PQ candidate blames premier

MONTREAL (CP) — Michel Bourdon, defeated candidate for the Parti Quebecois nomination in the Maison-Neuve by-election, is convinced he lost because of a campaign by Premier Rene Levesque on behalf of his successful opponent, Jacques Desmarais.

In an interview published Wednesday, Bourdon said the premier's attitude "shows once more that Rene Levesque does not tolerate any opposition nor any person who doesn't think the way he does."

"The first virtue he requires is that of obedience." "It's an untenable way of approaching things," said the former president of the Confederation of National Trade Unions' construction wing.

Some of Bourdon's supporters were upset when Premier Levesque turned up at the nominating meeting Monday while their candidate was making a speech instead of waiting until the end. Surrounded by bodyguards and PQ personalities, the premier walked across the hall, distracting the audience from Bourdon's speech.

Tessier, MPs mull jump to Tories

OTTAWA — Megantic-Compton Liberal MP Claude Tessier is playing his cards close to his chest in the wake of talk of new round of ship-jumping from federal political parties.

La Presse quoted Tessier as saying yesterday he was not opposed to switching from Liberal to Tory ranks if an acceptable compromise can be reached on the fate of Petro-Canada and if the Tories can convince him that they can better serve the interests of his mainly rural Townships constituency. "I'm not opposed to discussing a change of party," he said.

CLAUDE TESSIER... might make the move

Tessier's opponent in the May 22 vote, Claude Gosselin said the Megantic-Compton MP's consideration of the switch is typical of the "crisis of the conscience" that has plagued a number of Liberal members since the election. "A number of the candidates were taken by the strong personality of Pierre Trudeau that seduced the voters in the last election," he said.

Another Liberal, Kenneth Robinson of Toronto Lakeshore, is also reported to be considering a switch to the Tories, as well as Quebec Liberals, Rosaire Gendron (Kamouraska-Riviere-du-Loup) and Alexandre Cyr (Bonaventure-Iles-de-la-Madeleine). They are said to be willing to accept Senate appointments, thus opening their ridings for by-elections. They would, however, refuse to cross the Commons floor and sit as Conservatives.

Earlier this week, Richard Janelle, MP for Lotbiniere, announced he was leaving Social Credit to sit with the Tories.

Tessier is quoted by La Presse as saying there are several Liberal backbenchers "frustrated at never doing anything for years" under the former Trudeau government.

As for the traditional Conservative weakness in Quebec, Tessier said Prime Minister Clark would have no trouble finding candidates of ministerial calibre in future elections if he can once capture a majority in the Commons.

The Liberals are, however, working hard to prevent any further depletions in their ranks. Opposition House leader Allan MacEachen said, "I don't like to see our ranks depleted and we will do everything we can to keep our members. I doubt whether very many can be influenced by offers of promotion or emolument."

Meanwhile, Fabien Roy won round-two Wednesday in his tug-of-war with Prime Minister Clark for the affections of Social Credit MPs.

Strike a mistake, FP says

MONTREAL (CP) — FP Publications has conceded that the Montreal Star — which ceased publication Tuesday — made a fatal mistake when it decided to weather an eight-month strike last winter rather than meet the demands of its pressmen.

David Perks, FP's vice-president for finance, said in an interview Wednesday that "if we had settled at the beginning, it would have been The Gazette that would have folded yesterday."

While The Star decided to hold out against the pressmen's demands, its rival Gazette gambled by giving its production employees a new contract last December which made them among the highest-paid in the industry.

The Star, which criticized The Gazette for the settlement, eventually ended the strike in February by giving its workers essentially the same terms as had been won at The Gazette.

"This was a decision taken solely by William Goodson," said Perks who also is company treasurer and secretary.

Goodson resigned as Star publisher in July after what he described at the time as "a breakdown in personal relations between the corporate head office and me."

The Perrons: Why is the government victimizing our children?

Girls' marks suffer under 101

By CAROLE TREISER
LENNOXVILLE — Sophie Perron used to bring home top marks from her school in British Columbia. But now that her family has come to Quebec for a six-month stay, the 10-year-old may fail her year.

Sophie barely speaks a word of French, yet she is being forced to attend a French school.

"I feel like I'm lost in the woods, I don't understand what anyone is saying," Sophie said.

Sophie is a victim of Bill 101. The government didn't consider her personal history when they barred Sophie from an English education. The only thing that mattered was her parents' status in the province.

Simon and Nicole Perron returned to their native province for a six-month stay. They wanted their children to become familiar with Quebec and to get to know their grandparents, whom they rarely saw. Though the Perrons were aware of the language law, they thought the government would understand that the children would be returning to B.C. and would allow them to continue their education in English.

But the Perrons didn't meet certain criteria. The local and regional English school boards told Simon Perron that because both he and his wife were educated in French and because he wasn't transferred to Quebec by a company, his children would have to return to French.

Perron appealed his case to the Commission d'appel du Quebec sur la charte de la langue Francaise and was told that it was useless to put up a fight. He brought his case to Sherbrooke MNA Gerard Gosselin and has heard nothing from him since.

"I don't understand this. If a Quebecer moves out to British Columbia and he's been educated in French, he's given the prerogative to study in the language of his choice. Here, there is no choice," Perron said.

"The government is punishing a 10-year-old child," said Nicole Perron. See FAMILY, Page 3

AUTONOMY 'GROWING MOVEMENT'

REGINA (CP) — A vote against sovereignty-association in next spring's referendum won't stop Quebec's move toward greater autonomy, though it may slow it down, Jean-Francois Bertrand told the Institute of Public Administrators of Canada Wednesday.

"If you read the last 50 years of history correctly you will see that it is a growing movement," said Bertrand, a Parti Quebecois member of the Quebec National Assembly.

One of three PQ members touring Western Canada, Bertrand said there is a "strong possibility" that even if the referendum is lost, the PQ could be returned to power in the next general election.

Perhaps a negative vote would demobilize the party but there have been disheartening experiences before, such as the 1970 and 1973 election losses, he said.

"But what will be most important will be the reaction of Canada," not of Quebec, Bertrand said.

"You could somehow make Quebecers feel that as far as you're concerned, the question is settled."

However, the matter won't be settled and there is nothing to prevent the PQ from calling a second referendum if it is returned to power later.

Backyard hydro

Existing dams have potential

By MERRITT CLIFTON

Some 60 dams now standing in the Eastern Townships have almost immediate low-head generating potential. Each could produce at least 500 kilowatts with equipment comparable to that at Enosburg Falls. Yet Hydro Quebec currently operates only one low-head plant in all the Townships area, the one at Sherbrooke, producing 2,256 kilowatts. Hydro Quebec's other 14 low-head plants belong to the Saguenay and Gaspé regions. Once-renowned low-head powerhouses are idle, dismantled and decommissioned, in Magog, Dixville, and Farnham.

Rated at 1,200 horsepower, the Farnham dam in 1910 became the pride of Missisquoi County. But, built of wood, it vanished without a trace. Few today even remember it. The generating plant houses Hydro Quebec offices. For Farnham to generate again, a new plant would have to be built about a mile downstream, harnessing the cement flood-control dam in the middle of town. Possessing only a six-foot drop, that dam would produce a relatively low electrical yield, though constant all year round.

Bedford and Cowansville, on the other hand, could use existing dams to become virtually energy self-sufficient. The five Bedford dams offer a total drop of 31 feet; by comparison, Enosburg Falls turbine No. 1 produces up to 660 kilowatts in spring, 440 in mid-summer, with a 21-foot drop and less water behind it. Turbine No. 2, there, produces 150 kilowatts when operating, from an 18-foot drop. Bedford dam No. 1 drops 7 feet, No. 2, at Torrington, drops 12, and the remaining three drop, four feet apiece. Each has a year-round heavy flow.

Cowansville obtains a 32-foot drop from just two dams. No. 1, near the city water intake, plunges water 20 feet from the reservoir level. No. 2, downtown, offers a 12-foot drop that did produce some hydro-electric power early in the century. The reservoir, filled by the Yamaska River, insures not only steep drop, but also a constant high water volume. Arguably, Cowansville pos-

Complaints publicized as convicts surrender

MONTREAL (CP) — Chipper and defiant, convicts Serge Payeur and Michel Boudreau walked under guard from maximum-security Archambault Institute at sunset Wednesday after the safe release of four prison employees. The surrender ended a 57-hour hostage-taking incident and the prisoners were taken by truck to a "super-maximum" federal prison nearby.

"Bonjour mes amis (Hi friends)," shouted Boudreau to reporters congregated at the main prison gate and Payeur stopped to make grotesque faces at the cameras.

The pair agreed to free their remaining captives after officials allowed them to make public a five-page letter complaining about conditions within the walls. Their complaints ranged from solitary confinement without prior disciplinary hearings to no fresh fruit in the prison canteen.

Other prisoners, confined to their cells since Monday morning, hailed the end of the incident by banging loudly on their cell doors and yelling obscenities out the windows.

Payeur and Boudreau, serving 10-and four-year sentences respectively, ended their letter by apologizing to the hostages and their families for any inconvenience they had suffered.

They said their act was meant to draw attention to the plight of prisoners. But Laval Marchand, assistant director of Archambault, scoffed at that suggestion. "It was only after 50 hours that they decided they wanted to write a protest letter," he said. "If they wanted to protest, they could have written a letter to the newspapers."

The complex of the incident changed often after it began early Monday morning in a prison classroom. Four convicts, armed with makeshift knives and crowbars, seized six hostages, including three teachers, a clerk, a security officer and a guard. The classroom, unlike most areas of the prison, has no catwalk from which guards can survey the scene.

Union boss claims cops used clubs

MONTREAL (CP) — Clubwielding riot police whooped "like Indians" as they rounded up about 400 workers taking part in a demonstration during last year's strike at Commonwealth Plywood Ltd., a witness told the Quebec Police Commission inquiry Wednesday.

without warning as the workers were preparing to end a demonstration in front of the company's plant in nearby Ste. Therese on June 7, 1978.

He said he heard "women screaming and other people yelling with pain" as police hit them with clubs.

officer placed a lighted tear gas stick under his nose until he felt his lungs "were going to burst." He said the policeman then burned him on the left cheek with the stick.

During his testimony, L'Heureux warned that workers may have to take up arms to protect themselves against police riot squads if there is a repeat of the violence witnessed during the Commonwealth strike.

Moonies stockpiling arsenal, former member says

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Unification Church of Rev. Sun Myung Moon is stockpiling weapons and has become increasingly militant, says a former church member from the United States.

Erica Heftmann told a group of students at the University of Manitoba that she is afraid legal action against the church could provoke an incident like the mass suicide of residents at Jonestown, Guyana, "but not suicide." "If Moon said shoot, hundreds of centres around North America would conceivably be immediately mobilized into shooting," she said.

Ms. Heftmann said she is happy her parents had her kidnapped and "deprogrammed."

Otherwise, she says she would still be a Moonie, and "as good as dead."

DENIES CLAIM
An official of the

Unification Church in Toronto, who refused to be identified, said the claim that the church is stockpiling weapons is "absolutely outrageous and ridiculous."

"I'd say two words to her — prove it."

He also said it is ludicrous to compare the church with Rev. Jim Jones' sect. The Unification Church, which started in Korea, has Canadian bases in Montreal, Ottawa, and Toronto with about 1,000 members.

Magdalen salt mine furor mounts

QUEBEC (CP) — A Parti Quebecois member of the national assembly has called on the federal government to approve a $17-million grant to build a salt mine in the Magdalen Islands.

But Nova Scotia's mines minister, Ron Barkhouse, has called on Ottawa not to put any money in the Quebec project because it would lead to layoffs in Nova Scotia's salt mines in Pugwash and near Amherst.

At the same time, spokesmen for Canada's two major salt producers served notice they will fight federal involvement in the Quebec mining project.

Via Rail, Quebec rap CN apathy

MONTREAL (CP) — Via Rail Canada and the Quebec government say Canadian National Railways isn't co-operating in improving passenger train service in northern Quebec.

QLB workers mob Levesque

GRAND-MERE, Que. (CP) — Premier Rene Levesque emerged from a five-hour cabinet discussion on public sector labor negotiations Wednesday to shouts of "scab, scab, scab" from about 200 protesting union members.

Saudis to continue extra oil

JIDDA, Saudi Arabia (AP) — Saudi Arabia, the supplier of 20 per cent of U.S. oil imports, announced Wednesday it would continue turning out one million barrels a day more than its "official" production ceiling allows until the end of the year.

U.S. President Carter said the Saudi action will "relieve concern about the adequacy of oil supplies this winter," permit full restoration of oil inventories drawn down during the Iranian oil shutdown and help stabilize prices.

Medical exodus costs $120 million

CALGARY (CP) — The exodus of some 800 doctors to the United States this year will mean a loss of about $120 million to Canada, President Laurence Wilson of the Canadian Medical Association said Wednesday.

