SHAWVILLE FAIR

As you read this issue of The Equity the Shawville Fair will be only two weeks distant. Although the spring seeding was later than in 1936 the threshing and other farm work is more advanced this year. The people of the district have been rushed and deserve a change of action and it should be quite appropriate and recreative to spend September 24 and 25 at the Fair.

The committees in charge are arranging many interesting features for the 1937 program which will be issued soon.

Prospective exhibitors should prepare their exhibits and make entries at once. Those not exhibiting have a very important part to perform in donating cash, labor or provision to advance the interest of the County of Pontiac Agricultural Society No. 1, which for 80 years has sponsored an annual exhibition. This is an event By the People and For the People and as such, holds the highest standing as a Fall Fair. Let us do our part to maintain our good reputation.

MARRIED

FARRELL—LANGFORD

St. James Anglican Church, Hull, was the scene of a pretty and interesting wedding ceremony at four o'clock on Saturday afternoon, of Anne Eileen, daughter of Mrs. Mabel Langford, and the late Stanley G. Langford, of Shawville, to William Henry (Harry) Farrell, of Hull, youngest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James E Farrell, of Campbell's Bay. Rev. L. F. Crothers officiated.

The church was lovely with gladioli and asters and other early Autumn blooms and pastel toned gladioli were used on the altar. The guest pews were marked with white tulle and sprays of sweet peas.

The Papers Say

EDITORIAL COMMENT FROM HERE, THERE AND EVERYWHERE.

CANADA

Men Drivers Better

From Washington comes word that tests in every state reveal that men excel women in the driving of autos. The reports show that the males of the species generally possess better vision, are not so easily blinded by the glare of other lights, hear better, park better and concentrate more closely on the wheel. To offset this list, women see better from the corner of the eye, distinguish the color of traffic lights more quickly and drive more slowly. Of course only mere men were at the head of the investigation.—Braniford Expositor.

A Real Horror Campaign

Commenting on the Ontario Highways Department's "horror campaign," Sault Star suggests printing the pictures of drivers in the cells. "A century or so ago," it says, "it was the custom to leave the bodies of those who had been executed hanging on the gibbet as a warning to other criminals. Why not adopt that idea and show pictures of reckless drivers serving jail sentences? Or drive them along the streets in a case mounted on a truck? That would be a real horror campaign."

Which is not a bad idea. Horror is abstract; fear of publicity is concrete.—Owen Sound Sun-Times.

No Examinations

Dr. Duncan McArthur, Deputy Minister of Education for Ontario, says his department is ready to issue every certificate from the kindergarten to the university without any special written examinations on the part of the pupils, but the department cannot proceed to take action beyond public opinion. Dr. McArthur, who was addressing teachers, pointed out "it is your important task as teachers to convince the parents in your community that your judgment is adequate to determine without a written examination whether William or Mary should be promoted to the next grade." That is a reasonable view, for undoubtedly a pupil should be judged on the term's work rather than on examinations. The trend toward promotion on the work of the term seems wise.—Niagara Falls Review.

Know Canada First

Hon. R. B. Bennett urges young Canada to become familiar with the history of our country. That's good advice, and it wouldn't hurt a few of the older folks, some of whom see goodness everywhere else but in their own country.—Guelph Mercury.

War Horrors Brought Home

You can begin to appreciate the horrors of war when you listen to some of those radio announcers struggling with Japanese and Chinese names.—Peterborough Examiner.

Character-Building In Children

It is said that Windsor's juvenile delinquency has dropped 23 per cent. since the city opened its summer program of playground activities. This supports the theory that if children are given something to do which is healthy and character building, there is less chance of them getting into trouble.—Chatham News.

Stolen Baby Found

CHICAGO.—Baby Diane Lucas was found alive on the rear steps of an apartment house this week just twenty-three hours after she was kidpanped in a crowded shopping district. The abandonment was as mysterious as the abduction.

An anonymous telephone call to the Central Police Station provided information that sent Officers William O'Brien and Ben Smith in a squad car to the apartment building. They located the three-month-old infant, clad in a white dress and wrapped in a white blanket, on the back steps.

Makes Plea For World Peace

WASHINGTON.—Secretary of State Cordell Hull this week issued an urgent appeal for peace, directed primarily at Japan and China.

Hull, in a public statement, urgently appealed to the two Far East Governments, "to refrain from resort to war" in the settlement of their differences. He called attention to his statement of the principles of American foreign policy, issued on July 16, which more than fifty nations of the world have approved formally, as the ideal principles of international relationships.

Among the Governments voicing approval were both Japan and China.

Election October 6

Ontario's long-mooted general election will be held on Wednesday, Oct. 6, Premier Hepburn announced this week, following a three-hour council with his Cabinet at Queen's Park. Official nomination day will fall on Wednesday, Sept. 29.

Finder Accused of Murder

RENFREW.—John A. Comba, 25-year-old Renfrew man who found the battered and ravished body of 13-year-old Ethel Hedderwick on Aug. 2, is facing a charge of being her murderer.

Comba was a member of the volunteer search party which scoured the district for the child two days after she disappeared. She was slain near the town limits and was found in a field near the spot where she had gone to pick wild cherries.

THE EMPIRE

The North-West Frontier

The Frontier is still the Achilles' heel of India. A quarter of a million of the finest fighting men in Asia wait for the day when Allah shall deliver Hindu into their hands; behind them and ready to follow them stand half a million of their own breed under the absolute Amir. So long as communalism divides the people of India they cannot hope to stand up unaided against invasion through the passes of the North-West; the ultimate responsibility for holding this great Imperial frontier must rest on the shoulders of the British people. The intrusion of Indian politics has introduced a new element of danger. The question must be faced afresh. One school of thought would place the tribal hinterland under a military governor, keeping frontier questions entirely outside Indian politics. There is something to be said for this view. This much is certain; if the reactions of political movements in the settled districts of the Frontier constitute a threat to the peaceful control of the border tribes, then in the interests both of India and Britain a system of control must be devised which would neutralize political influences beyond the administrative border. — Sir William Barton in The Forum (London).

Trade With New Zealand

Because of the market that exists in New Zealand for Canadian manufacturers, especially motor-vehicles, and the lack of a market in Canada for New Zealand butter, it seems inevitable that the trade balance between the two countries will remain very favourable to Canada. Before the unfortunate dispute which caused Canada to be placed on the foreign tariff schedule, trade was reasonably well balanced. The loss of the butter trade due to duty and dumping charges accounts largely for increased disparity. Last year the figures of both countries rose, but the unfavourable balance was nearly two and a quarter millions. New Zealand wool now enjoys an Empire preference which formerly did not exist, and we continue to sell to Canada hides and skins and sausage casings. Further trade of any consequence has not materialized, in spite of official efforts. On the other hand, Canada has benefited by the "recovery" demand for motor-vehicles and tires, selling also paper, boots and shoes, hosiery, electrical machinery and timber.—Auckland Weekly News.

From "Charlie Chan"

SANTA BARBARA, Calif., — Charlie Chan, the Chinese sleuth, who off the screen is Warner Oland, is described by his wife, Mrs. Edith Oland, as habitually intemperate in a suit for separate maintenance on file this week.

She asked for an accounting and division of community property, estimated at more than $275,000. Mrs. Oland stated her husband's present contract calls for $80,000 annually. She asked $3,500 monthly temporary support. The couple were married in Rutherford, N.J., 19 years ago.

1,019 Persons Claim Fortune

Seek to Establish Right to Share In $877,000 Estate Left by Eccentric Woman.

NEW YORK. — Five years ago a lonely, wizened old widow with a genius for finance and a penchant for carrying fabulous sums in a paper bag died in a hotel here.

Mrs. Ida E. Wood was a symbol for eccentricity to Manhattan's crowded, legend-loving millions.

Wednesday attorneys representing 1,019 men, women and children—most of whom never saw the queer little widow in life—sought in Surrogate's Court to establish a right to share in the $877,000 estate left when she died March 12, 1932, at the age of 93.

The task of sifting the rival claims moved slowly and tediously. Seventy-four were eliminated Tuesday, but claimants remained from almost every state in the union and Canada, Newfoundland, Ireland, England and Scotland.

Musty records from graveyards, churches and genealogical libraries, brought into court by contesting lawyers, unfolded the strange career of a woman who renounced a life of brilliance to lead a solitary existence.

