Loot: A comical tale from the dark side

By Diahann Nadeau
RECORD CORRESPONDENT
KNOWLTON

Joe Orton's Loot seems an unlikely piece for summer theatre, especially in a small town like Knowlton.

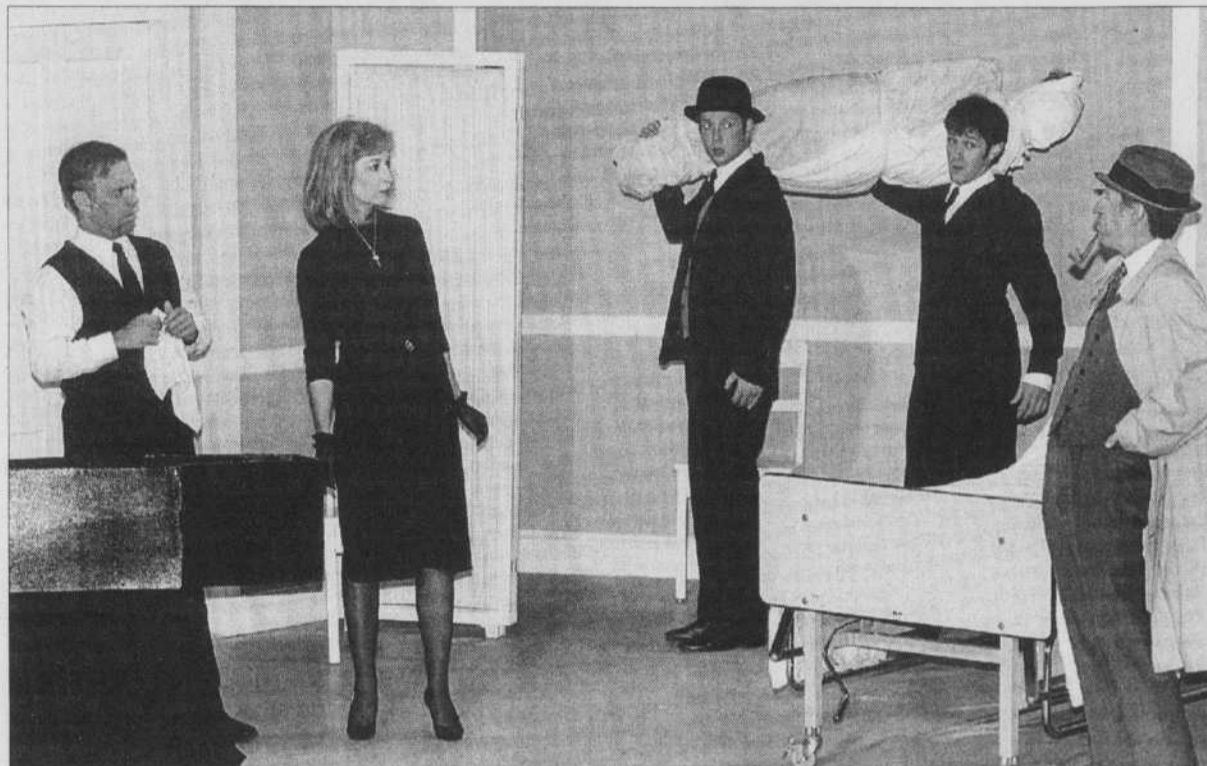

Sophisticated, daring, wicked and cheerfully offensive, Loot takes on the Roman Catholic Church, government and authority, the police and the sanctity of death.

Producing this play in the summertime is a somewhat risky move as many people just want an easy laugh and no challenge during their holidays.

The plot is somewhat convoluted, and the easiest way to describe it is through the characters. These consist of two young male thieves whose morals are non-existent, a sociopathic killer with a nursing degree, a bereaved widower and a devious and dishonest policeman. Oh yes, there is also a corpse with a glass eye who cannot rest in peace.

Fay nursed her patient to the grave, and has high hopes of a speedy marriage to widower McCleavy, despite the fact that his wife's remains are still on display in the house.

