Postal rates to increase 20 per cent

OTTAWA (CP) — Postmaster-General Jean-Jacques Blais said Monday there will be an across-the-board increase in postal rates April 1 to help offset the rapidly-rising post office deficit.

The basic first-class letter rate will rise to 14 cents from 12 cents. In April, 1977, the basic first-class letter rate went to 12 cents from 10 cents.

The rate for second-class mail will go up between 20 per cent and 25 per cent. That will apply to newspapers and other publications sent through the postal service.

In the Commons, Blais defended the hefty increase for second-class mail.

"This has been a highly-subsidized rate," he said. "The post office has been carrying the can."

He said the increases are needed to combat a rising deficit and "we estimate that for the 1978-79 fiscal year, the increases will bring in about $125 million in additional revenue."

He said he realized his announcement would not be well received, but said rapidly-rising costs have outstripped revenue growth.

The post office deficit in the 1976-77 fiscal year was $568.8 million and "it could increase to $717 million in 1978-79 unless drastic action is taken."

TAXPAYER PAYS

He said under the current setup, "the taxpayer is paying a higher percentage of the postal costs and the postal user is paying less."

"It is time we began to restore the balance by reducing the cost to the taxpayer while increasing it for those who are actively using the service."

He said transportation costs are 20-per-cent higher than five years ago and wages, since 1968, have gone up by 120 per cent compared with an increase of 107 per cent in revenue.

Blais said the post office employs 63,000 persons and salaries account for more than 70 per cent of the operating costs of his department.

He appealed to postal unions to co-operate in making the post office more efficient through technological change.

Blais said the volume of mail moved is not as high as it should be and "service disruptions, coupled with aggressive competition from other forms of communication, are the principal causes of this short-fall."

John Rodriguez (NDP—Nickel Belt) said there have been work stoppages by members of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW) because post office management has not lived up to a commitment to protect postal employees from adverse effects of technological change.

HOPES FOR PROGRESS

Blais said later "there have been some differences in interpretation of the contract." However, the post office hopes to get through the Christmas season without the threat of a strike.

Blais said talks between the post office and the 22,000-member CUPW adjourned Thursday with no definite date set for resumption "but I hope they'll be going again by the end of the week."

Walter Dinsdale (PC—Brandon-Souris) said the price increase announced by Blais is illegal.

There has been a long-standing controversy in the Commons over whether postal increases must be implemented through a cabinet order or through a bill introduced in the Commons.

Blais said he intends to use a cabinet order.

Other rate increases are: Greeting cards and other third class addressed mail of up to two ounces will have their minimum rate increased to 12 cents from 10 cents.

The cost of third-class quantity-rate mailings of printed matter will be increased with the minimum rate going to 7.5 cents from six cents for each item.

The basic fee for registration will be increased to $1.25 from $1 and the special delivery fee will go to 80 cents from 60 cents.

RUDE AWAKENING

Four occupants of this Jacques Cartier Blvd. home had the shock of their lives at about 2 a.m. Monday when a late-model Buick heading toward King St. crossed Portland Blvd., jumped the median, tore up the lawn and crashed through the front of their house. Both the driver of the car and his passengers were taken to hospital by police before the shaken owner of the house could get downstairs. Sheets of plywood now cover the front of the house, with only the faint wheel mark at bottom centre giving a clue as to what did all the damage.

Tories query retirement of RCMP chief

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government agreed to give the former RCMP director of counter intelligence early retirement on full pension when he mysteriously left Canada about two years ago, Tom Cossitt (PC—Leeds) charged Monday.

Cossitt said Leslie James Bennett, who headed the security and intelligence branch, left the country under a special deal in connection with the top secret RCMP file code named Operation Featherbed.

Cossitt tried unsuccessfully in the Commons to find out whether Bennett had threatened to reveal details of Featherbed in return for a full pension.

Prime Minister Trudeau told Cossitt he had never heard the name and promised to refer the matter to Solicitor-General Francis Fox, absent Monday.

An RCMP spokesman refused comment.

Meanwhile, a spokesman in Trudeau's office said the Taschereau papers, concerning a royal commission set up in the late 1940s to investigate espionage among government employees, are being examined by security officials.

HAD KNOWLEDGE?

Cossitt also charged that Bennett may have had knowledge of the commission's findings which some published reports have said are the source of much of the current RCMP scandals.

Sources Monday confirmed statements by Cossitt that Bennett worked in the British security services before joining the RCMP in the mid-1950s.

Bennett worked for the RCMP as a civilian and headed a counter espionage section when he left in the early 1970s, the sources said.

IN AUSTRALIA

He is believed to be living in Australia, and Cossitt said he plans to contact him in a few days.

Cossitt also asked Trudeau whether he had ordered then solicitor-general Jean Pierre Goyer to end Operation Featherbed in 1972.

But the prime minister said he would only answer the question if Cossitt would agree to believe his answer.

Cossitt said the file contains a broader range of information than first suspected and much of it could prove embarrassing to the Liberal government.

Military agreements, including the North Atlantic Alliance and the North American Air Defence agreement, are mentioned in the file, he said.

The file now is under 24 hours guard and it is impossible to get within a mile of where it is being stored, he said.

JEAN-JACQUES BLAIS ... hike to offset deficit

Metro line 'sabotaged' - Hanigan

MONTREAL (CP) — The Montreal transit system was closed down Monday afternoon because of what transit chairman Lawrence Hanigan called "acts of sabotage" within the subway system.

Hanigan told a news conference that police had been called in to investigate "very serious" acts of sabotage carried out Monday morning after 2,200 maintenance and office workers began a walkout.

The decision to halt operations of the transit system left an estimated 1,000,000 daily users of the system searching for alternate means of transport and threatened to disrupt some activities of Grey Cup week leading up to the Canadian football championship game this Sunday.

Hanigan said there was no point in continuing the bus service since only 25 per cent of buses were in service after drivers had difficulties crossing picket lines set up early Monday by maintenance and office workers.

The decision to close the transit system was made "for the safety of our passengers," Hanigan said. The sabotage "could have been a very costly mistake," he added.

When asked to give details of the sabotage, Hanigan described two separate incidents in the subway terminals before service was to begin Monday morning. The first involved the removal of a piece of electrical equipment discovered in time for the train's scheduled run.

Margaret Trudeau in film

MONTREAL (CP) — Margaret Trudeau will star in a Canadian feature-length movie which will begin production here Dec. 5, says Robert Menard of Videofilm Productions Ltd. of Montreal.

Asked if he thought Mrs. Trudeau and British television star Patrick McGeehan have already signed contracts for the lead roles in Kings and Desperate Men, "a taut thriller" expected to cost $1.2 million, Menard said today.

Asked if he thought Mrs. Trudeau showed promise as an actress, Menard exclaimed: "Oh yes, no problem!"

He said the film's producer and director, Alexis Kanner of Kineversal Inc., had seen her in a television program in Vancouver.

"Kanner had the feeling that she could be a great actress. It's just one of those things you can feel easily."

The amount Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's estranged wife will be paid for her part in the film is "a secret," said Menard.

Bruce Dern, who played Daisy's husband in The Great Gatsby, and Andrea Marcovicce, an American of Italian descent who played alongside Woody Allen in The Front, may also act in the film, said Menard.

A brief outline of the script, most of it written by Edmund Ward of Britain, describes the film as "a taut thriller (which) examines with tensile and ruthless fairness the charisma of real and compassionate objectivity."

The story is about a group of terrorists who lay siege to a radio station and broadcast a mock trial to condemn a judge and the social system.

Landowner sues spray program

FREDERICTON (CP) — A Fredericton-area landowner testified in New Brunswick Supreme Court on Monday that a son who suffered from asthma was seriously ill after his property was sprayed last year by planes attacking spruce budworm infestation in the province's forests.

No treatment seemed to be effective on 12-year-old Peter, said Abram Friesen. "He couldn't eat anything and his physical condition was worn out by the attempt to breathe."

Once, Friesen testified, the son had to crawl to his parents' bedroom for help. It was the worst asthma attack in his son's life, he said.

The university professor and farmer, who also testified that he and his wife felt ill, is suing Forest Protection Ltd., the government-and industry-owned company that handles the annual spray program, for specific damages of $376.20.

SEEKING DAMAGES

Friesen also is seeking general damages covering "the loss of birds, the loss of livestock including two sheep, one Jersey cow and one pony as a result of the defendant's spray operation," and punitive damages. No specific amounts were requested.

Sudan backs Sadat over visit reaction

CAIRO (AP) — The Egyptian government is mounting a propaganda campaign in support of President Anwar Sadat's visit to Israel as his Arab foes step up their attacks on him.

The charges of treason to the Arab cause from Syria, Iraq, Libya and the Palestinians prompted Sudanese President Jaafar el-Nimeiry, bound to Egypt by a defence treaty, to announce he was coming to Cairo today to "congratulate" the Egyptian leader.

An Egyptian government spokesman said Sadat's visit to Jerusalem was the most successful trip he has ever taken because "hostilities of the past 30 years have been ended in 30 hours."

He told the official Middle East news agency that the first public visit by an Arab leader to the Jewish state succeeded "100 per cent" in laying the groundwork for a new Arab-Israeli peace conference in Geneva.

