Energy: PM hints he'll act alone

OTTAWA (CP) — More signs of the tougher federal stance on energy issues have emerged with Prime Minister Trudeau's hints he is prepared, if necessary, to impose a new energy policy on the province.

His comments came Monday during a barrage of questions in the Commons from opposition members still angry at Friday's announcement of a tax increase raising the cost of gasoline and home heating oil by a half-cent a litre, or 2¼ cents a gallon.

Trudeau said the government would prefer not to use its power to impose a new oil pricing agreement, but later told the Commons that Ottawa may act unilaterally if no agreement is reached on constitutional issues by September.

Under the Petroleum Administration Act, Ottawa has the power to set prices for petroleum sold across provincial boundaries. But Alberta was recently parried with legislation giving the provincial government control of production levels.

And in Victoria, Energy Minister Marc Lalonde set the stage for a head-on confrontation with Alberta and British Columbia when he said the federal government is considering an export tax on energy despite opposition from the two provincial governments.

The Government should try to accommodate the provinces, "but there are positions when this is not possible," Lalonde said.

In other developments Monday, Trudeau said the cabinet will decide Thursday whether to approve construction of the southern section of the Alaska pipeline before the rest of the project proceeds.

SPIRIT VIOLATED

Trudeau also acknowledged NDP Leader Ed Broadbent's contention that Friday's increase violated the spirit of Liberal election promises to avoid tying Canadian energy prices to world levels.

"We are trying to get agreement on the new policy, said Trudeau. "Until that new policy is agreed upon ... we are not carrying out our election promise.

"But I hope that within a short period of time we will be carrying it out, and I am saying that there may be some disturbance in the country when we do it."

CKTS program director Ted Silver says the station will be after listeners over 30 but will retain its upbeat style.

More local news, sports

CKTS makes changes

By CAROLE TREISER

SHERBROOKE — Don't touch that dial--there are big changes in the offing at CKTS radio.

Gone is the Rocket Rod DJ who made wise cracks about his wife and mother-in-law between tunes. In his place sits Captain Announcer, replacing the jokes with a heavy dose of local news and sports.

"We plan to keep our upbeat style, but provide our listeners with more relevant information," CKTS program director Ted Silver says.

Rocket Rod and Captain Announcer are prototypes for top 40 radio station broadcasters who talk as if they were sea-sick and swallowed amphetamines instead of gravol.

Silver cut the glib in order to attract those who are 30 and over. They're the spenders in today's market and the Tele-media station has to get them to tune in if it's to survive.

"In the past 10 years, we've never been out of the red. We even had to replace most of our senior staff last month because we could no longer afford their salaries," he says.

The program director also plans to tailor much of his music programming to suit the target group. Surveys say they want more music than talk - music from the sixties and seventies - and shows spotlighting their favorite groups.

"And that's exactly what we'll give them. There's no other station in Sherbrooke that will match our programming", he says.

CKTS is presently rated third out of the six Sherbrooke stations.

To assure he won't lose the 18-30 age group - "We're number one with them" - Silver's mainstay will still be the current top 40 tunes.

"But whether we play oldies but goodies or recent hits, we suit our music to Townships tastes. We feature a lot more Kenny Rogers than a Montreal station would because our listeners like popular music with a country twist."

The station's new style is also expected to lure more French listeners. The corny jokes were a turn-off to those who are unilingual.

"Now we should have no problem breaking into that market as well. You wouldn't expect it, but the French Quebecois enjoy American music more than they do Quebecois music. American hits outsell Quebecois hits 10 to one."

Silver says CKTS has an edge over the French stations in Sherbrooke, because as an English-language station, the CRTC doesn't require it to feature French talent.

Though he won't know whether his new radio package is a hit until the ratings come out in the next few months, the broadcaster says each element of the format "has proven as good as gold".

Even the legendary voice of "Ron Radio" has yet to tarnish.

It was developed by New Yorker Allen Freed in the early 1950's. According to lore, the since-departed Freed is still beaming it through the air waves from rock-and-roll heaven.

Six months to bring BNA back, Chretien says

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Jean Chretien said Monday it would take six months to patriate the constitution after the amendments have been negotiated here.

Chretien told a Commons justice committee that a British minister in charge of commonwealth relations told him Canada would have a six month wait while the matter was sorted out by British Parliament.

He said the unnamed British minister made it clear Canada should have its problem amendments figured out all at once so the federal government does not have to keep going back to Great Britain every few months to amend another part of the constitution.

"We won't be going back to London every three months and I don't blame them (the British)," Chretien said.

The minister also told the committee senior cabinet ministers who are doing the heavy legwork in sorting out constitutional matters will meet with native leaders.

Chretien was responding to a question by Warren Allmand, a former Liberal northern affairs minister, who asked if the federal government would keep its promise to involve the Inuit, Indian and Metis communities in constitutional reform.

Chretien said he, Indian Affairs Minister John Munro and three provincial cabinet ministers would meet native representatives before the end of August.

TALKS PROGRESS

Meanwhile, Chretien gave glowing reports of progress on the talks between federal and provincial ministers which concluded after four days in Montreal.

They begin anew today in Toronto.

Despite disagreement on several major issues such as control of natural resources and control of the economy, Chretien said "it's absolutely possible for us to agree on the 12 items."

He said there are at least 16 full working sessions left.

Talks in Toronto will probably begin early in the morning, continuing through dinner and end around midnight, he said.

The ministers are trying to adopt common positions on 12 issues before Prime Minister Trudeau and 10 premiers examine them in preparation for a full constitutional meeting here Sept. 8-12.

The federal and provincial ministers are moving full-steam ahead to try and meet that time table, Chretien said.

He added that the provinces and the federal government have done more talking in the last week than they have in the last 12 years.

He discounted remarks by Progressive Conservative Ray Hnatyshyn, MP for Saskatoon West, that the federal government is holding an axe over the head of the provincial ministers by having to meet a deadline.

"The axe over the head is an axe over everybody's head including mine," Chretien said.

So far, the provinces have rejected the undisclosed federal offers for reorganizing the pricing and taxation policies. Settling the issues will not come before July 24, when Prime Minister Trudeau and Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed will try to find the agreement that eluded their respective energy ministers during a few months of intermittent negotiations.

Federal threats to impose a new tax on the export of such energy-producing products as natural gas and hydroelectric power have angered the three most westerly provinces and Quebec.

The premiers of Alberta and British Columbia said in a joint television interview Monday they will be in no mood to cooperate on constitutional change if the export tax is implemented.

Trudeau defends phrase

MONTREAL (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau, compelled by adverse Quebec reaction to the phrase "the people of Canada" in his constitutional statement of principle to provincial premiers, has defended the term in an open letter to French-language newspapers.

In a covering letter to Michel Roy, Le Devoir editor-in-chief, Trudeau said the phrase transcended "what may seem to be a simple semantic battle," and touched "the very concept of the country that we want to build together."

The letter, published today in Le Devoir and La Presse, asks Quebecers how the "complex reality of Canada can be described in simple and true terms."

"How can we translate into words whose meanings have not been perverted by centuries of hyper-nationalistic thought the will of Canadians to be the first freed of the old world of nationstates?

"Because that is what is in play. Canadians want to live together in the same country, at the bosom of a federation which groups a great political whole," Trudeau said.

BUILT COUNTRY

This political whole includes native and Inuit populations, its "two principal linguistic and cultural communities," as well as "the millions of men and women of different ethnic origins who contributed to the founding of this country."

"The people of Canada" used in the government's declaration of principle on the constitution refers to all Canadian citizens.

It refers to Canadians who, while belonging to different ethnic groups, form one political body, under one government, committed to an ideal of sharing, respectful of their diversity.

Trudeau's letter follows criticism by Quebec politicians and editorial writers that the term "the people of Canada" does not distinguish between Canada's two founding peoples.

Killer heat wave now threatens crops, water

Missouri's governor placed the National Guard on alert and declared a state of emergency Monday after the number of heat-related deaths in the state rose to 129, far more than in any of the 15 other states sweltering in an unrelenting heat wave.

Across the lower half of the U.S., people — especially the elderly and the poor — suffered from the three-week heatwave, which is expected to last for at least the remainder of the week.

The unofficial death toll country-wide — 330 at the end of last week — had nearly doubled by Monday. Among the dead were two convicts at an Illinois prison.

The heat, combined with continuing drought, posed a severe threat to livestock and crops and water conservation measures were in effect in some states. The poultry industry was especially hard hit in Arkansas, Mississippi and Florida.

Health authorities reported nearly 100 people died from the heat during the weekend in two Missouri cities alone — St. Louis and Kansas City — as the temperature reached 42 degrees Celsius.

Missouri's death toll was half again higher than the second worst-hit state, Texas, which has reported 89 heat-induced deaths. An unofficial count by The Associated Press put the country-wide death toll at 563 in 16 states.

The air-conditioned Coliseum in Macon, Ga., was opened for a second day Monday to provide emergency shelter for the poor. About 150 people sought refuge in the Coliseum Sunday.

In Memphis, Tenn., officials operating a fan-distribution program said about 500 fans have been delivered to old people since Thursday. One local fan manufacturer, Hunter Fans, donated more than 700 fans for the program.

Reagan ready as delegates cheer him on

DETROIT (CP) — Ronald Reagan joined thousands of jubilant supporters at the Republican National convention with a presidential nomination in his pocket and a vision of a bigger victory ahead.

"All of us know why we're here — the need for a crusade here today," a smiling 69-year-old Reagan told cheering, waving crowds massed Monday at the downtown Detroit hotel where he has set up penthouse headquarters.

"We are determined to make American great again."

With Reagan's arrival from the West coast, the Republican convention settled down to the political business of blasting the Democratic Congress and President Jimmy Carter, as well as mending fences in their own party before the campaign push for the Nov. 4 election.

Gerald Ford, president from 1974 to 1976, placed himself firmly on the Reagan bandwagon in an address to the 1,994 official delegates, and thousands of onlookers, who crowded the spanking new athletic arena on the Detroit River where Reagan will be elected the party nominee Wednesday night.

"I've got news for this convention and Jimmy Carter — this Republican is going to do everything in his power to elect our nominee to the presidency of the United States," Ford shouted to the cheering crowd.

CAUTION OFFERED

But Ford, who not long ago described Reagan as too conservative to win the White House in November, offered a caution to the delegates that reflected a fear the Republican party is becoming so ultra-conservative that it may suffer at the polls.

"In uniting our own party, let generosity and goodwill demonstrate for all to see that the Republican party is capable of dealing justly and tolerantly with dissent and minority opinion, for this is crucial in governing a country," Ford said.