His son, a youth whose only admirable trait is his inability to lie, has robbed a bank and is hiding the cash in a locked closet in their house. The undertaker's assistant, Dennis, has aided and abetted in this crime and Inspector Truscott has disguised himself as a Water Board inspector rather than admit his identity as a Scotland Yard sleuth. (As a member of the Water Board he doesn't have to adhere to silly little rules like search warrants in order to browse through a suspect's house.)

Glenn Roy, Diana Fajrajsl, Brett Watson, Rob Torr and Greg Kramer in Loot... deliciously dark.

The thieves plan to bury their cash and mummy's coffin naturally suggests itself. Since there isn't enough room for both body and money, the loot wins out and mum heads for the closet, upside-down. Along comes Truscott, intent on arresting his suspects, as well as catching an elusive killer nurse who has thus far escaped prosecution for 13 murders.

Diana Fajrajsl has the plum role as nurse Fay, a devoutly Catholic murderer whose conscience does not seem to be perturbed in the least by her criminal activities. Fajrajsl, fresh from her triumph directing the "babe" play, "Always ... Patsy Cline," is enthusiastic about her part.

"She is one of my favourite characters (in her repertory). She's an instigator, she doesn't just let things happen to her. Orton wrote a strong female character years before 1971 when the Woman's Movement started."

Fajrajsl admitted it was difficult to find a sympathetic side to Fay.

"I look for that in the sociological situation. Back then, the only way for women to get any real money was from men," she said.

In the pre-Women's Lib context, Fay couldn't attain her financial goals through business; marriage was the only way she had to get rich. (Well, widowhood mostly!)

The energy level is very intense during this play and the dialogue is delivered at a breathtaking pace. The cast uses British accents and only two of the actors are actually British (Emma Stevens and Greg Kramer).

Fajrajsl said this was "mentally demanding, not physically demanding. But my mouth has to be awake! And I need lots of energy."

The four male actors share a mutual love of the script.

Greg Kramer, who plays the insufferable Inspector Truscott, said he truly wanted to do this play.

"I really wanted to do it. It's what drew me out here," he said. "Although it was written 30 years ago, it's still very apt and not dated. I love the language in it. I think Orton has now achieved a level of respectability as a sort of a 'cheeky bugger' that would have made him roll over in his grave back then!"

"Loot doesn't get done very often. This was a good opportunity to do it," said Brett Watson, who plays the lovestruck Dennis, an undertaker's assistant and thief. "It's kind of fun doing it for summer theatre, where they usually like to do a mystery. This is a send-up of a murder mystery. And it's about fighting authority and questioning authority."

Rob Torr, who plays Hal, the truthful but disrespectful son, points out that "although Loot is shocking now, it is not as shocking as it was then. And it's actually not that far from reality. I think if audiences are shocked a bit it's good because it makes you think about the reality we are living."

Glenn Roy rounds out the males as the grieving and horrified widower McCleavy.

Roy said he was initially concerned about playing a character much older than himself.

"Of course, the other guys all see me as much older than they are anyway! They all pick on me," he joked.

The men are enjoying being in picturesque Knowlton and acting in the true repertory fashion. The schedule is anything but dull and their roles as musicians in Patsy Cline and actors in a deliciously black comedy gives them a chance to display their range.

Director Nicholas Pynes is remaining true to his vow to deliver theatre that does not simply echo television sitcoms. Loot is a daring choice and it is definitely to Pynes's credit that he took a chance on intelligent comedy, however shocking and dark the material.

Sutton welcomes new gallery, street artists

Galerie Partenaires opens its doors

By Caroline Kehne
RECORD CORRESPONDENT
SUTTON

Tucked away on a wooded alley behind Restaurant Mocador is a recent addition to the Sutton arts scene. Galerie Partenaires opened its doors in June and is the creation of artists George Constantin, John Quesnel, Michel Lafond, Micheline Sansregret and silent partner Lyndon Gilker.

John Quesnel, a painter of miniature oils, is a native of Montreal and a resident of Sutton for 12 years. Painter George Constantin, a watercolorist and creator of colorful shadow boxes from recycled materials and dried plants has been a full-time resident of Sutton for over two years. Oil and watercolor painter Micheline Sansregret and oil painter Michel Lafond are weekenders who permanently reside in Pierrefonds.