$700,000 In Paper Bag

After the death of her husband in 1900 the middle-aged widow forsook social life to carry on her husband's business interests. With the acumen of a Hetty Green, Wall Street's best remembered woman financier, she added steadily to her fortune by astute stock speculation.

Then came the panic of 1907, when hundreds of banks closed. Mrs. Wood sold her holdings in time to avoid loss, but the experience left her badly frightened and profoundly distrustful of all banks.

In 1931 it was found she had not stirred for two years from her hotel room where she lived surrounded by 40 trunks crammed with family relics, jewels, valuable books, silk and old lace worth hundreds of thousands of dollars.

A court declared her incompetent in 1931. A nephew, Otis F. Wood, appointed to care for her, disclosed the frail widow—she weighed only 70 lbs. —for years had carried hidden in her dress paper bags containing $900,000 in $1,000 bills.

Friends said she told them of making a trip through Africa with $700,000 in a brown paper bag tied night and day to her wrist.

7,000 Chinese Convicts Freed

Inmates of World's Largest Prison Are Turned Loose in International Settlement

SHANGHAI.—Authorities of Shanghai's battle-fringed International Settlement this week decided to empty the Ward Road jail, believed to be the world's largest prison, and free its 7,000 prisoners.

The jail has for some time been in the middle of the Sino-Japanese battlefield in Northeastern Shanghai and the settlement authorities decided they could no longer be responsible for its administration.

Prisoners are being freed at the rate of 500 to 1,000 daily. They will be taken to the western borders of the settlement and turned loose to meet any fate that awaits in this zone of war.

Murderers, kidnappers, narcotics dealers and addicts are included in the derelicts thus to be thrown on the world. Nearly all are Chinese, but many nationalities are among them.

Early in the fighting a shell struck the jail, killing or wounding about 90 prisoners.

$8,000,000 Spent On Air Services

CALGARY, — About $8,000,000 has been spent to date for the trans-Canada Air Service, President S. J. Hungerford of Canadian National Railways and Trans-Canada Air Lines said here this week.

This sum, he said, was spent on field facilities. Radio directional beam and meteorological and other services have yet to be developed.

Editor Uses Homing Pigeons

To Speed News Service From All Parts of County

HORNELL, N.Y. — Swift-pinioned homing pigeons sped from various points in Steuben County this week, bearing news of outlying communities for publication in Hornell's Evening Tribune.

In what was both a departure from conventional "country correspondence" transmission and a revival of one of the world's oldest methods of communication, The Tribune began a regular "air mail" service for its state news department.

Six of the fleet birds, released by Mrs. Mabel Sandford at Hammondsport on Keuka Lake, traversed the 28 miles to the homing loft atop The Tribune building in "a short time," Assistant Managing Editor Louis G. Buisch said.

He asserted 13 birds now were ready for service and would be distributed to the newspaper's correspondents throughout its territory. Nineteen more are being trained and will be ready for duty soon.

"The pigeon service will be used for our regular week-end news transmission," Buisch said. "The news will be written out in complete form on thin paper, and sent in ring carriers attached to the birds' legs."

News In Brief

Cross Atlantic In 11½ Hours

FOYNES, Irish Free State.—Imperial Airways flying ship Caledonia, on the return hop of another experimental commercial trans-Atlantic flight, alighted on the River Shannon at 9.15 a.m., from Botwood, Nfld.

The hop completed the third round trip of Imperial Airways planes over the northern route since survey flights were started early in July.

The Caledonia's flying time was announced as 11 hours, 33 minutes which was the fastest crossing of any of the survey trips.

Italy Wins Air Derby

LEBOURGET FIELD, Paris. — The Italian pilot Cupini crossed the finish line first in the Istres-Damascus-Paris 3,600-mile air derby at 10.08 a.m.

The winner, however, was decided on the basis of elapsed time.

Cupini, with his co-pilot, Paradis, was the winner of first prize of one and a half million francs ($56,200).

The team's unofficial elapsed time was 16 hours 24 minutes.

Thirty minutes later the Italian team of Fiori-Lucchini flew over the field. Their estimated elapsed time was 17 hours and 13 minutes, qualifying them for the second prize of one million francs ($37,500).

Premier Mussolini's son, Bruno, and his co-flier, Col. Attileo Biseo, landed in third place to qualify for a prize of half a million francs ($18,750).

British Destroyer Fired On

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier.—Loyalist coastal batteries were alleged this week to have fired on the British destroyer, Keith, as it sped down the Biscay coast on an "errand of mercy" to rescue loyalist war refugees.

Thomas Bates, British Consul at Santander, who was aboard the destroyer, said the loyalists opened fire from Santona, a fishing port thirteen miles east of Santander.

Insurgent despatches at the frontier reported that, a few hours after the attack on the Keith, Santona was captured by a rebel column of Italian "Black Arrows" advancing along the coast from Laredo.

A Seven-Mile Jump

MOSCOW.—K. F. Kaitanoff claimed a new parachute jumping record of 11,037 metres (about 36,210 feet).

He said this bettered his old mark of 9,800 metres (about 32,150 feet), made in July.

Kaitanoff is one of the leading Soviet parachutists. The Government paper Izvestia has said some of his jumps were experiments in parachuting for possible war-time application.

A commentary on the highlights of the week's news

Times Attacks Mussolini

In a speech at Palermo, Premier Mussolini of Italy issued a warning that Rome and Berlin would never permit "Bolshevism or something like that" to establish itself on the shores of the Mediterranean. The London (Eng.) Times immediately attacked Il Duce, taking it that his warning implied "exclusive Italian control" in that sea.

The editorial saw a double danger in Mussolini's statements regarding Bolshevism. This phrase, the paper said, might signify that Italy is pledged to continue military intervention in Spain, and secondly, it might imply that Italy is assuming control of the domestic policy of Mediterranean nations.

"The claim might lead her very far indeed—to Spain today, Turkey tomorrow, and no one can tell where after," the Sunday Times said.

Air Service Delayed

Unless special legislation is enacted in the U. S. Congress, another year may go by before the projected trans-Atlantic air mail and passenger service between Great Britain and the United States is inaugurated. Meantime test flights continue to be carried out from both sides of the Atlantic.

Killed In Spain

Since the Civil War in Spain began a little more than a year ago, nearly 400 British subjects, volunteer fighters on either side of the combat, have been killed. Detachments from Canada, Germany, Italy, Belgium and Poland, have also lost many men in the fray, none of them, however, sponsored officially by the countries they represent.

Tourist Boom

Reaching the proportions of a major industry, the tourist influx into Canada from the United States and other countries, is this year expected to swell Canadian coffers, public and private, by the addition of $300,000,000. During the month of August alone, nearly one million United States cars will have crossed over into Canada. The present year's tourist business may come close to the high mark set in the peak year of 1930 when 21,000,000 visitors were inside our borders. Some observers say that the Dionne Quintuplets are largely responsible for the comeback, others that returning prosperity is giving new life to the tourist industry.

Rain Halts Harvest

Harvesting operations in Western Ontario have been at a standstill due to the excessive rains and crops in the fields have been seriously damaged. No bumper crop this year, either!

Prison Commission

Appointed to inquire into the administration of penal institutions in Canada, the Penitentiary Commission headed by Mr. Justice Archambault have concluded their study of prison systems on the Continent of Europe and in England. They will now shortly complete the business of investigating the home field. Trouble in a number of Canadian penal institutions, it will be remembered, led to the inquiry.

News From China

Japan's great military machine is only beginning to go into action, but already the war is spreading over half of the great country of China. The armies are striking by land, sea and air along a 1,000 mile front.

But earlier in the week, Japan got the worst of it. Japanese reinforcement troops led by suicide detachments of the "White Band of Death" were annihilated by Chinese gunfire as they attempted to land at the Shanghai wharves.

War and fire continued to lay waste to Shanghai. A large section of the city containing British and Japanese-owned properties, was fired by incendiary bombs from Chinese planes. The International Settlement escaped destruction by flame but 400 persons were estimated killed and a 1,000 wounded by a heavy artillery shell that crashed into its crowded store section. The civilian death toll so far in the war is placed at 10,000.

