SEVENTY-FOURTH YEAR

Rainy Weather Thins Crowd At Annual Dominion Day Picnic Held At Cairnside

Softball Tournament Was Held and Programme Of Races Staged For Children During Afternoon
Mr. Raymond Was Speaker

The Farmers' Picnic held each year at Cairnside was not cancelled, as many might have expected after the great rainfall we had during the morning hours of Dominion Day. The dampness undoubtedly affected the attendance, particularly of the older folks, but for all of that the afternoon was enjoyed.

Sports held sway, soft ball games being played by both boys and girls. Teams were made up representing Howick, Riverfield, Fertile Creek, Brysons and Ormstown. Races of all kinds were staged for the boys and girls, to round out a complete afternoon.

Never in the history of the old picnic was the speaking programme so poor, or the attendance of the attentive listeners so small. If the idea of a speaking programme is to be continued at this picnic, the management will have to arrange for speakers a few days before hand and then make sure that the speakers are accorded an appreciative hearing.

Assistant Professor of Agronomy, L. C. Raymond, of Macdonald College was the only speaker present. No members of parliament or clergy were within hall of the chairman, Mr. Mason Greig.

Celebration For Opening New Church

Blessed By His Lordship
Mgr. J. A. Langlois
Sunday

Great manifestations of joy were witnessed at Valleyfield over the week-end when the Church of the Immaculate-Conception was officially opened and blessed by His Lordship Mgr. J. A. Langlois, bishop of the diocese.

The celebration which began on Saturday evening with a reception by the Belleville parishioners, came to a close on Sunday with a mass celebrated in honor of the foundation of the parish.

The Pontifical High Mass was celebrated on Sunday at 10.30 a.m. by Mgr. Langlois. The sermon on the occasion was delivered by Father P. B. Morin, who chose as his subject, "This temple is the house of God and gates of Heaven. At noon a banquet was served in the basement of the Valleyfield Cathedral. The Belleville orchestra under the direction of Paul Dumouchelle supplied the music. M. Albert Leblanc acted as master of ceremonies.

The parish priest of Notre-Dame de Belleville, Father J. D. Audebert, spoke briefly at the close of the banquet.

At 3 p.m. on Sunday, two mon-

Three Taken To Hospital After Crash

Seven Injured When Buggy And Two Cars Crash Near Here

The Dominion Day celebration came to a close with a serious accident which occurred about two miles east of Huntingdon, when seven persons suffered injuries in a smash-up involving two cars and a horse and buggy. Three persons were rushed to Hotel Dieu Hospital in Valleyfield in a dangerous condition while the others were treated for cuts and bruises. One car and the buggy were smashed, while the other proceeded on its way without stopping. The horse miraculously escaped serious injury.

A car driven by Arlington Beaudway was proceeding towards Huntingdon and was meeting an oncoming vehicle when it struck a buggy driven by Fred Walsh, who was also coming towards Huntingdon. The car, which was carrying three persons, was thrown out of the car, and had to be taken to Hotel-Dieu Hospital in Valleyfield in the D. L. Kelly ambulance.

The car somersaulted several times before it came to rest on its side, on the right side of the road. Six persons were in Beaudway's car and Clement Lepage, Remi Varin and Beaudway, who were sitting in the front seat of the car suffered cuts and bruises about the hands and face while Sr. Joseph, who was sitting in the back seat, was thrown out of the car, and had to be taken to Hotel-Dieu Hospital in Valleyfield in the D. L. Kelly ambulance.

Dr. O. E. Caza, who is treating the patients, stated over the radio that Wm. Soulier, Sr., had five fractured ribs, cut on the arm and suffered internal injuries, while Wm. Soulier, Jr., has a few broken ribs. Their condition is said to be improving gradually. Joe Soulier returned home the same evening he was admitted to the hospital.

Fred Walsh, who was alone in the buggy luckily escaped with only a cut in the back of the head and scratches on the shoulders.

According to witnesses, the car travelling towards Herdman and driven by George Leggett of that town had its windshield broken by a flying splinter from the buggy.

Beaudway's car, a Buick, was towed to Kyle's Garage, Huntingdon, where they estimated it was damaged beyond repair. The horse pulling the buggy miraculously escaped with a few scratches.

Rev. J. B. Maclean, D.D., Spoke At Annual Decoration Day Services of Excelsior Lodge

Members of Order Form at Unit Headquarters and March to Cemetery Accompanied by Valleyfield Boy Scout Band

The annual Decoration Day services of Huntingdon Excelsior Lodge were held on Sunday afternoon.

Accompanied by the Valleyfield Boy Scout bugle band and an escort of cars the members of the Lodge paraded to the cemetery grounds from the Lodge rooms on Chateaugay street. Dave Ross carrying the Union Jack headed the procession, followed by the Scouts. Members of the Order led by Reggie Daniel and a group of cars brought up the rear. The procession marched around the cemetery depositing flowers and wreaths on the graves of departed members of the Order and a short religious ceremony was held.

Rev. W. S. Hatcher of St. John's Anglican Church read the Scripture lesson, while Rev. J. H. Miller, D.D., offered prayer and Rev. J. B. Maclean gave the sermon of the afternoon.

Speaking on "Jesus and the Resurrection," he said: "A few days ago, in my reading, I came upon a simple, striking sentence, 'Death breaks into life.' It arrested my attention and my imagination was kindled. I saw a picture of a happy scene of congenial friends gathered together in pleasant, happy fellowship. But suddenly an unexpected and unwelcome visitor broke in on the company, and the scene was changed. It was Death that had come, and where there had been the joy of good-fellowship there was now confusion and fear and mourning.

"And then another thought came to me and it was this, that Life breaks into Death. And another picture presented itself; it was of a scene far away and long ago—of a House in Bethany. Two sisters, Martha and Mary, were in mourning for their brother Lazarus. Then came Jesus, to them and restored Lazarus to them alive. It is of this latter scene that we are reminded as we come today to this City of the Dead, where there are many graves that speak to us with the hollow murmur that chills the heart. Here Death is Lord. But here Life breaks in, for Jesus is here, as He said, 'Where two or three are gathered together in My name, I will be there and will with them.'"

The Week at Ottawa

Arid Conditions Due to Heat Wave Affect Prairie
Province Crops, Peace River Area Sets 50% as Expectation Limit

By Wilfrid Eggleston

Another week of scanty rainfall and excessively high temperatures brought about further declines in crop prospects as the drought damaged area of the Prairie Provinces has been steadily extended, said a crop report issued Tuesday at Ottawa, by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

The greater part of Saskatchewan and much of eastern and northern Alberta have been affected by the arid conditions while parts of western Manitoba are also beginning to feel the pinch of inadequate soil moisture supplies.

Elsewhere in Manitoba crop prospects continue good although there is some danger of rust causing damage. Good crops are also to be found in southwestern Alberta.

In northern sections of both Alberta and Saskatchewan, declines have been registered. The past week with a 50 per cent crop in the Peace River district now the limit of expectations.

Northeastern Saskatchewan still gives promise of fairly good yields but prospects are only fair to poor elsewhere with southern and central districts reporting total failure.

Feed supplies will be exceedingly scarce in all of southern Saskatchewan and eastern Alberta as the dry weather has scorched pastures and ruined the prospects for hay crops. Immediate rains in these areas are needed to relieve a critical feed situation.

