Attempted Arson Case Witnesses Heard At Preliminary Hearing at Valleyfield

Andre Leclerc, Huntingdon, Ordered to Stand Trial on Charge Of Attempted Arson — Judge Warns Against Judging Case Before A Verdict Has Been Given

The preliminary inquest of Mr. André Leclerc of Huntingdon, suspected of attempted arson on February 24, at the Auto Parts Store, which is also used as office and warehouse by Empire Garage, owned by Mr. Noel Foisy, also of Huntingdon, was held in the Valleyfield Court, on March 29th, before Judge Maurice Fortin.

Three important witnesses were asked to appear in connection with the case, which has caused a lot of talking in the region. Answering the questions of the accused's lawyer, Mr. Albert Leblanc, and those of the victim's lawyer, Mr. G. A. Meloche, the three witnesses gave their own version of this case, which was discovered just in time.

Mr. Rodrigue Montpetit, employee of Mr. Foisy, was the first to be called to testify. In answer to Mr. Meloche's questions, Mr. Montpetit testified as follows: "Mr. Gilles Bergeron, who lives over the premises, called me on Thursday, February 24th, around 11.45 p.m., saying that there was a gas smell in his apartment. He said that there must be a leak somewhere in the building, after seeing that everything was in order in his own place. I went with Mr. Bergeron into the store to discover in the room where the auto parts are kept, a lighted candle, placed in a car wheel cap. There was also some gas on the masonite floor over a length of approximately five feet. It was about midnight.

I was the last to leave the establishment earlier in the evening and had noticed nothing unusual. Mr. Foisy had returned from a trip that same night."

Answering the questions of Mr. Leblanc, Mr. Montpetit added: "The store sells auto parts and makes no repairs. The building is about 125 feet deep by a front of 30 feet, which is completely closed. I found a lighted candle around midnight. There was gasoline scattered in the room where the auto parts are kept in wooden barrels. This room is full of sections for display of the products."

Mr. Meloche questioned Mr. Montpetit again, who said that "he called Mr. Foisy". The latter told him to call Chief L'Heureux. The candle was left burning all the time until Chief L'Heureux arrived", he added.

The second witness to be questioned was Mr. Gilles Bergeron. He said that it was about 11.15 p.m. on Thursday, February 24th, when his wife told him that there were gas odors in their apartment situated above the store. "I looked everywhere and after called Mr. Montpetit, and went downstairs with him". Mr. Bergeron made a declaration similar to that of Mr. Montpetit as to the events that followed.

Questioned in turn, Mr. Homer Ruiter said that he knew the accused before the event. "I advised him to present himself at Chief L'Heureux's office and that is where we got a written confession by the accused, which stipulated as the motive for the attempt, a crisis of jealousy."

Following these declarations, Judge Maurice Fortin ordered the accused to trial at the next Criminal Court session of the District of Beauharnois.

After Judge Fortin had pronounced his findings, Mr. Meloche asked to speak and told the Court that many comments had followed the discovery of the attempted arson. Many made comments and judged the question without thinking. "I have nothing to say against the newspapers, which maybe gave too many details on the case. They have the freedom of the press, but I would invite them to treat the subject with moderation. However, oral comments only served to ruin and tarnish the reputation of the accused and of the victim, his brother-in-law. Many anonymous letters have been received by both, letters of threat and insults. An inquiry will be made and if one of the senders is caught, I assure you that he will be brought to court, and judged severely. The case is bad enough in itself, due to the situation in which the plaintiff and the accused find themselves.

Judge Fortin agreed entirely with Mr. Meloche's view and added that today, expressions of opinion are made too quickly about events before the Court has rendered a sentence, favourable or not to the accused, following the rules which are established.

The anonymous letters, he added, are a convincing proof that the sender has no honor whatsoever and that he shows cunning and a complete lack of confidence.

"I Don't Want Margarine" Wins 1st Place Rotary Contest

Ronald Waddell, Ormstown High School, Places First Among Eight Students Entered

SPEAKING CONTEST WINNER

RONALD WADDELL (aged 17) son of Mr. and Mrs. Indell Waddell, Havelock, and student of Ormstown High School.

Monday saw an interesting and very worth while programme presented at the Huntingdon Rotary Club meeting. The day was given over to the "Public Speaking Contest". In this contest eight students participated, coming from the Ormstown, Hemmingford, Beauharnois and Huntingdon High Schools. The judges awarded first placing to Ronald Waddell, aged 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Indell Waddell, Havelock, and a student of Ormstown High School. Ronald's topic was, "I Don't Want Margarine".

Mr. Stewart Nelson, a member of the Montreal Rotary Club, the Club that sponsors these public speaking contests throughout Quebec in the High Schools, stated 40 schools would be participating and representing some 750 scholars. The winners of the first round of the contests are to speak before the Verdun Rotary Club on April 18 and the finals will be held in the Mount Royal Hotel on April 26 when the Montreal Rotary Club meets.

The Judges on Monday were Mrs. W. K. Philps, Rev. W. S. Hatcher and Mr. Ronald Greenbank. Mr. Greenbank announced the winner as being Ronald Waddell, age 17, and a student of Ormstown High School.

Ronald Waddell has a very pleasing platform appearance, spoke well and in good voice. The text of his address will be found in another column. As he came to points he wished to emphasize, he did not hesitate to raise or lower his voice and when his five-minute address was concluded he received a definite applause that indicated he was most certainly a likely winner of the day's contest.

The first speaker was Brian Smith, aged 11, of Beauharnois. "Significance of T.V. For Our Time", was his topic. Brian is a little fellow but has mighty thoughts for a boy of eleven years of age. It would almost appear as though he might have been the runner-up for 1st place honors. Brian truly spoke well, being forward and direct in his statements. His points as presented were well punctuated with full stops. His delivery was very evenly presented and what is more he showed no indication of nervousness. His notes might just as well have been thrown to the winds long before he ever appeared in Huntingdon as they were nothing other than an accessory to the fact that he was delivering an address.

Jas. Brooks, Ormstown High School, spoke on "Farming Takes Brains", and likewise did Norris Semple of Hemmingford High School.

Ronald Hadley, Hemmingford High School took as his subject, "An Experience I Won't Forget".

Robert Mack, Huntingdon High School, spoke on "How To Be Happy" and Brian Smith of Huntingdon High School selected the subject, "Are Canadians Too Modest".

Ross Merlin, Hemmingford High School, selected the subject "A Tribute To A Great Man, Charles Dickens".

Gift presentations were made to the boys by the Rotary Club. Thanks accorded the Judges and to Rotarian E. C. Martin who headed the committee for the Public Speaking Contest. Mr. Martin expressed his pleasure in looking after this contest as he found it so encouraging and really worth while for all concerned.

The text of Ronald Waddell's address reads as follows:

"I DON'T WANT MARGARINE"

"Mr. Chairman, Honourable Judges, fellow contestants, gentlemen:

I have chosen a subject of major concern to every thinking Canadian. Everyone here would agree that our country's economy depends upon a live and vigorous dairy industry. Yet, today as never before, we see it threatened by wholesale and unrestricted competition from makers of margarine. Gentlemen, it is my contention that if it is going to mean the dislocation of our country's basic industry, as I believe it well may, then, I have no hesitation in saying, "I don't want margarine'.

Let us for a moment take a closer look at Canada's dairy industry. About 455,000 farmers depend upon the receipts from dairy products as a necessary source of income. Those directly or indirectly connected with the dairy industry represent 17% of our population. The purchasing power by such a large segment must, at all costs, be maintained to ensure jobs for the population.

Now, let us turn to the 'margarine' industry. Every year some ten Canadian companies are paying out tens of millions of dollars for imports of cheap foreign oils. These companies together employ only a handful of our population. They are able to purchase these oils at rock bottom prices from countries where living conditions would and could not be tolerated by Canadian workers. In fact, the cost is so low in comparison with our dairy products that the margarine industry without some measure of control, could threaten butter out of the competitive market. Margarine prices are relatively low now. Some experts feel that they could be lowered considerably more, if necessary, without any ill effects to manufacturers.

Thus, we see margarine manufacturers involving a mere handful of our population, threatening security of one of our country's key industries.

Clearly this situation can not go on we must take immediate and decisive action to remove the margarine threat before it is too late. Let us examine how this can be done.

The only realistic solution that presents itself is to expand con-

Discussion at Council on Police Dept. Left in Abeyance For One Month

Chairman Alderman Caza Wants All Facts Before Making Decision Regarding How Expenses Can Be Cut

All members were present at the Town Council Meeting held on Monday evening, at the County Building. Alderman Caza was welcomed back to his seat after a bout of illness which had caused him to be absent for several meetings.

Mr. L. Holmes appeared before the Council to ask about the sewer at his house on Wellington Street. The Council ordered the matter to be checked to see what can be done.

Mr. A. Nadeau made application for a building permit to build a house on the north side of Kelly Street. The application was granted.

Milk reports were read as follows for the date of March 15th: Elmhurst 14,000cc; Belle Vallee 8,000cc; Moniqui 9,600cc and Goodfellow 5,000cc. It was reported that Pleasant Valley Dairies were distributing milk in Huntingdon and that no test was available on this milk. The secretary was instructed to write the Health Unit with regard to having a test taken of this milk.

A letter was read from a lawyer on behalf of Mr. St. Jean with regard to the matter in connection with his property. It was decided to table the letter.

A letter from Mr. Somerville, M.L.A., was read and it intimated that the Council's request with regard to work on several streets in town, is being taken care of by him.

A letter was read from a firm of lawyers acting on behalf of Mr. C. J. Kyle and which is published in full herewith:

"REGISTERED MAIL

April 2nd, 1955.

The Secretary,
Huntingdon Town Council,
Huntingdon, P.Q.

Dear Sir:

Mr. C. J. Kyle, of Huntingdon, Quebec, has consulted me with reference to the following matter:

First of all, as you are aware, my client, during the month of January, 1954, (over a year ago), sold a Dodge truck to the Town of Huntingdon. This sale was concluded properly and after compliance with the necessary legal formalities with regard to Tender.