Well before Ford's speech, delivered on his 67th birthday and the highlight of the first day's activities in the red, white and blue-decorated convention hall, lines were forming showing a split between moderates and conservatives that might dim the Republicans' chances in the fall election.

Brother Billy is a Libya foreign agent

WASHINGTON (AP) — After receiving almost $250,000 from Libya, Billy Carter, brother of the president of the United States, is officially a foreign agent for the radical Arab government.

By signing a consent order agreeing to register Monday, President Carter's outspoken younger brother resolved a civil suit by the justice department and avoided any legal penalties or fines.

While denying any wrongdoing, he disclosed that he has received $220,000 from Libya as partial payment on a $500,000 loan he said he requested in return for his services during the last two years.

The registration statement said Billy Carter isn't currently involved in any activities on behalf of Libya and has none under consideration.

In a complaint filed in U.S. District Court, the government said Billy Carter "undertook a propaganda campaign" for Libya in the United States and acted in a variety of ways "to promote Libyan foreign-policy objectives."

The younger Carter was unavailable for comment Monday, and White House officials said President Carter will have no comment.

SENATOR SHOCKED

At the Republican national convention in Detroit, Senator William Roth (Rep. Del.) called the disclosures "absolutely outrageous." He said he will seek a full investigation by the Senate governmental affairs committee to determine whether, "as an undisclosed agent for the Libyan government, Billy Carter has had any improper influence on government policy."

Billy Carter's dealings with the oil-rich North African state headed by Moammar Khadafy dates to a 1978 visit to the country. He returned last August during the 10th anniversary of the Libyan revolution and since then has organized a group called the Libyan-Arab-Georgia Friendship Society.

Blaze kills 21 patients

MISSISSAUGA, Ont. (CP) — A blaze that raced through the top floor of a nursing home so quickly it left firemen helpless killed 21 persons and injured at least 35 — three critically — Monday night in this community west of Toronto.

The fire moved so quickly through the third floor — containing infirmed or chronically-ill patients—that firemen could do little to save those already overcome by dense smoke.

Thirteen women and eight men died in the fire at the Extendicare Ltd. nursing home.

Mississauga Fire Chief Gordon Bentley said firemen had difficulty getting people out of the building: "They were mostly in wheelchairs and bedridden."

Officials said 17 victims have been positively identified but they have not released the names.

When firemen arrived, they found the sick and elderly waving sheets, pleading to be saved. Aerial ladders were used to rescue some while others were strapped in stretchers and lowered by ropes.

RCMP immune from law?

OTTAWA (CP) — Mounties "performing reasonably necessary acts in the course of duty" may be immune from prosecution under federal, provincial or municipal law, it was argued Monday in a brief to the royal commission into RCMP wrongdoing.

The brief was written by Toronto lawyer Claude Thompson and presented by another lawyer as the commissioners began hearing arguments on the legality or illegality of RCMP activities in the 1970s.

Thompson has represented RCMP officers at various stages of the three-year proceedings.

Another brief submitted by commission lawyers listed 13 laws that may have been broken by Mounties breaking into commercial or residential premises to install bugs or search for evidence.

They listed a number of possible criminal charges, among them breaking and entering, theft, and possession of housebreaking instruments, as well as violations of trespass laws, telephone laws and the Canadian Bill of Rights.

DEFENCES SERIOUS

However, they said Mounties have "serious defences" against such charges, namely that they thought they were within the law. Also, because most Mounties involved testified under protection of the Canada Evidence Act, successful prosecutions were unlikely.

Thompson argued that Mounties acting reasonably in the line of duty may be immune from criminal prosecution because they are Crown agents.

"Who would be the judge of what is reasonable conduct?" asked Mr. Justice David McDonald, commission chairman. There was no reply.

Thompson said federal and provincial attorneys-general usually decide against prosecuting policemen.

He suggested the law should be amended to give police statutory protection against prosecution.

He then argued that RCMP officers are agents of the Crown rather than, like other police, agents under the Crown.

FREE FROM PROSECUTION

As agents of the Crown, they "fall within the scope of the federal Crown's immunity from criminal prosecution" if they are acting reasonably in the line of duty.

Members of the RCMP Security Service are accountable to the solicitor-general of Canada or to the RCMP Commissioner "but not necessarily to the courts in the context of a criminal prosecution" which might prejudice a federal Crown function and impede national security.

News in brief

C.D. Howe chairman dies

MONTREAL (CP) — Robert MacLaren Fowler, 73, chairman of the executive committee of the C.D. Howe Research Institute and chairman of the royal commission on broadcasting of 1956-57, died Sunday at Hawkesbury, Ont.

Fowler, who was president of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association from 1946 to 1972, was the author, with the late Marcel Faribault, of 10 to 1, the Confederation Wager. His second book on constitutional questions is scheduled for publication this fall.

He was born in Peterborough, Ont., and took his law degree from Osgoode Hall in Toronto, where he practised for several years.

Dues kept from CLC

CALGARY (CP) — Building trade union leaders have voted to continue withholding dues from the Canadian Labor Congress, stopping a step short of calling for the withdrawal of 400,000 Canadian construction workers from the national labor organization.

After a long, emotional debate Monday, the Canadian leaders of 14 international building trades unions overwhelmingly decided that efforts to change unsatisfactory congress policies from within had proven fruitless and strong, direct action is required.

Royal drops lending rate

MONTREAL (CP) — The Royal Bank of Canada says its prime lending rate will drop half a percentage point to 12.75 per cent from 13.25 per cent, effective next Monday.

The decline eclipses last week's quarter-point drops in the prime rates of most other chartered banks, which now stand at 13 per cent, although the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce has left its rate unchanged at 13.25 per cent at least for now.

Economic nationalism blasted

OTTAWA (CP) — Economic nationalism will do more damage to the Canadian economy which has already been ruined by past Liberal governments, an Alberta Progressive Conservative MP charged Monday.

"Economic nationalism is a sickness and a disease," John Thomson, Calgary South MP, said. "The Liberal government believes that Canada can live as an island unto itself. That is absolute rubbish."

Medicare: Quebec owes up

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec comes the closest of any province to fulfilling its obligation to pay 50 per cent of health-care costs, Health Minister Monique Begin said Monday.

Quebec pays 45 per cent of its health-care costs, with the federal government making up 55 per cent. But all other provinces pay less in percentage terms, she told the opening session of a conference on health care.

Escaped cons captured

DORCHESTER, N.B. (CP) — Two killers are back behind bars at the maximum security penitentiary after three days of freedom but authorities are still being asked to explain how the prisoners escaped Friday,

Wet and breathless from a run through prison hayfields, Richard Ambrose, 31, of nearby Moncton and Gilles Hebert, 36, of Montreal were brought in without a struggle Monday. They were found within sight of the penitentiary.

26 executed in Iran

Iranian executioners shot at least 26 people late Sunday and Monday, including a former army chief-of-staff, two leaders of the Bahai religious sect and an anti-government student activist, Iran's official news media reported.

In Tehran, the Azadegan newspaper published a purported excerpt from the interrogation of one of the U.S hostages in which he admitted being a CIA agent and named two of his contacts, both high level Iranians.

Militants at the occupied U.S. Embassy identified the hostage as Thomas Ahern, 48, a state department employee whom they have accused previously of espionage.

Monday was the 254th day in captivity for the 52 hostages.

Drought hampers firefighters

THUNDER BAY, Ont. (CP) — Drought continued to hamper firefighters in Northern Ontario on Monday in the wake of a helicopter crash Sunday which killed two colleagues.

Natural resources ministry spokesman Jack Minor said there has been no significant rain in the northern part of the province since snow melted last spring. As a result, many of the 120 fires are burning deep into the dry ground, making them more difficult to control.

Yachting nightmare ends

HALIFAX (CP) — Antonio Chiaotto, who spent four days clinging to his overturned yacht last week during a transatlantic solo race, arrived here Monday none the worse for his ordeal aboard the Soviet ship that rescued him.

The Italian yachtsman stayed aboard the fishing vessel Umbrina and waited for a duplicate to the United States visa he lost when his boat, the Mattia, capsized.

Alberta guard strike lingers

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta Liquor Control Board warehouse workers returned to work here and Calgary on Monday but guards at nine provincial jails continued their wildcat strike in defiance of a back-to-work court order.

Meanwhile, an application by the Alberta Union of Provincial Employees to have certain sections of The Public Service Employee Relations Act ruled unconstitutional was heard Monday in Court of Queen's Bench and adjourned to July 24.

Taylor gets NY post

OTTAWA (CP) — Kenneth Taylor, the former ambassador to Iran who became a hero, has been appointed consul-general in New York and commissioner for Canada in Bermuda.

The appointment, which has been rumored for a few weeks, was confirmed Monday by External Affairs Minister Mark MacGuigan.

Freed hostage has MS

WIESBADEN, West Germany (AP) — Richard Queen, the 28-year-old U.S. vice-consul freed from 250 days' captivity in Iran because of ill health, suffers from multiple sclerosis and will return to the United States in the next few days, a doctor at the U.S. Air Force hospital here said today.

"He will resume his duties as a foreign-service officer as soon as his health permits," Dr. Jerome Michael Korcak told a news conference.

Egypto-Israeli talks fruitless

CAIRO (CP) — Egypt and Israel failed Monday to narrow the gap keeping them from working out an agenda for their Palestinian autonomy talks.

Israel's chief delegate said after two days of meetings among legal experts: "The gap is still serious."

Soviets escalate attacks

NEW DELHI (AP) — Soviet troops have attacked and bombed 50 to 60 villages in the Afghan countryside in the last two weeks, causing "many thousands" of civilian and rebel casualties, a diplomatic source said Monday.

There also has been a marked increase in Soviet air traffic into the Afghan capital in the last four days.

NATIONAL FARM POLICY BACKED

TORONTO (CP) — A national policy to stabilize farm incomes received support at a meeting of provincial agriculture ministers Monday.

The one-day meeting was in preparation for a meeting with federal Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan today.

But despite general ageement on the need for income stabilization programs for farmers, the provincial ministers failed to reach agreement on two specific programs proposed by Saskatchewan.

The Saskatchewan proposals to link income stabilization to the creation of a national slaughter cattle marketing agency designed to smooth the dips and valleys in prices paid to producers, and a domestic feed grain policy aimed at ending current inequities in prices between eastern and western Canada, both failed to win approval from other provinces.

However the provinces did agree to ask the federal government for early introduction of a new national hog stabilization program. The new hog program is designed to both stimulate production to increase export markets and cushion fluctuating prices for producers by creating a pork export pool and providing for income support when prices are low.

