practically safe from attack if it should come. Unfortunately, the country was in a state of internal turmoil when Hitler decided to attack. Petain was the head of the government at Vichy and therefore he was the unfortunate wretch that had to make the decision. He had seen his country overrun before, he had fought against the same enemy on several other occasions and he knew the devastation that would result in resistance. Further the type of resistance that could be offered was of the poorest. Great Britain had been driven into the sea, Italy was on the side of the enemy, other bordering countries had been defeated. Taking stock of what he had to deal with, was he really very wrong, when he decided that it was better to deal with the enemy in surrender? Once having surrendered, what could he do? No one will perhaps ever know if this old man really and truly gave France to the Germans or whether he actually saved France from a worse fate. It seems practically certain that if Petain had announced his intention of fighting to the finish, that France would have suffered almost entire demolition. Many more of its people would have been murdered and its recovery would not have been as rapid as it turned out to be.

Sometimes the hero is not always the one who shows the most courage, in fact there may be a show of apparent cowardice. Is it possible that Petain, a well known soldier of France suddenly turned cowardly. We see an old man wearied by his country being continually submitted to wars and devastation, people losing their lives and being driven from their homes. We see him looking at an apparently hopeless situation and then taking the easiest avenue of escape, not for himself, but for France. The people of France looked at it differently, so they have denounced him as a traitor, thus in France he died as a traitor, for history so to record.

Time alone will prove whether Petain was traitor or hero.

In Aid of Worthwhile Causes

THE Huntingdon Rotary Club in conjunction with the Huntingdon War Memorial Committee is sponsoring an open air show at the Fairgrounds this week-end. Posters are now on display and the hope is that everyone will patronize this event on at least one of the two nights.

The Huntingdon War Memorial Committee is hoping to add to its funds in aid of the proposed war memorial which was started off by Old Home Week last year. The Huntingdon Rotary Club is seeking funds for the purpose of offering assistance to young girls to enter training for the nursing profession. Both are worthwhile causes which everyone will admit. Rather than make a canvass for outright contributions, these two organizations are offering two evenings of entertainment, or value for the money received. There is considerable expense to bring the troupe here and the program promises to be one of enjoyment for all who see it.

Your appreciation of the joint effort being made can be shown by your purchase of the tickets now on sale, or your presence at one of the performances on either Friday or Saturday evenings. The success or failure of the venture will depend upon the amount of support the public gives.

Robert Wood, of Hemmingford, about six years died on Tuesday after a long and lingering illness of morning of consumption. Mr. Wood was a prominent citizen, the first mayor of Hemmingford village and municipality, and a successful merchant. He had the esteem of all and his death is much regretted by the whole community. He died at an early age, being only 39 years old.

Mr. George McIvor of Hemmingford, a few days ago, lost three fine milk cows within a few hours of each other. They were well in the morning, milked and ate as well as usual, were let out for about three hours, and being brought home, two fell and died on the way and the third one a few hours after. Mr. McIvor had one of them opened and the contents of the stomach examined and the results showed symptoms of poisoning. It is a great loss to Mr. McIvor, who is ill able to lose anything.

In the register of St. Andrew's Church there have been inserted during the past year 22 baptisms, 17 deaths and 6 marriage, an increase over last year of 6 registrations. The deaths are in excess of last year, and the marriages are 50% more.

The practise has hitherto been for the U.S. Customs-House officers to allow Canadian farmers to go across to mills on the States side with grists free of duty. This has been stopped and while many Canadian farmers will be put to much inconvenience, the chief loss will fall on the American millers who derive much of their custom from Canada.

January 12

The ferry has ceased to run between Lachine and Caughnawaga, and Her Majesty's Mails for the old and thickly populated District of Beauharnois are crossed in an Indian Canoe. Such is the progress of the age and the equity of the powers-that-be, that, while our farmers are taxed to build a railroad through to the North-West, they, in the year of grace, 1882, are left dependent for communications with the outer world on the paddle of the redman!

February 2

Mr. A. McCormick of St. Louis de Gonzague has sold his homestead, of 80 arpents, to a Canadian for $5,400. This is the highest price yet paid for farm land in this District, being equal to $67.50 per arpent. If the exodus continues as it has done for the past few years there will soon be hardly an Old Countryman left in St. Louis.

February 16

Mr. John Dickson of St. Louis has bought William White's farm on the Outarde. Arthur Anderson, Trout River, has bought the adjoining lot owned by Mr. John Patterson at a high figure.

Francis Turner, St. Etienne, has sold his young Bay Stallion, which took first prize wherever shown, to James Dunbar of Bereau County, Illinois, for $500. Messrs. A. and J. Bell, Elgin, sold their horse, Netherland to the same gentleman, who thus has taken away two of the best grade Clydes in the District.

The troublesome complaint, mumps, are prevalent at present and a number of juveniles are laid up. The type is a very mild one and the cases rarely outlast a week.

February 23

Yesterday, while Daniel McFarlane of Elgin was leading his horse from water the animal reared and he was knocked down. A rib is broken but the injury, though painful, is not as serious as it might have been.

March 2

On Tuesday, Charles Brown, Elgin, sold the span of 3 year old bay mares (Prince Royal's) which took the first prize in the general purpose class at last District show, for $400. The purchaser was Robert Alexander who bought for John L. Lewis, Montréal.

Of the population ascribed to Dundee by the census between 400 and 500 are Indians.

March 16

On Tuesday, J. H. Gilmore of this village completed a contract with Mr. Boyd for the building of a block next his photograph gallery. The tinshop is to be moved to the rear of the lot, and a fine two-storey building, 38 x 43 feet, will occupy the space between the gallery and Mr. Logan's. It is to be divided into two stores, one to be used by Mr. Gilmour himself and the other by Mr. Saunders, the enterprizing jeweller.

March 30

Colonel McEachern issued last year 59 hotel licences for this District, 7 licences to auctioneers and 7 to pedlars, and collected $42.50 for fines. The total amount received for licences was $5,561 of which $638 was paid him for collection.

The Manitoba fever has never been strong in this District and emigrants to the northwest have been few and scattered. It looks as if there was now to be a change for fully a dozen young men from Athelstan and this place are leaving, and more are intending to follow.

On Friday, Mr. John Snider of Lancaster bought from Ness of South Georgetown, his fine imported Clyde colt, Crown Prince rising 2 years old, for $1,000.

The Week At Ottawa...

OTTAWA, (CP)—Many of the people on Parliament Hill have been predicting it for a long time, but last week it just about became official:

If Canada wants the near-billion-dollar St. Lawrence Seaway and Power Project she'll have to do it without help from the United States.

Now the government has to consider whether it is prepared to handle this costly undertaking alone.

The necessity of making a choice was thrust upon Canada by the action of a U.S. Congressional committee in killing a bill authorizing the U.S. government to join with Canada in joint construction of the project.

Our government could wait another year but there is no assurance that Congress will approve the project even then.

