TROUBLE AT DYE.

The Miners are Fighting Among Themselves.

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 7.—A syndicate of cautious business men of Seattle who contemplated sending several prospectors to the Klondike first took the precaution of sending an experienced man to personally into affairs there and report on the situation. A. S. Gross, who has had a great deal of experience in prospecting and of packing in the Northwest Territory, was chosen for this mission. He returned today and advises that no movement be made till spring, when it will be possible to accomplish the trip with some degree of satisfaction.

He said that the miners camped at the passes were the craziest crowd of men he ever saw outside of a lunatic asylum, and it was his opinion that not more than 5 per cent could get through. The whole trouble was attributable to ignorance of camp life and packing over trails that had scarcely been blazed and were so narrow that two abreast could not pass with safety. The system of establishing camps along the trail and packing from one to the other had been the means of destroying the pack animals and blocking the trail.

The men have been made desperate by their failure to get over the trail and by the hardships they have been compelled to endure in the hopeless struggle against heavy odds. They have become suspicious of one another, and quarrels are frequent. Every man's hand is raised against every other man. The lawless characters are much in evidence, and dissensions and discords have broken out among the miners until such a thing as co-operation is impossible.

SUNDAY SCHOOL INSTITUTES.

They will be Held Throughout Richmond and Drummond Counties.

Richmond, Sept. 7.—A series of Sunday School Institutes are to be held in the counties of Richmond and Drummond. Rev. Arthur Maine, President of the Sunday School Association in these two counties, assisted by Mr. George H. Archibald, general secretary of the Sunday School Union of the Province of Quebec, will be the speakers. The following places will be visited: Kingsey Falls, Methodist church, Monday, Sept. 6; Trenholm, Methodist Church, Tuesday, September 7; Ulverton, Congregational Church, Wednesday, Sept. 8; South Durham, Methodist Church, Thursday, Sept. 9; Flodden, Presbyterian Church, Friday, Sept. 10; Kingsbury, Presbyterian Church, Sunday, Sept. 12; Kingsbury, Presbyterian church, Monday, Sept. 13;

Windsor Mills, Methodist Church, Tuesday, Sept. 14; Hardwood Hill, School house, Wednesday, Sept. 15; Lower Windsor, Presbyterian Church, Thursday, Sept. 16. Conventions will be held in other Eastern Townships counties as follows: Compton, on the 22nd; Brome, on the 23rd; Stanstead, on the 24th; Megantic, on the 28th; Sherbrooke, the 29th. Professor Hamill, who will be present at the latter meetings, is the author of Hamill's Normal Course, which is used in almost every state and province. He is a specialist in the Normal work, and other branches of the Sunday School movement, and a man of great ability as a speaker.

FAST ATLANTIC LINE.

The Project is not Dead.

London, Sept. 7.—Mr. Petersen emphatically denies the statement in which John Torrance, of the Dominion line, is quoted as saying that Petersen, Tate & Co.'s fast Canadian steamship line project is dead, owing to the fact that the company has been unable to finance it. Mr. Petersen assumed the Association Press that the organization necessary to carry out the new steamship service is progressing rapidly.

A BULL ON THE TRACK.

He Caused a Bad Railway Accident.

Foristell, Mo., Sept. 7.—Train No. 5, on the Wabash Railroad, the limited express to Kansas City, struck a bull a quarter of a mile west of here at 11 o'clock last night. Ten cars were derailed. The mail and express and baggage cars were thrown across the track and the ground was ploughed up for forty rods. The engine was thrown down a fourteen-foot embankment and demolished. John Egan, the engineer, was mortally injured, being badly scalded and hurt internally. Fireman Greasa was frightfully scalded on the back and legs. An unidentified tramp was killed instantly. None of the passengers were hurt. The baggage and mail men had hair-breadth escapes.

TOLD THE LORD ABOUT HIM.

In the far west, on the lone prairie, a number of cowboys were called to perform the last rites for a comrade who had accidentally met sudden death. The dead comrade had been a great favorite with the gang, so their grief at parting with him and their anxiety for his future welfare induced a strong desire on the part of each remaining one of his associates to hold religious services. Not one of them could sing or remember a sacred song that he had ever heard. Not one of them could think of a prayer, and the inconsistency of the prayer offered as a last resort can at least be given the credit of sincerity. So we are willing to think that it would reach the throne and meet with more mercy and consideration than some flowery petition offered in insincerity. Each one of them wore a nickname. Briggs was the one applied to the dead man, and Arkansas Bob was the one who offered the following prayer:

"O Lord, I guess in your opinion I am pretty tough, but I ain't saying anything for myself, it's for Briggs. He's dead now. But, O Lord, let's as white a man as ever lived. He's got something awfully down in him as pure as steel, and, O Lord, he's got a heart in him as big as a mule. I'll tell you what he done the other day. He gave a sick Mexican $4.40, turned round and nursed him through a fever, and the darned fellow hadn't been well more than two days till he stole Briggs' saddle pockets. O Lord, you must not go back on such a man as that, because they are scarce in these parts. O Lord, I never pestened any with the Bible, and just now can't remember a hymn song, but if Briggs gets a half chance he'll make as good a record in heaven as any man that ever got there."