Apparently, this matter of the Dodge truck and certain repairs thereto were discussed at a meeting of your Town Council held on or about the 22nd ultimo.

In its issue of March 23rd, 1955, The Huntingdon Gleaner, at page 4, under the heading of "Town Has Deficit for Year 1954", published a report concerning matters discussed at the said Council Meeting, and such report reads, inter alia, as follows:

"Main business of the meeting was the financial statement, which showed a revenue deficit of some $5,000.00 for the year 1954. It was pointed out that a new truck had been purchased from current revenue - - -

Highway Accidents 14% Less In '54; Trucks Registered Greatest Drop

There were 14 per cent less highway accidents in 1954 than during the previous year, according to statistics released by the Provincial Department of Transport. Fatal accidents showed a drop of 30 per cent.

de KUYPER BLENDED GIN

And the greatest single contributing factor was the 53 per cent drop in accidents involving trucks.

Commenting on these figures, the Province of Quebec Safety League attributes this general decrease to three factors: the "courtesy at the wheel" campaigns launched by the Quebec Trucking Association and the Safety League for the benefit of truck drivers; attention given to the safety contest between commercial vehicles, also held under the auspices of the League; and the safety campaign launched during the year by the provincial government in cooperation with All Canada Insurance Federation and the Safety League.

Camille Archambault, director of public relations for the Trucking Association and vice-president of the Safety League, has announced that another such campaign will be held this year and has appealed to all commercial enterprises and their truck drivers to participate in the league's safety contest. "There were 25,998 highway accidents involving trucks last year as compared with 55,426 the previous year. This is a great improvement, but surely we can do better."

Mr. Archambault recalls that most trucks are on the road during the day and that their owners should be more interested in highway safety than any one else. The same is applicable to taxis. Trucks and taxis registered the greatest drop in accidents, that is 53 per cent and 28 per cent respectively.

Mr. Archambault has not taken into consideration the 39 per cent drop in accidents caused by horse-drawn animals, as well as those reported at level crossings. These drops are normal, it is pointed out, as horse-drawn vehicles are fast disappearing as are level crossings. The Safety League launched an extensive campaign to lower the rate of accidents involving horse-drawn vehicles. The League has distributed, free of charge, a total of 4,000 red metallic reflectors since Sept. 1953.

Jean-Louis Dyotte, general secretary of the league, points out that there were more non fatal accidents involving adults, and less involving children, than in the previous year. There was a general drop in the number of fatal accidents of 30 per cent.

The Safety League lauds the efforts of the school safety brigadiers. There are more than 4,600 school brigadiers enrolled in the League's 300 brigades. They see to the safety of some 130,849 school children at 594 different dangerous intersections. And the Safety League underlines the fact that not one accident has occurred to a school child, where a young safety brigadier has been stationed, since the first school safety brigade was founded in 1925.

Saturdays were the heaviest days for highway accidents in both 1953 and 1954. There have been decreases reported for all days, with the exception of Fridays. As to the monthly records: increases were reported in January, October, November, and December and drops recorded in the other eight months. These figures convinces the league to attribute the decline in accidents to its safety campaigns, usually held at the beginning of summer.

The League recalls its slogan "Be Courteous at the wheel — the best guarantee of safety", to all drivers. It adopted this slogan in 1953 and has kept it feeling that if it convinces drivers to make it their slogan an even greater decrease in accidents may be reported at the end of 1955.

Hagar, conducted the services, and burial was in the family plot Zion Church Cemetery. The Church was filled to capacity testifying to the esteem in which the deceased was held. This was borne out also by the number and beauty of the floral tributes from relatives friends and Church organizations with which Mrs. Fraser had been conducted during her active years. She was Church organist for many years until 1942, when she was stricken with a serious heart ailment from which she never fully recovered, although she was able to carry on the duties of life in a less strenuous form. Of late years she and her son Harold made their home together.

Obituary

The Late Ernest H. Mutton

Friends of Mr. Ernest H. Mutton were grieved to hear of his sudden passing on March 22, 1955.

Mr. Mutton, who had spent the winter in Orlando, Fla., with his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Louis E. Mutton of Litchfield, Conn., had gone with them to Miami, where he intended staying while they went to Nassau, The Bahamas. Returning from the airport where he had seen them off and while crossing the street he was accidentally struck by a car, which resulted in his death.

Mr. Mutton, a native of England, came to Canada when quite young and held a position in Chapman's Book Store; while there he made the acquaintance of the late Mr. and Mrs. Peter Reid and family whose home became his second home and whose warm kindliness and friendship he never forgot.

He was interested in community activities and a faithful attendant at St. Andrew's Church services where he sometimes substituted as organist.

Mr. Mutton was Librarian at Macdonald College, St. Anne de Bellevue, for 27 years. The graduates will long remember the help and encouragement given them in their academic progress by this quiet, unassuming Christian gentleman.

He is survived by his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Louis E. Mutton of Litchfield, Conn., and a sister, Mrs. Gertrude E. Kirkham, North Hampton, England.

Mrs. T. E. Cleland has recovered sufficiently so that she was at church Sunday and was organist as usual.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Ferns and Bobby, of Mooers, visited at the Barr home on Sunday.

The sugar season has not been too encouraging. The nights have been cloudy or windy and there has not been frost enough at nights to please the sugar makers.

Round Byre AND Ring

By Frank Napier

Late Adam Montgomerie

The other day this writer received the saddening news of the passing of a longtime, valued acquaintance —Adam W. Montgomerie of Lessnessock.

Most Ayrshire people are aware that the name Lessnessock has long been a household word, so to speak, insofar as Ayrshiredom is concerned. Also that the slogan of the herd of A. W. Montgomerie, now A. W. Montgomerie & Sons Ltd., "The Sun Never Sets on Lessnessock Ayrshires", is an apt expression, indeed one that is well founded in fact. The Lessnessock herd has long been one of Scotland's most famous Ayrshire herds, while its fame has reached all over the World, especially Canada and U.S.A., as the result of the importations from Lessnessock. Likewise as the result of the subsequent achievements of these cattle in Canada and other countries. One of the most brilliant of these cattle being the bull Lessnessock Golden Love whose progeny made Ayrshire history in the Springburn herd of Gilbert MacMillan, Huntingdon; likewise in other herds to which they were sold.

For a great many years it was Lessnessock alone, and a large herd at that. By and by, Westburn of Cambuslang came to carry a second herd. However, after World War II, building encroachments in that ever extending suburb of Glasgow necessitated the removal of the Westburn herd, but the extensive farms of Dunure and Dunlop (former famous Clydesdale horse farms) were acquired and Ayrshire herds were established thereon.

In Canada, there are three men who have been almost lifetime friends of Adam Montgomerie and who have had frequent transactions with him. They are William Hunter, now retired, of Grimsby Beach, Ont.; Gilbert MacMillan of Huntingdon, Que.; J. H. Black of Lachute, Que. Of a later day in both respects has been R. O. Biggs of Dundas, Ont., but even at that it is now some 30 years since he bought his first cattle through Adam Montgomerie.

As apart from being known to many Canadian Ayrshire people, through the status of his Lessnessock herd, and the achievements of products of that herd which were imported to Canada, Adam Montgomerie was personally, well and favourably known to many Canadians.

Prior to his having been severely afflicted with Arthritis, a few years ago, Adam Montgomerie made periodic trips to Canada, dating back to 1923 when he brought out a shipment of Ayrshires to Brockville, Ont. One of his trips was to act as Judge of Ayrshires at the Royal Winter Fair. Incidentally, that most keenly contested Trophy, the Lessnessock Challenge Trophy was presented to the Royal Winter Fair by Adam Montgomerie. That is the three which have been won outright (by breeders after three wins) and the present one which is still in competition. Several years ago he was made an Honorary Life Member of Canadian Ayrshire Breeders' Association in recognition of the services he had rendered to the Ayrshire Breed of Cattle.

As one who became intimately acquainted with Adam Montgomerie during the course of several of his visits to Canada, and by correspondence, we can well say that we have never met a more likeable, worthwhile man. A quiet unassuming man despite his successes, and with a grand sense of humour.

Lachute Spring Fair

Foo, fie fum! The front cover page of the 1955 Lachute Spring Fair prize list is most striking indeed, with its cattle, horse, sheep, swine, etc., illustrations. But, while Ayrshires have always been a strong feature of that Fair, and while that district is undoubtedly one of Canada's greatest Ayrshire centres, the cattle illustration on that front cover is not an Ayrshire. It is that of a Brahman bull, shoulder hump, and all.

Liberal Prize List

However there is no class for such animals of doubtful economic value, either as meat or milk producers, as are the Brahman's. On the other hand there are the usual liberal provisions for not only Ayrshires and Holsteins, but also for Guernseys, Jerseys, French Canadian, Aberdeen-Angus, Herefords, Dual-purpose and Scotch Shorthorns (Yes it's quite correct to use the term Scotch in connection with Shorthorns and a certain beverage, although Scot and Scottish apply to people).

June 15-18

Lachute Spring Fair will be held this year from June 15 to 18. The entries close on May 20.

In addition to its cattle, sheep and swine divisions Lachute Spring Fair also offers liberal prizes for Clydesdale, Percheron, Belgian and French Canadian horses, likewise for grade draft horses; French Coach, Standard Bred, and Hackney horses. Liberal prizes are also offered in connection with Lachute's outstanding, open-air, light Horse Show.

It is therefore evident that James MacKimmie, President; Forbes McOuat, Vice-President; Major S. G. Patterson, Secretary-Manager, and the Board of Directors have done everything possible to ensure one of the great shows for which Lachute has been noted in the past.

Selecting "The" Bull

Arnold Stansell of that well-known top ranking Ayrshire firm, Stansell Bros., and one of the two brothers who have built-up the Selwood Ayrshire herd to its present high standard of excellence, has written:

"Worry is like a Rocking Chair, it keeps you busy; but gets you nowhere."

