WESTMOUNT, THURSDAY, JULY 4, 1940

PRICE:— TWO CENTS

VALUATION FIGURE FOR JUNE IN WESTMOUNT IS LOWER; SET AT $368,515

With Exception of Verdun Figures for Montreal and District Are Lower — Comparative Figures Given — Westmount Figure In 1939 Was $374,363 and In 1938 $515,077

With the single exception of Verdun, valuation of new residential and industrial construction permits issued in the Montreal district was lower for the month of June compared with the totals for the same month of the preceding year. In Westmount the figure for 1940 was set at $368,515. In 1939 the figure in Westmount was $374,363 and in 1938 $515,077.

Aggregate value for Montreal district the month of June was $1,637,663 as against $1,509,889 for the comparative month last year, however, reflects an increase of $128,274 for Montreal and district, or 8.5 per cent, although comparison with total valuation recorded in the previous month shows a decline of "about $22,000."

Comparative permit value figures in six districts follow:

ACCIDENTS ARE REPORTED BUT DAMAGE SLIGHT

Several minor accidents were reported to Westmount police during the past week. Two cars operated by Miss Alice Brewer, 4301 Decarie Boulevard and John McCarron, 2266 St. Antoine St., collided in front of 3606 Westmount Boulevard. Damage was slight to both vehicles.

At Atwater and St. Antoine a truck operated by A. Girouard, struck a stationary bicycle belonging to Raymond Poupart, 16, 2469 Delisle who was waiting for the light signal. As an aftermath of the accident the truck driver was charged with having no registration and for operating a vehicle with defective brakes.

Stephanie Lormier, 4, 172 Selby street, was struck when she ran from the south side of St. Antoine street to the north side and was struck by a car driven by Ralph Francis, Park avenue west. The child suffered minor bruises.

Audrey Drury, 392 Roslyn, age 12, was riding a bicycle south on Metcalfe and was about to turn right and proceed west on Springfield avenue when she was involved in collision with a team. Damage was slight.

STUDENTS WILL BE HEARD AT LOCAL CHURCH

Will Also Take Part in Evening Service at Madison Baptist Church

Six young men who are students in Belmar Christian College, New Jersey, will visit Westmount over the week-end of July 7. The group is under the direction of Leymon Ketcham who is the speaker. Other members of the party are: Clyde K. Nelson, first tenor; Charles J. Fowler, second tenor; James C. Digory, first bass; C. Brooks Demerest, second bass and Russel Crawford, pianist.

For the morning service these young men will be in Madison Baptist Church, and in the evening they will be in Westmount Baptist Church. The people of the western sections of Montreal will be pleased at the opportunity of hearing these splendid young men who are devoting their holiday to this inspiring service.

Trinity Young People's Enjoy Entertainment

The Trinity Young People's Association began their summer activities recently with a "trip to nowhere" under the direction of the new program committee. A pleasant drive to Ideal Beach and two hours of dancing were enjoyed.

Another similar evening will be held on Wednesday, July 24, meeting at the church at 8 p.m.

WESTMOUNT DETECTIVE AT COURSE

NEW BRANCH OF LIBRARY WILL BE OPERATED

Announcement Made That Branch Will Open At Clondeboye Playground — Many Volumes

Announcement was made yesterday that a branch of the Westmount Children's Library will be opened at the Clondeboye playground. This branch will be in operation every Monday and Friday from half-past three until five o'clock. It is anticipated that this branch will go into operation tomorrow afternoon.

Miss G. McEwan, children's librarian, will be in charge and will be assisted by other members of the Westmount library staff.

Volumes will include picture books, for very young children, others will be suitable for boys and girls up to the age of 15 years.

The clubhouse situated on the playground will be converted into a summer office, which will be in operation during July and August. This new project will accommodate the children in the vicinity of the playground, who are unable to go to the main library.

C.A.S.F. MEMBER SAYS M.R.A. STANDS TEST

A member of the C.A.S.F. has written home to Canada saying that listening to God under a hall of bullets has been tried by men in the B.E.F. and advocates it as a part of the training for every soldier. The letter, in part, reads as follows:

"We had a great week-end and yesterday one fellow told of his first day under fire in France when he was so afraid that he forgot all about having the answer for fear. The second day of fire he listened to God and fear left him." The letter continues, "You must understand what that means, so many of us only have to face the usual problems of daily life, but think of showers of bullets! It meant a lot to me to hear that, as I was not looking forward much to the next few months and fear started to creep in. M.R.A. is the most important thing in the army. So many in military life say that dare-devil, reckless type of man is needed, but courage in danger, self-forgetfulness and sacrifice are qualities that come from complete victory over fear."

From an aircraft-carrier on the high-seas, a naval officer recently wrote home: "I know of no training which can so teach a man discipline, courage, unselfishness and initiative as learning to listen to God."

"A listening nation will be a strong nation. Telephone wires may be cut, wireless stations be destroyed, but no bombardment can stop messages from God coming through, if we are willing to receive them. To listen to God and obey Him is the highest form of national service for everybody everywhere." Brigadier-General C. P. R. Winsor, C.M.G., D.S.O.

"Listening to God is the secret the prophets knew and the one WE MUST come to know. Getting Morally Re-Armed means getting trained and equipped for that responsibility. The only difference war makes is to increase the urgency, because war is a nation at its wits-end." Cap. Maxwell MacRae, M.C. and 2 bars.

Millions are hourly tuning in to hear the news with fear and hope in their hearts. There is available to all men the priceless privilege of contact with a source of power and information which no bombardment can destroy. God's voice can be heard by everyone everywhere, in the loneliest outpost, in the din of the factory, in the civic center, shelter, home. Those who listen to that Voice find new hope, new energy, new initiative. They are endowed with an inner strength which is proof against uncertainty, hardship or bereavement. They have discovered the key to true co-operation. Not only are they empowered to give their utmost in their own special task, but wherever they go they build up in those around them the spiritual bulwarks of a nation.

WOMEN'S RESERVE CORPS ANNOUNCES MEMBERSHIP NEARING THOUSAND MARK

Applicants received From All Parts of City — Second Military Drill Held — Registration Will Continue Daily at Westmount YMCA — First Aid Lectures Started

The Women's Volunteer Reserve Corps, organized by the War Work Committee of the Westmount Women's Club has announced that its membership has now reached approximately 900. Applications are being received daily from all parts of the city and outlying districts.

The second military drill held in Queen's School, Olivier avenue was attended by more than 100 members. The first in a series of short talks on the ideals of the Corps was given by Miss Elizabeth Douglas.

"We are meeting here tonight to discuss plans about the different courses for which we want to train," she said. "We want to impress on you all the tremendous inspiration and thrill we have had from the widespread response to our idea. From the Maritime Provinces to the Pacific Coast girls and women from every walk of life—rich and poor, young and old, highly educated specialists and girls straight from high school—have answered the call for God, King and Country! And they have felt in their hearts that 'Unity of Purpose,' which is our motto."

She said it was the intention of the corps to use all the various generous offers of help as quickly as possible, in the best possible way and without over-lapping, to co-operate with other well-known organizations; accepting advice and services and generally working toward a common goal, "Victory for the right—to live right."