And, bring a salute to the memory of the dead, they left him alone in his glory—Field and Farm.

TORTURED BY ROBBERS.

Masked Men Bind a Farmer, Burn His Feet, and Get His Money.

Sharan, Pa., Sept. 7.—Two masked robbers entered the home of Michael Slater, a farmer, near Mercer, at an early hour this morning and tortured him to secure his money. He was awakened by feeling a hand on his throat. He tried to arise, but was forced back on his bed and was securely bound with ropes. Then the men gagged him and searched the house. Failing to find money they returned to their victim, and removing the gag from his mouth ordered him to tell where he had hidden it. He refused to tell them, and, taking a lamp, they placed the flame against his feet. Then he told where his money was. The robbery was not made known until this morning, when Slater was found crawling along the road on his hands and knees seeking help.

MURDERED BY SCARED NEGROES.

Ann Hughes Was Suspected of Having the Smallpox and was Killed.

New Orleans, La., September 7.—A telegram from Colubus, Miss., announces the murder, ten miles from there, of a negro woman named Ann Hughes, who was murdered by other negroes because she was suspected of having the smallpox. A smallpox scare has prevailed in the neighborhood for some time. Ann Hughes was put under guard of the City Health Board some days ago. She escaped the guards, and appeared at the Old Zion Church, where created a panic among the worshippers. She has been missing ever since, but her body was found this morning. The skull had been crushed in. It is understood that she was murdered by the negroes of the neighborhood, who were frenzied with the scare over the smallpox.

EUROPEAN POLITICS.

Berlin, Sept. 8.—The Brussels correspondent of the Tageblatt announces that the Governments of Belgium and Holland are about to conclude a defensive treaty. Fear is expressed, the correspondent says that Belgium will be the seat of the next war between France and Germany.

The correspondent of the Times at Paris says:—"A diplomatist of my acquaintance expresses the opinion that the chief topic discussed by President Faure and the Czar during the former's visit to Russia was the best means of paralyzing England's action, should she join the Dreibrund against them."

Those answering advertisements in this paper will serve the interests of all concerned by mentioning that they saw the same in the SHERBROOKE DAILY RECORD.

JOSEPH TRUDEL, Lac Megantic.

REV. JAMES KINES DEAD. A telegram was received here today announcing the death, at Clifton Springs, of the Rev. James Kines, a former pastor of the Methodist church in this city. Mr. Kines had been, ailing for some time, and his death, which came yesterday, was not unexpected. The funeral will be held tomorrow. The Rev. Gentleman was pastor of the Methodist church here from 1877 until 1881 and again from 1887 until 1889. He was a clergyman of fine attainments and a true type of the Christian gentleman, and his untimely death will be deplored by the Methodist church in general and his many friends in particular. The remains will be taken to Kingston today for interment.

CATTLE TRADE IN COMPTON. Messrs. Thomas Halligan and Joseph L. Kowntree, of Toronto, cattle buyers, are in the city, enroute from Lingwick and vicinity, where they have been buying prime cattle for the European market. They report an unusually brisk trade from Compton County, where the farmers are rapidly earning an enviable reputation as successful producers. Rival buyers abound there at present and very good prices prevail, especially for two-year-old heifers, and lambs weighing 70 lbs. and upwards. Farmers in general should note well the present brisk demand for certain kinds of stock and govern themselves accordingly when stocking for the winter.

THE GUY BROS. COMING. The celebrated Guy Bros., Minstrels will appear in the Opera House, Wednesday night, Sept. 15th, with an entire new show, stronger and better than ever. The six Guy Bros., will appear at every performance. Assisted by the very best talent in the Minstrel line the Guy Bros. have spared no expense in making this the leading company on the road. Don't fail to see this big show.

AMERICAN ASBESTOS CO., (LTD.) The sale of the property of the American Asbestos Co., (limited,) which was to have been held at the office of Messrs. Royer and Burrage, by public auction, yesterday afternoon, did not take place. The assignees put the property up for sale yesterday morning, but as no satisfactory bids were received, it was withdrawn.

RESULT OF MAGOG FIRE. It is said that the Magog "Enterprise" may not be revived again. This is to be regretted for Mr. Wilcox had made his paper one of the best weeklies in the Townships. It will certainly be a loss to the town and the citizens should make an effort to have the same continued.

