Thousands flow past bier

WASHINGTON (CP) — Thousands of Americans and a steadily gathering army of foreign leaders still flowed slowly today past the flag-draped bier of old soldier Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Eulogized by President Nixon as "truly a first citizen of the world," the former U.S. president rested under the towering white marble dome of the United States Capitol.

Tonight, after a brief state funeral ending three days of mourning, the two-time president was being carried by train to his boyhood home at Abilene, Kan., for burial.

The public's last respects to its 34th president and wartime hero had begun Sunday evening and continued through the night. Most were middle-aged, it appeared.

This afternoon, the man described by Nixon as "one of the giants of our time" was being borne back to the Washington National Cathedral for the Episcopal funeral service scheduled to start at 4:35 p.m. EST.

Eisenhower's last trip to the Capitol was made Sunday, the last portion by horse-drawn caisson, under a grey spring sky that delivered mixed snow and light rain and finally sun.

Crowds lined the last and public portion of the procession. "He remained in his final days the world's most honored and respected man," Nixon said.

SAYS FAREWELL

President de Gaulle of France arrived Sunday evening to pay a personal farewell to his old Second World War comrade in arms.

Others—including Prime Minister Trudeau, Vice-President Nguyen Cao Ky of South Vietnam, Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger of West Germany, King Baudouin of Belgium and Prince Bernard of The Netherlands—were arriving today.

De Gaulle in uniform entered the Capitol rotunda to salute the bier twice, stand in meditation and then leave for a call on Mrs. Eisenhower.

Also attending the ceremonies Sunday, and later visiting the bier separately or in the public line, were Lord Louis Mountbatten, Queen Elizabeth's personal representative for the occasion and Eisenhower's Southeast Asian counterpart in the Allied command structure.

Prime Minister John Gorton of Australia, the Shah of Iran and others had arrived Sunday or earlier.

Russia and three other Communist nations sent delegations. Marshal Vasily Chukov, Second World War liberator of Stalingrad, headed the Soviet group. Dr. Mieczyslaw Klimaszewski, deputy chairman of the Polish Council of State, Deputy Foreign Minister George Moscovescu of Romania and Foreign Minister Koca Popovic of Yugoslavia, a former army chief of staff, led their country's delegations.

Addressed by Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield.

MAMIE WEPT SOFTLY

Mrs. Eisenhower, 72, wept softly as Nixon called her husband "that rarest of men—an authentic hero."

"He restored calm to a divided nation. He gave Americans a new measure of self respect. He invested his office with dignity and respect and trust. He made Americans proud of their president, proud of their country, proud of themselves."

"And if we in America were proud of Dwight Eisenhower," Nixon said, "it was partly because he made us proud of America."

"He came from the heart of America. And he gave expression to the heart of America and he touched the hearts of the world."

The last words Eisenhower had spoken to his wife before death Friday, Nixon said, were these:

"I have loved my wife. I have loved my children. I have loved my grandchildren. I have loved my country."

He reiterated previous statements that the decision ought to be reached before April 10—opening date of a NATO ministerial meeting in Washington—and added that it "necessarily will be announced to the House of Commons."

Government sources emphasized, prior to the cabinet meetings Saturday and Sunday, that the issue was not "precooked," and that a decision in favor of continued participation in the alliance could not be taken for granted.

Canada now maintains a six-squadron air division and a mechanized brigade group in Europe, both with nuclear capability. Total strength of these forces, based in Germany, is about 10,000.

At the time he was studying statistics on the rate of assimilation of French-Canadians into the English community for the Massey royal commission on the arts, letters and sciences.

He said Friday night's violent flareups would convince student leaders that daytime is preferable for demonstrations. The demonstration by about 6,000 persons in support of a campaign to convert McGill University into a French-language institution degenerated into a series of hit-and-run skirmishes with police. Glass store windows were smashed, fires were lit and mailboxes were overturned.

Eighteen persons, including six policemen, were injured and 41 were held by police. Twenty-five appeared in municipal court Saturday on charges ranging from disturbing the peace to assaulting policemen.

Most pleaded not guilty and were ordered to appear for trial later. Those who pleaded guilty were ordered to pay fines ranging from $10 to $100.

In his radio broadcast Sunday, Mr. Saulnier said the demonstration would cost taxpayers between $50,000 and $100,000 in overtime salaries to police and special cleanup personnel.

Mr. Saulnier said that a number of "anarchists" tried, and in part succeeded, in playing "their terrorist tricks" but that "for the most part, demonstrators behaved themselves."

Raymond Lemieux, president of the Ligue pour l'Integration Scolaire, one of the organizers of the demonstration, told a news conference Sunday that the demonstration was successful and that the "next step" in the conversion of McGill into a French-language university is up to Quebec.

Mr. Marchand based the tape on what he thought was "the most likely hypothesis," the spokesman said. If cabinet had not approved it, the tape would have been scrapped.

The tape, prepared by Mr. Marchand in French and Transport Minister Paul Hellyer in English, raised complaints in the Commons Friday.

Conservative Eldon Woolliams for Calgary North charged the two ministers with leaking advance information and spoke of possible land speculation.

Neither minister was present at the time.

He said this is not the time for Quebecers to think of independence, "an adventure," because a more reasonable solution would likely emerge from current constitutional negotiations.

In Quebec, he added, "there is room for a common-sense option following the middle of the road, the option of the Union Nationale."

He said there are three main constitutional options before the Quebec people—the status quo, independence and a new federalism.

The status quo, he argued, amounts to "galloping centralization" with such intrusions on provincial jurisdiction as federal health insurance which he called "vast and odious blackmail."

He said "middle-of-the-road" policies can best preserve "the French fact" in Quebec while allowing Quebecers to take full advantage of North American "dynamism."

These policies should follow the middle course between the "galloping centralism" typical "dialogue of the deaf."

He added that French-Canadian politicians in Ottawa are serving Canada's English-speaking majority to "gag" Quebec.

Mr. Bertrand said it is easy to demonstrate "the devastating role of the Ottawa steam-roller" which "crushes the legitimate rights of Quebec" by introducing on provincial constitutional ground.

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand said Sunday night "middle-of-the-road" policies are best able to reconcile French-speaking Quebec's cultural goals with its economic needs.

He told a fund-raising dinner that the ruling Union Nationale party should follow the middle course between "galloping centralism" of the federal Liberals and the "separatist adventure" of Rene Levesque.

A party official said more than 3,000 tickets were sold for the party's $50-a-plate dinner. The premier's speech was carried on closed circuit television to partisans assembled at the Chateau Frontenac hotel, the Clarendon hotel and the Renaissance Club.

Mr. Bertrand said: "Culturally, Quebec is part of the French-speaking world. Politically, it is a member state of the Canadian federation. Economically, it is linked to the whole of North America."

AFFIRMS LOYALTY

He said the Union Nationale party's "loyalty and attachment" is, first of all, to Quebec and to Quebecers. But he added: "We have been 'Canadians' for more than three and a half centuries and we firmly intend to remain 'Canadians'."

He said Prime Minister Trudeau has rejected the concept of a two-nation Canada advocated by the Union Nationale and many provincial Liberals support him.

Israel digs in for spring

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel was digging in today for a critical spring and summer after its cabinet rejected any Big Four settlement for the Middle East and President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt talked again of war.

Israeli Defence Minister Moshe Dayan told border settlers the summer would be "most critical" because the Egyptian regime is under heavy pressure to renew the war or abdicate. And Nasser said Sunday that war with Israel is inevitable "so long as they refuse to withdraw from the occupied Arab lands."

Addressing the national congress of the Arab Socialist Union, Nasser said: "The days when we could not answer Israeli shelling have passed. We now can hit back, and hit violently."

However, he said Egypt still hopes the coming four-power talks in New York at the United Nations would result in some kind of peace settlement.

Because the meetings of the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union are expected to begin this week, the Israeli cabinet decided Sunday to state its position before rather than after the talks.

The cabinet communique said: "Israel entirely opposes the plan to convene representatives of states outside the Middle East in order to prepare recommendations concerning the region. Such a procedure undermines the responsibility devolving on the states of the region to achieve peace among themselves."

It was no secret that the Israelis opposed the talks. They are said to believe that an imposed solution could only benefit the Arabs because they expect Russia and France to insist that Israel withdraw from the lands it occupied in the June, 1967, war.

Before Israel gives up its biggest bargaining lever, it wants a signed peace agreement with the Arabs.

The cabinet said that in the absence of a signed peace treaty with its neighbors, Israel will "consolidate her position in accordance with the vital need of security and development."

As if to underscore this, Israel jets streaked over the Jordanian ceasefire line Sunday morning.

The army said they attacked guerrilla positions which opened fire on a patrol and wounded four border guards.

Later an Israeli border town was shelled.

Tim Hardin

His music is a part of himself

By TED KRAWCHENKO
(Bishop's Correspondent)

Yes, the rumor has been confirmed, Tim Hardin will be appearing on Bishop's stage. Those who have never heard of Tim Hardin by name will have heard of him by his songs, especially "If I were a Carpenter" and "Lady from Baltimore". And those who have never heard his songs (which are usually sung by someone else) have missed some of the best writing of our times. Those who have never heard Tim Hardin sing his songs have missed something which is all too rare in contemporary music — an extremely competent performance by someone whose music is so personal that it seems to be a part of him.

