WMA picks

Centennial House Project

As best contest entry—mayor to study proposal

THE WINNER: Mrs. V. J. Wright, winner of The Examiner Centennial Contest, accepts the first prize cheque of $100 from Hugh Mount, left, general manager of the paper. Looking on is Charles Aspler, centre, president of the Westmount Municipal Association. It was his association that picked Mrs. Wright's idea for a Centennial House as the contest winner.

Mrs. V. J. Wright, 475 Prince Albert avenue, was announced the winner of The Examiner's Centennial Contest this week by the Westmount Municipal Association.

She was awarded the $100 first prize The Examiner offered, by the paper's general manager, Hugh Mount, the same day the WMA announced its choice.

Mrs. Wright's project idea was that the City of Westmount purchase an old home and turn it into a Centennial House, a community centre.

The WMA has forwarded the idea as its choice to the mayor to read over and discuss with the council.

In her contest letter, Mrs.

Wright stated, "The possibilities for use in a project of this sort are endless. Obviously, Centennial House could incorporate a small 'history of Westmount' or Canadian Museum, but that is far from enough. The centre should be a living entity in the community, looking ahead as well as back."

She went on to suggest such things as an art gallery, with evening and Saturday classes in art, a small auditorium for concerts and amateur productions. Extension classes were also mentioned in such fields as languages, astronomy and wine-tasting, garden parties during the summer and a gourmet restaurant during the winter.

In announcing the winner, Charles Aspler, president of the WMA, said in a letter to The Examiner.

The special committee of the Westmount Municipal Association which was set up to study the aspects of a centennial project for the City of Westmount presented its recommendations to the Executive Committee at its meeting this week. The recommendation was adopted by the Executive and has been forwarded to the Mayor.

The opinion of the special committee that the idea of the City purchasing and preserving an old house in the City of Westmount was suggested first in a letter by Mrs. V. J. Wright of 475 Prince Albert Avenue. The committee included this as a recommended project along with two others as alternate choices, in the event that it would be impossible to acquire a suitable old house.

I would like to take this opportunity of expressing my thanks to Mr. John Sancton, publisher of The Westmount Examiner, for initiating the contest and thus obtaining for our special committee numerous possibilities contained in letters submitted to your newspaper.

Three home and school associations to meet

The Members of the Westmount Protestant School Board will take part in a panel discussion with the Board's Chairman, W. H. Bradley, Q.C., acting as moderator, on Jan. 24 at 8 p.m. at Westmount High School.

The respective responsibilities of the Protestant School Board of Greater Montreal, the Westmount School Board, the school Principal, and with reference to the Provincial Department of Education, will be the subjects.

The School Board welcomes this opportunity of hearing from parents, and there will be a discussion period following the speakers.

In this respect it would be helpful if written questions could either be mailed to Mr. J. L. Porter, 87 Windsor Ave, or handed in at the Auditorium

At WMA meeting:

Housing and zoning action postponed

At the regular monthly meeting of the Westmount Municipal Association's executive committee, which was held recently, the question of high rise buildings in the Forest Hills-Cote des Neiges area of Montreal adjacent to Westmount's boundary was brought up again. It was felt that nothing could be done about this matter until such time as a planning committee under authority of a regional council is set up.

A letter was received by the WMA regarding air pollution. A lengthy discussion took place as to what the Association could do to recommend improvements. The chairman of this committee was asked to obtain further information and to report again at the next meeting.

Membership

A total of 2,091 paid-up members was reported to date.

A letter suggesting improvements to traffic in the Western Avenue area and adjacent streets was received. This mat-

Sunderland to be urban consultant

The City of Westmount announced yesterday that Goldyn Sunderland, town planning and housing adviser, has been retained as consultant for preparation of the urban renewal scheme projected for the southern area of the municipality.

Mr. Sunderland, who was on the staff of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation for six years, will begin the $45,000 study immediately and complete it by June 30.

It is anticipated that half the cost of the scheme will be borne by the City of Westmount, and CMHC, through provincial authorities, is being asked to finance the remaining 50 per cent. The work will be carried out in close cooperation with Federal and Provincial authorities.

The urban renewal scheme contemplated by Westmount covers a 90-acre site south of St. Catherine street from Atwater avenue to the Glen. Priority will be given to the Selby street area, where properties have been expropriated for the east-west section of the Trans-Canada Highway.

The scheme is designed to develop a plan involving orderly redevelopment, rehabilitation and conservation of the area.

Sunderland is a member of the Corporation of Urbanists of Quebec and an associate member

Lorimer, Patrick take speech contest awards

By JEFFREY GODINE
 Great ability was shown by the students of Westmount High in a Public Speaking Contest on Tuesday the eleventh. A separate contest was held for the girls and another for the boys. Outside judges presided.
 The contest began at 2:15 p.m.