Thirty years ago people in this country were not too fussy about the St. Lawrence seaway but in the last few years the swing has been to one of widespread support.

Not so, however, in the United States where although the administration is in favor, powerful regional interests are opposed.

Last week's action is just one of a series of Congressional rebuffs over the years to the $800,000,000 plan to open the St. Lawrence to deep-sea shipping and to provide fresh sources of electrical energy for the power-short industrial areas of Ontario and New York State.

Canada on Record

Canada already is on record as saying she would have to consider a purely Canadian project if Congress—as it now has done—should again give the joint scheme a cold shoulder.

Transport Minister Chevrier said that was something the government would have to consider.

Meanwhile pressure is building up for a purely Canadian undertaking.

Premier Frost of Ontario, a province vitally concerned, has urged the federal government to make an immediate start on the project without U.S. help.

"Now that our good friends to the south in their wisdom have decided that they do not want to come in with us," he said, "We ask them now that they have made their decision to please get out of the way and let us get on with the job."

He said Ontario would stand behind the federal government as "a ready and willing partner and we hope it will proceed with the development without delay."

Urgent Power Need

Chairman Robert Saunders of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, who long has urged development of the St. Lawrence's power resources, immediately wrote to Prime Minister St. Laurent urging an early start on the project.

"It is imperative," he said, "That a start be made as quickly as possible if Hydro is to continue to provide a fully adequate supply of low-cost power to meet all demands."

Production Minister Howe struck a cautious note on the possibility of Canada going it alone.

"We'll have to consider this thing carefully and wait and see what develops," he said. It would take several hundred million dollars to do the job and that was a "lot of money."

The project had the support of President Truman and other top U.S. administration leaders who contended it would provide a safe route in time of war to carry Quebec's rich iron ore to inland American steel mills.

On the other hand, American railways and public utilities long have opposed the project.

Canada has not depended entirely on U.S. support being made available for the undertaking.

Canadian Plans Ready

In a just-in-case move some months ago the Transport Department formed a new branch as the "special projects division." Its job has been to maintain a continuing study of the scheme. It is known that plans for a purely Canadian undertaking have been drafted and estimates made of the cost. Neither have been made public.

A Canadian seaway would run entirely in Canadian waters—on the Canadian side of the International Boundary that divides the St. Lawrence River where it serves as the border between Ontario and New York. This route would not take advantage of the use of certain American sections of the river.

The aims of the whole project are the deepening of the Upper Great Lakes canals, the replacement of the St. Lawrence canals by

TODAY, our first duty as Canadians is to back up our country's efforts to meet all threats to our freedom.

To do this, we must be strong not only in arms but also in our economy. And to keep our economy strong, we must do everything possible to fight rising prices!

How can you help fight this inflation?

One important way: by saving money! Nowadays, every dollar you spend for things you don't need helps to boost prices. But the money you save—in bank deposits, savings bonds or life insurance—"votes" against the menace of inflation.

Problem of Longevity

By LEWIS MILLIGAN

Communism is being advertised the world over as an infallible cure for all social and economic ills, but it is not generally known as an elixir for prolonging life. Such, however, is the claim made in an article that appeared in Pravda of April 26, entitled "Data on Human Longevity." Extensive work on the registration of long-living inhabitants of the Soviet Union is said to have been carried on at the Scientific Research Institute of Biology in Kharkov State University. A unique card index of longevity, composed of several thousand cards with detailed information of people 90 years and over, has been collected for the last 20 years. The index is supplemented by about 2,000 photographs. These data are said to be "of immense interest for Soviet science."

Prof. A. V. Nagorny, author of a book, "The Problem of Old Age and Longevity," is in charge of the card index. In an interview he is quoted as saying: "The opinion existed until recently that favorable conditions for reaching an advanced old age obtain only in Abkhazia, where 212 people over 100 years are living. There even appeared 'theories' of the very great saturation of the air of Abkhazia with ultraviolet rays as the main cause of longevity." Abkhazia has a subtropical climate and is situated on the Black Sea coast. But "Comrade" Nagorny flouted the ultraviolet theory. "The card index," he said, "shows that the whole Soviet Union is a land of longevity. Favorable conditions for the prolongation of life have been created in our country," and he proceeded to give the following amazing examples:

"The oldest person in the Soviet Union, according to the card index, is a Russian collective farmer, Vasily Sergeyevich Tishkin, born in 1806 . . . The oldest woman is Kazamyan Khanum, a 127-year-old inhabitant of the town of Turkmenia. Her youngest son is 80. The long lived citizens have many children and relatives. For example, Mahmud Elvazov, 142-year-old member of the Young (sic) Communist League Collective Farm, Lerik District, Azerbaidzhan, has 118 sons, daughters, grandchildren, great-grandchildren, and great-great-grandchildren. His wife is 120, his daughter Dala is 100 . . There are in the Soviet Union about 30,000 men and women centenarians."

Commenting on this "unique" record, the Pravda writer says: "There are few examples of such longevity in capitalist countries." And he announces that the institute is preparing a book with the title, "The U.S.S.R.—Country of Longevity." We must wait for that book to discover the particular reasons why people live longer under Communism than in capitalist countries. We may be quite sure, however, that the book will not contain a card index record of the shortevity of the inhabitants of Soviet labor camps.

But the Soviet Government can hardly claim the credit for the long lives of the two farmers mentioned, for they were already well advanced toward their 120's before the Communist system was fully organized in Russia. Which reminds me of a discussion that took place between a group of farmers around the stove in a village store some years ago. They were arguing as to whether chewing tobacco shortened a man's life. One old stager declared that that he had chew tobacco all his life and he was 72 years old. This seemed to settle the question, until an elder, shaking an admonishing finger at the inveterate chewer, said: "But you don't know how old you'd be if you hadn't chewed tobacco."

Soviet scientists, however, are not putting much faith in Communism as a life-prolonger. They have been engaged for many years on the problem of restoring vital organs, according to Literaturnaya Gazeta, April 7. They have noted that certain lower vertebrates possess the ability to restore such major members as the tail and the leg. Prof. V. Popov is said to have performed some remarkable experiments, and had "succeeded in giving a frog a new eardrum." Another article in the same journal deals with the question, "Can Legs and Arms be Sewn to the Body?" It would seem that mortality is worrying the Soviet leaders. Some months ago Stalin himself issued a special order to his scientists to intensify their research and come across with a remedy for death.

CHARLES FRANK AT VALLEYFIELD FAIR

CHARLIE FRANK is a versatile clown and as such he is likely to appear in a variety of costumes at the Valleyfield Fair on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, August 15-16-17-18-19 to add additional merriment to a fun crowded event.

A quick change artist Charlie is apt to be a clown cop policing patrons seated and waiting for the show one minute and Charlie Chaplin the next.