Following are detailed reports by provinces:

Manitoba—While the general situation in the province is still good, hot, dry weather during the past week has resulted in some crops showing signs of drought damage. This condition is more marked in the western parts of the province. Rainfall during the week was confined to light showers at a few scattered points and this, coupled with the high temperatures prevailing, has reduced prospects appreciably. Early sown grain is holding up well but late crops are deteriorating and a good general rain is needed shortly to keep crops developing well.

Heads of wheat and barley are holding up well but, as yet, the Russell district near the Saskatchewan border immediate rain is required to avert a feed shortage. Stem rust is definitely in evidence on wheat and barley at a few points but is not serious as yet. Grasshoppers are becoming more active with the advent of hot weather and control operations are being pushed strenuously in the affected areas, mostly in the southwestern corner.

Saskatchewan—With rainfall over the province either lacking entirely or too light to make any practical value, the boundaries of the drought ravaged area have extended considerably during the past week.

Areas which were reasonably promising a week ago have now passed the point where any count can be made. The temperature has risen above normal throughout the week have hastened the crop destruction which now appears to be the worst in the history of the province.

In all the southern area except the extreme northeast, crops are wiped out and little or no feed is left. Immediate rain could only help the feed situation. Central and west-central districts are also beyond hope of anything but feed crops. And to the districts of immediate rainfall relieves the present parched condition of the land.

In northeastern districts, conditions are still fair while the east-central area is mostly reported as poor. The drought area has now extended into the northwestern districts and is expected to be very light in this section.

Serious feed shortages are inevitable over much of the province unless general rains come soon.

Alberta—Excessive heat with strong drying winds over much of the eastern part of the province has caused a further decline in crop prospects during the past week. While good rains were received from Edmonton south to Calgary, the rest of the province has received little moisture.

Good crop prospects still continue in the southwestern corner and north as far as Olds.

Recent rains have brought about some temporary improvement in the Edmonton but more is needed immediately to continue reasonably good prospects.

The Peace River area was again missed by heavy rainfall and although several light showers have fallen during the week, crops, especially those sown early, are beginning to suffer and half a normal yield is the best now looked for.

All the eastern part of the province is in serious need of rain. Eight to 10 bushels of crops may be harvested if ideal conditions prevail from now to harvest but without immediate relief from drought, further rapid declines in crop prospects are inevitable.

Ottawa is extremely excited over the success of the trans-Atlantic crossing of Britain's ship, the Caledonia. It thinks that commercial traffic by air over the North Atlantic ocean took a long step forward after completion of the two survey flights which went off with the clock-work efficiency of a ferry ride.

Mrs. D. Rowat Passes Away In Montreal

Wife of Prominent Notary Was Active Church Worker

The death of Mrs. Donald McKenzie Rowat occurred with tragic suddenness Monday afternoon, July 5th in Montreal. She had not been feeling well for a week, and was on her way to visit her doctor in the Medical Arts Building at 5 o'clock. She stepped out of her car and collapsed at the entrance of the building. Medical aid was summoned but without avail.

Mrs. Rowat took an active interest in Melville Presbyterian Church, and in the Women's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church in Canada. Following her return from a visit to her son in Saskatchewan she participated in the entertainment of the women visitors to the city at the recent General Council of the Alliance of Reformed Churches holding the Presbyterian System, and it was while returning from a tea party given at Mount Bruno by W. M. Birks that she was first taken ill. She recovered and was about as usual up till Monday afternoon, having attended a meeting in Eskine-American Church, Montreal, earlier in the day.

Mrs. Rowat was the wife of Donald McKenzie Rowat, Montreal notary, and resided at 572 Lansdowne avenue, Westmount. The funeral service will take place at Melville Church, Westmount, on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and will be conducted by Rev. Dr. J. B. Maclean, of Huntingdon. The body will then be taken to Atholstan, where interment will take place, the late Rev. Andrew Rowat having been minister there for 25 years.

The great grandfather of Mrs. Rowat was George Pozor, who was born in Germany in 1752, and who, after living in England and New York, established himself in the Province of Quebec in 1785, being the second man to be buried in the Mount Hermon Cemetery at Quebec when he died at the age of 90 in 1848. Mr. Pozor had a large family and established them in a number of seigneuries in the county of Beauce which he purchased.

It was in the seignory of Aubert Gallon at St. George de Beauce that Mrs. Rowat was born in 1885, the daughter of the late John Pozor, and of Mrs. Pozor, who is now residing with her daughter, Mrs. Wm. Lambert, at St. Lambert. She was married to Mr. Rowat in 1907, and they resided at Richmond for five years. Mr. Rowat coming to Montreal in 1912 and establishing himself as a notary.

The Pozor family has been resident in the Beauce district for over

Large Number of Canadians Attended Celebration Held In Malone on Dominion Day

Heavy Morning Rains Result in Cancellation of Baseball Game, Trotting Races and Vaudeville Acts at Fairgrounds

Highlighted by a spirit of co-operation and understanding between Canadian and American people and towns near the international border, Dominion Day celebration in Malone was featured by one of the most colorful parades ever seen in the town. The mile long procession passed in review before throngs of people who braved the threatening weather to witness the event.

Large crowds of Canadian visitors attracted by the programme specially arranged for their benefit were on hand to take part in the festivities.

With continued rain nearly up to the time of the opening event of the International Good Will Week, the program scheduled to be held at the Franklin County Fairgrounds including a baseball game, trotting races, and vaudeville acts, was called off because of the soggy ground.

Occasional showers marred the afternoon but nevertheless Canadian-licensed cars continued to stream in to Malone while every surrounding community also was well represented.

Floats from Chateaugay, Tupper Lake, Huntingdon and Malone were in the parade.

First prize of $25 went to the Chateaugay Fish and Game Club float which showed a woodland scene with a log cabin surrounded by trees and with a grassy plot in front of the cabin. Second prize, $15, was awarded the Malone Rotary Club float which was completely covered with yellow and purple paper flowers and bore the inscription "Service Above Self."

Third prize was awarded the Kiwanis Scout troop. A woodland scene was also presented in this float, with Scouts around a campfire before a lean-to covered with evergreens.

The Huntingdon float, undoubtedly would have received special consideration had it entered the parade, but it was forced from the competition after an accident at the start when it struck a curb and demolished part of its decoration. It had a little cabin, completely outfitted and furnished, with a special set of loud speakers. It advertised the Old Home Week which will be held in Huntingdon in the near future. It was driven by Alex. Tomlinson.

Local Residents Spend July 1st Away From Home

Dominion Day was quietly celebrated in Huntingdon. No official notification was taken of the day—the town fathers deciding to hold to the general interpretation as a day of recreation rather than one of observance. Most of the residents spent the day around the house or attended the celebrations being held in Valleyfield or Malone. A special bus was chartered to make a trip to Malone and it was loaded to capacity with gay fun seekers. Rain hampered activities to some extent wherever district celebrations were taking place but a generally enjoyable time was reported by all who attended them. A special effort was made at Malone to attract Canadian visitors with a specially arranged program. Canadian flags were also shown in abundance to lend a realistic Canadian atmosphere.

Debate Decides Women Retain Status As Wage Earners

On Tuesday evening, June 22nd, a debate under the auspices of Russell United Church Ladies Aid was handled in a highly interesting manner by members of the Montreal Women's Debating Club.

It was a perfect summer's evening with a full moon, but, strange to say, only a comparatively small audience were present to enjoy this interesting event.