In an apparent attempt to counter the charges that Sadat betrayed the other Arab states, the spokesman said the president rejected attempts by Israeli leaders to convince him he should sign a separate peace treaty. Sadat told them the only purpose of his visit was to prepare carefully for another Geneva conference, the spokesman said.

"Israeli leaders showed understanding and genuine interest in peace," the spokesman said.

Egypt's three leading newspapers defended the president against his foreign Arab foes.

They emphasized his insistence on full Israeli withdrawal from all lands occupied in the 1967 war, including East Jerusalem.

"What will the Arab rejectionists say after this smashing blow to their lies?" asked Al Akhbar. "What will be their position in the eyes of their own people and the Palestinian people?"

"None of them can impose anything on us because Egypt, which achieved the greatest victory in history during the October (1973) war, is able to impose the principles of peace," said Al Gomhouria.

"Sadat could have found immediate response if he only spoke from an Egyptian point of view, but he insisted on tackling the problem from a wider Arab angle and the world listened to him," said the semi-official Al Ahrar.

An estimated 300,000 Egyptians cheered their president at the airport and along the route into Cairo as he returned Monday. But officials had predicted three million would turn out, and many of those who did did not appear to be too happy.

BECOMES ENEMY

The Palestinian guerrilla movements and radical Arab governments called Sadat as great an enemy as Israel and continued to urge his overthrow or assassination.

They objected particularly to his statement in Jerusalem that the 1973 war was Egypt's last with Israel.

In Ottawa, External Affairs Minister Don Jamieson says Canada would be willing to consider an increased peacekeeping

Jamieson, who visited Israel and Egypt recently, said to reporters Monday he thinks prospects for resuming Middle East peace talks "are far better than they were before" Egypt

President Anwar Sadat's historic visit to Israel over the weekend.

Canada already provides 1,100 men to peacekeeping forces along Arab-Israeli borders.

The external affairs minister said he thinks the most significant development in the weekend meetings between Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin is the apparent agreement that everything is negotiable.

Of angry Arab reaction to Sadat's visit, Jamieson said he has learned that "you have to separate the rhetoric from what is the reality in many things relating to the Middle East."

Keable 'surprised' by leak story

MONTREAL (CP) — Jean Keable, head of a Quebec commission of inquiry into illegal police activities, said Monday he was surprised that Solicitor-General Francis Fox had accused the commission of leaking information to the press before it was presented in public testimony.

In a letter to the federal minister released to reporters last week which said the inquiry would soon hear closed-door evidence that RCMP provocateurs suggested to a terrorist group that they hijack an airplane in an attempt to influence the 1972 federal election.

Fox was quoted the next day as saying the commission was unfair for giving out the information.

In his strongly-worded letter, Keable told Fox that the commission had immediately denied that such a witness had been heard or that the information had come from any commission source.

BARRETT GOVERNMENT INFILTRATED - GLOBE

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says the RCMP had a Jewish undercover agent infiltrate the NDP government of David Barrett in British Columbia in 1972 and 1973 because it suspected that Trotskyites held important government positions.

The newspaper, which attributes the information to sources it does not name, says the agent worked in circles close to Barrett, one of Canada's first Jewish premiers, and warned Barrett or senior government officials of the presence of leftwing extremists.

However, the newspaper says the sources did not disclose whether the undercover agent ever made his identity known to Barrett or the government officials.

It quotes an RCMP source as saying it was "one of our guys" who infiltrated the government, indicating that the infiltrator might have been a member of the force.

Cars may run on methanol

VANCOUVER (CP) — Methanol alcohol, a fuel made from wood, could power vehicle engines in future, a spokesman for General Motors of Canada Ltd. said.

Richard Colcomb, company vice-president and general sales manager, told a sales and marketing club that current internal combustion engines could be modified to run on the alcohol, which should interest British Columbia with its large forest industry.

"While problems do exist with the use of this fuel, they can be surmounted," he said.

Colcomb said it is estimated that 14 million acres of woodland could produce enough methanol alcohol to fuel 10 million cars to run 16,000 kilometres a year each.

Ingersoll-Rand awaits contract

The Canadian Ingersoll Rand Company Ltd. is waiting for final approval on an Iranian contract in the order of $3 million for the fabrication of pulp and paper machinery. A contract of this magnitude is of major importance to the company. Approximately 40 employees will be employed on this work throughout 1978.

Richmond receives grants

Yvon Brochu, Richmond MNA, has announced that Richmond county will receive $7,238,867.29 from the Quebec Transport Ministry to improve roads in the region.

The money is to be divided among five municipalities. A $604,900.60 contract has been awarded to Sintra of Ham-Nord. Sts. Marys, Construction Real St. Laurent Ltd. was awarded $216,300.42.

St. Camille received $20,819.55 for work to be carried out by Arthur Boisvert Construction. Lemary Construction Ltd. will receive $5,991,315.65 for work to be carried out in St. Samuel and St. Eulalie.

A $495,531.07 contract has been awarded to Leopold Gouin et Fils Inc. in St. Fortunat.

Insect regulator registered

OTTAWA — Dimilin, a new tape of insect growth regulator that exhibits minimal environmental effect, has received registrations in Canada to control mosquitoes and the prolific gypsy moth.

In granting the registrations, officials with the Agriculture Canada Production and Marketing branch here said Dimilin can be applied as a 25 per cent wettable powder to control flood water mosquito larvae in non-crop areas. In addition, the one per cent granular form has received temporary one-year registration on mosquitoes.

The wettable powder also can be used for gypsy moth control to protect hardwood forests from defoliation, to control larvae and to indirectly reduce egg mass deposition.

Dimilin was discovered by Philips-Duphar in Holland and has been under development the last five years by Thompson-Hayward Chemical Company. Dr. C. Allen Shadbolt, Thompson-Hayward's director of field research said world-wide interest in Dimilin has been peaked by its low toxicity to higher organisms, ability to control insects resistant to conventional insecticides and its effectiveness in small dosages.

Being a selective insecticide, with no harm to non-target organisms and rapid degradation in soil or water, Dimilin exhibits minimal environmental impact.

OIL REVENUE SHARING

COMPOSITE CRUDE OIL BARREL - INDUSTRY

Gulf Oil Canada has released this chart, charging that the main reason for petroleum products price hikes is the increased share taken by the governments.

According to Gulf statistics, the two senior levels of government have taken 79 per cent of the $6.95 per barrel increase in the price of crude oil. Since the fall of 1973 total taxes paid by the company have increased 338 per cent.

1977-growth rates of less than 3 per cent

Modest recovery in 1978

OTTAWA (CP) — Eight of 10 provinces will experience growth rates of less than three per cent this year but a modest recovery in 1978 will bring some improvement, a private forecasting agency said Monday.

Alberta and British Columbia, with real growth rates of 5.5 per cent and four per cent respectively, will be the only provinces to exceed the three-per-cent level, the Conference Board in Canada says in a quarterly forecast.

The board, a private research agency which includes representatives from business, labor and govern-

Over-production threatens markets

ROME (AP) — U.S. Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland has told a 144-country UN food conference that excessive grain production is a threat to world agriculture despite scarcity in developing nations.

Defending the Carter administration's decision to restrict wheat acreage, Bergland said recent bumper crops increased carryover stocks, lowering prices to the point where some grains sold on world markets at below production costs.

"We believe that this situation, if it persists, will threaten the long-run production capability of world agriculture by reducing investment incentives," Bergland added. He said that despite increased production, the number of malnourished people remains intolerably large and little progress has been made toward the goal of eliminating malnutrition in the poorest developing countries. UN food experts estimate the world's hungry at around 500 million.

Bergland pledged increased U.S. food aid, saying the U.S. contribution to lending institutions for international development in 1978 will be more than double that in 1976.

On bilateral assistance, the secretary said U.S. aid programs will increase by $50 million over the $536 million contributed during the last two years.

ment, said Ontario's growth of 2.5 per cent this year will fall short of earlier predictions and Newfoundland will show a real decline of 1.1 per cent.

Next year, the board said, five provinces will have growth rates of five per cent or more. The national average in 1978 is expected to be 4.9 per cent compared with this year's 2.9 per cent.

But five of the provinces will have 1978 unemployment rates of more than 10 per cent, the board predicts. The five are Quebec and the four Atlantic provinces.

The national unemployment rate is expected by the board to be 8.1 per cent next year, the same as this year.

The board said measures announced in the Oct. 20 "minibudget" of Finance Minister Jean Chretien will not alter the economic outlook substantially.

Three industries—agriculture, fishing and construction—will experience declines in real output this year, the board said, and below potential growth is expected for manufacturing, utility and service sectors.

The mining industry, which showed strength early in 1977, has weakened as the year has progressed. Forestry is the only industry which the board says will advance strongly this year.

Next year agricultural and fishing production will be higher, construction is expected to contribute significantly to the over-all recovery and manufacturing should be up, although still short of capacity.

However the strong outputs in mining and forestry of this year will fall in 1978, with neither industry likely to match 1977 performances.

In 1978, Ontario, Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island will join Alberta and B.C. as provinces with production growth above the national average.

A summary of the outlook for the provinces regionally follows:

Ontario: Real economic growth in the manufacturing and service sectors this year has been lower than previously expected. In its last forecast in August, the board had predicted growth of 3.5 per cent but now has dropped that to 2.5 per cent.

In 1978, Ontario growth is expected to be 5.2 per cent and the unemployment rate is predicted to drop slightly to 6.8 per cent from a 1977 average of seven per cent.