REDUCE PRODUCER RISK

The proposal, made by Manitoba, would also allow producers to enter long-term contracts, reducing producer risk and production costs.

Manitoba Agriculture Minister Jim Downey said the existing national hog stabilization program could be upgraded to include the proposed changes.

Although not all provinces agreed with the Saskatchewan proposal to place sales of domestic feed grains under the sole jurisdiction of the Canadian wheat board, there was agreement that further review of feed grain policy is needed.

Among other topics discussed by the ministers were: farm credit, meat inspection programs, and the monitoring of agricultural pesticides.

In a statement released by the ministers following the meeting they called for a "clear federal policy" on agricultural issues.

Inquiry called into Domtar emissions

By CHARLES LEVEQUE

WINDSOR — There will be a meeting today between representatives of Domtar and the city of Windsor to discuss exactly what happened on Saturday night when the police had to close a part of route 143 into Windsor about 10:15.

The meeting was called by Jean-Pierre Gauthier, the new regional director of the Quebec Environment Ministry in the Townships in order to talk about the suspected chlorine dilution problem.

"The police received a call that there were noxious fumes emanating from the Domtar plant," said Windsor mayor, Marcel Noel. "The policeman at the scene decided to close the road."

Windsor Policeman Gilles Langlois claims that at his arrival at the plant the fumes were so bad a human couldn't approach the plant.

"It was impossible to stay in the area longer than 10 seconds without your lungs aching and your eyes burning from the chlorine smell."

Mayor Noel, a Domtar employee, said "According to Domtar, nothing unusual had happened but as the mayor I wanted an investigation. If something was wrong Domtar will gladly accept responsibility as it always has."

The investigation is right now being carried out by the Ministry of the Environment under the heading of an operation known as Urgence-Environment.

Urgence-Environment was created by the ministry as a department capable of responding instantly to any emergency that might demand immediate action: a chemical spill, a flood, an accident that might pollute the air, the soil or the water.

The department has been in operation barely a month and has reacted rapidly to the Domtar Windsor situation. Their investigation began over the weekend and will continue today when a specialist in industrial cleanup and another in air purification begin their probe today.

Management for the Domtar plant claim that nothing out of the ordinary occurred, "We occasionally have things like this happen",.....said Kenneth Tear, foreman, "Sometimes when we're doing the bleaching part of the pulp operation, the water level in the river is really too low to dilute the chlorine residue. But there is no danger to the population in such cases."

Grads, friends remember Sutton school as it was

By JOHN McCAGHEY

SUTTON — Graduates and friends got together here last weekend for the 25th anniversary of Sutton High Elementary School and the rededication of the building. Classrooms and corridors were decked in nostalgia and memorabilia. Most of the graduates we talked to recalled the spirit of dedication to education perpetuated by Dr. Kathleen Harper, the first principal when the new building opened in 1955 for grade 12.

The old school has changed a lot over the years.

One name surfaced from time to time -- Brenda Boule -- was she there? We didn't find out but we will be keeping a very close eye on Candid Camera as she was, and may still be, one of Allan Funt's creative assistants - what a coup if she pulls it off.

Approximately 200 gathered in the gym on Friday night to dance to the Robinsons in a Walk Down Memory Lane while well over 300 attended Saturday's Anniversary Waltz hosted by CJAD's Mike Stevens. Refreshments were served in the Kool Korner, another trip down the lane recalling the corner emporium which catered to students in bygone days.

The highlight of the weekend was the rededication ceremony on Saturday afternoon. Principal Walter Horn welcomed the grads and friends, introduced the podium guests, and told of the pride he had in being associated with the school.

Sutton mayor Jacques Deslieres expressed his delight at seeing oldfriends and invited them to return more often, hopefully within a shorter time span. Dr. Harper, who was overseas, sent her congratulations and best wishes on video tape while former treasurer Hazel Bates recounted some of her memories via the same medium. Norman de St. Croix, the Sutton rep on the District of Bedford Regional School Board, told the grads this was their time of nostalgia and they should consider what their children will be looking back on years from now. He then urged them to do everything in their power to enhance their children's quest for knowledge and discipline.

Sutton Elementary School principal Walter Horn was one of the guest speakers at the old school's reunion.

Organizers managed to obtain a copy of former local board chairman Dwight Sweet's remarks delivered when the school was opened on June 2, 1955. They told of the long forethought which had gone into the decision to consolidate a number of elementary schools and, above all, to provide grade 12 education despite a sharp increase in operational costs.

Former principal Stan Pergau told of his pride in being associated both with the school and Dr. Harper and recalled some of the days leading up to the opening of Massey-Vanier which consolidated all secondary schools under the jurisdiction of the DBRSB.

Jim Bissell, director-general of the DBRSB, presided at the rededication of the school and the memorial plaque was unveiled by Sacha Mercurio, a level 6 student, and kindergarden pupil Lisa Robinson whose grandfather was a commissioner in 1955.

Reverend George A. Long, Rector of Grace Anglican Church, gave the dedicatory prayer and delivered the benediction.

The weekend concluded with an ecumenical service on Sunday afternoon.

Man enters no plea in shooting

SWEETSBURG WARD (JM) — Yves Courschesne entered no plea at his arraignment yesterday afternoon when he was charged with second-degree murder, illegally causing the death of his two-year-old nephew Patrick Courschesne-Boudrion in Venise on July 6.

Judge Gerard Normandin upheld a motion from Claude Hamann who requested his client be detained for a period not exceeding 60 days for preparation of a psychiatric profile.

The demand was supported by Crown Attorney Claude Noiseux and his formal arraignment was continued to September 9. Judge Normandin ordered he be remanded in custody at the penal institute for the criminally insane.

Coroner Noel E. Monast held the 24-year-old Venise resident criminally responsible for the violent death at the conclusion of an inquest yesterday morning. His sister Lise, 22, mother of the child, said she saw her brother get out of his car brandishing a rifle when she went to telephone the police.

"Patrick was at the window, I heard a shot, and when I returned he was lying in a pool of blood," Lise said.

When the Crown asked her if her brother was present she gestured over her shoulder pointing toward the prisoner's back.

QPF technician Gaston Mailloux said he recovered a spent cartridge from a point .30-.30 caliber weapon five to six feet from the front door and the morsels of the spent projectile in a cupboard of Mrs. Florence Courschesne's home.

QPF Constable Francois Allard said Mailloux gave him the spent projectile and cartridge which he turned over for ballistics examination with a .30-.30 Winchester rifle. Allard said the weapon was located in a wooded area near Clarenceville during the night of July 7 when he was accompanied by the accused and other police officers. He said results of the ballistics report confirmed the fatal shot was fired from the Winchester.

Courschesne, who testified with the protection of the Canada Evidence Act said there had been a series of arguments at his parents' home and that he always kept the firearm which he had owned for the past four years in the trunk of his vehicle. He said he fled the scene after "supernatural powers" caused him to fire the shot. His testimony concluded when he said he awoke in the woods near Clarenceville with the muzzle of the rifle under his chin. Death was confirmed by Dr. Adrien Tougas and the child was identified by his grandfather, Doris Courschesne.

Escapee to be arraigned

MONTREAL (JM) — Conrad Brossard, a convicted murderer, will be arraigned this morning on charges of attempted murder, using a restricted weapon in the commission of a crime of violence and evading legal custody. Brossard was serving a life term at the Cowansville Institution on charges of rape, murder and armed robbery. He was visiting the Floralies on Friday when he slipped away from guards.

Brossard accosted 22-year-old Marc Lapierre outside the Notre-Dame Hospital and forced him to drive him to Sorel at gun point. The Repentigny resident was left for dead in a ditch after he had been shot and stabbed in the thorax 15 times. Lapierre made his way to a house near Tracy and was taken to a Sorel hospital but was later transferred to Montreal.

Townshippers plan exhibit

LENNOXVILLE (CL) — The Townshippers Association is sponsoring a project to document the Townships past in pictures by choosing an exhibit of 200 pictures to tour local schools.

The project, started in May, will run until September and is an attempt to document the history of the Eastern Townships by choosing from some 3500 photographs, those that best document life in the past. The work will be done by two students, Gail Klinck of Cowansville and Diane Mullins of Knowlton.

Johnson Grit Picard to run

VALCOURT — Another Liberal candidate has declared himself a runner, this time in Johnson County. Camille Picard, a product co-ordinator with Bombardier says, "It is essential to keep the image of renewal, dedication and integrity in the Liberal party in every county in the province, and it is for this that I am announcing my candidacy."

Picard has been two and a half years at the head of the county association and feels he worked to infuse the spirit of renewal in the party. He has built up a team of volunteer workers, and considers that he knows the needs of the county well.

The autumn investiture meeting will allow party members in the county to choose their Liberal candidate before the fall election.

A luxury

Townshippers Inc. is less than a year old, but it has already proven one thing — that to accomplish anything for itself, the English-speaking community of the Townships must unite with more than pretty words and the occasional meeting.

Nearly 6,000 paid-up members since Christmas or thereabouts, now that's an impressive show of support. Already it's beginning to pay off, with members of the community being nominated to regional and local health and social service boards, cultural and recreation councils. And this has a snowball effect. As more English Townshippers become aware of the opportunities they have to serve on these bodies, the greater their desire to know more about the greater society around them.

But Townshippers has exposed a negative side of the English-speaking Townships community as well. Many still distrust anyone outside their immediate neighborhood. The purpose of Townshippers Inc. is as an umbrella group, a co-ordinating body, but they have met with suspicion, jealousy, even a complete lack of co-operation in situations as simple as the offering of funding for summer research projects.

No doubt those organizations which have declined Townshippers' invitation have their reasons for doing so. But in the light of what is happening to the English in the Townships, do any of us have that luxury?

JAMES DUFF

Bon voyage

Many Townshippers will be off on their annual summer vacation as the majority of major industrial firms closed their doors for the last two full weeks in July. Undoubtedly, they are well-deserved vacations and we sincerely hope they are enjoyed and one and all return safe and sound.

Indications in banking circles reveal much less United States currency was purchased which suggests many will be spending their leisure time in Canada and this is a great idea if we get to know more of our own magnificent country. It also suggests camping trips and we devoutly pray all those who are making use of our forested areas do so with the utmost of caution and do everything in their power to prevent possible forest fires.

The fire danger level is low in the area served by La Societe de Conservation du Sud du Quebec but that doesn't mean throwing caution to the winds. Douse camp fires with water, if you have to enjoy a smoke make sure you grind the butt out with your heel, and if you spot a fire anywhere between the New York border south of the St. Lawrence River east to the Montmagny-L'Islet county lines use the toll free number and alert authorities at 1-800-463-4374.