Although the gallery only recently opened its doors, John Quesnel said that the artists' partnership has been around for over three. "The idea was to share all costs," said Quesnel, speaking from the gallery that displays the works of the four artists. "We're having fun," adds Michel Lafond. "The whole idea is to have fun as well as to have a place to work."

As well as sharing a gallery, the four partners share a similar background: Quesnel, Lafond, and Sansregret all worked as professional graphic artists, while Constantin worked as a set designer.

John Quesnel apprenticed as a colour etcher, working in graphic and fine arts for Rapid, Grip and Batten Ltd. where many artists, including Thompson, Lismer, Macdonald and Champagne began their careers. His work currently focuses on oil miniatures, painting portraits, landscapes from eastern U.S. and Canada.

Partner Micheline Sansregret said that drawing has been her lifelong passion. She studied with painter Andrei Zadorozny, a student of Lismer. She has also studied at the École de peinture du Québec and the Saidye Bronfman Center in Montréal. Michel Lafond, who describes himself as primarily self-taught, discovered painting at the age of 18 and has worked in oil, watercolours, charcoal and other media. His works have been exhibited at the Complex G in Québec City, in Beauharnois, Chateauguay and St-Donat. Constantin worked as a set designer for the CBC. He now maintains a painting studio a short walk from the gallery in a second-floor apartment on Pine Street.

Constantin is also organizing a group of artists who will be painting or displaying their works on the streets of Sutton during the Tour des Arts. This event, not affiliated with the Tour des Arts, is an initiative undertaken by the Sutton Economic Development Corporation and Constantin, who is coordinating the selection of over a dozen artists who will set up small displays in front of area businesses. Constantin said that his partners will be among those taking part. He believes the primary beneficiaries will be artists who do not have large studios appropriate for a public tour or others unable to gain entry to the Tour des Arts, because it is limited to 40 artists. The Sutton street artists will be identified with ribbons and will also be distributing Tour des Arts pamphlets and maps.

As art tours based upon the success of the Tour des Arts proliferate throughout the area, it is difficult to know if or when the public market for art will saturate. Constantin and his partners recognize that the market has breadth: not every artist is a Picasso and the art buyers with Picasso budgets are few and far between. For every art lover in the middle, there will certainly be an abundance from which to choose.

Galerie Partenaires is located at Ru-elle Mocador (behind Mocador). The gallery is open 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Thursdays through Sunday, June through October 17. Details: (450) 538-6765.

6th Circuit des Arts features 78 artists

Staff

The summer of 1999 brings back the sixth edition of the Circuit des Arts Memphrémagog.

This year's edition brings together 78 artists, including 18 who are new to the circuit. The circuit is scattered over 53 sites across the Memphrémagog MRC.

Among the new faces this year are Barr Lewis, a multi-media artist from Bolton Centre, potters Robert and Lisa McNeil from Magog Township, as well as potter Paula Curphey from North Hatley.

The tour also features collective exhibitions in Georgeville at the Elephant barn and the Murray Memorial Centre. There are also exhibits in Highwater, Mansonville, Austin, Eastman, Stukely, Orford Township, Magog, Ste-Catherine-de-Hatley, Ayer's Cliff, Stanstead, and Ogdén.

The Circuit des Arts Memphremagog takes place from July 24 to Aug. 1, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Artist Thérèse Savard is the circuit's publicist.

Montreal artists take to the country

City co-op exhibit in Knowlton

By Tanya Tkach
RECORD CORRESPONDENT
KNOWLTON

Campagn'art, an eclectic mix of six professional artists from Montreal, are exhibiting their original art works for the first time in the Eastern Townships at Knowlton's Brome County Historical Museum through July 18.

The artists, who usually have annual open houses at their co-op on St. Ambroise Street in Montreal, decided to present their works in Knowlton, said organizer and part-time Knowlton resident Louise Charest-Malepart.

"We've come here because we think it's the best place in the Eastern Townships," she said.

Charest-Malepart said she met Raymond Racine, the sculptor who formed the co-op, 20 years ago while doing sculpture in Montreal.

"The five of us met through artistic circles," said Charest-Malepart, who combines her organizational skills with making pottery.

If sales and reviews are favourable, the group plans to return annually.

Racine, 77, has been creating sculptures since '73 when she started her courses at the Visual Arts Centre in Montreal.