And, using the above as a text he goes on to say:

"Some people worry about buying a bull. They believe it is just a gamble or a case of buying a pig in a bag (English version of the Scotticism — 'Buying a Pig in a Poke' — F.N.), and they would be right if they were selecting from non-pedigree stock. However, with a pedigree to identify the ancestors; R.O.P. to indicate production, and Type Classification, a good deal of the risk is eliminated. Then if we use our own good sense to evaluate and balance this information, bearing in mind that family traits rather than individual characteristics are the safer guide, most of the gamble will be taken out. Perhaps a little more thought and honest consideration and less worry, would not only keep us busy but also get us some place."

Strains or Families

Arnold Stansell was of course working-up to one of their great herd sires and to one of the outstanding strains and families which comprise the Selwood herd, and in that respect he also wrote: "At Selwood Farm, we think and build in terms of families."

The above might also be applicable to the Bonnieshade herd of S. Wyman MacKechnie & Sons of Wyman, Que.; to the noted "Girl" family of that herd. A family or strain which has an outstanding record, not only by way of production under the R.O.P., but also in the show-ring. On five consecutive occasions, daughters of Bonnieshade Flashy Girl won first in the Produce of Dam class at the Royal Winter Fair; and the two winners in the years concerned were also members of the groups which won the Lessnessock Trophy in three successive years.

Incidentally, Bonnieshade Flashy Girl was sired by Springburn Flashwood (bred by Gilbert MacMillan, Huntingdon), in turn, a son of the noted Springburn Sir Henry, while one of her daughters, Bonnishade Gay Girl, of which more anon, was sired by Springburn Golden Wonder.

Bonnishade Flashy Girl now in her tenth production lactation, commenced at 13 years of age, has produced to date 111,067 lbs. milk, 4,503 lbs. fat, average test 4.05%, in 3,377 milking days; is therefore well into the Gold Seal class. Moreover "Flashy Girl" is the dam of eight daughters, including the noted Royal prize winners Bonnishade Gay Girl, "Excellent" now in the Gold Seal class, Bonnieshade Maroon Girl, "Excellent" and Bonnieshade Precious Girl, "Very Good", both of which are now reaching up to the Gold Seal class. One of her sons is the junior herd sire of the Le Moines Point Farm herd of Kingston, Ont.

With further reference to Bonnieshade Gay Girl. She is, of course, a former well-known leading winner at the Royal Winter Fair, while she recently qualified for a Gold Seal certificate with a total of 106,534 lbs. milk, 4,295 lbs. butterfat, in 9 lactations.

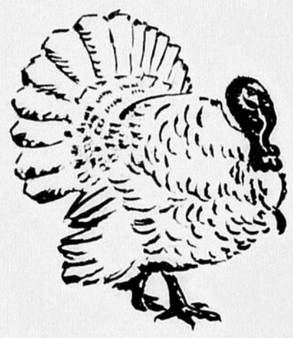

Of "Gay Girl's" five daughters, four are members of the Bonnieshade herd, while her five sons are now in service in good herds. The oldest son, Bonnishade Count Royal, a former Royal Winter Fair winner, is senior herd sire at Le Moines Point Farm. Her second son, Bonnieshade Douglas Royal, is herd sire of the W. C. Tully & Sons' Beaver Meadow herd at Athelstan, Que.

Incidentally Hugh Hunt, Secretary-Manager, Canadian Ayrshire Breeders' Association, to whom we are indebted for the details anent the records of "Flashy Girl" and "Gay Girl", has made the following comment: "More notable still, is the fact that she (Bonnieshade Gay Girl) is the fifth Bonnieshade Ayrshire to make 100,000 lbs. and all on twice-a-day milking. This in a comparatively small herd maintaining on an average about twenty milking females, makes it a rather outstanding accomplishment."

Easter

THIS Easter has been looked forward to with greater expectancy than for a number of years. In the first place it is a little earlier this year and Easter is looked upon as the official timekeeper of spring. It is expected that Easter will be the most springlike time of the year and the family can join the Easter Parade in gay delight of new fashions. After the long winter we have experienced and the recent bad storm which held everything up all over the Province and in other parts too, Easter heralds the end of winter weather and the advent of more pleasant weather for the future. It also provides the first break after the Christmas season and a chance for relaxation.

But, in its religious sense, Easter means much more than all of this to everyone. From a somber atmosphere leading up to the time of the anniversary of the crucifixion of Jesus, it goes on to the heralding of the resurrection of Christ. The choruses ring out in joyous acclaim that a new life is assured in the hereafter for all who will renounce their sins and follow the example set by the Saviour, Jesus Christ. It is a time of deep mourning, which turns to joy as the news is proclaimed of Christ rising from the dead. Jesus forgave the people when he said as he hung upon the cross — Father forgive them, for they know not what they do.

Religion has stemmed from this great sacrifice to its present-day proportions. Christianity has prevailed to bring about a greater feeling of love for all our fellows regardless of nationality, or colour. There have been many sacrifices since, in the cause of spreading the great truth. Easter is a time which brings this all back to our memories and causes us to stop and think. At the same time it brings a renewal of hope for a newer and fuller life, there is encouragement to go on to bigger and better things. No other belief has spread so rapidly and held the attention of people for such a period of time. This goes to prove that there is something really strong and binding and that the sacrifice was not in vain. Not only does the belief hold the people, but it is constantly growing among other peoples — there is strong pointing to a divine power which guides the thoughts of men.

At this Easter time of 1955, it is sincerely hoped that the divine power will so guide the thoughts of men that the terrible weapons which are being held as a threat over the heads of the people of the world, will never be used for the purposes of devastation as they are capable of. If Christianity is to prevail, the world must remain at peace. All the present uncertainty must be cleared away, difficulties must be settled without resort to warfare and bloodshed. The threat of communism is very great indeed and within communism there is no place for the true religion of Christianity — the State is god. Under present trends, the next war would be communism against Christianity with everything we ever had at stake.

Dark clouds are still shrouding the world, the light is endeavoring to shine through, ominous rumblings are heard from time to time. Let us hope that the light will prove the stronger and happiness for everyone will emerge.

Ormstown Fair Coming Up

PERHAPS further indications that spring is is at hand, is the fact that preparations are now going apace for the opening of Ormstown Fair in June. This is April and the Fair is just about two months away. It is not too soon, however, to start making decisions as to what you will show at this annual event. Perhaps you have already decided and made your entries, but in case you have not, we would like to remind you that entries close on May 18th.

Apart from the actual exhibitors, we would like to urge all citizens to keep the dates of June 7-8-9-10 and 11 open for attendance at this "Little Royal" as it is quite commonly spoken of. As is usual the Horse Show held each evening will provide plenty of entertainment for fans in the arena. While full plans as to program are not known yet, it is expected that other forms of entertainment will be featured. At the annual meeting held a short time ago, there was considerable discussion on the advisability of providing more entertainment as attractions to increase gate receipts. No decision was forthcoming at the meeting and the matter was left to the incoming directors to find a solution.

There is no doubt that entertainment attractions outside of actual exhibits and such, are a necessity to building up gate receipts. However, such attractions do carry with them considerable cost and in past years it has been felt that the increase at the gate did not warrant the expenditure. The feeling of several at the meeting was that if something is not done to induce more people to attend, the fair would suffer. Weather is always a $64 question, and rain last year marred the exhibition, although it did not suffer too badly, due no doubt to most everything being under cover. It was quite evident therefore, that the citizens were doing their best to give their fair all the support they could. We feel that they will do the same this year and if some extra attractions are provided, we feel that the attendance will be boosted still more. It must always be borne in mind however, that Ormstown Fair is our fair and we are proud of the fact that we can stage such an exhibition in a small centre. For the sake of community pride therefore, it becomes a duty of everyone in this district to support this fair each year. The way we can support it is to make entries of exhibits in all classes and in larger number; to attend the fair during the period of its showing and to boost it in any way we can. The greater the competition among exhibitors, the greater the interest will be for everyone. This means that all classes must be well filled, more care must be taken of the exhibits in order that competition is made the keener. There must be pride in what we exhibit and then the exhibits will be of first class order all through. Display of exhibits by those in charge of the various depts also means much to attracting the patron of the Fair. A little more decoration and care in the way the exhibits are shown so that they are immediately eye appealing, will do much to deepen the interest of all. Too much of the same ideas followed year after year tends toward monotony on the part of those who annually attend the fair. Nicely decorated booths with appealing fair type motives will do much to draw forth exclamations from those who will be the spectators. Such arrangement calls for more time before the opening of the exhibition in the way of preparedness.

Study the prize lists which are now in your hands and make up your mind to exhibit more.

Formosa - To Be, or Not To Be

ALL would be reasonably well in the world today, were it not for the Formosa question. Like two dogs which stand and snarl at one another and give an occasional snap, the two Chinese factions continue on the Formosan question. Red China says it belongs to them and they are going to take it, the Chinese Nationalists say it belongs to them and China also belongs to them and they are going to defend it and may even attack the mainland. On the sidelines is a sort of referee, the United States, who says Formosa is going to remain as is and if the Red Chinese attack it they will have to reckon with United States forces as well. Watching this game from the seats of the arena are the other nations in the world, they are anxious that the whole thing should be dropped by all parties and let it remain as before. They fear that the game may get into a real brawl and they may be dragged out of their seats to help settle it.

If that should happen, it could be anybody's guess as to whom may come out a winner. Things might get thrown around in the melee that could seriously endanger the equilibrium of the world. Thus, the dogs keep snarling at one another and letting out loud barks that sound over the distances which require an alert as to perhaps the beginning of the big scrap. A nervous tension is thus created and until the dogs can be called off, it could be that a real fight would be on. Every once in so often the fangs of one or other of the dogs sink a little deeper into each other arousing a fiercer hatred. Snarls and yaps become a little louder and more prolonged and then die down again. Neither seems too ready to actually start something big and yet they will not lie down and keep quiet. It is said that the red master of one of the dogs will not give the signal and the master of the other holds it in check until such time as the former shows signs of getting really fierce.

