Judge rules Bill 101 clause unconstitutional

MONTREAL (CP) — It started off as a routine court hearing, but when the proceedings ended Thursday, lawyers for both sides were astonished to find themselves the unwitting vehicles for a challenge to the constitutionality of Bill 101, Quebec's Charter of the French Language.

And Quebec Superior Court judge Perry Meyer, a former specialist in bankruptcy law and McGill University professor, found himself transformed into a constitutional arbiter when he declared one section of Bill 101 in violation of the British North America Act.

Justice Meyer held that chapter III, section 12 of the language law is unconstitutional because it abrogates the provision of the BNA Act guaranteeing that either English or French may be used in Quebec courts.

The ruling—immediately appealed to a higher court—arose from an injunction hearing in which a New Jersey-based company, Chemical and Pollution Sciences Inc., sought to bar a former employee from working for a competitor.

The U.S. firm claims that Maurice Malone, now employed by Record Chemical Co. of Montreal, broke a contractual agreement forbidding him to work for any competing chemical firm for two years after leaving his former employer. The provision is designed to protect trade secrets.

DELAYING TACTIC

Defence lawyers for Malone and Record Chemical, seeking to delay the hearing, complained that the injunction petition had been filed in English only, contrary to the requirements of Bill 101.

Justice Meyer listened to arguments, retired to chambers for about an hour and came back to pronounce a 40-minute oral judgment in which he not only accepted the English petition, but ruled the relevant provision of the language law unconstitutional.

He directed that a tape of the proceedings be delivered to him so he can write a formal judgment, expected to be available in about a week. The written judgment will add specific references to the judicial precedents upon which Justice Meyer based his decision.

Samuel Greenblatt, counsel for Record Chemical, said he had not intended to mount a test case on Bill 101. He said the objection to the English court document was raised only to delay proceedings while a key defence witness returned from Europe.

The objection was raised by Jean Laurin, Malone's lawyer, but Greenblatt concurred in the move.

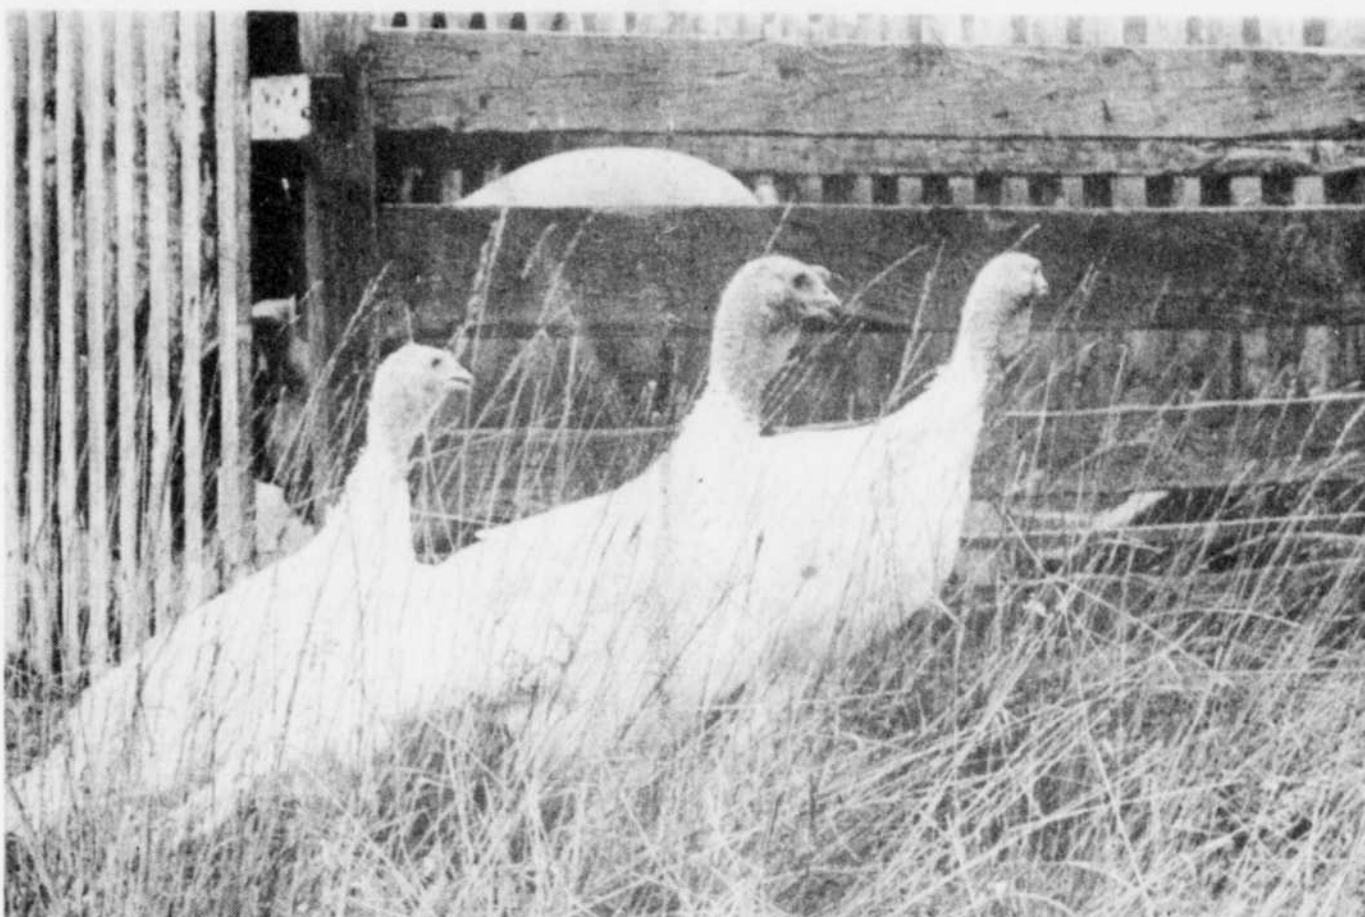

Justice Meyer expressed surprise when the issue came up in court, asking repeatedly if he understood correctly that lawyers for English-speaking defendants were challenging the presentation of an English document.

It was understood that at a later private meeting with lawyers from both sides, the judge took pains to satisfy himself that the affair was not a "set up" to force a constitutional decision on the language charter.

Gordon Zelman, lawyer for Chemical and Pollution Sciences, said the injunction petition was filed in English as a matter of course, since the plaintiff was a U.S.-based company, since Malone is English-speaking and since Record Chemical is controlled by English-speaking interests.

Although the ruling of unconstitutionality was immediately appealed by Malone's counsel, there is a possibility the case may never reach the Quebec Court of Appeal.

News Briefs

Bank robber apprehended

A young Cookshire man will appear in court today on charges of armed robbery for a $1,000 theft at the Bank of Montreal in Sawyerville yesterday afternoon.

The suspect, whose name has not been released, was arrested by officers of the Cookshire QPF detachment less than one-half hour after the robbery.

He entered the bank at 1:30 yesterday afternoon, and told a teller to empty her cash drawer after she refused to cash his personal cheque. There were only two employees in the bank at the time.

Sawyerville Police Chief, Leo Hamel, saw the young man running up the railroad tracks, and immediately notified the QPF. The suspect was picked up in a wooded area just outside of Sawyerville.

RCMP data to be public

MONTREAL (CP) — A Quebec commission of inquiry ruled Thursday it can make public the information in confidential RCMP papers, despite Solicitor General Francis Fox's opposition.

Jean Keable, the 31-year-old labor lawyer who heads the commission, ruled at the commission's public hearings that it can reveal the contents of the RCMP papers relating to an illegal police break-in at a leftwing news agency five years ago.

Mystery disease no problem

MONTREAL (CP) — Medical authorities here believe they may have been treating Legionnaire's disease successfully for years as an "atypical" or abnormal pneumonia, says the chief of microbiology at the Montreal General Hospital.

"We may well have been treating this disease for years... without knowing what we were doing," Dr. G. K. Richards said Wednesday.

Godin says PQ split

MONTREAL (CP) — Parti Quebecois backbencher Gerald Godin says the government committee which drafted the proposed rules of the independence referendum is split over the wording of the question.

Speaking Thursday on the CBC program, Decision, Godin said some committee members, including himself, favor a direct question to Quebecers, asking whether they favor the PQ's proposal for national sovereignty in an economic association with the rest of Canada.

Godin, member for the Montreal riding of Mercier which was held by former premier Robert Bourassa, said other committee members favor presenting a series of alternatives such as "the status quo, new federalism and outright independence."

Quebec wants Three Rs back

QUEBEC (CP) — A Quebec government green paper on education made public Thursday says the province's public schools must adopt clear teaching and disciplinary standards.

It recommends bringing back homework and possibly extending to 17 from 16 the age at which students are allowed to leave the school system.

Graffey wants new constitution

GRANBY, Que. (CP) — Heward Graffey, a Progressive Conservative member of Parliament, called Thursday for a new Canadian constitution to be written by a committee of elected federal and provincial officials from all parties.

His plan for a new constitution would take two years to complete, the member for Brome-Missisquoi told the Chamber of Commerce.

He said the federal government and the provinces should form constitutional committees, with each provincial committee meeting with its federal counterpart during the first year.

Trudeau appeals for English rights

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau implored Quebec Premier Rene Levesque on Thursday to support a constitutional amendment that would guarantee remaining minority language rights in education.

In a needling 4,000-word letter to Levesque, Trudeau also replied to the premier's argument that such an amendment would limit Quebec's exclusive jurisdiction in education and place its politicians in straitjackets.

"Do you seriously consider that the legislature should be able, as a matter of 'sovereignty,' to curtail further the linguistic rights of Quebecers?" Trudeau asked.

The letter, made available to reporters a few hours after it was sent by wire to Levesque, was accompanied by a 1,600-word position paper in which the provincial language charter was castigated as a "separatist measure" that is dividing the country, undermining fundamental freedoms, and threatening Quebec prosperity.

However, Trudeau rejected suggestions that he refer the charter directly to the Supreme Court of Canada for an opinion on whether it violates the British North America Act.

The prime minister said he was not going to give Levesque an issue—federal intervention—on which to fight another provincial election.

He urged minority groups in Quebec to take the law to court themselves and, if they could not win there, to fight with their votes.

The law should be abolished by democratic political action rather than direct federal intervention.

The Liberal government of Robert Bourassa probably had been defeated last November because of its controversial language law.

"Let's hope they do the same with Mr. Levesque," Trudeau said.

Federal lawyers would join in private challenges to the Quebec law that already have been initiated in the province's courts.

Justice Minister Ron Basford said the provisions of the law appear to be constitutional.

"There is very considerable doubt they are unconstitutional," he told reporters.

He refused to go into detail about what aspects of the law might be unconstitutional. He said it would be impossible to say until it is seen how they are enforced. Advance comment by him might hamstring lawyers arguing against the legislation, Basford said.

...and Levesque rejects PM's appeal

MONTREAL (CP) — Premier Rene Levesque rejected Thursday a new appeal from Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau for a restoration of free choice in the language of education in Quebec.

Speaking to reporters Thursday in his suburban Montreal riding of Taillon, the premier said his position of a month ago—when he rejected outright Trudeau's proposal for a rewritten national constitution—also remains the same.

In his new appeal Thursday in Ottawa, Trudeau asked Levesque to restore the freedom to choose English-language education in Quebec through a guarantee written into the national constitution.

Trudeau earlier told reporters the ultimate answer to the "repressive provisions" of Quebec's Charter of the French Language is to throw the Parti Quebecois out of office in an election. Levesque said from what he had been able to gather of the new appeal, "there ain't anything very much there."

Levesque said the federal government's tactics are "an exercise in pure partisan politics."

There is "a banana peel there" which the federal government does not want to step on.

The new language legislation "is perfectly constitutional," but the federal government is asking people to test it in court in order to keep its opponents hopes up for a few months until a possible federal election is called, Levesque said.

He also said the federal threat to delay transfer of federal jobs to Quebec until guarantees that children can go to English schools smacks of "something akin to blackmail."

Levesque was referring to recent statements that the federal government might not transfer 1,500 civil servants to Quebec unless the provisions of the French language charter are relaxed.

Meanwhile, officials of the Lakeshore School Board and Quebec Federation of Home and School Associations reacted negatively to Trudeau's statements.

Gerald Hopkins, chairman of the Lakeshore School Board, accused the federal government of consistently refusing to act on behalf of the English-speaking minority in Quebec.

"The federal government feels that because its power base is in Quebec, it is not politically expedient to side with the anglophone minority," Hopkins said.

William Miller, legal adviser to the Quebec Federation of Home and School Associations, said Ottawa's decision not to challenge the language legislation in the courts is "an abdication of responsibilities."

Trudeau said the federal government will, however, join in private-interest court actions against the language law.

Dollar slide continues

MONTREAL (CP) — Continuing a slide below an eight-year low recorded Monday, the Canadian dollar broke the 92 U.S.-cent mark to close Thursday at 91.94 U.S. cents.

Opening just above this rate, the dollar regained some ground before afternoon trading, reaching 92.16 U.S. cents but dropped as low as 91.88 before closing.

In London, the dollar suffered on the foreign exchange from pessimism about the Canadian economy and the political situation as well as being associated with the depreciation of the U.S. dollar, dealers said.

Textile plant means $12 m investment

SHERBROOKE — Federal Department of Regional Economic Expansion officials are expected to announce early next week the name of the major European textile firm planning to build a plant here.

Despite yesterday's announcement that the plant would bring an initial investment of $5 million and up to 100 new jobs, sources close to DREE revealed that the new plant will eventually mean a $12 million investment and several hundred jobs.

The firm has approached Ottawa for a foreign investors' permit and has deposited money in Canadian banks to assure its good intentions, sources added.

The firm, which produces specialty drapery material, currently exports about 85 per cent of its wares to the North American continent and was convinced by a Sherbrooke industrial-development team that a plant in this area would be central to all markets, besides tapping a plentiful work force.

The Sherbrooke team, which had been wooing the firm for more than a year, had faced a cool reception following the Nov. 15 Parti Quebecois victory, but assurances from the federal government aided in reconvincing the firm to locate in the province, sources added.

Location of the proposed plant has not yet been decided, although it is known that the city favors the new industrial park.

Tot seats: Your child's only protection

Too often in this province, we see parents buckled into their seats - and their children between them and the windshield. Sure, kids don't like to stay cooped up in the back seat, where they can't see anything but the backs of heads. We all know how restless children can get on a long trip, how they kick and fidget until they're allowed into the front.

But it's flirting with disaster to give in to them, the Canadian Paediatric Society warns. The best defence against the tragedy of losing or maiming your child in a car crash, is making them stay in an approved car seat.

Seat belts for infants provide no protection; in fact your child may suffer worse injuries wearing a belt than not wearing one. Adequate protection for children under 50 pounds in weight can only be provided by seats meeting Canadian government safety standards.

Statistics for 1973 show that 4,026 Canadian children under four years of age were injured in car crashes; 90 were killed.

All were occupants of the cars involved. In 1975, 611 Quebec children under six were hospitalized because of injuries sustained in car crashes.

Automobile riding is the first major threat to the life of the new-born child. The second, quite often, can be attributed to the parents themselves for failing to install a child car seat meeting government standards, i.e. a seat taking into account the physical characteristics of children such as lack of physical resistance (compared to adults) due to diminished body proportions; a higher center of gravity with most of the body weight located above the waist which, in a car crash, causes the body to be thrown forward abruptly.