This drain of talent is a "substantial hemorrhage" in the medical profession, he told reporters after a speech to the Alberta Medical Association.

Medical schools produce about 1,800 graduates a year, he said, and it costs $150,000 to train each one.

Champlain teachers waiting for union decision

By NELSON WYATT
LENOXVILLE — The Champlain College teachers' union is "in a holding pattern" despite a call by the CEQ this week for its 85,000-strong membership to give it a strike mandate prior to the end of October to express dissatisfaction with the state of contract talks.

A spokesman for the Syndicat des Enseignants du Collège Champlain de Lennoxville (SECCL) told The Record that while he had not heard any particular date for walkouts, "we are girding ourselves for the worst and we are not looking forward to it." The spokesman continued, saying that any action taken at the local CEGEP campus would depend "on how we feel negotiations are going at that time."

"It appears that the way they are going now, it will be necessary to take some form of action."

Champlain's teachers were taking a calmer outlook on the situation than their confreres at Vanier CEGEP in Montreal. Charles Lavine, president of the Vanier College Teachers' Association branded the present negotiations as "a dud".

Negotiations are being conducted on a four-tiered priority basis. A central table of common front members composed of the FTQ, CEQ and CNTU are negotiating salary and parental rights, a joint table including the Federation of CEGEPs is handling the issues of job security and workload with other lower priority items such as departmental operations and information relegated to separate tables.

The Champlain teachers' union is composed of 73 members.

"Vivre au Quebec" is the catchy title of a successful program going on at Champlain to inform local anglophones about Quebec culture, politics and economy. Sponsored by the Committee for Anglophone Cultural Development, a branch of the Secretary of State, the program operates from cluttered offices in the basement of McGreer Hall.

The idea for the program originated at Champlain from professor Jacques Brousseau and had been given a grant for one season of operation only. That was last January. The grant was split between two seasons to enable the organizers to give more variety and continuity within their program.

The main aim is to present anglophones with a picture of what it is to be francophone, said director Philippe Raincourt amid shuffling papers and answering telephone queries. "We also have the aim of reuniting French and English."

The program, which has made quality cultural events accessible to the general public, is based on the premise that some of us may not be able to afford the high price of entertainment. Indeed, for 25 cents, anybody can buy a Saison francaise button which will admit them to all events free of charge. With twelve activities, he claimed, the cost amounts to two cents per program — certainly a good deal by anybody's standards.

Thus far the program has received tremendous support from both students and the local population. This fall the Saison francaise opened their program with singer Edith Butler performing to a capacity crowd in the Centennial Theatre. Coming events include marionette performances, an economic conference with Robert Bourassa, and a new flute and piano duo.

Raincourt stressed that the program was in no way intended to force political views on local anglophones, although some of its activities are political. Camille Laurin was invited to open the Saison francaise last year and the group has asked different Quebec parties to come and air their views.

The deadline for the program is almost running out and it is not known whether another grant will be requested. Raincourt explained that the program could not continue successfully without one because they would be forced to charge high prices for the events, thus excluding those who might not be able to afford it.

Upcoming events in the Saison francaise: On October 9 at 8:00 p.m. in the Centennial Theatre a play entitled "O travail", will be presented by the troupe from the Theatre Parminou. The Saison francaise is also hoping to have an evening of folk-singing from various groups and individuals in the area. Those interested should contact Philippe Raincourt at Champlain in McGreer 001 or by calling 563-6881, ext. 266.

Where is the CSA? This is a question that has been posed a number of times on campus recently. The Champlain Students' Association, a little shook-up by the resignation of one of their executive and the loss of their secretary, has hardly been visible of late.

They're just a little slow getting started. According to executive Francisco Couto, the council plans to have all members elected by the end of this week and hopes to have a meeting with an almost-full table within the next two weeks. From there they have two priorities to have a referendum on whether to join ANEQ, an association of university students and CEGEPs in Quebec, and to settle the issue of whether students want a strike or not.

For the moment, the slowness in getting moving has hurt CSA-funded clubs who are left with no money. The council incurred a number of debts from the previous year and cannot allocate any money to Champlain or joint Champlain-Bishop's clubs until the matter is cleared up.

And yet one more problem — "the apathy on campus is incredible," Couto stated. "The people here from outside come to have fun and to study, not to worry about student problems."

The College estimates its final enrolment figures at about 1110 students. This includes 598 new students and 512 second and third-year scholars. The official figures are not ready yet due to the SIMQ computer centre strike in Quebec City so Champlain has employed the services of the Université de Sherbrooke to tabulate the figures.

Hundred-per-cent occupancy has been recorded in the new residences on Winder Street with about 300 students taking advantage of recently completed home-away-from-home.

The local CEGEP's Continuing Education program is also booming with a 27 per cent increase in the night school courses. Over 450 students have signed up for the Fall session.

Champlain is also busily at work preparing a new brochure for summer programs that will place emphasis on the physical facilities available on the campus. Student Services Director Gerald Cutting is heading up the project, aided by Jean Eddisford, the director of residences and Continuing Education Director Daniel Fricker. Besides the physical attributes of the campus, the brochure will also pay attention to the academic side of the CEGEP, which, of course, would seem to be what the crux of the summer school idea is based on.

Bishop's seems to be recovering quite nicely from the annual homecoming last weekend, if not from the Gaiter-Redmen showdown. The College Street bridge and surrounding areas took their annual drubbing with purple and white paint and no sooner had the paint dried than crews from the provincial Transport Department swung into action to return the bridge to its regular color. Mind you, remnants of the B.U. version of painting the Sistine Chapel are still evident and if you look hard enough, you can still see the ominous message, "Kill McGill", scrawled along the guardrails.

One thing heard often at the Homecoming celebrations did seem like a good plan, though. Why not leave the bridge purple next time? It could be touted as a local tourist attraction because if New York can have the Brooklyn Bridge and the Freedom Bridge, why can't Lennoxville have the Purple Bridge? It sure beats local authorities seeing red all the time.

Domtar halts clearcutting

By NELSON WYATT
KNOWLTON — Domtar is gone from the slopes of Singer Mountain — but they'll be back.

After a two-month clear-cutting operation necessary to build a road to their future logging site, the pulp and paper company pulled out within the last week, sending its equipment to be put into use at the Townships Windsor facility. About 12 square miles of the Domtar owned forest was cut, producing about 3000 tonnes of oven dried fibre for use in the paper-making process at Windsor. Another four vanloads was sent to Cornwall, Ontario, for testing to see whether the new chipping process is applicable in the milling process.

The process calls for the chipping of hardwood timbers — usually beech, poplar and maple — with the limbs of the trees still attached, thus leaving no debris. Domtar spokesman A.J. Ross told The Record the company expects to get about 40 per cent more fibres with the new process.

The company began its operations around the beginning of August and expects to be back at work on the slopes by late May. The logging operation there is part of a 25 year-rotation project expected to yield about 10,000 tons of oven-dried fibres for fine paper production.

Reforestation is a natural process, claimed Ross, who said thousands of tiny trees will have sprouted in the spring when the company returns. He said that the company is being very careful about its treatment of the local ecology but added that the only productive way to deal with hardwood trees is through clear cutting.

Ross denied that he had received any complaints about the operation from local residents and said the only questioning of the project had come from area media.

He said that the public had not been informed about the commencement of the logging operation but added that this was common practice.

Despite Domtar's claims however, those monitoring municipal water supplies for Bromont and Cowansville and other towns located on the Yamaska River, have already noticed the effects of the extra runoff caused by the clear cutting on the mountain and area tributaries known for their clarity are full of silt and mud.

Residents are also expressing concern about the reforestation process, saying that too much topsoil has been washed off the mountain.

Complaints were also aired in a recent Record article about the length of the operation, which had chip-laden trucks passing through Knowlton on a regular basis 24 hours a day, six days a week.

Domtar's Singer Mountain property comprises about 40 square miles on the mountain.

CFCF mum on Paramount lawsuit

By NELSON WYATT
MONTREAL — CFCF TV 12 is refusing to comment on a $2,300,000 lawsuit launched against them by Paramount Farms Bakeries and three other health food manufacturers in Superior Court here yesterday. Paramount, which operates out of Sutton, is joined by Le Naturaliste, Lifestream Naturalist Foods and the Canadian Health Food Association in suing CFCF, its parent company. Multiple

Access Ltd., CFCF newsman Robert Benedetti and Technitrol Laboratories. The legal action arose out of a three-part Broadcast of the CFCF TV Pulse Probe investigative series into the health food industry last June. Reporter Benedetti checked into the practices of a number of the health food manufacturers, as well as having scientific tests done on some of the products by Technitrol. He contended that in some cases manufacturers had been misleading the public by saying that their wares were additive-free while the opposite was true.

In the case of Paramount Farms, whose president, Christian von Glasow, led in the filing of the legal action, CFCF said that an examination of Paramount's farm bread contained 1230 p.p.m. of propionic acid, a mold inhibitor. This was contrary to the local firm's stand that there were no artificial ingredients in the bread.

Paramount disputed the CFCF claim and had their own tests done on a sample of their bread. Industrial Laboratories of Canada, who did Paramount's analysis found that while the bread contained no additives, there was 800 p.p.m. of the mold inhibitor in the yeast, an occurrence considered normal.

At the time of the denial of CFCF's findings, reporter

Benedetti said, "I'm not disputing their findings. I do stand by our findings." Benedetti said that he did not know why the results differed and said that it only showed that propionic acid was contained in the CFCF sample, while it was not in the Paramount sample.

In light of this the four health food manufacturers filed a civil action yesterday for damages and defamation, terming the Pulse Probe report "incorrect, erroneous, malicious and lacking in proper research."

Paramount President von Glasow, whose company's sales has dropped off slightly since the June broadcast and its two follow-ups on July 26 and August 3, said that customers had awaited a reply to the allegations and hoped this would clarify the situation.

CFCF News Director Mike Donegan told The Record

that the matter was in the hands of the station's lawyers and that he preferred not to comment. He did say that the story had been researched for about a month and "we stand by our story."

Reporter Robert Benedetti also refused to comment at this time.

Family bemoans lost year

On the first day of school, Sophie came home crying. In the weeks that have passed, her classroom life hasn't improved much.

"The teacher drilled us on our math tables. When she asked me a question, I had the answer in English, but wasn't fast enough to give it to her in French. She skipped right over me," Sophie said.

Though Nicole spends every evening helping Sophie spell words she's never heard before, the one-time A student is now failing her tests.

"She'll probably have to repeat this year when we get back to B.C. All that Sophie will have gotten from her stay in Quebec is a feeling of helplessness and deep frustration," Nicole Perron said. Celine Perron, 15, is only a bit luckier. Her parents still spoke French at home while she was growing up. But she was never taught to read or write in French.

Now she is expected to write senior level examinations in a language she can barely spell.

"If I fail this year, what chance have I got to go to university," Celine asked. Though she attends French immersion classes designed to make her bilingual by the end of the year, she wonders how she's expected to manage in the meantime.

Besides having trouble writing her tests, Celine is coping with word problems in math, reading French texts, and understanding class lectures.

"If I can't communicate with the teachers, how can I show them what I know," she asked.

Simon Perron had thoughts of moving back to Quebec permanently one day. But the lumber grader now thinks there is more freedom in British Columbia.

"Quebec has dealt my concept of freedom and rights a terrific blow," he said.

But for the next year he has no choice but to stay on. "In British Columbia, if you've missed 25 days of English schooling you automatically fail the year. The kids already missed the deadline."

Mayor's house burgled

NORTH HATLEY (CAT) — Coaticook Quebec Police force (QPF) are investigating a recent robbery at the home of Georges Saint-Pierre.

Police believe the robbers motored across Lake Massawippi in a boat that was large enough to haul heavy furniture and antiques stolen from the house.

Saint-Pierre discovered he was robbed on Sunday, but the thieves may have broken into the house over a week ago.

Vallee heads cleanup

SHERBROOKE (CAT) — Claude Vallee was named as head of the project to clean up the St. Francois River yesterday.

Vallee will coordinate efforts between the municipalities of Sherbrooke, Magog, East Angus, Disraeli and the provincial government.

Quebec is expected to pay between 66 and 90 per cent of the costs of depolluting the river and repairing the municipal sewer systems. The cities and factories along the river are expected to make up the deficit.

Murder witnesses held

MAGOG — Two men in their late twenties are being held as material witnesses pending a Coroner's Inquest into the death of Robert Dragon, of Magog.

Dragon was stabbed by two individuals who leapt from a car in front of the Auberge Orford on September 20 at 11 p.m. A friend of Dragon's, Jacques Desouteaux was also injured. He is expected to be released from hospital in Magog this weekend.