"We, the Women's Volunteer Reserve Corps," she continued, "are an instance of the great blessing of the sacred principles of democracy. We have been born, brought up and have reached the age of reason and under the protection of citizens of the British Empire. We have the great privilege of giving, as volunteers, our time, our talents and any resources or special training that we have, to a cause that already has our hearts."

Colonel Mrs. Harold Mills and Lt. Colonel Miss Sophie Elliott, attended a meeting at Pointe Claire on Tuesday evening, where a branch has been formed by the women of Pointe Claire and Valois. Mrs. W. F. Worfolk, secretary-in-chief addressed a group of departmental store employees, who were also anxious to join the Corps.

Practice
Drill practices will be held on Monday, Wednesday and Friday of each week. First aid classes will be conducted each Wednesday and home nursing instructions will be given on Fridays. All classes will be held in Queen's School, Olivier avenue.

The first in the series of lectures on first aid took place last night, Dr. Fred J. Tees opened the series.

Those registered for the home nursing class will meet at the home of Mrs. Fred Fraser, 421 Mount Stephen avenue, tomorrow evening from eight to 10 o'clock.

Registration will continue daily at the Westmount "Y", 4585 Sherbrooke street west from three until five in the afternoon and from seven until nine at night. All classes may be attended by members without any cost. There is no registration fee.

Westmount Girls In Need Of Donations

Westmount girls attending the Playground and summer school are urgently in need of odd lots of wool for making afghans for refugee children.

Residents desiring to make contributions are requested to bring any wool, whether new or used, to the band concert on Monday evening, where it will be collected.

ROTARY MEETING

Members of the Westward Rotary Club will hold their business meeting today at the Westmount YMCA. Dr. Johnston Abraham, the president, will be in the chair and many important matters will be discussed.

VACATIONING

Mr. Peter Tremaine, editor of the Westmount Examiner is spending his vacation at Old Orchard Beach, Maine.

HEIZLER CASE BEFORE COURT ON FINDING

Judge Finds Sufficient Evidence For Prima Facie Case—Second Charge

Steven Heizler, 35, a native of Hungary, was ordered to voluntary statement when he appeared before Judge Marin this week. The charge was grievous assault. Heizler is charged with attacking Mrs. Geoffrey Worms in her home at 370 Grosvenor avenue on June 15. It was alleged he impersonated an officer of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police searching for German aliens.

The judge was of the opinion that there was sufficient crown evidence at the preliminary hearing to make a prima facie case. Judge Tetreau will also render judgement today on a second charge against Heizler of impersonating an officer of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

GUEST PASTOR FROM ONTARIO TO BE HEARD

Rev. D. R. Morrison of Avonmore at Calvary During July—Vacation School

For the month of July the guest preacher in Calvary Church, Westmount, will be the Rev. Donald R. Morrison of Avonmore, Ont. The subject of the sermon at 11 a.m. will be "Maintaining Steadiness of Soul in a Day of Dramatic Changes," and at the evening service at 7:30 p.m. the theme will be "A Fresh Call to Humility and Repentance."

At the close of the morning service the Communion of the Lord's Supper will be observed. Tuesday, 10:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. The Red Cross Society will meet. A Church Vacation School, under the auspices of the United Church, will be held in the Church Hall each week-day morning from 9:30 to 12 o'clock for two weeks from July 3 to 17. Children of the district between the ages of 6 and 14 will attend.

IMPRISONED BY TOLLS

While it is perfectly true that the interest on the cost of the financial jamboree of the past three years has got to be paid and the government has to find the money somewhere to pay it, it seems regrettable that it has been found necessary to raise toll charges on many of the bridges of the Province and to levy tolls in some cases where passage has been free of charge hitherto. For years public bodies, including many local organizations, have been agitating to have tolls on the bridges of the Province abolished entirely on the argument that they cost the Province indirectly considerably more than the revenue they produced, and when news came that the Government was to take over all privately-owned toll bridges it was felt that, at last, we were to be relieved of this nuisance. However, the motorists were again disappointed; indeed from their point of view the situation will be worse instead of better, motorists of Montreal being especially hard hit. There is now no bridge whatever connecting Montreal with the north and south shore of the St. Lawrence that is free of toll, while on all others except the Victoria Bridge (owned by the Canadian National) and the Harbour Bridge tolls have been virtually doubled. In effect, motorists of Montreal have to pay a fine to leave the Island. These new imposts, although they will not produce a great revenue for the Province, will adversely affect hundreds of little businesses in the north that depend on summer travel from Montreal. As far as many motorists are concerned, the government will not collect either the toll at the bridge or the taxes on money spent at the northern resorts. They are going to travel less.

LICENSES, TAXES, REVENUE

The other day a local merchant doing business on a comparatively small scale like thousands of others throughout the Province, showed us a sheaf of papers he had to peruse and fill out on licenses, federal, provincial and city sales taxes, stock information, exemptions, counter orders, and so forth that had him in a maze. He was figuring he would have to hire a comparatively expensive accountant to keep him straight with the tax-collecting authorities. He didn't mind collecting taxes that were going to help us win the war; but what he objected to was the overlapping, the regulations to be digested, the forms to be completed, the exemptions to be memorized, the ambiguity and vagueness of some of the rulings. "I have to charge another tax on tobacco and cigarettes—two taxes now on a twenty package and one tax on a dime package. But I don't charge any tax on a nickel cigar, or leaf tobacco. Do I charge for a small pack of cigarettes and cigarette paper? I don't know. We charge a tax on soft drinks. But I don't know whether that applies to mineral water or alkali-seltzer or bromo. I've got to find out. Then I have to pay license charges and taxes on profits and a tax on personal income," he wailed. If it was helping the war, he didn't mind. He emphasized that point. But he wondered why the authorities didn't get together and devise some means of imposing the taxes at their source. Collect them from the manufacturer, instead of from the retailer, he argued. In the long run, the various governments concerned would benefit, because they are presently losing plenty from flabbergasted merchants some of whom are accumulating their tax money by dropping pennies into boxes with slits in the top—when it occurs to them to do so. The manufacturer, or jobber, with capable office staffs to do the work, would collect much more efficiently.

NO INCOME TAX DUPLICATION

Most residents who pay taxes (and who doesn't these days?) will rejoice at the announcement from the office of the Provincial Treasurer that the Provincial Government will not, and the Montreal City Administration will not be permitted to, benefit by the pyramiding of income tax on the new rates recently announced by Ottawa. Provincial income tax will remain at fifteen per cent of the income reported as at April 30, last, while there is a good possibility that the City impost is to be abolished altogether. Residents who paid a City income tax of three dollars last May were suddenly confronted with the possibility of having to pay one of close to fifty dollars next year, with a still higher Provincial tax on top of that. The news that no advantage will be taken of the new wartime imposts announced recently by the Federal Minister of Finance is welcome indeed! Our thanks to Hon. Mr. Mathewson.