The senior was excused from class so that they could attend the event. The contest lasted for about one and a quarter hours.
Judges for the boys contest were Mrs. Pilkington, and Mr. J. G. S. Brash. Mrs. Pilkington is a professor of English at Sir George Williams University. Mr. Brash was the former Supervisor of English Department of Education of Quebec.

Presiding over the girls competition were three former teachers at Westmount: Mrs. J. Ryan, Mr. J. K. Snyder, and Mrs. E. Earle.

Graham Lorimer talked on Interstellar Space Travel and won first prize for the boys! Richard Lande took second place and Martin Heppner, third with the topics, Work Wealth and Leisure, and Challenge to Leadership, respectively.

First prize of the girl's contest was given to Nancy Patrick, who talked on the Analysis of Handwriting. Lesli Josephson took second place. Lesli spoke on Loneliness.

Tieing for third place were Joanna Symons and Gillian Coupland. Joanna introduced the Living Conditions in Hong Kong. Gillian talked on puns and effectively ended her speech with a circle of that type of wit.

All contestants are to be commended for their choice of topics and their delivery.

On Saturday the ninth, Students from Verdun and Westmount High schools came to the latter for their SAT (Scholastic Aptitude Test) exams. The total number of students was about 200.

During the afternoon of that same Saturday, students again gathered for the Achievements Tests. These results will come out in about five weeks. Copies will be sent to the colleges indicated by the students, one will be put in the permanent records and one other will be given to the student.

Another set of Achievement exams will be available at Westmount on March 5.

Last Wednesday, the twelfth, interviews with the teachers were offered to the parents of West-mount Students. Close to 700 meeting took place. As usual the majority of the discussions concerned Math and French.

A group of 44 parents guided the mothers and fathers through the halls. The people were organized by Mrs. Musto.

The McGill Red & White Revue, oldest college revue in Canada, will be presented at Moyses Hall, McGill University from Feb. 3 - 9. As in the past years, the Revue is written, composed, and acted solely by students. Director-choreographer, Wally Burgess and lighting director, Art Moretti are the only professional members of the company.

The 1966 Revue, entitled "Here a Fair, Their Affair" is a musical comedy dealing with Montreal's experiences with world exhibitions. In 1896 the Mayor of Montreal, the renome Villeneuve attempted to stage a world's fair in Montreal. Many countries pledged pavilions, and the Mayor had plans for a large tower to be a symbol of the fair. With great enthusiasm, Villeneuve set out for Ottawa to seek financial support of the Federal Government. Unfortunately, Parliament vetoed the Mayor's plan by a small majority, one of the principal reasons that Montreal has had to wait seventy years for a world's fair.

The current '66 Revue deals with Villeneuve, his plans, his entourage and the petty intrigues and scandals which abounded under the surface of the staid Victorian era. By staging two scenes (the first and the last) in the year 1967, a parallel is drawn between the two world's fairs — with the exception that Expo '67 will take place.

As in past years, Westmounters have played an integral part in the production of the Revue. Jeremy Lach of Cedar avenue is this year's production manager, a position which involves general management and direction of the Revue including sets, costumes, lighting and stage crew and is especially hectic during the Revue's actual run. Jeremy, a third year Arts student, has had vast experience in past Revues ranging from acting in the Chorus of the 1963 Revue, working on lighting in 1964, and managing publicity in last year's production.

Anne Surchin of Grosvenor avenue, a third year arts student at McGill, graduated from Westmount High School, where her interests were music and drama. She was a dancer in the Chorus of the 1965 Revue and will play one of the Expo tour guides in this year's Revue

Lt. Col. H. A. Ethridge new R. M. R. commander

The Royal Montreal Regiment, Westmount, which celebrated its 50th anniversary in 1964, will get a new commanding officer in a ceremonial parade on the evening of January 20 in the St. Catherine street Armoury. Lt. Col. H. A. Ethridge, CD, will take command from Lt. Col. D. W. Ward, CD, who is retiring after more than 31 years of army service.

The Royal Montreal Regiment was formed in August, 1914, from companies of the Canadian Grenadier Guards, the Victoria Rifles of Canada and the Carabiniers Mont-Royal (now the Fusiliers Mont-Royal) and became the 14th Battalion, 3rd Canadian Infantry Brigade, 1st Canadian Division, which later evolved as the Royal Montreal Regiment.

The unit won many battle honours in World War I. During World War II, members of the regiment served with many other units throughout the war in Africa and Europe, although it did not go into action as a unit.

Headquarters of the unit is at 4625 St. Catherine street west, in Westmount. There is a detached company in Ste. Anne de Bellevue.

In 1964 the regiment received its new regimental colours from Governor-General George Vanier in a parade held in Westmount Park as part of its 50th anniversary celebrations. The flag contains 25 battle honours, 21 from the First World War and four from the Second World War.

