

Cold war strategist, Dean Acheson, dies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dean Acheson, state secretary during the turbulent years just after the Second World War and architect of much of the United States cold war strategy, died Tuesday night.

The 78-year-old Acheson served as secretary of state under Harry S. Truman from 1949 to 1953, the years of the Korean War, European reconstruction, the adolescence of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, the Japanese peace treaty and the beginning of the McCarthy era.

Acheson died about 6 p.m. EDT at his Sandy Spring, Md., farm. The cause was undetermined.

Family members said Acheson was found slumped over a desk in his study. He was pronounced dead by the family physician.

Friends said Acheson had a history of hypertension but had not been in ill health recently.

After leaving the state department, Acheson served in an advisory capacity to the administrations of presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson. But he spent most of his time in a far-flung and lucrative Washington law practice.

The Connecticut-born Acheson carried an aristocratic manner that often alienated his foes, and even some friends. But he achieved great success in the government in a career that reached from a monetary-policy negotiator under Franklin D. Roosevelt to state secretary under Truman.

SUCCEEDED MARSHALL

In between, he practised law briefly, but spent most of his time in various positions within the state department, finally succeeding Gen. George Marshall as secretary in 1949.

Upon taking over as the top U.S. diplomat, Acheson immediately assumed a tough stand concerning what was regarded at the time as aggressive, expansionist Soviet policy.

He implemented the strategy of alliances ringing the Soviet Union and its Eastern European allies, including the formation of NATO, still the key defence pact for the United States, Canada and Western Europe.

At the same time, Acheson promoted the continuation and strengthening of the Marshall Plan, the economic recovery program put forth by his predecessor at state.

In spite of his hard-line attitude toward international communism, his hardest fight involved charges he was soft on communism at home.

FRIENDLY WITH HISS

He came under personal attack for his friendship with Alger Hiss, the high state department official who ultimately was sentenced to jail for perjury after he swore he was not a Communist.

Hiss, a key adviser to American delegations during some of the major meetings after the Second World War, was charged with giving secrets to the Soviet Union.

In spite of the allegation, Acheson refused to disavow his friendship with Hiss and thereafter was accused of harboring Communists and their sympathizers in the state department.

One of his most severe critics was Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep.-Wis.), who often charged Acheson was leading the diplomatic corps and the country down the road to communism.

The urbane Acheson was known as the diplomat's diplomat.

In a speech to the Women's National Democratic Club two years ago, he urged Americans not to be destructive and to give the Nixon administration "strong enough support to carry forward what it has to do."

"If we understood the present, we would deal more wisely with the future," he said.

One of Acheson's major fights concerned U.S. policy during the Chinese civil war. His critics of the time said he was not committed strongly enough to the Nationalist government of Chiang Kai-shek.

They also charged that state department China experts were sympathetic to the Communists and that their advice led to a lack of support for the Nationalists and their ultimate downfall.

In an ironic twist, Acheson's last years were spent under attack by so-called revisionist American historians, who said his policies reflected a lack of knowledge about the Soviet Union and communism.

Famed ecologists to speak here

The 18th Annual Bird and Wildlife Revue of the St. Francis Valley Naturalist Club will present Dr. Lorus and Dr. Margery Milne, internationally known naturalists and photographers from the University of New Hampshire. In studying an article about Dr. and Mrs. Milne and the film "Cloud Jungles of Central America" which they will present, it would also be most worthwhile in passing on the following information.

Three quarters of a million miles have been logged by Dr. and Mrs. Milne, ecologists from Harvard and Radcliffe who alternate between teaching and travelling. They have explored extensively on five continents. After their book, "Water and Life" was made into a TV color film, the Milnes were invited by the National Geographic Society to travel further to study the uses of water by peoples over the world. Just now they are working on a National Geographic project related to their book, "The Senses of Animals and Man."

The St. Francis Valley Naturalist's Club has never had such a difficult problem in choosing from the programs available from a single speaker. They feel assured that they have chosen the speakers and film that will be of the utmost interest, not only to naturalists but to the general public. The film "Cloud Jungles of Central America" in color and guest speakers Dr. and Mrs. Milne will be at the Alexander Galt Regional High School in Lennoxville for one night only Saturday, October 23, at 8:15 p.m.

Admission is $1.50 per person. Tickets are available at Clarks Drug Store and from naturalists' club members.

JUNGLE CREATURES of Central America are held in the hands of Dr. and Mrs. Milne, who will be at the Alexander Galt Regional School this coming Saturday to present their film "Cloud Jungles of Central America" and to relate their experiences of the adventure.

Trudeau isn't happy with US list

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau made it clear Tuesday that he isn't happy with the way the United States government is keeping its trading partners in the dark about future intentions.

After facing a barrage of questions in the Commons on the so-called "list" of American demands for Canadian economic concessions, Mr. Trudeau remarked that "it is not American policy now to put the proper 'stuff' into the channels which would satisfy the Canadian people."

ensuring that the communications are put to use so that they know what the Americans intend doing in their future policy.

"That worries not only Canada; it worries many nations that are affected by the 10-per-cent surcharge.

"I think it is significant that President Nixon in his recent statement to the nation did not refer to international relations. Apparently this aspect of communications is not foremost in his mind."

Some opposition MPs prefaced their questions with remarks about alleged deteriorating Canada-U.S. relations. But outside the Commons, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp was telling reporters that "relations are fundamentally very good" with the U.S. although he acknowledged some "serious difficulties at the moment."

SEEKS DEBATE

Earlier in the Commons, Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield had unsuccessfully sought an emergency debate on the "apparent breakdown in communications" between Ottawa and Washington.

In later questions he referred to "oblique communications" between the two countries.

So far as the Canadian government is concerned, said Mr.

Trudeau, there have been no oblique communications—"They have been at the ministerial and official level at all times."

He had decided that, at this time, it would not be necessary to speak directly with President Nixon.

Mr. Sharp told Mr. Stanfield that Canada has indicated to the U.S. that "we would be happy" to receive a list of matters it wanted to discuss. So far none has been received.

In reply to further questions from New Democrat Leader David Lewis, Mr. Sharp said that Canada has won its own list.

Canada would like to discuss the U.S. ban on the importation of uranium, its restrictions on immigration and certain clauses in the Copyright Act. Outside the House, he also mentioned U.S. import restrictions on chemicals.

CITES GAS EXPORTS

In the House, Eldon Woolliams (PC—Calgary North) suggested that Canada exports of natural gas to the U.S.—"there is a serious shortage of energy in the U.S."—could enter the discussions.

Witnesses at citizen's commission

Most think civil rights deteriorated since WMA

MONTREAL (CP) — Most witnesses appearing before a citizens' commission into the War Measures Act Tuesday agreed that civil rights in Quebec have deteriorated during the last year.

Jacques-Yvon Morin, president of the Federation of St. Jean Baptiste Associations, a French-Canadian nationalist group, said all Quebecers were responsible for the events of last October.

Mr. Morin said the crisis occurred because too many Quebecers refused to become involved in their society.

"Small groups, stirred by such slogans as 'the just society,' despairing of any possible changes, and seeing the faults of the democratic system, resorted to violence," he told the commission.

"The politicians did not particularly wish to change social and economic structures.

"But Quebecers elected them, so Quebecers are ultimately responsible.

"And it is still easier to get people out to a bingo than to a political meeting."

Mr. Morin said the War Meaasures Act had a useful role in wartime but was misapplied last October. He said it should be revised to state precisely the situations where it could be invoked.

NEW LAW NEEDED

Mr. Morin said another law should be passed to allow governments to intervene in other crisis situations.

He said the ultimate authority for calling such laws into force should rest with Parliament and not with the cabinet.

The War Measures Act was invoked last Oct. 16 following the kidnapping of James Cross, British trade commissioner, on Oct. 5 and Pierre Laporte, former Quebec labor minister, on Oct. 10. The Front de Liberation du Quebec claimed credit for both abductions.

Mr. Laporte was found dead two days after the emergency powers were invoked by the federal government, but Mr. Cross was released by his FLQ abductors on Dec. 3 and returned to England Dec. 5.

Francois Dorval, director of the criminal section of the Montreal legal aid office, said his office was asked by friends or relatives, or by the Human Rights League, to intervene in about 100 cases where people were arrested under emergency legislation.

HAD FEW DIFFICULTIES

"Aside from the first few hours after the act was invoked, we had little difficulty from police and prison authorities in contacting prisoners," Mr. Dorval said.

"In about five or six cases we asked about people who had disappeared but had not yet been arrested."

QUEBEC IN FOCUS

Laws regulating bailiffs

MONTREAL (CP) — Legislation aimed at regulating the conduct of bailiffs in the province will be introduced in the national assembly this fall, Jerome Choquette, Quebec justice minister announced Tuesday.

"The bailiffs, as public officers, are often the only contact that some citizens have with the law," said Mr. Choquette, "and their actions must not downgrade the judicial system."

Mr. Choquette's announcement followed a report released last week by Point St. Charles Community Legal Services Inc., which concluded after a summer-long study that the present system of seizing property to enforce debt judgments is inhumane.

Although bailiffs act as officers of the provincial court, they are not in fact employed by the court. The Point St. Charles study said they act as independent entrepreneurs.

The report, which was sent to Mr. Choquette, suggested that bailiffs be made civil servants.

The Point St. Charles group's report will be examined by a task force which has been formed to draft the legislation, the minister said.

Tax bill passes its first hurdle

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's big and controversial tax bill passed its first parliamentary hurdle Tuesday night after 12 days of Commons debate on its general principles.

The House passed the legislation through second reading on a voice vote, although opposition MPs had argued that it required a major overhaul.

The Commons was to go into the tough, next stage of deliberation today, clause-by-clause analysis and debate of the 707-page document that would reduce personal and corporate income taxes, introduce taxation of capital gains and shuffle the rules and rates of most other forms of income tax.

Opposition MPs, in addition to attacking many individual features of the legislation, argued that the bill as it stands should be delayed.

With doubts about future U.S.-Canada relations in trade and economic affairs because of protectionist moves in Washington, MPs said any future tax legislation must take account of a change in those relations.

Further, the opposition argued, the tax-reductions portion of the bill should be enacted immediately—separately from the main bill—in order to stimulate the economy and boost employment this winter.

Such arguments were expected to be pressed in more detail as the Commons—sitting as a committee—examines each clause.

The tax bill, almost a decade in the making after study of existing tax laws and proposals by a royal commission, the government and Commons and Senate committees, was presented for routine first reading June 30.

Since the Commons resumed Sept. 7 after summer recess, MPs have spent almost half their debating time on the bill.

With a maximum of 51 Commons sitting days to Christmas, the government will be hard pressed to get the bill into law as planned by Jan. 1.

No razzle-dazzle

LOS ANGELES (AP) — After years of revolution, razzle-dazzle and regression to clothes past, California's sportswear designers disclosed Tuesday the secret of 1972—"appropriate clothes."

Karen McAuliffe, spokesman for Cole of California swimwear, said:

"Every woman has been waiting for appropriate clothes ... In the '60s, clothes were sometimes anti-fashion—ugly and not easy to wear."

Now, she added, "classics suddenly seem exciting again—timely, comfortable, current and functional."

California sportswear manufacturer Alex Coleman showed a complete line of floor-length, body-hugging dresses in packable Banlon and Trevira knits. A standout was a simple navy jersey dress topped by a huge white lace collar.

Further, the opposition argued, the tax-reductions portion of the bill should be enacted immediately—separately from the main bill—in order to stimulate the economy and boost employment this winter.

Such arguments were expected to be pressed in more detail as

Air Canada negotiations

MONTREAL (CP) — The negotiator for the Canadian Airlines Employees' association said Tuesday that the work-to-perfection slowdown being staged by 2,000 Air Canada ground employees may stop reservation service across the country if contract negotiations do not improve.

M.B. Widgerson told a news conference that the work to perfection, which is in effect a work-to-loose program, is the first phase of the union's effort to make the Canadian public aware of the union's difficulties with the airline.

He said stopping reservation services is one of several plans being considered by the union. He refused to elaborate, saying the union was hoping to solve the dispute through mediation.