Mr. E. C. Parker, son of the Rev. G. H. Parker, of Compton, who has been in the employ of the E. T. Bank, for a little over two years, has been obliged to resign his position owing to ill health. Mr. Parker has been stationed at the Richmond branch. Messrs. L. A. Bayley and Jno. O' Duncan were enjoying themselves yesterday, casting the fly for trout on the private pond of Mr. E. N. Lindsay, at Bulwer.

SPAIN'S PREMIER.

SAGASTA WILL BE CALLED. Madrid, Sept. 8.—It is stated here upon good authority that upon the return of the Court from San Sebastian to Madrid the Queen Regent will be found to be in sympathy with the programme of Senor Sagasta, and that the Liberals will shortly thereafter replace the present Cabinet. The question of profit estimates is now a burning one in life assurance circles. The public are learning to distrust all companies whose estimates are high, arguing that these which hold out only moderate and reasonable prospects are more worthy of their confidence than those which are reckless in their assertions.

NO EXPORT DUTY. COPPER ORE GOES FREE.

Shipment from Sherbrooke to Wales.

A despatch has been sent out, from Inverness, announcing the closing of the Harvey Hill Mines, owing to an export duty of $4 per ton being placed on copper ore. Mr. John McCaw, of this city, manager of copper mines at Haskell Hill, in Orford, four miles from this city, in conversation with a representative of the Record, said that this was a mistake.

An Order-in-Council was passed some time ago, to place an export duty on ores containing copper or nickel, of 15 per cent, which would be equal to about $4 per ton. But this has never been put in force, as it would be a great hardship on the mining industries of the country. Consequently, the closing of the Harvey Hill copper mines is not on account of an export duty. The mine in which Mr. McCaw is interested, is making its first shipment of ore to-day, to Swansea, Wales, and on the result of that shipment will largely depend the future workings of the mine.

LACROSSE.

A number of the lacrosse players are out each afternoon practicing for their coming match with the Capitals. The fact that they were beaten by the Quebecers on Saturday, who were in their turn, beaten by the Capitals on Monday, has little in it to encourage the home team though it must impress them with the necessity of much practice, when, on their own ground, they may surprise the Capitals as they did the Nationals.

BRIEFLETS.

Wellington street in front of the Macfarlane mill and the proposed new block is to be raised three feet previous to the laying of the rails of the street railway.

Mr. J. W. Horton, Engraver, is preparing a medal for the High School, to be competed for and to be worn for a month by the "dux" of the class for the previous month.

Messrs. Cartmel and Baxter, florists, of this city, had charge of the decoration of the breakfast table and rooms, for the wedding of Miss Lally, Blais, and deserve credit for the good taste in which everything was arranged.

A FAMOUS BAKERY.

How the Bolland's Became Cakemakers For the Royal Family. In one of the old buildings which bear the architectural imprint of Queen Anne's time in Chester, England, is a bakeshop—not an ordinary bakeshop, for the royal arms jut out from the second story, and immediately above is a sign bearing the name "Bolland's." And the proximity of the sign to the royal arms is no idle commercial myth to insure new customers. In the annals of the tradesfolk of Chester there never was a greater man than Richard Bolland, the original owner of the bakeshop. In 1836 the Duchess of Kent and her young daughter, the Princess Victoria, visited the city for the purpose of officially opening a new bridge that was to bring all kinds of importance and prosperity to the town. Of course it was an immense event for Chester, and every one did something to make the visit of the great folks memorable. Richard Bolland was ambitious, but poor, and he churned his brains mightily to devise some attractive method of showing his loyal appreciation of the visit. In a happy moment he decided to make some small cakes of transcendent excellence, put them in a fancy box and present them to the young princess. Happy thought! Potent cakes! Great Bolland!

The next year the little princess, whose palate had been enchanted by the flavor of the Chester cakes, became queen of England, and one of the first acts after her accession in 1837 was the appointment of Bolland as one of the queen's warrant holders. So much for the power of a box of small cakes. How long the flavor of those cakes lingered in the royal memory is shown by the fact that 25 years later, when the Prince of Wales was to be married, Victoria gave a commission to Bolland to prepare the wedding cake for that great event. It was no ordinary wedding cake that Mr. Bolland produced either, and its exhibition earned him such tremendous fame that every English bride of wealth and prominence who has married since then has had the Chester baker prepare her wedding cake.

Descendants of the original Bolland now conduct the shop, but they use the same recipe that proved so successful in the days of Victoria's childhood, and still bake cakes for the royal family.—Philadelphia Press.