CAIRO. — The engagement of Egypt's young King Farouk to Mlle. Sasi Naaz, 16-year-old daughter of Youssef Bey Zulfikar, councilor of the Alexandria Mixed Court of Appeals, was officially announced this week.

Her mother, Madame Henem Zulfikar, is lady-in-waiting to the queen mother.

The king's fiancee is the granddaughter of former Premier Mohamed Pasha Saied and is a renowned Egyptian beauty.

Nazis Survey New Air Way

BERLIN. — Lufthansa, Germany's leading aviation company, announced this week three Reich fliers in a trimotored plane flew from Kabul, Afghanistan, to Ansifan, in the southwestern extremity of Kansu Province in China, a distance of about 1,550 miles, in 11 hours.

The flight, an experimental one to discover whether it was feasible to establish an air route linking Europe to the Orient over the northern route, was held successful, inasmuch as the route taken by the German plane is about 1,240 miles shorter than the present southern airlane via Rhodes, Turkey, Baghad and Teheran.

The plane was piloted by Baron Cary von Gablenz, technical director of Lufthansa. Captain Untucht and Mechanic Kirchoff were the other members of the crew.

After an hour's stop in Ansifan, the plane hopped off for Soochom, near Shanghai, where it landed safely.

JOHANNESBURG — Council approved purchase of a $10,000 motor car for the mayor after a discussion in which it was pointed out he would have a better car than Roosevelt, Stalin, Hitler, or Premier Hertzog.

THE WONDERLAND OF OZ

By L. Frank Baum

As Ozma and the Gnome King stepped through the door, Dorothy and the rest of our friends followed. They found themselves upon a balcony from which they viewed the enormous cave that stretched for miles in every direction. Around the walls of the cave were thousands of gold and silver doors which extended far into the distance.

While the little maid from Oz and her friends gazed with wondering eyes at the vastness of the cave before them, the Gnome King drew a silver whistle from his pocket. Raising it to his lips he blew one long, shrill whistle. Then he turned to his companions from the upper world. "Watch!" he commanded.

At once all the gold and silver doors flew open and solid ranks of gnome soldiers marched out from every one. So great were their number that they soon filled all of the immense underground cavern. They were clothed in steel armor and bore sharp spears. Upon his helmet each wore a brilliant electric light.

The Gnome King whistled again, and at once the martial array filed through the silver and gold doorways and disappeared. Then the gnome turned to Ozma. "This," he said, "is but a small part of my army. No ruler on earth has ever dared fight me and none ever will. I am too powerful to oppose."

He Was Afraid To Cross A Street

Lost His Nerve After 12 Months' Agony

Suffering from acute rheumatism in both his knee joints — treated in hospital twice without result — so unnerved that he was afraid to cross a street—how readily every rheumatic sufferer will sympathise with this man. Read what he says:

"For 12 months, I suffered pain and misery with acute rheumatism in both my knees. Twice, I was treated in hospital—but it was no use. I could not walk up or downstairs. I was afraid to cross the street, for I had lost all confidence in myself. Fourteen days ago, I started taking Kruschen Salts, and already I am a new man. I can walk with a smart step, go up and downstairs with ease, and cross the street with complete confidence. My rheumatism is getting better every day." — D.L.

In a good many cases, rheumatism cannot resist the action of Kruschen Salts, which dissolve the painful crystals of uric acid — often the cause of those aches and pains—and assist the kidneys to eliminate this poison through the natural channels.

Route Via Hudson Bay Not Unsafe

Less Dangerous Than St. Lawrence In Some Respects Says Board

OTTAWA—The Hudson Bay shipping route "is no more dangerous, and in some respects less dangerous, than the St. Lawrence route," it was stated in a report of the Imperial Shipping Committee released here.

The committee, which sets insurance rates for the Far Northern shipping lane, reported that a fast, modern tramp steamer would have no difficulties in making three round trips between Churchill and Europe in the official navigation season, from August 5th to October 15th. The committee recommended gyro compasses for ships on the route, and in fact made reductions in insurance rates for vessels equipped with them.

"Eight seasons have passed," the report stated, "since the new route was opened. The way is well charted and well equipped with aids of navigation. The exceptional circumstances on account of which the warranty is imposed—ice, fog and magnetic disturbance—are known and have been provided against by the gyro compass, direction-finding and the very efficient escort of the Canadian patrol vessels. Nevertheless, so far as physical risks are concerned, we are convinced that the Hudson Bay route is no more dangerous, and in some respects less dangerous, than the St. Lawrence route. As against this there still remains the fact that with the present small number of voyages, a single total loss in a season is a serious matter for the underwriters."

Public Health In Newfoundland

Peculiar Task Faces Government —One Doctor For Every 7,000 People

Public health, which has been commanding increased public attention in Canada and the United States year by year, is now being considered by Newfoundland authorities with more serious thought than ever before.

In his recent budget speech, the Commissioner for Finance declared the problem of public health was one of the most important with which the Government had to grapple. The Department of Public Health and Welfare has been given over three million dollars for its year's estimates and in addition, it is expected that part of the $8,000,000 reconstruction grant from the British Government will be devoted to improvement of medical facilities.

Newfoundland has a gigantic task in bringing better health to about 290,000 people scattered over the island and another 5,000 along the Labrador Coast. In the remote fishing villages there is only one doctor to every 7,000 people, the area covered being so large that the burden is tremendous.

Within the last year, nine cottage hospitals have been put into operation and the work of planned public health commenced by various preventive measures.

Some idea of the need of public health facilities in Newfoundland may be had from the infant mortality figures. Canada's rate of 73 deaths per 1,000 births is considered large, yet in Newfoundland the infant mortality rate in 1936 stood at 96.5 for St. Johns City and 103 for the country district.

Letter "S" Starts Every Word of Yarn

MACON, Ga.—Startled scanners of seriate S's said surfeit of sibilants seemed certain for students seeking to read the Rev. J. F. Cargile's 13,000 word novelette in which each word begins with the 19th letter of the alphabet.

The 66 year old Baptist missionary minister has been working on his opus, "The Gladiator's Choice" for two years and said he determined to confine himself to "S" words "for reasons of my own."

Cargile conceded that reading the seemingly simple sentences—escuse it, please—of his book "takes some thought," but added succinctly, "So does reading Milton's 'Paradise Lost'."

Sibilant sample:

"Spain's sapphire seas, surging sonorously, scared sickly so-journers, Stephens 'Sea Ships' sailed swiftly southward. Scattered seaweed (sunstruck) shone serenely. Seagulls swiftly sped, sometimes swooping suddenly, scraping seething sea surfaces, stopping several seconds, seeing something stomach-satisfying."

Smiles and Chuckles

Husband (reading newspaper account of an incident at travelling menagerie)—"With a hoarse roar the lion sprang at the trainer and pandemonium broke loose!"

Wife—"What queer names they give animals to be sure!"

Great opportunities in life may be scarce. But every hour of every day of our existence is a little opportunity to improve yourself, to the end that you may be better, your neighbor happier, and the world the gainer for your presence in it for a short time.

Lonely Valley

Blackened trunk and blackened twig, and still the living green
Comes bravely forth to hide the scars.
O Friend, when you have seen
The naked hillside, bare and gray,
where once the lilac bloomed,
Will you not give a thought to these your careless act has doomed?
The smouldering fire you left behind
that bright September day,
The match you flung so carelessly as you drove on your way,
That half-burned cigarette that fell
beside the winding road;
You bear the sin in secret—yes, but you bear a heavy load.
And yet, the stricken valley wears a trusting hopeful air,
As though it really tried to say: "Now
don't you fret and care!
This frightful thing that came to me
was never planned by you;
We'll both forget the harm they did
—but YOU be careful too!"

Read It Or Not.—All wild men of Borneo are fakes.

Continental Landlord (to his American visitor)—"And how do you like our city?"

American—"I hate it. It's as hot as h—, and just as uncomfortable."

Landlord (admirably) — "Ah! Is there anywhere you Americans have not been?"

Jack—"There is a lot of favoritism in our family."

Uncle—"Why, Jack, what on earth do you mean?"

Jack—"Well, I get punished if I bite my fingernails and when baby puts his foot in his mouth they think it's cute."

Judge—"Your wife complains that you never work. How about it, Sam?"