The two men, Bruno Jacques and Dennis Thomas, are both originally from the Montreal area but have been residing in Magog recently. They, along with one other man, were detained by police on the night of the stabbing. While the third man has been released, Jacques and Thomas are being held pending a coroner's inquest, slated for this week.

Magog Sergeant-Detective Gilles Robinson is in charge of the investigation.

Maverick MNA leads attack on 'linguistic patronage'

By JAMES DUFF

Federal civil service hiring practices begun under the Trudeau Liberals are making it all but impossible for even bilingual anglophones to fill many job classifications, Pointe Claire MNA Dr. William Shaw claims.

Data already compiled by the outspoken independent member of the national assembly indicates this new form of 'linguistic patronage' is destroying civil service morale throughout Canada, Shaw adds.

He gleans much of his information from a copy of a document entitled the Official Languages Plan 1978-1981, issued by the Treasury Board to all federal government departments. The copy his researchers got their hands on was one issued to the Department of Manpower and Immigration and although he won't say so, it came as a result of Shaw's efforts on behalf of a Rawdon woman whose Unemployment Insurance payments were cut off because she couldn't take a job in French.

Since receiving the first document, Shaw's researchers admit the source of information has all but dried up, and Shaw blames this on the fact the new Tory government wants to woo the Quebec vote and is avoiding anything that could be construed as a confrontation.

The MNA believes this is wrong, and has written to all concerned, demanding the immediate suspension and investigation of the civil servant in-involved in the Rawdon incident. He and his chief researcher, Richard Walsh, hope to uncover proof that language quotas similar to that found in the Department of Manpower and Immigration exist throughout the civil service.

Shaw says statistics alone indicate a serious bias in the federal civil service. According to StatsCan, 33.2 per cent of the federal bureaucracy has French as its mother tongue, compared to 24.1 per cent of the labor force in general.

"And this was before the latest hiring program began," says Shaw. "The situation in the Post Office is incredible. And in the Secretary of State's office in Quebec, there's one Anglophone out of 51 employees."

Shaw says the director of the RCMP admitted to him that 95 per cent of all Mounties currently serving in Quebec are francophones, while 34 per cent of the Ottawa headquarters — including much of the major staff — has French as its mother tongue.

Shaw feels he's on the right track because of a letter he received from Official Languages Commissioner Max Yalden, who admitted the "pendulum has swung seriously" in the opposite direction and that there is a definite imbalance in linguistic representation in the federal civil service.

Shaw proposes to tackle the issue at all levels, from the federal to the municipal. One will be through the unions, such as the Public Service Alliance of Canada, itself split by a rift over linguistic ideology, Shaw also hopes to get involved in language within the RCMP, although even he admits the task of bringing the issue into the open will be tough because so many members of the force he's talked to have been intimidated into silence for fear of losing their jobs.

"But once we get it going on the federal level, the provincial and municipal levels will begin to react. The issue is embarrassing everybody, because it's so serious." The recent furor over the Arctic Biological Research Station's move from Ste. Anne de Bellevue to western Canada was what highlighted the real impact of the federal bilingualism program for him, Shaw says.

"That's how I got into it — throughout the station, I discovered that what the bilingualism program effectively meant was the de-Anglicization of its operations."

Shaw has long been outspoken in his attacks on the gradual erosion of English-speaking Quebecers in the Quebec civil service, to the point the government is willing to discuss the issue with various minority groups. But the situation remains unchanged.

On the municipal level, he and his office are planning legal action against the city of Montreal for its French-only parking tickets.

Lawyers say the fight over the parking tickets alone will cost Shaw and his associates more than $100,000 and they had hoped the Secretary of State's office would pick up part of the cost.

"I felt we had a real point, the same one as Forest (a franco-Manitoban who fought the province's English-only court laws) which is why I supported him."

The indications are the Secretary of State will not support Shaw, who is thinking about launching a fund-raising drive across Canada if he can't get money elsewhere.

But the real battle will be over the federal hiring practices, what Shaw calls the 'new patronage'.

According to the Official Languages Plan copy in Shaw's possession, every department is broken into five employment levels; Executive, scientific-professional, administrative, administrative-support and other. Each job description is broken into four language classifications: English essential, French essential, bilingual and either/or.

Of 69 executive-level posts in the Department of Employment and Manpower, 56 are classed as bilingual and 13 as English essential. A grand total of 12 of those jobs are held by Anglophones.

Throughout the one department, French hiring outnumbers English by as much as five to one, and Shaw says there is reason to believe the same holds true throughout the federal civil service.

But suspecting is one thing. Proving is another, and without government cooperation, neither Shaw nor anyone else will ever know.

Update Languages Act, Commissioner urges

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — The 10-year-old Official Languages Act should be updated to make it "a kind of linguistic bill of rights," says Max Yalden, federal official languages commissioner.

"I'd like to see the act amended and brought up to date," Yalden said in an interview Wednesday. He said he had made the suggestion to Prime Minister Joe Clark, but so far the government had not indicated what direction it would like the controversial bill to take.

Yalden said there was a need to make the act more precise, especially in areas that deal with language regulations in the work place.

The act "is very clear about language of service to the public, but it never has been clear about the use of the two languages in the work situation and it has caused some trouble in the courts from time to time," Yalden said.

The act should determine, he said, how widespread the use of the two official languages are in Canada's courts. And he said it is up to the provinces to implement the provisions of the Official Languages Act.

"The question that is being considered now in many provinces is whether a person being tried under the Criminal Code would have the option of being tried in whichever language he feels most at home in."

A new act should clarify the extent to which the declaration of a bilingual Canada is being supported in its courts. It's not just the records. It's the capacity for a person to be tried in his own language, Yalden said.

Yalden said he has seen Prime Minister Clark about amending the act but received no commitments from him.

Best man?

Perhaps Megantic-Compton-Stanstead MP Claude Tessier figures he'll be able to get more done as a Tory than he ever managed to undertake as a Liberal, but as far as we're concerned, Mr. Tessier owes his May victory to the fact that he was a Quebec Liberal. He was best known in Ottawa as the leader of a small but rebellious bloc of the Quebec caucus which didn't like playing backbench roles, and Mr. Tessier's proposed jump is as clear-cut a case of political opportunism as we've seen in a long time.

Chances are good he'll make it as a cabinet minister next shuffle around, if he makes the jump, a slap in the face of his electorate. If Mr. Tessier had any courage of his convictions, he would resign his seat and take his chances on winning the Progressive Conservative nomination in a fair fight, before the by-election. And we'll bet Claude Gosselin would beat him easily.

Backtalk:

An elderly caller from Richmond says The Record doesn't run enough police news. We wonder what sort of police news she would like to see. We cover deaths and serious injuries. We do not cover suicides; they're bad enough for the families and friends without the idle conjecture of others. We don't run pictures of dead people unless we think they're of overwhelming local interest or concern. We do not think accidents rate being the biggest story on page 1.

In short, Mrs. Anonymous of Richmond, we don't think you've got any case whatsoever unless you put your criticisms down on paper and sign your name to them.

Letters

Editor:

What is the true meaning of Remembrance Day? Why do we set aside a day in which to pay tribute to those who died?

Why should Remembrance be only for those who paid the supreme sacrifice? Was their service more notable than those who "served and survived"?

There is only one way to "win" in any war, the only winners "are" the survivors. Why should our dead, K.I.A., be more worthy of remembrance than "any" brave man who died for the cause he served? Why should Remembrance Day not be dedicated to "all" brave men who served their country, regardless of allegiance?

Those who died are those who paid the price of human folly in fighting wars in which men shed their blood and the blood of others in a senseless destruction in which there can be no winner.

Men have proven their worth by means of warfare for as long as man has been a civilized being, united by bonds of kinship or allegiance to an organized group.

What has ever been proven by warfare, what has ever been gained by war?

Those who are the finest and best, as soldiers in war, are those who are able to "prove" their worth by devotion to duty, intelligence in leadership and every quality which would guarantee their success in any walk of life.

Why is it necessary to sacrifice the finest and best of every generation in the senseless pursuit of "proving" once again the futility of fighting war.

Man, in the primitive stage, did gain something from warfare, and continued to derive the same benefit from the same source, until our present day. The advancement of technology has "always" followed improvements in the practice of the art of warfare.

Swords beat into plough shears and spears into pruning hooks, is as applicable today, in the advancement of technology, as in Biblical times, when swords and spears "were" the weapons of war.

Surely man has advanced to a state of civilized culture where the need of warfare is no longer applicable to ensure technological advancement.

What other excuse can reasonably be offered for the sacrifice of the finest and best of any generation in the senseless slaughter of war.

I make no claim to having ever been a soldier, instead "a camouflaged civilian", enlisted for the duration only, but not a soldier. I was not enlisted to "win" the war" but to "win the peace", which we one and all fought for, regardless of uniform, or allegiance. Few if any, who served their country, as a soldier in the ranks, fought for any other reason.

There is no glory in war. I know from first hand experience, the ugly cruelty of war. I experienced the bombing of England and the fighting on the Italian front, when our division suffered the heaviest casualties of the war.

I saw the destruction wrought on German cities, the death camps.

"The voice of experience", if you will.

Experience enough to know the folly of war, and the true meaning of remembrance.

Remembrance Day's true meaning

Washington Merry-Go-Round

by Jack Anderson and Les Whitten

With Carter, things go better for Coke

WASHINGTON — Jimmy Carter believes things go better with Coke.

As governor of Georgia, he made free use of Coca-Cola's corporate jet. Coke executives contributed to his presidential campaign and sponsored fund-raisers for him.

After he moved into the White House, the new president summarily banished Pepsi-Cola and installed Coca-Cola as the executive thirst quencher.

But Coca-Cola received more substantial benefits. With White House blessings, the company made a deal with China to bring Cokes onto the Chinese mainland. Coca-Cola got the soft-drink concessions at the 1980 Olympics in Moscow. And it ended a 50-year ban against Cokes in Portugal.

Last year, the Carter administration succeeded in blocking legislation that would have raised the tariffs on imported sugar. This held down sugar prices while most other commodities were soaring into orbit. A victory for the everyday consumer? In a modest way, yes. But it was an even bigger victory for Coca-Cola. For the company is the nation's biggest sugar consumer.

The Atlanta-based soft-drink colossus was a leader of the three-year battle against the sugar tariff increase. Coca-Cola's chief purchaser, John Mount, was quoted as threatening to "call in a few chits and have the president veto the farm bill" which contained the sugar price increase.

Mount told us he can't remember making such a statement. But there is no question that the company held the "chits," or IOUs, that had Carter in its debt.

Now we have uncovered evidence that the president intervened personally to block higher price supports for sugar. The evidence is contained in the secret Cabinet minutes for Sept. 25, 1978. The copies were distributed to Cabinet members with the request that "no copies or distribution be made and that they be kept for your eyes only."

On page 3 is this report: "The president also briefly noted his concern about the level of proposed sugar price supports and said that he would not support a bill supporting sugar at more than 15 cents per pound."

In the name of fighting inflation, the president's Wage and Price council scrupulously followed Carter's wishes on sugar pricing. The Cabinet minutes for Feb. 5, 1979, reported: "A decision paper for the president on proposed sugar price support will be ready shortly."

It emerged as another victory for Coca-Cola worth millions to its stockholders, although the White House vigorously denied any "Coke connection."

Again last month, Jimmy Carter bailed out a Coca-Cola company. And again, the White House denied any ulterior intentions. The parent company has close financial ties to the independent Coca-Cola Bottling Company of New York. This company owns the Mississippi riverboat, The Delta Queen. It was a floating white elephant, with hundreds of unsold cabins until the president gave it nationwide publicity last month by sailing down the Mississippi in the Delta Queen.

Bob Mosier, president of the Coca-Cola-owned Delta Queen Corporation, acknowledged that the operation had been losing millions of dollars every year. But after the Carter trip, the old riverboat was deluged with reservations. Coke officials expect the investment to show a profit for the first time since they acquired the steamship line in 1976.

Mosier wouldn't estimate how much the publicity was worth, except to admit it was "very significant." He conceded that, "It is pretty difficult to buy three minutes of advertising during network news on all networks," not to mention front-page pictures and headlines.

Carter's riverboat adventure brought immediate results. Several Delta Queen officials said the phones "have been ringing off the hook" since the trip. Jim Rooney, who handles the Delta Queen's advertising account, told our reporter Sally Denton the steamboat's "sales should be increased for several years to come, since the boat was exposed to people all around the world who had never heard of it before. You just can't buy that kind of publicity."

Coke spokesmen insist the trip was "entirely the president's idea." But no one would say who made the arrangements between the White House and Coca-Cola. The White House press office refused to say. Delta Queen officials were no help. And the company's Cincinnati attorney just said flatly he didn't want to discuss it.