MUSICAL SHARPS, FLATS AND NATURALS

by FRANCES GOLDMAN

July Celebrity

Great people are very often eccentric and our July selection of a famous musician must be mentioned in that category since he was a droll little character of tremendous musical talent although a very peculiar man. We are speaking of Vladimir de Pachmann, world famous pianist and renowned interpreter of Chopin, in which virtuosity no one has excelled his renditions of the Polish tone-poet. That his eccentricities are not mythical we can vouch, for since your columnist heard him play in his last Montreal recital on November third, 1924 in Windsor Hall, and with the rest of the interested audience was an amused spectator at a piano concert such as only de Pachmann could give. Sometimes artists don odd manners and do funny things just for publicity, but here was a man who had no need for such tactics because his art was so great that it was entirely unnecessary. Why did he act queerly? Why did he make his entry on the platform as a vaudeville star would do? Why, why and why?

Vladimir de Pachmann was born July 27, 1848, in Odessa, Russia, and studied at the Vienna Conservatory and also with his father, who was a professor at the Odessa University and a splendid amateur violinist. He toured the world many times and got so much admiration through his performances of Chopin's works that he gave many all Chopin recitals. He possessed a certain delicacy of touch that one could never forget and thus he became known as the greatest exponent of Chopin. Strangely enough his playing of other great masters was also very fine but

The Examiner's Hidden Titles Contest

The following are the winners of the final Hidden Titles Contest for this season. Their prizes will be received in Monday's mail. The Contest will not be resumed until September. The Editor hopes that the many winners during the past ten months enjoyed the shows at the Westmount and will continue to patronize their local theatre, as well as continuing their patronage of the advertisers in the Westmount Examiner. And if the next administration—no matter whose—is a failure patience with half-measures will be exhausted.

If the conservatives are in power, to take the blame for that failure, they will have to face somebody in 1944 much tougher than Roosevelt. Who would he be? If we are lucky, a La Follette or a La Guardia; more probably some rabble rouser, as yet unheard of.

Norman Thomas, I think, has called the turn for 1944 if the four years preceding are years of failure, whether Republican or Democratic.

"The first result of a continuance of unemployment and poverty is likely to be a rather old-fashioned reactionary movement. When that fails—and it will—the real American fascist demagogue, whoever he may be, will have his chance."

Business would not like him at all; neither would anybody else. Four more years of the New Deal is no appealing prospect, unless we can get nothing better.

But if I were a big businessman I should want to keep my alibi until I had some ideas to take its place. — Elmer Davis, Columbia commentator, in Harper's Magazine.

Sixty-two percent of the population of the world can neither read nor write. 325 million illiterates in India, 300 million or more in China and an additional million in other lands constitutes one of the most difficult problems in social reconstruction.

Editor William Allen White, the "sage of Emporia, Kansas," said at a recent Lincoln day celebration, "I feel that 10,000,000 jobless men in our land today present a problem no less menacing than was the problem of 3,000,000 slaves. The Constitution itself cannot survive where human rights are ignored. The slaves of 1940 are chained to public work which they must take or starve, just as the slaves of 1861 were chained to their masters. In the end we must solve it by seeing Lincoln's vision, a balance between our immortal declaration of human rights and an unshaken loyalty to our Constitution."

McGill University has three professors in the House of Commons. Dr. Cyrus MacMillan, D. C. Abbott, K.C., and Brooke Claxton, K.C. Mr. Abbott and Mr. Claxton shortly after their election resigned their professorships.

Chicago University is also becoming politically minded. It has contributed its share to the Washington "brain trust" and has on its faculty an alderman Prof. Paul Douglas, a member of the Congress Prof. T. V. Smith and has a vice-presidential nominee, Prof. Maynard Krueger of the department of economics, who will be the running mate of Norman Thomas the presidential candidate of the Socialist party.

The American Investors Union, a non-profit membership corporation was organized recently under the laws of New York. The membership, made up of prominent men in different parts of the United States, includes a number of professors of economics in leading U.S.A. universities. The new organization will have a four-fold program as follows:—

1. General vigilance in the investment, savings and life insurance fields;
2. Investigation of new security issues and savings plans;
3. Representation for security holders;
4. Vigilance in the field of legislation to protect the investors' interest.

the public seemed to associate de Pachmann only with Chopin. We will never forget him returning to the platform to acknowledge the tumultuous applause and then giving an exhibition of a dance before playing one of Chopin's exquisite little waltzes. During the programme he kept muttering to himself and talking to his fingers but we can forgive all these idiosyncrasies in an artist like de Pachmann. There never has been, and I am sure never will be another genius of his type again. He was married twice—first to Maggie Oakey in 1884, who divorced him in 1895 and then to Fernande Labori. He died January seventh, 1933.

ANDREW AND IMOGENE

"You aren't very nice to me," said Imogene thoughtfully.

"Nice to you? Why, I spend my life trying to anticipate your wishes," assured Andrew, smiling at her.

"Before dinner, I told you that every clock in this house was different," said Imogene. "I asked you to stop reading your paper and listen for the time on the radio, because I don't believe your watch is right either. You didn't do it. You turned on the radio and read your paper and forgot all about it!"

"Darling, you wrong me cruelly," said Andrew. "I laid down my paper as you told me. I tuned in on the best station we have. I listened carefully while a man told me, between strains from a Hawaiian guitar, how to make my hair shine like silk and give it that golden glister by washing it in somebody's soap that is made out of tung oil or turtle grease or something."

"Then the broadcast changed, with no mention of the time, and I listened to a bedtime story that would give a little child nightmares. It was all about G-men and gats, gangsters, and kidnappers, and was punctuated by the rattle of machine guns and the bang of automatics. They all got killed in the end, but they didn't say at what time."

"Then I heard all about the wars in China and Spain. They dropped bombs, dragged mutilated bodies of old women and little children through the streets, and assured me that all Europe and Asia would soon be doing it, but they never mentioned the time."

"After that I heard a doctor tell of the evils of smoking, and heard him describe the effects of the weed. He gave such a careful description of what it looks like growing, that every kid in town will be out tomorrow hunting it to make himself some cigarettes, but he neglected to tell the time."

"Then, while an announcer described the bargain sale of hats at a local department store tomorrow, a crooner crooned, his voice wavering and trembling and slurring until it made me think of an automobile skidding on an icy street, but he, too, seemed unconscious of the fact that tempus fugit and our clocks are all wrong."

"I had just about decided to change the brand of cigarettes I smoke, because an announcer assured me that all the college gals and lads are smoking another brand, and of course I want to look like a college man, and be attractive to the debutantes, but he didn't tell me the time, so I decided against the change."

"Then there were a couple of comedians who told jokes that almost moved me to tears because of their association. They were the same jokes I used to hear in the barber shop back home when I was a small boy, and most of the men who told them are dead now. The time seemed long while they were performing, but they didn't say what time it was."

"Then I heard a lot about the political situation in Russia, and what they were going to do in Spain for the Leftists if Mussolini didn't stop flirting with Hitler and devaluing the 'kopek' or something, all of which had nothing to do with the time of day, which nobody mentioned."

