Brome Fair breaks records despite uncertain future

By JOHN McCAGHEY (Record Reporter)

BROME — Even with record crowds storming the fair grounds this weekend at the 121st annual Brome Fair, organizers of the event were fretting over the cutback of government funds for agricultural fairs.

Brome County Agricultural Society president Mac Crittenden confirmed the Quebec government has cut grants to the rural fairs.

"We don't know what our percentage will be," he said. "However, I don't want to discuss the matter at the present as it might imperil our future."

Other fair directors also refused to discuss the issue, preferring to wait until the next board meeting where more information on the grants is expected.

Pessimism over next year's event did little to dampen a great fair weekend, drawing as it did over 40,000 people for the three days.

Sunday was the gem weatherwise - blue skies with the odd patch of cumulus cloud providing a background and temperatures in the mid to upper 20's had the main entry road backed up to the intersection of Route 104 at Owens Corners from 10 a.m. until at least 5 p.m. for a record-breaking 24,000 visitors.

"I've been coming here for three years," said a QPF motorcycle constable, "and I've never seen crowds such as Sunday. It must be true all roads lead to Brome," he said, with tongue in cheek.

This year, as in years gone by, was the gathering of the clans of ex-Brome residents and the license plates on the cars streaming into the parking lots was mute evidence of the importance placed on attending the event - Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Ontario, Newfoundland, Alberta, all of the New England States, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, and of course Wisconsin. George Tetrault, of Madison, was on hand as master of ceremonies for the 11th consecutive year when he greeted friends both old and new as they led animals before the grandstand. Of such traditions are good fairs made.

There was a strange undercurrent prevalent among many of the fair-goers this year which was evinced as they halted at the Record booth to pay their respects - it seemed many of them thought this might be the last "Big Brome Fair", should the provincial government attain their aspiration of separation from Canada.

George Tetrault told the grandstand audience Sunday, including a busload of Golden Agers from Rosemere-Lorraine, this was the horses' fair in the province this year with at least 160 entries, and that did not include the bantails which ran for Loto-Quebec sponsored races yesterday afternoon. The light-draught horse class was a joy to behold as they were judged on Saturday.

Gastoni Attractions added a bit to the horse mystique

Saturday when the first act was announced as: "Lynn and his Magic Horse". Either the Pipes of Pan or the wings of Pegasus called as the steed put on his own magical disappearing act, much to the chagrin of his trainer rider!

Cattle of course are one of the major attractions at Brome and this year was no exception. Hans Steingruber, Homeridge Farm, East Farnham, took Premier Breeder and Grand Champion male in the Jersey class. Laurent Bousquet, Granby, led the way in Ayrshires with Premier Breeder and Exhibitor, Grand Champions male and female and reserve female.

John Beerwort, Beervern Farms, Brome, was Premier Exhibitor and Breeder in Holsteins as well as taking Grand Champion female and best three females in class. Floyd Sanborn, Flona Farms, Cowansville, cleaned up in the Guernsey section taking Grand Champions male and female as well as being Premier Breeder and Exhibitor.

The McCormick Cattle Co., Foster, took Grand Champion male in Aberdeen Angus. G. Carriere, Cookshire, won the same honor in Herefords. Grand Champion male in the Shorthorn class went to North Hill Farm, Gould, operated by the Beaton brothers.

There were cries of anguish from teenagers who claimed the majority of the rides on the midway were 'too tame'. The QPF had to step in and close a couple of 'games of chance' when it became evident the only chance was in the operator's pocket, not to mention the loose change!

The Horticultural Society's exhibition was excellent this year despite the inclement weather experienced through the summer months. A tip of the hat to Rupert Phelps and his loyal fellow workers.

The dining hall was closed as of last season and converted into another exhibition hall and drew fair crowds, albeit some were disappointed they had to miss out on a good home-cooked meal.

Kids had the time of their lives clamoring over agricultural machinery.

The barker's cry of the year was: "See the Man With the Golden Arm." No, it was not a movie depicting drug addiction, rather a couple of enterprising lads who were squeezing apples in an old fashioned wooden press to provide pure nectar to the thirsty. They certainly profited on Sunday when shade was at a premium.

Another "Big Brome Fair" has packed up the season and undoubtedly some of the cattle will make their way to the provincial show in Quebec this week.

Hopefully Premier Levesque and his cabinet will eventually realize that food comes from farms and rural fairs are where our farmers not only show their wares, but also exchange information which betters the quality of food which finds its way to our tables.

$1 million fire hits Richmond

Special to The Record

RICHMOND — Fire investigators are sifting through the ruins of a major fire which destroyed parts of downtown and caused an estimated $1 million in damage Saturday.

The blaze broke out shortly after 4 p.m. at a feed store and lumber supply along Main St. and quickly spread to adjacent buildings, fanned by 30-mph winds.

Firefighters, CB radio operators, Quebec Police and volunteers with garden hoses helped fight the blaze and provide emergency assistance.

The fire was finally brought under control at 6 p.m. but firemen continued pouring water on the blackened buildings until the next day.

Damaged in the blaze were the Desrosiers grocery and feed store, the Desmarais hardware and lumber, St. Jacob Hotel, Metro Grocery Store, a beauty parlor and the Post Office where the intense heat buckled the plate glass windows.

Some 30 people lost either their homes or businesses to the blaze.

Marion communique accepts new deal

By ROBERT MACPHERSON (Record Reporter)

SHERBROOKE — A new communique from the kidnappers of Caisse Populaire employee Charles Marion was received last night.

Quebec Police have not officially divulged the contents of the two-page handwritten message addressed to the Caisse Populaire de Sherbrooke Est.

But it is believed the communique accepts an offer made Friday by the Caisse to pay $200,000 for the 57-year-old credit manager's release after a month in captivity.

The offer was repeated during the weekend in three television broadcasts directed at the kidnappers, who had originally demanded $1 million for Mr. Marion's safe return.

Bill 101 faces back-to-school test

MONTREAL (CP) — The Parti Quebecois government's attempt to limit access to English-language schools faces a stiff test today as children return to classes across Quebec.

Some Protestant and Catholic school boards have said openly that they would defy the province's new French Language Charter and admit all children whose parents want them to be educated in English.

Premier Rene Levesque said last week this attitude amounts to "administrative civil disobedience" and Education Minister Jacques-Yvan Morin warned the boards they will not receive grants for illegal students.

Robert Massey, a French-speaking Canadian who recently returned to Quebec after a four-year stay in New Guinea, says he will register his two daughters in English schools even if it means breaking the law.

Massey's children, aged 12 and eight, were educated in English at an American school in New Guinea and he said he wants them to finish their education in their second language.

Morin said illegally registered students would not have their credits or diploma recognized by the education department. But he

The kidnapping had been relatively quiet for three weeks, after Caisse officials apparently refused the initial $1-million ransom demand.

The weekend developments came after receipt of a communique Friday night which police termed authentic, because of a unique signature and an undisclosed "additional element."

A second communique reportedly from the abductors received Saturday morning was judged a phony.

Tillotson liable for cleanup

By JANET COTTON (Record Reporter)

COATICOOK — Tillotson Manufacturing of Coaticook has been found responsible for releasing a pollutant which killed thousands of fish in the Coaticook River last week, the provincial Environmental Protection Service has announced.

The company will be "legally obliged" to "restore the river to its previous state."

Last week's spill killed thousands of fish, and destroyed all aquatic life found in the 10-mile stretch from Coaticook to Waterville.

Jean Roy, industrial director of the Environmental Protection Service, told The Record he has not received a response from the company concerning the clean-up. However, he added, if the company refuses, the matter will be handed over to government lawyers.

"When we can clearly establish that a company has caused major pollution damage, they are held responsible for remedying the matter," Mr. Roy said.

"In this case there is no doubt that Tillotson is to blame."

The incident occurred after a broken valve poured a zinc compound onto the factory floor. A certain amount of the chemical was dumped into the river when the floor was washed, according to the EPS.

Allen Willis, general manager at Tillotson said any chemical outflow was "purely accidental". All chemical products are recycled and placed in barrels between utilization periods. He said the company never poured waste material into the river.

Mr. Willis was not available for comment on the government cleanup demands.

Tillotson, a subsidiary of Rockmart Chemical Corp. of Canada Ltd., produces small balloons and products used in the manufacture of soaps and shampoos.

West German terrorists snatch industrialist

COLOGNE, West Germany (AP) — Terrorists firing machine-guns kidnapped a West German industry leader from his chauffeur-driven car here Monday and an anonymous telephone caller said he would be killed unless imprisoned political extremists were released.

Four persons were killed in the attack on the automobile of Hanns Martin Schleyer, chief of the powerful German Industry Association.

An anonymous telephone call to the Munich office of the mass-circulation newspaper Bild Zeitung said Schleyer would be killed today unless Andreas Baader and other convicted terrorists were released from prison.

The caller, a man speaking hastily, set a deadline of 5:15 p.m. local time (12:15 p.m. edt).

"This is the Action Society rest of name unintelligible. We demand the release of Baader and everyone imprisoned in Stammheim," the newspaper quoted the caller as saying.

"Otherwise Herr Schleyer will be executed at 5:15 p.m. tomorrow."

HOLDS TERRORISTS

Stammheim is a special prison in Stuttgart where terrorists are held.

Two West German news agencies reported receiving similar phone calls from a group called the Red Army Faction.

Schleyer's car was attacked as he was being driven to his apartment in Cologne's Braunsfeld district. Authorities identified the dead as Schleyer's chauffeur, a security official and two police bodyguards riding with Schleyer.

Police said about five attackers in a Volkswagen microbus opened fire on Schleyer's Mercedes at an intersection during the evening rush hour. The bus had been parked at the intersection evidently waiting for the Schleyer car to arrive, a spokesman said.

