LEAGUE COVENANT AMENDMENT PROPOSED

BOSTON POLICEMEN SURRENDER THEIR UNION CHARTER

Final Move is Made in Famous Strife of Police

PUBLIC OPINION

Wins and Moral Effect Felt Throughout Nation

BOSTON, Dec. 4. (Star Special)—The organization that gave origin to Gov. Calvin Coolidge's famous "Law and Order" proclamation, and undoubtedly resulted in the Massachusett's Governor's becoming Vice-President-elect of the United States, has ceased to exist. City Policemen's Union No. 16807 has surrendered its charter to the American Federation of Labor, and the misguided Boston policemen who insisted that they were within their rights in affiliating with the A.F. of L. are satisfied. Labor leaders also profess the utmost satisfaction at the action of the former policemen.

GONE TO OTHER JOBS.

Deserted by A.F. of L., which had granted them a charter, with the promise that they could expect the moral as well as financial support of organized labor, Boston City Policemen's Union, its members beaten and jobless from the start, or just as soon as Gov. Coolidge ordered the State Guard into Boston, have finally severed all connection with the National organization, and no longer exists as a union.

Its upwards of 1,000 members have succeeded in securing various occupations, and many of them have returned to former trades. In fact, that is one reason why the ex-policemen hung onto the A.F. of L. charter, in order that their affiliation with the Federation might enable them to secure jobs as bricklayers, or teamsters or other union occupations.

VOTED TO SURRENDER CHARTER.

It is of particular significance that the eight hundred surviving members of the union voted to surrender their charter the night before the Grand Jury convened to hear evidence against several new policemen who were charged with having committed robberies. Several of these new policemen were indicted, found guilty and sentenced.

It is also of peculiar significance that when the men voted to surrender their charter they adopted resolutions extolling Police Commissioner Edwin U. Curtis, the man who precipitated the strike, and with Gov. Coolidge remained firm in his stand, that, since the policemen had allied themselves with the A.F. of L. they were deserters, and could never again hope for reinstatement.

WHAT RESOLUTION DECLARES.

The resolutions declare that "in February 1920, the organization committee of the City Policemen's Union severed its official connection as an executive committee. A new committee was elected whose duty it was to aid and assist financially members of the union and their dependents who were in want. This work has been done and the Committee desires to extend all those who have so generously aided, assisted and co-operated, their sincerest thanks.

"Owing to division of authority between the policemen's commission, and his honor, the mayor. As a result of a statute of the Commonwealth which provided that the Police Commissioner could not diminish or increase the salary of the police except by the sanction by the mayor, the police, of Boston were confronted with a most difficult problem. They acted at the time as their best judgment guided them to do. The result of this action is a matter of history and record.

ACTION MEANT AS PROTEST.

"Their action was not intended as an affront to law and order, nor did they expect their action would bring about the unfortunate condition that resulted. Their action was meant to be a protest. They hoped for better conditions [illegible] in everyone to have been [illegible] and unjust.

"It is known [illegible] that these conditions have in many ways been remedied and that efforts are being made to improve them [illegible].

In the past the present Police Commissioner of Boston had proved himself on being one of the friends of the police. He is proving himself to be such to the present policemen of Boston. In view of these facts the committee recommends that our charter be forthwith returned to the American Federation of Labor.

"Upon motion duly seconded, it [illegible] unanimously voted [illegible] Policemen's Union [illegible] affiliation with [illegible] charter to the American Federation of Labor.

BRITISH MINERS ASSURED FURTHER INCREASE COMING

Everybody Satisfied in Coal Mining Since Strike Settlement

HIGH PRODUCTION

Week's Yield of 5,200,000 Tons is Old Days' Record

LONDON, Dec. 4—(Star Special.)—The coal output from British mines since the strike was settled, on terms that brought wages into relationship with export values, is so satisfactory that the men are assured of the maintenance of their two shillings increase and a further advance of one shilling and sixpence per day, after January 1. Also the mine owners are in position to say to the trade union's leaders and the Government: "We told you."

During the week ending November 20, the coal output was 5,200,000 tons, a figure which has not been reached since the early days of the war.

In this connection the Mine Owners' Association publishes the following comment: "It's in no spirit of ingratitude that one reflects how this great result has been brought about, without any alterations in the equipment of the mines. Yet the miners' leaders have for months been asserting that the low output was due, among other things, to inadequate and antiquated equipment. It is fair to remark that the increase follows upon the Government's standing aside and leaving coal mining affairs to those whose business it is, namely the colliery companies and colliery workers. The extremists' constantly repeated charge that inferior seams only are being worked until such time as control is removed crumbles away, also, in the face of these remarkable figures."

protest against whose punishment the strike was called, have resigned. Much criticism against the manner in which the union was handled while they were in office, having much to do with the change.

CURTIS FOR REINSTATEMENT.

While the officers of the union refused to make any statement as to the reason for the recommendation to give up the charter, individual members of the union say is that it is understood that Commissioner Curtis is in favor of reinstating many of the strikers if he can do so in his own way and pick his own men. He will oppose any laws that are compulsory [illegible] will not oppose any law that allows him to use his own discretion.

Nothing official can be obtained as to this end, but it is common talk inside and outside of police circles. Many of the leading officials of the Police Department say that none of the old men will ever get back. This seems to be the belief of the vast majority of the superior officers.

Constitutional Club Speech Last Night Stands Out Clear-Cut

CARSON SCORES

His Rallying Remarks Afterwards Bring Ringing Unionist Cheers

LONDON, Dec. 4.—(Special Star Cable by Windermere. Copyright)—The Government policy for Ireland stands out clearly from Lloyd George's vigorous, vehement address Friday night, at the Constitutional Club, which is the fighting headquarters of the Unionist party. He hinted at the peril of extremists and Bolsheviki, which might yet provide British politics with a new line of cleavage between parties. He deplored the action of some French and American journalists who "scavenged about in Ireland for material to slander the Nation which stood by their side in the darkest days of the War." The real danger was, they were encouraging the forces of disorder, which if they succeeded would overwhelm civilization; and were leading Irish assassins to believe Britain was divided, was weakening. He said Britain was not weakening, and never would weaken as long as the present Government remained in office. "We will exercise every power we possess to stamp out this murder gang. We are doing it; and until we do it, and destroy Irish terror, until Ireland is again a free agent, conciliation cannot work; Ireland cannot be made a worthy partner with this great Empire."

Calm, steady, fearless courage, in Britain, at this hour was the greatest mainstay, and the hope of Europe and the world.

On which Carson gave the ministers this advice, amid ringing Unionist cheers: "Go on fearlessly and finish your work, don't bother about parties, Liberals or Conservatives, think now, as in the past, of your country and your country alone."

NOT DISMAYED AT LORDS TACTICS.

The ministers show no trace of dismay at the tactics of the Lords, who at one stroke have cut away the foundation of their Irish Home Rule Bill. They are now wondering whether, when the bill comes back to Commons, week after next, they will attempt to re-establish their plan of single chambers for the north and south and an all Ireland council.

It is not improbable that out of the present conflict between the Lords and commons a new method of solution will arise.

The Westminister Gazette, ardent for Home Rule and anti-coalitionist, speaks truly today when it says signs abound that a new orientation in Irish politics is being reached. "It is not a matter of sudden change of view, or attitude, in one quarter or another but disposition, a matter of conscientious search for a solution on both sides. There is unquestionably a reaction after the welter of blood which horrified everybody. In the revulsion of feeling, peace may be found."

MINISTRY ANXIOUS FOR SOLUTION.

Lloyd George told questioning Labor members yesterday that the ministry was only too anxious to explore every avenue for a mutually acceptable solution.

The British Labor Commission now in Ireland may provide an opportunity. They are giving the ministry the benefit of their conclusions after conferences with Arthur Griffith, M.P., acting "President of the Irish Republic," now in Mountjoy Prison, also Dr. Walsh, Archbishop of Dublin. The ministers especially welcome the Archbishop's assurance that the hierarchy would support any effort to close the era both of Sinn Fein violence and provocation and of reprisals. We may be within sight of the truce of God in Ireland.

Trade Agreements Likely to Show Many Benefits in Future

OTTAWA, Dec. 4.—(Star Special)—The coming to Ottawa yesterday of Joseph Gauthier, Liberal member for St. Hyacinthe, his interview with the Premier, and his statement that they are in agreement upon the policy of protection and the Imperial question, are taken here in some quarters as a sign of the times and an indication of a change in the old "solid Quebec."

It is not to be assumed that Mr. Gauthier is coming into the Cabinet right now, or even that he is coming at all, but it is at least suggested that things are occurring on the Liberal side, and that in Quebec, the self imposed isolation, to some at least, is becoming an irksome condition. The Prime Minister declined to make any statement.

CHANGES UP TO PREMIER.

What changes will be made in the Cabinet and when, are subjects which peculiarly, are his personal prerogative. There is little question that the Cabinet needs reconstructing, and no doubt that such is fully intended, not only as regards Quebec, but also Ontario. While the choice of ministers rests alone with the Premier, he will be guided in good measure, by the counsel of his friends, and this is particularly so in Quebec, where the situation is always more or less unique, and where his knowledge of conditions is naturally not so familiar as in the other provinces.

Some of the party want any cabinet changes in Quebec to occur as soon as possible.

Others suggest care and caution, urging that precipitate action now might be much less advisable than a policy of further waiting with a prospect of enlisting cabinet recruits from higher places than any so far mentioned. There is also certain opinion that the Premier might be well advised to wait till Quebec elects a group of Government supporters, who would be in a position to advise as to the cabinet representation of the Province.

What will be done, and when, are for the Premier to say, but though the present pour parlers are interesting and suggestive, it is by no means certain that any development will be immediate.

WHAT GAUTHIER IS DOING.

LONDON WATCHING NAVAL PROGRAMS

Fears Britain Be Outstripped By U. S. and Japan

"SUPREMACY RACE"

Great Britain Vitally Interested on Dominions' Account

London, Dec. 4. — (By Percy Sarl, United News Staff Correspondent.) — British naval and military authorities are beginning to view the respective armament programs of Japan and America as a race for naval supremacy which, they fear "will reduce Great Britain to second or third place in naval power by 1923."

The Admiralty, backing up its pressure upon Parliament to enter a big construction program for England, offers the following list of warships as planned by the two countries:

Japan 4 battleships, 3 light cruisers, 8 destroyers. Information as to the proposed Japanese submarines is lacking.

In attaching the highest significance to what they term a "race" for command of the sea, the British point out that Great Britain is vitally interested, realizing that if the Japanese were determined to make an issue of the immigration exclusion principle, Canada and Australia would inevitably side with the United States. The Admiralty declares that in these vessels planned or under construction, the most advanced [illegible] ideas, a number of them gained through the battle of Jutland, are [illegible] utilized. Alarmists generally [illegible] that an armed clash between [illegible] and America is bound [illegible] policy [illegible] at the peace conference at Paris and again brought into the limelight by Viscount Ishii's pronouncement at Geneva, is settled by America granting permission to Japanese to enter the country freely.

RUMORED SINN FEIN AND GOVT. ARE NEGOTIATING

Times Believes Henderson Has Informal Peace Mandate

FRIDAY DISORDERS

Further Week-End Clashes Feared—Constables Attacked

DUBLIN, Dec. 4.—Resolutions appealing to the Irish Republican Parliament to negotiate a truce with a view to securing an honorable peace were passed by the Galway county council, a Republican body, yesterday. The resolutions expressed the opinion the British Government should withdraw the ban on meetings of the Irish Republican Parliament so that the latter might appoint delegates. They declared the present reign of shootings and burnings, reprisals and counter reprisals, detrimental to the interests of both Britain and Ireland.

It was ordered this resolution should be sent to Premier Lloyd George together with the resolution passed by the Galway urban council supporting the appeal of Roger N. Sweetman, a Sinn Fein member of Parliament for North Wexford, suggesting a truce. It is said that the belief exists that Mr. Sweetman was not acting solely in his own behalf in making his proposal.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—There are rumors in the Parliamentary lobbies that indirect negotiations are proceeding between members of the Government and Sinn Feiners. The London Times gives prominence to the report and says:

The rumors seem not entirely baseless, though the precise character of the negotiations, if such they may be called, can at present only be surmised.

There seems to be no doubt, adds the paper, that Arthur Henderson has at last an informal mandate to explore the avenues which might lead to Irish peace.

FEARS FURTHER OUTBREAKS.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—(By Percy Sarl United News Staff Correspondent.)—The Irish Office fears that this week-end will bring another series of outrages of some sort, as the last two week-ends have been disturbed by grave disorders. It is believed that Sinn Fein has adopted the plan of waging its offensives between Friday and Monday as a matter of convenience because during the week the members of the Republican army are employed at their peaceful occupations. Two ambuscades occurred Friday. Sergeant McMarrow and five constables from Youghal were waylaid and Constable Pendeville was seriously wounded. One other constable is missing, although he is believed not to have been hit during the brisk battle. The constables were able to retain their own arms but they did not capture any from the attacking party. A police party returning here from the funerals at Cork of the victims of the Macroom battle ran into an ambascade at Coachford, seven miles from Macroom Sasth. There were no casualties.

COUNTESS' COURTMARTIAL.

DUBLIN, Dec. 4.—The court martial of the Countess Georgian Markievicz, member of Parliament for the St. Patrick's division of Dublin City, was concluded yesterday. The Countess was charged with conspiring to organize a "Fianna Direann," or body of Sinn Fein boy scouts. The decision of the court martial will be promulgated tomorrow.

In her testimony the Countess indignantly denied making the statements attributed to her by the Crown counsel, who credited an officer with declaring that the countess on one occasion murdered a British officer and soldiers that on another occasion some one who arrested her housef was murdered.

Is England's Most Serious Difficulty—Darling's Claim

LONDON, Dec. 4.—(Special Star Cable by Windermere. Copyright)—"Drifting to a Crash" is the headline given by the Labor organ, The Daily Herald, to the reports of the London buildings seized by the unemployed. I asked a minister yesterday what was the inner significance of this outburst. "Just this," he replied, "Labor has secured control of most of these municipalities, in which [illegible] Labor rules [illegible] until the next municipal elections, largely because the middle classes did not trouble to vote. I know one of these mayors, an avowed Socialist, who told his Labor friends they could seize these town halls and municipal buildings, and no one would interfere; and today His Worship goes and sits with them in their new municipal Labor headquarters, chatting and smoking as one of them. Of course, it is only a political gesture.

"The Government is pushing on with its relief works, its work on arterial roads, etc., and we do not anticipate anything more than spasmodic difficulties."

WORKING COMMUNITY SANE.

The great mass of the working community is sane enough, but the Labor leaders, like Lansbury, take no such comfortable view. They demand a levy of four pounds per ton on all goods handled at London docks, to provide four pounds weekly for every docker unemployed.

Among Government plans which attract much attention is the vast hydro electric scheme to provide a half million horsepower daily from tidal waters of the River Severn. The plan is fathered by Sir Eric Geddes, Minister of Transport. It would turn the Severn Valley into another Niagara, with a group of power-absorbing industries. A transmission line to London, 115 miles from the proposed development would convey energy at 120,000 volts at a cost of one and one quarter millions sterling.

Independent engineers question the finances of the scheme, but the great attraction for the ministers is the immediate reproductive work provided for the unemployed, who now number a quarter of a million, and are constantly increasing, especially as the result of the importation of cheap German and other foreign goods, produced abroad under low exchange conditions.

Indeed the exchange problem is England's gravest difficulty at the present moment. Austin Chamberlain, as Chancellor of the Exchequer, has promised quick business men's inquiry into the feasibility of the scheme for establishing Empire exchanges which the British banker, Darling, submitted to the recent Congress of the Chambers of Commerce of the Empire at Toronto. Darling attended the meeting of the members of the House of Commons over which Grant Morden presided, and spent two hours advocating his scheme and answering criticism. Hon. C. J. Doherty This Morning Introduced First Amendment

CRISIS ARISING

Argentine Delegates Delay Arrival and Withdrawal Rumors Continue

GENEVA, Dec. 4.—An amendment to the Covenant to the League of Nations eliminating Article X., the most mooted section of the pact, was introduced in the assembly of the League today by Hon. Charles J. Doherty, Canadian Minister of Justice. The amendment will probably be referred to the Committee on Amendments.

LEAGUE CRISIS NEAR.

GENEVA, Dec. 4.—Argentina's delegation to the Assembly of the League of Nations did not appear during the first hour of today's meeting.

Honorio Pueyrredon, head of the delegation, refused to deny that Argentina was withdrawing from the League.

"I cannot discuss the matter at this time," he said to The Associated Press at his hotel.

The Argentine representatives were in conference when Senor Pueyrredon was seen today. The Argentine Foreign Minister declared he would probably go to the Assembly meeting later, but up until noon he had not appeared.

The fact that Senor Pueyrredon did not attend today's meeting caused suppressed excitement in the Assembly, especially among South Americans. His refusal to deny reports that Argentina would withdraw from the League after he had characterized them last night as false was believed to be due to a communication he had received from the Argentine Government this morning.

LEAGUE CRISIS.

GENEVA, Dec. 4.—(By A. E. J. Johnson, United News.) — The revolt of the South American delegations headed by Pueyrrydon of the Argentine, and backed by certain of the [illegible] ruling, certain [illegible] shown in America [illegible] Lord Robert Cecil, representing South Africa, it became known Friday, is preparing an amendment to the disputed Article, and N. W. Rowell, Canadian delegate, announced from the floor of the Assembly Canada's intention to introduce certain amendments which it will insist be discussed at the present session.

PROTEST OPENS AMENDMENTS.

The protest has thrown the whole question of amendments open once more, and the subject will come up for discussion at the opening of Monday's session.

President Hymans', finding growing sentiment against his attitude, has called a meeting of the Big Thirteen at which he has invited Puerrydon to give his own interpretation of Thursday's ruling.

How far the Liberal members of the Assembly will go towards rendering Article X innocuous—or eliminating it from the Covenant, is problematical. The Scandinavian countries want an elucidation of the Article. It is recognized by the Assembly that the Article is one of the great stumbling blocks in the way of American participation in the League. Consequently the stand of Puerrydon, Ecil, Rowell and others favoring immediate discussion of amendments, may bring about a dirve that will clarify the situation before the present Assembly session comes to an end.

BRITISH OBJECTION RE ARMENIA.

Lord Curzon, British Foreign Minister, has sent a message to President Hymans of the League of Nations in which he declares that Great Britain cannot accept an independent American mission to Armenia, although he modifies the statement by offering every possible aid, morally and diplomatically, to President Wilson.

The text of the note is as follows:

"We observe that the President of the United States had expressed willingness to designate his personal representatives to mediate with a view of ending hostilities in Armenia. Our information is not clear to what extent the Armenians may have anticipated this action by concluding peace with either or both of their neighbors.

"We are not in a position to accept an independent mission in regard to Armenia, but the President may rely upon us to second his efforts in every way morally and diplomatically."

COUNCIL ASSEMBLY RELATIONS.

The report of the committee on relations between the Council and the Assembly of the League of Nations suggests the adoption by the Assembly of the following principles as a working basis for the time being:

First. The Council and the Assembly each will be invested with particular powers and duties. Neither body will have jurisdiction to render a decision in any matter which has been expressly committed to the other.

Second. The Assembly will have no power to reverse or modify a decision which falls within the competence of the Council. The same report must be shown by the Council for decisions of the Assembly.

Third. Under the covenant representatives sitting on the Council and the Assembly will render decisions as representatives of their respective states, and in rendering decisions they have no standing, except as such representatives.

Fourth. The Council will present each year a report to the Assembly.

COLBY GOES SOUTH.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4. — Bainbridge Colby, United States Secretary of State, left Washington for South America, where, as the representative of President Wilson, he will pay an official visit to the Governments of Brazil and Uruguay and an unofficial visit to Argentina. He left on the presidential yacht Mayflower for Hampton Roads.

OLIVER WILL HAVE WORKING MAJORITY

Latest Returns Show 24 Liberals; 15 Conservatives; 7 Independents

VANCOUVER, B.C., Dec. 4 (Star Special)—Latest election returns indicate the return of 24 Liberals, 15 Conservatives, seven Independents, and Atlin still doubtful. The latter is claimed by Liberals. If so, the Oliver Government will have small working majority over all opposition. When the absentee vote is counted there may be a few changes in the lineup where the vote is close, Grand Forks, for instance, has elected a Conservation by four majority, and there are a few other constituencies almost equally close.

Late returns yesterday gave Hon. T. D. Pattullo, Minister of Lands, a big majority over his four opponents in Prince Rupert constituency, making all members of the Cabinet safe. The only prominent Liberal defeated was Speaker Keen, one of the veterans of the House, who went down in Kaslo. Fort George elected a Liberal. It went Conservative last time. This and the Delta were seats lost by Conservatives, while Liberals lost Kaslo, Richmond, Slocan, Yale and one Victoria seat to Conservatives and lost North Vancouver, South Vancouver, Comox and Fernie to Independents.

The following shows the personnel of the new Legislature:

ODD ITEMS

CAKE AND ICE CREAM FATAL.

WAUKEGAN, Ill., Dec. 4.—Wedding cake and a dish of ice cream served following the wedding of her grandson, Clarence R. Hilly and Elizabeth G. Durborrow, both of Lake Bluff, caused the death of Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Kiam, 66 years old, at the home of her son, Fred. Hilly, 617 Prospect avenue, Lake Bluff. Mrs. Kiam became ill and died a few minutes later after the couple left for their honeymoon. Her husband died only two weeks ago in Denver, Col. Her body was sent there.

MUSIC LEADS TO ARREST.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 4.—It was his love for music, which led to the arrest of Jacob Katz, 24 years old.

Katz entered the Emanuel Lutheran Church here shortly after midnight, and found the poor box which he emptied of its contents, $3.

Then he found the new organ. Katz had musical talent and ran his fingers over the keys. Then he became so absorbed in the instrument that he forgot where he was, pulled out the diaphone and thundered away.

The strains awakened the pastor, the Rev. Rudolph Nieder, who lives next door to the church.

The pastor wondered if William Bachman, the organist, was practicing at such an hour. He telephoned to Bachman and got him out of bed. Bachman picked up a policeman on the way to the pastor's home and the three entered the church.

The music stopped abruptly. After groping about in the church they discovered Katz crouching under a pew seat. He was locked up.

DROWNED TRYING TO SAVE FRIEND

THREE RIVERS, Que., Dec. 4.—M. Arthur Findlay, of Shawinigan, was drowned when trying to rescue a friend, with whom he was canoeing on Piles Lake, when their canoe capsized and both were thrown in the cold water. The friend of the deceased could not swim and Findlay was overcome by the cold while trying to save him. The latter was rescued by people attracted to the scene of the tragedy.

The pay of cabinet ministers under the "Irish Republican Government" is fixed at $875 a year.

TURKS FIRE UPON BRITISH WARSHIP

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 4.—The British torpedo-boat destroyer Tobago was damaged by gunfire from the Turkish batteries at Trebizond, which opened fire without warning when the destroyer was entering port, presumably for the purpose of obtaining supplies.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur A. Markus have returned home after spending their honeymoon in California and are guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. Markus, Lansdowne Ave., Westmount.

LAD IDENTIFIES MAN HE CLAIMS KILLED MOTHER

Swathed in Bandages Alfred Clermont Tells Graphic Story of Tragedy at St. Veronique de Turgeon—Osias Riopel Arraigned

Alfred Clermont, son of the woman who was done to death a week ago at Ste. Veronique de Turgeon, positively identified Osias Riopel yesterday as the man who killed her. Preliminary investigation was conducted by Judge Cusson at the young man's bedside, as he has not yet recovered from the wounds he himself received. The enquiry was eventually adjourned, and Riopel committed to the country jail.

In his evidence Clermont said, "About 9:15 or 9:30 on the night of November 24 our dog began barking as if he would bark his head off. My mother said, "Why don't you get up, Freddy, and go to the door? Something might be wrong at the stables."

Witness described how he had at first demurred, but ultimately went to the door and flung it open. Riopel, he claims, immediately slashed him across the face with a knife. Asked by the judge who Riopel was, the boy pointed to the accused, and said, "That is the man who struck me."

"I tried to defend myself," Clermont continued, "but I collapsed under the blow. Blood rose before my eyes, and I could see nothing. Finally I managed to grasp his knife with my right hand. I struggled as much as I could. Then he slashed me twice in the neck, and I collapsed.

Clermont described his search for something with which to defend himself, stating that he was too weak from loss of blood to know what he was doing, but he determined to make an effort to defend his mother. He alleged that he could not do this, however, as the prisoner again attacked him with a knife. He again collapsed. This time he decided to play dead, in order to save himself.

STARTED THE FIRE.

Riopel then opened the door of the stove, he claims, and threw embers over the floor. One corner which was dry immediately burst into flames, whereupon prisoner threw the lamp down also and pushed witness's mother. The lamp was not lighted, but the oil fed the blaze.

Riopel then went outside, and witness made an effort to take his mother out, but could not lift her. When he saw the fire gaining upon him he broke a window and threw himself through it. He first dragged himself to an outhouse, without clothes, but eventually managed to reach the stables, two hundred feet away, where he dropped into a manger and stayed there till the morning.

The next morning a Mr. Martineau found him there, and went for a policeman. After he had left, witness alleges, Riopel returned, and slashed him twice again.

"Where?" asked Judge Cusson.

"In the neck. This time I did not move at all. He caught me and shook me to see if I was dead. I played dead. I said to myself, 'If I move, he will finish me.' I did not move, although I felt his knife cutting into my throat. Then the Cure came and he confessed me. Then they brought me here."

Questions were asked by Mr. Armand Mathieu, representing the defence. "When you heard some noise and your mother told you to get up, were you lying down?" asked Mr. Mathieu.

"Yes," was the reply.

"Were you asleep?"

"I was beginning to go to sleep."

"Have you known Riopel for long?"

"He has been here for two or three years and I have known him since then."

"You never had any difficulties with him?"

"I never said more than his name or mine."

"There were no difficulties at his home?"

"No, everyone has always considered him a good citizen."

"How was he dressed?"

"He did not give me time to notice his clothing, he struck me right away."

Judge Cusson himself then questioned the witness. "Is there any possibility that you are mistaken? Could it not have been someone else?"

"No, sir, I swear that it is he. I recognized him very well."

"Did you have a chance to see him? Was it light enough at any time?"

"It was light enough."

"Did you see his face well?"

"In the house when he was bending over in front of the stove taking out the ashes to set the fire. Moreover, I had recognized him at once when he came in and slashed me with his knife."

"When he spoke to you, if he did speak to you, did you recognize his voice?"

"At first I said 'Mr. Riopel you will hurt me with that knife.' He answered 'I can't hurt you too much.'"

"Is that all?"

"Yes, and it is the truth that I tell you; I would not want to incriminate the man for nothing."

Mr. Mathieu then interposed. "You cannot be mistaken?"

"No, sir."

Counsel then proceeded to point out to the witness the seriousness of his allegation, but was unable to shake his testimony. The lad replied that he was aware how serious a matter it was, but insisted repeatedly that he was telling the truth.

Judge Cusson then declared the enquiry adjourned.

In reply to an admonition from Detective Lariviere to "get well soon," young Clermont replied: "I am going to see this thing through."

The boy has himself suffered very severe injuries, as one slash severed the nerves, muscles, lymphatics and blood vessels of neck and throat, nothing escaping except the windpipe, jugular vein, spinal column and some minor organs. It runs right round the neck, with the exception of about two inches at the wind-pipe.

Other deep cuts were sustained about the face, shoulders, head and neck, as well as on his hands and foot. His right cheek was split from mouth to ear, while the left was cut from eye to chin. He claimed he maintained consciousness throughout the night passed in the stable.

Riopel is a man of medium height, slight, strong and wiry with black hair and sand-colored mustache. His legs were put in chains after he was placed in care of the detectives. He was escorted to the jail at Mont Laurier.

TABOO ON CLOSED SHOP PRINCIPLE

Administrative Commission Sends Letter in Answer To Police Demands

A flat refusal to recognize the closed shop principle is contained in the Administrative Commission's reply to the Police Union's recent demands, as set forth in the letter which Chairman Decary sent to Colonel Gaudet yesterday. This letter quotes the salaries for various grades in the police force for 1921, as follows:

Constable V., $1,300; constable, IV. $1,400; constable III., $1,500; constable II. $1,600; constable I., $1,700. Sergeant, $1,740-$1,800; lieutenant, $1,860-$1,980; captain, $2,040-$2,160-$2,280-$2,400. Inspector, $2,580-$2,700-$2,820; asst. superintendent, $2,880-$3,060-$3,240; superintendent, $3,600-$3,900-$4,200-$4,500; instructor, $1,860-$1,980-$2,100-$2,220. Detective, $1,740-$1,860-$1,980; detective sgt., $2,040-$2,160; asst. chief detective, $$2,280 - $2,400; chief detective, $2,640-$2,760-$2,880-$3,000; assistant identification expert, $1,080-$1,140-$1,200-$1,260-$1,320; identification expert, $1,800-$1,920-$2,040-$2,160; nurse, $1,020-$1,080-$1,140-$1,200-$1,260; matron, $900-$960-$1,020-$1,080-$1,140-$1,200. Telephonists, $1,020-$1,080-$1,140-$1,200.

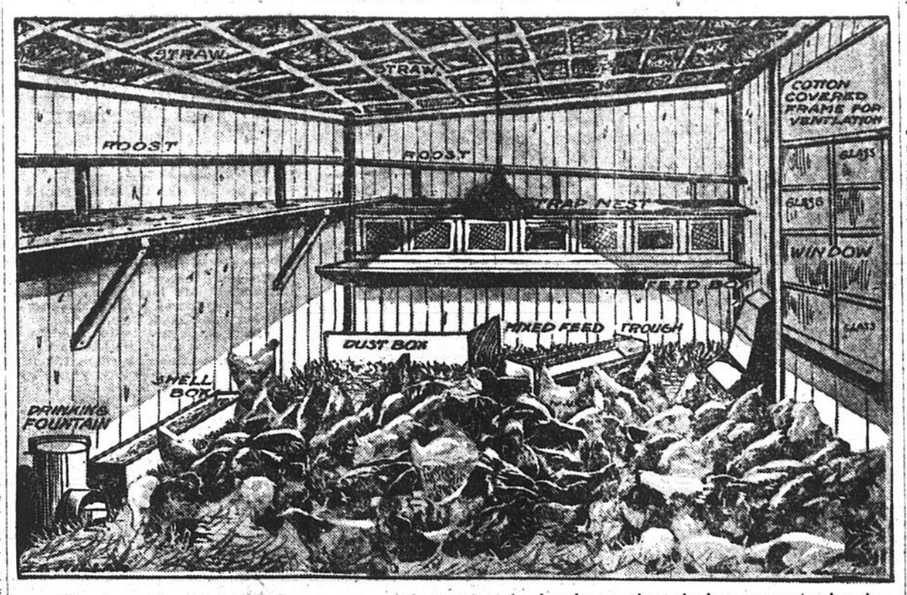
This letter further states that "the Administration cannot abandon its right to choose its employes and does not think it necessary for the good operation of the department that all employes, such as cleaners, telephonists and elevator men should be paid at the same rate as constables." Policemen are paid during times of sickness, it is pointed out, subject to confirmation by one of the city medical men and that the policeman is ill, and the Administration sees no reason to establish a board of three physicians to examine each case, as asked by the men. The city has always dealt liberally with men permanently incapacitated as the result of sickness contracted or injuries received in the discharge of their duties, and intends continuing to do so.

The request that detectives be allowed the price of a uniform which is not supplied to them is refused, as an allowance in this respect is included in their rate of remuneration. Two-thirds of such cost is to be allowed, however, to constables who perform their service in plain clothes.

It is further stipulated that no adverse report is to be filed against any man until he has had a chance to defend himself, and an opportunity to appeal against the decision to the Administrative Commission. Every man being heard in appeal before the Commission will have the right to have a comrade accompany him at the hearing.

Referring to the request that the city cease to retain in its service after Jan. 1, 1921, any police official under the grade of captain who is not a member of the Police Union No. 62, the Administrative Commission declares its inability to agree to this request. They have no objection to the policemen forming a union for mutual help or instruction; they cannot recognize a union and will not recognize any conditions of membership of the police force than those imposed by the Commission itself.

MAKING HENS LAY



The above shows the general appearance of the interior of a hen house where the hens are assisted to lay by means of artificial light. Electricity sets off the alarm, which turns on the light switch.

HENS BEGIN TO LAY WHEN ALARM TURNS SWITCH OF ELECTRIC LIGHT

Electric light has been proved to be effective in causing hens to lay eggs throughout the winter and again this year C. E. Getz of this city, whose pen of imported white English leghorns recently won the first prize in the annual Dominion Egg Laying Contest at Ottawa, will make use of electricity in increasing the output of eggs from his henhouse. At about 3 in the morning the lights in his henhouse are turned on and left burning until the winter sun makes its appearance. The hens come down from the roost when the light comes on, thus gaining several hours in the day more than those hens who rise when nature dictates and work only during daylight.

The result of the extra meal picked in the early morning is that the hens continue to lay during the cold weather. The only drawback to this method is that the hens vitality is sapped with the overtime work in winter and the eggs are of no use for breeding purposes in the spring. A separate pen has to be maintained for those hens which are to be used as breeders.

It was two years ago that Mr. Getz first took up the electric-light method of producing more eggs in winter. Where the idea originated he considers it is impossible to say, for it seems to have sprung into being in both America and Europe at about the same time. Some claim that it was suggested by the old habit of hanging lamps in the chicken house at night to keep the temperature from becoming too low for the hens, when it was noticed that a number of the hens regarded the lamp light as evidence that it was still day.

Many experiments have been made with electric light and its effect on the hen. It has not yet been established whether or not it shortens her life, but it is fully conceded that it makes the eggs useless for breeding in the spring. Each hen is born with an egg cluster which limits the number of eggs possible for her to lay during her lifetime. The number laid depends upon the amount eaten. The electric light, which gives time for an extra meal on winter days, causes her to lay them sooner than she otherwise would. The result is that her vitality in the spring is not as great as that of the hen which has been allowed to follow the methods of nature during the winter.

The best results from the use of electricity have been obtained, Mr. Getz said, by turning on the lights at about the same time as the sun rises in summer. In his hen-house, he has an ingenious arrangement for providing the necessary illumination at the required hour. An alarm connected by a cord with the electric switch is set for 3 a.m. When it rings, the cord is wound up and the lights turn on automatically. The hens are tricked into thinking it is day and come down from the roost and start to pick up food. All hens, he says, are not easy to deceive at first and some have to be trained to rise when the light goes on. He leaves the light burning until about 7 o'clock. The cost of the electricity is covered by a small proportion of the increased production in eggs.

In order to pick out the best layers, Mr. Getz has each hen tagged and his hen-houses are provided with trap nests which shut the hen in until someone releases her. In this way, a record is kept of every egg laid. The best layers he keeps for breeding and among those which he does not keep in artificially lighted hen houses are the winners of the Dominion contest. These are to spend a winter of leisure, if they so desire. As evidence of the value of careful breeding, Mr. Getz cites the fact that the three best hens in the winning pen were full sisters.

Leghorns, he considers the most satisfactory breed from the point of view of egg laying. They do not eat much, he says, but lay well and they are not afflicted with "broodiness" to as great an extent as other hens. That they are more economical to handle is supported by the fact that the winning pen in the Government contest also carried off a prize for giving the best revenue over cost of production. When the leghorn egg-laying days are over, however, other breeds are more valuable for they are heavier and bring more on the market.

SUB-COMMITTEE'S WORK AT END

Civic Census Every Three Years—Composition of Service Board

The settling of the general lines on which the Municipal Service Board and the Electoral Board should be organized brought to a close yesterday afternoon the work of the sub-committee on general management of the Charter Commission.

The committee's recommendations provided for a Municipal Service Board to consist of three persons, president, chief examiner and secretary, to test the fitness of candidates for employment, to make rules for the appointment, promotion, transfer, lay off, reinstatement, suspension and removal of city employes. Such rules, it is laid down, should provide for a standardization and classification of all positions in the municipal service of the city, for open competitive tests, and for appointments to the classified municipal service of the city. The board may provide also for non-competitive tests for any position requiring peculiar qualifications, for promotion from the lower grades to the higher based upon competitive records of efficiency and seniority, or upon competitive promotion tests or both.

It is also provided that the council shall determine the terms of appointment and remuneration of the members of the board and that the board shall fix standards of efficiency, recommend measures for co-ordinating the operation of the various departments and, as an essential regulation, provide that no persons shall be taken into the employ of the city unless they are conversant with both languages.

TWO LANGUAGES.

The latter clause gave rise to some controversy, all agreeing that there were certain classes of municipal employes who need not possess linguistic ability, but opinions differing as to where the exact line of demarcation should be drawn. It was ultimately agreed to leave it to Ed. Montet to draw up the necessary phrase to cover this point before the report was submitted to the general commission.

Opinions also differed as to the composition of the board. A motion by Ald. O'Connell that the board should consist of seven members, six to be heads of departments and the seventh to be a civic employe elected by his fellow employes obtained three votes, and an amendment that the board should consist of six heads of departments and the city manager as chairman also received three votes, the committee being equally divided. It was therefore agreed to submit both opinions to the general commission.

The recommendations regarding the Electoral Board provided that it should consist of the city clerk, the chairman of the Board of Assessors, and the city treasurer, and should be entrusted with the preparation of electoral lists.

The Electoral Board will further have charge of conducting elections, and carry out those duties, now performed by the city clerk and Board of Assessors. It is further provided that the board shall make a general census of the inhabitants of the city every three years, beginning in 1923. The original proposal was every year, at the option of the council, but on a motion by F. W. Evans it was agreed to change this to every three years, making the census compulsory.

The question of the Town Planning Board was again brought before the committee by Ed. Montet drawing attention to the fact that no provision had been made authorizing the council to fix the term of office and remuneration of members of the board. It was agreed to leave it to Mr. Montet to draw up the necessary clause covering this question before the general commission's next meeting.

This brought the business to an end and mutual compliments were exchanged between the chairman and the members of the committee on their careful work and excellent relations during the time the committee had been sitting.

SOCIAL BODIES PULL TOGETHER

Need For Best Team-Work to Help Unemployed Over Christmas

The increasing hardships of unemployment which are beginning to bear rather heavily upon the poor and dependent classes of this city with whom the various social service agencies here come in daily contact, make it apparent that if really efficient help is to be given them in order to brighten their Christmas holidays the best sort of team work between all charitable bodies must be arranged. Such, at least, is the opinion of the 38 agencies—protestant and non-sectarian—which form the Montreal Council of Agencies, the offices of which are in 904 New Birks Building, 10 Cathcart Street.

J. Howard T. Falk, executive secretary of this organization, who is also a director of the Department of Social Services of McGill, stated to a representative of the Star last evening that as Christmas draws near and there are so many really deserving cases requiring help and cheer there is the most urgent need for united effort in the matter of donations and present giving. He stated that the various bodies linked together in the Montreal Council of Agences realize the need for efficient co-operation more and more, and that although the Council is comparatively new, and always growing, it has already done much to obviate waste of effort and of time. He was convinced that the good results of their united efforts this Christmas would be made apparent.

On New Year's Day the Council will be taking over the Confidential Exchange, at present operating under the Charity Organization Society, and also the "Social Worker"—the organ of the 38 agencies already enrolled, most of whom form a membership in the Confidential Exchange. Its operations are as varied as are the various institutions which have membership in it.

The agencies presently represented in the Council, including several quite recent additions, and the divisions into which they are grouped, are as follows:

Sick and Handicapped — Montreal General Hospital, Western Hospital, Canadian National Committee for Mental Hygiene, Victorian Order of Nurses, Westmount Victorian Order of Nurses and Royal Victoria Hospital.

Dependent and Delinquent—Canadian Prisoners Welfare Association, Charity Organization Society, Girls' Cottage, Industrial School, Industrial Rooms, Montreal Diet Dispensary, Montreal Protestant House of Industry and Refuge, Prisoners Aid Association, Sheltering Home, Salvation Army and the Old Brewery Mission.

Child Welfare—Affiliated Milk Stations, English, Baby Welfare Committee, Boys' Home of Montreal, Children's Memorial Hospital, Social Service Dept., Ladies Benevolent Society, Montreal Foundling and Baby Hospital, Protestant Orphans' Convalescent Home, Protestant Infants' Home, Society for the Protection of Women and Children, Women's Directory and the Hervey Institute Day Nursery.

Education and Recreation — Boy Scouts' Association, Chalmers House, Daily Vacation Bible Schools, Iverley Settlement, Parks and Play grounds Association, St. Columba House, University Settlement, Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A. and the Griffintown Clubs.

CHARGES AGAINST VENDOR POSTPONED

Criminal Action Adjourned Until Civil Case is Decided

Albert Pigeon, authorized vendor, secured a temporary legal victory yesterday afternoon, when Judge Lanctot, in the Court of Sessions, ordered that three charges made against Pigeon of infringement of the prohibition law, conspiracy to defraud the public by not affixing stamps to liquor sold in his store, and of defrauding the Government by not using stamps on goods he sold, be postponed until writs of prohibition taken by Pigeon in the Superior Court against the charges be adjudicated. It was contended by counsel for the defence that while the civil cases were pending there could not be any good legal reason why the criminal cases should be proceeded with, as Pigeon's success before the civil tribunal would mean that any conviction in the present cases would automatically be quashed.

Judge Lanctot thought the point was well taken and said the three charges against Pigeon would be proceeded with only if Pigeon should be unsuccessful before the Superior Court.

J. A. E. Gravel, K.C., Antonio Leblanc, with Peter Bercovitch, as counsel, appeared for Pigeon, and Pierre Ledieu and Roland Maillet for the complainant.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, Dec. 4.—A shallow trough of low pressure extends from Lake Superior to the southwest states and the weather is cloudy and mild over western Ontario. It has been somewhat colder from the Ottawa Valley eastward, while in the western provinces the temperature has been fairly high.

PROV. OF QUEBEC BUYS PICTURES

The Hon. Athanase David, Provincial Secretary, has acquired for the province four of the best pictures which were exposed at the Art Gallery recently. They will be sent to the Government House at Quebec to await such time as the Government builds its art museum. This may come within a couple of years, or even before, oracles so whisper.

The paintings purchased, at the suggestion of a jury composed of such artists and connoisseurs as J. O. Marchand, E. Dyonnet, Robert Lindsay, Edouard Montpetit, C. J. Franchere and William Hope, were the following: "Paysan traversant le pont de glace vers Quebec" (Peasant crossing the ice bridge towards Quebec), by Clarence A. Gagnon, A.R.C.R.; "Spring," by Maurice Cullen, R.C.R.; "Evening Light at Portneuf," by W. Brymner, C.M.F., A.C.A., and a landscape by L. M. Barnsly.

The jury also recommended the purchase of the painting: "Benediction des Erables," (The Blesing of the Maples) by A. Suzor Cote, but the Hon. Mr. David has not made up his mind as yet to purchase the painting.

NEW RULINGS ON SALES TAX

Several new rulings were issued yesterday by the Inland Revenue Tax Department regarding the sales tax, which will have considerable effect in cases of split amounts. The following regulations for the determining of the amount of tax due on any sale are to be in force.

1. Sales tax should be computed on the total value of any sales.

2. Where the amount of the sales tax thus computed amounts in a figure containing a fraction of a cent, and this fraction is less than half a cent, such fraction shall be disregarded; where the fraction is a half cent or more it shall be treated as a whole cent.

3. Where the amount of the sales tax on any sale is less than half a cent no tax shall be collectable.

These regulations are already effective.

SOUP KITCHEN AT BREWERY MISSION

Free distribution of soup and bread to hungry and workless men will be made by the Brewery Mission, Craig street. The food will be served each day at noon in the lunch-room on Little St. Antoine street and no hungry man will be turned away.

D. H. Scott, the superintendent, says that numbers of men are arriving in Montreal daily and are unable to get work. He appeals to employers to provide work whenever possible. Gifts of meat, bread and vegetables would be appreciated by the mission.

"GRADE NO. 1 IODINE."

In order to make denatured alcohol impossible as a beverage in any form or concoction, instructions have been received by the Department of Inland Revenue to the effect that the alcohol manufactured or sold by licensed distillers shall be mixed with two and a half pounds of re-sublimated iodine and one and a half pounds of potassium iodide, the mixture to be called "Grade No. 1 Iodine." Arrangements are also contained in some of the clauses for sale of spirits for external application only.

NORTH-END FIRE TOOK TWO LIVES

Two Men Asphyxiated This Morning on Waverley Street

The death of two men was the result of a fire which broke out shortly after one o'clock this morning at 2472 Waverly street, near the corner of Bernard avenue. Only one of the victims is identified, the name of one of the men being given as Leroy Weller, the occupant of the flat. The other body is as yet unidentified.

The room in which the two bodies were found was not affected by fire, and Leroy's body bears no marks, death being due, it is considered, to asphyxiation. The other body is burned about the hands and face.

The alarm was sent in by a neighbor, and the Northern Division, under Chief Boucher, answered the call. The parlor of the apartment was found blazing, and much damage had already been done to the room and furniture. As the firemen went through the rooms, they discovered both bodies in a bedroom, into which the flames had not yet penetrated.

For a time it was feared that a third victim had succumbed, as articles of women's wearing apparel were discovered in the room, but a minute search failed to reveal further traces of a third party. The two bodies were removed to the morgue by Lieut. Corbett.

The theory of the fire is that a burning cigarette was left in the parlor, and had started the outbreak which gained much headway before it was discovered.

It is the opinion of the firemen that the men lost their lives trying to escape, as one was partly dressed for the street, the other being found in night attire.

BOTH AT FAULT IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Deciding that both were at fault in a collision that occurred between their automobiles at Maskinonge, Mr. Justice Lafontaine, in the Superior Court yesterday afternoon, dismissed with costs, the action taken by A. B. Van Felsen, for $141.45 against G. Boyer, and also dismissed a cross-action taken by Boyer against Van Felsen for $70.50. The evidence was contradictory. Alex. Cinq-Mars, K.C., appeared for plaintiff, and Letourneau and Co., for defendant.

VETERANS REFUSED CRAWFORD HEARING AT FREDERICTON

Meeting Broken Up in Disorder—"Peaceful" Invasion

SPEAKER QUESTIONED

Refusal to Answer Precipitated Excitement—Hon. Mr. Veniot Present

FREDERICTON, N.B., Dec. 4.—(Star Special)—The public meeting which Lindsay Crawford, president of the Self Determination for Ireland League, was to have addressed at St. Dunstan's Hall last night, was broken up in disorder by a party of two hundred returned soldiers and others.

They held a meeting at the G.W.V.A. Hall earlier in the evening when the questions were framed, and Robert Hawkins, who served overseas in the artillery and is now a young practising lawyer here, was selected as spokesman with instructions to put the questions to Crawford, before he was allowed to proceed with his address on the Irish question and demand answers of yes or no to each.

When they did not receive categorical answers to their questions, the protestors shouted down Crawford, with roars of "Lobster," and other cries of derision, and drowned his attempts to explain by singing "Rule Britannia," and "Pack up your troubles in your old kit bag and smile, smile, smile," until the meeting was finally brought to an end with the singing of the National Anthem.

POLICE DID NOT INTERFERE.

Chief of Police Finley and Sergeant Jones, were in the hall throughout the evening but aside from speaking to one man who made the first interruption at the outset and objecting to seats being placed in the isles, the police took no action.

For this they were blamed by the members of the League and their supporters who during the opening speeches had been loudly applauding and who when Crawford was being shouted down were calling "Returned traitors," at the protestors.

With Crawford on the platform were, Thos Donovan, of Ottawa, ex-Ald. Hugh O'Neill, president of the Fredericton Branch of the league, and Hon. Peter J. Veniot, Minister of Public Works, who had been here attending a meeting of the Provincial Government and was secured as chairman evidently in the expectation that he would be able to offset the expected opposition to the meeting.

The questions which the protestors spokesman handed in writing to the chairman at his request were as follows:

1.—Is the secession of Ireland from the British Empire, and the formation of an Irish Republic one of the objects of the Self-Determination League for Ireland.

2.—Are you or is the Self-Determination League of Ireland in sympathy with or in any way associated with De Valera, the president of the so-called Irish republic.

3.—Will you under any circumstances support an attempt by the Irish people or any part of the Irish people, to obtain by force their complete independence from the British Empire, or would you give any assistance or comfort to those making such an attempt.

To the first Crawford answered "no"—and later "no"—emphatically "no." His failure to give a categorical answer to the second question was the immediate cause of the breaking up of the meeting, insofar as the aims and objects of the league are concerned and so far as De Valera is concerned it is set forth in our platform which goes no further. Crawford said, "We are in sympathy with Ireland and the friends of Ireland. He was continuing when the body of protestors were upon their feet shouting, "That is no answer,' booing and otherwise preventing the speaker from being heard."

Mr. Veniot asked for order and Crawford shouted that he would not be certain as to how he would answer the questions, but every time he started to speak there was another outburst of roars of disapproval. Crawford stated that he did not have to answer the questions "yes" or "no," and went on: "Was it for this that we fought," when he was drowned with cries of "Where do you get that stuff." Somebody started to sing Rule Britannia and the protestors roared the song and chorus.

HOWLED DOWN REPEATEDLY.

"If this is British freedom there is no wonder that there is an Irish question," shouted Crawford as they stopped singing. "I want the right to," but he could not be further heard as the protestors started singing "Pack all your troubles in your old kit bag and smile, smile, smile," there was discord in the music, but it served its purpose.

Crawford tried to speak again when that song was finished. "If you call this British fair play then let me say that it is a matter of indifference to me whether you allow me the right to speak or not."

He commenced, "you are, denying the rights of citizens of this city to hold a lawful assembly." Then cries of "answer the question" drowned his voice again. Finally Mr. Veniot said that he could find no courtesy or fair play and he asked that the meeting close with the singing of the National Anthem. Crawford, it is said, goes from here to Bathurst, N.B.

