Assistance for area farmers now available

are: Tom Tynan, St. Lawrence's Assistant Principal; Guy Gauthier, Principal at St. Lambert-Longueuil; Frederick E. Turley, Director General of the CEGEP; Mrs. Joy Smith, Chairman of the college's board of governors; Edward J. Perry, a board director; and Mr. T.R. McGrath, Principal of the Lennoxville Campus.

SHERBROOKE — Federal assistance will be immediately available for flood stricken farmers in Ontario and Quebec. Agriculture minister Bud Olson announced yesterday. The assistance includes assurances that adequate supplies of feed grains will be available, that repayment of loans to the farm credit corporation can be deferred and that no dairy farmer will lose subsidies due to production cuts.

In addition, a special group from the Canada manpower department of agriculture and associated boards has been formed to assess and deal with future developments.

"We will maintain a close watch on the situation as it develops throughout the remainder of the crop year and into the winter and early spring," Mr. Olson said. "We realize that other special credit may be required for winter feed, for planting next spring or for other reasons. This need will be studied and considered as requirements became known," he added.

Research projects are also investigating the relative merits of livestock feeds and their report will be made available to farmers as soon as possible.

The farm credit corporation's offer to defer repayments on loans on an individual basis will free farmers to buy grain and finance the planting of a new crop next year.

Grain feed will be made available by speeding movement of grains from the prairies to the Lakehead, arranging direct rail shipment from the Lakehead to regions in Quebec and ensuring adequate storage space for the feed.

Scientists in the research branch of Canada department of agriculture have developed guidelines for Quebec farmers facing serious food shortage due to the storms. They suggest alleviating shortages of forage by reducing roughage content to a minimum, planting supplementary pasture crops for fall feed, harvesting hay or grain crops as silage and using formic acid as a preservative for wet crops. The main shortage will be of hay and silage used as roughage for beef and dairy cattle.

Assurances from the Canadian dairy commission that dairy subsidy holders would not lose part of their subsidy if their milk quota drops are important to farmers in the Eastern Townships who rely mainly on dairy farming. Normally, farmers whose quota falls below 75 per cent of the established quota level lose part of their subsidy.

The waiving of the quota revision will apply to all subsidy quota holders in Quebec since adverse weather has affected the whole province. The commission has also reduced the levy on deliveries of milk and cream in excess of the market quota to alleviate a possible shortage of dairy products due to adverse weather conditions.

Escaped men back

By FRED ASTON

COWANSVILLE — Thursday morning three men hopped the fence of the Cowansville medium security prison and made their escape unhampered, as many others have done, into the nearby woods.

At 8:10 a.m. municipal and provincial police were informed of the escape. The trio, Denis Druyn, 22, Michel Godbout, 19, and Jean-Marc Gingras, 18, were serving terms for theft and robbery.

Combined detachments of prison guards, Cowansville and Montreal QPP Police and Cowansville Municipal Police combed the nearby woods. Within a few minutes of the convicts' escape the entire area surrounding the area was blocked off.

Finally at 10:45 a.m., approximately two hours, 35 minutes, after their stroll in the morning mist, the three men were sighted in the woods near the Union Carbide plant not far from their original starting point. Police report very little resistance from the young men. They have since been returned to the penitentiary where they will face further charges in the next court excise.

Director general lays emphasis on individual

By FRANCES WESTLEY

LENNOXVILLE — If Hugh Auger could be said to have a theme in his ideas on education that theme would be concern for individuals.

As the newly appointed Director General of Elementary Education for the Lennoxville School Board, Mr. Auger's concern is three-fold. He is interested in the individuality of the students, the teachers and finally the separate elementary schools included under the jurisdiction of his board.

"One of my major concerns," Mr. Auger said, "has been the apparent lack of respect for the individual and consideration of others which seems to be developing within society today."

"I consider many things which are aspects of education such as justice, fair play and respect for the rights of others to be instructional priorities."

The student, Mr. Auger feels, will learn consideration and respect for other individuals by being taught these qualities and by witnessing these qualities in action in the classroom. In other words, the school can set an example by treating the student as an individual, neither underestimating nor overestimating his individual abilities.

FOR WHAT THEY ARE

"One of the problems in the past," Mr. Auger said, "has been that elementary schools have tried to make boys and girls more mature than they are. You should take children for what they are, six-years-old, not 10 or 11."

"On the other hand, we have a tendency to underestimate the ability of some young boys and girls. Project work in areas of science, social studies and creativity will often produce unbelievable accomplishments on the part of students who in other areas are considered average."

What it all boils down to is considering the whole child when outlining an educational curriculum. According to Mr. Auger, reading, writing and arithmetic are very necessary but so are art, music and other creative expression. Every personality has different needs and different abilities as all teachers are aware.

With the idea of catering to these needs Mr. Auger, has several suggestions. Some of these developed during his four years as principal of the International School in Belgium.

"I was very impressed with the United Kingdom system," Mr. Auger said. "I was impressed with the teaching method in the classroom situation and their ability to make use of instructional material in the classroom situation. Outdoor education is a fundamental part of the English system."

"DISLIKES 'WING-CLIPPING'"
Mr. Auger advocates an interdisciplinary approach to learning. For one thing, he feels the teacher should not have to be governed by the time factor, forced to change the subject according to the clock — "clipping the wings" of any interest which the pupils may have in the subject at the time. It does not mean, however, that the child learns only whatever he or she feels inclined to learn.

"Children have to be exposed to all types of learning, including the key subjects like writing and reading. You have to expose him to basic skills in order to give him the opportunity of reaching his potential," Mr. Auger said. "The child is a child. You can't simply allow him to do what he pleases. He can, however, be exposed to areas without being imposed upon. Teaching methods can be used to gain his attention."

These teaching methods involve the creative use of materials and environments, as well as such techniques as the discovery method, which postulates the teacher acting as a guide, looking on while the child learns by going through the process himself.

Another approach which Mr. Auger considers important is the individualized program.

"Each student, regardless of what class or school is an individual. Teachers above all recognize this fact," Mr. Auger said. "There are many different growth patterns, for mathematics or reading. Classroom teaching approaches should be geared to developing each child to the maximum of his ability."

"In a class of 30 students, it would, of course be impossible to set up an individual program for every student," he continued. "But with grouping or proper instructional materials, such as audio-visual aids, programs could be set up that would closely approximate each individual's needs and abilities."

EVALUATION ESSENTIAL

"Of course, in an individual program follow-up and evaluation become essential. Evaluation, as far as the pupil's performance, should be an on-going process. An academic profile should reflect everything the student does in the school day — anecdotal reporting as it were. Formal evaluation, as the only means — such as report cards — I would consider unacceptable."

Mr. Auger's concern for the individual, however, includes more than the students. The "key person" in school organization, he feels, is the individual teacher within the classroom. The director general pointed out that no educational idea should be imposed on a teacher who is unprepared. No idea should be developed to any extent without consultation with teacher and principal.

"Change is not necessarily a good thing," Mr. Auger explained. A school should take what is tried and true if it is a successful teaching and organization method.

"Innovations should only be tested when teaching personnel have been prepared to accept the change, and pedagogically prepared to teach or innovate in the classroom."

HEAVY RESPONSIBILITY

"It is an incredible responsibility to cater to the needs of so many individuals. A teacher cannot be expected to take it on without proper aids and training."

"Perhaps with in-service learning, professional development courses and parental involvement at teaching level, we'll be able to do something progressive."

Finally, what form the educational organization will take in the years ahead will depend, as far as Mr. Auger is concerned, not only on his individual views, and the individual views of students and teachers and administrators, but also on the individual nature of each school included in the Lennoxville School Board.

"I intend to visit all the schools often," Mr. Auger said. "I respect the individuality of each school within the system. I would like to become personally involved with the plans and progress of each one, as different as those plans may be from one school to the next."