Sam—"Dat woman's crazy. Ask her what Ah was doin' de second Tuesday of August, last year?"

Shoe Merchant — "Business is so quiet that we had better have a special sale."

Store Manager—"All right. What shall it be?"

Shoe Merchant—"Well, take that line of $5 shoes and mark them down from $10 to $7.95.

Narrowest Street Closed By Gates

QUEBEC.—Sous le Cap street, the narrowest street in North America and the mecca of tourists from all parts of the continent will no longer be traversed by automobiles and other vehicles, including the quaint caleche.

At the request of the Quebec Safety League fearful of injuries to the flock of children who play in this narrow alleyway which is graced by the name of a street, Chief of Police Trudel has closed it and gates have been built at either end to prevent their passage.

The children who made a livelihood by begging for pennies, now find their source of income cut off.

Airliner Captain Refuses Air Trip

Captain A. S. Wilcockson of the airliner Caledonia has flown across the Atlantic three times. He left Montreal this week for a fourth trip over the ocean. But Captain Wilcockson, when last in his home port at Southampton, England, fought shy of a 10 minute free flight over the English Channel, says the Montreal Star.

Word of this had reached the Star reporter who met Captain Wilcockson on arrival from New York today. Word that the Captain had won a ticket entitling him to a free flight in a raffle; that he had refused it.

"Oh, Lord," Captain Wilcockson groaned. "Has that story got out here now? Yes, its' true enough. It was a ticket for a flight around the Isle of Wight. And I didn't want it."

"Tush," cried the reporter. "Do not tell me, sir, that you're afraid of flying over water!"

Captain Wilcockson grinned. "There's a difference," he said, "between being paid to do it and doing it for fun."

Geese Fly South

CALGARY.—R. H. Metcalfe, Calgary naturalist, this week forecasted bad weather for Western Canada within 10 days and he based his judgment on the fact flocks of Canada geese are flying southward from the north, earlier than in years. The geese, 50 in one flock, were flying very low and in confused formation and this was "another sign of bad weather," he said.

Chile To Purchase $4,640,000 In Arms

SATIAGO, Chile.—Purchase of aircraft and war materials aggregating $4,640,000 was authorized in a decree signed this week by Emilio Bello Codesido, Chile's Minister of Defence. Most of the buying will be made in Italy and Germany.

Underground Room Just Septic Tanl

BURLINGTON, Ont.—An underground timbered room discovered during the razing of the old Brant House here caused much speculation among old-timers. Some believed it to be the larder of the original home of Joseph Brant, famous Indian warrior, on the site of which the Brant house was built. Others thought it was part of a passage through which the chief might have escaped in time of danger. Builders finally decided that the room, with spruce walls and flag-stoned floor, was nothing more than a septic tank for the hotel.

SLICED VERY THIN

By SIX BITS

"No matter how thin you slice it—it's still Boloney"

Mr. Sopwith, in making the statement that he intended again challenging for the America's Mug — which statement can be regarded as either a threat or a promise — says that he has thoroughly enjoyed his summer on this side.

Some folks have queer ideas of what constitutes an enjoyable time, and if Sopwith takes pleasure from a protracted view of Mike Vanderbilt's rear — well, we suppose it is no particular buttons off our vest.

Maybe he is something like the slightly dizzy one who was discovered tapping himself severely on the conk with a hammer. Asked his reason, if any, for such procedure, he answered, "Gee, it feels so good when I leave off doing it."

The biggest news that has come out of wrestling circles in some time is the return of Jimmy Londos to the canvas-crashing wars. If anybody can supply the much-needed blood transfusion to the very sick wrestling game, it is the Golden Greek.

Personally, we could never get very hot about Mr. Londos, as he did considerably too much posing to suit our depraved tastes. If we have to look at living statuary we prefer it of the opposite sex.

But Jimmy could really wrestle. In spite of the widely-held belief that he was only kept on top because of his drawing powers at the box office, when it came to a real "shooting match," he was among the first four or five.

And the public went for him in a large manner, and he could pack a joint with a bout which — if it had been anybody else but Londos — would have been playing to empty pews.

He was — and doubtless still is — an excellent business man too, and although most wrestlers are fairly thrifty, Londos was in a class by himself at surrounding every available dollar and hanging on to it after surrounded.

While he was taking his preliminary bows so gracefully, the smart Greek could "count the house" to within a very small margin of exactly how much was in the till — and he got his proper cut down to the very last nickel.

In a game famous for its double-crossing and chiselling — all in a spirit of good clean fun, of course — Londos more than held his own, and the number of promoters who ever out-smarted him could probably be counted on the toes of Long John Silver's timber peg.

In fact, from what we have heard of his shrewdness in business matters, he reminds us of the one about the two Scots named McKenzie and Kerr. The former ran a well stocked trading post up in the wilds somewheres, and one day in walks Mr. Kerr.

His canoe had been upset in a nearby rapids and he had lost practically everything he possessed. All he owned, when he arrived at McKenzie's store was a sheath knife.

After Kerr had been dried out and fed — the two of them got to trading. They bargained all through the night and on into the dawn.

When daylight arrived, it found McKenzie owning the sheath knife — while Kerr was the possessor of the entire trading post — stock, shack and everything. Later somebody asked McKenzie just what had happened.

With a slightly dazed expression still on his pan, Mac replied — "Yon was a very intelligent pairson."

And that just about describes Jimmy Londos — a very intelligent pairson; and it wouldn't surprise us too much to see him hailed, in the near future, as once more Chompeen of the World.

THE EQUITY

SHAWVILLE, SEPT. 9, 1937.

All Provinces Agreed on Youth Scheme

All provinces have indicated their intention of co-operating with the Dominion Government in the $1,000,000 scheme for training unemployed young people. Agreements with most of the provinces have been signed and in Western Canada the training is already underway. Nova Scotia is the latest province to join the scheme and an agreement with that province has recently been approved. Although New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island have not yet concluded an agreement with the Federal authorities they have indicated their intention of doing so.

A Four Million Dollar Surplus For Quebec

A surplus of $3,968,565 was reported on Friday by Provincial Treasurer Martin B. Fisher in the financial statement of the Quebec Government for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1937.

Mr. Fisher, in presenting the first financial report of the Union Nationale Government, reported ordinary revenue for the year of $46,280,019, highest in the history of the province. Expenditures were $42,311,454.

"We are elated in declaring a betterment in the finances of the province", Mr. Fisher said. "This result has been obtained without the burden of additional taxation."

The large revenue had been obtained, Mr. Fisher said, "by the general upturn in business, brought about largely by confidence being restored to our people and also by the strict application of the laws governing taxation."

The Provincial Treasurer reviewed legislation passed by the Government "for the well-being of our people." He listed Old Age Pensions, administration of the Rural Credit Act inventories of the natural resources of the province, expenses of a general election and special session, and many others, as contributing towards expenses which the Government had paid in full out of ordinary revenue.

Pontiac Lumber Industry Active

The following item is a clipping from the Ottawa Journal sent in from Campbell's Bay, on August 31st—With lumbering companies and contractors making preparations for the Winter's cut, unemployment in this district is a thing of the past and farmers and storekeepers are benefiting by the increased demand for food supplies and equipment.

W. A. Moore, of Ottawa, and formerly of Otter Lake, has secured the contract from the Canadian International Paper Company for cutting 14,000,000 feet of timber on the Pickanock river and Jules Lake district, which in the Spring will be driven by water to the Gatineau river at Gracefield. Last year, Mr. Moore cut 7,500,000 feet for the same company. He will sub-let his contract to small jobbers, several of whom are already operating and busy hiring men.

Gillies Brothers, of Braeside, Ont., are operating their limits on the Coulonge this year on a larger scale and is estimated more than 100 men have been sent to the camps with relays of others leaving here by truck twice a week.

Men are improving the company road between Klukeville and the East Branch depot, which will allow trucks to travel within 22 miles of John Bull, the head depot.

The J. R. Booth Company, of Ottawa, to operate on the Coulonge and Black rivers are improving roads and bridges to their limits and will commence operations in a few days.

The T. A. Williams Lumber Company, who have been operating on Wright's Lake, will cut timber at Moose Creek this year. Experienced bushmen are paid between $45 and $52 per month. District farmers are finding a ready market for their grain crops as well as their beef and pork produce.