"I learned what to do for a hacking cough, how to get the best value for my used car, where to go for the best golden brown fried chicken, how to trade in the old motor boat on a new one, and where to buy my Christmas presents on the dollar down and dollar a week plan, and then I had a bright idea!"

"I know!" said Imogene. "You remembered that the radio has a turner-offer."

RAISING MEN FOR SERVICE WITH GUARDS

Mobilization of the Fourth Division, Canadian Active Service Force, has seen one of the Dominion's proudest fighting units called upon to raise a battalion for overseas service — His Majesty's Canadian Grenadier Guards. Steeped in the traditions and customs generally associated with Household Troops, the Montreal unit is now calling for recruits of a high standard to bring the battalion up to war strength.

Within the next week or so, various towns throughout the Province of Quebec will be visited by a travelling recruiting unit representing the Guards, which is to take up a position in the main part of the towns visited and offer information concerning the Regiment, army pay and allowances and send recruits to Montreal to be medically examined.

This method of out-of-town recruiting was inaugurated by the old 87th Battalion, Canadian Grenadier Guards, during the last war and judging from results obtained in the rural areas, the present battalion will experience little trouble in recruiting its company or more through this medium. Men joining the Guards from these towns are to be kept together during their elementary training and, if there are sufficient numbers, it is intended to form platoons from the various towns. In this way, recruits will be kept with their friends and soldier with their associates of civilian life.

Many young men of excellent calibre residing in these areas are anxious to serve their country in some capacity but are not in a position to travel to the cities to enlist. Under the arrangements to be made by the Guards, it will be possible for them to make all necessary enquiries before enlisting. Pending is the probability that men enlisting will be brought to Montreal via regimental vehicle. In conformity with the stern prerequisites for recruits joining the British Grenadiers, the Canadian unit is setting a high standard for aspiring soldiers with height standard set at 5'8" in stocking feet and the necessity of a sound physique and intelligence. While these measures mean that the task of raising a battalion will be a more difficult one, the result will be a crack fighting unit crediting the Province of Quebec.

The presence of a detachment from the Canadian Grenadier Guards in the rural areas of Quebec will recall memories to the thousands of inhabitants of the last war when the Guards sent out the same type of travelling units. Out of these towns came some of Canada's best fighting men and these districts can point with pride that they, as much as anyone, were responsible for the admirable war record acquired by the Guards.

THE SPORTSCASTER

The Royals lost their initial game of the season to the Swans by the score of 11-7. The Swans, a much improved team than at the beginning of the season, were too strong for their rivals in last night's tilt. Geo. Hanson pitched his team to the win and was also outstanding at bat obtaining 4 of his team's hits. Ken Strachan was also the leader at bat with 4 hits. John Eaves and Owen Clarkson each received 2 hits while the others went to Coleman, N. Harris and Thornber. Hanson received excellent support from his team with Ken Strachan playing exceptionally well at second. Bert Dalzell led the Royals' batting securing 3 hits. Des Browne hit a home run and a single, while Bill Whillcock also had two hits. Ossie Dalzell and Don Maher got the remaining Royal hits. In the other game the Grads beat the Granites 4-3. John Crobin pitched the Grads to victory, his second win of the season.

Britain Is Told Food Stocks Are At Highest Peak

Some of Britain's most vital food stocks "are greater than they have been at any time in the history of our country," the British Food Minister, Lord Frederick James Woolton, said recently.

Lord Woolton said the public need not fear about supplies "until I impose fresh restrictions."

The Health Ministry ordered the removal of 9,000 school children from Southampton, Gosport and Portsmouth, on the southern coast, to other and safer areas.

Authoritative British sources predicted that a "fundamentally weak" Germany would begin to break up next winter.

"There will be famine in Europe and a desperate Germany with Italy in tow will be spending her dwindling strength on holding down and holding together a transient empire which will have begun to go to pieces" these sources said.

Britain, on the contrary, was pictured as a "fundamentally strong" Nation able to draw on the Empire, the Americas, and the United States industrial plants capable of turning out planes and guns "in astronomical numbers."

Montreal firms to the number of 934 are now cooperating with the Provincial War Savings Committee at 803 Aldred Building in making available to their employees the purchase of War Savings Stamps and Certificates through regular deductions from salaries and wages.

In announcing these latest figures, recently, Napoléon Charest, Provincial Chairman, said that in one of the companies the employees were investing almost eight per cent of their total earnings to help the country.

"I have letters from a considerable number of firms," said Mr. Charest, "which state that 100 per cent of their employees are enrolled under the wage reduction plan."

Mr. Charest read a letter from the Secretary of the Montreal Board of Trade, which said in part: "Mr. S. Wiener, a large importer, has ordered and paid for a War Savings Certificate for each of his employees, for the purpose as he advised his staff, of inspiring in all a consciousness of our duty towards the war effort. Try to promote this spirit among your friends and prevail upon each individual who can possibly spare any savings to invest in War Certificates or stamps and thus help our Government to secure for us and our children the liberties which we now so happily enjoy."

A highly successful Saturday used-clothing collection was made by the Boy Scouts of Aurora, Ont., under the sponsorship of the Board of Trade.

Northern Ireland has started a new war on bootleggers.

GRENADIERS TO RECRUIT MEN OF A-1 CALIBRE

Active recruiting for the ranks of His Majesty's Canadian Grenadier Guards, C.A.S.F., recently mobilized with the Fourth Division, is now under way at Montreal, with many vacancies still open for young men of excellent calibre and physique who wish to serve their country with the armed forces. The senior volunteer militia regiment of the whole British Empire, the Guards, are calling for men of 18 to 45 years, at least 5'8" of height in stocking feet and in perfect health.

While these demands seem unnecessarily strict, they are in observance with the rigid prerequisites set by Guard regiments all over the world. No matter what army, no matter what country, Guards have always been admired and envied as the acme of military perfection. In the British Army, the 1st Regiment of the Grenadier Guards is the senior of all foot and line regiments. Allied with this famous unit are the Canadian Grenadier Guards, who enjoy the same precedence in this country. Gone are their proud scarlet jackets and bearskins, gone their impressive ceremonial parades, at least for the duration of hostilities. Now they are in the drab khaki of battle-dress, complete with modern equipment so necessary to the modern infantry battalion.

As was the custom of the old 87th Battalion, Canadian Grenadier Guards, during the last war, the present regiment are sending a travelling recruiting unit to the various towns and districts outside of Montreal to encourage young men to join the army and serve their country. The results obtained by the 87th, both in number and quality of recruits, have prompted Lieut. Col. M. F. Peller, E.D., Lieut. Colonel Commanding, to adopt the same policy.

While the schedule has not been announced as yet, it is expected that the unit will be on the road sometime around the end of this week, visiting towns in Eastern Townships. Persons interested in joining the Guards will find information as to army pay and allowances obtainable at the recruiting truck. Following enlistment, all recruits will be sent to Montreal, where they will appear before a medical board.

A bird sanctuary around Christopher Lake in Saskatchewan was started this spring by the Boy Scouts of the district. They made and placed numerous bird houses.