Some might consider that it savoured of cruelty to animals to ask young men and maidens to exercise their heads instead of their feet for forty-five minutes or an hour, but many older and not unintelligent residents were conspicuous by their absence. Possibly in a good many cases they were too tired with the seeding rush after the long wet spell, and thus missed a delightful evening.

No doubt as the debate proceeded more than one woman said in an aside to herself: "There, friend, husband, you have long looked down over your nose at our supposedly stupid sex, but to-night you surely realize that many of our legislators are inferior in both intellect and oratory to these ladies."

We feel convinced that should Mesdames Read and Paton ever fill Federal seats (only a convulsion of nature will ever admit such strong light into the medieval darkness of Quebec) they will be more than able to hold their own in debate, while in a similar case Mrs.

Dundee Girls Bowling Over All Opposition

Softball Team Wins Four Straight Games Without Defeat

The Dundee Girl's Softball team played in the tournament held at the Farmers' Picnic at Cairnside last Thursday, July 1st. The girls won three straight games from two other girls teams to win the series. The scores were as follows: Riverfield vs. Dundee 7-11; Ormstown vs. Dundee 13-9; Howick vs. Dundee 6-12. The winners were presented with a high grade ball and bat. The trip to Cairnside was made in Geo. Elder's school bus, a few local supporters also being in the crowd. The line-up was as follows: Janet Fraser, p.; D. McGibbon, c.; Ruth MacCartney, 1st b.; Rae Hannah, 2nd b.; Allison Fleming, 3rd b.; Phyllis Platt, s.s.; Merle MacCartney, 1st f.; Gladys Stritett, c.f.; Marjorie Roseway, r.f.

On Saturday the girls emerged victorious in a game with a team composed of players from the Leach Textile Mill in Huntingdon, which they also won by a tidy score. The girls are to be congratulated on their several wins and here's hoping they keep it up.

Strawberry Social Held At Dewittville

Musical and Dramatic Program Was Enjoyed By All

The Strawberry Social held under the auspices of St. Andrew's Club, on Mr. W. G. Cassidy's lawn Friday evening, drew a large crowd and was a decided success. The evening though, was a little cool, as all that could be desired after threatening rain most of the day. The ladies of the club were kept busy serving strawberries, cake and coffee to the crowd.

When it was time to start the program, Rev. J. B. Maclean, D.D., called the crowd to order and said he was pleased to see so many there and called on Mr. Len Wheatley, a Montreal comedian who took the audience by storm with his jokes and stories. Mr. Wheatley acted as chairman for the evening. The program which consisted of several vocal duets by the Rember sisters, Mr. and Mrs. Will, the Hooker children, choruses by a group of Ormstown young people and two one-act plays was very much enjoyed by everyone. Each one on the program took his or her part perfectly.

During intermission Dr. Maclean again spoke a few words in appreciation of the program thus far and introduced two of his friends, Rev. Mr. Nimmo of Atholstan and Rev. Mr. Ross of Ormstown, who in turn made a few pleasing remarks. Ice cream and soft drinks were sold during intermission. The proceeds amounted to around $60.

Residents of Dewittville received a great shock when it was learned that Mrs. D. M. Rowat had suddenly passed away Monday afternoon. Mrs. Rowat had spent the week-end at "Glenness." The sympathy of the community is extended to Mr. Rowat and family.

Compulsory Insurance For Autos Advisable

FAST driving after dark on the newly paved highway No. 52 resulted in a serious accident on Dominion Day night. No lives were lost, but it was a close call for several individuals. The seriousness of the accident should remind all drivers that when they drive an auto they are responsible for any mishaps that might occur, should they be foul of the law.

The mere fact that a man has his auto insured does not mean he will not have an accident, or that he can be reckless and take chances. Every man driving an auto ought to carry insurance, for property damage and public liability, so that if he does cause an accident his personal resources will not be unduly taxed. If a man has not a substantial cash reserve on hand, it is all the more reason why he should carry insurance upon his car.

We have long contended that compulsory insurance should be carried on all autos and trucks before being licensed; or else have them insured when the license fee is being paid. It would be just as fair for the Provincial Government to enact legislation making public liability and property damage insurance compulsory as it is to have the "workman's compensation insurance" as we have it today.

If such legislation were enacted and carried out, many care-free drivers would not be on the road simply because they could not pay the necessary assessment. This would be all to the good. Fewer lives would be lost, fewer accidents occur, less property damaged and law enforcement as it pertains to the highways would be considerably reduced.

A Huntingdon Band

WHY has not Huntingdon a band of its own? Isn't there any one here interested enough to start one? Surely there must be many anxious to form a musical organization if they could get some one to take over the leadership and the responsibility of such an undertaking.

These and many similar statements were frequently heard Sunday afternoon as citizens lined the streets to watch the I.O.O.F. Decoration Day parade. Whenever Huntingdon wants to stage a celebration of any kind, no matter how small, it always has to import outside talent to supply music for the occasion.

In days gone by we had a band here of which we could be proud. The writer has spoken with many of the younger people around town and they have repeated time and again that they would welcome nothing more than the organization of a good local band. Some of the young men are not accomplished musicians but they expressed a desire to learn, and with very little teaching felt they would soon be able to take their place in a local musical unit.

It seems a shame to let such youthful enthusiasm and talent go to waste. With little effort it could be turned into musical channels for the benefit not only of the people themselves but for town and other citizens.

Besides these young musicians, there must be many older folks who play and would appreciate the formation of a unit which would give them a chance to show their talent and to use it for the general benefit of the community.

If we are not mistaken we believe there is a sum of money in a trust account deposited in one of our banks to the credit of the Huntingdon Band. This fund might easily be augmented and prove sufficient to take care of initial expenses. The services of a band master might easily be arranged as both Valleyfield and Beauharnois have bands.

Selfishness A Factor

JUST plain, everyday selfishness, on the part of motorists is responsible for 75 per cent of our huge annual cost of traffic accidents, is the opinion of Jos. H. King, superintendent of the automobile and casualty branch of the Canadian Underwriters' Association.

"When motorists can show a substantial and permanent decrease in the accident and death rate on our streets and highways, they will unquestionably reap the benefit of their careful efforts in lower insurance rates."

Referring to the current "Try Courtesy" campaign of the Ontario highways department, he remarked that its objective could be the means of saving tens of thousands of dollars for motorists who carried insurance. Many drivers, he thought, are paying a heavy price for selfishness and lack of courtesy in their insurance premiums, or forcing other motorists to carry the burden for them.

In his opinion, many accidents are caused by "cut-in" drivers who create the circumstances for a mishap but do not participate in it themselves, and usually insist belligerently "they had nothing whatever to do with it."

This type of road menace is usually in a great hurry to get somewhere, "but if you asked him what he was going to do with the few minutes he saved at the risk of his own and several other lives, he would be hard put to give you a reasonable answer."

Mr. King painted a vivid word-picture of several hundred thousand motor vehicles swooping down simultaneously on the towns of Nanpene, Newmarket and Tillsonburg and killing or maiming every single inhabitant—nearly 11,000 men, women and children.

"Fantastic, you'd say," exclaimed Mr. King, "yet every year, largely through selfishness and lack of courtesy, we are allowing this very thing to happen in Ontario. How much longer are we going to let this annual massacre continue?"

Making a Farmer

ONE of the most encouraging features of modern Agriculture in the Dominion is the prominence of youth in all that pertains to the industry. Now, teen age farmers are being given men's work to do and young men who in former days would still be sheltered under the family roof tree have gone out to carve their own destiny on land of their own.