School Safety Circles

With the announcement last week at the offices of the Province of Quebec Safety League that work of organization and renewing School Safety Circles and Brigades in schools throughout the province by officers of the League the first gun in the league's two-month campaign was fired.

Arthur Gaboury, secretary-general of the league, stated that the task of renewing the safety brigades in all schools where they already existed would start immediately with the commencement of classes. All members of the brigades will be requested to carry on their task of protecting the younger children while the league will commence, this week, the work of forming brigades in schools where same do not already exhist.

The support of Hon. J. H. A. Paquette, provincial secretary, has been obtained and the league proposes to organize a school safety circle in each and every school of the province this year. Thanks to the co-operation of the provincial secretary, each teacher, in every school of the province, will receive a copy of the league's Junior Safety Course containing one lesson for each of the forty weeks of the scholastic year. This course will furnish the teachers with a subject for each week dealing with safety, hygiene and first aid.

Once the organization work finished, the league officers will arrange for a series of federation meetings by the brigadiers and the work of the boys will be recognized and rewarded as in the past with medals and certificates.

OFFICE OF DISTRICT DIRECTOR OF POSTAL SERVICES

Ottawa, Aug. 24, 1937.

Rev. E. G. Warren, Minister,
United Church of Canada,
Campbell's Bay, Que.

Dear Sir :

I have your communication of the 20th inst., in which you refer to the recent drawing or tombola held in aid of St. John the Evangelist parish Campbell's Bay, and note your expression of apprehension that you might have been associated with registering a complaint in regard to this drawing.

I observe on my file that the Rev. E. T. McNally was communicated with on the 19th July, and nothing was stated in that letter to him that would justify any suspicion that the source of information concerning the tombola emanated from you. As a matter of fact, it was our District Superintendent at North Bay who submitted a number of letters containing literature and tickets in connection with the tombola, and on the strength of that, action was taken by the Post Office Department.

I realize your position as a fellow clergyman of a small place, and I am communicating at once with the Rev. Father McNally in a diplomatic way to assure him that neither you nor anybody else in Campbell's Bay had any connection with lodging the first complaint.

Yours truly,
C. C. McGRAIL,
District Director.

Fire, Air, Earth, Water, the Elements of Climate

Aristotle, one of the wisest men who ever lived, believed that matter was made up of four elements —fire, air, earth, and water. These four entities no longer are the exclusive components of matter. They are, however, the elements of climate, writes Dr. Thomas M. Beck in the Chicago Tribune.

By fire is meant the sun, of course. Without the sun the earth would have no climate or life. Everything, including the gases of the atmosphere, would be frozen into a lifeless, motionless, solid mass. The sun is continually giving off a tremendous amount of energy, of which the earth receives roughly two-billionths. Yet in spite of this dilution the amount of solar energy received when the sun is directly overhead amounts to about a dozen calories a minute for every square inch exposed. This rate of heating is sufficient to melt a one-inch layer of ice in less than two hours if completely absorbed.

If the earth were a one-sided disk perpendicular to the sun's rays every part of it always would be exposed to sunlight of this intensity. There would be no climatic differences, for everything would be heated to the same temperature, which would be somewhat above that of boiling water. The fact that the earth is almost spherical in shape tempers such heat. At any given instant the sun is directly overhead at only one spot on the globe, that closest to the sun, and half of the earth's surface is completely shielded from the direct effects of solar radiation.

Mystery Epidemic Often Wipes Out Arctic Dogs

One of the strange, unaccountable happenings of the North is the dog disease which sweeps across the entire Arctic and sub-Artic every few years, wiping out hundreds of dogs. These epidemics leave natives and whites in a precarious position, for without dogs hunting and traveling in the Arctic are impossible. When the dog disease sweeps the Arctic the natives die in large numbers from starvation.

The causes of this strange malady are unknown, though research scientists have been working on it for some years, states a writer in Pearson's London Weekly. How the epidemic starts or where it comes from is a mystery. The first symptoms are always the same. First the animals have a heavy discharge from eyes and nostrils. This is followed after a few days by loss of appetite. Another few days brings paralysis of the hind quarters, and then death. In some cases the dog yelps for a day or two and furtively bites at its stomach as though it suffers pain or irritation there. Some dogs will snap at other dogs. In 90 per cent of the cases the sickness proves fatal, not even "sickroom" care bringing them through.

If this sickness comes while a traveler is on the trail his dogs will die before he can reach his destination, and he stands every chance of perishing from starvation.

The principal market for Canadian cheese is the United Kingdom. Canada increased her cheese exports to Britain in 1936 by 29 per cent. However, these exports to Britain comprised only 83 per cent of the total Canadian cheese shipments as against 95 per cent 1935, Canada having supplied the United States in 1936 with 100,000 cwts. of cheese as against 4,000 cwts. in 1935.

Canada, as the chief market for wool tops and wool tissues exported from the United Kiugdom imported 5,631,000 lbs. of wool tops, 9,100,000 square yards of wool tissues, and 1,357,000 lbs. of yarn from Great Britain during the first half of 1937 (Jan.-June,) according to the figures of the Imperial Economic Committee.

Gather Eggs Often

Eggs should be gathered at least twice a day, and three times daily is better during hot weather. The time of one gathering should be just before dark or as near to it as practicable. This last gathering may not produce a great number of eggs, but since broody hens will commonly search out the nest containing eggs after the day's laying has ceased, failure to gather late in the day is a common source of distinct deterioration.

Each gathering should be placed in the coolest part of the cellar if no other cool spot is available, as soon as gathered. Eggs should not be put into cartons or cases immediately if this can be avoided. The ideal container for cooling eggs is a wire tray. A wire basket is the next best and perhaps the most practical. These baskets are ordinarily offered for sale as waste paper containers.

Warning Issued to Hog Producers

A warning against any abnormal liquidation of unfinished pigs was voiced by the Agricultural Department in a statement issued Friday forecasting the possibility of a "serious problem if increases in the number of unfinished hogs in the country loadings continue at the present rate." Prospects of deductions in hog marketings during the next year was basis for the warning.

The number of pigs on farms in Canada is probably smaller than in 1936 as the result of a reduction in spring farrowings in all the major producing provinces," the statement said. "This implies that the supply of bacon-making material available for the export and domestic trade during the remainder of 1937 and the greater part of 1938 may be below demand. Under such circumstances, any abnormal liquidation of unfinished pigs becomes a serious problem.

"While considerable number of feeders now being marketed are being returned to farms where feed is available, present demand may not be sufficiently broad to handle an increasing volume of suitable kinds.

THE CHINA STAR

By JOSEPH LEWIS CHADWICK

Hugh Morley, U. S. Secret Service agent, is aboard the China Star, bound from Shanghai for San Francisco, to guard one John B. Ellis, believed to be Eli J. Brandon, international financier, and said to be in danger—either from radicals, because of a trade pact he recently signed in the Orient, or from jewel thieves. Morley is attracted to the lovely Sylvia Ames, who is Ellis' Secretary. Other passengers include the over-inquisitive Phil Lon; the belligerent Richard Stell and his sister, Rennie; and Carl Van Doering, wealthy young sportsman. One afternoon, Ellis is slugged by a man in a black hood. A little later, Van Doering is also attacked. That night, a man is seen snooping near Ellis' suite. He is chased and escapes—but drops a small camera. It belongs to Wong Phil Lon.

CHAPTER XII

"Who is it?" demanded Benson.

"Richard Stell," said Morley. "I've got the goods on him! If you go to his stateroom immediately, you'll probably find him there with John Ellis' pearls!"

Benson leaped up. "Come along!' he said.

He summoned a steward, armed himself with a gun and got guns for Morley and the steward. Then they hurried to Stell's room.

They stood for a moment outside the door, listening. Then Morley reached for the knob, turned it silently and shoved the door wide.

Stell, standing beside a table, swung about. Behind him, on the table lay the chamois pouch with the pearls all spread out on it.

"Well, Stell, we've got you!" said Morley grimly.

Stell stared at the guns for a moment, then wilted. The game was up. He was seized and manacled.

Benson then sent the steward to get Ellis. The financier was incoherent with relief as his pearls were restored to him.

"You are lucky," Benson told him severely. "Perhaps you will listen to reason now and put your pearls in the ship's safe."