Tim Hardin bares his soul to his listeners during a performance. His songs are autobiographical in tone — girls he has loved, things he has done, places he has been. His career has been a hard climb to the success he enjoys today. An ex-marine, he spent a few years after getting out playing for small audiences in Boston coffeehouses and elsewhere. Although popular with connoisseurs of folk music, he remained unknown to the rest of the musical world. He sprang to fame as other artists sang and popularized his songs. This situation must have been very galling indeed, considering the personal nature of his songs. Like Lightfoot, who also built up a reputation as a songwriter of songs for other people before blossoming on his own, Hardin finally began to be regarded as a folksinger in his own right.

His three or four albums shows a steady improvement of performance, but not of material, for his songs unlike Lightfoot's cannot be placed in different periods. Hardin can be compared with Canada's Pride insofar as they had similar beginnings, are both backed up by electric musicians, and both sing songs of a personal nature. But Hardin's songs are treated by him in a way that the listener knows he wrote them all, and the listener knows he is singing about himself, while Lightfoot's cavalier attitude towards most of his work precludes any such feelings.

Basically however, if you enjoy Lightfoot, you will enjoy Hardin. Hardin will appear in concert at Bishop's University in the Centennial Theatre on April 6. The price is ridiculously low — $3.00.

Brookbury W. I. names officers at busy annual meeting

BROOKBURY — The annual meeting of the Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Stuart Joyce with Mrs. Donald Clark as co-hostess.

With Mrs. Donald Clark, president, presiding, the meeting was opened. Thirteen members answered the roll call by payment of dues. One new member was welcomed. Correspondence, read by the secretary, consisted of thank-you notes from those who had been remembered with Christmas baskets and gifts.

Mrs. Hilda Hooker, chairman of the nominating committee, gave the report of the slate of officers as follows: President, Mrs. Clifford Lowe; first vice-president, Mrs. Emilien Lecours; second vice-president, Mrs. Olive Batley; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Sterling Batley.

Conveners and special committees will be named at the April meeting.

A vote of thanks was given to the retiring president, Mrs. Donald Clark, and secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Rufus Stevenson, for the efficient manner they had carried out their duties during their term of office.

Mrs. Clark thanked the members for their support and wished the new president much success in her office.

Mrs. Lowe then took the chair for the remainder of the meeting. Plans for a play were discussed and left in the hands of a committee.

Mrs. Clark and Mrs. Stevenson reported on the special meeting they had attended at Cookshire.

Mrs. Flora MacIntyre offered to head a committee to prepare the new program, assisted by the members.

A donation was voted to the Boutin family, who have recently lost their home and possessions by fire.

Five members received gifts for perfect attendance. At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served by the hostesses.

International 'first' was held at the Border

BOUNDARY — (Special) — March 24 marked an international first for the Friendly Nation Junior Chamber of Commerce when the first international Chapter was presented.

After several weeks of organization for the First International Jaycees in the world by its membership along the Canadian Border Towns of Rock Island-Stanstead, Beebe, and the Derby Line - Beebe, Vt., American towns.

The Charter night was held at the Stardust Room in Newport and attended by more than 150 men and women from both sides of the Border, including Jaycee International World President, Tom Gates; U.S. Jaycee chairman of the Board and former National Jaycee President James Antell; Canadian Jaycee vice-president, Douglas Hammer; Vermont President Wayne Jamison; and others from both sides of the Boundary.

"I congratulate everyone on bringing about this Chapter", were the comments of Mr. Gates, and he added, "I feel I am part of a history-making event."

Mr. Gates in his address noted that the Jaycees represent young men from two Nations coming together to solve problems of the world of today, making reference to traffic safety, narcotics and student unrest to mention only a few.

Other speakers included E. J. Struthers, Stanstead; George Vaillancourt, Coaticook; MNA of Quebec; President Roy Northrop of Sherbrooke and many others.

Vermont president, Wayne Jamison, presented the Charter of the newly formed Club to president Maurice Beauregard of the Jaycee Board, Rosaire Longe, presented the charter membership to the U.S. Jaycees and State vice-president Russell Moloney presented him with the president's pin.

Several other presentations were made.

The historic making evening concluded with dancing.

Lodge to mark milestone

STANSTEAD — (Special) — Tuesday, April 1 marks the 2000th communication of Golden Rule Masonic Lodge, A.F. and A.M. No. 5. To mark this important milestone, E. J. Struthers, a noted historian, will speak on local history and Masonry in the area.

In 1953 Golden Rule Lodge, A.F. and A.M., marked its 150th anniversary with all due celebrations. Looking back on that historic weekend we find that "Masonry began in England." In 1803 a band of pioneers along the Frontier Border, now known as Rock Island and Derby Line, "in whose breasts fraternal sentiment was ever strong" met in a building, where now is situated the brick building, near the Audinwood Block, and in that building, long since gone, a Masonic Lodge was instituted.

Many, many changes have come about and much history has been made since those days of 166 years ago.

The present Masonic Temple in Stanstead was built in 1859 - 60 and the first meeting took place on Dec. 25, 1860.

WINDSOR — The annual St. Patrick's supper was held in the I.O.O.F. Hall on March 14, under the auspices of St. George's Ladies Guild. The hall was attractively decorated with shamrock leaf cutouts, claypips and black paper hats. Three beautiful flower arrangements, donated by the local florists, were also placed around the hall and added much to the decor.

Mrs. A. Oakley, president, assisted by other members, served a menu of home baked beans and salads. Mrs. Mildred Morey acted as cashier. The drawing for the box of groceries, donated by a Sherbrooke firm, was made by Philippe Bourque and won by Miss Karen Morey.

The proceeds of the afternoon amounted to $113.65.

REGIONAL PROSPERITY THREATENED — The Eastern Townships Regional Economic Council discussed the problem facing the region at a meeting at the University of Sherbrooke Saturday. Seen addressing the meeting is Jacques Lemieux, Council president, aided by General Director Charles Gagne. Both men were re-elected for another term at Saturday's meeting. (Record photo: Gerry Lemay)

Information lack hampers area development study finds

By RICHARD SPALDING
(Record Staff Reporter)

The region's economic future is seriously threatened by a lack of information relating to it. A solution would be to establish information centres at the two universities in the Townships. Such is the recommendation of the Eastern Townships Regional Economic Council's meeting at the Sherbrooke University Saturday.

Because the Council wants to promote economic prosperity for the region, it has asked Marcel Masse, minister without portfolio, to help in forming a regional planning board and land study centre at the University. The proposition is part of a campaign aimed at evaluating information being used to establish projects of general interest to the region.

The chairman of the tourist committee elaborated the steps to assure the continuance of such a program. He noted that more would have to be known, before being able to determine the region's potential. A recent study by members of the geography department of the Sherbrooke University probed the Megantic Mountains as the setting of a future ski center, but such a study can only be conclusive over a three-year period, because much is still unknown, he said. Still, the greatest problem facing the council in regard to the tourist industry is the lack of adequate information. This can only be obtained through intensive study by the University, whereas such studies are limited and are restricted to the availability of funds.

The Economic Council is also concerned with the problems facing the rural areas. The first report of the rural committee was presented to the meeting. In operation for a year, this committee anticipates taking a close look into the field of agriculture and forestry. Municipal regrouping is another subject of importance to the committee. In a broad reflexion, it intends to present specific recommendations on issues such as farm clearing and farm financing.

Sherbrooke engineer Louis-Georges Carignan presented the Council with a new philosophy on water. He stated that water should be looked upon as a renewable resource. The water problem he added, is more local than regional.

Mr. Carignan introduced a proposition aimed at creating a provincial water fund, a project that would include towns and cities resolving local water problems with monetary assistance from the Government.

Municipalities would gather money from the people and industries as well. In all, the committee estimates that $15,000,000 dollars could be gathered in a mutual fund. This would enable municipalities to start plans and to see the project through without having to borrow money in any large amount. The proposed water fund would be called the Quebec Water Fund, and it would see to it that the money was distributed equitably among localities.

Another commission presented its first report. The information commission is the Council's attempt to establish itself as the spokesman for the people. As in other sectors, the lack of popular support is crippling many projects. Members have stated frequently they feel part of the population is not participating.

Patrolling Asbestos constables catch pair at appliance store

ASBESTOS — (Staff) — Asbestos police caught two men red-handed Sunday morning, loading their car with booty during a break-in at an electrical appliance store.

A municipal police spokesman said this morning two officers on patrol investigated a car parked in front of the Therrien and Freres store at 6 a.m. and arrested the men when they saw one suspect carrying a television set from the shop.

Yvon Beaulieu, 29, and his brother Emile, 40, both of Drummondville will be charged in connection with the event in Sherbrooke court this morning, police said.

The spokesman said merchandise valued at $1,300 was taken from the store after a front window had been broken.

Leeds native gets high education honor

West, Ottawa, has been awarded the highest honour of The Canadian College of Teachers. He is a native of Leeds village where his father, R. W. McCutcheon still lives.

He has been admitted as a Fellow of the College, a learned society founded in 1958 to advance the standards of teaching and to stimulate professional growth. To be eligible for a Fellowship a member must be judged to have made an outstanding contribution to education in Canada.

Dr. McCutcheon is the former director and dean of the faculty of education, Brandon University, and is presently associated with the Ottawa Teachers' College.

Dr. McCutcheon's interests lie mainly in the field of educational writing, where he has displayed a keen appreciation of present day problems.

In awarding the Fellowship, the Council of the Canadian College of Teachers noted that Dr. McCutcheon's writings present an original approach to education today.