There is no applause from the arena seats for the bout is not popular from either side. The watchers sit there tense, biting their finger nails, calling on the owners of the two dogs to call their dogs back to their kennels and leave them there. They want a high United Nations fence placed between the two so that they cannot see one another. One of the dogs has already been fed meat belonging to the other dog, hoping that this would calm him down and pacify him. But apparently he likes this meat and is anxious to taste more. The watchers in some of the benches say give him some more. The referee says it has had enough and the only way to get more is to earn it. That means he must dispose of the other dog. The watchers don't want this to happen, they fear the dog might go mad and turn around and bite all of them. There would then be too many wounds to lick all at once and the situation could become very bad, very bad indeed. The masters might be called in to separate the dogs and the fight could spread to no one knows where.

So the question is — To be, or not to be?

Some of the farmers are saying they cannot afford help at the wages they now ask and the price of farm produce being so low.

The Farmer's Income

THE Farmer who works his own farm has a unique kind of independence. He is at once owner, manager, producer and merchant. He has no boss to tell him what to do. He can — and, indeed, must — exercise individuality, initiative and originality. He does not await the whims of others for his advancement, but reaps directly the benefits of his own enterprise.

To stay in business, a farmer must seek an adequate income. This demands his attention to many varied activities and fields of knowledge. He must keep his soil fertile, plan his crop rotations, balance his livestock programme with available feed, and sell his produce to the best advantage. He needs to know how to control expense and make efficient use of labour and machinery. Failure to measure up well to any of these requirements is sure to result in at least lower income and at worst financial loss.

A neat farmstead is usually an indication of a good farm manager, but hasty judgments should not be made. Not every unpainted building is an indication of slackness. The farmer may not have the time or the money to paint because he is waging a gallant battle against depletion of soil and is building up, year by year, a permanent capital in the way of productive farm land. The important things in farm management are to keep machinery in good repair, keep necessary fences standing, replace and maintain organic matter in the soil, eradicate weeds and other crop-impairing forces, and build or grow whatever protective devices are needed, such as ditches and wind-breaks.

Agriculture is anything but static. To look back at farming in Canada's early days — or even in the days of our grandfathers — is to see a picturesque scene, but that sort of farming will not do today. There are still some people content with subsistence farming, but most standards have risen. Farmers require income that provides the comforts of life as well as its necessities.

Supply and demand

The demand for farm products rises and falls in accord with the supply of produce and the purchasing power of consumers. The marketing system attempts to bring demand and supply into balance by storing produce in times of surplus for use in times of scarcity, and by fluctuations in prices.

One thing is sure: human beings will continue to try to feed themselves adequately at least three times a day. That is the sole market for farm food-stuffs.

G. S. Shepherd reported in Marketing Farm Products (1946) that the per capita consumption of food in the United States had remained practically constant over the preceding 35 years at about five pounds per person per day. The average consumption from 1909 to 1939 was 4.96 pounds; the average in 1935 to 1939 was 4.91 pounds.

The consumption of some foods, of course, has increased markedly. While that of others has decreased. Processing and packaging have brought changes, and methods of selling have affected the sale of food products.

Addressing the Can. Food processors Asso. in February, F. T. Sherk recalled the old days when butchers, truck farmers and others peddled their wares from door to door, and contrasted that with present-day stores and super-markets. Sales in retail food stores, he said, increased 230 per cent during the ten years 1941 to 1951, while Canada's population climbed only 22 per cent.

Changes such as these complicate the income-getting effort of the farmer. The demand for basic foodstuffs does not keep pace with rises in family incomes. Except for the very low income groups, people spend proportionately less on food as their earnings increase. Low income means a greater consumption of cheaper foods such as grain products and potatoes; with rising income there comes a demand for meat, dairy and poultry products, fruits and vegetables.

One of the first problems to be solved by the farmer, then, is that of what to produce. A characteristic feature of agriculture is its dependence upon area. A factory or a department store can expand upwards; a fishing fleet can sweep a wider arc of the ocean; a mining concern can go deeper into the earth. The farmer must do the best he can with the area comprised in his farm, to the depth of a few inches.

Value of farms

Taking the farm as the unit of operation, the value of the capital per farm measures its resources in production of farm commodities. The census of 1951 provided figures that span fifty years in the development of Canadian farms:

	1901 $
Total value	1,787,102,630
Land & buildings	1,403,269,501
Implements & machinery	108,665,502
Live-stock	275,167,627
	1951 $
Total value	9,470,876,372
Land & Buildings	5,527,207,155
Implements & machinery	1,933,312,262
Live-stock	2,010,356,955
Total value, per cent increase	430
Land & Bldgs. per cent increase	294
Implements & machinery, per cent increase	1679
Live-stock, per cent increase	630

Most striking in this tabulation is the increase in machinery. Mechanization has, more or less according to other, factors, lightened the physical load of the farmer and increased his efficiency; other machinery, not on the farm, has effected him by the change it has brought about in the processing of the raw product he provides.

The change is well illustrated in an article by S. E. Johnson in the May 1950 issue of The Journal of Farm Economics (United States). He says that whereas in 1945 one farm worker produced enough to provide himself and about 14 other persons with agricultural products, in 1920 he produced enough for himself and nine other persons, and about a hundred years earlier only enough for himself and a little more than three other persons.

However, no matter how ingenious a new agricultural machine may be, the farm manager must have wisdom to decide whether he needs it now, foresight to decide what its use will be, economically, in future years, and skill to fit it into the general scheme of his farm.

D. L. MacFarlane, Professor of Economics at Macdonald College, made this point in an article he wrote for Queens Quaterly: "The presence of a tractor on a farm means neither that it is mechanized nor that it is an efficient unit. One frequently finds a tractor on a small farm in the west and on many farms where the total capital is well under $10,000. Both are economic anomalies."

If little use is made of a machine the high proportion of total annual expense represented by depreciation makes the cost per day or per acre or per hour extremely high. As to Operating cost, it will be recalled by many that early in the 1930's many farmers put aside their tractors and returned to the use of horses because the machinery used a fuel that had to be paid for in cash whereas horses consumed one grown on the farm.

Farm income

With the mechanization of farms there has gone a corresponding decrease in the need for manpower, so that more and more workers have been released to enter industry and services. So great development has taken place in secondary industry and in services that only $1,900 million of the national income amounting to $19,043 million in 1953 was directly attribuable to farm produce, less than 10 per cent.

All revenue from farm operation is obtained through the sale of crops and live-stock, plus a little received in payment for off-farm and non-farm work. In 1954 the cash income from the sale of farm products amounted to $2,409 million. It first passed the $2,000 million mark in 1948, and since then has averaged $2,566 million a year.

Many devices have been tried in the effort to stabilize farm income. High prices for his product do not spell prosperity for the farmer if to attain them he has to reduce his volume so much that his total income is reduced. Nor has any solution yet been found in schemes to reduce the marketing expenses.

These are changing times, and nowhere are changes more apparent than in the production and marketing fields. Mention of a few examples will illustrate the fact. There is an increasing amount of time utility embodied in consumers' goods: many foods that were formerly seasonal are now provided the year round in various preserved forms. There is a new demand from consumers for goods in more elaborate form. They want foods in small quantities and in such shape that little or no processing at home is required. Bread, pastries and cakes are brought, for the most part, ready-baked; vegetables come in tins, ready-cooked; becon is sliced. The work our parents did in baking and preparing meals and cooking is now done by processors between the farmer and the consumer, and must be paid for. The costs include: precessing to a more finished form, handling in smaller units, and wrapping in expensive packages.

This is a trend that shows no sign of changing. Half of the book Marketing Farm Products is given over to discussing the question in the farmer's mind about the spread between what he gets for the raw material and the consumption price at the end of the chain of distribution.

There is little an individual farmer can do but accept the current price when he chooses to sell. He will do what he can to lower the cost of producing the commodities he sells, and lowering costs has the same pleasant effect upon net income as raising the price.

The business of farming

Poets and some philosophers have praised agriculture as an ideal way of life, sylvan, idyllic, "close to nature"; but farming is a business. The satisfactions that accrue to a farmer and his family in economic terms are fully as important as those that are social and aesthetic.

No other industry demands so high a percentage of managers among its workers. The man who operates a farm needs an understanding of basic economics and knowledge in several natural sciences and some applied sciences such as agronomy and animal husbandry. After all is said that can be said reparding the economizing of land and the care of crops and live-stock, the actual working out of problems is the task of the farmer. Wise legislation and new scientific discoveries may create favourable conditions, but upon the farm manager rests the responsibility of making agriculture on his farm respond to these favourable conditions.

Managerial skill in farming, as in any other enterprise, consists mainly in being able to see through the trees to a distant horizon, to work efficiently, today with tomorrow in mind, to plan so that a proper balance is kept between spending now and investing for the future. H. R. Hare, of the National Employment Service, said in his textbook Farm Business Management: "Surveys reveal that management is the dominant factor in determining the net returns from a farm business."

The farmer who wishes to improve his income surrounds his farm with a business atmosphere. He keeps abreast of improvements

The Week At Ottawa

OTTAWA, (CP)—A woman member of Parliament has told the Commons that if she were a young man, she would give long consideration before offering her services to her country in view of the treatment given veterans.

Sybil Bennett, (PC'—Halton) was speaking in debate on a bill increasing war veterans' allowances for 42,000 recipients. Along with other opposition members, she said the increases were inadequate.

There were protests from Liberal benches, but Miss Bennett carried right on. She said it is "outrageous" that the government could even think of deducting the $40-a-month old age pension from war veterans' allowances when recipients reach the age of 70. At that age, a WVA recipient has his allowance reduced by the amount of the old age pension.

"There are millionaries running around this country receiving the old age pension," Miss Bennett said. "Is anything deducted from them? Not a cent."

The legislation, which was approved, increases the allowances for needy veterans or their widows to $60 a month from $50 for a single person and to $109 from $90 a month for a married person.

Ceilings Raised

Permissive ceilings on income, including the allowance, are raised to $840 a year from $720 for a single person and to $1,440 from $1,200 for a married person. The ceilings are, in effect, the means test for allowance eligibility.