Rural posties militant

OTTAWA (CP) — The devoted and unassuming rural postmaster, who as the sole federal representative in many communities provided services beyond the call of duty to neighbors, is becoming more militant.

This is the message the leaders of the 8,000-member Canadian Postmasters' Association hope to bring home to the federal treasury board as they begin negotiations this week for a new working contract. The old one expires Sept. 30.

For the first time since collective bargaining was introduced into the public service in 1967, the union has opted for the conciliation-strike route instead of voluntary binding arbitration.

Under federal law, public service unions can choose either arbitration or conciliation and the right to strike in their attempts to reach contractors.

The change of heart among rural and small town postmasters was brought home earlier this year when 85 per cent of the membership voted for the conciliation route. Union President D.A. Blackie says the members were tired of seeing the wages of other postal workers draw away from their own pay levels.

NEVER ON STRIKE

The 28,000 members of the Council of Postal Unions, who are at present also bargaining with the government, have twice used the strike — in 1968 and 1970 — as a weapon to force government to accept wages and working conditions more favorable to their members.

But the Canadian Postmasters' Association, which is more than 60 years older than the council, has never gone on strike. Although they do not like the idea of a strike, the leadership, taking their cue from demands from previously docile members, plan to follow a harder line in this round of negotiations.

The association members — more than half of whom are women — work in 6,000 post offices across Canada in communities ranging in population from 100 to 5,000, and some unincorporated areas. About 4,000 of the offices have one employee only.

Wages paid depend upon length of service, volume of mail handled, and on community size. Postmasters classified in 12 "groups" work without assistants and are paid between $1,000 to $5,000, while those in six "grades" — who work in larger offices with assistants — receive between $6,200 and $9,093, after three years service.

While those in the groups should not provide more than 40 hours service a week according to the collective agreement — and "when feasible" the tour of duty should be performed within 10 hours — the realities of rural living often make work within a set schedule impractical.

CAPTIVE TO TIME

In many areas of Canada, such as the Peace River district in Alberta where Mr. Blackie is from, people drive 40 to 50 miles to pick up mail. Then the postmaster has to open the office no matter what the time.

"The government doesn't realize the captive time a postmaster has to put in," one union official said.

received for the latest two charter flights.

A spokesman for the travel service, however, blamed the incident on Balair, which he said had been offered payment. He refused to say if full payment had been offered.

He also said the passengers had paid an organization or organizations in Europe, and not Interservice Europa, for tickets.

In Paris Thursday, about 150 Canadian tourists, many almost penniless, were in their second day of a sit-in at the travel service's offices there. They were demanding flights home.

The Canadian transport commission announced Thursday it is attempting to arrange return flights for charter air passengers stranded in Europe because of a dispute between the Swiss charter airline Balair and a Montreal based charter agency.

A spokesman for the commission said that efforts are being made to restore the original charter arrangements or find other return transportation.

Travellers protest snarl

MONTREAL (CP) — About 100 stranded travellers camped Thursday outside the local offices of International Europa, a travel service, protesting a charter-flight snarl that has stranded more than 500 persons here and more in Europe.

The local protesters were among 257 members of the Association of European Families scheduled to leave Wednesday night for Geneva and 251 members of the Canada Club Yverdon who had expected to go to Zurich Thursday.

They claim they made their bookings through the travel service, or its associates, who were to arrange two charter flights through Balair, a Swiss based company.

Otto Gersback, managing director of the airline, said Thursday in an interview that he went to the travel service offices Tuesday night and seized tickets for the charter flights 24 hours before the first of them was to leave.

He said that, although the airline had dealt with the travel service in the past without problems, no payment was

Montreal convict caught

MONTREAL (CP) — Police Thursday night captured Michel Lafleur, 23, and Andre Ouellette, 33, two of the six convicts who escaped Monday from the special correctional unit of St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary.

Lafleur and Ouellette surrendered to detectives of the criminal investigation bureau of the Montreal police department without resistance after being spotted in a red station wagon in the east end of the city.

Lafleur and Ouellette surrendered to detectives of the criminal investigation bureau of the Montreal police department without resistance after being spotted in a red station wagon in the east end of the city.

Lafleur and Ouellette were two of the "political prisoners" whose release was demanded by the kidnapers of the late Quebec labor minister Pierre Laporte and British Trade Commissioner James Cross in October, 1970.

Police said the station wagon was spotted shortly before 9 p.m. by a team of detectives patrolling the streets for the men.

One of the detectives recognized Ouellette at the wheel and radioed for six other police cars in the area.

The two convicts and two female companions were turned over to provincial police force officers early today.

One of the six who escaped was recaptured within hours of the jailbreak Monday.

Still at large are Jean-Paul Mercier, 28, Robert Imbeault, 23, and Jacques Mesrine, 35.

'An eye for an eye' justified

Dear Ann Landers: I am writing in the hope you will correct an impression which you inadvertently gave your readers regarding Judaism. You said in a column recently, "I have never believed in the Biblical line, 'An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth.' If everyone practiced this philosophy we would eventually have a world of blind and toothless people."

It is regrettable that this quote is widely misunderstood by a great many people. Jews included.

"An eye for an eye" literally means that the punishment must never exceed the crime. This piece of legislation was revolutionary in a time when cruel and inhuman punishment was inflicted upon people who perpetrated minor offenses. Even in enlightened England, when a man stole a loaf of bread he was thrown in jail where he often languished until death.

So you see, Ann, this precept is actually a relatively compassionate piece of legislation, thousands of years ahead of its time. Thank you for setting the record straight — Dr. Jerome Kestenberg (Norfolk)

Dear Dr. Kestenberg: I appreciate your interpretation of that frequently quoted Biblical line. Thank you for educating me.

Dear Ann Landers: Yesterday afternoon at about 2:00 p.m. company arrived — unexpected and unannounced. My husband was lying down trying to take a nap. I was in the kitchen preparing food for 18 people who were invited for the next day.

These drop-in guests showed no embarrassment at inconveniencing us. What burned me up more than anything was that my husband offered them the food I had prepared for the next day's company. They made hogs of themselves and practically wiped me out. After they left I had to clean up the mess and start cooking and baking again. I was in the kitchen until 11:00 p.m.

Now my husband isn't speaking to me. He says I humiliated him because I wasn't charming and hospitable. I'd like your comments. — Miffed With Milton In Montana

Dear Miffed: Husbands should keep their noses out of the kitchen unless they are doing the cooking and baking. Milton had no right to offer the food you had prepared for the following day.

When people drop in unexpectedly, the helpless victims (surprised hosts) have no obligation to lay on a feed — or anything else.

Dear Ann Landers: A few years ago my husband and I became friendly with a couple who seemed interesting and fun to be with. We saw a good deal of them, had a few trips together and became quite close. When they bought a house two blocks from us we were not very happy.

To put it candidly, by that time we were sick of them. They wanted to be in on everything we did, even family affairs where they were out of place. We tried to cool the relationship but they wouldn't take the hint. They began to show up at odd hours of the day and night. Now we know they are crazy.

We refused to answer the door last night when they came over. They knocked on the windows and harassed us for one solid hour. Then the phone started to ring. We did not answer and they kept us up calling until 2:00 a.m.

What can we do? — Targets
 Dear Targets: A frank talk is in order. Tell them you want to be left alone for a while. Be friendly but firm. If they continue to harass you, have an attorney write them a letter saying you don't want to make their persistence a legal matter but if driven to it, you will do so.

Sherbrooke Fair winner tells how it's done

By FRANCES WESTLEY
LENNOXVILLE — The rain this summer has been as bad for the flowers as it has for the crops, says Norman Beach of Lennoxville.

One would never know it looking at the Beachs' garden, or at the list of winners at the Sherbrooke Exposition Floriculture show. Mr. Beach and his wife placed in 14 of the 42 classes at the fair this year, coming first in five of those classes.