Cartel typifies U.S.-Canada energy relations

NEW YORK (CP) — Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie wasn't afraid to talk about the uranium cartel when he spoke to U.S. investors last week.

As a result, Canada acted to protect its industry, workers and their families and the communities that depended upon the uranium mines in Canada, Gillespie said.

The Canadian energy minister said in a speech to the Canadian Society of New York that the arbitrary closing of the United States market to Canadian uranium several years ago was "the most galling in some respects."

"We stockpiled and we made arrangements with other producing countries to try and stabilize prices above the cost of producing countries to try and stabilize prices above the cost of production."

"Then we specifically excluded in these arrangements—the stabilizing arrangements sometimes referred to as the uranium cartel—we specifically excluded from the operations of this producers agreement the United States market."

Licence plate market cornered

Next year, the motor vehicle bureau has decreed that all Quebecers will receive only one licence plate, which must be attached to the rear of the car. This change will not only save the province nearly one million dollars but also create a new market grossing an anticipated ten million dollars.

The race to corner this new market has already begun with numerous companies vying for the newly vacant space previously occupied by the front licence plate. Motorists, however, should be warned that some decorative plates can lead to problems.

The decorative plates may not carry the words "Quebec. Je me souviens," carry a fleur de lys which resembles the one appearing on the rear plate, carry any mention of the year or valid time period of the rear plate; the color must be different from the rear plate; cannot carry any numbers which would create too great a similarity to the rear plate or any letters which may be confused with identification systems used in another province or state.

Plastic plates will break easily in low temperatures and tests have already shown that some steel plates, even galvanized ones, will rust after only fifteen days of exposure to the elements. Rust from the licence plates can spread to the front bumper.

To combat these problems, J.A.R. Distribution Ltd., and their associated distributors are introducing their official decorative licence plate. This official government plate is made of 1100-H16 aluminum .00275 inches thick. It is covered with tough acrylic paint baked on at a temperature of 360 degrees and is guaranteed against all defects for a period of two full years.

Councillor puts Sutton on the map

Joan Meyer - the first woman councillor in Sutton.

By INGE VON GLASOW
(for the Record)

SUTTON — Joan Meyer has made history — she was elected the first woman councillor in Sutton.

Mrs. Meyer is well known in the community. She has worked at the town hall for six and a half years for both the Town and Township councils and, after her retirement, helped out whenever the need arose. To many, her ready smile was a welcome sight in such official surroundings.

When she helped out prior to this election, she had no idea that she would run for office herself. "I realized that the vacant seat had to be filled," she said, "but when I was urged by some people to give it a try, I flatly refused."

It was Joan's husband, Gordon, who convinced her that she was the right person for the job. "I still had a hard time to make up my mind, because I did not think it would be fair to Gordon," she admits. Finally convinced, Joan submitted her nomination paper and the required deposit of $50.

According to many people, Joan does have the credentials for the job. She was born and raised in Sutton — the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Gendron — and received her education there.

Joan has fond memories of her school years and her teachers. "I attended the presentation of Mary Convent on Main Street," she said, "and I still think that there was no better offered French and English education and, of the many courses taught, Joan is especially grateful for the business training she received there. (The Presentation of Mary Convent ceased to exist as an educational institute in 1967 and is now a Catholic Retreat House.)

Joan graduated in 1939 and went to work in Montreal for an import-export firm. She was employed there six and a half years despite business difficulties in foreign trade during the war. Four years at a well known law firm in Montreal broadened her work experience.

Joan's life changed when she met Gordon Meyers. The couple married in 1949 and resided in Sutton.

Their three daughters are grown up and married now, and Gordon, who was a customs officer, is retired. "This is why my husband encouraged me," Joan said. He felt that there was no reason not to accept the challenge.

Mrs. Meyers was elected by acclamation and was immediately sworn in on nomination day, October 31.

Instead of sitting in front of the council table, she now sits behind it. The fact that Joan Meyers was always well accepted by the councillors during her years as secretary-treasurer, makes the new position enjoyable for her.

As chair-person of the finance committee, she will be able to share directly in the decisions of the community's finances. She also will participate in the future regulations on urbanism, tourism, water & sewers, and construction & zoning.

Joan Meyers is pleased with the results of the election. She realizes that she has to accomplish a "man's job" — however, she will do it with a woman's touch.

The games we used to play...

A rainy day in Sherbrooke would find Patty and me sitting sedately on the back porch, each holding on her lap a passive doll and each surrounded by shoe boxes full of baby clothes. We would sit together the entire afternoon, discussing with great seriousness, the problems associated with bringing up two infants. Their diets, their wardrobes, their futures, all came under our grave consideration. At regular intervals, we would hold miniature, empty bottles to their lips. The modern drainage system had not yet come into being, so we wisely avoided the use of actual liquids. We would make the gesture of offering them Arrowroot biscuits, unless Sis, who lived next door, would join us.

Sis was a few years older than Patty and myself and she felt that a doll might denote immaturity on her part so, to our delight, she would grab old Bubbles, her small, brown terrier, tie a bonnet under a furiously protesting jaw, and push him down into her blue doll carriage.

Thus the three of us would proceed up Montreal Street. At the corner of High Street, never any farther, the enraged Bubbles would start to thrashabout, snarling and growling in the most ominous fashion. While the well behaved babies slept, his agitation would mount them Arrowroot biscuits, then pop them into our own mouths as we chatted.

I always felt that I lacked Patty's fine maternal feeling. Perhaps the difference in "our children" was to blame. My mother had always favored a small, squishy type of doll that sold, I believe, under the name, "Baby Doll". These were not pretty dolls but appealing and cuddly. A new one would appear about every second year under the Christmas tree. They were all exactly the same; each one always wrapped in a soft wool blanket of beige and white checks, tied in the front with a bow of white ribbon.

Patty's doll was a true princess! She was far larger than mine and had a lovely face-porcelain compared to squished-up rubber! This beauty also possessed luminous, long-lashed eyes and marvelously white, even teeth that smiled with faint contempt between pale pink lips. Her hair was golden and, of course, curly, while mine, alas, had no hair at all!

The times that I really enjoyed were on the fine days when we would dress our fortunate babies in their best bonnets and jackets and take them for a stroll. Even this was not too much fun until finally, blanket trailing and bonnet awry, he would leap from the carriage and race for home.

This was when the fun began! We would tear after him, all child care forgotten. We would join the merry chase with breakneck abandon, laughing and screaming; the carriages rolling madly, the dolls tossing from side to side! We never caught up to old Bubbity!

The most treasured of all our games was a very special, secret one known only to Patty and me. We called it "playing Tom and Tony". We indulged in this only when we were quite alone. I don't think anyone else ever knew about it. Although we were but youngsters we both realized that adults, as well as our contemporaries, would regard us a bit warily if they should witness any of these mad adventures.

We required two things for this game; lots of space and complete privacy. The Mutchlers, next door, answered both needs. They had a large, rectangular back lawn and they were frequently away on weekends.

Patty owned a bright red leather harness that fit over one's shoulders and fastened in the back. It had two reins and sported a series of small, noisy bells across its front. We had to take turns when we played this game; one had to be the horse and one the cowboy. Either way, the running distance was the same!

First of all, we had to concoct our fantasy—a story to enact. Once this had been decided, Tom would saddle up his fiery steed and off we would go. We would fly, fast and fearless, under the short embankment that gave way to the larger lawn. Round and round we would speed, faster and faster; Tony snorting, Tom hallooing, until we would both collapse in a heap of little girl arms and legs, laughing perspiring, triumphant and exhausted.

If our strength warranted it and if the Mutchlers had not yet returned, we might reverse roles and give the 'bad guys' another run. The compact, trim figure of Mrs. Mutchler at her kitchen window would send us, in immediate retreat, up the little hill to the safety of our own back yard.

Many years later, I met a little girl in hospital who was undergoing psychiatric treatment for a disorder that was proving embarrassing to her wealthy and affluent parents. She had an obsession about playing that she was pony and galloping joyfully around the lawns of her home.

All day long, she was given most grave consideration by qualified psychiatrists who were to systematically destroy her small world of dreams; but in the evenings, she was loved and reassured by a nurse who knew too well the magic of the game and in whose memory still jangled the small bells on the bright red harness.

Service tax increase ahead

Lennoxville residents will pay more than last year's $100 for municipal services such as garbage collection, sewers, fire protection and water, following last Monday's council meeting.

A notice of motion was presented to amend the service tax, and although estimates have not yet been finalized, town officials say they're sure there will have to be some kind of increase.

The meeting — the first by the town's newly-elected council — began with a swearing-in ceremony for Mayor Cecil Dougherty and his six councillors, assisted by Father Gagnon.

At the meeting — marked by the absence of even a single citizen — the town acknowledged receipt of a letter from the Ministry of Municipal Affairs to the effect that the Quebec government was making an extra $30 million available for municipal projects. A meeting will be held to discuss possible projects within this category.

The town's application for a $55,000 park-operation grant under the Canada Works program was reduced to only $19,100 by Ottawa, and the town council has to revamp the program to fit within the reduced amount. However, a supplementary budget could be presented in January, allowing an expansion of park plans.

Strange story

Of all the weird and wonderful stories to come out of the various probes into RCMP activities, the strangest involves the plot to hijack an Air Canada flight.