NERVY CAPTAIN STUCK TO BURNING STEAMER

Like John Hays' Heroic Pilot, Remained at Wheel

KINGSTON, Ont., Dec. 4. — Emulating the heroic pilot of John Hay's well-known poem, Jim Bludso, who, though in imminent peril of his life at the wheel of his burning vessel, declared that "he would hold her nose against the bank till the last gallot was ashore," Thomas Sughrue, pilot of the steamer Schoolcraft, which was destroyed by fire yesterday morning, remained at the wheel of his burning vessel until he had beached her on Wolfe Island. However, unlike Jim Bludso's crew, the crew of the Schoolcraft had taken to the lifeboats before the steamer was run on the beach, and the captain alone stayed with the ship. All but one escaped serious injury, but the fire had made such rapid headway that they were unable to secure any of their belongings.

The Schoolcraft which was owned by Morley Bros., of Midland, was a thousand-ton vessel and had been engaged in the coal carrying business between Erie and Montreal, and intervening points. A majority of the crew belong to Midland.

PARNELL ELECTED WINNIPEG'S MAYOR

Defeated Labor Candidate by 1,101 Majority Yestetrday

WINNIPEG, Dec. 4. — The labor forces of Winnipeg failed yesterday by a comparatively narrow margin to elect S. J. Farmer as mayor for the city for 1921. Edward Parnell, bread manufacturer and candidate of the citizens committee, has a majority over Farmer, who is an accountant, of 1,101.

The candidates ran neck and neck while the early returns were received, and Farmer hopes were high. Later figures gave Parnell a substantial majority and the labor candidate's lead was overturned. The total vote of under 30,000 was about one-third of the electorate enrolled and entitled to vote.

Farmer, who was the unsuccessful candidate for mayoralty a year ago, was nominated for the contest just ended as the candidate of the Dominion Labor Party. Following a disagreement in the ranks of that party over the civic candidates, he continued in the field as an independent labor man. The campaign was waged through the medium of a great number of public meetings.

The total vote for Mayor was Parnell, 15,115; Farmer 14,014. Majority for Parnell 1,101.

Aldermanic votes cast on the proportional representation system and only first choices were counted yesterday. Study of these figures indicated that labor had failed to secure a majority in the 1921 city council.

SIR WM. ABNEY PASSES AWAY

LONDON, Dec. 4.—Sir William D. Wivelesiie Abney, advisor to the Science Department of the Board of Education since 1903, and member of the advisory council for education to the War Office from the same year, died at Folkestone Thursday. He was 77 years of age.

CLOSE DEAL FOR MACKENZIE PLANTS

Taken Over by Toronto and Hydro, if Taxpayers Endorse

PRICE $32,734,000

Government To Validate Deal At Next Session

TORONTO, Dec. 4. — The City of Toronto and the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission are to buy out the MacKenzie interests at $32,734,000 if the tax payers of Toronto endorse the deal at the municipal elections on January 1. The deal was completed late last night, the directors of the Toronto Railway Company having sanctioned the sale.

The Legislature is to validate the deal at the next session, according to the understanding when the negotiations were underway yesterday.

The agreement states that the deal is for the lands and property of this city, to be paid for by the assumption of the outstanding securities of the Toronto Power Company and the Electrical Development Company, amounting approximately to $21,935,177, and by the issue of bonds of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission guaranteed by the Province of Ontario for the balance.

The purchase is to date as from December 1, 1920.

The next step will be for the City Council to confirm the deal, and a special meeting will be held next Wednesday for this purpose. Then a by law will be carried to submit the whole proposition to the rate payers.

It was not stated what the city's share of the purchase will amount to, but a report was in circulation that the city would be called upon to pay $10,000,000 of the purchase price.

The completion of this deal will simplify the transportation and power problem, not only for Toronto but the whole of the Hydro-Electric power zone. It will result in making the provincial hydro commission the largest generating and distributing corporation of electricity in the world. With the plants already owned by the Hydro, with those now acquired and under construction, the total capacity will be something over 1,000,000 horse power. The total capital investment will amount to between $160,000,000 and $170,000,000.

The agreement was reached last night at a joint meeting of the provincial commission, Manager R. J. Fleming, representing the MacKenzie interests, Mayor Church and board of control, members of the civic Hydro and transportation commission, and officials of all these bodies.

The provisional agreement reached has been ratified by Premier Drury, on behalf of the Government; by the board of control on behalf of the city, and was duly signed by Sir Adam Beck for the Hydro Commission, and Manager Fleming on behalf of the Mackenzie companies.

The appraisal value of the various companies embodied in the MacKenzie interests was $48,000,000. The offer of sale was $35,000,000 until late yesterday, when the companies came down in their price, and the city and Hydro-Electric Commission went up. Their offer yesterday was said to be $30,000,000.

The properties and businesses involved in the deal are as follows: Toronto Power Company, Electrical Development Company, Toronto Electric Light Company, York Radial Railway and Schomberg and Aurora Electric Railway. It is what is known locally as a "clean up."

The Toronto Railway Company does not come into the deal because the Toronto Railway is to be taken over by the city at the expiration of the company's franchise next September. The Toronto Railway Company, however, had a say in the big deal which was closed. It is one of the large concerns in the MacKenzie interests.

WINNIPEG TO AID IN COLONIZATION

Enthusiastic in Pledging Support to Plan to Develop Lands

OTHERS SUBSCRIBE

Ample Funds Seem To Be Available For Work

WINNIPEG, Man., Dec. 4.—(Star Special)—Winnipeg is enthusiastic in its endorsation of the Western Canada Colonization Association. Spurred to extraordinary action by the remarkable support accorded this organization in Eastern Canada, the business men of the Prairie capital are subscribing liberally to the movement.

The project was opened here at a luncheon given by Premier Norris, to the leaders in the city's financial, commercial, and industrial life. Sir James Aikens, Lieut.-Governor of Manitoba, and Lieut.-Governor Brett, of Alberta, spoke strongly in approval of the association, as did also Mr. James H. Ashdown and Mr. Isaac Pitblado, of Winnipeg, Mr. P. A. Baker, vice-president of the United Farmers of Alberta, and other leading men of the three Prairie Provinces. Mayor Brown, of Medicine Hat, provisional chairman of the Association, outlined the plans of the organization, and asked Winnipeg for a quarter of a million dollars, as this city's share in the financing of an enterprise which proposes to place one hundred thousand selected farmers on twenty million acres of land in the next few years.

The realization of this program will mean one half million additional men, women and children on the land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta; another half million in the villages, towns and cities of the West, and from one to two millions of new population in Eastern Canada. Such a development will bring relief to every tax payer in the Dominion, and a new level of prosperity for the whole country from coast to coast.

The objective of a quarter of a million set for Winnipeg is already assured. The most important business men in the city have already subscribed well over one hundred thousand dollars, while such local organizations as the Grain Exchange, the Wholesale Merchants, the Retail Merchants, and Jumbermen have undertaken to secure one hundred and fifty thousand dollars. In thus setting the seal of approval upon a patriotic national movement which will benefit every business in the Dominion, Winnipeg has justified the general support given to the project in the East. In subscribing their share the men of Winnipeg, who ought to know inform the rest of Canada that the undertaking is an entirely feasible one that will play a real part in the development of a greater Canadian Commonwealth.

WARNS AGAINST WAGE REDUCTIONS

OTTAWA, Dec. 4—A report presented by the executive committee of the Allied Trades and Labor meeting last evening, in which a warning was conveyed that employers throughout the country were embarking on a campaign having as its end the reduction of wages and extension of hours of toil, was productive of some very plain speaking by Tom Moore, president of the Trades and Labor Congress. He declared that the workers were not in the condition today of having to stand for a reduction of the standard of wages, raised upon the false cry that prices in general were falling.

"I see no necessity for any reduction in the standard of wages," said President Tom Moore. "The high prices which prevail are due to the wasteful system of distribution, to combines and the inflation of prices by them in the price of raw material. If we subscribe blindly to the theory that prices are falling and, therefore, the wage earners must accept lower wages, we are adopting a false policy.

FOR five years Worthington travelled the highways and byways, setting his nets in the currents of business. And his catches were increasing in size and importance.

The clear head and steady hand of Johnson, his partner, put his orders through the factory for a profit. They were well on the road to prosperity.

But now Johnson is gone. The factory that worked smoothly under his guidance has lost something in efficiency. Someone must take his place.

Worthington decided to come in off the road and to hire someone to take the orders—to reap where he had sown. But the new man didn't seem to have any luck, so Worthington got another idea. He would spend half of his time inside and the other half on the road.

The latter scheme didn't seem to work either. The books showed losses week after week. Down, down went the business, and shortly the "Factory for Sale" sign was hung out.

Someone could have taken Johnson's place—no man is indispensable. Worthington knew of a good, proved man—but a high-priced one. "If I only had ten thousand dollars cash I could tempt him," Worthington had said. But he didn't have the ready money, the business went to smash and he had to start anew.

Business Life Insurance would have saved this business, as it has saved others. Ask us to send you our booklet which tells all about it.

Santa Claus Arrives

Policeman—"Hello, Mr. Santa Claus. I have been looking for you.

Santa Claus—"Yes, Mr. Policeman. Here I am again and on the same old errand—I find that no Christmas present gives such lasting pleasure as a musical instrument, therefore, my first visit will be to the old-established firm of Layton Bros., where for many, many years I have received the best of attention and every courtesy."

Policeman—"Well, Mr. Santa Claus, you will save a lot of time by purchasing your musical instruments at Layton Bros., because you will have the opportunity of testing the merits of three leaders in Phonographs in one store, in comfortable surroundings on the main floor. These three leaders are:—

The Brunswick—That plays all records with superb tone.
Layton Bros. advertise that they have the largest assortment of phonographs and records in Montreal."

Santa Claus—"Well, Mr. Policeman, I also intend buying a lot of pianos and player pianos this Christmas. Layton Bros.' Style "Empire" Piano, with its beautiful tone and light touch, is a great favorite of mine. It has a strong iron frame, bushed tuning pins, and always stays in tune much longer than many other pianos. I used to buy the Layton Pianos in London, England, over 80 years ago.

"The Mason & Risch Pianos are wonderful instruments. I intend to purchase a number of these, both Grands and Uprights."

Policeman—"Well, good-bye, Mr. Santa Claus. I know all the Laytons will be glad to see you at their big store, 550-552 St. Catherine Street West."

OLD-TIME DUEL IN MODERN NEW YORK

Police Interrupted Affair of Honor —Man Dead, Other Wounded

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—(From Our Own Correspondent).—One man was shot to death and his opponent wounded, early yesterday, in what the police believe was a premeditated duel. Two others, thought to have been seconds, were arrested after a chase, in which shots were fired.

Two detectives saw the duel. As they turned the corner at Gunther Place and Atlantic avenue, where a high wall shuts off the Good Shepherd grounds, they saw two men about fifty feet apart turn suddenly and fire at each other with revolvers. After ten shots one man dropped. He was Toni Veni. Veni died with three bullets in his abdomen while being taken hurriedly in an ambulance to St. Mary's hospital.

The other man, Tony Bacellia, started to run, but he fainted. He had been shot in the leg. About fifty feet from the pair stood two other youths. When they saw the detectives they leaped over the wall of the House of the Good Shepherd.

During the fusilade in the chase the girls in the House of the Good Shepherd screamed with fright and hid under their beds. They did not become calm until some time after the shooting ceased.

The two men taken by the detectives in their chase were locked up in the Liberty Avenue station.

DEMPSEY-CARPENTIER BATTLE MAY BE HELD IN CANADA

WILLIARD PAYS NOW FOR GREEDINESS IN BYGONE DAYS

Will Have to Take Only 25 Per Cent of Purse if He Meets Jack Dempsey Again—Bout May Be for Twenty Rounds

NEW YORK, Dec. 4 (United News)—For being so greedy about money when he was champion, Jess Willard will have to take a small cut of the receipts when he fights Jack Dempsey again, sometime after the first of the year. Dempsey remembers that Willard absorbed $100,000 for that quick tumbling tournament out in Toledo in 1919, while the challenger got only $27,500, and had to pay out most of that.

The fighters will gamble with the promoters this time, waiving a guarantee and accepting a percentage of the gate receipts, so Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, says. But the division of that percentage will be about 75 percent to the champion, win, lose or draw, and 25 percent to Willard. Dempsey and Kearns are willing to gamble on the drawing powers of the bout because they believe it would take in more money than any other fight ever held, especially if Willard troubled to train hard for it.

Willard can't dictate terms to Dempsey this time and Kearns' attitude is that the Pottowamati peasant can fight for the odd change and a crack at the championship or not fight at all. There are plenty of push-overs willing to box Dempsey on the same terms who don't tote around such a formidable bulk as Willard's.

Kearns says Willard has signed a contract with Tex Rickard, in which he merely agrees to risk his life in a ring with the champion.

The battle will go to some free land where 20-rounders are permitted, probably to Cuba, Kearns said. Cuba would be all the better for that, Willard is a card with the winter crowd by reason of his defeating Jack Johnson there.

SILVER CUP FOR AN ALL-JEWISH HOCKEY LEAGUE

The following letter explains itself:

Montreal, Nov. 30,th.

Dear Editor:—

As a promotor of sports I am certain that you will print this in your page. I will undertake to donate a Silver Cup to any club who will win each season. The league must compose of six clubs, all players must be Jewish and not over nineteen years of age. I am certain that some of our elderly Jewish sportsmen will aid me by having the first time in the City of Montreal a Jewish Hockey League. The City of Montreal contains sixty thousand Jews and among them we have very good athletic boys and I am sure that we could easily form a league. I would like very much to communicate with the interested parties and they can get me by telephone E. 6641 to make an appointment. I also undertake to have all meetings of the committee take place at my private residence.

Hoping this year we will have a Jewish League.

16 NOMINATIONS FOR NEW P.Q.F.A. BOARD

The clubs of the Province of Quebec Football Association are now earnestly considering the best men to elect for the new board, and their votes will be recorded next Wednesday evening. There are sixteen nominations for seven positions. The names of the candidates and their records can be put in brief, in the order of nomination:

Phillip, Vice-president, Third Division: president, Printers F. C. Has played with St. Bernards (Edinburgh) and Millwall Athletic.

J. J. McQuade—First connected with Royal Rovers F. C. and for six years with C.P.R. Elected last January to the present board.

George Lunn—Joined St. Thomas F. C. in 1914 and served on the committee; next, headed the Junior Association. Joined Rosemount Rovers, and is still attached to them.

A. E. Roughton.—Member of M.A.A.A. since 1903. Played with the Winged Wheelers for six years. Represented his club at the Senior League for three seasons. Was president when they won the championship in 1914.

J. Davey.—First played for Railroad Y.M.C.A. away back in 1908. Then attached himself to Sons of England, of which club he can now be considered a life member. Served as president and player.

Tom Walker—Became a member of Fairmount F. C. in 1914 and then went to Lyalls, for which club he is still a worker. Was on the board in 1918 and 1919.

W. Hamer—His first club was St. Augustines, of the Church League, in 1913. Nomads claimed him next, and he acted as secretary for three years. Member of the board 1919 and 1920.

Dugald Campbell—Has the honor of being one of the founders of Sons of Scotland, in 1909. Is now a member of Nomads.

James Keith—Former vice-president and secretary of the famous Distillery club, of Belfast. One time member of Sons of England. Now with Verdun City, and helped to make them what they are. Served as P.Q.F.A. vice-president 1919.

Neil Hepburn—First played with Smart Bag F. C. in 1908. Next club, Fairmount, with whom he stayed until 1913. Then he appeared with Sons of England until the war broke out. Returning to Canada he was elected president of C.P.R. In 1918 he served as vice-president of the First Division. In 1919 joined the board. Is now returns president of the P.Q.F.A.

Jim Flockhart—Three years ago became a working member of Dominion Bridge though he held his card before. This year elected to the board. Represented Quebec at the D.F.A. in 1919 and is still a council member of the supreme body.

Fred A. Barter—Organized Sons of England in 1909. Led them to championship and twice Quebec Cup winners. First president of the P.Q.F.A., and with Tom Robertson founded the D.F.A., of which he was also the head. Retired in 1914, and shortly afterwards went to war. Saw three years' service.

Tom Pollock—First appeared with Nomads acting as secretary for two seasons. In like capacity has served Locos for three years.

These are the candidates. Gentlemen, take your choice. They all look good, but only seven are required.

The usual bi-monthly meeting of the retiring P.Q.F.A. board will be held on Tuesday evening next when amongst other things arrangements for the banquet to international and inter-city players will be made. Festivities for the closing also include a theatre party.

PRO. BOXING

Dan McKetrick writes: Will you kindly announce to the boxing public that Patsy Cline, idol of Gotham fight fans, has returned to the ring.

The mystery of Irish Patsy Cline's sudden appearance is solved. Patsy Cline suffered an affliction of the eye which caused "double vision." This was the reason for his temporary retirement. Cline has been under the care of specialists for eight months. A successful operation on his eye proved successful.

Cline, the one lightweight who does not fear Leonard, and who gave the Champion his hardest fight, wants to start his campaign by meeting either Willie Johnson or Johnny Dundee. He nearly defeated both Dundee and believes that he can repeat. He will then be ready to meet Leonard in a title contest.

Cline has been working for several weeks with Champion Jack Dempsey and will be ready for a contest in two weeks.

M'GILL WON THE CHAMPIONSHIP IN WATER POLO

The McGill won the senior water polo championship last night by defeating the M.A.A.A., at the Peel street tank. The final score was McGill 7, M.A.A.A. 5.

The students gain the privilege of holding the famous Charlie Goulden Cup, emblematic of the championship of Canada. The college players won the high aquatic honors without suffering a loss this year. A record crowd witnessed the games and once again draws out the fact that none of the local baths provide sufficient seating space for spectators, as quite a few people were crowded away from the games.

The M.A.A.A. had little trouble in working up a 6 to 2 score against the McGill Intermediates and this should be some salve to heal the senior loss.

The senior game was a close checking contest all through. The Winged Wheelers won the toss and started defending the deep water. At the face off Vernot secured the sphere and worked it up with Fisk, but Bert Vernot intercepted a pass and tossed it over to Frank McGill who tried a shot but failed. Walters cleared the canvas up to Parsons and on a pretty piece of combination with Vernot and Fisk the students scored their first counter by way of Harold Fisk. The M.A.A.A. set a fast pace to break into the scoring, but the period ended with McGill 1, M.A.A.A. 0.

The second session started with a rush, George Hodgson won out in the face at the face off and tossed the ball into the hands of Frank McGill and with the aid of George Ritchie, Frank evened up the score on a pretty shot that gave Walters no chance. The whole red and white outfit featured in next rush and while being tackled George Vernot once again placed the McGill mermen in the front. Frank McGill with the aid of Bobby Logan evened up for the M.A.A.A. in about sixty seconds of time, but before half time was called Foss and Bastable worked the ball up to Leslie Parsons and he made a nicely timed pass to George Vernot who once again gained a one goal advantage for McGill making the score at half time read McGill 3, M.A.A.A. 2.

The rest period seemed to do the players good as they started off at a fast clip, but the M.A.A.A. lost several fine chances by shooting wild. The students played careful and defended their nets well and whilst they held the Peel street watermen without a tally throughout the session they themselves notched up two more in rapid style by way of Vernot. The score at the end of this quarter stood McGill 5, M.A.A.A. 2. The students went into the final period with a three goal lead but their chances soon looked slim when Walters was sent to the bench for a minute's rest. First Georgie Ritchie counted one up for M.A.A.A., then next Parsons put one over for the college, and in half minute Ritchie tallied again, and Bobby Logan followed him with another. Up until now Vernot was replacing Walters in goal and as a goal keep he was a failure, but when Walters came back Fisk and Vernot rushed up the tank and Vernot put the result safe by reaching the M.A.A.A. nets with another, making the final score McGill 7, M.A.A.A. 5.

The intermediate game was a good curtain raiser. Before the finish of the first period the M.A.A.A. had a lead of three while the young Red and White boys were blank. In the second period the students' second string run in two goals, but throughout the balance of the game the M.A.A.A. held them scoreless while they themselves ran in three more, making the final score read: M.A.A.A. 6; McGill 2. Coach E. D. Vernot felt as proud with the result as the players themselves.

The theams and summary of both games were as follows, the officials being the same on each case:

Bike Riders to Form National Organization

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—The thirty riders who competed in the six-day race at the Twenty-second Regiment Armory last week were paid off yesterday at the office of the New York Velodrome Company, No. 489 Fifth avenue. More than $40,000 in prize money was distributed among the riders. Every man that took part in the grind came out of the race in good condition. All but two of them gained from four to six pounds in weight. Goullet and McBeath were the exceptions. Goullet lost about four pounds and McBeath took off three pounds.

After being paid off the riders held an informal discussion and laid the foundation for the new organization to control racing among amateurs and professionals. Several well-known amateur riders took part in the discussion, and all of them, including the eight foreign riders, signed an agreement to stand together in their fight against the oppressive methods of the National Cycling Association.

In a few days there will be a meeting called at which a permanent national organization will be formed. At this gathering officers will be elected and a committee of three riders appointed to select a well-known civilian to interest himself in the cause of the riders and the sport in general. This civilian will be a member of a board of control, consisting of three. One member will be a cyclist and the other will represent the track owners. A committee is also to be sent abroad to confer with the controlling body in Europe. Bob Spears, the winner of the world's championship abroad this year, took part in the discussion.

PRELIMINARY TO MONTREAL'S BIG SKATING MEET

NEWBURGH, N.Y., Dec. 4. — Eight big events constitute the splendid card that has been arranged by the Newburgh Skating Association for the National Outdoor Speed Skating Championships to be held on the ice at Newburgh, N.Y., on New Year's Day. Included are four championship events, 220-yard, quarter-1mle, half-mile and mile; 5-mile handicap, mile novice, quarter-mile ladies' race and half-mile schoolboys' race. Gold, silver, and bronze medals will be awarded as prizes in all events except in the 5-mile handicap for which the first prize will be a diamond medal. The Alfred Johnson cup, a very handsome trophy, will be awarded the skater scoring the most points.

Entries, which close December 23rd, are already coming in and the outlook is that the entry list will be the largest of any skating meet ever held in this country. Practically all of the speediest skaters in this country and Canada are expected to compete. Pittsburgh, St. Paul, Boston, Chicago, New York, Lake Placid, Saranac, Montreal and Toronto skating clubs have already announced their intentions of having representatives in the meet, and the indications point to the keenest competition that has ever marked the struggle for national titles on the steel blades.

The races, open to all registered amateur skaters in the United States and other countries and under the jurisdiction of the International Skating Union of America, will be held on an 8-lap course. An entire day will be devoted ot the races, the trial heats being held in the morning and the semi-finals and finals in the afternoon. Newburgh, birthplace of Joe Donoghue, whose speed skating records for distances from 25 to 100 miles are still unbeaten, is getting ready to entertain about 25,000 people on the day of the races. Fifteen thousand attended the Eastern Championships contested here last season.

PRO. HOCKEY NOTES

OTTAWA, Dec. 4. — Officers of the Ottawa Hockey Club announced that they had started their annual campaign for players, and that the first man to attach his signature to a National League contract for the coming season was Sprague Cleghorn, who for the past two seasons has been regular point man for the Stanley Cup holders.

It is understood that they are going to sign all their regulars, but that the proposed player limit in the National League may force them to reduce their squad to about eight men. Pete Green will again be signed as coach and Frank Dolan as trainer. Ice-making is already under way.

ALLEY BOWLING

For the past week a movement has been on foot to form a bowling league among the automobile firms of the city, and a meeting was held and a league consisting of six teams formed. Officers were elected and a decision to start rolling at once was made. The first game of the league will be rolled on Thursday night, December 2, when the Allied Motors will meet up with the Gray-Dort Agencies, the Ginsberg Motors will meet the Legare Auto and Supply Co., and the Forum Building will meet the McLaughlin Motors. A trophy for the winning team has been promised, and as some of the best bowling talent of the city will be in line in the league a good season's sport is being looked forward to. The boys of the auto game are as good with the balls as with the wheel, and those who are interested in the game can see them at the Steele Alleys on Bleury street each Thursday night at 6:30.

CRICKET NOTES

A very successful meeting was held in the office of Messrs. Babcock & Wilcox, Ltd., St. Henry, when a new Cricket Club for the season, 1921, was formed in connection with the firm, a fair number of supporters being present.

The following officers were elected: Hon. president, H. W. Weller; hon. vice-president, W. W. Lee. Executive—President, C. Lambert; vice-president, W. Hardy; secretary, H. Martin; treasurer, G. J. Oakley.

Committee—O. Parfitt, J. King, J. McKenzie and F. Walsh.

A new ground has been secured, adjoining the east side of the works on Richelieu street (within three minutes' walk of St. Henry Church), which the committee hope to have in good shape before the commencement of the season.

Any cricketers or persons desirous of becoming members, full particulars may be had from the secretary, H. Martin, 97 Convent street, St. Henry, Montreal.

IF IN CANADA DEMPSEY-CARPENTIER BATTLE WILL BE IN MIDDLE WEST

Men who know something about the possibilities of a world's championship boxing match being held in Canada, seem to be pretty well convinced that Ottawa will have no chance to hold the Carpentier-Dempsey bout.

While it is admitted that circumstances over which Tex Rickard and his associates have no control may compel them to hold it somewhere else than in New York State, the men referred to do not think that it will either be held in Montreal or Ottawa, if it should be decided to try and hold it in this country.

If it is held in Canada at all it will be held somewhere in the Middle West. Somewhere within a few hours' journey of Toronto, and a few hours' journey from the United States boundary.

There is a bid in for the bout now from purely Canadian promoters, who seem to think that there is no reason why it could not be held on Canadian soil under the existing laws. The bid has been in for some time, and it would not be surprising in view of possible complications of a political nature, magnified by resentments on the part of rival United States promoters who do not look with favor upon the men who hold the contracts for the bout at present, if it should come to the Dominion.

If so it would not be any further away from Montreal than was the Sir Barton-Man o'War race.

INTERNATIONAL BASKET BALL IN NEW YORK TODAY

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—(Special to The Star From Our Own Correspondent.)—The visit of the Half Moon basketball team to this city today, when the clash with the Original Celtics at the Seventy-First Regiment Armory, Thirty-fourth street and Park avenue, has put the basketball fans of this city on edge for what appears to be the best court battle of the season. Great as is the record of the New York champions, it looks no better than that of the Canadian five's efforts since they were organized just after the world war by Dog Wachter, at present coach of the Harvard University basketball team.

Followers of the fortunes of the Celtics are worried for the first time this season, because they realize that New York's champions are meeting a team worthy of their metal. Reports from Canada are to the effect that their style of game is similar to that of the Celtics, but many believe the play is faster than that exhibited by the New York five.

As this will be the first international match ever held here a record crowd is expected.

TRAPSHOOTERS TO TALK IN THE OPEN

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 4.—Wherever the next Grand American Handicap Trapshooting Tournament is held there will be a meeting of the zone delegates of each State Sportsman's Association in conjunction with the zone representatives to the annual meeting of the American Trapshooting Association to discuss in a general way conditions for the betterment of trapshooting.

This was decided upon at the recent meeting of the A. T. A. and marks a forward step in the promotion of the sport. When representatives of 45 or more state associations get together to discuss the problems of trapshooting—and there are many problems—some good should result. A lot of good ideas should come from such a meeting.

The chairman of the Amateur Committee will no doubt be in control of the meeting, and if he is wise, and no one is more interested in trapshooting as a sport than Sam Foster, he will throw the doors open to all trapshooters and invite them into the discussions. When votes are necessary to decide a question then the voting should be left to those representing the state associations.

More than four years ago we suggested to the president of the then Interstate Association a plan to bring all the amateur shooters of the country together to form a real amateur trapshooting body, and named as the right time and place the time and place where the Grand American Handicap would be staged.

That is the time and place to talk trapshooting. When you get 800 or more shooters from every part of the United States and Canada together you can get a varied lot of ideas on how trapshooting should be conducted. Some of the ideas may not be worth a thing. Some of them may be very good.

We know a lot of trapshooters who have excellent ideas on the management of the sport and whose advice would be worth while. We all know that trapshooting as it is conducted can stand a lot of improvement, and there is no one more interested in the betterment of the sport than the trapshooter himself. He should be given a chance to air his views at a place where trapshooters are in the majority. It has always seemed to us like an opportunity wasted.

We believe that the sport can be bettered by such a meeting and hope that at the next Grand American there will be a genuine mass meeting of amateurs and that every one will be allowed to say what he or she thinks and then the representatives and zone delegates will have a fairly good idea of what the trapshooters of the country want.

LIST OF CURLERS FOR TRIP TO SCOTLAND

Thirty-four curlers will go from Canada to Scotland and on December 29, the whole party will en-train for St. John, N.B., sailing from that port on the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of France, on December 30. The members from the west are coming down via Canadian National Railways.

The following are those going:

Taylor, Crystal City Club, Crystal City, Man.; 30, J. A. Johnson, Baldur Club, Baldur, Man.; 31, E. D. Calvert, Rainy River Club, Rainy River, Man.; 32, Wm. McKenzie, Wolwyn Club, Wolwyn, Sask.; 33, J. A. Craig, Yarmouth Club, Yarmouth, N.S.; 34, Richard Wolfe, St. Lawrence Club, Montreal.

Nos. 1 to 6 and 33, Nova Scotia branch; 7 to 12 and 34 Canadian branch; 13 to 22, Ontario branch, and 23 to 32, Manitoba branch.

At a meeting of the Intermediate and junior sections of the M.A.A.A. Football Club, R. T. Raycroft was elected captain of the intermediates, while Gordon Wighton was chosen as the leader of the juniors. The two captains will choose managers for their teams at a later date. The prospects of having a four team intermediate section in the Q. R. F. U. were discussed and as there are only the Westmount and M.A.A.A. teams in the Montreal intermediate section at present, it is thought that two more teams can be added.

BIG BATTLE IS EXPECTED BY GOLF PLAYERS

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—H. B. Martin writes in the Mail:

The golfers of the east read yesterday with surprise the proposed action by the Western Golf Association to throw down the gauntlet to the United States Golf Association and start a golf war.

War clouds have been hovering over all branches of sport this past summer, but it was thought that peace reigned supreme in the golfing camps. For years the Western Golfing Association has been threatening to break with the national body. It went as far as to form rules of its own, and when Frances Ouimet was banished by the parent body it permitted him to compete in the western amateur championship.

The Western Association's plans are as far too vague to form any idea of whether they mean a real live fight or whether it is a bluff. At any rate, it will all be thrashed out at the annual meeting on Jan. 15, a week after the U.S. G.A. meets in New York.

That something serious has been started there is no doubt, but how far it will go no one in the East is prepared to offer any opinion. Several prominent golfers were asked what it all meant, but not one man cared to air his views at the present time. It appears to be as much of a surprise to the golfing officials as it is to the golfers tahemselves.

WESTERN ASS'N AGGRESSIVE.

This much is certain. The initiative has come from the directors of the Western Association. The proposal sent out from headquarters with the official stamp of approval is as follows:

"The directors of the Western Golf Association, believing there should exist a real national golf association to promote the best interests of the game for American golfers, irrespective of foreign bodies which govern the playing of the game under conditions different from those existing in this country, and recognizing the need of a truly democratic American association, recommend the adoption of the new constitution and the changing of the name of this association to that of the American Golf Associaton.

"The proposed constitution also provides for the appointment of a rules committee of five members from five different states, "to be selected for their knowledge of golf," to prepare and submit a code of rules "suitable to meet the conditions and needs of the game in the United States." It is also provided that "on all questions of the interpretations of the rules the committee shall be the final authority."

"An innovation in the selection of championship courses is also proposed for the staring of "American amateur championships, the women's American championship," open to any amateur member of a club in this association and to any player who has been invited to compete, and the American open championship, open to the world."

The sum and substance of the whole thing is this: The Westerners do not thank that the U.S.G.A. is representative of American golf, and that if an association was formed with a broader scope, with more clubs being represented, it would be a better governing body. The Western Association has 300 clubs, the national body has over 400. These are spread all over the United States, while the Western Association limits its membership to the west.

Victory Rink Open Again at the Point

The big open-air rink in Point St. Charles will reopen again and Mr. Dalton, the manager, has everything in readiness and with the coming of the first cold snap will start to get the ice so as to give patrons skating at the earliest possible date. The band nights will be as usual, Tuesday and Saturday nights. Also every second week there will be moonlight skating on Thursday nights as they proved so popular last season, the Grand Trunk Band will furnish the music under the leadership of Bandmaster Simons, and the best of music is assured.

There are a few hockey hours open yet and as they are taken first come first served, hockey clubs intending to play on the rink would do well to arrange their hours as soon as possible.

Pastoral Swin Took Feature

NEW ORLEANS, La., Dec. 4.—Showing a decided improvement since his last effort at Latonia sometime ago, S. Field's six-year-old gelding, Judge Prince, provided the outstanding form upset at Jefferson Park yesterday afternoon when he got home under a drive to win at 40 to 1 and take the measure of the odds on choice, H. C. Basch, by nearly a length.

The feature of the card was the Evangeline Purse, at a mile and seventy yards, which was won by G. C. Winfrey's Pastoral Swain.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Billy Defoe, of St. Paul, scored a technical knockout over Frankie Brown, of New York, in the eleventh round of a fifteen-round match here. After Brown had been floored twice in the eleventh round, the referee halted the bout. Defoe weighed 122 pounds and Brown 126.

CLAIMS U.S. RUGBY IS MORE OPEN THAN THE CANADIAN GAME

Opinion Expressed in Favor of the Forward Pass —No Interference Rule is a Big Drawback, Says Another Writer

Sporting Editor, Montreal Star.

I read with interest the article by "Enthusiast" in tonight's Star, and think your correspondent is laboring under a wrong impression as regards American football.

By the tone of his letter one would assume that American football depends altogether on mass plays. As a matter of fact football of today across the line is a much more open game than the Canadian game.

"Shag" in an article last year stated that in his opinion the forward pass was a failure as in the Army and Navy game of last year only one or two passes were successful. Now it is the uncertainty of the forward pass that makes it pleasing to watch. If every pass was successful the game would resemble a combination basket ball or baseball game. I don't know what is a finer spectacle than to see a 30 yard forward pass pulled off successfully.

The biggest drawback in the Canadian game to my mind is the rule about no interference. This entails the backfield men doing all the line plunging without any of the other backs plunging ahead of the man carrying the ball, and destroying the offense of the other side. Instead of a backfield, which as all know are the ones furnishing the spectacular side of the game, being as fresh or fresher than the line men at half time, they are usually well played out.

In conclusion I can only say that this is not snap judgment on my part as I have played American football for a number of years before coming to Canada, and I have followed all of McGill and M.A.A.A. games here.

Yours very truly,

R. A. COBURN.

Johnny Wilson of Boston, who fights George Robinson, the clever negro middleweight, at Mount Royal Arena next Thursday night, is the first middleweight champion who has ever boxed in Canada. Wilson's title will be at stake in the bout, as he can be shorn of his honors if Robinson knocks him out, or if he loses to the negro on a foul.

Wilson is unique among present-day champions from the fact that he is a "southpaw"—he leads with his right hand, in defiance of the orthodox school of boxing, which has established the left lead as a basic principle. Wilson is reputed to be a terrific hitter with his left hand. It was his slugging with the dexter mitt which won him the title, as he floored the doughty Mike O'Dowd with a wallop from his left, and thus gained a lead which was sufficient to win him the decision and the title.

Wilson's appearance here will be the first in several months, and his third since winning the title. In his other three fights he decisively whipped Soldier Bartfield, knocked out Steve Choynski, and defeated Young Fisher of Syracuse. He was matched with Bryan Downey at Cincinnati, but developed ear trouble and had to cancel his bout. He returns to the ring in the Robinson fight.

Wilson is Italian by birth, and an aggressive, hard-hitting fighter. He meets an exceptionally clever, fast boxer in Robinson, and the appearance of the champion in what promises to be a real battle, will undoubtedly draw one of the big houses of the season.—Adv.

SCHNEIDER DENIES HE HAS TURNED PRO

Bert Schneider informed The Star last night that the report saying he turned Pro. could be denied in toto. The Olympic champion has been approached with many tempting offers, but he is still in the amateur ranks. He states that quite a few people are asking him what his future plans are, but all he can say is that his future plans will be decided when the future arrives. He is an amateur and he intends to stay as such as long as he can as he takes a delight in amateur boxing and water polo. He will be seen next week in a M.S.C. suit against McGill in the water polo contest.

More Truth Than Poetry

By JAS. J. MONTAGUE

WERE I A GUILELESS PEON.

Were I a guileless peon
Beneath a mesquit tree,
And Villa chanced to be on
The same square mile with me,
Although a vow he's taken
To live upon the square,
I think, to save my bacon,
I'd move away from there.

If I heard Senor Pancho
Announcing his design
To buy himself a rancho
Across the road from mine,
Although he wouldn't harm me,
Straight into town I'd race,
And telegraph the army
To come and watch my place.

Were I to meet with Villa
Upon a lonely plain,
Although, I'm sure, to kill a
Mild man he would disdain,
And although I should not worry
Or murmur my dismay,
I think that I should hurry
Along my homeward way.

This once remorseless bandit
Who used to rage and row
Is, as I understand it,
A peaceful person now,
But if I were to meet him
Beneath the stars or sun
I would not pause to greet him
I'd turn around and run.

SHOCKING WASTE OF TIME.

It is remarkable that the profiteers bother with preying on us poor consumers when it had the U. S. Shipping Board for a field of operations.

TOO MUCH CONTROL.

It wasn't necessary to invoke the Volstead law to curb the making of home brew. The work would have been done just as well by the law against the indiscriminate manufacture of explosives.

MOST OF IT IS FIREPROOF.

After burning some of the coal being sold now we can understand why there is such a scarcity of asbestos.

THE PASSING HOUR

He was an elderly son of the soil and he had all the farmer's savage hatred of taxes of every kind and description.

To add insult to injury a perky little collector called for taxes he had already paid. Unfortunately, the farmer could not find the receipt.

"I explained this to him," he explained to a friend of his later, "and, would you believe it, Bill, the feller began to abuse me?"

"Did he?" said Bill. "And what did you do?"

"Do! Well I remonstrated with him."

"You did—to what effect?"

"I dunno exactly, but the shovel got broke."

There had been a difference of opinion in the preacher's family, in which six-year-old Mary thought she got the worst of it.

So at prayer time she was unhappy and resentful toward the world in general and her own ministering family in particular.

But she knelt at her mother's knee as usual, and went through the ordinary evening petitions. Finally she added:

"Oh, Lord, make all the bad people good!"

She paused for a moment, then, as an afterthought, concluded:

"And, if you can, please make all the good people nice!"

"Why, he sold that picture, I'm sure."

"Yes, but he has just heard that the model sold for more than the painting."

Mr. Higginson had been away from home for a week and on his return found that burglars had visited the house during his absence, and, although one had been wounded they had succeeded in getting away.

"And so you shot a burglar while alone and unprotected?" he said to his wife. "You are a brave little woman! What became of him?" "The other man carried him off," she replied. "The other man?" he asked. "Yes," she said, "the one I aimed at."

"The man was in a reverie and the lady was in a tantrum. They collided." "The man was in what?" "A reverie. And the lady was in a tantrum." "I suppose both machines were badly damaged?"

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

HARDING TO RESTORE SMOKING.

President-Elect Warren Gamaliel Harding will restore smoking to the White House. Open cigars and cigarettes openly arrived at will be the slogan of the new administration.

• • •

• • •

He believes thoroughly with Vice-President Marshall, it is said, that what America most needs is a good five-cent cigar.

• • •

America has not had in nineteen years a President who smoked. Joe Cannon has had to do the heavy smoking for both parties during the last five administrations. But for him the Washington Fire Department would have been demobilized back around 1900.

• • •

Roosevelt never touched a drop of cigar in his life. Taft smoked in his early days, but a constantly widening girth brought about a situation where he had to wear an ash tray for a vest or give up smoking if he was to keep up a good personal appearance.

• • •

He never smoked while President, but he wasn't President long enough to be credited with making a great sacrifice.

• • •

President Wilson is reported to have been found smoking cornsilk out behind the barn at Princeton when a youth, but the report he once smoked cigarettes and saved the actresses' pictures given away with each pack is denied.

• • •

At any rate, he found at a very early age that what was really the trouble with the Heart of the World was Tobacco Heart, and he has never hit the weed since.

• • •

It is rumored that he still thinks United Cigar Stores are put on street corners to mark the points of heaviest traffic.

• • •

Everybody realized the President was not a smoker when Mrs. Wilson came home with a few trunks full of bric-a-brac from Europe. There wasn't a thing in the lot the President couldn't have obtained with a few hundred coupons.

• • •

Many members of his administration were against smoking, too, but most of them carried matches and would smoke if somebody bought the cigars.

• • •

President-Elect Harding has always smoked. Gossips say it was the sort of cigars he smoked that made the neighbors get together and send him to Congress. Anything to clear the air.

• • •

When Congress adjourned he came back, started smoking the same old seven-centers, and . . . there was nothing to do but send him back to a job which would keep him in Washington four years at a stretch.

• • •

Coolidge smokes. Two cigars last him a whole year. Then he sends them out, according to reports, and has them vulcanized and retreaded. The Vice-President-Elect gets wonderful mileage on his tobacco.

• • •

The fact that President Harding smokes will bring his wife closer to the affections of the women of America; they know the strain of trying to keep a man from dropping ashes on the parlor rugs.

• • •

If she can prove in 1925 that Warren didn't drop any ashes on the floor during his four-year term the women of the nation will re-elect him without a protest.

• • •

Mr. Harding smokes cigars, pipes, and cigarettes. What more can he do to hold the tobacco vote?

• • •

When the reformers call on him to launch their Tobacco Prohibition war we hope he happens to be smoking all three at once.

SO TO SPEAK.

"Yessir, I 'xpect to make a fortune outen the poultry business. I got 200 hens—"

PRO. BOXING

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—All contestants in the New York State boxing championships, to be conducted under the auspices of the Amateur Athletic Union next month will be numbered, according to Secretary Fred Rubien. This innovation will serve to make the bouts more interesting to the spectators, he said.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 4. — Andy "Young" Chaney, of Baltimore, defeated Gene Delmont, of Memphis, in a tame eight round bout here. Johnny Mealey, Philadelphia, outpointed Freddy Reese, New York, in a fast eight round fight.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Dec. 4. — Joe Welling, Chicago boxer, has been suspended from fighting in Wisconsin for one year by the State Boxing Commission, it was announced. The action was taken yesterday after Referee Walter Houlehen and other witnesses testified that Welling had made no effort to do his best in a recent bout here with Lew Tendler.

TOLEDO, O., Dec. 4. — Toledo boxing commission took further action to limit the activities of Chuck Wiggins, Indianapolis light heavyweight boxer by asking Commissioner Biggar of Michigan to bar Wiggins from participating in bouts in that State.

Wiggins was first barred here when he failed to post a $200 forfeit for his scheduled bout with Tommy Gibbons on December 6. The Commission gave him until 6 o'clock last Saturday night to post the money and voted to bar him when he failed.

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 4.—Joe Stecher, world's champion heavyweight wrestler, successfully defended his title here by winning from Salvatore Chevalier, in straight falls. The first came in 24 minutes and 40 seconds through a head scissors and the second in 7 minutes and 40 seconds with a body scissors and armhold.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3. — Jack Sharkey and Joe Lynch, two of the leading bantams, are at weight for their fifteen round engagement tonight in Madison Square Garden, according to information coming from their training quarters. Both are to weigh 118 pounds at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Promoter Tex Rickard will make an effort to get Champion Pete Herman in the ring with the winner.

CLEVELAND, Dec. 4.—The ten-round bout scheduled between Pal Moore, of Mephmis, and Carl Tremaine, of Cleveland, bantams, was called off because Tremaine was one pound over the stipulated weight of 119 pounds, at 3 p.m., and Moore would not concede the extra weight.

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 4.—A big appetite and big meal caused the cancellation of the Carl Tremaine-Pal Moore ten-round bout here. The boys were to weigh in at 119 pounds at 3 o'clock. Tremaine was down to the weight Wednesday, the day before the scrap.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7. — Wladek Zbyzko, the Polish wrestler, has been undergoing treatment at a hospital here for injuries to his head received in his recent bout with Ed. "Strangler" Lewis, it was learned today. His head is swollen and his sight somewhat impaired.

"I have wrestled the Strangler many times," he said, "but never did he squeeze my head so hard as he did the other night. His hold nearly paralyzed me."

Y.W.C.A. GYMNASTICS ARE IN FULL SWING

The gymnastic classes of the Centclasse at the Central Y.W.C.A. gymnasium are now in full swing. Those still open for membership are Monday, 5:45, business girls, beginners; Tuesday, 7:15, junior business girls; Thursday, 7.15, advanced business girls; Tuesday and Thursday, 10:15, ladies' classes; folk dancing for adults, Friday 5.45; school girls' gymnastic class Tuesday and Friday at 4 and dancing classes Saturday 10 and 11 o'clock.

Wednesday evening devoted to basketball has met with good response, and is now closed to further enrollment.

After trying indoor tennis for a month it is found to be unpractical owing to the shortness of the court. The members of the physical department, who have been interested in the tennis, and who enjoy a vigorous game on Saturday afternoon, will be able to use the gymnasium for Badminton.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Dec. 4. — Frankie Mason of Fort Wayne, Ind., was given the newspaper decision over Jimmy Murphy of St. Louis in an eight round bout here last night. They are bantamweights.

DINNER ON THE 31ST CRICKET BIRTHDAY

The thirty-first annual dinner of Lachine C. C. was held at the Bungalow. A splendid menu was attended to by 115 guests, which does credit to Mrs. Marsh and her assistants. After dinner the presentation of prizes followed, the following gentlemen being the recipients:

M. P. Santos, first team batting.
G. Horsfall, second team batting.
G. C. Clarke, first team bowling.
C. W. Macham, second team bowling.

Then followed a musical evening and dancing. The program was ably rendered by the following gentlemen: Messrs. W. Clayton, B. Thompson, Napier, Hague and Lister.

Altogether it was a splendid gathering. One of the gentlemen who founded the club thirty-one years ago said that it was the best dinner that had ever been held since its inception.

NICE JOB.

He—"That so? How about putting me in charge of the proving grounds?"

GOLF NOTES

BOSTON, Dec. 4.—The Massachusetts Golf Association aligned itself with the United States Golf Association in the controversy which threatens to develop a conflict over the government of golf in the United States. The executive committee of the state association drew up formal resolutions regretting the appearance of dissension, expressing strong opposition at the suggestion of supplanting the United States Golf Association with another body. Barton K. Stephenson was re-nominated as president.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4. — The Western Golf Association has no war with the United States Golf Association, declared Albert R. Gates, vice-president of the western association, and a member of the Calumet Club, which is an active member of the United States Golf Association, in a statement issued last night relative to recent plans announced for expansion of the western association.

HARDING'S DUAL ROLE DIFFICULT

As President-Elect and Senator is in Unique Position

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—(United News.)—Warren G. Harding in the dual role of President-elect and Senator finds himself in a unique position, and one that is correspondingly difficult.

He has broken all precedent by being elected to the Presidency from the Senate, and is in a position that threatens other precedents, by being prevented through circumstances from resigning from his Senate seat.

Republican leaders are admittedly in a quandary as to just how Senator Harding should proceed when he arrives here the first of next week. Some of them state that it is "unfortunate" that Harding is to be here at all at this time.

According to those intimately in touch with his plans, he will not call on President Wilson at the White House unless he is formally asked, and probably not even in the event of such an invitation. It is recalled that President Taft in 1912 invited President Wilson to visit the White House before inauguration day, but Wilson declined. Republican leaders feel, also that while Harding would deliver a speech in the Senate if he were invited, such a course would be inadvisable. They picture him as wishing to do what is thought best in the matter, but owing to the fact that he would be here on the day on which the President plans to send or deliver his speech to Congress, anything that he might say on the Senate floor that day would be interpreted in some quarters as a counter message to the Senate.

BALAKOVITCH ARMY DECLARED BROKEN

Bolsheviki Claim Remnants in Flight Toward Poland

WARSAW, Dec. 4. — The Bolsheviki have smashed all the detachments of General Bulak Balakovitch and the remnants are fleeing toward Poland, some crossing the frontier near Davidgrodenk, north of the Pinsk marshes, where they were disarmed, according to latest reports received here.

This ends the adventurous plan of General Balakovitch to rush to Moscow with a handful of men after arousing millions of peasants against the Soviets while en route.

General Balakovitch is reported to have disappeared but is believed to have reached Poland where he will be interned if found, in accordance with the terms of the Riga agreement between the Poles and Soviets.

MINE THREATENED CROWDED BEACH

Prompt action by coastguards in exploding a huge mine as it was being washed towards the crowded sea front saved Walmer from what would probably have been a serious disaster.

The mine was first seen drifting with the tide from Kingsdown towards Walmer and Deal, and the naval authorities at Dover despatched a destroyer to sink it.

Before the vessel could arrive, however, a strong wind and flood tide had carried the mine to within 100 yards of the beach at Walmer, where huge breakers were beating against the shingle.

Realising the danger of the mine being dashed against the beach and exploding, the Walmer coastguards opened rifle fire.

In the sixth round a shot struck one of the detonators, and the mine exploded with a terrific report, which greatly alarmed the townsfolk, hundreds of whom were taking a walk on the promenade.

Volumes of water were hurled hundreds of feet in the air, and scores of sea-gulls that had been following the object, evidently mistaking it for a dead animal, were killed and flung into mid-air.

GO TO CHURCH

BY JAMES B. SPILLMAN

HAVE YOU SUCCESSFULLY COVERED YOUR FEELING THIS WEEK?

The man of greed goes into a room and gloats over his treasures.

The gambler loses his last cent without a quiver of the lips or a bat of the eyes.

It is the child that cries with a broken heart because of a smashed toy.

The art of the actor is to portray feeling, force us to acknowledge sensations of joy and sorrow.

To be unable to rejoice with those that rejoice, and weep with those that weep, that is the very depth of poverty of the soul.

It is sympathy and love that makes this world akin.