The work-to-perfection campaign started last Thursday after contract negotiations between the union and the airline broke off.

Suspected murderer frees girl

MONTREAL (CP) — A 13-year old girl was freed early today after being held hostage since Tuesday afternoon by a murder suspect.

Reporters, kept 100 yards away from the house where the girl was held and from the police command post in a neighboring house, but saw Helene Sanche escorted into the command post by about 30 heavily armed policemen.

It was not apparent what had happened to the gunman who had held the girl captive.

No shots had been heard.

Reporters saw a car with newspaper markings and flashing lights pull up outside the house where the girl, a tall, slight teenager described as quiet by her neighborhood friends.

The car's lights were turned off and later a group of persons was seen getting into it. But they could not be recognized in the darkness.

Earlier, Maurice Hebert, a lawyer, reached the scene.

The suspect in the house, wanted for questioning in the shooting death Tuesday afternoon of a Ste. Therese policeman and the robbery earlier of a bank in nearby St. Augustin, had asked Mr. Hebert to come to the house.

He was at first unreachable and the man, who police say was armed with an M-1 rifle, was visited by two other lawyers from Mr. Hebert's office and by a woman broadcaster.

In earlier negotiations, the suspect said he wanted Helene and Mrs. Lettecheur to go with him in the girl's father's car.

He proposed to release them if he was not followed in his getaway, letting the girl out first and letting Mrs. Lettecheur out later if he still was not being followed.

Police rejected the proposal.

They emerged about 15 minutes later with a formula proposed by the suspect for the release of the girl.

Police said the man had offered to let her go if he could remain armed and go 15 miles south to Montreal with the broadcaster and the lawyers. He would release them in Montreal when he felt he was safe.

Heavily armed police maintained surveillance on all sides of the house where the girl was being held. It was not known whether police would let the man, armed with an M-1 rifle, go free.

He was a suspect in the shooting-death of a Ste. Therese policeman earlier in the day.

Negotiations were conducted by telephone from a house a few doors away before the lawyers entered the hostage house with Evelyne Lettecheur, who runs an open-line show on French-language radio station CKVL.

The lawyers were identified as Maurice Hebert and Claude Desrosiers.

Held since late afternoon, when a man burst into her home following a gun battle with police outside, was Helene Sanche.

She appeared at windows from time to time during the afternoon and evening, pulling aside a curtain and staring briefly into the street where hordes of plainclothes policemen were keeping vigil with carbines and sub-machine-guns.

Police said the girl was taken hostage after a man barged into her house with an M-1 rifle, seeking refuge from police. Mrs. Lettecheur entered voluntarily, later, to meet a demand made by the man.

Earlier, Constable Gabriel Labelle of Ste. Therese municipal police was shot to death when he approached a man to question about an attempted robbery in nearby St. Augustin.

Police had the house surrounded while negotiations with the suspect continued by telephone.

THREATENS DEATH

They quoted the man as saying he would kill himself or the girl if police used tear gas or tried to arrest him.

Marcel Sanche was at home when the man burst in, but he managed to wrestle free and escape.

Police said the drama followed an attempted robbery at the Provincial Bank of Canada in St. Augustin.

Police spotted a man leaving the bank and chased him in patrol cars along the Laurentian Autoroute to Ste. Therese.

Constable Labelle spotted a car bearing a licence number broadcast over police radio.

In December 1965 he was at Sherbrooke's St-Vincent-de-Paul Hospital and later at Montreal's Royal Victoria, Queen Mary, and Montreal General Hospitals.

Dr. Richard Nelson has also been appointed to the position of associate professor. Dr. Nelson will be attached to the social medicine department of the faculty of medicine.

DR. DENNIS SHAPCOTT

Dr. Nelson received his doctorate from the University of Ottawa in 1968. He served his internship at Sacred Heart Hospital, Hull, one year in residence at Notre Dame Hospital in Montreal, and a stage at Ste-Justine Hospital.

Quebec leads Canada in plump, succulent chickens

QUEBEC — Production of eviscerated fowl weighing upwards of four pounds has become a speciality of Quebec poultrymen. The demand for heavier birds at a higher price than broilers being good, producers have developed this line and are finding it as paying as other kinds of poultry — in fact to the extent of that, because of their culinary possibilities, the market for these roasting fowl can be said to be competitive with that for broilers.

These are the main findings of a survey by Roger J. Paiement, adviser to the Quebec Department of Agriculture's marketing service. They are based on analysis of federal statistics on chickens slaughtered between 1966 and 1970. The survey brings out the importance of this type of fowl in relation to total poultry production in Quebec and the other provinces.

Figures published on poultry slaughtering at registered stations show that the number of pounds of chickens weighing four pounds and over which were killed in Canada in 1970 was 14 per cent of annual production, as compared with 12.2 per cent for 1966. The average for the five-year period was 10.9 per cent of the total weight of chickens.

For the whole of Canada, the average annual volume of eviscerated poultry weighing four pounds and up for 1966 and 1967 was 55 million pounds. Quebec's share averaging 41 million pounds a year or almost exactly three quarters (74.6 per cent).

These statistics indicate clearly that the production of fowl weighing upwards of four pounds is a speciality of Quebec poultry breeders.

The average production of eviscerated heavy chickens weighing upwards of four pounds represents 10.9 per cent of the total volume of chickens reared in Canada between 1966 and 1970.

Quebec's production of heavy chickens represents 74.6 per cent of the total production in Canada. Except for last year, the volume of production of heavy chickens in Quebec has increased annually in the last five years.

Blood clinic planned

HERE & THERE
ABERCORN — There will be a card party in the Town Hall on Saturday evening, Oct. 16.
BEEBE — The Unit Two of Wesley United Church, Beebe, will sponsor a chicken-pie supper at Wesley United Church on October 16. Serving to start at 5 p.m.

SHERBROOKE (BSL) — The Canadian Red Cross Society's Sherbrooke section will be holding its annual November blood donor clinic again this year.

The hours that the clinic will be open are the same as previous years that is from 1:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. The clinic held at the Belvedere Armory will be open Nov. 1, 2, 3 and 4. The clinic will then move to the St. Vincent de Paul Hospital on Nov. 5, then to the Joliette campus of the Sherbrooke CEGEP on November 16, and finally to the University of Sherbrooke on Nov. 19.

Last May because of a tremendous heat wave a lot of potential donors stayed away from the clinics. Only 1,770 donors showed up. In November 1970, 2,238 donors gave blood, thus falling short of the 2,500 goal.

The clinic committee is very optimistic that this November will be a record setting month for blood donations.

"Faced with the actual shortage of blood in the Eastern Townships it is imperative that every citizen in good health and between the ages of 18 and 60 realizes his responsibility," said Dr. Jacques Crepeau, president of this year's clinics. "To give of one's blood causes no pain and consists of a first class humanitarian act."

Art exhibit at Border

ROCK ISLAND (IH) — Another interesting exhibit of paintings by local artists is presently on display at the art gallery in the Haskell Library on the Border.

The artists are Mrs. Ruth Lafoe, Derby Line; Mrs. Lora Barlow and Mrs. Julia Smith of Rock Island. The subjects are scenes from Nova Scotia, Lakes Seymour, Memphremagog and Norton Lake, Orford Mountain, Barnston Pinnacle, "After the Storm," and a moonlight winter scene in Vermont, the four seasons and covered bridges. Perhaps the small one of the historic Red Brick schoolhouse at Stanstead North is the most popular.

They are all beautiful and viewing them makes the "natives" of the Boundary realize how beautiful the four seasons of the year are in the area.

The exhibit will remain until the end of October.

Beebe Curling Club stages fashion show

BOUNDARY (IH) — It seemed as if all cars with women drivers were headed for the Border Curling Club in Beebe on Wednesday evening for a fashion show sponsored by the Women's Club and presented by Mrs. Louis Sargent, prop. of Bernie's Speciality Shop of Magog, who is a former Boundary resident. She was assisted by her husband, Louis, also a former Boundary resident and seven models, Pauline, Lucie, June, Debbie, Carole, Louise and Patricia all of Magog.

Mrs. Bert Renwick, the Women's Club president welcomed the large crowd, close to 200 women, many of whom had come from considerable distance.

Mrs. Renwick also introduced Mr. and Mrs. Sargent. The fashions were lovely and so much enjoyed by the women of all age groups.

A feature of many was "wash and wear" fabrics, slacks with bell bottoms, hot pants, mix and match ensembles, turtle neck styles, solids, brilliant and modified figured materials, combinations for sports, lounging, the office and "stylish and practical" everyday wear.

Lucie modeled a brown turtle neck sweater worn with brown knickers, a plaid jacket and wool knee socks, very smart indeed for the younger set.

Lengths were mimi, midi and there were floor-length gowns, new fashions for the approaching holiday season.

June sported a smart ski outfit, stretch slacks and tuque in navy blue and a steele grey long length jacket. Many of the styles were belted at the waist. There was also a White Sister nurses' uniform, or for any women wearing white uniforms.

Debbie was lovely in a bride's gown of white lace-trimmed, peau de soie fashioned on Princess lines with a cathedral length train. Patricia, as a bride's attendant, was wearing a pale blue georgette gown trimmed with lace and over peau de soie in blue, or for the Christmas wedding, June was in a red velvet, or Carole, who was in a crushed raspberry velvet. The models showed beautiful New York and Canadian styles of winter coats, some fur trimmed, also nightwear and for lounging.

In conclusion Mrs. Peter Cross expressed the appreciation of the club members and guests for coming to the Border to show the fashions, and presented Mrs. Sargent with a sheath of rose-pink carnations and a long-stemmed single rose to each model.

Door prizes were given to local merchants won by Mrs. Steve West, Stanstead; Mrs. John G. Glass, Georgeville; Mrs. Arnold Rever, Mrs. Olga Audet, Mrs. Leo Perreault, Mrs. S. B. Fraser, all of Stanstead; Mrs. Raymond Fluet, Mrs. Janey Denney, Mrs. R. H. Rediker, all of Beebe; Mrs. Harold Emslie, Miss Carla Carla Blais, Derby Line; Mrs. Roland Lefebvre, of Rock Island.

The proceeds were most satisfactory and added to the Curling Club treasury.

Quebec consumer given five days to decide to buy

The consumer who signs a contract with a door-to-door salesman (itinerant vendor) now has the right to cancel this contract within five days after signature of the contract, or seven days, if the period includes a Saturday and a Sunday. A door-to-door salesman is usually one who sells from one house to another. This announcement was made this week by Mr. William Tetley, Minister of Financial Institutions, Companies and Cooperatives.

Moreover, the Cabinet has decided to bring several new sections of the Consumer Protection Act into force as well. While most concern door-to-door salesmen, the others deal with warranty and advertising, credit cards and certain provisions governing the contract.

Mr. Tetley underlined that the five-day delay enjoyed by Quebec consumers is longer than what exists in most of the other provinces. In Ontario, for instance, it is limited to two days.

The consumer who wishes to avail himself of this provision of the act may cancel his contract without explanation either by returning to the door-to-door salesman the goods he has purchased or by giving him a written notice in the course of the delay period.

The act also provides that, within seven days after cancellation of the contract, the consumer and vendor shall each return what he has received from the other. The consumer shall return the goods, if this has not already been done; the merchant shall refund what he has received.

The minister made it a point to draw attention on the sales of aluminum door, windows and sashings, made by a door-to-door salesman which can also be cancelled in the five days following signature of the contract.

Sections dealing with warranty and advertising mainly prescribe that the goods supplied by a merchant must comply with the description given of them in the contracts and advertising material. Furthermore, the warranty mentioned in a merchant's advertising forms part of the contract of sales respecting such goods.

The consumer who buys goods for a specific purpose is entitled to have it mentioned in his contract. This mention in itself gives him a guarantee that the goods purchased can normally serve for the purpose indicated. For example, the consumer who needs a car to get to work may have this appear on his contract: "Automobile purchased to get to work." If he does so, the automobile is guaranteed for this purpose even if the contract states that there is no guarantee.