Rolls of fat in the pelvic area make proper fitting of the parachute-type harness difficult - an upward slide under the impact could cause serious internal injuries - Not being fully developed, the lower spine of the child cannot help keep the parachute-type harness in place. The child's head is proportionately heavier than the rest of the body and increases the whiplash effect on the neck. The skeleton has a lower blow resistance than that of an adult. Consequently, the force of the impact must be spread out over the entire body of the child. This is achieved by the protective shell of car safety seats. Many parents still consider the seats as some sort of straight jacket rather than safety device.

Installation instructions are to be strictly observed. An improperly anchored seat will not prevent the child from being thrown against the windshield risking serious injury, even death.

Installation instructions must be followed scrupulously, especially where tether strap(s) or rear anchor provided. Your child's safety depends entirely on proper anchoring.

Do not install child safety seat on bucket-type car seat (or seat with forward-reclining back-rest) unless safety lock provided.

All seats featured here meet Canadian Government safety standards.

The "GM Love Seat" - Manufacturer: General Motors of Canada Limited

Designed for "older youngsters", 20 to 40 lbs. (9.1 to 18.2 kg) in weight, able to sit up alone and not exceeding 40 inches (one meter) in height. Designed for window viewing, it has a special five-point harness similar to those used by Air Force pilots and race car drivers. It must be anchored to the car's lap belt. The two special top straps must be used for maximum safety.

The Swingomatic - Manufacturer: Swyngomatic Industries, Elverson, Pa., U.S.A.

Designed for children 20 to 40 lbs in weight (9 to 18 kg), capable of sitting up by themselves and whose height does not exceed 40 in. (one metre). For use in cars allowing the seat to be secured by a permanently installed lap belt and anchoring of the tether strap. Designed to allow window viewing.

The Peterson Safety Shell - Manufacturer: Peterson Baby Products, California, U.S.A.

For use where adult car lap belts are available. Model No. 75 may be used as an infant system (6 to 18 lbs or 2.7 to 8.2 kg), a toddler system (18 to 30 lbs. or 8.2 to 13.6 kg), or as a child system (25 to 40 lbs. or 11.4 to 18.2 kg). As an infant system, it must be installed facing toward the back of the car. Model No. 74 is designed for use as a toddler and - or a child system, in forward-facing position. Recommended use for maximum safety: centre seating position (rear seat of car).

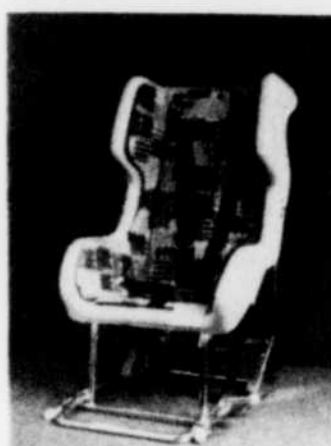

The "Strolee Wee Care" - Manufacturer: Strolee, California, U.S.A.

Designed for use as an infant carrier or a child car seat in cars fitted with safety belts. Used as an infant carrier, baby must be 8 to 18 lbs. in weight (3.6 to 8.2 kg) and 20 to 29.5 in. in height (50 to 75 cm). Used as a car seat, child must be able to sit up, weight under 40 lbs. (18 kg) and measure under 42 in. in height (107 cm). Adjustable in three positions with safety lock bar. Recommended use for maximum safety: centre seating position (rear seat of car).

The Kantwet Care Seat - Manufacturer: Gendron Inc., Toronto, Ont., Canada.

Can only be used where adult car lap belts available. The "590" provides window viewing and is designed for children able to sit up by themselves, weighing under 40 lbs. (18 kg) and between 25 and 43 in. in height (62 to 107 cm). The "985" can be used for babies weighing up to 17 lbs. (7.7 kg) when seat faces backwards only. In the forward-facing position the same specifications apply as for the "590" except for anchoring instructions.

The Trav-L-Guard - Manufacturer: Dorel Co. Ltd., Montreal, Quebec, Canada

The seat is a one-piece high impact molded bucket-seat type with heavy gauge chrome-plated tubing. A two-position recliner, it locks in both positions - seated and - or reclined. The harness is a five-point parachute type with three back positions. It grows with the baby. The seat is anchored down by the car's adult lap belt and can be locked in two positions by a new-type lock latch.

Car-parts store 'loves repair bills'

SURREY, B.C. (CP) — Rising insurance costs, steep repair bills and the willingness of consumers to do the job themselves are three factors Ralph James credits for the success of his self-serve car-parts "super-market."

He said in an interview that sales have increased 10 per cent this year and should reach $1 million by the end of the year.

"It's the coming thing," said James, whose store is the only one of its kind in Western Canada. "People are keeping their cars longer and longer."

"They're getting away from thinking that unless you're driving a nice new car, you're a nobody."

Nice cars have no place in James' store, which is supplied by an average 50 cars a week that have been written off by the Insurance Corp. of British Columbia (ICBC).

An ICBC spokesman said the corporation sells about 200 cars a week at an average price of $335.

When the wrecks arrive in James' yard, all reusable parts are stripped, cleaned and inventoried. Leftovers go to the crusher.

James said the maximum return from a stripped down car is about $1,500.

"I offer a service," he said. "You may think: 'He gets the car for nothing and he's charging me $10 for this part,' but you either get it here or you get a new one."

"If you think these prices are expensive, you should check out the prices for new parts. They're astronomical."

James' parts run from $2 for a door handle to nearly $500 for a refitted, installed engine.

A tighter claims division at the government-owned ICBC also is helping business, James said.

EASY SETTLEMENTS

"In the early days of ICBC, there were a lot of fire-damaged cars that were, somehow, the product of spontaneous combustion," he said. "It used to be they would settle with everyone if it meant putting a brand new part in a 10-year-old car."

"But they're very careful now. Now they have a hotline to all the auto-wreckers in town to keep track of all the used parts available."

Parts that are not on display can be cut from the wrecks by the customer himself.

"We work under the assumption that somebody's got to put the part on for you and it's going to be you, so you might as well take it off yourself so you can learn how at the same time."

James guarantees his parts for 60 days, although headlights are guaranteed forever.

Hydro-Quebec sets borrowing plans

MONTREAL (CP) — Hydro-Quebec hopes to complete more than one-tenth of next year's $2-billion borrowing program by the end of this year, says the utility's general manager in charge of finance.

Edmond Lemieux said Wednesday the bulk of this $200-million to $300-million borrowing will likely be done in Europe since recent United States borrowing rates have been unsteady.

Head office relocates to Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec government has appointed an administrator to manage the affairs of Rock Enterprises, a real estate firm dealing in Canadian land with European customers.

The administrator, chartered accountant Claude Mercure of Mercure Beliveau and Associates, will be responsible for avoiding bankruptcy and ensuring that European investors get all or most of their money back.

A spokesman for the Quebec Securities Commission (QSC), which requested the appointment, said Wednesday one reason for the move was to protect Quebec's reputation among European investors.

Pipeline details produced

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — Details of a proposed 66-mile-long natural gas pipeline from here to the Maine-New Brunswick border were put before the National Energy Board Wednesday as it began consideration of the second of four applications related to a proposed liquid natural gas landing and vaporization facility here.

Testimony from TransCanada (New Brunswick) Ltd. witnesses interrupted a case being presented by Tenneco, a United States corporation that owns companies planning to import and process the gas.

Tenneco has yet to call both a senior policy witness and a witness from the New Brunswick Electric Power Commission.

Board chairman M.A. Crowe ruled that the commission witness must testify about plans to provide the proposed plant with large volumes of hot water needed to vaporize the billion cubic feet a day of natural gas which Tenneco hopes to import from Algeria.

Concern does the trick

In a sense, Quebec's language debate hasn't produced anything unusual. There have been cries of indignation from an aroused minority and chorles of glee from vindictive radicals. All of it is a duel of tongues designed to wrack your nerves more than your brain.

But, in the furor over linguistic rights certain realities have been obscured. The debate seldom reveals how the other half lives. Not the unilingual committed to the formation of a total French state, but the vast group of francophones who are waging an unheralded battle to ensure that Bill 101 doesn't become a tragic restriction for their children.

Marcel Paquette is the father of a girl presently attending the ninth grade in the French sector of Massey-Vanier Regional. He wanted to send her to school in English this fall, and completed registration papers for that purpose. A call from the Davignon School Commission, which administers French schools in the district, convinced him that because of possible punitive measures resulting from defiance of the law, his child should continue in the francophone education system.

Though he accepted the advice, Mr. Paquette remained disturbed about the quality of English instruction his daughter received with the Davignon Commission. He took pride in the fact she had earned straight A's in her English course the previous year, but was puzzled by her inability to use words in a coherent sentence.

Much of the blame, Mr. Paquette felt, could be attributed to the paltry 35 minutes per week which the school allotted for the study of English. As the year progressed, he learned that even that 35 minutes was reduced by study sessions.

As vice-president of a parents' committee within the school commission, Mr. Paquette began a campaign to lengthen the schedule of English instruction in schools under the Davignon jurisdiction. Thirteen people comprised the group, and after spending countless evenings on their project, they confronted the school commission with their request.

The result of the parents' diligence has been a marked adjustment of the English timetable at all levels of Massey-Vanier Regional. Instead of the previous 35-minute program, the students now benefit from 50 minutes of instruction per day.

Several days ago, parents of all students attending the French sector of Massey-Vanier were invited to join the English class to evaluate the curriculum, and Mr. Paquette is still beaming over the experience. He is confident that the career in international journalism which his daughter seeks is now within her grasp.

Mr. Paquette is also concerned about his young son who has entered the fifth grade. During the previous four years the boy's exposure to English was limited to a small vocabulary, and now that a greater emphasis has been placed upon the learning of English, his course is slightly advanced. Yet, his father believes this is a positive step for second language instruction in francophone institutions.

The case of Marcel Paquette is far from unique. For every francophone turning a deaf ear to the English language, there is another committed to making it a part of his family's repertoire. Not, as Mr. Paquette insists, because it is a universal language, but the mere fact that bilingualism itself is an asset in any country.

Somewhat, that statement says it all in Quebec's endless language debate.

Canvasser's lot unenvied

The autumn months, apart from bringing woollen garments out of the closet, force us to reach deeper into our pockets. Like the rest of us, charitable organizations seem to seek warmth with the approach of frost.

The lot of a canvasser these days is not an envied one. Jobs and dollars are difficult to come by, and the cold shoulder has become a harsh reality. Fortunately, it remains the exception rather than the rule.

In Cowansville last week, for example, a Cystic Fibrosis bazaar netted $2,600, an increase of $300 over the previous year, despite a day-long downpour. Obviously the generosity of Townshippers is as remarkable as it's ever been.

By contrast, the statistics on industry and commercial collaboration presents a darker view. The CF branch canvassed 42 industries in the area for donations and received nine. A door-to-door visit to stores resulted in just two articles to add to the bazaar.

The pitiful output isn't quoted to serve as a condemnation of the commercial view toward charitable causes. But it does mean there will be less money for research than there could have been. And the $2,600 from public participation would indicate they're doing their share.

Alexander Galt bestows awards

LENNOXVILLE (JC) — More than 600 students received honorary awards at the 6th Annual Alexander Galt Awards Ceremony last night.

The Horton-St. Laurent Medallion, awarded for five years of outstanding achievement in sports, academics, and leadership, was presented to Rosanna Salleneve of Lennoxville.

Carmen Mulliner of Sherbrooke was awarded the Everett Doc Porter Prize for outstanding academic achievement over a five-year period. Nadine Kindy, also of Sherbrooke, received second prize in this category.

The academic award for the highest achievement of a graduate student went to Helmut Obermeier of North Hatley. Sharon Patton of Moe's River and Marilyn MacDonald of Sherbrooke tied for the grade 10 achievement award.

The Whitman Haynes Citizenship Award, given to the student who best portrays outstanding academic ability, leadership, grade participation and school and community involvement went to Steven Gillam of Lennoxville.

More than 180 students received honor roll credits, awarded for an average of 80 per cent in all subjects.

Champlain College Principal Dr. Peter Hill was guest speaker at the ceremony.

Forestry engineer claims:

Methanol to cut gas use

SHERBROOKE — In an attempt to increase Quebec's energy self-sufficiency the Parti Quebecois government hopes to produce large quantities of methanol alcohol, which when mixed with gasoline, can double and even triple a car's gas mileage.

Louis-Paul Lussier, Quebec Forestry Council engineer, speaking at the 33rd Annual Convention of the Eastern Townships Forestry Association here last night, said that in addition to decreasing Quebec's dependence on imported petroleum, methanol production would use trees which do not meet the quality criteria for the pulp and paper industry.

Parti Quebecois ministers Guy Joron, Jacques Parizeau and Yves Berube have discussed the project, he said, and they already anticipate three important projects for methanol utilization in the province.

He added that the use of methanol in automobile gasolines was not a new idea, as the Germans developed the method during World War II.

A federal government study shows that Quebec's demand for methanol will top 300 million gallons in 1980, 650 gallons by the year 2000.

Another guest speaker at yesterday's convention, Gaudiose Dube, a forestry engineer from the International Paper Company, encouraged Association members to establish a regional ecological center similar to the one in Pemberton, Ont.

Mr. Paul Vallee of Sawyerville was elected Association president for the upcoming year. Past president Andre Proulx will remain on the executive.

Youth's curiosity spots wrecked car

If Dennis Waite hadn't taken his bicycle to McDonald's last night, an unidentified victim of an accident on the Trans-Canada below Galt St. probably would not have been alive today.

Coming home, via a bike path leading from the Trans-Canada up to the Galt St. overpass, the 16-year-old Alexander Galt student noticed wreckage and clumps of dirt scattered for several hundred feet. Curious, he investigated and found a blue Maverick overturned in the ditch alongside the highway. Inside, pinned in place and hanging upside down was a girl "screaming her head off".

The driver had already managed to make his way out of the wrecked car.

Dennis rushed to a nearby house to notify police, who arrived promptly. Both the woman and the male driver are reported in satisfactory condition.

Caisse manager's reply expected

SHERBROOKE (JC) — If Caisse Populaire manager, Claude Stebenne is to meet the deadline set by Charles Marion's kidnappers, he must respond on local television this morning to their demands for new intermediaries in the case.

In a letter published in Wednesday's Journal de Montreal, the kidnappers set a 48-hour deadline for Mr. Stebenne's announcement and warned of "blood, blood, and more blood" if the deadline was not met.

Earlier this week, the kidnappers demanded that Mr. Marion's son Pierre, 31, and best friend, Jean-Paul Fouquet handle the next ransom drop-off. They requested that Mr. Stebenne answer the demand in a broadcast message on CKSH-TV.

Last month, officials rejected Pierre's participation in the case, for fear he would become a second hostage.

Earlier this week, the kidnappers said they could no longer accept Normand Maltais and Claude Poirier as intermediaries, and accused them of collaborating with authorities in "trick" ransom drops. The pair have acted in three unsuccessful ransom drop attempts.

The accusations followed last Thursday's drop in Lennoxville when the kidnappers discovered that the suitcases, supposed to contain the $500,000 ransom, were stuffed with cardboard.

Appearing on local television Wednesday, Mr. Maltais insisted that neither he nor Mr. Poirier knew of the substitution.

Local militiamen in fall exercises

LAHR, West Germany — Above it's easy to get around Germany because the road sign system is superb. However, soldiers should depend on a map because there wouldn't be any signs in a war. BEEBE

Butterfield union meeting

Butterfield union workers are reminded of an important meeting this Sunday, at 10 a.m., at the Beebe town hall. All members are requested to attend.