If you are boating, please use life belts, and — heaven forbid — should you capsize, don't panic! Life-belts will keep you afloat for many hours.

Most of us are fascinated by the sun and have a hell-bent predilection of getting the deepest possible tan. Use lots of oil. Skin cancer usually only emerges once one has gone through middle age and the major source of the malady is an overdose of old sol.

We don't want to put a complete damper on all your fun but, unfortunately, highway accidents increase drastically in proportion to the number of vehicles on the highways. You don't want to be listed as a statistic, so use caution and common sense.

JOHN McCAGHEY

The Grapes of 1980: How secure are you?

Commentary

BY J.W. LAWRENCE

"Go West, young man, and grow up with the country," said Horace Greeley, and a flood of men and women answered his command and trekked West. They travelled in every known type of vehicle. Horace Greeley died in 1872 — 108 years ago. People have been going West ever since.

There seems to be a Go-West disease that strikes people whenever things are looking a little rough, a disease that makes them uproot their lives in the comfortable East and head West for adventure, success and excitement.

In the 'Dirty Thirties', from Vaudeville comedians heading West to make funny movies to dirt farmers heading West to the land of opportunity, people of all shades and colors again heeded Greeley's words.

John Steinbeck wrote in the Grapes of Wrath about families heading out to ultimate failure and the hopelessness of not having any money, the bread lines, depression and drought.

Everything is better out West.

Just before the last depression, gold and silver prices suddenly fluctuated, money was made and lost. The stock market faltered, the dollar lost its value, stocks slipped and then crashed. People jumped from windows and used their pistols to solve their problems. Jobs just didn't exist so men picked up their lives and headed West.

The gold and silver market has certainly been jumping up and down, the stock market has been faltering. The dollar sure ain't what it used to be and everybody is crying hard times including both U.S. and Canadian governments.

People are heading out West!

In the last few years, the flood of Townshippers heading toward Alberta has been heavy. Some of these people are spurred on because of uncertain politics, others are pushed because of the lack of work. Here are only a few examples of the many Quebecers heading out:

Last summer, a young American brought his wife — and dreams — to Cookshire. He had raised enough capital to go into the trout rearing business, a trade that has been lucrative for a number of years. He picked Quebec because of the availability of fresh water with plenty of snow cover to protect the ponds in winter. He dug his ponds and bought his fry. He was in the trout business in the best place at the best time.

Unfortunately, we didn't have any snow last winter and his trout ponds froze to the bottom. So did his trout. He lost his fish, his capital and his dreams.

Two weeks ago he gave me his dog, took his wife and headed out to Alberta for work.

Three young men from the Mansonville area left their wives and children this spring to head out to Alberta. They had spent the winter either looking for jobs or working. With the bleak prospects offered by their area, including layoffs at the area's major employer, they decided to try their luck in the land of opportunity. They now have jobs and their families will join them. They have been able to double their salary by moving a few provinces west.

Two more young men are leaving soon, their jobs already nailed down. One starts at over $12 an hour driving a truck, the other at a similar rate working in a lumber yard.

"Hell," I was told, "why should I stick around here when I can double my money and not have to worry about staying Canadian?"

"I don't want to go," said another, "but I've got to feed my family. There's no security here anymore. I don't know if I'll have a job tomorrow. I've got to go."

All the old jokes about Bill 401 (west) seem to be a little too close to home. There are many, many more people moving all the time.

One of the problems, of course, is the fact that most of these folks are young people. Will we have a sudden abundance of old folks towns? Are we again sitting on the breach of a depression? Can we look forward to men and women standing in line waiting for a free bowl of soup and a crust of bread? "Buddy, can you spare a dime?"

How secure are you?

We were young, we were merry, we were very, very wise,
And the door stood open at our feast,
When there passed us a woman with the West in her eyes,
And a man with his back to the East.

Mary Coleridge 1861-1907

Brome museum lauded

Editor:

The other day I chanced to tour the Knowlton Museum and quickly turned from impartial observer to enthusiastic observer. It was a feeling similar to a time machine which transported me to beckoning almost forgotten remembrances of bygone days. I was led by my tour guide to the first room, called the Pioneer Room which is filled with artifacts; Indian crafts, money, medals, old personal items etc. Next I stood in awe of the war annex looking at the very things used in battle by my father's generation. I read in safety the posters which called men to war and wondered how he felt when he read them. Upstairs I wandered thru the old replica's of a bedroom, parlor, dining room and my personal favorite the kitchen. I could, it seemed, see thru the eyes of the small boy the familiarity of that enchanted setting. I won't take time to describe everything but a brief look inside the second building; the top floor revealed a loft which showed everyday living necessities and inventions; a section covering Call's Mills life in general; a weaving room; ladies department and the interesting fire tower. Downstairs the nature room has various stuffed animals while the country store features everything - from various articles, including advertisements to a checkerboard on top of an old cracker barrel. The barn as it is called has numerous past farm implements. The last stop was the Patchwork Tea Room where refreshments and homemade cookies are served as you rest your feet and contemplate the unusual things you have seen.

Miss Phelps is truly a gracious and charming hostess and the tour guides are friendly and willing to answer any questions you have to ask. As I left I felt I had not taken enough time and it's for sure I'll be going back with my family and friends. The best thing I can say for this journey back to the old days and ways is.....well, you've just got to see it for yourself.

Can northern caribou herds survive human expansion?

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — Biologist Anne Gunn says the huge caribou herds roaming Canada's northern wilderness can survive another century of human expansion and development — but they'll need help.

Most biologists, she says, believe that with careful management, wild herds of 100,000 animals or more can continue to exist far into the future.

"We have the management ability," said Ms. Gunn, a caribou biologist in the Northwest Territories.

"A hundred years from now we could still have large herds of barren-ground caribou, but it will require some give and take by everyone — including the caribou."

The key will be whether native groups, governments and industry can work together to preserve the majestic animals.

Resource exploration is encroaching on the northern frontier at an increasing rate and caribou herds in the provinces already have dwindled to mere shadows of what they once were, Ms. Gunn said. The decline is a clear warning for wildlife managers in the Yukon and Northwest Territories.

MAY BAN HUNTING

In Alberta, caribou numbered 10,000 or more in 1966. Today, wildlife officials estimate the figure is as low as 1,500 and a hunting ban is being discussed as a way to save the herds.

Is Carter's personal money influencing Mideast policy?

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON -- In past columns, I have reported Jimmy Carter's astonishing financial dealings with a Saudi-controlled bank while he was pressuring Congress to approve the sale to Saudi Arabia of American F-15 jet fighters.

The president of the United States wound up deeply in debt to -- and accepting favorable loan treatment from -- a bank controlled by a Saudi Arabian whose nation has a keen interest in changing U.S. foreign policy from its longstanding pro-Israeli position. Two subsequent pro-Arab actions by the United States in the United Nations raise the disturbing possibility that President Carter let his personal financial situation influence his policy in the Middle East.

Even if Carter resisted the temptation to put his mouth where his money was, he may have given the appearance of being influenced by personal considerations. The Saudis, steeped in the Arab tradition of official corruption, may well have believed that they had an American president in their pocket.

My reporter Peter Peckarsky has spent months investigating the president's Saudi connection. I have also had reporters in Georgia talking to people close to Carter. These sources all agreed there is a tight little circle around Carter -- a good ol'-boy network that includes former Attorney General Griffin Bell, former Budget Director Bert Lance and attorney Charles Kirbo. They are so close that if one is hurting, the others holler.

The one who has been hurting the most is Bert Lance, who was Carter's budget director until disclosure of his wheeling and dealing as president of the National Bank of Georgia forced him to resign. The good ol' boys had long discussions on how to bail Lance out.

Lance got bailed out all right, largely by selling a controlling interest in his bank at a very favorable price in 1978 to Ghaith R. Pharaon, a Saudi citizen whose father is a close adviser to the Saudi king. And the Carter family business, which was in serious financial trouble, got a $60,000 break in 1978 on its original NBG loan from the new Saudi-controlled management.

As the Carter loan situation improved, the president's support for the sale of the F-15s to Saudi Arabia seemed to intensify.

The Saudis ended up with sophisticated American jets capable of attacking Israel; the president is still in hock to the Saudi-owned bank, to the tune, it is believed, of about $600,000.

There is another puzzling connection between the bank that holds the Carter family note and the president's Middle East policies. Since late last year, the president of the National Bank of Georgia has been Roy Carlson. For the four years before he joined the bank, Carlson was managing director of the Melli Industrial Group of Tehran -- which was owned by the deposed shah of Iran and his family.

All of the Carter peanut warehouse assets -- the centerpiece of the family fortune -- are pledged as security for the NBG loan. Thus a banker with close ties to the shah holds the power of life and death over the Carter family's financial well-being.

Footnote: We were unable to reach Carlson for comment.

My report on the status of the Carter loan is based on a check last month of Sumter County, Ga., records. These showed that the Carter warehouse was still in hock to the National Bank of Georgia. But bank president Carlson insists that the loan has been "paid in full." He steadfastly refused, however, to provide details. The two trustees of the president's personal trust, Charles Kirbo and Robert Lipshutz, refused to answer our questions. Carlson also claimed that neither the shah of Iran nor the shah's family had an interest in the Melli Industrial Group.

INDIAN WOES: Creation of the new Department of Education hasn't solved the perennial problems of the Office of Indian Education, which is a shambles of mismanagement, contracts abuse and charges of favoritism, discrimination and incompetence.

Inside sources at OIE, and reliable members of the Indian community, tell me the agency is a complete mess. But when frustrated underlings complain to their superiors, nothing is done for fear of rocking the bureaucratic boat. Staff morale is at rock-bottom.

Bureaucratic cliques jealously guard their turf, paralyzing the agency's ability to carry out its mission. In addition, there have been ugly charges of bullying and sexual harassment.

The shenanigans have been going on for years, but few attempts to correct the situation have been taken by the top brass. Finally, though, I am told the Department of Education hierarchy is checking into the OIE morass. Officials have belatedly admitted that there have been "some problems."

SPOOK SCOOP: Overly conscientious local employees can sometimes blow the CIA's carefully constructed cover overseas. One example: Some years ago, the CIA sent the head of state in Thailand a spurious letter supposedly from the Communist Party. But an enterprising reporter checked the return address on the envelope and spotted it as the CIA office in a northern town. Seems the local employee who mailed the letter had sent it by registered mail -- listing the correct return address.

* A bumbling CIA station chief can be his spies' worst enemy. One such planned a large party at his home and invited all his agents. Some of the spooks protested that the natives hired to park cars would be able to identify them for the local government. So the station chief held two parties. He held one for agents under light cover, and another for those under deep cover -- thus obligingly identifying his most important undercover agents for the interested locals.