$100,000 damages

Border Curling Club fire under control

By IVY HATCH
(Record correspondent)

BEEBE — An early morning fire on Saturday, March 29, caused heavy damage to the Border Curling Club. Loss is unofficially estimated at $100,000.

The fire is believed to have actually started at 2:25 a.m. when the electric clock stopped in the Club House. At this same time power went off in nearby homes. Wilfred Dumoulin who had returned home about 1 a.m. from the next door Club House was watching a late TV show when his power went off, he immediately phoned Henry Nadeau of Quebec Hydro. Mr. Nadeau, a resident of Rock Island, changed fuses in the transformer and discovered a short circuit somewhere. Investigation by Mr. Nadeau and Mr. Dumoulin revealed it to be in the Curling Club.

When they unlocked the door with a key Mr. Dumoulin has to the Club House, billows of smoke poured out and a call went out immediately for the Beebe fire department at 4 a.m. A call also went out to the Rock Island department for more hose and, side by side, the two departments worked and were able to keep the fire under control at all times.

The fire was mainly in the partitions, ceiling and roof; the interior of the building is a complete loss largely due to smoke and water. The ice shed is not damaged except where the shed and Club House join for the flames broke through in this part twice.

The curling stones were removed to safety and as soon as the fire was out in the partitions, Robert Distefano, an employee of the club, donned a smoke mask and went in for the trophies, the cash register and other valuables of the club. Mr. Distefano was overcome by smoke but after a few minutes use with the resuscitator was all right.

Other equipment was removed by men of the fire departments. The loss is covered by insurance of $75,000. The Rock Island fire department left about 7:30 a.m. and Beebe department remained on the job until 10:30 a.m.

Plans were made for the next meeting on April 14, when the $100,000 DAMAGE — Men of two fire departments pour water between the walls in an attempt to douse flames at the Border Curling Club early Saturday morning. The fire, kept under control and eventually extinguished by the combined efforts of Beebe and Rock Island firefighters, caused an estimated $100,000 damages.

known but is believed to have started near the electrical entrance or the furnace.

A bonspiel for the Bushnell, Danneau, Gagne main trophy and the Tilton consolation trophy had been played all week with curling scheduled to start 9:30 Saturday morning and the play off finals that evening. The plays did continue but in the North Hatley Curling Club.

Norbert Danneau, caretaker, and Mr. Distefano had left the Club about 2 a.m. Curlers and some of the women who were in charge of refreshments had left about a half hour earlier and all seemed to be in order.

This building was at one time owned by the late Dr. Whitcher and his family and sold to Frank Hearle. Mr. Hearle spent considerable money in renovations. In 1955 the Border Curling Club was organized and the house purchased from the Hepburn estate and converted into the club house without changing the beautiful interior or exterior. The ice shed was built.

In 1966 an addition was added to the ground floor. It was a Club House to be proud of as its over 150 members were and now are distressed at their loss, for it probably will be impossible to restore the building to its former grandeur.

Zone Five of Q. F. A. plans April meeting

BULWER — A meeting of the Zone Five, Quebec Farmers Association, was held in the Bulwer Community Center on March 10. Eleven members from Zone five had attended the semi-annual meeting and the minutes of that meeting were read by the secretary. The secretary was asked to write for a list of the paid-up members so far this year. It was announced that the Seed Fair would be held in Bury. Plans were made for the next meeting on April 14, when the speaker will be Jack Drummond on Soil Science. Also there will be a film.

A film from the Carnation was shown on the processing of milk from the time it leaves the farm until it is canned and ready for grocers' shelves, also on how the instant powder milk is made.

Wells Coates gave a good report on the Education Program which he had taken, and had been giving at the Adult Education Schools held for farmers this winter.

Two hurt in car smash

Two men are presently being treated at the St. Vincent de Paul Hospital, as the result of an accident early Saturday morning.

Injured are: Eustache Breault, 65, of St-Elie d'Orford, and 59-year-old Erich Marquardt of 1500 Leclerc Street in Sherbrooke.

The collision occurred at 8:44 a.m. Saturday at the corner of Conseil and Murray Streets. Police reports indicate both men were traveling alone. They are suffering from cuts and minor bruises. The hospital reported both men are resting comfortably and are in satisfactory condition.

World loses friend in death of Eisenhower

Dwight D. Eisenhower may not have been one of the greatest of United States presidents but he certainly was one of the greatest citizens of that country. Long before his entry into the field of active politics he had made a fine record of public service both at home and abroad.

A life-long soldier, he took command of the American armed forces at a critical time in the history of the world and was virtually the unanimous selection of the allied government as supreme commander of the democratic armies in the European sector in the final days of the Second World War.

Upon his retirement from the armed services he assumed the arduous position as president of Columbia University in New York City, one of the leading educational institutions of the world.

His record of achievement in both the fields of military and educational activity so impressed the people of the United States that upon his selection as Republican candidate for the presidency his election to that high office became almost a certainty.

Opinions may differ as to the quality of the leadership he gave during his eight years of office, a condition that is almost inevitable when the many divergencies of problems facing the country are considered but there never has been any serious criticism of his sincerity and determination.

Even after stepping down from the presidency he maintained an active interest in public affairs and was an important influence in determining the policies of the Republican party.

In his passing the United States and the free world has lost a faithful servant.

The most successful people at planning ahead are headhunters.

Turner talks loosely

With the exception of Justice Minister John Turner, everyone connected with Friday night's McGill Francais demonstration in Montreal appears to have come out of the incident with their positions enhanced.

Whether one supports or condemns the demands of the leaders of the parade, they must be given credit for keeping their own forces under control. The McGill authorities and the English-speaking students deserve praise for failing to engage in any serious counter-demonstration that might have provoked hostilities. The Montreal police displayed a remarkable cool in their handling of those groups of troublemakers, few of whom were actually interested in the McGill Francais movement, who sought to provoke the authorities into precipitate action. And the Provincial and RCMP police were conspicuous for the manner in which they kept themselves in the background, although instantly available for duty in case events got out of hand.

The restraint exercised by the demonstrators and authorities alike meant that a highly-explosive situation was defused without serious incident, except for a few scattered outbreaks of violence after the demonstration itself disbanded.

Regrettable, however, were the rather inadvisable statements of the Justice Minister dealing with a supposed appeal for help by the RCMP and the armed forces from Premier Bertrand.

In a series of statements in Ottawa, the Justice Minister left the impression that the Quebec Premier had made an appeal to Ottawa to intervene in the situation whereas the apparent limit of any communication between Quebec and Ottawa was an inquiry from the Premier on what steps must be taken if any trouble got beyond the control of the provincial and municipal police forces.

This is a natural step that would be taken by any provincial government faced with a potentially dangerous situation and the federal Justice Minister stepped beyond the bounds of good sense in the way he described the developments.

Rather than leave the impression that Quebec was seeking active aid from the federal authorities, a move which would only aggravate a delicate situation, he might have resorted to the more refined talk of the politician that the problem was being kept under study.

Getting the logs going in the fireplace is much easier with a newspaper than with a television set, though use of the latter at times would have certain charms.

March 31, 1969...

John Diefenbaker led his Progressive Conservative Party to a record-breaking victory in a federal election 11 years ago today in 1958.

THE PRAYER FOR TODAY FROM The Upper Room

"The kingdom of heaven is like a net which was thrown into the sea... when it was full, men drew it ashore and sat down and sorted the good into vessels but threw away the bad." (Matthew 13:47-48, RSV)

PRAYER: Our Father, help us to take a new look at the way we organize and do our work as Christians. Keep us from throwing away everything that is good simply because it is old. Keep us from rejecting goodness also simply because it is new. Amen.

OTTAWA OFFBEAT

OTTAWA — Nearly two years after Dalton Camp, as president of the party, split the Tories in two and then turned them upside-down, the Conservatives have picked up the pieces.

And more important, they have put them back together right-side up.

From now on, the Commons Caucus will call the leadership and other shots.

Which means that the MPs and senators, the people who have to get elected, will make the big decisions.

(Yes, some senators, especially Conservatives, because they are so few due to the infrequency of their party being in power, once were MPs and as ordinary mortal politicians, discovered their first priority was to win an election.)

Dalton Camp never made it to Parliament, although he tried a couple of times.

It was strange then, that, as a loser, he managed to win the Conservative presidency, turn the party up-end, strip the MPs and senators of the real power and instead, make the organization supreme, in fact if not exactly in theory.

DEEP DIVISION
For when Dalton Camp and his Conservative Party headquarters organization — based both in Ottawa and Toronto — toppled the tottering Diefenbaker from the leadership, he stage-managed it against the expressed will and wish of the overwhelming majority of Tory MPs and senators.

Truth to tell, it took only a slight push to shove the Old Chief from party power — so slight that Dalton Camp needed only a few score of bad-mannered non-Tory teeny-boppers to boo and hiss him from the convention platform. And the deed was done.

That was just 19 months ago, but it marked a watershed for the party, this unceremonious booting of a former prime minister who, through two elections, against all the odds, denied majority power to Lester Pearson and the Liberals.

Dalton Camp did have some support — a splinter of about six MPs and even fewer senators — in the Conservative Caucus.

These were the men who, at the party's Montmorency "Thinkers' Conference," came up with the disastrous "deux nations" policy that more than anything else ruined the Conservatives at the last election.

These, too, were the men who voiced no protest when the Camp-way-of-doing-things stripped the leader — yes, even the new man, Robert Stanfield — of some of his previous powers of decision and handed them over to the party organization.