His audiences seem to like him best though when he reaches into an imaginary bag of tricks to produce out of thin air eggs, lighted cigarettes, cards and many other objects. Not content to mystify his audience at a distance Charlie will draw eggs from behind spectators ears, their noses, and maybe even their pants pockets.

Charlie is a whirlwind of comical action. He can gauge audience reaction in advance and tell how hard you'll laugh even before he presents his next trick. He never has taken time out to explain how he makes smoke come out of his ears but they may be because he doesn't really know himself.

Lighted cigarettes offer no problem to Charlie. He can produce them from anywhere and he does with a mere flick of his fingers.

Charlie projects his own likeable personality into each of the clown characters he personifies. Consequently instead of appearing dull and drab they seem real.

Charlie Frank was secured by the management for appearances at the Valleyfield Fair through George A. Hamid, Inc., New York, the nation's outstanding booker of outdoor attractions.

ROUND BYRE AND RING

By Frank Napier

Congratulations, Jerseymen:

Congratulations to "The Canadian Jersey Cattle Club." Today (August 1) that Club will officially open its new office building—its own home. That building—290 Lawrence Avenue West, Toronto, Ont.—has been made possible through the voluntary efforts and donations of the "Club's" members across Canada.

The Holstein Office:

The Canadian Jersey Cattle Club is the second Canadian purebred livestock association to own its own building. Some 30 or 40 years ago (probably more) the Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada purchased a building in Brantford, Ont., which has been enlarged from time to time to house the ever increasing staff necessary to take care of the constantly increasing business of that Association.

Ayrshires Follow Example:

The Canadian Ayrshire Breeders' Association is also getting ready to emulate the example set by its two rivals in the dairy world. Like the Jersey Club, the Ayrshire Association has received a considered amount of money, in voluntary donations, which will eventually be utilized to either purchase or erect a building for its head-office staff.

The Burnside Sale:

The last call, or reminder, anent the Burnside Sale. It will be held on Saturday next—Saturday, August 4.

Douglas A. Ness informs us that Tom Whittaker, (Ayrshire Sales Service) the Auctioneer will be assisted in the ring by Harry and Tom Hays, members of the firm of Hays Farms Ltd., Oakville, Ont.

Ayrshire Exports:

E. Willson Richmond, Secretary-Manager, Canadian Ayrshire Breeders' Association reports that the Record Office reported to him that a total of 89 Canadian Ayrshires were transferred as between July 4 and July 20 to United States purchasers.

Eleven of these Ayrshires were from the Howick-Huntingdon Ayrshire Club district, the purchasers and sellers being:

Mrs. A. H. Hatch, Granby, Mass., U.S.A.—one each from the following: W. C. Tully, Athelstan; Clarence Kerr and J. Whiteford McKell, both of Howick; John P. Gruer, Riverfield; James and John Rodger, Ormstown; Harold J. Symons, St. Louis de Gonzague.

Euclide Quesnel, Middlebury, Vt., U.S.A.—one each from T. L. Irving & Sons, St. Anicet; Estate of J. C. Reid, Huntingdon.

H. W. Seidel, Virginville, Penna., U.S.A.—2 head from J. D. McDougall, Ormstown.

St. Mary's Home Farm, Hartford, Conn., U.S.A.—one animal from Hugh R. McAdam, Hemmingford.

What About Your Sales?

And, that's all the local livestock news we have on hand to record here. As editor of Canadian Ayrshire Review for almost a quarter of a century we found it was like "pulling hen's teeth," so to speak, to get news of local happenings. And so it still is that it is hard to get not only Ayrshire but other breeds' news.

We would therefore make the plea, "Even if you don't wish to get free advertising about your sales, the purchasers would probably appreciate it if you had same publicized."

Letter to The Editor

The Editor,
The Huntingdon Gleaner,
Huntingdon, Quebec.

Dear Sir:

I would like to express a dissenting opinion regarding the traffic lights on Bouchette Street.

In my opinion they are a nuisance, an incentive to speeding and an unnecessary addition to the town's debt.

A stop sign on Bouchette street, under the close surveillance of the extra town policeman, would serve the same purpose. The policeman would impose fines on those people who refuse to obey stop signs and this money would help pay his salary.

I believe in expanding the town's conveniences as quickly as the town's income warrants. But in my opinion the town would do well to pull in its horns and go easy on unnecessary expense.

If the town still feels the lights are a necessity, surely they could be bought through a local merchant without any additional expense.

Yours very truly,
Douglas A. Stephen.

P.S. Braithwaite Bros., are not interested in this sale.

Sports

Merchants Win 7 to 4

Led by the six hit pitching of Lucien Monique and the sharp hitting of Walter McCallum, the Merchants defeated Rouses Pt. by the score of 7 to 4. McCallum had four hits in as many trips to the plate. Merrill Smith also had his bat working well, collecting 3 hits in 4 times at bat. Monique kept the opposition guessing throughout the game, using his slow ball with great effectiveness. 11 of the boys from the Point went down on strikes.

John Brooks, the Merchant's left fielder made another great throw in the second inning to get Fewster sliding into third base. This is the sixth man John has thrown out at base in the last four games. Buddy French pitched a good game for Rouses Point, and also got two hits. Bill Fewster, the Point's catcher, gave lots of life to the game, besides getting two hits. He had both teams and the crowd in an uproar with his own version of the rules.

Merchants Win Again

With McCallum and Smith leading the way with some fine clutch hitting, the Merchants won their fourth game of the season from Franklin on Friday night by the score of 9 to 6. Lucien Monique pitched a fine game, his second in as many nights, he also collected two of the Merchants hits. Alex. Proudfoot had two singles to boost his batting average to .409.

Franklin played their usual fine game but could not get going at the right time. The boys on the Franklin team are to be commended for the fine sportsmanship they have displayed throughout the season. Although they have not won many games they have made it hard for any team to beat them, they never stop trying, every one of them puts everything he has into the game. If the league had a trophy for sportsmanship, Franklin would not have any competition when it came to voting it to the most sportsmanlike team.

The Merchants leading batters this week are: Monique .513, A. Proudfoot .409, Smith .400.

COOL, COLOURFUL FRUIT SALADS

What could be more colourful or have more eye appeal than a fruit salad? When anyone is completely worn out or seems to be lacking in appetite, a fruit salad will usually tempt them. For Canadian Salad Week the home economists of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture did considerable experimental work on suggestions for salads for Canadian homes. After all their salad recipes were made and tested, it was decided to have pictures taken of all these wonderful dishes. Many of the pictures of salads which appeared last week in newspapers across Canada were the ones which the home economists made. Perhaps the most colourful of the salads were the fruit ones. Right now raspberries, cherries, melons and some peaches and plums are available. These are the fruits which Mrs. Housewife should plan to use as the basis for fruit salads this week, and of course, fresh fruit salads should be served not only this week but every week as long as the season lasts.