WATCH ON WASTE: Bureaucrats at the Energy Department's solar energy research institute in Colorado decided to hold a conference and invite interested parties from all over. The hotel where it was to be held provided 25,000 stamped, addressed envelopes, but the DOE brass spent $2,065 on 85,000 additional envelopes. Even more money was spent on multicolored brochures to put in the envelopes. Six different mailing lists were used, with the result that some potential conferees may have received six copies of the invitation. The 110,000 mailed announcements produced a disappointing response: Only 485 persons showed up for the conference.

Many canoes fail safety test

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — A lot of canoes being sold should never have made it past the factory door, says Dave Mills, recreation co-ordinator with the Prince Edward Island parks division and a paddler who believes canoeing can be both safe and fun.

"Many crafts are being built that are improperly designed and hazardous to paddle," Mills said in an article published by the Island environment department. "There is a noticeable correlation between those masquerading as canoes — tippy and hard to turn — and the number of drownings plaguing the sport."

And would-be buyers have to do more than avoid the junk when they are choosing a canoe, he said. Even with quality canoes, it is easy to get stuck with a design unsuitable, and perhaps unsafe, for intended uses.

At one end of the spectrum is the broad-beamed, flat-bottomed canoe with lots of freeboard. Often tapered less sharply than other canoes to give still more fullness to the bottom, it is best for large expanses of water as it rides over waves rather than cutting through them.

The other extreme is the white-water canoe — usually narrower and more rounded on the bottom.

"Stems are usually higher and the bottom width tapers quicker towards the stem to allow knifing through fish tails and waves that bounce off walls or rocks."

And in between are other combinations — many of them good ones — that blend characteristics demanded by different kinds of water.

There are also bad combinations.

"Short, stubby, wide-beam canoes are said to be good for fishing but are slow and troublesome in winds and hard to paddle."

Mills said in an interview manufacturers are not required to tell buyers what each model is designed for.

"The usual information — what they are made of, how long they are, how much they can carry — that's part of it. But that's not the whole story."

He suggests sticking to one of four materials — traditional wood-canvas, aluminum, glass fibre or kevlor.

EASIEST TO PADDLE

Traditional canvas over cedar strips takes a lot of maintenance but is still considered the best as far as handling the craft is concerned.

Aluminum, especially from better manufacturers, is tough but less esthetically pleasing than wood-canvas and sometimes noisy. Hull temperature — the same as the water — can also be uncomfortable.

Glass fibre is cheap and almost maintenance-free but "most models are only suited to pond use, have poor designs and are very heavy."

Kevlor is proving tough and easy to maintain, Mills said. "It is a new material on the market and the price tag is still pretty steep."

Size, like shape, should be determined by what you want to use the canoe for, Mills said.

"Fifteen feet or less is generally considered a one-man canoe, 16 feet is for two men and 17 or 18 for three."

Dealers are not required to inform buyers about the uses of various canoes.

With persimmon switch, he'll find water

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Give Walter Matthews a forked branch and he'll find water, sometimes even where professional well drillers have failed.

Matthews, a 77-year-old retiree, is a water witch. Skeptics may scoff, but Matthews says he can locate underground streams without turning the first bit of soil. He's proven his powers to some Gainesville residents.

"I was amazed," says Stafford Caldwell, who drilled for water seven times in his backyard before calling Matthews for help.

Matthews says he can only guess the number of times he has taken a divining or dowsing rod and located water for residents wishing to drill wells.

"A hundred times, maybe more," the bespectacled senior says. "I've never been unsuccessful. I've found water every time I've tried, but one or two times it was quicksand, which is no good for anything."

Divining is an ancient way of finding water. A water witch's lone tool is a forked branch.

BENDING BRANCH

Matthews holds the stick out in front of him and it starts vibrating and bending as he walks along. He claims it bends forward if water is ahead, bends back toward his chest if he has passed underground streams, or stands straight up and still when he is directly over submerged water.

Matthews says he has no idea how it works, but he's been doing it since before the Second World War.

"I was in business for myself and I bought some property out near WDVH radio station," Matthews recalls. "I had some cattle and wanted to put down a well to water them with."

"I knew about this black man — he was one of my customers — and I took him a persimmon switch and he found water with it. I said: 'Let me see that thing,' and I tried it and it worked better for me than it did for him."

The retired travelling salesman says he doesn't charge for using his unique talent, although he often has been tempted. "I figured I was making a living already," he says.

CAME UP DRY

Caldwell says he was ready to try anything after drilling unsuccessfully for water seven times in his 30-by-75-foot backyard.

"I pumped so much sand I thought the house would cave in," he says.

Admitting he was skeptical at the time, Caldwell says he called the water witch.

"He came out and broke off a little limb from an oak tree and within 15 minutes he had found two places that he said had water. One was in the middle of the yard and I said I didn't want a well there, so he found one on the north side of the lot.

"He said, 'Put your well down three feet in from the lot line.' I did and found water at 10 feet, and it's been pumping for 22 years now."

Minimum wage hike costs jobs

OTTAWA (CP) — The president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce warned Wednesday that a major increase in the federal minimum wage could cost the country jobs.

Sam Hughes urged the federal government to keep an increase, expected to be announced shortly, to about 10 cents an hour.

"I wouldn't want to see Canadian levels move to the point where we begin to lose jobs outside the country," Hughes said in an interview.

Labor Minister Gerald Regan is expected to announce an increase in the federal wage, now at $2.90 an hour, in a few days. The wage hasn't risen for four years.

Furniture firms optimistic

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian home furniture manufacturers are confident they can ride out the doldrums caused by factory layoffs, shutdowns, bankruptcies and general recession.

"I think we're probably at the bottom of the trough right now," said Kenneth Campbell, general manager of the Ontario Furniture Manufacturers Association.

He said that once the recession lifts, furniture sales are expected to be high throughout the 1980s as the baby boom generation comes of age.

"Right now all the industry can do is tighten its belt, cut extra costs, and wait," Campbell said. "Our biggest concern is the threat of American imports."

U.S. furniture manufacturers began aggressive marketing in Canada when their home market went soft in the 1970s. This hurt Canadian furniture manufacturers who fear that soft U.S. and Canadian markets again this year will result in U.S. manufacturers making further inroads.

Californians stretching energy

SAN FRANCISCO (CP) — Prodded by mounting energy prices, Californians are scrambling to find imaginative ways to stretch their supplies of oil, gas and electricity.

At Pacific Gas and Electric Co., serving 6.2 million customers, conservation initiatives range from interest-free loans to what PGE brochures call "a computer with a voice like Victor Borge."

The loans, an experimental program just started in 10 San Joaquin Valley counties, provide homeowners with money for insulation, automatic thermostats and other energy-saving devices.

Not only is no interest charged but the homeowner does not even have to repay any part of the loan until the house is sold.

Ann Landers

Ann passes on use of word 'queer'

Dear Ann Landers: I was delighted to note that you agreed with a topnotch writer of the Times of London who said the title "Ms." should be banished from news and editorial columns. He called it "artificial, ugly and silly," and went on to say: "It means nothing and is rotten English." I loved his point that it does nothing to disguise the marital status of women, but instead, draws attention to it.

And now, will you please get behind another worthy cause in the name of appropriate semantics? Let us, once and for all, get rid of the word "gay" as a euphemism for homosexual. Gay means "merry, cheerful and lighthearted." The homos I have seen are a depressing eyesore on the landscape of humanity. They are neigher merry nor cheerful. I resent the corruption of the language. A better word for homosexual is "QUEER," because that is what they are. Are you with me? — A Gay Fellow Who Is Not Queer In Shawano, Wis.

Dear Shawano: I agree that large numbers of homosexuals are neither merry nor cheerful, but they can call themselves anything they want as far as I am concerned. The fact that I refuse to call them "normal" has irritated many among their ranks.

The word "queer," according to Webster's Third International Dictionary, means "strange, peculiar, eccentric, unconventional." Many straights also fit this description, so it would be equally inappropriate. I suggest that you look elsewhere for a fellow crusader, buddy. I take a pass.

Dear Ann Landers: Bravo for pinpointing the problem of physicians who prescribe sleeping pills for a known, arrested addict. You ruled out malevolence and said it must be ignorance. You were right. The following are public statements by experts:

Father Joseph C. Martin, international consultant on alcoholism, says any 10-year-old kid can figure out that you don't give addictive substances to addictive people, but this fact seems to have escaped the medical profession.

Dr. Charles Becker, San Francisco teaching physician, says doctors make "Valium-aholics" and "Librium-aholics" out of alcoholics.

Dr. Robert O'Brien from the same area says his patients on mind-altering medication must also be hospitalized if they are alcoholic addicts. No such medicines go home with these patients.

Dr. Kenneth Williams, teaching physician at Pittsburgh, found in a recent study that fewer than 5 percent of medical schools teach anything at all about alcoholism and drug addiction.

Dr. Joseph Pursch, Navy psychiatrist at Long Beach, says many doctors who go there for training develop such guilt about previous ignorance that they often look up former patients and apologize.

A fully recovered alcoholic-addict physician in AA says he thought he had been practicing "good medicine" on himself, pilling by day and drinking by night, only to end up in a psychiatric ward completely bonkers. Now he knows better. But he had to learn the hard way.

You were right on target, Ann, so please continue your courageous, informative effort. Your column could save countless lives. — Eyes Wide Open At Last

Dear Eyes: Your research is immensely supportive. Thanks for the back-up.

Federal payroll delays hurt students

OTTAWA (CP) — Pamela Robinson took a summer job under a government youth employment program nearly eight weeks ago but has yet to receive any pay.

Her insistent complaints — she's down to $34.13 of savings and owes half of this month's rent — prompted this advice from a manpower official: Take your contract with the government, including a notice of payment to come, and present it as collateral for a loan from a chartered bank.

Ms. Robinson, a 23-year-old English student at Trent University during the school term, is a constituent of Bill Domm, a Progressive Conservative MP for Peterborough who called in the Commons Tuesday for an investigation into payroll delays and borrowing from the banks by students who haven't received their funds.

Domm said in an interview he has received the same complaint from students running five of about 40 projects, worth about $328,000, in his constituency and he's worried that this is the tip of an iceberg.

A spokesman for the youth employment program confirmed that long delays have occurred and will continue for the next week or two. The spokesman said advice to get a bank loan is reasonable, and the government will reimburse them for the interest.

The spokesman said the delays are due primarily to bureaucratic confusion over who had the authority to sign the payroll cheques and that the problem has been solved.