"What's the secret? Well, for one thing there's no teacher like experience, and Mr. Beach has been a gardener for a good many years. He was born in the Eastern Townships and grew up on 'the second oldest farm' in Cowansville.

"My mother loved to garden," Mr. Beach explained. "and I guess you might say I followed in her footsteps. I graduated from Macdonald College in Montreal and took over the Agriculture Office in Lennoxville as county agriculturalist, in 1932, but it wasn't until 1944 when I built my home here that I had flowers."

MAKE THE MOST
The Beachs do not have a huge amount of land around their home on Lorne Street in Lennoxville but they make the most of what they've got. In front of the house a rock garden — a cascade of color — covers the bank by the door. Behind the house is a vegetable garden and another large flower garden, with flowers of every color. Mr. Beach admits that location is an important factor in successful gardening. Nevertheless good soil is not just a matter of chance.

"Any soil will grow flowers if you make it," Mr. Beach said. "We made all our soil. You have to put humus in it, and proper fertilizer. I use a fertilizer with a high nitrogen content."

"I've also learned over the years that the time of planting is extremely important. Some flowers, such as pansies have to be started the year ahead." To illustrate his point, wooden boxes with tiny sprouts were lined up in the rock garden outside. These were next year's plants which, Mr. Beach explained, would be transplanted to the soil before fall and weather the winter outside. In order for the flowers to be in perfect bloom by fair time next summer, they need a head start. "I have to plant now in order to meet the classes at the exposition," Mr. Beach said. "I take the fair prize list and try to plant some of every class. We have practically every type of flower growing in our garden."

SHAPE, COLOR, NUMBER
"You can tell a prize flower by the shape, the color and the number of petals," Mr. Beach added, leaning forward to the vase of roses on the table before him. The flowers, pink, white, red and yellow had just been cut and filled the room with their fragrance. He took a particularly beautiful rose in his hand and squeezed it gently. "A lot depends on the firmness of a rose," he continued. "Some roses collapse when you squeeze them. A prize rose with enough petals is very firm. "When you enter a flower in a competition, you try to cut it as soon before the judging time as possible," he continued. "The morning and the evening are the best times to pick flowers because those are the times they contain the most moisture. Then you keep it in water in a cool place until it's time to take it to the fair."

Over the years Mr. Beach has read a great deal about gardening starting back in his Macdonald College days. He considers the knowledge he gained through study to be as important as practical experience. "When I was at Macdonald I took a wonderful course in horticulture with professor Walker. I guess you might say that I had some chances other people didn't have. But there are a lot of good books on the subject. We have quite a library."

Mr. Beach left the room and returned with an armful of books, including one called the Amateurs Gardeners Handbook which he called his "bible." "To be successful at anything," he said, "you have to study. You've got to read to do it. You can't do it alone."

GREEN THUMB?
But is gardening all a question of technique? What about the legendary Green Thumb that some people are supposed to be born with?

"There's no question that some people can grow flowers better than others," Mr. Beach smiled. "A lot does depend on an attitude towards plants which I suppose might have something to do with personality. For instance, some people fuss with them all the time and that isn't good.

"On the other hand you have to really like flowers, you have to take care of them and keep them free from weeds. You need interest."

Mr. Beach spends about an hour a day in his garden usually in the morning. Since he retired in 1969 gardening has been his major hobby.

"I like to see what I can produce. I like to get up in the morning and breathe the morning air. I'm an early bird," he laughed. "I think it's good for the flowers to get out and talk to them," he added.

Olson addresses Border farmers

By IVY HATCH
STANSTEAD — The Hon. Horace, "Bud" Olson, minister of agriculture, and Hon. Jean Luc Pepin, minister of industry, trade and commerce, both of the Federal Government, were speakers at an assembly of farmers and businessmen from the Boundary vicinity on Wednesday evening at the Sacred Heart school auditorium in Stanstead.

Mr. Olson spoke in English and this was translated and repeated in French by Mr. Pepin. Mr. Olson said this is his third official visit to the Eastern Townships and that the federal and provincial governments are aware of the adverse conditions in farming in sections of Quebec and Ontario due to the inclement weather.

He pointed out that dairy industry and marketing across Canada is better now than it has been for the past 20 or more years. He said a program is planned to assist those farmers hit by the weather. The program will not restore the farmers loss but no one will go out of business because of lack of feed and credit.

He outlined the type, manner and instruction in co-operation with the governments of Quebec and Ontario to be able to give assistance to the farmers.

He said this is not the first time in Canadian history such adversity has occurred and "we firmly believe it is the responsibility of the federal government to help regions having trouble."

He said that within a day or two a definite announcement will be made. The governments know there is a severe shortage of livestock feed and "we are prepared to make sure there is enough feed." This will include

Monday meeting

LENNOXVILLE (FW) — A special meeting of the Lennoxville Elementary School Board will be held in the Lennoxville Elementary School at 7:30 p.m. Monday.

Matters to be discussed on the agenda include problems left unresolved at the last School Board meeting last August 14.

The matter of the name of the board, whether it remains as present, the Lennoxville Elementary Sector Board, or be changed must be discussed and resolved at this meeting. On August 14, Robert Simonic, secretary-treasurer of the board informed the other Board members that they had the right to change the name. The question arose as to whether the current name was representative, considering the number of municipalities now grouped under the Lennoxville Board. Recommendations as to the new name, if any, will be presented Monday night.

Another item to be considered is the location of the future Board offices. Two possible locations are being investigated, a section of the Lennoxville Elementary School and an empty school building in North Hatley. Extensive renovations will be needed should either location be chosen, and the Board must begin the move before the first of September. A public notice will soon be printed announcing the closure of the existing Board offices and the movement of personnel to the new location.

Several other items carried over from the agenda of the last regular meeting are to be resolved Monday night. A decision must be reached concerning Board policy on the rental of the school facilities after school hours by private individuals or community groups. As well, the policy and organization of the public relations committee which the Board is setting up to facilitate communications between Board members and the public will be discussed.

In addition the question of inadmissible expenses incurred by parents who have agreed to transport pupils to schools will be examined.

and substitutes for sufficient feed until the next season," he said.

"We can move in hay and fodder from other places not afflicted, a long way, to have food in the disaster areas. Hay is high in price," he said, adding, "I can't remember when prices were not so good." It seems an injustice, he continued, to have a ceiling imposed or to shut off exports to the United States. "To my mind this is not the solution."

"We have the largest export of grains in Canadian history. There is a large supply of roughage. Using this and changes in rations forage, hay and substitutes will be available. The major costs are transportation and localities. Barley and some oats will supply the 400,000 tons required to disaster areas.

Mr. Olson pointed out there is a strengthening of grain exports but this is no disadvantage so farmers will have a share for stock.

Boy badly burnt

SHERBROOKE (WM) — Five-year-old Stephen Foisy of 158 Lajoie Street in Sherbrooke, was severely burnt yesterday when his clothes caught fire after he and two other friends had been playing with a box of matches.

The fire department and ambulance were called and the little boy was taken to the Hotel Dieu Hospital where he was treated for third degree burns on his hands, legs and body. His mother said yesterday she did not know how long he would have to stay in hospital.

Stephen and two friends were playing behind a golf club and somehow got hold of a box of matches. The two other children were unhurt.

Opinion from the French press

This is a selection of editorials on current topics, translated from the French-language press of Canada.

Montreal La Presse: Far be it from me to think of placing Jean Gerin-Lajoie in opposition to other Quebec union leaders. But one must note that the "moral report" he made to his union's 35,000 members last week is much better reading than the simplifications and emotional slogans we have become accustomed to hearing for the last two years and which have only served to divide workers.

With the publication of the report of the Quebec director of the United Steelworkers of America, the union movement has stopped giving us its opinions with tragic cries...