"I work very slowly and by my instincts. It's like a newborn for me - I have a feeling and it starts. Then it's the stoneware and the preparation of copper, manganese and cobalt which is my technique," said Racine, who planned to retire the previous year, but just completed her recent pieces last week.

JOY YOKOYAMA

Show organizer and part-time Knowlton resident Louise Charest-Malepart.

"They pushed me to finish for this exhibit. It's good to have something to do," added Racine, who founded one of the first co-ops in Montreal at the corner of Sherbrooke and Atwater Streets in the late 70s, one that had a long and established list of followers.

Marilyn Melnick, representing her husband, jeweller Leo Beinglas, was eager to discuss his recent collection.

"Usually he works in gold, platinum and precious stones, but these sterling silver pieces are made from a lost wax process," she said. "He can only make three or four and then has to start again. They're whimsical, using many different elements such as the 'om' sign, or the elephant idol from India."

Professional and well-known ceramist Gary Merkel, whose pieces are exhibited in galleries around the world and whose works are published in magazines, joined forces with Racine seven years ago while searching for a new studio after relocating to Montreal from British Columbia.

"I love my life, I love ceramics and doing it," said Merkel, whose love of shaping things originated while in high school.

"I've also studied with Mr. Weber at Confederation College in Thunder Bay, took courses at the University of Regina, and Emily Carr and did workshops in New York City," said Merkel, who developed his love of bright colours and whimsical style while learning the 'funk tradition' in Vancouver.

In his designs, Merkel juxtaposes organic nature with man-made designs - the voluptuous, round and soft versus the hard steel with straight edges - as illustrated in his teapots.

"They can be used, they're totally glazed and they hold tea.

Some of them pour well, they're theatrical," he said.

The creation of Merkel's pieces involve an extremely long process with three firings: The first is the bisque process which removes the water, then there's the glaze firing and the last process involves gold and platinum finishes. Each firing takes up to 12 hours and then an additional 24 hours for the cooling process.

"I have about a 20 per cent loss in the work I do. Clay needs time and it will let you know if you're pushing it," said Merkel, who prefers working in porcelain which involves an even longer process.

He described porcelain as a very fine and dense clay subject to warping and cracking - very temperamental.

"One of my porcelain pieces that took two months alone to dry is in the permanent collection at the Art Gallery of Victoria. It took me one half-hour each week to dry it and then I'd cover it," he recalled.

The most recent artist at the co-op is Bev Lev, a former social worker, who joined the group two years ago while studying ceramics during a sabbatical.

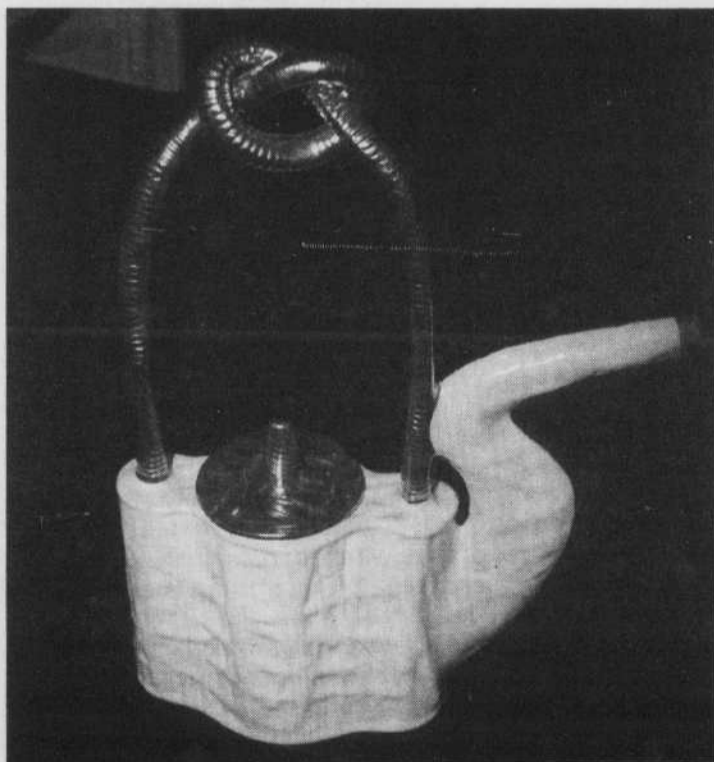

"I've been wanting to do this for a number of years, but fell into social work needing to make a living," said Lev, who studied visual arts in Ottawa 20 years ago.