Ellis nodded. "Yes — I was a fool."

Meanwhile, the others concerned in the mysterious happenings aboard the China Star had been rounded up — Sylvia, Van Doering and Rennie Stell. Only Phil Lon was missing.

Rennie was white-faced as she entered the room and saw her brother in manacles. She rushed to him.

"Oh, Dick!" she sobbed.

He hung his head. Then, he looked up at Morley and Benson.

"I hope you don't think my sister had anything to do with all this. She knew nothing about it. I acted entirely alone."

Rennie was weeping uncontrollably. Van Doering went to her put his arm around her, and gently led her to one side, soothing her. Morley glanced at Sylvia. He read in her eyes that she had told Van Doering what she had told Morley earlier in the evening. Rennie now had Carl back — when she needed him most.

Benson turned to Morley. "Well, Mr. Morley, I'll let you take charge."

It was all very simple. Stell, knowing his case was hopeless, made a complete confession under Morley's probing. He had a passion for jewels. When he had learned from Phil Lon that Ellis had acquired some of the famous Fu Watong jewels, he had been insane with jealousy, and had determined to get those pearls.

He had made the black hood, had entered Ellis' room and slugged him. He had made a search of the room but had been unable to find anything. Then, Ellis, in the bathroom, had come to and started yelling. Stell had had to make a quick getaway. On seeing Ellis' gun on the table, he had seized it as he dashed from the room — just in case he should be cornered. He had yanked his hood off and stuffed it behind the fire extinguishor, as he had darted down the corridor to his room.

"But why did you shoot Mr. Van Doering?" Benson asked, puzzled.

Stell nodded. "Yes — the attack on Van Doering had nothing to do with the pearls. I went to his room to tell him I had meant it when I told him to keep away from my sister. He got angry and took a sock at me. I lost my head — I had Ellis' gun in my pocket and I drew it. He tried to wrench it out of my hand and, in the scuffle the gun went off. I suppose he got it just as it went off, and that is the reason no powder marks showed on my hands."

He turned and looked at Van Doering.

"But I don't understand why you did not give me away."

Van Doering was looking at Rennie. "I wanted to hush the thing up," he said. "I would have had to drag Rennie's name into it, if I had explained, and I didn't want to do that."

Stell, continuing his story under Morley's questioning, said that he had discovered — he didn't say how — that Sylvia was Ellis' secretary and had realized that she might have the pearls. Last night, he had broken into Sylvia's room, only to find the pearls gone.

"That part of our mystery has not yet been cleared up," said Morley. "We've got to find our elusive friend Phil Lon —"

At that instant, there came a knock on the door, and, to the wide-eyed astonishment of everyone present, the "elusive" Mr. Lon stepped into the room, grinning amiably, as though nothing had happened.

Morley gasped. "Well, where in thunder have you been?"

Lon was suave as ever. "That is my secret, Mr. Morley."

"About time you showed up!" said Morley. "You've got a lot of explaining to do! Why did you steal Mr. Ellis' papers and pearls from Miss Ames' room — and then, why did you slip them to me this evening?"

"I did not setal them, Mr. Morley," said Lon blandly. "I merely borrowed them."

Who and what are you?" Morley demanded.

"I am a newspaperman. My assignment was to get a photograph of Mr. Ellis' — or Mr. Brandon's — trade pact. Only by borrowing the papers could I get the photograph. I took the pearls, too, because this mysterious masked man was after them and I thought I could prevent him from getting them.

"I got my photograph — it's the scoop of the year — and then tried to slip the papers and pearls into Mr. Ellis' room last night, but before I could do so I was chased, unfortunately dropping my camera, which I hope you will return to me, Mr. Morley. I decided, after that, it was best to disappear until I could find an opportunity quietly to return the papers and the pearls.

"I knew all along who you were, Mr. Morley, but I hinted to Miss Ames that you might be a jewel thief, working with the purser, to make her and Mr. Ellis suspicious of you and Mr. Benson, so that Mr. Ellis would not put his papers and pearls in the purser's safe. That would have thwarted my plans."

"Why, you scheming little devil!" Morley ejaculated. "Incidentally, just when did you succeed in getting into Miss Ames' room?"

"Just before Mr. Van Doering was shot. I had seen Miss Ames go to your room, so knew that the coast was all clear. That was why I was missing at the time of the excitement over Mr. Van Doering. I decided that, to explain my absence, I had better pretend that I had been asleep."

Every one had listened spellbound to this amazing story. It seemed to clear up all that was still unexplained and so, after a few more questions, the gathering broke up. Stell was left locked in his room, with a guard outside.

Morley led Sylvia out to the promenade deck and found a secluded little spot.

"Sylvia," he said tenderly, taking her hand, "there is just one more mystery to be cleared up. In the ball room when you took me for Van Doering and said your answer to him was 'No,' you said there was 'another' man — tell me who this other is."

She nestled close to him and murmured, "Don't you know Hugh?"

He slipped his arms about her and crushed her to him.

Airmail to Europe Will Cost 25c

WASHINGTON, — Airmail to Europe, perhaps to be inaugurated this Fall, probably will cost 25 cents a letter, United States postal officials said this week.

"We had hoped to make it 20 cents," said Harlee Branch, second assistant postamster general. "Now it looks more like 25."

He explained Congress' failure to authorize a poundage rate would make the cost greater.

British Imperial Airways and Pan-American Airlines already are completing test flights over Trans-Atlantic routes they hope to inaugurate by November.

Takes A Year To Cross Ocean

Bottles Tested in Ocean Currents —Fan-Shaped Drift Discovered.

A test of ocean currents, in which 17 bottles ranging from castor oil to champagne empties crossed the Atlantic in seven months to one year, was disclosed this week at the American Museum of Natural History.

One hundred corked bottles were dumped overboard on July 26, 1936, by a museum expedition, 35 miles off the north Newfoundland coast. The idea was to test direction and speeds of the sea currents. E. Thomas Gilliard, the staff assistant at the museum, and Samuel Knox George, of Baltimore, made the experiment. Results will be published in Septemeber Natural History, the museum's magazine.

The first bottle showed up on the west coast of Ireland last February 14 and the airline distance from Newfoundland was about 1,800 miles, but the bottle drifted a longer course.

England and France got bottles later. In July two of them broke into Spain's revolution sufficiently to attract attention of fighting men.

Every bottle contained a card to be filled out with position and date of finding, Felix Bartanedia, commander of military marine, mailed a card from a bottle picked up near Bilbao.

"Viva Espana. Second year of the triumph," he wrote.

The other bottle in Spanish waters was picked up by Frank Lowell, chief petty officer of the British warship, Kempenfeldt, on patrol duty in the Bay of Biscay.

Ireland got six all told. On July 1st a bottle hit the Scilly Islands "on the nose." These are the first land sighted by liners crossing to the English Channel. Two bottles landed near Cornwall, England.

The course, followed by the bottles, Gilliard said, was not toward Europe at first but south with the cold current which flows from Labrador. This carried them to the "eastward drift" which is the name given the Gulf Stream after it veers from the American coast toward Europe.

This drift is fan-shaped by the time it reaches Europe. Some of it courses northward toward Iceland. Other portions curve southward past France and Spain.

Self-Landing Plane Invented

Airplane Which Flies Itself Developed by U. S. War Dept.

WASHINGTON, AUG. 25th, — Development of an airplane which virtually "flies itself" was announced today by the War Department.

The plane, a large Army cargo type was landed repeatedly at Wright Field Dayton, Ohio, under adverse conditions with a Sperry gyro pilot. There was no human assistance.

Capt. Carl J. Crane, Capt. George V. Holloman and Raymond Stout occupied the plane while the tests were made, but in no way assisted in manoeuvring it to the ground. The landings were "made with amazing accuracy," the Department said.

The gyro pilot, a new device developed after two years of intensive research by Air Corps engineers, differs from other automatic landing systems the Department said, in that the craft is landed without assistance from the human pilot, "and also with remote control from the ground."

The new technique insures safe landings "in a dense fog, in absolute darkness, or other adverse conditions, the Department stated.

Experiments will be carried on, it was announced to make improvements and render automatic landings a customary feature in plane flights.