Smiling London schoolboys gave the Tommy's famous "thumbs up" when they were recently evacuated from Britain's bomb-threatened capital for second time since war's start. American aid was recently pledged in caring for children, if plans go through to ship thousands of British youngsters to safety of Western Hemisphere.

South Americans Stirred By Italy's Role In Paris Fall

Popular feeling against Germany and Italy has increased somewhat since the fall of Paris the cultural Mecca of all Latin Americans. No single incident of the European war has affected southern citizens so much. Pro-French demonstrations were reported from many parts and there were renewed protests against the totalitarian allies.

Five thousand Colombian students marched through streets of Bogotá, the Capital city, singing the "Marseillaise." Voices were raised loud against European dictators and showers of brick descended on German and Italian offices and stores. An emergency police service was organized to cope with the demonstration, and later guards were accorded the threatened business quarters.

A group of politicians, bankers, and traders drew up a declaration of protest against the German invasion, while the newspaper El Tiempo called for "a new crusade to reconquer Paris for humanity, on the style of the old crusades to rescue Jerusalem." Many young Colombians have registered at the French Legation as military volunteers.

Stores Daubed With Paint

In Guayaquil, Ecuador, German and Italian stores were smeared overnight with blotches of crimson paint. The Italian Consulate was similarly treated. Ladders were used so that the signs should be high and durable. The authorities intervened to prevent an anti-totalitarian meeting.

The demonstrations were even more serious in La Paz, Bolivia, where early morning groups surrounded the German and Italian legations, which were stoned. Windows were broken and considerable damage inflicted before the arrival of strong police guards.

Italian grocers, bakers, and butchers in Santiago and Valparaiso, Chile, reported a boycott movement against them. One grocery store in Los Leones, a Santiago suburb, lost 60 customers the day after Premier Mussolini's war declaration. Chileans as well as foreigners are participating in the boycott.

Italian Opinion Divided

Argentine authorities, especially those of Buenos Aires, where there is a large Italian population, took security precautions immediately on war declaration. No information so far has been disclosed as to the measures adopted. The first case of sabotage attributed to local Fascists was that of bombs exploded on the British steamer Gascony. In Montevideo, across the Plate River, damage to a British railway station was believed to have been caused by similar elements.

Not all local Italians agree with Rome policy. A manifesto issued by the Comité Italia Libre, representative of large sections of Italian residents in Buenos Aires, recalled the "stabbed in the back" phrase of President Roosevelt. It declared:

"Our souls are torn by the infamy with which the author of these crimes—the murder of Matteotti and the war on France and England—stains the fair name of Italy. We trust these words will bring light to those of our unfortunate brothers who are being forced to go to war. 'Soldiers of Italy: Our country's enemy is not in Paris, nor in London. The only, the real enemy of Italy is in Rome.'"

The demonstrations were even more serious in La Paz, Bolivia, where early morning groups surrounded the German and Italian legations, which were stoned. Windows were broken and considerable damage inflicted before the arrival of strong police guards.

Italian grocers, bakers, and butchers in Santiago and Valparaiso, Chile, reported a boycott movement against them. One grocery store in Los Leones, a Santiago suburb, lost 60 customers the day after Premier Mussolini's war declaration. Chileans as well as foreigners are participating in the boycott.

Italian Opinion Divided

Argentine authorities, especially those of Buenos Aires, where there is a large Italian population, took security precautions immediately on war declaration. No information so far has been disclosed as to the measures adopted. The first case of sabotage attributed to local Fascists was that of bombs exploded on the British steamer Gascony. In Montevideo, across the Plate River, damage to a British railway station was believed to have been caused by similar elements.

Not all local Italians agree with Rome policy. A manifesto issued by the Comité Italia Libre, representative of large sections of Italian residents in Buenos Aires, recalled the "stabbed in the back" phrase of President Roosevelt. It declared:

"Our souls are torn by the infamy with which the author of these crimes—the murder of Matteotti and the war on France and England—stains the fair name of Italy. We trust these words will bring light to those of our unfortunate brothers who are being forced to go to war. 'Soldiers of Italy: Our country's enemy is not in Paris, nor in London. The only, the real enemy of Italy is in Rome.'"

Italy's Seizure Of Medici Villa Ends Historic Era

Italy's seizure of the historic Villa Medici in Rome, disclosed by reliable sources here recently, brings to a close French tenancy of the picturesque building and gardens which began when Napoleon acquired the property for the French Art Academy in 1803.

The villa, which is decorated with ancient reliefs, including some from the Ara Pacis, was erected about the middle of the sixteenth century by Annibale Lippi for Cardinal Ricci da Montepulciano. It came into the possession in 1605 of Cardinal Alessandro de' Medici who for a few months was Pope Leo XI, and subsequently belonged to the Grand Dukes of Tuscany.

The French Academy, which was founded in 1665 by Colbert under Louis XIV, was originally located in the Palazzo Capranica della Valle, later being moved to the Palazzo Salviati in the Corso, then known as the Nevers Palace.

HORS-DOEUVRE

Hollywood, July 3—George Raft's widely-publicized wooing of Montreal's Norma Shearer has hit a snag—in case you're interested. Raft is currently in New York, backing nags at the eastern tracks. . . . Film critics for Berlin's Staats-Zeitung and Rome's Il Progresso are brothers—named Cohen! . . . Forty-eight hours out of Lisbon, Alexander Korda reached town this week and announced plans for fall filming of a celluloid biography of Hernando Cortez, Merle Oberon will star. . . .

Battle scenes have been deleted from most newsteels currently showing. Since the collapse of France, newshawks abroad have been able to get little of interest except official handouts of the Fascist propaganda departments. . . . Canada's All-American actor, Raymond Massey, signed with Warner Brothers Monday to play John Brown in "Santa Fe Trail." He will report for work as soon as "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" closes on the road. . . .

SOUP

Philanthropic Highlight of the Week:—When a panhandler touched Alfred Vanderbilt for a nickel for a cup of coffee Monday night, Vanderbilt handed the fellow a dollar with the following admonition: "Go get yourself a percolator and stop bothering people!"

Funny? I don't think so, either.

ENTREE

Press Previews this week brought forth two happy items, both well-tailored to current demand.

20th Century executives smiled brightly Saturday night as reporters paid homage to "Maryland," the first presentable picture to emerge from Darryl Zanuck's plant in several weeks.

Beautifully photographed in Technicolor, this film reminds one of its predecessor, "Kentucky." It is the tale of an old-line southern family, to whom the foaling of a colt and the birth of a child are of equal importance. John Payne turns in a sterling performance as the lad who rides his family's colors to victory in the Hunt Club Chase; and Brenda Marshall, Hattie McDaniel and Charles Ruggles all add to the picture's success.

Garnished with horses and hounds, racing and romance, color and comedy, "Maryland" is a tasty cinematic dish.

In "Andy Hardy Meets Debutante," Mickey Rooney continues to mug his way to fame. After bragging of his romance with a glamor gal whom he has never met, Andy finds it necessary to be photographed with the damsel or face exposure in his school magazine. Needless to say, he surmounts all obstacles and emerges triumphant.