Footnote: A number of Carter cohorts had ties with Coca-Cola before he brought them into the government. The latest is Charles Duncan, the new energy secretary, who used to be president of Coca-Cola. The president's trusted personal attorney, Charles Kirbo, also represents the company. First Lady Rosalynn Carter has her own Coke connection. Company chairman J. Paul Austin recently was in charge of fund-raising for one of Rosalynn's pet projects, Friendship Force.

Revolution rules

Editor:

Sixty year-old files are often just old files - and I've never heard of them containing predictions that have been more carefully nor more amazingly fulfilled, with the exception of Mother Shipton's Prophecy.

The files I refer to are those captured in 1919, in Dusseldorf, Germany, labelled "Communist Rules for Revolution". Today I think it's imperative that we read them together. Here they are:

Corrupt the young; get them away from religion; get them interested in sex; make them superficial; destroy their ruggedness.

Get control of all means of publicity, and thereby get people minds off their government by focusing their attention on athletics, sexy books, plays and other trivialities.

Divide the people into hostile groups by constantly harping on controversial matters of no importance. Always preach true democracy, but seize power as fast and as ruthlessly as possible.

By encouraging government extravagance, destroy its credit; produce fear of inflation, rising prices and discontent.

Form strikes in vital industries; encourage civil disorders, and foster a lenient and soft attitude on the part of the government toward these disorders.

By specious argument cause a breakdown of the old moral virtues; honesty, sobriety, continence, faith in the pledged word, ruggedness.

Cause the registration of all firearms on some pretext, with a view of confiscation of them and leaving the population helpless.

Tapped like trees

Editor:

I wrote a letter to The Record a week or so ago explaining how the drones of the white-man's society are bleeding the working man and those great Canadians who have earned retirement. If the repercussions are anything to go by, my letter really hit home. But there are other injustices besides encouraging healthy Canadians to loaf away their lives. One in particular that politicians often use to get votes from the rabble is to speak of the rich and the poor, when actually there is no such thing in our society as rich and poor, there is only clever and stupid or high IQ and low IQ. This is a fact because our political leaders see to it that no Canadian has five cents left over when they get through tapping him or her like we tap a maple-tree at sugaring time.

This is very true, especially here in Quebec province where everyone except politicians is kept on the verge of starvation while those not too feeble to walk are fleeing for their lives.

Brown, Reagan, yes, but who's heard of Peter Tittl?

WASHINGTON (CP) — Almost everyone can name Jerry Brown and Ronald Reagan as candidates for the presidency of the United States but what about Nell Fiola, Marlin Thacker and Peter Tittl?

They, too, are running for president in 1980, along with more than 100 other Americans who have filed pre-election papers with the U.S. Federal Election Commission.

Under U.S. campaign disclosure laws, presidential candidates and the political committees which support or oppose them are required to register with the commission and file reports on campaign receipts.

As a result, the commission's list of presidential hopefuls — updated almost continuously as the campaign for the November, 1980, ballot heats up — is a bizarre amalgam of established candidates, political unknowns, and people whose only hope of seeing the inside of the White House is to take a guided tour.

Among Democrats, Massachusetts Senator Edward Kennedy is in a unique position. Although not a candidate — he is to decide later this fall whether to run — he is far out in front in the polls.

In addition, at least 18 draft-Kennedy committees, unauthorized by the senator, are raising funds and trying to push him into challenging President Carter for the Democratic nomination. One recent New York fund-raiser collected $46,000 for the Kennedy draft in Florida, one of Carter's strongholds. Carter, meanwhile, seems to be campaigning in earnest in an attempt to boost his sagging popularity.

Signs aren't kidding

Ferry only link for St. Lawrence islets

ILE-AUX-GRUES, Que. (CP) — All but one of the roads on this island in the middle of the St. Lawrence River, about 60 kilometres downstream from Quebec City, are marked Cul-de-Sac — dead end.

The exception is the road through marshland to neighboring Ile-aux-Oies and it is only passable at low tide. The river is silt-laden here, and tastes salty.

"When we first came here we drove down a road and there was a sign saying 'Fin-End,'" recalls Lise Gagne-Gauvin. "I thought: This is great."

"This is the end of the earth."

Ms. Gauvin, her husband Jacques, their young son Nicolas and a large collie dog have spent three summers in the Ile-aux-Grues manoir since they bought it in 1977.

The house is of interest not only because it is old, but also because it incorporates different architectural styles. It belonged to Sir James McPherson LeMoine, an amateur historian and ornithologist who lived from 1825 to 1912.

GET TAX BREAK
Quebec's cultural affairs department is about to designate the manoir and farm buildings near it a historic site, entitling the Gouvins to a 50-per-cent reduction in property taxes as well as subsidies to offset 40 per cent of maintenance costs.

The manoir dates back to 1769, when the system of seigneurial land tenure was in force. Tenant farmers on the two islands went to the manoir once a year to turn over a portion of their produce.

Travel to the island hasn't changed much since the first white settlement there more than 300 years ago.

The ferry boat Marjolaine links it with the mainland, making from one to three round trips daily from April to November, according to a schedule determined by the tides.

In winter the only contact with the outside world is provided by light airplanes landing on the local air strip. The sparsely populated island cannot afford snow removal, so residents use snowmobiles to get around.

FERRY CROWDED
There is room for about a dozen cars on the ferry, but visitors would be well advised to bring bicycles, since local traffic usually takes up most of the limited space.

The ferry leaves from Montmagny, on the south shore of the St. Lawrence. The town is named for Charles Huault, Sieur de Montmagny, who was the second French governor of Canada and first owner of a seigneurie taking in Montmagny and the two islands.

The governor only used the islands for hunting and the first settlers came when the separate seigneurie of Ile-aux-Grues and Ile-aux-Oies was established in 1854 with the sale of the islands to Jean-Jacques Moyer.

A year later, an Iroquois raiding party killed Moyer, his wife and servants and carried his daughters away as hostages.

The islands were abandoned by the colonists and the first manoir was built only in 1725 by Paul Becard de Grandville.

RAZED BY BRITISH
All buildings on the island were destroyed in the summer of 1759 by the British army of Gen. James Wolfe in the campaign leading to the decisive battle on the Plains of Abraham.

The story is that the farmers hid in their root cellars while the soldiers rounded up their horses, herded them into the chapel and set it on fire.

The present manoir was built on the same site by Louis-Lienard de Beaujeu and sold in 1802 to Daniel McPherson, a Scottish-born Loyalist who came to Canada from Philadelphia after the American Revolution.

McPherson's daughter Julia Ann married a French-speaking Quebec City merchant named Benjamin LeMoine and they had 11 children — including James, who left the manoir at age four when his grandfather moved to Montmagny. He inherited it in 1873 from two maiden aunts.

WROTE BILINGUALLY
James LeMoine was educated in French, becoming a lawyer and a tax inspector, but was a dabbler in literature and a member of both the French-language Institut Canadien and the English Quebec Literary and Historical Society.

A biographical sketch in Rose's Cyclopaedia of Canadian Biography describes LeMoine as a "bi-linguist." Among his works are pamphlets containing historical vignettes in English and a volume in French defending Gen. Louis-Joseph de Montcalm.

His grandfather added new wings to the original manoir. LeMoine expanded it further and added a covered veranda, making the house a horror for architectural purists.

A group of architecture students commissioned to study the manoir recommended against its designation as a historic monument for this reason, but they were overruled by the cultural affairs department.

Ms. Gauvin, a French literature professor at the University of Montreal, and her husband Jacques, who teaches mathematics, bought the house because they wanted a quiet place to spend their vacations and prepare course work.

"It was just what we were looking for,"

she said. "It's a lot of work fixing it up, but it's satisfying."

ISLAND MISNAMED

Ms. Gauvin said the name Ile-aux-Grues is a misnomer. Grue in French means crane, but there are no cranes on the island.

"When the island people see a blue heron they say: 'Look, a crane.'" And there are few blue herons.

Oie means goose and there are lots of snow geese in the fall on both islands.

Ile-aux-Oies used to belong to an order of nuns, but it has been sold and now is a private hunting club.

Dairy farming is the main activity on Ile-aux-Grues and the milk is processed to make cheese on the island. A couple of small inns accommodate the trickle of tourists.

Edige Senechal, pastor of St. Antoine's parish on Ile-aux-Grues, says about 215 people live on the island year round — one-third of the population 100 years ago. There are few summer residents.

In 1888 a new church was built because the church put up in 1832 was too small. Father Senechal points with pride to the oil paintings and one-winged angels that flank the main altar.

But he is most proud of a wooden sculpture of Notre-Dame-de-la-Garde, patron of sailors, that was dedicated last June in a ceremony attended by local members of the charismatic renewal movement.

"We've had five miracles already," he said, gesturing toward the statue.

Then, turning to a reporter, the jovial prelate said: "Don't write that."

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumers should not be faced with immediate rapid increases in domestic oil prices aimed at bringing them into line with world levels, Marc Lalonde, chairman of the Liberal energy caucus, said Tuesday.

Lalonde told a news conference following a meeting of his party's energy committee that the Liberal Opposition will fight any Progressive Conservative government plan to speed domestic oil price increases.

The former cabinet minister also reiterated his party's pledge to try to block government efforts to dismantle Petro-Canada, the state oil company.

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canada Council will use its fresh injection of $2 million to help theatres for young audiences and to finance large performing arts organizations such as ballet and orchestras, council chairman Mavor Moore said Tuesday.

He said the grant announced last week by State Secretary David MacDonald also will be used to finance purchases by the Canada Council's art bank and to match grants for public art gallery acquisitions.

Moore told a news conference after a council meeting that disposition of the money will be made in consultation with provincial government arts councils, other funding agencies and the council's "clientel" — which are most of the visual, performing and others arts organizations in Canada.

OTTAWA (CP) — Former Liberal MP Ralph Stewart, who jumped to the Progressive Conservative party last March, has been appointed consul-general in Atlanta, Ga.

Stewart, 49, said Tuesday he will leave for his new job in two weeks. He has been a special adviser to Prime Minister Clark since June 15.

A Liberal MP for 11 years, Stewart left the party last March, three weeks before the general election was called, saying he was tired of the socialist tendencies of Pierre Trudeau's government.

He lost the Conservative nomination in his Northern Ontario riding of Cochrane to Carole Kossowan, a university student who finished a distant third in the May 22 election.

OTTAWA (CP) — Demand for new housing will peak in 1981 and decline for the rest of the decade, say latest forecasts from the Canada Mortgage and Housing Corp.

A computerized model developed by the federal agency shows peak demand of 237,300 units of new housing in 1981 and a drop to 165,700 units in 1989.

CMHC economist Anh Trinh says the forecasts reflect the final phase of the post-war baby boom. Canadians born soon after the Second World War generally moved to rent apartments in the 1960s and moved to homes of their own in the 1970s.

Children of the post-war babies, part of a mini-boom that began about five years ago, won't hit the housing market until late in the century.

CMHC predicts that two of every three homes will be 21 years old or older by the year 2000. Older housing represented about 54 per cent of the total in 1977.

OTTAWA (CP) — Jake Warren, former ambassador to the U.S. who spent the last two years co-ordinating Canada's participation in the world trade talks in Geneva, was appointed vice-chairman of the Bank of Montreal on Tuesday.

Warren, 58, a career diplomat, will assume his position Nov. 1. He will be responsible primarily for the bank's growing international network.

Warren, on his way to a Toronto speaking engagement when his appointment was made public, issued a statement expressing his anticipation for his new job.

"Banking is one of the strong and efficient sectors of the Canadian economy and I count myself fortunate to have the opportunity, after over 38 years of public service, to work in such an important and growing field of Canadian business activity," he said.

OTTAWA (CP) — National Energy Board began hearings Tuesday into two competing applications to construct a natural gas pipeline to the Maritime provinces.

The federal regulatory agency is expected to gather evidence here for some time before holding meetings in Quebec, Halifax and Fredericton, N.B. No dates have been set for those meetings.

Board chairman Jack Stabback spent much of the opening day's session listening to introductory remarks from intervenors representing a number of provincial governments and natural gas suppliers.

TransCanada PipeLines Ltd. is seeking approval to extend its pipeline to Quebec from Montreal by Nov. 1, 1980, and to move liquified natural gas to Sept Iles, Que., by Nov. 1, 1982.

OTTAWA (CP) — Strikes and lockouts in June, 1979, involving 94,336 workers cost Canadian industry 733,780 man-days, the labor department said Tuesday.

A man-day is the work capacity of one employee in one work shift.

Fifteen of June's 267 shutdowns were in federal jurisdictions. Of the 31 shutdowns involving more than 500 workers, 16 were in manufacturing, five in mining, four in public administration, three in construction, two in transportation and utilities and one in trade. These accounted for 71 per cent of the time lost in June.