Moreover it is now forbidden under the Act to issue credit cards to consumers who have not requested them in writing.

Section 75 renders null and void every contract dealing with what is commonly called pyramid sales. Among other things, these sales involve registration to various types of personality courses, for which inscription fees are very high but in counterpart, members are allowed to recruit new people and for this, they receive remuneration.

Also noteworthy is the division dealing with information agents which provides for consumers the right to examine the credit record respecting their reputation, character and solvency. They may also obtain copy of this record for a set amount of $0.50 and an additional amount of $0.50 for each page.

The Consumer Protection Bureau supervises the application of the act and receives complaints from consumers; it is already operating in Quebec with offices at 800 Place d'Youville and in Montreal, with offices at 800 Victoria Square.

Members of this advisory body charged with the study of any problem which might arise from application of the act have already been appointed and the council has already convened several times. It is the first association of this type created at the level of provincial governments.

Trans-Canada through Maine is discussed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressman William D. Hathaway (Dem.-Me.), said Tuesday U.S. and Canadian officials are arranging for an October meeting for further discussions of a cross-Maine link of the Trans-Canada Highway.

The discussion will centre, Hathaway said, on new economic and traffic data compiled by Canadian officials this last summer.

"I feel certain the new information will support claims made earlier this year that the Maine route would provide a very convenient connection between Canadian urban centres in Quebec and New Brunswick provinces as well as an east-west connection in a portion of the United States that is easily accessible. ... I view it not only as a way to reduce time, effort and expense in constructing the Trans-Canada Highway but also as providing an economic lift for northern Maine," he said.

The proposed route is between Vanceboro, on the New Brunswick border, and Coburn Gore in Franklin County at the Quebec boundary.

Much of the route is now Maine's state highway No. 6.

A proposal to issue $30 million in bonds to permit upgrading the road failed to get the approval of Maine voters in a referendum last November.

Hathaway's announcement did not give the place or the exact date of the meeting.

Another voice

The other shoe fell Sunday. There was, of course, at no time since the calling of this past weekend's Social Credit party leadership convention any doubt at all that Real Caouette, the 54-year-old automobile dealer from Rouyn, would be confirmed in the top spot with anything but an overwhelming majority. His three leadership opponents were all unknowns outside the political affiliation Mr. Caouette and his followers wish to establish as a national party. Mr. Caouette rolled up more than five times the number of delegate votes that his closest competitor received on the first and decisive ballot.

The bombastic orator's victory cannot be quibbled with in terms of its appropriateness to the Social Credit party, the embodiment of Mr. Caouette's expanded and presumably rejuvenated Ralliement Creditiste that has experienced such success in federal politics in Quebec.

And yet that very victory is an indication of to what extent nothing has changed.

While Mr. Caouette has assumed messianic proportions among his loyalists in this province, his image in western Canada, the only other region where the Social Credit philosophy can be said to have gained any ground whatsoever, is not much more than that of an interesting but not particularly forceful eastern Canadian aberration.

It is thus highly unlikely that the dream of a Caouette-led party rising to national prominence and perhaps power will ever even approximate realization. Western Social Crediters are even now voicing their doubts.

Francis Porter of Drumheller, vice-president of the Alberta provincial party, has said that the Alberta Social Credit League has refused support of a national organization, although the stance may be changed at the next convention.

Former Alberta municipal affairs minister Alf Hooke called into question the course the national movement is taking and called for a return to traditional policies.

Former Alberta premier Harry Strom is reported to be in favor of a coalition of conservatives, including Social Crediters.

In the face of a clearly incompetent and simultaneously powerful Liberal government, the suggestion appears to have considerable merit.

The nascent federal Social Credit party is now numbered among a diversity of conservative opposition to Prime Minister Trudeau's impulsive and widely distasteful initiatives.

As things now stand, those who believe that the present government must be removed from its pedestal come the next election will face a situation in which their voice, emphatic were it united, will be dispersed among the Social Credit, Progressive Conservative and Action Canada affiliations.

When one considers that the opposition to the Liberals from the left consists solely of the socialist New Democratic Party, the dangers of continued conservative fragmentation are rendered in stark relief.

The times clearly call for a strong and united responsible conservative alternative to the unending ineptitude of the current Liberal regime and the insidious socialist pitch of the New Democrats.

Mr. Caouette's greatest service to his country and new national party would be to initiate discussions with Mr. Stanfield's Progressive Conservatives and Mr. Hellyer's Action Canadians on providing a united voice through which aware voters can call a halt to the continuing course represented by the other two parties, a course past incompetence towards socialism.

A little better all the time

By LUBOR J. ZINK

OTTAWA — Don't pay heed to the gloomy talk you hear about a tough winter and worse to come next year. The Prime Minister says the economy is doing fine and thanks to the brilliant and timely measures the Government had taken — all of them in the right direction — it will soon be doing even better.

"In terms of the economy itself," our peerless leader said in a television interview recently, "it will be a better winter" than the last. "In terms of the number of unemployed people and in terms of the relative, the adjusted figures and absolute figures, it will be better."

If, reading about the layoff of 2,000 General Motors workers and various plant shutdowns all over the place, you don't see it that way, it's because your eyesight isn't as good as Mr. Trudeau's, or because you are one of those fools who still read newspapers and listen to newscasts despite the wise man's advice to watch football or contemplate your navel.

The Prime Minister doesn't bother reading about unemployed people. When he puts on his glasses (a thing he hates to do because it spoils the image of youthful vigor), he only looks at employment, sales and investment statistics.

Eliminating the unpleasant, miserable element of ordinary human beings from the picture, the cold, beautifully clean overall figures tell him that "the gross national product is increasing, consumer demand is increasing, housing starts are the largest ever, inventories are falling, exports are growing."

In fact, those figures show "the best performance in many, many quarters." So what is there to fret about?

The rise of the seasonally-adjusted unemployment rate in August?

Well, that's a minor aberration caused entirely by teenagers who for some unfathomable reason "are entering the labor force rather than staying in school."

This phenomenon, said Mr. Trudeau, "we hadn't predicted."

Innumerable projections of the socio-economic impact of the postwar "baby boom" had been made over the past two decades, yet the Government, which prides itself on planning and programming everything, talks about a sudden and unexpected phenomenon.

"It is something," Mr. Trudeau said with a straight face, "we didn't foresee. And that is the sole reason why there was this job in the unemployment figures."

It's not really the sole reason, for the army of unemployment in August contained many more mature people than teenagers, and a sizable percentage of them has been jobless for several months. Nor are the GM and other layoffs announced since the publication of the August figures adding teenagers to the out-of-work category.

Yet the Prime Minister, looking at dehumanized statistics, comes to the conclusion that this winter will be better than the last — cold comfort even if it weren't illusory — "barring some disaster from south of the border."

It's a pity this qualifier wasn't explored thoroughly in the interview, for in conjunction with Mr. Trudeau's complaint about "obstruction" of his legislative program in the Commons, it has an election ring in it.

Assuming that Mr. Trudeau is not quite so naive as to believe his rosy misrepresentations of the economic indices, he must now be seriously reconsidering his election timetable. For however optimistic he may sound for public consumption, he cannot fail to realize that his chances of being returned with a clear majority are far better now than they will be next spring or fall, because both unemployment and prices are bound to rise substantially this winter throughout next year.

So the temptation to call the election now must be hard to resist. And if he takes the plunge, what better campaign themes can he choose than anti-Americanism and "obstruction" of his unfinished program by the opposition "nobodies" in the Commons?

With this in mind, it need not be too far-fetched to see the television interview of Sept. 23 as psychological conditioning of the country for these two major election themes.

Some of the things Mr. Trudeau said may have even gone far beyond this presumably immediate purpose.

For example: "I don't think that the U.S. is deliberately trying to beggar its neighbors and make this into a permanent policy. But if it is... we will have to have a fundamental reassessment of our whole economy. We will have to reassess fundamentally our relations with them, trading, political and otherwise."

With Soviet Premier Kosygin arriving in Ottawa next week for Mr. Trudeau's birthday celebration and exploration of closer Canadian ties with the Soviet bloc, this quote from the television interview could be a pregnant hint of quite a few surprises of deeper significance than the next election.

Professor George Stigler of the University of Chicago, who along with John Kenneth Galbraith writes the most eloquent prose in the English-speaking world on the subject of economics, has the advantage over Galbraith of being more often right than wrong. And one thinks of him, apropos of the great transatlantic air-fare war. He ended an essay a few years ago by saying, simply, that notwithstanding the rise of technology, competition remains the greatest friend of the consumer.

The critics of the free economy are forever telling us how much extra money we pay out every year to feed the monopolists. Senator Fred Harris, who is running for President, recently tossed out the figure one hundred billion dollars. Asked exactly how to explain that, he fumbled about, unable to come up with many illustrations of prices artificially sustained. He might have mentioned the airlines. But of course it would have been an inappropriate moment to do so, precisely because the air war is really on.

The initiative of Lufthansa, which has simply refused to be governed by the international body that has been setting air fares ever since the Second World War, has caused a great scramble and yelps of pain from overburdened airlines.

It is not an argument against TWA or against Pan American to suggest that if there isn't enough business to sustain the two of them on competitive routes, they should merge.

Ten years ago, when the situation looked rosier, Pan American executives were whispering that they would like to be permitted to fly a passenger to England for one hundred bucks. At the time, Pan American was allegedly blocked by BOAC, BOAC, a nationalized airline, was struggling along inefficiently, developing its own redundant airplanes for the sake of the national pride. At one point, a member of the House of Commons observed that it would be of net benefit to taxpayers of Great Britain if they would offer twenty-five pounds to every potential client of BOAC as a bribe not to fly BOAC.

But the English were very stiff on the point of not permitting the fares to decline, and word finally wafted in that no airline that undercharged its passengers in such a way to embarrass BOAC would be permitted to land in London. If one plans to fly to England and is told one cannot land in London, that tends to put one off, and so the English had their way.

Now it is the Americans who reach out for protection. It is unlikely that the United States government will intervene with threats to forbid Lufthansa or the other airlines from setting down at Kennedy Airport. That is the kind of pressure we may yet use against the supersonic airplanes now being developed.

But if we invoke it, it will be in the name of Ecology, not protection. As it stands, the American airlines will need either to improve their efficiency or to merge.

A decade ago, Mr. William Rickenbacker proposed that the airlines solve their problems by selling wholesale their entire seating capacity at public auctions every six months or so. The buyers would then handle the tickets much as theatre agents handle seats for Broadway plays. If you are willing to wait, you pay less. If you are willing to go at a moment's notice and sit in a seat which would otherwise be empty, you pay still less. If you insist on going the day before Christmas, you pay more. Object: to fill the planes. And to relieve the carriers of the job of merchandising their services, a function which is after all extrinsic to the operation of an efficient airline. An interesting idea.

It is to everyone's benefit to make available to those who would travel the great facilities of the jet airplane. Granted, there must be an economic flaw.

It does not do to paper the house, as they call it on Broadway when you give away tickets rather than demoralize the cast. But surely the demonstration has been made, during this past perverf summer, that the rates are too high. It was the charter airlines that made that demonstration, and to their resourcefulness the traveling public should be grateful.

And, through all the commotion, one acknowledges the force of the market, the best friend of the consumer.

Most universalcripler
Arthritis on the run

Of all the diseases that afflict mankind, none is more common or painful than arthritis. The following article, reporting on progress toward finding a cure, is the first of two on "The Great Cripplers."

NEW YORK (AP) — Arthritis deforms limbs, inflames joints, inflicts pain and has done so beyond history's annals. It bedeviled cavemen and even the dinosaurs they fought.

But almost overnight, to quote one authority, there's optimism, "a sense of being at long last on the trail to the answers."

An answer would be welcome. Of all man's great cripplers — cerebral palsy, cerebral stroke, muscular dystrophy, multiple sclerosis — arthritis is the most universal.

It affects 50 million people in the U.S. to some degree. About 17 million require medical attention; nearly 3.5 million are disabled. Arthritis' cost to the national economy is $3.6 billion annually in lost wages and medical expenses.