"Love one another" and—

Go to church tomorrow.

HIST! HIST!! HIST!!! BOYS and GIRLS

Here's a Great Secret About Santa Claus

But if we tell YOU—whatever you do don't tell HIM.

The other night when the city was in darkness and when most of the boys and girls were sound asleep there was a terrific racket on the roof of Ogilvy's building. Some people who were working late in the store rushed upstairs and reached the top floor just in time to hear some person come spluttering and puffing down the chimney. And whom do you think it was? SANTA CLAUS! Yes, as sure as you live!

There he stood in all his glory of red and white. Of course we hid behind the boxes.

Santa Claus stood a minute looking out into "Ogilvy's Land of Toy Delight,"—and then, what do you think happened?

EVERY BLESSED TOY IN THE CENTRE AISLE APPEARED TO RUN TOWARDS HIM. You don't believe it? Well see for yourself.

WE HAD A MOVING PICTURE TAKEN OF THE WHOLE THING. Do you want to see it?

PRINCESS	Dec. 6, 7.	LEOW'S	Dec. 6, 7, 8.
NEW GRAND	Dec. 6, 7, 8, 9.	ST. DENIS	Dec. 9, 10, 11.
STRAND	Dec. 6, 7.	HOLMAN	Dec. 8, 9, 10.
TIVOLI	Dec. 9, 10, 11.	REGAL	Dec. 13, 14, 15

After Santa Claus selected some of the toys he wanted for boys and girls, he made a tour of the store, from top to bottom and chose beautiful gifts for every member of the family.

Ever so many people told us that Santa Claus bought most of his nice Christmas gifts at Ogilvy's. We are CERTAIN of it now.

THE LESSON OF A STRIKE.

THE principle of trades unionism as applied to a municipal police force has not worked in Boston. Within the last two or three days the ex-policemen of that city have severed their connection with the A. F. of L. and sent back the charter which they held from that organization.

It will be remembered that the Boston police force formed a union, affiliated with the A. F. of L. and went on strike. The situation became so serious that Governor Coolidge, of Massachusetts, had to proclaim what was virtually military rule. That broke up the strike. It was announced that none of the strikers would be reinstated on the city payroll, and their places were promptly filled. According to information from Boston, the ex-policemen are most anxious to get their old positions back, and their abandonment of the A. F. of L., which they had counted on to assist them by calling out Boston workers in general, but which failed to do so, is reported to be a move toward conciliation with the civic authorities.

The point of the whole incident is that the Mayor of Boston and the Governor of the State saw at once the impossibility of sanctioning a police force which was at the beck and call of any organization other than the municipal authorities. The strike was not fought and broken on the issue of any grievances which the policemen had, but upon the principle of undivided authority over the force. Long before the strike occurred the then Police Commissioner defined the attitude of the authorities on the question of police affiliation with the A. F. of L. He forbade such action and the charter was obtained in defiance of this ruling.

The report from Boston states that labor leaders are generally in hearty accord with the former police in the course they have now taken. It may have become clear to them that policemen cannot divide their allegiance between the public and any organization which may see fit to challenge the primary duty of all police, the defence of the community. The utter failure of the Boston strike should help labor leaders to realize that this is the view that the public holds and that the cause of organized labor will suffer through any attempt to run counter to it. The Boston fiasco contains a clear lesson for both police and labor.

EAST AND WEST.

SIXTY THOUSAND quarts of "Ng Ka Py," a Chinese intoxicant, have been admitted into the United States. The drink is said to be over-strength for a prohibition country, but is alleged to be so unpalatable that no white man would partake of it.

Our boasted civilization means little enough in the life of China. History encourages the view that the Chinese have seen it all before. That being so, it is possible to speculate upon the possible origin of "Ng Ka Py." Who knows but "Ng Ka Py" was first brewed by Necessity, the mother of invention, to meet a situation caused by the advent of prohibition many centuries ago?

The point of immediate interest, however, is that "Ng Ka Py" apparently can be held, transported and used in the United States, over and above the restrictions imposed by Prohibition. How much latitude does this allow? When a New Yorker with a suspicious case under his arm, rolling noisily home, is accosted by an officer of the law, will he be permitted to proceed on his way rejoicing when he breathes the magic password, "Ng Ka Py?" The possibilities are quite without limit. No Boston man with a well-filled cellar can fail to see the advantage as well as social distinction of adding an Oriental touch to his favorite reception room by painting on boxes and barrels that musical and mystical term, "Ng Ka Py."

From the Republic of the East to the Republic of the West has been wafted over the gentle breezes of the Pacific a message so soothing to many American ears that it will forge a new bond of sympathy between two peoples much unlike except in their present attitude towards the outside world.

Every hunter entering the woods should carry a large placard, "I am not a deer."

D'Annunzio has been taking chances for a long time, and in seizing a British vessel he goes the limit.

One reason why most people think Carpentier will have no chance with Dempsey is that the French boxer appears to be intelligent.

CRITICAL DAYS IN GREECE.

THE statement made in the House of Commons by Mr. Bonar Law, in interpreting the text of the Allied note to Greece, that Great Britain and her Allies had no intention of resorting to hostile action to prevent the Greeks from carrying out the policy they had approved at the elections, however much they might deplore such a verdict, should put an end to the talk of armed intervention by Britain or France, which has been transmitted between the lines of recent cables.

The concentration of a large French fleet at the Piraeus lent color to the suggestion that hostile action would be taken by France, and this was heightened by some of the speakers in the Chamber during the debate preparatory to Premier Leygues' departure for his conference with Lloyd George. There was fear expressed in some quarters that France might even choose to act alone, as she had done in her support of General Wrangel.

Neither France nor Britain has concealed her admiration for Venizelos nor their sympathy with his aims. While he has had magnificent opportunities for constructive statesmanship, yet few men in history can point to so large an accomplishment. Eight years ago Greece was a tiny principality with scarcely three million people and an area of about 27,000 square miles—slightly smaller than the province of New Brunswick. In that year he succeeded in uniting the Greeks, Bulgars and Serbs in an alliance which succeeded in toppling over the Turkish Empire in Europe. When the Bulgars treacherously turned on their other two Allies they were defeated by both, and by the fruits of these victories Greece added Western Thrace, Salonika, a great part of Macedonia, many islands in the Aegean, as well as Venizelos' home island, Crete, to her domain. In the Great War Venizelos frustrated the treacherous German-inspired policies of Constantine and ultimately triumphed. In the settlement at Paris Venizelos was able to secure for Greece further large areas of land, and after seven hundred years of slavery the glories of Greater Hellas were renewed. Under Venizelos' guidance the Greeks fought actions against the Turkish Nationalists, who disputed the title of the Greeks to a part of their newly-won freedom, and won a series of splendid victories.

It was at the very apex of this hardly-fought and brilliantly achieved campaign that the propaganda of Constantine, based more on his selfish greed for power and revenge than on any loyalty to his country, was able to bring about a change in the feelings of the voters. Venizelos has never been a skilled politician. The petty intrigues of party underworkings aroused in him no interest. By his very strength he provoked domestic jealousies, and the cry was frequently raised that he was seeking to become the autocrat of a new Byzantine Empire.

The Allies will not send warships to bombard Greek coasts to dispute the elections. Such a thought is preposterous. But they will watch with the utmost interest and care the open and the covert dealings of the pro-German King if he returns to the throne as he may be expected to do shortly. The one great hope for Greece lies in a renewal of the alliance with Rumania and Greece's entry into the Little Entente. With Austria a member of the League of Nations, perhaps a way may also be found to bring Austria into that alliance and set up thereby a barrier against Bolshevist aggression of Western Europe more strong in its stockades than the Rhine.

IGNORING MONTREAL.

THE Administrative Commission is right in its contention that municipalities wishing annexation to Montreal should wait on the city in regard to the matter, instead of flying to the Legislature.

For many years past municipalities have manipulated annexations at Quebec. And in very many instances these municipalities had accumulated crushing debts which the taxpayers of this city had eventually to liquidate.

Dictation at Quebec concerning annexations should cease. Montreal should certainly be allowed home rule in this connection. If the financial situation of municipalities is satisfactory, it is not at all likely that unreasonable opposition will be encountered from the Administrative Commission.

It is certainly peculiar that it is always the municipalities with debts that the city is forced to take under its protecting wing.

So long as Montreal's indebtedness is augmented by dictated annexations there will be increased nervousness on the part of well-managed municipalities in joining their fortunes with ours.

It is already clear from the trend of events that the day is fast approaching when the whole Island of Montreal will be under one government — making a city of huge dimensions. In the meantime it is depressing to the taxpayer that no particular sign is forthcoming from adjoining well administered and wealthy municipalities that they desire to become part of Montreal. By so doing they would make the financial administration much easier, and materially hasten the day of the whole island scheme.

As the area and population of a city largely establishes its standing abroad, it is to be hoped the day is near when the efficiently managed municipalities will decide to come into the fold.

For knowledge to be digestible it must have been devoured with a good appetite.—Anatole France.

THE WORLD'S PRESS

Don't Blame the Cows.

The Englishman, Calcutta: Why should milk in Calcutta which before the war was sold at from one to four annas a seer, according to the amount of chalk, water and banana essence in it, now be sold at six annas a seer and over, whether it is adulterated or not?

Practical Economy.

Louisville Courier-Journal: The news that many couples contemplating divorce in France have deferred proceedings because it is cheaper for two to live in one flat than for each to rent an apartment shows that the Gallic temperament, however romantic, is at times practical. A flat in the hand surely is worth a couple of "grand passions" in the bush, a lease in the bandbox worth six soul mates at the cabaret.

Campaigns of Education.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: Every large community is faced with the peril due to the increasingly widespread use of the automobile. In cities where active educational campaigns against vehicular accidents have been conducted favorable results show in the tables of fatalities. Such accidents are, in very large part, preventable. People are killed because people do not take the trouble to prevent the killing.

How About Our Own West?

London Daily Mail: In view of all this talk about superfluous women, it is time somebody did a little plain speaking about Nigeria, where Woman is not only not unwanted, but is urgently needed; where hundreds of lonely men sit around camp fires at night yearning for her, listening to her voice on the gramophone, or gazing raptly at her beauty as she sweetly advertises her underclothes in the pages of the weekly publications.

The Pyramids Dull?

Egyptian Mail: One used to hear about the dullness of the English Sunday years ago, and well do we remember it; but happily that is all changed beyond recognition. Cairo compared with London or most English provincial towns today is a slough of despond on Sunday afternoons. If there be concerts, they are in the morning and within four walls. It is not everyone who has facilities for playing golf or tennis, and the inevitable alternative, such as a trip to the Pyramids or to the Museum, are apt to pall.

Anglo-American Friendship.

Chicago Tribune: A war between Britain and America would bring nearer the suicide of white civilization than anything else could. We say now in calmness that it is unthinkable, yet the vast destruction precipitated by Potsdam was unthinkable. If there is a deliberate attempt to make enmity between Great Britain and America, with the hope that it finally will bring the huge forces of America to the accomplishment of Irish independence, the attempt has sufficiently serious possibilities to be confronted and counteracted.

Handicaps Overcome.

Times of India: A brilliant writer on India, more given to paradox than to strict accuracy, once remarked that no great seaport could have a civic soul, because it must of necessity embrace a cosmopolitan and shifting population. More correct was the verdict of a recent Calcutta visitor to Bombay, who remarked that he was always glad to come to the city, because it typified human ingenuity and courage triumphing over adverse conditions. "A people," he added, "who could make a great city out of "a few scattered islands separated by swamps always excites my admiration."

Religious Teaching in Schools.

Portland Oregonian: As the result of a series of hearings by a special committee of the New York City Board of Education it is disclosed that the idea that opportunity for religious instruction ought to be afforded to pupils in the public schools is still very much alive, notwithstanding certain fundamental objections that were urged when the movement was revived some two decades ago. These objections the proponents believe they have met with provision for complete freedom of choice on the part of pupils and with absolute non-compulsion as a primary feature.

The Knockers' Band.

London Daily Express: What a mammoth anvil chorus could be mobilized in England! Without undue boasting we can claim to have as fine an array of detractors as any country in the world. They are in every office, every town council, every club, every church. You can see them peering in all directions, looking for a victim (any one who is trying to accomplish anything), and surreptitiously carrying a hammer in the hand. Musical experts have wondered why "Il Trovatore" has retained its popularity for so long. Probably it is on account of the natural enthusiasm provoked by the famous "anvil chorus."

Belief by Compulsion.

Pittsburg Sun: Radicals easily become fanatics. Fanatics are often the most dangerous foes of the causes they espouse. The first thought of extremists is to compel compliance with their standards and habits by law. It can be done but half. They may compel men in public to simulate their habits; they can not legislate them up—or down—to their standards. Law may declare a thing illegal; it can never make it immoral. Men willing to be bound by the will of the majority in law reserve to themselves more independence of judgment in morality. When that independence is too far imposed upon they will revolt.

Some Things They Overlooked.

Johannesburg Sunday Times: The Nationalists contended that South Africa was not "free" because the Governor-General is appointed in England, and the King has theoretical powers of veto, and appeals can be made to the Privy Council. They ignored the fact that the Governor-General has no power and that nobody would be appointed without consulting the Union Cabinet, that the King never exercises the right of veto, and that the Privy Council discourages appeals from the South African courts, and only recently declined to hear one. Indeed, as far as the ordinary South African is concerned, this country is just as free now as it would be under a republican form of government. Canada and Australia regard themselves as "free," and the people of those Dominions are not in the least inclined to allow their desires to be overruled even in small matters.

Unrecognized.

As up and down a water-side
I walked a day's decline,
I met a ghost of boyhood years
Was loyal friend of mine.
"Now where is he was chum to me
In days of auld lang syne?"

"His eyes were bright, his cheeks were red
As berries ripe in June,
And ever from his ruddy lips
Went forth a merry tune;
His laugh to hear was ringing clear
As bugles blown at noon."

Then answered I that dear, dear ghost:
"The gods are kind to thee;
'Tis thine among the brother shades
A happy soul to be,
While I, grown old, have naught to hold
That stirs thy memory."

FAIR REPORTS.

The Editor, Montreal Daily Star.

Sir,—Your references in The Star to the Evangelistic meetings under the leadership of Mrs. McPherson, have indeed been characterized by their lack of unjust criticism. There is nothing that commands the respect of the public so much as a spirit of fairness; there is nothing so kingly as kindness and nothing so royal as truth.

As a member of the Presbyterian church I have come to Montreal as a seeker of the Truth. One of the ministers stated that a certain judge came to a knowledge of the Saving and Healing power of Christ by the testimony and the evidences of the people. To be just he had to accept what he had seen and heard. I am exactly in the same place as this judge. I have attended two meetings a day for nearly a week, I have seen the miracles performed, have spoken personally with those healed, and have come to the absolute conviction that there is healing, and that God is sending the Holy Spirit, that they are speaking in new tongues.

If a man thirsteth and hungereth after the spirit of God and does not go in a spirit of criticism, his eyes will be enlightened.

Thanking you for your kinuness and consideration.

INVENTION AND LABOR.

The Editor, Montreal Daily Star.

Sir,—This letter is an allegory. John-of-Spades has been manufacturing them in the way his grandfather did, ever since he started the business. To him comes Invention, saying: "Behold! I have a-so-much-better-way of making spades that mine will sweep the market." "Nay, then," says John. "Not so, but far otherwise. I admit the fact of your spade, but I have $25,000 worth of tools, appliances and patterns to make my goods. I would waste all these noble dollars worth of jigs and core boxes, if I should entertain you, even unawares. Behave! Throw yourself, and the memory of yourself, into the St. Lawrence." "But, oho gh me, thousands will be employed, the purchasing effect of their wages will put money into circulation; to grease the wheels of commerce and keep them from squeaking so bad." "Little care I for the squeaking," says John, "I am narrow-minded enough for my own business." "But of the $35,000,000 that always was - utterly - useless-Ex-megalomaniac-wart-hog, saved for himself out of his war, I bring you $25,000 to build you new patterns and anvils — retire the old, for the iron and steel in them, and re-supply your customers with my better implements." So labor becomes more and more employed, and money is put into circulation to stop the menace of peace re-construction. This fable teaches, that Invention may be as much the source of the nation's wealth as forests, the soil, mines and the sea; for it is through invention alone that these have ever become available. STUDENT

A CATHOLIC GRIEVANCE.

The Editor, Montreal Daily Star.

Sir,—As a past president of the Liberal-Conservative Party for the great County of Cape Breton and Richmond, I desire the privilege of a statement in connection with a senatorial vacancy soon to be filled in this province.

In 1867 Cape Breton Island, then with a population of only 60,000, was granted three senators. We never had less than three when the country was in the hands of Macdonald, Tupper and Laurier.

Now with our population over 160,000, or nearly trebled, we have no senatorial representative at all. (I need scarcely mention that Mr. J. S. McLellan with all his admirable qualities can scarcely be considered a representative of Cape Breton.)

It is an absolute injustice to Cape Breton that she should thus be deprived of her representation in the Senate at Ottawa and the Premier ought to insist that the present inequality and injustice be remedied at once. As a partial contribution toward that end the late Senator Dennis' seat in the Senate ought to be filled by an appointee from Cape Breton.

There is yet another feature I should like to elucidate: The Senatorial Unit for the Maritime Provinces is twenty-four—ten each from Nova Scotia and New Brunswick and four from Prince Edward Island. The Catholics of the Maritime Provinces have only seven representatives out of the twenty-four, when their proportion of the population entitles them to ten.

True, Nova Scotia has no cause to complain on this score, but taking the Maritime unit as a whole, or, most of the provinces separately, we Catholics are hopelessly under-represented: For instance, Prince Edward Island with 94,000 people of whom 42,000 or about 45 per cent are Catholics, has only one Catholic senator out of four. In a word the Catholics of Prince Edward Island have one senator to 42,000 people while the non-Catholics have a senator for every 17,000 people. This condition is obviously unilateral, and ought to call for immediate adjustment.

New Brunswick has two Catholic senators out of ten while Catholics number 40 per cent of the population. Catholics have a senator for every 73,000 of their people while the non-Catholics have a senator for every 29,000 of theirs. Surely these figures speak for themselves.

I may mention, sir, that the backbone of the old Liberal-Conservative Party in the Maritime Provinces, and indeed Canada as a whole, was the Catholic people of this country. They are by nature, moderate, conservative and anti-radical. Macdonald and Tupper recognized this fact and the most loyal supporters of these broad-minded statesmen were our Catholic people.

The present Premier, then, has the opportunity of a life time. It is quite possible by the exercise of a reasonable amount of good political judgment to re-cement the old elements of the old party, and to bring back to the old party those Catholic elements which were unfortunately squeezed out by myopic and unprincipled politicians.

The good-will of forty per cent of the people of Canada is surely worth striving for—and no political party can possibly exist for any length of time with their united opposition.

Let the present Premier who has already declared that he is anxious to re-unite and gather our people into one contented and peaceable unit, let him look to it that inequalities such as I have mentioned are removed and he will go a long way toward making this country a better country to live in. Let him begin now, here with us; let him fill our senate vacancy with a representative from Cape Breton, and let that representative be a Catholic.

Sydney, N.S. W. J. EGAN.

WHY SHOULD WE HAVE UNEMPLOYMENT.

The Editor, Montreal Daily Star.

Sir,—At the present time we are face to face with a situation which, if it were not so pitiful, would be almost comic. We are living in a world which has been denuded of a great part of its material wealth and is calling out for supplies of everything and yet we are told that this winter is to be a period of unemployment.

The exchange rates as between nation and nation are unstable, and in some cases are so unfavorable as almost to prevent trading at all, the only possible way to put the exchange right and restore international commerce is to provide the goods with which commerce is concerned, and yet there is to be a period of unemployment with all that that means of private and international misery.

The explanation given by the manufacturers is that they are unable to sell the goods already produced owing to their high price, and this is certainly one cause of the trouble. Take the following illustration during the last few months.

A friend of mine ordered a motor car, its original price was $1,750, although it was already more than that when he placed the order. The price gradually rose until in June last the makers wrote to him stating that the car would be ready by the end of that month, but that the price would be $2,975. He immediately wrote and cancelled the order. He could not afford to buy the car. The money he would have spent on its purchase is still lying in the bank ready to be used when the car descends to his purchasing power. In the meantime there is no unemployment so far as the car is concerned.

Take another case I went to my tailor about three months ago and asked what was the cost of the cheapest suit he could make me for office wear, and he replied $70. I know there are other and cheaper tailors, but I went to the man who knows my build and my taste in clothes. Well, I could not afford $70 for an office suit, so I hunted out an old suit and had it dyed black which along with the pressing cost me $4.50.

It is evident then that I am prepared to buy a car, and get a new suit of clothes, but I am unable to obtain either of them at a price within my means. And there are thousands like me.

Many a working man, finding the works closing down or threatening to close down feels inclined to turn round and say to those who have been preaching greater production for the last two years, "You have been urging me to greater output, and now you say you can't sell the goods you have got. It seems to me I should have done better to go slow; in future I am not going to take any notice of your appeals."

The statement that the warehouses are full and that the goods cannot be sold may be true, but there has been no over production all the same, the world is still short of everything. It is not plenteousness, but high prices, that are holding up the markets and closing the works, and these high prices are due, in many instances, to restricted production.

A striking illustration is provided by a certain firm of motor car manufacturers in England. They state that their rate of output has been so greatly increased during the last few months that the production cost per car has fallen considerably. They, therefore, propose to knock two hundred and fifty pounds off the price of each of their cars.

Note what has happened—increased output, fall in cost of production, fall in price, more purchasers, no closing of works, men fully employed at high wages, the purchaser pleased, and the shareholders in receipt of 10 per cent on their investments and anxious to lend more money to develop the works if necessary. It is a story, worthy of consideration. LACHINE.

FROM THE STAR FILES

THIRTY YEARS AGO.

(From The Star Files, Dec. 4, 1890.)

St. Petersburg.—The Czar of Russia has abolished the ancient free constitution of Finland, and placed it under the same autocratic rule as the other provinces of the empire.

Montreal.—The Park Toboggan Club has decided to keep the slide open on the Mountain this winter. The meeting held last night elected the following officers: Wm. McGibbon, L. H. Gault, Fred. Birks, W. P. Sicsor, C. E. Gault, B. B. Stevenson, F. M. Cole, P. MacIntosh, W. C. Finlay, A. R. Grafton, J. Wiseman, E. H. Butterell, W. Hall, D. Campbell, J. P. McNaughton, R. A. Dunton, F. W. Henshaw, W. Samuel, George L. Cains and N. G. Grace.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

(From The Star Files, Dec. 4, 1900.)

Montreal.—Mr. George Janin, acting superintendent of the water department, has been appointed superintendent. Mr. P. W. St. George has resigned from the post of city surveyor.

London.—There is talk of Signor Marconi putting up wireless telegraph stations along the route from Great Britain to Australia, to enable voyagers to send and receive messages throughout the trip.

FRENCH-CANADIAN VIEWS

MANY FLAGS, ONE COUNTRY.

Le Soleil:—Wednesday was the national festival of Scotland and to commemorate the day the flags of the different nationalities that compose this country were to be seen floating from the towers of the Legislature. The "tricolor," the Union Jack, the Green Flag, the Dominion flag, recalling to us all that French, English and Irish form but one people with a single heart, a single soul and a single will. The Legislature symbolizing the people's own house displayed in this way its respect for all races and all beliefs. In another province we believe there was not such an inspiring sight offered for the gaze of the people. Where, indeed, outside Quebec is the "tricolor" displayed on the day of our national fete, yet in our midst are to be seen on St. George's Day, the patron saint of the English, on St. Patrick, the patron of Ireland and on St. Andrew, the patron saint of Scotland, the national colors just as they are similarly displayed on St. John the Baptist's Day on June 24. This symbol is reassuring and should draw tighter the bonds which ought to unite together all the sons of one Motherland. Ought not this example to be followed on all occasions and especially at Ottawa, the parliament of the country on our national fete days, as was the custom during the course of the war. In order to mark the alliance and the union which held all the Allied nations together we should never neglect when opportunity presents itself to float together the English, Belgian, Italian, American flags as well as the Rumanian, Serbian and Montenegrin. Why should this not be done when the people, who have mingled together in order to form the Canadian nation, wish to remember their patronal festivals. In this way we shall be more inclined to realize the affinity which binds together the races of this confederation.

IN THE WORLD OF BOOKS

THE AMAZING INDISCRETION*

"I SHRANK then, as I do now," says Mrs. Asquith in her amazing autobiography, "from exposing the secrets and sensations of life. Reticence should guard the soul, and only those who have compassion should be admitted to the shrine. When I peer among my dead or survey my living friends, I see hardly anyone with this quality." The latter statement probably explains why, in the course of two volumes of revelations, Mrs. Asquith has so thoroughly and unreservedly exposed every secret and sensation she was apparently capable of recalling or enduring. If ever a book had indiscretion stamped on every page, that book is "Margot Asquith, an Autobiography," which has at last reached Canada and is available for review here. There is nowhere to be found a shred of that refinement of feeling which prompts that very guarding of the soul with reticence of which Mrs. Asquith writes but which she is at very particular pains to ignore, even under the most sacred and intimate circumstances.

• • •

The Margot Tennant of the early eighties created somewhat of a sensation, as many a contemporary tribute to her wit, her biting tongue, her recklessness, her defiance of conventionality because it was conventional, and her inconstant nature, bears testimony. It is, perhaps, fortunate that there are available such witnesses; otherwise one might be tempted to accept Mrs. Asquith at her own valuation all through her tempestuous life,—and that would be to make almost as great an error as she made in sending her autobiography to the publisher.

It it undubitable that Miss Margot Tennant enjoyed the friendship of a number of the most prominent and notable personalities of her time. Arthur Balfour, Lord Randolph Churchill, Godfrey Webb, Alfred, Lord Tennyson, Lord Midleton (St. John Brodrick), Viscount Grey, W. E. Gladstone, John Addington Symonds, the Earl of Pembroke, Lady Desborough, Lord Curzon, Harry Cust, George Wyndham, A. G. Liddell, the Duchess of Sutherland, Dr. Benjamin Jowett, Master of Balliol, John Morley, Henry James, George Meredith, Augustine Birrell, Lord Haldane, Lord Salisbury, Lord Robert Cecil, Lady Blanch Balfour,—these and many others were among her intimate acquaintances. They felt the magnetism of her personality in proportion as they understood her. Some of them appear to have understood her much better than others. For instance, she relates of the Rt. Hon. A. J. Balfour that when a friend remarked to him:—"I hear you are going to marry Margot Tennant?" he replied:—"No, that is not so. I rather think of having a career of my own." Jowett, too, seems to have felt that his young friend was entirely too curious, at times.

• • •

It is obvious that no ordinary personality could have interested so many keen minds. We pay willing and ready tribute to Mrs. Asquith's keen wit, her incisive penetration, her peculiar gift of epigram, and her astonishing range of intellectual—if superficial—interests. It is impossible to say, however, that she manifests a sound judgment or a well-balanced mind either in her opinions of men and events or in her selection of incidents and confidences to reveal to a gaping public,—for this book was obviously written to appeal to the public that loves to be regaled with scandal over a tea-cup or a glass of whiskey and soda. It positively reeks with the spirit of scandal that makes a woman tear the veil from the mental sufferings of those whom she professes to love. If any woman less prominent than the wife of one of Britain's most widely known Prime Ministers had written this book, it would probably, nay, surely, have met with a much more bitter reception than that which has been accorded it,—and the comments of many of Mrs. Asquith's friends of yesterday have not been of such a nature as would prove comforting to a woman less impervious to the opinion of others than she has apparently always been.

• • •

If anybody thinks this is severe comment, what can be said of a woman who lays bare to the world intimate details connected with the confinement and death of the sister she clearly loved dearly; who publishes letters from men such as Gladstone which were, on the very face of them, obviously intended to be kept strictly private; who "gives away" intimate facts concerning her love affairs with more than one man now living; who denounces the immorality of the life of the present but could find nothing but astonishment for the view taken by some that her habit of receiving her parents' guests in her bedroom while she and her sister sat up in bed after eleven p.m., attired in "charming dressing jackets," was improper; who used a crossing-sweeper as the go-between for a lover and herself; who writes about her family with a freedom and a boastful candor that approximate closely to arrant vulgarity; who, in short, defies every convention and manifests indulgence in every form of egotism while condemning the unconventionality of today and repeatedly affirming her freedom from the slightest suggestion of personal pride or conceit?

• • •

The whole book is an astonishing paradox,—full of witty sayings, replete with pungent comment, unrestrained eulogies of relations and brutally candid opinions of friends; wandering from youth to mature age and back with the restless inconsequence of a child; snapping here, polishing there, paying a neat compliment or jabbing in a wicked thrust with a poisoned dagger; claiming credit for the utmost sincerity and devotion while in the same breath proving conclusively, according to all known standards, that she has repeatedly forfeited all claim to both; a book which is at once a challenge, a defiance, and an unblushingly intimate record,—but never, under any circumstances, anything that approximates to a semblance of an apology.

• • •

We have the testimony of a number of prominent people whose names figure in the autography that Mrs. Asquith has been repeatedly inaccurate in her facts. The book version as published in the United States and Canada varies considerably from that published in England, and varies still more markedly from the serial versions as published in London, New York, and this country. Somebody—is it presuming too much to suggest that possibly Mrs. Asquith herself was that somebody?—has thought fit and proper to eliminate from the book version the record between 1906 and 1914, which contained in particular a good deal of matter which has been categorically denied by those best in a position to speak with authority—among them The Rt. Hon. Winston Spencer Churchill. Even as the book stands, it contains quite a number of inaccuracies, among which we may indicate one we do not recall having seen noted elsewhere, namely, Mrs. Asquith's claim that Tennyson's four-line tribute to Sir Walter Scott was written for her and was not published until she included it in her biography. The present reviewer distinctly recalls having read it in the first edition of Tennyson he ever saw.

• • •

But in a book of this kind one anticipates inaccuracies, inexactitudes, even grave errors. It is supposedly the privilege of the unconventionally brilliant to err—as profoundly as they like. What impresses one much more deeply is that the book can do no conceivable good. As for the epigrams, quotations from so rich a source are impossible within the limits of so brief a review. The book must be read for that. It will obviously be read widely, particularly by our American cousins, for it draws just such a false picture of the real England and the real English as they have too often been led to believe is characteristically true. But Mrs. Asquith has never known her England, never understood her English people. She has known but one side of life, despite her occasional excursions into the slums or the jails, and she has drawn of that life a picture devoid either of charity or of human kindness. Of the brilliance,—the ephemeral, superficial, surface brilliance of her writing, there is no question. Of its great human interest, particularly for those to whom the privacy of great minds holds nothing sacred, there can be little question. But that it can do any conceivable good, serve any conceivable noble end, or give genuine pleasure to anybody save its author and the gossips of the universe, we beg leave to doubt most profoundly.

In her preface Mrs. Asquith says:—"Those who love me will forgive me."—for having written the book. Their love will need to be very great and very deep, if they do.

SOME OF

The Brightest of the Season's New Books

Suggesting Most Acceptable Gifts for One or All of Your Friends. The Author's Names are an Evidence of Their Popularity

SOME OF OUR NEW FICTION

BERTRAND W. SINCLAIR

Four Man's Rock.

Here's a stirring novel of Canadian life you will revel in. A returned soldier, with a character all his own, fights against the Dread Moguls of the Salmon Canning Industry, and eventually wins both fortune and sweetheart. The author has been cruising round the Gulf of Georgia in a motor boat for the last two years, and knows his field thoroughly. We sincerely believe this is one of the finest Canadian novels ever written. It is as educative as well as entertaining, and so sweet and clean that it can be given to anyone. At the same time it has zest and action enough in it to please even the most blase reader. $2.00.

MARIE CORELLI

The Love of Long Ago.

For the last year or two Miss Corelli has been writing short stories, and these, incorporated in a novel-length book, will make a more-than-usually acceptable gift, for almost any lady friend. The stories are characteristic of Miss Corelli, and cover various phases of romance. $2.00.

JEFFERY FARNOL

Black Bartlemy's Treasure.

A new Farnol book is an event in the literary year, and this is one of those seizing books — a characteristic Farnol story, set with the plots of his other successful books, in the Elizabethan days, and full of fighting on land and sea, piracy, smuggling, mutiny, and everything of that ilk, with a love story of a desert island, and a treasure hanging in the offing, to add the utmost of piquant flavor. Some people say this is Farnol's best book. $2.00.

HILDA M. SHARP

A Pawn in Pawn.

In an enthusiastic review, one of the literary year said this is one of those Sharp steers a pleasant course midway between a "Best Seller" and a "Highbrow." This new book by the author of "The Stars in their Courses," is very popular in England and should be appreciated also in Canada. $2.00.

THE AUTHOR OF "THE YOUNG VISITERS"

DAISY ASHFORD

Her Book.

Remembering how you revelled in the utterly unconscious humor and really desperate situations in "The Young Visiters" you will know that your friend will appreciate this standard-length book of the same type material, written by the same hand. There are two or three characters quite as striking as the Mr. Saltsena to laugh about yet. $2.00.

ROSE McCAULEY

Potterism.

This is a rather striking novel by a new writer, which has run into six editions in England, and is spreading like wild fire over the United States. If your friend is a reader who likes to be able to talk about the newest things in novels, this will make a most acceptable gift. $2.00.

FLORENCE L. BARCLAY

Returned Empty.

This newest book by the author of "The Rosary" will be welcomed by the ladies particularly. It deals in a most interesting way with problems of reincarnation and spiritualism, such as most of us are wondering about these days. $2.00.

RIDGEWELL CULLUM

The Heart of Unaga.

A story of the open, this, set in our own North West, where the reader associates with people of big souls and red blood, with a hitherto unknown tribe of Indians, and a mystery. Those all go into making a strong recipe for an unusual novel. $2.00.

ARTHUR J. REES

The Hand in the Dark.

This author put together a mystery story above the ordinary. We dare the reader to find the murderer in this case until the last chapter. In addition to the mere mystery, there is a literary quality and an atmosphere which add a strong interest. $2.00.

GEORGE BARR McCUTCHEON

West Wind Drift.

McCutcheon is noted as a discoverer of new plots, and he branches out truly on another line this time, picturing the wreck of an Atlantic liner on an unknown island, with the conditions which result when the passengers and crew were not able to get in touch with the world. It is characteristic of the author of "Graustark."

ANTHONY HOPE

Lucinda.

Of course there has to be a mystery in this charming and whimsical novel, in which Lucinda—Knyvett, bride in a fashionable wedding, vanishes. The working out of the plot of this fascinating and unusual story, will provide a dozen or more hours of entertainment. $2.00.

OCTAVUS ROY COHEN

Come Seven.

If your friend likes negro stories, characteristic ones, you could not give him a better gift than this. Mr. Cohen's negroes are a little above the ordinary class, representing the best of colored society in the South, and in their irresponsive cleverness their adventures are excruciatingly funny. $2.00.

FRANCES R. STERRETT

Nancy Goes to Town.

FOR YOUR SERIOUS-MINDED FRIENDS

JAMES L. HUGHES

The Poems of Robert Burns.

Dr. Hughes, the well-known educationalist, has made a unique arrangement and classification of Burns' verse, putting the matter into a more rational classification than has hitherto been done, and leaving out a number of poems sometimes objected to. Two features of the book are unusual, one being the illustrations, photographs taken by Dr. Hughes himself in the Burns' country in the summer of 1919, which have aroused admiration even in Scotland; the other, the rather comprehensive explanatory notes, appearing not in a bunch at the end of the book, as is usual, but as foot notes on the pages where the lines to which they refer appear. The book is a splendidly bound, profusely illustrated, and will make a splendid gift for any reader of verse. $3.00.

W. G. SMITH

A Study in Canadian Immigration.

If you would like to startle a friend who thinks he knows his Canada, give him a copy of this volume, with its most surprising findings on the results of our Immigration policy. Mr. Smith, who by the way is a Professor in the University of Toronto, has studied the subject for many years, and has made a most worthy contribution in a hitherto entirely neglected field of Canadiana. The book is full of an abundance of interesting and authoritative information, and can be used in a score of different ways. $3.00.

RT. HON. J. H. THOMAS, M.P.

When Labor Rules.

Suppose a Labor Government should come into power in England, what would be the result? This is virtually the gist of the splendidly interesting volume by the great British Labor Leader. To anyone interested in Social and Labor problems, it will be "a find." $2.25.

A. EINSTEIN, Ph.D.

Relativity.

For the last six months scientific men the world over have been talking and wondering about the "Einstein Theory." Here it is presented analytically by the Theorist himself. One need not be a physicist nor a mathematician to get the "bang" of the problem, and since Dr. Einstein's findings bid fair to upset a very great many preconceived ideas, as to primary causes, it should be generally known. $1.75.

J. RAMSAY MacDONALD.

Parliament and Revolution.

This is a really appealing scientific and unbiassed argument against Bolshevism and in favor of democratic representative government. It provides material not only for reading, but for serious thinking and speaking on a subject of most intense current interest. $1.75.

Your Bookseller has most of these, and can get all of them for you. An hour or two in his shop will satisfactorily solve your Christmas problem.

Noteworthy Books for Christmas Gifts

The Viking Blood

By Frederick Wm. Wallace, author of "Blue Water," etc.

This book is written out of the heart of a living experience. Only a man soaked with the sea could have written such an epic. The story describes the adventures of a Scotch boy in a large foremast barque on a voyage from the Clyde to Vancouver. Coming back again from Victoria to Halifax, the young sailor enters a bank fishing fleet and there he finds the real romance and fascination of sea-faring. There is an exquisite play of sympathy; a wistful compassion; a passionate admiration for the men of the sea that gives to every page a subtle and almost indescribable charm. Cloth $1.75 net.

Dennison Grant

By Robert Stead, author of "The Cow Puncher," "The Homesteaders," etc.

Once in a great while publishers find a writer whose work bursts forth as clear and fresh as sunrise on the prairie; whose books have the compelling grip and urge of true genius. Such a writer is Robert Stead; an idealist who never fails to be real, and a realist who never abandons his ideals. "Dennison Grant," Mr. Stead's latest novel, is in many respects his most mature and ambitious book. It is a delightful story of the West with a dash of the East for contrast; an intensely human story of men and women as big in spirit as the big out-of-doors in which they live; a timely story too, that prods at the roots of to-day—you will enjoy "Dennison Grant." Cloth $1.75 net.

Daisy Herself

by Will E. Ingersoll, author of "The Road That Led Home," etc.

Ingersoll has proven himself a master of romance in this work by making a servant girl a heroine. It is a vivid description of city life in Canada, a breezy book about breezy folks in a breezy country. The story is original and fresh and a remarkable combination of realism and romance, full of gripping and unusual situations depicting the section of life seldom treated by makers of fiction. Cloth $1.75 net.

"Buy a Book a Week"

Every Man for Himself

By Hopkins Moorhouse, author of "Deep Furrows."

There is romance, humor and color aplenty, with a good healthy tang of the open air of Canada about this enthralling novel. The story begins in Toronto and shows the pursuit of a stolen package of $50,000 elected funds over half of Canada. The charm of the outdoors, the intimacy of Canadian politics and the extraordinary type of Canadian heroine make it a difficult story to tear one self away from. Cloth $1.75 net.

The Man of the Forest

By Zane Grey, author of "The Desert of Wheat," etc.

Aren't there times when the hum drum and commonplace of the daily grind become oppressive, and you dream of romance, or adventure, of the freedom of life in the open. . . . the glory of the mountains, the glow of your own campfire, and in the circle of its dancing light, the face of the one woman—the girl you have saved from a thousand perils? You can find escape, adventure, all in this great romance, told as only Zane Grey could tell it. Cloth $2.00 net.

Cherry Isle

By Evelyne Close.

This is one of the English literary successes of the season. It begins with a chance meeting in a cherry orchard of a celebrated tenor and a young girl, also a singer. The artistic temperament of both respond to romantic surroundings and a friendship starts, which soon develops into a passion. The book is a remarkable study of the conflict of the young singer's longing for artistic achievement and her love of husband and child. Cloth $1.90 net.

Recollections of a Police Magistrate By Colonel George T. Denison

A book full of racy and lively anecdotes, life-like character sketches and a shrewd, kindly humor, from the pen of a man who for forty-three years has been chief magistrate and chairman of the Board of Police Commissioners of Toronto. His stories of the past are told so pleasantly that one would imagine it had been the most enjoyable thing in the world to sit in a more or less evil-smelling police court and play so great a part in the lives of erring men and women. At the club or by the fireside the Colonel is a first-rate raconteur. In this book he writes as he talks, with spirit and artistry, and the Colonel never loses sight of the tragedy, comedy, and farce that to go make up the sum of human life. "The Recollections of a Police Magistrate" is a human book from the pen of a man filled with the humanities. Cloth $3.00 net

Leaders of the Canadian Church Second Series

Edited by Canon Wm. Bertal Heeney

For really rugged romance one has to turn to the life of the missionaries who carried Christianity into the Northwest. These are the men who have been made the subjects of the biographical sketches included in this volume, which makes its appearance during the Centenary Celebration of the Anglican Church in Western Canada. It includes fourteen sketches of the pioneer bishops and leading Anglican Clergymen, who have labored abundantly during the long years in building up the religious life of Western Canada. It is one of the few volumes dealing with church matters that will find interest in the lay mind. Cloth $3.00 net.

Now It Can be Told

By Sir Philip Gibbs

This book continues to be one of the biggest-selling non-fiction titles in America. BULL-DOG DRUMMOND, by "Sapper" (Cyril McNeile).

Let us all return thanks for the delectable "Sapper," who is the passionate delight of hundreds of thousands of fiction readers throughout the world. In his new novel, "Bull-Dog Drummond," this ingenious author has given us his most thrilling adventure story that rivals anything Conan Doyle has ever written. Cloth, $1.75.

THE GIRL IN FANCY DRESS, by J. E. Buckrose. A love story in which there is abundant comedy and a good deal of dialogue, and, what will specially recommend the book to many, there is a certain delicate and fanciful humor running through the whole. If you are "nervy"—if life is not looking particularly rosy—you are sure to get heart-ease from this delightful story. Cloth $1.75.

SPRING SHALL PLANT, by Beatrice Harraden. This is a genuine study of life. Patufa, the heroine, is a naughty little girl, the despair of her parents and teachers; but she is fascinating in the extreme by dint of her indomitable pluck, sheer honesty and latent genius. The steps by which she approached her career as a great violinist are described with unfailing sympathy. Cloth, $1.75

THE SWEAT OF THY BROW, by Joseph Hocking. This is first and foremost a story of adventure, plot, intrigue and movement. Every chapter teems with quick moving incidents. Every page throbs with the spirit of romance. But it is more than a romance; it is a study of the times in which we live, and deals with one of the greatest problems which face our Empire at this moment. Cloth, $1.35.

JOHN SENESCHAL'S MARGARET, by Agnes and Egerton Castle. A love story with a strikingly original situation. A young man who finds himself, through extraordinary circumstances, in possession of the love of John Seneschal's Margaret after many poignant vicissitudes. By the brilliant authors of "Rose of the World" and "Incomparable Pollairs." Cloth, $1.75.

LITTLE TREASURE ISLAND: Her Story and Her Glory, by Arthur Mee.

Here is a book for a shady nook or for the wide, wide world; a book that should follow the flag and enjoy the unparalleled fame of the Children's Encyclopedia. Those who love the Little Mother of the British Empire will love this book if only it is to handle it, for a beautiful thing it is to see; and as for the book itself, and the tale that it unfolds, what is there like it anywhere? Here is the story of our Island Home, told as you will love to have it told.

Profusely Illustrated with six plates in three colors and 48 illustrations in photogravure, $3.00

THE SUMMONS, by A. E. W. Mason. A. E. W. Mason, master-craftsman, has written a new romance of remarkable and absorbing attraction. Around the combined themes of love, authorship, travel, espionage and treachery, he has woven an intricate story in THE SUMMONS—touching tragedy on the one side, and farce on the other, whilst the main thread is that of thrilling drama. You will like Joan Whitworth, the beautiful and spirited heroine, who is an admirable pendant to Stella Croyle, the unhappy divorcee, and their love for the same man is the main spring of action in both. Every reader of Mr. Mason's famous books "The Four Feathers," "The Witness for the Defence," etc., will want this book. Cloth, $1.75

EXTERIOR TO THE EVIDENCE, by J. S. Fletcher. Here is one of the best of mystery stories—and good mystery stories are few and far between. This new novel of the murderer of an elderly baronet just about to be married to a pretty young French woman, is full of action and real and genuine power. Cloth $1.75.

MYSTERIES OF A GREAT CITY, by William Le Queux. Is a book that will command attention because of the fame of its author, who possesses such an intimate knowledge of the secret service of Continental powers that for years he has been consulted by the British Government. This book contains a series of stories of the French Detective Service in Paris. Cloth, $1.75.

SWEETHEART'S UNMET, by Berta Ruck. Read this story of the charming girl who "doesn't know any young men," and the young man who through force of circumstances never meets any girls of the kind he wishes to marry—these are the principal characters of this romance of London to-day. Cloth, $1.75.

THE LAMP OF FATE, by Margaret Pedler. A story of great charm and emotional power, fresh in idea, picturesquely dramatic in treatment, and one that cannot fail to delight the large public that never fails to read a Margaret Pedler book. Cloth, $1.75.

THE SECRETS OF CREWE HOUSE, by Sir Campbell Stuart, K.B.E. A sensational volume by a young Canadian who has achieved fame in the Old Country. As one of Northcliffe's right hand men in managing enemy propaganda during the war he was let into all the secrets of the British spy and intelligence service. A record of the work of Crewe House is given in this book. Cloth, $2.00.

THE STORY BOOK OF BIRDS AND BEASTS, by J. Henri Fabre. An unusual book for children which tells all about our domestic helpers—our dogs, horses, chickens, ducks, geese, etc., and the reader will discover that he never before knew one-tenth of the interesting and valuable things about these animal friends and helpers of man that he ought to know. Illustrated. Cloth, $2.50.

THE STORY BOOK OF SCIENCE, by J. Henri Fabre. A book of popular science, about the metals under the earth, the plants and animals on the surface, and the planets in the heaven above, told in story form by the most gifted nature writer the world has known in a hundred years. Illustrated. Cloth, $2.50.

HODDER & STOUGHTON LIMITED, Publishers, TORONTO

Two Canadian Novels That Stand Out from Most Recent Stories

"The Rapids," by Allan Sullivan: The Copp, Clark Co., Ltd., Toronto.

One of the most encouraging features about Canadian literature today is that it is being given a fair chance at home. The Canadian author no longer has to go and live in New York in order to get a hearing in his native land. Canadian publishing houses are offering every facility to writers born and bred in the Dominion to remain here and have their works published at home.

It is a good thing. It tends to strengthen a man's belief in his own land and his own people. Moreover, it brings near the day when the reading world outside our own boundaries will acknowledge the existence of a Canadian literature distinctive, characteristic, and virile.

* * *

Two notable examples of novels written by Canadians and published in Canada by Canadian houses are to be found in "Dennison Grant," by Robert Stead, and "The Rapids," by Allan Sullivan. Wholly dissimilar as to character and method, each possesses special features that attract.

To consider briefly Mr. Stead's story. It is at once novel and a powerful instrument of propaganda. Mr. Stead knows his west thoroughly,—few living writers better. He understands the problems of the West, too, and he has had ample experience at first hand of the difficulty of their solution. In "Dennison Grant" he portrays a young man whom he makes the vocal instrument for his scheme of Western settlement. Grant is the son of a wealthy Easterner,—it is not difficult to recognise Toronto as his home. He goes out West when disinherited by his father because of his painfully radical ideas about wealth. While in the West he meets Zen, daughter of the famous Y. D. rancher. Zen, though she clearly loves Danny, marries an enterprising contractor whose masterful methods carry her off her feet for a while. His father's death recalls Denny to the East, where he proceeds to astonish and upset people by his extraordinary methods of putting into effect his radical policy towards the wealth that has been left him. Incidentally, he falls in love with his dead father's private secretary. He returns to the West in order to set in motion his novel scheme for the settlement of the prairies.

This is the propaganda end of the story. Mr. Stead has very decided ideas about land settlement, about the right of legatees to hold unearned wealth, and about many other things, and he is by no means backward in expressing them. Briefly, his solution of land settlement is to establish community farms and give the returned soldier the first chance thereon. Every farmer under his scheme would be a shareholder in a parent company, but would also be bound by the rules of that company. Mr. Stead thinks it would work out beautifully, and would be the first real practical solution of the problem of prairie settlement. As to that, we express no opinion. Community schemes are popular nowadays, but so far there is no example of any extensive experiment that has proved sufficiently successful to justify optimism for the future. However, it is just possible that Mr. Stead may have hit upon the right trail for once.

* * *

Frankly, his vigorous and deftly-handled romance interests us more than does his propaganda. He draws his characters strongly, with sure strokes, and he succeeds in creating no inconsiderable atmosphere of conflicting wills and contrast purposes. Zen herself is a fascinating personality, as to whom the author ingeniously keeps us guessing almost up to the last. Grant is a strong, forceful, dominating individual, with a whimsical way and a strength of purpose that merit success. The minor characters are sufficiently clearly indicated without any attempt to overload the canvas.

* * *

In "The Rapids" Mr. Allan Sullivan has told, in the form of a novel, the story of the development of the great industrial district of Algoma. He has told it graphically, even dramatically, without losing his sense of proportion and with a keen appreciation of the significance of the man of vision as contrasted with the man who sees no farther ahead than the horizon's limit. Mr. Sullivan has taken H. H. Clergue as his hero,—he calls him Clark in the story, and Sault Ste. Marie he calls St. Mary's. We recognize the remarkable romance of that steady development of a great dream the more keenly when we read it in romantic form. We realize the far-reaching vision of the man who looked beyond the forest and the earth's surface and saw in his mind's eye resources, powers, and enterprise united to bring about such a transformation as shall bring wealth and prosperity to the people.