This was not always so. In times gone by owing to force of circumstance, there was little inducement to youth on the farm, beyond a love of hard work. But now since the interest of the young farmer has been aroused, the desire for achievement in the oldest and the greatest of all the industries has placed him in a commanding position.

Scientific knowledge has led to improved methods of farming and taken much of the drudgery out of it. Agricultural colleges have done much to increase interest in and give information and training that will help its students to make the most of it.

But the commanding position now held by the younger farmers is due in a large measure to one of the most progressive and encouraging movements of modern times—that of farm club organization for boys and girls.

This movement has gained much favour in this district where its value in training young farmers to gain the most out of their work has been fully recognized. Here we have three units, the Howick and Ormstown Ayshire Clubs and the Chateauguay Valley Holstein Club, and others in process of development.

The work is really national in its scope and outlook and the increasing enrolment testifies to its worth. In 1931 there were 1,215 clubs in Canada with a membership of 21,142. In 1936 the number of clubs had increased to 2,098 and the membership to 34,457.

Every young man or woman who intends to make agriculture his life work should become a member of a farm club. Membership is guaranteed to increase interest in the farm and farm life; to provide a practical education in agriculture and home economics; to improve farm practices; to encourage the use of better livestock and seed and to give valuable training in leadership and good citizenship.

Farm club work appeals to the best junior farmers. It may not make an ace farmer out of a dud but it will help him to increase his efficiency in his work. It would not be adventurous exaggeration to say that the best junior farmers of today will be the leaders in the agricultural field of tomorrow.

Just for Sake of Comparison

J H. Cranston, editor of the Midland Free Press, and for 20 years editor of the Toronto Star Weekly, last week, discussed Toronto's daily newspaper and made some frank comments about them. Referring to one in particular, Mr. Cranston points out that a tremendous circulation has been built up by a policy of providing entertainment rather than instruction. It seems to be a trait of human nature that most people do not want to be educated, and yet we feel that the better type of citizen wants the facts about what is going on in the world. The Midland editor says in part that this city newspaper was filling its pages with comic strips, that its writers were travelling around in search of human interest tales, and that every possible pretext was used for starting a controversy, that horrors were piled on horrors, and sensations squeezed out of most ordinary happenings.

We agree with the Midland editor that some daily newspapers do appeal to this type of reader. For that selfish reason, that type of newspaper has ceased to be the moulder of public opinion that it used to be. That is why cabinet ministers, and men high in the public life of this dominion, including daily newspaper editors themselves, quite frankly say that if you want to know how and what the people are thinking and reacting, you have to read the town weeklies. Because the rural press does not cater to sensationalism. Its job is to inform, instruct and interpret the news.

The weekly press is perhaps the greatest single instrument in the country catering to an uneducated, reasoned thinking clientele. Editors of weekly newspapers are quick to sense the emotions and opinions of their readers, all of whom are more or less personal friends, thus the weekly newspaper is able to wield sobering influence.

Stop and Rest Awhile

WHERE will this mad rush for wealth lead you? What will you do with the power acquired? Man in his mad pursuit for money, power and control becomes obsessed. He loses all interest in the life that moves about him unless it stands in his way. He fails to see the beauty that surrounds him because his eyes are blinded. Home life and social problems have no interest because they hinder his advance. Thus man becomes nothing more than a restless, roaming animal. Those finer senses and better feelings are killed by the mad rush and pursuit to satisfy the lower animal nature. God gave man brains and faculties so that he would control and govern the earth and all that therein is. Man has lost his head and has forgotten that this heritage is given only on condition that he does utilize those gifts for the use of man. What is the use of money, power or control unless it benefits humanity? In this mad rush greed has crept in and destroyed all the higher ideals. In order to get the right vision, man is called upon to stop and rest awhile.

The above thoughts were stimulated as the writer sat on a kitchen stoop. There, away from all the rush of life, surrounded by the farm and all its buildings that had served for more than 50 years, amid quiet, peaceful life and under bright blue sky, peace and beauty reigned supreme. It was restful and called forth all the high and noble ambitions in life. As you noted the well kept yard and flower garden, as you looked over the old apple tree and the berry bushes, as you saw the old driving shed, not used for years, ready to tumble down, you saw a picture that said life is filled with beauty and happiness when surrounded with those things that you have learnt to love. It was a scene that makes one think about the end and recall the fact that man was made to enjoy this life and not to become a slave to it.

During the holiday season at the cottage, on the lake, in the woods, or back on the farm, plan to stop and rest awhile. Look into the heavens and read the message given there. Look into the woods, listen to the brooks, note the animal and bird life and then think of your own self. If man will just rest awhile and give that God-given brain an opportunity to think about life instead of planning to obtain, there will be a new power in the world. Man will no longer desire to crush those who stand in his way to power or wealth but he will share with humanity the beauties of this life.

ELEPHANT PENSIONED

Jessie, aged 65, claimed to be the oldest working elephant in the world is to retire. For 55 years she has been the most popular inhabitant of the Taronga Park zoo at Sydney, N.W.S., and during that time she has given rides to 2,750,000 children.

"We think Jessie has arrived at the stage when she should be given a rest," declared Colonel Alfred Spain, chairman of the Taronga Park trustees. "She has been with us for 55 years altogether, which must be a record for a zoo elephant."

Her movements are getting a little bit uncertain and her sight is not of the best. We propose getting another elephant to replace her just as soon as possible, but Jessie will remain with us as a show animal. She will be well cared for until the end of her days."

SAY IT WITH SKUNKS

One morning early arrivals at the Iowa statehouse in Des Moines noticed a strong skunk odor about the building. Janitors found the cause to be a dead skunk lying in the west entrance. Later that day, a Des Moines newspaper received a call from a farmer near Norwalk, Ia., who announced he could explain the presence of the dead skunk. He had thrown it there himself, he said. "That silly senate passed a bill yesterday putting a closed season on skunks in my county," he told the reporter. "Next time I kill a skunk, I'm going to toss him into the middle of that senate."

GRADUATE AT 67

At the commencement exercises of Campbell College for Negroes in Jackson, Miss., this spring, one of the graduates will be Jefferson Tobias, 67. As a boy, Tobias was eager to go to school but had to work to help support his family. Then he got married and in time had ten children of his own to support, which kept him busier than ever, but he never lost his desire to go to school sometime. In 1929, when his wife died and his children had all left home, his chance came. He supported himself doing odd jobs and during these eight years has attained the equivalent of a high school education.

PARADISE SOBER

When the town of Paradise, Mont., was laid out, all deeds carried the provision that no liquor was to be sold or consumed on the townsite and gambling would be prohibited forever. The town became a railroad division point and some of the residents insisted since liquor was legal in the state, it could not be barred from the town. In a case in the lower court, it was held that this form of prohibition was valid. The state supreme court upheld the decision and henceforth in keeping with its name, there will be no booze or gambling in Paradise.

BANK PAYS 1896 DEBT OF 4 CENTS

A persistent soul, J. P. H. Bromberg, manager of the safekeeping department of the First National Bank at Minneapolis has finally collected four cents the bank owed him for 39 years. Completing 40 years of service with the bank, Bromberg told associates how, in his first year of service, he was messenger at an annual salary of $100. His monthly pay cheque was $8.33 which totalled four cents short of the $100 at the end of the year. When the year was called to the attention of bank officials, the bank executive promptly voted its chairman authority to pay the debt—but without interest.