Since then, the Conservative Caucus has been fighting back. And doing some winning.

ONE, NOT TWO CANADAS

The MPs have managed to hang onto their two researchers and speechwriters, standing off demands of party headquarters that they be replaced by academics hired by the organization.

But there have been greater victories. Quietly ushered out of the party's back door has been the "deux nations" hangup.

Nothing formal, mind you. No ceremony of disassociation.

Just a political orphaning of the "deux nations" brainchild.

The Conservatives have done it neatly and all but completely — formal renunciation will come at the policy conference next fall — at the recent annual meeting.

They did it by never so much as whispering the fatal phrase "deux nations," and coming out instead with bugles blowing and trumpets blaring, drums rolling and flags flying for, what else, but "One Canada."

Doing it, they conveniently forgot that the Old Chief had always told them their "deux nations" thing would become an election nightmare and that the only politically salable campaign commodity must be "One Canada."

But it took Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and the Liberals to prove it to them. NOW they buy it.

Final triumph of the Conservative Caucus has been that the working politicians — the men who must, before anything else, win at the election polls — get to have the decisive say on party leadership.

The Tory organization, PC headquarters and the few "reformers" in the Conservative Caucus who support them don't like it.

But, as they say on those CBC public affairs programs the "reformers" like so much: "That's the Way It Is, Baby."

Melvin Laird

Debate centres around world of defense man

WASHINGTON (CP) — The most incisive debate so far in the new Nixon administration centres on whether the world of Defence Secretary Melvin Laird is the real world.

On Capitol Hill, some say it is and God help us all; others say it isn't and thank God.

A flock of those of the latter persuasion are members of Senator William Fulbright's dovish foreign relations committee which Thursday heard testimony from State Secretary William P. Rogers that indicated he sides more with them than with the pessimists.

Rogers, of course is a realist and doesn't exactly view the world through rose-tinted glasses. But his reading of the situation still is bright by comparison with that of Defence Secretary Laird.

In testimony last week Laird painted a picture so grim that many found it reminiscent in tone and language of the era of the late state secretary John Foster Dulles in the 1950's when brinkmanship and sabre-rattling were tools of the diplomatic trade.

Laird told the armed services committee he saw the Vietnam war enduring with no prospect for early United States troop withdrawals.

THREATS AROUND
Beyond there was a threat in Laos; to the north in Korea peace "hangs by a slender thread," Malaysia and Singapore harbor "a potential security problem" and, of course overhanging it all was Communist China with its military force "on the verge of being supplemented by an operational nuclear capacity."

No matter which way he turned, there was no silver lining in sight.

NATO was "beset with both military and political problems," and the Middle East rested on the verge of an active state of war.

This was the backdrop he painted in presenting his argument for the revamped anti-ballistic missile system proposed by President Nixon.

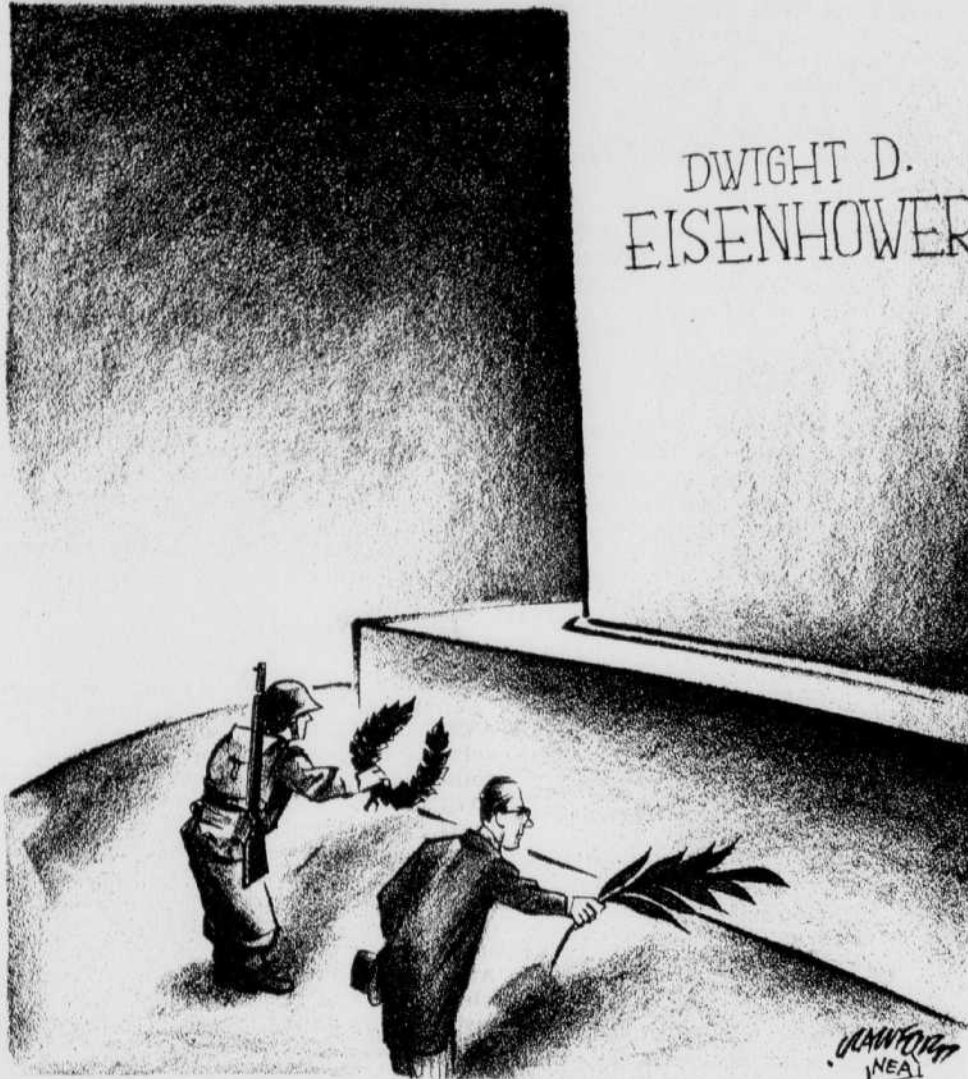

Two things in particular upset members of the foreign relations group.

One was the change of heart in which the administration now sees the Soviet Union as an all-powerful and threatening nuclear foe against which the ABM must be mounted. Until recently, China was the main justification for the fantastically expensive system.

The other was the disconcerting tendency of Laird to speak as though he was state secretary as well as defence secretary. Fulbright questioned Rogers about this and while he diplomatically avoided criticism of Laird he made it clear he, in turn, has no interest in speaking for the Pentagon.

Rogers agreed with Fulbright, however, that "The military does not have a monopoly" on preserving the security of the U.S. and that military force is but part of the picture.

Man of War---Man of Peace

Christ's passion

Soldiers weave crown of thorns and kneel down to mock Jesus

At last from Pilate's lips fell the sentence that happened to comply with their requirements: he released that one who had been given up to imprisonment because of sedition and homicide, and whom they had asked for; but he delivered them Jesus to do with Him as they pleased.

10. Scourging and Crowning with Thorns

J. 19, 1. Then Pilate had him taken away to be scourged.

Mt. 27, 27-30. After that, the Procurator's soldiers took Jesus back into the Praetorium, and they made the whole cohort gather along about Him.

They undressed Him, to drape a scarlet cloak around Him. Out of thorns they wove a (victor's) wreath, and they put it on His head, as also a reed in His right hand.

And, kneeling down before Him, they mocked Him by saying: "Hail, king of the Jews!"

Then they covered Him with their spits; and, with His reed, they struck blows on His head.

11. Ecce Homo

J. 19, 4-7. This time again Pilate came out; and he says to them: "Behold, I am bringing you Him outside; and this, to make it known to you that I cannot come to find Him guilty at all!"

By REV. LAURENT TOUSIGNANT

So Jesus came outside, still wearing the crown of thorns and the purple cloak.

And Pilate told them: "Behold the man!"

When they caught sight of Him, the chief priests and their guardsmen cried out: "Have Him crucified! Have Him crucified!" — "You, see to it and crucify Him! says Pilate to them, for I cannot come to find Him guilty!"

Retorted the Jews: "We have a Law; and, according to our Law, He ought to die since He pretended to be the Son of God!"

12. Secret Examination.

J. 19, 8-11. But, on hearing those words, Pilate felt he was scared even more. He went again into the Praetorium. And he says to Jesus: "Where do you come from?"

Jesus gave him no answer. — "Even to me, Pilate asks him, you are unwilling to say a word? Do you not know that I have the authority to release You as also the authority to have You crucified?"

—"Not in the least would you have authority over me, answers Jesus, if that were not given you from Above. On account of this, he who delivered me up to you deserves only to be reproached the more!"