The extremist attack was the third in recent months involving prominent West Germans. On July 30, banker Juergen Ponto was slain at his home near Frankfurt and on April 7, Chief Federal Prosecutor Siegfried Buback was killed by machine-gun fire on his way to work in Karlsruhe.

GOES ON TV

"We have to stay level-headed," Chancellor Helmut Schmidt told West Germans in a television statement after the Schleyer attack. "Terrorism in the long run doesn't have a chance because the will of the entire

Giant geoduck clams promise B.C. fishing future

CAMPBELL RIVER, B.C. (CP) — It's got a silly name and looks like a hot dog with elephantiasis, but the British Columbia government hopes to make the geoduck clam (that's pronounced goeyduck) into a multi-million-dollar industry.

Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf, spurred on by a 110,000-pound order for geoduck siphons from Japan, has commissioned a $36,000 study on geoduck reserves to lay the basis for what he says could become a $3-million-a-year industry.

Heading the study for commercial quantities of the corpulent crustacean is Bruce Evans, a 25-year-old marine biologist and president of Coastal Biochore Ltd., owner of the 50-foot research vessel Pursepa.

The Pursepa's quarry is no ordinary clam. Weighing up to 12 pounds, geoducks are found in 60 to 80 feet of water, their long, meat siphon sticking out of the sand. To harvest them is simple—divers simply blow the sand away with high-pressure hoses.

The Pursepa worked its way down 130 miles of Vancouver Island's east coast before striking geoduck paydirt near this fishing and logging community 140 miles northwest of Victoria.

Provincial conservation officer Bob Cox donned scuba gear and went over the side in a bed of kelp near a small island.

BIG MOMENT

Moments later he was back on the surface, clasping his hands above his head in a victory signal.

"The first thing I saw down there was a geoduck siphon," he said. "The bottom is all sand."

Cox returned to the bottom with the hose and was back at the boat in five minutes with six big clams.

"I could have filled the whole bag up," he said.

The biggest specimen weighed 8½ pounds. Almost half the body weight is edible. The meat is milder than most clams, Cox said, and is much more plentiful.

One diver can bring in 1,500 to 2,000 pounds a day from a well-stocked bed, he said, and the Pursepa's survey has found several promising beds.

Some problems remain, however, including the unusual name. Provincial officials are considering several alternatives, including rocky mountain abalone.

Regulation of the new industry is another serious problem, Cox said, because Washington state, which takes $5 to $7 million worth of the clams annually, has found the geoducks need a decade to recover from one harvest.

In the meantime, though, Cox is primarily concerned with his inventory.

HARTFORD, Conn. (CP) — No fewer than forty-five insurance companies have their head offices in Hartford and several of their handsome buildings are featured on a walking tour of the downtown area.

One of the most striking is Phoenix Mutual Life, the world's first two-sided office building with great curved glass walls. Organized in 1851, Phoenix insured only teetotalers in its first 10 years.

Nearby is Constitution Plaza, an elevated garden area which incorporates the Travellers' Insurance banking facilities, the Sonesta Hotel, walks, shrubbery—enclosed nooks, flower pots and shops. Its name is a reminder that the world's first written constitution was written in Hartford in 1639.

In front of the Travellers' head office with its 527-foot tower is a bronze sculpture called The Safe Arrival with a kneeling pilgrim, his wife, a baby and a lamb. It represents the arrival of the writers of that constitution, English pilgrims who came from Massachusetts in 1633.

TOURS OFFERED
Aetna Life and Casualty is housed in the largest colonial-style building in the world on 23 acres of land originally owned by Thomas Hooker, founder of Hartford. Other impressive buildings include the gold-domed state capitol, which offers free tours on weekdays.

Opposite the capitol is the limestone State Library and Supreme Court in Italian Renaissance style. Its museum has a collection of firearms including a fine group of Colt 45s.

Other exhibits include a small display of clocks—Hartford was famous as a clock-making centre—and the Lincoln Vault with the table on which the president signed the Emancipation Proclamation and other memorabilia.

The city hall, built in 1796 as the Old State House, sits serenely on a small square surrounded by modern buildings. Some of its original furnishings remain.

The fortress-like Wadsworth Atheneum was the first free public art gallery in the United States. It was richly endowed by banker J. P. Morgan, who presented it with a fine collection of furniture from the homes of early Connecticut pilgrim settlers, his Meissen and Sevres porcelain, several Rembrandts and a couple of Holbeins.

The Civic Centre Plaza, opened less than a year ago, has 52 shops and restaurants, all first class, and a big skylight coliseum. One of its most popular restaurants is the Deli, both a dining room and selfserve. Nearby are Strawberry Fields, pioneers in frozen yoghurt, and La Promageris, a chess shop with an enclosed "outside" cafe.

One of the oldest oyster houses in the U.S. is the Honiss, dating back to 1845. It features blue-point oysters and Little Neck clams.

But the place for colorful atmosphere is the Last

National Bank restaurant, in a former bank building. The walls are covered with photographs of bank robbers and you can even dine in a vault.

The wine list is presented in a night deposit box with lock and zippered top. You pay your bill at the original Deposits and Cheques cage.

Nearby sightseeing includes a large Victorian house built by Mark Twain in 1874 and the 1871-built house that was bought shortly afterward by Harriet Beecher Stowe, author of Uncle Tom's cabin. Both can be visited for a single admission fee.

Finish asbestos products here, probe says

MONTREAL (CP) —

Preliminary results of a study into the Quebec asbestos industry show more manufacturing of asbestos-related products could be done in Quebec if there were more home markets.

"If you want to increase manufacturing, you must also increase the consumption of asbestos in Quebec," Yvon Legault, project director for the study, told a news conference.

The $225,000 study was commissioned by the Quebec Asbestos Mining Association last February when the provincial government threatened the industry with nationalization if it did not process 20 per cent of the asbestos mined in Quebec in the province.

Canada leads the world in asbestos production, supplying about 40 per cent of the world's needs. About 85 per cent of all Canada's asbestos is mined in Quebec, but less than five per cent of Quebec's production is further processed in Canada, and only about half that amount in Quebec.

The study was carried out by Sores Inc., a Quebec consulting firm, in co-operation with the American firm of A.D. Little Inc.

14 PRODUCTS

Legault said the first phase of the study looked at 14 possible asbestos products that could be manufactured in Quebec.

Five promising asbestos products were selected and will be the subject of a further study, the results of which are expected to be released Dec. 1.

The results of this further study will describe the conditions needed for the profitable production of molded friction material, asbestos cement pipe, asbestos cement finished sheets, flooring felts and papers.

One condition will involve the state of environmental standards which will make it more difficult for asbestos products generally to compete with substitutes.

Another condition is the ability to produce at a low price because asbestos products are price competitive, the report says.

MARKET'S THERE

The study says there are markets for all five products in Canada and the U.S. with additional markets in western Europe for molded friction material, flooring felts and papers, and in the developing countries for asbestos cement pipe, asbestos cement finished sheets and papers.

Japan also is a market for asbestos cement finished sheets, the report says.

Quebec now accounts for more than half the asbestos products manufactured in Canada and processed 46,000 tons of asbestos fibers last year, said Paul Filteau, executive vice-president of the Quebec Asbestos Mining Association.

The rest of the country processed 74,000 tons in manufacturing last year.

Michael Messel, president of the association, said increasing manufacturing to 20 per cent of the asbestos mined in the province means processing 300,000 tons of asbestos fiber a year.

OVERSEAS STUDENTS SERVICE INC. NEEDS HOST FAMILIES

The Overseas Students Service, Inc., is an organization that endeavours to introduce foreign students, studying in the Sherbrooke and Lennoxville area, to Quebec life and society by pairing them up with host families. This means that a local family would invite the student into their home from time to time or to any other activities that might be mutually interesting. The Service itself also organizes social activities throughout the year for the benefit of families and their students. We are at present looking for English-speaking families who might be interested in participating in this program.

Sherbrooke

Status of Women post

Henriette Therrien of Sherbrooke has been named to the Quebec council on the Status of Women, by the minister responsible, Lise Payette, it was announced Friday.

Ms. Therrien will serve on the committee, chaired by Laurette Champigny Robillard, with Danielle Drolet of Quebec City and Jeanne D'Arc Vaillant of Gatineau. Ms. Drolet and Ms. Therrien were recommended for the post by various women's centres in the province.

The women will serve for 4 years. The council on the status of women was created in July, 1973, to promote women's rights.

One woman tapisserie show

An exhibition of new tapisseries by Pierrette Mondou, a Sherbrooke artist, will begin Wednesday, Sept. 14 at the Galerie d'Art Mena-Sen.

In her first one-woman show, Ms. Mondou will exhibit 12 works. Vernissage begins Sept. 14 at 8:30 p.m.

The Heritage Choir, after performing for the finals of the Quebec Games in Sherbrooke are looking for new voices to join for the coming season.

Auditions for persons interested in performing Quebec music, will be held at the Petite Salle of the University of Sherbrooke's Cultural Centre, Sept. 6 at 8 p.m.

The choir is open to men and women over 18 years of age, with a musical knowledge and a desire to promote Quebec songs.

QPF busts illegal gambling at fair

BROME (JC) — Six people were arrested in an illegal gambling machine operation by Quebec Police Force Morality Squad and Cowansville officers at Brome Fair this weekend.