Diana Lewis—William Powell's 22-year-old wife—plays the debutante; and a four-year-old riot, Clyde Willson, almost steals the show. Toronto's Ann Rutherford looks pretty; Fort William's Cecilia Parker looks prettier — and Judy Garland outshines them both with a stunning smile and two swivable ditties. Needless to say, however, top honors go to Master Rooney, and that great American thespian keeps things moving swiftly.

"Andy Hardy Meets Debutante" is fine screen fare. It will help you forget the headlines for 90 minutes.

Liberty Bell To Ring Again

The historic Liberty Bell, at Philadelphia, was rung again yesterday. It emitted 13 thuds under the rubber mallet of young Margaretta Dunne, a great-great-great granddaughter of Benjamin Franklin.

The ceremony, an official part of the Republican National Convention, was planned to remind delegates from the 48 States, assembled just outside Independence Hall, that their activities in this year 1940 bear a definite relation to the principles enunciated here by the Founding Fathers more than a century and a half ago.

"Alas, how the world today is being robbed of the truth taught by the men who created our Republic," lamented John Hamilton, Chairman of the Republican National Committee. "Are we also, here in the land of democracy's birth, failing to uphold the principles that for a century and a half enlightened the world and heartened mankind?" he inquired.

"These delegates and alternates 2,000 strong, from every section of the Nation, meet to make free choice of a leader whom they intend to elevate to the Presidency by the free votes of American citizens," he added. "It is a privilege remaining to few peoples today. The action of our Convention," he promised, "will be upon the high plane which holds that 'he serves his party best who serves the country best.'"

Former Senator George Wharton Pepper of Pennsylvania recalled the sage advice of Dr. Franklin to a woman who stepped up to him out of an anxious crowd on the steps of Independence Hall to ask, "What have we got—a republic or a monarchy?"

Franklin replied to her, "A republic, if you can keep it so."

"Within the last seven years, we have come to realize more clearly than ever," declared Mr. Pepper, "why wise old Dr. Franklin issued the solemn warning implied in his big 'if.'"

He described the Republican Party as alone able to abolish class hatreds and to accomplish adequate preparedness, holding that "the failure of the Democratic Administration in time of peace is a poor passport to public confidence in time of peril."

umnn will contain happy hints for fortune hunters. . . . Talking of figures, Fred Allen will get $100,000 for his work in the forthcoming film with Jack Benny. Allen lives two blocks from this office in a two-room apartment. He has no car, no servants, and his wife does all the cooking. . . . And that's the Hollywood menu for today. Adios. . . .

Young Girl Needs Coiffure That Is Simple, Flattering

So there's rebellion in the house and daughter is threatening all kinds of things unless you release her from pigtail childhood? She should have the right kind of hair-style; and the Hollywood expert who guided Deanna Durbin and others through their difficult years tells how, through Hildegarde Fillmore, in McCall's for July:

"If your daughter is in the transition stage, help her find a new hair-do that is simple, flattering and natural. This problem that comes up often in Hollywood, with child movie players. It has been solved many times by Emily Moore, the hair stylist who has handled the 'difficult' years of Deanna Durbin, Gloria Jean, and Helen Parrish.

"Miss Moore says, 'The secret is to match the changing contours of your daughter's face.'

"If she has a square chin, like Helen Parrish's, the suggestion is made that she wear her hair fairly long, with a pompadour over the forehead. Helen Parrish does not look well with bangs or short hair because of her strong jaw.

"Perhaps your daughter has a round face and pointed chin, as Deanna Durbin had when she played in 'Three Smart Girls.' For that period, Miss Moore dressed Deanna's short hair with a centre part, bringing it back smooth and straight from the sides and forehead with a ribbon, and letting it fall back in a frame of curls. This mass of curls balanced the chin prominence. As her face rounded out, Deanna's hair was allowed to grow longer. She had it parted on the side, with the hair raised in a deep wave from the side and finished in a bunch of curls on top. Now, in her last picture, 'It's a Date,' Deanna's face has lengthened and an oval. She no longer needs the balancing height over forehead, so her hair is set in loose waves and softly curled ends.

"Hair that is straight and sleek may be trained so that the ends roll under or up; and the top, if it's swept up, will offset round face contours. Many girls with plain features and straight hair do not need a permanent wave for curliness—but they do need it to give the hair body, to make it easier to dress.

"With small features, avoid an over-long coiffure. Strive for a soft simple frame of curls at the neckline. A prominent nose is balanced by a soft fringe or puff of bangs on the forehead. Strong, heavy features on a young girl require a natural-looking coiffure with the softening effect of wide waves.

"Girls love hair gadgets, and Miss Moore believes that barettes and combs can be skillfully placed to fill an awkward spot or break a harsh hairline. Youngsters nowadays wear many bows—little bows and big bows, bows with streamers, bows of lace. A small bunch of fresh flowers, worn in the hair is always enchanting with party dresses.

"Of course, the hair care of young Hollywood players is a serious matter, and it should be just as serious for every other young star. Miss Moore herself is fast about shampoos, and an advocate of brushing. The hair of the stars is brushed dry before setting. The next step is to dampen it then set the wave with large pin curls. After these are dry, brush again, and then brush the curls into place. She uses a comb only for smooth parts of the hair and arranging short curls. The brush technique is what preserves the 'soft look' of the transition hairdress."

HOLLYWOOD
GOSSIPSIt Took Three Hours to Make Up Witch Doctor

Ann Sothern's make-up was completed in less than an hour for her starring role in "Congo Maïse," but extras were allotted two hours, and an African witch doctor got three.

That was the schedule of Jack Dawn, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer make-up expert, who undertook one of the hardest make-up tasks in his twenty-year career for the jungle drama which opens Sunday at the Monkland United Theatre.

He reproduced the voodoo signs, good luck charms, marks of courage, lines of sorrow and the tribal insignia on the eighty-odd extras who appear as the excited natives.

"While we do our embroidery on cloth, the African does his on his own flesh," explained Dawn. "We had to reproduce these designs through the art of make-up and make them look as if they were part of the actual flesh itself."

Dawn and his assistants painted a white stripe, which seemed to be ingrained into the flesh, on the arms of a native woman. "She is a widow," he explained, "and must wear her badge of sorrow on her arm."

Another six-foot-four extra had an intricate design of circles, stripes and triangles moulded on his back. This was done in layers with plastic cosmetics, which bring the designs out in bold relief.

"These welts of 'cicatization' represent not only adornment, but courage," Dawn said. "And well they might. It is difficult to imagine the pain the natives undergo while deep cuts are made in the flesh. It must also be remembered that the still more painful process of retarding the healing of the wound, so as to obtain highly raised scars, must also be endured."

Fine Cast For Excellent Show

A curse that persisted through the ages and a love that could not be defeated by misfortune and disaster are outstanding dramatic features of Universal's "The House of the Seven Gables," now heading the bill at the York United Theatre.

The picture is a screen dramatization of Nathaniel Hawthorne's famous novel of the same name, one of the great classics of American literature.