Mr. Sullivan visualises all this for us with vehement force. He seems to have a very clear conception of the spirit that animates Canadian manhood. He reveals it to us as a force partly primeval, partly directed by the influence of civilization, but above all things self-reliant, proud with the pride that comes of clean rejoicing in a great heritage, and determined to achieve the set goal.

* * *

Clergue, or Clark, was as surely an Empire-builder as Cecil Rhodes. The volcanic energy, the penetrating vision, the power of tremendous concentration, the splendor of ideal, the resolute will to conquer,—all these qualities were his, and Mr. Sullivan makes us feel that they were all bent to one supreme, gigantic task.

It is a fine story, finely told. No Canadian can read it without feeling a thrill of pride. If it serves to create the spirit of emulation or to fire the will to achievement within the breasts of some young Canadians who have not yet found their objective, then it will have served a double purpose well. It will have given the public a fine story, and it will have helped Young Canada to achieve a purpose with resolution and with grit.

OUR PRICES ARE THE LOWEST

QUALITY, IS the feature you must consider above all else when buying fur. The difference between the best quality furs and pelts of other grades is very great.

There are several grades of Hudson Seal. The highest quality Hudson Seal will wear indefinitely—the inferior grades may not be presentable after a Season's wear.

Our Hudson Seal Coats as well as all our other furs are fashioned of the finest quality pelts obtainable, and advantageous skin purchases have made possible the price readjustment of our entire stock.

Dealers! We want you with us on this real, live, quick selling necessity.

To produce a more durable, efficient, practical, or simpler device—one that will produce more heat, for a given amount of fuel — or give more genuine satisfaction than the "Biddison" Burner.

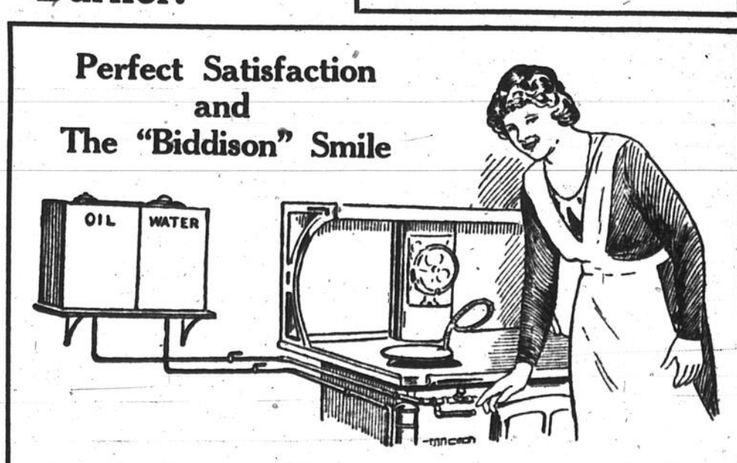
Why Not Escape All This?

2 Parts Water to 1 of Oil!

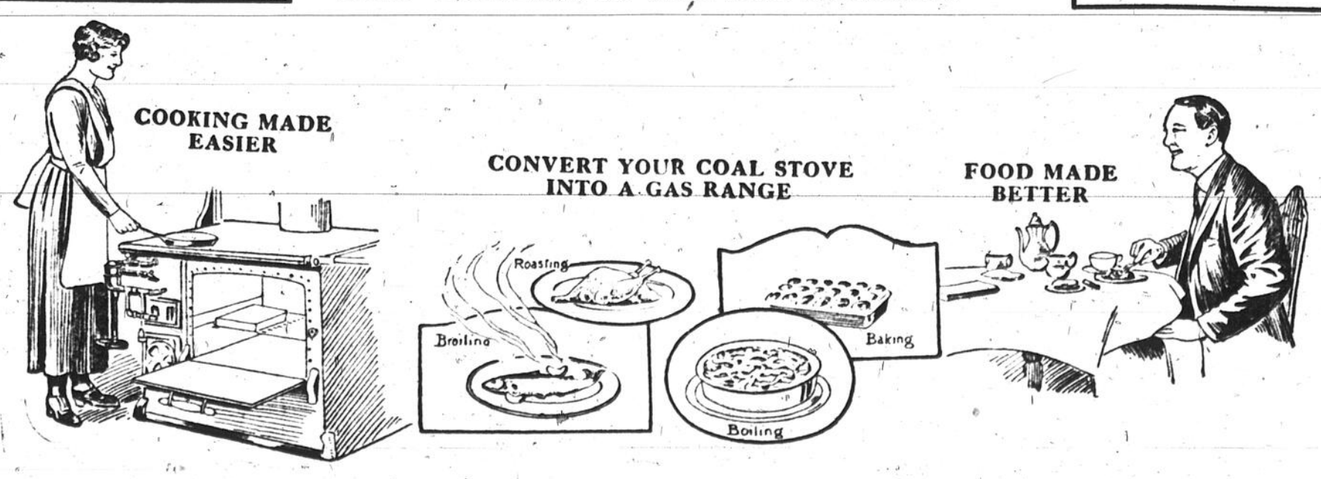
You have heard of water being used to put a fire out. Did you ever hear of its being used to keep a fire going? No! Well, without water, the Biddison Burner wouldn't be worth a plugged, counterfeit nickel! Water is the secret of its success. You will never know what real comfort, enjoyment and freedom from worry means until you install a "Biddison" Burner! STEAM HAS MADE OIL BURNING A SUCCESS—THE "BIDDISON" BURNER IS THE BIG SUCCESS!

Perfect Satisfaction and The "Biddison" Smile



Are You?

Are you going to remain in the sceptical class and freeze, or be converted and enjoy real comfort? The Biddison Burner is the marvel of the Century! It is absolutely guaranteed to do all that is claimed for it.



Why?

Why has the British Navy converted its vessels into oil-burning ships? Why has the United States decided that oil is the real and proper fuel for its vessels?

ONTARIO DAY BY DAY

ONTARIO MOVING FOR BETTER POLICE

Determined to Stamp Out Crime and Rum-Running in Province

POWER MINISTER

Legislative Committee Favors Creation of Special Department

TORONTO, Dec. 4.—(Special Star Correspondence) — Provincial Police patronage, and Hydro Power are matters that are agitating Ontarians more or less just now. In regard to the former the first steps have been taken in a reorganization plan that will be far reaching. It has been forced upon the Attorney-General's Department, undoubtedly by the development of the rum-running business, not only along the various sections that touch the United States, but in other areas of the Province. With that has been noted an increase in crimes of various degrees. Burglary, highway robbery, and safe cracking have become more prevalent than any community where the general desire is for law obeyance and enforcement cares about. The provincial police has done what it could to aid the local forces in combatting this epidemic of crime. But it has been sadly handicapped by lack of numbers, as well as by the extra work entailed by the effort to see that the Ontario Temperance Act is enforced.

FORCE TO BE INCREASED.

Now it is to be increased in strength; has indeed already been added to by fifteen carefully selected men who have been well trained at headquarters in Toronto under the supervision of Superintendent Joseph E. Rogers. They have all passed strict physical and written, as well as oral examinations, and have been allocated to their various headquarters in different parts of the province.

ONLY THE BEGINNING.

This, however, is only a beginning. Of more significance is the appointment of W. J. Lannin, as a Divisional Superintendent of Provincial police with the counties of Essex, Kent, Middlesex, Lambton, and Elgin specifically under his charge. Not only does he assume complete authority over the Provincial Police in these counties, but he assumes control also of all the license inspectors there. In brief the license inspectors become Provincial Police, and the police become license inspectors under his orders as occasions require. With his headquarters at Windsor, Lannin will direct a vigorous and systematic campaign against law breakers of every class. He has taken over the motor boat and high powered automobile purchased by the Government at the instance of Rev. J. O. L. Spracklin, when the latter was special license inspector for Essex County. But he announces emphatically that he will not take over any of the famous "Spracklin Squad." He prefers to have men of his own choice, and if past performances are any criterion, a whole lot of other men will wish he and his aides were in some other country. Lannin who was Chief of Police in Stratford before his appointment to the Provincial force, made a great record for efficiency and ability. He laid the foundations of his success with the Toronto force in which he was a sergeant when he left to go to Stratford.

MOTOR CARS AND CYCLES.

The western border and adjacent counties seemed to be in more urgent need of attention at once than some of the others, but your correspondent learns that the plan adopted there is likely to be followed throughout the whole of the Province without much delay. Groups of counties will be placed under a divisional superintendent picked for his success and courage as a police officer, and he will have considerable authority as to the size of the force that will co-operate with him. As a part of the plan the idea of establishing regular patrols and supplying them with motor cycles with high powered cars located at central points, is under consideration. It will probably be adopted. Ontario then is likely to see in the near future a well selected body of provincial police equipped with all the necessary aids for their work, and operating under a Commissioner or Chief Superintendent in constant touch with him by direct 'phone and telegraph wires. In the meantime the head office at Toronto is without the service of a motor car which gives the criminal element with its high powered auxiliaries food for pleasant reflections.

YORK COUNTY TOO.

York County, in which is situated the place known as Toronto, has its problems in the way of law enforcement also. It already has a considerably augmented force of regular constables who have the assistance of specials working at nights, or on Saturdays and Sundays. But it has now decided to add fifteen more regulars whose chief duty shall be night patrol for the protection of the country store keepers particularly. While the Council was discussing the question in their chambers in Toronto, thieves stole a brand new tire from the automobile of one of the members who now think that this city should also have more police. In that opinion Acting Chief Dickson would heartily concur, but the city council is not likely to be so agreeable at this time.

The special committee of the Legislature that has been studying the Hydro-Electric Power question has made a report that is sure to be the subject of some warm comment and heated debates. Without making any criticism whatever of the present Hydro-Electric Commission, or its chairman, Sir Adam Beck, the committee suggests that Ontario should have a Department and a Minister of Power. The Minister, it urges, should assume a more aggressive policy of power development and water conservation in all parts of the province. There are a number of other suggestions but as was predicted some time ago there is no mention of the cherished idea of many of the farmers and other rural organizations that power should be supplied to municipalities throughout the province at flat rates, obviously the unfairness of that was too apparent. There is, however, a strong recommendation for direct provincial aid to rural communities and the agricultural industry using power. This is where the real battle over Ontario's Hydro-Electric power schemes will begin for it is an invitation to the introduction of politics in the question.

How to aid agriculture.

Two plans are proposed. One is that all municipalities paying over $30 per horse power supplied by the commission shall receive a sum equal to 50 per cent of the additional cost provided that does not exceed $25 per horse power. Such municipalities would be more rural than of any other class. The second idea is worth giving as the committee gives it.

"Where power is supplied to the agricultural industry, then the Minister of Power may give further assistance by granting the local commission of such municipality a sum sufficient to meet the whole or part of the annual charge necessary to pay for the cost of construction and maintenance of the low transmission lines which are necessary for rural distribution, but that one of the conditions upon which such assistance may be given is that there must be an average of three services per mile in the rural district served, and that the total expenditure for such assistance shall not exceed 50 per cent of the revenue derived from power rentals."

The Best Cough Syrup is Home-made.

Here's an easy way to save $2, and yet have the best cough remedy you ever tried.

You've probably heard of this well-known plan of making cough syrup at home. But have you ever used it? When you do, you will understand why thousands of families, the world over, feel that they could hardly keep house without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will quickly earn it a prominent place in your home.

Into a 16 oz. bottle pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill up the bottle. Or, if desired, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, never spoils, and gives you 16 ounces of better cough remedy than you could buy ready made for $2.50.

It is really wonderful how quickly this home-made remedy conquers a cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every air passage, loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, lifts the phlegm, heals the membranes, and gives almost immediate relief. Splendid for throat tickle, hoarseness, croup, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction, or money refunded.

NEW BUILDING FREE FROM DEBT

WIDER ACTIVITIES

Work Grown From Small Beginnings Valuable to Community

In the gymnasium of the Y.W.C.A. headquarters on Dorchester street, the new building which was opened last June was yesterday afternoon formally presented to the organization by R. B. Morrice, chairman of the building committee, and the announcement was made that the structure was free of debt, the cost having been already defrayed by contributions received and guaranteed. The presence of Their Excellencies, the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire and suite added to the interest of the occasion.

Miss Greta Finley, local president of the association gave an outline of the work which had grown from small beginnings. She spoke of the activities of the Montreal organization and said that with the new building the association entered upon a new sphere of influence and activity. She mentioned the effort required during a trying period to construct the building and spoke of the work of the girls who had themselves raised $22,500 for the fund. In particular she thanked R. B. Morrice, whose support had enabled them to carry out the project but who had refused to permit them to name the building after him.

Mr. Morrice then presented the building on behalf of the Builders' Committee, and Miss Finley accepted it for the organization.

GOVERNOR-GENERAL.

The Governor-General declared the building open and congratulated those by whose efforts the building had been made a possibility. It was a privilege to be associated with a work which would prove so beneficial to the individual and to the community as a whole, he said. A short time ago Sir Auckland Geddes had spoken to members of the Canadian Club at Ottawa. He had said that the greatest of present-day problems was the question of how to bring brightness to those engaged in business and in the hard-work on the nation. The old days of a gray outlook had told not only on the efficiency of the individual but on the efficiency of the nation. One of the marked needs of the time was for facilities for the satisfactory expenditure of surplus energy. As as means of healthful recreation and as an instrument for the development of a broader national outlook he was sure that the usefulness of the institution had but begun.

PHYSICAL DEVELOPMENT.

Dr. H. H. Symonds expressed gratitude to their Excellencies for sparing some of their much occupied time and for the words of good cheer with which they had heartened the workers. The encouragement of physical development but was one of the things the new building stood for. There were higher things than that. He was convinced that there was a strong desire for a common ground on which all men might meet, and such institutions as the one now being extended contributed largely to that end, and thus to the general welfare and the general good. In the building several hundred girls in different walks of life had a part. Above all he wished to impress the fact that the great foundation of the organization was religion. No other foundation was so strong, so enduring, or could so move men's hearts. Dr. Symonds paid a tribute to the untiring work of the president, Miss Finley, and to her long preparation for service.

After the ceremony the vice-regal party and large number of friends of the association had tea in the east clubroom and in the cafeteria.

LEARN TO PLAY LIP GOLF

By RING W. LARDNER

To the Editor:

It takes all kind of golf players to make a world in the good old summer time, but along about this time of yr. they's only 2 classes you might say, namely hanly marred men and guys that can afford to go south. The 1st. named has got a big advantage in many ways. For inst. they don't half to spend from 1 night to a wk. in one of them new fangle Pullmans witch some people jokeingly calls a sleeping car. I could go on and name a whole lot of other advantages witch a marred man has got if they was any.

On the other hand the bachelors goes south in the winter and can golf all the yr. around and are right on their game when the season opens up north whereas the men with baggage has got to begin all over again every May, and it generally always takes them till the 1 of Nov. to find out what is the matter with their game. Besides witch the bachelors either don't have no job or at lease they can quit whenever they find out its interfering with their regular business wile a haply marred man has got to park his nose vs. the grind organ at all seasons of the yr. and even in the summer time life with him can't be 1 long round of 36 holes. Like for example take the case of myself witch I hate to talk on that subject though many of my admirers is always makeing the crack that they wished they knowed more about me personly and they are sick and tired of haveing me keep my private life and insides to myself like Mary MacLane or somebody.

Well, anyway, last spring I hadn't no more than mastered the nack of getting off of the 1st. tee in 2 when they was a nation wide clamor for a good reporter to write up the big subjects of the day and I had to spend most of the summer in the rough, namely the republican convention in old Chi and the one out in San Francisco where they pulled the joke on Cox and last and most roughest, the races off Sandy Hook between the 2 stationary wash tubs.

Dureing the last named I broke a gaff and had a halyard removed from my boom and was just comeing out from the ether when they sent me to the world serious and I come down with Brooklyn.

JUST DISCOVERED FAULTS.

The net results was that I didn't realy start to begin to commence my golf till the central part of Oct. and couldn't make out what ailed my game till 2 wks. ago when one of the boys told me I was sticking out my tongue when I swang and a person couldn't of never fell into a quaint habit like that if they had of played winter and summer both, and it don't seem fair that a man like I that has got a wife and kiddies to support should ought to be asked to compete on even turns with some old roue that don't take his golf shoes off from 1 yrs. end to another except to look for a lost ball in a water hazard.

My brother marred men will say yes but what are we going to do about it? Well gents I don't know what you are going to do about it, but personly I have got up a game witch I have named lip golf, and I have tried it out with grand success and wile it don't give a man no physical exercise, why it keeps their mind on golf and don't allow them to forget it dureing the off season and when they start playing again in the spring they have at lease got the language at their tongues and don't half to waste 7 or 8 wks. mastering the verbage all over again and it can be played in the house any time of day or night and in all kinds of weather.

The rules of lip golf is the folling rules: No matter what remarks the wife makes, the husband's replys is to be give in golf parlance. That's all they is to the rules and anybody can learn it in one lesson and the best time to try it out is at a meal. For inst. suppose the kiddies has been tucked away for the night in the waste basket and you and the wife has set down to dinner. Your part of the folling conversation would be what you might call par lip golf.

AN EXHIBITION GAME.

Wife—What train did you come out on?

Husband—I missed the first two but got home on my third.

Wife—This is a fine bouillon cup Carrie give me, both handles broke.

Husband—Use your spoon.

Wife — We caught a mouse this p.m.

Husband—Did he get into a trap?

Husband—That's a good Carrie.

Wife—I'm going to get rid of her, though. I'll tell her I've decided to do my own work.

Husband—A fine ile!

Wife—Well, then, I'll say we can't afford to pay $80.

Husband—That's the fair way.

Wife—Will you have some more bread?

Wife—No more potatoes or nothing?

Husband—How is the greens?

Wife—All gone. I'm sorry. Did you have much lunch?

Husband—I had a couple of good rolls.

Wife—We must hire a new chauffeur. Gus don't never clean the car.

Husband (pretending he has a cold)—Caddy?

Wife—Yes, you better see him.

Wife—Oh, you did! Who?

Husband—Hazzard.

Husband—I topped it.

Husband—Why not?

Husband — Spalding 50, Victor 75 and the Colonel 31.

Husband—Quimet.

Husband—Stirling?

Husband—Evans!

Wife—I suppose if I am going to can Carrie I should ought to give her notice. But I'm afraid she would get mad and quit before I could find somebody else.

Husband—Locker room.

Wife—You must run upstairs and change your close. We only got 15 minutes.

Husband—I'll be down in 7.

This is a sample of par lip golf and if the wife knows the game why so much the better as she can make it a 2 some. If she don't, why she will probably think you have went cuckoo and sew you for a bill of divorce. In that case you are as good as a bachelor. But give it a trial any way, Brother, and if your game is anywheres near like mine why at lease you can't do it no harm.

EMBASSY IN TEARS.

The whole Belgian Embassy is in tears, and cannot do any work owing to the loss of a tortoiseshell Persian kitten. The secretary asks us to mention this sad event, for Belgium's sake, in our columns. We do so with pleasure, and if anybody finds a tortoiseshell Persian kitten, with the air of being a diplomatic mascot, wandering in the grey streets of London, he or she is hereby implored to take it to the Belgian Embassy, 35 Grosvenor-place, S.W. 1. — London Morning Post.

Life and Character Reading

DECEMBER 4.

The governing planets are Mars and Jupiter and the governing birthsign is Sagittarius, meaning the Archer. This gives a direct, forceful character, the power to convince and a warm, ardent love nature, which is sometimes very domineering and demands more than it is willing to give.

The physique is strong the enduring powers excellent, but this nature needs much out of door execise. This person will find success in travelling and the buying and selling of merchandise. The mind is keen, well balanced and the judgment is good. The power to make and hold friends is strong.

The birthstone is a diamond.

GIVE HER A "ROYAL" this CHRISTMAS
THE Christmas sentiment nowadays is to make a gift that will contribute to a woman's daily comfort and happiness.
Next to her family, there's nothing dearer to a woman's heart than her home. She welcomes anything that enhances its beauty, and lightens her housekeeping tasks.
She'll be doubly grateful for a Royal Electric Cleaner—it will keep her home cheery, bright and beautiful and bring her greater ease and comfort the year round as well.
There's no more sensible gift—nor a more useful one—nor one that will be so greatly appreciated as a Royal Electric Cleaner.

THE Christmas Season is here once again. The gift season of the year, when those who give find a joy in expressing their affection and esteem in their gifts. The spirit of Christmas is a wonderful influence upon the giver and upon the receiver but yet another avenue of gladness is offered to those who seek to make others happy. This avenue we would open to you.
On Monday the products of the Memorial Workshops will be exhibited in the Ginsberg Motor Company's Show rooms at 288 St. Catherine Street West and here may be seen a display of the handiwork of Montreal's War Crippled Soldiers. This display will continue until Christmas or the New Year all day each day, and every evening until eleven o'clock.
The Memorial Workshops pay no management expenses or dividends, but simply employ returned maimed soldiers, who with their families secure the money benefit that comes from the sale of the lovely things that may be seen at the Ginsberg Show rooms during the next few weeks.
This advertisement costs some of the profits of the Workshops and such expense might be saved for the future to these crippled soldiers if those who read this would answer its appeal and visit the display of delightful Christmas gift opportunities at once. Remember please, the cause, the place and that very unique and special values may be had by those who take advantage of this opportunity.

Why Antiques This Christmas?
Everyone at this season of the year is confronted with the question "What shall I buy for my leading Christmas gifts?" In many cases this is a difficult question to answer. Especially is it so this year when everything is high in price and bids fair to be far lower in another year.

We Allow Special Xmas Discount On Every Article in Our Shop
Not so, however, with antiques, their cost is based not on present day wages nor on the price of raw materials. Antiques were made in days when labor was cheap and the craftman was skillful. Their price today depends entirely upon the supply, and that of late has been almost exhausted, and prices in England are rising constantly
This is the year to buy antiques.

HAMPTON COURT GHOSTS.

Q.—Will you please give some information about the Palace of Hampton Court, in England, and its ghosts, for it is said to be haunted?—A Constant Reader.

A.—Hampton Court Palace, a mile below the town of Hampton, in Middlesex, and 15 miles from London, was built by Cardinal Wolsey and presented by him to Henry VIII. in 1526—perhaps the most splendid offering ever made by a subject to a sovereign. It stands near the Thames, in magnificent grounds, and is one of the finest extant specimens of Tudor architecture. It was a favorite royal home until the reign of George IV., and Edward VI. was born there, in 1537. There, too, Edward's mother, Jane Seymour, died in 1538. Private apartments in it are now granted to several selected persons. The finest rooms are the great hall and adjoining chambers. The important art treasures include Lely's portraits, Kneller's portraits, and examples by Holbein and West. The Palace has the reputation of being visited by the shades of several great people who have once "walked in splendor" within its historic walls. Strange tales are told of spectral figures which vanish when accosted; of mysterious noises, the uncanny opening of doors without visible agency, and of sounds of merriment and snatches of song proceeding from empty rooms. The most affrighting vision of all is that of a white robed figure running down a corridor, with her long hair streaming behind her, and disappearing into the chaple. This startling apparition is said to be that of the unhappy Catherine Howard, the second queen whom Henry VIII. sent to the executioner's block, and who, so long after her tragic death, repeats an incident in her troubled existence when, escaping from her guards, she rushed into the chapel to beg for her life from her tyrannous lord who was praying there. Catherine of Aragon, is also said to haunt the Palace of Hampton, where her spectre has been seen many a time, clothed in black, and lighted taper in her hand, walking up a certain staircase, and disappearing through the beautiful archway known as Queen Anne's gate.

KOH-I-NUR DIAMOND.

Q.—Please tell me something about the famous Koh-i-Nur diamond.—A. M.

A.—The Koh-i-Nur ("Mountain of Light") diamond is one of the most famous jewels of the British Crown. By tradition it dates back about 5,000 years, but its authentic history dates from the Mogul Emperor, Shah Jehan, to its passage, on the British annexation of the Punjaub, into the hands of Queen Victoria, in 1849. Once nearly 800 carats, the Koh-i-Nur has been reduced to 106 by many cuttings.

LONGEVITY OF ANIMALS.

Q.—Please state how old the following animals have been known to live: The elephant, lion, tiger, hippopotamus, and rhinoceros?—M. L. H.

A.—When well treated, the elephant will live to be a hundred years old, but the actual records of menagerie and military animals show that thirty to forty years is a normal limit. Twenty-five years appears to be a limit very rarely exceeded by lions and tigers. Great longevity has been assigned to the hippopotamus and the rhinoceros, but the longest actual record in the case of a hippopotamus, is of a female born in the London Zoological Gardens which died in its thirty-fifth year; and an Indian rhinoceros which lived for thirty-seven years, also in the London Zoological Gardens is the oldest one on record.

THE COOK.

Q.—Can you quote for me the lines in praise of the cook—"Where is the man who can live without dining"?—M. P. O.

We may live without poetry, music and art;
We may live without conscience and live without heart;
We may live without friends; we may live without books;
But civilized man cannot live without cooks.

He may live without books—what is knowledge but grieving?
He may live without hope—what is hope but deceiving?
He may live without love—what is passion but pining?
But where is the man that can live without dining?"

EAMONN DE VALERA.

A.—Eamonn de Valera was born in the city of New York thirty-seven years ago. His father, Vivian de Valera, was a Spaniard; his mother, whose maiden name was Kate Coll, came from County Limerick, Ireland. At the age of two he was taken over to Ireland, and dwelt with his mother's folk. He was educated at the Christian Brothers' School at Charleville; at Blackrock College, and at the Royal University of Ireland, where he took the degree of B.A. with distinction in mathematics. He is a professor of mathematics and has been a mathematical teacher at Rockwell College and Blackrock College. He took up the study of the Gaelic language and it became with him a veritable passion, which was not lessened by his marriage in 1910 to Miss S. O'Flannigan, one of the most capable and enthusiastic propagandist members of the Gaelic League. He joined the Irish Volunteers when they were first formed, and plunged into military matters with enthusiasm. As an active Sinn Fein leader, he took part in the Easter week rising in Dublin in 1916, where in the disposition of battle he was commandant of the Ringsend area. He was condemned to death for his part in the insurrection, but the sentence was commuted to penal servitude for life, and he was later released in the general amnesty to Sinn Fein prisoners. In July, 1917, he was elected Sinn Fein member of Parliament for East Clare. In December, 1918, he was also returned for East Mayo. He was re-arrested in May, 1918, put in jail in England, but escaped in February, 1919, and reached the United States, where he has toured the country as "President of the Irish Republic," seeking to float a $10,000,000 loan. He has been president of the Gaelic League since 1917. In appearance he has the ivory sallowness and deep, passionate eyes of his Spanish descent. He is very tall, very muscular, and full of nervous vitality. "Personally Eamonn is the most childlike and urbane of men," a friend writes of him. "I could not conceive him hurting anything or any one wantonly. Like all the other leaders nurtured in Gaelic League idealism, Ireland is to him not so much a country as a religion, for which a man should shrink from no sacrifice."

BALANCE OF TRADE.

Q.—What is the basis of the contention that imports must balance exports?—J. H. S.

A.—Where one country exports extensively to another and buys nothing from it, the cheques and drafts given in payment do not balance and it becomes necessary to ship gold or otherwise readjust accounts. This is expensive and makes it necessary to pay a premium on exchange. This premium is virtually an addition to prices paid. When it becomes too high, purchases will be made in other markets. Thus will trade be lost unless it is balanced.

GREAT BATTLESHIPS.

Q.—Will you kindly give me the names of the three largest British dreadnoughts, and how they compare with the three largest American, and oblige?—T. B.

A.—The largest British battleships are the Hood, 41,200 tons displacement; the Canada, 28,000 tons displacement; and the ships of the Queen Elizabeth class—the Queen Elizabeth, the Valiant, the Warspite, the Barham and the Malaya—27,500 tons displacement. The largest United States battleships are the Colorado, the Maryland, the Washington and the West Virginia, with a displacement of 32,000 tons. These figures are quoted from the Statesman's Year Book for 1920.

"DEADWOOD DICK."

Q.—Can you help me to a few facts concerning a character designated as "Deadwood Dick." Who was he?—C. D.B.

A.—"Deadwood Dick" was a nickname give to Robert Dickey (1840-1912), whose actual adventures formed the basis of many dime novels, issued between 1860 and 1880. He was a scout under General George Crook in the days when the red man of the American plains was making his last stand against the white man. He served under General Alfred Terry during a part of that commander's campaigns in the foothills of the Rocky Mountains. He became successively an Indian agent, a United States marshal, a trapper, and a fur merchant. He made a fortune, lost it, and died poor.

LUMINOUS PAINTS.

Q.—Would you please tell me of an easy way to make "luminous paint"?—A. W. B.

A.—To make luminous paint Zanzibar or Kauri copal is melted over a charcoal fire; 15 parts of the melt are dissolved in 60 parts of French oil of turpentine and the filtered solution is mixed with 25 parts of, previously heated and cooled, pure linseed oil. The varnish which is thus obtained is used in the following methods, in the manufacture of luminous paints, by grinding between granite rolls in a paint mill. Iron rolls should be avoided, because particles of iron, which are liable to be detached, would injure the luminous properties. Varnishes, as they occur in commerce, generally contain lead or manganese, which would destroy the phosphorescence of calcium sulphide. 1. A pure white luminous paint is prepared by mixing 40 parts of the varnish obtained in the above described process, with 6 parts prepared barium sulphate, 6 parts prepared calcium carbonate, 12 parts prepared white zinc sulphide, and 36 parts of good luminous calcium sulphide, in a proper vessel to an emulsion, and then grinding it very fine in a color mill. 2. For red luminous paint, 60 parts of varnish are mixed with 8 parts prepared barium sulphate, two parts prepared madder lake, 6 parts prepared realgar (red arsenic sulphide) and 30 parts luminous calcium sulphide, and treated the same as for white paint. 3. For orange, 46 parts varnish are mixed with 17.5 parts prepared barium sulphate, 1 part prepared Indian yellow, 1.5 parts prepared madder lake, and 38 parts luminous calcium sulphide. 4. For yellow, 48 parts varnish are mixed with 10 parts prepared barium sulphate, 8 parts barium chromate and 34 parts luminous calcium sulphide. 5. For green, mix 48 parts varnish with 10 parts prepared barium sulphate, 8 parts chromium oxide green, and 34 parts luminous calcium sulphide. 6. Blue is prepared from 42 parts varnish, 10.2 parts prepared barium sulphate, 6.4 parts ultramarine blue, 5.4 parts cobalt blue and 46 parts luminous calcium sulphide. 7. Violet is made by mixing 42 parts varnish with 10.2 parts prepared barium sulphate, 2.8 parts ultramarine violet, 9 parts cobaltous arsenate and 36 parts luminous calcium sulphide. 8. For gray mix 45 parts of the varnish with 6 parts prepared barium sulphate, 6 parts prepared calcium carbonate, 0.5 parts ultramarine blue, 6.5 parts gray zinc sulphide. 9. Yellowish brown is obtained by mixing 48 parts of the varnish with 10 parts precipitated barium sulphate, 8 parts auri pigment and 34 parts luminous calcium sulphide. These directions are from the Scientific American Cyclopaedia of Receipts, Notes and Queries.

A POPULAR AUTHOR.

Q.—Can you give me any information about the Rev. Mr. Hardy, author of "How to Be Happy Though Married?"—W.J.M.

A.—The Rev. E. J. Hardy (1849-1920), author of "How to be Happy Though Married," and other popular works, was the son of a rector of Moylary, Ireland; and was educated at Trinity College, Dublin. He was a Chaplain to the Forces for thirty years, until his retirement in 1908, and had served in many parts of the Empire. "How to be Happy though Married," his first book, was published in 1884, and has been translated into many languages. It was followed by a large number of other works, of which the later ones include "Love, Courtship, and Marriage," "The Unvarying East," and "The British Soldier, His Courage and Humor," published in 1915.

ZANTIPPE, WIFE OF SOCRATES.

Q.—Can you tell me who Zantippe was?—Curious.

A.—Zantippe was the wife of Socrates, the celebrated Greek philosopher (659-399 B.C.) She had a sharp tongue as well as a shrewish disposition, and became the subject of exaggerated gossip in Athens, to the exaltation of the temper of her husband, who could not be ruffled. One day, after storming at Socrates, Zantippe emptied a vessel of dirty water on his head, whereupon the sage simply remarked: "Ay, ay, we always look for rain after thunder." Zantippe is thus proverbial for a scolding, nagging, peevish wife.

AN ADVERSARY'S BOOK.

Q.—Where can I find the saying, "Oh that mine enemy had written a book"? Is it in Shakespeare?—A Constant Reader.

A.—It is from the Bible. If you will turn to Job 31, 35, you will find the words, "Behold! my desire is that mine adversary had written a book."

SPANISH SUCCESSION WAR.

Q.—Kindly give me some information about the War of the Spanish Succession.—P. B.

A.—What is known in history as the War of the Spanish Succession began in 1702 and ended in 1713. It was undertaken to prevent the possible union of the crowns of France and Spain. The death, in 1702, of Charles II of Spain, without direct issue caused Louis XIV. of France and the German Emperor, Leopold I. (the former married to the elder sister of Charles, the latter to the younger sister, and both grandsons of Philip III. of Spain) to put forth claims to the crown, the one on behalf of his grandson, Philip of Anjou, the other for his second son, the Archduke Charles. War broke out on the entry of Philip into Madrid and his assumption of the crown, Great Britain and the Netherlands uniting with the Emperor to curb the ambition of Louis. During the long struggle the commanding military genius of the Duke of Marlborough asserted itself in the great victories of Blenheim, Ramillies, Oudenarde and Malplaquet but the lukewarmness of Great Britain in the struggle, the political fall of Marlborough and the vote for peace prevented the allies reaping the full benefit of their successes. The Treaty of Utrecht (1713) left Philip in possession of his Spanish kingdom, but the condition was exacted that the crowns of Spain and France should not be united. The Emperor, (the Archduke Charles since 1711) attempted to carry on the struggle but was forced to sign the Treaty of Rastadt (1714), acknowledging Philip King of Spain. Spain, however, ceded the Netherlands, Sardinia, etc., to the Emperor, while Gibraltar, Minorca and part of North America fell to the British. Louis of France, on his part, agreed to give no further support to the Stuarts.

BATTLE OF KILLIECRANKIE.

Q.—Will you be kind enough to tell me who won the battle of Killiecrankie in 1689? A says: "Dundee won fighting for James II." B says "Mackay won fighting for William III."—H. O. C.

A.—Following the revolution of 1688 in England, William and Mary were proclaimed in Scotland as King and Queen on April 11, 1689, after the Estates of Scotland in convention had declared that James VII. (James II. of England) had forfeited the crown. Some of the Scottish Highlanders, about 3,000 strong, under John Graham of Claverhouse, Viscount Dundee, took up arms for James. General Hugh MacKay, a veteran Scottish warrior, who was sent against them with a royal force of about 4,000 men, was met at the Pass of Killiecrankie, Perthshire, on July 27, 1689, and utterly defeated; but in the moment of victory Dundee was struck down by a bullet. When its leader—who was known among the clansmen as "Black John of the Battles"—had fallen, the Highland army soon melted away. The clansmen returned to their homes, and under promise of pardon, they gradually laid down their arms. General MacKay, it may be mentioned, was the inventor of the ring bayonet

DAVID LLOYD GEORGE.

Q.—Please state whether or not the British Premier writes his names with a hyphen — Lloyd-George or Lloyd George?—Wrexham.

A.—Mr. Lloyd George writes his name without the hyphen and has expressed himself as wishing it so written. The British "Who's Who," and other standard works of reference give the name without the hyphen.

WORLD'S LARGEST CITIES.

Q.—Kindly inform me what city is the largest and its population?—A Citizen.

A.—London is the largest city in the world. The latest figures give it a population of 7,256,623.

THE GREAT DOMINION.

Q.—What is the total area of the Dominion of Canada, and how is it divided into land and water?—A.C.M.

A.—Dominion of Canada, land 3,603,-910 square miles; water, 125,755 square miles; total 3,729,665 square miles.

MONTREAL IN 1911.

Q.—To settle an argument, kindly give the population of the city of Montreal by the official census of 1911.—A Reader.

A.—The population of Montreal city proper in 1911, according to the Dominion census returns of that year, was 470,480.

ROSEBERY'S PREMIERSHIP.

Q.—What was the extent of Lord Rosebery's term as Prime Minister of Great Britain?—T.B.M.

DISCOVERY OF CHINA.

Q.—Will you kindly tell me how long since Europeans first found China, and what man discovered that country?—Billy Yee.

A.—"Cathay" is the name by which China was known to Europe in the Middle Ages, and it is in its original form "Kitai," that that country is still known in Russia and to most of the nations of Central Asia. The name first became known to Europe in the thirteenth century, when the great conquests of Jenghiz Khan ("Very Mighty Ruler,") the celebrated Mongol warrior, and his successors, drew new attention to the crankle. which soon came into general use, the idea of it being suggested to him by the failure of the plug bayonet to stop the rush of Dundee's clansmen at Killiecountries and peoples of Asia. Jenghis Khan regarded himself as commissioned by Heaven to conquer the world, a destiny which he almost fulfilled. The conquests of that celebrated warrior and his successors spread not only over China and the adjoining East, but westward also over all Northern Asia. Persia, Armenia, part of Asia Minor, and Russia, and, in fact, for a time, threatened to deluge Christendom. By the time Europe recovered from its nightmare of a "yellow peril," the Mongol wave had levelled or covered all political barriers from the Yellow Sea to the frontiers of Poland. After that many Europeans visited China, princes, soldiers and missionaries. Traders also went there in ever increasing numbers. To the two religious orders, the Dominicans and the Franciscans, the world owes a vast amount of the valuable information about medieval China, and among others, the first mention of Cathay. Among the many Europeans who reached Mongolia were (1245-1247) John de Plano Carpini, and (1253) William of Rubruk, in French Flanders, as both have left reports of their travels.

UNITED STATES IN WARFARE.

Q.—Please state if United States has been engaged in many wars, big or little or in very few? This is to settle an argument.—J. B. M.

A.—From 1776 to 1920, a period of 144 years, the United States has been engaged in major domestic or foreign wars about one out of every four years, and the military power of the United States has been in active use in war or military operations of some kind about three out of every four years.

POLITICAL PARTY WHIPS.

Q.—What is the duty of a party whip?—Young Canadian.

A.—In Parliament, each party has an officer (a member of the House) whose chief duty is to secure the attendance of as many members as possible whenever an important vote is to be taken. If a Government fails to carry an important measure it has brought in, it must resign; so to prevent such an occurrence, its whip must take measures to secure the presence of a Government majority when the vote is called.

THE SQUARE DEAL.

Q.—Can you give me Theodore Roosevelt's famous saying about the square deal?—M. B. M.

A.—In a speech at Springfield, Ill., on July 4, 1903, Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, then President of the United States, alluding to colored troops, said: "A man who is good enough to shed his blood for his country is good enough to be given a square deal afterward. More than that, no man is entitled to and less than that no man shall have."

TWO GREAT BRIDGES.

Q.—Which bridge is the longer, the Quebec Bridge or the Brooklyn Bridge, and which cost the more?—Enquirer.

A.—The Brooklyn Bridge opened in 1883, cost $17,909,412 to construct, while the land cost $7,185,165, or a total of $25,094,577. The Quebec Bridge was completed in 1917 at an estimated cost of $17,000,000, or a total—with that of the disasters which came to this great undertaking in 1907 and 1916—of about $35,000,000.

CARNEGIE HERO FUND.

Q.—What is the name and address of the Carnegie commission that rewards acts of exceptional heroism?—W.

A.—Carnegie Hero Fund Commission, Oliver Building, Pittsburg, Pa., U.S.A.

MONTREAL'S SITUATION.

Q.—What is the latitude and the longitude of the city of Montreal.—A. M. C.

A.—The Observatory of McGill University, Montreal, is in north latitude 45 degrees, 30 minutes and 17 seconds; and west longitude 73 degrees, 34 minutes and 40.05 seconds.

"BACK RIVER" AT MONTREAL.

Q.—Recently I had a discussion about what is generally called in Montreal the "Back River." My opinion is that the Back River is a part of the Ottawa. I say, that at Ste. Anne's the Ottawa divides, part going into the St. Lawrence there, and the other part going at the back of Montreal, hence the name, joins the St. Lawrence at Bout de l'Ile, thereby making the Island of Montreal. Kindly inform me if I am right. What about the St. Rose River?—Pentland.

A.—At the foot of the Lake of Two Mountains, the Ottawa River divides into four channels, forming three islands, Isle Perrot, the Island of Montreal and Isle Jesus. The southernmost channel passes between Isle Perrot and the mainland. The main channel passes between Isle Perrot on the right and the Island of Montreal on the left and joins the St. Lawrence a short distance below Ste. Anne de Bellevue. What is known as the Back River or the Riviere des Prairies, is that channel passing between the Island of Montreal and Isle Jesus. Ste. Rose is on the northernmost branch of the Ottawa, passing between Isle Jesus and the mainland. Both of the latter branches lose themselves in the St. Lawrence, at the foot of the Island of Montreal.

AUSTRIAN SUCCESSION WAR.

Q.—Please give some particulars of the War of the Austrian Succession and state its significance in history.—P. B.

A. — The great struggle in Central Europe known as the War of the Austrian Succession began in 1740 and lasted until 1748. It followed on the death in 1740, of the Emperor Charles VI. without male issue. His daughter, Maria Theresa, entered into possession of Bohemia, Hungary, and the Archduchy of Austria, but was immediately attacked by the Electors Charles Albert of Bavaria and Augustus of Saxony and Poland, both rival claimants for the imperial crown, while Frederick II. of Prussia—known in history as Frederick, the hero of Thomas Carlyle's great historical biography—seized the opportunity of Maria Theresa's embarrassment to annex Silesia. France, Spain, Great Britain and Holland were drawn into the struggle, the last in support of Maria Theresa. Success oscillated from side to side, but the Treaty of Aix-la-Chapelle, signed on October 18, 1748, which brought the war to a close, left Maria Theresa pretty well in possession of her inheritance, with the exception of the loss of Silesia to Frederick the Great.

MRS. GASKELL, NOVELIST.

Q.—Please supply me with a brief note about Mrs. Gaskell.—Mrs. H. M. D.

A.—Mrs. Gaskell (1810-1865) — born Elizabeth Cleghorn Stevenson—was an English novelist of acknowledged power, whose "Mary Barton," "Ruth," "Cranford," and other fine stories—dealing largely with Lancashire factory life—achieved great popularity. Her "Life of Charlotte Bronte" is also a remarkable book, still well worth reading.

UNITED STATES PRESIDENCY.

Q.—Is there a law in the United States to prevent a man from running for presidency more than three terms in succession?—L. G.

A.—There is nothing in the Constitution of the United States to prevent a man from running for the presidency three times or more. No one has ever been elected for more than two terms; but there is no law on the point. Tradition has ruled.

"WAIT AND SEE."

Q.—What would happen if an irresistible force were to come in contact with an immovable body?—Embryo Scientist.

A.—For such an unprecedented contingency, the only thing for us to do is, in the words of Mr. Asquith, to "wait and see"!

A.—Queen Victoria Eugenie of Spain is a first cousin of King George of Great Britain. Her mother was Princess Beatrice, sister of King Edward, who was the father of King George.

AN IRISH BIBLE.

To the Editor of Answers,—Your reader, R.L.J., wishing information on an Irish Bible, may have same supplied, if he likes to have it, by the Gaelic League in Montreal, of which I am vice-president. Hugh McDevitt, 113 Richardson street, Montreal.

POPULATION OF BELGIUM.

A.—On December 31, 1918, it was estimated to be 7,555,576.

RELIGION OF PRESIDENTS.

Q.—Will you kindly give the names of the presidents of the United States up to date, and the church to which each one belonged?—W. H.

BOARD EXAMINATIONS.

Q.—Where are the medical board examinations held in the Province of Quebec? When are these examinations held?—A. V.

A.—Write to the Secretary, College of Physicians and Surgeons of the Province of Quebec (the examining body), 204 St. Catherine street east, Montreal.

THE FOURTH DIMENSION.

Q.—Can you recommend me a good mathematical book treating on the fourth dimension?—Enquirer.

A.—The following book can be recommended as giving a simple and at the same time explanation of the fourth dimension, while not wading too deep into mathematics: "Mathematical Recreations and Essays," by W. W. Rouse Ball (9th edition, 1920 Macmillan).

BOERS AND BRITISH.

Q.—Kindly let me know whether the land the Boers occupied before the last war with Great Britain belonged to them or to the British.—S. P. M.

A.—In the case of the Transvaal the country belonged to the Boers, under the suzerainty of Great Britain. In the case of the Orange Free State (later the Orange River Colony) there was no British suzerainty. Both were annexed to the British Empire in 1900, owing to the war.

FREEDOM IN SOUTH AFRICA.

Q.—How soon after the close of the South African war did Great Britain grant the Boers the rights of self-government?—W.

A.—The South African War ended on May 31, 1902. On December 6, 1906, responsible government was granted to the Transvaal and to the Orange River Colony.

CITY OF SACREMENTO.

Q.—Will you kindly give the population of the City of Sacremento, in California?—Enquirer.

A.—The population of Sacremento, California, is about seventy-five thousand.

DAYS OF THE WEEK.

Q.—What day of the week did Oct. 4th, 1891, fall on; also June 13, 1895, and July 8, 1893?—Mother.

A.—October 4, 1891, was Sunday; June 13, 1895, was Thursday, and July 8, 1893, was Saturday.

"FARTHER" AND "FURTHER."

Q.—Kindly give some adequate rule as to when "further" and "farther" may properly be used.—Curious.

A.—"Farther" should be used to designate longitudinal distance; "further" to signify quantity or degree.

SEXES IN UNITED STATES.

Q.—Which is larger, the male or female population of the United States?—Enquirer.

A.—The 1920 census statistics on this division have not been compiled at Washington, D.C., but in 1910 the males outnumbered the females by 2,692,288.

SINKING TO BOTTOM.

Q.—Will the wreck of an iron ship sink to the bottom of, say, the Pacific Ocean, or will it only go down a certain distance?—Doubtful.

A.—Iron and things heavier than ocean water will sink to the bottom of the ocean anywhere.

"A SCRAP OF PAPER."

Q.—What is the origin of the phrase "A scrap of paper," so often heard?—G. O'S.

A.—The origin of the phrase "A scrap of paper" is as follows: Five powers of Europe: Great Britain, France, Russia, Prussia and Austria—on April 19, 1839, signed a treaty guaranteeing the neutrality and independence of Belgium. When the war was about to break in August, 1914, and it was apparent that Germany (Prussia's successor), was about to strike at France through Belgium, Sir William Goschen, the British Ambassador at Berlin, called the attention of Chancellor von Bethmann Hollweg, to the existence of the Belgian neutrality treaty. The Chancellor thereupon contemptuously styled the treaty "A scrap of paper.."

A WIDOW'S MOURNING.

Q.—Will you kindly yet me know how long a widow is to wear full mourning, half mourning and after how many months of widowhood she can wear different colors than black and mauve?—Widow.

A.—In recent years there has been a great change in regard to wearing mourning. It is now largely a matter of personal feeling, individual opinion and circumstances. Some prefer to conform to the longest period prescribed by custom, others adopt the shorter periods without fear of criticism. Some widows wear mourning for many years or for life, discarding the veil and white border in the bonnet after two years, but continuing to wear black. Two years, however, is generally the period for a widow's mourning, deep mourning being worn for a year or eighteen months, frequently for the entire two years, and sometimes for three years.

CELTIC SPEECH IN BRITISH ISLES.

Q.—How many people can speak the Celtic or Gaelic languages in the British Isles at the present time?—Tara Hall.

A.—In 1911, in Wales and Monmouthshire 190,292 persons 3 years old and upwards, or 7.9 per cent of the total population, were able to speak Welsh only, and 787,074 or 32.5 per cent, able to speak Welsh and English. In Scotland, 18,400 persons 3 years old and upwards, or 0.4 per cent of the total population, could speak Gaelic only, and 183,998, or 3.9 per cent, could speak Gaelic and English. In Ireland, 16,873, or 0.39 per cent of the population could speak Gaelic (Irish) only, and 565,573, or 12.9 per cent, could speak Gaelic and English.

"SURVIVAL OF THE FITTEST."

Q.—What is the origin of the much-used phrase, "the survival of the fittest?"—J. M. M.

A.—Herbert Spencer (1829-1903) the English philosopher first gave it currency. Charles Darwin (1809-1882) the great English naturalist, spoke much of "the struggle for existence," in discussing the theory of evolution, and in his book "The Origin of Species," says: "The expression often used by Mr. Herbert Spencer of the Survival of the Fittest is more accurate, and is sometimes equally convenient."

TEN BIG CITIES.

Q.—Would you be good enough to publish names and populations of the ten largest cities in North America, giving the authority for the figures, please. Also state the population of Montreal in 1905?—"Q"

A.—The following are the figures for the ten largest cities in North America in 1920: New York, 5,621,151; Chicago, 2,701,212; Philadelphia, 1,823,158; Detroit, 993,739; Greater Montreal, estimated 801,216; Montreal proper, 736,416; Cleveland, 796,836; St. Louis, 772,897; Boston, 747,923; Baltimore, 733,826; Pittsburgh, 588,193. In 1905 Greater Montreal had a population of 385,000, and Montreal proper 301,000.

"MILL BOY OF THE SLASHES."

Q.—Who was the "Mill Boy of the Slashes"?—A Constant Reader.

A.—Henry Clay (1777-1812), the American lawyer, statesman and orator, was know as the "Mill Boy of the Slashes." When a boy he made frequent visits to a grist mill in the "Slashes," a low, swampy region in Hanover County, Virginia, the place of his birth; hence the nickname.

Q.—Can you give me the words of the optimistic little rhyme, "To look up and not down"; etc.?—A. J. B.

A. — The words are by Edward Everett Hale (1822-1909), American preacher and author. Here they are:

"To look up and not down;
To look forward and not back;
To look out and not in—and
To lend a hand."

UNSEEN HANDS

By ROBERT ORR CHIPPERFIELD

Author of "The Second Bullet"

CHAPTER XVII.
FARLEY DREW'S GAME.