13. Condemnation to Death

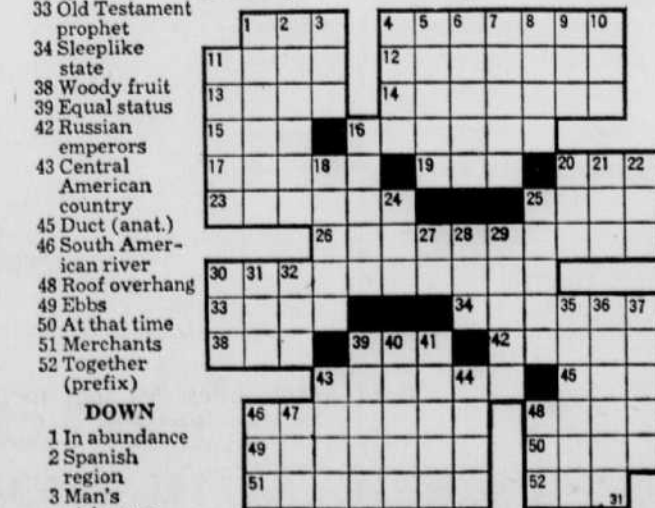

J. 19, 12-15. After which, Pilate renewed his efforts to liberate Him; whereas the Jews cried out: "If you liberate Him, you are no friend of Caesar any longer: whoever pretends to be a king, sets himself up as Caesar's rival!"

Pilate could not but hear such language, and accordingly he had Jesus brought outside. He sat down on the judgment seat, at that place which is called Lithostrotos (in Hebrew: Gabbatha).

Jim: "You have told me that by 1930 expert contract bidding had begun to take shape. How far along had you come?"

Oswald: "We worked on finding 44 fits. The old-timers despised four-card suits and it took us youngsters to get around to bidding them. One weakness of everyone's, though, was their unwillingness to compete on mere distribution."

Jim: "Playing with Hal Sims, Willard Karn and Lee Langdon, you lost the finals of the 1930 knockout team championship to Ely and Jo Culbertson playing with Lightner and Von Zedtwitz. How about some hands from that match?"

Oswald: "We might start with board eight. Bidding was the same at both tables and each West opened the jack of diamonds. This produced the queen, king and ace. Declarer proceeded to draw trumps and wound up making three because he could lead up to both the nine of diamonds and the king of hearts."

Jim: "I see what you mean about lack of competition. East doesn't have much of a hand but most modern players would stick in a negative double of the two-spade bid. The Culbertson staff commented that East and West could make four hearts but that there was no way to get into the bidding."

Oswald: "The analysis wasn't correct. It wasn't hard for North and South to wait for declarer to play diamonds, whereupon the best East and West could do was to make three hearts. Chances are that if East did double two spades and West bid four hearts, that North and South would wind up taking a phantom save at four spades doubled."

She welcomed the members and one guest, especially greeting members who had been absent due to illness.

Conveners reports were given: Agriculture, Mrs. Wentworth S. Richardson, reported on the change in the Sherbrooke Fair dates and noted the Fall and Winter Fairs would be combined this year into a 10-day event, also reported on the Public Speaking contest held in Sherbrooke and noted that the Sherbrooke pupils were in the majority as winners, but a good attendance was appreciated.

Education, Mrs. Camille Bernard reported on the new program at Bishop's University dealing with a five-year program regarding CEGEP.

These will be judged at annual county meetings and the first and second winners to be forwarded for provincial competition at the annual convention at Macdonald College.

Publicity, Mrs. Kenneth Blakie, stated all meetings reported to the Sherbrooke Record and necessary radio reports given.

Conveners' yearly reports showed that much had been undertaken and successfully completed. Eleven monthly meetings were held, with a membership of 34 and an average attendance of 20.

Ten ditty bags made by Mrs. Harold Robertson, were distributed among the members to be filled with useful items and toys to be sent to the Save the Children's Fund.

The meeting was adjourned and a delicious buffet casserole lunch was served by the ways and means committee.

The meeting reconvened by all singing the Ode. The president thanked Mrs. Bernard for opening her home for the meeting.

Mrs. Arthur Coates took the chair for the election and installation of officers and Mrs. Wallace Wingate presented the following slate for 1969-70 which was accepted as read:

Past president, Mrs. Harold Robertson; president, Mrs.

Ashley Hatcher; first vice-president, Mrs. Dawson Savage; second vice-president, Mrs. Monty Sewell; recording secretary, Mrs. Frank Ingham; treasurer, Mrs. William Mitchell. A prize will be given to the member having the greatest number of tables.

Mrs. William T. Pearson reported on the progress being made on the history of Ascot from 1948 to the present time and clippings or pictures pertaining to that time would be appreciated by herself or Mrs. Arthur Coates.

Mrs. Robert S. Lipsey, a member since 1918, was warmly congratulated.

Mrs. William T. Pearson read the program drawn up for the coming year, which should be a very interesting one to look forward to.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Robert Mitchell with Mrs. William Mitchell and Mrs. A. Coates as co-hostesses.

THE TRAVILLA STORY

Coin Diver Makes Splash in Fashion

By HELEN HENNESSY

NEW YORK — (NEA) — "Whaddya wanna be when you grow up?" is a question kids have to field all the time.

It's a natural that young Bill Travilla, born in Santa Catalina, Calif., and the son of Jack Travilla, famous underwater swimmer, would have answered, "Scuba diver" or "swimming champ." He used to dive for coins thrown by tourists from glass-bottomed boats and could boast that he once won a dollar for eating a banana on the ocean floor.

But although he is an expert swimmer and scuba diver today, things didn't quite work out that way for Bill. For when he grew up, he carved his name in large letters in the hall of fashion design.

He has the best of two worlds. He heads his own nationally known couture business yet works out his schedule so that he can still design film wardrobes.

He won an Oscar for "The Adventures of Don Juan," starring the late Errol Flynn. And he is currently working on 20th Century Fox's television series, "Julia" and dresses Diahann Carroll for that show.

"I have dressed many of the beautiful women of the world," Travilla said, "including Loretta Young, a fashion image, and Marilyn Monroe, the sex symbol. But, at last, in Diahann Carroll I have found what I truly believe to be the very image of woman."

Bill Travilla did 130 costumes for "Valley of the Dolls."

"Anyone who thinks it's easy to design a costume like one I did for Sharon Tate, which consisted of a cowboy hat, boots and a holster, is sadly mistaken," he said. "The almost-nude costume has to have real spice and humor or it's cheap as all get out. It's a tough assignment."

He recently completed "The Boston Strangler."

"It wasn't exactly a designer's dream," he admitted. "I had to give Tony Curtis a new look as the Strangler."

Originally Bill wanted to be a sculptor. But the road was too long and too expensive.

"I settled for art school and commercial drawing," he said, "but I soon found it was easier to draw original sketches and ideas of my own. So I began working on costume design."

Since opening his own couture business he has had phenomenal success. Many factors contributed to this—his insistence on exclusive fabrics, his innate knowledge of line and color and a youthful disregard for elegance.

He was invited by Mrs. Lyndon Johnson to participate in the first fashion show ever given at the White House and is proud of this "command performance."

Bill adheres to the unisex trend in his couture collection for spring. But everything is done so beautifully that he projects a common fashion orientation that duality complements the best in design worn by both sexes.

In the shipboard mood for late-day fashion he tailors the double-breasted jacket with sleeves in a contemporary cotton lace of white and apple green. It's worn over a short apple green crepe dress, ruffled at the hemline.

He borrows the boy look from Carnaby Street, featuring huge organza ties at the tailored neck of saucy organza shirtdresses gathered at the waist and adorned with delicate white flower appliques.

Today's Greek boy-girl myth is the stage for Travilla's timeless chiffon images. Ruffled trimmed, extravagantly pleated gowns are shaped throughout the bodice.

JUNE BRIDE — DIANE ELIZABETH, daughter of Mrs. Raymond Fowler, of Waterville, Que., and the late

Mr. Fowler, and GARY SAMUEL, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alden E. W. Clark, of Lorraine, Que., and the late Mrs.

Dorothy Clark, whose engagement is announced. The wedding will take place at Waterville United Church June 14.

She gets constable clobbered
all in the name of research

TORONTO (CP) — Rita Charlebois once invited a number of Ontario provincial police officers to have a few drinks—all in the cause of research.

Mrs. Charlebois, for 12 years a scientist at the attorney-general's laboratory in Toronto, had the policemen, who were taking a course in the use of breath-test machines, use a typewriter before and after they had their drinks.

She found the men, especially one of them, could hold their liquor well, but the results were conclusive.

"He didn't look as if he'd had anything to drink at all," Mrs. Charlebois said. "But when he went to type, he began by putting the sheet into the typewriter backwards. And when he sat down he lost his balance and almost went over." She concluded that the man would have been dangerous on the highway even though there was no first impression that he had been drinking.

"The one who's dangerous on the highway is the one who has too much confidence in himself

APPROACHING MARRIAGE — MISS JUDITH BRENDA HENDERSON and REV. LYNN CURTIS ROSS whose approaching marriage is announced. The bride-to-be is the daughter of Mrs. J. Edward Henderson of Richmond, Que. Mr. Ross is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Borden Ross, Lennoxville.

Secretarial tricks of the trade are vital

OTTAWA (CP) — If you want to be a top-notch secretary, don't count just on your efficiency at typing and taking dictation.

Basic as these skills are, there are many more tricks of the trade, say five Ottawa members of the Association of Administrative Assistants or Private Secretaries.

Mary Johnson, executive secretary to the president of Computing Devices of Canada, says an important asset is a varied work background. Legal experience is especially valuable.

Gloria Zuana, senior clerk in the humanities and social sciences division of the Canada Council, says that basically you just have to use your head. If something doesn't look right, check it.

"You should have the feeling that you want to be part of a team and be willing to take some responsibility," says Marion Bray, administrative officer in the purchase research branch of the federal defence production department.

"You have to be alert at all times and interested in the job. If you do show some initiative and some desire for responsibility, you'll be given all you can handle."