Lieutenant-Colonel H. A. Ethridge was born in London, England, in 1924. From 1942 to 1946 he served with the Royal Air Force as a navigator in Coastal Command. He came to Canada in 1947 and joined the Winnipeg Light Infantry as an officer cadet in 1951. The following year he came to Montreal where he transferred to the Royal Montreal Regiment.

Lt. Col. Ethridge completed the Militia Field Officers Course in 1963 and the Militia Course in 1965. In addition to his new command, he is also an instructor on the Militia Staff Course.

In civilian life, Lt. Col. Ethridge is System Supervising Editor, Employees Communications, Canadian National Railways. He has been with British United Press, CFCF Radio and the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

He is married to the former Helen Gordon Dunbar of Verdun. They have two children, David Gordon, 16, and Wendy Victoria, 11.

Lieutenant-Colonel D. W. Ward, retiring commanding officer is a former commanding officer of the Sherbrooke Regiment (M), Royal Canadian Armoured Corps, where he was the third-generation Ward to be with the unit. His grandfather was a colour sergeant in the 1890's and his father was a Corporal during the First World War. In addition, two uncles served during the First World War with the regiment.

Lt. Col. Ward was born in Sherbrooke in 1920 and educated there. He joined the Sherbrooke Regiment as signaller and drummer boy in 1934, serving continuously in the ranks until he was commissioned in 1941.

During the Second World War, Lt. Col. Ward volunteered for service with the British Army (Canloan) and served with the 1st Battalion, Royal Leicestershire Regiment in England and North West Europe, where he was wounded in 1944. Following convalescence in England, he served with the 9th Battalion, Royal Warwickshire Regiment in North-west Ireland, training for service in the Far East. He attended Sandhurst Staff College, Camberley, while with the British army.

Lt. Col. Ward returned to Canada and was discharged in December, 1945, but rejoined the Sherbrooke Regiment in January, 1946. He served continuously in the regiment, except for one year until February, 1963, when he moved to Montreal.

In early 1963 he reverted to the rank of Major to serve in Montreal with the Victoria Rifles of Canada and in August, 1963 again became a Lt. Col. to take command of the Royal Montreal Regiment.

In civilian life Lt. Col. Ward is personnel manager of Fleetwood Corporation, Town of Mount Royal. He and his wife have two children, Joyce, 21, and William, 16, who is also training with the Royal Montreal Regiment.

WE SAY

'Centennial House' an excellent idea

CONGRATULATIONS to Mrs. V. J. Wright, a comparative newcomer to Westmount by local standards, for her perception in appreciating the historical value of older homes of our City and, at the same time, seeing the need for a centre for various community activities.

By combining these two thoughts, Mrs. Wright submitted the prize-winning idea in the search for a Centennial project for the City of Westmount.

Commendation also is due to the Westmount Municipal Association for grasping the waning opportunity to find a worthwhile way in which Westmount might mark Canada's 100th birthday, and so promptly making its selection from the various excellent ideas submitted.

We are glad that The Examiner had a part in this exercise, and that one of our readers, a Prince Albert avenue resident, has been recognized.

Of course, selection does not guarantee fruition. The WMA was passed Mrs. Wright's suggestion onto the executive committee of the City Council, but it is to be hoped that that body will show the same alacrity in giving its stamp of approval and putting the plan into action.

A project that looks both back and forward is particularly commendable for an occasion such as 1967, and ideally suited to Westmount with its "abundance of handsome and irreplaceable old buildings" — to quote Mrs. Wright's submission. "A community centre with a difference" — museum, art gallery, extension school, youth

Cartoon on Abbey held an 'atrocious'

Sir: I have in front of me the January 6, 1966, copy of The Westmount Examiner to which I am a subscriber.

On your editorial page, there is a cartoon having reference to Westminster Abbey. Regardless of the origin of this cartoon, I am led to wonder as to how low a standard of ethics can you subscribe, to permit the publication in any of your newspapers of such an atrocity, which reflects neither humor nor good taste.

H. C. Kent

(The cartoon, by Jak, is from the Evening Standard, London, England, a popular and generally respected newspaper. — Ed.)

Catholic taxpayers have cloudy future

Sir: Roman Catholic school taxes have in some cases more than doubled in one year. The Gazette Tuesday cited one case of an owner whose tax rose from $187 to $465. Several people have told me of their taxes rising from $300 to $700 in the year, and a man I know with a very modest property has seen his tax bill rise from $99 to $215. This is inflation with a vengeance.

Commissioners are quoted, in The Gazette, as saying that in the future these taxes may go still higher. They note there have been expropriations in lower Westmount, and old houses owned by Roman Catholics have been demolished and replaced by apartments.