Mayor will not run again

After more than 24 years as mayor of Beebe, Hugo Lapenna has announced that he will not seek re-election in the upcoming municipal elections.

Considered as the last pioneer of municipal affairs in the Border area, Mr. Lapenna has sat on Beebe Council for 30 years.

He said that he would not run for mayor again as he is close to retirement, and will be spending most of his winter outside the area.

Lennoxville

Annual Fall Bazaar and Tea

The Lennoxville Association for the Retarded will be holding its Annual Fall Bazaar and Tea on Sat., Oct. 15 from 2-4:30 p.m. at the Gertrude Scott Hall, on Queen Street.

Donations for the food tables, the knitting and sewing areas, plant and new-to-you tables will be received on Friday and Sat., Oct. 14 and 15. The Association will also be holding a Raffle for five beautiful items.

Anyone wishing further information can contact Mrs. Frances Noble at 569-7166.

Sherbrooke

Webster Parking now open

More than five months after it closed for repairs, Sherbrooke's Webster Parking lot, opened its doors to drivers yesterday afternoon.

Sherbrooke engineer, Frank Mascolo, said there is still work to be done and indicated that only 220 of the 330 parking spaces are presently usable.

Motorists are reminded that the lot is accessible only via Meadow, Albert and Webster Streets.

Giving thanks

... So we bought a turkey, the kids are coming home, and we'll say Grace for the first time since Christmas. We'll remember to be extra kind to everyone, and express thanks for all those little things we take for granted. For three days we'll keep Thanksgiving in the best tradition.

Then come Tuesday, we'll complain because it's raining again, beef about the extra work we let pile up over the long weekend and scream because we just couldn't stomach turkey soup for supper one more night.

But Thanksgiving isn't a day of the year - it's a way of life. It's a realization that even when things are bad, they're good, that even when it rains it shines, that no matter how down we may be, we're still on top... because there is always something, however small, to be thankful for.

So let's go home tonight with a vow to let the real spirit of Thanksgiving last at least until Christmas. Let's promise ourselves and each other to make a real effort to make this feast more than just an ode to gluttony. If the weather -- God willing -- stays clear, let's get outdoors to take a last long lingering look at one of the best, brightest autumn displays we've had in years.

There's lots happening -- ploughing matches, football games, archery meets and roadside displays of every kind of produce, baked goods and handicrafts.

So drive safely, have a good weekend -- and give thanks for what we have.

Liberal 'spoilers' liven Manitoba election

WINNIPEG — What started out as a lacklustre election campaign is turning into a cliff-hanger as Manitoba voters prepare to choose their provincial government next Tuesday.

At dissolution the ruling New Democrats held 31 seats, the opposition Conservatives, 23, and the Liberals, three. Premier Ed Schreyer is seeking his third term of office, running on his personal popularity which exceeds that of his party - and his government's record.

The conservatives are led by Sterling Lyon, who was a cabinet minister in a Conservative government about 10 years ago. He became leader a year and a half ago after a bruising in-party fight which has meant some disillusioned Tories sitting on their hands, rather than knocking on doors to help.

The Liberals are led by Charles Huband, a leader who, as yet, doesn't hold a seat in the legislature. His performance during the last four weeks of the campaign has given him and his party a higher media profile than their numbers might ordinarily indicate.

If this is translated into votes, the Liberals could be the spoilers in the election. Half of the 57 seats in the legislature are in the Winnipeg metropolitan area and the main battle is being fought there and in the rich rural area that runs south of the city to the U.S. border.

The Liberals last polled about 18 per cent of the popular vote. If they could increase that percentage into the mid-twenties they would damage the Conservatives, and probably insure a majority NDP government with a strong Liberal representation in the legislature.

The main issues have been broadly drawn. The NDP is campaigning on its eight-year performance in office and on the faith that the average voter has that Ed Schreyer won't do anything outlandishly left-wing. The Conservatives have attacked the Schreyer record, promising social reforms that don't cost money, like more relaxed liquor laws. The Liberal leader has based his campaign on attacking the other two leaders. They haven't responded, hoping that the voters would ignore the third-place Liberals.

They may not. The that inopportune remarks by candidates are enough to change the outcome. Premier Schreyer has a short fuse on his temper and some people think comments he made in the last few days of the 1973 campaign cost the NDP a couple of seats. In this campaign he walked out of a meeting in a riding that might otherwise have gone

French speaking voters. But their vote is less than eight per cent of the total and not a decisive factor except in a couple of ridings.

Otherwise the performance of the NDP, the degree to which "socialism" is hurting Manitoba, and the question of whether Ed Schreyer would stay for another full term if re-elected have dominated the campaign against the government.

Mr. Schreyer has told reporters on several occasions in the last year or two that he was thinking of leaving the premiership soon and taking an international job.

The conservatives have unveiled a strategy document called "The Challenges Ahead for Manitoba" which calls for an end to provincial financing for some services and their replacement with volunteer efforts. It also says there should be lower taxes and more encouragement for industry.

A win by the Conservatives would probably mean a less federalist attitude from the province. Ed Schreyer has been very close to Pierre Trudeau and generally agrees with his brand of federalism. The Conservatives would like a looser federation.

As the election campaign runs the last few days the ultimate difference may come in the hard-fought local riding battles. Everyone expects a number of seats to change hands - but how that affects the overall total might not mean much of a change.

As it stands now, a Liberal surge in the popular vote could bring the NDP back with a majority. A lessened Liberal vote would help the Conservatives and thrust the NDP at least back to a minority position.

The odds now suggest that the NDP will win, narrowly and perhaps with a minority, but a win nevertheless.

Terry Hargreaves

The Sherbrooke Record's
Ottawa correspondent

Liberals are the wild card in this campaign. If the vote polarized between the Conservatives and New Democrats, the Conservatives might very well win. If the Liberals increase their popular vote because of the distribution of the voters, this may well save the New Democrats.

The vote in the various ridings is usually so close

NDP when he became angry at questions from the floor.

National issues have little bearing here. The Liberal leader has promised more French-language education but the New Democrats reinstated and increased education in the second official language, so it is not as strong an issue as a few years ago, except with

Tory leadership vote means Clark challenge

OTTAWA (CP) — If all goes as planned, Joe Clark will receive a major vote of confidence from about 1,700 Progressive Conservatives from across Canada just in time to hit the national television news Friday, Nov. 4.

Plan released this week for the Conservative national convention in Quebec City Nov. 4-6 show that the secret vote will come at about 8 p.m. after Clark addresses the convention and spends about an hour answering questions from the floor.

The vote actually will ask delegates whether they wish to have a leadership convention. A yes answer question would be taken as a statement of lack of confidence in his leadership.

Clark has been low in public opinion polls for about a year and this has been reflected in attitudes toward him within the party.

But party officials say they detect a change of attitude among the Conservative membership. Clark is reported to have been heartened by the reception he received from party members recently in Toronto, where opposition to him has been strong.

MEETING HELPED

The apparent success of his recent Conservative premiers meeting in Kingston, Ont., is said to have helped him in the West.

The combination of these, an attitude developing in the party that it is time to stop in-fighting, and an expected improvement in the next public opinion polls should assure Clark of a comfortable vote of confidence at the convention, the party officials say.

Plans for the convention, which will operate under the theme of Canada at the Crossroads, were given at a sparsely-attended briefing by retiring president Michael Meighen of Montreal.

The Conservatives took over the large Commons railway committee room, provided food and drink and brought in some of their officials for the briefing - but attracted only 12 reporters.

The rest of the Parliamentary press gallery was tied up at a news conference given by Finance Minister Jean Chretien.

Meighen said the convention is designed to provide the political leadership with policies it can take into the next federal election.

TIME IS RIGHT

Material being sent to constituency associations and distributed to reporters says the party now has a golden opportunity to prove it has the capacity to develop policy as an alternative government.

"Now, more than ever, is the time for Progressive Conservatives to demonstrate that they have ideas, that they are prepared to discuss them openly, and that they can come to a clear consensus as to what must be done," it says.

Premier projects disgusting image

Editor:

I saw Rene Levesque Oct. 3rd on television as he spoke with concerned parents over Bill 101. We have no children to become involved in the language bill ... our daughter is a professor of Classics - Foreign Languages at Brock University, St. Catharines, Ontario. My husband was born in Sherbrooke, and he is bilingual. My French is not as good as my English, but I manage. You see, I have no hard feelings about the language bill or any other political involvement ... my sadness is even deeper and more personal.

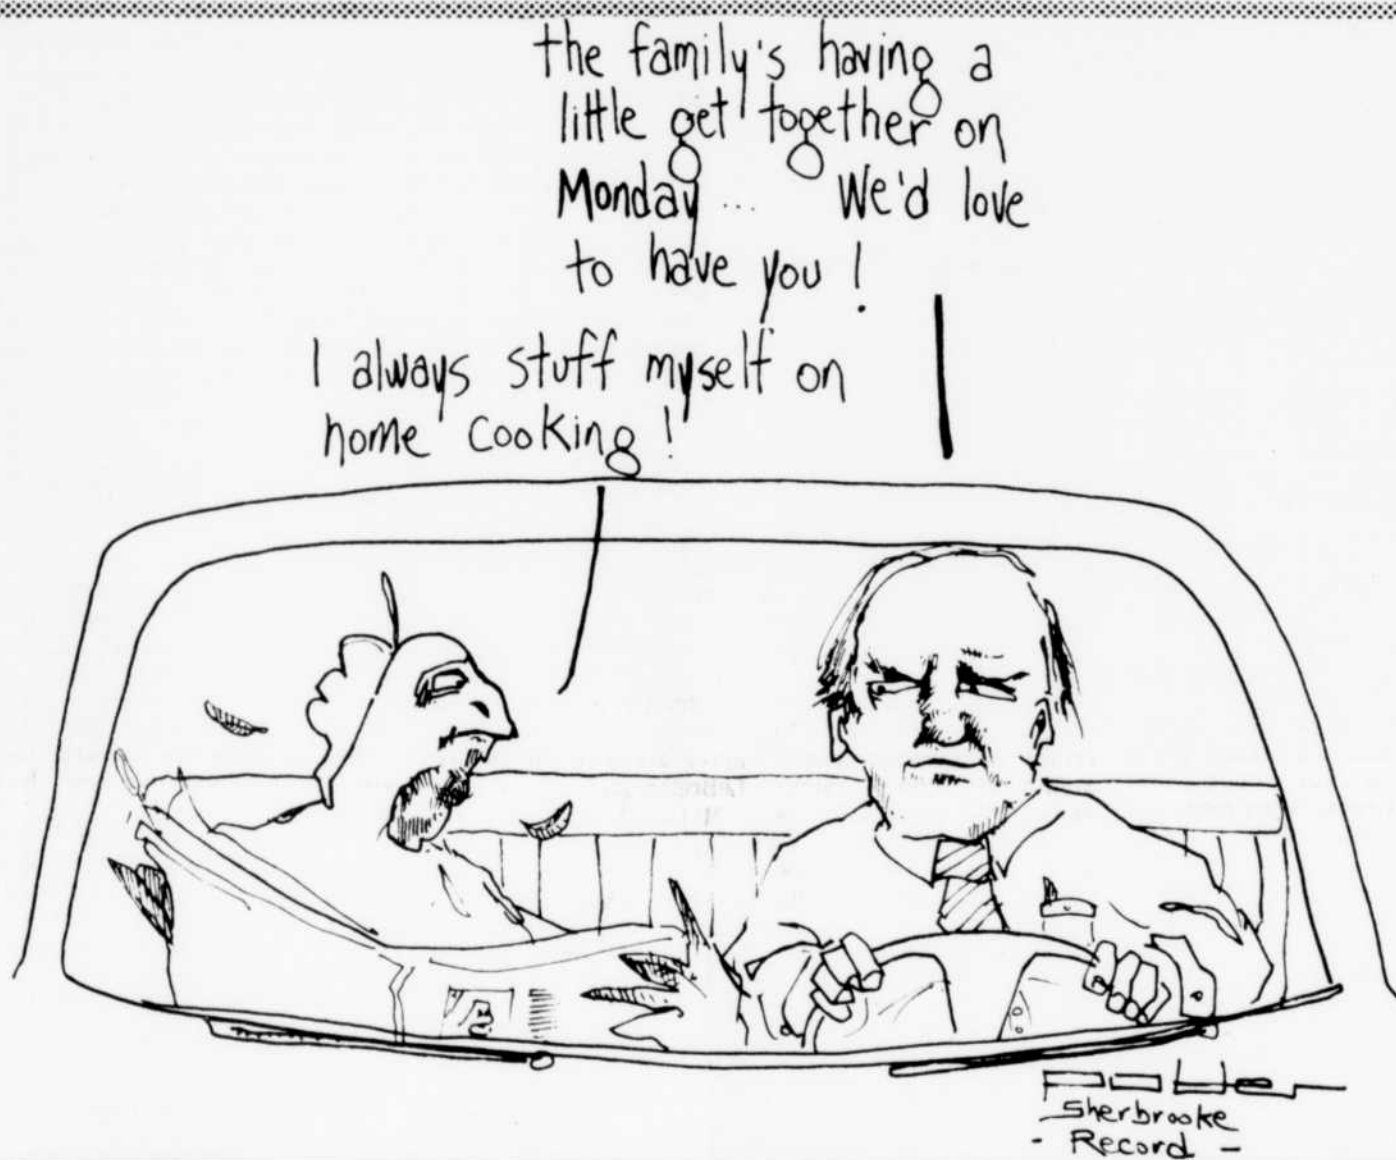

While I viewed M. Levesque for only a short time, he constantly used the expression "hell" and even took Jesus' name in vain, which caused me to cringe. His diction, both in French and English, is not good ... I doubt that a Parisian French could understand him and he is constantly groping for words, sometimes with assistance, in English. He certainly does not master either but rather comes forth with a strong mumble-jumble.

Can this uncouth, uncouth, foul-mouthed person really be dictating the future of the children of Quebec? What kind of impression is he making on them in his personal behavior? His posture is slouchy, and even though it has been proven that cigarette smoking is injurious to the health and mind, he chain smokes before the public, allowing his ashes to drop where they may, and his nicotine fingers to show up disgracefully on color T.V. I would not advise him to stay in Toronto for long where smoking is practically banned in public. If, in the privacy of his home, he wants to dull his faculties, kill himself or whatever, that is his prerogative, but why force this disgusting habit and lack of self-discipline to the public?

Please, Mr. Levesque, you would win more favor and respect if you would be a bit more discreet.

Jack Anderson's

Washington Merry-Go-Round

More on a tin-medal tyrant

by Jack Anderson and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — This is another report on the private world of Anastasio Somoza, the vainglorious dictator who runs Nicaragua like a private estate. We have dubbed him the Idi Amin of Latin America.

Somoza is caught up in the vision of his own grandeur. He is a tin-medal tyrant of unimpaired bearing, who loves to dress like a military peacock and adorn himself with sashes and medals.

He is not as heroic, however, as the medals would attest. He prefers to speak to his subjects, for example, from the safety of a bulletproof booth inside a three-sided, steel-plated shed, surrounded by a fence. The bulletproof glass grossly distorts his owlish, ogling face.

In the tradition of his dictator father, Somoza uses his power to bleed his people. This massive transfusion has enriched his own bloodstream; he has amassed a personal fortune that runs in the hundreds of millions of dollars.

He uses the political machinery to keep his people in line. No one, for example, is permitted to hold a government job unless he is a member of Somoza's political party, the Nationalist Liberal Party.