BOTTLES FLOAT OUT

At San Diego, Calif., scientists of the U. S. Geodetic survey dropped 6,000 empty wine bottles into the Pacific ocean. Each bottle contained a return postcard, asking the finder to note on it the location and time it was picked up and drop the card into the mail. In this way they hope to determine the speed and direction of ocean currents in the Pacific, particularly those which carry sardine eggs, larvae and young fish.

GOLDEN CALVES

Shapely legs are worth $15 a day to many girls in Hollywood, not for their owners' sake, but because the calves of some famous stars are well, not so shapely. An organization styled "The Leg Bureau" keeps a register of beautiful calves, and the $15 a day compared with a dancer's $7.50, keeps the lists full. "A studio," explained the head of the bureau, "can use lot of good-looking legs."

WEAK ON THE BIBLE

A recent questionnaire on contents of the Bible was sent to 18-434 high school students in the state of Virginia. Of his number, 16,000 were unable to name more than three prophets of the Old Testament; 12,000 could not name the four gospels correctly and 10,000 did not know as many as three of the 12 disciples.

TRAPPED IN SAFE

As Winifred Baker, 21, a maid employed at West House, London, was putting the silver away in a bureau-proof cupboard, another maid closed the steel door. The lock snapped to and Miss Baker was locked in a room with only 12 feet of space. A locksmith tried to open the door, but failed. Then the police were called. They fished the fire brigade. Twenty firemen were soon at work with hammers and chisels. They tore a hole in a 9-inch brick wall, and after half an hour succeeded in forcing the lock and releasing the girl, who was in a fainting condition. When revived, Miss Baker said: "I became very scared, as the air was becoming very hot. I feared I would suffocate in there."

Strip Tease Reverse

Strip tease in reverse may soon be a Broadway hit, now strip tease is doomed. Nineteen-year-old Jan March, of New York, ex-business girl and artists' model, is its inventor. She says if other girls can undress for art's sake, she can dress for it. "This is the way I start my act," she explained, appearing totally naked. "You see," she said, unnecessarily, "I am totally nude. I come out in front of the audience like this. Then I slip on my black panties, then the belt, and then black stockings. Gradually I'm dressed and begin putting on coats until the audience begins to moan."

"She does it all for art," interposed Sam Burger, Broadway promoter, who puts on such turns as John Dillinger's father, Jack Diamond's wife, and the whole Hauptmann jury.

NOT SO MODEST

For years Mrs. Jennie Wood, who conducted a small grocery store in Salt Lake, Utah, was thought to be a person of modest means, never more than a jump ahead of the wolf. While in a hospital, realizing she was on her death bed, Mrs. Wood called her lawyer and told him to go and make a thorough search of her three-room apartment adjoining the little store. With the aid of police, the lawyer found more than $50,000 in cash hidden in salt sacks, boxes, tin cans and old purses. Also, a bank book showing $25,000 on deposit to her credit.

CHILD BRIDE IN JAIL

Virginia Johnson, aged 12, was placed in jail at Mankato, Minn., as a delinquent, neglected minor in order to separate her from her husband, Ernest B. Johnson, 27, father of five children by his first marriage which ended in divorce. Virginia protested vehemently against the separation, while her husband insisted that he loved her dearly and was "certain she would make a good wife." The girl's mother said she saw nothing wrong in the marriage, which took place at Eltherville, Iowa, where the minimum marriage age is 14. This is the latest of a series of child marriages which have caused an outcry in the United States.

1812 PENSIONERS

One widow of a veteran of the War of 1812 remains on the United States pension rolls. She is Mrs. Carolyn King, 85, living in a home for the aged at Cheektowaga, N.Y. Her husband was Darius King. She married him when she was 19 and he 71. She receives a pension of $50 a month. Another pensioner of the war of 1812 is Mrs. Esther Morgan, 80, of Independence, Ore., whose father was a veteran. She recalls a long her father taught her that was very popular with American troops during the war against the British 125 years ago. One verse of it went as follows:

We're marching down on old Quebec
 Where drums are loudly beating;
 The Americans have won the day,
 The British are retreating.

TERROR SAVES HIM

At Belleville, Ill., two-year-old Warren Paule, fell into an open cistern and is known to have been under water at least two minutes before he was rescued. Doctors examining the little fellow later, found no trace of water in his lungs or stomach, indicating he had held his breath all the time he was submerged. Except for the fright, he was all right and was back to normal before the day was over. It is thought the shock of falling into the water caused him to hold his breath, as the cistern contained children. In this instance, it saved his life.

BRIDGE WEARS OUT

After 53 years of service, Brooklyn bridge, connecting Brooklyn with New York, is to be rebuilt. Everything, except the towers, suspension cables and anchorages will be newly constructed. Most famous bridge in the world at the time it was built, Brooklyn bridge now has been outdone both in size and cost by several other bridges but it was called "eighth wonder of the world" when completed in 1884. It cost $20,000,000 to build it and $5,000,000 was spent for property condemned for its right-of-way. It took 13 years to build it.

BUSHMEN RAID CITY

Fifty-five bushmen, the remnants of a dying race, disorganized in Cape Town, where they arrived in the busy South African capital from the Kalahari desert. The party consisted of men, women and children of small stature, dressed in scanty clothing. They pleaded to be allowed to hunt buck in the game preserve, and told P. G. W. Grobler, minister for the native affairs, that six bushmen were in prison at present for shooting one buck.

SHARK KILLER VOW

Champion shark killer of America, if not of the world, is the title given Alexander Ott, of Coral Gables, Fla., who has a record of killing 1,800 of these "tigers of the sea," all caught with a rod and reel. Several years ago, Ott was a horrified spectator of a tragedy at a Florida beach in which a swimmer was killed by a shark. Ott made a vow thereafter he would use all his spare time in hunting down these killers of the sea.

After serving his apprenticeship as a fitter at Newton Abbot, Mr. Heath came to Devonport in 1865 and worked for the government dockyard for 37 years. All his sons and sons-in-law are either employed in the government service or are in receipt of a government pension.

Ethel E. MacMaster, Teacher. On Friday afternoon, the parents of the pupils of Eddy's School, Elgin No. 4, and invited friends numbering 40, responded to an invitation to be present at their annual school closing and picnic, which was held this year on the shady lawn of Mr. Wm. Paul.

Mr. Leslie MacFarlane, commissioner for the district, acted as chairman, and a short programme of singing, recitations and dialogues were presented by the pupils, Miss L. Paul, accompanist, after which the teacher, Miss M. E. McGerrigle gave the report of the year's work and then presented each pupil with a prize for progress shown in school work, also, one for regular attendance in the month of June. The pupils then very kindly gave their teacher a lovely picture tea tray and a frosted crystal sandwich plate, the presentation being made by Eileen St. Onge and Elizabeth Brooks, and Eunice Stark reading the address.

Miss McGerrigle asked Rev. Mr. Woodside to reply for her, as she was very much touched by their kindness to her during her four years stay with them as teacher, which has proved most successful. Ice cream, strawberries and cake were then served by the teacher, Pearl Stark, Madeline St. Onge, Martha Brooks, Miss Paul and Mrs. Paul assisting.

Miss McGerrigle goes to Atholstan High School in the month of September to commence school duties there and we wish her every success in her work.

Friends in this vicinity of Mrs. William Slack, aged 30, of Syracuse, N. Y., formerly Florence Elta McGibbon, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles McGibbon, of Constable, N. Y., were shocked and saddened to hear of her illness and sudden death at 7 p.m., Tuesday evening, June 22nd, in the Syracuse Memorial Hospital, Syracuse, N. Y. An infant daughter died at birth.