They are revealing a pattern for the future which may create an intolerable position. Each year there will be fewer and fewer Roman Catholic taxpayers, and each year for those who are left the taxes will rise until they become unmanageable.

Add one or two cents to the price of a bottle of beer or a package of cigarets, and you have an outcry. No finance minister in his right mind would dare double the price of such items which are not, after all, necessities.

There is a common misconception that all property centre, maybe even a gourmet restaurant, but above all "offer lively attractions for every age group."

Well done, Mrs. Wright. Over to you, City Hall.

owners are necessarily rich people. Many who are buying or have bought their homes are people with fixed incomes who do not benefit from fairly general increases in salaries or wages. They took into careful account all the factors when they elected to buy their homes in Westmount, including the taxes. If they were to be forced out of Westmount, it is more than likely that they would be succeeded by non-Roman Catholics, and then these payments would have to be borne by even fewer people. There would seem to be no end to such a pattern.

Academie St Léon and St. Paul's Academy are two fine schools. They both have excellent teachers and it is right that the schools and teachers should be well supported. That is not in dispute.

But, if the school commissioners cannot devise a more imaginative way of producing income, the possibility arises that within a few years the socio-economic structure from which they derive their income might collapse. Gross over-taxation has destroyed communities as well as nations before. It could happen again, in Westmount.

Modest Taxpayer

(By the mysteries of the post office — Christmas mail confusion? — the above letter was posted at the main Montreal Post Office on Dec. 14 and reached The Examiner office Monday, Jan. 16. We think it still topical. — Ed.)

Gradual change in public attitude

Sir: Christmas 1965 may well be calendared as the best yet for all patients in the Adult and Children's Services of Douglas Hospital — a reflection of the growing interest and sympathy of individuals, groups and associations in the community towards our patients. It was a heart-warming and rewarding experience for every one of our staff, and was evidence of a greatly enlightened public, interested in the welfare of the hundreds of patients who are mentally ill.

This is but one example of the gradual change in public attitude towards mental illness and mental hospitals, being brought about in no small measure by the news media whose personnel are interpreting to the public the events and special news about Douglas Hospital. We sincerely appreciate your continuing support and understanding of this special

1,600,000 dimes are sought

Quebec March of Dimes has placed 10,000 collection cans, and 5,000 coin-catching cards in public buildings throughout the city.

March of Dimes campaign opened on Saturday, January 15, and lasts until January 31. During that time you are asked to put your contribution into the slot of a collection can, or to send it to March of Dimes office at 1253 McGill College in Montreal.

The objective to be reached is $160,000. The money goes to help handicapped people, by providing them with necessary wheel chairs, crutches, prosthetic appliances. Thousands of dollars go to aid research in Quebec's Rehabilitation centres, and to help those crippled by disease or accident to reach hospital, doctor, or rehabilitation clinic.

Five physiotherapists are paid by March of Dimes to travel daily into the country areas, bringing treatment to those who live too far from the regular hospital areas. Quebec March of Dimes has given equipment to the Oral School for the Deaf in Montreal, and subsidizes the salary of the teacher who uses it. These are just a few of the many avenues used by Quebec March of Dimes of help the handicapped.

emphasis on housing — London's face is still changing fast.

And even though stagnation may be on the way, the skyline will be further transformed this year. That spectacular private blocks along Route 11 in the City. The Greater London Council will be cladding new blocks of flats with plastic.

But what about 1965? Anyone who has time to take his or her eyes off the seething traffic mass has no doubt got favourites and distinct unfavourites among the newcomers. So have I. So have Michael Floyd and Peter Slaski, two London architects.

Impact . . .

We got together and happily pulled to pieces the ones we reckoned had made a positive impact on the street scene. Obviously this is a highly personal assessment. And it would not be everybody's choice of buildings. But this is how we see London at the beginning of 1966.

The Paternoster Development by St. Paul's Cathedral comes in for heavy drubbing — and not because Juxon House stands squatly out in front of Wren's great church. I know it will one day hinge on to an imaginative City network of pedways for people on foot. But whenever I go there, the new cathedral square seems so terribly big and bleak with its slabs of concrete and collection of only partly tenanted shops.

Michael Floyd's conclusion: "Disappointing. It's an example of the mania for piazzas and frankly piazzas don't work in this country. This sort of monumentality is the result of people thinking that, if you go to see a big national monument, it's such a mighty (or almighty) building that you mustn't do anything near it that's faintly human — like eating ice-cream."

He reckons it could be vastly improved if someone erected a covered market in the centre with kiosks and a Wimpy bar.

Peter Slaski: "They have solved the separation of traffic and pedestrians but lost all the activity. The surrounding streets at one time had a local life. ("There used to be a typical English close," Michael Floyd finds himself faced on one side with tremendous traffic and on the other with the blank wall of an office building.