The opposition had sought to have the allowance raised to $120 a month for the married veteran and the ceilings increased to $1,200 and $2,000 for single and married veterans respectively.

Colin Bennett, parliamentary assistant to Veterans Minister Lapointe, said WVA was set up to help the veteran with no income. Raising the ceilings would not help the 20,640 recipients who receive no other income. He added that in special cases of need, a single veteran's allowance can be supplemented by $10 a month and a married veteran's by $12 a month.

On Rearming Germany

Opposition Leader Drew says reunification of East and West Germany is constantly in the minds of Germans, and the west must be prepared to meet the dangers of rearming West Germany.

Rearmament, he told the Commons, is a bold and necessary step. But West German forces to be formed under the Paris agreements should be watched closely by Allied staff officers to guard against any attempt at reunifying Germany by force. There should be a clear definition now of agreements to meet emergencies. "If there is any uncertainty, it could lead to great trouble," said Mr. Drew.

He spoke for more than an hour as the external affairs debate which opened on March 24, was resumed last Friday. It was Mr. Drew's first major Commons speech since he returned to the chamber in February after recovering from an extended illness.

Control of Radio-TV

Prime Minister St. Laurent, commenting on a resolution approved last week by the advisory council of the National Liberal Federation—urging the government to appoint a commission to consider whether an independent radio-TV regulatory body should be established—has said it is not desirable or necessary to shift control from the publicly-owned CBC.

He told the Commons he still accepts the recommendation of the majority report of the Massey royal commission that existing policy be continued. John Diefenbaker (PC—Prince Albert) had asked Mr. St. Laurent whether he considers an independent board desirable or necessary.

"My personal opinion is that it is not desirable or necessary," Mr. St. Laurent said.

The Massey commission's majority report recommended that the CBC continue to have regulatory control over all broadcasting.

The Liberal federation's advisory council proposed appointment of a commission to look into the advisability of establishing a regulatory tribunal not connected in any way with any operating broadcasting station or stations." After completing its investigation the commission would recommend whether an independent regulatory body should be set up.

In reply to a question by Donald Fleming (PC — Toronto Eglinton) Mr. St. Laurent said he had not yet received a copy of the resolution. Mr. Fleming said Immigration Minister Pickersgill was chairman of the council's resolutions committee.

The Young Liberal Federation of Canada also passed a resolution at its 1954 convention here urging establishment of an independent body. It said then that such a tribunal would correct the present "inequitable situation wherein the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation holds regulatory power over non-government stations with which it competes for audiences and business."

The Canadian Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters later issued a statement saying it will continue to press for an independent regulatory body.

"The present situation in which the CBC is both competitor and regulator is without parallel anywhere in the democratic world," said the association which represents most private broadcasters.

Defeat Confidence Votes

Two opposition motions of want-of-confidence, demanding government action to meet the unemployment problem, have been defeated. In votes ending a spasmodic eight-day debate that began a month ago, the Commons voted 131 to 71 against a Progressive Conservative motion and 131 to 70 against a CCF motion.

The straight party votes, the Liberal majority against combined opposition groups, were on the Progressive Conservative call for a government program to meet "this emergency" and on the CCF demand for government acceptance of responsibility for all able-bodied unemployed and a long-term program of public investment and economic development.

Without the protection of fire, automobile and casualty insurance your community would be a very different place. Fire-gutted buildings seldom would be replaced. Families would be thrown into a lifetime of debt by the costs of automobile accidents and other liabilities arising from mishaps and errors. Few people would risk their money on investments. Industries would go bankrupt. Jobs would be lost.

Today in Canada, the insurance business provides protection against nearly every conceivable risk. Fire insurance alone safeguards property valued at $32 billion. And claims totalling more than $200,000,000. are paid each year to offset the costs of a variety of mishaps —from people slipping on stairs to tornados. In this way, the insurance business makes a substantial contribution towards Canada's continued security and prosperity.

D. Zabitsky Enjoys Visit to Europe and England

Much Impressed With Various Customs, Buildings and Scenery

David Zabitsky recently returned to Huntingdon, after spending two months abroad visiting some of the European countries.

He sailed from New York during the first week of February with his destination being Paris. He stayed there for about a week visiting some of the tourist attractions including visits to a number of the prominent cathedrals, museums and the like. From Paris, he flew to Nice, on the French Riviera for a week's holidays. During the week there, he visited Monaco and Monte Carlo, Cannes and the perfume capital of France, the little town of Grasse on the mountain overlooking the Mediterranean. He liked the area very much with its sub-tropical vegetation and the weather was nice and warm.

From Cannes, he sailed to Naples, Italy. There he visited Sorrento, Capri Bay, the ruins of Pompei and the live volcano of Mount Vesuvius. Leaving Naples, he went northward to Rome where he visited a number of Cathedrals, museums and the Vatican City. He also travelled on the new Rome subway which was just opened recently. It starts from the Central Station and ends up out in the country by the Cathedral of St. Paulo:

From Rome, he went to San Remo on the Italian Riviera for a few days, and then on up to the capital of Switzerland, Bern. Dave was fascinated by the many arcades which date back to the middle ages. These arcades project over the sidewalk and contain some of the finest stores in Switzerland. While in Switzerland, he also visited Geneva briefly.

From Switzerland, he went to Munich, Germany. There among other places visited, he stopped at the famous Haufbrau House, a famous German Beer Garden for a traditional supper of Sausages and Beer.

From Munich he flew to Berlin. He said that only three air lines may fly tourists into the city, — Pan American, Air France and British European Airways, a representative from each of the three allied powers. Berlin is an ordinary city though great parts of it are still to be repaired from the bomb damage from the Second World War.

Than he went to Hamburg and on to Copenhagen, Denmark. While in the latter place he visited some of the parts of Zealand including visits to Fredericsborg and Kronenburg Castles. He was very impressed with the former castle particularly the chapel containing the coats-of-arms of the Order of the Elephant.

He also visited Malmo, Sweden, which is perhaps two hours journey from Copenhagen.

From Copenhagen, he flew to Amsterdam, the Netherlands, for a few days. He thought that the countryside was very beautiful and unusual since there are so many dikes. He visited a number of small fishing villages as well as some of the cheese houses. Leaving Amsterdam, he travelled by bus through The Hague and on up to Rotterdam to catch the ferry to Harwick, England and on to London. He stayed in London for a week visiting Westminister Abbey, London Bridge and several other points of interest. He also visited several points outside of London. From London, he went to Southampton where he sailed for New York City.

Throughout his Travels in Europe, he flew from city to city saving travel time. He praised all the air lines that he travelled on and said that they gave excellent service.

Letter to the Editor

Aubrey, Quebec,
April 2nd, 1955.

The Editor,
The Huntingdon Gleaner Inc.,
Huntingdon, Que.

Dear Sir:

Having read in the March 30th issue of the Huntingdon Gleaner the report of the second round of the Huntingdon Bonspiel, Chateau Trophy, I feel a further explanation of the score — "H. J. McMahon (Ormstown) 3 plus 4 points handicap vs Keith Robb (Aubrey) 4" — should be forthcoming.

I have played in bonspiels large and small — for trophies, badges, prizes and even for beans. I have played in championships in both Quebec and Ontario and have never heard of such a thing as a 'handicap' — not even the word 'handicap' used in connection with curling.

I consider curling to be a sport that fosters good fellowship and comradie. Even in professional sports a team has never been penalized for being late under similar circumstances. The amazing thing is that the Aubrey team arrived at all as due to the storm one of the players walked a mile and a half to obtain transportation, having had to leave his car stuck in a snowbank. A second player had to drive by horse and sleigh for a mile and find lodging for 'poor old Dobbin' before boarding that modern method of transportation used by the Ormstown rink.

In the meantime, Huntingdon rink had been notified of the difficulties and had been warned that if the team got there it would be late. After arriving in spite of all the difficulties the Aubrey team was notified that their game would be limited to six ends and even at this there was no complaint. After the sixth end, also the end of the game, the score was 4-3 in favor of Aubrey. After leaving the ice it was quite a surprise to learn that they had lost the game by a score of 4-7, four points having been awarded to and accepted by Ormstown.

I cannot commend the Ormstown rink for its sense of sportsmanship. Winning seems to be the most important aspect of the game.

I cannot commend the good judgment of the Huntingdon Match Committee for its decision. Comments heard on its action have all been unfavourable. How long can any rink expect to attract entries to its bonspiels if similar treatment is to be accorded.

Thanking you for valuable space in your newspaper, I remain,

Yours truly,

"A Lover of the Grand Old Game".

respect it is most gratifying to learn that samples made in the Fawcett & Grant Limited and Leach Textiles Limited mills were so honoured.

This great show is to be open to the public, and two fashion shows will be held daily, afternoon and evening. $1000 in prizes is to be given to the public each day. The shows will take 1 hour and forty-five minutes to present. No effort is being spared toward making this Canadian Textile Fabric and Fashion Week show a howling success. It will cost $30,000 to stage the show.

On Wednesday, April 20, there is to be a Press conference and trade showing when Mr. Francois Cleyn will be M.C.

The success of the Textile Fabric and Fashion Week might well do a great deal for the general good of the trade, and Canada. To those of us who reside in areas where the textile trade plays such an important part through providing employment, it is but natural we should all make a strenuous effort to boost the popularity of Canadian Made Textile Fabrics.

Mrs. Albert Morin entertained several ladies at her home on Wednesday evening. Canasta was played and the winner of high score was Mrs. M. Patterson and low score to Mrs. W. Hadley. The hostess served delicious refreshments.

Miss Gail Lavigne returned home on Tuesday from Barrie Memorial Hospital, Ormstown, and is much improved.

Mesdames F. Hadley, F. Rogers and M. Stuart motored to Cowansville, Que., on Saturday to attend the School of Instruction of the Order of the Eastern Star.

Mrs. Connie Helm entertained the Members of St. Saviour's Guild at her home, on Thursday evening. After the meeting the hostess served delicious refreshments.