Generally fruit salads are very low in calories, so if any member of the family is watching his waist line, the dessert problem may be solved with a fruit salad. However, this type of salad does not necessarily have to be the dessert course. It may be the main course or the appetizer. If the salad is to be the main course, it should be accompanied by a filling food such as cottage cheese, cream cheese, or peanut butter, while the appetizer should tease the appetite for the food which is to follow, so here the combination of fruits should be light and tart.

These are two recipes for fruit salads from the home economists of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture.

Cherry Cottage Cheese Salad

2½ cups pitted and halved sweet cherries
1 cup cottage cheese
Lettuce or watercress
Salad dressing or mayonnaise

Mix the cherries and the cottage cheese. Serve on shredded lettuce or watercress. Garnish with salad dressing and serve well chilled. This recipe will serve six people. Incidentally, if cherries are not available raspberries or strawberries may be used as a substitute in this salad. When it is served with buttered toast, hot muffins, or tea biscuits it makes an ideal luncheon salad.

Frozen Fruit Perfection

1 package cream cheese (4 oz.)
Dash of salt
1 tablespoon sugar
½ cup salad dressing or mayonnaise
1 cup whipping cream
1 cup sliced peaches
1 cup diced cantaloupe

Mash the cheese with a fork and beat until smooth. Add salt, sugar and blend with salad dressing. Whip the cream and fold into the cheese mixture. Add the sliced peaches and the diced cantaloupe and pour into a freezing tray and freeze until firm. Serve on crisp lettuce. This recipe will yield six to eight servings.

COOL SALADS FOR SUMMER

"Keep cool with cool cooking and cool eating", is the sound advice passed on by the home economists of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture. They suggest that the way to avoid that mid-day heat frustration is to do the cooking early in the morning before Ol' Man Sun turns on the heat. This is where jellied salads come into the picture for they may be made in the freshness of the early morning and allowed to set in the refrigerator. Then they will be ready with a minimum of last minute preparation for supper or dinner. Refreshing jellied salads may be as simple or as fancy as anyone wants to make them and almost any combination of fruits, meats or vegetables may be used in their making.

Tomatoes also make delightfully cool and appetizing salads. They are plentiful these days and the home economists are sure that everyone will want to serve them as often as possible. An ideal way of serving them is as Stuffed Tomatoes. There is such a variety of fillings that may be used for the purpose that it would be easy to serve a different stuffed tomato salad for each day of the week. For example, a filling of diced celery, diced cucumber, sliced radishes and chopped green onions combined with a small amount of whipped cream, a little vinegar and seasoning to taste and gives a salad which is sure to banish any Monday's blues. For Tuesday the tomatoes may be filled with cottage cheese which has been mixed with diced celery, chopped parsley and salad dressing. This will certainly be a winner with any family. Wednesday's stuffed tomato salad might boast a filling of diced chicken, diced hard-cooked eggs and celery and chopped pickle moistened with salad dressing. For variety, ham or other meat may be used instead of chicken. Why not try an Italian type of salad for Thursday? The filling would be cooked left-over macaroni, spaghetti mixed with diced celery and well seasoned tomato pulp. Cole slaw, which adds interesting contrast of colour and texture, may be the choice for Friday's filling for stuffed tomatoes. The last filling the home economists suggest is devilled eggs, on a bed of salad dressing spread on tomato petals.

To make these petals cut a tomato in quarters to within one-half inch of the bottom and spread out the quarters to form petals.

Regardless of the type, any salad has greater eye appeal if attractively garnished. As a gay bouquet of flowers pinned to the shoulder lifts the spirits, so a gay garnish brightens the salad. Simplicity is the keynote in garnishes and one rule to remember is that all garnishes should be edible.

Most folks know how to make radish roses, but not everyone has tried tomato roses. This is the way to make them. Cut a slice across the bottom of a tomato leaving about 1-inch attached, then turn the knife downward and pare the tomato round and round, as if peeling an apple to get a continuous peeling. Coil the tomato peeling around and over the bottom slice. The end should drop down naturally into the centre to form the heart of a rose.

The home economists suggest that sprigs of parsley or watercress, slices of cucumbers or tomatoes, green pepper rings, stuffed eggs or carrot or celery curls may also be used as other edible garnishes for your favourite salad.

Instead of peeling a cucumber before slicing it, try scoring it lengthwise with the tines of a fork. Then cut in diagonal slices. The dark green of the skin adds much to the colour of this edible garnish.

Salads

Here are a few secrets for success in making salads. Salads that are moist seem to lack freshness, so dry all greens thoroughly; if using cooked vegetables, drain them well. Always mix salads lightly, using two forks, as stirring with the spoon crushes the ingredients. Do not prepare salads until just before serving and wait until the last minute to add the salad dressing. Otherwise, the lettuce may become limp and wilted, instead of being crisp and attractive.

To give a little more character to the flavour of a vegetable salad, rub the salad bowl lightly with the cut surface of a piece of garlic, or let the garlic stand in the mayonnaise for just a few minutes. Remember, a little garlic goes a long way.

A few leaves of fresh mint give a refreshing flavour to fruit salads.

Be practical! Use your leftovers for appetizing salads. Cubed left-over meat may be mixed with raw radishes, cucumbers or with cold carrots, beets, cabbage, spinach, cooked peas or beans. Serve with your favourite salad dressing in a fresh, crisp lettuce cup.

For a quick and simple, but appetizing supper dish, serve a fruit salad. Cut any desired fruit in cubes, quarters or halves, top with a big spoonful of cottage cheese and serve with an appropriate dressing. For special occasions, stuff peach or pear halves with cream cheese, cherries and almonds.

With the number of fruits and vegetables on the market today, there is great scope for ingenuity and originality in preparing salads. Lettuce, watercress, Swiss Chard, endive, spinach or parsley may be used as a basic green. The salad may be tossed, jellied, or the fruits or vegetables may be carefully arranged on a bed of crisp greens. For contrast of texture, flavour and colour, try mixing seasonal fresh fruits or vegetables with canned or frozen ones.

LACOLLE—On July 18, at New York State Park, Plattsburg, N.Y., took place the third annual picnic of the Lacolle Branch of the Customs and Excise Association. A very large number of officers with their families and friends attended and contributed to make this event a real success despite the rather cool, windy weather which prevailed throughout the day.

The picnic committee, under the able chairmanship of W. E. Grant, had planned and carried out an interesting program of sport events, one in the afternoon for the children and the other in the evening for the adults. Generous prizes, gracefully donated by the Association of Lacolle, were awarded to the winners of the various races and competitions.

Immediately preceding the evening meal a Home Cooking Contest was held which consisted of quite an array of cakes, pies, cookies, bread and doughnuts. The entries were judged by Mrs. Conway and Mrs. Bunt of Montreal.

Following the adult sports event, there was a tug-of-war between the Long Room team and the Examiners. The Examiners under Captain Eddie Cappiello and coach Freddy Robert, proved their superiority by defeating the Long Room best two out of three. They become the first winners of the Trophy which will be awarded yearly for this event.