"It was full of life during the lunchtime. They have completely ruined this and produced a desolate area. The character of the City as it exists at the moment is little alleyways all higgledy-piggledy. This should have been repeated here."

Top marks

Neither thinks too much of the buildings themselves, designed

Street, a very urban development by the Smithsons, which was officially opened in 1964 but settled down in 1965. "Really sophisticated," says Peter Slaski. "One of the two outstanding buildings in the centre of London in recent years," says Michael Floyd. (The other is Denys Lasdun's Royal College of Physicians beside Regent's Park).

The No. 1 office tower has to be Centre Point, the 385 ft. concrete honeycomb skyscraper at St. Giles' Circus that climbed so high, so quickly that even the tight-mouthed developers could scarcely complain when people began to notice it. Anyway, it's up and it's got lots to say to the new London — though it's a bit short on tall neighbors.

What it will be like when the influx of new office workers arrives and tries to get on to the island is a bit worrying, to put it mildly. But the actual building is jazzy and modern, not great but much better than the general run, as is its round sister tower down in Kingsway by the same firm of architects, R. Seifert and Partners. Incidentally, this jaunty block will be sadly hidden in the narrow streets behind, when the rest of the development lines up with the corridor of buildings in Kingsway itself.

The two architects are less enthusiastic than I about Centre Point though the very fact that they think it worth criticism may cheer up Mr. Seifert.

"It's got away from the match-box image," says Michael Floyd. "One can't expect every building that goes up to be a masterpiece. For a speculative tall building, it's a great relief to see that quality and imagination being put into it."

The GPO tower is a most welcome oddity, unexpectedly poking up above the skyline all over the capital. It seems like some great futuristic invader which happened to settle in the back streets off Tottenham Court Road. There is a particularly fine view of Benn's candlestick at sunset from Lloyd Square, looking across the dip of Farringdon Road.

"Great run," says Michael Floyd, "particularly the top part where it's all nobbly. It's a very good addition to London's skyline."

St. Paul's news shorts

By LYNN CHAPMAN

Our next basketball game will be Monday, Jan. 25. We are playing against Sacred Heart. The battlefield will be St. Paul's, at 4 o'clock. Our team is eagerly looking forward to the game, hoping for a challenging, lively, and exciting match. Even so, the bets are as usual laid in support of St. Paul's.

The Y.C.S. intends to sponsor Assemblies in the not too distant future. They will be held regularly, probably every week. Reports will be expected from each of the various clubs. Any announcements or details of upcoming activities will also be reported.

In regard to this happening, all school organizations are eagerly searching out new projects. In each, they are proposing improvements which will, they hope, attract new members. Clubs have been dormant for a while because of the concurrent first term exams and Christmas. Now they are coming to life with an even greater vigor.

Basketball team slaughtered St. Thomas Aquinas team with a score of 85 to 20. The bantams also won, however not so spectacularly, with a score of 28 to 23 against John Grant High.

The girls are also showing skill at basketball. The Juniors won against Verdun 46-17. The Intermediate team victored 21 to 12 against Outremont. The Seniors also beat Outremont High 22 to 15.

HOCKEY

The Bantam team triumphed 2-1 in a battle with Verdun. The senior team won against Verdun 3-1 and tied with St. Leo's one all.

Floor hockey teams have been organized for Westmount boys. Seniors will play on Mondays and Wednesdays and Juniors on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Plans for the Winter Carnival are being formed. Several councils have already been held. It will take place on February 3 and 4.

In reverse to previous years, the traditional hockey will be played on the Thursday and the basketball game on the Friday. Other than that the programme will run as in the past.

Westmounters are striving hard for a good Senior Show. Rehearsals are taking place early in the morning and after school. As in the past the show will have a triple theme.

Hedges

The regulations governing fences also govern hedges. There are, however, a few that apply to hedges alone.

(a) a hedge may be planted along the side line of a property to not less than three feet from the sidewalk.

(b) hedges on the property lines bordering streets or public places must be trimmed to a maximum of five feet in height and so as not to overhang the property line.

(c) no fence, hedge, bush, shrub, etc. will be permitted in a position where it may prevent the driver of a vehicle on any street from having an unobstructed view, for a reasonable distance, of traffic approaching on an intersecting street.

The word salary comes from "salarium" meaning salt money, since Roman soldiers received part of their pay in salt.

Birdland:

Ears and eyes are giveaway

by WINNIFRED WILSON

Voices of small birds flying overhead caused us to look up and see a flock of some 40 Pine Siskins just about to disappear behind a grove of big birch trees. You might well ask how we recognized them at that height, because these are tiny birds — about the size of Warblers. The truth is that they were identified both by our ears and our eyes. Every member of the flock was rhythmically calling "tit-a-tit" with each undulation as it flew through the air, up and down like a Goldfinch. But the flight call of the Goldfinch is in four parts "par-chick-o-ree".