Lev, modest about her talent and surprised at the sale of four of her initial pieces during their annual open house last Christmas, decided to continue her new-found career.

She's pleased with ceramics, stressing the need to be focused and equating the art form with lessons and tests in each individual's life.

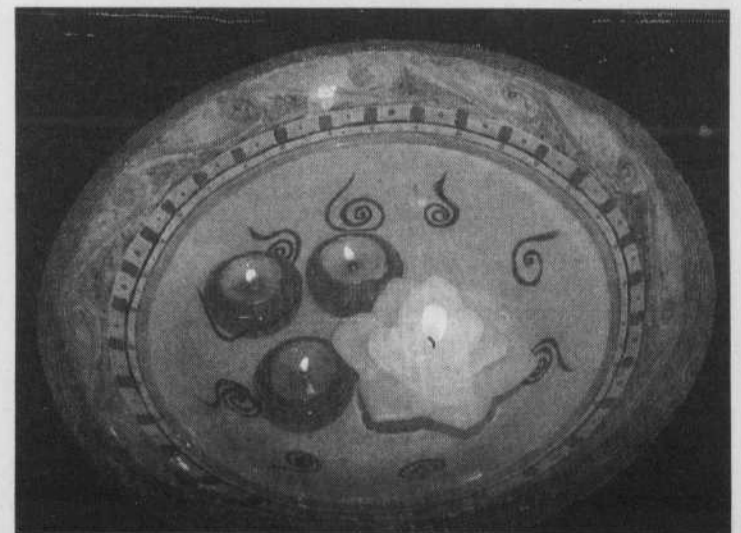

Lev said the major hurdle is the test between your will and creativity:

"You're better off being open to letting nature take its course and whatever happens, happens."

Steve Wariner earns his place in the sun

Fair circuit promises plenty for country music fans

One month to go and country fans will be in the midst of all those agricultural fairs which mean country venues to satisfy everyone. Here's a short list of the shows to watch for in the 1999 season:

Kicking off the fair circuit at the Barton Fair, Canadian country singer Michelle Wright will perform on August 12; The Stanstead County Agricultural fair will host the biggest show the fair has ever had on Sat. Aug. 28 with Prairie Oyster.

Brome County Agricultural Society will feature three nights of country entertainment starting with the No Fences-Garth Brooks Tribute Act on Friday Sept. 3; Canadian country singer, and American Music Award Winner, Paul Brandt will perform on Saturday, Sept. 4; while Canadian country music award winner George Fox will take the stage on Sunday, Sept. 5.

COUNTRY CONNECTION

JESSIE AULIS

Champlain Valley Fair organizers have confirmed that Trace Adkins will be the opening act for the duo Brooks & Dunn on Thursday, Sept. 2 and the queen of country music, Reba McEntire, is scheduled to make her third appearance at the fair on Sunday, Sept. 5 with comedian Dick Hardwick as an opening act.

Here's my pick of new albums for this week:

STEVE WARINER: TWO TEARDROPS (Capitol)

Wariner never really achieved mainstream success but still had a satisfying and stable career, developing a reputation as a guitar player. Suddenly last year things turned around when his song "Holes in the Floor of Heaven," reached the top of the country charts.

The song earned him many awards as well as new recognition from country music fans. Following up on this success was no easy task and common sense would say that he should probably have led off this new album with a different type of song, one that wouldn't draw comparisons.

Instead Wariner trusted his instincts as he made "Two Teardrops," not just the first single, but the title cut as well. It was the right move for the singer.

The ballad about life tackles a different subject than "Holes in the Floor of Heaven," but it draws a similar emotional response and it made it to number one in no time.

The honors and recognition he received for this song of the year (1998) destroyed the wall between Wariner, the fans and radioland.

Listening to the album you soon realize that Wariner's talent doesn't stop with the first ballad. He wrote or co-wrote all but one of the album's generous 15 songs.

It kicks off with the rockin' "Hands of Time," before sampling multi-flavoured country music such as traditional, R&B, folk and pop.