There were 3,877,020 mandays lost in the first half of 1979 with 1,267,930 of them due to the strike at Inco Metals Co. in Sudbury, Ont., which ended June 4. Time lost in the first half of 1978 was 2,712,610 mandays.

OTTAWA (CP) — Quebec Liberal MP Marc Lalonde said Tuesday it was indecent of Richard Janelle to desert the Social Credit party and join the Progressive Conservatives before Parliament had its first sitting.

Asked about the defection of the Quebec MP to the government benches, announced Sunday by Prime Minister Clark, Lalonde said the move was "not respectful of the basic democratic rules."

Lalonde said the Conservatives were trying to gain a parliamentary majority by approaching MPs from the opposition "and you can't blame them for that."

But the voters had not given the Clark government a majority, he said.

With Janelle moving over, standing in the 282-seat Commons is Conservatives 136, Liberals 113, New Democrats 26, Social Credit five and vacant two.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Tetracyclines can help

DEAR DR. LAMB - I'm a 50-year-old male and have sugar diabetes. About three years ago I started getting a lot of pimples on my face and the doctor had me on insulin. I asked him if it was causing the pimples and he said no. He put me on some other tablets but they didn't help much so I discontinued them and just stayed on my insulin for diabetes.

Later I broke my leg and the doctor treating my leg put me on tetracycline as an antibiotic to help my bone heal. After taking tetracycline for a while, my face cleared. I have been taking them several months, but if I quit taking them my face starts to sprout pimples again. My question is, does tetracycline have any effects on my health if I continue to take them daily? I only take one a day.

DEAR READER - You have reinvented the wheel. It's well known that tetracyclines are very helpful in treating acne. There are little tiny bacteria that live in the pores of the skin and they break down the fatty materials formed by the oil glands in your skin. It's these broken-down fatty products that are chemically irritating and they cause the red pustules you're talking about.

Your case also points out that you don't have to be a teen-ager to have acne. Many people have acne throughout their life and, of course, it's easier for a diabetic to develop skin problems and infections than it is for a nondiabetic.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 8-2, Acne Can Be Treated, so that you'll have a full understanding of the problem. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents in check or coin with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station New York, NY 10019.

As The Health Letter I'm sending you explains, you can take tetracycline on a continuous basis. Usually they're taken in larger doses at first and then the amount is decreased for a maintenance level to control acne. One or two tablets a day is the usual maintenance amount.

Unless you develop any symptoms from taking them there's no reason why you shouldn't continue them, particularly if they protect you against acne.

It usually takes three to eight weeks for tetracyclines to have any noticeable effect on acne. They won't cure the red pustules that are already there. That's caused by irritating chemicals that have already been formed. The tetracyclines will help prevent the breakdown of the oily sebum into irritating products. That helps prevent the development of more red pustules.

Skin peeling agents prescribed by your doctor are also helpful in some cases when needed. Then you can help cut down on the oily sebum accumulation by soaking and washing the areas involved two or three times a day with rather warm water. Wiping the area clean with alcohol sponges also helps. Alcohol will mix with the oily waxy material and help dissolve it whereas water will

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am low in potassium salt but I don't take any diuretics at all. What would cause this deficiency? Would a regular daily vitamin tablet with minerals be sufficient to bring my potassium up to normal? What are some of the foods that have potassium in them?

DEAR READER - It's important to know why you are low on potassium. If you're not taking a diuretic and have not been fasting to lose weight, it would be relatively uncommon. In any case, you'll not get very much potassium in a regular daily vitamin pill with minerals. There may be some potassium but not enough for your purpose.

You'd be far better off to have two or three glasses of orange juice a day or eat several oranges. You could also use bananas or other fresh fruits and fruit juices. The fruits and fruit juices are the best dietary source of potassium. Usually three glasses of orange juice a day provides as much potassium as a doctor would prescribe in potassium pills to raise a person's potassium level.

Phaneuf-Gilmartin wedding

BEEBE - A pretty early Autumn wedding took place on Sept. 1, 1979, with the weather being perfect for the occasion, when Rev. Robert Rennie officiated at a double ceremony at 4 p.m. in Wesley United Church to unite Nancy Ann Phaneuf, of Ottawa, Ont., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Phaneuf of Beebe in marriage to Michael Gilmartin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bud Gilmartin, all of Ottawa, Ont. former border area residents. Miss Viola Moranville presided at the organ, and the guest pews were marked with white satin bows.

The bride who was escorted to the altar on the arm of her father looked lovely in a white floor-length gown, long sleeves, the train ending in Cathedral length, being fastened at the shoulders, her net veil was held by a crown of simulated pearls and fastened to her hair with combs. Her jewellery was a gold chain necklace, a gift of the groom, and a single strand of pearls which were her paternal grandmother's. She carried a nosegay of red roses, lily of the valley and greenery, the holder being lace covered, with ruffle of lace around top. White satin streamers completed the bouquet. The wedding band was a gift of the groom's father, Mr. Gilmartin.

Miss Judy Gilmartin, Westfield, Vt., sister of the groom, as maid of honor, was attired in a rust colored polyester gown having a square underbust with lace trim around underbust and at bottom of the bell-shaped sleeves. She carried a nosegay of variegated yellow and orange flowers having tinted tips to match gown. Junior bridesmaids, sisters of the bride, were Cathy Phaneuf, in a gown of yellow with long sleeves, while Patricia Phaneuf was in a green gown similar to her sister's. They carried bouquets of yellow roses, white daisies and greenery with white ribbon streamers.

Flower girl, Sybil Phaneuf, also the bride's sister, was in a short-sleeved pink gown, and carried a basket of mixed flowers. Dwayne Phaneuf, brother of the bride carried the rings on a heart shaped satin pillow.

Douglass Phaneuf, brother of the bride, was best man, while the ushers were Alex Phaneuf, brother of the bride and Steve Farrar, a close friend of the groom of Westfield, Vt.

Mrs. Phaneuf, mother of the bride chose a green figured long gown, having long sleeves, and wore a yellow rose corsage.

Mother of the groom, Mrs. Gilmartin, was attired in a rosewood colored two-piece gown of polyester knit, the dress having a fitted bodice with spaghetti straps, topped with a silver jacket. A ruffle encircled the neck, down front and around back. Her corsage was yellow roses and greenery.

Mrs. Arnold Fountain, maternal grandmother of the bride wore a short-sleeved pink gown, having a white carnation corsage. Mrs. Evelyn Gilmartin, Rock Island, paternal grandmother of the groom, chose a turquoise gown with long nylon sleeves, her corsage being pink roses.

All the gentlemen in the bridal party wore white carnation boutonnières. The floral arrangements were all made by the mother of the groom, Mrs. Gilmartin.

The bride threw a single rose from her bouquet. This was caught by Beverly Woods. She divided the bouquet, placing part on the grave of her paternal grandmother in Woodside Cemetery, Beebe, and the grave of the groom's sister, Nancy in Crystal Lake Cemetery, Stanstead.

The reception was held in the Beebe Town Hall where many relatives and friends assembled, the reception line, consisting of the complete bridal party, was held on entering the hall.

A buffet lunch was served, including a special cake, posted, iced in white with mauve trim, topped with a bride and groom. The cake was made by Joyce Allen of Newport, Vt. and was a gift to the newly-weds from an aunt in Ontario. Following refreshments, dancing was enjoyed, with music by the Hazzard Hollow Boys, a newly formed local band.

Mr. and Mrs. Ned Phaneuf, brother and sister-in-law of the bride, were in charge of the guest book, which was also a gift.

The paternal grandfather of the bride, Mr. Maurice Phaneuf, was unable to attend, but the complete bridal party and some friends called on him after the ceremony, when pictures were taken.

The happy couple left on a short trip, returning to the home of the bride's parents to visit for a short time before leaving for Ottawa to take up residence.

The bride travelled in a pale blue sheer polyester dress with pale blue lining, round neckline, the complete dress was tiny pleats. She wore a corsage of pink roses. Guests attended from points in Vermont, Ontario and Quebec, several being local area residents.

Rehearsal Party

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Phaneuf entertained the bridal party following the rehearsal at Wesley United Church on August 31, for the Gilmartin-Phaneuf wedding taking place on Sept. 1.

Gifts were presented, the groom gave his bride a gold chain necklace, the bride presented the groom with an engraved identification bracelet, bride's gifts to her attendants were a rose pendant on a sterling silver chain, which they wore at the wedding, and the groom's gift to his attendants were leather bill folds.

Refreshments were served and a pleasant evening spent.

Ann Landers says

Not enough space to solve this problem

Dear Ann Landers: It is both amusing and annoying to see how often you suggest "counseling" or "therapy" or advise a reader to "see your clergyman." It's a simple way to pass the buck when you don't know what else to say - a very transparent dodge, to say the least.

Why do you suppose people write to you? It's YOUR counseling they want, Ann. Another thing - when you give such advice, do you honestly believe these people know where to go to get "counseling"? Psychiatrists in the big cities charge as much as $100 an hour. Not many people can afford such "help." I never expect to see this letter in the paper but I feel better for having gotten it off my chest. - Sarasota, Fla.

Dear Sara: A great many people who write to Ann Landers need a lot more help than I can give them. A life that has been loused up for 15 years cannot be straightened out in three inches of newspaper space. Moreover, I am not a therapist. These people need to talk to someone - on a continuing basis. Often family counseling is in order. When I say, "Get professional help," I mean just that.

As to where to get "counseling" - anyone who has read this column for a month or more knows that I constantly repeat (at the risk of boring my readers to death) ... "Look in your phone book under Mental Health Clinic" - or call Family Service, the Salvation Army, The YMCA and Recovery, Inc. Call Alcoholics Anonymous - phone Gamblers Anonymous. Ask your physician to make an appointment with a competent therapist. Call the nearest medical or dental school. Write to the American Psychiatric Association or the American Psychological Association.

I make no apologies for the advice I give. But I know my limitations. Many readers have told me that the best advice I ever gave was ... "Get counseling."

Dear Ann Landers: This is a father writing, not a mother. I need advice on what to do about our 11-year-old son. Last night I saw him take a dollar out of my wallet which was on the dresser. He didn't know I was in the doorway. He put the money in his sock. I asked him twice to give it back. He insisted he didn't have it. When I told him to look in his sock he confessed. Later that night he cut himself with a letter opener to get pity.

The boy receives an allowance and doesn't need to steal. I think he has done this sort of thing before. What should I do? - No City Please

Dear N.C.P.: Children who steal from parents are usually seeking a substitute for love. The boy cut himself not to "get pity" but to punish himself. I urge you to get counseling so you can better understand your child's emotional needs.

Lamothe Family reunion held

MANSONVILLE (BN) — A reunion of the Lamothe Family was held on Saturday, August 25, with approximately 65 members present, at the Ruiter Brook Ski-doo Club.

Hosting the day's activities were Mr. and Mrs. Leon Lamothe and his married daughters; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Newell and family, and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Harvison and family, all of Montreal, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Norway and family, Barre, Vt., Mr. and Mrs. Davison Wing and family, Cowansville, and Mr. and Mrs. David Oliver, Mansonville. Guests included Robert Lamothe and family, Frelighsburg, Aline Lamothe and Mr. and Mrs. Lucien Gomeau and family, all of Farnham, Mr. and Mrs. Jean-Guy Drouin and family, Brossard, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Drouin, Magog, Mrs. Flora Drouin and Mr. and Mrs. Rene Robin, all of Mansonville.

There were four generations represented among the Lamothes at the 1979 reunion and a good time was enjoyed by all. Games were played, prizes won and birthdays and wedding anniversaries celebrated. Jean-Guy Drouin acted as Master of Ceremonies and Arthur Drouin became official photographer, capturing pictures of the grand winners as they crossed the finish line while running a three-legged race. A lawn dart tournament was won by Lucie Drouin, Montreal and Jeffrey Norway, Barre, Vt. The horseshoe tournament was won by Don Harvison and Pierre Gobeil, Pierrefonds. The grand winners were Don and Pierre.

A lovely banner and bows decorated the head table. Punch was served. A large watermelon, filled with melon, honeydew balls and grapes was an attraction especially enjoyed by the children. The table was centered by three large cakes which were made by Mrs. Marjorie Newell. The first cake circle was in honour of Bertie and Neil Blackie who will be leaving on Sept. 26 for two years in South Africa. The second circle became an all inclusive birthday cake.

The third circle was a special surprise. As it was brought out and placed with the other two circles it was announced that it was to help celebrate with congratulations the 25th Wedding Anniversaries of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Harvison and Mr. and Mrs. Jean-Guy Drouin. This beautiful cake was decorated with 25th Wedding Anniversary ornaments and two bells framed a picture of each couple in the center of the cake.