Miss Eleanor Daggett returned home from Upper Jay, N.Y., on Saturday, after spending the past two months with her nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. Foster Daggett.

Recipe Suggestions For Zestful Living

TRIED AND TESTED FOR SATISFACTION

THIS WEEK — "LIGHT, VELVETY EASTER CAKE"

What a lovely time of year! Spring is here now and with spring comes Easter. It is a time when children look forward to fluffy baby chicks and gaily coloured Easter eggs. But everyone, no matter what age, would be terribly disappointed if they did not have at least one or two eggs in some form at Easter. Because eggs are so popular at this festive season and because they make such beautiful cakes, the home economists of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture, suggest a delicate sponge, angel or chiffon cake for this year's Easter dessert.

Some may think because these delicate cakes are so light and tender they require a great deal of skill to make. Actually they are not difficult at all if directions are followed carefully. Here are a few tips that will help to make these light delicate textured cakes a success. After choosing a recipe from your favourite cook book take the required number of eggs out of the refrigerator so that they will be at room temperature when it is time to whip them. Egg whites whip to a greater volume when they are not too cold.

For the very light sponge, angel or chiffon cake an ungreased tube pan should be used so that the batter can cling to the pan as it rises. When baked invert the pan and let the cake hang until it is completely cold. If it is cooled upright it tends to settle down and may fall slightly.

These light fluffy cakes can be made in different mouth-watering flavours and tinted exciting colours. They are very delicious when coarsely grated unsweetened chocolate is folded into the batter before baking. Another delicacy is a daffodil cake which goes hand in hand with springtime and Easter. For this, spoonfulls of yellow sponge cake batter made with egg yolks and white angel cake batter made with egg whites are put into the cake pan in an irregular pattern. When the cake is baked and cut it has an attractive yellow and white marbled effect.

Any of the three — sponge, angel or chiffon cake can be dressed up for this special occasion with a smooth creamy frosting or served with whipped cream and fruit. A Boiled or Seven-Minute frosting attractively peaked on the cake is sure to cause expressions of delight from all who see and eat it. Here is an Easter twist for these two toppings made with deep purple grape jelly instead of the customary sugar and water.

Whether the icing is made by pouring a boiled syrup over beaten egg whites, as in White Mountain frosting, or is the Seven-Minute kind it will be easy to make with the jelly. In either case all that is needed is two egg whites, a pinch of salt and three-quarters of a cup of grape jelly. For the syrup method melt the jelly in a small saucepan and boil it for ten minutes. In the meantime add the salt to the egg whites and beat until they are stiff but not dry. Then gradually pour the boiled jelly syrup over the beaten egg whites beating all the time until the mixture is stiff enough to spread. This will take from eight to ten minutes beating.

Even though this second frosting is called "Seven-Minute" it takes ten minutes instead of seven when made with jelly. To make it, put the egg whites, salt and jelly in the top part of a double boiler. Then place over boiling water and beat with a rotary beater until the mixture holds its shape.

Now what could be easier than that and these toppings made with jelly are softer and more fluffy than the ones made with sugar and water. A cake with this icing is easy to cut and serve and another thing, this frosting holds up very well for serving the next day.

in farming methods, crop varities, fertilizers and machines, even though he cannot put them all into practice at once. He plans his farm work well in advance, and completes ploughing, seeding, cultivating and harvesting at the proper time and with a reasonable of thoroughness. If not the first, at least he will not be the last, to adopt an improvement. Even if he is not mechanically minded he will learn enough to enable him to keep his machinery in running order and preserve it for long service.

Planning

The job of determining what to plant was easy for Louis Hébert when he turned over his first sod at Port Royal in 1604. All the farmer of that day had to do was to consider his family needs for food and clothing, and produce accordingly.

The income wanted today is of a different sort and amount, and the penalty of failure to reach the desired objective is greater. The need for setting an objective and planning how to reach it is an imperative demand.

Yet, by the very nature of agriculture, it is impossible to work by inflexible rules. Adjustments must be made to meet the conditions of climate, varying from year to year and from month to month, and the vagaries of the market in which a long-term trend may be halted or speeded up by sudden social or political changes at home or abroad.

What is needed, then, by the farmer seeking to make the most of his life, is a general plan for years ahead, with specific plans for individual years, and detailed plans for the next twelve months. This demands basic knowledge gained from textbooks, personal experience and the experience of others, plus a continuing study of new information some of which will be used now and some used to form opinions of what is to be expected in future.

Where can the ambitious farmer obtain the information he needs? He will have a library containing a few reference books and many bulletins dealing with agricultural subjects. These bulletins are available in great variety from provincial and federal departments of agriculture, for the mere cost of a postage stamp. They are written by men who know farming on all levels — the level of the man behind the plough, the level of the government department seeking to help him make good, and the level of the economist who is watching the trends of national and international supply and demand.

Immediate news will be learned from newspapers, daily, weekly and farm. A survey reported in Food for Thought a few years ago showed that 69 per cent of formers in Canadian Farm Forum homes take a daily newspaper, 69 per cent take a local weekly newspaper, 91 per cent a farm paper, and 82 per cent take more than one farm paper.

A survey conducted on behalf of The Country Guide in 1950 showed that in the three prairie provinces almost half of all farmer households subscribe to three or more farm papers, while nine out of ten farmer households subscribe to at least one farm paper.

Obviously, Canadian farmers appreciate the sound contribution made by the agricultural press to the advencement of farming and the enrichment of rural life.

As a clinching argument for the need for planning better farm methods, consider this statement by K. E. Boulding, of Iowa State College, at a meeting of the Canadian Political Science Association: "The mass of the agricultural poor in India, China, Eastern Europe, Africa, South America, even the Southern States, are poor not because they are exploited but simply because they are miserably unproductive and produce so little."

Getting and keeping control

The keeping of records is a burden to many people, to be avoided when possible, but it is only on the basis of records — our own and other people's — that we can foresee probabilities and make plans to meet them.

To keep farm records is not a matter merely of having rows of figures in neat columns, but of using the facts they reveal so as to make decisions that are right. As Mr. Hare says: "Farm records and accounts cannot create profits directly, but they ... express the results of farm management in unmistakable terms of high or low profit or loss. They remove all doubt."

The man who has gained a farming reputation that extends beyond his fence lines will be found to be a man who gives himself every management chance by knowing where his income came from, what it is now, and how he can obtain an increased income next year.

Farm records are useful in subsidiary ways. They help in obtaining low cost credit, for example. The farmer who can present a clear statement of his business shows that he knows what he is doing, and has a strong quality to recommend him as a good borrowing customer.

Keeping records helps to control expenses, and low expense per bushel of wheat, per gallon of milk, per pound of beef and per dozen eggs is the key to profits. The margin between income and outgo is just as satisfactory if it is widened by efficient curtailment of outlay as if it is expanded by obtaining higher prices.

Economy does not mean buying less fertilizer than the land requires, or buying inferior seed. It may even be that one's farm records, when compared with authoritative records from comparable farms, will show the need to increase expenditure for seed, fertilizer and pest control preparations, when this expenditure can be expected to increase production per acre or per animal.

Farming Is Different

Farming has been, since the beginning of history, something different, something set apart. There is a flavour in farm life with a fundamental appeal to human nature, as witness the number of people who express the hope that some day they will achieve their life-long ambition: to live on their own farm.

One of the bases of our western way of life is typified by the family farm in Canada. It has values that are not to be found in any scheme of collective farming. It not only provides satisfactions for the individuals engaged in it, but it is efficient in meeting the food needs of the country. Failure of collectivized agriculture in Russia was one reason given for the political upheaval in the U.S.S.R. early this year.

Those who see deeper than others appreciate the character and dignity of rural life and work. The farm provides independence, the satisfaction of close communion with nature, and health-giving qualities. These are essential ideals of humanity, and must not be deprecated, but there is the other — and an important — side to farming. It is a business, and a business must yield an income. There must be enough financial return to make possible the achievement of the dividends of life that advanced farmers desire.

The young man thinking of taking up farming on his own should know that agriculture is a composite of many economic activities, of modes of living and of social functions, but it is still a business in which the character and energy of the manager count more than any other factor.

Impatient people, people who want quick returns on their investment of money and labour, will find little in farming to attract them. People who lack initiative and enterprise and energy will prefer jobs where decisions are made for them; where they are always told by some authority what to do next. People who are timid, who recall the poet's lines: "His life is a longdrawn question between a crop and a crop", will seek first of all the security of working for someone else.

But the farmer who approaches his job with the idea that farming is something to be made efficient and so profitable as to yield income sufficient to enable him and his family to enjoy the advantages and comforts of life will find many other things added: the loveliness of every year's seed time and harvest, closeness to the heart of life and nature, and the spirit of the giant of antiquity, Antaeus, whose strength increased every time he touched the ground.

New Yarns Okay For Troops Not For Milady, Industry Says

Despite sensational press reports that greeted announcement of a new core yarn development by Department of National Defense research experts, textile officials were far from excited.

Although vitally interested in anything that might help pull the industry out of the doldrums, textile officials do not see the new core yarns recently developed by Department of National Defense research experts exerting any major impact on the depressed civilian industry.

Core yarns are not new to the industry. They've already been used in wool and nylon blend socks in this country.

Textile officials are ready, however, to take a sharp new look at the whole core yarn idea in the light of Defense Department's new core yarn applications.

In the new yarn development, fibres are spun around one or more continuous central — or core — filaments. This greatly increases strength of the yarn, makes it virtually snag-proof, results in a lighter fabric of same strength.

Big application stress in Ottawa has been in various military uses. But promising civilian applications are seen in work-clothes, overalls, textile traveling bags, etc. — applications where fabric strength is all-important. Many other applications will be worked out.

At the moment textile people cannot see a big market in women's and men's fancier apparel, since long-wearing qualities are not too important a factor with most customers.

Patent applications covering the yarn process have now been filed in U.S., Canada and several European countries. The applications are being made in the name of Col. H. A. Decellier, director of inter-service development, and Dr. J. V. Weinberger, on the staff of the directorate.

Arrangements are being finalized whereby Canadian mills can become licensed to use the new process.