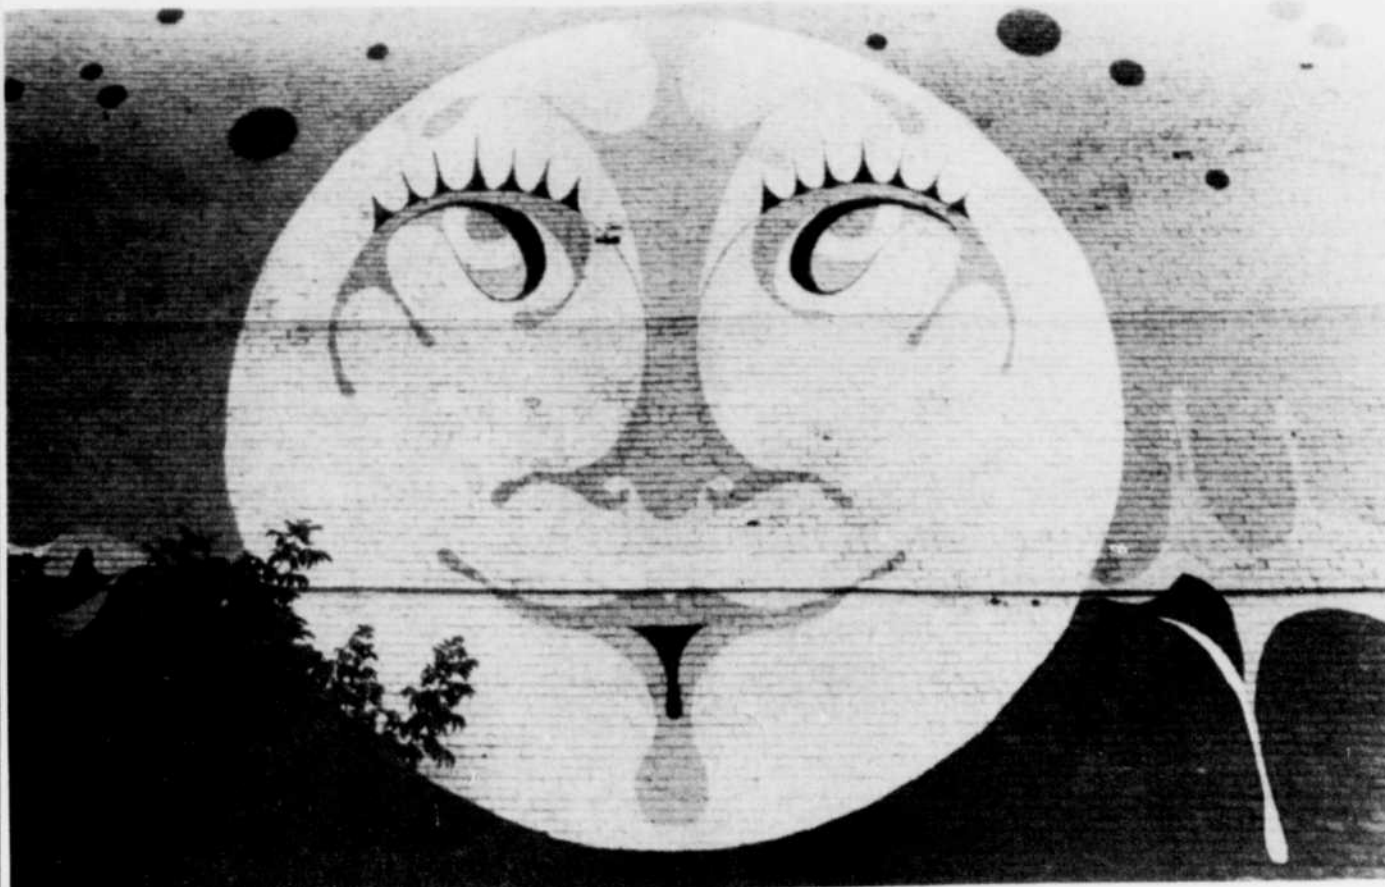

Michel Aube, 42, manager of Racine Foster Show Ltd., was taken into custody after he allegedly offered a $300 bribe to a policeman so he would turn a blind eye on gambling machines at the fair.

Five others were also reprimanded and 11 machines called New Penny Falls - each valued at $6,000 - were seized by the QPF alcohol and morality squad.

St. Jean QPF Sgt. Maurice Senecal said the public had no chance of making money in the coin-operated machines, which cost 25 cents to play.

Lennoxville council may demand cops move or quit force

LENNOXVILLE (JC) — Municipal policemen may have to move into town or leave the force, it was decided at an Aug. 22, council meeting. A council letter sent to chief Kasimir Kryszak noted municipal by-law requires all policemen to leave within the town's immediate vicinity, and urged him to correct the matter at once.

Lennox Paper Ltd., has asked the town's assistance in disposing of 32 tons of industrial waste each day, and the possibility of working it into a land recovery program. No decision will be made until the proposal is studied by the Quebec Environment Board. Lennoxville residents have been using a make-shift trailer post office since the town building was destroyed by fire in May, and council will undertake an investigation to determine why no work has as yet been done to repair the building.

The building inspector will study the possibility of reducing the large number of signs on Queen Street, specifically at Green's Bake Shop, and Beaulieu Store. Because of the large demand for apartments in town, the inspector will also study requests by a number of residents who wish to add apartments to their home or place of business.

Lennoxville will be further studied and discussed at subsequent meetings.

CNTU launches 'Save East Angus' campaign

SHERBROOKE (JC) — The twelve-thousand member Sherbrooke CNTU Chapter have voiced their support for Domtar workers in a "Save East Angus" campaign launched last week.

In a recent press release the CNTU Central Committee said they "deplore the fact that Domtar workers are alone in paying the bill for the factory's survival, even in short term," and noted they will "spare nothing to make the government understand that the Township region has joined forces to regulate the situation."

In a June letter to Premier Levesque, the CNTU warned the "closing of the factory, will affect the entire Sherbrooke region."

The letter outlined the grave economic and social implications the closing would have on the area, and asked the government to intervene until a long-term solution could be found.

The Central Committee will attend Parliamentary hearings on the Pulp and Paper Industry, scheduled for Sept. 30.

In view of the hearings, the committee will hold a special meeting to inform all regional workers of the situation, and lobby for their support.

All local mayors and MNAs and deputies will also be met in the upcoming weeks.

In a recent letter to Premier Levesque, the committee wrote "workers of East Angus and the region are hoping that the government consider the precarious situation for the survival of the East Angus factory."

Hoping, Mr. Prime Minister, that the government establish a priority of this grave situation in which we now live."

Hot stuff brings $500 in fines

SWEETSBURG WARD (JM) — Michel Thiboutot, Granby, who was found guilty of charges of possession of two stolen motorcycles and a tent trailer he knew had been obtained through the commission of a crime in Canada, was fined $500 and costs, in default 60 days, and was bound over to keep the public peace for one year.

Defence lawyer Yvon Robichaud told the court his client was married, the father of two children, was steadily employed, and had no prior record. "There was no premeditation on his part and he did not tamper with the serial numbers on the goods," he said. "He collaborated completely with the police and I feel the interests of justice would be adequately served with a suspended sentence."

Crown attorney Claude Noisieux told the court all cases of receiving stolen goods contained an element of premeditation and reminded the goods had a value in excess of $3,000. "I will not insist on a prison term," he said. "I must, however insist on a fine of at least $500 and a probation at the discretion of the court."

Judge Bernard Legare told the accused he was fortunate his probation report was favorable otherwise he would have been sent to jail prior to handing down sentence.

Yves Labrie, Granby, who pleaded guilty to charges of theft of a cheque and uttering the cheque on June 27 was handed a suspended sentence and was placed on 18 months probation. His lawyer, Pierre Gibeau, proved restitution had been effected.

Judge Legare continued sentence in the case of his brother Alain to Dec. 19. "I want further time to study his department as he had an additional five similar counts," Judge Legare said.

CAPELTON (JC) — The Capelton covered bridge will not be demolished. Paul-Henri Thibault, director of covered bridges for the Ministry of Cultural Affairs has temporarily frozen the bridge and surrounding property, as an historical monument.

Mr. Thibault told The Record a telegram sent to the Township of Ascot Friday "has arrested any further projects for the demolition or transformation of the bridge."

Ascot Township secretary-treasurer, Arthur Drouin, has confirmed receiving the telegram, but refused to divulge its content before tonight's council meeting.

The bridge was termed "dangerous to pedestrians and children" in May, and public tenders for its demolition were expected to open tonight.

The Township is now obliged to renew insurance coverage on the bridge which was withdrawn by the Prevoyance Company on Aug. 15. The company felt the bridge presented too large a public safety risk.

Milt Loomis, leader of a local movement for the preservation of the bridge said he is "delighted" with the ministry's decision. "I think it's great - that bridge was Township history," he said. "It will fit in well with government plans to develop Massawippi Valley as a tourist attraction."

Mr. Loomis said he will push for a Canada Works project to repair and restore the bridge. He has met with and received the full support of Federal MP, Irene Pelletier.

He will contact the Massawippi Mining Company to study the possibility of buying or renting the land surrounding the bridge, to be developed as a picnic rest area.

Mr. Loomis will continue to circulate a petition opposing the demolition, which he will personally present at tonight's council meeting. The petition is signed by the Massawippi Valley Chamber of Commerce, and several local historians.

The number of covered bridges in the Eastern Townships has been halved in the last decade. Only two remain in the Township of Ascot.

The policy of the former Liberal government was to preserve the bridges, and whenever possible turn them into tourist attractions, as was done in Ayer's Cliff. When a new traffic bridge was built at the Fitch Bay Narrows, the covered bridge was restored.

Hypnotizing speaker expected

LENNOXVILLE — Bishop's University and Champlain Regional College are pleased to present the Great Pecarve-hypnotist, hypnotherapist and memory expert, at Centennial Theatre on Tuesday, September 13 at 8:00 p.m.

The art of hypnosis is so old that its origins have been lost, but the Great Pecarve, Canada's leading practitioner of hypnosis brings this ancient art to the stage in entertainment form.

Mr. Pecarve recently achieved international fame for his role in a unique medical operation performed without conventional anesthetic. He was responsible for the hypnanaesthesia of Mrs. Pierrette Delisle, the patient in a surgical operation performed by Dr. Pierre Viger at Notre Dame de l'Esperance Hospital.

Mrs. Delisle's recovery from the cholecystectomy and appendectomy was excellent and free of the side effects normally associated with this type of surgery. Until then, most operations performed under total hypno-anesthesia had been those which did not require extensive or deep muscular relaxation.