As evidence of their political allegiance, party members carry a membership card widely known as "La Rosadita", or the little pink card. The more irreverent call it "La Magnifica", after the prayer card which Catholics carry as protection from unknown dangers.

La Rosadita is the key to government employment. Ministers and managers, truck drivers and garbage collectors alike must produce their little pink card before they are put on the government payroll.

Under the Somoza system, the obligations of a public servant are unique. They are expected in addition to their governmental duties to attend Somoza's parades and speeches and to hail their chief with compulsory cheers. In the past, they were actually required to report to their places of employment and punch time clocks before a parade. Then they were bused or trucked like cattle to the appointed location.

Government employees must also kick back part of their pay to finance the party. Each payday, five per cent of their gross salary is automatically deducted from their paychecks for party dues. The money is used to pay for rallies, parties and anything else Somoza chooses to charge to the party.

A decade ago, while Somoza's brother Luis was present, the government was reorganized into a system strikingly similar to the communist system the Somozas denounce. Hundreds of "cantons" were created at the local level, giving the Somozas a tighter grip on the populace down to the grassroots.

The canton leaders are expected to know everyone in their jurisdictions. Almost all government services - roads, schools, permits, licenses - are administered through the cantons. Thus it is impressed upon the peasants that if they expected to live a trouble-free life, they must jump when the government so orders.

So today, when Somoza needs a large crowd to cheer him, he merely passes the word and the local leader rounds up the required number of bodies. As an inducement, Somoza turns on the party money valve and a flow of cash trickles down to the cantons.

The canton leaders, of course, help themselves to the biggest share. But all the way down the line, the other organizers take their cuts. There is little left for the peasants who pour out of the buses. Usually, each peasant is presented with a little banner to wave and a glass of "guaro" - rotgut liquor produced by the government - to wash away his doubts and ease his burdens.

Some readers may ask why we would spend five months investigating an obscure dictator of no consequence beyond his own borders. In recent years, the American people have found themselves uncomfortably allied with a host of two-bit tyrants. They have been recruited into the U.S. bloc by the power brokers in Washington.

Anastasio Somoza is the epitome of these petty tyrants - a bemedaled, beer-bellied potentate who has developed an epoxylike bond with Washington. He toes the U.S. line at the United Nations. He allowed the CIA to use his country as the staging base for the Bay of Pigs invasion. He is the darling of the Pentagon.

As the price for Somoza's friendship, the United States has provided the economic and military support that has kept his family in power. This has brought about the Americanization of Anastasio Somoza. He even spurns the Spanish language, preferring instead the American slang he learned as a student at West Point. He has become a foreigner in his own land.

Somoza rules a country bedeviled by oppressive heat and humidity. The human birth rate is as high as the productivity is low. Most Nicaraguans are born into poverty; they toil for some of the lowest wages in the Western hemisphere. The average hourly pay is barely 30 cents.

Yet their ruler is estranged from them; more accurately, he has insulated himself from their problems. He has a low opinion of his people and, according to one source, "doesn't believe the country can be developed through the Nicaraguan people." It is a disdain, Nicaraguans tell us, that the people reciprocate.

The decision to support Somoza and other dictators like him is a national disgrace and an abrogation of America's historic commitment to champion democracy throughout the world.

Footnote: Our associate Joe Spear has sought the comments of the Nicaraguan embassy. We have waited several days. We will be happy to publish the comments when they are received.

Loomis-Powers wed

MR. AND MRS. JOHN POWERS.

LENNOXVILLE — A pretty summer wedding took place at St. George's Anglican Church, Lennoxville, Quebec, on Saturday, July 16, at 2 p.m., when Susan Jean, daughter of Milt. and Bev. Loomis of Lennoxville, became the bride of Pte. John Powers of CFB, Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Tracy Jr. and the late Roy Powers of West Brome, Quebec.

Rev. Mervyn Awcock, assisted by Rev. Keith Perry-Gore of the Waterville Parish officiated at the double-ring ceremony. Mrs. Pennington, at the organ, provided the wedding music and Gary Hatch sang a solo.

The altar was decorated with two baskets of gladioli and assorted summer flowers. The guest pews were marked with white satin bows and tiny bells. The bride, given away by her father, was wearing a lovely sleeveless white polyester gown with a long flowing train of tulle illusion trimmed with white lace edged in a daisy motif with centres of tiny blue flowers. The floor-length gown was styled with an empire waistline and a high neck. She wore a white picture hat with the band trimmed in pearl sequins and tiny blue flowers. She carried her prayer book, given to her by her Godmother, Mrs. Wesley Nichol for her Confirmation, which was adorned by beautiful red roses and baby's breath, with white satin ribbon streamers ending in rose buds. The red roses on her prayer book, having been made in the form of a corsage, she later wore for going away.

The attendants, Cindy Deacon, as maid of honor, and Susan's three sisters, Nancy, Cindy and Debbie, all wore matching pale pink crepe polyester gowns and wide-brimmed pink picture hats. The maid of honor carried a bouquet of white daisies and pink roses and the bridesmaids carried nosegays of white daisies with pink satin streamers. The girls all wore sterling silver necklaces centred with a tiny heart - gifts from the bride.

David Shufelt of West Brome, acted as best man. The ushers were Gary and Greg Tracy, brothers of the groom and Jeff, brother of the bride. The groom and his attendants all wore navy trousers, light blue jackets with navy lapels, fancy white shirts and navy blue velvet bow ties. They all wore white carnation boutonnières. The groom gave to each of his attendants a lovely pen and pencil set.

The bride's mother wore a powder blue crepe polyester gown with a blue sheer overskirt and full sheer sleeves. The bodice and cuffs of the sleeves were of white lace. The hemline was finished with a row of gathered white lace. She wore white accessories and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses. Her gown and those of the bridesmaids were made by the mother of the bride.

The groom's mother chose a multi-floral cape, beige accessories and a corsage of yellow sweetheart roses. Mrs. Hubert Bennett, maternal grandmother of the bride wore a long aqua floral gown, white accessories and a corsage of yellow roses. Mrs. Harold Loomis, paternal grandmother of the bride, chose a long off-white floral gown with vivid flowers, gold accessories and a corsage of red roses.

Having been blessed with a beautiful sunny day, the bridal party were brought from the church to the bride's residence in three beautifully restored antique convertible Model 'T' cars belonging to Messrs Henry Musty, Don Standish and Russell Rothney. This three-mile journey was really enjoyed by this younger generation, and seemed to be most fitting as Susan is the sixth generation to be living on this century property, which has been in the Loomis name since 1842.

A lovely garden party followed on the spacious lawns amidst the apple trees. After many pictures had been taken outside, the receiving line was also formed outdoors where the bride and groom received many good wishes for a very happy life. Bobby Hull, hockey player and good friend of the bride's parents, unable to attend, telephoned to give his good wishes to Susan and John. A buffet luncheon was delightfully arranged and served to 150 guests who were able to be seated at picnic tables spaced throughout. The three-tier wedding cake was made by the mother of the bride and beautifully decorated by Mrs. Allan Goodfellow.

Sheldon Cook, acting as master of ceremonies, did a fantastic job of assuring that the happy event ran so smoothly.

Shelley Deacon was in charge of the guest book. Music was played throughout the afternoon by Beryl Dewar from Montreal, and the remainder of the evening was spent in dancing out on the lawns. During the evening many more friends of the bride and groom and their families dropped in to have fun and give their good wishes, and one of the most surprising and exciting moments was when the Holmes families dropped in, part of whom were Erroll and Muriel from California. Erroll was one of the ushers at the bride's Dad and Mom's wedding twenty-five years ago, Sept. 27.

The bride and groom left on their honeymoon to spend a week at a cottage in Maine, given to them by John's aunt Ruth Taylor. The bride wore a light blue sundress with tiny shoulder straps with which she wore white accessories.

Guests were present from Toronto, Ottawa, London, Montreal, Cowansville, West Brome, Waterville, Ayer's Cliff, Lennoxville, Bulwer and other points in the Eastern Townships, as well as from Vermont, New Hampshire and California. Following the wedding rehearsal Friday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Reg. Tracy Jr. entertained the bridal party and other guests in the St. George's Church Hall, where the bride and groom presented gifts to their attendants.

Prior to the wedding, the bride was honored at four different showers for which she was very grateful. Mrs. Emily Smerdon of Lennoxville gave her a Kitchen Shower, Miss Jackie Cook of West Brome, a Miscellaneous Shower, Mrs. Wesley Nichol, Godmother of the bride, a Linen Shower and Mrs. Ethel Bennett, of Ottawa, aunt of the bride, a Miscellaneous Shower, held at the St. George's Church Hall in Lennoxville.

John and Susan are now residing on the Airforce Base, 93 Sunfield Rd., Downsview, Ontario.

Doc devotes life to hungry

OTTAWA (CP) — As a refugee in southern France in 1942, Dr. Lotta Hirschmanova was so hungry she fainted on the streets of Marseilles twice. She has since devoted her life to helping the hungry and forgotten.

Dr. Lotta, as she is more simply referred to, is the executive director of the Unitarian Service Committee of Canada (USC), which she organized in 1945.

Standing just under five feet, Dr. Lotta's petiteness only for a minute disguises a bold and dynamic woman.

She often wears a dark green uniform and is frequently mistaken for an army officer in foreign lands, says a photographer who once accompanied her on an overseas tour.

Dr. Lotta has toured the world's most impoverished countries 25 times.

"We could give more aid to those people if there were less waste in Canada and around the world," she said in an interview. "If only we were aware of our blessing. How can I forget that when I have seen people die of hunger in the streets and know there are those who eat perhaps one bowl of rice in three days?"

Dr. Lotta speaks from first-hand knowledge. SAW DEVASTATION

"I have seen Greece devastated in 1949. I saw Korea in 1951, another destroyed country, and now Korea is a developed nation."

But, she said, it takes food and money. The hard 32 years of collecting funds from people who have not seen what she has shown in her tired eyes.

"Why help the starving people? Because we know starvation is not necessary. And if priorities were different in this world with better distribution of resources among the poor, we would not have this problem. The change in priorities would shift emphasis from the arms race to the starving.

She faults the media for not reporting the positive effects of foreign aid.

"The media prefer to blow up the negative and do not report on the positive side of work abroad. There are many good things happening as a result of help from this country but they are ignored."

Smallpox was eradicated last year, very little destruction can now be seen in Vietnam and the children there are receiving some kind of education. Bangladesh now has a ministry of family planning, and birth control is beginning to take effect there. In Hong Kong the rate of population growth is at last equal to the mortality rate.

"But the challenge for the rest of this century is to help the others."

Ann Landers says Invite whoever you want

Dear Ann Landers:

In a recent column someone complained about the state troopers in Connecticut and Massachusetts not being on the job. The person who wrote said he was travelling from Boston to Hartford, Conn., at 55 miles an hour and umpteenth cars passed him. I can't answer for Connecticut, but I can tell you where the Massachusetts state troopers are. Since they have not received a raise in salary since 1969, they are probably out working an extra detail to pay for a home or their kid's education.

So, blow that out your barracks bag, Annabelle.

Also Disgruntled

Sorry, Buster. I checked with Boston's able mayor, Kevin White, and double-checked with that great governor of Connecticut, Ella Grasso. Their responses knocked your "facts" cranked.

Mayor White reported that in December of 1973, the Massachusetts state troopers' base pay was increased to $10,327 with a maximum of $12,745 after six years of service. At this moment arbitration is going on relevant to a future contract which will include another increase. Hopefully by the time this letter appears in print, they will have received it.

Ella Grasso reported that in 1969, the Connecticut state troopers earned $7,760 and

He's going back

FREDERICTON (CP) — Lionel LeBreton of Burt's Corner, N.B., said Wednesday he will face truancy charges before he will send his son Kevin back to the school from which he was suspended last December.

Kevin, then 10 years old, was suspended by school principal Douglas McLaughlin for using what was called abusive language against a teacher.

LeBreton said Wednesday he would not allow his son to return to Keswick Valley Memorial School unless McLaughlin steps down as principal or there is an investigation into the suspension and events following it.

A meeting was scheduled Thurs. with the school district and the Fredericton Mental Health Clinic to try and resolve the matter.

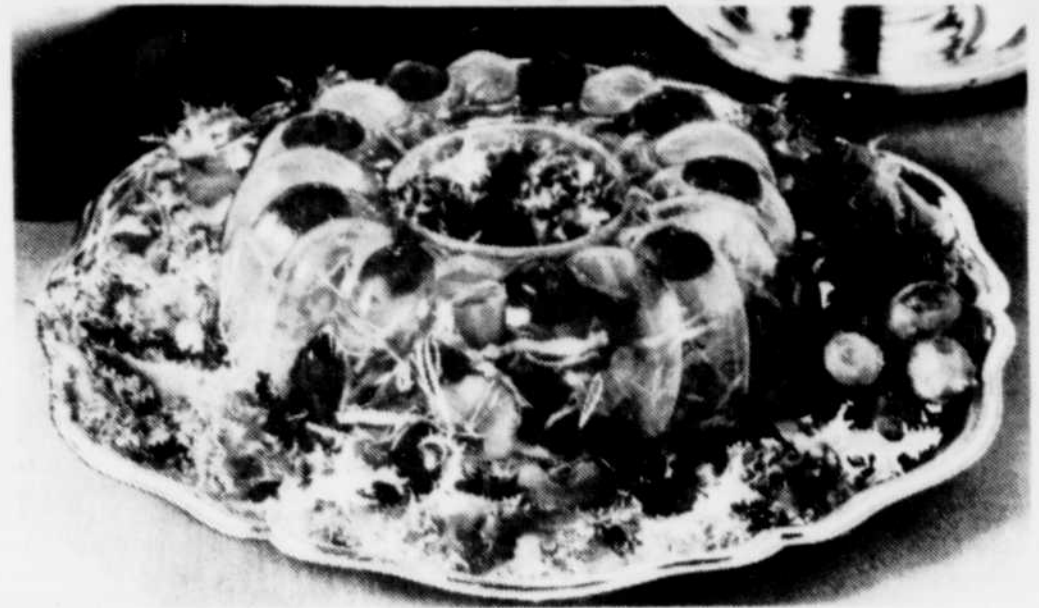

The incident resulting in Kevin's suspension occurred during recess when Kevin's teacher took him off a skating rink, LeBreton said. Kevin called the teacher a "four-eyed monkey," LeBreton said. He later received a telephone call from the school saying Kevin was suspended.

"I got the impression that he (McLaughlin) was so sure of himself he didn't have to explain it to anyone," LeBreton said. McLaughlin wanted Kevin to undergo psychiatric tests. The tests were done but the results never given to the family, LeBreton said.

McLaughlin was not unavailable for comment. Before entering the Keswick school, Kevin had been in hospital for six months with a rare form of epilepsy and during that time his mother died. The family had moved from Saint John, N.B., to Burt's Corner after a 1974 accident left LeBreton on disability pension.

A refreshingly grape idea

CONFETTI salad molds grapes, cabbage and carrots for a treat.

Fresh grapes bring a refreshing touch to salads or desserts and are a fruit that is available in a number of varieties throughout the year. An attractive confetti salad combines fresh grapes with cabbage, celery and carrots in a lemon-flavored gelatin. Top this molded salad with a sour cream mayonnaise dressing with a gingery touch.

A very special departure for fresh grapes is to combine them with chocolate chips and strawberry ice cream for a grape cream cone. You may want to try different ice cream flavors with this grape recipe.