THE LACROSSE CASE. It is now before the Ottawa Court. (Special to the Record.) Ottawa, Sept. 9.—The celebrated lacrosse case came up again this morning, in the Police court. Joseph Troy, Frank Bissonnette, John Shea and Geo. McCrea were arraigned for defrauding the public by conspiring to lose the match with Toronto on Dominion Day. McCrea and Carleton were discharged by request of the prosecution and held as witnesses instead. McCrea's testimony was to the effect that Troy had arranged meeting with him by telephone. He had subsequently given him (McCrea) $600 to place on the Toronto, on the alleged grounds that the Capitals were drinking and could not win. McCrea placed $400 of this against $500 with Mr. Pounder.

THE FIRE RECORD. Barns Filled with Hay and Grain Destroyed. (Special to the Record.) St. Gregoire Le Grand, Que., Sept. 9.—Mr. Orpha Poplin lost his barns and stables by fire last night together with their contents. The barns were filled with hay and grain and valuable farming implements which were also consumed. Loss about $2,000, no insurance. Origin of the fire is unknown.

QUEBEC I. O. F. TENTH ANNUAL CONVENTION IN SESSION AT ST. HYACINTHE.

St. Hyacinthe, Que., Sept. 8.—St. Hyacinthe is giving a warm welcome to the members of the Independent Order of Foresters of Quebec who have gathered to hold their tenth annual convention. The city looked its best as the delegates, the members of the local court and their friends marched through the principal streets today and assembled at the City Hall, where addresses of welcome were delivered by mayor Desaulles, in the name of the city and by a representative of the local courts. The Union Jack and tricolor are very conspicuous and the city has assumed a holiday appearance.

TRAVELLER ASSAULTED. He had a Narrow Escape from Death.

Winnipeg, Sept. 8.—Robert Hainstock, a commercial traveller, may be glad that he is alive. While intoxicated in the western part of the city, two men attacked him, knocked him into insensibility and dragged his body, so later developments show, to the track, where it was found before a train had a chance to run over and mangle it. Hainstock professes to recognize in two local characters, Jake McDonald and Ed. Cameron, his assailants. The men are held for examination.

CRUSHED BY AN ELEVATOR. IT WAS LOWERED ON THE ENGINEER WHEN HE WAS AT WORK IN THE SHAFT.

New York, Sept. 8.—While Frederick Reynolds, engineer in the Metropolitan apartment house at 250 West Eighty-eighth street, was working on a ladder in the bottom of the elevator shaft yesterday, somebody got on the elevator car, which he had run up to the second floor, and lowered it. Reynolds was crushed under it, and his breast bone and six ribs were broken.

THE DANGER IS PASSED. AFRIDS ARE QUIETING DOWN.

Simla, Sept. 8.—In official circles here it is considered evident that the bottom is dropping out of the rising of the tribesmen against the British. The general officers commanding report that the Afridis have dispersed. The news the Zakkahols are removing their families from the Khybar district to Tirah is confirmed, and there is no longer any doubt that the enemy is leaving the Samana territory.

BAR'S ANNUAL BANQUET. Montreal, Sept. 8.—The banquet of the Montreal Bar will take place between the 15th and 25th instant. The Council has decided to reestablish to old custom of an annual banquet.

MCGILL LAW SCHOOL. Montreal, Sept. 8.—The importation of Prof. Walton, of Cambridge, as dean of the law faculty of McGill University, has created some bitterness among the graduates of the law school. Steps, it is said, will be taken to start a law school in Montreal in opposition to the McGill institution.

FAIR AT COOKSHIRE. Most Successful on Record.

Cookshire, Sept. 8.—The annual fair of the St. Francis Live Stock Association is now a thing of the past, but it has left many pleasing memories for both visitors and promoters of the exhibition. The weather, this year, was all that could be desired on both days, and the attendance ahead of any previous year. Yesterday it was estimated that fully 4000 people were on the grounds. Everything passed off well, and the list of exhibits were extensive and instructive. The grade cattle seen at Cookshire always exceed in quantity and quality that of any other show in the Townships. The Harmonie Band of Sherbrooke furnished music on both days of the fair, to the satisfaction of all. One of the most pleasing sights, and one that was new in this section, was a fancy dress bicycle parade, comprising the Cookshire Club only. Fully 25 riders were in the procession, with all sorts of costumes, both grotesque and rich apparel. The following is the result of races:

Ben Morrill, H. Knapp, C. Squires, A. Teatreault, Ben Morrill and Leighton had a collision, in which Leighton's driver was thrown from his sulky. Leighton, being free, ran around the track, was headed off near the stables, and took a course back of the grand stand, causing much excitement. He was finally stopped at the ticket office, apparently not injured. He was given 3rd place and Ben Morrill was declared distanced. The last two heats of the 2.20 class were trotted this morning, there being only two starters.