"Talk To Her Heart," is a piece of advice to men co-written with country great "Whisperin'" Bill Anderson and Jim Weatherly on which Bryan White joins him.

His great talent as a guitarist is well featured on the instrumental "The Harry Shuffle" while the second single "I'm Already Taken" is a sweet and tender number.

"Cry No More" explores the pop side of country music and Wariner's 15-year-old son, Ryan, collaborates some great guitar licks to "So Much." Following in his father's footsteps, he shows a lot of potential.

The recording was done with a relaxed approach which gives the album a nice feel, not too slick.

Steve Wariner finally has his place in the sun.

ROY ROGERS: HAPPY TRAILS: THE ROY ROGERS COLLECTION (1937-1990) (Rhino)

No doubt this boxed set is a great collector's item and represents an honor that should have been given before Roy Rogers passed away last year at the age of 86. This collection is a reminder that Rogers was a successful singer long before he became the great movie cowboy that people loved.

The legacy of popular cowboy music he left is huge including what he did as a solo singer, in tandem with his wife, Dale Evans and as a founding member of the Sons of the Pioneers.

This three-disc, 94-track collection offers all of Rogers' best-known songs even some of his early work with the Sons such as "My Saddle Pals and I," "Blue Shadows on the Trail" and "Stampede."

There are also examples of his early

Steve Wariner has made a name for himself as a guitar player.

70s comeback on the country charts with "Lovenworth" and "Hoppy, Gene and Me," a salute to fellow range riders Hopalong Cassidy and Gene Autry. His latest material comes from a 1990 tribute done in Nashville.

The album also features unreleased material, including a different take of "Happy Trails" with Dale Evans as his partner. Some tunes have also been taken from his popular radio show for the great pleasure of those who remember it.

The archivists at Rhino have done a wonderful job with this package adding a full-color booklet of more than 60 pages of information on the songs, a complete list of his films, many photos and essays on Rogers and his work.

The booklet is packed with information on the 450 or so items such as toys, clothes and other things that were sold under his name, which are now highly collectible.

There is a gold mine of information on the legendary cowboy and his body of work which is appreciable for the die-hard fan who might have missed something.

This boxed set should be regarded as a treasure and a legacy from the man whose name is familiar to even those who are not country fans. A must for collectors and a very nice idea for a gift.

Have a nice week and happy trails to you until we meet again!

Roadside art attractions in Pike River

Artifacts and artwork

By Caroline Kehne
RECORD CORRESPONDENT
PIKE RIVER

An exhibit on the archeology and prehistory of Brome-Missisquoi and an art show are sharing space at Le Maison du Tourisme de Pike River.

The shows are housed in the tourism office located in St-Pierre-de-Véronne (Pike River). The building, which once served as presbytery for the adjacent Catholic church, has served as a tourism office since 1992.

Its second floor now functions as an exhibition hall. Open throughout the summer months, the office is staffed by five summer students ready to provide information, maps and directions to passing tourists.

The fine arts exhibition features work from area artists and artisans, including oil painting, hand-woven quilts, photography, soapstone and wood sculpture, pottery and jewelry. The featured artists are St-Armand painter Daniëlle Clément, Mystic potter Jacques Marsot, wood sculptor Patrick Roy, soapstone sculptor Gerard Schwartz, Pike River rosemaling artist Ilse Gasser, floral art from Fleurists Annie Laurence Inc., Bedford weaver Martine Langlois Robinson and St-Armand photographer Hélène Duperron.

Also sharing the same space is an exhibit entitled "Archeology and Prehistory of Brome-Missisquoi" describing the results of regional archeological digs conducted by Quebec researchers. Missisquoi County (whose name is derived from the native word for "plenty of waterfowl") has been the focus of significant archeological interest. In 1991, University of Montreal researchers discovered evidence of a 3,000-year old settlement at the mouth of the Pike River, including at least one artifact that originated in the Great Lakes region, suggesting widespread trading among the area's earliest inhabitants.

The exhibits are open throughout the summer months at 579 Route 133 St-Pierre-de-Véronne (Pike River). Details, Tourist Office at (450) 248-7800.

Spring harvest of local art

Massey-Vanier High School art teacher Diana Dyer had a bumper crop of art students this year at the regional high school.