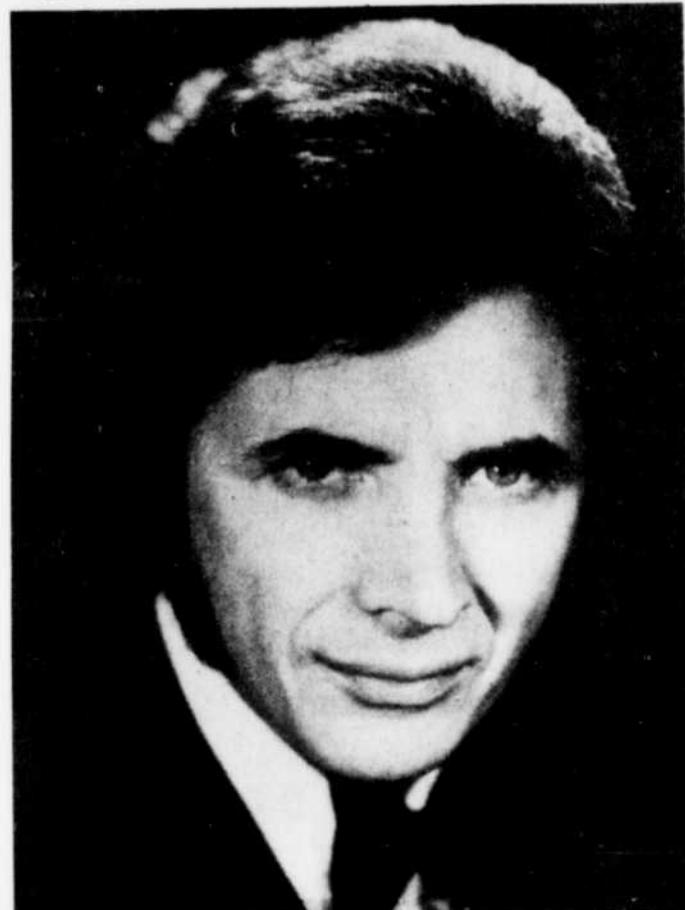

Mr. Pecarve's knowledge of hypnosis is completely self-taught, working from an early age with borrowed medical books. Today, he is closely associated with many private doctors, as well as Montreal's Royal Victoria Hospital, McGill University's department of psychiatry, and as an affiliate with the Pierre-Robert Medical Centre.

Tickets for Pecarve's performance are on sale at the Centennial Theatre box office. Tickets can be reserved by calling 563-4966. Pecarve's performance is the opening event in this year's Bishop's-Champlain Speaker's Forum.

Carter opts for quiet diplomacy

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — U.S. President Carter, now in the eighth month of his office, has shifted subtly from open to quiet and traditional diplomacy in his dealings with foreign powers.

No longer heard are the public demands, so often expressed just after his inauguration last January, for better observance of human rights in other countries—in the Soviet Union in particular. He has quietly eased on public suggestions and proposals for a Middle East peace settlement.

His UN ambassador, Andrew Young, also appears to have softened his own once-strident human rights campaign. Young, often in diplomatic hot water for his jibes at foreign countries and leaders, recently concluded a tour of Caribbean countries with barely a mention in the newspapers.

One consequence of the new approach has been a gradual improvement in Soviet-American relations, which went sour at mid-year as a result of Carter's criticism and his sending of a letter of support to a prominent dissident in Moscow.

That action prompted the Soviet Union to reject proposals advanced by Carter for the nuclear arms limitation talks (SALT), and stirred Communist Party Leader Leonid Brezhnev publicly to accuse the U.S. of interference in Soviet internal affairs and warn that it is "unthinkable" that relations between the two countries could develop normally on that basis.

WISDOM QUESTIONED
Diplomats here privately questioned Carter's wisdom in pressing the human rights issue on the eve of the SALT negotiations, suggesting it was impossible for the Soviet Union to agree to arms talks in the face of American pressure on an issue as sensitive to the Kremlin as that of the Moscow dissidents.

Brezhnev turned down a Carter proposal that the two men get together in a meeting in August to explore means of overcoming the impasse between their two countries.

Washington officials are said to have characterized the new Carter approach as being a consequence of the maturing of a young administration, rather than diplomatic retreat.

There also may be recognition, often expressed by diplomats here, that so-called open diplomacy often forces parties in a dispute to assume inflexible public positions and creates a deadlock rather than encourages negotiation.

The easing of pressure from Washington has been accompanied by progress in Soviet-American arms talks and the two countries recently announced that they have found the basis for negotiations on a new nuclear test ban treaty. Negotiations are expected to start in October.

Referendum answers questions and raises doubts—Le Devoir

This is a selection of editorials on current topics, translated by The Canadian Press from the French-language press of Canada.

Montreal Le Devoir: The white paper on referendums in Quebec provides several answers to the numerous questions that have been asked since the coming to power of the Parti Quebecois. It also gives rise to questions, doubts and reserves. This is why it is opportune for (Parliamentary Reform Minister) Robert Burns to publish at this time a document which, while approved by the government, should be the object of broad public debate.

Whatever the method that is retained, the great historical consultation (on independence) will only be fully valid if the referendum question expresses clearly the real issues: Will Quebec, yes or no, disengage from the federal system and withdraw from Canada, to become a sovereign state? It is the basic question, one that is even asked in the program of the Parti Quebecois and one which cannot be avoided by using all the resources of semantics.

The most important problem raised by the white paper is of another nature. It concerns the rather rigid rules that the government envisages to regulate the referendum campaign.

Secondly, the white paper forbids anyone not registered with one of the recognized organizations from campaigning and spending money in the campaign.

But how, without limiting freedom of expression, can public bodies or groups of citizens be forbidden from intervening in the campaign? The British, in the referendum of 1975 (on Common Market membership) which has inspired Burns, did not go that far.

Unless there is an error in the interpretation of the white paper's text, this system is the equivalent of an iron collar.

This system of exclusive organizations entails certain risks. In advance, it is known what the option will be for the Pequist government. It would be sufficient, by adding other options (in the referendum question), to cause the creation of several organizations, which would result in division for the opposition to the benefit of the governing party. Such Machiavellian designs would not have been credited to the government, but a first examination of the document leads to the expression of doubts about the efficiency and fairness of the proposed method.—Michel Roy (Aug. 26)

Montreal La Presse: The American secretary of state announced with cheerful astonishment that a new dialogue is beginning between China and the United States, after a visit to Peking that was described as "very useful and very constructive."

On Aug. 18, the 11th congress of the Chinese Communist party ended after the adoption of a new constitution and the taking of an official position marking the dominance of the "producers" over the ideologues.

Meanwhile, it was learned that Albania, the most rigorous of central European Communist countries, has found itself in deep disagreement with China, its only ally, because of the ideological "opportunism" of the team that took power after the death of Mao Tse-tung, and the dismissal of the Gang of Four.

These three events mark without a doubt the triumph of the technocrats and the moderates, the triumph of those whom the Chinese ideologues describe as "heretics" and even "capitalists."

The dissensions in China began in the 1950s. For nearly 20 years, the country saw countless quarrels between ideologues and "pragmatics," with people's commissars, political organizers and propagandists forming the first camp, and engineers, professors, technicians and military men on the other side.

After the end of its revolution in 1949, China lived under the influence of its two founding fathers: Mao Tse-tung, the poet, and Chou En-lai, the technocrat. Mao always dominated the clan of rigorists, the fierce guardians of revolutionary orthodoxy who see "revisionism" and betrayal in the slightest doctrinal deviation or the slightest novelty. Chou, for his part, clearly influenced the progressives, this dynamic element of the population which looks for improved conditions and which consequently considers it more important to be an expert than an ideologue.

All the tribulations of China flow from these two tendencies. In the middle of the 1950s, the ideologues had the wind blowing with them. They started The Great Leap Forward with the catastrophic results we know about. The failure made them lose their footing.

The Chinese do not live by ideology alone. Progress, well-being and a reason for living are also needed. This is what is promised by the 11th congress.—Jean Pellerin (Aug. 27)

Same old story

Stories like the Capelton Bridge affair are coming to light regularly these days.

The plots are similar; an old but historic structure poses a danger to passersby as it falls into disrepair. Local government, discovering the truly immense costs of good restoration work these days -- regrettably votes to have the danger to life and limb hacked down and carted away -- only to learn that Quebec has already placed the elderly structure under its cultural protection.

In this case, it's left to the Township of Ascot and a handful of local citizens to come up with the labor or the money needed to refurbish the bridge. This is ridiculous. It costs Quebec nothing but paper to say something is protected; it costs far more to place that something in safe condition once more.

It would seem only fair that if the ministry of Cultural Affairs sees fit to protect something, it should be ready to supply at least part of the money necessary to restore it. This could come through Local Initiatives grants, summer works projects or other aid programs to allow local manpower to benefit. As it is, the government doesn't seem to be ready to put its money where its mouth is.

Jack Anderson's

Washington Merry-Go-Round

US conservation effort falling flat

by Jack Anderson and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Earlier this year, we quoted from secret government studies which warned tersely that the energy shortage could cause "social upheaval and revolution."

Unless the energy crisis is solved, the studies declare, the United States will run short of the energy needed to run our factories, heat our homes and operate our automobiles. This would cause such disruptions, the studies predicted, that Americans would take to the streets.

Yet the Carter administration has responded to the crisis with no more than a mild conservation program. Now we have seen White House memos warning that the conservation effort is falling flat.

A four-page memorandum from White House energy expert Richard Cooper to presidential adviser Alvin Alm offers this cold-turkey view: "It is indisputable," declares the memo, that Carter's energy policy "will not be sufficient to reach all the national energy goals announced by the president on April 20."