SAVED TWO MEN FROM DROWNING.

Victoria, B. C., September 8.—Elizabeth Shea, the lighthouse-keeper's daughter, was in public tow presented by the Mayor with the certificate awarded by the Canadian Royal Humane Society, for saving two men from drowning. She went to their assistance in a row boat while a storm was raging.

EGYPTIAN CAMPAIGN.

Suakin, Sept. 8.—There is great rejoicing here at the news received of the fall of Berker. The measures to establish communication between Suakin and the Anglo-Egyptian forces along the Nile are rapidly advancing. The Dervishes have withdrawn their eastern outposts and are concentrating on the Nile, with Metemeh as their northern outpost.

JOSE VENTRE MUST MOVE AGAIN.

City of Mexico, Sept. 8.—Jose Venture, the French anarchist who recently arrived here from Spain, will be expelled from the country as a pernicious foreigner under the federal constitution. He was deported from Barcelona merely as a suspect.

AN AMERICAN ROBBED.

Berlin, Sept. 7.—Mr. J. H. White of St. Paul who has been stopping at the hotel in Baden-Baden has had two letters of credit, amounting to $20,000, and $6,000 in cash stolen from him. The letters of credit and the cash have not been recovered.

MONTREAL MARKET.

Wholesale Prices. Wednesday Evening. In the country there is no change in temper manifested by factory-men. They consider their goods worth from 9c. up, and as that price and more is paid for moderate quantities at different markets, they are likely to stick to their present ideas of value.

Butter continues steady in tone, and buyers, while willing to pay 19c, admit that it is difficult to get strictly finest creamery at that price, but protest that their limits will not allow any more being paid.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES

Sept. 9, 11 a. m.—Forecast for next 24 hours, issued by the Meteorological Bureau. Westerly winds; fair and a little warmer.

THE STREET RAILWAY. Work Commenced on Streets.

Work has been commenced on the street railway, on the Lennoxville road, and the rails are being hauled, for same. The president Mr. Burke, in speaking to a RECORD representative, said the cars will surely be running this fall, as the work will be pushed through as soon as possible.

THREE RIVERS FAIR. Premier Marchand and Hon. Mr. Duffy were Present Yesterday.

Three Rivers, Sept. 8.—(Special) Yesterday was a big day here in every sense of the word. 8000 paid admissions were registered at the turnstiles. Premier Marchand and Hon. H. Thos. Duffy were present and addressed the immense assemblage. Owing to official duties, Sir Willfrid Laurier was not able to be present. This is contrary to my despatch to the RECORD sent yesterday, just as the Quebec ministers arrived when I understood Mr. Laurier was with them.

ARCHBISHOP LANGEVIN ILL.

Winnipeg, Sept. 8.—Archbishop Langevin is suffering from a sudden attack of illness. He is resting today as well as can be expected.

WHY CALLED TUMBLERS.

Curious Origin of the Name of an Article In Daily Use. Every day we drink out of a tumbler. Why is the large glass that holds our milk and water so called? Years ago Professor Max Muller was giving a luncheon at All Souls' college, Oxford, to the Princess Alice, the wife of the Grand Duke of Hesse-Darmstadt and the second daughter of Queen Victoria. There were not a dozen guests, besides the princess and her husband, and a very agreeable luncheon we had, with talk on all kinds of interesting subjects.

But what excited the curiosity of all strangers present was a set of little round bowls of silver, about the size of a large orange. They were brought round filled to the brim with the famous ale brewed in the college. These, we are told, were tumblers, and were speedily shown how they came by their names—a fitting lesson for the guests of a philologist. When one of these little bowls was empty, it was placed upon the table mouth downward. Instantly, so perfect was the balance, it flew back to its proper position as if asking to be filled again. No matter how it was treated—trundled along the floor, balanced carefully on its side, dropped suddenly upon its side, and rolled—up it rolled again and settled itself with a few gentle shakings and swaying into its place, like one of those India rubber tumbling dolls babies delight in. This, then, was the origin of our word tumbler, at first made of silver, as are all these All Souls' tumblers. Then, when glass became common, the round glasses that we now use were made, and were quietly balanced silver spheres and stole their names so successfully that you have to go to All Souls' to see the real thing.—Philadelphia Times.

The Quarrelsome Robin.