And Dr. William E. Reynolds, director of medical and scientific affairs for the Arthritis Foundation, chief voluntary arthritis organization, says:

"Efforts by scientists and doctors to find the answer to the arthritis riddle have seemed for years to limp along discouragingly on dead center. But now — and it seems to have happened almost overnight — most of the authorities in the arthritis field are feeling new optimism, a sense of being at long last on the trail to the answer."

MAY FIND CAUSES

Much of the optimism centres on newly envisioned possibilities of unveiling, perhaps by 1980, the cause of rheumatoid arthritis. The most dangerous, destructive and disabling form of the disease, it afflicts at least five million people in the U.S.

The optimism is based on signs rheumatoid arthritis may be due to:

- A still unidentified, slow-acting virus.
  - A disturbance of the body's normal immunity mechanism so that a person becomes dangerously allergic to his own tissue.
  - A combination of the two.
- Further optimism about helping arthritis sufferers is based on four factors.

One is the consistent successes at special arthritis clinics in controlling rheumatoid arthritis with conventional drugs, notably aspirin in doses up to 16 tablets daily. This has prompted private arthritis experts to urge the government to provide more such centres.

Another is the increased understanding of the self-perpetuating inflammatory process that characterizes the rheumatoid type of arthritis.

LEARN ABOUT DRUGS

A third results from new insights into how drugs work in inflamed arthritic joints.

Early, encouraging results have been achieved with several new experimental drugs including two, histidine and cyclophosphamide.

Only a few doctors so far have tested histidine, a duplicate of an amino acid occurring in human and animal protein, but one researcher indicates it could have safety advantages.

Dr. Donald A. Gerber of New York's Downstate Medical Centre said he has treated 70 rheumatoid arthritics with histidine — almost all of them far advanced cases, and has achieved encouraging, though still-tentative, results with no adverse side effects.

Cyclophosphamide, previously used against leukemia and certain other forms of cancer, appears to have a unique bone-protecting action in arthritis cases, but can produce serious side effects.

DEVELOP SURGERY

The fourth factor are surgical developments that Arthritis Foundation experts say were undreamed of a few years ago.

One of the latest techniques involves use of silicone rubber implants as substitutes for diseased finger joints.

Dr. Alfred B. Swanson of Blodgett Memorial Hospital in Grand Rapids, Mich., has reported the technique enabled a secretary with increasingly crippled fingers to return to an 80-word-a-minute pace at a typewriter.

In the still controversial field of hip-joint replacement by metal and plastic ball-and-socket substitutes, researchers at the University of California at Los Angeles are experimenting with a relatively new material, pyrolytic carbon.

The material first was used in the nose cones of space rockets to protect them from the wear and tear of atmospheric friction and still is in the laboratory stage.

But researcher Martin Rubinfield and his UCLA associates believe they have developed an improved, more anatomically correct version of artificial hip joints, already implanted in thousands of arthritics, mostly in Britain.

A year ago Canada recognized Red China

OTTAWA (CP) — One year ago today Canada recognized China, severing diplomatic relations with the Nationalist government of Chiang Kai-shek.

It was one of Canada's more important foreign policy initiatives. Thirteen other nations have since recognized China, raising the total to 66.

Peking now stands at the threshold of membership in the United Nations. President Nixon is preparing to visit Peking seeking to restore normal U.S.-China relations.

Mr. Nixon's move has been interpreted as a recognition of China's new stature in international diplomacy and the need for Washington to seek understanding with Peking.

Canada's diplomatic accord with Peking probably played a big part in bringing about this new environment. As Premier Chou En-lai told Canada's Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin earlier this year in Peking: "Canada was the first of the second wave."

Two years ago, the United Nations General Assembly vote on an Albanian resolution calling for the seating of China and expulsion of the Nationalists failed by a vote of 56 to 48 with 21 abstentions.

Last year, a number of countries followed Canada's lead in switching from abstention to a yes vote, or changed from no to abstention.

GOT MAJORITY

China for the first time received a simple majority, 51 to 49 with 25 abstentions, but under a procedural resolution promoted by the United States it needed a two-thirds majority for entry.

This year the U.S. may not be able to get the procedural resolution adopted. Canada has decided to switch from support of the American strategem to opposition.

Officials here say Canada's recognition of China has not been the only catalyst for change. They say the move coincided with a more outward looking mood in China itself.

Despite the positive aspects of Canadian policy, seeking to end China's isolation, some here are troubled by what they consider a callous discarding of the Chinese Nationalists as old friends at the United Nations.

Heath Macquarrie, foreign affairs critic for the Conservatives, told the Commons last week:

"I cannot believe that a move which will result in the expulsion of the representative of Taiwan is one which should be entered on so casually and easily by the government."

He challenged the oft-repeated government line that there is one China seat and the only question is which regime will occupy it. In fact, the whole concept of universality of membership in the UN is involved. Mr. Macquarrie insists.

Pragmatism that led to Canada's recognition of Peking should not be abandoned in the case of Taiwan and its 14 million people, undoubtedly under Nationalist control.

With the UN debate soon to begin, Mr. Macquarrie is trying to initiate a Commons inquiry into the stand that Canada plans

The Conservatives are saying that Canada should support the U.S. policy of one seat for China and one for Taiwan—a stand that both the Chinese and Taiwan regimes have said they are against.

Perry Ryan (PC—Spadina), who has supported Mr. Macquarrie's campaign, tried in vain Tuesday in the Commons to get consent for an investigation of the government's U.N. stand.

The Canada-China negotiations leading up to recognition last year went on for 20 months at Stockholm in almost total secrecy. Since then, more detail has become available.

It's been disclosed, for instance, that the government in the summer of 1968 instructed the external affairs department to review Canada's China policy "with a view to finding a basis for establishing relations with the People's Republic."

This suggests that the end result of the talks had, in large measure, been pre-cast.

TAIWAN TOP ISSUE

The principal issue was Peking's contention that its sovereignty extends to Taiwan. In the final communique, Canada took note of Peking's claim without either accepting it or rejecting it.

A government official, asked whether he thought Canada may have given away too much in the negotiations, said he didn't think the recognition formula was "all that important."

He noted with satisfaction that the government's objective as stated in the 1970 foreign policy white paper had been achieved: To help bring China "into a more constructive relationship with the world community."

On the other hand, External Affairs Minister Sharp has admitted that Canada would have preferred an announcement that omitted any mention of Peking's claim to Taiwan.

Two other basic Chinese conditions accepted by Canada at the outset of negotiations were that Canada sever relations with the Nationalists and support mainland China's entry into the UN at the expense of the Nationalists.

Mr. Macquarrie says these undertakings constitute Canada's reversal of earlier assurances by government leaders, including Mr. Trudeau, that ties with the Nationalists would not be sacrificed.

Labor joins US wage board

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States' three most powerful labor leaders agreed Tuesday to help President Nixon's pay board try to control inflation after the wage-price freeze expires. Nixon said "the country won" by the decision.

"We will serve on the pay board," said AFL-CIO President George Meany. Teamsters President Frank E. Fitzsimmons and United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock, representing a total of some 17 million workers.

The agreement came after Nixon sent the labor leaders a memorandum, personally initiated, that the 15-member labor-industry-public board to control wages after the freeze expires Nov. 13 will not be subject to veto power by other federal agencies. But Nixon left open the possibility that he might take a hand on occasion.

"Bringing the cost of living under control requires the public-spirited co-operation of all Americans, and in giving such co-operation the leaders of organized labor have acted in the best interest of their own members and of the nation," Nixon said.

BROADENS LEGISLATION

Meanwhile it was learned from government officials that Nixon plans to ask Congress to broaden pending economic legislation to: —Provide for creation of a special panel of three to five federal judges to hear cases arising from application of post-freeze controls.

—Include authority for the president to control interest rates and dividends, as well as wages, prices and rents.

—Authorize the pay board and price commission to subpoena records in their administration of controls.

Meany said the executive council of the 13.6-million-member AFL-CIO will set up its own "watchdog" machinery to guard against illegal price increases, and that it will continue to fight in Congress against Nixon's proposed business tax credit that labor has described as a bonanza to big business.

Nixon is reported ready to ask Meany, Fitzsimmons, Woodcock, President I.W. Abel of the United Steelworkers and President Floyd Smith of the International Association of Machinists to serve as labor members of the board.

WILL NAME MEMBER

Meany said that for personal reasons he may not serve, but that the AFL-CIO would name a member. Fitzsimmons and Woodcock said they would serve on the board if asked.

Meany told a news conference that when the labor members are in a minority on board decisions affecting wages, "it will not bind our unions," which may decide on their own to strike or go to court against board decisions.

The three labor chieftains said also they will insist that the board permit wage increases already negotiated to go into effect and retroactive pay for the estimated billions of dollars in pay increases tied up during the 90-day wage-price freeze that expires Nov. 13.

Nixon administration officials have said those are decisions that will be left up to the pay board, along with standards and criteria for future wage increases.

US denies surtax list

WASHINGTON (CP) — There were denials of responsibility from government sources here and expressions of outrage in Ottawa Tuesday over a list of purported United States demands on Canada if the 10-percent additional import levy is to be lifted.

The U.S. state and treasury departments Tuesday both denied having given Canada any specific set of conditions under which the additional levy would be lifted, although spokesmen for both departments said there are a number of staff reports on Canada-U.S. trade relations.

The Chicago Tribune Monday published details of a purported memorandum listing U.S. demands which included expansion of the Canada-U.S. auto pact and lower taxes on Canadian subsidiaries of foreign-controlled companies, but did not give the memorandum's exact source.

The reporter who wrote the story, Louis Dombrowski, said in an interview the demands were "one step from policy" and the memorandum was "leaked" by a "very high source" in the U.S. government. NO LIST NO LIST RECEIVED

In Ottawa, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp told the Commons that while there are "certain matters" which the U.S. has indicated it wishes to discuss with Canada, no list of them has been received.

Sharp was replying to Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield, who unsuccessfully sought an emergency debate on the "apparent breakdown in communications" between Ottawa and Washington.

Also in Ottawa, CLC president Donald MacDonald said in a statement his organization is deeply disturbed by news of the memorandum, which he said would, if real be "outrageous economic and political blackmail against Canada."

"Should it turn out that this become official American policy, then we strongly urge the Canadian government to reassess completely both our economic and political relations with that country," said MacDonald.

In Washington, state department spokesman Charles W. Bray denied any specific conditions have been relayed to the Canadian government.

DISCUSSING TRADE

However, asked at a news conference whether guidelines for lifting the levy have been given to Canada, he replied: "We have been discussing with Canada, as with other countries, the whole subject of trade and monetary questions."

The treasury spokesman said his department has tried to track down the source of the purported memorandum quoted by The Tribune, without success.

"We just don't know where it might have come from so we cannot comment on its possible authenticity," he said, adding there are "probably a couple of dozen bureaucrats around town keeping track of Canadian affairs."

Dombrowski said the memorandum was leaked in Washington because of Revenue Minister Herb Gray's assertion last week that Ottawa would not accept changes in the auto pact in return for removal of the extra import charge.

The memorandum, said the Tribune, gives top priority to the auto pact, which the U.S. wants altered to allow used cars and all-terrain vehicles to be imported into Canada duty free. It also wants snowmobiles removed from the auto agreement.

Als must fight for playoff spot

TORONTO (CP) — With only two or three games remaining for most Canadian Football League teams in the regular schedule and some playoff spots still undecided, the league statistician has gone to work on his magic numbers.

The magic number for a team seeking a certain playoff spot is the combination of victories by that team and losses by competing teams necessary to clinch the spot.

CFL statistician Greg Fulton, therefore has come up with three as the magic number for Hamilton Tiger-Cats to clinch second spot in the Eastern Conference ahead of the defending Grey Cup champion Montreal Alouettes.

The Ticats have a record of six wins and five losses for 12 points and three games remaining. Victories in all three games would assure them of second.

ALOUETTES NEED TWO

The Alouettes', two points behind, have a magic number of two to make the playoffs ahead of Ottawa Rough Riders and four to take second place ahead of Hamilton.