GRAPE CONFETTI SALAD
1 package (6 ounces) lemon flavored gelatin
2 cups boiling water
1 1/3 cups cold water
1/4 cup cider vinegar
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 cups halved and seeded fresh California grapes
2/3 cup finely shredded cabbage

2/3 cup thinly sliced celery
1/2 cup shredded carrot
Salad greens
GINGER DRESSING
1/2 cup mayonnaise
1/2 cup dairy sour cream
1/2 teaspoon grated lemon peel
1 teaspoon ground ginger

8 servings

FRESH GRAPE CREAM CONES
1/2 cup chocolate chips
1 package (5 ounces) ice cream cones (12 cones)
2 packages (3 ounces each) lemon flavor gelatin
1 cup boiling water
1 quart strawberry ice cream, softened
3 cups California seedless grapes

SALAD In mixing bowl, dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Cool. Stir cold water, vinegar and salt into gelatin. Chill mixture until gelatin is syrupy. Spoon about one-half cup mixture into a 6-cup mold and arrange a few grape halves in mold. Chill until set. Mix remaining grapes, cabbage, celery and carrot into remaining gelatin. Pour into mold over decorative layer. Chill until firm. Unmold salad on serving dish. Garnish with salad greens and serve with Ginger Dressing.

GINGER DRESSING In small bowl, thoroughly combine mayonnaise, sour cream, lemon peel and ginger. Makes Melt chocolate chips over hot (not boiling) water. Stir until smooth. Dip top edge of cones into chocolate. (Swirl chocolate inside if desired.) Stand in small water glasses. Chill. Empty gelatin into bowl. Add boiling water and stir to dissolve thoroughly. Spoon ice cream into bowl, stirring until smooth. Fold in grapes. Refrigerate until serving time. Scoop no-melt cream into cones or serving dishes. Makes about one and one-half quarts.

Why, she's just into her prime

TORONTO (CP) — Anna Russell, the white-haired comedienne who will appear in a cameo role in four of seven performances of the Canadian Opera Company's The Daughter of the Regiment, says she thinks she is just coming into her prime.

Miss Russell, 65, said in an interview that she once was one of the few women she knew who could sing O Isis and Osiris (from The Magic Flute) in the original key. She said her voice now is "just a squawk, a shout."

But she still uses it in the one-woman satirical show she has performed around the world over the last 30 years and will do here in January.

Miss Russell said she is delighted to be back in her hometown of Toronto.

"It was such an awful dump when I grew up here," she said. "Men and women had to drink in separate bars and there was never anything to do. I'm so terribly proud of it now."

Toronto was the place where she learned her comic skills. Originally trained in music at the Royal College of Music in London, she studied with Ralph Vaughan-Williams and worked at the BBC through the 1930s as a folksinger.

She said she learned quickly that she would not make it as an opera singer so she and her mother moved back to Canada in the early 1940s.

She landed a job with Toronto radio station CFRB's British music hall show, Round the Marble Arch.

Twins celebrate 95th birthday

DANVILLE — Mrs. Tillie Marchand and Mrs. Nellie Wheeler (formerly of Richmond) and now residing at the Youville Hospital, celebrated their 95th birthday on Sunday, September 18.

Relatives and friends awaited their arrival at 2 p.m. in a room provided by the hospital. The table of honour was tastefully decorated by Mrs. Gerry Element, granddaughter of Mrs. Marchand. It was centered with a lovely cake made by Mrs. Dave Gifford of Danville.

Two great-grandsons - Brian Element of Danville and David Fuller of Otterburn Park brought the twins to the celebration in their wheelchairs. The ladies were dressed alike in brown printed jersey dresses and yellow corsages. Many gifts were opened and flowers were received from the City of Sherbrooke and from friends. Tea was served, and their daughters, Mrs. Stuart Lockwood and Mrs. Lloyd Fuller served the guests.

Mrs. Marchand's daughter, Mrs. Stuart Lockwood, granddaughter Janet and husband Gerry Element and children, Brian and Janice were present.

Mrs. Wheeler's three children, Thelma Fuller from Richmond, Herbert and wife from Vancouver, B.C. and Ellsworth from Montreal all attended. Also present were Gary Fuller and children, Ellen, David and Andrew from Otterburn Park, Mrs. Marilyn Wright and children, Meredith, Allistair and Marissa from Ottawa, Mr. and Mrs. John Biddercombe and daughter Kimberly from St. John's, Newfoundland, Louise Turner and daughter, Jessica from Montreal.

Friends visiting were Mrs.

day, for reasons you're unable to perceive, you may find yourself cool to those you really love. If you sense this happening, do an about-face.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Fortunately for you, today you see people as they actually are. You're not likely to be swayed by the opinions of those less informed.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Selfishness is a mantle that does not become either you or others. Today, unfortunately, you may cloak yourself in such a garment.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Hope and optimism are subdued parts of your psyche at this point. Bear in mind: The sun that sets today will rise tomorrow.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today, you may have predetermined that what you planned won't work out. Don't close your mind.

Hints about Stamps

By M.M. Woodman

Response to my feelers about reviving our old stamp club in Lennoxville has been heavy; I am making a list of those of you who are interested and the more the merrier.

Ottawa has advised us that the medium value definitives - street scenes that were to be released last Wednesday will now be released on Wednesday, Dec. 7. No reason for the delay was given.

On October 26, we will have the three Christmas stamps issued, right on time. There will be a 10-cent, 12-cent and a 25-cent value. The picture of these that I have just received in color should be one of the nicest to come out of Ottawa for some time. I would not advise saving too many of these as there are to be 100,500,000 of the 10-cent, 80,500,000 of the 12-cent and 23,500,000 of the 25-cent denomination. If you were going to put a few away, make sure that you save the same number of each and try to have them centered. Lots of times the ones you get at the local Post Office leave a lot to be desired as far as centering is concerned. Normally they send me a cut of the stamps and I would have had this shown, but for some reason I did not receive one this time.

Scott's Part III catalogue has arrived this week. For those who want to have a look at these catalogues, the Sherbrooke library on Dufferin Ave. have them all and if you go there I am sure you will have fun without paying $14 to have one of your own.

One party who is interested in first day covers came around this week. I was gone but my wife was able to find some at a real bargain - a plate block of the Scott's no. 492 (Suzor-Cote) 50-cent stamp on a first day cover for only $3. The real price of that one alone is now $15.00.

With stamp collecting one makes many friends. Most try to help each other out, and nearly all collectors are honest, but I'm sorry I cannot say the same about some dealers. I have had some really heavy losses by dealers. Most of my losses have been in the U.S.A.; I have been taken a couple of times by local dealers, but they will have to get up early to take me again.

If you are a collector of plate blocks, then I would suggest that you get a Bilski's Plate Block Album. I have 24 with my collection of Plate Blocks and Old Canadian Covers mounted in them. They are a perfect way of keeping your stamps or covers from harm and you can show them to young people without worry of their being damaged. I will be pleased to show you how I mount mine anytime you can call. I started back in the late 40s with mine and still keep them up to date.

I expect to have another Canadian collection to sell, this time from one of my customers that I have had for over 25 years. He thinks it is time he sells his collection as he has no one in his family interested in either his coin or stamp collection. Although I have never seen his complete collection, I know he has some good material. If and when I get it, I will let you know.

I have finally received the United Nations Airmail stamps that were ordered from the UN in May and issued in June. I ordered what I needed for my customers and a few spare copies. In July I received one corner block of each and a credit note. I have written twice since and finally they sent what I asked for in the first place. I know of others that are having the same trouble. There was another "Combat Racism" issue that came out on September 19, but of course not received as yet. We will see just how long it takes for the machine to process this order.

For those of you who collect the stamps of Great Britain, you will find that there will be another set of animals coming out shortly, which should make a good addition to your collection.

I wonder how many of you collect the stamps of Jersey, Guernsey and the Isle of Man. These only started about 1971 and already some of the sets have increased in value by as much as 1000 per cent, although others have only doubled in value. They do not issue too many.

If one wants to make a nice collection of stamps for not too heavy an outlay, then try Korea. They issue many and they cost only pennies each.

I'll close this week with a reminder to get your name in if you are interested in a stamp club in Lennoxville this winter. Do not leave it, as we can only proceed if we find out there is enough interest. It costs you nothing to put your name in, but unless we have 15 or 20 to start, it is not worth all the effort. So don't forget.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) The best way to get attention today is to underplay everything you do. If you want to get someone's ear, whisper. Don't shout. Like to find out more of what lies ahead for you? Send for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter by mailing 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Though it's early in the week, you may be in a party mood. Get some friends who are also active and restless and you could put a fun thing together.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your interest won't really be aroused today until someone throws down the gauntlet. You'll be inspired by the challenge.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) There's nothing selfish about your outlook today. Your major concerns are how your associates fare, not how you make out.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) People you care for are fortunate today. You can lead them to alter their actions for the better without offending them.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Dan Cupid casts an eye in your direction today. It could mean the sweetening of an old romance or the beginning of a new one.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Arts and crafts - things requiring some dexterity as well as mental effort - offer you a pleasurable outlet today. You're good at them, too.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Someone who has admired you from afar may make some direct overtures today. It's a person you've got good vibes about, too.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're fortunate today in commercial dealings or those involving money if you're working with the opposite sex. Things could be profitable for you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't use go-betweens to communicate today. Write or talk to others yourself. You'll get the results you desire.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) People that you hardly know will make moves today that will wind up benefiting you. You may never know who made your success possible.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) The old adage to lead by example suits you to a "T" today. You conduct yourself in a manner others want to emulate.

Grace Christian Home News

HUNTINGVILLE (MD) - The Presbyterian visiting team came through the rain on Wednesday afternoon to serve afternoon tea to the residents. Miss Sykes and Mrs. Bea Stark of Sherbrooke visited the same day and Mrs. Stark conducted a lively sing song, interspersed with her own interesting remarks.

Bishop's College School visiting group of teachers and students have chosen to visit the Home, weekly this fall and winter on Tuesday evenings. They make the evening very interesting with table games for all the residents who care to join them.

Mrs. Marjory House has returned to the Home, after a week's visit with relatives in Brockville, Ont.

Mrs. Wilson of Sherbrooke was a supper guest of her mother, Mrs. Murphy, on Thursday.

The group of singers known as "Inheritance" from Ontario were supper guests at the Home on Wednesday. They provided a delightful musical program for the residents before their evening's performance at the local Church.

Mr. and Mrs. John Stevenson and baby Rachel of Granby, were recent guests of Mrs. Margaret Stevenson.

Mrs. B. Noble of Lennoxville visited Mrs. Mae Sawyer, Mrs. Murphy and Mrs. Elliott on Friday evening Sept. 30th. Marian Dewing accompanied her and visited Mrs. Sawyer, as well as several of the other residents.

Mr. Howard Nichol, Lennoxville, was visiting his wife, Mrs. Nichol on Friday evening.

Several of the ladies were enjoying a game of "Scrabble" before retiring for the night.

Mr. Wyatt Savage was calling on his mother and his aunt, Mrs. Beattie, on Friday evening also.

Miss Gail Tucker, R.N. and Miss Nancy McDonald have returned from an enjoyable trip to England and other places of interest.

Canusa Unit

DERBY LINE - Standerby South Church Canusa Unit held a meeting in September at the home of Mrs. Cindy Scott in Derby Line. The members welcomed two guests from the Home Health Service in Newport, who gave a talk and demonstrated on Breast Cancer. The ladies found their talk to be most informative.

The hostesses, Mrs. Sue Houghton and Mrs. Mina Jewett served refreshments and all enjoyed chatting about the summer activities. Words of appreciation were extended to the visiting speakers, then the business session was conducted by the president, Mrs. Patricia Walsh.

The reports of the secretary and treasurer were heard.

Preliminary planning for the Christmas sale and tea in the Fellowship Hall on November 12 was done. Some of the members turned in finished crafts for the sale table. This will be held in conjunction with the Ladies' Aid.

Mrs. A.S. Judd, Jr., invited the October meeting to be at her home; the hostesses will be Mrs. Laurel Flynn and Mrs. Jerry Barber.

Successful Senior Centre sale

SAWYERVILLE - On Saturday, Sept. 24, the Community Centre in Sawyerville was a hive of activity. Tables laden with an assortment of donated articles were well patronized and as always, a sale of home cooking, jams, jellies, etc., was very popular.

A beautiful pot of chrysanthemums, donated by Vaudry's Florist Shop was raffled, Mrs. Vera Parker of Cookshire being the lucky winner.

An afghan and rug made and donated by Mrs. Reta Picard was also raffled, with the lucky tickets to be drawn at a later date. Tea and cookies were sold in the kitchen.

Mr. and Mrs. John Cruickshank of East Angus brought a display of antique articles, which was of interest to old and young.

The proceeds of this sale, which were very gratifying are to go to the Second Mile Ministries Senior Centre.

THE SPIDER

During Mark Twain's days as a newspaperman, he was editor of a small Missouri paper.

One day he received a letter from a subscriber, stating that he had found a spider in his paper, and asked if this was an omen of good or bad luck.

Twain replied: "Finding a spider in your paper is neither good nor bad luck. The spider was merely looking over our paper to see which merchant was not advertising so that he could go to that store, spin his web across the door, and lead a life of undisturbed peace ever afterward."

Bermuda's cedar furniture lasted longer than its houses

HAMILTON, BERMUDA — In the 1640s, Bermuda had been inhabited for only 40 years. The total population consisted of 1500 struggling colonists trying to make a living by growing tobacco. They lived in lath-and-plaster shacks covered by palmetto thatch roofs, which could be counted on to collapse in high winds.

Yet those early Bermudians built beautiful wood furniture of surprising sophistication and artistry.

mon item was storage chests on legs or a low frame. "On these chests the artisans used peculiar dovetailing at the joints. The designs of the dovetails are very intricate. We think this may have been the way in which specific workmen 'signed' their work. It is a distinctively Bermudian characteristic and it leaps out at you. When you see the dovetailing you know it is a Bermudian piece."

Bermudian antique furniture and Silver," speculates on how the skills developed: "A self reliance developed from want and usually when a young man courted and planned to marry he then built his own house and furniture with help from family and friends."

"Perhaps the connection is through shipwrights," theorises Cooke. "The first carpenters in Bermuda were ship builders. Some of the routes. Cedar beams supported bridges and structured buildings. The berries from the cedar were even used to create a distinctive and potent local liquor. And it was used to build furniture.

"Bermuda cedar - the wood used in most of Bermuda's antique furniture - is a very tough wood," says Ms. Shorto. "For one thing the feet usually do not rot, even after hundreds of years on damp Bermuda stone floors. For another, termites tend to leave it alone. The cedar is oily and tightly grained. The pieces brought to us for restoration run the gamut from total ruin to almost nothing needed, but in general they are in good shape."

Many pieces of authentic Bermuda cedar furniture have become priceless treasures, such as the tea table on display in an island museum. The table, built circa 1740, is considered one of the finest pieces of furniture made on the island from Bermuda cedar. Cedar, a tight grained and oily wood, doesn't rot in humid, damp climates and termites tend to shun it. Hence, its value among Bermudian furniture makers of two centuries ago.

Their primitive homes were often stocked with Bermudian-made chairs, tables, cupboards and chests that are still in use more than 300 years later - and highly valued as antiques.

"There is a substantial amount of Bermuda antique furniture around the island," says local appraiser Colin Cooke. "Most of it is still in use in the old homes. The pieces are definitely provincial and sometimes unsophisticated, but quite remarkable." Cooke, a 40-year-old furniture restoration specialist, is perhaps the leading expert on Bermudian antique furniture. With his equally knowledgeable partner Sylvia Shorto, Cooke runs a furniture restoration and appraisal firm in picturesque Flatts Village, Bermuda.