Dominion Woollens, Hespeler, Ont., have been producing a wool and synthetic cloth for the Department of National Defense and it is understood that experiments are being carried on in other mills, both in the spinning of these new stronger yarns and weaving of fabric made from them.

Fabrics made of the new yarn are said to have as much as four to 10 times the strength of comparable standard cloths. Although the yarns can be made out of any of the natural or synthetic fibres, yarns made so far in the Ottawa experiments have had a nylon core and cotton and wool outer covering.

The yarns will cost a little more than the standard types, and this is one important reason why the domestic millmen — trying in every way possible to reduce costs further — will not be too eager to try out the new yarns at this time.

Although the yarn can be spun on existing equipment some alterations must be made. The new yarn feels like a spun yarn. Air permeability — or breathing quality — of made-up fabric, will be reduced a little with the new yarns.

Obituary

The Late Mrs. John W. Kilgour

The citizens of Beauharnois mourn the loss of one of their most beloved and revered citizens in the passing of Mrs. John W. Kilgour, who died at her home Thursday evening, March 31st, in her 91st year. Funeral services were held at St. Edward's Presbyterian Church, Peter by Heather Runnalls. A large bronze Cross with a flood light turned on it, was the only scene presented, each character stood at its foot and told their thoughts about the Crucifixion which was a very impressive scene.

The picture "The Life of Christ" which was to have been shown in the church on Thursday night had to be cancelled as the film did not arrive until the next day.

Mr. Howard Brooks, from Altona, N.Y. conducted the afternoon service in the Church of the Nazarene on Sunday.

Mr. Ed. Benoit entertained 37 children from 5 to 13 years of age, and nine adults, from Montreal, friends of Thomas, his son, on Saturday. The day was spent in the sugar bush and camp and they were also treated in the house to "taffy" and warm sugar. This will be a day long remembered in their lives and with expectations of another day next spring.

Mr. and Mrs. John Scullion and Mr. and Mrs. John McNeill and Cathy of Montreal, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cassidy and family.

Mrs. Wm. Parham of Ormstown is visiting at the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dunn.

Second Annual Employees Night at Canadian Arsenals Limited

NITRO — A total of 400 employees and their wives participated in the Second Annual Employee Night held at the Recreation Centre, on Saturday evening, April 2nd.

The program was started at 7.15 with a Bowling Tournament and a Volleyball Tournament. On the bowling alleys, a total of 72 players rolled off for the team championship and numerous other individual prizes. The winning team at the conclusion of the evening was the combined Rehabilitation and L. & T. Team.

On the volleyball court, the Inspection Department managed to defeat the Main Lab. for the Championship. During the evening, free refreshments were provided.

The ladies were given an opportunity to participate in the 10 games of bingo. Each of the winners were awarded a $10 basket of groceries. Following the bingo, a Professional square dance caller kept the group entertained for the rest of the evening. Those not interested in old time dancing, seated themselves comfortably in the lounge room and watched the 1954 Grey Cup Football game between the Allouettes and Edmonton.

According to all reports the evening was very successful.

The Girl Guides met Tuesday evening in the C.A.L. Recreation Hall with their leaders, Mrs. S. Barley, captain, and first lieutenant Mrs. G. Hopper and 2nd Lieut. Mrs. L. Brunelle. On Wednesday, the Brownies met with their leaders, Mrs. I. Rupard, Brown Owl, and Miss Mae Moore, Tawny Owl. The meetings were felt to be quite successful and encouraging. Mrs. W. The names of Mrs. H. Blair, Mrs. R. Arthur and Mrs. E. Lindsay were added to the names already on the Finance Committee. The treasurer's report showed $384.12 to have been raised with expenses of $294.64, leaving a balance on hand of $89.48.

Baking Soda Good Fire Extinguisher

The Province of Quebec Safety League has a suggestion to make to all housewives.

That is, to always have a box of baking soda on hand. And, not necessarily for baking either.

Baking soda is a good extinguisher of fires. And small fires often break out in the home and it's up to mothers to put them out before they endanger the home and the safety of the family.

Also, says the league, keep the house free of gasoline soaked rags or any other such inflammable and dangerous waste.

sumption of Canadian produced butter here at home. For this purpose we should place an excise tax on margarine thereby reducing the advantage gained by imported duty-free or low duty vegetable oils from foreign countries. We protect other Canadian industries, so why not the dairy industry. We place high tariffs on tobacco, beer and automobiles. Why not do likewise with soya beans, palm and coconut oil?

Windsor Hotel Chief, Dies

J. Alderic Raymond, host to royalty and internally known president and managing director of the Windsor Hotel, died Monday, April 4, 1955, in the Royal Victoria Hospital after a brief illness. He was 73.

Member of a prominent Quebec family, Mr. Raymond was closely associated with the hotel business from an early age, and as head of the Windsor was host to kings, emperors and heads of states the world over.

A son of Adelard and Priscille Quesnel, Mr. Raymond was born at St. Stanislas de Kostka in Beauharnois County. In his early life he was associated with the Queen's Hotel. In 1925 he went to the Windsor in an executive capacity. In the fall of 1940, he was named president following the death of his father-in-law, Senator J. Marcelin Wilson.

Mr. Raymond is survived by his wife, the former Gertrude Wilson, three brothers, Senator Donat Raymond, Air Vice-Marshal Adelard Raymond and Maxime Raymond, Q.C., and a sister, Mrs. Raoul Lefebvre.

Two services will be held at St. James Cathedral, the first at 11 a.m. Friday, when the Libera will be chanted, and the second Monday morning, when a Solemn Requiem Mass will be celebrated.

Help For Crippled Children

Here's "Timmy" with CBC producer Esse Ljungh. Eleven-year-old Sandy McDonald of Hamilton is this year's "Timmy", and represents the thousands of crippled children in Canada who are aided by the annual Easter Seal Campaign of the Society for Crippled Children. Funds raised from the campaign help provide crippled boys and girls with essential items such as crutches, braces, wheelchairs, nursing services, and special treatment and equipment, and give them the opportunity of attending a camp designed especially for them.

Other countries are doing something about it. Australia, New Zealand and South Africa all have adopted quotas and rigid production and distribution controls on substitutes to protect their domestic dairy industries. Why can't Canada do the same?

People say that they would buy more butter if it were cheaper, but one hour's industrial wage in 1939 would buy 1.8 lbs. of butter compared to 2.1 lbs. in 1953. Since the inroads of margarine there has been a 23% decrease in butter consumption. Would it not be better for the workman to eat butter, even costly butter, and work, than to consume margarine and be unemployed.

Here is the plain story that Canadians must be made to understand. We have a native Canadian industry developing and maintaining Canada's most valuable natural resource, the land. It effects the livelihood of 17% of our people. It provides one of the most valuable foods known to man for good health. It furnishes the largest single market for the products of industry. Dairying makes its full contribution to every phase of our economic development.

Therefore, gentlemen, we cannot consider the dairy industry and our Canadian economy as something independent and apart. The future of one is bound to effect the future of the other. We are certain that the dairy industry cannot exist if it is to meet free and unrestricted competition from imported vegetable oils. Therefore there is but one answer. We as citizens of a democratic nation, must bring to bear the weight of our opinion upon government. We must act with determination and dispatch."

Brotherhood of St. Paul's United Church, Ormstown

A social time was enjoyed by all who braved the roads and the weather on Wednesday evening, March 23rd, to attend the Irish Concert and sugar social in McDougall Hall, sponsored by St. Paul's United Church Brotherhood.

After a welcoming word from Rev. E. I. Johnston, Miss Sheila Towns, daintly attired in traditional Irish costume recited "When the Irish Came to Canada."

"Londonerry Air" and "Charmaine" ably played by Gerald and Gordon Duncan was followed by Jerry and Diane McCartney, accompanied by Karen McCartney, singing "Casey Lowered The Boom" and "Open Up Your Heart" to everyone's enjoyment.

Three short monologues in her usual cheery form were given by Mrs. Robert Anderson wearing "The Hat Me Faither Wore," and her "Retailing Dogs" caused great amusement. The Misses Heather and Sheila Towns, attired as Irish lassies, danced the Irish jig to the lilt of the fiddle. After a few Pat and Mike jokes by Rev. E. I. Johnston a group of eight girls, four wearing top hats and swinging typical green canes, four wearing caps and aprons as Irish Bridgets, harmoniously sang "It's a Great Day For The Irish," "Galway Bay," "Four Leaf Clover" and "Sweet Rosie O'Grady" with appropriate actions. Misses Grace Harkness, Dorothy Beattie, Heather McKell, Grace Elliott, Ruth Duguay, Connie Wylie, Heather Towns, were accompanied by Miss Betty Forrester.

Feet were set a-tapping to the lilting Irish music of Mrs. Earle Forrester, Howard Reid and Alister Neely.

Dr. Michael Pyn presented two monologues in his own inimitable way, the English lady accompanied by Junior on the bus to Ormstown, and "Antonio, the Performing Flea," which left the audience in gails of laughter.

Mr. Mac Ruddock added the Scotch touch to the evening's entertainment with his songs and jokes, "I Love a Lassie" and "It's Nice to Get Up in the Morning but it's Nicer to Stay in Bed."

The Minuet was very gracefully danced by Misses Heather and Sheila Towns, this time dressed as befitting the period.

"It's An Irish Lullaby" sung by Miss Elaine Aitken was a fitting close to a very enjoyable programme.

Everyone then proceeded to the lower hall where coffee, do-nuts, cookies, and taffy-on-snow were served by the members of the Brotherhood.

HOW AND WHY

A Column for Boys and Girls
By Harold Don Allen

68: SCIENCE TEACHES US ALL

(Last week's column of How and Why told the boys and girls something of how the scientist works. This column explains one way in which science has helped us to understand more about our world).

Have you ever heard anyone say that black cats are unlucky? Or that a rabbit's foot or four-leaf clover will bring you luck? Sure you have! Many people make games of such strange beliefs, although few if any people really think that such ideas are the least bit true.