The robin, that "pious" bird, is very quarrelsome, and it exasperates one to watch him wasting the precious hours of food in hunting another hungry robin in the garden and round, and round, till the sparrows have cleared the board. The blackbirds, too, are very annoying in the way that they snatch up a lump of bread and fly off with it, only to be chased about for the rest of the morning by other blackbirds, while a sparrow makes a square meal of the morsel fallen meanwhile under a shrub, but relentless as they are in pursuit, the curious fact is that they seldom fight. If the pursued turns, the pursuer stops, perks up his tail, and being promptly charged by the other becomes in his turn the pursued, but woe to both when the missile thrush comes. He is pitiless in pursuit, and I have seen them pass my window time after time in the course of a morning, the storm cock hard on the "heels" of the blackbird, and when they overtake them what happens? For myself, as I have often said before, I believe the herald thrush is a cannibal. At any rate, I attribute some of the dead blackbirds and thrushes that one finds about the grounds to his cruel beak. He watches for birds for hours at a time, like a bird of prey, and attacks them like one. I have often stopped a chase which I knew could only end one way.—Contemporary Review.

Ax Head Money.

When Dr. Schlemm was digging at the supposed site of Troy, he uncovered the remains of several ancient cities which had been built one after another on the same hill. In the second layer from the bottom he discovered masses of silver in the form of axe heads. Dr. Goetze now suggests that these were intended not for implements, but for money. Bronze axe heads have also been discovered in ancient remains, mingled with metal pieces in the form of rings, in such a manner as to suggest that all alike were intended to serve as money. After the axe-head had disappeared as actual money the memory of it was preserved in the coins of Tenedos, which bore the figure of an axe head. Dr. Goetze also suggests that the "wedge of gold" which Achan stole from the spoils of Jericho and for the stealing of which Joshua had him stoned to death was a specimen of the ancient axe head money.—San Francisco Argonaut.

A Smart Minister.

"Yardsley donated a cester worth 97 cents to the minister and put a tag on it marked $16." "Yes?" "Well, the parson took the article to Yardsley's store yesterday and traded it for dry goods. Yardsley's smile won't be able to be out again for six weeks."—Harper's Bazar.

Justifiable.

FAST TRAINS COLLIDED. Explosion, Fire and Death the Result.

Emporia, Kan., September, 8.—One of the worst wrecks in the history of the Santa Fe occurred three miles east of here tonight. Twelve or fifteen persons were killed, and as many were badly hurt. The fast mail train going east and the Mexico and California express, westbound, collided head on.

The Mexico and California express was pulled by two locomotives, and when they struck the engine drawing the fast mail, the boilers of all three engines exploded and tore a hole in the ground so deep that the smoking car of the westbound train went in on top of the three engines and two small cars and balanced there without turning over. The passengers in the smoking car escaped through the windows. The front end of this car was enveloped in a volume of smoke and steam rushing up from the wreck below, and the car door was jammed tight in the wreck of the car behind. The wreck caught fire from the engines, and the cars in the hole and the smoking car were quickly burned to ashes. In climbing out of the smoking car several men fell through the rifts in the wreck below, and it is impossible to tell whether they escaped or were burned to death. The west-bound train carried seven or eight coaches, and its passengers included Hon. William J. Bryan.

WELL-KNOWN RESIDENT MISSING.

Believed to have Started for Klondike.

Montreal, Sept. 7.—The town of Lachine is excited over the disappearance of one of its best known citizens, Mr. Alexander Robert. He has been a resident of that town for many years and succeeded in getting together a small fortune. Most of his money was in real estate, but he dabbled in various speculations and it was said he was somewhat embarrassed.

Some weeks ago he became enthusiastic over Klondike stories and declared he would sooner or later leave for the land of gold. Nothing was thought of his declaration at the time, but it is now believed by some that he is on his way there. He left his home on August 27, and since that time has not been seen. A few days before he raised $1,000 in cash on some property, which he stated he was going to put in a paying investment. Those who knew Mr. Robert lean to the belief that he has set out for Klondike.

TURKEY AND GREECE.

The Powers have Decided upon the Terms of Peace.

Constantinople, September 8.—The Marquis of Salisbury's proposal has been accepted by the powers. The only remaining question is the dates for the payment of the indemnity. The powers desire to insert these dates in the treaty of peace, but the British ambassador, Sir Phillip Currie, suggests that they have the dates to be determined upon by the international commission.

SOUTH AMERICAN REBELS.

Monte Video is Menaced. London, Sept. 8.—The Times correspondent in Buenos Ayres says the Uruguayan rebels are within a two days' march of Monte Video.

If they made a determined attack the correspondent says, the capture of the capital would be possible, as the garrison comprises only 2000 men, and there is no system of defence, while a large number of the inhabitants sympathize with the revolutionists.

SPAIN DOES NOT WISH TO FIGHT.

Madrid, Sept. 8.—It is officially denied that the premier, General Acastraga, has written to the leaders of the political parties, saying that the Government at Havana would prefer way with the United States to the intervention of that country in the affairs of Cuba.