For a moment after Miss Risby's veiled but unmistakably significant statement Odell stared at her while this new and amazing possibility swept over his consciousness. Was the girl lying, deliberately attempting to throw suspicion on Lorne, even as he had an hour before practically accused her?

The detective was forced to admit to himself that she did not appear to be the type of woman who would commit herself in any way without due cause and after careful consideration; yea she had said more than the situation demanded. She might easily have taken refuge in the excuse that she thought Mr. Lorne's presence, or that of any other member of the family except Miss Meade, excited her patient; she need not have volunteered that observation about the bandage.

"You are absolutely sure in your own mind that the bandage was tampered with?" he asked.

The girl shrugged.

"Doctor Adams would tell you that the patient might very well have loosened it in changing her position in bed; but I had applied it myself, and I knew that it had been removed and replaced."

"Did you examine it, Miss Risby? Was there anything upon it or in the infected spot itself which suggested that some foreign matter might have been introduced?"

"No; I could not say that," she replied conscientiously. "The irritation and consequent suppuration had materially increased, and the patient's temperature had risen; but I found no trace of poison, if that is what you mean."

"Will you tell me all the circumstances, please? Was anyone else near Mrs. Lorne on that occasion?"

"No. Miss Meade was sleeping on the day bed in the boudoir adjoining, but she never stirred until I awakened her at midnight. She was utterly worn out and had gone to rest immediately after dinner on the evening in question; which was five days before Mrs. Lorne's death.

"I was alone with my patient when about nine o'clock Mr. Lorne knocked upon the door and I admitted him. After a few minutes I left him quietly talking to his wife; and requesting him not to remain more than twenty minutes, I went to my own room, where I wrote a letter. In exactly the time I had stipulated I returned and found that he had gone, and my patient was in the condition which I have described.

"I looked in the boudoir and saw that Miss Meade was still sleeping, and when I awakened her later I learned she had heard no one in her sister's room. I asked Mrs. Lorne herself if anyone had touched the bandage, but she denied it and seemed resentful. She was not a particularly easy patient to handle, being high-strung and self-indulgent to a degree; and it was essential that she should not be permitted to excite herself, so I dared not question her further."

The quiet, unemotional voice had continued without emphasis or hesitation until the end; and now the girl sat composedly awaiting the next question. Could she have anticipated this scene and carefully rehearsed it? Her poise seemed all at once too perfect not to have been studied.

"Miss Risby, there must have been something else to arouse your suspicions. You would not, in the ordinary performance of your duty, prevent a man from having a private interview with his dying wife merely because on an earlier visit of his the bandage about her arm had become loosened and her fever increased."

The shot told, as he could note by the sudden tightening of the girl's lips; but she shook her head.

"You forget that the irritation of the infected area had also increased and to an alarming extent. It—it looked to me, Sergeant Odell, like a deliberate reinfection. I cannot even under the present circumstances discuss the private affairs of a family whose household I enter in a professional capacity, and I do not pretend to hazard any motive for such a possible act on Mr. Lorne's part; my only duty was toward my patient and I fulfilled it to the best of my ability."

"Yet you did learn something of the private affairs of that family." Odell seized upon the opening she had unwittingly given to him. "You do know or suspect a possible motive on Mr. Lorne's part for such a crime. Miss Risby, there are certain occasions when professional ethics must be put aside. The truth will not bring Mrs. Lorne back to life, but it may save others from dying as she did."

"Others?" The girl was startled from her serene composure at last. "What do you mean, Sergeant Odell? Surely there have been no further cases!"

"You encountered all the members of the family during your stay, did you not?"

She nodded wordlessly.

"You have heard of the subsequent death of Mrs. Lorne's oldest son, Julian Chalmers?"

"No!" she cried. "I have been on a contagious case in quarantine for the last fortnight. That splendid, robust young man! I—I can scarcely believe it! How—how did he die?"

"He was murdered in an even more ruthless fashion than was his mother. We have absolute proof of that and the manner of it; and two later unsuccessful attempts have been made upon other members of the family." Odell paused. "You see now, Miss Risby, that no ethical question must seal your lips. In the case of Mrs. Lorne, I may tell you that Doctor Adams as well as the specialists are convinced that death was not the direct result of the prick of that needle; and they are cooperating with me in every way. I must ask you to be equally frank."

"Oh, I don't know what to do!" The girl's hands twisted together in her lap. "Nursing isn't only a business with me; it is almost a sacred calling, and I have always striven to uphold its tenets scrupulously. There can be nothing more despicable than a man who enters a home in the intimate, confidential capacity of a nurse and tattles of the personal, private matters which inevitably come under her observation; and yet if it is a question of preventing crime, I realize that I have no choice. Only if Mr. Lorne is innocent I am doing a terrible thing in this betrayal of my trust!"

"If Mr. Lorne is innocent the truth cannot hurt him," the detective urged. "Circumstantial evidence alone cannot avail in a case of this sort, and where no possible motive appears—"

"But that is just it," Miss Risby interrupted him. "I am afraid that what I have to tell you will seem to establish a motive, yet I must speak. On the day before the episode of which I have just told you Miss Brown had a sore throat, and I assumed her duties as well as my own; Mrs. Lorne was not then so critically ill, you know. In the afternoon she was resting easily, and I thought it safe to take a nap if I remained within call. I went to the day bed in the boudoir and fell asleep almost at once, but was awakened by the sound of my patient's voice raised in shrill anger.

"I started up to go to her, my first thought being to curb her excitement, but when I heard Mr. Lorne's voice I hesitated. I did not mean to listen, but after the first few words I decided that it would save them from embarrassment if I did not appear; for their argument was about finances and of a most private nature.

"Mr. Lorne was urging his wife to sign some sort of paper which would enable him to sell a certain piece of property in which I gathered she had equal rights; and she vehemently refused. I cannot repeat the exact words; but it was evident that he was in financial straits, and he complained bitterly of his position in practically living on the money she had inherited from her first husband—of whom he spoke in a decidedly uncomplimentary manner—while there remained property of his own which would carry him safely over some crisis in the stock market and turn the tide, if his wife would only sign the document.

"She declared that the property in question was bound to increase in value, and if he had been a fool and got himself into a hole he must take the consequences; that she had always hated his gambling in Wall Street, and had warned him that he would fail sooner or later; and it might as well come now while her private fortune was sufficient for all their future needs. He swore that he would not live on her money; and she asked him sneeringly what he was going to do about it. She resented the slurs cast upon her first husband; and Mr. Lorne was furious at her ridicule of his lack of judgment in playing the market.

"A violent quarrel ensued in which he cursed himself for marrying a selfish, self-willed woman who had been spoiled all her life, and vowed that he would find some way to regain independent control of his own property. He asserted in no uncertain terms that she wanted him to fail, in order to place him under further obligations and make him a slave to her slightest whim, and that he—he would see her dead first."

The girl's voice had sunk lower and lower until the final words came in a mere whisper, and she shuddered as if shrinking from their very utterance.

"Did Mrs. Lorne still refuse?" Odell asked.

"Yes, and he left in a towering rage, while she merely laughed at him in a tantalizing way. Aside from the question, which was none of my affair, I must confess that I felt a certain amount of sympathy for Mr. Lorne at the moment. Mrs. Lorne was a very beautiful woman, but her disposition was not an easy one with which to get along; and I had already experienced her almost maniacal outbursts of temper over the merest trivialities.

"However, when I returned to the sick-room after dinner that evening I found him again with her, and they seemed to have established amicable and even affectionate relations once more; so I thought no further about the scene of the afternoon until on the following night, when immediately after his customary visit with her I found her condition so changed."

"And this is all you have to tell me?" Odell rose. "You can recall nothing else which might have a possible bearing on Mrs. Lorne's death?"

"Nothing," Miss Risby responded as she gave him her hand. "Please do not attach too much significance to what I have told you, Sergeant. I have witnessed many domestic quarrels, and it has been my experience that people say a great deal in the heat of anger which it would be ridiculous to attach any importance to. I have told you only because I thought it my duty; but I beg that you will not accept my statement as conclusive proof."

Leaving her, Odell returned as quickly as possible to the Meade house. With every turn he seemed to be unearthing fresh and conflicting circumstantial evidence, and he felt that before proceeding any further he must gather up some of the loose threads which entangled this most perplexing of all the cases he had known.

When Peters admitted him he proceeded directly to the third floor and found Porter seated on a chair in the hall outside Gene's door yawning over a newspaper, which he cast aside with a quickly suppressed grin at sight of his superior.

"I'm glad you got back, Sergeant," he observed with an innocent air which told the detective plainly that the tale of his abduction had filtered through from Headquarters during his absence. "Nothing stirring in there; been sulking ever since the night before last."

"Has he communicated with anyone outside the house or received any messages?"

"No. Te sends his trays away almost untouched after each meal; and when Miss Meade came to the door he refused to let her in. Moreover, from that little room there I can hear him walking the floor most of the night. He hasn't taken the least notice of me; don't seem to care whether I'm on the job or not. It looks as if he was waiting for something to drop on him."

"Well, he won't have to wait any longer."

Odell knocked upon the door, and after a perceptible pause slow, reluctant footsteps sounded within, and Gene appeared on the threshold. His face was pale and drawn, and the circles beneath his sunken eyes told of sleepless hours; but to the detective's keen gaze there seemed to be a new look of strength and resolution about his weak mouth.

For a moment he stood eyeing Odell steadily but quite without animosity. Then he asked quietly:

"Do you want me?" There was a significance beyond the mere words in his tone, and the detective shook his head smilingly as he replied:

"I want only to have a little talk with you, Mr. Chalmers, if I may."

"Come in, Sergeant." Gene held the door wide, and Odell walked past him to a chair by the table. "I'll tell you anything you want to know now."

"You have not heard from your friend Farley Drew since you left him the night before last in the room behind that tailor's shop on Third Avenue?"

"No." Gene closed the door and came slowly forward. "You were there? You heard?"

"I was in the alley," Odell admitted. "Your friend should see to it that the window is not broken or the shade torn, if he wishes to hold a strictly private conversation."

Gene drew a deep breath and squared his shoulders.

"I'm glad you did hear, Sergeant; that simplifies matters. And please don't call that scoundrel a friend of mine; he is the worst enemy a man could have. I wish I had told you everything before, but I was afraid of him. Now I know that nothing he can do to me will be any worse than the torture I have gone through for the last two days; and at least I shall be rid of him forever! Do you remember that note you found in my desk and took away; I mean the one in which he ordered me to do something before the sixth of the month?"

"Yes. He mentioned it to me after you and Sims had taken your departure that night. We had a most interesting conversation in the room with the broken window." The detective paused and then added slowly: "You had—er—signed your mother's name to a check, and Farley Drew had cashed it; hadn't he? Was the second one drawn on her also?"

"So Drew told you?" The young man was white to the lips.

"No; I guessed. I had heard you accuse him of bleeding you; I recalled the wording of the note, and I put two and two together."

"Well, it's true! I'm not going to deny it, and I'll face my stepfather and the family or—or anyone else you like. There was a sort of quiet desperation in his tones, with no trace of bravado. "Ever since I can remember I have been able to copy people's handwriting without any practice, and so nearly perfect that they could not themselves tell it from their own. I used to do it for fun at school when I was a kid. It was a gift from the devil, I guess; but I never thought of turning it to account in any dishonest way until Drew found out about my freakish ability in that line and put the idea into my head.

"Don't misunderstand me, Sergeant; I'm not trying to hide behind his skirts. I forged my mother's name to that cheque, and I am willing to take the consequences. Drew had me in a hole; racing, and gambling, and chits signed at restaurants for supper parties, and all the rest of it. He had a stack of I. O. U. paper of mine about a foot high. My stepfather had paid up my debts twice; and he refused to do so again, and I knew he meant it.

"Of course I shall be of age in another month and master of my inheritance from my own father; but Drew wouldn't wait. The notes were long overdue; and he was pressing me, and threatening until I was almost crazy."

Only another month? Odell's thoughts were far afield. Mrs. Lorne had refused to sign away her rights to certain property, and she had died; Julian had demanded an accounting of his estate, and he also had perished. Gene would be of age in four short weeks; and it was obvious that he, too, would want control of his inheritance—and that portrait had all but crushed out his life when it fell! All this capital had been intrusted to Richard Lorne's keeping. . . . With an effort the detective forced himself to concentrate on the matter in hand. "Why couldn't Drew wait one month more?"

A cold is a dangerous, deadly disease, with which you cannot afford to trifle. Do not let a cold develop into anything more serious. Break it up while it is still a cold by taking DOMINION C. B. Q. (Cascara, Bromide and Quinine) Tablets.

BUILDERS' CASE FOR NEW YORK GRAND JURY

Committee Orders Testimony Regarding Book Changes Submitted

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—The joint legislative committee investigating New York's "building trust," yesterday ordered its counsel to submit to the extraordinary grand jury testimony which indicated changes had been made in the minute book of the builders' supply bureau. This action followed testimony of Marvin Scudder, committee accountant, that the minute book of the bureau showed indications of having been written all at one time, and of the bureau's bookkeeper, Miss Elizabeth O'Dea, that she had kept the minutes regularly.

The "whole matter of missing books, missing files, destroyed cards and persons disappearing," in connection with the inquiry into building materials bureaus then also was ordered submitted to the extraordinary grand jury.

RISING VALUE OF DOLLAR---SECURITY VALUES LOWER

MARKET YIELDS FURTHER GROUND UNDER ADDITIONAL LIQUIDATION AND PROFESSIONAL PRESSURE

The stock market did not make a great deal of progress during the past week of trading. Towards the close of the week a rally set in which carried prices up locally from the low—which was in some cases the low of the decline as well—but the recovery was not a persistent nature. The week closed firmly, however, with the market carrying itself about as well as might be expected under the circumstances.

The break in Breweries and its development of a fresh buying power was a feature, and although the stock did not rally more than a point or so from the bottom, support was evident at the more attractive level. The sudden jump in Toronto Rails to above 60 was also a notable development, and served to relieve the present monotony of weakening prices or narrow ones. Such rallies, here and there, seem to be coming with more frequency, and this is always a welcome sign.

Generally speaking, the outlook is more hopeful than it was two weeks or a month ago. General trade is improving on a fairly steady holiday demand and while dealers are probably losing money on some of the stocks they are selling, they are at least turning their goods over, and this in itself should be cheering, indicating as it does that people still have money to spend, but are more careful where they spend it.

Wall Street has been a rather doubtful performer for some time past, and the market is the subject of many divers opinions. While one group of market prophets maintain that the decline has practically come to an end and that prices cannot go lower, the other group state that although rallies will occur from time to time, the movement downward is not yet complete, and lower prices will ensue. Wall Street opinion is thus divided.

RE-CONTROLLED VICTORY LOANS MEET ACTIVE MARKET AND EARLY ERRATIC TREND, STEADYING LATER

One of the most interesting developments in the Montreal financial situation during the past week was the abolition of the control of the Victory Loans and the replacing them on the regular stock exchange bond list, where their price will be regulated purely by investment market conditions and the law of supply and demand. The action in decontrolling the issues was popular in a general sense, and the action of the bonds was, in the main, much as was expected in bond and financial circles. As compared with the last controlled price, the first market prices were considerably lower, after which there was a steady betterment in their position and prices rose before the end of the week to nearly the levels at which the prices were last fixed.

With the law of supply and demand brought into force and with active trading in the various issues placed on the market, the early trends were extremely erratic, and in some cases prices declined more sharply than conditions or the class of the issue would seem to warrant. Such conditions prevailed during the first couple of days of trading, but at last night's close, most of these irregularities were ironed out and the range appeared fairly consistent. It may be some little time, however, before the issues are fully adjusted to their new "trading" position, and take their place with the stable investment list, as far as fluctuations in prices are concerned.

A table has been prepared, and will be found hereunder, showing the various maturities of the recently de-controlled Victory Loans as well as the old War Loans, which have always been on the open market. The table shows the last fixed price for the Victory Loans, indicates the interest they bear, whether taxable or tax free, and the range of prices during the past week and up to last night's close. As there was some discussion regarding the fact that some of the interest on these loans was payable in New York as well as in Montreal, the only issue which is payable in New York, the Dominion War Loan due in 1937, has been indicated by an asterisk. The table follows:

SILVER DECLINE EMBARRASSING SOME COMPANIES

COBALT, Dec. 4.—(Star Special)—Uncertainty still exists in Cobalt mining circles, owing to the shortage of electric power, and more recently on account of a decline in quotations for commercial bar silver. Last week the Beaver Consolidated was the only mine affected, this property having closed down, but announcing its intention to resume work after completing repairs to the plant. Now, however, comes an official announcement from J. P. Bickell, president of the Temiskaming Mining Company, stating the Temiskaming will close until spring. The reason given is the fact that the price of silver now prevailing and under present operating costs will not permit operations to be continued profitably. Especially is this true at the present time when a shortage of power prevents operations at full capacity and thereby decreases the efficiency.

Official announcement is also made that the Mining Corporation will not pay a dividend for the current quarter, the indicated profit having been reduced due to three causes, namely: Shortage of labor, lower price for silver and a serious shortage of power. As to this, the supply of labor is now abundant, but the two other adverse factors continue.

As regards wages at the silver mines the men are being paid the highest rate in the history of Cobalt. It seems now certain that an early appeal may be made to the men to increase output to a point that will justify this high pay and enable the companies to continue to show a fair margin of profit. Failure to do this would undoubtedly lead to search for some other avenue by which satisfactory profit may be realized.

Application has been made by a committee representing the mining companies and the Workmen's Central Council, for a charter to establish an Employees' Sick Benefit Fund for the benefit of the men working at the Cobalt mines. The plan is to assess each worker 75 cents daily, the employer contributing an equal amount per man on the pay-roll, and in this way to collect close to $2,500 monthly. The benefits are to consist of $2.75 a day during the first 13 weeks of illness or quarantine, as well as half that amount during the second period of illness of 13 weeks. The dependent of any deceased member will be paid $250. A vote of the men at the mines resulted in a majority of 84 per cent in favor of this scheme.

The regular quarterly dividend of 3 per cent payable January 1st, has not yet been declared by the McKinley-Darragh Mining Company, and it is believed the disbursement will not be made. This belief is based on the fact that during the current quarter net earnings have been comparatively small owing to temporary conditions caused by labor and power shortage.

OUTLOOK BETTER IN AUTOMOBILE MARKET AT N.Y.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—During the past month there has been a marked reversal of feeling in the automobile trade and where pessimism prevailed there now exists the belief that conditions have become much more stabilised and the outlook for business wonderfully improved. Dealers who are in a position to judge conditions say this betterment has been of a heartening character, to say the least, and they believe there will be further gradual improvement to the buying movement that is again evident.

A questionnaire recently sent to dealers throughout the country asking them to give the ratio of sales in September and October, 1919 as compared with this year has been returned. The averages showed that new car sales in September, 1920, were 6 per cent better than for September, 1919; while the October movement was 4 per cent better than for the same month that year. It is expected that if figures for November were at hand they would show even a greater expansion.

In the vicinity of New York evidence that the automobile buying public had again entered the market was shown by bonafide sales at the recent automobile show in Jersey City. Here just 85 cars were sold off the floor of the Fourth Regiment Armory, where the display was held, and as far as known this is a record for a dealers' show in a community the size of Jersey City.

While there has been a substantial let up in the manufacture of automobiles there has been no noticeable cessation in the use of cars in the hands of the public.

BRIGHTER TIME REFLECTED THIS WEEK IN MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 4 (By Stuart P. West. Copyright.)—In a survey of the general financial and industrial situation, one is justified in saying that there have been more favorable developments than unfavorable in the course of the past week. The seriousness of the problems still to be solved, of the obstacles yet to be overcome, cannot and should not be minimized. But there is no question that in certain respects the outlook is brighter than it was and that there are more solid grounds for the conviction that however painfully slow the process of recovery may be, we are on the road to convalescence.

First of all conditions in Europe, that is, in the lands of our Allies, are distinctly better. While the incomes of these foreign Governments were falling far short of their expenditures and while their trade figures showed that they were running more and more into debt the position was not pleasant. It was never bad enough to warrant the wild talk of repudiation that was indulged in some quarters; nevertheless it was sufficiently grave to cause us some concern when we thought of our enormous credits both public and private, and it did often raise the question what good was it doing the United States to be a creditor instead of a debtor nation. Now the latest statistics reveal a wonderful change for the better in Great Britain and in France. From the beginning of the British fiscal year April 1st to November 20th Government expenditures were $500,000,000 less than receipts and during the same period $1,500,000,000 has been paid off on the British Government debt. Along with this while imports have not been cut down so much, exports have expanded, and the latest returns of the London Board of Trade which were for October showed the two items closer together than for any month this year. The last official estimates for France are that in 1921 the treasury will have a comfortable balance on the credit side for all routine operations. This does not take account of the extraordinary requirements incident to maturity Government obligations. But there is no longer cause for worry on this latter score after the astonishing results which attended the opening of the new French internal loan this week. Subscriptions to this loan far surpassed expectations running well up toward $6,000,000,000. Important as this is in providing money for all imaginable needs it is still more important as a tremendous vote of confidence on the part of the French people in the recuperative powers of their country. Rapid progress has been made also in readjusting the French foreign trade. Imports have been reduced and exports expanded so that the latter now amount to 90 per cent of the former, whereas the best record in pre-war times was a percentage of exports to imports of 80 per cent.

By these accomplishments is removed the last vestige of doubt about the ability of our principal debtors in Europe to meet their obligations. As soon as a nation like an individual gets its income above its outgo and starts in paying its debts its credit is bound to improve. To be sure this has not yet been reflected in the foreign bank statements. The week's report of the English Bank revealed a proportion of less than 8 per cent reserve to liabilities, the smallest of any during the war or since, the lowest in fact since the Overland-Gurney panic of 1837. But this condition is not understood and was brought about partly by the preparations for financing the end of the year requirements. In January the deflation of paper currency which always accompanies a reduction in the public debt may be expected to start, and as the ratio of specie to paper increases foreign exchange will improve.

So far however as our principal European customers are concerned the position is manifestly much better from the standpoint of the international trade. The chief trends were favorable to business with South America, with the continent of Africa, and with the Far East in the demoralized state of their exchanges and with American banks unwilling to extend credit except where the borrower puts up a margin of 25 to 50 per cent.

Some pressure may be brought to bear upon Congress as a part of the agitation to help the farmers to revive the war finance corporation with its powers of using government credit to aid the foreign trade. But the slim chances of Congress doing anything along this line make it seem more and more necessary to consider the alternative which is the formation with private capital of a big foreign trade corporation as is provided for under the Edge Act. The banks, it is estimated, have lent the huge sum of $4,000,000,000 on short term credit to finance our excess of exports. They have reached the end of the rope and can do no more. On the other hand the vitality of the investment market is just as much a bright spot as it has been at any time. A corporation organized to take over bank credits having the same margin of safety as the banks themselves now demand, and prepared to make fresh loans similarly well secured would certainly have no trouble in floating its securities. It would mean at once a highly important step toward meeting the critical difficulties in the present export trade and a great contribution toward the reduction of bank loans and the consequent betterment of the domestic credit situation.

The business community is anxiously watching the reduction in iron and steel prices to see whether this will have the desired effect in stimulating demand. So far the trade journals say that the new prices have not brought in much new business, but they do predict that 1921 will be the biggest year on record in the buying of steel rails and it is likewise agreed on all sides that it will be a record year probably for building and construction work generally. In most other industrial lines there has been the same experience as in steel, namely a reluctance to buy except very gingerly at the lower price levels because of the fear of the still further reductions. The buying movement according to all teachings of the past will not start until prices cease going down and begin to go up. When this turn comes, when business men feel satisfied that bottom has been reached and the fear seizes them that the low prices may be getting away there will be a veritable rush to the buying side. This is what has always happened before in a period of trade depression and there is no reason to doubt that it will happen again.

CANADA'S HYDRO-ELECTRIC RESOURCES AND DEVELOPMENT

The above graph, prepared by the Canadian Bank of Commerce, shows the distribution of the hydro-electric resources of the Dominion of Canada, and the extent of their development in the different provinces up to the end of 1914 and from 1915 to the present time. It will be noted that the greatest development has taken place in the manufacturing provinces of Ontario and Quebec, which would otherwise be almost entirely dependent for their power on coal imported from the United States, while provinces in which hydro-electric development has taken place on a minor scale are already well supplied with power fuel in the form of domestic coal and lignite.

AGITATING FOR END OF EMBARGO ON SECURITIES

TORONTO, Dec. 4 (Star Special)—Since the Victory Loans were thrown open to free trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange, various interests in the Street have commenced to advocate, with redoubled energy, the withdrawal of the embargo against the import of Canadian securities from abroad. The reason why the embargo was imposed in the first place, they point out, was to relieve the Victory Loans from the competition of Canadian bonds held in Great Britain and elsewhere abroad. Now that the Victory Loans are once more exposed to open competition they see no good reason why the embargo should be longer continued.

One of the principal reasons against the removal of the embargo at the present time, when general financial and commercial conditions are undergoing a period of deflation and reconstruction, is that the Victory Loans, in such a contingency, would be subjected to a decided decline in their market position if not in their intrinsic worth. But this effect would not necessarily be produced; the change might have very little effect in either way. Indeed, the position taken by the Victory Loans since open trading began would seem to argue that the general effect would be negligible; that the bonds would experience very little decline and that their value would be in no wise impaired.

A prominent broker on the local Exchange, who is very strongly in favor of an immediate removal of the embargo against the import of securities, said that such restriction was possibly justifiable as a war measure, but, as hostilities had ceased over two years ago, he felt that this final interference with the free course of business should be brought to an end forthwith. "The worst feature of a restriction that places men on their honor," he remarked, "is the loop-holes of escape it affords to men who are not possessed of that desirable quality. In this instance the majority of the firms doing business in the city have been anxious both to back up the Minister of Finance and to do the right thing by their country. But any number of men and firms have brought in securities and have profited largely by disregarding the regulations, while other desirous of doing the right thing, have suffered losses not less pronounced.

"Not only is the embargo a violation of the principles of economics," continued the broker in question, "but it has created a good deal of hard feeling against us in Great Britain. The Briton takes the stand that we have for years been beseeching them to buy securities from them but that just so soon as things got a little tight with us we took the ground that they should not send any of our securities back to us. This is naturally hurting our credit abroad. The embargo measure has also been inefficiently administered. There has been the bugbear of a blacklist set up by the banks, but, while I have never heard of one case where anyone has been penalized, I have heard of dozens of cases where securities have been imported into the country with impunity. It looks to me like a case where the man without scruples has a chance to make any amount of money while the decent fellows are simply losing their clients."

H. D. Burns, the manager of the Toronto office of the Bank of Nova Scotia, is chairman of the special committee appointed in this city by the Minister of Finance to bring about an absolute cessation of the importation of securities, and he has the assistance, in this connection, of J. H. Gundy and George W. Blaikie. Mr. Burns said that, while at the outset a great many may have continued to import securities through various channels the leakages had now practically ceased and that, so far as the committee was aware, no securities whatever were being imported into the city from abroad. If anyone had information that such was not the case he would be glad to hear from them, when steps would be at once taken to bring the offenders to time.

"The embargo, said Mr. Burns. "has been made practically air tight. The advices we had from London were to the effect that when the banks threatened to blacklist any individuals or firms contravening the order of the Minister of Finance, the export of securities from Great Britain practically ceased over night. The suggestion made to us was that the importers should be allowed to pay for the securities at that time on order but the committee would not consent to this. In my judgment the embargo is 95 per cent effective."

A bond dealer, who has every opportunity of keeping in touch with sentiment in Great Britain, said that it was not the case that antipathy had been created in the Motherland against Canada as a result of the embargo. "Much more feeling," he asserted, "has been engendered in Great Britain against Canada as an aftermath of the Grand Trunk Railway purchase. And the reason for that is that for one person who is affected by the embargo a score of investors have lost money through the Grand Trunk.

Wage Cuts Continue on Large Scale in U.S.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Reports of wage cuts in various industries are developing on a large scale. Disguising the cuts through the employment of only part time is passing, and in its stead there is the direct announcement of wage reductions. In not a few cases the light is being seen by the workers, who are brought face to face with the possibility of industries having to close down or the workers accepting cuts in wages.

It will be interesting to note how those companies fare where there is the employment of collective bargaining. In such cases the employes are in the council of the company, and the situation can perhaps be better presented and more amicably settled than where the old system of employment maintains.

DOLLAR'S VALUE TO AVERAGE MAN RISING SHARPLY

Although many of the reductions in prices have not yet reached the consuming public, the arrival of these benefits cannot be long postponed, says W. J. Wollman & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange, in their review.

Retailers are discovering that the war is over, and those who are late in coming to this conclusion are likely to regret it. It is true, for example, that No. 7 Rio coffee is quoted around seven to eight cents per pound, and the indignant housewife pays forty to fifty cents per pound for the blended, roasted article. This wide margin indicates that the profiteer is still charging a high price for his services.

Nevertheless, the drop in the prices of raw materials and the reductions in many lines of manufactured goods indicate that the full effect of lower costs will soon be felt in the rising purchasing power of the public's dollar. A glance at the following table will show how the dollar has risen in value thus far in 1920. The prices are those quoted in New York.

	1920 High.	Present.
Wheat, No. 2 Red.	$ 3.25	$ 1.93
Corn	2.31¾	.95
Oats	1.50	.60½
Flour	16.25	10.00
Coffee	.16½	.06¾
Sugar	.23	.09
Steel billets	65.00	55.00
Copper	.19½	.14¼
Cotton	.43¾	.17¼
Print cloths	.16¾	.06

The dollar was worth around 35 cents when prices were near their peak earlier in the year, we at least have the basis for a dollar that is worth more than fifty cents when these reductions reach the consumer in the form of cheaper food, clothing, rents and other necessities. Moreover, the dollar will continue to grow in size, and in the course of a few months it may reach the proportions of 70 cents, as compared with its purchasing power in 1914.

The value of the dollar is rising daily and, with few exceptions, all classes of commodities and merchandise are conforming to this increase. If labor protests against a readjustment in wages—for it is a readjustment instead of a reduction—it will be put in the light of demanding relatively higher wages than it received during the war.

In a Nutshell

THE reasons back of the general optimism prevailing among investors to-day regarding the Public Utility situation are these:

1. Rates have been increased.
2. Operating costs have begun to recede.
3. Net earnings of most companies are on the increase.
4. Companies generating their electric energy from water powers are particularly favored

These and other reasons are fully dealt with in a little booklet we shall be pleased to send you upon request.

ADDITIONS ARE PROJECTED FOR POWER SUPPLY

Canada has projects now under way for the ultimate development of 3,500,000 hydro-electric h.p., of which 2,400,000 h.p. is at present installed, says the December letter of the Canadian Bank of Commerce. The administration of these resources is vested normally in the provinces, although the Federal Government, through the Water Power Branch of the Department of the Interior, has undertaken a hydrometric survey of the newly-opened areas of Canada and exercises a general supervision over the water powers of Saskatchewan, Alberta and the Yukon. In the last-named some 13,000 h.p. has so far been developed, chiefly for gold-dredging and to supply power to Dawson. Alberta already has an important source of electrical energy in her coal fields and uses her streams largely for irrigation puposes but she has some 33,000 h.p. at present installed, mainly upon the Bow River. Saskatchewan has little potential hydro-energy in her settled areas, and practically none has been developed up to the present time.

Manitoba, Ontario, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick have their water power resources administered by provincial bodies, which are now engaged on projects for the development of present power sites, the installation of new plants, the storage of power and its transmission from central electric stations to a large number of municipalities and industrial concerns. The Manitoba Power Commission is purchasing from the city corporation of Winnipeg a sufficient amount of power to supply twelve other municipalities. This city has for some years been furnished with hydro-electric power from the Winnipeg River, which, with its tributaries, has a continuous flow capable of 500,000 h.p., about 20 per cent. of this being already developed. Hydro-energy virtually supplanted steam power in Winnipeg where a number of industries have been attracted by the low rates offered. Further extensive developments are being projected by private interests, including a proposed new power site on the Winnipeg River, calculated to have an ultimate capacity of 168,000 h.p.

The Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, operating ten systems of which the Niagara system is the most important, is supplying more than 200 municipalities and industrial corporations and transmitting hydro-energy between two and three thousand miles. At the time of the signing of the armistice, 80,000 h.p. was being supplied to 360 plants working on the manufacture of munitions. The most important project now in hand is the completion of the Queenston-Chippewa development plant, which is estimated to have an ultimate capacity of 450,000 h.p.

The New Brunswick Electric Power Commission is engaged on development work on a number of rivers, while a few lumber and pulp and paper companies have individual projects under way. The Nova Scotia Power Commission plans to install 25,000 h.p. for the benefit of Halifax and other municipalities, and to develop additional power for the pulp and paper industry.

Quebec has a Streams Commission which conserves the water powers of the Province and has already executed a number of shortage projects, including the Gouin dam on the St. Maurice River. The main development of these resources, however, has been left to private enterprise, and various public utility corporations, and log product, pulp and paper, cement, textile, and flour and grist mill companies have carried out extensive schemes. In the district of Montreal, hydro-electric energy has almost completely replaced other sources of power and a number of Canadian and American industries have been induced to locate on the Montreal system as a result of this development. Many industrial enterprises, including electric-chemical and electro-metallurgical works, would never have been undertaken, had not this means of obtaining cheap power been available. Further projects now contemplated include installations on the St. Maurice River with an ultimate capacity of 280,000 h.p.

Private enterprise has likewise developed the water power resources of British Columbia. To-day hydro-energy is used extensively for certain mining operations, for irrigation purposes, in the steel industry, in the manufacture of nitrate of soda, in the saw-mills, and in the railway lines and power development schemes on the Bridge and Campbell Rivers.

MANUFACTURERS PREDOMINANT IN DOMINION TODAY

The marked change which the war produced in the relative importance of agricultural and industrial pursuits in Canada is illustrated in a study of "The Dominion of Canada" by the Bankers Trust Company, of New York.

Comparative tables of exports before the war and after indicate, according to the study, that on March 31, 1919, Canada's foreign trade has reached the position where manufactured articles represented 45 per cent. of the total exports and agricultural products 22 per cent. This was a complete reversal of the relative proportions of these products exported in 1914.

Total Exports	$431,000,000	$1,216,000,000
Agricult'al Prod'ts	198,000,000	216,000,000
Per Cent. Agricult'al	45.9	22.3
Manufact.	57,000,000	555,000,000
Per Cent. Manufact.	13.2	45.6

Canada, prior to 1914, was making great strides in manufacturing developments but the Bankers Trust Company reaches the conclusion that the war brought about, much earlier than otherwise would have been the case, the change from a status where agriculture predominated to one where manufacturing industries are of greater importance.

In 1900 the output of Canadian manufacturers amounted to $480,000,000. Ten years later the amount was $1,165,975,000, or almost 150 per cent. greater. In 1915, the value of output was $1,381,547,000 and in 1918, it had risen to $3,451,000,000. Between 1910 and 1919 the value of Canada's agricultural products increased from $663,000,000 to $1,975,000,000.

The rate of acceleration in manufactures, "says the bank," may be regarded as abnormal, having been greatly stimulated by the need of supplies for the army and of munitions. Yet undoubtedly the manufacturing industries of Canada are firmly established upon the secure basis of ample supplies of the principal raw materials, of cheap water power, and of a high degree of mechanical and managing skill. The impetus given by the war necessities to manufacturing will not be lost but will prove to be one of the most important developments of the period.

"Probably today there are employed in Canadian manufacturing pursuits at least a third more people that were so employed before the war, while some 2,000,000 people, or 25 per cent. of the population, are said to be directly or indirectly dependent upon manufacturing industries for their living.

"Unquestionably the predominant relation of manufactures to agriculture will be a constantly widening one with lapse of time. However, it will not be because agriculture will be actually of less importance for agriculture and its kindred activities, will always be one of the fundamental resources of Canada."

Walking Home One Night

HE came up and slapped me on the back. I hadn't seen him for years, and as we walked along together he remarked:—

"The last time I saw you I was plodding along in life, working hard and saving nothing. One day, I discovered that I had lost $50 out of my pocket. I was troubled, but I found that I didn't suffer much inconvenience through the loss. I found that I could spare $50 each month, so I decided to save that much.

"Then I looked around for a safe and profitable investment for my savings. I got hold of a booklet by J. M. Robinson and Sons, describing their Systematic Investment Plan. I have been following their plan ever since and have made quite a tidy sum. I found that money produces profits and that profits produce more money."

Write for our booklet C to-day. It is helping to make other people independent. It will help you.

NEW YORK'S OPEN SEASON FOR CRIME

ON BROADWAY

One-Way Traffic Proposed For Certain Hours—Scheme Favored

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—(From Our Own Correspondent).—This is New York's open season of murder, burglary and thuggery. Apart from a hundred odd unsolved murders this year, 325 robberies and holdups, in the period from January 1 to November, resulted in a loss of over $3,115,000. The summary is compiled from newspaper files. Probably the loss is greater: the police insist on secrecy.

COMMISSIONER ON HOLIDAY.

While Commissioner Enright is holidaying in the tropics, and his earnest assistants in New York scoff at the idea of a "crime wave," the New York Tribune has been conducting a little investigation of its own into police matters here. Its conclusion is that New York's police system has broken down completely. The Tribune's investigation is not finished yet, but it hints strongly that there is a deep reason why the efficient police organization built up by Arthur Woods has become disintegrated and demoralized. The newspaper submits facts to prove its assertion that the City of New York is underpoliced. Its reporters checked up the number of patrolmen on duty and found that 594 men cover 749 posts in 26 of the city's precincts. In other words, there is one policeman to nine or eleven blocks. In twenty-six precincts alone, of the eighty-seven into which the city is divided, there were 155 men short on the midnight tour. These 155 men were on leave or at meetings of the police band and police glee clubs. All precinct commanders admitted that the midnight tour was the most important part of the department's crime prevention system, as most of the violent crimes, the loft robberies and hold-ups, occur between midnight and daylight.

TRIBUNE'S PROGRAM.

The Tribune in the course of several articles has set out to prove that through politics or spite or for some kindred reason the detective organization so painstakingly got together by former Police Commissioner Arthur Woods has been broken up by the shuffling of special squads, the abolition of branch detective bureaus and the demotion of men who played a prominent part in the detection of crime under the former regime.

Reference has been made before in this column to the general onslaught led by the press against Police Commissioner Enright and his henchmen. It is growing in intensity.

COMMISSIONER'S COUNTER-ATTACK.

The Commissioner's counter-attack is novel, to say the least about it. According to an order sent out from police headquarters this week, some ninety captains in charge of various city precincts, are expected to go before men's clubs and other gatherings in their precincts and tell of the excellent work the police have been doing in combating crooks, burglars, murderers, and other transgressors of the law. The captains were informed by letter that they would receive shortly a special pamphlet from headquarters dealing with "facts and figures" in order to enable them to discuss their subjects intelligently. There is also a suggestion that sergeants should be selected to go to school assemblies and speak to the children about avoiding accidents on the streets.

According to the New York papers, the letter was dictated by Commissioner Enright at the suggestion of Mayor Hylan as a means of meeting the newspaper stories dealing with the crime wave.

The uniformed orators-to-be must experience a peculiar feeling as they contemplate the ordeal of appearing before an audience that is likely to include persons who have been blackjacked, or have had their jewels stolen, or perhaps have had a few odd relatives murdered, and telling them that the city's police protection is all right and that crime waves exist solely in the minds of newspaper men who have nothing else to write about.

Anyone who has stood at the corner of Broadway and Forty-second street, around theatre time, must have been impressed by the whirlpool of traffic. As new theatres continue to spring up the congestion increases. Getting along the pavement is no weakling's job. The race is to the fastest. Now comes a move to have Broadway made a one-way street at these rush hours. Vehicles would be forced to travel in only one direction between the hours of 7.30 and 8.30 o'clock and again from 11 o'clock until midnight. The theatre managers think it's a good idea. They point out that only twenty per cent. of audiences rides to the theatre, and that the lessened congestion would give an advantage to the pedestrians. The pedestrians think it's a wonderful idea. What the motorists think we don't know, and don't care very much. Because we haven't got a car. But we have corns and ribs and all that sort of thing.

DOUGHTY'S PLANS SHOWN IN LETTER

Last January He Wrote Montrealer Regarding Country Position

ON HIS SALARY

Declined Substantial Increase in Earnings—Sick of Theatre

TORONTO, Dec. 4 (Star Special)—That John Doughty, Ambrose Small's secretary, had planned to leave Toronto to take another position, "country stuff" as he called it, despite the fact he was guaranteed a $75 a week job with the Trans-Canada Theatres in Montreal, is revealed in a letter he wrote to James Cowan, manager of the Grand Opera House, which Mr. Cowan received the first week of January, a few days after Doughty vanished.

The letter states:

"Dear Jim. Am fed up with Trans-Canada and tired of being the goat. Am offered a fair job and am going to tackle it. Will write you how it turns out.

"It is 'country stuff,' so perhaps I can forget show business, for a while. Best of luck.

GOT LETTER IN JANUARY.

Mr. Cowan told The Star he received the letter early in January, just after Doughty disappeared. No particular importance was attached to the note at the time, and the envelope it came in was destroyed.

Two reasons have been given by John Doughty for his action in quitting the theatrical business almost a year ago. One of them was that he was sick of the show business, the other was domestic difficulties.

Facts which have just come to light throw a rather peculiar light on the former reason. When A. J. Small was concluding the details of the deal by which all his theatrical holdings were turned over to the Trans-Canada Theatres Limited, he asked Doughty if the latter wished to go with the new company. Doughty said he did. "I'll get you an increase of salary then," said Small. Doughty was at this time getting $45 a week. "I'll tell them to give you $75 a week, that your experience with me has made you a valuable man and worth that to the firm. And if they are not disposed to pay you that, I will put it in as a clause of the contract."

Doughty seemed very grateful and thanked his employer. The new firm did not have to be pressed to pay Small's secretary $75 a week, and it did not have to be included in the contract. But less than a month later he quit the job.

Doughty is no longer in the corridor of the jail, where prisoners on remand are kept, and is not subsisting on prison fare, as was the case the first three or four days of his incarceration after being brought back from Oregon City, Oregon, last Monday morning. Doughty is now occupying a separate room and has all his meals sent in. However, he is not allowed to have any visitors. A number of friends of Doughty have asked to be permitted to to see him, but Major Basher, the jailor, has refused them all.

CLAIMS MILLIONS STARVE IN CHINA

Dr. Percy C. Leslie Writes of Terrible Famine Conditions

Dr. Percy C. Leslie, of Montreal, who returned to the mission field of the Canadian Presbyterian Church in Honan Province, China, last September, confirms reports already received as to the terrible famine raging in North China. So great, in fact, is the need of relief that Dr. Leslie has deferred re-opening his hospital at Changefu that he may devote himself entirely to the direction of famine relief. Everything possible is being done to provide productive work such as road-building, railway and mining extensions, irrigation work, etc. The wealthier Chinese have organized for the relief work, and have given most liberally, one Shanghai merchant alone giving $100,000.00, but with all that is done there must be liberal help from outside, or vast numbers—estimated in the millions—will die of starvation. The following extracts from Dr. Leslie's letters throw some light on the situation:

The famine area is, roughly, 250 by 200 miles. The number of millions actually starving is unknown, and perhaps never will be known. The cotton crop is a total failure and not worth picking, so, too, are the wheat and millet crops. To the famine is added the terrors of armed and bold men."

"We returned from Wei Hwei on Thursday, and between Wei Hwei and Changte, three trains with famine refugees passed on their way south of the Yellow River. They are allowed to travel on the coal trains, and sit or lie on the coal dust, they are from Chihli Province, where the famine is also very bad, and where the people are probably poorer than the Honanese in normal times. Many who have gone south have returned, many may never return. Many are like sheep without a shepherd, and don't know where they are going. People close their doors to them, towns and cities escort them from one gate to another, making sure they will not stay in their town. Sometimes the people organize and fight them and hound them on and out. What will it be in another two or three months, what in six, what in eight, before another harvest can be gathered?

Bishop Lewis, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Peking, states that already there are one thousand deaths daily, and the condition is getting worse.

Other missionaries give harrowing details of whole families being drowned or poisoned to save them the suffering of a lingering death from starvation; of great numbers trying to live on the leaves and bark of trees, and whole communities trekking to other parts in the hope of finding food, and often turning back in deespair.

VICTORIA RIFLES RESERVE DANCE.

A dance will be held on Wednesday, Dec. 15, by the Victoria Rifles Reserve Association. Those who attended the dances given by this association last year will remember the success which attended them. The music will be the same as before and the ladies' committee is again looking after the refreshments. These dances always attract a number of overseas men, particularly those who have served in the 24th and 60th Battalions. The tickets can be had from any member of the committe or at the armory.

SUNNY ALBERTA

ALBERTA HAS BACK TAXES PROBLEM

Municipalities Having Difficulty in Collections—Sales Proposed

TITLES TROUBLES

Hitches Causing Worry—Col. Gunn Sends Gift to Corps

CALGARY, Alta., Dec. 3 (Star Special.)—Alberta's cities are sure to be agitated for a long time by tax arrears and by the land sale problems which follow such delinquencies. One of the suggestions that has been offered in Edmonton is that the city council hold monthly sales of lots that have come into the municipality's possession through non-payment of taxes and that the buyer be required to build on the lots he acquires.

Calgary has sold a large number of lots, but the buyers are not satisfied with the title arrangements. To get a clear title they have to go before a judge and perform other legal obligations all taking time and money, whereas they understood when they bought that the city would furnish title. Buying will not be so brisk in the next tax sale unless the city in the meantime evolves a plan under which it can get all the title in one operation. It could then effect the transfers and the purchaser would only have to register the title in the Land Titles Office. Under the present method there is so much delay and red tape that the buyers are disgusted.

Dr. John Phelan MacDonald, born in Perth, Ont., in 1867, graduate of McGill and member of the Royal Army Medical Corps overseas in the Great War, is dead at Edmonton. He married Gertrude Kenney in Montreal in 1897.

Alberta Conservatives cannot agree on a leader, the southern element want a southern man and the northern cohorts want a northern chief. Last session James Ramsey of Edmonton was nominally the leader, but he told the Opposition frankly at the outset that he would not attempt to dictate their course but would let them follow their own devices largely as he proposed to follow his own. Now he and George Hoadley who was the former leader, are contradicting each other as to the manner in which Ramsey's selection was brought about.

WIRELESS PHONE STATIONS.

Wireless telephone experimental stations will be established at Calgary and Edmonton within the next year according to the announcement of Dr. John R. Boyle, professor of physics in the University of Alberta. He predicts that wireless telephony will be an important factor in the distribution of news in the not distant future.

GIFT OF COL. GUNN.

Colonel J. N. Gunn, D.S.O., member of the well known Toronto and Montreal family of that name and one of the most distinguished members of the medical profession in Western Canada, has made a unique souvenir gift to the members of the 8th Field Ambulance which he commanded in France almost from the first of the war. He wrote and then had printed at his own expense a book in which is recounted the experiences and exploits of the unit, and at a banquet in Calgary he presented to 100 veterans who had served under him autographed copies.

Calgary claims to have the largest curling club membership in the world. The Victoria Curling Club has 350 active members and has fourteen sheets of ice on which they may soop 'er up. The rink is located at the fair grounds and a few yards distant is the rink of the Calgary Curling club which has five sheets of ice. For the Alberta bonspiel that is held here open air rinks are built as they are needed.

BEAVER FARMS IN WEST.

Two beaver farms are operated in Alberta. F. F. Parkinson of Edgerton has one and F. W. Paisley of Lacombe has the other. Edgerton has 100 animals on his land. As a rule the farmers in the foothills do not want the beavers around as they cut down valuable trees, block up the streams, flood useful land and spoil the trout fishing. When the depredations become pronounced the land owners petition the government for permission to trap the beavers.

BOY FARMER'S PRIZE.

Twelve-year-old Willie Teward, of Lacombe, will win between $700 and $800 as the result of his uncanny ability to fatten young cattle. He was given an animal to enter in the boys' beef feeding contest in Calgary, and since last April he had added 500 pounds to its weight. It now tips the scales at 2,100 pounds and is growing fast. The dieting has been done entirely by the boy, and his father does not know what feed or what proportions are being used.

Alberta's Indians take kindly to the boy cadet corps and the unit from the Blood Indian reserve in the south won the R. B. Bennett shield in open competition with all the other rural corps of the Province, so the Strathcona Trust announces. There are 5,432 cadets in Alberta and the militia is co-operating in their training.

CALGARY'S TAX RATE.

That Calgary's tax rate will not be lower but higher next year is the blunt statement of Alderman Sam H. Adams who is a candidate for the mayoralty. It is now 45.75 mille on the dollar or more than four and a half per cent.

When a secretary of the United Farmers of Alberta, J. Caldwell, made the statement at the secretaries' convention here that the Methodist and other churches were not doing any work among the settlers, he provoked the vigorous reply from Hon. W. H. Cushing that the farmers are not supporting the churches, that if it were not for the cities support the rural churches could not operate, and that the failure of the farmers to pay their ministers enough to live on was a subject that came before the Methodist conference every year. Mr. Cushing also stated that the Methodists expended $60,000 a year in work among the Alberta settlers, operated two hospitals in the country and were building a third.

A PECULIAR ACCIDENT.

An old Mount Forest, Ontario, boy, Walter C. Neal, has just died from the result of a peculiar accident here three years ago. He was riding a motor-propelled bicycle and not noticing a low rope between two autos crashed into it and was thrown fifty feet striking head first against the curb. Hemorrhage of the brain, the belated effect of this mishap, was the direct cause of death. His mother and a brother, A. W., reside in Toronto.

Alberta's rural municipalities have united in a demand on the Provincial Government for a permanent highways commission to be composed of an engineer, a member of the legislature, and a representative of the municipalities. They want the patronage system in the building of roads killed as they claim it is giving Alberta the worst roads in Western Canada.

The low market prices of cattle and grain are reflected in the low prices fetched by high class bulls at the great Winter Fair in Calgary. Whereas such animals used to bring $1,000 to $1,500, the cream of the Shorthorn offerings, Nonpareil Comet, was bought by Fred Davis, M.L.A., for $315.