The author, also a vice-president of the Quebec Federation of Labor, doesn't hail his fellow union leaders with booming statements and backslaps. He tries to take a lucid look at what is happening in neighboring organizations, hoping naively that their mistakes will not be repeated by the QFL and that "the debate will stay calm and moderate."

If the director of the steelworkers speaks of the "ideological muddle" arising from the last Confederation of National Trade Unions convention, he also deplors in the same breath the creation of the breakaway Centrale des Syndicats Democratiques, "a schism which adds yet another division to the Quebec labor movement and for the moment renders illusory the dream of labor movement unity in Quebec."

Despite the "sympathy and solidarity" he shows toward the other two major union groups, the steelworkers director does not appreciate "the dogmatism and moralism" of the CNTU nor certain publications of the Quebec Teachers Corporation accusing the state of being "at the service of the dominant class."

The union movement must rejoin the 70 per cent of the Quebec labor force that is not unionized if it is not to condemn itself to being only another political lobby protecting particular interests. Mr. Gerin-Lajoie says... in fresh reflections on old questions...

Mr. Gerin-Lajoie does not believe in "superficial and incompetent moralism" which would reject traditional methods collective agreements and legal strikes as bourgeois. His reply is: Let us force the state, by concrete action, to modify labor laws that prevent us from joining non-unionized workers...

With this report... Mr. Gerin-Lajoie describes society as it is, not as he would like it to be... One can agree or disagree with his remarks; but that is not the point. The union movement has changed its language—Claude Gravel (Aug. 21)

Montreal Le Devoir: Two months before the American election, the strategies of the two candidates remain mysterious...

Mr. Nixon lets fly a thousand and one statements that raise and support a thousand interpretations... That is the case when he appears thoughtful on television and at the same time places mines in the harbors of North Vietnam... He upholds American hopes of an honorable and negotiated settlement by sending his favorite sophist, Henry Kissinger, to Paris... While Kissinger attracts attention to himself pumping up the hope balloon in Paris, nothing prevents Mr. Nixon from brandishing a club at North Vietnam...

The Republican paradox arises from an ambiguity clearly deliberate and sustained. It is at once the cause and result of the constant wavering of American opinion during these times. People hate the war but fear a peace that would lead to savage deflation. People want America to get out of Vietnam but preferably after bringing the enemy to its knees.

Senator McGovern is subject to less controlled or profitable paradoxes... He achieved the Democratic candidacy by counting with missionary zeal on the best instincts of the young, the ethnic minorities and the underprivileged. Fate stepped in... Having stuck to his principles of confidence and tolerance, he ended up choosing a running mate who obviously did not practise the same candor.

Senator McGovern's major problem is to quit his role as informed, voluble and sterile critic to become a real and positive possibility for president.

At the highest level of power the AFL-CIO would fear a government such as McGovern's slowing down military production without stimulating production in other areas. Senator McGovern's major paradox is not being able to count on those who would normally be the primary foes of power in a fight against the Nixon regime... He must stop crying over spilled milk and offer new contents... A great many people who talk about bringing down a regime are suddenly seized with panic when they come within a hair's breadth of success... People do not vote for a critic.

The Nixon regime may seem gettable but the electorate knows its dimensions. McGovern talks about bringing the sky to earth but one does not know if this sky contains factories—Laurent Laplante (Aug. 19)

Ottawa Le Droit: The Dasken affair has just passed the final step, one which logically should have been its first. The referendum has ended all possibility of ambiguity as far as the wishes of those affected by the situation are concerned. Of 336 persons eligible to vote, 253 exercised their right and of these 176 decided against the proposed modification of the zoning regulation to allow construction of highrise buildings on the St. Francois St. site. No decision could be more conclusive.

We asked for this referendum ages ago, well before the flood of vitriolic words between concerned parties, before the costly confrontations in court and before the famous Supreme Court decision ruling the Dasken buildings illegal and permitting their demolition. What tribulation could have been avoided on both sides if the referendum had taken place before these other events.

One can believe that the question now has been settled... certainly not to the satisfaction of everyone but the result eloquently expresses the will of the majority now, and in a democracy the voice of the majority speaks for all.—Louis Rocque (Aug. 17)

Granby La Voix de l'Est: One can well ask if assistance to Eastern Townships farmers will really be sufficient.

The government has offered $3 million to those farmers whose production was affected by the recent downpours and the general bad weather this summer.

Half this sum will take the form of subsidies to market gardeners while the rest will cover interest on government-guaranteed loans which farmers can obtain at banks and credit unions.

In the latter case, it is a question of farmers not covered by the crop insurance plan... and this benefits some 10 per cent of the stricken producers.

Agriculture Minister Normand Toupin says he recognizes that $3 million is far less than the total loss which is "difficult to estimate exactly" and promises to meet the federal agriculture department which has already promised to help farmers in a tight situation. Will the federal assistance be more encouraging? Perhaps.

What is inadmissible, however, is that no one seems to see the necessity of more appropriate aid to farmers whose products are irreplaceable... For one reason or another, the provincial government does not seem to recognize the seriousness of the situation.—Roland Gagne (Aug. 18)

Economic boggles help

President Nixon's aides count on the unfortunate results of Leonid Brezhnev's latest economic experiments to push the Soviet Union into greater accommodation with the United States these next five years.

If these current boggles become increasingly serious, and Nixon's experts predict they will, Brezhnev's economic problems could be a strong force for an effective follow-on agreement covering all major strategic arms and hopefully calling for cutbacks as well as ceilings.

Brezhnev's immediate problems began as the result of a decision he made about two years ago, in part to solidify his position as first secretary through increasing party control over the economy and in part to remedy the growing productivity problems that plague Soviet industry, agriculture and mining.

The Communist party has always been supreme in overall economic direction — setting quotas, prices and priorities. This has been bad enough for economic efficiency. Brezhnev has gone a step further, given the party committees in each local factory strong direct say in day-to-day operations.

The word now coming out of the Soviet Union is that this shift is not working well. Factory managers complain their authority is being undermined. They strenuously object to party interference in the selection of foremen, superintendents and department heads, in work assignments and in training methods. Party workers in each plant find themselves required to police their superiors on technical matters outside their competence. Party interference, even when it succeeds in forcing an inefficient manager to resign or to change his methods, has had unsettling effects among the workers. Professional relationships have been destroyed. Production is suffering. Each side blames the other.

Despite all this, local party committees are reported working on ways to intensify their supervision.

Nixon's economic analysts see a basic unsolvable conflict here. They are certain that these difficulties will deepen and that increasing party interference in the details of local factory production will lead to greater inefficiencies, regardless of what brilliant technological break-throughs Soviet scientists achieve.

This will make the Russians increasingly conscious of their arms burden and, if analysis here is correct of their need for U.S. management and development skills.

Growing dependence on the United States should make the Soviet Union more cooperative if U.S. negotiators are hard nosed, the theory here runs. But the Soviet representatives are going to be tough bargainers, whether talking about arms, economics or political settlements in such places as the Middle East and Asia.

The theory here is that the growing Soviet economic problems will not make Russian diplomats easier to negotiate with. Talks that should take two years may take five.

But the Soviet difficulties may make agreements more likely in the end, if we argue from military and political strength as well as economic.

A plumber for President

Matter of fact
with Joseph Alsop

MIAMI BEACH — At this historically dull convention, they love Richard M. Nixon. They love the Republican Party. They love one another. But if you talk to the more hardheaded Republican state leaders, they will tell you that love is not going to provide the majority they expect in November.

This year, seemingly, the voters are going to choose their President the way any sensible man chooses a plumbing fixture. You do not expect to love, or even like a plumbing fixture. The test is not whether a plumbing fixture is charming. The main test of a plumbing fixture is whether it flushes.