The Riders would have to win both their remaining games while counting on at least two Montreal losses to grab a playoff position.

Toronto Argonauts have clinched first place in the EFC but the Western Conference title is still in question with Calgary Stampeders holding a two-point lead over Saskatchewan Roughriders.

The magic number for Saskatchewan to take first place is four and their number is one to clinch second spot.

Calgary can nail down first place with a win at Regina this weekend, otherwise its magic number becomes three.

British Columbia Lions are still mathematically in the running for second but would have to win their final three games and hope for a collapse by Saskatchewan. The Lions' need two victories to be assured of a playoff spot.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers must win their last two games and hope for two B.C. losses while Edmonton Eskimos could still make the playoffs by winning their three remaining games provided Winnipeg and B.C. keep losing.

HERRON TIES MARK

Winnipeg halfback Mack Heron tied a CFL record during the weekend when he returned three kickoffs against Edmonton, giving him a total for the season of 32. That tied the mark set by Pete Thodos of Calgary in 1952.

Heron's yardage total of 928 yards on the kickoff returns is only two short of the record set by Dave Raimet with Winnipeg in 1968.

Heron also ranks third in the WFC rushing race with 806 yards gained on 182 carries. Jim Evenson of B.C. leads the race with 1,158 yards on 237 carries, followed by George Reed of Saskatchewan with 974 on 186 attempts.

Leon McQuay, despite missing the last two Argonaut games with a knee injury, still leads the EFC in rushing with his 960 yards on 127 carries. Dennis Duncan of Ottawa is next with 727 yards.

JONAS TOP PASSER

In the passing department, Winnipeg leads again. Quarterback Don Jonas of the Bombers has gained 3,757 yards through the air, well ahead of Saskatchewan's Ron Lancaster with 2,138 yards.

Joe Theismann of the Argos is the leading EFC passer with 1,959 yards on 115 completed passes while Montreal's Terry Evanshen is the top receiver with 702 yards on 42 passes.

Hamilton's Tommy Joe Coffey is tied with Ottawa's Jerry

Als meet in special session

MONTREAL (CP) — A series of Tuesday night meetings by club officials with players, and a one-hour session for the players alone, failed to turn up the action that has rocked Montreal Alouettes with dissension since their 32-5 loss to Toronto Argonauts here Sunday.

The crisis arose when several players, anonymously told Ted Blackman, sports editor and columnist for the Gazette, that former United States Olympic sprinter John Carlos has been a disruptive factor since his arrival here last month.

In his column today Blackman writes of the series of events that wound up with him confronted by the entire Eastern Football Conference squad in head coach Etcheverry's office where he was invited to point out the players who had expressed their sentiments to him on Sunday.

Blackman refused to reveal his source.

In addition to the remarks made to Blackman, someone also told Jean-Marc Desjardins of La Presse that Etcheverry was too lenient, particularly when it came to treating the top players. Jim Proudfoot of the Toronto Star covered the subject under a headline: "Trouble With Als Is Called Carlos."

General manager Red O'Quinn and Etcheverry expressed dismay and disgust with the published revelations and vowed to track the griping back to its source and punish the dissidents.

"I've also met with individual players and unless somebody's lying while looking me straight in the eye, I have to believe that the published reports were blown out of proportion," O'Quinn said after the Tuesday morning huddles.

Blackman's column says O'Quinn, who earlier said the club had no intention of entering a situation where "the tail is wagging the dog," was not impressed by the denials by the players.

"He has promised that he (O'Quinn) will one day get his man. He realizes that John Carlos may have been the cause of some bickering, but he believes this does not belong in a newspaper."

The general manager said earlier that Carlos was a "green" football player with a lot to learn.

"Last week he says 'throw the ball to me—we'll win,'" O'Quinn said. "Not being a team player yet, he doesn't know not to say things like that and our players should realize it."

"I may be wrong—I may be right to have kept him around to gain experience," Etcheverry said. "That'll be my decision."

Agriculture department has study

QUEBEC — The Quebec Department of Agriculture's Marketing Branch has carried out an analysis on the size of broiler chicken enterprises in breeders and specialists. In particular it states that the total floor area of the 2,092 buildings studies is 18 million square feet.

This analysis, made with help from specialists at regional agricultural laboratories and offices, was part of a study undertaken by the department in order to take inventory of broiler production capacity in the province.

The analysis, completed from statistics and figures gathered from 1,117 producers specializing in broiler chicken, is an important source of information for both poultry farmers interested in this study can obtain additional information from their regional agricultural office or local offices, or can write to the Marketing Branch, 201 Cremazie St. East, Montreal.

Two sides to the talking issue given

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I just celebrated our 20th wedding anniversary. He's a good provider, no bad habits, a wonderful father to our children and everyone who knows him thinks he's great. So what am I complaining about? The man does not stop talking. The first thing I hear in the morning is his voice. At night when I turn out the lights he's still talking. He asks me a question and answers it himself. He tells me he wants an opinion and then he gives me one. He repeats a conversation and before I can comment he tells me what he thinks. When we're out socially I never get a chance to open my mouth.

People must think I'm a blooming idiot. Some of our friends don't know I have vocal cords. Any advice?

—Wed to a Talking Machine

Dear Wed: After 20 years, accept the fact that this man is not going to change. It will save wear and tear on your blood vessels. And please read the next letter.

Dear Ann Landers: I've been married for 22 years to a man who will not talk to me. He refuses to discuss family problems and makes no comment whatsoever when I present family problems with which I need help. I've tried every approach imaginable — from the nonchalant, casual, "What do you think about this dear?" to the impassioned request, "I need your help desperately," and finally the screaming anguished plea, "For God's sake will you answer me!" His response is a blank look and stony silence. Once in a while he mumbles, "I hadn't thought about it."

My husband is an intelligent professional man who has a lot on his mind, but who doesn't talk these days? I ask very little of him. I am tired of making all the decisions alone. I'm on the verge of blowing my mind. Any suggestions?

—Wife of the Great Stone Man

Dear Wife: After 22 years, accept the fact that this man is not going to change. It will save wear and tear on your blood vessels.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a boy of 16 and have been going with a girl who is 14 but very mature for her age. We have been seeing each other for six months.

My girl's mother will not let her date — at least not me. So we decided to get together anyhow. Her best friend, Ginny, would invite her over and we'd meet there. Ginny goes with my buddy so it worked out neat because her parents are swingers and they don't have any crazy rules.

Saturday there was a party at Ginny's house. It was supposed to start at 7:30 and end at 11:00. I got there at 8:00. It was pretty boring so my girl and I decided to spin off for a couple of hours.

When we got back at 10:30 the party had busted up but my girl's mother was there — waiting for us. Somebody finked.

I'm in big trouble. My girl's mother doesn't believe a word I say. She won't even let me talk to her on the phone. What should I do?

—Black Day at Black Rock

Dear B.D.: Quit while you're behind. Your name is Mud with your girl's family which should come as no shock to you since you behaved like a rat. I don't blame your girl's mother for labeling you "off limits." Turn over a new leaf with a chick who doesn't have to sneak out to see you — and better luck next time. Romeo.

BAKED APPLES — This is just one way of cooking apples, the fruit that is so available and so versatile, for much of the year.

Factsheet on apples

Canadians eat many apples. At this time of year, most shopping carts carry a bag of family favorites to the check-out counter. One variety, the McIntosh, seems to thrive in all the large orchards areas of Canada while other kinds are associated with more specific provinces. British Columbia has its Delicious, Spartan and Winesap.

Ontario is proud of its Northern Spy as well as Delicious, Quebec has Cortland, Lobo, and Snow. Nova Scotia's most popular varieties are Golden Delicious, Gravenstein and Spy. Among the good all-purpose apples are McIntosh, Cortland and Spy.

Apples are sold mostly in three, five or 10 pound plastic bags but are also available in baskets, boxes or cartons. The container must be marked with the name and address of the packer or shipper, grade, variety and size of apples. Apples repacked for retail sale are subject to provincial legislation, which varies by provinces. "Canada Fancy" is the grade commonly available, but "Canada Cee" grade, is satisfactory for cooking, where shape, size and color are not so important.

Most families buy fresh apples every week or two because they have limited storage space. Apples are usually good keepers, and will retain their crispness when stored in the refrigerator either in perforated plastic bags or in the crisper. Baskets of apples should be stored in a cool room of 32 degrees to 40 degrees F. and covered with perforated plastic.

The following useful information is provided by the home economists at Canada Agriculture, Ottawa. 1 bushel weighs about 45 pounds. 1 Handi-Pack box holds about 20 pounds. 6-quart basket holds about 7 pounds. 4-quart basket holds about 5 pounds. 3-pound package contains about 9 medium apples. 1 pound equals about 3 medium apples.

Canadian Restaurant Week in full swing

Canada, long held to be the home of Rose Marie, pea soup and apple pie, and a culinary desert from which Canadians fled to feed and frolic in other countries, has come of age, according to Bruce R. Bellinger, president of the Canadian Restaurant Association. His statement was made to mark the commencement of Canadian Restaurant Week, October 9-16.

"Today the reverse is true as visitors come here to find a proliferation of restaurants offering not only Canadian dishes but foods from virtually every culinary school in the world.

"Chinese, French, German, Hungarian and Italian restaurants have become commonplace — an understandable phenomenon due to immigration plus the fact that each year more Canadians take their holidays in other countries, like what they eat there, and want to eat it again when they return here.

"Canada owes a great deal to those immigrants who have not only brought their talents to Canada, but also their gastronomic contributions which enrich the lives of native born Canadians.

"The news media too have helped stimulate greater public interest by their own increased attention to the culinary arts.

"Our Prime Minister recognized how great this contribution has been to Canadian life in his message to the CRA for Canadian Restaurant Week.

"What is even more interesting is that Canada, where 10 years ago one merely 'ate to live,' is now a country where people 'live to eat out.' Our larger cities support Austrian, Danish, Dutch, East Indian, Indonesian, Korean, Mexican, Mongolian, Pakistani, Portuguese, Spanish, Swiss, West

With a good supply of apples on local markets this year, consumers may appreciate a reminder that meals can be built around this popular fruit. Apples may be cooked for sauce, or glazed and used with poultry or pork in the main course; baked in cobblers, pies, cakes and pastries; or used raw in salads.

If your family favors baked apples why not treat them to some interesting fillings now and then in the months to come. Apples, baked at 375 degrees F. can share an oven with a casserole and are delicious served warm or cold. The home economists at Canada Agriculture, Ottawa include several suggestions for fillings for the baked apples.

BAKED APPLES

- 6 cooking apples
  - 2 tablespoons butter
  - 1/2 cup brown sugar
  - 1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
  - 1/4 teaspoon salt
  - 6 tablespoons water
- Wash and core apples. Make a cut about half an inch deep around each apple near the top, to prevent skin splitting during baking; place apples in baking pan. Cream butter, sugar, cinnamon and salt, and fill centres of apples. Add water to pan. Bake uncovered at 375 degrees F. until tender (25 to 50 minutes — McIntosh and similar varieties bake in 25 to 30 minutes; Northern Spy and other firm varieties may take up to 50 minutes); 6 servings.

Try one of the following fillings instead of, or in combination with, sugar mixture: add raisins, currants, candied ginger, cut peel or chopped nuts to sugar mixture; use mincemeat, cranberry sauce or jam in place of sugar mixture; top each apple with a marshmallow or a spoonful of meringue, 10 minutes before baking is completed.

20th celebrated

BROWN'S HILL — On Sunday afternoon, Sept. 12, George and Alma Butler were surprised when returning from a drive with the former's sister and nephew, Mrs. May McLaughlin and Norman Norris, to find a family gathering in their honor to help celebrate their 20th wedding anniversary.

Upon returning, they were met at the door by their two daughters who pinned rose and gladioli corsages on them and escorted them to decorated chairs, and presented them with gifts and currency, as well as a beautiful basket of gladioli from their cousins, the George family.

Lunch was served in the mid-afternoon by Mrs. Norman Norris, Mrs. Buri Eldridge, Miss Dawn McPherson, and Miss Vicki Eldridge, Miss May McLaughlin and Mrs. Cecil Dolloff poured the coffee and tea from the lace-covered table.