We hurried around the trees to find out if the Siskins had landed. Yes, there they were, perched on a large patch of tall weeds busily eating the seeds. They were so much interested in feeding that they allowed us to come within 25 feet of them. At that distance we were able to take in the details of their appearance when we focused our binoculars on them.

Dark brown streaks simply covered their bodies, they had a yellowish tinge, each wing had two white bars, and the dark tail was forked. We could not see any yellow patch in either wings or tail while they ate; but we knew that if we had had a closer look at them when flying, with wings spread these yellow spots would have been evident.

We of settled Canada are more apt to come upon Pine Siskins in winter than in summer. They breed in our northern coniferous forests or in mountain regions farther south where evergreens are found. Their habit is to travel about in flocks (sometimes several hundred together). This they do at any season, and in winter are often joined by Goldfinches, Redpolls, and Crossbills. In this they are consistent; but they are quite erratic both in their time and place of breeding and in their choice of winter travel. To see them in a certain spot at a certain time one year does not mean that you will have that good fortune another year. They may be classed as irregular wanderers.

A strike, once the course of last resort, now seems the path of least resistance.

First girl joins 'Y' air rifle club

Our first girl has just joined the Air Rifle Club which meets every Saturday from 10:00-12:00 a.m. There are now thirteen boys and one girl registered. The more advanced marksmen are now starting to use "pellet guns" which are much more accurate.

We now have two instructors from the Westmount Police Department. They are Sergeant Ken Garrett and Sergeant Gerry McKenna. If any boy or girl 9-17 is interested in this group, please contact the Youth Secretary, Ron Watt not later than January 29th. Club fee is $2.00 and includes everything.

ARCHERY TEST

On Saturday, January 15, 1966 the final TEST was given to nine boys and girls who had been participating in the Westmount YMCA's FIRST Indoor Archery Program. Ninety percent of the youngsters "improved" over the first test given in the middle of November. The results are as follows:

Susan Weiss, 81%; Tim Khaner 79%; Peter Oeder, 75%; Glenn Souva, 73%; Roger Hobden 73%; Alex Hobden, 68%; Brant Cowell, 64%; Laura Baddeley, 62%; Murray Souva 62%.

There are still a few openings in the next Archery Course which starts at 2:00 p.m. on Saturday, January 29th. Registrations should be made well in advance to guarantee a place in the group. Instructors Peter Wilson and John Taylor hope that the second course is as good or better than the first course.

JUDO

Another 'new' program started last Wednesday evening from 7:00-8:00 p.m. It was Judo for boys 11-14 years of age. The response to this program was extremely good with the class being filled a week before the first class. A waiting list has been set-up and there is a possibility of a Saturday class if interest is high enough.

Please contact the Youth Secretary if you are interested. Sorry girls — this program is for BOYS ONLY.

Police nab trio with stolen car

Three Montreal men were arrested in Westmount and sent to Hawkesbury to stand trial for breaking and entering and car theft.

The three young men, well known to Westmount police when they were youths, were arrested when the stolen car, a 1958 make, was spotted on St. Antoine street.

"There were several cartons* of cigarets in the car and bottles of soft drinks, taken in the robbery," said one police official.

They have been taken back to Hawkesbury where they are awaiting trial.

A man began his appearance in Westmount court this week for a charge laid against him last October.

The man, who posed as an officer of the law, when questioned by Westmount police, was arrested for doing so, when it was learned that he was merely an investigator for a firm that buys debts and collects them.

"He was found last October on Westmount Mountain Look-out, in a car with a two-way radio, and all the extras that mean nothing," said police. The car was decked out with a flasher, orange, and several stickers.

Baby turtles require care

By Millicent Hickmore

Baby turtles make interesting pets, but most of us don't realize that these little creatures need special care — we wonder why they live such a short time. Thousands of these little reptiles are sold every year in pet shops and chain stores, where, as in the home, they are subjected unwittingly to much suffering.

Observing the turtles in an aquarium in a store close by, they have no mound on which to crawl and no shade to protect them when left in the sun for hours. Wondering about this, I contacted a West End woman, (who has made a study of rearing these little creatures), for some advice.

She tells me that the two most important factors to remember are temperature and food. A water temperature of 72 to 80 degrees throughout the day and night is recommended. Raw tender beef, raw fish or any cooked or canned fish, plus salad greens, should be fed, with a drop or two of cod liver oil added.

People, she said, don't seem to realize that these baby turtles come from the southern states and need more warmth in this cold climate.