The remains were brought to Malone by train and taken to her parent's home in Constable where a prayer service was held at 1 p.m. on Friday. The funeral cortege then proceeded to the Union Church in Constable, where the funeral service was conducted by her pastor, Rev. Mr. Gould, Methodist Episcopal Church, Syracuse, who paid a fitting tribute to her memory. He was assisted by Rev. D. McVeigh, pastor of Trout River and Constable Churches. Interment took place in Constable cemetery. The pallbearers were Messrs. Edward MacDonald, Alton Hurlbut, Frederick Fallon and Howard Lawrence.

The esteem in which Mrs. Slack was held was shown by the large attendance of friends, and the very numerous floral tributes, also a hymnal for use in the M. E. Church, Syracuse, was dedicated to her memory.

Mrs. Slack leaves surviving, her sorrowing husband, her parents, five sisters, Mrs. Wm. McCabe (Anna), Malone, N. Y.; Mrs. Louis Rotundo (Jessie), Gouverneur, N. Y.; Misses Frances McGibbon, Babylon, L. I.; Gertrude and Catherine, of Constable, N. Y.; and three brothers, William, Herman and David, all of Constable, N. Y.

After graduation from Malone High School, Mrs. Slack was a student nurse at Mt. Sinai Hospital, New York City, from where she graduated a registered nurse.

After spending some years successfully in her profession she was united in matrimony to William Slack, Malone, on December 2, 1933, at the McGibbon home in Constable, from whence they took up their residence in Syracuse, where Mr. Slack is a chemist in the Holcomb Steel Co.

Our deepest sympathy is extended to the sorrowing ones in their sad bereavement.

IMPRESSION FROM THE CORONATION

By one who may rightly be regarded as the personal delegate of the Canadian Dairywomen—Mr. Alan C. Fraser, Secretary of the National Dairy Council.

Mr. Fraser has managed in a brief article to indicate a broad experience in the sense of personal adventure united with a mass visitation to the "Old Land" to witness the historic ceremony of the Coronation. He writes:

June 8th, 1937.

The Sunday preceding the Coronation seemed to me to be rather a special Sunday. The newspapers carried notices of special services and even those dear old Church bells, of which there are so many in England, seemed to have a tone peculiar to the occasion. This may not be entirely a flight of the imagination. If the bell ringer is inspired, I presume he puts something into his "pull" which is lacking at other times. All this was the spirit of the smaller communities and the countryside of England.

"Old Home Week"

I went to London the day before the Coronation. On my train, in the huge Paddington Station, in the tubes, on the streets, in the hotels, clubs and shops there was a holiday spirit and a happy one. I had never seen crowds of any dimension so thoroughly happy.

It was "Old Home Week," not only for families, as such, but as members of the family of the Empire. I mixed with the crowds for fully three hours the night before Coronation Day and found the same happy spirit—the "hobbies" were happy and seemed to be bent only on helping the throngs to go about their merry making in the most orderly fashion possible. London of course was decorated.

You have read of this, but it is not likely you have seen this sample of decoration. I happen to know that this cost $25,000 and months of planning. (The Selfridge decorations).

Now, of the Coronation itself. Those of you who got up early and listened to the broadcast from the Abbey will know as much as I do about what occurred there, and I need say nothing on that. Those of you who heard the running comment on the parade or procession and the crowds will have a very fair idea of what occurred, but with all the perfection of these broadcasts and the quite marvellous press coverage of the event, there was something in actually viewing the procession—in being there—which you missed. My seat was in Hyde Park—our back to Park Lane, and facing the Park Proper. We were in our seats at 8 a.m. but found ourselves free to move about.

We saw many of the potentates leaving their hotels and lodgings and some of the nobility, including the Princess Royal.

We saw the crowds assembling in the Park and even saw the quite marvellous police and military preparations for lining the route of the procession—everything done with the utmost precision and ease. The morning passed quickly until the procession actually started from Buckingham Palace for the Abbey.

You, as we did, heard all that, and you heard the Abbey Service, but you did not sit as I did in a great open space, within sight and sound of between 100,000 and 200,000 people, and experience the stilling of that great throng—a voluntary stilling—as the actual Coronation Service in the Abbey commenced.

So utterly complete was this stilling at times that nothing but the tweeting of the birds in the trees could be heard. For the first time in history the entire Empire was, in a sense, and in as far as possible, participating in the great solemn service of crowning their King. Without doubt the experience "registered."

Then came the great procession. It has, as I have said, been fully described, but the experience of being within a few feet of the participants is something which no pen or photograph can describe. The great picture of the British Empire on parade—a united people—white, yellow and black, happy and proud of their membership in the family and acknowledging the leadership of the plaudits of the thing smilingly.

Canada participated creditably and adequately. Our own Prime Minister took high rank, escorted by our colourful R.C.M. Police. Incidentally there certainly were no Canadians viewing the procession who did not thrill with pride at the splendid showing of our Mounted Police. I felt they were the "gem" of the pageant and this opinion was held by many who were in the habit of appraising pageants of this nature.

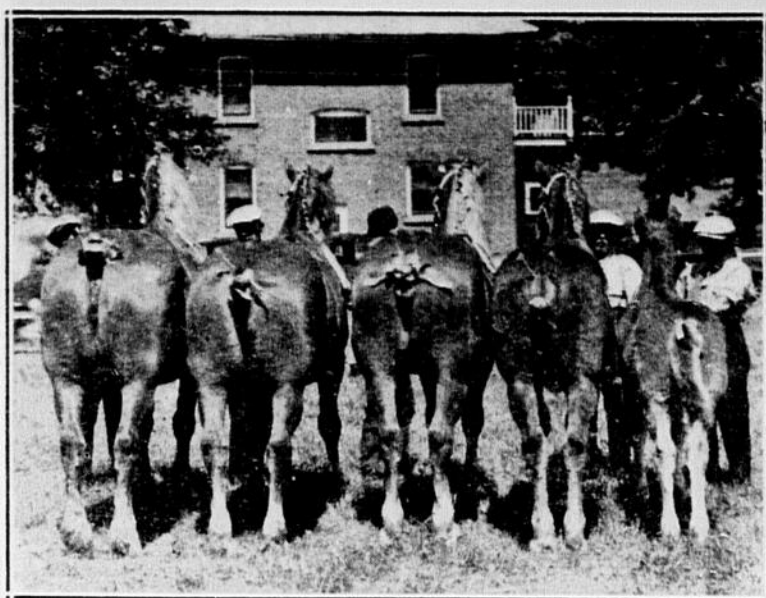

Finally came our new Sovereign and his Queen, with the solemn expression of two young people who had just dedicated their lives to a great cause; swearing to serve their people and their God.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Steele, Garnet and Marjorie of Bedford visited for a few days with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. McGregor, two sons, Gordon and Willie, of Hamilton, Ont., Mrs. Fred Mathews and son—Paul, of Toronto spent the latter part of last week at the home of Mr. James Logan.

The annual Georgetown Sunday School picnic was held Saturday on the church grounds. The day being perfect, a large crowd attended, especially children. A basket lunch was served at noon and races were run during the afternoon.

Week-end guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Dickenson were Mr. Charles R. E. Gay, Miss Kathleen Gay, and Masters Donald Gay of New London, N.H., and Mrs. C. A. Rowe of Atlanta, Georgia, who will remain for the summer.