A plumbing-fixture President is something new in American politics. If you run over in your mind all the Presidents of the 20th century, you cannot think of one who got a majority without the sustaining drive of wide personal enthusiasm in the electorate. The century's major Presidents — and also its very worst, Warren G. Harding — have been beloved Presidents.

Not so with Richard M. Nixon! The pollsters are finding, currently, that the presidential image has greatly improved in recent months at the grass-roots level. But the Republican professionals admit that this image improvement is mainly a reaction.

In other words, this year's most important voters — the ones who appear to be defecting from the Democratic Party in droves — have taken a good, hard, skeptical look at Sen. George McGovern, his backers and what they stand for. So far, they have heartily disliked what they have seen.

So they have taken another look at President Nixon. They have said to themselves, "Well, Nixon's done a pretty good job after all." On this argument, of the plumbing fixture that flushes reliably, they have therefore begun to decide that the President is really not such a bad guy.

This is first of all an astonishing testimonial to the President's will power, purposefulness and gift for cool calculation. By these qualities, he has overcome handicaps that would have sunk any lesser man.

He was, to begin with, elected in 1968 as a minority President, mainly with the aid of the very people who hate him most today. No one should forget that the vengefulness of the left-wing Democrats, after Chicago, was all that stood between Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey and a comfortable victory four years ago. Today's McGovernites were yesterday's true electors of Richard Nixon.

As if being a minority President were not rough enough, there is also that curious matter of the Oval Office at the White House. It has been used, enjoyed and adapted to personal work habits by every President from Theodore Roosevelt until Richard M. Nixon. Nowadays, however, the Oval Office looks rather like a handsome public room in a luxurious hotel.

It is in fact a public room, too, only used by President Nixon for ceremonial occasions. It is too open. It has windows behind the President's desk. It runs sharply counter to the definite strain of agoraphobia in Richard M. Nixon's character. So the President does all his work in his hideaway office in the Executive Office Building.

For anyone with a real strain of agoraphobia to be a successful politician is a remarkable feat. If you dislike crowds, after all, you are not likely to please crowds. But iron self-discipline and the cool calculation already mentioned have carried President Nixon through.

It is the calculation, in turn, that has raised the President from his former standing as a minority President to his present apparent standing. At every stage throughout the last four years he has out-thought the Democrats by two or three or even four moves in the great game. The results of his Bobby Fischer-like approach to politics can now be seen in the polls.

The approach would never have worked, to be sure, if the President had not worked inordinately hard, too. He has done the very best job he could in the hideously burdensome office he now occupies. He has not only been laborious and careful and astute. When necessary, he has been extremely courageous. The Democrats, meanwhile, have greatly obliged him by doing all sorts of things to alienate former supporters.

These are the reasons so many voters are now saying, not without reason, that "Nixon's done a pretty good job, after all."

No Townships tartan

Dear Sir,

On one or two occasions I have read in The Record an attempt to invent a tartan for the Eastern Townships. Not being an authority on highland lore in the sense of being an expert, I nonetheless believe, knowing enough about the clans of the highlands and a fair amount of highland lore, I am able to write as follows:

By no stretch of the imagination can it be said that the Eastern Townships has any claim to a distinctive tartan. This region is not at present, heaven knows, a place to call a true Scottish area. A bit over a hundred years ago a small part of this district was settled by Highland Scots — Megantic, Milan, Spring Hill, Stornoway, Scotstown, Lingwick, to name a few districts.

But remember, these Scots had their own tartans, which was the kilt pattern of their own clans. These tartans have been in use for centuries, the designs of weave were set by weavers who used the local dyes of vegetation or soil base, and had a soft colour which we cannot match today by chemical processes. The sett, or pattern of the cloth was kept intact by yarn wrapped on a wooden bar in order of squares and colour so that the weaver used this as a guide in making the clan tartan cloth.

This cloth was used for many articles of dress such as coats, vests, kilts and plaids. At times it was used for bonnets and shawls for women, but never was the kilt worn by women. Trews or trousers made of plaid were worn by the Chief of the Clan when riding a horse.

To ask that a new sett be registered by the Lord Lyon King of Arms is to insult the whole clan system. The authentic tartans of the clans belong to them and to Septs of the Clans, and it is beyond our scope to improve or change them.

History is filled with the stories of lesser races who have tried to destroy or to adapt the Highlands garb and, as we well know, with no success.

Now let it be known by one and all, the few Scots who remain in this district have no need of any man or government to grant them a tartan. They have their own clan tartans, steeped in a history of valour and pride, the like of which no other founding races of this area can ever equal.

So, if you must make a parti-coloured cloth, to be sold for ski pants, bath robes or table cloths, do so. But do not try to sell it as the tartan of the Eastern Townships. One has to be born to the tartan to claim any right to it, and so, a good rule is: if you have no right to wear it, don't.

Yours truly,
W.W. Young

MR. AND MRS. J.E. THOMPSON who were married in Saint Paul's Anglican Church, Sherbrooke.

Thompson-Henderson wed

The marriage of Susan Muriel, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Henderson of Sherbrooke, Quebec, to Mr. James Ernest Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Thompson, Senior, of Sherbrooke, took place recently in St. Paul's Anglican Church, Sherbrooke.

Officiating at the double-ring ceremony was Rev. C.S. Brett-Perring of Galt, Ontario. The wedding music was played by Mr. Irving Richards. White gladioli were used to decorate the church.

The bride, given away by her father, was in a white crepe tulle gown, the empire bodice having a high neckline and long sleeves. The bodice, sleeves and hemline were trimmed with lace, also the chapel train. Her finger-tip length veil of tulle illusion was held by a headress made of matching material and lace and she carried a cascade of white carnations, pink sweetheart roses and baby's breath. The bride's jewellery was a gold locket, a gift from the groom.

Mrs. Karen Lehman, as matron of honour, and Mrs. Louise Bushey, Miss Pat Thompson, sister of the groom, as attendants, were in frocks of pink, lavender, and yellow polyester crepe. Their gowns were identical in style, having a scoop neckline, gathered empire waist and leg o'mouton sleeves. They wore crocheted floppy-brimmed hats in corresponding colours to their gowns, and carried colonial bouquets of white daisies and baby's breath with streamers of pink, lavender and yellow.

The hostesses were Mrs. Gary Chamberlain, and Mrs. William Parrish, assisted by others. Guests attended from Montreal, Newport, Derby, Magog, Granitville, and Boundary Villages.

As gifts of blankets, china, linens, and electrical as well as many other beautiful items for the new home in Rock Island, were unwrapped, they were circulated and viewed by over 75 relatives and friends attending.

The gifts were picturesquely arranged on a table having a shower cover. Gifts were also arranged on the floor in front of the table under colorful inflated balloons.

Fournier-Beadle exchange vows

DERBY LINE, Vt. — The marriage was solemnized between Janice Anne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Beadle, Derby Line and Mr. Norbert Fournier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Fournier of Derby and Newport, at the Stanstead South church, Rock Island, on Saturday afternoon, August 12 at two o'clock.

Rev. G.W. Stokes officiated for the double ring ceremony. The organ music was played by Mrs. Alice McHarg. The soloist, Mr. Tim Lewis sang, "I Believe" before the entrance of the bride and during the signing of the register, "We've Only Just Begun", by The Carpenters; and "Time for Us" from Romeo and Juliet.

The ceremony took place before a background of evergreen flanked by baskets of white, pink and yellow gladioli. A single rose with pink ribbon reposed on a cushion of cedar evergreen in each window while the guest pews were marked with a single pink rose bud tied with ribbons in colors to match the gladioli.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She was wearing a gown of white sheer over taffeta styled on Victorian lines with a wide ruffle flounce finishing the skirt and having horizontal very miniature braid, long lace sleeves which were puffed from the shoulder to the elbows featured ruffles at the wrists. The high collar was edged with ruffled lace, taffeta buttons accented the front bodice from the collar to the highrise waist. A bandeau of lace daisy medallions held in place her cathedral length train of nylon tulle. She carried a colonial bouquet of pink sweetheart roses, white shastas with white satin ribbons.