On that occasion, he called for a voluntary effort from the public and industry to halt the horrendous waste of energy. Now the secret memo reports: "The goals for energy efficiency in buildings, for a 10 per cent reduction in gasoline consumption and for a reduction in oil imports to six million barrels per day probably will not be achieved (without) additional measures."

Translated into everyday language, this means the president's hope to conserve energy is a pipe-dream. It looks as if industry won't build energy-efficient buildings and gas-efficient automobiles until the wells begin to go dry.

The blunt memo, which has been formalized for consideration by the president himself, focuses on the failure of private industry to see beyond next year's projected profits.

The memo warns that the new Carter policies will "increase the cost of gasoline and the gas-guzzling car" but that the auto manufacturers will merely "give the appearance of trying to meet" federal fuel efficiency standards; that construction firms are unlikely to "embark on major research and development projects" even to take advantage of tax credits; and that the insulation industry won't develop better insulation because "the industry will be able to sell all the (present) insulation it can produce."

Summarizes the memo: "Industrial firms generally are considerably more willing to spend investment dollars on equipment that will expand output" — and, thereby, expand immediate profits — "than on equipment that will save energy."

Not even a complete crackdown on energy waste, the earlier studies warn, would be enough to save the United States from an energy catastrophe. "A fantastic amount of misinformation, wishful thinking, outright demagoguery and misplaced hopes are keeping the American people from looking their future straight in the eye," one study contends.

White House advisers have now come around to the conclusion that it will take a huge public expenditure merely to produce energy-saving cars and buildings. But the real emphasis, according to our sources, should be placed on developing a renewable source of energy. Only an emergency crash program, backed by the full resources of the United States, can produce a substitute for oil in time, they say.

Billion-Dollar Battle: Congress created the Cost Accounting Standards Board in 1970 to bring order to Pentagon bookkeeping. Cost over-runs and other expensive bugaboos are often decided by the definitions that the bookkeepers adopt. The accountant's pen thus becomes as powerful as the congressman's vote.

The board's first modest efforts were to regulate accountants. Now the board is attempting to cope with the actuaries, those little understood professionals who set up pension funds. In a sense, the actuaries rig the game before the bargaining begins.

The stakes are high for the taxpayers. Although the exact figure appears to be beyond precise calculation, actuaries juggle the mortality, employment and other economic data that will determine the fate of more than $2 billion in government-backed pension funds each year.

The General Accounting Office recently ran a spot check on nine defense contractors' use of actuaries to set up pension funds. The government auditors uncovered over $100 million in "questionable pension plan costs, excluding profits that ... may be charged to government contracts because of unrealistic actuarial assumptions."

One of these contractors, identified only as "Contractor G," allegedly stuck the government for $40.9 million in excessive pension costs. We have learned that "Contractor G" is Aerojet General. A spokesman told us merely that the company "doesn't agree with the GAO report."

Actuaries are a baffling lot, even to accountants. Actuaries shroud their work in mystery and use a special mumbo-jumbo that confuses the uninitiated. Words don't always mean what they seem and, alternately, different words mean the same thing.

For example, the phrases "prior service cost," "supplemental present value," and "accrued liability" all mean the same thing, but only a few nonactuaries know this.

Those astounding actuaries have also created at least 37 different ways to count the same pool of money. And the board has records showing two sets of actuarial figures to describe the same company: one for financial statements, the other for tax purposes.

Pucker and blow
both expressive and satisfying

WINNIPEG (CP) — There's a scene in the movie To Have and Have Not in which Lauren Bacall looks knowingly at Humphrey Bogart and says, "If you want me just whistle. You know how to whistle, don't you? Just pucker up and blow."

Harvey Pollock, a Winnipeg lawyer, takes whistling more seriously. "I've always felt whistling can be a very expressive form of music," he says. "You can get out of whistling what someone gets from singing. It can be very expressive and very satisfying."

Pollock is one of two Canadians who have entered the Carson City, Nev., whistling contest which begins Oct. 1. Dr. Jack Cohen of Montreal is the other Canadian contestant.

An ad in The New Yorker magazine billed the contest as "the world's first international whistle-off." There are 12 categories, from solo whistling of classical or contemporary music to whistling with such novel accompaniments as saws, cow bells, chimes and bones.

MAY DO CLASSICAL
"I'm going to prepare a few selections. I may enter three categories," Pollock says. "I'll probably do a classical piece. I haven't decided."

Pollock says his performance in Carson City will depend on how he feels that day.

"I might get up and be dry."

It depends on what your emotions are. Sometimes you can whistle well. Sometimes you just can't put two notes together and make them sound right."

Pollock's favorite whistling selections are classical.

"Beethoven, Mendelssohn are beautiful for whistling. Beethoven particularly, and Mozart and Rossini. The music is very expressive. It's flowing, very fluid."

STARTED YOUNG
Pollock started whistling when he was young. "I've whistled ever since I was a kid. My neighbors always knew when I was on the street."

While he was a law student at University of Manitoba, he teamed up with Romeo Champagne, another student.

"We used to go to the third-floor bathroom of the law courts building. The walls there are marble. We used to get fantastic resonance."

In 1953, billed as the Lipsomaniacs, the duo performed at Varsity Varieties, the university's fall variety show. Some of the numbers they performed were Whistling and Walking the Blues and a Bach chorale. "We took top honors."

After that, the pair would perform at charity functions. "We whistled our way through law school," he says.

After graduation Champagne moved to Montreal. "I've been solo ever since."

Bridal Shower

SUTTON — Mrs. Gerald Page, Mrs. Clayton Page and Mrs. Geo. Sherrer entertained at a bridal shower in the evening of August 19th, at the home of Mrs. G. Page, Mudgett Road, in honor of Miss Noreen Russell, a September bride-to-be, with between twenty five and thirty attending.

The decorations were carried out in pink and white, with an umbrella suspended over the bride's chair.

In the center of the table was a shower cake made by Mrs. Geo. Sherrer and beautifully decorated in pink and white by Mrs. Wayne Clarkson.

The bride-elect, was brought to the house by her matron of honor Mrs. Carol McCreight of Greenfield Park.

Miss Russell was presented with a Mix

Master, a box of pantry items and a card containing currency, she also received a beautiful crocheted center piece from her aunt, Mrs. Bernice Russell.

Noreen expressed her thanks to everyone present, also thanking the hostesses for the beautiful shower.

Two contests were held, one, a floral wedding, of which Mrs. B. Russell was the winner. The other contest was a pack of cards were passed around, with winners, Mrs. G. Russell, Mrs. Hawkes, Mrs. G. Robinson and Miss Noreen Russell.

A delicious lunch was served, after which everyone left, wishing Noreen all the best for her future.

Noreen was also honored at two showers in Greenfield Park, given by friends. She grew up in Greenfield Park, coming here a few years ago with her parents.

Airborne regiment-reaction to government commitments

PETAWAWA, Ont. (CP) — The Special Service Force, a new branch of the military able to do United Nations peacekeeping duties, fight forest fires or quell civil insurrection has taken over this military base, 110 miles northwest of Ottawa.

The last of the 3,500 soldiers making up the force arrived as authorities here and in Ottawa challenged claims that the main purpose of the new group is to put down riots and insurrection should they occur in Quebec where a separatist government has been in office since last November.

Some members of the force were wearing gas masks as they fired semi-automatic rifles at a range on the base. An officer said the training was necessary in case the men ever had to operate in clouds of tear gas and nausea gas.

The force was officially formed April 1 as part of a major reorganization of land units in the 78,000-member armed forces to put more soldiers in operational jobs.

It includes the 1,000-man Canadian Airborne Regiment, whose transfer to Petawawa from Edmonton caused protests from western MPs. It also includes a helicopter squadron and units of artillery, tanks and engineers.

Brig.-Gen. Andrew Christie, the Special Service Force commander, described the new group as the fire brigade of the armed forces.

USE EXPERTISE
"This is an air-droppable, portable, quick reaction force in the centre of the country," he said in an interview. "Our job is to retain the airborne expertise and to use it to increase the Canadian reaction to government commitments."

At defence headquarters in Ottawa, officials rejected claims by Progressive Conservative MP Allan McKinnon of Victoria that the army was gearing up to respond to largescale riots and insurrection in Quebec.

McKinnon cited the transfer of the Airborne to this base, across the Ottawa River from western Quebec, and a series of armed forces equipment purchases to back up his argument. He was suspicious of the recent purchase of 17,800 gas masks, claiming Canadian troops have not been under gas attack in 59 years.

In addition, the 350 wheeled armoured vehicles already purchased and the 150 to 400 more on the way could be converted to carry water cannon for spraying unruly crowds, McKinnon said.

Other purchases which McKinnon questioned included 915 pairs of handcuffs and 22 suits of body armour for bomb disposal crews.

Officials in Ottawa say there is nothing sinister in the Airborne's transfer or in the equipment purchases, although they say responding to requests for aid by civil authorities is a main function of the new force.

MOVES FAST

Christie said the force can move into action in a matter of hours, using air transport from military bases in Ottawa and Trenton, Ont.

The Airborne regiment, the main unit of the new force, has already caused controversy and gossip among local civilians because of its reputation for toughness.

Police in Pembroke, 10 miles from the army base, say the Airborne is being unfairly blamed for fights and disturbances in the community.

Airborne soldiers earn an extra $75 a month for their special expertise as paratroopers. They go through rigorous training courses which, Christie said, makes them something of an elite group within the armed forces.

A 12-day "maroon beret course" is underway here for 112 soldiers and officers, who are about to join the Airborne regiment. The course is named for the distinctive headgear worn by the Airborne.

The soldiers rise at 5:30 a.m. each day and run four miles before breakfast. This is followed by weightlifting, light weapons practice and the falls, throws and chokes of unarmed combat.

The soldiers also have to put on football helmets and bash one another with padded clubs, a procedure designed to sharpen their skills at unarmed combat.

A group was busy firing rifles while wearing gas masks, the sound of gunfire punctuated by profane shouts from instructors.