Helen McVeigh, commercial specialist at the U.S. embassy, says that if a person really reads and thinks about correspondence instead of merely glancing at it and filling it, extra work can often be saved.

Miss Bray says it's important to be willing to accept the challenges present to you.

"Maybe you're asked to take dictation from the deputy minister of a department and you shake inside—but you shake before and after you take the dictation, not during it."

If information you want is supplied by more than one source, Mary Johnson cautions that it is wiser not to discourage the second or third callers by letting them know you already have it. Many times one of these other persons may be the only one with the answer.

"Also, if you have the opportunity to help somebody and it enables them to reach your work level, this is a feather in your cap. If you have arrived at a certain position and you're looked up to, you have to work to make yourself realize you're not on a pedestal—just fortunate."

"Industry is competitive. You can be enthusiastic about your company and comment on people you work with, but information as far as the work is concerned belongs only on the inside."

Miss Bray is equally emphatic on another point: "If you don't know the answer to something, say so. But go on and find out."

Nancy's a goldfish or a human canvas

TORONTO (CP) — Nancy Murray has a varied career.

She plays the part of a goldfish in a goldfish bowl; she waits on tables and she does dishes.

But her favorite role is undressing and letting men use her as a human canvas.

Nancy, you see, is one of five girls at a midtown coffee house. She dances topless and lets people paint her body.

The designs the men paint on Nancy, says Colin Kerr, the coffee house manager, are simple things. "Just to tickle their fancy."

Nancy was just an ordinary switchboard operator at a large department store a few weeks ago, but now she is a six-inch nude in a goldfish bowl.

Of the girl in the bowl—the two-gallon kind with some trick mirrors—Nancy says:

"The women in the audience don't believe I'm a real girl. They think it's a film. I wave each time someone waves to me so they'll know I'm real and the men believe me. But the women don't."

But she really prefers her nights as a bared canvas.

MEN STANDOFFISH

"I like to dance under the blue spotlights after I have been painted," she says. "People like to watch me and see their designs move. They hardly ever leave when I'm dancing."

Fluorescent paints are used to ensure that the painters catch a glimpse of their portion of the canvas.

Mr. Kerr says, and Nancy agrees, that men are standoffish with topless girls.

"They never bother the girls who are bare-breasted. And no one thinks it's dirty. I feel that's a wonderful thing in men."

He says most of his clients are the successful business type ranging in age from 25 to 55. Alcohol beverages are not served and the cover charge is $4 a person.

Nancy and the four other girls range in age from 18 to 21. Nancy, who also models, works six nights a week.

She has a regular boyfriend who knows about her job.

"He just raised his eyebrows and said he would never come to see me perform."

Look for bodies

MONTREAL (CP) — Suburban Longueuil police continued to search for one or two bodies in the St. Lawrence Sea-way at the nearby St. Lambert lock.

A police spokesman said no progress had been made.

The search began Friday following the discovery of a blood-soaked blanket and a burnt-out station wagon near the seaway system.

Habs win NHL crown

Claude Ruel guides Habs to record first

Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins and Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks have created the most excitement in the National Hockey League this season, and the final day of the season was no exception.

Esposito scored his 48th and 49th goals to become the highest-scoring centre in NHL history as Boston trounced Montreal Canadiens 6-3 Sunday. Jean Beliveau of Montreal had held the record with 47 goals in 1955-56.

The Boston centre finished the season with 126 points, including 77 assists, both new highs. The record for most points in a season had been 97 by Hull and team-mate Stan Mikita, and Mikita had held the record for most assists with 62 in 1966-67.

Hull, meanwhile, scored his 58th goal of the season Sunday night to help Chicago crush Detroit Red Wings 9-5. The season high for goals had been 54 by Hull in 1965-66.

In other games Sunday, New York Rangers blasted Toronto Maple Leafs 4-0, Pittsburgh Penguins edged Philadelphia Flyers 2-1 and Los Angeles Kings and Minnesota North Stars fought to a 3-3 tie.

Saturday, Montreal took Boston 5-3, New York downed Toronto 4-2, Chicago and Detroit finished in a 1-1 tie, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia played to a 3-3 deadlock, Oakland Seals trounced Minnesota 7-2 and St. Louis Blues nipped Los Angeles 3-1.

BRUINS FINISH SECOND

The victory Sunday enabled Boston to finish second to Montreal in the Eastern Division. The Canadiens clinched first place Saturday night and won the Prince of Wales Trophy for a record 18th time.

Each member of the Canadiens receives $2,250 for finishing first.

ing first.

The Canadiens also set two team records. They won 46 games, breaking their own mark of 45 set in 1955-56, and they collected 103 points, surpassing the record 101 by Detroit in 1950-51.

The Canadiens will meet the Rangers in Montreal Wednesday and Thursday in the opening two games of the best-of-seven Stanley Cup quarter-final series in the Eastern Division. The Bruins will play fourth place Toronto at Boston Wednesday and Thursday to start the best-of-seven quarter final.

Esposito's linemate Ken Hodge also collected two goals Sunday before 14,659 at Boston to bring his season total to 45. The line of Esposito, Hodge and left winger Ron Murphy picked up seven points for a season total of 269—43 better than the previous record of 226.

Derek Sanderson and John McKenzie scored the other goals for the Bruins, who received $1,250 a man for finishing second. Montreal goals went to Mickey Redmond, with two, and ditional $500 for being the leader in the first half of the schedule and $500 for leading the second half.

The Black Hawks and the Red Wings, who missed the playoffs, Hull's 58th came with just 11 seconds left in the second period. Gordie Howe led Detroit with two goals and picked up two assists to bring his point total to 103. He joined Esposito, with 126, and Hull, with 107, as the only NHL players ever to crack the 100-point barrier.

Other Detroit goals went to Frank Mahovlich, Dean Prentice and Gary Unger. Mahovlich's goal was his 49th—his best season ever.

Only three players—Hull, Bernie Geoffrion and Maurice Richard—have ever scored 50 or more goals in a season.

TIES ASSISTS MARK

Pat Stapleton of Chicago was credited with six assists to tie the league record for assists by a defenceman in one game. It was set by Babe Pratt of Toronto in 1944.

The Chicago rearguard also finished with 50 assists, another record. Pierre Pilote, then of Chicago, and Bill Gadsby of New York established the mark of 46.

Goaltender Ed Giacomin stopped only 15 shots for the Rangers against Toronto in gaining his seventh shutout of the season.

Ron Stewart scored two goals for the Rangers and Arnie Brown and Jean Ratelle one each before 17,250 at New York.

Giacomin's shutout enabled him to finish second in the Vezina Trophy race behind St. Louis' Glenn Hall and Jacques Plante. The two St. Louis goaltenders will share $1,500 plus $250 for leading the first half of the season and $250 for leading the last half. Giacomin will get $750 in bonus money.

St. Louis goaltenders allowed only 157 goals all season while Giacomin and other New York goaltenders yielded 196. New York's victory extended its unbeaten streak at home to 18 games, tying a club record that had stood for 29 seasons. In addition, New York set team records for most victories, 41, most points, 91, and most goals, 231.

Pittsburgh, unbeaten in its last six games, finished out of the playoffs for the second consecutive year nevertheless.

George Swarbrick and Dunc McCallum scored for the Penguins while Bill Sutherland repaid for the Flyers before 5,783 at Pittsburgh.

The Penguins lost goaltender Joe Daley in the second period with a possible jaw fracture when he was hit by a drive.

Philadelphia, which finished third in the Western Division, will play the Blues at St. Louis Wednesday and Thursday in the first two games of the Western Division Stanley Cup quarter-final series.

Cowansville wins Loyola College cage tourney, edge SHS in final MONTREAL — (Staff) — Eastern Townships schools once again on the weekend proved their cage supremacy as Cowansville dumped favored Sherbrooke High 71-61 to win the Quebec Provincial Interscholastic Invitational Basketball Tournament held at Loyola College.

These two teams battled in the Visser, the weekend before with SHS winning the Provincial Association of Protestant School Administrators cage crown.

Cowansville mustered their attack this weekend with the addition of Bill Purchase, ineligible because of age in the Visser championships. Purchase, though suffering from an ankle injury, strengthened the Cowansville attack.

SHS mentor Wayne Nugent said in an interview this morning he thought his team played their best of the season in the opener when they downed heavily favored High School of Montreal but played "their worst" in the final. "It's just one of those things," said Coach Nugent.

Cowansville was led to victory by Brumfeld with 19 points followed by Hunter and Foister with 14. High men for SHS were Newton and Martineau with 17 points, followed by Dinning with 15.

Cowansville's Foister and Brumfeld, and Sherbrooke's Vic Newton were chosen to the tourney's All-Star squad. By taking three of five All-Star positions, once again the E.T. proved its hardcourt supremacy.

In their opener Sherbrooke High downed highly rated High School of Montreal (rated with West Hill and other top Montreal teams) 71-55. Vic Newton led the SHS attack with 24 points, followed by Ken Baker with 17, Webb Dinning, 12, Wayne Clowery, 10, and Jim Martineau, eight points.

High School of Montreal was led by Ryan, who played the season with the University Settlement Orchards, with 17 points, Mark 16, and Bradshaw with 10.

Cowansville advanced into the finals by edging Father MacDonald High School of Montreal 46-44 in overtime. High School of Montreal met Sherbrooke High after edging St. Thomas High 43-42.