The anniversary cake was made and decorated by Mrs. Dolloff, and Alma's birthday cake, since the occasions coincided, was made and decorated by Mrs. Malcolm McPherson of Knowlton.

Among those attending were: Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Neil and niece of Granby, Mrs. Ethel McPherson, Bruce McPherson, and Miss Glenna Martin of Waterloo, Mr. and Mrs. Merton McPherson, John and Judy of Cowansville, Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm McPherson, Dawn, Steven, Betty, and Neil of Knowlton, Mr. Erroll George, Misses Joyce and Molly George of South Stukely, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Gustin of Sherbrooke, Miss Lena Gustin of Ayer's Cliff, Mr. Forest Hills and Mrs. Lena Davis of Rock Island, Mrs. May McLaughlin, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Norris, Donald and Steven of West Bolton, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Dolloff and Mrs. Stanley Keat of Brown's Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Buri Eldridge, Vicki, Miles, Murray of Burroughs Falls.

The party was planned by Elaine and Wendy, assisted by Mrs. Clifford Neil and Mrs. Norman Norris.

Christening held

On Sunday evening, September 26, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. John Porter was christened in Christ Church at Frost Village. The child received the names Christopher Glenn. The godparents were Rev. William and Mrs. Clinton, Bruce St., Cowansville, and Mr. Richard Stoddard, Waterloo. Rev. Clinton performed the christening.

It being the Harvest Service, the beautiful little stone church was appropriately decorated for the occasion with an abundance of fruits, vegetables, and flowers. Bouquets of white gladioli and wild flowers adorned the altar. The chandelier, encircled with lighted candles, was interwoven with wild cranberry.

This year, Christ Church is celebrating its 150th anniversary. Rev. David Mercer conducted the communion service, assisted by Rev. Clinton.

After the service, Mr. and Mrs. Porter entertained at a buffet dinner at their home on Dufferin Ave., Waterloo. The table was covered with a gold-colored damask cloth centred with a christening cake in front of a Danish candle holder with 12 lighted white tapers. Seasonal bouquets of chrysanthemums and roses in yellow, mauve, and white decorated the living room.

Women's groups in the news

Lennoxville ACW

Twenty members of the Lennoxville ACW met on October 1 with Miss K. Atto presiding. Mrs. J. L. Paige conducted devotions, taking "Being a Real Friend" as her theme.

The minutes and the treasurer's report were read, and a report was given of a successful Sunshine Tea, receipts for which are still coming in.

A letter of thanks for articles sent to St. Luke's Hospital, Pangnirtung was read. Mrs. W. H. Johnston collected a number of Christmas gifts to be sent to Schefferville before the end of October.

Mrs. L. V. Parent had received notices about the Church Calendar, and asked members to tell her how many each wanted. Mrs. L. Watson accepted the United Thank Offering boxes.

Several announcements were made: Mark Gibbs would speak in the Gertrude Scott Hall, Oct. 3 and 4, on the role of the laity in the Christian Church; a special vestry meeting would be held after the 11 a.m. service, October 10; the Induction Service for the Ven. Archdeacon S. Meade will be on October 14 at 8:00 p.m. with Bishop T. J. Matthews officiating.

A play based on the Parable of the Lost Coin was presented by three small girls. Janet Yeandell took the part of Martha, Kirsten Frost was Zillah, a neighbor, Melanie Frost was Simon, an orphan befriended by the other two. All three took their parts well and spoke so clearly it was a pleasure to listen to them.

Mrs. L. V. Parent and Mrs. L. Watson were hostesses.

LA for Retarded

Lennoxville Auxiliary to the Sherbrooke Association for Retarded Children Inc. held their first meeting of the fall season on Tuesday, September 28, in the Gertrude Scott Hall, Ladies Parlor, with a good turnout of members. Following the reading of the usual reports, the members heard an account of the institution of the workshop for the Retarded which is presently located on Ontario St., Sherbrooke. Here the students, in addition to their regular studies, are performing jobs for money.

The teachers wish to begin a modified home economics class and requested that our group try to provide a stove to be used for this purpose. It was decided to investigate the possibility that we could comply with their request.

Mrs. F. Noble, the president, then portrayed that the money voted at the last meeting for the purchase of mattresses for the Cecil Butters Memorial Hospital, Austin, had enabled the group to donate 29 mattresses to the hospital. A vote of thanks was expressed to the B. F. Goodrich Company, Waterville, and the Waterville Mattress and Bedding, Waterville. Thanks were also expressed to the men at both companies who helped with this project, Mr. D. H. Noble, Mr. R. Cote, Mr. R. Smith, and to Mr. B. Donachie, of Dave's Transport.

Lennoxville, who delivered the mattresses free of charge.

It was decided to give the Dollard Des Ormeaux School, Lennoxville two hundred dollars for milk for students.

Mrs. H. Blachford has succeeded Mrs. D. Vaughan as head of the nominating committee.

The Auxiliary's largest project, the fall Bazaar and Tea will be held at St. George's Church Hall on Thursday, October 21, from 3 to 5:30 p.m. Each member of the group will be working at this event and plans were finalized at the meeting. It is hoped that the occasion will be as big a success as in years past.

Following the adjournment of the meeting, lunch was served by the hostesses, Mrs. C. Groenewold and Mrs. L. Macleod.

The next meeting will be on Oct. 26 with the hostesses for that evening being Mrs. K. Jencks and Mrs. G. Beaulieu.

UCW holds Fall Rally

The Sherbrooke-Stanstead area of the Quebec-Sherbrooke Presbyterian United Church Women held their annual Fall Rally at Hatley United Church on September 28, with the area vice-president, Mrs. Phyllis Smith presiding. Ayer's Cliff UCW was in charge of the registration and the 73 members in attendance were welcomed by Mrs. Smith and the local president. A hymn-sing led by Mrs. T. Judson opened the day's program. Mrs. Burton of Waterloo was the organist.

The theme of the rally was Love Is — and was very well portrayed in a skit by Unit four of the Lennoxville UCW, a story by Mrs. Aikman of Stanstead, and a mission presentation by members of Sherbrooke Plymouth-Trinity UCW. The various discussion groups came back with the conclusion that love is concern, consideration, giving, understanding and action.

The noon luncheon was served by the Hatley members and the afternoon session opened with a Hymn sing. Impressions of Summer School at Macdonald College in August were given by Mrs. Cheal, Mrs. C. Mallalieu and Mrs. C. Hoy. It was felt that those attending were given great inspiration by the leaders, Dr. Cynthia Wedel, Dr. Harriet Christie, and Mr. Mark Gibbs. Mrs. Hoy presented the Literature flash and recommended several books.

Group programming and what can make UCW programs fruitful and interesting was discussed by Mrs. Phyllis Smith and Mrs. A. B. Lovelace. Many good program topics may be found in the Observer, Clip Sheets, Mandate, Happenings and free literature pamphlets. Bible Study is the project of one group.

The worship service led by Mrs. C. Mayhew of Way's Mills closed the day with the thought that the members should return to their homes and groups as agents of God's love.

Correction

In the write-up about the Phillips-McCourt wedding reception, several names were omitted. The last two paragraphs of that story should read: Guests were from Ottawa, Montreal, Granby, Magog, Beebe, Georgeville, Richmond, Windsor, and Sherbrooke.

The couple will reside in Galveston, Texas, where the bride is a nurse at the Texas Medical Centre, and the groom is employed by Zerex Company.

Children demanding honesty in films designed for them

MONTREAL (CP) — Bernard Gosselin does not think children are always well-behaved. To him they are naturally mischievous.
 He also says most children's films today are not honest—something children are demanding.
 Children's movies are, to him, typified by Walt Disney-type productions which "always show a kid being polite to his father and never doing anything wrong."
 Mr. Gosselin decided that his first attempt at producing a children's film—Le Martien de Noel, The Christmas Martian—would present an ideal opportunity to try to change that stereotype.

 The 37-year-old native of Drummondville, Que., joined the National Film Board in 1956 after graduating from the Montreal Graphic Arts School. Since 1962, he has been involved in directing and later producing a variety of 30 films.
 Scheduled for distribution in the rest of Canada and the United States around Christmas time—after the translation to English from French is completed—the movie is the first hour-long children's feature film made in Canada, says its sponsor, Farouk Films of Montreal.

 Le Martien de Noel, already showing in Montreal, will be released in France later this year. Shown as a special at the Moscow International Film Festival in July, the film, according to the Canadian representatives there, was "extremely successful and well-liked by the children."
 The story covers the adventures of two Quebec youngsters, Francois and his younger sister Katou, who, on their Christmas holidays, meet a Martian and help him fix his broken flying saucer.
 The three mischief-makers stir up the village and its two policemen as they go about the task of getting things for the spaceship and introducing the Martian to the earth and snow.
 Most of the actors are familiar faces from French-Canadian films, television and theatre such as Marcel Sabourin who plays the Martian.
 But Mr. Gosselin decided he wanted to work with children he knew well. He chose his own son Francois, 10, to play Francois and Catherine Leduc, 9, the daughter of a good friend, to be Katou.

Mr. Gosselin says he was most impressed with the children's work in the color-movie, shot in April, 1970, on location at St. Melanie, near Joliette, about 50 miles north of Montreal.
DUBBED SOUND TRACK
 Francois and Catherine had to capture the atmosphere of the outdoor filming as they sat in a studio a month later spending hours dubbing in the sound track because the original had been too noisy.
 Another problem was the 15 nights of shooting at 30- to 40-degree-below temperatures. Not only did the actors stand up well to the numbing weather but the camera crews and their equipment did too.

Megantic County Women's Institute holds semi-annual KINNEAR'S MILLS — The semi-annual meeting of the Megantic County Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Alice Muir. Nine members and one guest attended from Kinneare's Mills, also eight members from the Inverness branch.

The County President Mrs. Weston Graham presided over the meeting. An excellent report was given by Mrs. Alice Muir, the County Convener of Agriculture, regarding the school fair. There were 282 exhibits. It was decided to have the school fair another year. The prize list was revised by the members. It was decided to buy a new Canadian flag. The draw box was won by Mrs. Murray Nugent.

Social notes from Bury

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Rowell, Brian and Robin were Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Perley Herring, Huntingville. Miss Wanda Greenhields, Ste-Anne de Bellevue was a week end guest of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Parsons. Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Goode are moving to Ottawa where Mr. Goode has employment. What might have been a tragic accident occurred on Saturday night, on the highway opposite the home of Mr. Herbert Rowell, when a car occupied by three young boys, left the road, went over an embankment and rolled over several times before coming to a stop. Fortunately none of the occupants were injured but the car, owned by Jean Paul Lapointe is a total wreck.

Apparently the boys had been attending a wedding reception at the Jean Paul Salon, and found the hall rather cool, so they asked permission of Mr. Lapointe to sit in his car for a while to get warm, permission was granted, but the boys decided to take off for a ride, resulting in the demolition of the car. As it went over the embankment it tore down pasture fences, obliging the owner of the cattle, to get up at 3 a.m. and do some fence repairing. Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Dougherty were week end visitors of their daughter, Mrs. Jean Letky and children at Asbestos. Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Bowker of Flanders spent a few days recently at the home of their daughter Mrs. Gordon Boynton, Mr. Boynton and family.

Parsons and Mr. Barry Parsons entertained some 40 guests at a barbecue supper at their camp in the woods of their Beaveridge Farm. Mr. Sam Lake was in charge of the steak cookery, Mr. Pete Goodin supervised the roast potatoes and corn, while some of the ladies served rolls, pies etc.

Hints on stamps

By M. M. Woodman

Back in 1963, when the St. Francis Collectors Club was formed, there were several in the Lennoxville area who really had an interest in stamp collecting. I know that there may not be as many English-speaking in the area as there were then, but surely there are still enough to keep a club going if one would but take the time. In most areas of the country, the hobby of stamp collecting is ever increasing, but not so in the Eastern Townships, as far as this writer can see.