The tale, which surfaced last Friday in the Toronto Star, claimed that up to eight people were involved in a Front de Liberation du Quebec plot to hijack a Montreal-to-Vancouver jet on the eve of the Oct. 30, 1972 federal election and demand the release of the murderers of Quebec labor minister Pierre Laporte.

According to The Star, the plot was uncovered and then Solicitor-General Warren Allmand tipped off because the group discovered one of its members was an RCMP informer.

A source within the Keable Commission told The Star an undercover agent had suggested the idea after public opinion polls had shown the Parti Quebecois leading the provincial Liberals in several popularity polls and that the scheme was designed to discredit the separatist party.

The PM calls the whole thing preposterous garbage. Solicitor-General Francis Fox denies any such thing ever took place, but The Star says the Keable Commission has a letter from former RCMP Commissioner Maurice Nadon to Mr. Allmand outlining the plot.

We figure there's an even chance the whole thing is a preposterous forgery, a set-up job designed to discredit the federal government, planned by party or parties unknown.

Another possibility is that the undercover agent or agents involved reported the plot to their superiors, who may have seen in it the political end of casting any anti-establishment political group in a dubious light.

Whatever the case, it doesn't reflect that badly on the RCMP agents involved. Whoever has lived an undercover life can attest to the constant feeling of uncertainty and fear of being found out. Rather, it reflects on the Force's civil masters, those men who seem to have gone through years in public office with a "don't tell me, I don't want to know" attitude.

Canadian politics: Searching for saviors

One of the disturbing currents in modern Canadian political life is the cult of the leader.

This is reflected in the present search by the provincial Liberal party for a "chef". The fact is that this party is not going to find a Messiah to lead it back into power. Moreover, the identification of a party with one overriding personality is generally detrimental to it and to democracy in the long run. Surely the provincial Liberals, fresh from the Bourassa years, should be the first to recognize this.

Claude Ryan quite wisely refused to fall into this trap. However, his decision has not deterred those Liberals desirous of finding a "Leader".

The party faithful would be better advised to restrict their search to present members of the organization. No one can predict for president since Truman. However, the American nation has survived its trials and tribulations under Eisenhower, Kennedy, Johnson, Nixon, Ford and now Carter. The only one of these men to

by George MacLaren

certain how any individual will react to the awesome burden of power. Harry Truman, one of the better American presidents, was generally presumed to be a second rater when he assumed the Presidency.

The Americans have not had a really outstanding have been perceived as a real leader, John F. Kennedy, appears in retrospect to have been an indifferent president.

We are reminded of a story told by the late President Johnson. After the first meeting of the Kennedy cabinet, Johnston rushed over to see his old Texas crony Sam Rayburn. The then Vice-President, much impressed by the new appointees, extolled their competence and intelligence. Rayburn replied that he would feel a lot happier if any of them had ever been elected sheriff or dogcatcher somewhere.

The decision by former Premier Jean Lesage to take an active part in the constitutional debate is of course to be welcomed. However, Mr. Lesage is not of any real importance in the present Quebec political spectrum. The followers of the leadership cult blew his nomination as chairman of the Liberal referendum committee out of all proportion. The Pequistes don't seem to be quaking in their boots.

Prime Minister Trudeau has benefitted from the cult of personality. Didn't we believe in 1968 that Pierre would cure all the country's ills? The truth is that Mr. Trudeau's greatest failures as a leader result from the fact that he was parachuted into power without having paid his dues. Surely our prime minister would have benefitted from a political apprenticeship.

Joe Clark doesn't seem to be winning many adherents among the leadership cultists.

A serious look at the Conservative party will show that Clark's problems largely arise from the fact that in the 20th Century the federal system in Canada has suffered from a one party system for historical reasons.

In 1977 Robert Stanfield is widely regarded as a tolerant wise old statesman, a man Canada can be proud of. The fact remains that nobody wanted to vote for him because he wasn't perceived as a "Leader".

Premier Rene Levesque is the latest beneficiary of the cult of personality. Many Pequistes tremble at the thought of his disappearance from the political scene. Political structures based on the leadership of one individual tend to be impermanent. The Parti Quebecois is too tied to Mr. Levesque's personal popularity for its own good.

We live in a complicated age. People in Canada are crying out for some sort of cleansing crusade, led by a powerful individual in the name of the people.

The unnamed enemies of the people would be struck down by such a common cause. Nobody, however, can be all things to all people. Disenchantment with the new leader soon sets in and we must begin again to search for our new master.

True solutions to our political problems can only be found by reforming and giving new vigour to our governmental institutions and not by a continual search for new saviors.

Why?

Editor:

I wonder how many of your subscribers have a similar problem to ours.

Here is a good example of how our Record is delivered. Monday, last week, we received two Records. That was all until Saturday when three more arrived.

Monday of this week we weren't so lucky - no Record at all and on Tuesday we received the Record dated November 10.

I have written to the Record office and have talked to our postmaster but haven't found either a reason or a solution.

You have, no doubt, heard the expression that nothing is more dull than yesterday's news. Well how about getting it a week to ten days old which is happening here all the time? Not very satisfactory to say the least!

I will be very pleased if this can be looked into and some better system found.

If other subscribers are having the same trouble let us hear about it and see what can be done.

Editor's note: The Post Office gets the paper to ship at about the same time every day; we see no reason why The Record should be so late. There's even less reason why it should be so erratic.

One parent checked

Bill 101 is now law. Whether we agree with it or not, whether we like it or not, there is little question that Quebec is becoming as French as Ontario is English. It is already true that a person without French-language ability has little chance of obtaining a job in Quebec. Given these facts, it is essential that our children obtain sufficient instruction in French so that they will be bilingual upon graduating. There are, of course, more positive reasons for wanting our children to acquire facility in French. A bilingual person has a grasp of two cultures, not just one, and is able to fit into either. Knowledge of another language is broadening in the intellectual sense. French is a major European language and its mastery will allow one to travel in Europe without difficulty and appreciate its culture more fully.

In this regard I was pleased to note the editorial of the Sherbrooke Record for November 10. The editorial noted the finding of the group "Anglo-Quebec en Mutation" that English-speaking youth are leaving the province because they are unable to function in French. The editorial concluded: "We suggest it might be time to look at what sort of French education your children are getting. Either they're being taught to function in Quebec society or they're not."

I too was interested in discovering what sort of French-language instruction I could expect for my daughter when she enters school in a few years. The answer turned out to be very little. The Lennoxville School Board, where my daughter will be attending, presently offers a kindergarten class with 50 per cent instruction in French. However, in Grades 1 through 6 only 20 minutes a day of French instruction is given. In addition, children who have successfully completed Gade 6 and are sufficiently "motivated" may apply for the dubious privilege of repeating this grade in French in what is known as the "six-plus" programme. Twenty minutes a day hardly seems sufficient to enable a child to obtain even rudimentary knowledge of French, much less to achieve competency in this language. Moreover, requiring children to, in effect, fail their grade in order to receive adequate French-language instruction is not fair, to say the least.

A much more promising system of French-language instruction is the "immersion" type of program which has been successfully introduced in places such as Ottawa and Montreal.

I cannot understand why Lennoxville District School Board is not moving in a similar direction. I am aware of two types of objections to this kind of programme, and both can be answered. One objection suggests that intensive training in a second language in the early grades will interfere with learning in the first language. This is an argument frequently heard from supporters of the Parti Quebecois who wish to limit the teaching of English in French-language schools. However, it is also a concern of English-speaking parents. The argument is false. The best evidence of this comes from studies carried out by Dr. Wallace Lambert of McGill University and published in 1972. He compared two matched groups of English-language students, one group enrolled in a French immersion program and the other given traditional, minimal instruction in French. He found that the French immersion group, in relation to the other group, showed: a) either no difference or improvement in English-language skills; b) near "native-like" competence in French; and c) improved attitudes towards French-speaking individuals. These are impressive findings.

The second argument against intensive instruction in French notes that this will mean the loss of jobs for English-speaking teachers. I cannot evaluate the extent to which this is a valid concern. However, I can state that jobs will certainly be lost if adequate French-language instruction is not instituted in our schools, as parents will send their children to French schools in order to ensure that their children learn to speak French. To some extent this is happening already. In an article in the Montreal Star for October 26, 1977 headed "French welcoming classes open to English Quebecers" it was noted that in one school board on the Island of Montreal, 25 per cent of the students attending French schools are English.

In summary, I believe it is time for a major increase in French-language instruction in our public schools. This view is rapidly spreading. For example, the Montreal Star for November 15 notes that a "committee of parents, students, teachers and administrators" of the Baldwin-Cartier School Commission recommends that 60 per cent of all instruction in the junior elementary grades of their English schools should be given in French. If you agree with the view that we should have more French in our elementary schools, I suggest, for a start, that you send a brief letter to your school board informing them of this. You might also give me a call at 563-8703 (after 5:00 p.m.) so that I can compile a list of those who support this position.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Rosenberg evidence surfaces

by Jack Anderson and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — We have discovered dramatic new evidence in the Julius and Ethel Rosenberg atomic spy case — evidence that an alert FBI agent found concealed in the fold of a wallet six years after the Rosenbergs were executed.