Ms. Shorto, who began as an apprentice to Cooke and rose to full partnership, admits to being enthusiastic about, and fascinated by, Bermudian antiques.

"Bermudians made their own furniture for at least 200 years," she points out. "During those centuries furniture making underwent many styles, periods and evolutions. Bermuda furniture reflects these changing fashions, yet it is still distinctive. There is a definite Bermuda style. Bermuda furniture is readily recognizable."

"For instance, one comniture reached its apogee with Queen Anne style. In the late 19th century, production began to drop off. Imported furniture became a status symbol. By the beginning of the 20th century, Bermuda furniture-making had largely died out.

"We really know very little about how this furniture came to be," Cooke admits. "We don't know why such a high degree of skill developed here nor why it developed so soon in Bermuda's history. We also are unable to attribute the pieces to any specific craftsmen, except in isolated cases."

Author and furniture expert Bryden B. Hyde, in his authoritative book, "Bermuda's Antique Fur-earliest Bermuda houses clearly show features taken from ship architecture and design. These highly skilled carpenters could have made such furniture and taught others."

One known factor influencing the development of Bermuda's furniture industry was the abundance of an ideal source of wood for the purpose - the endemic Bermuda cedar Juniperus Bermudiana. This large, tight-grained member of the juniper family served the islanders in many capacities. Durable, sturdy, with great tensile strength, it was used to build the sleek Bermuda ships that soon plied the Atlantic trade

Panam vows fare war 'fight to finish'

LONDON (AP) — Pan American Airways has vowed to maintain its price struggle with Freddie Laker's Skytrain "as long as he does."

Pan Am chairman William Seawell told a news conference Monday he has no intention of increasing Pan Am fares. During Skytrain's inaugural flight last week Laker maintained that by next spring the major U.S. airlines, now trying to meet Skytrain's low transatlantic prices, will go back "to their nasty old ways and put fares up."

"One way or the other," said Seawell, "we still hope, and to some extent believe, that we will prove the budget fare is viable. If so, we will clearly intend to expand them elsewhere."

Seawell, attending a Pan Am board meeting, also said his company has no intention of either buying or leasing the Anglo-French supersonic Concorde, even if it gains landing rights in New York.

PROFIT REPORTED Earlier Monday, Laker Airways said the low-fare, sameday service between London and New York made a profit in its first week of operations.

A company spokesman said Skytrain grossed about $377,482 (U.S.) with service much brisker from the United States than from London.

Skytrain costs $105.25 (U.S.) for a one-way flight from London to New York. A flight the other way costs about $135.

Pan Am, Trans World Airlines and British Airways have responded to Laker's Skytrain challenge by offering cheap stand-by flights between New York and London that cost just $8.75 more than Skytrain. A regular economy roundtrip flight costs $626, compared with Skytrain's roundtrip fare of $238.25.

Laker Airways' figures showed Skytrain flew at 70.5-per-cent capacity last week—243 seats aboard the 345-seat DC-10—just above the 64-per-cent occupancy Laker has calculated he needs to break even.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Hormone production problem

DEAR DR. LAMB — My daughter, 39, and mother of three children developed Cushing's syndrome. She grew facial hair, developed a moon face, heavy body fat, dry flaky skin. She recently had surgery and the doctors removed both of her adrenal glands. I am told she will have to take cortisone orally.

Will the symptoms of facial hair, moon face and obesity disappear? We were told by her doctors that without surgery she would have lived one year. What causes this problem?

DEAR READER — The picture you have described is caused by an over production of hormones from the adrenal cortex, the outer shell of the adrenal gland that produces cortisone.

Surgery is commonly used in treatment of such patients. If both adrenal glands are removed entirely the patient does have to take cortisone the rest of his or her life. It is replacement therapy since the normal source of cortisone has been removed.

The obesity should reverse itself and the fat pads over the upper face that cause the moon face appearance should disappear, as well as the excess hair growth and other signs of Cushing's syndrome. The outlook depends a lot on what the real cause for the over production of adrenal cortical hormones was.

This is a rare disease but it points up the role that hormones have on obesity. The characteristic obesity of Cushing's syndrome involves the trunk of the body and face while it spares the arms and legs. The legs may be quite skinny while the abdomen may become quite large. The hormones influence the areas involved in the obesity.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have what my doctor calls a "Baker's cyst." It gives me a great deal of pain and I have a problem trying to be comfortable with my leg whether riding, walking, or lying in bed. I have quite a bit of stiffness in my knee after I have ridden in a car for a while.

My doctor has advised that the last thing I should do is to have surgery unless the pain becomes unbearable. He says surgery will leave me with a stiff knee. Since I am only 48 I most certainly would hate to go through the rest of my life that way.

The advice he has given me is to favor my leg as much as possible, and to take a towel and wet it in hot water, wring it out and apply it to my knee. Can you suggest anything else?

DEAR READER — A Baker's cyst is just the normal fluid in the knee joint that has escaped and become encapsulated in a sac-like structure of tissue. They are commonly painless, unless there is associated disease in the knee joint.

Your story suggests to me that you may have more than just a Baker's cyst and probably have some disease of your knee joint to begin with. In any case I think you should insist on an evaluation by an orthopedic specialist. If it is something he can help you with he will tell you and also what the risks might be.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My problem is my baggy eyes. I have been told that these bags under the eyes are caused from lack of sleep. I would like to know if this is the only cause for it. I have had it for four years now and I'm beginning to think that it will never go away. Is it possible to get rid of it? How?

DEAR READER — Lack of sleep is not a cause for "bags under the eyes," nor is dis-sipation.

The cause depends on what you mean by bags under the eyes. If fluid accumulates around the eye in the loose skin it is more often associated with lying down. Swelling occurs in dependent parts of the body. That is why people develop swelling of the feet and ankles. At night the head is at the same level as the heart and swelling of the face occurs. Look around you and you will notice people tend to have more swelling around the eyes — "puffiness" — in the morning than in the evening.

A more common cause of "bags under the eyes" is a gradual enlargement of the normal fat pad just under the lower eyelid. These become more prominent as a person gets older. This can be surgically removed. This works when that is the problem.

By Oswald & James Jacoby
All roads led to Rome in the bidding of today's hand. Every South player opened one spade and while there were quite a few bidding sequences from then on, the final contract was always the same.

The bidding in the box shows the approved sequence which was also the most popular one.

Most West players opened the ace of hearts. After that lead those who were smart enough to cash the ace of clubs held declarer to five; those who looked around for a miracle and led anything else watched declarer run off the rest of the tricks with no trouble at all.

A couple of declarers were held to 10 tricks for very bad scores. West opened the 10 of diamonds against them and since they were afraid of a ruff, they simply drew trumps, cashed five diamonds and had to lose three tricks in hearts and clubs.

This would have been the correct line in rubber bridge. We feel that in match-point duplicate it would have been better play to lead the king of hearts and play to make five.

Ask the Jacobys

A Texas reader wants to know who invented the Texas convention.
This is an easy one. It was invented by Dave Carter of St. Louis.

(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

(Do you have a question for the experts? Write "Ask the Jacobys" care of this newspaper. The Jacobys will answer individual questions if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are enclosed. The most interesting questions will be used in this column and will receive copies of JACOBY MODERN.)

South played low and East scored his queen. South was held to nine tricks, since he still had to lose a spade and a diamond. Left to himself, he might have dropped the queen of hearts and made an over-trick.

Why did South turn out to have a good score? Other South declarers played the same way with the same result. When North became declarer at three notrump the queen of diamonds was led. He would win in either hand, make the same spade play, watch West lead a second diamond and wind up losing two diamonds and two spades.

Then a couple of declarers got to six clubs and went down two tricks for the really bad North-South scores.

Ask the Jacobys

A South Dakota reader wants to know if we ever open a two-card club suit.
We do not recommend this bid and never make it. At least we never admit making it.

People 'live like animals' in Montreal East

Far from boutique glitter

WHAT CHANCES DO THEY HAVE? Small wonder there's a delinquency problem in our society. These tots have only busy sidewalks and garbage-strewn alleyways to play in. (Photoprose)

MONTREAL (CP) — "The people here are crushed and live like animals," says Maurice Juneau, a resident of one of the more blighted districts of Montreal's working-class East End.

"There are so many welfare cases and so much unemployment around here that it's really depressing," said the unemployed 28-year-old trucker's aide. "Nobody wants to live here."

While we would not pretend to speak for all 75,000 inhabitants in the crowded, predominantly French districts of Hochelaga and Maisonneuve, Juneau's remarks reflect feelings expressed recently by residents of those two adjoining districts.

They are a part of Montreal far removed from the glittery chic of midtown "boites" and discotheques, and even more so from the serene affluence of select English suburbs to the west.

For mile after mile, the area's two- and three-story brick buildings cluster along the narrow side streets and glamorous boulevards before ending abruptly at the waterfront or the belching oil refineries at the eastern tip of Montreal.

GREEN SPACES FEW
The impressive main Olympic facilities are there too, but East End residents have found little use for them because the government is still seeking ways of tapping their recreational potential.

With the exception of Lafontaine Park to the north, green spaces are limited. Few trees line the unkempt streets and the small, forlorn garden patches that front some of the homes grow little more than weeds.

About one in eight working-age persons in the area is unemployed and 4,500 area families—roughly 18,000 individuals—are on welfare, said Renee David, director of the Hochelaga-Maisonneuve family planning centre.

David said official statistics on the area are usually no more than estimates because the district is treated as part of Greater Montreal.

But, he added, it is safe to say the district, where the average annual salary is between $6,000 and $8,000, has the city's highest rates of unemployment and welfare cases.

SUPPORTED PQ
The Parti Quebecois has received support from the people here for a number of years and Robert Burns, PQ member for the area since 1970, became the Quebec government's house leader and minister for parliamentary reform when the party unseated the Liberals Nov. 15.

However, Juneau said people who were expecting politics to change their lives here are only kidding themselves.

In his view, such problems as poor housing, unemployment and undernourishment cannot be "legislated away."

Juneau, muscular and of medium height, seemed too large for the small, cluttered apartment he shares with his friend Lucille Boucher.

"Say you've got a guy making minimum wage and taking home about $130 a week," he said in French. "On payday he takes care of his rent, repairs on the car, his bills and all that. Then he has nothing left and becomes discouraged."

"His life is a big zero." Asked if he had a specific person in mind, the young man snapped: "Specific? You must be joking! I know dozens like that."

INCENTIVES LACKING

He said the government would do well to improve job incentives. But in the final analysis the fault lay largely with the people themselves.

"You can't get anywhere by withdrawing into your shell. You have to try to improve yourself."

Juneau's views about his neighbors touch some of the same areas raked over by Robert Guy Scully, a former arts and letters editor with the Montreal daily Le Devoir, who sparked an uproar last April with his gloomy assessment of French-speaking Quebec.

Scully said Montreal's working-class French comprise "a small, forgotten, culturally deprived, hyperactive and insecure community of spiritual cripples." He was widely criticized for being flagrantly one-dimensional.

The critics say the problems of residents of Hochelaga-Maisonneuve and similar areas are often grossly exaggerated.

As elsewhere, children here romp happily along the streets or mow each other down on tricycles in the imaginary battlefields of their littered back alleys.

Store owners sit on the sidewalks under their awnings exchanging pleasantries with passers-by, while youths tinker with the souped-up engines of their cars along the side streets.

Most of the people who discussed the "depressing" aspects of their lives agreed that politics can do little to cure the area's fundamental ills.

Politics can "fix" such palpable dilemmas as poverty and oppression but can't do much for what is "truly a sick society," said Scully. He later apologized for this and other statements he made in a Washington speech, subsequently reproduced in a Montreal newspaper.

Another man, who asked that he be known as Robert Demers, also said the area's problems would only be negligibly assuaged by politics.

"This (Parti Quebecois) government is neither better nor worse than any other," he said. What was needed in the East End and similar working-class districts was education, not politics.

Said his wife, Marie: "I believe it isn't a question of government, it's a question of mentality."

LEFT NEIGHBORHOOD Demers, who was born in the East End but was able to buy a home in nearby middle-class Chambly 14 years ago, returned to the old neighborhood last June, not as a resident but as a grocery-store owner.

"When I was a kid I didn't know any better," Demers said. "I lived in an apartment overlooking a parking lot and breathed carbon monoxide all day."

"But I worked hard and discovered other things," Demers said. Area residents live under "abnormal" conditions.

Welfare, unemployment, crowded housing and lack of nourishment become an intrinsic part of everyday life.

Demers said he resented Scully referring to French-Canadians as "spiritual cripples."

He suggested their problems are common to the poor and under-educated in every society and that it is a class phenomenon rather than a cultural or racial one.

"There are people like this everywhere. There always have been and there always will be."

Fire inspector Maurice Lemieux

'Prevention a year-round job'

Maurice Lemieux

Mention fire prevention to most people and they talk about that time of year when all the trucks sit outside city hall, or the Junior Firefighter badge that Little Johnny got in last year's school demonstration. Mention it to Maurice Lemieux, and his face just glows - it's his life.

After 23 years of fire fighting service, Mr. Lemieux is Sherbrooke's chief inspector and director of the Sherbrooke Fire Prevention Bureau.

He admits, that like every other young boy, he dreamt of riding high on the red pumpers and rescuing fair maidens from flaming buildings.

Today he says it hasn't been "quite that exciting" but well worth it nevertheless.

"Fire prevention is a year-round job. It's not limited to that one week a year. Sometimes it can be exciting, sometimes it can be boring, but whatever it is, whatever I'm doing, I like to think that a life has been saved because of it," he said.

Mr. Lemieux's job entails annual inspection of every building in the city, except private homes, and determining the cause of fires.

He said the Sherbrooke Department receives more than 1,000 alarm calls each year, but the number of actual property damage fires is small.

"We do have some large fires in the city, but we get a lot of waste-paper fire calls too. Believe it or not we still get calls from residents who want us to get their cats out of trees."

He admits to having climbed a few trees to rescue stranded cats, but said that type of incident is now referred to the SPCA who can do the job at a much lower cost and inconvenience.

Mr. Lemieux said requirements and training for firefighters are much more rigid than when he joined the force.

The Sherbrooke Fire Department receives more than 300 applications each year, and accepts a maximum of five men. Firefighters must have a grade 11 education.

Before being accepted into the force, all men must undergo strict medical tests.

To stay in shape, the men must do compulsory jogging and exercise three times a week - all of them.

Mr. Lemieux said there has not been a fire death in Sherbrooke since Dec., 1975, and attributed this to the increasing number of homes that are now using smoke detectors.

Prevent Catastrophe

by following the rules set by the City of Magog Fire Chief. More than half of the fires and loss of life by fire are in the home. Nearly all could be prevented by practising the following rules:

Fire Prevention Week
October 9th to 15th

SMOKING — Never smoke in bed, in the barn, the clothes closet or the garage.
MATCHES — Do not let children play with matches. Keep matches in a safe place.
Put burnt matches in a metal container. Use safety matches.
PUT OUT CIGARETTES AND MATCHES BEFORE THROWING AWAY. BE SURE THEY ARE EXTINGUISHED.

GARBAGE — Do not keep garbage and waste, especially in the cellar, barn or cupboard. Burn carefully. Never while it is windy. Burn in protected place or incinerator. Watch the fire and be sure it is completely extinguished.
ALL SHOULD BE CLEAN — Pipes and all heating equipment should be cleaned and checked at least once a year, use a protective screen wherever necessary. Do not install pipes between ceilings, roof or partitions.