Imported Belgian mare Vervienne de Wielsbeke with four of her progeny. These five animals were all prize winners in their classes at Ormstown Exhibition. Owned by E. C. Budge, Ste. Genevieve, Que.

CONSTIPATION IS A MISERABLE THING!

It takes the pep right out of you—makes you feel tired and irritable—ready to worry over the slightest thing.

Yet it can be corrected in most cases so easily. Common constipation is usually caused by lack of "bulk" in the foods you eat.

Millions of people have learned that Kellogg's All-Bran ends constipation by putting "bulk" back in the diet. Within the body, All-Bran absorbs twice its weight in water, forming a soft mass and gently sponging out the system.

Kellogg's All-Bran also furnishes vitamin B to tone the intestines and iron for the blood.

Two table-spoonfuls daily as a cereal with milk or cream, or in recipes, are sufficient. Three times daily in severe cases.

Sold at all grocers and guaranteed by Kellogg in London.

By having produced a total of 100,198 lbs. milk, 4,515 lbs. butterfat, 4.46 per cent, in 2,589 milking days, St. Blain Printaniere becomes the nineteenth Canadian Ayrshire cow to win these two honours for her owner. It may also be of interest to note that Mr. Beauchemin is the first French Canadian Ayrshire breeder to attain these honours.

Huntingdon Wins 4-2 In Six Innings

Locals Bunch Five Hits To Score Decisively Over Malone Chiefs

Five bunched hits including a double in the fifth inning of the game provided enough punch to give the Huntingdon baseball team a 4-2 victory over the Malone Chiefs in a six inning game at the local diamond Sunday afternoon.

The visitors took an early lead when they combined a single and an error in the second inning to score two runs and their margin seemed safe enough until Marlow weakened in the fifth. The game was called at the end of the sixth to enable Malone to get an early start for a game they had scheduled in Valleyfield against Le Lac du Quebec-New York League team.

Working under a blistering sun neither pitcher seemed to have too much control and there were only five strikeouts during the entire game. Marlow got two of these and gave up 10 hits, while Zachar had three and yielded 4 hits.

Huntingdon scored one run in the second inning, on singles by W. Zachar and Tommy Roy after Malone had put two runs across the plate in their help on one hit and an error. Stehnech got a free pass to first when he was struck by one of Zachar's wild throws and he went to third on Plummer's single to right. When Gavin dropped Fish's long fly to centre both runners scored.

The visitors got three more hits off Zachar but were unable to score again.

Huntingdon's big inning was the fifth. Marlow got into trouble right at the beginning when he ran into four solid singles off the bats of Elder, Bush and Zachar brothers and then Dave Watson added the finishing touch with a smashing double to centre to top off the rally.

The local line-up showed three new faces, among whom were two local ball players, Tommy Roy and Dave Watson, both of Atholstan, showed up well. The former played a steady game at third and knocked out one timely single that scored Huntingdon's first run. The latter's double tore a big hole in Marlow's pitching job and his running catch of Stehnech's smash to right field in the last inning was the fielding piece of the afternoon. Stehnech, one of the Malone Stars pitchers was used in right field by the chiefs. He was carried by the team to pitch in Valleyfield.

Valleyfield Surprises By Downing NDG

Play Flashy Brand of Ball To Defeat Opponents By 10-8 Score

The biggest surprise in the Quebec-New York League over the week-end was undoubtedly the victory of the new entrants, the Belleville team over the power Notre-Dame squad in a regular league fixture played in Montreal. The score at the end of the 9th inning was 10-8. The Belleville team which had displayed a good brand of ball in a regular league game, Sunday had all their supporters know that they "were in the league."

Notre-Dame, who had taken a three-point lead early in the game saw their lead disappear in the third inning when Medard Cousineau's players scored four runs and took the lead which they kept till the end of the contest. The Belleville boys made sure of the game in the sixth inning when they scored three runs on three safe hits and three errors.

The game ended without any further changes in spite of all the home team's efforts to even the count.

At Beauharnois, Valleyfield inflicted another defeat on Beauharnois and added another victory to their long list when they defeated the home team by a 13-6 score. This victory combined with the defeat of the Notre-Dame aggregation brought the Valleyfield team, piloted by Lucien Leduc, close to second place.

George Smith was very effective on the mound for the winners while his team mates profited by Guise's offerings to assure him of victory.

The only other scheduled contest in the league on Sunday was between the Italian Aces and Lachine. The latter won this game 12-2. Lachine scored six runs in the last half of the third to win.

Malone Loses

That same evening in Valleyfield at the Fair Grounds, the local team defeated Malone 9-8. Valleyfield won this fixture in the eighth inning when they scored five runs after trailing during the greater part of the game.

Ellen Gets Her Man

[PAS]

Chapter 9

Her gaze was drawn again to the terrible drama before her. Unconsciously she started forward. Whitlows' hand locked on her arm and dragged her back. "Wait!" he rasped. "Wait!"

Benham's hands, locked about Deteroux's wrists until the backs of them were bloodless and rigid like steel, seemed to be dragging some of that awful pressure from his tortured eyes. He seemed to be gathering himself for super-human effort.

Abruptly one knee drove upwards into Deteroux's body. A gasp broke from the bigger man. He cringed slightly, and Benham tore himself free.

Benham's eyes were swollen, almost shut. For a split second both men seemed to pause and gather themselves. Then Deteroux charged again, snarling like a wolf to the kill.

With one lithe, twisting movement Benham bent sharply at the waist and hurled himself forward, his right arm shooting out, a hard driven, muscle-ridge piston.

Just below the arch of Deteroux's lower ribs the blow landed, and the "chock" of it was awesome. A hoarse, bubbling cry of pain erupted from Deteroux, his knees wobbled, and his head dropped forward. He retched violently, and blood-stained saliva seeped through his lips.

"He's got him—the boy's got him now," was Whitlows' jubilant cry. Swiftly alive to his advantage,

Moosac's desperate lunge carried him through to his goal

Benham tore at his opponent, a merciless, implacable machine. Setting himself, he ripped sledge-hammer blows into Deteroux's sagging chin. Slowly, ponderously, the big man seemed to crumple. His eyes were rolling and glassy, his mouth open and his lips peeled back in a grimace of fading consciousness.

Like an executioner before the block, Benham cut Deteroux down. Bit by bit he beat him lower until Deteroux's body was bent into a crouch and his nervous arms swung helpless at his sides.

There was something almost magnificent in the manner that Deteroux called upon his great strength and vitality to stave off defeat. Out on his feet he crumpled about him, his muscles subconsciously holding his body from utter collapse.

Abruptly Benham stopped his attack. His bloody, tight-locked fists fell to his sides. With a shrugging gesture he turned away, and without a look back he strode toward the crowd and was gone. And in that moment of magnanimity John Benham was also unconsciously magnificent.

By all rules of conflict he was entitled to go on with his triumph until human existence could no longer exist, and Deteroux should lie supine at his feet. But he, too, could appreciate sheer, dogged courage, even in a man like Deteroux, who had not hesitated to take unfair advantage.

In that refusal to batter further a helpless man John Benham felt behind him a white glow of sportsmanship which seemed to dissipate the blood-red haze of conflict.

Ellen saw Whitlows step forward, grip Deteroux by the arm and force him to the ground. The milling crowd of Indians closed about them, and Ellen found herself alone.

Drawn by what seemed a resistless force, she moved in the direction John Benham had gone. She peered into tepees as she went, but nowhere did she see him. Unconsciously she hurried her pace. And then, below the camp at the edge of the lake, she found him.