The Association wishes to thank all those who particiated in making this event a memorable and successful one and hope to sponsor a bigger and better picnic next year.

MARCEL R. GREGOIRE

LUCIEN MOISE

Marcel R. Gregoire has been appointed Bell Telephone manager at Valleyfield and will have supervision over the company's office at Huntingdon, it was announced this week. He succeeds Lucien Moise, who has been transferred to the general commercial department of the company's eastern area at Montreal as a lecturer. The change was effective on August 1.

Mr. Gregoire, who has been manager at Thetford Mines since March, 1949, was born in Sherbrooke and is a graduate of Mont Saint Louis College in Montreal. He joined the Bell Company's commercial department in April, 1937, at Sherbrooke. In September, 1940, he was granted leave of absence to proceed on active service with the Canadian Army and served as adjutant and training officer at the Infantry Training Centre at Sherbrooke from 1940 to 1946. He was also adjutant at the training centre in Farnham, prior to his retirement from the service and return to the company in April, 1946.

Mr. Gregoire gained experience in sales work in Quebec City for some months and then was appointed sales training instructor in the general commercial department in Montreal. He was appointed assistant in the Quebec division office in January, 1949, a post he held until his transfer to Thetford Mines as manager.

In addition to Huntingdon he will also have supervision over the company's offices at Beauharnois, Chateauguay, Franklin Centre, Ormstown, Ste. Chrysostome and Ste. Martine.

Mr. Moise joined the Bell Company as a clerk in Montreal on July 6, 1925, and during the next 11 years held a variety of clerical positions as well as gaining sales experience and a knowledge of business office procedure. He was transferred to St. Jerome in December, 1938, but returned to Montreal within a few months as business office representative, a position held until his appointment as local representative at Valleyfield in February, 1940. He succeeded to the managership for Valleyfield and vicinity in April, 1942.

Active in community affairs, he is a former director of the Rotary Club of Valleyfield and a member of the Salaberry Social Club. He has also held executive office in the Knights of Columbus (Valleyfield Lodge), besides being active in Chamber of Commerce work.

is now in process of construction.

We regret exceedingly that Dr. W. P. Percival, Director of Protestant Education is not with us today, as the Doctor, owing to a previous engagement was unable to come to Valleyfield and take part in the ceremony, and has asked that I convey to you his regrets; the Doctor has been for a long number of years a very staunch supporter of the Gault Institute.

From the above, you will note that the English population of our City will have a school second to none in which their children will be educated, and at no additional cost to the ratepayers, other than the regular tax.

There are very few Communities in the Province of Quebec which can boast of having a modern school.

I will now ask Doctor J. A. McDonald, who is Chairman of the Board of Trustees to lay the cornerstone for our new building.

Dr. J. A. McDonald, Chairman of the Board of Trustees for Gault Institute laid the cornerstone which bore the inscription "Gault Institute, 1951." Inside the stone in a copper box several documents were placed. Among them were photographs of the founder and other notables, copies of some newspapers, including The Huntingdon Gleaner, a history of the school by Miss G. Getty, a teacher on the staff of the school.

With a silver trowel and after seeing that the copper box was safely inside the stone, Dr. McDonald declared the stone well and truly laid. He then went on to commend all those who had helped with contributions to raise the fund required for the new extension and to praise the staff for the good work that had been done over the years. Gault has produced many a fine man and woman who have made a success in life and everyone was proud of the fact. They are doubly proud now that their school was able to be extended and become one of the finest schools in the Province. The need has arisen today for more accommodation, greater facilities and we just had to enlarge. This school has arisen from a very small beginning and we are proud of it.

Mr. Edgar Hebert, M.L.A., for Beauharnois addressed the gathering and was introduced by the chairman with a few remarks on the great help and assistance he had given toward the project of the addition to Gault Institute. Mr. Aird said that Mr. Hebert had always been willing and had readily assisted the school trustees in everything possible in connection with the school. Mr. Hebert's address in part follows:

Today is a festival of rejoicing and intimate satisfaction for all and each of the English-speaking citizens of Valleyfield.

For a long time you had been dreaming of giving your children a school, the atmosphere and the surrounding of which would help to develop in them, not only the intelligence and all the other faculties of the heart and mind, but also a sane and strong body thus contributing to society, men, both learned and healthy, and who would be the envy and pride of fellow citizens. You will reach your double aim and you will succeed in uniting the agreeable and the useful. In the near future you will be noticing the handy division of the classrooms, and you will be admiring the gym in which the youngsters will be frolicing and gambolling. We, the old-timers, feel inclined to ask Providence to make us young again, and allow us to enjoy these same privileges which will delight your children.

Unflinchingly you gave of your time and efforts to achieve your long coveted aim, a spacious and attractive school. In the face of this generous achievement and arduous work, one cannot help having a feeling of pride and which ought to produce in those who surround you, a feeling of emulation for the efforts you have displayed. Your efforts and your money are nothing when the welfare and education of your children are at stake.

On the other hand, your representatives enjoy the same feelings. They are satisfied and happy because you are, for, if you have done your share, the government of the province has also done its share with justice, and unstintingly.

About three years ago, several among you came to me, asking me to help them obtain from the government the financial help which was necessary to improve the old school. I met Honourable O. Cote, Provincial Secretary, who granted your school a sum of $54,500. And this year, again at the request of the members of the school-board, I received from Minister Cote a grant of $96,000 for this addition to your school.

Throughout the Dominion, Quebec is one of the rare provinces where there are two sets of school-boards; the one French-Catholic and the other English-Protestant. That is all to the honor and glory of the province and you may be sure that its leaders are striving to ban racial prejudice which always works to the detriment of the people.

We are all Canadians, first, we are all Quebecers also, whatever be our language and our religion. The action of the Government in behalf of your school board is a patent proof that it does its duty by giving everyone his due, whatever his language and religion. In its laws, in its direction, in its acts, it keeps in mind the interests of the majority while being always careful of the rights of the minority.

If we are united, we shall be strong. If we are strong we shall enjoy peace and prosperity, which are with instruction and education, the finest inheritances we can bequeath to our children.

Mr. Robert Cauchon, M.P. for Beauharnois, said that Gault Institute plays a great role in the community and has a very high standard. Much is being done for Canadian unity through the teaching and standards at Gault which has turned out many a fine citizen.

Brigadier Hamilton Gault, son of the founder, was present at the ceremony, together with his wife and he was called upon to say a few words. He thanked Dr. McDonald for his tribute to his father, who was the founder. Much depends upon the team work of all in connection with a school. Gault students have made a name for themselves and this is due in no small part to the work of the teachers, school trustees and facilities offered. He offered his best wishes for the school, both now and in the future.

Mr. John Lowe, a former trustee, brought best wishes for the advancement of the school and to the Trustee Board for their efforts in obtaining funds for the addition. He felt that the people were indebted to the present school board for the efforts they had made on their behalf.