The discovery comes at a time that the executed couple's sons are battling to clear the Rosenberg name. It concerns Morton Sobell who was convicted in the Rosenberg spy case and was released from prison in 1969 for good behavior. He has never stopped insisting that he was innocent.

The new evidence — a flimsy strip of microfilm that an FBI agent found by slicing open a secret compartment in a Soviet spy's wallet — should be put in context. The Rosenberg spy story, the nation's most famous espionage case since Civil War days, broke after the Soviets exploded their first atomic bomb in 1949.

This ominous event unsettled the American people who had hoped the terrible atomic secret could be kept from the rest of the world. Swept up by the public mood, FBI agents and congressional investigators began searching for Communist spies with a vengeance.

The House Un-American Activities Committee began staging its act under the white-domed Capitol, a Big Top in marble and pillars. Huge crowds, subdued by the stately environment, would surge into the hearing room. Congressmen like J. Parnell Thomas and Richard Nixon, in the role of the accusers, would deliver dramatic, finger-pointing harangues on the subject of Communist spies and international intrigue.

The committee played the same scene over a dozen times. The script varied; the committee injected new names into each performance; but it was always the same old act.

It was in this atmosphere that the Rosenbergs were tried, convicted and finally executed on June 19, 1953. Morton Sobell drew a 30-year prison term in the same case.

Six years after the Sobell trial, the FBI ingeniously tracked down the master Soviet spy Rudolf Abel. His assistant, ex-KGB Lt. Col. Reino Hayhanen, testified against him. The KGB defector mentioned on the witness stand that he and Abel had been instructed by Moscow to deliver $10,000 to Sobell's wife, Helen, in 1955.

The two Soviet agents buried $5,000 in Bear Mountain Park, N.Y., in cellophane bags and Abel deposited the other $5,000 in a bank, Hayhanen swore. The money was intended, he explained, to enlist Helen Sobell as a spy.

No direct evidence was produced that she knew anything about the money. In fact, Hayhanen ruefully admitted digging up the Bear Mountain money and pocketing the $5,000 himself. Mrs. Sobell's statement, therefore, that Hayhanen's testimony was a "meaningless... smear" has come to be widely accepted.

Here's where the new evidence fits in — evidence that the KGB at least planned to deliver $10,000 to Mrs. Sobell. It was uncovered by an FBI agent who was checking through Abel's belongings.

With his fingernail, he slit open a fold in Abel's wallet. Inside was the microfilm. It contained row after row of five-digit numbers, some 1,035 numbers in all. We have a copy of the intricate, encoded message, which was finally deciphered by the FBI with the help of other government experts.

It was addressed to "Comrade Vik," the secret name for Hayhanen. Among other instructions and queries, the secret message asked: "Would you be able to deliver money to wife of Stone?" According to sworn testimony and other FBI evidence, "Stone" was the Soviet code name for Sobell.

Commented Helen Sobell: "The 20-year-old fantasy story of a Russian spy is dragged out of mothballs and dressed up with microdots. Anyone can concoct stories or microdots about innocent people as they did in the 1950s. But it was a lie then, and it is a lie now."

Her attorney, Marshall Perlin, called for the release of all documents in the case "instead of selective leaks."

Who's News: Jimmy Carter's "personal touch" is beginning to win friends and influence votes on Capitol Hill. But his congressional liaison staff is regarded as amateurish. Sometimes the staff allows congressional mail to go unanswered for weeks. But the present usually calls personally the same day.

— Sen. Ed Zorinsky, D-Neb., takes pride in being known in Washington as the "hick of Capitol Hill". His hometown newspaper, the Omaha World Herald, headlines his comments about fellow legislators. He refers to the Senate as a club populated by slothful senators. A recent editorial cartoon showed the Nebraskan about to goose some snoozing senators with a cattle prod. But when Vice President Walter Mondale presented him with a gavel recently for presiding over the Senate for more than 100 hours, Zorinsky declared how proud he was to preside over "the greatest deliberative body in the world."

— President Carter has taken the advice of his aides that he play a more active role in Democratic politics. He huddled the other day with Rep. James Corman, D-Calif., who heads the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee. The president questioned Corman anxiously about the fundraising efforts for next year's congressional elections. Corman responded that the Democrats were having "modest success" with their collections. Carter made it clear he's worried about Republican off-year victories and wants the trend reversed.

Royal Family spending worries Britons

LONDON (CP) — Britons generally have hailed the birth of Princess Anne's son, but there seems to be increasing concern about the high cost of maintaining the Royal Family. A newspaper which splashed news of the arrival of the new baby on its front page carried pictures inside of Princess Margaret swimming off a tropical island. "Margaret is sunning it on the Caribbean island of Mustique where she is staying with her young friend, Robby Llewellyn," says The Daily Mirror. There, there was wide disappointment recently when the Queen's budget was increased by 18 per cent, a boost equivalent to about $1 million since 1975. The Queen is generally regarded as one of the richest women in the world. The Labor government has ruled that wage increases generally should be kept to an average 10 per cent. Enforcing that policy brought widespread blackouts by disgruntled power workers. The police also threatened to strike before backing down and the firemen actually did walk out, demanding 30-per cent wage increases. The disappointment over the Queen's budget was summed up by Joe Gormley, head of the miners' union who said, "It's a hell of an inappropriate time."

"Clearly, she knows how to spend 5,000 pounds ($10,000)-a-year pay rise from the British taxpayer." Traditionally, Britons have looked to the Royal Family for example during hard times. For instance, it was a matter of pride that the Royal Family remained in London throughout the Second World War, sweating out the blitz with the common folk. Models bounced through the balcony audience or swooped down a side staircase to the stage, where high above on her devil-may-care perch, sat a cloth ragdoll complete with ugly Olive Oyl high top shoes. Douglas Hoyle, Labor MP for Nelson and Colne, asked Prime Minister James Callaghan whether his 10-per-cent wage-increase guidelines are intended to apply across the public sector. "If so, why don't they apply to the civil list, or is it a fact that there is one law for the ordinary person and another for the upper sectors of our society—particularly in view of the distinguished personage talking about the very large staffs of nationalized industries?"

Glad rag spring designs...

NEW YORK (AP) — It's a mad, mad glad rag spring at Carol Horn's Habitat. Horn, the ragdoll of Seventh Avenue, presented a lighthearted romp through her spring designs last week that sent her models boogying across the stage of the Fashion Institute of Technology to the gutsy disco music of Grace Jones. Models bounced through the balcony audience or swooped down a side staircase to the stage, where high above on her devil-may-care perch, sat a cloth ragdoll complete with ugly Olive Oyl high top shoes. The same shoes were repeatedly worn in the show. With the longish, full skirts over petticoats, these laced up shoes looked almost like the boots chambermaids once wore. But with baggy trousers and oversized knit tunics, the shoes looked like funny hiking boots. CLOTHES LAYERED There's lots of layering in the spring line of Carol Horn, especially with shawls and scarves. One outfit had a skirt worn over balloon-like harem pants with a roomy top and a draped shawl. The basic shirtwaist dress was often thrown over silky and lacy petticoats or trousers. "But play. Relax and make the clothes work for you." Some clothes were knotted or tied off at hemlines or dropped waists. A pale green smock-like top was knotted at the hem. It was shown with baggy pants in a lilac shade. The jogging warmups seemed to form a basis for some of the pants shown. They were baggy and tied at the ankle. Some were shown with loose-fitting knit tops.

"They're making us all a bit more bloody-minded." Two thirds of the Queen's 18-per-cent increase goes toward the wage bill for royal retainers at three major households—Buckingham Palace, Windsor Castle and Holyrood House in Edinburgh. Help for wrinkled knits

By Polly Cramer

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY — I bought a wrinkled white nylon knit shell thinking I could remove the wrinkles but have had no luck. I washed it with lukewarm water and drip-dried it from the machine. I washed it again and dried in the dryer on the delicate cycle but the wrinkles are still there. — J.H.

DEAR J.H. — I have had fairly good luck pressing such wrinkles with a pressing cloth that has been wrung out of white vinegar and water. Some knits that might flatten out too much from the weight of the iron would have to be pressed over very lightly. Try this and I do hope it works for you. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — To save on human energy as well as electricity I fold handkerchiefs and smooth them as they come out of the dryer. I then put the unplugged iron on top of the hankies on top of the dryer. The heat from the dryer will iron the hankies when the next load is put in. — NORMA.

DEAR POLLY — About one-third of my iron is discolored from something that stuck to it. Since the silver coated ironing board cover is torn I thought it could be that and used a scraping cloth on the iron but to no avail. Any suggestions? — MRS. R.H.A.

DEAR MRS. R.H.A. — Perhaps the following letter will be of some help to you. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — I had the misfortune to touch some plastic wrap with my hot electric skillet and it melted right onto the skillet. I tried everything to no avail. Finally I used a commercial cleaner, which is sold for the purpose of removing burned on grease, left it for 60 minutes and was able to peel the plastic right off. — MARJ.

DEAR POLLY — I used to have trouble with my nine months old daughter's bottle leaking whenever I took her out. Recently my husband discovered the tops from baby juice jars fit on to the tops of glass and plastic baby bottles perfectly. Now I save the tops from juice jars and use them on the large bottles when going out. I just carry a nipple along to put on the bottle when I am ready to use it so there is no more leaking for me. — MRS. N.L.