There was music which was enjoyed by all. A $2,000.00 door prize was won by Master Peter Ethier of Brossard. It was a pen filled with $2,000.00 worth of torn money. Also other prizes for wanting to win the most, whether it be by cheating or by stealing or by any other means were won by Elaine Harvison and Ronnie Ethier. A reunion of equal fun and enjoyment has already been planned for the Lamothe Family for next year.

North-South believed they were taking a save in five diamonds. Actually, four spades could be defeated by two tricks if the defense was sufficiently skillful. Nevertheless, the "phantom" sacrifice proved to be quite profitable.

After West cashed two spade tricks, he switched to a heart which declarer won in dummy. Declarer then made short work of the hand.

He ruffed a club, preserving his valuable two of diamonds. He played the jack of diamonds to the king and ruffed another club. He played the eight of diamonds to the nine and ruffed still another club.

Declarer next led a heart to the ace and ruffed a fourth club, dropping both the ace and king. Finally, declarer led his well-preserved two of diamonds to dummy's three and cashed the queen of clubs, discarding his heart loser.

Declarer was lucky that clubs divided 4-4, but he used his skill to go with luck.

(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

The bidding was fast and furious. Nobody knew whose hand it was. Because of South's jump to four diamonds (presumably showing an eight-card suit with little on the outside), everyone was guessing at the four and five level.

Nobody admits it, but Expos' chances are slim

PITTSBURGH (CP) — Pittsburgh Pirates secured their hold on first, but no one was giving Montreal Expos the last rites.

"If the Expos were going to die, they'd have died a month ago," said Phil Garner, who matched Tim Lincecum with three runs-batted-in as Pittsburgh battered Montreal 10-1 Wednesday night to move 1½ games up in the National League East.

"They're alive as long as they've got a mathematical chance," said Bruce Kison, who tossed a complete-game seven-inning shutout.

"You don't kill off a team like that," manager Chuck Tanner said after the Pirates finished their season series with the Expos with an 11-7 record.

The Pirates' magic number is four — any combination of Pirate wins and Expos losses totalling four gives Pittsburgh the title.

"It's not over with yet, but they are in a heck of a position," said Montreal manager Dick Williams. "Unhappily, now we have to rely on the others (teams). As long as there's life, there's hope."

PIRATES 10, EXPOS 1

A glum Andre Dawson of the Expos had unbridled praise for Pittsburgh.

"The Pirates were superb during this series against us," said the centre fielder. "Nothing could stop them."

"In September they beat us five out of six games. Let's say they beat us when it really counted. . . . It's difficult to accept. We did everything to beat them, but it was unsuccessful."

The Pirates meet St. Louis Cardinals today in a makeup game. They end the season with three weekend games here with Chicago Cubs.

Montreal plays a makeup doubleheader today in Atlanta against the Braves, then returns home for three weekend games with Philadelphia Phillies.

Montreal came here Monday with a half-game lead. The reversal means Pittsburgh can clinch the title by winning its final four games, no matter how the Expos fare.

"We're not going to put our tails between our legs," said left fielder Warren Cromartie. "Anything can happen. Tomorrow is a new day."

In the Pittsburgh locker room after the game, the winners cranked up the volume on their powerful stereo. Some danced to a disco tune that goes "Get up and do your thing," which summed up the 14-hit Pirate attack.

In the opening inning, Foli singled home the first Pirate run off Montreal starter Steve Rogers. Then Garner rapped a two-run homer in the fourth after a single by Bill Madlock.

Garner got a standing ovation for his belt from a near-silent crowd.

"I don't get many standing ovations; I was excited," said Garner.

Madlock finished with two doubles and a single in three times at bat. He also walked twice and scored three runs.

"I've hit .300 before, I've won batting titles," said Madlock. "But the only thing that is important to me now is to do what it takes to get into the playoff."

Rally boosts Reds

CINCINNATI (AP) — Dave Collins' RBI single capped a two-run rally in the eighth inning to boost Cincinnati Reds to a 4-3 victory over San Diego Padres in a National League baseball game Wednesday night.

Collins' single came after doubles by Ray Knight and Heity Cruz had tied the game off loser Randy Jones, 11-12.

Tom Seaver, 16-6, pitched eight innings for the victory, before leaving the game for a pinch-hitter. Tom Hume finished for Cincinnati to earn his 17th save.

Braves beat Astros

ATLANTA (AP) — Knuckleballer Phil Niekro drove in four runs and earned his 20th victory as Atlanta Braves dealt another blow to the Astros' pennant hopes, defeating Houston in a 9-4 victory Wednesday night.

The Astros thus dropped 2½ games behind Cincinnati in the National League West. The Reds defeated San Diego Padres 4-3 Wednesday night and reduced their magic number for clinching the title to two.

NHL action: Leafs loaf as Habs win 5-3

Rookie goaltender Vincent Tremblay of Toronto Maple Leafs underwent a baptism of fire Wednesday night at the hands of Montreal Canadiens.

The defending Stanley Cup champions, who were outplayed and trailed 3-0 midway through the game when Tremblay came in to replace Mike Palmateer, pounced on the young goalie seconds later for their first goal and went on to defeat the Maple Leafs 5-3 in a National Hockey League exhibition game.

Borje Salming's slapshot from the blueline had staked the Leafs to a 1-0 lead in the first period and Rocky Saganuok added two goals early in the second period to make it 3-0.

But 17 seconds after Tremblay entered the game, Canadiens' Rick Meagher scored to finish off a precise three-way passing play from Mark Napier and Brian Engblom.

Pierre Mondou brought Montreal to within one goal on a tip early in the third period, and Bob Gainey tied it at 3-3 with a deflection high into the Toronto net.

EMPTY-NET GOAL

Gainey scored his second goal of the game with two minutes to go, and with the Leaf goalie off for an extra attacker, Mario Tremblay flipped home a shot from centre ice for the Canadiens' fifth goal.

Denis Herron, acquired from Pittsburgh Penguins to fill the void created by Ken Dryden's retirement, played the first two periods for Montreal before giving way to Bunny Larocque.

Bill Flett took advantage of sloppy Vancouver clearing and scored early in the final period to give Edmonton Oilers a 4-4 tie with the Canucks in a loosely-played contest.

High school action

Galt seniors blank BCS 28-0

By PAT TRACY
LENOXVILLE — Two touchdowns by Robin Moore paced the Alexander Galt Senior football team as they trounced Bishop's College School 28-0 yesterday at Galt. The game was characterized by some hard tackling by both teams and a number of fumbles and interceptions.

Moore's first touchdown came as BCS attempted to return a kickoff and fumbled near their own end zone. It was recovered, leaving Galt with a first down at the BCS five-yard line. Moore ran it in and John Coulter's convert was good.

For a moment it seemed that Galt would not walk away with the game as BCS's Mike Jarrett's long touchdown run was nullified by a clipping penalty. Although the BCS defense was strong, the offensive plays seemed to end in fumbles and interceptions favoring Galt.

The second Galt TD came after Willie Home carried the ball 35 yards on a cross-back pass to set up a screen play, taking Galt to the BCS four. From there, Moore ran in his second of the day and Coulter's convert gave Galt a 14-0 edge. Moore was close to the line once again in the fourth quarter as he carried the ball to the two. Coulter, on a quarterback sneak, carried the ball in for the third Galt TD of the day.

Although the convert on the play was blocked, BCS conceded a single point on the ensuing kickoff.

John Martin was responsible for the fourth and final touchdown of the game as a BCS penalty brought the ball to their one yard line. Coulter's convert brought the final score of the contest to 28-0 for the Pipers.

Galt Juniors Lose

In other area high school action, the Alexander Galt junior football team was soundly defeated by Quebec High School 22-0 at AGRHS yesterday. The results of the soccer games played at Galt were not known at press time.

Richmond Regional's boys' and girls' soccer teams had a good week as the girls' teams tied two games and won one on Tuesday, while the boys tied one and won two yesterday. In girls' Senior soccer, Richmond tied BCS 1-1 with the Richmond goal coming from Diana Spencer while Sarah Stanley scored for BCS. Robyn Badger had two goals for BCS and Linda Abran and S. Wilkin each had one as the junior teams fought for a 2-2 tie. The girls' bantam team defeated BCS 2-0 on goals by S. Coote and S. Evans.

In boys' soccer, Richmond was victorious as a goal by Caught in the act

We won't mention any names, but these things do happen... once in a while, errant hands will slip into facemasks of others. Usually, it's just a case of over-zealous football defense. Above, we caught both Galt and BCS offenders during yesterday's ETIAC grid encounter.

Mark Patterson gave them the edge over Stanstead seniors. The junior Richmond and Stanstead teams tied one each with the RRHS goal coming from Tony Dunkerley. Jay Lambert had the point for the visitors. Kenny Samson scored the lone Richmond point as the Bantams defeated Stanstead 1-0.

At Massey Vanier, the senior girls' field hockey team had a good day defeating Chambly County 2-0 on points from Josee Courtemanche and Rhoda Pearson. The juniors lost to Chambly 4-0.

BCS's junior football team walked over Stanstead yesterday afternoon 49-0 at BCS. Jean Pascal and Tom Stafford were among the scorers. Meanwhile, boys' soccer at BCS did well, defeating Centennial Academy of Montreal 6-0 in the senior game and 4-2 in the junior.

A cross country meet also took place at Massey Vanier yesterday afternoon, but the results were not known at presstime.

 sses the most hydro-electric potential of any Townships community.
 Brigham's single dam, with a 10-foot drop and high water volume, could supply electricity to all the town proper and perhaps to most of the municipality, including Farnham Center, Brookport, and Ferndon. Tiny Stanbridge East enjoys only a six-foot drop, but from approximately 1894-1895, when Matthew Cornell installed what may have been the first dynamo in the southwestern Townships, until circa 1920, the Stanbridge Light and Power Company did keep the town energy self-sufficient. The dynamo ran from dawn until midnight, according to the 1961 Missisquoi Historical Society report. It occasionally operated longer for special events.
 While the dynamo itself ceased humming nearly 60 years ago, Cornell's powerhouse still stands. It was converted into a general store, then into a restaurant, and finally into a cottage. Eventually it was moved from beside the bridge, adjacent to the Cornell Mill, to the present site behind the IGA supermarket.
 Turn-of-the-century power requirements were of course slight compared to today's. According to Donald Shover, the Enosburg Falls Light and Electric Company began with a dynamo in the Marsch grist-mill that produced only 50 kilowatts, circa 1909. That was enough to light the town.

 The great flood of 1927 knocked the grist-mill and dynamo right out of existence, even severely damaging the concrete pier they stood upon. An old Hall-Scott marine engine powered by gasoline temporarily replaced water power, while the community built a 150-kilowatt powerhouse still in use.
 As of 1928, that capacity was still sufficient. The powerhouse features a Francis-type turbine Shover likens to a squirrel-cage, with a fixed-position rotor not that different from the original dynamo's water-wheel. When a rotor-arm broke several years ago, it cost $14,000 to replace, more than the whole turbine cost originally.
 Today, Enosburg Falls would have to produce 2,250 kilowatts at peak periods each day to remain wholly self-sufficient. Plans are on the drawing-board that would let it do just that, but peak capacity is presently 750 kilowatts. That was enough in 1944, when the city ordered the 600-kilowatt Smith-Kaplan turbine in daily service now. This turbine features a variable-pitch propeller comparable to an airplane's, that allows the generating plant to make maximum use of water flowing at different speeds and angles over the course of each year. It also fouls less often on bits of driftwood and garbage that slip through the protective filters.

 Hydroelectric technology fortunately has advanced enough since 1944 that new installations could keep pace with present electrical demand. The Pelton impulse turbine claims an efficiency rating of up to 94 per cent, compared with ratings of about 40 per cent for waterwheels. On the other hand, it requires a relatively high head. More practical for low-head generating are the Banki-Mitchell and Sampson turbine designs, either of which can accommodate heads of only three feet efficiently. In Europe and the Soviet Union, bulb-type turbines reportedly both increase output and reduce installation costs.
 River by river, the breakdown of dams available to low-head turbine generating in the Townships shows three along the Richelieu, one formerly used, six along the Pike, up to 10 on the Yamaska, one on the Sutton River; one on the Missisquoi; five on the Magog, one in recent use; two on the Tomfofia; three on the Ulverton; one on the Renne; 12 on the Black River; five on the St. Francis, one in recent use; one on Stacy Brook; two on the Ascot; one on the Massawippi; two on the Coaticook; one on the Earton; four on the Watopeka; one on the Danville; and one on the Nicolet.

...generate your own hydroelectric power

By BERNARD EPPS

To build a hydroelectric plant in your own stream is neither difficult nor costly and quite small volumes of water can produce meaningful amounts of electricity. Fitz Water Wheel Company, for example, built a little four-inch impulse wheel during the Second World War that could be run off an ordinary water faucet and produce enough electricity to operate a radio transmitter.
 Turbine wheels and generators of all sorts and sizes are commercially available to produce either alternating or direct current. If your power is to be used at a considerable distance from the generator, then A.C. is the only answer because that alone can produce voltages high enough to overcome the resistance of the wires.
 Alternating current, however, requires synchronization and regulation that becomes complicated and expensive. Direct current is far simpler and batteries can store power generated overnight for peak loads during the day.