Coach Nugent said yesterday he was elated with the response of local businessmen who generously sponsored the trip. Omitted from Friday's list of sponsors were American Biltrite, Smith-Savard Pharmacy, Hovey Florist and the Sherbrooke High School Store.

Orioles blank Pirates 5-0, Expos nip LA's B team 7-6

Baltimore Orioles Jim Palmer and Los Angeles Dodgers' Willie Davis have been running into trouble since their 1966 World Series encounter.

NLOW, Palmer appears set to do an about face after two terrible seasons. But the breaks are still going against Davis and the Dodgers.

Palmer, plagued by arm trouble since 1966 when he became the youngest pitcher ever to toss a series shutout, scattered three singles over eight innings Sunday as the Orioles soared past Pittsburgh Pirates 5-0 for a 17-3 exhibition record.

Meanwhile, Davis, whose three errors on successive plays helped Palmer and the Orioles trim Los Angeles 4-0 in the second game of their 1966 series sweep, learned he will be sidelined from three to four weeks with a hairline fracture of the right arm.

The Dodgers' centre fielder was hit in the arm by Claude Raymond of St. Jean, Que., in an exhibition game Saturday.

BRVES BEAT DODGERS

The Braves beat the Dodgers 4-2 Sunday while St. Louis Cardinals topped Philadelphia Phillies 5-3, Washington Senators downed Kansas City Royals 5-1, Boston Red Sox edged Detroit Tigers 5-4 in 12 innings, Cincinnati Reds downed Houston Astros 6-4, Chicago White Sox handled Minnesota Twins 6-4 and Montreal Expos nipped Los Angeles' B team 7-6.

Elsewhere, California Angels shaded San Diego Padres 5-3, Seattle Pilots got by the Angels' B squad 2-0, Chicago Cubs pounded Oakland Athletics 8-3 and San Francisco Giants outlasted Cleveland Indians 13-11.

Saturday, Cincinnati outlasted St. Louis 9-7, Detroit outsluged Boston 10-7, New York Yankees downed Pittsburgh 5-1, Kansas City trimmed Minnesota 4-1, New York Mets topped Philadelphia 5-2, Montreal lost to Atlanta's B team 7-3, Washington beat Houston 5-1.

Elsewhere, San Francisco cuffed Cleveland 9-5, San Diego edged California's B team 5-4, Chicago Cubs thrashed Oakland Athletics 10-4, Seattle whipped California 8-5, Baltimore pounded Chicago White Sox 11-4 and Los Angeles edged Atlanta 3-2.

The Braves Sunday spotted the Dodgers a 2-0 lead on Bill Sudakis' first-inning homer, then came back to win as Milt Pappas and Cecil Upshaw flipped hitless ball over the final seven.

POWERS THE CARDS

Rookie Joe Hague belted a two-run eighth-inning homer off Chris Short, powering the Cardinals past the Phillies, and left-hander Frank Bertaina pitched two-hit ball for five innings as the Senators finally beat an American League rival after 11 setbacks.

Reggie Smith's 12th-inning single delivered the tie-breaker for Boston. Pete Rose's three-run double in the eighth, after a lead off homer by Tony Perez, swept the Reds past the Astros.

Duane Josephson rapped a bases-loaded triple as the White Sox struck for five runs in the seventh to overtake Minnesota. A three-run eighth got Montreal past the Dodgers B's.

Pitcher Rudy May hit a grand slam homer in California's victory over San Diego but the Angels' B team managed only five hits off Diego Segui, Darrell Brandon and Bill Henry in bowing to Seattle.

Ron Santo cracked two homers, driving in five runs, as the Cubs whipped Oakland for their seventh victory in the last eight starts. Jim Davenport's two-run triple was the big blow in a six-run eighth that won for the Giants.

Chicoutimi finally stop Tigers 3-2, next game tomorrow night

CHICOUTIMI — Before a standing-room capacity crowd of 4,542 fans, Chicoutimi Saguenéens finally found the winning combination, downing Victoriaville Tigers 3-2. The Tigers now lead the best-of-seven series 3-1 with the fifth game scheduled for tomorrow night in Victoriaville. In the opening period both Chicoutimi netminder Claude Cyr and Victoriaville's goaltender Jean-Guy Morrisette were outstanding. After the first period Cyr was not heavily tested while Morrisette once again frustrated Phil Watson's charges.

In the first period, Pierre Potvin gave the Tigers a 1-0 lead on a spectacular passing play from veteran Guy Black and Labrosse.

Chicoutimi took over play in the second period, scoring twice. At 5:51 of the median frame Gordie Haworth scored from Labadie and Munger to tie the game 1-1 and four minutes later Labadie from Haworth gave Chicoutimi a 2-1 lead.

At 11:30 of the second period, club captain John Mentis received a minor penalty. On way to the penalty box, a spectator tossed a rubber at Mentis.

Mentis, angered by the move, retaliated in turn by throwing his stick into the stands and as a result two spectators were injured, one of them Claude Cyr's wife.

Clement Boudreau, who could not restrain from violently opposing the referee's work at that point, was given a misconduct and a game misconduct. The game officials were from Saguenay.

At 9:50 of the third period Serge McLean scored what proved to be the winner on passes from Labadie and Lepage. Victoriaville's always dangerous Guy Black narrowed the margin to one goal from Hardy and Marcotte at 15:48.

If Victoriaville should win tomorrow night then they must wait to meet winners of the best-of-seven series between Galt, Ont., and the Gander Flyers of the Maritimes.

1969 World Hockey tourney most successful ever-Ahearne

STOCKHOLM (CP) — John F. (Bunny) Ahearne of London, European president of the International Ice Hockey Federation, today termed the 1969 world amateur championship "the most successful in history."

"Receipts are up 70 per cent over 1963, the last time the tournament was held in Stockholm," he said.

The two weeks tournament ended Sunday night with the Russians holding on to their title for the seventh straight year by the skin of their teeth.

Goals spread gave them first place, with Sweden taking the silver medal and Czechoslovakia the bronze. All three teams finished with 16 points from 10 games.

A total of 196,299 persons watched the 30 games in the championships.

Despite the tournament's success, however, Ahearne said he still would like to see changes, possibly some of them coming in time for the 1970 championships in Canada.

"For instance, I would like to see us return to a larger goal crease, a six-foot circle instead of the little four-by-two you have now," he said. "It would afford greater protection for the goalie and the public would be able to see who scored the goals."

"I would like to see only three face-off spots, one at centre ice and one in the centre of each blueline. Why have seven as you do now, with most of them unused?"

ENLARGE END ZONES

"And I would like to see the end zones enlarged and the centre zone cut down—from 60-60-60 to 70-40-70. It would give more chance for playmaking."

"I wish I could get rid of all that freezing of the puck and, of course, I'm in favor of abolishing the red line."

If Bunny has his way, an off-side would be called whenever a player so much as touched the blueline with his stick before the puck crossed.

"And I would like to see curved bluelines, curving away from the goalies so that the wings would have a chance to stay outside during an attack."

Another Ahearne proposal is for a "small red light, mounted on a thin steel rod and extending up from the boards to warn a player he is coming to the blueline so he isn't always looking down for the line."

Hockey's Big Ten

Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins won the National Hockey League scoring title Sunday and set a record for most goals in a season by a centre.

Esposito scored his 48th and 49th goals of the season in a 6-3 victory against Montreal Canadiens to bring his final point total to 126.

Esposito's 77 assists also shattered the record for most assists in a season—62 by Mikita in 1966-67.

Mike Allatt's rink wins Labatt Mixed Bonspiel

Mike Allatt skipped his rink to victory in the Labatt Mixed Bonspiel Saturday evening when they downed Maurice Jackson's foursome 7-5 in finals of the main event.

In the consolation section Forrest Lord, of Lennoxville, rallied in the final end to nip Walter Laflamme's rink 6-5 after a close battle. The outcome was decided with the final shot in the last end of play. Skip Laflamme had built up a good house but Skip Lord pulled off a key shot to pick up one and earn the victory.

Lyn Maysenholder, local representative for Labatt's Brewery, presented the trophy to Allatt's rink and prizes to the sponsors and the Sherbrooke finalists of both sections. The Club, Harold Mooney and Lynn entry fees were presented to the Maysenholder made the Canadian Red Cross on behalf of presentation to Lorne Thomson.

Magog loses title in overtime

Senators win Provincial championship

Sherbrooke's three entries in the Quebec Minor Hockey Championships all placed in the finals yesterday at the Sports Palace, the Senators winning the provincial Mosquito crown while the City's other two finalists were heavily beaten by Montreal area teams.

In the Pee Wee division, Arvida, led by stalwart Peter Lee, downed Montreal St. Alphonse 3-1. St. Hyacinthe whipped Sherbrooke's Bantam entry 6-1 to win the division title while Lachine walloped Sherbrooke St. Francis 9-0 in the Midget final.

Magog Comets, area representatives in the Juvenile battle, were edged 3-2 in overtime by Montreal North in the most exciting match of the weekend tournament.

Sherbrooke Senators won the Mosquito title, downing Beaconsfield 3-2. Francois Proulx led the locals with two second-period goals while Denis Haltee tallied the winner at the midway mark of the third period. Beaconsfield scorers were Gregory Mulhern and Steve Morris. Beaconsfield led 1-0 after a period of play, were behind 2-1 after the second with each team scoring once in the third.

Sherbrooke advanced into the finals by way of a 1-0 default win over Seven Islands in the opener while Beaconsfield downed Montreal North 6-3.