DEAR POLLY — I wear footies much of the time and had a hard time keeping them together in a drawer until I snapped each pair together with a snap clothespin. I also used such clothespins to hold shorts on a hanger. — PAT

Ann Landers says Both sides in print

Dear Ann Landers: I follow you as I can. Some days I miss, but I'm what you'd call a faithful reader. Will you please tell me why your column is so one-sided? You print many letters about the abnormalities of men but never women. Surely you must know there are lesbians around as well as male homosexuals. Why has this subject never been mentioned in your column? You print loads of letters about male impotency but nothing about the frigid female. In fact, once a while back you said, "There is no such thing as a frigid woman. The problem is clumsy or insensitive men." Recently you ran a letter about a husband who "enjoyed sex by himself." (The wife wrote to say she was mortified.) Surely you know there are women who do the same thing. Let's have both sides of the story, Ann. Your column would be not only more realistic but more educational. — Tired of Half The Picture

Dear Tired: I try to be fair and print both sides but many more male homosexuals write to me than women. However, if you are a "faithful reader" you saw a letter just recently about lesbians. As for frigid women, I've dealt with them in the column, too. I hold the view (and have expressed it in print) that "many are cold, but few are frozen."

Of course some women as well as men "enjoy sex alone." It just so happens that many wives have written to complain about husbands who do this but I've yet to hear from one male. The only papers I know of that print every word I write are the Chicago Sun-Times and the Chicago Daily News. I'm sure there must be others, but I don't see them every day of my life, as I do these two.

I write seven columns a week — 52 weeks a year. Some papers don't publish on Sunday, so the subscribers of those papers miss one-seventh of me. Others don't run the column on Saturday, even though they publish a Saturday paper. (Why? Ask them. I'm available.) Other papers have space problems so they lop one or even two letters off my column. (Naturally, I am not happy about this but it's the privilege of every editor to cut what he wants to.) This lengthy response is to explain that perhaps the reason you think I am biased is because you do not see every letter in my column every day — and undoubtedly, the ones you missed were the very ones you were looking for.

Dear Ann Landers: I have a horrible problem and hope you can help. I'm 17 and in love with a guy who makes me sick. Yes, really. This has been going on since my birthday in May when he took me to dinner in a nice restaurant. I got nauseated at the table — forced myself to eat anyway and then had to go throw up. Every since that time I try to avoid eating with him but when I can't get out of it, I do — and I always end up vomiting. My mother says no guy is worth it. I really love Ed and don't know what to do. — Troubled Freak

Dear Friend: your problem is not as freaky as you think. Many teen-agers have it. It's emotional and must be resolved by talking. Discuss it with your school counselor and if more intensive therapy is needed, he (or she) will guide you. What's prudish? What's O.K.? If you aren't sure, you need some help. It's available in the booklet: "Necking and Petting — What Are the Limits?" Mail your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped self-addressed envelope.

News Briefs

Law students occupy U de M

MONTREAL (CP) — About 50 law students occupied their faculty building at the University of Montreal Monday to back demands for equal representation on university committees.

Although the protesters prevented administrative staff from entering the building, classes for the remainder of the 1,000 law students were not interrupted during the one-day protest.

University officials have rejected a bid for equal student participation on the faculty's admissions committee, which currently has three professors and one student.

Other students at the 35,000-student institution are refusing to pay tuition fees in a dispute over payment deadlines.

Two years, not one

ST. DENIS-SUR-RICHELIEU, Que. (CP) — Cultural Development Minister Camille Laurin says the birth of a free Quebec will be celebrated within two years.

Laurin made the comment in a speech Sunday to about 2,000 nationalists who came to this village 60 kilometres southeast of Montreal to commemorate a battle in which French-Canadian patriots defeated British soldiers in the rebellion of 1837-38.

"Within two years, there will be a thousand wreaths to mark the birth of a free Quebec," Laurin said.

The Canadian Press erroneously reported Monday that Laurin said the birth of an independent Quebec would be celebrated in a year's time.

...Whether you need it or not

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Prisoners in the special handling unit at Millhaven penitentiary will be allowed showers every other night and will have access to recreation equipment as part of an agreement worked out Monday ending a hostage-taking incident.

Guy Verreault, a corrections services spokesman, said the incident started at 11 p.m. Sunday when 18 prisoners from the special unit known as Super Max refused to return to their cells and held one prisoner hostage at knifepoint.

The hostage suffered a minor leg injury and one of his captors had a broken hand. Another prisoner was taken to prison hospital with a self-inflicted knife wound, Verreault said.

No names were released. Super Max, a 138-cell unit now holding 40 convicts, was set up when capital punishment was abolished. Among the men kept there are murderers of policemen and prison guards.

BC MP blasts Quebec Grits

OTTAWA (CP) — A Progressive Conservative MP from British Columbia protested Monday a Quebec Liberal party resolution that only English-speaking students should attend Quebec English schools.

Benno Friesen (Surrey-White Rock) urged MPs to adopt a motion forcing Marc Lalonde, interprovincial relations minister, to state that the rights of all new Canadians will be guaranteed by the federal government. The resolution to which he referred was passed this weekend at a Quebec Liberal party convention.

The current Parti Quebecois government largely limits enrolment in English schools to those who have one parent who attended a Quebec English school.

Canada Council coughs up

OTTAWA (CP) — Grants totalling $412,650, including one for $3,500 to prepare a collection of Newfoundland songs, were announced Monday by the Canada Council under its explorations program.

The grants were awarded to 85 applicants from among 402 who applied under the council's program to create new forms of cultural expression and appreciation of Canadian heritage.

Other grants included $3,000 to Kelly Russell of St. John's, Nfld. for a collection of the province's fiddle music; $2,800, Marielle Boudreau of Beresford, N.B., for illustrations of traditional Acadian cooking; $7,854, Merrily Paskal of Shawbridge, Que., for a history of the Canadian Communist Party; $5,000 to Carol Priamo of Kleinburg, Ont., for a history of inns and taverns of Canada; $5,000 to B. Allan Mackie of Prince George, B.C., for a film about building with logs and $1,800 to Emily Riley of Calgary to prepare talking books for handicapped children.

Group wants wiring ban

MONTREAL (CP) — Two consumer associations have called on the federal and provincial governments to start an immediate ban on aluminum wiring connections used in schools, hospitals, senior citizens residences and homes.

The Concerned Consumers Foundation and the Automobile Protection Association said Monday the connections are a fire hazard and demanded a moratorium on their use in new residences. They also said homeowners should be compensated for replacing existing aluminum wiring.

Spokesman Bob Jerabek said a number of fires have been caused directly by improperly connected aluminum wiring and that a royal commission is currently holding hearings in Ontario on the safety of the wiring.

"The authorities, however, will not come out into the open and name aluminum wiring as the real culprit," said Jerabek. He said there are about 500,000 residences wired with aluminum in Canada.

David Armour, president of the Electrical and Electronics Manufacturers Association of Canada, said there is nothing wrong with aluminum wiring "if it is installed properly."

Maillet just misses Goncourt

PARIS (Reuter) — A book about a Cheyenne Indian who cleans New York skyscraper windows won France's top literary award Monday in a close contest enlivened by a cream bun throwing incident.

Author Didier Decoin, favorite for the 1977 Prix Goncourt, had been running even with Canadian writer Antonine Maillet after five rounds of inconclusive voting by the jury of 10 former Goncourt winners.

Both had five votes and it took the casting vote of jury president Armand Lanoux to decide the issue in favor of Decoin, 32.

His decision was not to the taste of one young man, who threw a cream bun into his face as he read the verdict. Lanoux took it in good humor. "That'll make a good photo," he told cameramen swarming around him at the Drouant, a Right Bank restaurant where the jury traditionally selects the prize before lunch.

Decoin is the son of French cinema director Henri Decoin. He started his writing career at the age of 18 and produced his first novel in 1966 after working as a journalist and television advertising writer.

He won the prize for his latest novel, John L'Enfer (Hellish John), the story of a Cheyenne Indian who cleans skyscraper windows in a decaying and doomed New York. Maillet's book is called Les Cordes de Bois (Wooden Cords).

The Prix Goncourt is only a cheque for 50 francs (about $10). But such is its prestige and publicity that the winning author is assured sales worth hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Tomato tariffs top taxes

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition MPs, debating an income tax bill Monday, made only passing reference to a motion announced moments earlier by the government to cut short the debate, directing their comments instead to tariffs on imported vegetables.

Norman Cafik, deputy government House leader, said a special motion will allow only five hours' more debate before the Commons votes to send the bill to committee. The Liberal majority is expected to pass the motion today.

Speaking immediately after the announcement, Fred McCain (PC—Carleton-Charlotte) complained that dried mushrooms are not adequately covered by tariffs, and William Knowles (PC—Norfolk-Haldimand) said imported tomato paste is undermining the Canadian tomato-growing industry.

Monday marked the eighth day of debate on the tax bill, which the government says is the most important item before Parliament.

Biko kept from hospital

PRETORIA (Reuter) — Two doctors were refused permission to admit South African black leader Steve Biko to a hospital by South African security police, a government doctor has told an inquest into Biko's death.

Dr. Ivor Lang, a district surgeon employed by the government, said Monday he examined Biko in Port Elizabeth, where security police interrogated him shortly before he died of brain damage on Sept. 12.