One soldier said something to an instructor and was ordered to do 25 push-ups in full battle dress. When he finished the chin strap of his helmet had come loose, so he was ordered to do another 25 push-ups.

Christie said the course covers skills that the soldiers already have learned and serves no purpose other than to weed out those who are not tough enough for the Airborne.

Christie went through the course himself and said he had to do push-ups while a corporal planted a foot on his back and screamed abuse at him.

The force is preparing for extensive training this fall, including parachute drops and rock climbing. It plans to go to Norway for an arctic warfare exercise this winter.

The force is the descendant of the Special Service Force established during the Second World War and composed of Canadian and U.S. troops.

It was originally supposed to do sabotage work in Norway, Romania and northern Italy, but was actually involved in fighting in the Aleutians, Italy and France. It was disbanded in 1944.

MR. AND MRS. JAMES TRYHORN

FOSTER — The marriage of Patricia Anne, youngest daughter of Mrs. Edna Vosburg and the late George Vosburg of Foster, Quebec, to James Louis Tryhorn Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James Tryhorn Sr., of Bondville, Que., took place at St. Paul's Anglican Church, Knowlton, Que., July 30 at 1 p.m. Rev. Stanway officiating at the double ring ceremony. Mrs. Stanway played the traditional Wedding March.

The church was decorated with white mums, white satin ribbon bows and flowers marked the guest pews. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Donald Vosburg and her mother Mrs. Edna Vosburg. Cheryl Booth, (Mrs. R. Booth) sister of the bride was matron of honour. There were two flower girls.

Mr. Phil Black, friend of the groom, acted as best man. There were two ushers, Wayne Tryhorn, brother of the groom, and Dave Page friend of the groom.

The reception was held in Church hall, buffet style. A toast to the wedding couple was given by the best man and a short prayer by Rev. Stanway at the table. Music was provided for dancing in the Hall after the luncheon.

Relatives and friends from Montreal, Lachine, West Bolton, Foster, Waterloo, Knowlton, Bondville, St. Hyacinthe, Hudson and Haven Hill, Mass., attended the wedding.

The bridal couple will reside in Foster, Que.

DEAR MRS. J.A. — There was a commercial spray made for this but two sources advised me that it has been taken off the market. No one could give me a solution to your problem — sorry. —Polly

DEAR POLLY — I find my pizza roller works great for pressing crumbs in pie tins and for patting down cookie dough when making bars or tortes. — KATHRYN
Polly will send you one of her signed thank-you newspaper coupon clippers if she uses your favorite Pointer. Please or Problem in her column. Write POLLY'S POINTERS in care of this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY — Helen wanted to know how to clean and restore an old brass bucket. I used some sudsy ammonia with fine steel wool and cleaned some very black and discolored brass door knobs and back plates with excellent results. The longer you immerse the brass in the ammonia solution the more black will come off. If you wish to leave an antique look keep turning and working with the object until you get the effect you want. Do be sure to wear rubber gloves and do not breathe in the fumes. If working outside just turn on the hose to rinse off all the ammonia. Let it dry and then spray with either a clear satin or glossy polyurethane, depending on the finish you want.

Helen could put the ammonia in a dish pan or small tub, put her bucket in sideways and slowly turn it while scrubbing with the steel wool. Immediately rinse in another tub of clean water and dry. —DOLLY.

DEAR DOLLY — The ammonia worked wonders on a door knocker that had given me endless trouble. My personal thanks as this was new to me. —Polly.

Illustrated lecture

BEEBE - Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Redner of Belleville, Ont., gave an illustrated lecture of their recent trip to the Holy Land, in the Advent Christian Church, which was well filled with interested persons, members of the regular congregation and some from other churches.

Rev. Ronald White of Whitefield, N.H., pastor of the church, opened the meeting by offering a short prayer and the singing of a hymn with Miss Marjorie Woodland, also of Belleville at the piano.

The Scripture reading was from the third chapter of John, by Rev. Gordon Batchelder.

At this point, a few remarks were spoken by Rev. White who introduced Mr. and Mrs. Redner and turned the meeting over to them.

The slides were most interesting showing such places as Jerusalem, Bethlehem, Syria, Damascus, Jericho, Sea of Galilee, Gethsemane and Greece, just to mention a few of the places where Mr. and Mrs. Redner visited.

Following the pictures, diamonds and East shows out. The hand collapses and instead of making nine tricks South is likely to make only six.

South should go up with dummy's king of hearts at trick one. Then he leads the first diamond from dummy. East plays his ace, but catches a small diamond, not an honor. South gets five diamonds, two spades, two hearts, game and rubber.

Note that this gains only because East held a singleton ace of diamonds. Against any other combination it would not have hurt South to win that first trick in his own hand.

Ask the Jacobys

A New York reader asks if we approve of all the fancy modern leads that have cropped up in the last few years.

We think that they just will confuse anyone except the man who plays all the time and with just one or two partners. Also, no one has been able to prove that they do much for those who use them.

Bill 22 broke ice - Laurin

QUEBEC (CP) — Cultural Development Minister Camille Laurin says the Official Language Act passed by the province's former Liberal administration eased introduction of Bill 101, the current government's French language charter.

Former Liberal premier Robert Bourassa, ousted in the PQ election victory last November, "helped us with his Bill 22," Laurin said in a recent interview. "He gave the first shock."

Bill 22, which was passed in 1974 and gave priority to French in the province, prepared minorities for the current language law and softened their reaction to it. Their response was not as virulent as it might have been because "everybody thought the Parti Quebecois would go much further," said Laurin.

While the cultural development minister conceded that some prominent English-speaking figures had launched a vigorous attack upon the language legislation, he said the authorized spokesmen for the English-speaking community agree with the principles of Bill 101, giving primacy to French in business and government.

OUTLINES AIM
The minister has said the law—which also includes controversial measures restricting access to English-language schools—seeks to make Quebec as unilingually French as Ontario is English.

About 70 per cent of Quebec's French-speaking population supports the law, he said, while the remaining 30 per cent would like to see a French-speaking Quebec under the existing bilingual federal system.

Many Quebecers are happy to vote for Premier Rene Levesque at the provincial level while backing Prime Minister Trudeau in Ottawa, Laurin said.

Woman hitches to kidney transplant

HALIFAX (CP) — Two weeks ago Mrs. Albert Bruckschwaiger hitchhiked the last 20 miles of a 290-mile journey in a rainstorm and dense fog and then checked into hospital here to receive a kidney transplant.

Today she returns home with a new kidney, to Dominion, N.S., a rural Cape Breton community.

"The rain was so heavy it was like a snowstorm and we had to stop a couple of times," she said Monday of the night her car broke down en route to Halifax for the operation.

"My husband thought we would never make it to Halifax."

The car was repaired and the family set out to finish the trip but the car overheated and had to be abandoned, she recalled.

A trucker later spotted the family huddled beside the road and picked them up. He took them to neighboring Dartmouth, where they caught a taxi to the Halifax hospital.

The kidney was flown from Florida after the donor, a young man, died in a highway accident.

"You often wonder if you would ever get a kidney," Mrs. Bruckschwaiger said of her 12-year struggle to stay alive. "There are always those ifs and doubts. Every day alive is a big day. Others cannot imagine living on dialysis or how bad it really is."

"I never expected to get a chance like this so soon," Mrs. Bruckschwaiger is the second woman in Nova Scotia to receive a kidney transplant. In both cases the donors were Americans.

Forty-nine others await donors.

Correction

A photo captioned "Demolition" that appeared in Friday's edition erroneously stated that the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce Cowansville branch was empty and slated for demolition. The bank is in fact still occupied and won't be moving to new facilities in the Domain du Parc until November. Demolition is not certain at this time.

The Record regrets any inconvenience that this may have caused.

MARK OF THE CAT — Area criminals had better watch out or they'll feel the claws of this Cougar, purchased recently by the Cowansville police from B & M Mercury for about $5,000. The car, which boasts a 351-cubic-inch two-barrel carburetor police engine, is equipped with a special Police Pack option that includes a special suspension system and tires. The Cougar carries the usual assortment of police equipment in the front seat such as a riot gun, batons and communications system. A Cowansville police spokesman told The Record the vehicle conforms to Ministry of Justice specifications which state all future cars purchased by police departments must be of an "intermediate" size such as the Mercury Cougar, Ford LTD II, Plymouth Fury and Pontiac LeMans Enforcer. The Cougar, known in past years as Mercury's luxury sports car, is now the standard vehicle of the Mercury intermediate line. Cowansville is believed to be the first police department to purchase this make of car. (Record photo by Nelson Wyatt)

Wolves maul park visitor

HEMMINGFORD, Que. (CP) — A Hydro-Quebec supervisor pulled a 23-year-old student out of the jaws of three snarling wolves at a wild animal park Sunday after the woman had disregarded park warnings and tried to feed the animals.

Lise Garceau is in satisfactory condition in hospital after having 36 stitches to wounds in her arm. Witnesses said Miss Garceau and two male companions left their car and approached the two-acre compound where the wolves are kept, when one of the animals reached through an opening in the eight-foot high chain link fence and grabbed her hand.

The wolf pulled her right arm through the hole and two other animals joined in snapping and tearing at her.

Gilles Landreville, a 41-year-old Hydro-Quebec supervisor driving through the park, ran towards the fence throwing rocks at the animals to drive them off. While the woman's two friends beat at the wolves with shoes, Landreville grabbed Miss Garceau's left arm and pulled as hard as he could.

Anthony Von Elbe, manager of the 800-acre African Safari Park near this community 30 miles south of Montreal, said he regretted the accident, but added it was a case of "somebody unfortunately ignoring our warnings."

Around the world

Phillips makes emergency landing

LEEDS, England (AP) — Capt. Mark Phillips, Princess Anne's husband, was aboard a helicopter that made an emergency landing in a field Sunday because the pilot feared the craft was about to crash, police reported.