Mr. Norm Dube was best man for Mr. Thompson, and Mr. John Wingeat, cousin of the bride, and Mr. Paul Thompson, brother of the groom, were ushers. Mrs. Henderson, the bride's mother, wore a dress of viscose crepe with the matching coat in mint green. She wore a corsage of white miniature carnations with green ribbon and white accessories.

Mrs. Thompson, mother of the groom, chose a blue polyester crepe dress with a sleeveless nylon lace coat. Her accessories were white and she wore a corsage of white miniature carnations with blue ribbon. The reception was held at the Wellington Hotel where white and pink carnations were used as decorations.

Miss Joan Thompson, sister of the groom, was in charge of the guest book. Later Mr. and Mrs. Thompson left for Quebec City, the bride travelling in a multi-coloured plaid jersey frock with white accessories.

Guests attended from Hamilton, Toronto, Brantford, Galt, Preston, Vankleek Hill, Ontario; Aylesford, Nova Scotia; Lawrence, Massachusetts; Hyde Park, Vermont; Lachine, Pointe Claire, North Hatley, Lennoxville and Sherbrooke, Quebec.

Miss Mary Lou Huckins, as maid of honor, was in a gown of aqua blue voile having all over flocking in pink and white floral design over taffeta. The skirt featured a wide flounce at the hemline, the long sleeves terminated with ruffles, and the bodice had a scoop neckline. A pink satin ribbon sash was worn at the highrise waist.

The bridesmaids, Mrs. Keith Beadle, sister-in-law of the bride, and Miss Debra Flint, wore gowns identical to the maid of honor but in yellow. They carried nosegays of a single pink sweetheart rose circled with white shastas and pink satin ribbons. Their hair was encircled with garlands of white shastas and baby's breath.

Mr. James Johnson, a cousin of the groom, was groomsman. The ushers were Mr. Keith Beadle, brother of the bride and Mr. Robert Davio, cousin of the groom. The men in the wedding party wore marine blue tuxedo jackets, black trousers and caration boutonnières to match the gowns of the attendants.

Mrs. Beadle, mother of the bride chose a dress of light blue polyester crepe with matching lace trim. Her accessories were in white and she wore a corsage of pink sweetheart roses and white shasta daisies.

The groom's mother, Mrs. Fournier, was in a dress of eggshell white crocheted knit with beige trim. Her accessories were beige and she wore a corsage of yellow sweetheart roses and shastas.

The bride's paternal grandmother, Mrs. George Beadle, at the Patenaude Rest Home in Derby wore a corsage of pink sweetheart roses and shastas, a gift of the bride and groom who after the reception went to visit her and receive her good wishes.

The members of the Canusa Unit catered. The refreshment table with a white linen cover had as a centre an arrangement of white shastas, pink, yellow and white gladioli flanked by triple crystal holders having pink candles. Mrs. Robert Darby poured coffee. Mrs. Roy Davis presided at the punch bowl.

The wedding cake, made and decorated by Mrs. Benoit Blais, was on a table under a white bell, entwined with roses, suspended from the ceiling with the same over the refreshment table. The cake was in white with cascades of pastel-toned flowers, the triple tier on lacy pedestals was topped with a bride and groom "under the tree trunk" white vase containing flowers.

Later, Mr. and Mrs. Fournier left by motor for their honeymoon trip to New Hampshire and Maine. The bride chose for travelling a Hawaiian printed pant ensemble accessorized in brown and wore a corsage of yellow sweetheart roses and shasta daisies. The couple are residing in Derby Line.

The bride tossed her bouquet in the hall; it was caught by Miss Sue Darby Miss Collette Beauchesne was in charge of the guest book. Guests attended from Montreal, Boca Raton and Fort Lauderdale, Florida, Wilmington, Del., Colorado Springs, Colo., Somerville, Mass., Buffalo, N.Y., Bristol, Conn., several points of Vermont and the Boundary Villages.

The bride is a graduate of N.C.U.H.S., and attended Castleton College in Vermont. The groom graduated from Newport High and served four years in the U.S. Airforce. He is presently manager of Kelley's garage in Derby Line.

DERBY LINE — Following the wedding rehearsal of Janice Beadle, and Norbert Fournier on Friday evening, August 11 in Stanstead South church, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Beadle entertained at their home in Derby Line.

The home was decorated with arrangements of summer flowers. A buffet supper was served from a table having a center of summer garden flowers.

The bride and groom presented gifts to their attendants. The party was attended by the bridal party, the immediate families and a few close friends.

MOVE UP IN BUSINESS AND GOVERNMENT

Find out about the new management accounting. It's interesting. It's exciting. It's changed more than you know, into a new profession for a new age, at the centre of the management and accounting action. It's the right place to be, for those men and women who want to earn while they learn to become R.I.A.'s — the management accountants who get ahead in business, industry and government, as professional members of the management team.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB
Time May Cure Problem

She's Flabby After Reducing

Dear Dr. Lamb — I am a 25-year-old mother of two. During each pregnancy I gained a lot of weight and lost very little between pregnancies. In the last 18 months I have lost more than 25 pounds by exercising and dieting. The skin of my abdomen does not seem to be tightening properly. As the amount of fat behind it lessens, the skin is becoming loose and flabby. I am almost afraid to lose another 20 pounds. I don't want to be left with a flap of extra skin hanging from my abdomen. What can I do to tighten the skin and possibly fade the stretch marks somewhat?

You can improve your health a great deal by getting rid of your excess fat and I hope you'll continue your program until you are at your normal weight. If the skin doesn't tighten up in the course of several months, and if it really bugs you a lot, I suppose you could see a surgeon about having the excess skin removed. It would leave a small incision scar which wouldn't need to be particularly visible.

You've lost the weight at the right time of your life. There is a much greater likelihood of the skin returning to normal if people get rid of the excess weight early in life and keep it off rather than waiting until they're much older and their skin is less elastic to take serious measures about weight reduction.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Please tell me how alcohol will affect the liver?

Dear Reader — In large amounts, alcohol is a toxin or poison. It has been demonstrated by microscopic studies that the cells of the heart can be damaged by drinking alcohol. Other cells in the body can also be damaged. Alcohol not only can damage liver cells but it can affect their normal function. Some people who drink lots of alcohol do not eat an adequate diet and particularly a deficiency of vitamin B-1 or thiamine. This further contributes to damage of the actual liver cells.

For years there was a hot debate in medical circles whether the alcohol alone could cause damage to the liver or whether it had to be associated with a thiamine deficiency. It really doesn't make any difference which factor is the most important. The ultimate result of drinking too much for many people is damaged liver cells which are replaced by scar tissue causing a condition called cirrhosis of the liver. In severe degrees eventually liver failure can ensue.

The damaged liver loses its ability to destroy excess amounts of estrogen, the female hormone. Estrogen is normally produced in men as well as women. When excess amounts accumulate because of liver disease men experience a degree of feminization which can affect their sexual capacity. There basically isn't anything good that alcohol has ever been demonstrated to do for the liver, the brain or the heart. The only medical use alcohol has is as a sedative or tranquilizer.

Dear Reader — Give it time and it may shrink. After all your letter indicates that you've stretched it with 45 pounds of extra fat plus the normal stretch caused by two successive pregnancies.