The first step is to select the site which produces the most fall in the shortest distance and where the banks are solid enough to support a dam. Figure A gives four examples of such dam-sites. Where water flow is sufficient, the turbine may be mounted directly at the dam, as is shown in the first example, and only the artificial height of the water held behind it is used.
 In all other examples, water is carried through a penstock to the turbine which is mounted far enough below the dam to take advantage of the natural height of the land as well. Penstocks, of course, must be as straight as possible and of large enough diameter to offer the least resistance to the water passing through.
 The next step is to estimate the potential of the site as a source of hydroelectric power. This potential is a product of flow and the height of the fall or 'head'.

Select a length of the stream reasonably straight and free of rocks and rapids and mark off 100 feet. Stretch a string from bank to bank at the start and finish of this course and then time how long it takes a floating object to travel from one string to the other.
 Our float in Figure B is made from a bottle ballasted with sand or gravel in the bottom just to keep it upright and topped by a fleur-de-lis just for fun. Time the course several times and take an average.
 Let's say our fleur-de-lis ran the course in 55 seconds. Divide that into 100 and we will have feet-per-second.

But streams flow faster in the middle than near the banks. A more accurate velocity will be had if we take this into consideration and multiply our figure by .83. Multiply the result by 60 to convert feet-per-second into feet-per-minute and we have:
 $100 / 55 \times .83 \times 60$ equals 90 ft. per minute.

VOLUME
 Figure C offers a cheap and easy way of measuring the volume of water in a stream. Select a site near the center of the 100-foot course where there are no rocks or shoals and stretch a third string from bank to bank. Measure the width of the water and divide it into ten (or more) equal parts. Mark these divisions on the string with twist-ties or colored wool.
 Next, with a pole or yardstick, measure the depth of water in feet at each marker. Add all ten figures and then divide by ten to give an average. Multiply this average depth in feet by the width in feet and produce a cross-sectional area in square feet.
 The average depth of our hypothetical stream in Figure C is 1.2 feet. Our width, W, is 3.5 feet and our area is then 4.2 square feet.

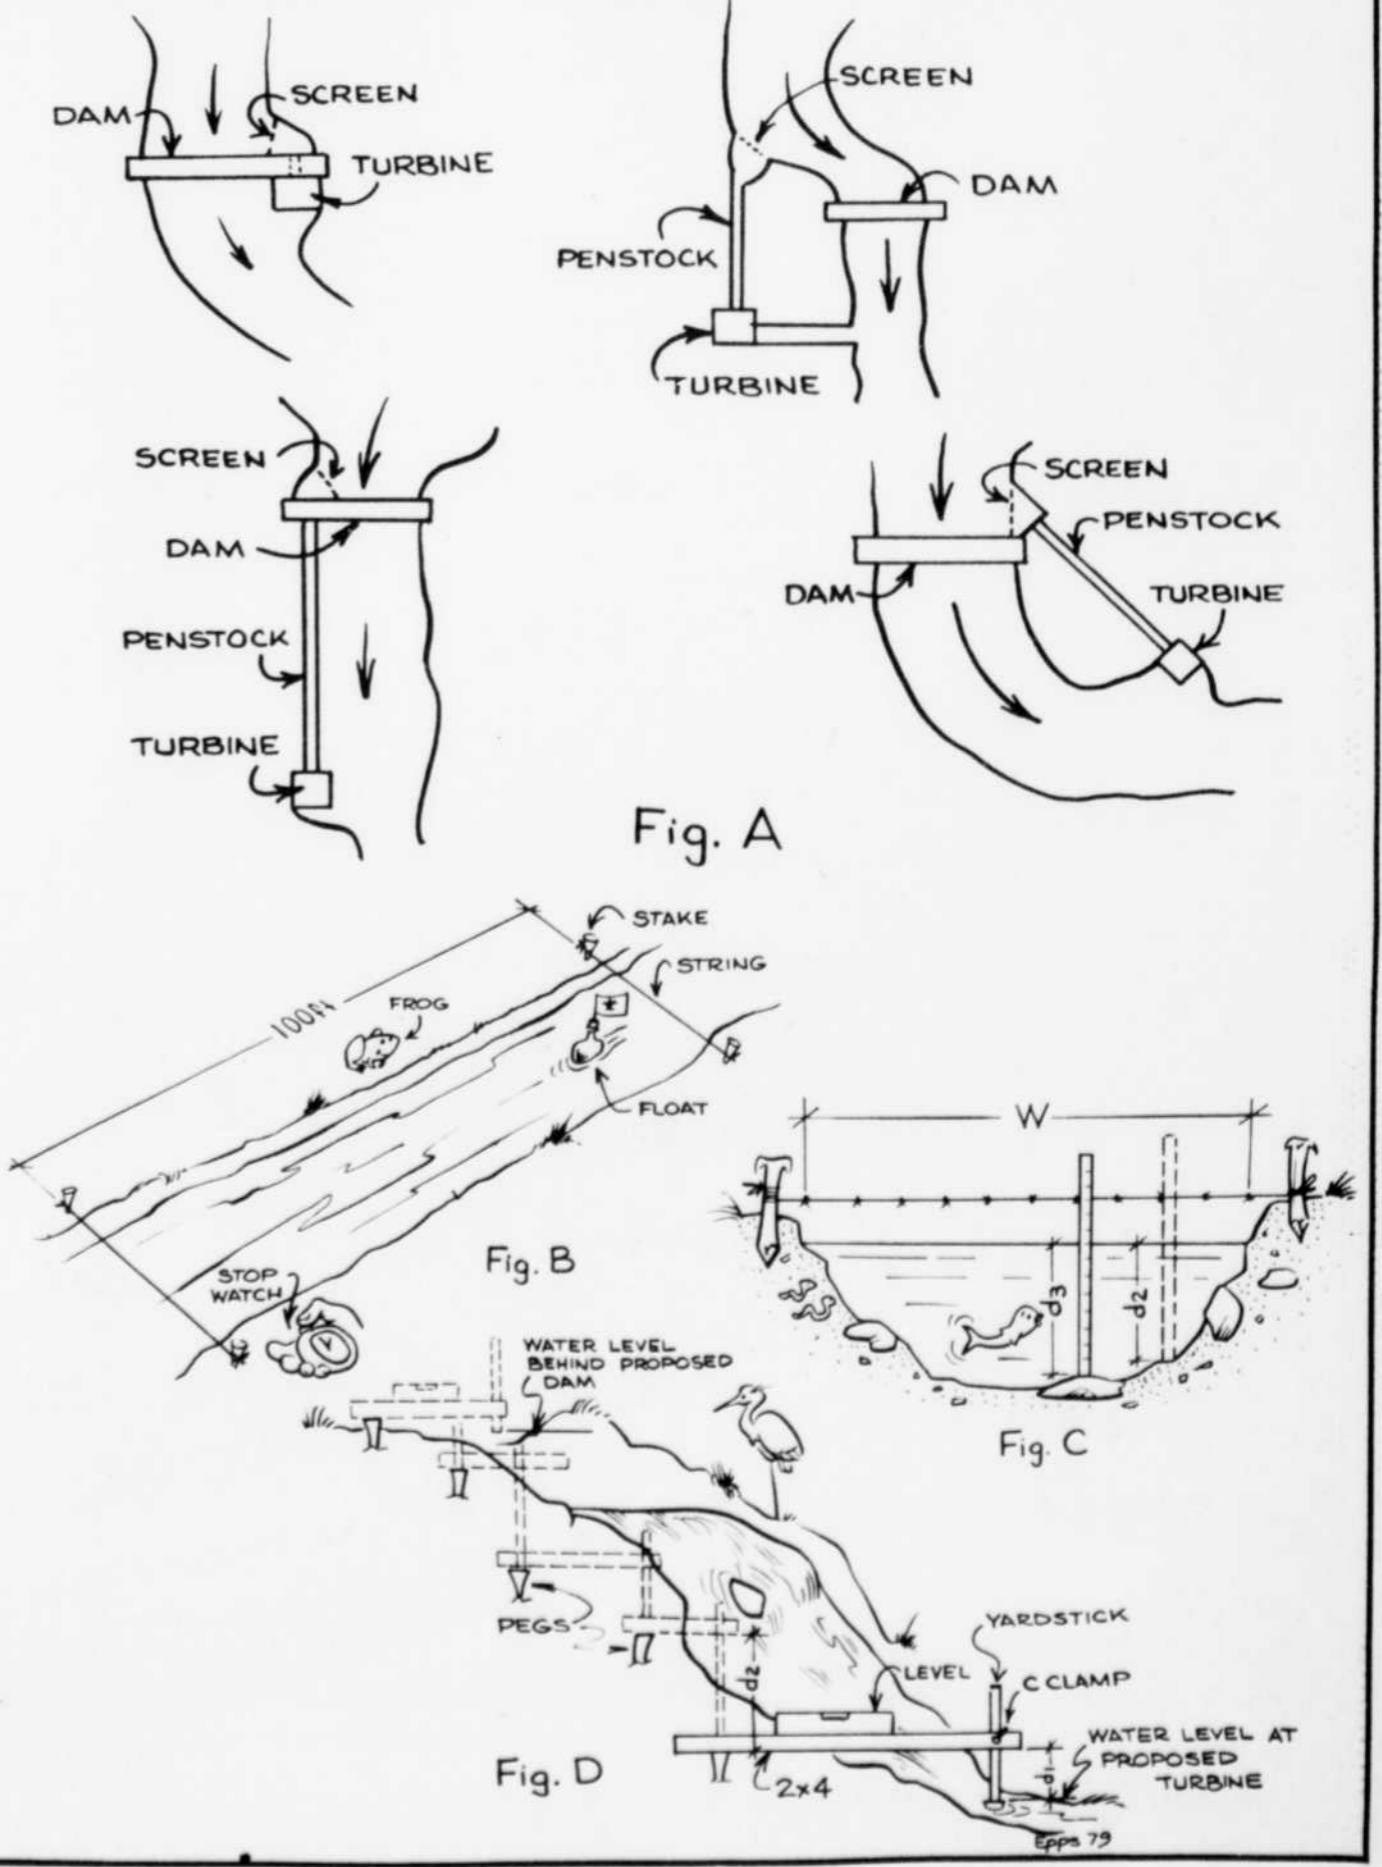

Flow equals velocity times volume:
 90×4.2 equals 378 cu. ft. per minute.
 Water, of course, does not flow at the same rate at all times so measurements should be taken at several times throughout the year, at high water and low. The high water figures may be used to calculate the size of the spillway which carries excess water over the dam and the low for the minimum power output.

HEAD
 Head is the vertical distance through which the water will fall. The horsepower this water can produce is a product of flow, (in cubic feet per minute,) times the head, (in feet,) times 62.4, (which is the weight in pounds of one cubic foot of water,) and the whole divided by 33,000 (which is the number of foot-pounds in one horse-power).

Figure D offers a cheap and simple way to measure 'head' using only a carpenter's level, a length of 2-by-4 and pegs hammered securely into the ground. The route from the water surface at the site of the turbine to the water surface behind the proposed dam can be as circuitous as is necessary because only the vertical dimensions are used.
 An even cheaper and simpler way — although less accurate — is to plant a yardstick vertically near the centre of your waterfall, then photograph it against the height and scale the photograph.
 Our hypothetical 'head' in Figure D is 5 feet. Therefore:
 $378 \times 5 \times 62.4 / 33,000$ equals 3.57 h.p.

This is an estimate of the potential horsepower only. It must be reduced by the inefficiency of the turbine and generator. Assuming a small turbine for this installation delivers 75 per cent of its potential and a generator 80 per cent, then our actual horse-power will be:
 $.75 \times .80 \times 3.57$ equals 2.14 h.p.

One horse-power is the equivalent of 746 watts and we should have enough power in our hypothetical stream, year in, year out, sunshine and moonshine, to run four deep-wall pumps or six freezers or fifteen light bulbs or one electric heater.
 Good luck.

BLOW
 Flow is velocity multiplied by vol-

 Water, of course, does not flow at the same rate at all times so measurements should be taken at several times throughout the year, at high water and low.

While Mr. Nichols had hired a man with his chainsaw to take down several dead branches from the trees on his front lawn, he apparently should have not stopped there. A strong gust of hurricane Frederick's breath toppled a branch of over 27 feet in length across the driveway, fortunately missing the house by seven feet and a flower bed by about three feet. On inspection the branch is half rotted through. It will be added to the woodpile to help defray heating costs this winter!