Phillips, a former member of Britain's Olympic equestrian team, was on his way to a horse show when the five-seat Jet Ranger came down from 1,500 feet. Neither he nor the pilot, Captain Wally Holmes, was hurt, and the helicopter was not damaged.

"My old ticker started fluttering a bit, but the pilot was first class," Phillips said.

Holmes said a red alarm light flashed in the cockpit after they took off from an airfield outside this northern industrial city.

Technicians who checked the helicopter after it landed said it was in no danger of crashing.

Weather linked to disease

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The appearance of Legionnaires disease in Columbus this summer has health officials speculating that a link may exist between weather and the infection that killed 29 persons in Philadelphia last year.

Dr. Ian Baird, director of infectious diseases at Riverside Hospital where all four confirmed cases were admitted, said the disease's recent history indicates it becomes active in late summer.

So far, the mysterious ailment has claimed the life of Catherine McCoy, 56, of Columbus, who died Aug. 6. Three other women, including one who recovered and was released Friday, are confirmed victims.

One other person, a 65-year-old woman, remained in hospital Monday in serious condition with symptoms of the disease, but the federal Centre for Disease Control in Atlanta is not expected to render a final diagnosis for at least a week.

Baird said his research shows there were late summer outbreaks of pneumonia-like deaths in Pontiac, Mich., and Washington, D.C., before the infection was isolated when 29 of about 180 persons stricken with the disease died during or after an American Legion convention in Philadelphia July 21-24, 1976.

TRACES FOUND

He said blood samples saved by health officials in Michigan and Washington show traces of an anti-body that is the same as those found in the blood of the Philadelphia and Columbus victims.

He said the appearance of the disease in Columbus lends more credence to the theory that the weather might increase the activity of the yet-unnamed organism which causes the disease, often undetected because its symptoms are similar to those of pneumonia.

Although Baird admitted there might have been earlier undetected cases of the disease in Columbus, he said he seriously doubts any deaths attributed to pneumonia might actually have been Legionnaires disease.

Baird added that he did not foresee an epidemic.

The CDC has dispatched two specialists to Ohio to conduct the investigation into the most serious, concentrated outbreak of the disease since the Philadelphia deaths.

Since that outbreak, 30 cases have been confirmed, with three occurring six months ago in New Jersey.

Gaiters on the field

By BILL ANDERSON

Stretching the truth considerably has always been one of my long suits. But, if I was to tell you that the Bishop's Gaiters actually won the Football Festival last Sunday I would be exceeding my authority. The truth of the matter is that the local contingent did possess more numerical statistics than any of their O.Q.U.A.A. rivals thereby crediting them with victory. Unfortunately, these numbers lie, substantially!

To begin with, the complex scoring system that was used in the tournament served merely to bolster great individual performances, both offensively and defensively. In short, consistency was not well rewarded. As a result the vaunted Gaiter offence succeeded in rolling up the impressive total of 87 points in their five twelve-minute appearances. Their defence, on the other hand, playing as a unit for the first time, managed only 16 points.

Each of the thirty "mini-games" pitted an offensive team against one of their rival defensive units. The ball was scrimmaged from the forty-five yard line and they were given twelve minutes to run as many offensive plays as they could before time elapsed. Points were awarded on the basis of normal football scoring procedure with bonus points for each first down achieved by the offence. There was no provision made for third down punts, and as a result many of the defences were burned on rather flamboyant gambles which would never have been attempted under normal game conditions. Also, field goals were being tried more frequently by most teams than would usually be the case. As Gaiter line coach, Al Grazys, astutely pointed out, "it's hard to fault your defence for giving up a relatively long field goal since the offence is starting on your forty-five. If they don't move the ball, they try a field goal with nothing to lose, and three points if they succeed. What, we only had two touchdowns scored against our defence all afternoon? And look at how many points we 'supposedly' gave up."

The defences accumulated points by preventing first downs (one point), interceptions (three points), fumble recoveries (two points), and blocking kicks (two points). Without trying to be apologetic for my beloved Gaiter defence, it seemed simply that the teams they confronted (a) passed less against them, (b) fumbled less, (c) tried fewer rational third down plays, and (d) hit all but one of the field goals they attempted. This resulted in a series of slow, drawn-out marches down the field which gave the Gaiters little chance to amass the point totals equalled by their respective counterparts. Most knowledgeable fans will realize that the number of prolonged drives under game conditions would never approach what they had to face.

Despite having all of the aforementioned advantages working for them, the Gaiter offence took some time to move into high gear. In their first two encounters they appeared flat and intimidated. Quarterback, Jim Etcheverry, exhibited a tentativeness quite unlike himself which could only lead to a lack of fluidity overall. As a result the Gaiters were intercepted frequently and fumbled often in the early going.

Between their second and third scrimmages the offence had time to regroup and the results were astonishing. In twelve minutes against their arch-rivals, Concordia, they struck for three touchdowns, three kicked converts, and four first downs for a total of 25 points while limiting Concordia's defence to two points. Immediately following this morale-booster they faced Ottawa University's hungry defence and proceeded to administer an equally admonishing 20-2 drubbing. This time on the strength of two majors, one kicked convert, one scrambling two point convert thrown by defensive end/ place kicker, Nick Arakgi, and five first downs. In their final outing against the sorely outclassed U. de Q. at T.R. Patriotes, the Gaiters erupted for 28 points in their eight minutes. The aerial attack cut through this inept outfit with flawless precision resulting in three touchdowns, three two point conversions and several first downs before the reserves were sent in. Most of the credit for the complete reversal of the offence's fortunes should go to the linemen, who finally started getting a piece of their blocking assignments and really took command of the trenches!

In summing up the weekend's activities I would have to say that the Gaiters learned a considerable amount about their opposition for this year. Most importantly, the defence now knows that they cannot try to outmuscle everyone. Defence requires as much finesse and timing as the most intricate offensive threats they are attempting to thwart. We can rest assured that these points will be worked on repeatedly during practice this week, and that the McGill Redmen who so intimidated us on Sunday will face an entirely new look this coming Saturday.

Cobb edges Holmes for Trois-Rivieres Grand Prix

TROIS-RIVIERES, Que. (CP) — Patrick Tambay of France drove his Lola T-333 CS to a comfortable victory Sunday in the seventh race of the 1977 Can-Am series.

Elliott Forbes-Robinson of La Crescenta, Calif., driving another Lola T-333 CS, crossed the finish line of the 60-lap race around the 1.5 mile course second with Peter Guthrie of England, in a Lola T-332 CS, coming home third.

Prior to the Can-Am event, Price Cobb of Dallas, Texas, driving a March 77-B, crossed the finish line first in the 1977 Trois-Rivieres Grand Prix for Formula Atlantic cars. That race also went 60 laps.

Cobb narrowly edged Howdy Holmes of Ann Arbor, Mich., in another March 77-B at the finish line with Patrick Depailler of France third in a Chevron B-39 and home-province favorite, Gilles Villeneuve of Berthierville, Que., fourth in his March 77-B.

The victory for Tambay was his third Can-Am win in a row and his fourth in the last five races.

He continues to lead the Can-Am driver points standings with 114 compared with 88 for Guthrie and 64 for Forbes-Robinson with two races left in the series.

UNABLE TO FINISH
For the fourth Can-Am in a row, Villeneuve was unable to finish because of mechanical problems. He pitted on the 22nd lap with fuel injection problems.

Although the Can-Am race never developed into a wide-open affair with four or five cars fighting for the lead, the Formula Atlantic event seemed to be a see-saw battle.

On the 51st lap, Cobb trailed leader Villeneuve by four seconds but when the cars of Gregg Young of Westport, Conn., and David Oxtan of New Zealand crashed into a retaining wall, the yellow flag went up signalling the drivers to slow down and hold their positions.

When the cars were cleared from the track, Cobb and Holmes, sitting second and third, pulled ahead of Villeneuve, when the Quebec driver slid into a retaining wall.

Depailler also passed Villeneuve moments later and the two battled it out for third position as Cobb and Holmes fought for first.

Cobb and Tambay each earned $10,000 for their victories with the second-place finishers in each race collecting $6,000. Depailler earned $3,500 for third place in the Formula Atlantic event while Guthrie earned $3,900 for third in the Can-Am race.

DUSSELDORF, West Germany (AP) — East Germany scored a narrow points victory over the United States in the inaugural World Cup track and field meet Sunday when Maxie Parks collapsed on the last leg of the 1,600-metre relay.

Parks was several yards ahead of his rivals on the back stretch as he anchored the U.S. squad to what looked like certain victory.

Suddenly he crumpled up and rolled over. He was carried away on a stretcher. The Americans did not finish and collected no points for the event.

East Germany won the men's section of the three-day tournament with a total of 127 points, and the U.S. was second with 120. If the U.S. relay team had won, the United States would have had 129 points and won the trophy.

West Germany finished third over-all with 112 points.

Europe — an all-star team from outside Germany — was fourth with 111. The Americas, including Canada, were fifth with 92.

Europe won the women's cup with 107 points. East Germany was second with 102, the Soviet Union third with 89, the U.S. fourth with 59 and the Americas fifth with 55.

U.S. team coach Steve Simmons said Parks would be flown home Monday for treatment of a pulled leg muscle.

Two fine performances had put the U.S. in line for the team title before the Parks injury.

Clancy Edwards of Los Angeles narrowly edged Italy's Pietro Mennea in the 200 metres. Both men clocked 20.17.

Marty Liquori of Gainesville, Fla., finished second behind Miruts Yifter of Ethiopia, running for the African team, in the 5,000 metres.

Yifter ran another tremendous last lap, just as he did in winning the 10,000 metres earlier. He won in 13:13.82 — less than a second off the world record.

Alberto Juantorena of Cuba, running for the Americas squad, completed a double by winning the 400 metres in 45.35. He won the 800 on the first day.

Sunday's 400 race was a rerun. Juantorena finished third Saturday but filed a protest, claiming he did not hear the gun and got off to a slow start.