By the end of this week, 86 per cent of the cheques for 1,885 projects in Ontario are scheduled to be in the mail. The total is to rise to 95 per cent by Wednesday of next week.

UNDER STRAIN

"The projects will be over before the cheques are in," Domm said. "They're putting these people under an unreasonable strain."

Nationally, the summer youth employment program is supposed to cost the federal government $110 million for the administration of projects and salaries to the students who run them, about 70,000 in all.

Ms. Robinson is part of a three-member project sponsored by Peterborough Rape Relief from which the students borrowed $100 to tide them over since May 20. "We've been living on our income tax returns," she said.

Ms. Robinson, 26-year-old anthropology student Wenda Woodman and 23-year-old psychology student Jeremy Baumbach are preparing an education kit for counsellors on procedures used in dealing with rape, child abuse and other sexual crimes.

Their contract with the government is supposed to provide about $10,000 for 16 weeks of work and for publication and distribution of the kit. Their salaries are supposed to be $120 weekly.

Another project that has received no funds is an audit of energy use in the Peterborough area sponsored by the Ontario Public Interest Research Group. It's been operating since late May but the $11,600 grant has yet to come, said student Pat White.

Aikmans fete 50th wedding anniversary

STANSTEAD — The home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Aikman, near Stanstead was the weekend of June 28 a beehive of activity as their family, relatives and friends gathered in honor of the couples' golden wedding anniversary.

Saturday afternoon, June 28 their family entertained for an Open House when many gathered to offer congratulations and best wishes to the honored couple.

As on their wedding day, the sun shone and the day was perfect. Tables were placed on the lawn from which punch and trays of goodies were served. The anniversary cake from a friend in Ormstown was a square design, topped with a spray of yellow roses and an inscription. The first piece was cut by the bride and groom of the golden years then the cake was cut and served.

Mrs. Aikman received a red rose corsage which she wore on her blue-and-white printed silk frock, Mr. Aikman had a boutonniere of red rose buds.

They received a large number of cards, congratulations from Pierre Trudeau, Prime Minister of Canada, Joe Clark, leader of the opposition; Edward Schreyer, Governor General of Canada, Jean Pierre Cote, Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec, and Dr. and Mrs. Howard Billing, retired director of Protestant Education, Quebec.

That evening the family of 37 enjoyed a supper together. One son Chris, who with his family lives in Victoria, B.C. was unable to attend the gathering, but was present in thoughts by telephone. Another nephew, Dr. Robert Aikman remembered the occasion with a cablegram of congratulations from his home in Hilo, Hawaii.

Attending the celebrations were the immediate family, sons and daughters-in-law, John and Irma Aikman and two sons, Perth, Ont., David and Hazel Aikman and five sons of Ormstown, Bruce and Francine Aikman and 10-day-old daughter Sylvie of Stanstead; son-in-law and daughter Donald and Rosemary Hooker and five children of Ormstown. Also Mrs. Ernest (Mary) Jones who was bridesmaid at the marriage in 1930, Douglas Read, who gave his sister in marriage and Donald Aikman, who was a guest at his brother's wedding then. Of much interest on the weekend were the wedding photos of 1930.

Mr. and Mrs. Aikman

The couple met while attending McGill University in Montreal. After graduation they each taught school in Outremont. In those days a married woman could not teach, so after their marriage they went to Kenogami, where Mr. Aikman was principal of the first school in the North, while his bride assisted him on a volunteer basis as substitute teacher and secretary.

Later they came to Lennoxville where he was principal in the high school. When the First World War broke out, Mr. Aikman followed the family tradition and volunteered to serve his country in the navy with six months spent with the naval service headquarters, the family moved to the City of Ottawa. There they remained during the years of his service, much of which was spent overseas. After the war ended Mr. Aikman accepted the position with the Department of Education in Quebec, and they resided in Quebec for 13 years, when he retired in 1964 they came to Stanstead, to make their home.

35th anniversary

ABBOTSFORD — Misses Dianne and Janet Watson organized an At Home party with the help of relatives, friends and neighbours for their parents, Bill and Elsie Watson on Saturday to help them celebrate their 35th wedding anniversary which was on June 30.

Delicious refreshments were served and an anniversary cake, a gift from their daughters, centered the diningroom table. The cake was beautifully trimmed with yellow bells and silver leaves.

They received many lovely gifts and cards including a beautiful plaque from her sisters and brother-in-law Mr. and Mrs. S. Batley and family.

Health

BY LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.

Refuses to take estrogen

DEAR DR. LAMB — I've read a number of articles about the use of estrogen in the menopause but it's usually in women who have had a normal menopause. What about women who have had a hysterectomy at 49 or even younger as in my case? I don't want to take hormone shots so I was given Bellergal S which does nothing for me. The flashes are pretty bad but I won't take hormones because of all the side effects, known and unknown.

I weigh 129 pounds and am 5 foot 2. I only weighed 119 pounds before the surgery. I was up to 132 within a month after the surgery. It sure is hard not to pick at food, even knowing I'm not hungry and shouldn't. Are there any pamphlets on our problem?

DEAR READER — The loss of normal function of the ovaries, whether through normal involution with the usual menopause or from surgical removal, has essentially the same effects. Some women produce enough female hormones from the adrenal gland to prevent some of the changes that are seen with ovarian failure. That's one of the reasons why some women don't need female hormones at the time of the menopause while others do.

Women who have had a hysterectomy should be absolutely certain what the surgery included. A complete hysterectomy does not mean that the ovaries have been removed. It means that all of the uterus, cervix and body of the uterus, has been removed. If the ovaries are left in and are normal, they will function like normal ovaries. That also means that they'll quit at the usual age of the menopause.

The reason it's so important to know if the ovaries are still in is that cancer of the ovaries can and does occur. It's not as common as cancer of the uterus but, nevertheless, it's all too common. Women who still have their ovaries need to have a regular examination directed toward as early detection of ovarian cancer as possible should it occur.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 14-12, Hysterectomy, Cystocele And Rectocele, to give you more information about the problems related to hysterectomy and female surgery. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Now I'm not too happy with your adamant decision not to use any female hormones. Let your doctor decide whether you need them or not. They are very helpful in eliminating hot flashes. If you no longer have a uterus, there's no danger of your getting cancer of the uterus. That's the main concern in using female hormones for relief of hot flashes or menopause symptoms. The other unanswered question is what their relationship is to breast cancer but, apparently, if you do not have lumpy breasts to begin with and don't develop lumpy breasts, that is not an important consideration either.

Leete-Gover family gathering

DANVILLE — On Sunday, June 29, a Leete-Gover family gathering was held at the original Leete home on Castlebar Road. The Leetes settled here in 1798 and Milton Leete, the present owner, is the sixth generation to reside here. The home completed in 1833 has been declared a Centennial Home.

The festivities got underway on the eve of the 28th with early arrivals setting up tents, followed by fireworks and sing-song around the bonfire. By noon the next day, upwards of 100 relatives and friends had arrived. The day was spent in meeting and greeting cousins (some for the first time), and of reminiscing of happy childhood vacations spent at the Leetes.

A tour of the house brought many happy memories to those who had been born here and to others whose parents were born here. The younger generations enjoyed many games of sport. Ernest T. Leete, Jamestown, New York, brought greetings from the American relatives and delighted his audience with tales of the first Leete settlers in Connecticut. He recorded tapes and took photos to add to his collection of geneology items.

Regrets were received from many who could not attend but many did come from as far away as West Germany; Columbia, South America; Jamestown, New York; Atlanta, Georgia; Moncton, N.B., Toronto, Ottawa, Belleville, Cambridge, Stouffville, Ont., Montreal Repentigny, Beaconsfield, Pierrefonds, Foster, Granby, Ste. Christine, and the surrounding area. The day was brought to a close with many fond farewells and promises to keep in touch.

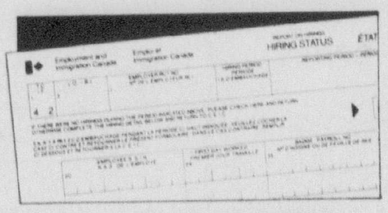
We're tightening up on people who abuse Unemployment Insurance.

Most people getting unemployment insurance play by the rules. But some people don't seem to know that they can't take a job and collect benefits without telling us they're working. That's why employers are being asked to send us the starting date and Social Insurance Number or extracts from computer payroll tapes for each employee they hire or rehire. This information is cross-checked with the Social Insurance Numbers of people receiving unemployment insurance benefits. Only cases of potential abuse will ever surface. After investigation, anyone found receiving benefits to which they are not entitled will have to repay them.

It may be an honest mistake. Some people forget or don't understand they must tell Unemployment Insurance and report their total earnings when they start a new job. In that case, repayment is all that's required. But, a penalty or prosecution may follow when the new system detects people wrongly collecting benefits.

If you are collecting unemployment insurance benefits, and start a new job, please say so on your UI claimant report card.



Social Insurance Numbers of newly-hired employees are now being cross-checked with those of people receiving unemployment insurance benefits. Only cases of potential abuse will ever surface.

Olive Branch Lodge fetes two members

WINDSOR — On the evening of June 25, over fifty members, immediate family and guests gathered to honour two beloved Sisters of Olive Branch No. 9, Richmond, by presenting them with their 50-year jewels. The hall and lunch room were spotted with pink and green "50's" in keep with Rebekah colours, and flowers were everywhere.

The drill team of twelve Sisters formed in two lines, as an honor guard. Sister Nellie Hills and her daughter, Mrs. Helen Snowe, were escorted by Sister Dorothy Gregory, followed by Sister Clara Robinson and her son, Clifford, escorted by her daughter, Sister Mildred E. Holliday. They were seated on the platform to the left and right of a beautiful wishing well, flanked with numerous arrangements of beautiful summer flowers. Sister Nellie and Sister Clara each received corsages, pinned in place by their respective daughters, Helen and Mildred.

Members of the drill team read different passages in honour of their devoted work over the past 50 years. Sister Viola Noble presented Sister Nellie with her jewel while Sister Clara's was presented by Sister Muriel Waterhouse. Following this presentation, Sister Peggy Eastman and Sister Janet Banfill presented each with a small "Wishing Well" decorated with currency, a gift of the members of Olive Branch. Sister Connie Lloyd rendered "In the Garden", accompanied by Sister Anita Robinson at the piano. Two beautifully decorated and lighted anniversary cakes, suitably inscribed, were brought in and presented by Sister Frances Fowler and Sister Dorothy Gregory.