For some of you who were not at our meetings in 1963 and have since taken up the hobby, and there are certain terms used that you do not understand, I am going to list some of those from the records that were given to us at that time:

ADHESIVE — A stamp with a gummed back, intended to be applied to an envelope, etc., as compared to the stamp printed on a postcard, stamped envelope, etc.

AIR POST SPECIAL DELIVERY STAMPS — Special stamps issued to cover normal air mail and special delivery charges.

AIR POST BLOCKS — Stamps especially issued to carry air mail. Most governments do not insist upon their use on air mail exclusively. Air Post Stamps are also referred to as Air Mail Stamps.

ARROW BLOCKS — Blocks of stamps to which the arrow is attached. The arrow is a V-shaped mark at the end of the guide lines to assist in trimming the sheets of stamps properly. These arrows act as registration marks for the printer when stamps are being printed in colors.

BANK NOTE ISSUE — Any one of the issues of United States stamps printed in the 1870's and the following decade by the American, the Continental or the National Bank Note Company.

BI-COLORED STAMPS — Those printed in two colors, in which a central picture in one color is surrounded by ornamental inscriptions or framing of another color. In bi-colored stamps two printings are required, and if the sheet is fed to the press upside down, after one color has been printed, the part printed in the second color will of course be upside down and the stamps will have the inverted centres.

BISECT — A half of a normal stamp authentically used for payment of postage to the amount of half the value of the original stamp, unless overprinted with new value can be identified only when properly tied with postmark to original cover.

BLOCKS OF STAMPS — Usually four stamps (2 x 2) and referred to as a "Block of Four." If larger, blocks are referred to as "blocks of six," etc.

The U.S.A. will release two Christmas stamps on November 10. One will be based on an old Christmas ballad and the other one with a religious theme. First Day ceremony, Nov. 10, will be in Washington, D.C.

The United Nations Postal Administration has grown by leaps and bounds during its 20 years. It is primarily the collector of UN stamps that has made this possible.

Do you know that throughout its 20 years, UNPA has issued some 282 stamp and postal stationery items, a production of approximately 700 million stamps and 17 million pieces of stationery. This only shows that many collectors place United Nations stamps in their collections. For the most part these are still not too expensive. Only about five or six sets are in the dollars bracket.

If I were start now I would certainly start with the latest issues and work back to the beginning.

See doctor about personality shifts

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Dear Dr. Lamb—Sometime ago my husband had back surgery due to a bad fall. He was off work approximately three months. Shortly after returning to work he would come home from work and yawn and yawn until bedtime. This was unusual for him. He said he was just tired.

A month later I noticed his personality had changed. He seemed pleased about everything and smiled all the time—even when lying down resting the smile was there.

He was not a happy person before. He was sober. You couldn't tell if you were pleasing him or not. This change has been most frustrating. I don't feel I know my husband any more. He is 58 years old.

He has gotten over the pleased expression now but he is still different. He forgets things and doesn't seem to know what I'm talking about part of the time. The doctor suggested that he have a complete checkup but he refuses to go.

My intuition tells me he has been unfaithful but he denies this. Do I have a sick husband or does he have a sick wife? My intuition has never misled me before. What is your opinion of the smiles and docile behavior pattern?

Dear Reader—If your husband has in fact had a personality change he definitely should have a complete evaluation. Personality changes can occur because of disease of the arteries which may cause unrecognized "little strokes." This can result in forgetfulness but that problem isn't limited to people with brain disease.

There are other disorders of the brain that can cause a change in personality.

It is clear that you are not happy in your current marriage situation. This means you should try to resolve the problem for that reason alone. Perhaps that would be a good basis for discussion of the problem. You might suggest that you both have a complete checkup, which is sensible anyway for a couple in your age group.

I have great respect for women's intuition but there are many reasons why a man smiles besides another woman.

Dear Dr. Lamb—I had high cholesterol (328) and I went on a strict diet and brought it down to 235 in about two months which I think is below normal.

The doctor told me to keep on with the diet. Is it possible to get your cholesterol too low? Is it harmful to be below normal?

Dear Reader—Your experience shows what can be done with diet alone. No! 235 is not below normal. Many young vigorous pilots competing to enter the astronaut program had values below 200 and the same was true for many of the athletes I have examined. There is no such thing as too low a value in blood cholesterol measurements.

third diamond. West found himself on lead and South had established a classic elimination position.

According to the books South will make his contract provided the club honors are split. A low club lead will take care of one honor—a finesse, the other one.

However, West had also read the books. He led the jack of clubs. Now what should South do? It looked as if West had made a false lead from queen-jack-small. At least, he might have done that.

South finally decided that he had based his play on finding split honors. He rose with dummy's ace and made his contract by finessing against East.

Firm purchased by Montreal company

BEDFORD — The company formerly known as Leisure Fashion of Bedford has been purchased by the Tam O'Shanter Company of Montreal, of which Mr. Marcus Perlman is the president. The company was formerly known as the Canadian Art Studios.

The Bedford plant is one of the four companies organized by Tam O'Shanter, one at St. Jerome and two in Montreal.

Mr. Perlman heads the family organization where his two sons run two of the factories. Tam O'Shanter started in Canada as a franchise operation of a United States firm. In 1969 the Canadian firm bought out the American concern and now owns world rights to the Tam O'Shanter brand.

Tam O'Shanter is in South Africa, New Zealand and Australia. The company is the largest maker of boy's shirts in Canada.

The company has recently received a subsidy of $10,950.00 from the department of Regional Economic Expansion, which is 10 per cent of the cost of new construction which has been approved.

At the beginning about 10 women were employed. The work force has now been increased to 68. The final objective is a staff of 100 women. The ministerial subsidy will create approximately forty positions. Among the improvements planned are enlargements and modernization of the property, the building of a new machinery, the building of a cafeteria and a large range of commodities intended for the use of the employees.

Mr. Perlman says that the coming years will call for much greater professionals in the industry, better trained personnel and long-term planning.

Mr. Perlman says in Quebec is to be found many well-trained people. In his organization many of the personnel at the supervisory level are French-speaking and the company can operate at all levels in either language.

Boundary hockey league gets president

BOUNDARY (JH) — Boys of Minor Hockey League age will register this Saturday, October 16, for there will be a league this season. This was made possible at a meeting held on Friday evening, October 8, at the Legion Memorial Home in Stanstead when Arnold Rever agreed to be president. Mr. Rever had served in this office once before and said he would again rather than see the league fall through for he, like those interested adults, feels there is a real need for boys in the community to have this recreation.

With Mr. Rever as president, the slate of officers is complete. Alfred Middleton is vice-president, Rita Davis the secretary and Thomas Itcher, Jr., the treasurer.

Ronald Winter agreed to be referee-in-chief again this year. Mr. Winter said he has been attending instructional meetings of the Q.M.H.A. at Sherbrooke. This year the rules will be different as a means to stop roughing in the games. He said the new rule books should be printed and distributed by mid-November after which Mr. Winter plans to have a meeting with the coaches to study the rules, also with the referees, then later with all the players.

Mr. Winter said there is a great need for adults to be referees so that the same ones don't have to do it every game but can alternate. The executive noted 40 to 50 adults are needed to make the league a success and an appeal goes out to them to volunteer. This will be for transportation, referee, coach and others to attend the games and cheer on their favorite teams.

The Ayer's Cliff boys will register at the Legion Hall in their village from 2:00 to 4:00 p.m. at the Stanstead Village Hall, Rock Island Youth Centre and Beebe Town Hall from 10:00 to 12:00 a.m. Boys who played last year should bring their QMHA card, new boys registering must bring their birth certificate. Boys from Tomfobia and Derby Line may register at either Beebe or Rock Island. Remember the date Oct. 16.

Men offering to coach the Mosquitoes, Peewees, Bantams and Midgets to date are Charles Poulin, Paul Lacroix, Eddy Dubois, Alfred Middleton, Donald Joyce, Louis Debois, Real Ferland, Wendell Dustin, Keith Kennedy, Boyd Gilbert, Tom Richer, but more are needed.

Another meeting will be held on October 18 at the Legion Memorial hall in Stanstead at 7:30 p.m. so any volunteers are most welcome, or if otherwise engaged but willing to help they may advise any of the executive or coaches.

The registration fees are $2.00 per boy. The matter of insurance came up and will be further discussed at the October 18 meeting.

Blass pitches 3 hitter Pirates bounce back 5-1

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Lefthander Luke Walker, who has spent much of the season in manager Danny Murtaugh's doghouse, has the job of keeping Pittsburgh Pirates rebounding against Baltimore Orioles tonight in the first World Series game ever played at night.

The Pirates, stung for two straight losses in Baltimore, bounced back with a 5-1 victory Tuesday behind the three-hit pitching of Steve Blass—who left his personal scouting report 250 miles away—and a three-run homer by Bob Robertson, who missed a bunt sign and swung away.

If Walker can make a couple of mistakes like that, Pittsburgh will really be back in business.

Walker has a deceptive record. He was 10-8 during the regular season but won four of those decisions in the final month.

But Murtaugh suspected that he was working with a sore arm—a cardinal sin in the Pirate manager's mind. So Walker was passed over in the playoff series against San Francisco Giants and in the first two Series games at Baltimore, when the Orioles belted the Pirate pitching staff.

"Sure, I've wondered a lot about why I haven't been used," said Walker. "But I just keep my mouth shut. No. 40 (Murtaugh) has the answers."

Meanwhile, Murtaugh hoped Walker was the answer for the Pirates against Pat Dobson, the fourth 20-game winner the Orioles have thrown at the Pirates.

Pittsburgh finally caught up with one of the Birds' aces in the third game when Robertson riddled his homer against Mike Cuellar to put the icing on Blass's strong pitching job. The funny part of the homer was that it was supposed to be a bunt.

Roberto Clemente opened the seventh inning by reaching first on an error by Cuellar. Then Willie Stargell walked for the third time in the game. That brought up Robertson and Murtaugh flashed a swing sign on the second pitch. Robertson fouled the ball off, and in the dugout, Murtaugh decided to switch signals.

"We saw that Brooks Robinson was playing him deep at third," said Murtaugh. "So we decided to bunt."

DIDN'T SEE SIGN
Third base coach Frank Ocek dutifully passed the bunt sign along and both runners saw it. But Robertson didn't. He swung away and the ball soared over the 385-foot sign in right center for a three-run homer.

When the red-haired slugger crossed home plate, Stargell greeted him with a grin and said: "That's the way to bunt."

That's when Robertson realized he had missed a sign.

"It's the first time I've missed one all year," he said. "If I had seen it, I would have bunted. But a bunt was the farthest thing from my mind. I wanted to swing the bat."

When Robertson got to the dugout he went over to Murtaugh.

"I guess I fouled up," the slugger said when he got to the dugout.

"Possibly," replied the laconic manager, just a hint of a smile curling his lip.

The three-run cushion was plenty for Blass, who had been in a 2-1 pressure cooker until Robertson connected.

"I was so excited about being in a World Series game, that I didn't sleep all night," Blass said. "I kept lying awake, thinking about lots of things. The weather... Frank Robinson... Brooks Robinson... Boog Powell."

Blass said he had watched the first two games of the Series on a monitor television in the dressing room at Baltimore.

"I made some notes. And to show you how much they helped me, I forgot them and left them in Baltimore."

"I was totally confused about what to do after they hit all those homers in the first game and all those singles in the next one," said Blass.

"Danny (Murtaugh) told me to pitch my own game," Blass said. "If I got beat, I wanted it to be against my best stuff."

ENDS STREAK
"The streak is over, but we're not going to hang our heads," Frank Robinson said, analyzing the loss that ended a 16-game winning streak for the Orioles. "We'll just have to start over and win two in a row."

"When you go into a World Series, you don't expect to win four straight... and we didn't think that, even after winning the first two. If we had won the third game, then we would have been going for four in a row."

Robinson made two of Baltimore's three hits off Blass, including a home run.

Blues edge Sabres, Vancouver wins

To hear it from Punch Imlach, his Sabres have another National Hockey League rookie of the year on their hands this season—this time Richard Martin, Buffalo's No. 1 draft pick this summer.