He said he and Dr. Benjamin Tucker, the chief district surgeon, had agreed Biko needed treatment in a local hospital.

But Lang said they were refused permission to send Biko to the hospital by Col. Pieter Goosen, the regional security police chief.

Biko, the honorary president of the Black People's Convention, was one of more than 20 blacks to die in detention in South Africa during the last 18 months. His death brought an international outcry over the treatment of black detainees in the white-ruled republic.

Quebec favored, say builders

OTTAWA (CP) — Toronto construction industry leaders meeting Progressive Conservative MPs Monday suggested the federal government is favoring Quebec in financing construction projects.

The observation was contained in one of 10 demands to three levels of government made in a written statement by the seven-member construction industry government affairs committee. Members met Conservative Leader Joe Clark and five Conservative MPs.

They said that although the federal government has reneged on a 1974 promise for $290 million for urban transit construction, it has promised $200 million for the Place Guy Favreau project downtown in Montreal. The project is for government offices.

Viet couple thrown out

OTTAWA (CP) — A hunger strike Monday by a Vietnamese immigrant couple from Toronto in the main foyer of the Parliament building was cut short by security staff who asked them to leave early in the afternoon.

Bui Van Bao and his wife Pham Thi My, who is confined to a wheelchair, said they were protesting the government's refusal to let their mothers emigrate from the Socialist Republic of Vietnam to join them in Toronto.

A security staff spokesman said they departed after they were told to leave the centre of the foyer where crowds line up to watch MPs in the Commons from a gallery upstairs.

Actress wins dockers' seat

ATHENS (AP) — Greek actress Melina Mercouri, star of the movie Never on Sunday, was swept into the Greek parliament Sunday by voters of the dockside area where her film was made.

Miss Mercouri, 57, a fiery campaigner known for her opposition in exile to the 1967-74 dictatorship in Greece, ran on the Panhellenic Socialist party slate and won a landslide majority in the port city of Piraeus.

Interviewed at her home in Athens, she said: "I thank the poor people of Piraeus who trusted me to fight for their needs."

Miss Mercouri, married to American film producer Jules Dassin, received more over 15,000 votes, one-third more than the nearest runner up in her electoral district.

In the 1974 elections she failed by a handful of votes. She was later expelled from the party due to a clash with its leadership but was reconciled a few months prior to Sunday's election.

Third cyclone hits S. India

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — A third cyclone in 10 days battered southern India today as authorities stepped up rescue and relief efforts in devastated Andhra Pradesh state where more than 6,000 people were feared killed. Food packages were dropped into marooned villages and medical teams struggled to reach areas lashed by a cyclone last weekend.

Italian, Canadian strikes worst

GENEVA (Reuter) — Canada and Italy topped the list of 55 countries in time lost to strikes last year—an average of more than two days for each worker, the International Labor Organization (ILO) said today.

The United States lost about one day for each worker to labor disputes.

The Geneva-based ILO, a United Nations specialized agency promoting better working conditions throughout the world, said strikes and lock-outs cost an average of 2.27 working days for each worker in Canada. In Italy the figure was 2.2 days.

Stay and fight, says Solange

OTTAWA (CP) — The Quebec member of the Task Force on National Unity has appealed to the English and Jewish communities to stay in Quebec and fight for their rights.

Solange Chaput-Roland told the National Council of Jewish Women in Canada Monday that even during the Second World War, people stayed in London during the bombing.

"Now for only French grammar, we have people running out," she said. "Of course, I have seen houses for sale in Montreal. I don't like it, I cringe inside."

Mme. Chaput-Roland, travelling across the country with the task force gathering public opinion on national unity, said the committee members have met with a great deal of hostility.

But, she added, the hostility is not directed towards French Quebec as much as it is directed toward the federal government which has "badly explained their bilingualism policy."

Card Party

HUNTINGVILLE (MD) — Another card party held at the A.N.A.F. Hut on Nov. 16 proved a success as usual. Twelve tables playing with prizes going to:

1st, Frank Nelson; 2nd, Doris McHarg; 9 no trump, Beulah Walker; Consolation, Harry Bridges.

There will be another card party on Wed., Nov. 23rd, with Ruby and Fred Berry in charge as usual. Our thanks to them and everyone else who helped in any way.

ASTRO-GRAPH
Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

Nov. 23, 1977
This coming year will be a very exciting one, with many projects and activities. How productive it is will depend on how well you assign your priorities.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Sensible safety precautions should be taken today if you're working with sharp tools or electrical equipment. Also keep an eye on your helpers. Find out more about yourself by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Fidgety people or restless youngsters could get your goat today. You don't quite know how to cope. Either avoid them or watch your temper.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) This is not a good day to spring surprises on your mate. You can't break the domestic routine with impunity.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) It's important that you dominate the clock today rather than let it rule you. Budget your time, or you'll just make circles.
ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you're obligated to someone and you chance to meet this person today, you'd better have answers. He's about to call in your marker.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're renowned for your placid disposition, but someone who doesn't know you well could get another impression if you treat him brusquely.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be sure you get adequate rest today. Don't push yourself beyond normal limits, or you'll be nervous and definitely won't function well.
CANCER (June 21-July 22) You're harboring an urge to splurge today. A prod from a free-spending friend may be your undoing.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Being impatient with those who don't act as efficiently as you do could get you into some arguments today. Use tact, not tantrums.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If people take advantage of you today, it's probably your own fault. You tend to agree before you consider who wants what and why.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Instead of weighing things carefully as you usually do, today you may shoot from the hip. A dangerous game. Your judgment isn't that accurate.

Unity Lodge #8 celebrates 100th anniversary

On October 29th, Unity Lodge No. 8 of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows celebrated the 100th anniversary of the signing of its Charter in Sherbrooke. To mark the occasion a banquet and dance were held at the Alexander Galt Regional High School, Lennoxville with approximately 175 guests in attendance.
Sister Currier played the piano, and everyone sang "O Canada". Rev. Carl Gustafson asked the blessing which was followed by three toasts: to the Queen, to a strong united Canada, and to Unity Lodge No. 8. The master of ceremonies, Noble Grand Robert Macmillan welcomed all present and thanked Princess Rebekah Lodge, Sherbrooke for the beautiful floral centre piece and Vaudry's Flower Shop, Lennoxville for the attractive arrangement of flowers in front of the head table. He extended thanks to Myrtle Rebekah, Lennoxville, for providing the guest book for the occasion.

Seated at the head table were the Noble Grand of Unity Lodge, Robert Macmillan, the Vice-Grand F.R. Currier and his wife, Margaret, the Grand Master of the Jurisdiction of Quebec, Ralph Bernard and his wife, Sheila, the Grand Patriarch of Quebec, Alvin Smith, the President of the Rebekah Assembly of Quebec, Jean Horner, First Vice-President of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Patriarch's Militant, Vermont and Quebec, Lady Doris McHarg, and her husband Mel McHarg, the Sovereign Marshal of the Sovereign Grand Lodge, Edward Hyatt and his wife Hilda, the Director General of the Eastern Townships Regional School Board Mr. Wendell Sparkes and Mrs. Sparkes, also Rev. and Mrs.

Carl Gustafson. The Noble Grand then called on the Vice Grand Fred Currier to give a brief history of Unity Lodge No. 8. In studying the minutes of the early meetings, Bro. Currier discovered that an advertisement had been placed in the Sherbrooke Gazette August 31st, 1877. In response to the ad, a meeting was held in the anteroom of Victoria Lodge AF & AM, Griffith Block, Commercial Street, Sherbrooke to explain to those interested the objects, aims and benefits of the Odd Fellowship. It was the opinion of those present that it would be desirable that a lodge of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows should be formed in the City of Sherbrooke. Later it was decided to hold the meetings in the McCarthy Block, Market Square, Wellington Street, in the building where the Setlakwe's store is now located. Brothers from Pioneer Lodge No. 7, Richmond, Oriental Lodge No. 36, Derby Line, Vermont, Mount Royal Lodge No. 1, Montreal assembled on October 29th, 1877 in Sherbrooke for the purpose of instituting Unity Lodge No. 8. The Charter Members were: William Boutelle, Normand N. Welles, James Addie, Michael McCarthy, Alton Lindsay, Michael Knight, Jones M. Chapman, A.G. Woodward and Daniel Thomas.

Of interest from the early minutes was that the caretaker of the hall received fifty cents per night and the rent for the Lodge Hall was $75 per year. A wood stove was used to heat the hall, and the lodge paid $2 for half a cord of wood. Unity Lodge, along with other lodges formed the Grand Lodge of Quebec in 1878.