He was crouched low, and beside him was the same ancient squaw, gently sponging his battered face and body with the icy lake water.

Timidly Ellen approached the pair. The old squaw looked at her in frank hostility. Then she turned again to her ministrations, crooning with pagan gentleness. Finally Benham looked up. His eyes were terribly bloodshot and swollen. Ellen gasped with pity, and her hands fluttered to her throat. It was Benham who spoke.

"Yes?" he queried, his voice slightly thick. He was still panting from his exertions.

Many words trembled on Ellen's lips, strange, hot, thrilling words—but somehow she could not utter them.

Yearning swayed her, yearning to crouch at his side, to take his battered head in her arms and spread the healing balm of love on every bruise and cut. But there was a certain harness in Benham's expression which fended her off.

Now he laughed, harshly. "You may have him," he muttered. "He's paid to me, the dog."

"I may have him?" stammered Ellen. "I don't know what you mean."

"You should," was Benham's curt reply. "When the fight was coming my way you cried for me to stop. And I did, and it gave him a chance to get the upper hand for a time." He pointed to his eyes. "He did his best to blind me—and nearly succeeded. But I beat him—with these," and he lifted his two hard fists. "It was a satisfaction long, over-due, but it was worth the waiting. Yes—I'm through with him. And he's yours."

Ellen's thoughts were chaotic. What madness was this? True, she had cried out when Benham was winning, but she had not meant it to save Deteroux from punishment. It was just the eternal woman in her voicing an overwhelming repugnance to the utter brutality of it all. And—Benham thought she had cried out to have Deteroux.

Again Benham looked at her. "Was there anything else?" he asked curtly. "Despite your scorn and pride you have not hesitated to accept favours from a—half-breed. Remember that all your life, will you? That even a half-breed can be generous."

"You—you don't know what you are saying," Ellen sobbed.

"I ought to," he laughed grimly. "I'm giving you back your words."

He stood erect now, his splendid chest and shoulders gleaming wetly. "Come, baby," he said to the old squaw. And the two of them walked away.

When Ellen Mackay finally went back to the scene of the fight she was again weary and apathetic. Her face was pale, and her eyes were back-lustre and subdued. She moved slowly.

Deteroux was sitting with his back to a tree. His hands were clasped behind his knees, and Ellen could see the gleam of polished metal encircling his wrists.

He flashed a quick glance at her, whose favor men had vied with one another in jumping to her bidding, now had to plead for the favor of this man and was compelled to force herself upon his care when the favor was refused.

She remembered her tremulous fear when they had passed the cascades and she had brazenly revealed herself, certain in the knowledge that Benham could not return her to Athabasca Landing without serious delay and loss to himself.

Benham had been very kind and a gentleman when he discovered how she had thwarted him through the help of Pat McClatchney and Pierre Bouchard. He had said no words of blame and had not scolded or raged at her as many others would have done. She had offered to pay for her transportation and he had abruptly refused. She remembered now that certain glint of triumph that shone in his eyes as he told her, "My payment is assured. I'll exact my pound of flesh."

Ellen had not understood then, but she did now. Benham's pound of flesh had been paid by the flare of anger and the deep humiliation of her father when the old factor learned of his indebtedness to the man he hated most in all the world—John Benham, the free-trader. That had been the payment Benham expected, his revenge for her impertinence in stowing away on his boat, but the payment had been far heavier than that since she had discovered in her heart the deep regard she held for him. It was love—love almost at first sight, she now realized.

Benham had leaped ashore to secure hired boats and fashions, a small enclosure on the boat to give her shelter and privacy. She had been touched by his consideration and thoughtfulness then, and again when they had stopped for the night and she had seen the level of a walk in the wild, uncharted wood and Benham, fearful of her safety, had waited for her return in spite of the fatigue from the heavy day's work.

It was a shock to the town when the news spread of the sudden death of Mrs. Chas. Duncan, of Westmount, who had been visiting with her sister-in-law, Mrs. Wm. Kerr. The deceased had been in splendid health and had been doing a little garden work in the morning. After dinner had complained of a pain. Mrs. Kerr gave her remedies but did not seem to help her. Medical aid was called, but of no avail, she had passed away.

The deceased, who was 70, was Jessie Kerr before her marriage. Was born at Fertile Creek. Her husband pre-deceased her a few years ago. She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Henry Smith, Montreal, who is well known at Howick and has the sympathy of the people.

Old Lady Tells Secret of Her Vigor

The writer of the following letter once suffered from rheumatism, headaches, and depression. Then one day a vigorous old lady told her the secret of good health. And now the writer is again vigorous.

She remembered her tremulous fear when they had passed the cascades and she had brazenly revealed herself, certain in the knowledge that Benham could not return her to Athabasca Landing without serious delay and loss to himself.

Benham had been very kind and a gentleman when he discovered how she had thwarted him through the help of Pat McClatchney and Pierre Bouchard. The regular monthly meeting of the United Church Woman's Missionary Society met on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Reese. The theme of the programme was "Jesus at Home in Canada" and was of special interest, all the members present shared in the service.

The programme was given by Mrs. E. B. Gardiner, monologue, the two Thompson sisters, song with piano accompaniment, and selections by the orchestra, who also rendered a few numbers just before the close of the supper hour. Rev. J. H. Lynn extended a vote of thanks to all who helped make the evening a success. Proceeds amounted to $75.15.

On Sunday the United Church congregation was favored with having as guest speaker at the morning service the Rev. Dr. Cameron of Ottawa, Ont. Dr. Cameron is clerk of the Presbyterian Presbytery of Ottawa and also chaplain of city hospitals. Although advanced in years, being an octogenarian, Dr. Cameron still retains the fire and vigor of a man much younger in years.

He preached from the text, "I thirst," from which he derived many useful lessons for the benefit of his hearers. Dr. Cameron was introduced by Rev. J. H. Lynn, the regular pastor, who conducted the regular part of the service prior to Dr. Cameron's address. During his stay in Dundee, Dr. Cameron was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Steven, also spending part of his time with Mrs. Jessie Vass, Mr. and Mrs. John Fleming and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Fleming.

In the evening a Young People's service was held. Mr. Lorne MacKay, Presbyterian student, was the guest speaker for the occasion. Ashton's last year as principal in the Consolidated School, the pupils of Grades 8, 9, 10, 11, presented her with a gold filled watch bracelet. The annual Strawberry Social held in the United Church on Friday evening under the auspices of the Board of Managers, was a decided success. The weatherman provided ideal weather for the evening event so a good crowd turned out to enjoy the strawberries and other refreshments served by the ladies. It was rather unfortunate that the electric power went off just at dusk and did not come on again until shortly after 10 p.m. However, the difficulty of emergency lighting equipment was solved by securing several Aladdin lamps and others of a smaller type. At the close of the supper hour, Rev. J. H. Lynn, acting as chairman, called the gathering together to hear a short programme.

The outside clergy were represented by Rev. J. H. Woodside of Kensington and Rev. J. H. Miller, D.D. of Huntingdon, whom everyone was pleased to see in good health again after his recent illness. Mr. Lorne MacKay, Presbyterian student in Dundee spoke briefly. Others who participated in the program were: Mrs. H. A. Cameron, sketch, Mrs. E. B. Gardiner, monologue, the two Thompson sisters, song with piano accompaniment, and selections by the orchestra, who also rendered a few numbers just before the close of the supper hour. Rev. J. H.