In the featured roles are Margaret Lindsay as Hepzibah Pyncheon; Vincent Price as Clifford Pyncheon, her distant cousin; George Sanders as his brother, cruel and grasping Jaffrey Pyncheon; Nan Grey as Phoebe Pyncheon, and Dick Foran as Matthew Maule.

Theatregoers will find few changes in the screen version of the unforgettable tale of Salem, Mass., and these only for the sake of greater dramatic interest and screen-story-telling.

Authentic Reproduction
The producers have faithfully duplicated the historic House of the Seven Gables, still standing on the Turner street, in Salem, where it has been since 1668. At the present time it is serving as a museum in which many relics of the Hawthorne family are displayed.

Hundreds of authentic pieces of early American and Colonial furniture, kitchen and tableware were obtained to dress the settings of the interior of the famous House of the Seven Gables, locale of most of the action. Old plans and drawings and recent photographs of the house were studied in order that details of the structure could be authentically reproduced.

BREAKS LEG, WALKS

William Boyd, star of the Paramount Harry Sherman production, "Three Men From Texas," one of the "Hopalong Cassidy" series, broke his right ankle in two places, but was put in a cast which allows him to stand on the injured foot. His physicians forbid him to work before the cameras for two months, however.

"TIL WE MEET AGAIN"

Pat O'Brien, Merle Oberon and George Brent in a scene from the film "Til We Meet Again," which opens at the Westmount United Theatre Sunday playing until Tuesday.

"THE DOCTOR TAKES A WIFE"

Loretta Young and Ray Milland are co-starred in "The Doctor Takes a Wife," which opens at the York United Theatre starting Saturday playing until Tuesday.

Louis King, director of Paramount's "Typhoon," starring Dorothy Lamour and Robert Preston, is a brother of Director Henry King, who did 20th Century-Fox' "Stanley and Livingstone."

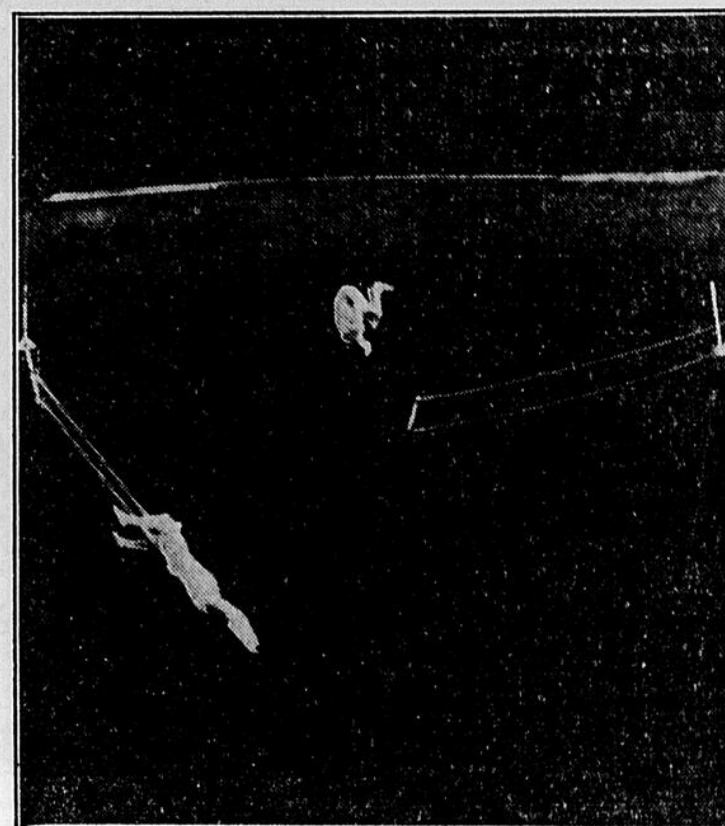

PROTRACTED HERO
William Boyd today began his sixth year as star of Paramount's Hopalong Cassidy series, produced by Harry Sherman, when the actor stepped into his hero role in "Three Men From Texas."

Ray Milland and Evelyn Drew in a scene from the record-breaking comedy attraction "French Without Tears," which is now in its fourth and final week at the Snowdon United Theatre.

AT BELMONT PARK NEXT WEEK

"The Flying Behees" in sensational trapeze stunts at Belmont Park starting Monday.

Jean Arthur Is Kissed Plenty

It's nice work, and Fred MacMurray had it. Lavishing close to 100 kisses a day for more than a week upon the lips of lovely Jean Arthur properly does not come under the heading of "work."

But Columbia paid for the ocular endeavor, which figures prominently in "Too Many Husbands," brightly new romantic comedy now playing at the Westmount United Theatre, with Miss Arthur, MacMurray and Melvyn Douglas. Wesley Ruggles directed the film, from Claude Binyon's

FLYING BEHEES
TO BE FEATURED
THE BELMONT PARK

Representing a younger generation in the daredevil world, The Flying Behees, sensational trapeze artists, will be the free outdoor attraction at Belmont Park starting Monday afternoon. The Flying Behees, two men and a girl, occupy a foremost position among aerialists. Formerly featured with the Ringling Bros.-Barnum & Bailey circus for a number of years, they will present at Belmont Park a fast-moving routine of manoeuvres on a flying trapeze... thrilling stunts accompanied with the poise and assurance of master-aerialists.

The Thrift Stop and Shop Kiddies' Days, which have been taking place these past few days, will definitely terminate on Saturday. Children wishing to visit the Park are requested to secure their guest tickets from their nearest Thrift Stop and Shop store. Tomorrow, Friday, the staff and officials of Henry Birks and Son and members of the Southwestern Y.M.C.A. with friends will hold their picnic at Belmont Park.

The Peaches Sky Revue, which has been thrilling patrons of the Park for the past two weeks will terminate its engagement on Sunday evening. This is undoubtedly the most elaborate aerial act ever seen locally. For perfect relaxation from the cares, trials, and tribulations of a troubled world, a visit to Belmont Park is the ideal tonic where fun and hilarity reign supreme. And at night, dance to the entrancing strains of Stan Wood's augmented orchestra in the beautiful dance pavilion.

screen version of the W. Somerset Maugham play.

Stanley Dunn, property man assigned to the picture, estimated that MacMurray planted more than 700 solid kisses on Miss Arthur's lips in the first eight days of filming.

Douglas, who co-stars with Miss Arthur and MacMurray, ran the latter a poor second in the kissing department, according to Dunn. Even so, Dunn estimates Douglas had kissed Jean nearly 100 times in eight days.

Dunn claimed "Too Many Husbands" the "kissiest picture" he ever worked on. He likes it. So did MacMurray and Douglas. Miss Arthur refused to be quoted.

Famous Stage Play Comes To The Snowdon Theatre

George M. Cohan's stage success, "So This Is London," is brought to the screen with Robertson Hare, Alfred Drayton, and George Sanders in the starring roles. The picture, as 20th Century-Fox release, is coming to the Snowdon United Theatre this Sunday.