NEWS OF PORT

Sailing Arrangements More Satisfactory—Mild Winter Forecast

ST. JOHN, N.B., Dec. 3. — (Star Special Correspondence.)—The members of St. Andrew's Society in St. John sat up and took notice when their chaplain, at the annual church service, virtually accused them of being false to the trust which they inherited from their forefathers by the neglect of family worship in the promotion of education and the preservation of freedom.

Instead of the usual eulogy of Scotland's greatness of the past, Rev. J. A. MacKeigan declared that these traditions should be but the incentive to present-day efforts for the advancement of those principles for which their forefathers had stood. Paraphrasing his text, he drove home his lesson in the words: "If ye are Scotia's children, then do as Scotia did." The original plans for the celebration of St. Andrew's night were changed before the day arrived.

In the good old days before the war, it had been the custom to give a ball and a dinner on alternate years. The festivities were revived last year for the first time since the war with a ball; this year it was the turn for a dinner, and the committee commenced the preparations. Why their plans were changed was not announced—it certainly was not because food was scarce—but changed they were, and preparations proceeded apace for another ball. There are fears that St. Andrew's dinner has been unable to survive certain changes in modern conditions, and that it is now a thing of the past.

SCHEDULE IS SATISFACTORY.

St. John was inclined to be a bit critical of the C.G.M.M. sailing arrangements for this winter, as shown in the schelude published, and the Board of Trade, Commercial Club, and the City Council took steps to urge upon the Government line, the desirability of increasing the number of steamers which will sail from this port during the winter season. Since then assurances have been received that the list of sailings will be much longer than had been intimated, and that when it is published in full there will be no cause for complaint. This is regarded as satisfactory so far as it goes, but the city now is urging the need for much greater wharf facilities on the eastern side of the harbor to care for the increase in business.

It is possible that one handicap from which the port was likely to suffer under new conditions in shipping circles is likely to be removed, as there has been an intimation that provision may be made at St. John before the next winter arrives, for supplying oil fuel to steamers.

SOME WINTER FORECASTS.

Thewoodsmen of the province are bringing to town their usual fall predictions regarding the kind of a winter we are likely to experience. This year, they say, the indications point to a mild winter, as the bears and other hibernating animals have not yet sought their dens. Every one is willing to hope that they are correct, but failures of the woodsmen in other years has made people a trifle loath to bank too much on their predictions. Winter struck the province rather earlier than usual, but, although sleighing is good even in the southern portions of the province, the weather has not been excessively cold, and has added another chapter to one of the finest fall seasons in many years.

POLITICS ARE STIRRING.

In political matters the intentions of the farmer and labor members of the next legislature still continue to hold the interest of the province.

Two meetings of the members-elect have been held, with nearly all of them present, and they have declared their intention of working together as a third party, without pledging allegiance to either of the other parties in the House. How this will work out will be known only after the House is in session, but the general feeling still is that Premier Foster will be able to carry on the administration.

A GENEROUS OFFER.

An interesting incident occurred when Fred L. Estabrooks, elected as Government supporter in Westmorland, made a formal offer to resign his seat in favor of Ferdinand Bourgeois, the Acadian member on his ticket who was defeated. The French-Acadian Liberal delegates, in convention assembled, expressed their deep appreciation of this offer to give them representation in the House, but declined to accept the generous offer.

WESTERN FARMER ORGANIZING POOL

Scheme on Foot Involves 8,500,000 Acres in Wheat Zone

WINNIPEG RENTS

Although Higher Than Before, Board Finds No Profiteering

WINNIPEG, Dec. 1.—(Special Star Correspondence)—Farmers of Western Canada, believing that the market helps those who make a trust of themselves, are organizing the most gigantic grain pool in the history of Canada, in an effort to put up the price of wheat. The organization is favored by all three Provincial farmer bodies. It is to become operative for the 1921 crop.

The proposed pool for the co-operative marketing of the wheat was outlined by J. P. Murray, assistant general manager of the United Grain Growers. The features of the scheme are as follows:—

FEATURES OF SCHEME.

Provincial Board to handle 1921 crop to consist of one representative each of the following organizations: U.F. of Alberta; Saskatchekan Grain Growers; United Farmers of Manitoba and United Farmers of Ontario. There would be two representatives of the United Grain Growers and two of the Saskatchewan Co-operative Elevator Company, making a total of eight, who would elect a ninth member as chairman.

Contract-holders must sign for a term of five years binding themselves to sell wheat only through the pool.

Fifty per cent of wheat acreage, or about 8,500,000 acres to be brought under the scheme.

Expenses of operation to be paid from the pool. Wheat grower who signs contract and afterwards sells grain elsewhere than to the pool to pay 25c per bushel as liquidated damages to the pool.

In event it is discovered that contract-holder is breaking contract by selling elsewhere, the pool is to be entitled to an injunction to restrain him from such action.

A BOOTLEGGER'S CASTLE.

Carrying on a bootlegging business requires a certain amount of privacy, so when James Halliday, a homesteader near Mowbray, Man., left for town, he assigned his trusted "watch dog" to guard his Moonshine Emporium.

Revenue officers were warned from attempting to force the door by a scrawled note which brought to their notice a loaded gun, suspended in such a manner that the first man who would try to force open the door would be bound to be shot in the heart.

The officers thought better of the original plan of breaking in, and proceeded to town instead, to arrest Halliday. He was charged with an infraction of the Temperance Act and was fined $200.

NOT CHARGEABLE TO WHEAT.

Unsatisfactory business conditions reported by wholesale and retail merchants should not be ascribed to the slow wheat movement, according to leaders of the U.F.M. They declare that approximately 20,000,000 more bushels of wheat than for the corresponding period last year have been shipped forward.

While the current rumor is that farmers are holding back the wheat for a better price, statistics issued at the Grain Exchange show that not only is the movement more rapid, but that the price received this year is higher.

The movement of the 1919 wheat crop, up to November 19, according to the Western inspections, was 48,519 cars. The average amount carried per car is 1,225 bushels, which gives a total of 59,435,775 bushels inspected at that date.

The movement of the 1920 wheat crop up to the same date, as shown by the same official figures, has been 64,758 cars, or 79,326,100 bushels, or 19,890,325 bushels more as compared with the same period last year.

The price set for the Canadian Wheat Board for the 1919 crop was $2.15 for No. 1 Northern, basis Fort William. This year (part of the time), there has been an increase in freight rates, and the farmer must secure $2.22 to be on a part with last year's price of $2.15.

During the last twelve days of August there were 1,200 cars of new wheat inspected, or 1,470,000 bushels, and the average price paid for this wheat was $2.73 per bushel (in store Fort William.)

During September there were 16,265 cars received, or 19,924,625 bushels, and the average price for the month was $2.73½ per bushel.

In October there were 31,124 cars received, or 34,126,900 bushels; and the average price for this month was $2.32.

From November 1 to 19, there has been inspected 17,367 cars, or 21,274,575 bushels, and the average price for this period has been $2.14½.

The average price paid for this year's wheat crop up to Nov. 19, on the basis of No. 1 Northern at Fort William has been $2.48¼. The price of wheat did not fall down to $2.22 basis until November 5, when it closed at $2.21⅜.

NO RENT PROFITEERING.

After an investigation which lasted more than a month, the Government Joint Council of Industry has found that there is no rent profiteering in Winnipeg. That there was an acute dwelling shortage, gross overcrowding, and that conditions the next few years would be as bad or worse, was admitted. But as to rent profits, the Council found that landlords of 20 apartment blocks made an average profit of only 7 per cent on their investments.

Rent increases last fall were higher in Winnipeg than the average of 60 principal cities of Canada, "but not excessively so," the report states. The average increase over pre-war rates here was 37.9; in the 60 principal cities it was 34.2.

HOUSE SHORTAGE SERIOUS.

The Council viewed the housing shortage with anxiety, declaring that there was insufficient accommodation to take care of the "health, decency and safety" of the people. Hoding the problem one requiring immediate attention, the Council placed a series of conferences, at which means of solution can be discussed. It found that building costs were so high as to make apartment block construction an unprofitable means of investment, and that the house building for rental purposes was still less profitable.

The Government has made application to the Public Utility Commission for a 15 per cent increase in telephone rates to meet a deficit of approximately $200,000.

The estimated revenue this year amounts to $2,450,000, while operating expenses will exceed $2,650,000. The deficit could be made by increased taxes, but the Government prefers that subscribers should bear the full burden of operation.

ROCKEFELLER'S GIFT.

John D. Rockerfeller has granted the Manitoba Medical College $500,000 as a Christmas present.

The donation is part of the $5,000,000 grant being made to Canadian universities.

The grant to this province is made for the general improvement of laboratory instruction or for full-time instruction in clinical subjects. It is made on condition that building accommodation of the local university, of which it is in great need, be increased and early grant given by the Provincial Government be enlarged.

Manitoba Medical College is recognized as the leading medical institution of Western Canada, and is ranked next second to McGill and Toronto in the Dominion. It received its first charter in 1883, and the present building on Bannatyne Avenue, near the General Hospital, was erected in 1907. Until last year the college was managed and financed solely by the doctors of Manitoba, and had no Government support. In 1919 the council made gift of all its property and equipment to the university, and is now financed by the Province of Manitoba, as a faculty in the University of Manitoba.

LABOR SITUATION WAS EXAGGERATED

Unemployment in Vancouver Found To Be Exceedingly Light

PROVINCIAL BANK

Hon. John Hart Says Institution Should Be Established

VANCOUVER, B.C., Dec. 1.—(Special Star Correspondence)—Although sensational statements were made and several conferences held at the City Hall in regard to the great amount of unemployment in this city, later developments seem to indicate that the situation was greatly exaggerated. The City Council voted the sum of $100,000 as a special appropriation to be used on road work in order to provide employment. An emergency employment bureau was then opened at the City Hall for applicants for work, and much to everybody's surprise there was a very small lineup of men looking for work. In the first three days only 670 applicants were received, and that number appears to comprise about all the needy married men in sight. The work was to be confined to married men who were up against it. Shortly after the city's action in voting money, the Provincial Government followed suit by voting $100,000 to be spent on preliminary work on the University site in Point Grey, such as land-clearing and road-making. There has been a similarly light rush for work there. Superintendent Ireland of the City Relief Department, believes that the unemployment crisis is now well in hand, and he, with many others deplore the exaggerations which have given a wrong impression of the labor situation here. Recently Mr. J. J. Coughlan, of the Coughlan Shipbuilding Company, returned from Ottawa with a signed Government contract for the construction of a three and a half million dollar drydock here. He announced that work would be commenced at once and that employment would be given to a large number of men.

GETS BOILER CONTRACT.

The Vulcan Iron Works, of this city, has been awarded the contract for the manufacture of four large boilers for the new C.P.R. coasting passenger steamer which is now under construction at the Wallace Shipyards, North Vancouver. The boilers are to be of the Scotch marine type of 1,150 indicated horsepower, and made to carry a working pressure of 180 pounds to the square inch. The contract was secured in competition against a number of large British and American steel firms. The Vulcan Company is a comparatively new concern, which was established on Industrial Island about five years ago, and which now employes over 200 men.

It appears to be a practical certainty that the Nippon Yusen Kaisha, the big Japanese line that for several years has maintained a trans-Pacific passenger and freight service to and from Seattle, will shortly make Vancouver a regular port of call. This is one of the results of the Jones Shipping Bill which was passed in Washington at last session of Congress. The general manager of the company at Seattle has made several visits to Vancouver during the past few months and has been in consultation with the C.P.R. officials. It is believed the two companies have entered into a traffic agreement and that the Japanese line will use the C.P.R. facilities here. The entrance of this big line into Vancouver will add considerably to the business and prestige of this port. The steamer Tovama Maru will inaugurate the new service.

THE NEW DRYDOCK.

Teh new Government drydock to be constructed here by Coughlan & Sons will be 725 feet long and 110 feet wide, and will be situated near the present Government Dock and elevator. It will be large enough to accommodate any vessel passing through the Panama Canal. In addition to the drydock there will be a big concrete mooring dock 500 feet long which will be capable of accommodating two ocean-going liners. The dock will cost approximately $3,500,000. Mr. Coughlan estimates that the payroll will amount to about $50,000 a month on an average for the two year period of construction. With regard to the site, it is 373 feet in front and 1,500 feet deep. It is expected that at least six railway spurs will lead into the yard.

LUXURY TAX COLLECTION

The retail merchants of Vancouver, Victoria, and New Westminster are up in arms over the serious inconvenience and loss of business entailed in the collection of the luxury tax by the use of stamps and cancelling machines, and at a recent gathering here they passed the following resolution:

"That we, the Retail Merchants' Association of Vancouver, Burrard and New Westminster federal ridings submit our representative to explain to the proper authorities our opposition to the use of stamps and cancelling machines and to use every effort at their command to have the same postponed until at least January 1, 1921 and in the meantime that the luxury tax be collected altogether or failing that, collected at the source of supply, viz., the manufacturer or importer."

After interviewing the local federal members it was decided to present the matter to Ottawa in the strongest possible way.

HOLIDAY TRADE SHOWING ACTIVITY

General Business Throughout Dominion Reported Quiet

WINNIPEG, Dec. 4.—Business is generally quiet throughout Canada, although holiday trade is commencing to show large volume. The attitude of the buying public continues to be one of waiting and carefully watching the deflation of prices, which is now strikingly apparent in almost all lines of trade, states the weekly report of the Canadian Creditmen's Trust Association.

The general trend of the reports received from Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and other western cities indicate that little change has been experienced from the conditions existing for the past two or three weeks.

Retail merchants, implements firms, wholesale houses and others doing business throughout the Prairie Province report business dull and far below expectations, while collections remains almost stagnant unless well looked after.

Toronto states that conditions, both in regard to business and collections, are much the same as those reported last week. Pressure and energetic action has to be applied to get in a reasonable amount of money, while price-cutting in most lines of commodities is now being widely advertised throughout the Province.

Montreal reports that in the wholesale trade a little improvement is noticeable in boots and shoes, while there is no change in dry goods, ladies' or men's wear, these lines being dull. Wholesale hardware continues good. Retail trade throughout Quebec is given as fair as are also collections.

SASKATCHEWAN NOTES

BIG ROAD PLANS INVOLVE MILLIONS

Scheme Now Before Sask. Legislature Would Cost $24,000,000

ELEVATOR PROFITS

Co-operating Concern Nets $224,988 for Fiscal Year of 1920

REGINA, Sask., Dec. 1.—(Special Star Correspondence.) — A gigantic plan for the construction of 1,067 miles of concrete roads throughout the province at a cost of $24,000,000 is now before the Provincial Legislature. It is expected that the project will meet its death there, but the details of the scheme are interesting.

The plan proposes that the Government give the Saskatchewan Paved Highways Commission Co. permission to construct the roads as follows:—From Prince Albert to Saskatoon; Saskatoon to Regina; Indian Head to Swift Current; Yorkton to Indian Head; Indian Head to Regina; Biggar to North Battleford and Saskatoon.

If the scheme goes through, the company will be given permission to collect tolls at the rate of from two to five cents per mile for all ordinary motor vehicles and more, 10 to 25 cents per mile for motor trucks. The Government would be given power to take over at any time all the roads at cost, plus 15 per cent. The Government would guarantee all the bonds of the company, but the revenue from toll fees would be applied to maintaining the roads and interest on the bonds. The scheme proposes that convict labor be used in the construction of part of the roads.

RICHES EMBARRASS PROVINCE.

During a speech in the Legislature, Hon. C. A. Dunning, Provincial Treasurer, in alluding to the discoveries of sodium sulphate in Saskatchewan, stated that at the present time the Province was suffering from an embarrassment of riches. There had been discovered enough sodium to supply the world market for a hundred years, he said; but there was danger that unless the marketing of this commodity were managed with caution, the course it would run would resemble that pursued by the wheat crop: There would be too many sellers and a limited number of buyers.

Among the recent incorporations in the province has been the Sodium Sulphate Co., of Saskatchewan, with head office in Regina, and a capital of $500,000.

ELEVATORS' NET PROFIT.

The Saskatchewan Co-Operative Elevator Company made a net profit of $224,988 for the year ending July 31, according to the report read to the shareholders at the tenth annual meeting here last week. The report recommended a cash dividend of eight per cent amounting to $90,259, and placing the balance to a reserve account which will now total $247,028.

In presenting his report to the 300 delegates, President J. A. Maharg, M.P., showed that the amount of grain handled through the company was 20,324,772 bushels. This was handled by 292 elevators. Out of a total of 110,000,000 bushels of all grain handled through public elevators at the head of the lakes, 15 per cent went through the Co-Operative Company's terminals.

The progress of telephone construction in Saskatchewan is shown in a report filed in the Provincial Legislature. There are now 78,092 stations giving service, says the report, and 26,599 wire miles on the long distance system, and 5,385 pole miles. The total receipts for the year were $1,659,306, while the expenses were $1,070,909.

New companies granted Provincial charters include: The Monarch Investment Company, with head office in Regina and a capital of $100,000; Saskatoon Grain Co., with head office in Saskatoon, and capital of $100,000; The Keystone Oil Co., of Peace River, head office in Saskatoon, and capital of $200,000.

With an aggregate capital of $12,079,307, there were 307 Saskatchewan companies incorporated during the fiscal year, according to a return made in the Legislature. This is 122 more companies than the preceding year.

According to the annual report of the Provincial Department of Railways tabled in the Legislature there were 2,776 miles of C.P.R. lines in the Province, at the end of the fiscal year, as compared with 1,090 in 1905; the C.N.R. lines totalled 2,227, and the G.T.P. 1,168 miles. The total mileage for the year was 6,172, as against 1,551 in 1905.

SOLDIER SETTLERS INCREASING

Soldier settlers in Saskatchewan are increasing. Since the inception of the Regina office of the Soldier Settlement Board, loans totalling $8,572,575 have been approved. The total number of veterans granted loans is 2,464, and in 677 cases the loans have been subsequently cancelled for various reasons. Forty-four settlers have ceased operations under the board for reasons of physical disability, domestic influences and other causes. There are now 1,619 settlers established and operating in the Regina district.

During the year, Regina schools have spent $15,000 on vocational training, and it is now proposed to spend a much larger sum next year.

According to Premier Martin, Minister of Education, there are now 38 consolidated schools in the province. At the beginning of the year there were 28. The total cost of these schools is about $200,000 a year.

The sum of $32,432 was allotted by the Provincial Government during the season for opening up and improving roads leading to and from specific areas, according to a return made in the Legislature.

Serious, but not acute, puts the employment situation in Regina in a nutshell, according to officials of various city organizations. "Light jobs for disabled men cannot be found anywhere in the city," say the G.W.V.A. "About a dozen men who have only their pensions to live on are daily seeking light work. Their pensions are not enough to live on, and their plight is sad."

Epidemics of chickenpox and scarlet fever are rampant in the city at the present time. No less than 150 cases of the former disease have been reported. The cases are of a mild type, however.

NOVA SCOTIA NOTES

ROAD INQUIRY IS FINDING NOTHING

Investigation of Highways Expenditures So Far Fruitless

HALIFAX PRICES

Due for Drop Also—Much Reluctance is Shown

HALIFAX, Dec. 3.—(Special Star Correspondence).—The sitting of the Inquiry into the expenditure on the Nova Scotia roads, by the Highways Commission were resumed last week and are still going on. Nothing definite has been found as yet, and public opinion is that the so-called "scandal" will never develop.

NO EXHIBITION IN 1921.

There will be no Provincial exhibition in Halifax, in 1921, as was hoped for. Such was the decision of the Exhibition Commission at their annual meeting, held recently. It was unanimously decided that as soon as the grounds, which are now occupied by Relief Commission Building, are available the plans for a reconstructed up-to-date exhibition plant will be carried forward. That it was not practicable to force off the grounds from the houses which they occupy, some two hundred persons, was the reasop given for not holding the fair next year. Officers were elected as follows: President, Hon. E. H. Armstrong; vice-president, Mayor Parker; secretary-treasurer, M. Mc.F. Hall; executive officers, Mayor Parker, Alderman Gough and Ritchie for Halifax city; Messrs. E. B. Elderkin, Amherst, and James A. Fraser, New Glasgow, for Government; and Mr. Stanley Logan, Amherst, for the Farmers' Association.

Mr. W. Saxby Blair, Superintendent of the Experimental Station, at Kentville, has left for Columbus, Ohio, to attend a meeting of the American Pomological Society and where he will exhibit one hundred specimens of Nova Scotia Apples.

TO TAKE OLD POST OFFICE.

The Massachusetts-Halifax Health Commission has completed arrangements with the public works department, permitting them to take over the old post office building at Dartmouth for a health centre. Plans will be made at once for laying linoleum on the floors, for painting the rooms and installing additional plumbing. It is hoped that by Christmas or New Years at the latest, a formal opening of the health centre may be announced. The Halifax centre has been doing excellent work, both at the clinics and in nurse visiting. During October the clinics had under supervision a total of 419 patients.

For the past four years the Halifax Board of Trade has been conducting a greater agricultural campaign, which has been under the management of Prof. M. Cumming, Secretary of Agriculture. From the start the campaign has been successful, with the assistance of the Agricultural College staff at Truro, who made visits to the farms of all competing, instructing the owners how to get greater production.

The prize winners for this year from the four sections of the Province included in the contest, are as follows: John Ogilvie, Elderbauh; Cann Bros., Yarmouth; Ernest Redmond, Deanj; S. A. Cook, Chebogue; Frank Forbes, Gochen; Arthur Archibald, Newton; David Whidden, Glenely; Graham Yuill, Truro; P. R. Byers, Clifton; E. G. Stevenson, Scotchum; Clifford Langille, Marshville; Claire Cutten, Truro; E. Edgar Whidden, Antigonish; Nicholas Thompkins, Northeast Margaree; Martin Murphy, Northeast Margaree; H. E. Cameron, Inverness; John F. Hart, Northeast Margoie; J. W. McQueen, Leitches Creek. The money for the prizes was subscribed by the members of the Board of Trade.

N. S. PRICES TO DROP.

Nova Scotia apparently is coming into the drop in prices, although most reluctantly. Meats have dropped in price the last week and the reason given, is that the farmers are killing off animals, rather than feed them during the winter months. Butter is reported to be slipping a bit downward and bread may take a slide before long. Fresh eggs are still at 90c. and $1.00, strictly fresh. Vegetables do not seem to be in abundance and potatoes from the Annapolis Valley are said to be in poor condition, although those grown in other parts of the Province were never better.

KEEPS ST. ANDREW'S DAY.

On Tuesday last, St. Andrew's Day, Mr. A. F. Macdonald, editor of the Halifax Morning Chronicle, was installed as president of the North British Society, at a luncheon held at the Halifax Hotel. In the evening the annual dinner was held at the Halifax and was unusually well attended, many distinguished outside guests being present. A large number of greetings was received by the North British, from sister societies at home and abroad and in return the local society sent out a message.

MODERATE IRISH RESOLUTIONS.

Halifax Irishmen set a fine example, at a meeting of the charitable Irish Society held this week, when they agreed upon a set of resolutions, without a dissenting voice and both Protestants and Catholics were present. These resolutions condemned without reservation, violence and outrage on the part of either side, but there was nothing in the resolutions favoring of even suggesting severance from the British Empire.

BOOT AS BANK.

GARDNER, Mass., Dec. 4.—While examining a pair of leather boots at a sale of personal effects of Jacob Haggstrand, of Finland, who died here in 1918, a prospective purchaser stuck his hand into one of them and found a money belt containing $970.

AUTHENTIC NEWS OF THEATRES AND FILMS

By S. MORGAN-POWELL

A CRUEL LIBEL NAILED

AFTER reading the astounding remarks of Bishop Joseph F. Berry, of the American Methodist Episcopal Church, regarding the theatrical profession, one is the more inclined to agree with that witty priest who, when asked if dancing were a sin, replied:—"It isn't mentioned in the Decalogue!" The Actors' Equity Association of New York sent a communication to the Bishop in which they protested against his banning of dancing masters. This communication read:—

"Does this ban apply to all professional dancers, including those on the stage? Are folks in the theatrical profession equally barred from your valued membership? Dancing masters are our brothers and sisters in the amusement profession, hence injustice done them is also resented by those of the stage. In the name of the theatrical profession, as well as speaking for the dancing masters of the country, the Actors' Equity Association reiterates its indignation at what can only be termed as a Pharisaic attitude on the part of any Christian denomination."

The worthy Bishop's answer to this was to suggest that the senders of the protest were insane. He even went so far as to give utterance to the following foolish remark:—

"The fact that they would address a communication of this nature to a body like the House of Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church would be regarded as very strong evidence if an effort was made to prove a case of insanity."

• • •

Without stopping to discuss the worthy Bishop's state of mind when he said this,—irritation of an intense kind is naturally suggested,—we may point out that the artistic body whom he classes with lunatics includes some of the most brilliant intellects on this continent today. To apply the word "insane" to people of the standing and mental equipment of George Arliss, Ethel Barrymore, A. E. Anson, William Collier, Leo Ditrichstein, John Drew, William Faversham, Elsie Ferguson, Grace George, Lawrence Grossmith, Lyn Harding, Theodore Roberts, E. H. Sothern, Julia Marlowe, Guy Standing, Maude Adams,—but why prolong the list?—to call such people as these insane is a deliberate and calculated insult which will be hotly resented by all people whose eyes are not blinded by sectarian prejudices and who possess the ability to judge between a legitimate protest and a planned insult—an ability which Bishop Berry obviously lacks.

It is precisely such wholesale, ignorant, and baseless charges as that brought against the acting profession by Bishop Berry that make fair-minded people intolerant of ecclesiastical interference in such matters as the choice of amusements for the public. The theatre existed as a social institution centuries before Bishop Berry's church was established. Nothing Bishop Berry can say can do the theatre or the theatrical profession any real harm, but when one finds a cleric occupying a position of authority, which ought to be hedged around with such dignity and breadth of vision as best befits those who claim to lead in matters spiritual, making such an exhibition of himself, it seems high time to make a protest against the bigotry, the ignorance, and the offensive prejudice which alone could prompt such a gratuitous insult to a profession which contains within its ranks just as many men of keen mentality, high principles, healthy ideals, and generosity of soul as that to which Bishop Berry belongs, but which he certainly has not honored in uttering his unfortunate libel.

Coming Attractions

IF the verdict of the western critics as a unit may be taken as a safe criterion, the production "Camouflage," by the Maple Leafs, who were the Fourth Division entertainment organization at the Front, not only comprises the favorites with the producers of The Dumbells, but in some respects shows superiority over the entertainment provided by that body. The players, all of whom have seen active service, are now highly trained professional entertainers; the show has been elaborately staged, and the music is said to be snappy, and the wit brilliant and clean, and with a dash of novelty which the ordinary revue lacks. The work of the four or five men who impersonate women singers and soubrettes is described as altogether extraordinary, and there are at least four fine voices in the company, according to the Western critics. Using their own curtains and stage hanging and special lighting effects, the Fourth Division party have left an impression throughout the West of rich effects, as well as of wonderful dancing in the many numbers that employed this action in some way. The costumes for the colonial dance are said to have set the party back $1,800. "My Orchard is Short of a Peach Like You," and a Spanish dance, both by Morely Plunkett and Harry Ashton, are special features, as well as a weird Oriental dance by Ormond Perley, supposed to be a statue descending from its pedestal in a temple. Ben Allen, the popular blackface comedian, formerly loaned to The Dumbells, is also featured. Among the more prominent achievements of the cast may be mentioned, the astonishing female impersonation of Leslie Benson and that of Harry Ashton. Benson is considered to be the equal of any female impersonator before the public today. Ashton, it is said, makes an unbelievably fascinating little ingenue. Then there is Pat Rafferty, a character comedian of astonishing resource and originality, with Sam Birch running him a close second in public favor. Ormond Perley, they say, is after Theda Bara's laurels as a accomplished and fascinating vamp, whose dancing, particularly his spectacular Egyptian dance, must be seen to be believed. Bobby Scott, Ernie Petch, Bob Anderson — all are exceptionally good singers, and the troup is especially strong in accomplished dancers, among them in particular being Huchie Williamson and Jimmy Graham.

Elaborate staging, original and striking effects, rich comedy and astonishing variety combine to make "The Maple Leafs" show one that successfully challenges comparison with any on the boards.

• • •

The Orpheum players will present next week "39 East" for the first time in Montreal. The success which "39 East" achieved in New York placed the play among the leaders of the season. Written by Rachel Crothers, its story contains a charm that won the hearts of the blase New York theatregoer and from the very first week its popularity was assured. "39 East" owes its success to the charm of its story, its delightful characterization and abundant comedy. The story is simple, but it is in the beauty and humor of the telling that the interest lies. The background is a select, but threadbare boarding-house where a rich young roustabout takes up his abode. Here he meets a pretty girl, daughter of a country minister, who has come to the big city with dreams of an artistic career. But she finds the wonders of the life in New York, over which distance threw a golden glamor, only a drab and discouraging affair, and she is soon disillusioned. Eventually love comes to supplant the lost illusions and the romance of the girl and the rich young man ends happily.

• • •

Foremost among the features at the Princess next week will be the Ford sisters, presenting "Frolics of 1920." Their repertoire includes four dances, three are new, and the fourth a step dance which has frequently brought audiences to their feet in enthusiastic approval. They are also assisted by their own orchestra. Harry Tighe, "The-You-All-Know-Him-Comedian," has the assistance of Edna Leedom, an attractive young actress, in Tit-Bits of Musical Comedy. Lovers of syncopated tunes will doubtless welcome the reterm of Miss Ruth Royce, an expert in syncopation. Harry Holman will be seen in a new one-act farce, "Hard-Boiled Hampton," like its predecessors. Peck and McIntyre, comedians, present "The Black Ace." Charles F. Seamon, "The Narrow Feller" is back after a long absence with a brand-new line of humor. The Worden Brothers, athletes, are specialists in double-foot juggling. The Richards are novelty illusionists and shadowgraphists.

• • •

A clever violiniste will appear next week at Loew's in the person of Countess Modena, who heads her own Futuristic Revue—a fantastic musical novelty. Ten soloists will compose Mde. Modena's company. Solly Hite and Mabel Reflow, old Montreal favorites, are billed to appear in "A Chinese Musical Fantasy." Bobby Van Horn, the "jovial songologist," has many new ditties. Cooper and Lane, "the bellboy and the porters," in "Hotel Gossip," will indulge in a new line of comedy. Erford's Golden Whirl, is a sensational aerial act. The feature photoplay booked by the management for next week is "The Love Flower." The British-Canadian News Weekly, showing interesting events in Canadian and American centres, will complete the bill.

• • •

At the Gayety Theatre, Barney Gerard's "Girls-de-Looks" will be the attraction next week. Those well known comedians, Jos. K. Watson and Will H. Cohan, in the funny characters of Slitkin and Slotkin, will be again the chief fun makers. The new vehicle was written by Barney Gerard and Jos. K. Watson and is said to be brimful of bright and witty lines, funny situations, and musical numbers of the whistly, jingly sort. The story tells of Slitkin and Slotkin, buying an interest in a "get-rich-quick" brokerage firm. Neither of the men know the first rudiments of the brokerage business and this causes them to make many funny blunders, which are even funnier than when Slitkin and Slotkin were lawyers. The caste includes Anna Propp, Betty Evans, A Hawaiian Duo Kao and Kalama, Sam Green, George Stone, Fred Evans, Jack Thomas, and a chorus of twenty girls, all under twenty. There are a half dozen scenic settings up to the "Barney Gerard" standard.

• • •

Next week's bill at the St. Denis Theatre will be headed by the Arabian gymnasts, The Eight Blue Devils, in sensation whirlwind tumbling. El Cleve, besides being an accomplished xylophonist, is also a comedian. Ollie Young and April will blow soap bubbles The Great Golder will specialize in ventriloquism, and the Three Rianos in a pantomimic turn. The feature picture will disclose one of the silent drama's newest artists, Miss Alice Nelson, who will play the leading role in "The Code of Honor." Miss Nelson is noted for her taste in costumes and is said to wear many exquisite gowns. A Mack Sennett comedy, a Scenic and the St. Denis Weekly will complete the bill.

Community Players Casts for Coming Triple Bill Named

Curiosity as to those taking part in the second production of the Community Players at the New Empire Theatre on Thursday, Friday and Saturday next, when a bill of three one-act plays will be presented, is assuaged by the official casts issued today. Prominent in the cast of "The Little Stone House," the play of Russia, by the late George Calderon, are Mr. Rupert Caplan and Miss Dora Rashback, from whom some tense dramatic acting may be expected. Others in the cast are Miss Leone Gnaedinger, Messrs. Theodore Shaw, Harold E. Kay, J. M. Barton, H. M. Alden, Gordon Matthews and J. C. Boyce.

Considerable interest has been aroused over the first production on any stage of Mr. J. E. Hoare's comedy of Montreal, entitled "Squirrels." Those in the cast are Messrs. Charles Robinson, Victor R. Brown, Daniel J. Corr, Mrs. H. Forlong, Mrs. G. Doolittle and Miss Martha Allan.

In Lord Dunsany's "The Glittering Gate," forming the third and featured item of this bill, there are only two characters, both of them ex-burglars, both of them dead. Their interpretation has been entrusted to Messrs. Basil Donn and H. G. Wynn, who played together so frequently under the old Trinity Players' banner.

The curtain rises at 8.30 punctually each evening, and all not in their places at that time will be obliged to wait until the curtain goes down on the first play.

The first picture of Oliver Morosco Productions, Inc., will be directed by Oliver Morosco himself. With a wealth of manuscripts and extensive plans for the vigorous launching of the latest big enterprise in the film world, Mr. Morosco has arrived in Los Angeles from New York. It was in Los Angeles that Mr. Morosco made his first success in stage productions before becoming a national figure in theatrical affairs. And one of his first successes was a play from his own pen, "The Half Breed," which broke all records for runs in Los Angeles up to that time. Perhaps sentiment may have influenced him, but anyway history repeats itself, for the first of the Morosco films will be "The Half Breed" expanded and modernized by Mr. Morosco himself.

What You Can See Next Week in Films

IF all convicts could effect their escape from prison with the dexterity shown by Douglas MacLean, in "The Jailbird," there would soon be no one left in the penitentiaries, but the wardens and guards. Doug's escape from jail is but one of the many humorous incidents that occur in "The Jailbird," which will be shown at the Imperial Theatre tomorrow, Monday and Tuesday.

In "Madame Peacock," the picture she herself has declared her greatest since "Revelation," Nazimova will appear from Wednesday to Saturday, as Jane Goring, a brilliant stage celebrity who finds the heights of fame somehow do not bring the complete happiness she had imagined. Later in the story Nazimova comes to the front in a second character, as Gloria Cromwell, the gifted, and nondescript little girl to whom Jane Goring is rather more than a goddess.

Stanislaw Berini, formerly leading tenor of the Royal Opera Company, opens an engagement tomorrow, and will appear at 3 and 9 o'clock each day.

• • •

Georges Carpentier, idol of France, whose notable record in the boxing ring has won him fame and fortune and whose striking personality has won for him a host of admirers, will be the chief attraction at the Strand Theatre, in "The Wonder Man," all next week. Unlike previous efforts to bring champions of the prize ring before the public on the silver screen in the roles of dare-devil heroes or hair-raising serials, Georges Carpentier is given as a vehicle an intriguing romance of american society, with himself in the role of a smart, well dressed gentleman concerning whom there is mystery. The fact that his gentlemanly qualities and his record of valor in the world war have won general admiration makes his advent into the motion picture world additionally interesting.

"The Wonder Man" gives the first opportunity for the great majority of his many admirers to see him. The great demand to see Carpentier in the boxing ring was proved beyond a doubt by the crowd that flocked to the studio when a great fight scene for the picture was staged. More than 2,000 persons braved the muddy roads of New Jersey to see him in his fighting togs for the first time in America. Carpentier is supported by a notable cast, including Faire, the fascinating sister of Constance Binney, as the delightful heroine. This is a picture of exceptional interest and quality.

• • •

Charlie Ray and Marguerite Clark will be the chief entertainers at the Regent tomorrow, Monday and Tuesday. The former will be seen in the screen version of George M. Cohan's success, "45 Minutes From Broadway." Miss Clark will be seen in "All-Of-A-Sudden-Peggy." The story is that of a pretty little Irish girl who plans to marry her mother off to a scientific English lord with whom they are writing a book on bugs. But romance in the shape of the younger brother of the house leads to London, complications, and finally happiness. The great English comedy picture, "Alf's Button," will be presented on Friday and Saturday of next week.

It is generally conceded that Dorothy Phillips and Allen Holubar, in their latest picture, "Once to Every Woman," at the Holman for one week, starting tomorrow, do better work than in either "The Heart of Humanity" and "The Right to Happiness." The popular appeal of the present picture is heightened because it deals with every day people and treats of a theme that is as old as humanity. Miss Phillips first appears as a schoolgirl. She accepts the sacrifices of her parents and sisters and when a visitor offers to send her abroad to have her voice trained, she leaves home with no regrets. She finally reaches her ambition—the creation of a star role in a new grand opera. Her humble home and family are forgotten. Then a tremendous shock causes the loss of her voice. Her new found friends and admirers leave her. In her mother's great love she finds her happiness at last.

• • •

A screen version of "Civilian Clothes" will be shown at the Belmont tomorrow and Monday. Thomas Meighan takes the principal role. The story is of a girl who married a captain's uniform and then had to live with a suit of cheap "civies." But the same man—a fighter—was under both coats. When he saw that he was married to a snob, he set out to change matters, and he did so with a vengeance in a series of situations both exciting and novel. The cast includes Martha Mansfield, the pretty Follies girl, who was also John Barrymore's leading woman in "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." Comedies and other pictures make up a well-balanced program.

• • •

"Old Lady 31" was one of the big successes of the stage when Emma Dunn was the star. It has been produced for the screen and will be one of the Allen features, tomorrow, Monday and Tuesday, along with Charles Ray, "Homer Comes Home." Along with these is a "Snub" Pollard comedy and a Pathe review. "Alf's Button" will be shown on Wednesday and Thursday. This is wholesome, irresistible mirth of the clean healthy sort and more—it's an all-English comedy and takes rank as the best and most entertaining screen production in many a month. Mark Twain's story of "Tom Sawyer," with Jack Pickford in the title role, will be shown Friday and Saturday.

• • •

They are weirdly prophetic in "The Fortune Teller," featuring Marjorie Rambeau, the popular emotional actress, which opens today at the Electra Theatre. The screen version of the celebrated stage success dealing with mother-love and psychic phenomena, is said to be even more powerful than the play. "The Fortune Teller" shows a great actress in a story filled with tense, dramatic situations. The action is rapid and big scene follows big scene with almost breath-taking swiftness. Starting tomorrow, for one week only, Mr. Emile Gour, tenor, will sing every day at 3 and 9 o'clock. Mr. Eugene Maynard at the piano every day.

• • •

The master screen craftsman, David Wark Griffith, has produced in "The Love Flower," what prominent critics have described as a creation of exquisite beauty, haunting charm and spirited drama. Its first showing in Montreal will be at Loew's Theatre all next week.

• • •

The management of the New Grand Theatre last week endorsed "The Branded Woman" as being, in their opinion, the most pretentious Norma Talmadge production ever produced. If crowds are any indication, the public has certainly like the production, for the S.R.O. sign has been in evidence daily. The New Grand management have therefore decided to show "The Branded Woman" another week.

Other features will also be shown. The New Grand concert orchestra, under the direction of David S. Levin, will render special music.

• • •

"Don't Ever Marry" is the feature attraction at the Tivoli tomorrow, Monday and Tuesday. Scoffing at the anti-marriage advice of Myra Gray, a divorcee, Joe Benson secretly marries Dorothy Whynn, daughter of the eccentric Colonel Whynn who has promised to kill Benson if the latter even makes love to Dorothy. Before the newly weds can catch a train out of the village to New York, Joe receives a telegram from his pal, Bill Fielding, asking that Joe follow out the instructions of a girl who will call on him that day. The girl referred to in Fielding's telegram, proves to be Barbara Dow, daughter of Colonel Whynn's business partner. Barbara loves Bill Fielding, but her mother insists on her marriage to another. Threatening to expose Joe's secret marriage, Barbara forces him to announce that he and Barbara are husband and wife in order to thwart Mrs. Dow's arbitrary marriage notions. In the end all comes out well for all concerned.

Comedy and other features make up the show. The attraction for the last half of the week, starting Wednesday, will be Queenie Thomas in "A Little Child Shall Lead Them." This is the third of the All-British productions. The story is of a new cure for selfishness and frivolity in a woman. The celebrated basso "K." will sing each evening all week.

• • •

Today and tomorrow the Mount Royal Theatre is featuring a double bill, with Katherine MacDonald in "The Notorious Miss Lisle," a mystery play, with a strong love theme running through it. Its plot has to do with the difficulties circumstantial evidence can make for an innocent person. Gaenor Lisle, beautiful daughter of an English army officer, is compelled to leave England to avoid the army of reporters and photographers that follows her from one end of England to the other. The girl is a prominent figure in a divorce scandal. The second feature, "It's a Great Life," with Cullen Landis featured. The play brings back dreams and fun of boyhood, taken from a story of a boy's prep. school, its spirit of youth and adventure.

Latest News of the New York Theatres

NEW YORK, December 4. — Special To The Star From Our Own Correspondent. And so Mister Salteena, even though he was not quite a gentleman, has reached the dramatic stage. After a brief warming-up tour, "The Young Visiters" arrived this week for a "stop" at the Thirty-ninth Street Theatre. It was given a kindly reception by the New York critics. How long the visit here will last it is hard to tell. To those who enjoy things that are whimsical, whether they have been tickled by the misspelled pages of Daisy Ashford's book or not the play will give pleasure. To that section of the theatre-going public which demands "up-to-date" entertainment with lots of jazz and juice—and it is the larger section—"The Young Visiters" won't appeal at all. They'll think William A. Brady produced it during a temporary fit of insanity.

The first-night audience chuckled continuously—with the exception of two fashionably dressed ladies behind us who walked out after remarking that they hoped "Barrie's next play wouldn't be so silly."

In preparing "The Young Visiters" for the stage, Mrs. George Norman and Margaret MacKenzie did the wisest thing possible. They took the pages bodily and inserted the stage business. Nothing is altered. It is simply a spoken presentation of the book, illustrated. Thus sixteen scenes are required to tell the story, scenes painted as a nine-year-old child would paint them, and framed in a prosecenium arch like those we used to cut out and paste on cardboard.

• • •

So far as the cast is concerned, one would think Mr. Brady had cut illustrations from the book, blown up the figures to life-size, and given them animation. The acting is "sumshous." Harold Anstruther, who came across the Atlantic to do it, plays Bernard Clark exactly as the young authoress must have imagined him. A really gorgeous piece of work. So is that done by Leslie Palmer as the Prince of Wales. To see His Royal Highness lick ice-cream and puff at an expensive cigar is something to remember. Even the way he removes his "small but costly crown" makes a deep impression.

Herbert Yost is Mr. Salteena—Daisy Ashford's Salteena. One has to sympathize with him; he strives so very hard to be a gentleman. Then there is Lionel Pape as The Earl of Clinchams, another foreign interpretation. Marie Goff is Ethel Monticue. She, and she only of the principals, seemed to miss the Ashford "idear." Miss Goff worked very earnestly. But she felt compelled to burlesque the role and let you know she was burlesquing. Whereas Clark, Salteena and the Prince were so natural and took themselves just as seriously as their creator did. The balance of the cast is exceedingly good. So is the staging and costuming.

"The Young Visiters" is a distinct novelty, a piece of elegant nonsense. You cannot frown at anybody for not liking it or thinking it is silly. They have simply forgotten their childhood, and should be sympathised with.

• • •

Oyez! Oyez! Hear ye that:—

The next Winter Garden production will be "The Passing Show of 1920," and Eugene and Willie Howard will say a piece.

Henry W. Savage will present Mitzi in her latest musical piece in two weeks.

The Marilynn Miller-Leon Errol show will arrive at the same time.

William Harris, Jr., cables from London that he has acquired the production rights to John Drinkwater's new play, "Oliver Cromwell."

London may see Fred Stone in "Tip Top" at the end of the present engagement in New York. Stone last appeared in London twenty years ago, when he appeared with Zena May in "The Girl From Up There." After London, maybe Paris.

• • •

The new "Century Midnight Revue" has arrived on the Century Roof. For the present the Nine o'clock Revue is omitted.

Commencing Christmas afternoon, a season of grand and light opera in German, the first sung in that language in America since the United States entered the war, is to be given in the Manhattan Opera House under the management of Mrs. Oscar Hammerstein. There will be two performances of Humperdinck's "Hansel and Gretel," followed by "The Count of Luxembourg," "The Beggar Student," "Mme. Angot," "Girofle-Girofla," "Fatinitza" and other works.

Next Week's Events in Local Music World

Rachmaninoff's return will be the big event of next week. It will also be one of the big events of the season, having great drawing power for students of the piano by reason of the splendid program which the great composer-pianist has prepared.

After hearing Cyril Scott play his puzzling and complex Sonata, Mr. Rachmaninoff's playing of the Mozart Sonata in A, (the one beginning with a theme and variations and ending with the Turkish March) which is first on his program, should have a sort of "Backward, turn backward, O time, in thy flight," effect. But Mr. Rachmaninoff, though including several Mendelssohn Songs Without Words in his program, has also made place for two pieces by Medtner and the Debussy "Children's Corner." No musician, pianist or otherwise, can afford to miss hearing him.

• • •

A new pianist comes on Wednesday, when Miss Aurore La Croix gives a joint recital with Maurice Dambois, who is known here as a 'cellist of musicianly temperament. Mr. Parker, erudite critic of the Boston Transcript, praised Miss La Croix very much when she played in his city, saying

"By the rare and also the controlled quality of her touch, her tone is unfailingly clear, round, songful, artfully but never obtrusively proportioned and contrasted, plastic to whatever modulation of pace and rhythm she wills, susceptible to whatever color she would impose."

The La Croix-Dambois program is as follows:—Concerto in A minor, Maestoso, Adagio, Allegro Energique, Albert Dupuis. (This Concerto is dedicated to Mr. Dambois and this will be the first performance of the work in Canada.) Mr. Dambois: Sonata: Adagio, Allegro, Maestoso animato, Giga, Galuppi (1706-1785); Menuetto-Moto-Perpetuo (from Sonata in C major), Weber; Adagio, Handel; Scherzo, Dittersdorff-Kreisler; Allegro, Boccherini; Papillons, Schumann; Scherzo Diabolique, Alkan; Chant du Barde, Libellule, Petite Valse, Caprice Russe, Dambois; Etude Eroica, Liszt; Waltz, Strauss-Tausig; Winter Wind, Chopin. Accompanist, Marcel Hansotte.

• • •

It is announced at the McGill Conservatorium of Music that a few seats are still available for the orchestral concert on Thursday night. The price of tickets is merely nominal, and music lovers should be glad of this chance to hear instructive performances of the best music. The orchestral numbers will be: Symphony in F, No. 3, Mozart; two pieces by MacDowell, and Greig's "Cardinal March." Piano solos and songs will be played and sung by the Misses Cox, Hoffman, Davies, Mills and Percival.

• • •

Persons attending the next three Bonnet recitals will be required to pay a five cent tax on each ticket. It had been expected to arrange for the elimination of this in view of the nature of these recitals and the place wherein they are held, but civic authorities insist on the tax being paid.

Mr. Bonnet increases his prestige in this city every time he plays. His "profundity," to quote the expression used by one of our leading organists, always commands respect; but it is profundity that is in no wise to be confused with heaviness, for Mr. Bonnet has all the brightness and brilliance of temperament that is characteristic of his country.

As a child Mr. Bonnet began organ study with his father. When he was but fourteen years old, he was appointed organist in the Church of St. Nicholas, at Bordeaux. Shortly after he went to Paris, and studied under Alexandre Guilmant at the Conservatoire National de Musique.

The post of organist at the Church of St. Eustache in Paris was won by Bonnet over many competitors and on the death of Guilmant, Bonnet was asked to succeed him as organist of the Societe des Concerts du Conservatoire.

• • •

Stanislaw Berini, tenor from the Royal Opera at Warsaw, Poland, has been engaged to sing at the Imperial Theatre next week, beginning tomorrow. The New York Herald says of him: "A wonderful voice, a magnetic personality, a master artist." Other papers are equally complimentary.

• • •

Miss Ethel Denault, formerly of Ottawa, now contralto soloist in the Church of St. Andrew and St. Paul, and Stanley Gardner, the Montreal pianist, are giving a joint recital at the Chateau Laurier, Ottawa, on Monday night. Miss Gwendoline M. Daville will be the accompanist.

Stravinsky Quartet Hissed in New York

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—(Special to The Star, from Our Own Correspondent)—Miss Sophie Braslau, one of the stellar contraltos of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will be the soloist at the concert on the 19th inst., of the band of H. M. Canadian Grenadier Guards, the third of the present series. Miss Braslau's visits to England, last spring, served to introduce this singer to a London audience at the Queen's Hall, when she won a place in the high esteem of the English critics. Ernest Newman, in the Manchester Guardian, said: "She decidedly made good. Her voice is a fine one, rich and powerful in its louder moments and at once beautiful and penetrating in its mezza voce." In the United States, Miss Braslau has appeared with the Boston Symphony, the New York Symphony, the Chicago Symphony, the St. Louis Symphony and other big orchestras.

Robert Cousinou, of the Paris Opera, will come for the first concert in January and it is expected that Miss Yvonne Gall, of the Chicago and Paris Operas, will sing on January 30.

This is from the New York Telegram: "New York audiences have become known to musicians the world over as polite in the face of all musical atrocities. No matter how inconsequential or freakish an artist or a new musical composition may be, New York has always been calm and friendly. Cabbages, eggs and hisses have been left to Italian and French audiences. New York may yawn or smile deprecatingly, but it did not show hostility. But when the Flonzaley Quartet presented a new quartet of Igor Stravinsky, futuristic Russian composer, at its first concert of the season in Aeolian Hall, the audience divided into two factions. One applauded loudly and the other hissed just as insistently. Some laughed good naturedly, as if they considered the new music a joke, and other whispered their disappointment while the Flonzaleys were still playing. Once there were loud laughs and calls which were drowned out by applause. New York, it seems, is losing its tranquility. A continental audience could not have done better."