Unity Lodge has had the pleasure of having several members obtain the post of Grand Master of the Jurisdiction of Quebec. At present, the only active Past Grand Master from Unity is Brother Thornton Cleveland. In thanking Brother Currier for presenting this history, the Noble Grand Robert Macmillan pointed out that the first organisational meeting was held in the anteroom of the Victoria Masonic Lodge, and that night, exactly 100 years later, they met inside the Lodge room of Victoria Lodge AF & AM. The Master of Ceremonies called on some of the other members.
On May 1st, 1884, Unity Lodge vacated the McCarthy Building and moved into the Odell Block on Wellington Street, now known as the Whiting Block. Later the Lodge again moved to the Rosenbloom Building on Wellington Street, from where it moved in 1974 to the Masonic Hall at 510 Prospect Street. The Lodge now meets every second and fourth Monday, instead of every Monday as it did previous to 1974.

head table guests for a few remarks. Chief Patriarch Alvin Smith brought greetings from the Grand Encampment and said he felt that Unity was a second home for him.
President Jean Horner brought the greetings from the Rebekah Assembly of Quebec and congratulated Unity on reaching its 100th Anniversary.
Sovereign Grand Marshal Edward Hyatt brought the greetings from the Sovereign Grand Lodge and offered best wishes for the future.
The Grand Master, Ralph Bernard, on behalf of the Grand Lodge of Quebec congratulated all those who worked so hard in the past and encouraged members to keep up the high standards of those who had gone before.
The emcee, Robert Macmillan, thanked the head table guests for their contribution towards the success of the banquet as well as to all the committees and to those who attended. He invited all to stay for the dance with music furnished by Nutbrown's Orchestra.

I.O.O.F. and Rebekah church parade, District No. 10

COWANSVILLE — On Sunday morning, Nov. 13th, 1977, District Deputy Grand Master Llewellyn Beattie rallied brothers and sisters, as well as Junior Lodge and Theta Rho members, from Granby, Knowlton, Farnham, Stanbridge East, Lennoxville, Cowansville, in the Emmanuel United Church Hall, Cowansville, Que. At 11 o'clock they paraded upstairs to church, to join the regular worshippers in their annual corporate church parade. A very meaningful service followed, including the baptism of two baby boys. The lesson was read by Grand Master Ralph Bernard. The choir, with Mrs.

Douglas Smith at the organ, lead the large congregation in the singing of the well-chosen hymns in their usual excellent style, and their rendition of the anthem, "O Praise God in His Holiness" during the offering was well appreciated. The Pastor, Rev. Jim Sinclair, inspired everyone present with his appropriate message: "Friends Who Can Be Trusted".
After the blessing, coffee and doughnuts were served in the hall, courtesy of the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs of Cowansville Lodge.

South simply draws trumps; cashes the ace of clubs and hearts. Then he leads the four of hearts and finesses dummy's 10. He needs to find the jack of hearts in the West hand. Now South leads dummy's queen of clubs and discards his king of hearts after East follows.
West takes his king and has to put dummy back in to cash a heart and a club for two diamond discards.

One of the most important things for declarer to learn is to give the cards a chance.
Take this Terence Reese hand from the Bridge World magazine as an example. Three notrump is a much better contract than four spades, but there is also no problem at four spades.
East wins the first trick with the ace of diamonds and returns the queen. South's king is ruffed by West and a trump led.
Declarer has lost two tricks and has no place to put his last two diamonds. Does he have to go down one?

A Utah reader wants to know what we think of the weak (11-14 point) notrump. We feel that if a convention is a good one a good many really top players will use it. As far as we know there is no top player in America who employs this bid today, although we think one or two do use it not vulnerable against vulnerable opponents.

CFL's best offence and defence clash Sunday

MONTREAL (CP) — The highest-scoring offence in the Canadian Football League will collide with the most miserly defence Sunday when Edmonton Eskimos meet Montreal Alouettes in the Grey Cup.

The Eskimos, with Dave Cutler's talented toe contributing almost half their points, scored 412 in the 16-game season, 30 more than the next most potent offence—Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

While Montreal's production of 311 was only fifth best, the 245 points surrendered by its defence was easily tops. Toronto Argonauts were second with 266 given up and the Eskimos third with 320.

The Eskimos were dominant in a couple of other offensive categories, but otherwise they and the Alouettes were comfortably in the middle of the pack.

The Eskimos, who squeezed into first place in the Western Conference with a 10-6 record—the same as British Columbia Lions and Winnipeg—were No. 1 in field goals with Cutler's record 50. They also topped the league in first downs passing—Bruce Lem-merman and Tom Wilkinson combining for 160. Montreal was seventh with 130, and Don Sweet connected on 35 field goals.

Edmonton had the third greatest number of touchdowns—35—while Montreal was sixth with 28. The Als were fourth in first downs with 283 and the Eskimos seventh with 270. Of those, Montreal had 115 rushing, fourth highest, and Edmonton 91, better than only one team—B.C.

Edmonton was fourth in total offence with 4,932 yards, seventh in net rushing yardage with 1,784 and third in net passing yardage with 3,443. Montreal was seventh in total offence with 4,494, fourth in net rushing yardage with 2,239 and seventh in net passing yardage with 2,630.

Edmonton was fourth in total offence with 4,932 yards, seventh in net rushing yardage with 1,784 and third in net passing yardage with 3,443. Montreal was seventh in total offence with 4,494, fourth in net rushing yardage with 2,239 and seventh in net passing yardage with 2,630.

The Eskimos, with Jim Germany carrying the ball 211 times for 1,004 yards, averaged 4.1 yards per rush, with B.C. again the only team producing a smaller average. The Als' average of 4.5 yards was sixth in the CFL, and John O'Leary was their top rusher with 199 carries for 859 yards, third in the Eastern Conference.

Basketball tourney opens

The Sixth Annual Concordia Invitational Women's Basketball Classic get underway Thursday, November 24 at the Concordia Complex, 7200 Sherbrooke Street West. And once again the tourney will feature the best in Canadian intercollegiate basketball, with seven of the eight teams nationally ranked in pre-season polls.

Six of the seven participating Canadian teams are ranked in the starting line-up's top-ten list, including Laurentian University (1), University of New Brunswick (4), Bishop's University (5), University of Guelph (6) the host, Concordia University (7) and Acadia University (9). The lone American entry, Southern Connecticut State College finished sixth in the U.S. Nationals last season and are expected to be as strong this year.

The remaining Canadian school, Universite du Quebec a Trois-Riviers, is an experienced club which should make its presence felt, especially all-star forward Claudette Leclerc.

The highly-touted Bishop's Gaiterettes go against the University of New Brunswick Red Bloomers at 7 p.m. Thursday. Wayne Hussey's crew includes Quebec team members Debbie Huband, Helen McAuley, Diane Murphy, Linda MacPherson, as well as Concordia transfer, Wanda Hines.

Thursday winners will square off in semi-final matches Friday night at 7 p.m. and 9 p.m., with the consolation games taking place Friday afternoon at 3 p.m. and 5 p.m. A full slate of action begins early Saturday morning with consolation games at 9 and 11 a.m. and 1 p.m., leading up to the Championship game at 3 p.m.

Oilers' Jim Germany confident of improvement...

Running back moves forward

EDMONTON (CP) — Good health and a year of professional experience have given Edmonton Eskimos top running back Jim Germany confidence that he still is improving.

The speedster, who arrived at training camp almost unheralded and promptly filled one of the team's major requirements, said before Monday's workout he believes he will have a better year next year than this one.

"I'm still trying to get back what I lost when I was out of football for two years," he said. "Nobody here had seen me run, except maybe (former coach) Ray Jauch.

"Now I'm confident. I like playing here in Canada and I like living in Edmonton."

Germany gave Eskimo fans a scare Sunday when he was carried from the field in the last quarter of a 38-1 victory over British Columbia Lions that sent Edmonton to the Grey Cup final for the fourth time in five years, but he said the ankle injury that first appeared serious was minor. The injury developed as Germany completed a 25-yard run, his longest burst from scrimmage, and put him out for the rest of the game.

"I was trying to cut back against the grain," he said. "I knew Pete Ribbins, our outside receiver on the play, was coming up to try and help me with a block, so I slowed down."

"That was when I got caught from behind. I landed the wrong way on my ankle. At first, it hurt so much it could have been serious, but by the time I left the field, I could have run off."

Germany, 24, a 205-pounder who earned all-America mention at New Mexico State University but was cut by St. Louis Cardinals and Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League before he came to Edmonton, said he was troubled by the cold weather Sunday.

"It was hard for me because of the cold, cold air. It was the first time I'd played in conditions like these, but the only time it really bothered me was when I was standing on the sidelines."

Sports boycott weakens apartheid

NEW YORK (AP) — Sports may be the Achilles heel of South Africa's apartheid policy, says black tennis star Arthur Ashe.

"You can see a softening up of their attitudes in sports," said Ashe, who recently returned from his sixth visit to that country.

"South Africans are a very athletic-minded people. They are proud of their sports heritage and suffer when they are subjected to Olympic, World Cup soccer and Davis Cup boycotts."

"You can yell 'economic and arms sanctions,' and talk 'isolation' until you are out of breath, but it only seems to stiffen resistance to change. Sports seem to be slowly achieving headway where politicians have failed."

Denied a visa in 1970, Ashe became a militant spokesman against South Africa's racial policies and created a storm that resulted in sanctions by international sports committees.

Once, in anger, he said he would like to drop a bomb on Johannesburg.

In 1973, he finally was granted entry. On Nov. 24, 1973, he became the first black ever to gain the finals of the South African Open, losing to Jimmy Connors.

He experienced a complete turnaround in his theories and said he was convinced "contact and not isolation" was the best means of bringing about change in South Africa.

"There is no way the blacks today can overthrow the government," he argued. "Inasmuch as only total economic isolation could work—and this is most unlikely—I am convinced my way is better in the long run."

A close friend of Andrew Young, U.S. ambassador to the UN, the 34-year-old Ashe, former Wimbledon and U.S. Open tennis titleholder, became an unofficial minister plenipotentiary to South Africa.