She, herself has a turtle bought in a West End pet shop in 1955, it is a Florida turtle and is now over ten years old and weighs 12 pounds. This is quite a famous turtle as a growth rate like this turtle has not been recorded in captivity before, so turtle keepers need not worry about theirs growing to that size.

Baby turtles, she continued, suffer cruelly if not properly looked after — the bowl or aquarium should have a mound or two which the turtles can crawl up onto and although they love the sun, they should have a shady spot where they can take refuge when the sun becomes too hot — otherwise they literally become baked.

FOR MEN ONLY: Occasionally I am asked what this or that wedding anniversary stands for by a husband who has already been thrown a hint from the little woman. A woman never forgets her wedding anniversary, although she may forget the symbols and the appropriate gift to hint for on this special occasion. So here is a list of the symbols: 1st — paper; 2nd — cotton; 3rd — leather; 4th — fruit or flowers; 5th — wooden; 6th — sugar, candy; 7th — wool; 8th — pottery; 9th — willow; 10th — tin or aluminum; 15th — crystal; 20th — china; 25th — silver; 30th — pearl; 35th — coral; 40th — ruby; 45th — sapphire; 50th — golden; 55th — emerald; 60th — diamond; to 75th — diamond.

A special feature of this year's Candelabra Ball was the celebration of the auxiliary's 15th anniversary, and the lighting of the candles on a huge cake by past presidents of the auxiliary, and others closely associated with it.

The Travel Cart reported a most successful year not only financially but in terms of volunteer service, and Mrs. M. B. Eventide Home Auxiliary hears committee reports

At a recent meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of Eventide Home, splendid reports were given by the chairmen of the various committees as follows: Several letters of thanks from residents of the Home were read by the acting secretary, Mrs. M. H. Schade. The treasurer, Mrs. E. Bent reported a substantial balance on hand. Mrs. R. B. Porteous, chairman of the Birthday Shelf reported that 25 gifts had been presented to residents who celebrated birthdays in November and December. There are 92 paid up members in the auxiliary as reported by Mrs. A. Dunstan Russell, membership secretary. The chairman of the Tuck Shop, Mrs. F. J. Kelland, reported a fair profit from sales. Mrs. Bardo Gardner reported five very delightful entertainments had been held during the months of November and December which the residents greatly enjoyed. Mrs. D. R. Sutherland reported two successful Games Nights held since last meeting. Due to the resignation of Mrs. S. A. MacSween, chairman of the Visiting Committee which was regretfully accepted by the auxiliary, Mrs. Peter Shaughnessy read the report. The Visiting Committee is carrying on faithfully each Wednesday and the residents look forward to this day with pleasure. Mrs. R. B. Porteous, chairman of the Christmas Party, gave a wonderful report.

This was the big event of the year and a very happy occasion in every way for all concerned. The president, Mrs. C. N. Knowles thanked Mrs. Porteous on behalf of the auxiliary. Since the last meeting, Mrs. S. A. MacSween has entered 38 names of donors in the Record Book of Donations. The Home sincerely appreciated the new rug for the Visitors Room, the P.A. system for the auditorium and other items for the needs of the residents. The guest speaker was Mrs. Claire Frieseld who

MRS. J. E. LANDSBURG, convener of the Silver Sherry Party being sponsored by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the 15 Independent Signal Squadron which is taking place on Saturday, January 22 at 4.30 p.m., at 3 Hillside avenue, Westmount.

United Church Homes Auxiliary reports show great progress

The annual meeting of the Auxiliary of the United Church Homes was held recently in the Griffith-McConnell Auditorium. The committee chairmen reports showed an increase in membership, more volunteers working, and a good financial gain. Electric beds and a clothes dryer were donated to the infirmary, games equipment was supplied to both wings of the Home. Varied entertainment was provided for the guests of the Home and once a week, the residents worked on hobbies, such as ceramics, Christmas decorations, etc. The Beauty Parlor, staffed by volunteers, was a very busy place. The Tuck Shop is now serving tea to the residents and their friends and this is proving very popular. At the annual Christmas dinner each resident received a corsage and candy. Mr. W. B. Younkie, president of the corporation, told the auxiliary how much their work was appreciated.

Mrs. T. B. Cooper presented the following slate for election and it was accepted:

Honorary president, Mrs. A. M. Bain; president, Mrs. G. H. Dixon; 1st vice-president, Mrs. L. F. S. Ritey; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. W. H. Bradley; 3rd vice-president, Mrs. R. M. It remained to most passers-by the most unbuild building of the is once again under way now with concrete substituted for the unhappy steel (City of London

January 'blues' are few at Unity

By L. WILLIS

For most people January is a month which could easily be eliminated from the calendar.

With Christmas bills pouring in with each mail, cars not starting because of below zero temperatures, annual meetings following one on top of another, snowstorms, freezing rain, sniffles flu bugs, salt stained foot gear and porches filled with slush — in fact all the miseries of mid-winter.