Saturday, August 26
The Day Under Your Sign

ARIES (Born March 21 to April 19): Take a more tolerant attitude toward those who do not see things from your point of view. Both can be right.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Good period for benefiting thru older friends and long term business connections so be extra alert.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Your sympathetic nature brings comfort to one who is feeling a little low because of bad health.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21): Don't be overly aggressive in presenting your views and/or opinions. Don't insist on getting your own way.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): A calculated risk you took some time ago (against others' advice) begins to pay off now.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Avoid bickering. It only makes matters worse in the long run and solves nothing.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): You may have to postpone weekend plans as problem comes up suddenly and you must be in town today.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): You may be puzzled as to just what direction to take, but some new information will help you decide.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Someone important may have his eye on you without your knowledge. Be sure you're at your best "just in case."

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Not a time to force issues. Tact and diplomacy are the two best avenues for getting what you want.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): You feel that you are being taken advantage of but can't get up the nerve to state your complaints.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): A bit of confusion detected early in day, but situation clears up and a happy, productive period follows.

bridge player she should learn how to play card combinations.

Helen thanked him, but didn't bother to explain that her play of the club ace had insured her two club tricks against any and all card combinations. Just look it over carefully.

She was sure of two club tricks against any 3-2 break. How about 3-0? Cinch! Suppose 4-1 with both honors in either hand. A second club lead toward dummy would show the situation.

For the record, young Helen married tournament director Al Sobel shortly thereafter and as Helen Sobel is remembered as the greatest woman bridge player of all time.

Today's hand was played almost 40 years ago at New York's Cavendish Club by a new member named Helen White.

Helen won the spade lead in her own hand and after some thought played her ace of clubs. West's singleton queen dropped and from then on it was an easy matter for Helen to collect a second club trick and win the rubber.

West was one of the Cavendish experts of the day and was rather unhappy about losing the rubber so he proceeded to explain carefully that her play of the club ace had worked but it was still a frightful play and if she wanted to be a good

The Day Under Your Sign

ARIES (Born March 21 to April 19): A happy, sociable weekend. Take children for special treat before start of school year. Let them choose.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): As they say in court, "what you say now could be held against you" at a later date. Be cautious.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Planetary influences call for restraint, especially in monetary matters during week ahead.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21): Because of personal feelings, you may downplay obvious faults of someone you meet at this time.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): You tend to blow hot and cold about idea for the moment. Let it gel for a while, then decide.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Intellectual arguments are fine at times, but in this case, charm will win all the marbles.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): A hard-luck story gets to you even though you promised yourself not to be taken in by this person again.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): You're in the mood to go to an exotic spot, but will settle for a journey a few hours from home just to get away.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Communications accented during coming week. Activate publicity. Answer correspondence. Buy by mail.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Be a little skeptical if involved in arbitration process this week. Competition is strong right now.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): You are ambivalent about something and others involved are impatient while waiting for you to make up your mind.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Don't chastise someone for what appears to be laziness, but what, in fact, may be illness. Show sympathy.

ARIES (Born March 21 to April 19): It's time to get down to business. Analyze situation, if it available data. "Make haste slowly," in other words.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): You find it difficult to get things moving this morning, but the pace quickens once you get organized.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): You have a larger margin for error right now and you'll need it! Check every figure carefully.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21): Don't overlook importance of attending to minute details today. Be alert to hazards on the job.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Be bold (the old lion!) in going after what you want today. Your cleverness will impress the boss.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Social competition accented, but you can hold your own in any kind of group. Don't be too aggressive.

Edmonton chosen as site of '78 Commonwealth Games

By AL McNEIL
MUNICH (CP) — Edmonton was chosen Thursday as the site of the 1978 Commonwealth Games. It will be only the third time in the history of the Games that they have been held in Canada.

In a tense competition that lasted almost until midnight Thursday night, the British Commonwealth Games Federation selected the Alberta capital over Leeds, England, by a vote of 24 to 10.

Canada won 20 gold medals in the inaugural British Empire Games at Hamilton, Ont., a showing yet to be equalled. In the 1954 Games at Vancouver, the Canadian team won nine gold. In the last Games in 1970 at Edinburgh, Scotland, a strong Canadian team won 18 gold. An intense lobbying effort which took Mayor Ivor Dent of Edmonton to many Commonwealth countries helped win the 1978 Games for his city. Edmonton spent $60,000 in promotion expenses. Leeds $40,000.

The Edmonton costs, however, are expected to be recovered by donations from the public and corporations. Several million dollars will be needed to erect sites for the various sports including a main stadium.

"The lobbying done here by my people was fabulous," Mayor Dent said. "I wouldn't want to tackle it again, though, the way I rushed through Africa and the Caribbean polling votes from those areas."

The banning of Rhodesia from the Summer Olympic Games, due to open here Saturday, was a factor in swinging the decision to Edmonton, Mayor Dent said.

Since Rhodesia is not a member of the Commonwealth it could not qualify for the Games. But strong anti-British feeling among black African countries worked against Leeds. Some black Africans say Britain has not taken a tough enough stance against Rhodesia since the white-ruled country broke away from the Commonwealth and proclaimed its independence.

The Leeds delegation leader, Ald. Irwin Bellow, said: "I am pretty sure the Rhodesian problem had a blocking effect on England."

"I am sure Edmonton will do well. And good luck to them. But sports has become so political today. We're all disappointed. There was no comparison of the merits of the presentations. It was obviously a political decision."

"Yes, I think it was a factor," Mayor Dent said of the Rhodesian ban. "It was a factor that was entirely unexpected and didn't help their cause."

But Mayor Dent said he had received assurances from the African delegates earlier this year during visits to key African capitals that they would support Edmonton's bid.

Another factor believed to have influenced the selection was an offer by Air Canada to fly African athletes to Edmonton at charter rates. The Leeds delegation had said that air fares to Alberta would have been prohibitive.

CELEBRATE WIN
Members of the 24-man Edmonton delegation, dressed in bright red blazers, shouted with joy when Sir Alexander Ross of Australia, chairman of the British Commonwealth Games federation, announced the choice of Edmonton. The 1974 Games will be held in Christchurch, N.Z.

"I think it's fantastic," said Ald. David C. Ward of Edmonton. "They are going to see the best Games they have ever seen."

It was 4 p.m. in Edmonton when the announcement was made to the citizens of Edmonton via an open-line telephone hookup placed in the city's Macdonald Hotel and piped to waiting crowds in the street.

Mayor Jean Drapeau of Montreal, whose city will be host to the 1976 Olympics, congratulated the Edmonton delegation and said over the hookup: "I have no doubt the Games will be a big success in Edmonton."

HELP FROM DRAPEAU
Mayor Dent said Mayor Drapeau was "a big help" in helping Edmonton make its successful bid.

Horst Schmid, Alberta's minister of youth, culture and recreation, said the provincial government will support Edmonton with all resources of all its departments toward a successful venture.

Schmid was a member of the Edmonton delegation, headed by Mayor Dent and including nine aldermen. They were accompanied by federal Health Minister John Munro and Col. John Davies of Montreal, head of the British Commonwealth Games Association of Canada.

To accommodate the Games, Edmonton city fathers plan an open-air stadium with 15,000 permanent and 25,000 temporary seats, a cycling track and an Olympic-size swimming pool.

The stadium, which probably will be built on the University of Alberta campus, is expected to cost at least $3.5 million. No cost was available for the cycling track, which is expected to be portable, or for the swimming pool, which has been taken on by the Kinsmen Service Club as a public service project to be turned into a community pool after the games.

The university's Lister Hall about 2,000 athletes and there are training, medical and recreational facilities already available. The Edmonton delegation said in its presentation which included a color film that cost $17,000.

Each side was allowed 30 minutes to make its presentation to the federation.

The Edmonton delegation proposed that the Games should be held from July 20 to 29. It is expected Edmonton will stage nine sports: track and field, swimming, boxing, wrestling, weightlifting, badminton, cycling, shooting and lawn bowling.

Big Red hockey machine?

TORONTO (CP) — Cincinnati was scheduled for Thursday it would be included in the next National Hockey League expansion.