In the Pee Wee division Arvida edged Montreal St. Alphonse 3-1 to capture the provincial championships. Peter Lee, judged by many to be the best hockey player (compared to the division's calibre) in the tournament, sparked the Arvida attack with a pair of goals and an assist.

St. Alphonse opened the scoring in the first, Daniel Murphy scoring. Peter Lee tallied the equalizer before the period ended.

Neither team scored in the second, with Arvida tallying twice in the final frame. Lee scored the third, insurance goal and assisted on the winner.

Montreal St. Alphonse advanced into the final via a 5-4 win over LaSalle. Michael Bossy scored three times for St. Alphonse in this game.

Arvida whipped Gaspe 8-0 in their tourney opener. Peter Lee scored three goals and assisted on two others to bring his tourney record to five goals and three assists in two games.

Magog opened the scoring at 9:01 of the first period. Mario Lamontagne tallying from Jean Giguere and Jacques St. Pierre.

The goal came after Montreal North had forced play deep within Magog's zone for the opening minutes of the period.

Montreal North came back in the second period to tie the game, 1-1. Daniel Gamelin from Rene Guilbault. This ended the scoring in the second period.

Montreal North went into the lead 2-1 midway through the third period on a goal by Rene Guilbault from Jacques Dube and Real Gendron.

With all apparently lost, Magog battled back and two minutes later tied the score 2-2. Pierre Beaulieu, with less than two minutes to play in the game, tallied from Mario Lamontagne.

At 8:57 of the first overtime, Andre Martineau tallied the winner from Paul Desfosses.

Montreal North advanced into the finals edging Pointe Claire 2-1. Likewise Magog advanced into the championship match via a 2-1 win over Grande Riviere. Two-third period goals by Magog accounted for the win.

At 7:00 a banquet was held at the University of Sherbrooke at which time the individual awards and team trophies were officially presented to the winning teams.

One Russian on All-Star team

STOCKHOLM (CP) — Only one Soviet player, high-scoring Anatoly Firsov, was included Sunday in the all-star team picked by news media covering the world hockey championship.

A total of 150 representatives from 16 countries voted in the traditional poll.

Jan Suchy, the Czech defence-man who broke his right index finger and missed the last two games, was given the largest margin of any of the all-star picks, receiving 144 votes.

Vladimir Dzurla of Czechoslovakia was picked as the best goalie. At right defence Suchy and at left defence Lenart Svedberg of Sweden.

Jackie McLeod's young crew turns in fine job to finish in fourth

STOCKHOLM (CP) — Jackie McLeod, coach of Canada's national hockey team, will make up his mind back in Canada whether to quit the team. His club closed out the world hockey championship Sunday night, bowing 4-2 to Russia in the game which decided the gold medal for the Russians.

"I just don't know what my plans are," he said.

"I'll make up my mind back home after I have had a chance to think about it."

This was the last year for Canada's national team under the present operation. Starting next year a group called Hockey Canada and made up of top sports figures backed by the federal government, will take over.

Hockey Canada spokesmen have said there will always be a job in the organization for McLeod and assistant coach Red Bowness.

"It would all depend on what the job is," McLeod said.

McLeod said he was not discouraged by Canada's fourth-place finish in the six-team tournament.

Sweden's win gives Russia World Hockey title on point-spread, Nats lose 4-2

STOCKHOLM (CP) — If Russia has a hockey friend, it must be Sweden, the country which made possible the last two Soviet championships.

To their sorrow, the Czechs have learned that beating the Russians won't win them gold medals as long as the Swedes are around to bar the door.

Anatoly Tarasov, co-coach of the victorious Soviet team, looked on the Swedes with particular warmth after it was all over Sunday night, and thanked them for "what they have done."

The Czechs, whose two victories over the Russians here had fired up big demonstrations in Prague, needed a tie against Sweden Sunday to clinch the world hockey championship.

But Czechoslovakia failed to rise to its best form after star forward Jaroslav Jirik was injured and Sweden got home 1-0 on a first-period goal by Roger Olsson.

The Russians followed with a 4-2 victory over Canada Sunday night, and the Soviets were world champions for the seventh straight time.

WON ON SPREAD — Russia held on to its title, however, only by the skin of its teeth, winning on higher over-all goal spread. Sweden won the second-place silver medal and Czechoslovakia the third-place bronze.

The six-country tournament was split down the middle at the finish. Russia, Sweden and Czechoslovakia were tied at the top in points with 16 apiece after eight wins and two losses.

Canada headed the bottom three, clinching fourth place with a 6-1 victory over Finland Saturday. It was Canada's best scoring performance of the tournament.

The fifth-place Finns roared back Sunday and crushed the United States 7-3. It was the 10th loss for the last-place Americans and relegated them to the B tournament for the first time in 45 years of organized world hockey competition.

The three-way tie was the only way the Russians could retain the title after losing twice to the Czechs, and they had goals to spare when it occurred. In determining goal spread, goals allowed are subtracted from goals scored.

Russia finished with a goals record of 59-23, a spread of 36. Sweden's was 45-19, a spread of 26, and Czechoslovakia's 40-29, a spread of 20.

FIRST GAME VITAL — Russia's 17-2 victory over the United States in the tournament opener March 15 proved to be vital for the Russians in the last reckoning.

Sweden, sensing the final-day deadlock, went out for goals against the U.S. Saturday and won 10-4. The bag was enough for Sweden to beat out Czechoslovakia in the goal column.

Russia's domination of world hockey started in 1963 after a battle with Sweden. Russia, despite a 2-1 loss to Sweden, took the title from the Swedes by a single goal in goal spread.

Russia followed up with the 1964 Olympic gold medal, the 1965-66-67 world titles and another Olympic gold in 1968.

Since there are no world championships in Olympic years, the gold medalist is considered the champion in the non-world title year.

At the Winter Games in Grenoble, France, last year, Czechoslovakia upset Russia 5-4, ended Russia's 38-game unbeaten string, and seemed about to win its first Olympic gold.

The Czechs needed a win over

Sweden on the last day. The best the Czechs could do was tie 2-2 and Russia got the gold by a single point, and the Czechs the silver. Canada, the bronze.

This year, the tournament was staged as a double round-robin for the first time, with six countries instead of eight as in past tournaments.

Thirty games were played over a period of 16 days, and at the end there still wasn't a clear points winner. The Russians defeated Sweden twice 4-2 and 3-2. The Swedes took the Czechs twice 2-0 and 1-0 and the Czechs made it three straight over Russia since the 1967 tournament with 2-0 and 4-3 wins here.

While the Russians thanked Sweden for its efforts, the Swedes were pulling for Canada to gain at least a tie against Russia Sunday night.

A tie would have given Sweden the gold medal. With one less point, Russia would have been out of title contention. In the event of two-way ties, the winner of both games between the tied clubs is placed ahead. That would have been Sweden.

Bill Heindl scored on a pass from Roger Bourbonnais to put Canada ahead early in the first period.

Igor Romishevsky beat goalie Wayne Stephenson from 30 feet late in the period, tying the game. Boris Mikhailov drilled another cleanly through Stephenson early in the second period and it was 2-1 for Russia.

SHOWED BEST FORM — The game could have gone either way as the young Canadian team displayed its best form of the tournament. Then two goals within 75 seconds in the third period swung it to Russia 4-1.

Alexander Maltsev's shot slid off Stephenson's stick into the net and Mikhailov followed with his second goal.

Ab DeMarco blasted Canada's second goal from the blue line with a little more than 10 minutes left. Terry Caffery got an assist.

Heindl and Caffery led the team with four goals each in the tournament, but Caffery had the most points—eight.

Canada outshot Russia 16-10 in the first period but for the game the Soviet team was ahead 38-32.

Canadian coach Jackie Mc-

Leod said it was a "toss-up" between Ken Dryden and Stephenson in goal against Russia and he went with Stephenson because he said Stephenson "had more international experience and might be calmer."

HAPPY WITH OUTCOME — McLeod refused to belittle his squad. "We came here looking for fourth place and we made it easily. I thought that with a couple of breaks in a couple of games we could have had two or three more victories and possibly place third."

"But we came with a young team—our average age is about 21—and the pressure on those kids was terrific. I'm proud of every one of them."

Canada won over Finland 5-1 and 6-1 and the U.S. 5-0 and 1-0. Canada's six losses were to Russia 7-1 and 4-2, Czechoslovakia 6-1 and 3-2 and Sweden 5-1 and 4-2.

But the team was able to score only an average of 2.6 goals while the Russians averaged almost six goals a game.

Stephenson played seven full games and a little more than a period in another.

Out front From Peugeot.

The new tough beauties

A new breed of motor cars, with the sleekness of a siamese kitten and the strength of a jungle lion, has burst upon the Canadian scene. Meet the Peugeot 204's, featuring a front wheel drive which laughs at Canadian winters, without needing snow tires. But, f.w.d. gives something more, space. You will find the 204 bigger on the inside where it counts and smaller on the outside where it costs. Through the use of a light alloy overhead camshaft engine, Peugeot engineers have seen to it that this fine motor car offers the optimum in staying power. You will find the 204 will endure even the longest trips at maximum speed. And because it has the sophisticated and unique Peugeot patented suspension, it will withstand continuous punishment even under the most adverse driving conditions. Perhaps these are some of the reasons why the Canadian Motorist called the Peugeot 204 'one of the most interesting vehicles on the North American Market.'

Peugeot. The toughest bargain you can drive.