DO NOT OVERHEAT — CHIMNEY COVERS — Use metallic covers. Do not wallpaper over. Do not stuff with rags.

ELECTRIC HEATERS — Be sure that heaters do not overload wiring capacity.

GASOLINE - BENZINE - NAPHTHA — Do not use for lighting the fire, the explosion that may result can cause fatal burns and death.

ELECTRICITY — That all work be done by experts. Light cords should not be used as extensions or hung over nails.

ELECTRIC FUSES — Use only 15 amperes for ordinary circuits. Never use a penny to boost the fuses.

ELECTRIC IRONS — Always disconnect when not in use.

PORTABLE GAS STOVES — Protect the top with asbestos covering.

LAMPS, CANDLES, ETC. — Do not put close to curtains, or other inflammable materials.

DECORATIONS — Do not place inflammable decorations over light bulbs, flame or warming oven.

OILY DUST MOPS OR CLOTHS — Keep the mops in a closed metal box. Burn the cloths, they may cause spontaneous combustion.

REMEMBER — a careful person rarely has a fire; a neat and orderly place rarely burns.

ATTENTION: We ask that you cooperate by keeping stove and furnace pipes clean, and replacing any defective pipes. Chimney sweeping is now terminated.

NOT ALL WORK — Part of the Sherbrooke Fire Department's job — perhaps the most important part — is teaching people how to prevent fires. The best way, the department has found, is to make its presence felt as much as possible. What better way than to parade through town with the clean, shining ladder truck loaded with kids?

Fire prevention is a full-time job

Next week will be observed as Fire Prevention Week across Canada and the United States, and local fire departments will be staging several demonstrations, distributing fire information pamphlets, conducting inspections, and presenting films to local elementary school children.

The Sherbrooke Fire Department has already begun work for Fire Prevention Week, and has shown slide movies to local English elementary schools. They will officially open the week, with an Open House at all four Sherbrooke stations, on Sunday, Oct. 9, from 1-6 p.m. Children will be admitted only if accompanied by an adult. They will have a chance to see how the alarm control room works, pumper trucks and ladders, and the new rescue unit.

Members of the Sherbrooke Fire Prevention Bureau will be demonstrating smoke detectors to more than 700 employees in the city's provincial and federal buildings.

They will also be touring local hospitals and nursing homes to present slides, and discuss fire prevention.

The Department is also expecting to run practice drills throughout the area's schools.

The Bureau promotes fire prevention throughout the year with private home, hospital, and industry inspections.

They are required by law to make at least one visit per year to every building in the city, excepting private homes. They must call on hospitals, nursing homes, and boarding houses at least twice.

The Sherbrooke Fire Department inspected more than 700 city homes this summer in its Home Inspection Program.

Chief Inspector Lemieux said it is impossible to check every home, but added that anytime someone thinks they may have a fire hazard in their home, they can call the fire department and request an inspection.

Brome Lake firemen will visit all sectors of the town during the upcoming week. They will distribute fire prevention pamphlets and answer any questions on fire dangers in the home.

On Monday, Oct. 10, they will visit Foster and Taylor Streets in Foster. On Tuesday they will visit McCurdy, Durkee and West Brome Streets in West Brome, Davis Street in Fulford on Wed., and Beaudry and Doucet supermarkets in Knowlton on Friday.

Saturday, Oct. 15 will be Open House at the Fire Hall on Mount Echo Road from 10 a.m. to noon, and 1:30 to 4 p.m. Firemen will give tours of the hall, and all fire equipment will be on display.

Fire Prevention Week is observed each year during the Sunday-through-Saturday period that includes Oct. 9. This date is the anniversary of the "Great Chicago Fire" of 1871, which marked the real start of community effort to prevent fires instead of concentrating only on putting them out.

Toll of the Chicago fire was monumental in terms of the young frontier city and the economy of those days. More than 250 people lost their lives, 17,430 buildings were destroyed, and estimated property loss exceeded $168 million.

"Observed", not celebrated, will continue to be the proper word for Fire Prevention Week as long as fire's annual toll remains at astronomical levels.

Fire in Canada claims over 800 lives each year, and dollar losses well over $450 million.

Smoke detectors could save thousands

If smoke detectors were as common as toaster-ovens, blenders, electric carving knives and other small household appliances, hundreds — even thousands — of people could save themselves from fire each year.

Residential fires claim over 100 lives annually in the province of Quebec. Some of these people die from burns, but three times as many die from smoke inhalation — breathing the deadly toxic gases released into the air when common household furnishings smolder and flame.

Smoke detectors give early warning of a fire. This can mean the difference between a safe escape and no escape at all.

"Under most circumstances, an approved model of a smoke detector, properly placed, installed and maintained, will do a satisfactory job in giving early warning of fire."

Approved models of smoke detectors are of the photoelectric (or optical) type and the ionization type. Both types can be powered either by house current or by batteries.

For about the cost of an electrical kitchen gadget, perhaps only seldom used, a smoke detector can protect a household 24 hours a day, 365 days a year. Combine a smoke detector with a well-thought-out and rehearsed emergency escape plan to vastly increase the chances of family survival in case of fire.

Memories of beating friends to death in Amin's jail torture refugee Tales of horror continue to flow out of Idi Amin's Uganda. Few, however, match that told to The Associated Press by a former bank clerk who now is a refugee in neighboring Kenya. Here is his story of his ex-periences in Amin's prisons.

NAIROBI (AP) — Jacob Mugisha is a 36-year-old Ugandan refugee now living in this Kenyan capital. There is little to mark him out from the thousands of other Ugandans who have sought sanctuary in Kenya to escape the rule of Idi Amin.

But Mugisha says that until the end of his days he will carry a burden of guilt from the more than one month he spent in one of Amin's prisons where, he says, he was forced to batter to death more than 20 of his fellow prisoners, one of them a friend.

Although independent confirmation of his account is not available, various international human rights agencies have estimated that as many as 100,000 Ugandans have been brutally killed since Amin seized power in a military coup in January, 1971.

There have been persistent reports that Amin's police and security men force prisoners to kill each other. Mugisha says that at the prison of Amin's much-feared Public Safety Unit (PSU) on the Kampala-Jinja road, about three miles from the Ugandan capital of Kampala, this is the most favored form of killing.

The PSU, the military police and Amin's secret police, the State Research Bureau, are the three organizations of terror through which Amin maintains his power.

ACCUSED OF THEFT
Mugisha said he was arrested by the PSU on April 20, 1975, while on vacation from his job as a clerk at Barclays Bank in Kampala, and accused of helping to steal the equivalent of $20,000 from the bank.

He said he was put in a cellblock he described as an oblong, black building with a courtyard in the middle, surrounded by a compound cut off from the rest of the prison by a wire fence.

Two days later, he said, he was selected along with three other prisoners he named them as Fred Musoke, Tom Galabuzi and a Mr. Lutymanga.

"One of the cells in the block is reserved for those who have been chosen to die," Mugisha said. "We were taken to the cell and at about 9:30 p.m. the camp killer (Corporal Nyanzi) came with two policemen. They started calling us out one by one into the courtyard and then the compound. Musoke was the first to be called. Then they called my name.

"I went out and was told I had been called to kill Musoke with a heavy, thick iron bar. I looked round and saw police with machine-guns guarding us. I was shocked to see that I was going to have to kill my friend.

BEATEN ON HEAD
"I was ordered by the killer in a loud voice to beat him on the head. That's what I did. I beat him to death.

"Then they brought Galabuzi who was employed by the ministry of works. I did the same thing to him. After that they also brought Lutymanga and I also killed him."

"Before I left Naguru on May 24, 1975, I killed more than 20 people," Mugisha said. "Every night I was killing one or two people. There were other prisoners doing the same job. But I did the most.

"Nobody can know what it is to have the choice of either killing or being killed. I hate to think what I have done."

More than 200 people were killed in this way during his time in the camp, Mugisha estimated.

He said his worst memory is of killing Musoke, whom he described as being 17 years old. Musoke was accused of stealing money, but denied this.

After his month as a camp killer, Mugisha said, he was taken before a court in Kampala and sentenced to one year in Luzira prison after pleading guilty to stealing the bank money.

Before he completed his sentence, he said, he was able to raise about $600 to buy his freedom. He said he fled to neighboring Rwanda but returned to Uganda last year.

TAUGHT SPORTS
After his return, he was employed as a sports teacher at St. Henry's College at Masaka, about 80 miles south of Kampala. The school closed for vacation Aug. 26, but before he left the headmaster, Joshua Mulondo, told him the senior cricket team was to play a team from the army Sept. 6.

The pupils in the team were told to report to the school by Sept. 4 but only six turned up, he said. He called on the army sports officer, Capt. Muhammed Seruwagi, to request a postponement of the match, but Seruwagi marched him in front of Maj Nasur Abdullah, governor of Uganda's Central province, who accused him of "bringing politics into sport." He was ordered to return to the school under military escort and bring the six pupils back with him.

"Back at Makindye we were all badly beaten and then crammed in a cell with about 40 other people, including members of the Express football club, which was banned earlier this year," he said.

On Sept. 10, he and the students were taken before the jail's commanding officer, a Col. Gabriel, he said. In front of them, lying on the floor bleeding badly, was Mulondo, the headmaster of St. Henry's.

TOLD TO LEAVE
"Gabriel said he was going to free us, but we and the other team members should play the match without fail on Sept

Obituary

THOMAS G. FLANDERS

of Sherbrooke
Thomas Gordon Flanders of Lennoxville passed away suddenly at the age of 49, on July 20, 1977, at the CHU in Sherbrooke.

Born in Sherbrooke on May 17, 1928, he was the eldest son of the late Dora (Simpson) Flanders and the late Wood Flanders of Sherbrooke. He graduated from the Central School in Sherbrooke with top grades.

He was united in marriage to Patricia Rogers of Bury on Aug. 3, 1957, at St. Patrick's Church in Sherbrooke. Father J.R. Moisan officiated at the ceremony.

Their only child, Debi-Ann was born in Sherbrooke on Dec. 31, 1958.

They moved from Sherbrooke to Kingston, Ont. in 1964, where they remained until Patricia's death on Aug. 16, 1967. Patricia was laid to rest at the Catarague Cemetery in Kingston.

Tom and Debi returned to the Sherbrooke area, and Tom went back to his work at Thibault Marine. He later worked at Geo. Deslisle and Munkittrick Sport.

Tom was remarried on Aug. 26, 1972, to Nancy Pepin of Lennoxville. The couple resided in Lennoxville and adopted a little girl, at the age of 2.

The funeral service at Lennoxville United Church was officiated by Rev. Doug Warren. Mr. Fred Fox rendered a heartwarming sole, accompanied by his wife at the organ. Rev. Warren spoke special words of prayer and recited a poem written by Tom's daughter, Debi.

Obituary

Bearers were son-in-law Anthony Giroux, brother-in-law, Stanley Pepin, and Harold Munkittrick, Peter Delisle, Jacques Villeneuve, and Mr. Roger Lacharite, all close friends of the Flanders family.

Interment took place in Malvern Cemetery, Lennoxville.

He is survived by his wife,

Nancy, his daughters, Debi and Penny, two-half brothers, Douglas and Howard, and a very special brother, James.

Many other family members and friends from the Eastern Townships, Ontario, New Brunswick, New Hampshire, Vermont and Florida, mourn his death.

The largely attended funeral and beautiful flower arrangements testified to the love and high esteem in which Tom Flanders was held by all who knew him.

Deaths

A most wonderful man of great courage, faith, and hope of making life easy to live. When all things seem hopeless. A man who worked hard all his life. A man who had great knowledge of a hard and good life.

A man who cared for others, and especially his family. A man who did his best to make his family most content and satisfied in every way. A man who was proud of his family achievements and his own.

To say, "This is my family," and be most proud. A man who had trust in all mankind. A man who would do anything for anyone. A man who forgave and forgot those who hurt him. A man very rare. A perfect father in all possible ways. There is no man like this man and never will be. Most of all, a man who was always honest and open. A man who was always himself.

A man full of patience and love. A man to be gratefully remembered. Thank you for the time that is past. For all the values and thoughts that will last. We will always love you. May you rest in peace.

Stanstead College News

STANSTEAD (IH) — The sun was shining in New York all four days that Master Duncan Graham and the following students were there to visit the U.N. Paul Wright, J. Astic, Alex Chaya, W. Ouellette, W. Roscoe, A. Rahaman, Loke Fu Foo, Loke Fah Foo, C. Spencer, J. Senechal and J. Navarro. They stayed at the Tudor Hotel next to the United Nations Building. Thursday they were given a briefing by the Canadian Permanent Mission to the U.N. on the background of the sessions.

The Assembly was opened by the Foreign Minister of China. They had a tour of the U.N. building arranged by the Canadian Mission. Friday there were sessions by East Germany and Mexico. The U.N. President is from Yugoslavia and the Prime Minister of Yugoslavia was among the several heads of countries represented.

Friday evening, the boys split, some going to see the Empire State building, the Rockefeller Center, some attended New York Experience at the Cinema, others a show on Broadway and others, a live Sammy Davis show.

Saturday all toured such places as Manhattan and a ferry ride to Staten Harbor. Wall Street Trade Center and other places of educational interest and back home on Sunday, after a very delightful venture.

Our congratulations go out to Rev. Roy and Joan Peirce, both on staff, on the recent birth of a grandson, a son to Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Peirce of Ste. Anne de Bellevue. The little fellow's name is James Andrew.

The boys will be leaving on Saturday after games for the holiday weekend. A Thanksgiving buffet took place here at the school, last night.

COLLEGE SPORTS

Saturday, October 1, Stanstead College and Bishop's College school contested a closely fought game which was not decided until the end when BCS Purple and Whites scored a touchdown against the Red and Whites in the last minute of play to win 27-23 in the Varsity football game. Stanstead touchdowns were scored by Peter Ellis (2) and Gary Hindley.

Stanstead Junior Varsity team travelled to Massey Vanier in Cowansville on September 28. The rainy conditions made playing very difficult for both teams but Massey Vanier played well and rolled to a 33-0 victory over Stanstead. October 1, BCS Junior Varsity triumphed over Stanstead in a closely fought 14-0 game. The J.V. at our school has yet to jell offensively after having a shut-out in these two games.

The Cross country team participated in an invitational meet at Salesian de Sherbrooke on October 1. October 1, Stanstead Junior and Varsity Soccer Teams played teams at Centennial Academy in Montreal. Stanstead Juniors won 3-1, outplaying their opponents clearly. Goal-scorers for Stanstead were Mezey (2) and J. Kyle. The Seniors also won 2-0, playing as usual in the rain. Stanstead scorers were Peter Ryan and Nissim Tse.

Guild meet

ABERCORN — All Saints Guild met on Sept. 21st at the W.I. Hall.

The meeting was opened by all members repeating the Lord's Prayer.

The Pres. Pauline Wilkins then asked the secretary to read the minutes and financial statement of the last month. All were pleased to hear that the final amount for the Luncheon is Served Party was $217.00.

The members then decided to give the A.C.W. of Grace Church, Sutton, a donation of $25.00 for the use of the hall.

Special thanks to Jeanette Gibson for selling tickets and helping serve, Denise Lahue and Angie Sherrer for ticket selling, also Donald and Irene McGrath for helping serve.

Next item of business was the new carpet for the church. This to be left up to Rev. Long to purchase and to bill the Guild.