A group from Cincinnati, headed by William DeWitt Jr. and Brian Heeking, needed assurances from the NHL governors meeting here before the city would begin construction on a new 19,000-seat arena.

Date for the next expansion is not yet known, but the league is aiming for 24 teams by 1980.

NHL president Clarence Campbell said the Kansas City franchise entering the league in 1974 — Washington is another expansion club for that year — had until Oct. 1 to meet certain obligations.

Pressed as to whether Cincinnati would get the Kansas City franchise if that city fails to meet its obligations, Campbell replied: "We are not contemplating a Kansas City default."

Scheduling for the 1972-73 season had been delayed by the decision of NBC television to show two games on Friday evenings during prime time. The dates were Dec. 29 and March 23 but "we have no suitable attraction either night," he said the schedule will be adjusted.

SUIT DISCUSSED
Campbell said the governors also discussed two anti-trust suits lodged by lawyer Neil Shayne, former franchise holder of New York Raiders of the rival World Hockey Association, and the WHA's Philadelphia Blazers.

"The other concern, the U.S. Justice Department investigation of the league and professional hockey, is at the point at which they seem to have completed their submission. ... Now all we can do is wait."

Also heard was a bid for an NHL franchise from Seattle Terms of the Western Hockey League.

Bench blasts Expos

Associated Press Sports Writer
Look out, Joe Torre your switch from catcher to third baseman may be catching on.

Torre, who blossomed into a full-fledged star when he gave up his chest protector and shin guards, may have given Johnny Bench, already a star, some ideas. Cincinnati's slugging receiver showed up at third base for the Reds Thursday and tagged his 29th homer of the year in a 6-0 victory over Montreal Expos.

That was the only game played in the National League Thursday.

In the American League, Texas Rangers split a double-header with Milwaukee Brewers, winning the first game 4-1 but dropping the nightcap 4-3.

"It's tough to catch every-day," said Bench.

Several inducted into Hall

TORONTO (CP) — Women broke into another traditional male bastion Thursday night and it was none too soon for Gordie Howe.

The great right winger of 25 years with Detroit Red Wings, who retired before the 1971-72 season, was inducted into the Hockey Hall of Fame, his wife, Colleen, and family beside him near the head table.

The usual minimum five-year waiting period that normally follows an active player's retirement from the National Hockey League before he becomes eligible for the Hall of Fame was waived this year in the cases of both Howe and centre Jean Beliveau of Montreal Canadiens.

But for Beliveau, who was in Munich for the Summer Olympics and will visit Moscow for the Team Canada-Russia hockey series, his formal induction was held in abeyance until next year.

Howe, however, considered the occasion all that more important because his wife, sons Marty, Mark and Murray and daughter, Kathy, were able to attend.

Since the Hall of Fame dinners have been held, it has been an all-male gathering of hockey luminaries, writers and radio and television broadcasters.

SAYS IT HONESTLY
"At 5 per cent of these occasions, I can honestly say that I have been deeply honored but felt deep down that I would feel that much more so if Colleen had been among you."

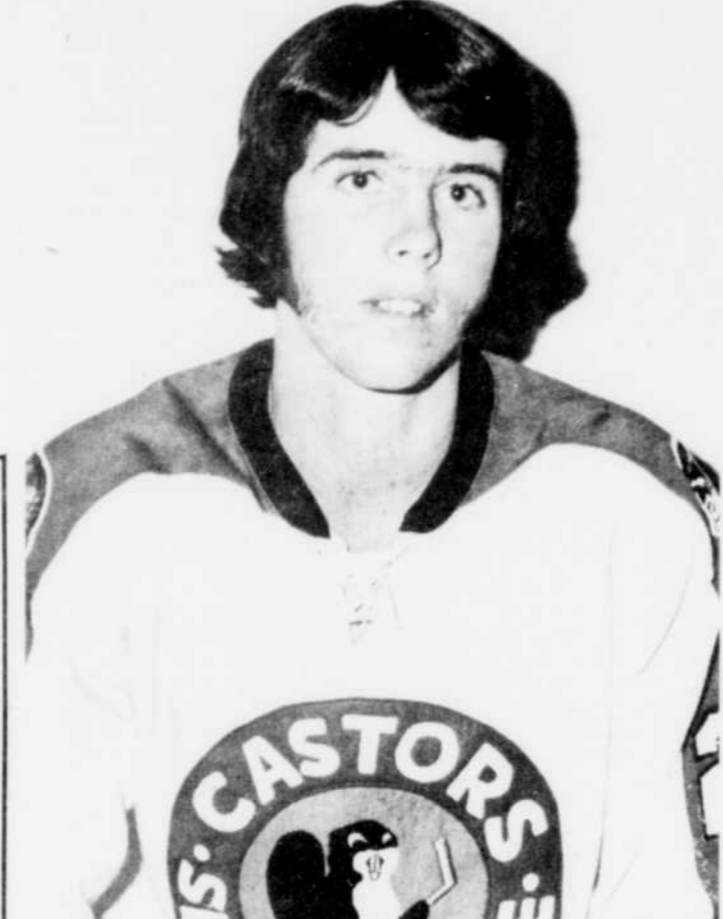

"Tonight, I can honestly say it and mean it."

Inducted into the Hockey Hall of Fame along with Howe and Beliveau were former players Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion, Reginald (Hooley) Smith and

Olympic torch glows tonight

MUNICH (CP-AP) — Bavaria's festive capital welcomes the Olympic torch tonight as a relay runner from Greece jogs into historic Koenigsplatz where Adolf Hitler plotted his course to infamy.

The 20th Olympic Games, a $1-billion undertaking of contemporary West Germany, became a reality Saturday with athletes of at least 122 countries marching into the 80,000-seat Olympia Stadium.

On the eve of the opening ceremony the Olympic torch, ferried by hundreds of runners from Olympia, Greece, will reach Munich to be received by Olympic officials and a likely international ovation from tourists and sports fans gathered in Koenigsplatz.

That monumental central square of neoclassic architecture was the site of the Brown House which served as Nazi party headquarters at the time of Hitler's rise to power in 1933. It was destroyed by Allied wartime bombing raids.

SCENE OF PACT
It also was the scene of the signing of the Munich pact, the ill-fated peace agreement between dictator Benito Mussolini of Italy.

'Cats top Als

By GLENN COLE
MONTREAL (CP) — Dave Clarke ran the opening kickoff 102 yards for a touchdown and Hamilton Tiger-Cats went on to defeat Montreal Alouettes 25-12 in an Eastern Football Conference game Thursday night.

The crowd of 18,288 was just settling down when Clarke, a recruit from University of Western Ontario, took the ball on his eight and scampered down the right sideline.

George Wells and Ed Chalupka threw key blocks for Clarke with Chalupka blocking out Don Sweet to eliminate the last possible Alouette tackler.

Garney Henley, on a 42-yard pass from quarterback Chuck Ealey and Tony Gabriel, on a fumble recovered, scored the other Hamilton touchdowns while Ian Sunter kicked a field goal, three converts and a single to complete the scoring.

Sweet kicked a pair of first half field goals and Peter Dalla Riva scored a fourth quarter touchdown to account for Montreal's offensive.

The win for the Tiger-Cats, which avenged a 25-23 loss to Montreal last weekend, was their second in four decision and moved them into a second place tie with the Alouettes, who are also 2-2. Ottawa Rough Riders lead the EFC with six points while Toronto Argonauts have none.

Hunter shoot set

SAND HILL (NN) — The Sand Hill Rifle Club will be holding a Hunter shoot at the Sand Hill range Sunday, August 27.

The shoot will commence at 10 a.m. rain or shine. This shoot is designed to give hunters and marksmen a chance to prove themselves before the hunting season begins.

There will be shoots held in trap, running deer and a special sighting-in clinic. The shoot is open to all shooters in the area.