This time, Juantorena started perfectly and moved steadily away from his rivals to finish comfortably ahead of East Germany's Volker Beck, who won Saturday's race.

East Germany's winners were Rolf Beilschmidt in the high jump and Thomas Munkelt in the 110-metre hurdles.

U.S. COMES SECOND
Beilschmidt cleared 7 feet, 6½ inches. Dwight Stones of Long Beach, Calif., was second with 7-5½.

Munkelt outpaced world record holder Alejandro Casanas of Cuba 13.21 over the last 20 yards to win the hurdles. Munkelt clocked 13.41 and Casanas 13.50.

A crowd of nearly 60,000 in Duesseldorf's Rhine Stadium had one West German victory to cheer. Michael Wessing hurled the javelin 286 feet 11 inches to beat Wolfgang Hanisch of East Germany on his last throw.

Irena Szewinska of Poland, a 31-year-old mother and an Olympic medalist in three events, added one more triumph to her long career. She passed Marita Koch of East Germany in the last few strides to win the women's 400 metres in 49.52. Szewinska also won the 200 metres Friday.

A British-German combination won the women's 400-metre relay in 42.51, only one-hundredth of a second off East Germany's world record. But no record would have counted because the runners were not from the same national team.

Elvira Possek and Annegret Richter were the Germans and Andrea Lynch and Sonia Lannaman were the Britons. Lannaman was the anchor runner.

Grete Waitz of Norway, competing for Europe, easily won the 3,000 metres in 8:43.5. Lynette Jacekco of Australia cleared 21-5½ to win the long jump, the only win in the meet for the Oceania team.

Valentine marks return with two-run homer

NEW YORK (AP) — The calendar said Monday was Labor Day, but as far as Montreal Expos were concerned it was more like Valentine's Day.

Returning to the lineup after missing three weeks when he fouled a ball off his ankle, Ellie Valentine belted a decisive two-run homer in the sixth inning and the Expos held on for a 4-3 victory over New York Mets in National League baseball play.

The Expos outfielder almost made it back Sunday in the Expos' 7-1 loss to Houston Astros in Montreal.

"I was supposed to come to bat yesterday with two out and a runner on base," explained Valentine, who is still far from full speed and was replaced by Sam Mejias in the late innings. "But we didn't get the opportunity."

He was on-deck three times Sunday but never made it to the plate. Better Monday than never.

"The main thing I was worried about was playing on the artificial turf in Montreal," Valentine said. "In fact, today I might not have played at all if we had played on artificial turf."

Because the ankle was still bothering him, Valentine batted fifth instead of in his usual No. 3 spot.

CERTAIN DOUBLE PLAY
"If we get a man on in the first inning and Valentine's hitting third, if he hits the ball on the ground it's a certain double play," said Montreal manager Dick Williams.

So it was that Valentine came up in the sixth following a leadoff single by Tony Perez, who had homered in the fourth inning for the game's first run. Valentine promptly walloped homer No. 21 for a 4-0 lead and that proved to be the blow that sent Jerry Koosman, a 21-game winner last year, to his 18th loss against only eight triumphs.

Perez opened the fourth inning with his 16th homer and the Expos made it 2-0 on a single by Gary Carter and Larry Parrish's double.

The Mets cut the lead in half in the sixth against Montreal starter Wayne Twitchell, 4-10, who had permitted just one scratch infield hit over the first five innings. Lenny Randle got an infield single with two out and Lee Mazzilli homered, his fourth.

They got their final run in the seventh on a walk, wild pitch, infield out and Leo Foster's scratch hit.

Delage predicts winning weekend

By STEVE BELL

(Sports Editor)

SHERBROOKE — If all Ghislain Delage's predictions this season are half as accurate as they were this weekend, the 1977-78 version of the Beavers should have little trouble collecting a fourth league championship for the club.

This year's Beavers opened their exhibition series Friday night as predicted with a 7-3 victory over some of the stars of past Beaver teams. They continued along the same lines Sunday night, defeating the Quebec Remparts 8-5, at the Sports Palace.

Friday night's game was more a question of conditioning than anything else as 18 ex-Beaver players, many of whom have since turned professional, took to the ice for the annual exhibition match.

This year's young team kept up quite a fast pace in the opening period, forcing their older, less-practised opponents to skate more than they had probably planned.

Veteran forward Larry Mensour tucked the puck into the corner past Mario Lessard, early in the period to start the Beavers' scoring drive. After numerous close calls in front of the "old-stars" net, Louis Begin connected for the Beavers' second goal of the period.

Bernard Harbec scored on a screen shot, beating Bernard Olivier, closing the gap to a single point.

Amazingly enough, there didn't appear to be any obvious one-sided match-ups on the ice. The younger players seemed more than able to keep up with their veteran opponents.

Both teams slowed considerably in the first 10 minutes of the second period, but that changed quickly after Wayne Groleau scored his first goal of the season. Denis Martin and Louis Begin followed suit to extend the Beavers' lead.

With one second remaining on the clock, Bernard Harbec scored his second goal of the evening, this time beating Louis-Marie D'Aoust of the Beavers.

Veteran Ron Carter picked up two goals and fellow veteran Ray Roy picked up a single goal in the third period to put the game out of the reach of the "old-stars".

The game ended with crowd favorite Richard Sevigny in nets for the old-stars and Jacques Chapdelaine in nets for the Beavers.

It was rather hard not to notice the unusually large amount of talent present within the ranks of the Beavers this season. But Delage has his work cut out for him as there still remain many rough edges to iron out before the regular season starts.

SUNDAY'S GAME
Sunday's game was what one might expect from the Remparts, in the first two periods alone there were 34 penalties called, and few expect any improvement from Ron Racette's club this season. It's unfortunate that the rookies couldn't just ignore Quebec's stupidity and just concentrate on beating them repeatedly.

Misses Mary and Lisa Coddington joined other members of the Richmond Young Farmers on a field trip visiting farms of different types, including pig, goat, sheep and bees, ending their day with supper at McDonald's in Sherbrooke.

Recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Pease have been Mr. and Mrs. Walter Curtis and Mr. and Mrs. Roland Curtis of Derby Line, Mrs. Ruth Curtis of Magog, and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Curtis, Alan and Ross, of Bowansville, Ont.

KNOWLTON

Kay Taylor
243-6177

Mesdames Evelyn Partridge, Iris Royea, Margaret Ede and Kay Taylor attended a miscellaneous shower on Saturday, August 13 at the home of Mrs. Barbara Partridge, West Brome, in honor of Mrs. Taylor's granddaughter, Miss Carolyn Taylor, whose marriage to Mr. Wayne Perry takes place in September.

A welcome to Glen and Francis Frizzle who moved to Knowlton in July and have taken up residence in the Beauregard apartments on Victoria Street.

Mrs. Dana Frizzle of Rexdale, Ontario, was guest of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Frizzle for several days, later visiting Mr. and Mrs. Lester Ball at Cowansville.

About 45 guests attended a Housewarming at the new home of Kenneth and Shirley Doiron on Moffatt Road on July 30. Among those present were Ken's sister and brother-in-law from Hamilton, Ont., and his brother from Ottawa, also Shirley's uncle Mickey Battley who was on leave here before his transfer from New Brunswick to Manitoba. A most enjoyable evening was spent by all.

The death of Mrs. Eva McCullum, a former resident of Knowlton and of Thetford Mines was noted here with regret. Mrs. McCullum died in Deep River, Ont., on August 5, in her 90th year.

Recent guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Darcy Aldridge have been their son Billy who has now returned to Nelson, B.C. and Mrs. Sylvia Fletcher of North Hatley who spent about ten days with her sister and brother-in-law.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bleau of St. Laurent accompanied their daughter Louise Palladeni with her husband and two children of Pierrefonds and all were calling on the Dennis Taylors on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Savard of La Salle were guests on Saturday and Sunday of last week of Mr. and Mrs. William Peek. Mr. and Mrs. W. Peek Jr. arrived Monday from Toronto and visited his parents until leaving to vacation in Old Orchard, Maine, on Wednesday.

Mrs. Irene Seal of Kingston, Ont., arrived Wednesday night to visit her granddaughter, Mrs. Susan Mason and Mr. Mason. She had the pleasure of seeing for the first time her new grandson Paul Mason who arrived on August 15. Congratulations and best wishes to Mr. and Mrs. James Mason on the birth of their third son.

The Reverend Roy Darcus, a former rector of Sutton, was guest priest at St. Paul's Church on August 21. Sunday (Aug. 28), the Parish Lay Reader, Mrs. Stella Collier, was preacher at the 11 a.m. service.

Your correspondent had the immense pleasure of being part of the group who enjoyed a trip on Saturday, August 20 to tour Old Montreal. There were about 30 in the party which comprised people from Sutton, Cowansville and Adamsville, in addition to a family visiting here from Surrey, England. The most delightful day was arranged by Mrs. Inge von Glasow in her usual competent way. Enjoying outings such as this and the appearances from time to time of special artists at Place des Arts and elsewhere, she is motivated in organizing these trips by the strong desire to make it possible for others, also, to share in these delights. A number of followers have come to look with keen anticipation for these, opportunities to participate and to be relieved from all the worries of driving, parking, etc. This particular event was extremely successful. Claude and Pat Schwesig in their role of guides were both charming and most well informed. Luncheon at a delightful St. Paul Street, West, Italian restaurant, Le Muscadin, was a further highlight of the day. Arriving at Youville Square shortly before 10 a.m. the party were back home around 6 p.m. Fortunately the weather cooperated well, with only a very light shower in the morning and later sunshine, until a very heavy downpour shortly after starting for home by way of Mount Royal for the benefit of the guests from Britain. However, it was only a few minutes duration and by the time the bus reached Mount Royal it had cleared once more. A very special day and thanks, Inge, from us all!

A Thought: "Income: something you can't live without or within".