Lapps Familiar With Swing Music

Known as "Joiking" Among Primitive Mountaineers of Sweden

LAIMOLAHTI, Sweden, — It may be "swing" in 1937 North America, but it has been "joiking" among primitive mountain Laplanders in the Arctic circle for many centuries.

Such was the discovery made by a party of explorers in the Merwin-Haverlee expedition now penetrating the north to study habits of the nomadic Lapps.

"The music called 'swing' is centuries old among the Laplanders and is the only form of music they know," said Arnold Haverlee, of New York, leader of the expedition.

"When the Lapps roam through the wilderness, following their reindeer, they often indulge in melodies befitting their mood.

The rhythm is different from that found in jazz, but nevertheless it is governed by the same principle as the latest 'swing' hits.

They 'swing' it sober, though, in Lapland. Alcohol is forbidden among the Tjautjoukahs Lapps by their prophet, Laestadius.

"We stopped with an old Lapp, one day, who claimed he knew quite a bit about America. He was all apologies that he could only serve us dried reindeer meat, goat milk and coffee.

"He had heard, he said, that people from America could not live very well without something they called cocktails. He thought it was some kind of fowl delicacy, and he was shocked when he heard what they really are."

The expedition, already 200 miles above the Arctic Circle, plans to join the Karausando Lapps in the Vaisoluokta region in the next few weeks.

34 Convicted Spies In Russia Executed

MOSCOW.—The Russian newspaper Soviet Siberia this week reported the execution of 34 convicted spies and wreckers at Irkutsk after military trials on charges of terrorist activity forf the Japanese Intelligence Service.

This was the second large-scale execution reported within two weeks in Siberia. On August 11, 72 persons were put to death on charges of conniving with Japanese Secret Service agents to wreck Russian Far East railroads.

Mouse Twice Trapped

MARMORA.—This mouse died a most unnatural death. Caught in a trap in the pantry of Mrs. John Gifford's home in Marmora township, the mouse threshed around until the lower part of its body caught in another trap. When Mrs. Gifford came on the scene of tragedy a 43-inch spotted adder was attempting to devour the rodent, traps and all. Mrs. Gifford hurried for assistance to a distant neighbor. The snake was later killed.

Hospital Presented To Town

Thirty years ago, a joint stock company was organized in Wingham, Ontario, to provide a hospital for that town, its founder being the late Dr. J. P. Kennedy. When equipped, it was valued at $6,000. Its value has grown to $35,000. Recently it was formally presented to the town by the company.

A Floating Hospital

New York City has a floating hospital which affords relief to the sick children of that city without regard to creed, color or nationality. Six days a week in summer it takes out hundreds of under-privileged children for a healthful outing, over 400 welfare organizations participating in the distribution of tickets. Last July and August 52,336 passengers were carried. The boat is pulled by a tug but it has two dummy streamline funnels to give the illusion of a self-powered vessel.

GOD REQUIRES SOCIAL JUSTICE

Leviticus 19: 1-18, 32-37.

THE LESSON IN ITS SETTING

Time—B.C. 1497.

Place — Undoubtedly these words were uttered by the Lord to Moses from the tabernacle of the congregation located not far away from Mount Sinai, where the Israelites were encamped (see Lev. 1: 1).

"And when ye reap the harvest of your land, thou shalt not wholly reap the corners of thy field, neither shalt thou gather the gleaning of thy harvest." "And thou shalt not glean thy vineyard, neither shalt thou gather the fallen fruit of thy vineyard; thou shalt leave them for the poor and for the sojourner: I am Jehovah your God." There is no book in all the world which so tenderly, and justly, and helpfully considers the condition of the poor as do both the Old and New Testaments (see also Deut. 15: 4-11; 24: 12-15; Ps. 41: 1; 72: 13; 82: 3, 4; Prov. 28: 3, 8, 11, 15; Isa. 11: 4; Matt. 11: 5; Luke 14: 13; 18: 22).

"Ye shall not steal." (See Ex. 20: 15; 21: 16; 22: 1; Deut. 5. 19; 24: 7; Prov. 30: 9; Rom. 2: 21; 13: 9; Eph. 4: 28.)

"Neither shall ye deal falsely, nor lie one to another." (See Ex. 20: 16; Lev. 6: 2; Eph. 4: 25; Col. 3: 9.) Stealing is often followed by lying, because a person who will steal will attempt to cover up the theft by untruthful words.

"And ye shall not swear by my name falsely, and profane the name of thy God: I am Jehovah." This admonition corresponds with the Third Comamndment.

"Thou shalt not oppress thy neighbor, nor rob him." There are so many ways of oppressing one's neighbor—by making it inconvenient for him to have packages delivered to his door because access to his home is across a piece of property that another owns; by making it so disagreeable for one's neighbor that he will be compelled to move from the community. "The wages of a hired servant shall not abide with thee all night until the morning." While the letter of this command cannot be carried out in most cases today, i.e., the payment of laborers each night, yet the spirit of it can be carried out by paying laborers at the time when an employer enters into an agreement with his employees to pay them.

"Thou shalt not curse the deaf, nor put a stumblingblock before the blind; but thou shalt fear thy God: I am Jehovah."

"Ye shall do no unrighteousness in judgment; thou shalt not respect the person of the poor, nor honor the person of the mighty; but in righteousness shalt thou judge thy neighbor." In this verse God turns our attention away from personal wrongs to official wrongs, giving a commandment intended to guard men against injustice as they stand in courts of law.

"Thou shalt not go up and down as a talebearer among thy people." "The original word from which 'tale-bearer' is translated, literally signifies a traitor, a peddler, and is here applied to one who travels up and down dealing in slanders and detractions, as a merchant does in wares, possessing himself of the secrets of individuals and of families, and then blazing them abroad, usually with a distortion of motives and facts."

"Neither shalt thou stand against the blood of thy neighbor: I am Jehovah." This command is simply to further protect the life of our neighbors by forbidding the children of Israel to stand aside while the life of any neighbor was in danger, i.e., in drowning, in attack by robbers or wild beasts. Probably also it means that, if we have knowledge of another's crime in the shedding of the blood of some person, we are not to keep silence when possessing such knowledge.

Thou Shalt Not Hate

"Thou shalt not hate thy brother in thy heart." Of course it is in the heart where hatred lives. Hatred can quickly grow so powerful in one's life that it can lead to almost every sin imaginable, including murder. "Thou shalt surely rebuke thy neighbor." We can properly obey this command only if we rebuke others in the light of God's word, in the power of the Holy Spirit, and in love. "And not bear sin because of him." "If I do not warn my brother when the opportunity offers, I am to be blamed for want of truth and love."

"Thou shalt not take vengeance, nor bear any grudge against the children of thy people; but thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself; I am Jehovah." This is the first time in the Bible that the command to love one another appears. "We are told to love incompatible members of the families and kindreds with which we are associated, and perhaps they are occasions of irritation to us, thorns stabbing our most densely massed and delicate nerve-processes.

"Thou shalt rise up before the hoary head, and honor the face of the old man, and thou shalt fear thy God: I am Jehovah." "When you meet them in public places, or they come to where you are, show them reverence. Infirmity, wisdom, nay, age in itself, have each a claim on us.

"And if a stranger sojourn with thee in your land, ye shall not do him wrong."

"The stranger that sojourneth with you shall be unto you as the homeborn among you, and thou shalt love him as thyself; for ye were sojourners in the land of Egypt: I am Jehovah your God." The law commanding the Israelites to be kind to strangers is frequently repeated in the Pentateuch.

"Ye shall do no unrighteousness in judgment, in measures of length, of weight, or of quality." "Just balances, just weights, a just ephah, and a just hin, shall ye have." "It is of no account to keep the Sabbath — in a way—and reverence outwardly — the sanctuary, and then on the week day water milk, adulterate medicines and foods, slip the yardstick in measuring, tip the balance in weighing, and buy with one weight or measure and sell with another, and 'water' stocks, as the manner of many is. God hates, and even honest atheists despise religion of this kind. A religion which is only used on Sundays has no holiness in it."