Rev. Baugh, a former minister in Valleyfield, also added a few words of encouragement and congratulations for the new addition. He was particularly struck with the fact that the new building would not mean an increase of taxes to the taxpayer. This fact had been announced by the chairman earlier.

THE ACCUSED AS HE WAS BEING TAKEN TO THE INQUEST

All previous efforts to photograph the accused previous to this shot had failed. He had repeatedly covered his face with a handkerchief when he was photographed. This shot was taken as he was being taken to the inquest hearing at the County Building on Tuesday evening. Shown are: Chief L'Heureux, the accused and self confessed killer, Alcide Martin, Prov. Police Constables Gagnon and Marcel Bouchard.

History Gault Institute Enclosed in Cornerstone

Ceremony in Connection With New Addition Held at Valleyfield

The following is the brief history of Gault Institute, Valleyfield, which was enclosed in the copper box inside the cornerstone of the addition that is now being built. The ceremony took place at Gault Institute on Thursday afternoon, July 26th, in the presence of an interested gathering of friends of the school. Dr. J. A. McDonald, Chairman of the School Board laid the cornerstone.

Upon the occasion of the laying of the corner stone of the annex which is to house the long-anticipated and urgently required gymnasium and additional classrooms, it would be interesting to look back over the history of the Gault Institute, built in 1895 by Mr. A. F. Gault, at a cost of $40,000 and endowed with $15,000.

Until that time, Protestant pupils of Salaberry de Valleyfield attended the Academy on the street which bears its name. This school was closed in 1907 and sold in 1922 to the Knights of Columbus.

The first principal of the Gault Institute was Mr. D. M. Gilmour, engaged by a board of trustees under the chairmanship of Dr. W. Sutherland with Mr. Louis Simpson and Mr. John Wilson as members. Several Valleyfield citizens, among them the present chairman, Dr. J. A. McDonald, will remember Mr. Gilmour and his successor Mr. W. J. Messenger. Even more vividly recalled is the personality of Mr. Morgan who served in the unusual dual capacity of janitor and drill sergeant.

That the Gault Institute stands as evidence of Mr. Gault's interest in Protestant education in Valleyfield was further shown in 1900 by his setting aside a fund to provide scholarships for those who, having ranked first in Grade XI, subsequently attended College.

The Montreal Cottons Company by generously donating, in 1901, two lots to the Gault Institute, assured its pupils of two large campuses, on one of which the new annex is being erected, and continued the work begun by its founder. Mr. Louis Simpson, manager of the Montreal Cottons at the time that the Gault Institute was built, was deeply interested in the school, which he, accompanied by the Company's directors often visited. The present manager, Lieut.-Col. W. G. E. Aird, a director of the Company, has been unceasing in his efforts to obtain for the Gault Institute the facilities to meet the demands of a modern school curriculum. Finally, in 1928, Mrs. F. A. Gault made provision that prizes be donated each year in all grades in the Gault name. Thus the history of the school has been closely associated with the Gault family and the industry founded by its head.

An examination of the records shows that the school has been most fortunate in the election of those to administer it. Among these are the late Honorable J. A. Robb, federal Minister of Finance who served on the Board of Trustees from 1899 to 1929, and whose widow continues his practise of donating prizes. There too, is found the names of the late Mr. Hugh Wilson, at one time Secretary-Treasurer of the Montreal Cottons, and Mr. John Lowe, former manager of that company, who at the age of 87 is present at today's ceremony. From 1909 to 1949 Mr. Lowe served on the board of trustees, most of that time in capacity of chairman. Mr. J. H. Whalley, whose daughter is a member of the teaching staff, served as a board member from 1914 to 1919 and as secretary-treasurer from 1919 to 1931.

Among the names which most frequently recur in the records is that of McDonald. The late J. Allen McDonald was active as a Trustee from 1919 to 1945, at which time, because of ill health, he was succeeded by his brother, Dr. John A. McDonald in 1945. From 1909 to 1919, Mr. J. Allen McDonald has been secretary-treasurer, a position his son, Mr. J. A. E. McDonald filled from 1935 to 1943. Moreover, the family has been represented on the teaching staff by Miss S. McDonald and, in the next generation by Miss Jean McDonald.

It is interesting to note that, although household science, under the instruction of Mrs. Ferris, was offered Gault girls only since the renovation of the building in 1948, sewing was, early in the school's history taught by Miss Jennie Wilson and Miss Annie Lowe.

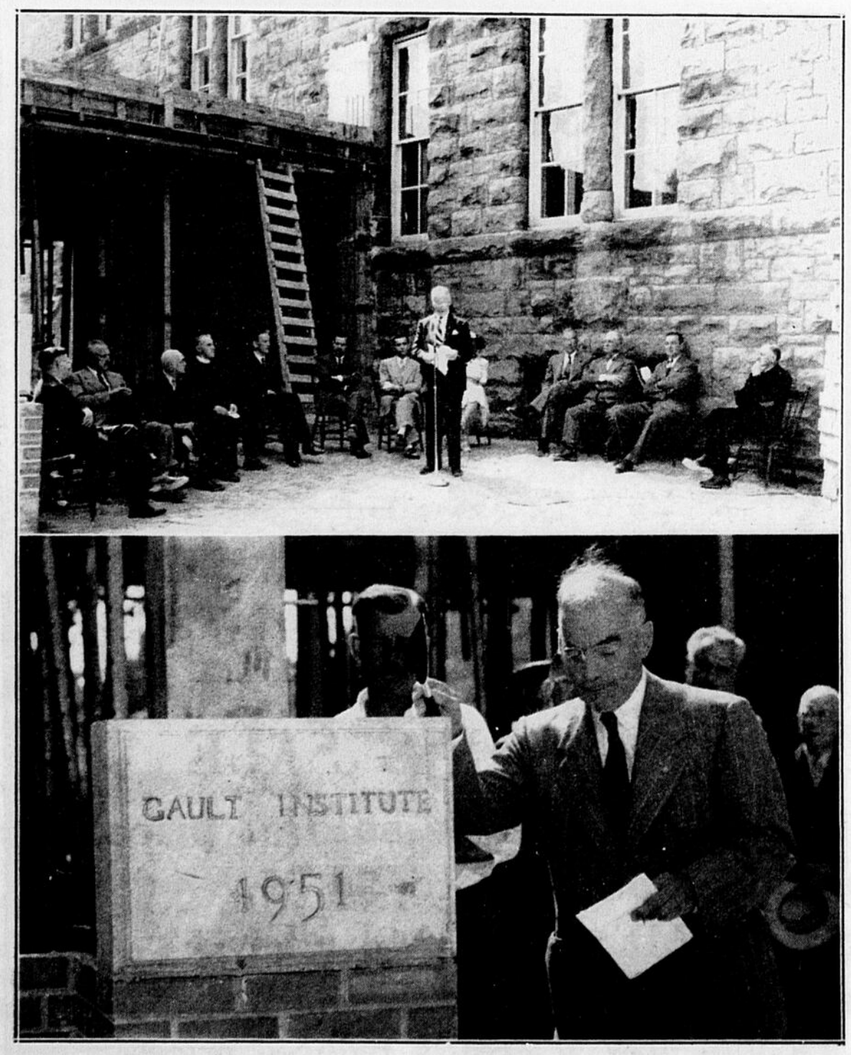
The Gault Institute has, both by its scholastic and athletic records, won an enviable reputation of excellency. This in large measure due to the efficiency and devotion of its principals and their staffs. Among the former were Mr. Wells, 1914-1919 and Mr. Giles 1919-1920, both of whom became inspectors. Mr. Giles now holds the office of Inspector-General of Protestant Education in the province. Among those principals with a long record of service at the Gault are Mr. K. Campbell 1925-1939 and Mr. John McLeish 1939-1947. Mr. McLeish is now associate professor of education at Cornell University.