Musical Appreciation Implies Active Attention

Written for The Star by SEPTIMUS FRASER

(NO. 8.)

Let us now consider some exceptions to the four measure phrase, for it must not be supposed for a moment, that music can be standardized. This being so, it would cease to be an art. We frequently meet with the two-measure or short phrase, and the eight-measure, or long phrase, the one half the size, and the other double the length of the standard four-measure phrase. There are also numerous instances of the three-measure and six-measure phrases, and, moreover, of those which extend over ten or more bars as the exigencies of the music require. Thus it is well, as soon as possible, to apprehend the phrase without concerning oneself with its numerical length as to bars. Even the metre which generally remains the same throughout the movement, need not always do so. We meet with music, of a modern type, where a measure, say in triple time, is followed by one in duple time; such for example will be seen in a Prelude by Palm-gren, Op. 28, No. 1, wherein this arrangement obtains throughout the entire piece with the single exception where a three pulse measure at the close of a phrase is followed immediately by one of like character at the beginning of the following phrase. Such pieces are not common, but in this instance the effect produced upon the mind seems to justify the innovation.

• • •

And now, a few words with reference to "cadence." This term is applied to denote the series of chords which terminate a phrase of music. This may consist of two, three, or more chords, the final being called the cadence chord. When this chord falls upon a primary accent (the stronger accents in a measure), it is classed as "regular"; and if it falls upon any other beat in the bar it is termed "irregular."

But, some may ask, "Why dwell upon such matters where one's objective is intelligent appreciation of music and not theoretical instruction?" Simply because failure to understand these matters results in flagrant inability to form correct judgment as to proper interpretation. Experience has abundantly shown that even a child will play with far greater intelligence when his attention is drawn to the nature of the cadence and he is encouraged to listen for himself. It is surprising how productive such rudimentary knowledge proves to be even in the experience of a child; how much more fruitful should it be in the experience of those who are more mature.

The word cadence, signifying to fall, was no doubt first used to suggest the points in the ancient chants used in the Roman Catholic Church at the close of phrases where the singers were instructed to lessen the amount of tone, producing a falling effect. Here it may be observed that the cadential effect is well preserved if we introduce the merest suspicion of a retard at the entry of the cadence. To the cadence chord falling upon the final measure of the phrase belongs, theoretically at any rate, all the beats of that measure. In other words, to make this still more clear, should the final cadence chord fall upon the first beat of the measure, it will be theoretically entitled to all the beats in that measure. Many expedients are found for disguising the cadence or lightening its effect. A glance at certain passages in music which is readily obtainable will, we trust, make clear these matters and when grasped will surround music generally with greatly enhanced interest.

A fine example wherein the cadence occupies the full measure will be seen in the hymn tune, "Philadelphia," in which the full weight of the cadence is felt with its majestic repose. See also hymn tune "Chrysostom," "Jesus, My Lord, My God, My All," Barnby; also "Pax Tecum," "Peace, Perfect Peace," wherein we have a four-measure, not, as would appear, a two-measure phrase, and "Maidstone," "Pleasant Are Thy Courts."

In Mendelssohn's "Songs Without Words," No. 6, after the opening measures of the introduction, the theme which follows reaches its first cadence at the fourth bar on D; but here, in place of absolute repose, we have the cadence lightened by the accompanying notes in the bass. Another good example of the cadence falling upon the first beat of the measure will be found in Schumann's "Album for the Young," No. 11, where phrase after phrase is thus terminated.

CHESS CHAMPION.

People claim he is a Jewish boy, is that true? SYLVIA S.

CRANBERRY PIE.

Into a saucepan put one quart of nice clean cranberries and 1-4 cup water. Allow this to boil about 3-4 hour, then add two full cups granulated sugar. After this has boiled about 15 minutes, stir in a piece of butter half the size of a nutmeg and one-half teaspoon of cassia. Then set to cool. Make pastry and fill with berries.

CANADA'S TIME.

1. Does Canada get her time from Greenwich, England? 2. Does Canada owe England any money, or does England owe Canada any money? 3. Also what does Canada import from Great Britain? 4. Could you give me the difference between the Canadian-born people in Canada and the British-born in Canada, I mean, how many of each? A VETERAN.

1, Yes. 2. Canada has borrowed big sums from Great Britain. 3. Manufactured goods of many kinds. 4. For this write to the Bureau of Statistics, Ottawa.

STOCK MARKET.

Will you please explain to the best of your ability the Stock Market, and such other information concerning same as you can give me.

For instance, what do the words "Open," "Bid," "Net Chge.," "Close," "Unch.," mean? And also, in the newspaper it says, such and such a stock is 201, another 39. Will you explain, please, where these figures are derived from. On the market today, it states that 1934 Victory Loan bonds are 94. Does this mean 94 cents on the dollar?

Thanking you, and hoping I have made myself clear enough to be understood, I am. "KAY."

Ans. If you get a book on financial matters all these terms will be explained.

FROM HER HOME TOWN.

Have been going out with a little girl for four months, and love her very much, and in return I think she loves me, too. Everything went alright until last night she met a friend from her own town, and she asked me if she could speak to him, and left me alone for fifteen minutes. Her mother being there, had to call her back, and later she told me she had been writing to him for a year. Do you think I should go again to see her? RAE.

Ans.—Yes. Why shouldn't she have a friend from her own town, even if she does love you?

HE LEFT THERE.

To settle a dispute with some friends we would ask you to kindly let us know whether we have acted right in this instance.

We are three girls, and we generally go everywhere together. One night we met a friend of ours, and he asked us where we were off to, and we told him that we were going to an affair given by our club. He said that he would be there too. He was with us practically all evening, and in going home he stopped at a certain corner and told us he will leave us here, and he guesses that the three of us will not be afraid to go home. We met him at another affair, and he was there with his sister. He introduced us, and before going home he told us to wait for him as he is going to get his sister and we will all go home together. Instead of waiting we walked off.

Were we justified in doing this? What would you think of a boy like him? As he reads your page, we are writing you so that he may know what we and others think of him.

ROSE, FAY AND ANNE.

Ans.—It was certainly not very polite of him.

HE DOESN'T COME.

I have been going with a boy for about three months. At first I saw him very often, but after a while he only came to me now and again. One night I went to a dance with this boy and I did not see him till it was time to go home. I know he does not dance, but still, he stayed with the bunch of boys the whole evening. I danced nearly every dance, as I do not think it was my place to sit out while he seemed to be having a good time. He promised several times to come to see me, and has not done so although I have waited in for him, and when he did come up he offered no explanation. He came up one night and promised to come the next night, but did not, and I have not heard from him since. Do you not think it is up to him to give me an explanation, as I will not know what to do when I see him? Although I like this boy very much, it is no use my waiting till he thinks it worth while to come up. There are several boys today who are just the same. I believe they think a girl likes them better because they are so independent, but a girl likes a fellow who is true to her. Being a constant reader of your page, I would like the opinion of some who have been treated the same as I. FICKLE.

Ans.—If I were you I would give up all thought of him. He evidently does not care for you, and I would amuse myself elsewhere.

CUT GLASS.

Glass used for cut glass vessels for the table or ornament is technically known as flint glass or crystal. It is made of a silicate of potassium and lead and has a high power of refracting and dispersing light; also it is soft enough to be adapted to engraving, cutting and polishing. Glass cutting is really glass grinding and polishing; the grinding is done by holding the surface against a revolving wheel. Cut glass is very much more frail than pressed glass, which is also made of flint glass, but by moulding.

Greater precautions must be taken against breaking cut glass, which being at once heavy and of unsven weight is specially liable to be broken by rough handling or sudden change of temperature.

Cut glass is pretty only if it is kept clean. To wash it, use warm soapy water, not too hot to be uncomfortable for the hands; scrub the cut surface thoroughly but gently with a soft hand brush. Rinse the glass in fresh warm water and dry it with clean soft towels. Then go over the cut surface thoroughly with a soft dry brush. You will be surprised, if you are not in the habit of using the dry brush, to see what a difference it will make in the appearance of your glass. It will sparkle as never before.

The plain surface of cut glass is easily scratched and dulled. Its very softness, which makes cutting possible, makes this inevitable. Also the cut surface is easily chipped, for the same reason. It is wise to wash cut glass pieces by themselves, and soon after use, and never to let food stand in them, for alkalis corrode them, and sulphides blacken them.

FASHIONS FOR TODAY

The statement has been made many times that clothes for women and children are distinguished this season more by charming trimming touches and novel fabric and color combinations than by novelty style line or radical style changes. As the season advances, this fact is more emphatically driven home. The simplest sort of a frock, whether for a juvenile or a grown-up, may be transformed into a genuine work of art by the charm of the decoration used.

The sketch shown today illustrates a velveteen or duvetyn dress designed for a girl of eight or ten years. It is severely plain, both back and front, and with just a tiny section of shirring on either side at the normal waist line. This shirring is concealed by a little band or strap of self fabric trimmed with a touch of embroidery. The embroidery which appears so as to form a deep yoke on the front of the frock also consists of a wreath done in wool in a vivid green with little ribbon or silk flowers set at intervals its entire length. The frock as originally shown was developed in a soft light brown, the wreath was green wool embroidery and the flowers were in rose color centred with green.

Over-elaboration is everywhere recognized as the mark of poor taste, especially for children's apparel. Good material, carefully selected, with the complexion and general style of the child to be outfitted especially in mind, a simple style design and the very best workmanship possible combine to make the clothes that the refined woman selects for her child. Such clothes help to lay the foundation of good taste in the child, to the end that future generations of women may be dressed wisely and well.

Incidentally, the severely plain black velvet frock is a good selection for the girl of eight to ten or twelve years. It may be made without a bit of trimming, a wide gay sash giving it the necessary color note.

THE HISTORY OF YOUR NAME

(By Philip Francis Nowlan.)

DIFFENDORFER

RACIAL ORIGIN—German.

SOURCE—A place.

There are probably a number of family names with spellings varying only a trifle from the foregoing, which really belongs in this group. It is quite usual to find that names of German origin have been changed to the spelling which represents their sound in English, or to the pronunciation which English-speaking persons give them.

The names in this group, if translated into their English meanings, would be either "Deepthorp" or "Deepback." "Bach" is the German equivalent of the English word "back" (now virtually obsolete) meaning "stream" or "brook," which through the Anglo-Saxon speech traces back to a common Teutonic origin with "bach." The names in this group which begin with "D" show the influence of the North German speech, and barring family migrations from one part of Germany to another within comparatively modern times, it may be assumed that they come from the northern parts of Germany.

In Germany, as in England of the Middle Ages, it was quite common to designate an individual or a family by mentioning the place at or near which they lived, and such names when not ending in "er" quite commonly bore the prefix "von," originally, just as the same class of English names were used with "atte" (at the) or the Norman "de la."

HEALTH TALKS

By JOHN B. HUBER, A.M., M.D.

Early diagnosis helps to prevent the spread of disease.

SCURVY.

"What is scurvy? Can a baby have it?"

Scurvy or scorbutus is a constitutional disease which used to be very rife in the old days when sailing vessels made long voyages and the sailors could get no kind of fresh foods. Read in Captain Cook's Voyages (to be had in any library) how his crews suffered; it is very interesting. The gums get spongy and bleed. There is a tendency also to hemorrhage in the muscles, joints and internal organs. Scurvy is principally due to eating too much salt or corned meats and not enough fruits and vegetables. The disease begins with fatigue, with a craving for acid foods and with constipation. Recovery is usual after a return to wholesome diet.

Infantile scurvy is associated with imperfect nutrition due to some prolonged error in diet. The disease is shown by anemia, stomach and intestinal disorder, hemorrhages, sensitive bones, swelling of the extremities, rapid and progressive emaciation. Recovery is usual upon the institution of the proper diet; otherwise death from exhaustion is possible. Am mailing you the right information about food.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

SNEEZING.

I have been suffering with sneezing spells for over a year. They come on during the night when I am asleep mostly; although at times they will start in the day. These spells will last for hours and nothing seems to relieve me. My work is of a trying nature. I am a confectioner and cake baker and it is hot work. I have been in the trade 30 years.

Answer—I have no doubt your occupation is an element in the case. Sometimes the difficulty is of nervous origin, being in that respect very like asthmatic seizures. Sneezing is generally an involuntary act, produced by irritation of the nasal passages. To some extent it can be controlled by pressing the top of the finger hard between and a little above the eyebrow. The great sensibility of the air passages usually protects them from the entrance of irritative and injurious substances—dust, germs and the like. Sneezing is a self-preservative act in most cases.

All inquiries addressed to Dr. Huber in care of the "Health Talks" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question. —The Editor.

How Do You Say It?

(Copyright, 1920, by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.)

Much ink has been spilled over the question, is it proper to use the adjectives true, correct, real, etc., with the noun "facts?" Someone says or writes, "The real facts in the case are so and so," and a critic arises to remark that the word "real" is not needed and that the meaning is expressed just as well by saying "The facts in the case are so and so." If we consider a fact simply as something that is done or exists, we may agree with the critic.

But the case is not so simple. The "fact" has a secondary meaning. According to the Standard Dictionary, it means "something that is asserted to have occurred or existed."

Therefore, we may have facts that are not real or correct or true, given by a person in describing something, and the only way in which we may distinguish these facts from the genuine circumstances of the case is to describe these latter facts as real, true, genuine, correct, etc.

LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME BY THORNTON W BURGESS

RUSTY MAKES UP HIS MIND.

Mistrust gives way and ends all fears,
When gentle friendliness appears.
—Rusty the Fox Squirrel.

Rusty the Fox Squirrel had plenty of time in which to think, and he did think. There wasn't anything else to do, and if there had been he couldn't have done it. He was still too much injured by the shot from that terrible gun to move about. He didn't want to move, which was a good thing. Quietness was the best thing in the world for him, as Farmer Brown's boy had said.

But Rusty could think without hurting his injured body, and he did think. He thought and thought and the subject of all that thought was Farmer Brown's Boy. Rusty had been terribly afraid of him and because he had been terribly afraid he had tried to bite him. Instead of hurting him Farmer Brown's boy had been very, very gentle with him, and had put something healing and soothing on the wounds made by the cruel shots and had left food and water for him. What did it mean.

"An enemy wouldn't do that," thought Rusty. "Yet he is one of those two-legged giants and it was one of them that brought all this trouble to me. If it had not been for one of them I would be safe and happy in the Green Forest hunting for nuts this very minute. Yes, and but for this one I might be out there dead this very minute." You see, he had guessed that Farmer Brown's boy had found him and brought him to this place. "I don't know what to think. It must be that there are different kinds of those two-legged giants. I—I'm sorry I tried to bite this one. I won't again. I don't believe he means me any harm. I'm sure he doesn't.

Having made up his mind to this Rusty felt better. One always feels better when no longer distrustful of another. So the next time Farmer Brown's boy put his hand in to take him out and care for his wounds Rusty didn't try to bite. He didn't even kick. Farmer Brown's boy noticed it right away, and grinned. That grin made all the freckles on his face run together like one big freckle. He pulled off his glove, and with bare fingers very gently rubbed the top of Rusty's head. Somehow, at the touch of those bare fingers on his head all doubt left Rusty. That was a friendly touch. There could be no mistake about that. The friendliness of it tingled all through him. There was nothing to fear from one with a touch like that. There couldn't be. Rusty rubbed his nose against that hand, and again Farmer Brown's boy grinned. He understood that just as Rusty understood the gentle touch on his head.

"An enemy wouldn't do that," thought Rusty.

"I see you have made up your mind that I will do you no harm, and that we are going to be friends," said Farmer Brown's boy, as he put Rusty back in his soft bed in the cage. "That is good. Now you'll get along faster. It won't be long before you are as smart as ever."

Farmer Brown's boy was right. Having made up his mind that there was nothing to fear Rusty began to get better fast. In a day or so he was able to crawl out of his bed and examine his cage. He was still pretty lame and very sore, but his appetite had returned and he enjoyed his food. Farmer Brown's boy came to see him many times a day and he never failed to bring some good thing to eat. There were goodies such as Rusty never had tasted before and he began to look eagerly for the coming of Farmer Brown's boy and hurried over to the door of his cage whenever he heard the steps of Farmer Brown's boy approaching. He would take the food from the latter's fingers and it never once entered his head to bite those fingers.

The Next Story—"Rusty is Troubled."

PETER'S LETTER.

Dear People:

I expect most of you have read "Swiss Family Robinson." Well, a man said once that one reason why every boy liked "Swiss Family Robinson" so much was that the author told you how everything was done. I am thinking of this after reading a very interesting letter I received about a summer house built by a boy, which I am appending. (I mean, I am appending the letter, not the boy, nor the summer house.) A picture came with it, (I mean, came with the letter, not the house) which I hope to publish some day. This should be an encouragement to other boys to get busy and see what they can do in the line of making things. And that reminds me that the Scouts are talking about an Exhibition and Hobby Show.

How many of you know the "How Old is Ann?" puzzle. My editor thinks that I ought to publish it some day, so I'm going to. Funny that we all like puzzles but pretend that we don't like work, but puzzles aren't lazy. Makes a difference whether we're doing a thing as work, or for the fun of it. We enjoy working our minds over puzzles, but sometimes we kick at exercising our heads over geography or arithmetic. Queer, isn't it? Remember how Tom Sawyer's fence got whitewashed?

Last touch.

Peter.

Catherine E. C. Jenks writes:

"May I write to you just this once, even if I am not a boy and my hair is white? I wish to tell you about a beautiful little summer house, built in 1919, by a young friend of mine, twelve years of age. His name is Rodolphe Lajoie. His home is in Coaticook, P.Q., and he is at present attending the Jesuits' College (Sainte Marie) at Montreal. The structure of which I speak is about 8 x 10 feet, is built of slab-wood and is on the lawn at Rodolphe's home. It has one door and five windows—one on each side of the door, one on each side of the building and one at the back. The building is surmounted by a flag pole, underneath which the date of erection is carved. A fence, also a pretty bench and two chairs are of poplar. The floor is planed and boasts of a rug which almost covers the whole floor. The door and windows are screened with wire net so that one may enjoy coolness and comfort in summer without the annoyance of a single fly. The interior boasts of such useful articles, manufactured by this indefatigable young worker, as a writing desk, attached to the front wall, which may be raised or lowered at will, a safe, a shelf, a bookcase, a paper-holder, etc., etc., and Rodolphe himself installed the electric lights.

He also manufactured an automobile of most creditable appearance and action.

Myer Mendelovitch writes:

I am sending in an "acrostic puzzle," which I composed myself. I hope it will be published in "Our Own Page," so that it will amuse the young people.

It is as follows:

Aunt Jane's Mail

Dear Boys and Girls:

As Old Father Time brings Christmas near once again we all begin to think of the good cheer connected with that happy day and as one of the things we all enjoy is the nice home made candies, next week I hope to print some recipes for Christmas sweets.

Lots of the girls, I am sure, can make fine candies, and I expect some of the boys can too, anyway I know they love to eat them, so if any of you have a favorite candy, or some kind you make specially nice won't you send in the recipe, so I can print it on our page and then perhaps a great many of us may enjoy it.

Peter thinks it a lovely idea for Edythe, Helena and Patsy to make ties as Christmas gifts for their boy friends, and he surely should know as he was once a boy himself; so if mother approves, I am sure it will be all right.

I am glad, Dorothy, that you like the picture puzzle. Your answer was correct.

Aunt Jane

Dear Aunt Jane,—This is the second time I have written to your page. I enjoy reading Molly O'Morgan's letters. I am going to school. I am in Grade Four. There are two in my class. There are nine pupils going to school, and we have lots of fun. We play ball. Well, Dear Aunt Jane, I think I will close for this time.

HILDA DONALDSON.

Lucy Reid writes: I am plunging my pen into the ink to write you a few lines. I have never written before, but I am very interested in your page.

I like Molly O'Morgan's letters very much.

I have lots of fun in winter. Don't you? When are you going to have another debate? They are so interesting.

Here is a riddle: What is it that every goes, and stops when it stops; is made by the wagon, but does not belong to the wagon. Answer—The noise.

Curtail once more, and I stand revealed

Phonetic Puzzle: You have heard of the wright who could write right and of the circus man who captured a new gnu that knew more than his old gnu knew. In the same manner each of the sentences following may be completed by filling the three spaces with words that are phonetically the same:

— take — when we offered him one was going — far.

Time will — the greatest edifice that man can — just as surely as the — of light come to us each day.

In giving his faithful labor it is only natural that he will expect us to — out to him sufficient money to — the expenses of — rent and clothing for himself and family.

Gathering Fuel

Bring in sticks to pile on the fire,
When winter winds blow chill without;
The storm king will be put to rout.
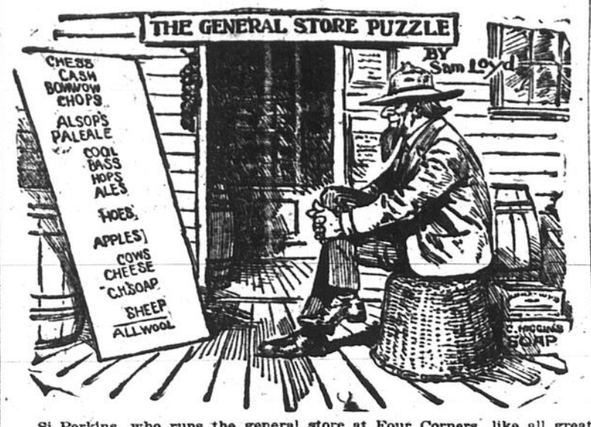
But pile the wood on, if you please,
We will be warm this winter time.

THE GENERAL STORE PUZZLE



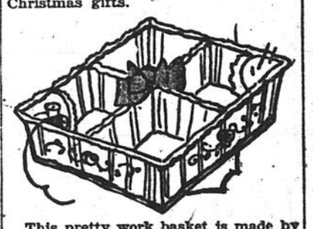
Si Perkins, who runs the general store at Four Corners, like all great merchants, marks his goods with a secret price code. When it comes to a close dicker on any piece of merchandise Si takes a sly glance at the code mark and posts himself on its cost price.

In adopting a code it is customary to select some ten-letter word, or phrase, wherein no letter appears more than once, then beginning with the initial letter assign the numerals 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9 and 0 to the letters in their order. For example, if the code x were based on the word Republican, the number 8645 would be expressed by Club.

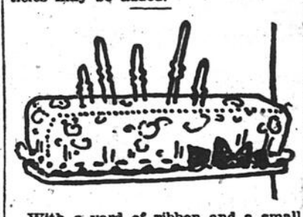
Now, that we understand this important trick of the trade let us see who can discover Si Perkins' key word from the clue he has furnished in that long sum which adds up All Wool.

Christmas Presents

Any of these articles can be easily made by following the directions given, and would make useful and inexpensive Christmas gifts.



This pretty work basket is made by lining four berry boxes with any pretty material, Shirring the strip for the outside, and covering cardboard to fit the bottom. Finish with ribbon rosette, and, if desired, a pincushion, and shirred pockets to hold small articles may be added.



With a yard of ribbon and a small nail brush, a convenient hairpin holder is easily made. Cut a piece of ribbon the size of the back of the brush. Next, take a piece long enough to cover both sides and ends of brush, double it, gather on both sides. Catch inside fold to base covering. Finish at both ends with knots of baby ribbon.

To make the filet crochet centre for a pin cushion, chain 118, then, beginning in the 4th stitch from crochet hook, make a row of 115 trebles, chain 3 and turn. For second, third and fourth rows, make 1 block, 36 spaces, 1 block, chain 3 and turn. For fifth row make 1 block 18 spaces, 1 block, 11 spaces, 1 block, chain 3 and turn. Then follow the model for the rest of the pattern by counting the spaces and the blocks. Four trebles make each block, and two chain each space.

GIRL GUIDE NOTES.

Parade—The 1st Montreal Company will parade at the Ivey Settlement Monday, at 8.10 p.m., with Acting Captain Elizabeth Dean in charge. At this parade announcement of other officers will be made. Several recruits have come forward, but there are still several vacancies.

Girls' Rally—A rally of Girl Guides will take place in the city in January. Further particulars will be given shortly.

DOMESTIC SERVICE BADGE.

I have found that some Guides do not like the idea of going in for the Domestic Service Badge, they seem to think that it is not worth the trouble, it is therefore pleasing to have the ideas of a Girl Guide who writes as follows:

The badge I like best to work for is the Domestic Service Badge, which is found very useful and worth the trouble because we could easily help our mothers to do the housework then much better than we do now. It might come one day that someone would ask us to come and look after their house while they were away and we ought to followour motto, "Be Prepared." Or an old woman who is ill, with nobody else to do the work, might need us and we would be doing our good turn for the day at the same time.

The best badges to work for in connection with the housework is Domestic Service. Child Nurse, Cook and Laundress.

INDUSTRIOUS.

Six-year-old Willie was boasting that he was working in a blacksmith shop. "What do you do there? Shoe horses?" he was asked. "No," he answered promptly, "I shoo flies."

BOY SCOUT NEWS

New Wolf Cub Pack — The tenth Wolf Cup Pack has been organized in connection with the Hervey Institute, Claremont avenue, Westmount. Mr. William Henry, an ex-Scout of the 6th Troop, will be Cubmaster. The boys are so keen on Cub work that the authorities of the Institution announce that the only punishment for misbehaviour which will be necessary this season will be a refusal of permission to attend the meetings of the Pack. It sometimes takes the youngsters to set the pace in enthusiasm.

Provincial Council—The annual meeting of the Provincial Council was attended by a number of Montreal officials. All of our Scouts will learn with regret of the resignation of Col. Starke as Provincial Commissioner, which was announced on that occasion. Our boys do not see much of the Provincial Commissioner except at occasional parades and inspections, but they all feel the effects of his labors on their behalf. Col. Starke has given ungrudgingly of his time and effort to promote scouting, and still has the interests of the movement deeply at heart, so that we retain his friendship even though we have to say good-bye officially.

Officers' Training Course: The fifth session of the officers' training course was held on Wednesday evening in the new Medical Building, McGill University. In spite of the deluge of rain, the attendance was good. Mr. John Bradford's lecture was followed by a discussion of indoor Scouting competitions led by Mr. E. R. Peterson. The monthly meeting of the Scoutmasters' Club was held at the close of the session.

Proficiency Badges — The proficiency badge schedule is in full swing, and Scouts will be waiting anxiously to learn the results of the marking credited to troops for the first month. Remember that if you pass a test with "excellent" after your name, you score three points for your troop. If it is "good," two points are credited, and if just "passed," one point. If you make an honest try and fail, no marks are taken off, but if the examiner should find you quite unprepared, one point will be deducted. Competition should be keen through the month of December.

Christmas Good Time—From now on troops will be busily planning their Christmas good turns. Some of these will be reported; many of them will, doubtless, never be known except by the Scouts and the recipients. The latter are probably the better kind. But be sure your troop does something for somebody else this season. A troop can be horribly selfish, just like a person, if it always works for its own interests and its own advantage.

Combined Exhibition — When we announce a combined Exhibition to be held about the end of April, we do not wish Scouts to think that the plan will fall through at the last moment, as last year's attempt unfortunately did. This one will be held, sure, and it will be a huge affair, for all troops in the district of Montreal to take part in. Many things cannot be prepared for until we are able to make definite announcements about the place and dates and programs, but one thing is certain, and that is that a big hobby show will be included in the exhibition. So Scouts should begin right away to prepare exhibits of hobbies. There will be a place for everything you can make up, from meccano to paintings, and from model bridges to knitted night-caps. The only conditions is that the work be done well enough to make it worth while to exhibit it.

Badge Exams. — In connection with proficiency badge examinations scheduled for Saturday afternoons, Scouts who wish to take the tests, but who cannot attend at the time arranged on account of having to work, should state that fact with their entry. Special tests will be arranged for them in the evenings.

Scoutmasters' Club— Representatives have been elected from the Scoutmasters' Club as follows: Member of Badge Committee to replace Mr. Cusack, who resigned, Mr. A. L. Belasco. Members of Camp Committee, Messrs. C. S. Allen and W. P. Costain.

Driving, to some motorists, means simply sitting at the wheel and paying attention to nothing in particular, not even the road ahead. The experienced driver takes his task seriously and when an opportunity is afforded, or perhaps at certain fixed intervals, during the drive, the dash instruments are watched and readings interpreted.

There is no reason why the driver should have to look at the ammeter, the oil gauge, the radiator meter, etc., more than two or three times a day, but some either look once a week or when they do notice a change of readings cannot make a proper interpretation.

One can tell by readings of the ammeter the condition of the generator to an extent, also the condition of the battery and the circuits, while the oil gauge in a pressure system can indicate a number of things, including bearing condition, pump wear and oil thickness, besides its regular duties of showing whether oil is circulating and at what pressure.

Most Important Instrument.

The oil gauge is the most important instrument on the car. In indicates pounds pressure in the oil line, or if it be of the noncalibrated type it simply shows if oil is being pumped or circulated in pounds pressure the driver has an easier task.

On cold mornings he may probably notice that on starting out the pressure is abnormally high, and as the car is run, say ten or twenty minutes, the pressure slowly drops to somewhere around normal.

This is due to the higher viscosity of oil due to the cold. The thicker the oil the higher the pressure. When you substitute heavy oil for medium or light you get the same results of increased pressure.

That is why some owners find that in the winter oiling is improved by the substitution of a light oil for medium or a medium for a heavy. The heavy oil flows slowly and with higher pressure and does not lubricate well until the motor is hot.

If the bearings are worn and a high pressure system is used, the pressure will drop owing to the reduced resistance to flow. Tight bearings cause a pressure increase.

By watching the gauge therefore one can tell where the bearings are beginning to show signs of wear.

Danger in Thick Oils.

Sometimes wear in the pump or a slight leak in the gauge will also cause a reduced pressure reading. A worn pump and a more viscous oil will keep up the pressure, but just as a heavy oil will compensate in a measure for bearing wear.

When an engine is tight, after coming from the repair shop the pressure should be high and the oil thin enough to get to the parts where the clearances are small. Thus if the bearings are a very tight fit and the pressure is insufficient, the bearings may be starved for awhile, also if the oil is too thick it will not flow properly until heated, but during the heating interval the bearing does not get sufficient oil.

A leak in the line to the gauge will cause a drop in pressure reading, even though the parts of the engine may be getting the required amount of oil. A partly obstructed oil line will cause a higher pressure reading and lead the driver to believe the oil is too heavy.

Needle Should Not Waver.

In the case of the ammeter its readings do not vary with temperature. It shows nothing when the engine is still, the needle gradually rising to about ten or twelve as the engine speed is increased. It does not go beyond this limit. It should not waver to any extent. If the needle should, after a while, show a lower rate of charge than before, the general connections may be loose, brush contact poor, meter connections dirty or loose, battery connections loose or dirty. During the fall and winter the charging rate should be higher than in summer, because the lights are used more, hence the drain on the battery is greater. With most modern systems a simple adjustment is provided in which a generator brush is shifted slightly.

Discloses Burned Fuses.

If the ammeter does not indicate at all when the engine is running there may be a burned fuse, a cutout that is not functioning, brushes not making contact, an open or short circuit in the generator circuit, poor contact at the ammeter, broken ammeter.

Unless absolutely necessary, the driver should not go farther if the indicator does not show charge when the engine is running.

If a battery wire should suddenly become disconnected the meter needle will show high charge for an instant and then suddenly drop to zero and stay there. This shows the generator fuse is burned, due to the excessively high voltage at the instant the battery was disconnected from the charging line.

LEAKY PISTON RINGS.

A good check on the condition of the piston rings may be had by feeling the crank case. If it is hotter than usual it is probable that there is leakage past the rings, which either are worn or stuck in their grooves because of carbon deposits.

A MOTORISTS' ADVERSITIES

Last week I bought a tourin'-car, an' the agent says to me, that I could learn to run the thing as easy as could be; he said that all I had to do, was, first to fill my tank with pure extract of gasoline, an' then to twirl my crank; an' jump right in, an' grab the wheel, an' give the thing a twist, an' push a dew-dad with my foot, an' another with my fist—an' when I got to goin' I was not to lose my senses but keep my eyes straight ahead, an' stay between the fences.

The first time that I tried her out, as I remember now, I started from my barn lot, an' killed a Durock sow; an' when old Dobbin smelt the gas, he throwed an awful fit, an' jumped a stake-an'-rider fence, an' died right whar he lit. I run again' the gate-post, an' skidded to the pastur', an' when I went to slow her down, the blamed thing went the faster. I cut some awful curlicues, an' double figger 8's—I never was so rattled sence I tried on roller-skates. At last I jumped to save my neck—an' landed on my back—an' saw a million shootin' stars—then everything turned black—

Ef any feller wants a "Car" an' wants to buy it right—my telephone is 23—it gets me day er night.—Uncle John in the Excelsior Springs Standard.

AUTO TEACHER OF SELF-CONTROL

The inventors of the automobile have done more than any other agency to stop cruelty to animals. No doubt there are many persons who would go so far as to assert the automobile has justified itself on the sole ground of practically eliminating the horse as a beast of burden. Not that the horse is a past number, but it is becoming so.

The relationship between a man and horse is one of feeling; the relationship between a man and automobile is one of thinking. When a driver gets mad at a horse he jerks the bit and applies the whip. When a driver gets mad at an automobile, his friends laugh at him. Because of this fact the automobile is doing its part to raise human standards, and to develop human character.

Any one who drives an automobile forms the habit of thinking about his troubles instead of feeling about them.

BELT DRESSING FOR CLUTCH LEATHER

Car owners should get into the habit of using belt dressing for the clutch leather to swell it and act as a remedy for slippage. In disassembling the clutch it will be well to notice whether there is a ridge in the leather. Such a condition prevents the clutch from engaging as far as it ought to and the only way to remove the ridge is first to take out the clutch and then trim down the leather with a rasp.

WEAK VALVE SPRINGS.

Weakening of the springs which close the valves is a common cause of faulty engine operation. Whenever the valves are taken out the springs should be examined to see that they are all of the same length, or rather that all of the inlet are of the same length and all of the exhaust, as the exhaust springs will probably be a little longer than the others. If one spring is shorter than the others in its set it should be stretched or else a metal plate must be put under it to bring tension up to equality with its fellows.

CHANGE IN TIRES AND WHEELS

A movement is on foot in the automobile industry to eliminate five of the eleven passenger-car size tires now in use and at the same time substituting the single 24-inch wheel for the 23, 24 and 25 inch wheels now in use.

During the war tire sizes were reduced from many sizes to eleven and the movement met with favor from both manufacturer annd dealer. Tire dealers in years gone by were compelled, if they wished to be able to care for the wants of their customers, to carry on their shelves sizes for which there was very little demand. With the relatively small profit in each tire sale, it is necessary for them to turn their stock rapidly to realize the profit that a legitimate business is entitled to. Further reducing the sizes will mean that every dealer can carry a larger stock, thereby insuring the customer of a fresher article.

COLD WEATHER HARD ON TIRES

Summer, say some tire authorities who add that nothing is more destructive to tires than heat.

Winter, say others, who are regarded as equally authoritative. Because of changing temperatures and the cutting action of ice, these experts assert, tires will not give as good service in winter as in summer unless the car owner watches his casings carefully and promptly fills with tire putty or dough every cut in the tread and sidewall as it appears.

Particles of ice and snow lodge in even the smallest cuts. When the car is put in the warm garage, ice and snow melt, wetting the fabric and causing gradual disintegration of fabric and tread. When the moisture again freezes, it does more damage.

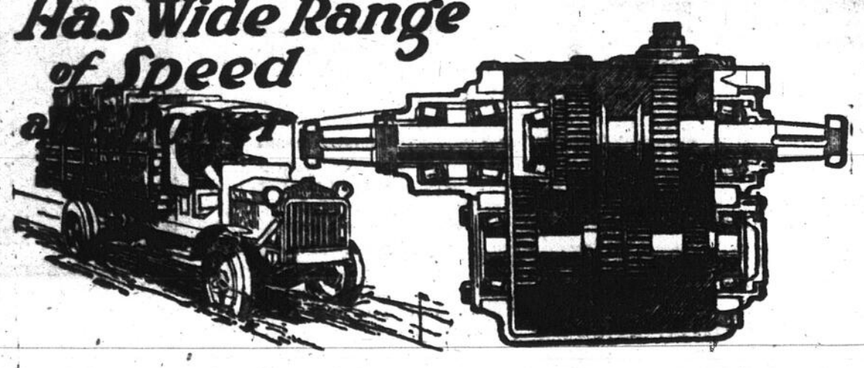
The NATIONAL Has Wide Range of Speed



What Truck? Ask the driver—he knows.

The ideal transmission on a Motor Truck is the one delivering the greatest power with smoothness and flexibility under all conditions of load and road,—speed on level stretches, reserve power for steep grades.

To attain this was the aim of National Engineers, and after testing many they found it in the Brown-Lipe Transmission.

The National's Transmission gives three speeds on the light models—four on the heavy—in the former it is mounted as a unit with the engine. On the larger ones, with longer chassis, it is amid ships, to eliminate the "whip" of the shaft.

The National Truck is made in five sizes—1-1½-2-3½ and 5 tons. There is a National to suit your needs.

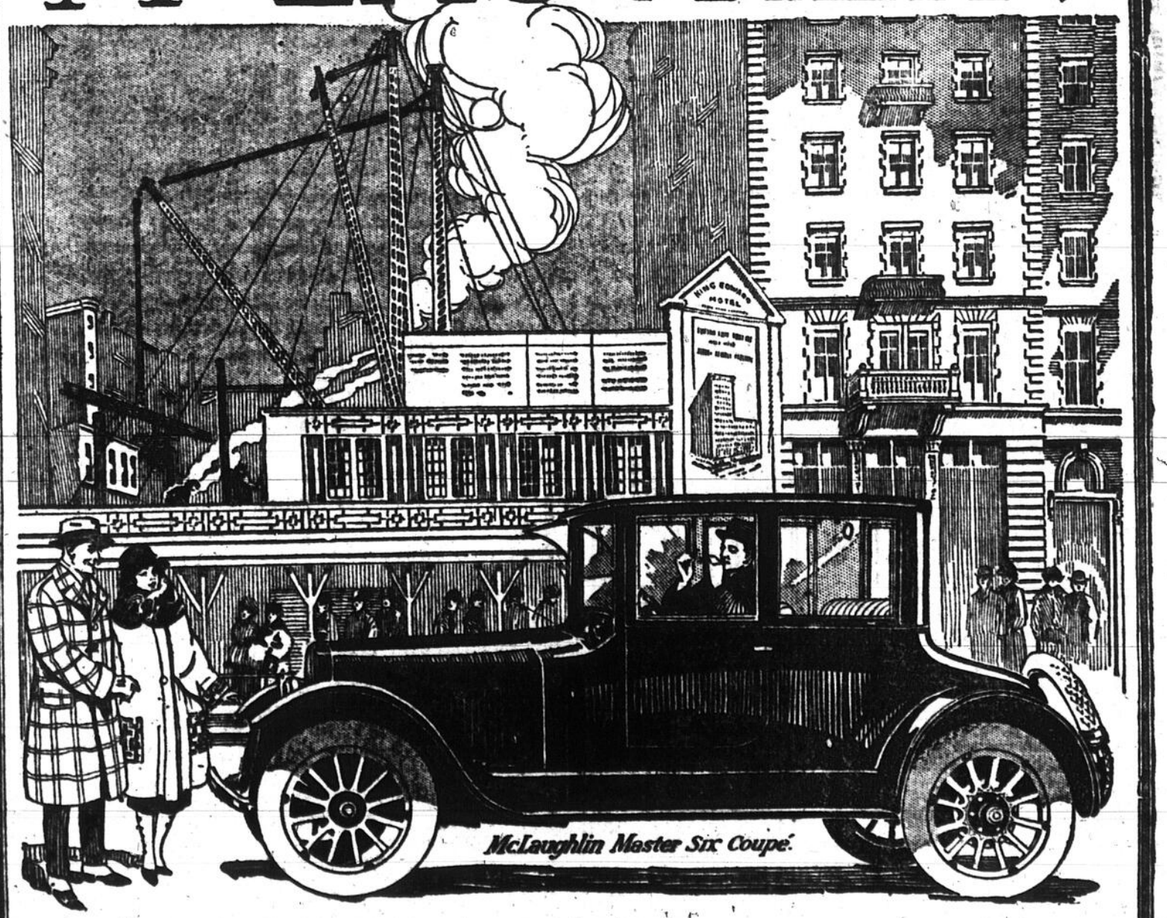
McLAUGHLIN



McLaughlin Master Six Coupe.

Like a new issue of coinage comes the new model of the McLaughlin Car.

The title "Canada's Standard Car" was not self-imposed. By many thousands the McLaughlin holds the preference in Canada over cars of the better make.

The famed McLaughlin-Buick valve-in-hand motor—the rugged sure working engine—gives to each of the seven Master Six models the staunch reputation of trustworthiness.

Especially attractive are the new closed bodies not only because of their added comfort, but because they are now decidedly the vogue for both winter and summer driving.

CH DEPENDS ON SPARK PLUG

ys Motorist to See Plugs are in Working Order

Spark plug troubles are most deceiving. Many owners have worried for weeks over poor ignition—poor engine performance—and they find after long investigation that a poor plug was causing the disturbance. Plugs are so deceptive that good mechanics sometimes tear down engines and ignition systems, searching for trouble which really lies in the spark plugs.

Check up on the plugs every once in a while to make sure that all of them are hitting right. This can best be done by shortening one at a time with a screwdriver—one with a wooden handle.

In trying this test be cautious to place the steel end of the screwdriver, on the iron of the cylinder before touching the spark plug, as this will prevent any shock being imparted to the person making the test.

If there is a drop in speed of the engine, you know that your plug has been hitting. Another way is to disconnect the ignition wires on all except the plugs being tested and checking as to whether there is a clean explosion or not.

See that your plugs are kept clean always. A part of the carbon material deposited on your plug is a good conductor of electrical current. If your plug is dirty and a continuous coating of this material has collected on the insulator of your plug, the current will travel through it in preference to jumping the gap provided at the sparking points. If you are using two-piece plugs, take them apart and clean the insulator in gasoline and if necessary scrape it until the carbon is removed. If you are using a one-piece plug use the cleaner manufactured by one of the large manufacturers of spark plugs.

One of the mysterious troubles with which spark plugs are afflicted is the leakage of electricity. In the past this was very often due to porcelain which was poor electrically. In these days of advancement there is no longer any excuse for this trouble. All reliable spark plug makers have overcome this trouble entirely. However, in practically all cases, except where the insulator is broken, the leakage is caused by a dirty insulator where the current is travelling through the deposit of carbon instead of across the gap.

In case of a broken insulator, if you are using two-piece plugs, the only remedy is a new insulator, which you can secure from any dealer and put into the shell of the plug yourself, or send your plug in to the spark plug factory and they will repair it. If you are using one-piece plugs and find a broken insulator, the only remedy is a new plug.

ITS ONE DUTY.

The spark plug has only one thing to do—to deliver a strong spark. But it must be given attention the same as any other part of the truck, even though some owners go thousands of miles without giving plugs any attention. About everything on a truck needs attention once in a while; if nothing more, needs to be cleaned up. Plugs need their share of attention, at least should be cleaned once in a while.

Just one other tip—always have one or two extra plugs with you, either new ones or old ones which have been checked up.

CAR PRICES TO ADANCE?

There is a possibility, and the remark is based on intimate knowledge of the industry, that some manufacturers may have to increase their prices inside of six months. Some of the manufacturers who have cut prices are selling their cars at less than cost, or so close to it that the profit is negligible.

These losses, however, will be carried on the 1920 books and will, to a certain extent, come out of what would otherwise be paid as an excess profits tax. But when January 1 passes and a new year begins, the manufacturers must plan for a full year—at a profit—and if prices of materials and labor don't come down enough to justify the price, the only solution is an increase in price. You can readily see what may happen with these conditions existing. Nearly all of those who have reduced their prices have, in a measure, taken a gamble on lower material prices, and if they don't get them they have the alternative to raise prices or operate at a loss or a short profit.

While a number of companies have revised prices downward, four prominent companies have advanced their prices, while with the General Motors group and others prices remain firm, guaranteed against reduction though not against advances. — Canadian Motorist.

HIGH POLISH IS LABORIOUS TASK

Three Weeks' Work Necessary to Create High Enamel Polish

For the many who have marveled at the beautifully glossy finish on the body of a high-grade motor car, and wondered how such a result was achieved, the following description will be of interest.

All the work on the body finish is done by hand and about three weeks' time is required on a body. During this time there are more than 25 separate operations on the bodies, including painting, drying and rubbing.

The rough bodies are sandpapered and washed with acid before the first paint is applied. The first coats are metal primers and other preparatory coats. Then follow five filler coats, a sealer coat and then a number of color coats, three to five, depending on the color. Between practically all of these coats there are 24-hour drying periods, and a thorough washing of the body with water and pumice stone. Only in this way can a smooth, glossy surface be secured.

Varnish coats, four in number, follow the color coats. Between each varnish coat also the bodies are dried 24 hours in ovens and then rubbed thoroughly. The final varnish coat is applied and the final drying given in dust-proof rooms in which the air changes every three minutes, and all air entering is filtered through water. This is slow, careful hand work, but such work makes possible the beautiful and lasting finish now given high-priced car bodies.

WATCH STEERING GEAR.

If there is one inspection that the motor truck operator should insist on having made more than another, it is that with relation to the steering gear. The steering apparatus should be gone over every single day.

FIX INSULATION WITH MELTED TAR

When on the road it is found that wiring installation is broken, with all its attendant troubles, the injured insulation may be quickly and easily repaired by using a small quantity of the tar which is to be found on top of the battery. Melt the tar, and while it is hot spread it over the break in the insulation and cover the whole job with a piece of cloth. Of course, if electrician's tape is at hand this may be used to repair the break; indeed, this is precisely the sort of service for which the tape is intended.

AUTO BREATHES AND ALSO RUSTS

Every motorist who stores his car for this winter will be interested in the startling statement of a mechanical engineer, whose position lends authority to his assertion, that any machinery which is laid aside after being used is subject to internal rusting through a kind of respiration that affects cylinders, gear boxes, clutch chambers, etc.

These metal parts, he contends, "breathe" by absorbing air when a fall of temperature contracts them and expelling it when higher temperature produces expansion. The moisture introduced with the air is deposited in the cavities and may produce serious damage through rust. Nor does the popular assumption that oil will protect the inaccessible parts of unused machinery always hold good, he adds.

The handle of a recently patented broom is tubular, and can be connected to hose so that water flows through the broom when it is desired.

"BATH-TUBS" GROW IN POPULARITY

Over in England, "bath-tubs" are now being used as taxicabs. Of course the "tubs" are not of the ordinary variety. They are motorcycles with closed-in sidecars in which the passenger rides protected from cold winds and driving rain. Lower fares are charged than by ordinary taxis and the tubs are gaining in popularity.

No Danger of Freezing
No Trouble to Start

The Mayall Motor Heater applies the principle of the Electric Toaster to the heating of a standing car. It can be used wheseve connection can be made with an electric light socket.

The Mayall Motor Heater

$12.50 Complete

When current is turned on the water is heated and maintains a continuous circulation, absolutely preventing freezing, and assuring positive, easy starting of the car, with a consequent saving in gasoline.

The Mayall Motor Heater will not cause boiling of the water, even though it contains anti-freeze mixture. It is economical, for it makes heating of the garage unnecessary. It consumes very little current and there is absolutely no risk of fire in its use.

Any car owner can attach it in a few minutes.

WHAT IS WRONG

Contrasts Between Cities and Country are Too Glaring

GLASGOW, Nov. 20. — (From Our Own Correspondent)—Even the Dukes and the Duchesses have at last discovered that rural life is dull and has its disadvantages. For long they talked of the grandeur of living in the country, far away from the smoke and confinement of the city, in the glorious fresh air, and among the splendid scenery, and all the rest of the things which they themselves enjoyed so much during the few summer months when they gave up their city houses and spent their time "in the open." The people to whom they spoke did not always see it in the same light as they did. For one thing, they hadn't so much money to spend, and so could not live so well, even in the country, as the dukes and duchesses. For another thing, they had to live in the country all the time, winter as well as summer; in the long dreary nights as well as in the bright, sunshiny days; when there were no pleasures or amusements as well as when the "gentry" were there to impart a certain amount of spice to life. So the real country folk did not always rise to the exhortations regarding the splendor of the estate to which they were called.

COUNTRY LIFE'S NEEDS.

Now Her Grace the Duchess of Atholl says that the social life of the country needs brightening up. She would have libraries, choral societies, women's institutes, and young people's organizations of various kinds. Also, she would do something about the teachers. It is too bad, she says, that some young teachers should get stuck down in small country places all their lives, and get out of touch with the latest methods in their own profession, as well as with books, and enlightenment and progress generally; while others spend all their time in the cities, where they have the advantage of all the public libraries, all the newspapers and magazines, and all the meetings of their fellow teachers and others, at which educational affairs are discussed. So she would have a system of exchange of teachers between town and country, so that those from the town might have the benefit—for the sake of their physical health—of the fresh air, and the scenery and other things; while those from the country might get brushed up every now and then in the latest ways of town life, and the latest methods of education.

The ideas of the duchess are all right, but they don't quite meet all the demands of the case. No amount of libraries and institutes will make the latter-day country township in Scotland other than deadly dull, simply because such a large number of its brightest spirits have already left it for the hustle and bustle of the bigger world without, because so many of the bright ones who are growing up are doing the same thing, and because even those who remain are inspired with ideas of a bigger and broader life than their forefathers ever knew. They read and think, and they get daily papers, and they know that their little world is trifling in comparison with the big busy world without, and they do not settle down to the routine so contentedly as did those who came before them. As for teachers, the duchess might get those from the country to go to the towns for spells occasionally, but she would find it a different matter to persuade those of the towns to go to the country, or to stay there for any length of time if they did go. Especially those of them who were born and brought up in the towns.