The 20-year-old left winger didn't exactly burn up the ice in St. Louis Tuesday night but he did score Buffalo's only goal—and his first in professional hockey—as the Sabres dropped a 4-1 decision to the Blues.

In the only other NHL game Tuesday, Vancouver Canucks nipped Philadelphia Flyers 3-2.

Even before the NHL exhibition season opened, Imlach was calling Martin, who scored a record 71 goals with Montreal Junior Canadiens of the Ontario

Hockey Association last year, "our biggest capture."

And at the Sabres training camp this month, the Buffalo coach said Martin had "all the qualifications to become an all-star."

Gil Perreault, chosen first by the expansionist Sabres when they had No. 1 pick in 1970, copped the top rookie honors that season when he set NHL records with 38 goals and 34 assists for 74 points.

Martin's goal Tuesday pulled Buffalo into a tie with the Blues at 3:09 of the first period. But then, to the cheers of the 17,583 hometown fans, the Blues took the lead before the period ended.

The Blues added single goals in each of the remaining periods as they peppered Buffalo goaltender Dave Dryden with a total of 37 shots.

Ernie Wakely in the St. Louis

net turned back 19 shots.

Andre Boudrias paved the way for the Canucks come-from-behind win at Vancouver with a pair of second-period goals, his first of the season.

The Flyers jumped to a 2-0 lead before the game was five minutes old before Boudrias counted his first marker.

Vancouver sophomore defensive star Dale Tallon tied the score midway through the period.

CANUCKS SHOOT
The Canucks turned on the power for the first win against two losses in regular-season play, firing 34 shots at Philadelphia goaltender Doug Favell. Vancouver goalie George Gardner faced 19 shots.

Minnesota North Stars said Harvey have been sent to their Tuesday defenceman Fred Bar-Cleveland farm club in the rett and right winger Buster American Hockey League.

Remparts edge Ducs

TROIS-RIVIERES, Que (CP) — A goal by Andre Savard at 3:54 of the second period broke a 1-1 tie and gave Quebec Remparts a 2-1 win over Trois-Rivieres Ducs in Quebec Junior A Hockey League play Tuesday night.

Jacques Richard scored the other Quebec goal while Daniel Dubuc scored for Trois-Rivieres.

NHL PREVIEW

Scramble all down the line in East

Winning the Stanley Cup, once the dream of every coach, has become something of a nightmare since the National Hockey League expansion of 1967-68.

For a variety of reasons, the top prize in hockey has become a ticket to oblivion for the last four Cup-winning coaches.

In 1966-67, Punch Imlach led Toronto Maple Leafs to their fourth Cup under his tutelage. Two years later, he was fired, only to rebound as coach of the expansionist Buffalo Sabres. Today, Imlach is the only coach in the NHL with his name inscribed on the Stanley Cup trophy.

In the first year of expansion, Toe Blake led Montreal Canadiens to their eighth Cup under his gentle administration. Then he quit.

Claude Ruel took over in 1968-69 and retained the Cup for the Habs. When he quit in December of 1970, after 17 years with the club, he said: "I like scouting better than coaching in this city." Today, he's Montreal's head scout.

The next one to have his name engraved on the Cup was Harry Sinden, who led a bunch of undisciplined flakes to the pinnacle in 1969-70 to give Boston Bruins their first Cup since their 1940-41 triumph under Cooney Weiland. Sinden, a quiet man, quietly quit to go into the house construction business.

EXPECTED REPEAT

The following year — 1970-71 — everybody expected the Bruins to repeat under Tom Johnson, who moved from his job as assistant to general manager Milt Schmidt to follow Sinden.

Instead, the Canadiens came back under Al MacNeil. MacNeil's reward? A promotion to the Voyageurs. Montreal's American League cousins in Halifax.

Johnson gets another shot at it behind the Bruins' bench. Scotty Bowman, bilingual where MacNeil was not, has moved over from St. Louis Blues of the West Division to follow MacNeil at Montreal.

Sid Abel, the general manager who left Detroit Red Wings in a power struggle, has taken the coaching reins at St. Louis. Ned Harkness moved up in the Abel shuffle and Doug Barkley is coaching Detroit.

As for the rest of the East Division, the incumbents remain — John McLellan of Toronto Maple Leafs; Emile Francis of New York Rangers; Hal Laycoe of Vancouver Canucks.

And rookie or veteran, each wants the Stanley Cup for his month this year. The chances — in possible order of finish —

Montreal Canadiens — Primarily because you have to stick with the champ. Big Jean Beliveau is gone and there's a new hand on the helm. But Pete Mahovich has blossomed and rookie Guy Lafleur will be an asset. Returnees include Pete's brother Frank, Yvan Cournoyer, Serge Savard and Ken Dryden, still technically a rookie despite his Cup-winning heroics of last winter.

Boston Bruins — When you say Phil Esposito, Johnny Bucyk, Bobby Orr, Ken Hodge, Ed Westfall, Derek Sanderson, add a covey of talented newcomers, then cogitate on the possibility that they may be less than enchanted about last year's wind-up, you might just have the formula for victory. If the Bruins had a possible weakness in the past, however, it would be in goal and nothing much has changed there.

New York Rangers — A generally anonymous crew without undebatable superstars who have absolutely no business giving fits to the likes of Montreal and Boston. But that what they'll probably do again this year. Coach Francis, a former goalie himself, has Ed Giacomin and Gilles Villemure back in his old position, which will cause some good shooters some more sleepless nights. Bobby Rousseau is the only really new face on the roster but there's still the matter of filling the large skates of Tim Horton on defence.

Toronto Maple Leafs — Fourth place again? Well, Dave Keon, Norm Ullman, Paul Henderson, Ron Ellis and goalies Bernie Parent and Jacques Plante generally give of full measure. To improve, Leafs will have to come up with some help. Whether they have won't be provable until later in the season. Toronto finished 15 points behind third-place Montreal in last year's final standings and 19 ahead of the Sabres.

Vancouver Canucks — The Canucks finished seven points behind Buffalo last season and one point ahead of last place Detroit, and that's as good a yardstick as any this year. They have Andre Boudrias, Orland Kurtenbach, Wayne Maki, Rosaire Paiement, Jocelyn Guevremont, Dale Tallon, Pat Quinn and Gary Doak with whom to improve and to make things interesting wherever they finish.

Buffalo Sabres — Punch Imlach says his crew will be the first expansion team to win the Stanley Cup. He was asked "what year?" but apparently didn't hear the question. The Sabres are not without talent in Phil Goyette, Gilles Perreault, Gerry Meehan and rookie Dick Martin. Goalie Roger Crozier, if his stomach operation was a success, might turn some of those ties — Buffalo had 15 last year — into victories.

Detroit Red Wings — The Big Guy is gone after 25 years, and the centre who set up Gordie Howe for a good stretch of those years — Alex Delvecchio — is unhappy over his demotion to part-time employment. Delvecchio missed only one of last year 78 games and scored 21 goals and 31 assists for the second best record on the Wings. Now they say he can't stand the long schedule and that he'll be used on the power play and to kill penalties. What Delvecchio says is almost unprintable. With all the new faces — there are only four returnees from last year — the Wings should sell a lot of programs.

Fumbles, field goals highlight NFL chase

It was fumble, fumble, who got the fumble in a sloppy National Football League contest that saw 11 turnovers with Dallas Cowboys finally prevailing 20-13 over New York Giants Monday.

There were so many fumbles it got to where you started looking around on every play wondering who was going to come up with the next one, said Dallas linebacker Leroy Jordan.

Curt Knight booted field goals of 15, 36, 13, 17 and 39 yards to lead the undefeated Washington Redskins to a 22-13 triumph over Houston Oilers Sunday and their fourth straight victory, a feat they had not achieved at the start of a season since 1943, when they made it to the NFL championship game.

In Sunday's other games, Cleveland Browns beat Pittsburgh Steelers 26-17, Detroit Lions edged Green Bay Packers 9-8, Chicago Bears wallowed New Orleans Saints 35-14, Los Angeles Rams upset San Francisco 49ers 20-13, Baltimore Colts bombed Buffalo Bills 43-0, Oakland Raiders topped Denver Broncos 27-16, Minnesota Vikings muffled Philadelphia Eagles 13-0, St. Louis Cards whipped Atlanta Falcons 26-9, New England Patriots silenced New York Jets 20-0, Miami Dolphins turned back Cincinnati Bengals 23-13 and Kansas City Chiefs overhauled San Diego Chargers 31-10.

The Cowboys fumbled seven times Monday and the Giants recovered five. The Giants fumbled five times and the Cowboys collected all five. New York also intercepted one Cowboy pass.

Dallas now is 3-1 and trails the unbeaten Redskins by a full game in the NFL's East Division. The Giants are 2-2.

Dallas took a 13-6 halftime lead on Roger Staubach's four-yard touchdown pass to tight end Billy Truax with 17 seconds left.

But at the half, Dallas coach Tom Landry yanked Staubach for Craig Morton.

Morton hit Bob Hayes with a 48-yard touchdown pass in the third period to give Dallas a 20-6 lead and it withstood a late Giant surge which had Frank Tarkenton whipping a 24-yard touchdown pass to Clifton McNeil to make the final margin respectable.

Mike Clark kicked field goals of 42 and 41 yards for Dallas and Pete Gogolak hit field goals of 35 and 20 yards for the Giants — all in the first half.

CAUGHT 8 PASSES
The Browns, taking sole possession of first place in the American Conference's Central Division, got a superlative performance Sunday from tight end Milt Morin, who hauled in eight passes for 126 yards and a touchdown against the Steelers.

Greg Landry of the Lions had his best day as a pro, completing 18 of 29 passes for 302 yards and four touchdowns, including two covering 10 and 60 yards to wide receiver Larry Walton.

Kent Nix of Chicago completed 15 of 27 passes for 242 yards and two touchdowns against the Saints.

The Rams took over the NFC West Division lead from the defending champion 49ers on a game-winning 64-yard touchdown run up the middle by Larry Smith.

Buffalo fumbled four times, had four passes intercepted and gained a measly 49 yards as they lost to Baltimore.

Ken Stabler, subbing for injured Raiders quarterback Darle Lamonia, climaxed a pair of third-quarter drives by running for one touchdown and passing for another to turn back the Broncos.

Vikings recorded their second successive shutout for the first time in their 11-year history, routing the debut of new Eagles coach Ed Khayat on Dave Osborne's touchdown run and a pair of Fred Cox field goals.

Jim Bakken kicked four field goals and MacArthur Lane and Roy Shriver ran for touchdowns in the Cardinals' victory over the Falcons. Rookie Jim Plunkett fired touchdown strikes to Randy Vataha and Ron Sellers and Jim Nance galloped 50 yards for a touchdown in the Patriots' shutout over the Jets.

The Dolphins turned costly Bengals' mistakes into a pair of Bob Griese touchdown passes while Len Dawson passed for two scores in the Chiefs' come-from-behind decision over the Chargers.

Laval drops hockey plans

QUEBEC (CP) — Laval University is withdrawing from the Quebec University Athletic Association hockey conference and is dropping its intramural program as well because of a lack of sufficient ice time.

Gaston Marcotte, athletic director of the French-language university, said in a letter Monday to other association schools that the expansion of minor hockey has made it difficult to get time in municipal arenas the school normally uses.

He said that because the school does not have an arena, large sums of money should not be poured into hockey when the school's existing athletic facilities make it possible to improve other intramural sports.

Besides the high cost of organizing hockey, there are problems in arranging times for games and practices. This places increasing academic burdens on students, Marcotte said.

BC boss in last season

NEWTON, Mass. (AP) — John A. Snooks Kelley, who has compiled a fabulous record in 33 years as hockey coach at Boston College, is retiring after the 1971-72 season.

Kelley, who will reach BC's mandatory retirement age of 65 next July, announced Monday plans to step down as the Eagles opened pre-season practice.

Kelley's teams have won 487 games, lost 225 and tied 15. He has guided the Eagles to one National Collegiate Athletic Association championship, the first ever won by an eastern college, and eight New England titles.