AMONG THE MOUNTAINS.
Gray heavens, gray earth, gray sea, gray sky
Yet rifted with strange gleams of gold;
Downward all dark, but up on high
Walk our white angels, dear of old.
Strong faith in God and trust in man,
In patience we possess our souls.
Eastward gray ghosts may linger wan,
But westward back the shadow rolls.
Life's broken urns with moss are clad,
And cross springs greenest over graves.
The shipwrecked sailor rocks are glad
Not what he lost, but what he saves.
Our sun has set, but in his ray
The hilltops shine like saints newborn.
His afterglow of night makes day,
And when we wake it will be morn.
—By the Author of "John Halifax, Gentleman."

JOHNSON'S ROMANCE.
Dear old Johnson! Whenever I think of him I realize that he was one of the true, good hearted fellows we only meet with here and there in the world, and not too often.

His name, by the way, was not Johnson, but it will answer all the purposes of my story to call him so.
It was a name handed down through many a generation of noble ancestors that he carried across the channel when he was nearing 50 years of age, together with the very small remnant of fortune which remained after one of his friends had swindled him.
Johnson was exactly the person to be swindled. His trustful, generous heart made him an easy prey.
"I don't like leaving my native land," he said to me a day or so before his departure, "but the fact is I can no longer afford to live in England, so I must avail myself of the inexpensive continental style of existence. I am bound for Paris, which, after all, is not being very far away."
Johnson had been living abroad for more than a year when I decided that it was about time I was looking him up. He was not good at correspondence, neither was I.

We exchanged occasional letters which seemed to be full of nothing, so I wanted to see with my own eyes how he was bearing his changed fortunes.
It was in the small "entresol" of one of the tall houses of the old Latin quarter of the capital that I found my friend established.
He declared that he was very jolly, but I did not believe him. It was only a sort of dogged determination to look on the sunny side of things in general that made him say so.

How could a man no longer in his first youth be "jolly" in a stuffy little lodging where his head almost touched the ceiling and where his frugal meals were sent in by a "traiteur"?
Johnson was just the fellow who ought to be the head of an affluent British household, with sons and daughters growing up around him. Or he should have been a wealthy bachelor uncle, absolutely adored by a large contingent of nephews and nieces. Solitude did not seem the proper setting for him.
However, he took for his motto, "Whatever is, is best," trotted me about Paris with an air of part ownership which was infinitely comic—in fact, did his level best to make my fortnight's stay a pleasant one.
He would have insisted on giving me up his bed and migrating to an unlittered attic on the fifth floor, but I would not hear of it.

I was obliged to pretend that I should certainly suffocate in the small closet he dignified by the title of "chambre a coucher," and that I had engaged quarters at one of the nearest hotels on my way from the railway station and before I found him out.
Though we had known each other during a good many years, it was only when my stay in Paris drew very near its close that Johnson one evening became confidential.
I am not very likely to forget that evening, either, for I had come out rather sick and decidedly shuddering from visiting the morgue.
Declaring it to be one of the sights of the city, which a strong nerved man ought to see once in his life, I had prevailed on Johnson to accompany me.
A group of excited women and a man or two were standing by the entrance. They told us that the body of a girl—a young and pretty girl—had been carried in not long before. She had been found floating in the Seine—a case of suicide, no doubt.

"I think—I'll take your arm—my dear fellow," stammered Johnson as we came out from this ghastly spectacle.
Then I felt sorry I had urged him against his will, for his face was as white as chalk and his manner was that of a man walking in a dream.
"It reminded me," he said, after we had walked some little way, and he seemed better, "of a girl who was drowned a good many years ago. Perhaps I'll tell you about it by and by."
I did not question him. The little romance of his life came out quite naturally as we sat together in the stuffy "entresol," waiting for dinner.
"I am such a thorough fogy now," remarked Johnson from the depths of the big Voltaire chair into which I had forced him, "that I dare say, Frank, you could hardly imagine me young and fairly good looking."
"You forget," I answered, "that we were both tolerably young when we first made acquaintance. And, in my opinion, you are good looking now."
"Oh, yes, to you, perhaps. But could you imagine me a man with whom a girl—pretty and much sought after—would fall in love? Yet so it was, and I think I shall feel better if I tell you about it this evening."
"Tell me by all means," I said. "I never knew before you were a man with a story."
He smiled rather sadly.
"Who has not a story? Only we do not happen to know it. I don't suppose that we who have failed in life as regards happiness are in the minority. Well, I, too, had my dreams of a wife and a home. At first they were vague and shadowlike. They only began to take form when I knew Alice Temple. I have called her pretty, but I think it was the intelligence expressed in her eyes that one noticed most, or perhaps the swift smile that came to her lips when she spoke."