In 1948, renovations to the original building provided two new classrooms, though the assembly hall had to be sacrificed. In addition, household science and chemistry laboratories were made available by utilizing the space until then the janitor's apartment. The late "Charlie" Webster, the last occupant, is dearly remembered as "Charlie" by pupils and staff members who were privileged to know him.

The improvements made at that time were carried out in the face of many difficulties by a board of trustees consisting of Mr. John Lowe, Chairman, Mr. Percy Parry and Dr. J. A. McDonald and Mr. A. J. Wishart, secretary-treasurer. The problem of play and lunch rooms was nevertheless still unsolved. The annex to be opened in 1951 will make available to Gault pupils a gymnasium, will permit the separating of double grades, and accommodate the ever-growing numbers of children who bring their lunches to school.

The term beginning in Sepember, 1951, under the principalship of Mr. J. A. Ferris, assisted by a staff of eleven teachers will open in a modern, commodious building. This project, under the direction of the following Board of Trustees, Dr. J. A. McDonald, Messrs. Percy Parry, George Osborne and Norman Clifford, secretary-treasurer, is being financed by local industries, contributions from private individuals and former pupils and a grant of $96,000 from the Provincial Government.

Laying the Cornerstone at Gault Institute, Valleyfield



It was a very important occasion when on Thursday afternoon, July 26th, the cornerstone was laid for the new addition to Gault Institute at Valleyfield. In the top photograph Lt.-Col. W. G. E. Aird, Vice-President and General Manager of Montreal Cottons, is shown at the microphone officiating as Chairman of the gathering. From left to right those seated are as follows: George Osborne, trustee Gault Institute; Mrs. Hamilton Gault and Brigadier Hamilton Gault, son of the founder of Gault Institute; John Lowe, chairman of the school board for more than 50 years; Rev. David Gault, United Church, Valleyfield (not related to others); Rev. I. S. Gamble, Presbyterian minister, Valleyfield; Robert Cauchon, M.P. for Beauharnois County; Miss Genevieve Getty, teacher at Gault Institute; Dr. John McDonald, Chairman of school board; Percy Parry, trustee of school board; N. W. Clifford, Sec.-Treas. of school board and Rev. Mr. Baugh, formerly of Valleyfield. Lower photograph shows Dr. John McDonald, Chairman of Gault Institute School Board, officially laying the cornerstone.

New Way of Knitting Socks

Believe it or not, after all these years, there is actually a new way of knitting a sock.

This new and much simpler method calls for knitting the sock in two separate parts, then stitching them together. It will be demonstrated daily at the C.N.E.

And here's news for the men. Several wool executives who volunteered as guinea pigs, reported the new socks in short length every bit as comfortable as their old ones, with the added comfort of not falling down!

This revolutionary new method is the brain child of designer Mrs. N. Jarvis Allen, who in the last war rose in the women's naval service to become a Lieutenant-Commander in charge of all Wrens on the west coast. She now breeds pekingese and grows flowers in Highland Creek, outside Toronto.

Briefly, the method is this. The leg and instep are knitted in one piece, but vertically instead of horizontally and with two needles. The ribbed panel for the back of the leg, heel and sole are also knitted on two needles. The sole is then joined to the instep piece and the toe is knitted on three needles.

Color and interesting designs can be introduced without using bobbins or tying ends as in the making of diamond socks. Left-over wool can be used in the instep piece, and color patterns are simple for beginners, often afraid to attempt fancy designs.

Using her new method, Mrs. Allen has designed two patterns especially for the C.N.E., calling them "Grandstand" and "Midway".

"Grandstand" is a ribbed stitch, giving a cable effect, to suggest the rows of seats in the grandstand, while "Midway" is done in squares suggesting the many concessions in the midway.

Three demonstrators will be available all day each day of the Big Fair to explain step by step of the new method.

TWO OF THE MURDER VICTIMS

Above is a photograph of Mr. and Mrs. Aristide Allen, of Anderson's Corners, who were the victims of a particularly brutal murder together with a neighbour, Narcisse Cusson, who was the third victim. This picture was taken in 1942. Mrs. Allen was 74 years of age and Mr. Allen was 67 years The story of the crime appears in this issue.

Brutal Slaying . .

that Mr. Cusson was attacked as he made his way toward the shed and was carried or dragged into the shed and placed on top of the other victims after the foul crime had been committed. Unlike the other two victims, Cusson was stabbed several times in the chest and body, whereas the other two had their heads badly smashed in as if they had been kicked or struck with a heavy weapon of some kind. They also bore stab wounds.

It is hard to say at this time when the accused made the search of the house. It might have been after he disposed of his victims, or it might have been between the time the two Allens were murdered and Cusson made his untimely visit.

The victims were last seen as they sat on a bench in front of the little store at about 9 o'clock on Monday evening. It is believed that the crime was committed at about 11 p.m., for the accused reported his crime to the police in Montreal some time between 1 and 2 a.m., on Tuesday. Police Constable Chartrand of Ormstown was notified at about 2 a.m. and got in touch with Constable Leduc at Valleyfield. The two policemen together with the two sons of Allen arrived at the scene at about 3 a.m.

Later in the morning several detectives from homicide squad of the Provincial Police, Montreal, arrived on the scene. Among these were Det. Anatole Rocque, Det. Lt. Ubald Legault, Det. Gaston Archambault.

During the day a jury was sworn in as follows: Joe Brisbois, Leo Lefebvre, Romeo Leduc, Rene Billette, Fernand Daoust, Gilbert Brunet and Ernest Leduc.