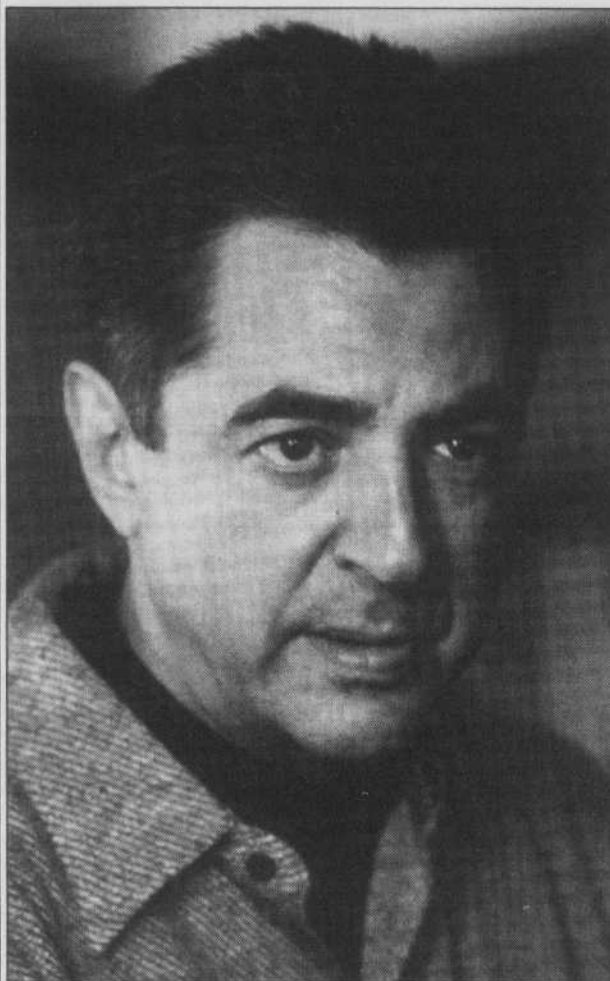

Dyer said it was an exceptional year in that the work was of a very high quality and greatly admired at a spring exhibit where porcelain and apple dolls, embroidery, wooden and terra cotta napkin rings, fired and glazed sculptures, drawings and watercolours, acrylic paintings, prints, bisque tiles of local scenes, and tole painting on shelves and plaques, all created by level two and five secondary students were on display at the Massey-Vanier Art Gallery in the exhibit, A Sampler, held from May 10 to 21.

Hired Help

TVDATA

He walked into my life, wrapped his arms around me like a sweater a couple of sizes too small, and I knew everything would be all right. After all, he's a good guy, can throw a punch - and cook rice pilaf. His name is Spenser, and he's a private eye for hire. The famed detective, brainchild of best-selling writer Robert B. Parker, returns in the TV-movie Small Vices, airing Sunday, July 18, at 8 p.m. on A&E Network. It is a literate, finely acted movie starring Joe Mantegna (The Last Don) in the title role. Shiek Mahmud-Bey (Night Falls on Manhattan) co-stars as Spenser's partner, Hawk, in the A&E adaptation. Marcia Gay Harden (Miller's Crossing) plays Spenser's longtime love, Susan Silverman.

Moon Walk

TVDATA

Former astronaut Neil Armstrong was the first. Buzz Aldrin was the second man to ever walk on the moon. Aldrin gives his perspective and a play-by-play account of the historic event as Discovery Canada airs a three-hour anniversary special, One Giant Leap: The Legacy of Apollo 11, on Tuesday. "We wanted to really bring people back 30 years ... to re-experience the feel of the event," according to producer Paul Lewis.

Sunday

My Best Friend's Feeding

Harry Anderson (Night Court) stars as Elwood Dowd in Harvey, airing Sunday, July 18, at 9 p.m. on CBS. Anderson takes on the role played by James Stewart on the big screen: A man whose closest friend is a six-foot-tall invisible rabbit named Harvey. Elwood and Harvey lead happy lives until Elwood's nosy sister, Vera (Swoosie Kurtz), comes to town ready to commit him to a sanitarium. Leslie Nielsen stars as Dr. Chumley, the head of the hospital, in the charming comedy.