I waited silently. Presently Johnson went on with his story:
"We were engaged. There was nothing to wait for. I could afford to marry and Alice had a little money, not much, and I was glad of it. I should not have wished to be one of those at whom the world points as a man who, by marrying, has done well for himself."
"My dear friend," I exclaimed, "no one could ever imagine you hunting after money. I am afraid you have undervalued it all your life and will keep up the habit to the end."
Johnson smiled.
"Perhaps there is something in what you say, perhaps I have been an incautious, oversanguine fellow, but then I have always realized that if money opens all doors in this world it certainly won't open us the door of heaven. However, I am drifting away from what I meant to tell you—that that dead face of a girl seemed to force me to speak of tonight. Alice and I were, as I have said, engaged, the wedding day fixed. We were visiting at the country house of one of her relatives that glorious month of August. One day I went up to London, returning late in the evening. In all the years that have passed I can never forget that evening. I can see now in memory the moonlight falling on the trees, its glare—so far at the full of the moon it is a cold, hard glare which falls on everything, or so it seems to me—on the white gravel of the avenue leading to the house. Even as the old butler opened the door I saw there was something the matter—a little crowd of panic stricken faces, and then some one caught my arm and tried to pull me away—tried, but failed, for I fought and struggled to shake off the grasp. I knew at once something had happened to Alice Temple."
He paused so long that at last I asked what came next. He started at the sound of my voice.
"I forgot I was telling you about it," he said. "It seemed as though I were going over it all by myself. I often do, though it happened so long ago. What was it? Oh, 'one of those boating accidents,' as people say when they lay down a daily paper, complaining of the scarcity of news. Alice had been hurt. There was an upset; no one hurt of all the party except—well, they had just brought her in, and as I fought myself free of my well meaning friend it was on the white, stiff face and long, drenched hair of my dead love that my eyes rested. I have never forgotten that sight, never forgotten her in all the years of days and nights which have gone by since then. Strange I have never talked of it! But, then, we never do talk of what we feel most deeply. Yet tonight that poor girl—I dare say she was not a very good girl, but heaven is more merciful than man and takes account of all the despair and misery which go before self destruction—reminded me of Alice, who was to have been my wife, of the happiness I wanted, yet was refused, and it has unmanned me for a bit. By and by I shall feel better. Perhaps, who knows, in some future existence our disappointments will all be made up to us. At any rate that is one of my pet beliefs."
"You think that in some future you and Alice Temple will be together?" I asked rather skeptically.
"I don't put things into form and shape. I simply believe that I, and all who have failed in this world, shall have happiness. Now let us talk no more of it, for here comes dinner."
As dear old Johnson bowed his head to say grace, he reverently observed the practices taught him in his childhood, his voice trembled, and when he looked up again and raised the cover of the little soup tureen for the preliminary duties of hospitality I saw, and pretended not to see, that there were tears shining in his eyes.—Exchange.

ENGLISH ROYALTY.
What it is Said to Cost the British Taxpayer Yearly.
The chancellor of the exchequer went out of his way recently, says Labouchere, in London Truth, to explain how little the monarchy costs England. The crown lands, he said, belong to the sovereign and produce $2,000,000 per annum. The queen receives instead of this revenue $1,925,000 and the rest of the royal family $1,000,000. Therefore the total cost of monarchy to the taxpayer is $925,000. The entire calculation proceeds on the erroneous assumption that the crown lands are the private property of the sovereign. This they are not. They originally formed a portion of the general revenue of the country, out of which came the maintenance of the sovereign.
That abject fop Lord Bute, wishing to curry favor with George III, inserted in the civil list act which was passed on that monarch's accession a renunciation by him of the crown lands, and this renunciation by a sovereign of what he did not possess is the basis of the theory of these crown lands being the private property of the occupant of the throne.
According, therefore, to Sir Michael Hicks-Beach's own figures, monarchy costs England $2,985,000. The real amount 's, however, much higher, for there are numberless expenses incidental to the institution which he does not include. The hard fact remains that in France the president receives $200,000 per annum and fulfills with decent splendor all the duties of the head of the state, while with England the monarchy costs nearer $1,000,000 than 1,000,000 francs. A defense, therefore, of monarchy on the ground of economy hardly holds water.

French Sentiment.
The French parrot who slew his father and mother and was asked, upon condemnation, what he had to say and why sentence should not be pronounced upon him, entreated the court to have mercy upon a poor orphan. This tale is green with the moss of ages and may not be true, but something like it is true of a woman named Marie Celvet, recently sentenced by a Paris tribunal to 20 years imprisonment at hard labor for the murder of her sister. While in court she constantly wore a long, gray veil. "Why do you wear this veil?" asked one of the officials, to which she replied that she was in mourning for her sister, showing an affectation sensibility, the earlier exhibition of which, however, would have been more becoming to her even than the garment.—New York Tribune.