It was decided to have the annual tea and Bazaar on Oct. 29 and the new location will be the W.I. Hall. Final plans for this will be made on Oct. 19, when the guild will have their meeting at the home of Pauline Wilkins.

Chance game was won by Thelma Riddell. With no other business to discuss, the meeting closed with the usual prayer and a pot luck lunch was enjoyed by all.

Happiness is helping.

farming and gardening

Earthworms beware

Last month's nonstop rains left in their wake waterlogged fields and difficult crop situations, but local agriculturalists say there won't be any real problem as long as the ground doesn't freeze hard while it's still wet. However, one local farm sage says the worst thing is that earth worm populations will be decimated by the bad weather and unless Indian Summer is long and hot, the worms won't be back to their optimum populations until next fall. If sounds crazy enough to be true.

WHAT IS THANKSGIVING?

When we are gathered together
With our loved ones great and small,
When we sit at our tables laden
With the bountiful harvest of Fall.

We say, we are keeping Thanksgiving -
We all bow our heads in prayer,
Then Father starts carving the turkey -
And we all hope we get our share.

We are thankful, of course we are thankful,
We've had such a wonderful feed,
We're thankful we've had such a harvest,
With plenty for next year's needs.

We figure we had it coming -
Why, haven't we worked all year?
We plowed, and harrowed, and planted,
Then worried all season for fear -

The rain wouldn't come when needed
The frosts might be late in the Spring -
The bugs may spoil the potatoes
And ever so many more things.

But now, our worries are over.
We're thankful for everything plus,
No matter what happened to others
It just didn't happen to us.

So while we are being so thankful -
And thinking so much of ourselves,
Have we ever thought of the needy,
With nothing on their pantry shelves?

This year may have been a failure for them,
Perhaps they worked hard too,
Still maybe they're really more thankful,
For what they have, than you.

So to make this day happy for others,
We must make ourselves believe,
To have a real Thanksgiving,
We must give as well as receive.

AUTUMN

It's Autumn, and the radiant hues,
Of red and yellow and gold.
Speak of the magic of nature's hand,
Speak of God's power o'er all the land,
Of His wisdom and love untold.

As I watch the leaves come tumbling down,
Enchanted by their beauty,
Seeing the trees grow grim and cold,
Tall and stately, fearless and bold,
As a sentinel on duty.

The fowl of the air, all gather in flocks
To hold their consultations,
Always knowing they will find their way,
Without guide or road map, they soar away,
And will still reach their destination.

Edna M. Wilson,
Waterville, Que.

THE PERCHERON

Alone
Standing in a large, green field.
Memories of long days,
of sweat, of fatigue, and the hot, burning sun, penetrating Throat dry.
The heat.
The mingled smells of sweat and leather, and once in awhile,
the energy needed, provided instantly by,
the whip.
And those dirty flies,
always present.
Muscles tense.
Eyes closed tightly from the effort needed to invade the soil and tear from it what is needed
so that the master may survive.
Now
the knees are weak and the eyes
are covered by mist
But he is satisfied
to live.
And sometimes
what joy,
when the children come.

BE KIND TO THE OLD FOLKS

When young folks have lived to be old folks,
When they've grown to be bent and grey,
When their minds cannot cope with the present,
But think only of yesterday.

Be patient with their misunderstandings,
Be kind when perhaps they are not;
Make them feel that they are still wanted,
Not in everyone's way, and forgot.

Give them love, protection and comfort,
They gave it to you, years ago;
If we spurn them now when they're helpless,
We may have to reap what we sow.

Because someday we're going to be aged,
We'll walk down the same road as they,
In whatever way they have suffered,
We too, might have to pay.

Canada favored in World Cup soccer

MONTERREY, Mexico (CP) — Mexican newspapers have installed Canada in the role of favorite in the six-nation World Cup soccer qualifying round starting Saturday.

However, Canadian team manager John McMahon isn't happy about it.

"It's a little gamesmanship," he said, suggesting that calling Canada the team to beat is just a way of putting extra pressure on the Canadians.

McMahon said he is confident the team, made up of North American Soccer League players, can handle the pressure.

"Their attitude and fitness are fine and the adrenalin is running," he said. "It's all starting to come together." Canada opens the zone round robin against El Salvador in this northern industrial city. Then it heads 600 miles south to Mexico City for games against Surinam Oct. 12 and Guatemala Oct. 16 before returning to Monterrey to play Haiti Oct. 20 and Mexico Oct. 22. HAS BEATEN MEXICO The justification for making Canada the favorite is its record against Mexico in last year's North-Central American zone play. Canada defeated Mexico 1-0 and drew 0-0 with them, then advanced to the next round with a 3-0 victory over the United States. Only one of the six teams here will make it to Argentina for the 14-nation World Cup next June. It will be a remarkable first if Canada happens to be the one. One concern for the Canadians is the difference in altitude between Monterrey, 1,765 feet, and Mexico City, 7,347. It's also somewhat warmer here than in the capital. But McMahon had the conditions in mind when he arranged a Caribbean tour for the team last month.

All four games were draws, demonstrating that Canada is solid in goal and on defence. But coach Eckhard Krautzun expressed some concern about goal-scoring problems. He said the Canadians had many scoring opportunities, but lacked polish and finish around the net.

WORK ON OFFENCE The team has worked on its offence here and ran up a high score in a game against a Monterrey team the other day. McMahon played a little gamesmanship himself, not allowing the local press to view the warmup match and declining to say just how many goals Canada had scored.

The manager was a bit upset because El Salvador, the opponent in the opening game, had changed hotels and moved into the same place as the Canadians.

"There was some tension at first, but they stay on one side and we stay on the other and there have been no problems although the atmosphere is not the best."

Another matter that bothered McMahon was the shifting of the game against Haiti to Oct. 20 from Oct. 19, leaving only a day of rest before what may be the crucial game against Mexico. The best he could do was to get the Haiti game played earlier in the day, 5 p.m., and the Mexico game later, 7 p.m.

short notes...

Rosie Casals loses upset

ATLANTA (AP) — Unseeded Ann Kiyomura upset No. 5 seed Rosie Casals 7-6, 6-3 Thursday at the $75,000 Atlanta women's tennis tournament.

Favorites Chris Evert and Virginia Wade won easily to complete the field of eight for today's quarter-finals. The top-seeded Evert beat Kathy Kuykendall 6-3, 6-1 and Wade defeated Janet Newberry 6-3, 6-4.

Earlier Thursday, eight-seeded Billie Jean King, attempting a comeback from knee surgery, advanced to the quarter-finals by beating Francoise Durr 6-2, 6-4.

Plimpton plays nets

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Author George Plimpton blocked a penalty shot, three other shots on goal and allowed one Philadelphia Flyers score Thursday night when he played goal for Boston Bruins for five minutes of controlled action prior to a National Hockey League exhibition game.

Plimpton, 50, has said he planned to use the experience as the basis for a story in next month's issue of Sports Illustrated magazine.

During his writing career, Plimpton has quarterbacked Detroit Lions, battled against New York Yankees and played basketball for Boston Celtics.

He also has sparred against boxer Archie Moore, played on the professional golf tour and recently driven in the Grand Prix at Watkins Glen, N.Y.

Leafs down Voyageurs

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League relied on three third-period goals, one into an empty net, to down Nova Scotia Voyageurs of the American Hockey League 4-2 in exhibition hockey action Thursday night.

The Leafs led 1-0 after the first period and the teams were tied 1-1 going into the last period.

Norm Dupont and Pat Hughes scored for Nova Scotia. Randy Carlyle, Jack Valliquette, Ian Turnbull and George Ferguson scored for the Leafs who were outshot 39-28 in the game.

Bonavena mistrial declared

VIRGINIA CITY, Nev. (AP) — A mistrial was declared Thursday in the trial of a former brothel security guard accused of murdering Argentine heavyweight boxer Oscar Bonavena.

Frank Gregory, Carson City district court judge, abruptly called a halt to the proceedings when he learned that Nevada brothel owner Joe Conforte had been seen talking to prospective jurors.

Bonavena, 31, was gunned down in front of Conforte's Mustang Ranch brothel on May 22, 1976.

Willard Ross Brymer, 32, is on trial for Bonavena's slaying. Conforte has put up his Virginia City restaurant as collateral for the defendant's $250,000 bail.

Plan would blacklist agents

TORONTO (CP) — A group of sports players' association may have a plan to drive fly-by-night sports agents out of professional sports.

Ed Garvey, executive-director of the National Football League Players' Association, said in a telephone interview Thursday that association directors representing athletes in the NFL, the National Hockey League, the National Basketball Association and major league baseball will meet soon to try to agree on such a plan.

Garvey said the plan would require an accused agent to defend himself before the American Arbitration Association, a group that already adjudicates similar disputes in other fields.

Phillies coach has big hassles

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Manager Danny Ozark of Philadelphia Phillies is expected to have a double-barrelled centrefield headache today for the third game of the best-of-five National League championship series against Los Angeles Dodgers.

The Phillies and Dodgers are tied 1-1 after splitting the first two games in Los Angeles and Ozark has had to go that stretch without his secretary of defence in centre field, Garry Maddox, who hit .293 during the regular season and ran down everything hit inside the stadium.

Bake McBride moved from right to centre and Jay Johnstone and Jerry Martin platooned in right for the games at Dodger Stadium.

But now, not only is Maddox questionable for the third game, but McBride is limping with an injured big toe on his left foot. X-rays were taken Thursday night, but the results were inconclusive. The doctors want to take a better look.

Blues blue over WHA loss

St. Louis Blues probably don't care if they ever play another World Hockey Association club—even if it's only in an exhibition game.

The Blues, who have beaten all three of their National Hockey League opponents in preseason play this year, lost their third decision to a WHA club and the second in as many nights Thursday when Winnipeg Jets scored 3-0 victory over St. Louis at Brandon, Man.

Castors' work cut out in tough weekend action

By LEN O'DONNELL
SHERBROOKE — The Sherbrooke Beavers face two tough opponents over the weekend, the Draveurs of Three Rivers this evening and Sunday night they will square off against the Nationals of Laval.

DENIS HALLE
...two for one

The tilt tonight between the Beavers and the Draveurs is their first meeting this year. The Three Rivers combination is considered as one of the top outfits in the league and the Beavers will certainly have their hands full in trying to extend their home string of victories.

The Sunday fixture with the Nationals of Laval will be another tough job; in their first encounter in Laval the Nationals posted an 8-6 win over the Beavers.

Coach Delage will have a new player in uniform in Sylvain Locas, who was secured this week in a trade with Chicoutimi. Larry Mensour, Burton Martin and Mike Brisebois were involved in the transaction, but Burton Martin quit the Sags after playing one game.

The other trade which involved Denis Halle and Mike Semertgakis with Quebec Remparts for Yvan Boudreau also fell apart as Mike Semertgakis decided to quit and go home. He played two games with the Remparts but suddenly had enough.

Coach Delage, when contacted, stated, "I can't understand Martin and Semertgakis' attitude in this. When I contacted them telling they were traded they gave me the impression they would be happy with their new clubs. I hope they will change their minds and return to their new clubs. There is no question of them joining the Beavers as the deal is completed and they are the property of their respective clubs."

Coach Ronnie Racette couldn't understand Mark Semertgakis' move to leave the club. "I had a long talk with Mark and he told me he had been thinking of hanging up his skates. When he was with the Beavers he was on the verge of doing so."

I had a long discussion with him, Racette added, "and I told him to go home

MARK SEMERTGAKIS
...blew his chances

and think it over and if he decided to come back there would always be a place for him with the Remparts. It is hard to understand the attitude of young players today. I think they are spoiled with everything in their favor. It was different in my day when we just wanted a place to play, no matter where, as long as we could play."

Slumping Als face high-riding Roughies

Just when Montreal Alouettes are going through a disastrous period along comes a team that has mastered them since interlocking play began in the Canadian Football League 17 years ago.

Saskatchewan Roughriders pay their first visit to Olympic Stadium Sunday afternoon with the Alouettes reeling from three consecutive losses.

The Roughriders, tied for second place in the Western Conference with Winnipeg Blue Bombers, hope to add to their impressive mark against Montreal—14 wins and two losses.

Other CFL weekend action has Ottawa Rough Riders in Calgary Saturday night, Toronto Argonauts visiting Hamilton Tiger-Cats Monday and Winnipeg in Edmonton also on Monday.

The Alouettes are struggling mainly because Joe Barnes, their No. 1 quarterback, suffered a shoulder separation Sept. 6 and, while there are indications he may be back for the playoffs, it is of little consolation now.

FRANKLIN IN Montreal has acquired former Toronto back-up quarterback Dennis Franklin and there is a possibility he may suit up for Sunday's clash.

"He's a good runner and he's intelligent," said Montreal coach Marv Levy. "I'm the first to realize he still has a lot to learn, but we're talking about him as a back-up at this point. I'm hoping Mark Jackson can go all the way and get the job done for us."

Saskatchewan coach Jim Eddy, meanwhile, feels the Alouettes still have "all the players and all the talent that put them ahead in the East."

Roughrider linebacker Lou Clare is doubtful for Sunday's game and Ric Konopka will likely replace him.

Ottawa, battling with Hamilton and Toronto for a playoff spot in the East, will go into Saturday's game without slotback Jim Foley who re-injured his neck last Saturday against Edmonton. Bill Hatanaka will replace Foley.

The Stampeders, who have seven former Rough Riders in their lineup, will be looking for their third win in their last four outings.

"I expect to see a real knockdown, drag-out affair," said Calgary coach Jack Gotta, who once coached in Ottawa.

The Argonauts go into Hamilton knowing they have not won there since a pre-season game in 1971. The Tiger-Cats also have beaten Toronto twice in three starts this year.

The Argos appear healthy for Monday's clash, but the same cannot be said for the Blue Bombers for their game in Edmonton.

Yanks tie series with Kansas with 6-2 'must' victory

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Yankees, led by their stopper and their starter, won the game they had to win to even their American League playoff series with Kansas City Royals at one victory each.

The stopper was Ron Guidry, who overpowered the Royals with a tidy three-hitter. The starter was Cliff Johnson, who ignited the Yankees dormant bats with a home run and a run-scoring double.

The efforts of the slender Guidry and the massive Johnson propelled the Yankees to a 6-2 triumph

Thursday night and turned the best-of-five American League pennant series into a two-of-three affair.

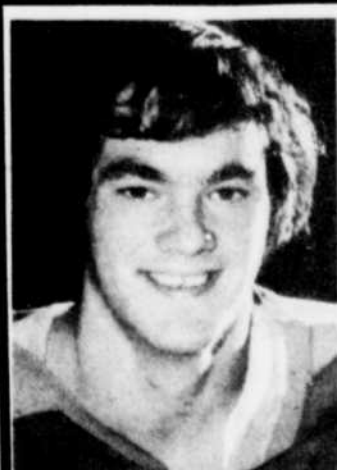

The first of those three games at Kansas City's Royals Stadium is tonight, with righthander Dennis Leonard, Kansas City's 20-game winner, against Mike Torrez, 17-13 this season.

Guidry, the Ragin' Cajun from Carencro, La., almost didn't make the Yankees in spring training, only going north with the team because New York didn't have any other left-handed relievers. At one point in spring training, Yankees manager

Billy Martin joked to the 27-year-old: "If there's anybody in the American League you can get out, tell me and I'll let you pitch to him."

Once the season started and Guidry was forced into the starting rotation, the lanky left-hander was getting everybody in the American League out.

"That's the way he's pitched all year," said Martin after Guidry's masterful performance kept the Yankees from the edge of extinction. "He's one great pitcher. He kept us in the picture all season."