However, this air of misery does not prevail at Unity. Once snow boots have been removed under protest at the front door and membership tickets eventually unearthed from the depths of a parka pocket, torn and snowy but still legible, activity begins in one form or another. The older members have their sports programs, the games room with ping pong tables and assorted other games is the scene of continuous fun and merriment with the odd squabble thrown in just to make us seem human.

The young fry have their group clubs and craft programs with Library twice a week. Many of the activities which were suspended over the Christmas Holidays have been resumed and others added so that here we forget what month it is and the weather outside.

Speaking of the Library, Mrs. Youngson reports that many books are missing from the stacks and requests that the culprits kindly return same.

SKATE BOARDING:

The Committee reported that the nominees of the WMA for school commissioners had been elected by acclamation.

The resignation of Mr. J. R. Nadeau a member of the executive committee due to pressure of business was noted.

Mr. Walter Schmidt, Chairman of the Housing and Zoning Committee attended the January 10th meeting of the Westmount Tenants' Association and reported on this.

Dr. B. A. Cooper then gave a lengthy report which was followed by much discussion on housing for the elderly, the project proposed by the Montreal Council of Social Agencies to the City.

Mr. R. H. Stevenson, chairman of the special committee formed in connection with the Centennial project, submitted a report on its recommendations which was approved by the Executive Committee. These have been passed on to the Mayor.

A resolution was also passed by the Executive Committee:

DOW THE MASTER BREWERS

'Urban blight' cure urged

If Montreal doesn't suffer from urban blight now, it soon will if it's not careful, according to Unitarian minister Leonard Mason.

He was speaking at the weekly luncheon of the Westmount Rotary Club recently at Victoria Hall.

Conceding the fact that his criticisms of urban development were those of an amateur, he contended that even as an amateur he could see where areas of blight in the city were being formed.

Dr. Mason, the minister who married Richard Burton and Elizabeth Taylor, deplored the trend of urban development and the drifting of residential areas to the outskirts of the city. "This produces a centre that is thriving during the day, but is a dead area at night."

He said it was impossible for one man to comprehend Montreal and know what to do about the population drift to the suburbs.

"Living in the suburbs may be fine for you tired businessmen who want to get away from it all after a hard day at work," he told the Rotarians, "but for your wives and children who have to live there it is deadly dull."

He contended that ideas in urban development stemmed from the needs of 50 years ago. "And these ideas were inherited directly from 19th century thinking."

Dr. Mason chose specific examples where there had been a lack of variety in land use. His primary one was the section of Decarie north of Queen Mary road.

DREARY MILE

"When Prince Philip came here, he said that the street was about the dreariest mile he had ever travelled," Dr. Mason said.

He told the Rotarians that the centre of Montreal was deadened but he also commended the City Planning Department for doing their best to reverse the trend.

Book Lovers' Forum to meet January 26

Mr. Gerard Pelletier, journalist and Member of Parliament, will review "Quebec, the Not-So-Quiet Revolution", by Thomas Sloan, on Wednesday, January 26, at 2.30 p.m. for Book Lovers' Forum. The meeting will take place in the Lecture Hall of Temple Emanu-El, 4100 Sherbrooke street west.

Mrs. Harry Joshua Stern, general chairman of Book Lovers' Forum, will preside at this meeting, and co-chairman of the day will be Mrs. Gerald Benjamin.

This review is open to the public, and tickets may be purchased at the door. Tea will be served.

Aldermen

The six Westmount aldermen serve respectively as commissioners of Finance, Public Works and Parks, Planning and Redevelopment, Public Health, Welfare and Recreation, Public Safety, and Light and Power.

The City's services are rendered by about five hundred employees, who staff various departments in the following numbers: Public Works and Parks, 200; Police Division, 95; Fire Brigade, 65; Light and Power, 40; Recreation, 20; Finance, Victoria Hall, Library, Health, etc., 83.

African pygmy will attack and kill an elephant with only a spear as a weapon.

"But the Planning Department has no power," he said. "It can only suggest remedies to urban problems."

He regretted the fact that the island's 84 municipalities seemed to be out for their own independent interests and showed little concern for overall urban redevelopment.

Dr. Mason had hoped that the French "joie de vivre" would produce a more vital community, but his private study revealed that the French-speaking citizens of Montreal had been forced to live in the flatter and duller areas of the city.

He did not favor the trend toward zoning to the extent that involved a total segregation between residences, industry and commerce.

In the dormitory style suburbs, there is no place for a pause or congregation. "People just go from point to point, always on the move."

Now there has been an attempt to revitalize the city's old district, he said. "Old Montreal shouldn't be a place where Americans can come up and say: 'Look — the old world.' It should be a vital area of our city, full of diversity."