While the guests of honour were recovering from blowing out all of the candles, Sister Ruth Blanchette was escorted to the center of the floor and presented with her 15-year jewel by Sister Christina Henderson. Sister Gladys Stimson was also escorted to the center of the floor and presented with her 15 year jewel by Sister Janet Banfill. Sister Anita Robinson had recently been presented her 40 year jewel at a regular meeting.

Sister Wanda Taylor and Brother Dwight Findlay were called to the center of the floor where Sister Janet Banfill, on behalf of Olive Branch No. 9, presented Sister Wanda with a gift. Brother Amos Ward, on behalf of Pioneer Lodge, presented Brother Dwight with a gift, the occasion being their forthcoming marriage.

It was a pleasure to have so many Brothers and Sisters and invited guests from outside join us for the occasion. Sister Luella Brady, an original member of Olive Branch and now of Myrtle Branch No. 28, Lennoxville, was introduced by the Noble Grand Janet Banfill. Sister Luella said how happy she was to be here and spoke of the many fond memories she has of this hall.

All retired to the lunch room, where the guests of honour were seated at the head table. Brother Roy Monahan, was asked to say Grace before delicious refreshments were served, including the anniversary cakes. Both Sisters again expressed their sincere thanks for such a memorable evening given in their honour.

BURY — The regular lodge meeting was held June 17 with the N.G. Sister Alice Mayhew in the chair and a good attendance present.

After the opening exercises, and very little business to attend to, most of the meeting was spent making plans for the item for the district meeting in September. Sister Lyla MacLeod was asked to try and plan something suitable and present the findings at the next meeting.

Sister Ella Burgess was presented with her 60-year jewel and Eunice Goodenough with her 55-year jewel.

Lodge closed in ritual form, after which all members went to the home of Sister Grace MacLeod to visit and bid goodbye and best wishes to Sister Gladys MacLeod, who left June 19 to make her new home in St. Catharines, Ont. On behalf of the members, Sister Winnifred Buchanan expressed our good wishes to Gladys and presented her with a Rebekah Stick Pin and a beautiful doily. Sister Gladys was pleased to see all her friends and expressed her thanks for the gifts and kindness shown her.

The ladies brought in a delicious lunch of sweet bread, scones, cookies, cake squares, cheese and tea and all enjoyed a social hour together. Best of everything, Gladys.

Sazio wants contender now, not team of future

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton Tiger-Cats have stocked up on veteran players to take a run at the Canadian Football League's Eastern Conference championship.

"I don't want to be rebuilding," says general manager Ralph Sazio. "I want to be a contender.

"Most of our people are veterans, either with our club or other teams we've traded with."

Sazio feels the 1980 Tiger-Cats will provide a challenge to the defending conference champions Montreal Alouettes.

Quarterback Bruce Lemmerman, kicker Bernie Ruoff — last year's CFL scoring champion — and middle linebacker Carl Crennel are the three major additions to the team's list of proven veterans.

The Tiger-Cats lost all four pre-season games and six of their first seven league games last season before revamping the lineup. They wound up third with a 6-10 record, then lost to Ottawa Rough Riders in the Eastern semifinal.

But the Tiger-Cats aren't early-season pushovers in 1980. They won three of four exhibition games — 37-29 over Toronto Argonauts, 29-19 over British Columbia Lions and 41-7 over Saskatchewan Roughriders. Their only loss was to the Alouettes, 21-17.

GAINED EXPERIENCE

"We started off last season with two young quarterbacks. But, we're fortunate this year in that Dave Marler has gained experience and had a good training camp and, with a veteran like Lemmerman to help him along, that's a plus factor."

Marler, 24, missed 11 games last season with a knee injury but is healthy again and is coach John Payne's choice for the No. 1 job. Lemmerman, 33, who spent most of his career in a backup role with Edmonton Eskimos, will come off the bench with his pinpoint passing.

Marler and Lemmerman will feed the ball to running backs Ronnie Rowland, second-leading ground gainer in the conference last year, and Rufus Crawford. Wilfrid Laurier University graduate Phil Colwell will see spot duty.

Leif Pettersen, who led the East in pass catching last season, Rocky DePietro, John Holland and Brock Aynsley are returning receivers. Gord Paterson is out for two months with an arm injury.

The offensive line is strong, with 6-5, 270-pound veteran Ed George; 6-4, 265-pound Al Moffat; 6-5, 265-pound Willie Martin and centre Henry Waszczuk holding the fort.

Ruoff, with Winnipeg Blue Bombers in 1979, is a key addition. He kicked five field goals in the Hamilton-B.C. game as well as handling the punting.

Defensively, the most notable addition is Crennell, a 10-year veteran, who played on Grey Cup championship teams in Montreal (1977) and Edmonton (1979). He joins Ben Zambiasi, 1979 Schenley award winner as the CFL's outstanding defensive player, to give the Tiger-Cats one of the top linebacking combinations in the league.

LPGA golfers bemoan fast-play regulation

NOBLESVILLE, Ind. (AP) — Some women on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour say they feel like they are running between strokes after a recent decsion to enforce quicker rounds.

In June LPGA commissioner Ray Volpe and tournament officials decided to strictly enforce rules governing slow play in a meeting with the tour's player council. Since the meeting, five players have been penalized two strokes for slow play.

"We're running while we're playing golf," said Beth Daniel during the $150,000 tournament which concluded here Sunday. "I think the LPGA has got to settle on a pace for our rounds.

"We're practically playing rounds in 3½ hours and that's ridiculous. It was about time the slowdown rule was enforced, however. A four-hour round makes sense.

At a recent tour stop in Rochester, N.Y., all four rounds of the tournament were completed in less than four hours, said LPGA spokesman Ruffin Beckwith, adding it was the first time on record the women had completed their play that quickly.

Janet Coles thinks a fine or the two-stroke penalty may not be the best solution.

HURTS FASTER PLAYER

"It's good to speed up play, but you've got to try and get the individual athlete to do what she wants without hurting her game," said Coles, a 23-year-old completing her fourth year on the tour.

"A slow round really hurts the faster player, but I think the way (LPGA official) Betsy Rawls helped me speed up my game is a better solution than a penalty.

"The LPGA knows who the slow players are. They've got to work with them, explain what they're doing that is slowing them down and how they might change without hurting their game. That's what Betsy did with me last year."

"We've got to run the tour as fairly as possible for the field and the speed-up has come at the request of the players," said Rawls, a member of the LPGA Hall of Fame, who won two LPGA championships and four U.S. Open titles while on the tour.

"We also want to make our tour more enjoyable for the spectators. They don't like to stand around as the women wait for every shot.

MAINTAIN SPACING

The LPGA is not aiming for a specific time to complete the rounds, but wants to have the players maintain the same spacing they had between their starting times which is usually around 10 minutes.

H. B. Duntz was one of the five players hit with a two-stroke penalty.

"I know I'm slow, but I do everything slow," she said. "I also think the penalty was unjustified when I was given it because of a strong wind (in Hershey, Pa.)."

Nancy Lopez-Melton, one of the tour's superstars, was also given the penalty. Duntz claims the LPGA singled out Lopez-Melton because it figured it would demonstrate the rule was for everyone. However, other players disagred with that thought.

"Nancy just happened to have a slow round," said Sally Little, who said she enjoyed the quicker play of the last two tournaments. "I'm an aggressive player and it was driving me insane to play at the pace we were going.

"Golf is slow enough without slow play. It gets boring for the gallery if the action isn't flowing."

MSVL roundup: Blues way ahead

Last week in Massawippi softball action, Ayer's Cliff Blues won two more games to run their record to 22-1 in Division II. Wednesday night, the Blues defeated Sawyerville 10-6 on the strength of Denis Tobin's 4 hits. Tobin, the league leader with a .520 average, got a hit each of the four time he went to bat. Wayne Smith got his eleventh win with Denis Boulet pitching the last three innings for the save. Also the Blues beat Waterville 14-6 with Boulet running his record to 11-0.

On Thursday, Sawyerville survived a late inning surge by the Lennoxville Giants for an 11-5 win. Bob Barnes had three hits for the winners as Guy Raymond won his tenth game.

In other action Thursday, the Golden Lion Pub outlasted the North Hatley Legion 10-7. Peter Bishop and Doug Mackenzie each knocked in four runs for the Pub, each connecting for a triple while Mackenzie belted his third homer of the year. Andy Smith and John MacCrea each had two hits for the Legion.

Real Dion and Luc Tremblay each drove in four runs with Tremblay connecting for a three-run homer in the second inning. Yvon Lessard contributed three hits to a total of 16 by the winners. Les 3 Cedres had dropped a 7-2 decision to Huntingville on Monday as Larry Brazel and Martin Carrier each hit safely twice. Mike Griffin hit his seventh home run of the season for the losers.

Parker blasts Bucs past Phils

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Dave Parker's two-run ninth-inning homer, his second of the night, carried Pittsburgh Pirates to a 13-11 National League baseball victory over Philadelphia Phillies on Monday in a game that featured 36 hits and saw 35 players pressed into service.

Tim Foli opened the Pittsburgh ninth with his fourth hit of the night, a single. Parker, who hit a two-run homer in the third inning, then drove one over the right field wall for his 12th homer of the season.

Parker's game-winning shot came off reliever Ron Reed, 6-3, one of 10 pitchers to see action in the three-hour, 33-minute slugfest.

Pete Rose's seventh-inning bases-loaded single had driven in a pair of runs that gave the Phillies an 11-10 lead. But the Pirates tied it in the eighth on a single by Lee Lacy, a walk to pinch hitter John Milner and an RBI single by pinch hitter Ed Ott.

Giants 5 Reds 3

Don't look now, but suddenly there are four baseball teams in what was supposed to be a three-way race in the National League West Division.

The streaking San Francisco Giants became the fourth club when they won their seventh consecutive game Monday night, defeating Cincinnati Reds 5-3 and evening their record at 43-43.

San Francisco is only six games out of first and trails third-place Cincinnati by one-half game. The front-running Houston Astros lost to Atlanta Braves 2-0 but maintained their half-game lead over Los Angeles when the Dodgers were beaten for the third straight time by San Diego Padres, 6-3.

The Giants owe much of their success to some effective new young pitchers. The starters — and winners — in the last three games have been Bill Bordley, Allen Ripley and Alan Hargesheimer, a 23-year-old righthander who allowed one run and five hits in five innings in his major league debut Monday night.

Jack Clark got the Giants started in the first inning with his 17th home run of the season. In the fourth, Cincinnati starter Charlie Leibrandt issued two-out walks to Joe Pettini and Johnnie LeMaster, who both scored on Mike Sadek's double.

Hargesheimer then blooped a double behind first base, scoring Sadek to make it 4-0. LeMaster doubled in the sixth and scored on an error for the final San Francisco run.