It wasn't always that way. Before scientists began their careful study of the world around us, there were many strange beliefs that we might laugh at today. People once thought they were true. They never questioned them. When we hear of such old beliefs we realize how much science has taught us about life.

People once thought that "evil spirits" had taken hold of persons who were sick. We now know that such thinking is nonsense. Scientists have discovered bacteria — germs — which cause many diseases. Doctors and scientists have worked together in finding cures.

Biology is the study of living things. Some of the most interesting wrong beliefs that people ever have held have to do with the science of biology. One such belief has to do with how life begins.

People once believed in "spontaneous generation". That is, they thought that living creatures could appear out of nowhere. They offered what they thought were good examples of this. They might argue that if you put an open jar of honey in the cupboard, you might find it full of ants. The ants appeared as if by magic, they felt. They said that the ants had come into being because there was plenty of food for ants to eat.

This sounds silly to us, but it is hard to prove wrong. People believed such things for thousands of years. We know that the ants discovered the honey because they can smell better than we can. But we took a long time to find out such facts as that.

Scientists were clever in proving such theories to be wrong. They used the method of careful study with which they tackle all their tasks. These early scientists attempted to show that animals cannot "appear out of thin air" just because there is food on which they can live.

Many people had seen that old, dirty meat scraps that were left in the open soon were covered by hundreds of small white animals called maggots. Most persons believed that the little worm-like maggots formed from the meat when it went bad. Some scientists did not think that living creatures like maggots could come from dead material such as old meat. These scientists performed experiments to find out if what they thought was true.

Meat was placed in clean, covered dishes by these scientists. No one was allowed to touch or uncover it. It soon went bad and was quite unfit to eat, but none of the white wormy creatures appeared. Scientists who watched carefully saw that the little maggots were to be found only on meat which flies had been near. They discovered that flies laid eggs on the old meat and that these tiny eggs hatched into maggots. The maggots later grew into flies.

Scientists in this way proved a favorite old belief, or superstition, to be wrong. They continued their searching and studying for hundreds of years. They have shown us that young animals are seen only when eggs are laid and hatched or baby creatures are born.

Men then learned how to care better for food, and how to live healthier lives. Scientists have taught the world many new truths in the past few centuries as a result of their patient experimenting, study and research.

They, like clever boys and girls, have learned to question and to ask HOW and WHY about all they see and learn.

Dundee

Zion Church W.A.

DUNDEE — The regular monthly meeting of the W.A. was held at the home of Mrs. L. Currie with Mrs. Grace Fleming and Mrs. Gregor Leslie as joint hostesses. Mrs. Elizabeth Fleming led the devotional exercises. Guest speaker for the afternoon was Rev. Stanley Smith of Fort Covington, N.Y. He showed a film which told how the revised standard edition of the Bible came into being. Many people have grown to love the beauty and wording of the King James version and feel the modern version is a sacrilege. However in the film it was pointed out that the Bible has been rewritten many times and we could not even read the first English translation so great has been the change in the language and meaning of words since early English. Errors crept into translations and there have been copies of errors and more made and copied with the result that there are many inaccuracies in the beloved King James version.

John Wycliff made the first English translation from Latin. The revised modern edition is really older then the King James version as older Greek and Hebrew manuscripts from the 3rd and 4th century have been found and the translating done from them. As recent as 1947 and 1948 manuscripts were found in an old cave in Syria by Bedouins. They were recognized as being of value and were sold and later found by scholars. Some were from the second century before Christ.

With the finding of all these old manuscripts a group of the most learned scholars of the day was formed to translate the old Greek and Hebrew into modern English. The work was begun in 1937 and the full Bible finished in 1952. Now we can read a Bible which to scholars is accurate and to the common man easy to understand.

During the business session plans were made to hold a Food Sale in Heath's Store in Huntingdon later this month. More material for aprons and clothes was given out as Mrs. Clarence Platt had received two very generous donations of very good material from Eaton's of Canada and Simpson's-Sears. A bazaar is planned for sometime in May. Donations of old magazines and white elephants were brought in and many sold. Also orders were taken for gladioli bulbs. Over $53. was realized from the 3 crokinole parties held in March.

A delicious supper was served by the hostesses to the members and several friends and a social hour followed.

CLOSER CHECK

CAMPBELL RIVER, B.C. (CP) — The village commission is framing a by-law prohibiting sale of articles by second-hand dealers for two days after purchase. The move followed theft of copper wire from the B.C. power commission, found in a second-hand store.

BLACK AND WHITE

OAKVILLE, Ont. -(CP)- Town council had three colors to choose from in appointing two parks commissioners. C. C. White and J. R. Black were finally chosen over George Gray.

Revolutionary Coal Furnace Dosco's Answer to Oil

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — Dominion Coal Company on March 15th proudly unveiled the coal industry's reply to oil — a revolutionary smokeless, ashless stoker furnace.

Harold C. M. Gordon, vice-president and general manager, said the company hopes that by promoting the furnace it can consolidate the present coal market and make gains from oil and other domestic fuels.

Competition has reduced domestic coal sales in the Maritimes by an estimated 500,000 tons annually.

Loss of home and other markets, principally the CNR which has switched largely to diesel engines, has been causing increasing unemployment in Nova Scotia's coal fields, most of which are operated by DOSCO or its subsidiaries.

DOSCO claims the new furnace will make the coal shovel as out of date as the button hook, and that it will all but eliminate the removal of ashes.

The hot-air unit, about the size of a pre-war washing machine, sits beside the coal bin and feeds itself. Much ash is eliminated by efficient combustion, and that remaining sifts slowly out the side into a cannister which the company claims can be emptied as seldom as once a month.

Mr. Gordon said first on the market will be units for homes requiring a radiation surface of not more than 500 square feet. Later a larger one for houses with more than 800 square feet will be produced.

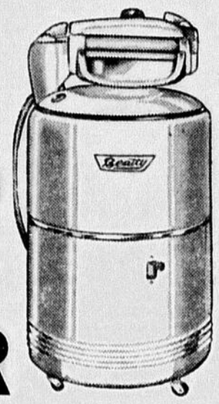

They will be manufactured at Trenton Steel Works, a DOSCO subsidiary. Mr. Gordon did not state the cost, but it is believed to compare with other types of heating.

Discussion at Council

town's business, they had a right to discuss such matters and express their dissatisfaction if they saw fit. The matter will be checked upon further by the Council.

A letter from the Huntingdon Branch of the Canadian Legion was read, in which it was asked that permission be granted to hold a street dance as in previous years. Permission was granted.

The Mayor produced a letter with regard to the insurance on the Town trucks and the recent accident when a man was run over by one of the trucks. The company handling the insurance asked that the driver of the truck be replaced as he had three accidents during the life of the policy which was quite short. The latest accident would probably use up all the insurance covered by no doubt many have now seen a robin somewhere around their premises. On Friday, employees at the Gleaner Office reported a robin on the lawn at the Gleaner Office. It was the first they had seen this season and felt that Spring was officially here. Weather since that time has certainly been very springlike.

Huntingdon Locals

This office was left open for the officers and ministers of the churches to select a person who would act as secretary. A film was shown by Rev. Mr. Rayner which depicted the moral of brotherly love.

Robin Seen

Perhaps it is not news now, for the term and the company was not too happy about it. They explained that they did not want to place the Town of Huntingdon in an embarrassing position with regard to insurance, but they must have the cooperation of the Council in this matter. The Council decided to replace the driver and a new man was ordered to be given a trial starting the next day.

A list of arrears of taxes was read by the secretary and he was authorized to collect all arrears of Water, Municipal, Rubbish, Business and Property taxes immediately.

Messrs. J. Proudfoot and Spencer Gavin appeared before the Council to ask for a grant to the Baseball team again this year. The Mayor pointed out that there had been some complaints regarding the balls going onto certain properties in town and he had promised that this would not occur this year. Mr. Proudfoot explained that the managers had been in touch with the parties who had complained and told them of what they intended to do at the ball field. The plan seemed to appeal to the parties and they had said to go ahead and try it. It was felt that there should be no more reason for complaint. If there is, then the team will have to move to other grounds. On the assurance that the ball nuisance would be cleared up, the Council agreed to make a grant of $125 to be paid in two instalments during the season. Mr. Proudfoot thanked the council and made the assurance that the ball nuisance would be cleared up.

Chief L'Heureux appeared before the Council and asked about the matter of new uniforms for the policemen. Mayor Cappiello asked him if he would let the matter stay for another month. The Chief said it would take from two to three months to get the uniforms and they were really needed now and the matter had been put off several times before. One of the other aldermen said that it was the idea of cutting expenses in the Police Dept. and probably this is where it could start.

Mayor Cappiello thereupon said, All right, since you do not want to wait and wish to bring the matter up, let us open it up now. I have said that there would be changes in the Police Dept. and probably the matter should be discussed now. I am of the opinion that we are overstaffed at present. Except that a robbery occurred and one merchant complained, we would not have had an extra man on the force and since that time there have been few others that have actually been prevented.

Alderman Tremblay said the Town needs all the protection it could have and he did not believe there was any fault to be found in the police dept. If there was he wanted to know all about it first, before making a decision. Alderman McWhinnie complained that the police did not patrol Lake Street enough and that there was too much speeding on this street and it should be stopped. He had asked the police to patrol the street and also on Chateauguay Street. Alderman Caza, who is now the chairman of the Police Committee, said he had not heard of anything wrong and before doing anything he would like to have all the facts. He also resented other aldermen interfering in his committee work.

Alderman Legault complained of cars travelling on Lake Street and one which had left a quantity of broken glass in front of his store and he felt that something should be done about it. Mayor Cappiello said that the matter should be of interest to all members of the council and not just a committee matter. He proposed that the whole council discontinue the discussion for that evening and that during the next month they get together and bring all the facts of the case out and bring a decision to the next meeting for open discussion. This was agreed upon.

For a time it looked as if there would be a division of the council as some were for the cutting down of the staff to save expense and others were opposed to it. It is quite evident that there will be means taken to pare the expenses of the police dept.