What is wrong with Scotland is that the contrast between town and country is too glaring. The town is too big and the country village and township is too small. Life has been drifting towards the big towns far too much for generations back, and the process has not yet been checked. It will never be checked by attempts to improve the social life of the country, and to make existence in the country more enjoyable. It may be checked, however, by the establishment of new industries in the country areas, by the settlement on the land of as many people as the land will support, by the utilization in every area of its own waterpower, or its own coal to run the aforesaid new industries or to grind the grain grown by its own people; and by the running of light railways and motor roads into all the out-of-the way places, for the transport of the articles manufactured and the stuff grown to the markets in the bigger centres. The country will be saved, not by social institutes and entertainments, but by industries. If these come the social side of country life may be left to take care of itself.

We have been doing honor to two of our great writing men—in the one case directly and in the other indirectly. The Robert Louis Stevenson Club has been started in Edinburgh, and so that ornament of Scottish literature has been placed on a pedestal similar to those already occupied by Burns and Scott. Each of the three now has clubs devoted to the study of his writings. Burns, of course, has any number of clubs, but it is to be feared that many of them exist only for the annual dinner, and do little else to keep the memory of the poet alive. The Stevenson Club in Edinburgh will be more of the Scott kind. It already has 600 members who will take a special interest in the life and books of the novelist. It is 25 years since Stevenson died in the far-off South Pacific island to which he had to go to escape the climate of his native land, and to preserve his life as long as possible. He was famous long before he died, and was recognized as in the true line of succession from Scott. The wonder is that his admirers in Scotland have not done something long before now in the way of a club or a memorial of some other kind.

Indirectly we have also been honoring Burns. His Highland Mary, about whom he wrote a beautiful song, was buried in the Auld Kirkyaird of Greenock, which was, therefore, a sort of Mecca for Burns enthusiasts. But a big shipbuilding firm wanted more elbow room, and they got powers from Parliament to include the Auld Kirkyaird in their works. So the dust of Highland Mary had to be removed to the New Cemetery of Greenock. This has been done reverently and with the greatest care, by representatives of the Federation of Burns Clubs and of the Greenock Burns Club (which is the oldest of the lot), and the "dear departed shade" made immortal by the poet rests in new soil and in prettier surroundings. There was a long fight in Greenock before the shipbuilding firm got their way. The local people and the Burns Clubs were strongly against meddling with the Auld Kirkyaird and the Auld Kirk, but the demands of industry were too powerful, the shipbuilding firm are not only reverently removing all the dust in the Kirkyaird, but they are also re-erecting the kirk itself on a new site, so that the town has nothing to complain of. But it is curious that so much is said and done now about one whose only title to fame is that Burns wrote a song about her. Less was made of Burns himself in his life-time.

Speaking—as we were doing some paragraphs ago — of Scottish rural life, Mr. Robert Munro, K.C., Secretary for Scotland in this present Government, says that there is a big decline in the acreage of the land in Scotland devoted to the growing of wheat. As compared with 1919 there is less this year by more than 31 per cent. This is a curious and even alarming condition of affairs. Mr. Munro says it is explained by the extremely unfavorable weather which we had in November and December of last year, especially in the principal wheat-growing areas, and also by the higher prices that can be got for other crops. That may be, but it is a serious matter all the same. In the last year or two of the war, we thought we were becoming more and more self-supporting in the matter of grain and all kinds of farm produce, and there were some hopeful people who saw the time coming when we would be independent of imports. Now we have got a set-back, and it looks as if we will soon be growing less of everything than we did before the war. That is not exactly encouraging to the idea of increased rural prosperity, but perhaps it is only the reaction after the war, and after we have settled down we may do better. We may, in any case, console ourselves just now with that hope.

"Watch Your Salary Grow"

Astonishing Income-Increase Demonstration--- Success of New Campaign For Personal Prosperity---Enthusiastic Reports From All Over the Country.

"WATCH your salary grow" Is the rallying-cry of our great campaign for personal prosperity which has just been inaugurated.

Every man and woman in the land is feeling the need for greater earning power, and it is the object of this campaign to meet that need and enable every one to raise his or her income to the desired standard.

100 per cent., 200 per cent., and—in some cases—300 per cent. and even greater increases of income are reported by those who have already adopted the means explained below, a means which is open to every Canadian, and of which the fullest particulars are today offered free.

Possibilities are, today, enormous. In every business, in every profession, in every trade and occupation, progress is being made at a tremendous rate, and everywhere splendid salaries are being offered to those who show efficiency.

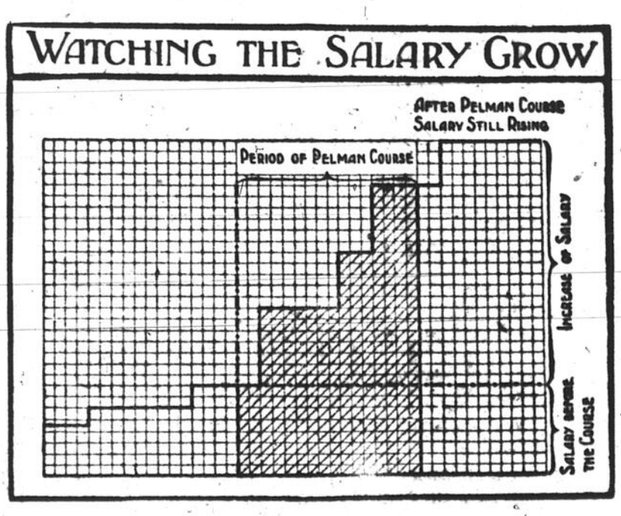
This chart has been drawn strictly to scale by a professional man who has scientifically trained his mind by Pelmanism.

His progress, before he took the course, was slow, and the increases in salary he received were small.

Directly he began to Pelmanise, however, his progress was rapidly accelerated and within a short period he received three large increases in pay.



The above chart, which has been drawn strictly to scale, shows how Pelmanism accelerated the progress in income-earning power of the writer of the article printed above. It will be seen that in the period before he took the course the writer's progress although regular, was slow, and the increases in salary he received small. Directly he began to follow the course, however, his progress was rapidly speeded up, and within a short period he received three large increases in pay. After completing the course he received another raise and his salary is now nearly four times as large as it was before he began to Pelmanise. Readers who wish to follow the example of this gentleman should write today to the Pelman Institute, 774 Temple Building, Toronto, Canada, (or call personally if possible), for full particulars of this famous course. This will be forwarded by return mail to any address without charge or obligation.

Not an Isolated Case

This was no "flash in the pan," for, as will be seen from the diagram after completing the Course, he secured another increase, so that his income is now nearly four times as large as it was before he adopted Pelmanism. Here is what he writes:—"In pre-Pelman days I was just an underling. Long before I had completed the Course I was promoted to a position of responsibility and trust at the head of other men. Here I found ample scope for many newly-acquired initiative, and I continued the study of Pelmanism with ever-increasing delight and progress. My Salary today is nearly 300 per cent. higher than when I commenced to Pelmanise. I have drawn a chart strictly to scale, showing exactly how Pelmanism accelerated my personal progress. The man who designated Pelmanism "the short cut to success" was assuredly right in his judgment."

This is not an isolated case, hundreds of similar cases are recorded in the huge mails which arrive several times daily at the Pelman Institute. One man recently made $5,000, from a single idea which materialized by Pelman methods. These methods are explained in full detail in the literature which every reader can obtain to-day gratis and post free by using the coupon printed below. Mail this coupon today to The Pelman Institute, Canadian Branch, Suite 774, Temple Building, Toronto, Canada.

REAL ESTATE AND BUILDING NEWS

The building permits issued in Montreal during the month of November total 148, having a total value of $612,810, of which 50 are for repairs to the value of $62,905, and 98 for new constructions to the value of $550,905.

Amongst the principal enterprises covered by these permits are the C. N. R. depot on Boyce and Sherbrooke streets, valued at $36,700; a new branch of the Hochelaga Bank at the corner of Ontario street and Piex IX avenue, to cost $50,000; the Hebrew Maternity Hospital on Esplanade avenue, to cost $75,000, and a building on Park avenue to contain 29 dwellings, at an estimated cost of $80,000.

The proposal of the Protestant Board of School Commissioners to ask the Legislature for an increase in the Protestant School tax from seven to ten mills, makes a table of the school tax rate in other Canadian cities quite timely. The Star, for the general information of the readers of this column, has compiled from Wood, Gundy & Co.'s book on Canadian municipal statistics the following figures:

City or Town.	School Tax mills.
Vancouver	5.9
Victoria	2.95
New Westminster	11.6
Calgary	10.2
Edmonton	8.80
Regina	9.1
Saskatoon	13.65
Winnipeg	5.7
Brandon	7.3
Toronto	7.9
Hamilton	9.0

Moncton	8.0

Forced sales in the District of Montreal, as announced by the Superior Court this week:

December 30—To be sold at the church door of the parish of Beloeil: Lots on Cadieux, Rinfret and Cartier Boulevard. Other lots on Cadieux, Rinfret, Montee des Trentes, and Cartier Boulevard. All the lots are sub-divisions of lot No. 26 of the official plan and book of reference of the parish of Beloeil.

December 30—To be sold at Sheriff Lemieux's office: Lots on Second avenue, Viauville. Seventy-one lots in Pte. aux Trembles.

Many rent payers in Montreal dream vaguely of someday owning homes of their own but few have concrete ideas of how to set about the materialization of their dreams without a large capital. To throw light on the subject The Star asked the Wilder Bermingham Realty Co to draw up figures of a sample transaction for the purchase of a $10,500 house, payment to extend over a number of years. Such a house could be bought by the person who now pays from $75 to $100 per month rent.

Taking a house worth the sum mentioned, the buyer would be expected to pay from $1,000 to $3,000 as initial payment. Concretely taking the sum of $2,000 as the first instalment, the balance of $8,500 would be carried on mortgage at 7 per cent. During the first year the purchaser would be expected to reduce this balance by at least $500. He must pay the interest $593 and about $60 for taxes, making a total of $1,153.00. The $500 payment each year reduces the capital balance and interest charges, so that in seven years, he has reduced his mortgage to $5,000 which he can leave as a permanent first mortgage, or if he so desires, can pay it off in full.

If he had continued to pay rent at $100 per month for seven years, he would have paid out $8,400 and have nothing to show for it, whereas, by purchasing now, on the basis above shown, he will live in his own home, and at the end of seven years, will have paid off more than half the original cost.

Building materials are slowly coming down in price, according to a member of a prominent firm of contractors of this city who anticipates an unusually busy season next year for factory construction. So far lumber is the first requisite of the builder to go down, but it is expected that considerable reductions in paint prices will also be made in the near future, as the result of the steady decline in raw material. Cement is another important item with the contractor, and just as it kept pace with the prodigious jump of soft coal during the summer, so it is anticipated that with the return of coal prices to normal, cement will come back to its original price.

This contractor was not of the opinion that wages would be lowered, but he did think that further increases were improbable. He was also of the opinion that with the slackening of industries and the large number of men out of employment greater efficiency would be obtained from workmen. For a long time, he said complaints had been received that those employed at the higher wages were not accomplishing as much as in the old days, and he considered that with greater competition for positions more work would be done, and it would probably be better done than formerly. The industries which were now contemplating expanding their plants were not those which had flourished as war-time industries, but many of them had been conducting quietly successful businesses and had awaited until the time was favourable for building before constructing additions to their plants. As far as possible these concerns were using structures already built, many of those constructed which had been for the manufacture of war material, but the majority of firms were building for themselves.

As far as paint prices are concerned opinions vary as to the amount of the predicted drop. A Montreal manufacturer says that although there is practically no business in selling paint now, as buyers are expecting a decrease in price, manufacturers are going to wait until the bottom of the market in raw materials has been reached before changing their lists. For some time oil and all other materials of which paint is made, have been dropping steadily, and makers do not wish to lower their rates, only to drop again in a short time. Neither do they wish to lower them and then raise them, thus introducing an element of speculation in the paint market. It will therefore probably be some little while before the new quotations are settled.

According to information supplied by E. Drinkwater, C. E. Town Engineer and Director of Housing for St. Lambert, it can be said that the Housing Scheme under the provincial and federal Acts, is now in full working order in St. Lambert. Dwellings are being erected and the advances from the Government are coming forward. The amount allocated to the town from the provincial loan is $200,000, although application was made for a million dollars. The local housing department has received applications for practically the whole sum granted by the Government.

Mr. Drinkwater stated that the construction of dwellings at the present time is proceeding along two lines, viz.—by a housing company and by individuals who own their own lots. At the present time the housing company has in various stages of erection, eight dwellings—three pairs of semi-detached and two detached. Eight dwellings for individuals are in hand, with one completed. The company have been granted a loan of $100,000 by the municipality and it will build about thirty houses.

This Company has been organized under the Provincial Art of 1914 and is entitled to a loan of 5 per cent on dwellings costing $4,000 or $4,500 according to the class of construction. A special form of contract has been approved by the Provincial department whereby the company may transfer the dwellings when completed, to approve individuals under the same conditions as if they built the dwellings on their own lots.

The dwellings being erected under the individual loan are all of solid brick construction. Some are being built by contract and others by the owners themselves. The loans on the houses are made in six instalments at the various stages of construction.

Most of the dwellings are being built according to plans and specifications prepared by the local Director of Housing. Some individuals have, however, prepared their own plans. There will be no obstacle placed in the way of people carrying out their own designs provided they comply with the requirements of the law governing these loans.

The Provincial Department is giving the broadest interpretation of the law and this, says Mr. Drinkwater, will make the administration easy and effective.

Owing to the present cost of building it is not possible to provide the street improvements from the Housing Loans, but this work when necessary is being done by the Municipality. The cost of the houses will run from $4,500 to $5,000 each and the loan in most cases is $3,600, for twenty years, interest at $5 per cent and a sinking fund interest and sinking fund will be paid half yearly.

FLORIDA'S FARMS GO ABOUT FRUIT RAISING OUR WAY.

IN FLORIDA, THE LAND OF PERPETUAL FARMING

The growing of the Temple Orange is more profitable than any other sound commercial business that we know of. It not only commands the highest market price, but it is a more delicious—a more beautiful fruit—than any other orange grown. THE TEMPLE TERRACE Citrus Fruit development is a genuine business proposition; backed by successful Florida business men, who know local conditions. It is the highest class fruit development in the state.

Located on the estate of the Late Mrs. Potter Palmer, only six miles from the famous Tampa-Bay, it is a charming place for a winter or all year round home, and will stand the fullest investigation from any angle.

Let us prove this statement to you.

GLOOMY FORECAST OF FLOUR TRADE

WINNIPEG, Dec. 4.—(Star Special).—The general manager of the Great Milling Company in discussing the flour trade yesterday, said that the milling business in Canada was in a bad way at the present time. Export business was at a standstill and many of the large plants were closed down for lack of orders. The only outlet is supplying very limited demand from the United States. He further stated that though domestic stocks were light there was a very poor domestic inquiry, the impression among dealers evidently being that prices were going lower and this made the trade timid. Many in the grain trade believe that bearish factors in grain are pretty well discounted.

COLBY TO VISIT SOUTH AMERICA

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—(United News).—Secretary of State Colby to-day set sail for South America from Norfolk, aboard the dreadnought Florida. He left Washington late Friday on the Presidential yacht Mayflower, on which he travelled down the Potomac to Norfolk. A number of State Department officials and diplomats from South American countries accompanied Colby to the yacht, whose small guns fired a farewell salute. Before that a formal good-bye was tendered the Secretary and his party at the Pan-American Union.

Colby is to return visits from Brazil, Argentine and Uruguay, as representative of the President.

Danderine is "Beauty-Tonic"

Immediately after a "Danderine" massage, your hair takes on new life, lustre and wondrous beauty, appearing twice as heavy and plentiful, because each hair seems to fluff and thicken.

Don't let your hair stay lifeless, colorless, plain or scraggly. You, too, want lots of long, strong hair, glistening with beauty.

MOSES INSPIRED OR KNEW SCIENCE

According to Sir Bertram Windle's View of Creation

"If Moses were not inspired, he must have known as much as we do about science," was the conclusion arrived at by Sir Bertram Windle, M.A.M.D., D.Sc., LL.D., in his lecture last evening on the origin of man. The origin in which life is said, by the Mosaic account, to have appeared on earth coincides, he said, with the order given to it by modern science, and it had been shown that the chances of anyone putting eight consecutive events in their proper order haphazard were forty to one against.

Most students of the Mosaic order of creation took a too anthropomorphic view of the Creator. He was not to be considered as a very learned and powerful Person sitting down every morning thinking what He was going to do that day. All creation was done once for all and there was no past or future for the Creator.

The only alternative to the very lateral interpretation of the scriptures which was current in Milton's days was to be found in the theory of evolution. This theory was supposed to be the invention of Darwin, but this was wrong. Several Greek writers had hinted at it, and St. Augustine of Hyppo had clearly announced his belief in the evolution of species, when he taught that all living things were created potentially, in the beginning, in such a way that their forms might become visibly exposed to the world in after years, just as the full grown tree was contained potentially in the seed newly planted. God created all living things, in creating certain primordial forms from which all existing forms of life have sprung.

DEVELOPMENT OF THEORY.

Having disposed of the religious aspect of the question the lecturer then turned to the actual development of the theory of evolution. Whereas Darwin had taught the principle of natural selection, Lamarque had maintained the theory that effort brought about evolution. Thus, Darwin taught that in times of famine the longest necked animals survived by reason of their being able to reach leaves too high up for their shorter necked companions, and heredity working thereafter produced a long necked species known as the giraffe, while long repeated efforts to reach the highest leaves caused elongated necks amongst animals in certain regions, the giraffe again resulting.

Much controversy about Darwin had at last resulted in a fairly general opinion that his natural selection could originate nothing. The gardener's careless trimming explained the presence of leaves on a tree, but did not explain their origin. The survival of the fittest did not explain its arrival.

Notes made by Darwin's son showed that Darwin, had at first been inclined to favor the polyphiletic theory, that the breath of life was first breathed into several different organisms at once, but towards the end of his life had turned towards the monophiletic view. The Darwinian view had been fairly strongly held until it was shaken by Weissman, who held there was no heredity, and tried to prove it by showing that amputated legs were not hereditary. He substituted germinal selection for heredity, suggesting that the original protoplasm from which life sprang was in itself subdivided into various warring elements in which a process of selection along the lines of the survival of the fittest was in progress. Nevertheless, experiments had sufficiently proved that heredity did not play an important part in the development of species.

CRAZE FOR DIAMONDS HAS COLLAPSED

London—(By mail)—Reckless diamond buying by the United States and Japan has collapsed, while the demand for precious stones, which was pronounced in England a few months ago, has also fallen off.

Speculators in the British market are faced with a slump. The decreased world demand for diamonds and the accumulated stocks have caused the dismissal of a large number of men from the South African mines.

"The industrial crisis, and the fact that Americans and Britons have overbought, are responsible for the decreased demand for previous stones," said an expert in the British diamond trade to a Daily Express representative recently. "It cannot be said, however, that the slump applies to the trade generally. The actual prices of stones are not falling, but sales are getting back to normal.

"The diamond madness of the early part of the year, when well-cut stones were fetching £150 per carat, has stopped. Fancy prices were then paid, sometimes without the goods being seen."

The merchant who takes the direct output of the mines is not affected by the slump. It is anticipated that the beginning of next year will see a revival in the trade.

SHIPPING NEWS

EXPECT RECORD IN 1921 SHIPPING

Huge Grain Stocks Await Shipment—Immigration Will Be Heavy

NEW LINERS COMING

All Montreal Lines Will Be Heavily Reinforced Next Spring

With Canada's elevators packed to overflowing with wheat and with a temporary restriction on European immigration during the present winter, next spring is expected to see the greatest development on record of Canadian ocean trade. While granting that the $250.00-in-hand restriction of immigration into Canada is a fair measure, under the circumstances, local shipping men predict that the monetary standard will be brought back to $50.00 next spring.

Havre and Antwerp are now the busiest of passenger ports in Europe and while the $250 restriction will thin out the hordes of prospective settlers, all Canadian liners from these two ports are filled to capacity in the steerage every trip.

The falling off in grain export last month is so much to be added to the export movement next spring. Every available lake boat will be employed in bringing down the grain from the terminal elevators to Montreal. Farmers holding their grain during the present slump will have released their grain by that time.

TEN NEW LINERS.

With the addition of at least ten new oil burning liners to the Montreal passenger route in May, 1921, it is evident," says one shipping expert, "that Montreal port will be more than capable of transporting a record tonnage of grain to Great Britain, Greece, Italy and France."

Preparations are now under way for the launching of the second liner of the C.P.O.S., to be completed this year for the Atlantic service. The new liner is to be named the Montrose and like her sister ship the Montcalm, which will make her maiden voyage to Montreal next May, is an oil burner of 16,400 tons, larger than any boat which has yet docked in Montreal.

It is not known yet who will have the honor of christening the new liner. Mr. Bosworth, president of the C.P.O.S., stated to The Star last evening that the final arrangements had been left in the hands of Sir Thomas Fisher. The latter is expected to arrive at Liverpool tomorrow on the Empress of France.

The White Star line has three new liners for the Montreal service next spring, all over sixteen thousand tons, namely, the Regina, Rimouski and Calgary. The Anchor-Donaldson Line will have two liners of over sixteen thousand tons, namely the Athenia and Letitian, reviving the names of those lost on war service. In addition to these the Cunard line after an absence of six years has decided to return to the Montreal route with three large oil burners of the type of Albanian and Scythian.

CANADIAN GRAIN STOCKS.

Grain stored in Canadian Terminal elevators 27 November, 1920 as compared with 28 November, 1919 is itemised as follows: and shows over ten million more bushels of wheat in the country than last year.

1920—Bushels		1919—Bushels
Wheat.....	14,326,152	Wheat.. ..	4,316,648
Oats.....	3,783,451	Oats	2,326,933
Barley.. ..	824,254	Barley ..	1,018,024
Flax.....	753,797	Flax	225,096
Rye.....	282,952	Rye.	243,945

HAVRE DIVERSION.

Another division of the Liverpool liners to Havre for steerage passengers has been made by the C.P.O.S. liner Melita due at St. John, N.B. 5 p.m. today. On her last trip here the Mignedosa from Liverpool also called at Havre so that the continental port is beginning to oust Liverpool as an embarkation point for emigrants. The Melita's passenger list is as follows: From Liverpool, 203 cabin and 89 steerage; from Havre, 52 cabin and 1,343 steerage. Other C.P.O.S. movements are:

Corsican from London due St. John, N.B. Monday afternoon.

Grampian from Montreal arrived London 7 p.m. Thursday.

LAST MEGANTIC TRIP.

The Megantic which left Liverpool Dec. 1st with 35 first class, 145 second class and 1,218 third class passengers, will arrive at Halifax next Tuesday and at Portland Wednesday.

This is the Megantic's last north Atlantic trip prior to commencing her famous southern cruise to the West Indies. After clearing from Portland the Megantic will go to New York and be put in shape for the winter cruise. Many Canadians are expected to leave with the White Star liner when she starts out on January 22. Fans are, in the meantime, to be installed in every cabin and other conveniences which are favored in tropical zones.

Other White Star movements are:

CARRIED MORE IN 1920.

An all round increase in passenger traffic in 1920, both east and west bound, is shown by Anchor-Donaldson Line figures given to The Star this morning. In both cabin and steerage the increase is very noticeable, but the figures relate to abnormal conditions last year when the Government took over considerable cabin and steerage space for the return of soldiers' dependents. The passenger traffic returns for the season just closed as compared with 1920 are as follows:

1920—Westbound		1919—Westbound
Cabin.....	2,857	Cabin	1,518
Steerage.....	8,178	Steerage	372
Eastbound.		Eastbound.
Cabin.....	2,324	Cabin	2,121
Steerage.....	3,301	Steerage	1,440

Westbound military dependents in 1919 repatriated via the Anchor-Donaldson liners to Montreal totalled, 433 first, 918 second and 12,738 third class.

C. G. M. M. MOVEMENTS.

Canadian Gunner arrived at Halifax yesterday from B. W. I. Canadian Importer, bound for the Mediterranean from Australia with oats was reported at Port Said yesterday. Canadian Ranger arrived at Halifax yesterday from Liverpool. Canadian Recruit arrived yesterday at St. John's, Nfld., from Montreal. Canadian Rover from Montreal passed Quebec yesterday. Canadian Spinner has been switched from the South American route and left Halifax yesterday for Glasgow. The latter ship had just completed a record run from Santos, Brazil to Halifax in 18 days.

CANADIAN FLOUR IN AFRICA.

The Canadian flour is now being distributed among the Peninsula millers, and the public will have an opportunity of testing it when they get their bread on Monday morning, as it will be mixed with the flour out of which these loaves will be made. The Canadian flour is of good quality, but is a little darker than the flour milled in South Africa. Australian flour, a little of which has been used locally, is, on the other hand, said to be of poor quality.—Natal Advertiser.

PROLONG EXPRESS RATES HEARING

Expert Says Dom. Express Co. Position More Favorable Than Shown

OTTAWA, Dec. 4.—All hope of concluding the express rates inquiry this week was abandoned at the close of the sitting yesterday of the Railway Board. Although the present series of sittings was called for Tuesday, ostensibly for the purpose of hearing argument by counsel, the taking of additional evidence and the filing of revised statements has been steadily proceeded with for four days. At five o'clock yesterday the evidence was still unfinished.

In view of the situation and the fact that he has to be in the Maritime Provinces on Monday to attend a meeting at which matters relating to coal will be considered, Chief Commissioner Carvell suggested that the hearing of evidence be finished tomorrow and an adjournment taken until the following Thursday or Friday. To this proposal counsel agreed.

Colonel H. D. Lockhart Gordon, D. S.O., the financial expert in the case for Toronto City, witness at the afternoon sitting, produced figures and computations purporting to show the position of the Dominion Express Company, both present and prospective, to be more favorable than is set forth in the statements submitted by the company in the case. He claimed, for instance, that for the year commencing on May 1 last, when a new wage scale went into effect, the company operating under present rates would have a deficit of only $165,000. The company has not submitted any statement covering this particular twelve months but claims that rate increases of at least thirty-three per cent. are required if it is to avoid a deficit on the 1921 operations.

Colonel Gordon's calculations included profits made on the overseas business and the chief commissioner raised a point as to whether these profits could be fairly taken into account.

The fussy old fellow was making a journey on a branch line, at the best not particular as to punctuality. The train had slowed down again after stopping several times. The old gentleman's patience became exhausted and, taking out his watch, he said to a fellow passenger: "How much is this train overdue?"

THE RECORDS OF WINTER ARE UNKNOWN AT SOUTHERN PINES
NORTH CAROLINA
"In the heart of the long leaf pine country"
THE greatest appeal of Southern Pines is its climate. The air is clear and bracing, with balmy warmth that never enervates. Combined with this the community has the purest water supply in America and perfect sanitation. Southern Pines is located midway between New York and Florida on the "Capitol to Capitol" highway.
No southern resort offers better opportunity for outdoor recreation and sport. Among them are GOLF, TENNIS, DRAG-HUNTS, FOX HUNTING, HORSEBACK RIDING, SHOOTING and perfect roads for automobiling and driving. THE SOUTHERN PINES COUNTRY CLUB has one of the best and sportiest 18 hole golf courses in the South, with Emmet French, Professional, in charge. Indoor entertainment features include dances at the hotels, Country Club and Casino. Card parties, lectures and musicales.
SOUTHERN PINES SEASON FROM DECEMBER TO MAY
Numerous hotels and boarding houses afford every convenience and luxury. Strictly modern in equipment. Southern Pines entertains no tubercular patients. Exceptional train service from the North via Seaboard Air Line. Winter homes, cottages, bungalows, as well as inn and farm lands for rent and sale.

ROUTE OF OUR 13,320 MILE WINTER CRUISE

WOMEN'S WORK

...nance of Y.W.C.A. Began in Drawing-Room in Montreal

...rty-seven years ago a number of ...es met in the drawing room of ...rs. John Stirling, in this city, to consider the needs of girls, particularly those who were strangers to Montreal, and young women dependent on their own exertions for support. That meeting was the birth of the first Y. W. C. A. in Canada, for to Montreal belongs the credit of initiating the movement in the Dominion. It is a far cry from the little house in Metcalfe street, the early home of the Association with its membership of 80 to the beautiful building replete with every modern feature and a membership of upwards of 3,000, opened by His Excellency the Governor-General yesterday afternoon. The intervening span is at once the history of the growth of a wonderful organization and the story of the development of the social conscience of the city and Dominion.

Within a year the infant Y. W. C. A. had outgrown its quarters and a larger house had been secured in St. Catherine street. Amongst the earliest chronicled activities of the little band of pioneer workers were the establishment of a boarding home, the organization of an employment department, the opening of a library and reading room, the beginning of evening classes and the formation of Bible study groups. Later in connection with the hospitals, training courses for nurses were organized. Dr. W. Osler being one of the first lecturers. Classes for the training of girls in house work were also established. The first president was Mrs. P. D. Brown, afterwards succeeded by Mrs. John MacDougall. The first secretary, Mrs. Clarke Murray, and the first life member, Miss Annie Morrice.

The next development was the opening of a Working Girls' branch on City Councillors street, which later moved its quarters to 161 Fortification Lane. An interesting light is thrown on the work of this time by the following figures: for 10 cents a girl obtained sleeping accommodation; for a similar sum, lunch; and for five cents breakfast or tea.

In 1879, the Association moved to 181 Mansfield street, and in 1882 to Haight House, 101 Mansfield, the new quarters affording boarding accommodation for 32 girls.

Various other prominent organizations had their birth in Y. W. C. A. activities at this time. In 1880, the Diet Dispensary, which does such excellent work in Montreal today was started, and continued a part of the Association until 1890, when it became a separate organization. The Day Nursery was also initiated by the Y.W.C.A. in 1886,—a house being secured in Mountain street, where a day nursery, free kindergarten and training school for the young was held, remaining part of the Association's work for 14 years.

At the time of the Northwest Rebellion the Y.W.C.A. did its first war work organizing ... provide warm clothing for the Montreal Garrison Artillery and in 1889 the educational department ... ised and classes in shorthand, French, German, literature, history, dressmaking and millinery were established. The physical department, now such a great feature, was inaugurated in 1891, with the opening of gymnasium classes, and the following year under the regime of Miss Harriet Ternay, who then took up the office of general secretary, the work branched out into many other lines including travellers' aid and club work. A branch was opened at Fairmount, branch homes established in St. Famille and Mackay streets, a home secured at Lachine and the work later extended to Knowlton. Past presidents living are:—Miss E. F. DeWitt, 1887-1892; Mrs. J. F. Stevenson, 1892-1903; Mrs. J. F. Macfarlane, 1903-1913; Mrs. Jos. Thom, 1913-1917; and Mrs. A. Henderson Thomson, 1917-1920.

Two of the departments of Y.W.C.A. work which have grown beyond recognition are the Travellers' Aid and the Rooming Directory, a development to be expected in a city like Montreal, at once the metropolis of the East and the starting point for the West. Latest returns show that 17,041 travellers were assisted from January 1 to October 31. The present Travellers' Aid workers comprise one executive worker, four station workers and one port worker, who meet all boats and trains. By means of the Rooming Directory, temporary accommodation was found during the same period for 12,767 transients and permanent homes for 900.

Prominent developments this year have been the opening of the new annex and the new Physical Department comprising swimming pool and gymnasium. The new annex has made it possible for the Y.W.C.A. to cope with the unprecedented number of immigrants this year. It has now been taken over by the girls and provides accommodation, together with the adjoining old annex for about 60 girls. Membership of the new Physical Department already amounts to 1,200 and the number is steadily increasing.

Any account of the Y.W.C.A. development would be incomplete which omitted mention of the summer camp. The organization own a lake in the Laurentians, the Lake of St. Margaret. Last year 550 girls were accommodated and enjoyed to the full delights of fishing, boating, swimming and the joys of sleeping out-doors. Every year the number increases, and the feature is by far the most popular of many popular features of this happy organization.

DELPHIC STUDY CLUB.

"La Tosca" was the opera studied at a luncheon meeting of the Delphic Study Club held in the Blue Room, Windsor Hotel, yesterday afternoon. The program was in charge of Mrs. W. P. Ladd and Mrs. F. A. Brooks. In a thoughtful and critical speech, Mrs. Brooks said that from the old world story of Murger, Puccini had turned to a notable example of modern French stagecraft in Sardon's drama of La Tosca. As before, his librettists had been Giocoso and Illica, who had provided the composer with a strikingly apt presentation of the given story—not one that would lend itself altogether to musical expression, but one, nevertheless, that gripped the attention. In it was revealed that quick instinct of the theatre that might be called dramatic or merely a clever fitting of the music to the mood of the movement.

The story, in the speaker's opinion, was more horrible than tragic and lacked that restraint and poetry which were necessary qualities. This much must be said, however, of the opera version—it was a shade less revolting, less than the drama, and it undoubtedly provided a splendid acting role for the exponent of the name part, while the lover and the villain, were provided with opportunities very little behind, in point of vocal and dramatic effect. One could very well imagine a production on prevailing lines set upon elaboration of detail, in which Puccini's music, or a great deal of it, was used purely as incidental music. This suggestion, however, said the speaker, must in no way be taken to mean that as a whole the music of the opera lacked continuity of interest or failed to exhibit close and essential union between speech and song. Pages of striking and definite lyrical charm were to be found, but the power lay in the action which fascinated the spectator rather, the speaker felt, against his better or calmer judgment. It had in short many "live" attributes that made it a notable achievement.

A critical and illuminating analysis of the opera followed, the speaker conveying a very vivid impression of the poignant tragedy of the theme, and showing how the music attuned itself to the dramatic action and mirrored the words of the actors in the great moments of the play.

The effect of vivid drama conveyed throughout by the lecturer was heightened by the dramatic renderings of excerpts from the opera given by Miss Joan Zafara and Mr. W. W. Marshall. Miss Zafara has sung in "Tosca" at the Montreal Opera Company and Mr. W. W. Marshall studied the opera under Mr. Bozaro. Both sang with success in the difficult roles of "Tosca" and "Scarpia." Miss Sauve was an excellent and sympathetic accompanist.

A guest of honor was Mrs. Halstead, wife of the new United States Consul-General to Montreal. Mrs. Halstead, who was cordially welcomed by the president, Mrs. S. S. Underwood.

SANDWELL LECTURE.

That the artist, literary or otherwise, should not be conscious of any national function other than that of pleasing the enlightened taste of the people of his own community, was the thesis of an address by Professor B. K. Sandwell to the McGill Alumnae Association yesterday evening in the common room of the Royal Victoria College. The subject of the address was The National Function of Literature, but Mr. Sandwell argued that that which was the function of literature as a whole was not necessarily the function of the individual artist. He drew a parallel between the sphere of economics, which he explained was the only sphere which, as a professor, he was supposed to know anything about, and the sphere of literature. In economics, it had long been believed that the intelligent following by each individual of his own best interests would inevitably lead to the best interest of the community at large. On this ground, Mr. Sandwell said we had learned to distrust people who professed to be carrying on business for the benefit of the public. Even so, in literature, he thought it advisable to distrust artists who profess to carry on their art for the sake of uplifting the community or making it more moral or more religious or more temperate, or even more learned. The aim of the individual artist, in art, was simply to express the beauty which he saw around him in such a way as to make it perceptible to his fellows. If the whole body of artists, in any community, devoted themselves honestly to this purpose, they would be conferring incalculable benefits upon the community, just as the whole body of business men, pursuing their business interests with intelligence and efficiency, would be benefiting the community in the economic sphere. But the object of the individual, in both cases, was not a community object but a personal one. The artist, in a country like Canada, would not probably aim at the mere making of money because there were so many ways in which he could make it more easily; but he would aim at the expression of the beauty that was in him and would not stop to consider whether such expression would produce any ulterior effect upon his readers or the community.

To be artistic, this expression must be honest. A single such expression might not seem to be of much importance, but the collective importance of a mass of such expressions, all of them honest and all based upon the observation of the facts of nature and life in the community in which the artist lives, would constitute a national asset at least as valuable as the export trade, the educational system, and perhaps even the political institutions of the country.

The executive committee of the Julia Drummond Hostel for Business Girls has decided to hold a campaign under the patronage of Her Excellency the Duchess of Devonshire and of His Lordship, Bishop Farthing, shortly after the New Year for the purpose of raising funds for the building and its equipment. The honorary president of the campaign will be Lady Drummond, the honorary vice-president, Mrs. Farthing, and the president, Mrs. John Turnbull. The business committee which has already been organized is as follows:—

President, Mrs. John Turnbull; managing director, Mrs. L. E. Dodwell; assistant managing director, Mrs. A. R. G. Heward; secretary, Miss M. Springett; assistant secretary, Mrs. Stephens, treasurer; Mrs. Horace Pratt; assistant treasurer, Mrs. A. E. Beckett; publicity director, Mrs. F. W. Stewart; assistant publicity director, Miss K. E. Bowie; sub-committee on publicity, Mrs. W. G. Macnaughton, assisted by Mrs. Basil Lares, Mrs. Paul Sise, Mrs. K. Campbell, Mrs. Albert Mussen, literature director, Mrs. Warwick Chipman, assisted by Mrs. Gilbert Ferrabee and Miss Ethel Raynes; sales director, Miss M. Ainsley, assisted by Mrs. G. Ross Robertson and Mrs. W. Cowan; consulting committee, Bishop Farthing, Edward C. Pratt and F. W. Stewart.

A meeting will be held at the Synod on Thursday, December 9 at 10.30 a.m. to arrange special names and other committees.

AMERICAN WOMEN'S CLUB.

Howard S. Ross will address the American Women's Club next Wednesday at 3 p.m. in the Blue Room, Windsor Hotel, on "Are Equal Freedom and Equal Opportunity Desirable and Possible." Mrs. Jerome B. Bell will have charge of the musical program.

HEBREW LADIES' RELIEF.

The Hebrew Ladies' Relief Society will hold a general meting on Sunday at 2.30 p.m. at the Auditorium Hall, 229 Ontario street west, when arrangements will be made for the 13th annual ball.

NEEDLEWORK GUILD.

The annual meeting of the Needlework Guild of Canada, Montreal branch, was held at Stevenson Hall, Drummond street, yesterday afternoon. Mrs. H. A. Lafleur, president; Mrs. T. Stoker, hon. secretary, and the other officers were re-elected with the exception of Mrs. H. S. Birkett, hon. treasurer, whose resignation after 16 years devoted service was accepted with great regret, Miss Wanklin being appointed to the office. Over 3,337 garments, including $825 from the French section, were collected and the sum of $550. Sorel branch contributed over 167 garments. The total receipts will be distributed among 37 deserving institutions. The president emphasized the need for new workers.

ALUMNI MEETING.

The Strathcona Academy Alumni Association will hold a general meeting at the school in Monday evening, Dec. 6, at 8:15. The main business will be the election of officers. After the meeting an informal dance will be held and refreshments will be served. All members of the association and any, who woud like to become members, are cordially invited to attend this meeting.

A Mediterranean mollusk is locally called the silk worm of the sea, as it spins a fiber from which clothing and hosiery can be made.

SUPREME COUNCIL WILL NOT STAND FOR CONSTANTINE

Decide To Withdraw Financial Support if Ex-King Restored

EMPHATIC STAND

Even Consider Territorial Reprisals Should He Be Enthroned

LONDON, Dec. 4.—The Allied Supreme Council yesterday publicly announced it would withdraw financial support from Greece should ex-King Constantine be returned in the plebiscite of Sunday. The council considered territorial reprisals should he be enthroned.

The council also decided the Allied premiers should meet a fortnight hence to discuss conditions as they exist after the Greeks register their choice in the plebiscite.

Briefly summarized, the position of the Allies is that they want to warn the Greeks vigorously that their Government must conform to a great extent, to the wishes of the Allies, and that if the admonitions in Thursday's note and yesterday's statement relative to the withdrawal of financial support, are ineffective, the Allies are prepared to take even sterner measures, which were discussed yesterday. As the Sevres Treaty has not been ratified it is within the powers of the Allies to modify it, and they are keeping this fact to the fore, at least as regards Smyrna. It is known that some of those at the conference yesterday expressed the belief that Smyrna would be safer, from the Allied standpoint, in Turkish hands than in the hands of the Greeks under Constantine. The wish was expressed, however, not to go so far as to threaten the Greeks before the plebiscite with retaking part of the territory allotted them under the Sevres Treaty.

While the premiers are in accord that the sternest measures should be taken if Constantine is returned, they have not agreed on what stand to take if the Greeks choose Prince George for their king. In any event they consider another conference soon will be necessary to decide definitely what shall be done if Constantine wins or what steps shall be taken if the Greeks vote otherwise.

Today the conference will discuss German reparations.

READY TO FIX PENALTIES.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—(United News.) All that remains for the Allies to do in regard to setting the Greek problem, in the opinion of Premier Leygues, is to fix the penalties in the event the Government at Athens persists in setting up the Constantine regime. Leygues was manifestly satisfied with the decision of the entente as embodied in the note to Greece. He declared, in an interview with the Paris Temps, that the Allies had been obliged to show in a striking manner the existing solidarity of purpose among them.

As to fixing the "penalties" for Constantine's return, he declared this would not be difficult, and that the disposition of the Sevres treaty would provide the only important problem.

GREEKS GIVEN JOLT.

ATHENS, Dec. 4.—The note sent by the British, French and Italian Governments to Greece Thursday concerning the return of former King Constantine to power and the relations between them and Greece in such an event, caused consternation here. It came as a complete surprise to the Greek Cabinet.

TINO MAY COMMAND TROOPS.

PARIS, Dec. 4. — Rumors are current at Athens, according to a Foreign Office despatch, that former King Constantine intends to go to Smyrna to take command of the Greek forces, particularly if he does not reascend the throne.

CONTRACTORS' CASES SENT TO GRAND JURY

Lockwood Committee Demand Investigation—Two Indictments Voted

NEW YORK, Dec. 4. — (United News.)—The Lockwood Housing Committee, suspecting attempts to destroy incriminating evidence by alteration of the records of various builders and builders' supply combines, late Friday decided to send the matter to the extraordinary Grand Jury for investigation, and, if warranted, for indictments.

Two indictments were voted Friday against John A. Philbrick and Joseph Penny, respectively, contractors in stone work, for refusing to testify before the Lockwood committee. Each furnished bail of $1,000.

PROTEST COLLECTIONS IN AMERICAN MONEY

Canadian Merchant Marine Explains Position

OTTAWA, Dec. 4.—(Star Special.)—With reference to complaints of British importers that payment for freights on Canadian goods delivered f.o.b. Canadian ports, to be sent to ports of the British Isles on Canadian lines is often collected in American instead of Canadian dollars, the Canadian Government Merchant Marine has written to the Commissioner of Commerce Office to the effect that collections have been made by the Government line from the beginning in Canadian dollars. Complaints still come from England with regard to this practice by other lines, and it is claimed that it produces a feeling of irritation not at all conductive to the furthering of Canadian trade.

METHODISTS HELP YOUNG PEOPLE

Rev. F. B. Allnutt, pastor of the West End Methodist Church and secretary of the Montreal Methodist Union announces that the Union has made arrangements to render assistance to Methodist young people who find themselves in the city without friends, employment or church connection. The Union is prepared to give valuable counsel, to establish strangers in suitable church and social connection and to use its influence in securing situations for those desiring such. The young people's gatherings in the various churches afford splendid opportunities for forming desirable acquaintanceships and enjoying social evenings. A postcard addressed to Mr. Allnutt at St. James Methodist Church or to 416 St. Antoine street will receive prompt attention.

Imperial Oil Strike at Fort Norman, Not at Great Slave Lake

It has been stated recently, by R. A. Brooke, an oil prospector, who spent a number of years in the Mackenzie river field, that in this country the Imperial Oil Company made a rich strike which it was apparently their desire to conceal from the Canadian public. A strict construction of the interview with Mr. Brooke, reported in The Star of November 20, has created a misconception which, in justice to the Imperial Oil Company, demands correction. Since the publication of this interview, the statement has been attributed to him that the Imperial Oil Company was attempting to keep secret a strike of oil on Great Slave lake. This is entirely incorrect. It was not the intention of Mr. Brooke to suggest that the operations of the Imperial Oil Company in the immediate neighborhood of the Great Slave Lake had yet been attended with success. Mr. Brooke is not aware what results have been attained by the Imperial Oil company in that region; reference to these operations was consequently out of the question. The misconception was due to the use of the word "locality" to cover an area of considerable magnitude.

Well No. I of the Imperial Oil Company, which is situated 53 miles from Fort Norman, is some 700 miles from the Great Slave lake. The Imperial Oil Company have objected to the statement that they are attempting to conceal a strike in the neighborhood of the Great Slave lake. Mr. Brooke is taking this opportunity to state therefore, that the word "locality" in this connection was misapplied, and he wishes to make it quite clear that he does not intend, and never did intend to suggest that the oil strike, news of which the Imperial Oil Company did in fact attempt for a while to conceal, and of which Mr. Brooke had personal knowledge, was other than that at Well No. I near Fort Norman.

PAPER ASS'N ANNUAL CONVENTION PROGRAM

The use of hydroplanes and aeroplanes in modern Canadian forestry will be one of the subjects discussed at the fall meeting of the Woodlands Section of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association to be held at the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, on Wednesday and Thursday, December 8 and 9. The Laurentide Company Limited, of Grand Mere, Price Bros. and Company, of Quebec, and the Spanish River Pulp and Paper Mills, of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., are all employing aerial machines in fire patrol and photography work, and their operatives are expected to contribute to the discussion.

Other features will be an address by Dr. C. D. Howe, of the University of Toronto, on "What Can Be Done With a Few Culled Acres"; a report on the Imperial Forestry Conference held in London this year by Ellwood Wilson, president of the Canadian Forestry Engineers; a discussion of the comparative advantages of planting, seeding and natural re-growth in reforestation, by R. O. Sweezy, of Montreal, and an address on "Forestry Progress in Sweden," by Helge Graeslund, a graduate of the Stockholm University, and a member of the staff of Kramford Antiebolag, Kramfors, one of the largest pulp producers in Sweden, who is spending some months in Canada investigating pulp and paper conditions here.

The Woodlands Section is one of the most important branches of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association, and is composed of practically woodsmen from all over Canada. Gen. J. B. White, who commanded the Canadian Forestry Battalion in France during the war, is its chairman, and will preside over the meetings; and A. L. Dawe, of Montreal, is the secretary and executive officer.

This will be the first meeting of the Section held outside Quebec, and is expected to appeal to many in Ontario, where forestry is rapidly becoming a live public topic. All the meetings are open to the public.

MACVICAR MEMORIAL CHURCH

Special services will be held in MacVicar Memorial Church tomorrow, when the Rev. A. G. Runnells, M.A., of Fairmount Methodist Church, will preach on "Christian Imperialism." The Stanley Church Male Quartette will sing. At the evening service the pastor, Rev. J. T. Patten, M.A., will occupy the pulpit. Master Norman Estell, boy soprano, of London, England, will sing.

PICKED DANDELION.

NEWMAN CLARK FOUND GUILTY

Jury Included Recommendation of Mercy in Verdict—Sentence Today

ANDOVER, N.B., Dec. 4 (Star Special)—Last night the jury, after being out five hours and fifteen minutes, brought in a verdict of guilty with a recommendation of mercy against Newman Clark, for the murder of Phoebe Bell. hTe judge withheld sentence until today. None of Clark's relatives were present when the verdict was given. Clark showed more signs of nervousness than he did during any part of the trial, and was removed to his cell immediately after the jury gave their verdict.

HOOVER PLEADS FOR AID FOR SUFFERERS

Declares 3,500,000 Children in Dire Need in Europe

BOSTON, Dec. 4.—Herbert Hoover today presented to a gathering of business men and women here an appeal to supply the needs of three and a half millions of youthful sufferers by the war in Eastern and Central Europe. The occasion marked the formal opening in New England of a campaign which is to be conducted throughout the United States for $23,000,000 which it is estimated will be required to keep the children alive until the next harvest.

"These are children of friend and enemy, of Jew and Gentile, of Catholic and Protestant," said Mr. Hoover. "No matter what conflict there may be as to our views on our international relationships, this mass of children is no part of our contentions."

PUSSY PELTS.

Quite the very latest fashion is to have umbrellas trimmed with fur. Pelts of all kinds are at present scarce and expensive, and in the search for a cheap skin suitable for such trimmings choice has fallen on the humble pussy.

More than 30,000 starving cats are rescued from the streets of London every year, their lives painlessly ended, and their fur sold to make gloves, hats, muffs, stoles, coats and the miscellaneous odds and ends which the fashion of the season dictates.—Daily Chronicle.

ALGONQUIN PARK IN WINTER.

A handsome illustrated booklet entitled "Enjoy Winter in Ontario Highlands" has been issued by the Grand Trunk Railway. The publication deals with winter sports in Algonquin Park, and gives particulars of the well known Highland Inn, which offers first class accommodation to visitors. Write for copy of booklet to M. O. Dafoe, 230 St. James St., Montreal.

Winter Employment

There are many domestics who, if they have not found a place for the winter by this time, give up the hunt as a bad job, believing all the desirable places are already taken.

It must be admitted that as late in the year as December it is hard to find places of the best sort for domestics, but they exist and can be found if Star Want Ads are called into play.

Try a Want Ad today and you will have employment for the winter within a few days, almost without a doubt. Others are doing it. You can, too.

Character In Furs

THE SOMETHING CALLED character is not achieved over night or created at will. It is a structure founded and maintained by performance.

No way has been invented to hurry it. But where it is attained it makes past achievement an enduring part of today and a guarantor of tomorrow.

DESJARDINS never have made any attempt to build down to a competitive price basis. Desjardins Furs are built up to a standard, excellence of pelt, design and workmanship has been our standard for forty-four years. Reasonable prices have always been maintained