Braves 2 Astros 0

Knuckleballer Phil Niekro, pitching despite a bruised elbow, hurled a two-hitter and struck out 11 as the Braves ended a five-game losing streak.

Padres 6 Dodgers 3

Gene Richards collected three hits and scored three runs and Ozzie Smith drove in a pair of runs with a single and a double as the Padres completed a three-game sweep and made it five of six over the Dodgers in San Diego this season.

Stamps' Johnson to start against Als

Coach Ardell Wiegandt is hoping quarterback Ken Johnson, who dislocated his finger in last week's loss to Ottawa Rough Riders, will lead Calgary Stampeders to victory tonight against the visiting Montreal Alouettes.

The game will be shown locally on CBC, Channel 6 in English and CKSH, Channel 9, in French, at 9:30 p.m. In another CFL game tonight, Hamilton Tiger-Cats open their season when they host Ottawa Rough Riders.

Originally Wiegandt, whose team lost 26-20 to Ottawa, only had to plug a hole left by injured veteran tackle Ken Dombrowski, but further injuries have complicated things. Of note was the injury of veteran cornerback Terry Irvin, who pulled a leg muscle in practice Sunday.

The coach said Andy Jonassen will fill in for Dombrowski, while sophomore Canadian linebacker Doug Battershill has worked left inside safety in practice.

However, with Johnson back at quarterback, Wiegandt's biggest worry is over: "There are some things that should work for us on offence."

Still, Wiegandt expects a tough game with the Als, who like the Stampeders, lost their season-opener despite being the favorites before the game. Toronto Argonauts upset the defending Eastern Conference champions 18-11.

CONTAIN BARNES

"They have a real good sprint-out, sprint-draw offence," Wiegandt said of the Als. "And the only way to neutralize it is to put pressure on the quarterback (Joe Barnes)."

In Hamilton, defensive co-cordinator Jim Eddy said the only way the Tiger-Cats can beat the Rough Riders is to stop quarterback Condredge Holloway.

"Holloway is the premier quarterback in the CFL right now. We must control him so he doesn't have time to find his No. 1 target, Tony Gabriel, and other quality receivers like Martin Cox and Peter Stenerson. We have to make him pass the ball ahead of schedule."

Eddy said the Ottawa offensive line is another worry.

"They're probably stronger than they were last year. I am in awe of how they moved the ball against Calgary because the Stampeders were the second-best defence in the league last year."

Eddy said the Ticats are using Lyall Woznesensky at left defensive end in an attempt to counter the Ottawa offensive strength.

Blackwood scores tennis upset

MONTREAL (CP) — Marjorie Blackwood isn't sure how far she can advance in the Player's Challenge women's professional tennis tournament, but she is determined to give it everything she's got.

The 23-year-old Ottawa resident scored the initial upset of the $100,000 tournament in first-round action Monday, defeating Jane Stratton of Salt Lake City 6-4, 3-6, 6-2.

No.1 seed Martina Navratilova, ranked second internationally and a two-time Wimbledon champion, will undoubtedly be Blackwood's next opponent.

"I'm kind of happy to have the chance of playing against her because she will pick out the holes in my game for sure," said Blackwood, top-ranked in Canada and 116th on the Women's Tennis Association's international computer rankings.

Navratilova is scheduled to meet Candy Reynolds of Knoxville, Tenn., in second-round play today and chances of an upset are slim.

"I'm not going to concede defeat, you just never do that," said Blackwood. "But realistically, Martina is a few matches better than I am."

FINISHES QUICKLY

Second-seed Greer Stevens of South Africa, on the mend from a pulled leg muscle suffered at Wimbledon, swept Japan's Sonoe Yonezawa 6-0, 6-1, in the shortest match of the 10 played.

Pam Shriver of Lutherville, Md., ranked 16th both in the U.S. and the world, didn't let a brief rain delay break her momentum in defeating Adriana Villagran of Buenos Aires, 6-3, 6-3.

GAGNE'S 5-HITTER LEADS SENATORS

SHERBROOKE (DC) — Jacques Gagne pitched a five hitter last night as the Senators blanked Richelieu 1-0 in Little League action.

It was a scoreless game going into the fourth inning. Gagne reached base on a ground rule double. Stephane Brochu threw a wild pitch that eluded catcher Bernard Laroche and Gagne smartly stole third on the play. Emile Nichol then blasted a line drive past the second baseman to score Gagne for the first and only run needed.

Gagne was the winning pitcher as he lasted the entire game, striking out 11 batters.

Stephane Brochu received the loss as he threw a two hitter. Brochu fanned 13 Senator batters.

Johnston says he's to coach Penguins

CHICAGO (AP) — Eddie Johnston, former coach of Chicago Black Hawks, said Monday night he has signed a two-year National Hockey League contract to coach Pittsburgh Penguins.

In an interview on Radio station WCFL-AM, Johnston said he is "very optimistic" about his new job.

Johnston, 45, was named coach of the Black Hawks in June, 1979. The Hawks did not renew his one-year contract last month, and Johnston is reported to have been at odds with Hawks general manager Bob Pulford.

The Black Hawks later signed former defenceman Keith Magnuson as coach.

Meanwhile, Denis Cyr has signed a multi-year contract with Calgary Flames. Cyr, who played for Montreal Juniors of the QMJHL, was the 13th player selected in this year's NHL draft and was the Flames' top choice. The 19-year-old right winger was the leading scorer in the provincial junior circuit with 70 goals.

In Vancouver, the Canucks announced the signing of former Olympic Team coach Tom Watt as an assistant coach. Watt, 45, also coached the University of Toronto Blues and joins Canuck head coach Harry Neale and another assistant, Dave Dunn.

ATHLETES DO TOWNSHIPS PROUD

SUDBURY — Two Spartiate Track Club members fared well at the Canadian Junior Track and Field Championships on the weekend. Wendy Simons and Susan Durrell -- juvenile-level athletes -- ran against competitors two years their senior and Simons made it to the 100-metre final, placing seventh overall. She clocked 12.36 seconds on the electronic timer which works out to a 12-12 on a manual stopwatch. In the preliminary heat, she had favorable wind conditions and clocked a 12.11 (11.87 manual).

Durrell came in 11th overall with a time of 12.36 (12.12 manual).

In the 200 metres, Durrell clocked 25.74 (25.55) while Simons had a 25.91 (25.67). Both were eliminated in the semi-finals.

"They were up against a very high calibre of athletes," Spartiate director George Harkins said Monday, "and they received valuable experience."

Three Tri-Mag (Magog) athletes finished well. Christiane Slythe barely missed the final in the women's 800 metres while Andre Parent clocked a personal best time in the men's 200 metres. Andre Quirion was in fifth place after five events in the men's decathlon but was forced to complete the second half of the competition with a painful ankle injury.

Reaves won't undergo mental tests

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — After a psychiatrist claimed John Reaves was competent, court-ordered mental tests were cancelled Monday for the Minnesota quarterback who friends say is battling problems with alcohol and drugs.

Flanked by three lawyers, Reaves, 30, appeared for a brief court hearing after five days of eluding authorities who were to escort him to a mental health centre.

Afterwards, Reaves refused comment other than to say he was pleased by the outcome and anxious to get back to Minnesota for the Vikings spring training next week.

No mention was made in court of drugs or of his whereabouts the last week while he was the object of a police hunt.

Roughies' Hufnagel out

REGINA (CP) — Quarterback John Hufnagel, injured in Saskatchewan Roughriders' Canadian Football League opening game with British Columbia Lions July 8, will be out of action for at least three weeks. Coach Ron Lancaster said Monday that doctors put a cast on Hufnagel's torn ligaments. He said that until Hufnagel returns, Danny Sanders will be starting quarterback.

NFL Pats sign kicker Sunter

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — New England Patriots have signed Ian Sunter, a recent cut by Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League. Sunter averaged more than 43 yards a kick in the 1979 CFL season but the Argos let him go in favor of Zenon Andrusyshyn, who had been released by Kansas City Chiefs of the NFL.

McNamara inks pact with Reds

CINCINNATI (AP) — John McNamara has signed a new one-year contract to manage Cincinnati Reds through the 1981 baseball season, club president Dick Wagner said Monday. McNamara succeeded Sparky Anderson as Reds manager following the 1978 season and le.. Cincinnati to the National League West title last year.

East took his ace of diamonds and led back the eight. South was in dummy and studied all possibilities. He could cash one of dummy's good trumps, lead a second trump to his ace, lead the jack of clubs and let it ride.

If West held the queen, everything would be fine. But if East held her grace and trumps broke 3-1, he would get to force dummy twice with diamonds before a club trick could be established and he would have to lose a trump trick.

So he cashed one of dummy's trumps and led a club from dummy. East was in and could do nothing to upset South's apple cart.

If he tried to force dummy with diamonds, South could ruff low the first time and East could not establish a trump trick for himself.

Some of you readers are going to ask: "Suppose West held the club queen? Couldn't he lead a heart and force South to lose a heart trick."

The answer to that one is that South was a really good player.

He knew that East held the ace of clubs so he led the king from dummy. East had to win that trick and it did not matter where the queen was. South would get his clubs set up before a heart could be led through dummy.

Your Birthday

July 16, 1980

You are in a very creative cycle and you could come up with some unique ideas for new items, methods or systems this coming year. It may be necessary, however, to find the right teammates to get them to the marketplace.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Treat others compassionately today, but don't let your heart rule your head to the extent that you might do something foolish. Be kind, but also be logical. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You are likely to be alternately prudent and careless in managing your resources today. Don't permit your extravagance to wipe out your gains.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Recognition today is important to you, provided it's not at the expense of someone else. Share the limelight with those who helped boost you up the ladder.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Success will not elude you today unless you spread your forces too thin. Focus on your goals. Exclude ideas or activities that are not pertinent.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Before jumping into a joint venture with a friend today, weigh all the alternatives. A failure to think things through properly could get it off to a bad start.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't wait for others today in matters that mean something to you financially. Their help may not be forthcoming and it could slow your progress.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be reasonable when making requests today. Don't ask others to do something you wouldn't want to do yourself. They're not apt to enjoy the task, either.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Treat things you manage or borrow from others with the same respect you would treat your own. You could lose a friend if you behave too carelessly.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Base your decisions today on the facts as they are, not on what you hope they may soon be. Unrealistic appraisals could lead to disappointments.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't let your attention wander from your work today. Daydreaming could lead you to make serious mistakes. Think only of the task at hand.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Try not to be too possessive of a loved one today. Putting restraints on him or her will create problems that could easily be avoided.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In practical matters today, you're likely to handle situations to your advantage. However, socially you may neglect to put your best foot forward.