In the evening a preliminary inquest was held at the Court House, Huntingdon, for the purpose of identifying the bodies of the victims by relatives. Coroner Dr. George Lefebvre was in charge with Lt. Legault assisting in conducting the hearing. For several hours before the hearing opened, the street and courtroom were crowded with people trying to get a glimpse of the prisoner. It was one of the largest crowds seen in Huntingdon for some time and brought back memories of the time when word was awaited of the arrest of Bevan and Patenaude in connection with the murder of taxi driver Lucien Brunet. People crowded into the doorway of the courtroom and the courtroom itself was jammed to the limit, while crowds filled the windows on the outside. Cars were down both sides of the street and overflowed onto other streets in the vicinity. A few minutes before eight o'clock, the prisoner was brought from the cell at police station and led between two officers, handcuffed, into the courtroom. Witnesses, officials, newspaper men and the jury were squeezed through the crowd and the inquest opened. Except for a delay while one of the relatives went to the funeral parlor to identify the bodies, the inquest lasted for about 30 minutes. It was then adjourned until 8 o'clock Wednesday (tonight) when the official inquest will be held.

The prisoner sat at the table with his back to the crowd, his head slightly bowed and a somewhat solemn appearance, neither glancing from left or to right. Once one of the officials came over and whispered something in his ear, to which he nodded his head. Newspaper camera men took several flashlight photographs and he always tried to keep his head down. He was neatly dressed in a khaki military looking shirt and striped trousers and bareheaded. Following the closing of the hearing, he was immediately taken back to Montreal.

Among the spectators in the courtroom were several relatives of the slain trio, who appeared greatly moved and grief stricken.

During the afternoon Dr. J. M. Rousell, medico legal expert, performed an autopsy on the victims and he will no doubt give his findings at the inquest to be held this evening. Probably at that time also, the true facts in the case may come to light.

During the course of the day's proceedings, the Huntingdon headquarters of Chief J. L'Heureux was the scene of great activity. There were goings and comings all day long and the prisoner was lodged in the cell for most of the time. Chief L'Heureux helped in interrogating the accused and assisted in everyway possible. He visited the scene of the crime and thus familiarized himself with the facts of the case.

Record Vote For Beauharnois Loan

BEAUHARNOIS — The property owners of the Town of Beauharnois were strongly behind the Municipal authorities and it was proved to them in no uncertain fashion when they decided on the development of progress in their town. Tuesday and Wednesday, July 10th and 11th, they voted in favour of by-law No. 203, which authorized the loan of $216,000 for the construction of aqueducts, sewers and sidewalks and the purchase of equipment.

Out of 204 who voted 201 were in favour of the loan, representing an estimated sum of $1,689,200 whereas three property owners voted against the loan representing an amount of $397,200, thus leaving a sweeping majority of 201 votes estimated at 1,301,000 in favour of by-law 203.

It is the first time Beauharnois has had such a large number of votes cast in this field. Last year when the $225,000 loan was voted 172 property owners used their franchise out of which 167 representing a value of $1,501,800 voted in favour, with five against.

This loan will serve to promote industrial expansion, to give impulse to construction, to clean and give proper care to the streets, to execute economically permanent works, and lastly, to create an atmosphere of development and progress.

In obtaining this $216,000 loan municipal authorities will be in a position to undertake the numerous works envisaged for making this town one of the most prosperous in the Province.

Summary:

Voters	Value
204	$2,095,400.00
For, 201	$1,698,200.00
Against, 3	$ 397,200.00

Roping Steers Still Big Time in Some States

It's A Vanishing Art But Considered Cruel By Many People

LARAMIE, Wyo., (AP) — When cowboys started getting together years ago to see who was the handiest with a rope and a piggin' string, they competed in the chores they did every day on the range.

One of their main jobs was roping steers. They'd twirl a loop through the air, drape it over the neck of a longhorn steer and wham the critter to the ground with one big heave of the rope. Then with the steer flat on his back, they would tie him with the string.

Their contests developed into rodeos which now extend from the smallest cowtown's Fourth of July celebration to New York's Madison Square Garden.

Steer roping, however, has vanished from most of the big show. It's considered cruel and inhumane by many people because sometimes a steer's neck or leg is broken or a horn is snapped loose.

At most of the rodeos, the cowboy's prowess with a lariat is limited to roping calves. If the calf is accidentally thrown, the cowboy must let him regain his feet and then wrestle him to the ground. The steer roper, however, has the steer on the ground before he dismounts to tie him.

Among the Last

In only six states—Wyoming, Nevada, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Oregon and Arizona—is steer roping done at rodeos. Cheyenne's Frontier Days and Pendleton's Roundup are among the last big rodeos which have the event.

The richest of the yearly steer-roping shows, however, comes up at Laramie's annual steer roping. At least a dozen of the best ropers in the business plunk down $1,000 each to compete for a $12,000 jackpot. Some 10,000 fans turn out to see an afternoon of nothing but steer roping.

The promoter is King Merritt of Federal, Wyo., one of the old hands at the rodeo game. Merritt ran away from home in Oklahoma when he was 16 to punch cattle in Wyoming. After serving in the First World War, he started making the rodeos in 1919 and has been doing it ever since.

Along the way, he won enough money to start a ranch of his own where he now runs 800 head of cattle on a 20,000-acre spread. He also raises some rodeo stock and still competes in roping events despite his 57 years. If the dudes want to feel at home among the cowboys, he has a western goods store in Cheyenne where they can buy boots and shirts and jeans.

After the longhorns gave way to shorthorn cattle in the West, steers were imported from Mexico for roping and bulldogging. Now that the Mexican border is closed to cattle because of hoof and mouth disease south of the border, Longhorns are brought west from Florida.

Merritt has 150 Florida-bred steers on his ranch for this summer's rodeos. Each cowboy gets to rope and tie five for his $1,000 entry fee. The one with the lowest time for five wins. Clark McIntyre of Lenapah, Okla., downed his five in a minute, 50.4 seconds last year to collect about $6,000 for an afternoon's work.

Changes in Fees For Hunting Licenses

QUEBEC — Changes in resident and non-resident hunting license fees will be effective in 1951, it is announced by the Game and Fisheries Department, following the issue of an Order-in-Council. The 1951 fees follow:

Residents: Small game and migratory birds, $1.10 (unchanged from 1950); deer, $2.10 (included in $1.10 license in 1950); moose: $7.25 ($10. in 1950).

Non-residents — Moose hunting $66.00 ($100. in 1950); non-resident members of fish and game clubs, $30.50. (This license in 1950 covered hunting in general except moose.)

Department officers say they believe the new license fees and 1951 regulations, when they are issued, will help considerably in controlling the annual kill of big game animals.

ones capable of passing larger vessels and—at the same time—the development of the large power potential of the International Rapids section of the river.

Development of the International section would provide 2,200,000 horsepower of electrical energy which—under a joint undertaking—would be divided equally between Canada and the United States.

The project has been under study by Canada and the U.S., in one form or another at different times since the 19th century.

The two countries signed treaties for a joint undertaking in 1932 and 1941, but each time the agreements failed to gain approval in Congress. The 1941 agreement provided for the construction of the remaining links of a 27-foot waterway from the Head of the Lakes to Montreal, and for a combined power-navigation scheme in the International section.