The flavor and pungency of the famous Cohan play is said to be retained in its entirety, but the scope of the play is broadened. Both sides of the Atlantic Ocean are used as background for the hilarious comedy farce, and the characters are equally at home on the decks of the Queen Mary.

Boasting a strong supporting cast, the merry film is a series of laugh provoking incidents—a blonde somnambulist who climbs out of hotel windows—and an English Lord and an American tycoon who try to out-doublecross each other. And to top it off there is a crooked inventor who tries to doublecross them both.

There's fun from beginning to end when the discovery of a new vitamin unites the heads of two great companies in an attempt to buy the exclusive rights to the formula. The Englishman won't tolerate Americans, and the American detests Englishmen.

Blonde Carla Lehmann and handsome Stewart Granger provide an interestingly different romance. Carla is the American daughter while Stewart is the British Peer's son, and they have enough trouble in understanding each other without the animosity their parents hold for each other.

Featured in the supporting cast are: Berton Churchill, Fay Compton, Lily Cahill, Mavis Clair, Ethel Revnell, and Gracie West.

Thornton Freeland directed the film from a screen play by William Conselman which was based on George M. Cohan's play "So This Is London," by Arthur Goodrich.

BUYS MOUNTAIN VIEW

Director James Hogan is so enthusiastic about Arizona's Superstition Mountain country as background for his new Paramount picture "Texas Rangers Ride Again" that he has bought a ranch in the locality where the mountain is framed in his front window.

BUY LOCOMOTIVES

WESTMOUNT STILL HOLDS LEAD IN SNOWDON SOFTBALL LEAGUE; EASTWARDS MOVE UP CLOSER

While Westmount still retains the lead in the senior Snowdon Softball league, Eastwards moved within half a game of the top team Tuesday night through their victory against Nats 5-0.

It was Phil Breen's three hit pitching that accounted for the margin of difference between the two clubs, while Eastwards were garnering eight hits off Tuckwood. Breen and Francoeur rapped out homers.

It was the fifth consecutive loss for Nats despite the fact they were bolstered in their last tilt by Emil Heckman, former shortstop of Snowdon Stars.

Tonight, Westmount will meet Adanacs.

The score:

Eastwards

Request Made To Accommodate Refugee Kiddies

The British Federation of University Women have communicated with the Canadian Federation of University Women asking that the members take refugee children into their homes. A similar request has also been sent to the Australian Federation. The refugees would be children of the British members. These children would be brought out under the government scheme.

Montreal Graduates willing to take one of these children into their homes are requested to contact Miss Thelma Mitchell, 5368 Monkland avenue, vice-president of the McGill Alumnae Society, who will send their names to Senator Carrine Wilson, chairman of the Refugee Committee, and to the Federation of University Women.

BALL LEAGUE SCHEDULES ARE REVISED

The City Senior Amateur Baseball League as well as the intermediate league have revised their baseball schedules which have just been issued anew by the heads of their respective loops. The senior league had to revamp its schedule on account of the decision of the Dopolavoro team to discontinue operation after Italy entered the war.

In its game with Columbus last Friday night, Verdun lost 3-0 despite the fact that Lefty Viau gave up but a single hit. The Irish nine scored its three runs in the sixth inning on errors. Lorne Shepard was the winning hurler and the only batter to pry a hit off Viau.

Score by innings:
N.D.G. 010 031 400—9 14 7
Stars 803 000 01x—12 11 2

The new schedules are as follows:

July 5—Columbus vs. N.D.G.
July 8—Verdun vs. St. Ann's.
July 10—St. Ann's vs. Columbus.

July 12—Verdun vs. St. Ann's.

TYPICAL LAURENTIAN SCENE

The tranquility of the beautiful resorts in the Laurentians is vividly illustrated in the above scene. Vacationists will find many such ideal spots to enjoy the delights of the famous mountain area.

Eastern Townships Have Every Facility To Enjoy

Dotted with pretty towns and villages, with silver streams and golden highways winding through the gently undulating hills and green valleys, the Eastern Townships region is one of the beauty spots of North America, and one of the most popular vacation-lands. Every attraction designed to catch the fancy of the holiday-maker is provided, and the many fine hotels and boarding houses have earned a wide reputation for hospitality and homelike atmosphere.

Only a few hours' drive from Montreal, the various towns of this district may be likened to the hubs of wheels with roads going off like spokes in every direction, beckoning the motorist and hiker and promising excitement and adventure. The many streams provide hours of entertainment for the angler, and every form of recreation may be enjoyed to the utmost, from golf and tennis to dancing and boating.

Regarding tennis, there is ample accommodation for enjoying this healthful and entertaining sport at practically every hotel and boarding house in the territory. Golf courses abound and the green fees are extremely reasonable.

Lake Memphremagog, one of the show-places, is 30 miles long and from one to four miles wide. Its western shore, bold and mountainous, is in striking contrast to the cultivated slopes of the eastern shore.

To the north, Mt. Orford stands out like a sentinel over the lake. To the south Owl's Head rising from the very water's edge looks down upon its surface studded with a score of islands of various sizes.

The Steamer Anthemis stopping at Knowlton's Landing twice daily, gives an opportunity for delightful sails on Lake Memphremagog. The trip to Newport is well worth while.

There are frequent moonlight excursions. The steamer accommodates motor cars as well as passengers.

House Group Favors 15,000 Naval Planes

After hearing testimony that 10,000 planes would not be adequate for a proposed two-ocean fleet, the House Naval Committee recommended today a Navy Air Force of 15,000 planes.

The testimony was given by Rear Admiral John H. Towers, Chief of the Naval Air Corps, who recalled that a lately enacted law put a 10,000 plane ceiling on the Navy. But that, he reminded the committee, was before a new $4,000,000,000 expansion of the fleet, designed to give it the size of a two-ocean Navy, was projected.

Laurentian Country One Of The Most Beautiful

The Laurentian country, one of the most beautiful and unspoiled holiday fields in the North American continent, lies at the back door of Montreal. But a few short hours' drive takes one to the heart of this land of green, rolling hills, pleasant valleys, winding rivers and tree fringed lakes, where the soft breezes are heavy with odours of balsam and spruce and pine, and where the cool, dark forests and rippling streams abound with game and fish.

According to geologists the mysterious fascination of great age hangs over these mountains, but mighty ice caps have harrowed their sides, and have polished a chronicle of themselves on the scattered rocks which abound in this great region.

The camps of the Indians, wise with centuries of nature lore in their blood, were scattered throughout the million acres of this natural park which stretches for a thousand miles north to Hudson's Bay.

The highest point of the range is Mount Tremblant, rising 3,400 feet above the sea, known to the Indians as 'Manitou Ewicheh Saka.' Many of the Indian camps have now been replaced by modern hotels, where excellent bathing, dancing, bridge, golf, tennis, riding and motoring may be thoroughly enjoyed.

Others have been taken over to provide complete facilities for those who prefer to spend their vacations hunting, and fishing in some of the 35,000 lakes, and virgin forests, of the Laurentians.

For the angler, trout and bass are abundant. The glistering denizens of mountain streams provide plenty of thrills, and a good catch almost any day of the season can be depended upon.