"I am Jehovah your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt." "And ye shall observe all my statutes, and all mine ordinances, and do them: I am Jehovah." There are three fundamental reasons here given to persuade, and encourage, and even compel man to obey these and other laws which God has given: the fact that the one who gives these laws is none other than Jehovah, the omnipotent sovereign, th only true and living God; that this Supreme One beside whom there is no other, though exalted in heaven and invisible to the naked eye, is yet "our God"—ours in love, ours to guide us, ours to pray to, the God before whom, some day, we shall stand and the God who knows all that we do. Finally, to Israel, Jehovah was the God who had redeemed them from the bondage of Egypt, and, to us, the Father of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ, who sent his Son that we should be redeemed from sin and the power of Satan, and that we should be brought into the very presence of God by his love and grace.

Movie Star Dust Radio

By VIRGINIA DALE

It is children's day in Hollywood, with contracts being signed in carload lots to exploit youngsters in films. The five tough young lads whom Sam Goldwyn imported to play in "Dead End" made such a hit at the preview that he promptly put all them under contract to make more pictures.

Their next for him will be "Street Corners", after which Mervyn Le Roy would like to borrow them for a series. Metro-Goldwyn-Meyer's favorite is fourteen-year-old Judy Garland. They have lined up three stories for her. Universal intends to keep Deanna Durbin very busy for the next year, and Paramount plan to star the youngest of all, four-year-old Kitty Clancy, in "Call Back Love".

Rubinoff does not like to expose his priceless Stradivarius violin to brilliant studio lights any longer than is necessary, so during rehearsals and whenever he was not playing for the sound track of "You Can't Have Everything," he used a double. The husky virtuoso carries a big insurance policy on the violin and would feel lost if anything happened to it. He had it with him when he played at an open air concert on Chicago's lake front recently when more than 100,000 people listened to him.

When Frances Farmer arrived in New York, instead of pausing politely to let all the news photographers take pictures of her, she rushed off to Mt. Kisco upstate to go in rehearsal for her first stage engagement. Four nights later I saw her performance and suddenly found myself wanting to burst into cheers. Playing a role quite unlike any she has done on the screen, a role simply made to order for Lupe Valez, she displayed a catlike grace of movement, a voice musically rich, and great variety of moods.

Ozzie Nelson and his popular radio orchestra are currently appearing at the Astor roof in New York, but soon he will move his activities to Hollywood so as to be near his wife, Harriet Hilliard, who is under long-term contract at the RKO studios. Ozzie is the hero of all boy scouts who want to make a name for themselves. At fourteen he was honored at a jamboree in London as the youngest Eagle scout.

"High, Wide, and Handsome," a story of the early oil rush in Pennsylvania, is attracting attention. It more than lives up to the promise of its title, for it is spectacular, melodious and frenzied. Irene Dunne and Dorothy Lamour provide the beauty and melody; Randolph Scott, pitted against as tough a lot of villains as you ever hissed—including that incomparable Akim Tamiroff — provides the rough and ready drama.

Irene Dunne

Youngsters who were the original fans of "The Lone Ranger" are getting pretty grown up now, but they confess that they still follow the adventures with bated breath. The popular three-times-a-week serial recently celebrated its seven hundred and twenty-fifth broadcast. Frank Striker, who has written this series ever since it started in January, 1933, estimates that more than 3,500 characters have appeared in the adventures.

All the summer radio surveys reported that Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy were miles ahead of every other performer in popularity. Their salary is said to have sky-rocketed from $300 to $3,500 per week.

ODDS AND ENDS: — Randolph Scott attended his first film premiere in July, 1928, standing on an orange crate watching the crowds arrive to see Colleen Moore and Gary Cooper in "Lilac Time." His most recent premiere found him in a choice aisle seat watching himself as star of "High, Wide and Handsome" . . . Jack Haley has bowed out of the "Show Boat" program but he will have one of his own very soon . . . Adolphe Menjou and Katherine Hepburn are bitter rivals on the golf course . . . Dorothy Gish, whom film fans have never forgotten, will play the lead in a Mutual broadcasting system serial called "The Couple Next Door" . . . When John Barrymore returns to radio, it won't be in Shakespeare, but in "The Animal Kingdom" and "Accent on Youth," some time in September. Meanwhile he is making a picture at RKO with Irene Dunne.

If vaccines and sprays have failed to relieve the hay fever martyr, they might try hiding the calendar.

This Question of the Universe

This Bible—this miraculous Bible—this Book of All Books—luminous with the light that dwelleth not on land or sea—this noblest and most beautiful Thing in all the world—what is it—whence cometh it—what means it?

It has made and unmade Nations. It has uprooted Kingdoms and Empires. It has diverted the mighty tides of History. It has crumpled ancient Faiths and Superstitions. Because of it fell Pagan Rome. The antique Systems of India and the Far East have bowed their heads to its enlightened sway.

China and the Orient now first awaken from their sleep of thrice a thousand years, and follow their sister nations of the Occident—whose feet are guided by one sole lamp—the sacred flame of which was kindled by the inspired Hebrew Prophets, and fed for all time by the Lord and Master of the Golden Rule.

Only ignorance scoffs at the Bible! The greatest rulers—the greatest statesmen—the greatest scholars—writers—orators—scientists—soldiers—and the untold millions of the Common People, whose collective genius outweighs them all—have thrilled to its Divine Wisdom.

Its lyrics of unfathomable tenderness — its orations of compelling potency — its contemplative prose of preternatural grandeur —have never been equalled. Its emotional depths and its intellectual heights make it the one and only Book of Books, vouchsafed for the guidance of mankind throughout the ages.

Driven From Home
Libel Case Imminent

Startling Disclosures Made by Karen Chase of Smoke Mountain Against Mrs. Master of Two Rivers.

Smoke Mountain — A story of vengeful hate was disclosed today, when Karen Chase, alias Karen Leader, told of the relentless pursuit of a Mrs. Masters, who destroyed her father's fortune and reputation and caused the death of her mother.

Karen, through her kindness to the inhabitants of this village, has earned the respect and love of all citizens.

Rory MacLeod, young artist, nephew of Mrs. Masters, has also been paying undue attention. There is much speculation in the village as to who will win the hand of the fair Karen.

If you want the complete story of Karen and her two admirers and the hate-ridden Mrs. Masters, watch for the opening installment of "Beloved Castaway" starting in next week's issue of this paper.

The attendance at the Ottawa Exhibition was 377,000 as compared with 200,000 last year.

Of Course we buy goods

-BUY RIGHT HERE IN THE PROVINCE OF QUEBEC

Too many people think of chain stores as interested only in selling goods. To sell them, we have to buy them first and in so doing, we create jobs and wages for thousands of Quebec workmen and a market for hundreds of Quebec farmers.

Chain store purchases from Quebec manufacturing plants and farmers aggregate the huge sum of $30,000,000.00 annually, in many cases taking the entire output of considerable plants. These purchases have to be transported to our warehouses and individual stores, an aggregate volume of traffic that means much to Quebec's transportation systems and transport workers.

Hamilton Stewart

The funeral of Hamilton Stewart, who died at his home, Murrell's section, Clarendon, on Monday, August 30th, was held on Wednesday afternoon from the late home to Litchfield United Church and cemetery. Service was conducted by E. G. Warren, of Campbell's Bay, assisted by Rev. A. F. Fokes, of Shawville. The funeral which very largely attended, was under the direction of the Orange Order of Stark's Corners, with Gordon Elliott, as master, Rev. L. Emard, of Otter Lake, as chaplain and Harold Hayes, county director of ceremonies.

The pall-bearers, all neighbours, were, Messrs. Kenneth Pirie, Geo. Robitaille, Donald Cameron, Jas. McLean, Andrew Stewart and Gordon Wilson.

Mr. Stewart was a life-long resident of Murrell's section being born on the homestead where he died. He was 76 years of age and the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Stewart. His wife, who was Miss Jennie Cuthbertson, of Bristol, died in 1919.

Left to mourn his loss are two nieces who had lived with him for several years, Mrs. George De Pencier, of North Bay, and Mrs. Reuben Smith, of Murrell's, and a number of other nephews and nieces.

Mr Stewart was very well-known and highly respected throughout the district. For a great many years he conducted a large apiary. In community life, Mr. Stewart was active, being secretary of the Pontiac Rifle Association, and for 48 years a member of the Lake Dumont Hunt Club. In fraternal circles, he was an active member of L.O L No 1073 of Stark's Corners and also of Shawville Black Preceptory He was an elder of the United church at Murrell's since Union, holding similiar positions previous to Union in the Presbyterian church