September 28, 1979

This coming year you will be expanding your circle of friends and acquaintances, bringing you much happiness. Take care, however, that you immediately disassociate yourself from anyone who is not completely honest and aboveboard.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your pals will enjoy your companionship today because you'll be pleasant and easy to please. Your family may not see these charming aspects of your personality at home, however. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're lucky today in matters where you permit things to run their natural course. Where you begin to interfere too much, you could derail something good.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Pal around with those today who are willing to pay their own way. Avoid individuals who misplace their wallet when it's time to pay the tab.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Beware of a tendency today to underestimate your opposition. Feeling you are superior could cause you to let your guard down and be caught off-balance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) This should be a very rewarding day, yet there's a strong possibility that you might do something that could lead to your own undoing. Try not to create unnecessary problems.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) It may be wise today to avoid mixing business with pleasure. Persons you're dealing with may not take you seriously if your behavior is too lighthearted.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You have a tendency to take gambles today and your luck is reasonably good, but don't take foolish risks that could hurt your career or reputation.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A failure to honor your promises today could create ill-feelings with a valuable ally. Even if you've made a bum deal, stick it out.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Keep your optimism within realistic bounds today, or you may kid yourself into believing something is better than it really is.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) The longer you haggle in commercial dealings today, the less chance you'll have for a profitable arrangement. Be fair to the other guy, as well as to yourself.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Manage those in your charge today with humor and a light hand and they'll joyfully do your bidding. Dictatorial treatment will cause confrontations.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Make no guarantees impulsively today, because you'll be taken up on what you offer. If you were insincere, you'll resent having to make good.

Tax credits encourage risk ventures, minister says

VANCOUVER (CP) — Worried that Canada is not producing enough entrepreneurs, Ron Huntington, federal small business minister, said Tuesday he favors tax credits to encourage investors to put more money into risk ventures.

"Entrepreneurs might find it easier to finance new ideas if they can line up 10 or 20 such investors to get them off the ground," Huntington said while participating in a panel discussion at the closing day of the annual convention of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

He said he would favor tax credits for investors of up to $5,000 a year put into new ventures.

Some help was being provided by the federal enterprise development program but he said he would like a reassessment to determine whether more assistance is needed."

"At this point, I don't have the answers as to revisions which should be made, but whatever revisions are made will have to address this cashflow need."

Another highlight for the 500 delegates was a morning panel exchange between Senator George C. Van Roggen of Vancouver and two businessmen on proposals for free trade between Canada and the United States.

LISTS ADVANTAGES

Van Roggen, a Liberal senator who headed a Senate committee which studied Canada-U.S. relations, said the advantages of free trade outweigh the disadvantages.

His panel colleague, William G. Deeks, executive vice-president of Noranda Sales Corp. Ltd. of Toronto, said he favors a trade alliance between North and South America which would create a large market that had possibilities for energy self-sufficiency for these countries.

Normand Ricard of Montreal, president and owner of Norca Management Ltd., furniture manufacturers, said he was not opposed to a free-trade arrangement but industries like his would have to be strengthened to survive such an alliance.

A fourth member of the panel, Robert McNeill of Washington, vice-chairman of President Carter's emergency committee for American trade, said free trade, which he supports, won't occur until the two nations reconcile their industrial policies.

But he was optimistic about the nations' readiness to face such issues.

CBC names new producer

MONTREAL (ME) — There's been another positional change in the Montreal electronic media. Stephen Phizicky, news director at CJAD radio, has been named executive producer of news at CBMT, the CBC's English-language television station.

Phizicky is expected to take up his new post in mid-October. The appointment marks Phizicky's return to Channel 6. He was the CBC national assembly correspondent from 1969 to 1973.

"Phizicky is taking over as executive producer at a crucial point of Quebec history. His journalistic background makes him an excellent candidate for the job. He also brings with him a solid knowledge of our audience's needs from his experience at CJAD," said CBC English service director for Quebec, Ray Chiasson.

"I am confident that The City at Six, which has more than doubled its audience over the past two years will continue to be the major source of reliable news information available to Quebecers."

Chiasson also announced the appointment of Gerry Janneteau as senior news producer. Janneteau has been acting executive producer since the departure of Vince Carlin.

Seeking independence from OPEC

U.S., Canada lead drilling

CALGARY (CP) — Except for the United States and Canada, oil-importing countries are moving painfully and slowly to lessen their dependence on the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

A survey of active drilling rigs, presented at the recent World Petroleum Congress, shows that the exploration effort remains heavily concentrated in the United States, OPEC and to a lesser extent Canada.

The survey, by F. R. Parra of Petroleos de Venezuela (UK) SA, found 3,578 drilling rigs active at the start of this year outside the Communist world: 2,219 in the United States, 421 in OPEC countries and 241 in Canada.

That left only 697 rigs to cover the rest of the non-Communist world, including scores of developing countries that desperately need relief from imported oil costs.

In geographic comparisons, Canada's total of 241 is higher than that for all of Africa (197), Western Europe (155), the Middle East (165) and the rest of Asia (186).

Except for the huge U.S. total, only Mexico's 174 rigs come close to Canada's effort on a national basis.

The worldwide total, Parra said, has been growing by an average of only 63 rigs a year, with almost half that increase in OPEC countries.

What all this means is that exploration is growing moderately and is overwhelmingly in areas where the big finds have already happened.

Another congress speaker, vice-president John Roorda of Shell Oil Co., said an increase of as much as 500,000 barrels of daily capacity each year will not satisfy growing demand.

The industrialized countries alone, Roorda said, consumed 35 million barrels a day in 1975 and will consume 50 million to 55 million in 1990.

The bottom line was summed up by Robert Belgrave of British Petroleum Co. Ltd.:

"There is little sign that the lessons of 1973 and of 1979 have been learnt."

"Facilities for the production and distribution of coal are not being greatly increased. The development of nuclear energy is delayed by the failure of the nuclear industry to reassure the public about its safety."

"The rate of discovery of new oil and gas is declining. There is more talk than action connected with technologies for renewable energy. Governments continue to set targets for economic growth without providing for necessary fuel."

"If this is the pattern for the rest of the century, there will be no alternative to enduring the roller-coaster of sharp increases in energy prices followed by periods of economic decline."

Van pools may ease cost of travelling

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government has a way to help commuters cope with rising gas prices.

On April 1, the Ontario ministry of transportation and communication started a van-pooling program for its employees which it believes will save them money and save the country gas.

Peter Dalton, a senior research officer with the ministry, said three 12-passenger vans have been leased.

Under the program, the vehicles are driven by one employee who travels free in return for taking responsibility for the van.

The driver looks after maintenance and cleaning and also ensures that the vans are full. There are at least two backup drivers who can fill in.

Dalton said about 30 people are using the van service which costs between $9 and $12 a week, depending on the distance travelled. The fare is collected as a payroll deduction.

The vans run north to Newmarket, west to Burlington and east to Whitby — each route extending about 25 kilometres from the ministry's Toronto office.

Dalton said the ministry expects each passenger to save about $600 a year and that the program will reduce gasoline consumption by about 82,000 litres.

In conjunction with the federal government, the province is promoting van-pooling to private industry.

The idea, which was started by a company in Minneapolis, is growing in the United States with an estimated 5,000 vans involved.

Dalton said companies also benefit from van-pooling.

"Studies have shown about one-third of absenteeism is due to car failure. Vans are far more reliable."

Ladies Aid meets

HUNTINGVILLE — The Ladies' Aid opened the new season with a pot-luck supper in the Hall on Tuesday, September 11th with Mrs. H. Aldrich and Mrs. W. Aldrich, hostesses, and eight members and three guests present.

Mrs. W. Aldrich led the devotions and Mrs. Alan Bradley, our new president, was in the chair.

Mrs. H. Crosby read the minutes of the annual meeting held in June, in the absence of the Secretary, Mrs. M. Home. She also read the Treasurer's report.

Mrs. H. Aldrich reported on the Senior Citizens' supper held in August, which was very successful. Arrangements were made for the card party held on the 19th. It was decided to rent a table at the Milby Flea Market. Mrs. C. Spaulding and Mrs. H. Crosby volunteered to look after same.

Roll call was answered by naming a famous person in Canadian History. After the Mizpah benediction, Mrs. Norrey Bonnallie showed slides of the trip which she and her husband had taken to Alaska. These were very interesting. She also showed us the pictures she had taken of our spring flood.

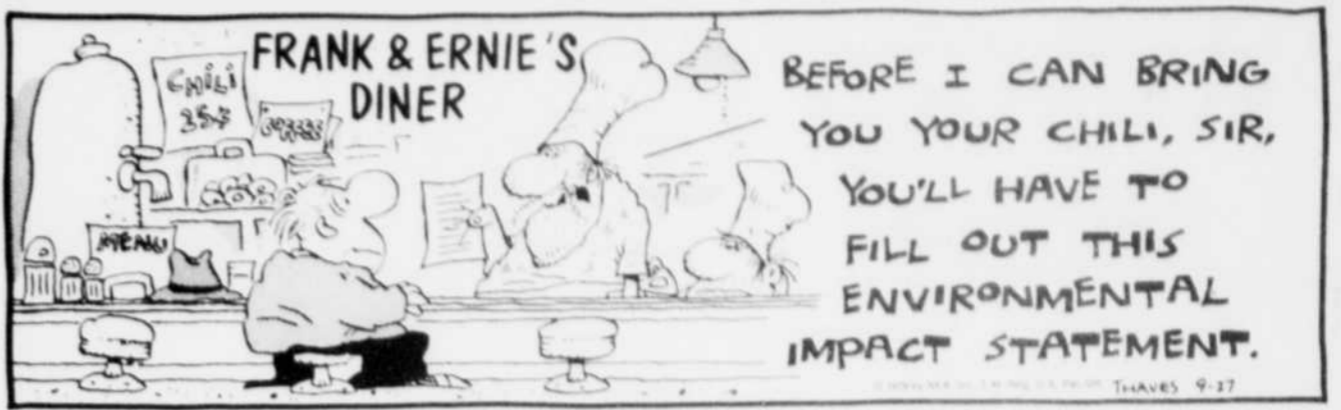

At the card party in the Hall on September 19, cards were played at ten tables. Prizes went to Ray Pariseau, E. Ross, and H. McBain for the men, and for the ladies: Beth Cullen, Rebecca Chute and Rose Couture. Door prizes were won by Clarence Nutbrown, Evelyn Marlow, Marian Dewing, Byron Labonte, and S. Chute.

The grocery box went to Hanson Thwaites.

INVERNESS

C.W. McVetty

A happy group of Senior Citizens, and some of their friends, from here and Thetford Mines, 37 in all, enjoyed a bus trip to the Missisquoi Museum, at Stanbridge East on Wednesday, where they all found that the words of praise about the museum from those who had previously visited there were certainly true.

Arriving around 11:30 a.m., we proceeded to a hall where an excellent meal awaited us, prepared by the members of the U.C.W. of Stanbridge East — this received the attention and praise it deserved, in fact, a hearty round of applause was given to these ladies to express our appreciation of their efforts to cater to the demands of the inner man.

Following lunch, thoughtful guides escorted the visitors through the museum and associated buildings, where many items from out of the storied past excited remarks of wonder and admiration. The time to depart for home came all too early as a journey of more than 160 miles lay before us. However, with the skilled hands and experience of Lucien Roy of Lyster, at the wheel, the return trip was made in comfort and safety.

In short, we all appreciate the wonderful hospitality, splendid meal, and the many acts of kindness which were extended to all in full measure by everyone with whom we came in contact. While in town the McVettys called on their good friends, Mr. and Mrs. K.D. Tree, of Stanbridge East, and were delighted to find them quite well and as full of zeal and ambition as ever. We were also delighted to meet our mutual friends, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Rhicard.

We are sincerely sorry that Mrs. Kenneth Kelso was taken by ambulance to the Thetford Mines Hospital on Friday, and, on the following day, Mr. Weston Graham was also rushed by ambulance to the Jeffrey Hale Hospital in Quebec City. Our best wishes go out to these two popular friends that a speedy and complete return to good health may be theirs as you are both missed very much by your friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Little have returned home after attending the funeral of their niece, Mrs. Peter Jenkins, in Goffstown, N.H. On their way home they called on cousins in Lyndonville, Vt., Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hyatt in Stanstead, Mrs. Willie Lunnie in Waterville, and the Harry Littles at Sand Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Wright are visiting their daughter, Mrs. Mae Davidson in Burlington, Ont., and other friends in that area.

Mr. and Mrs. John Evans of Sherbrooke celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary in Sherbrooke on Friday evening, Sept. 14. The "bride's" mother, and brother, Delbert, attended the party and report a very pleasant evening. May we, your friends in Inverness, who were unable to be with you both at this happy event, also congratulate you, with our hopes that you both may have many more years of happiness and good health in the future.
