News in brief

Recognition

OTTAWA (CP)—Pauline Jewett, one of the few political scientists to make the jump into party politics, suggested Friday that Canada extend diplomatic recognition to Communist China.

The freshman Liberal MP for Northumberland, delivering the first Commons speech of the new session, expressed some personal views on lessening cold war tensions and restoring Parliament to a more influential role.

Hail Cooper

ABOARD USS KEARSARGE (AP)—Gordon Cooper comes "home" to Honolulu today and the first of a series of welcomes honoring his heroic feat of orbiting the earth 22 times in a 34-hour tour through space.

On the agenda were parades and receptions in Honolulu, at Cape Canaveral, Washington and New York, including a meeting with President Kennedy and an address to a joint meeting of Congress Tuesday.

Lakes talks

OTTAWA (CP)—American Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz and Canadian Labor Minister Allan MacEachen met here Friday to set the stage for next week's high-level conference in Washington on Great Lakes labor strife.

The two labor ministers are to meet President Claude Jodoin of the Canadian Labor Congress and AFL-CIO President George Meany in Washington Tuesday for talks aimed at ending shipping disruptions on the Great Lakes.

Debate opens

OTTAWA (CP)—The eight-day throne speech debate during which the new Liberal government can face as many as six tests of confidence opens in the Commons Monday.

According to an informed government source, the debate will continue uninterrupted, unless some emergency requires immediate legislative action, until Wednesday, May 29, when under the rules the final motion must be put to a vote.

Terror wave

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal's biggest wave of terrorist violence struck the residential suburb of Westmount Friday as time-bombs tore apart six public mail boxes and critically injured an army explosives expert.

Other bomb-carrying boxes later were destroyed deliberately.

Sgt. Maj. Walter (Rocky) Leja, 45, was removing one of 15 time-bombs discovered by police when the device exploded in his face.

Hospital authorities early today gave him a 50-50 chance of surviving the blast. Doctors amputated his left arm at the elbow, then worked on his chest and facial injuries for five hours on the operating table.

Tense weekend

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—A tense weekend lies ahead for racially troubled Birmingham with threats of renewed bombings reported.

While the stage was set for a meeting of President Kennedy and Alabama's segregationist Governor George C. Wallace in north Alabama, police here ordered tighter security measures.

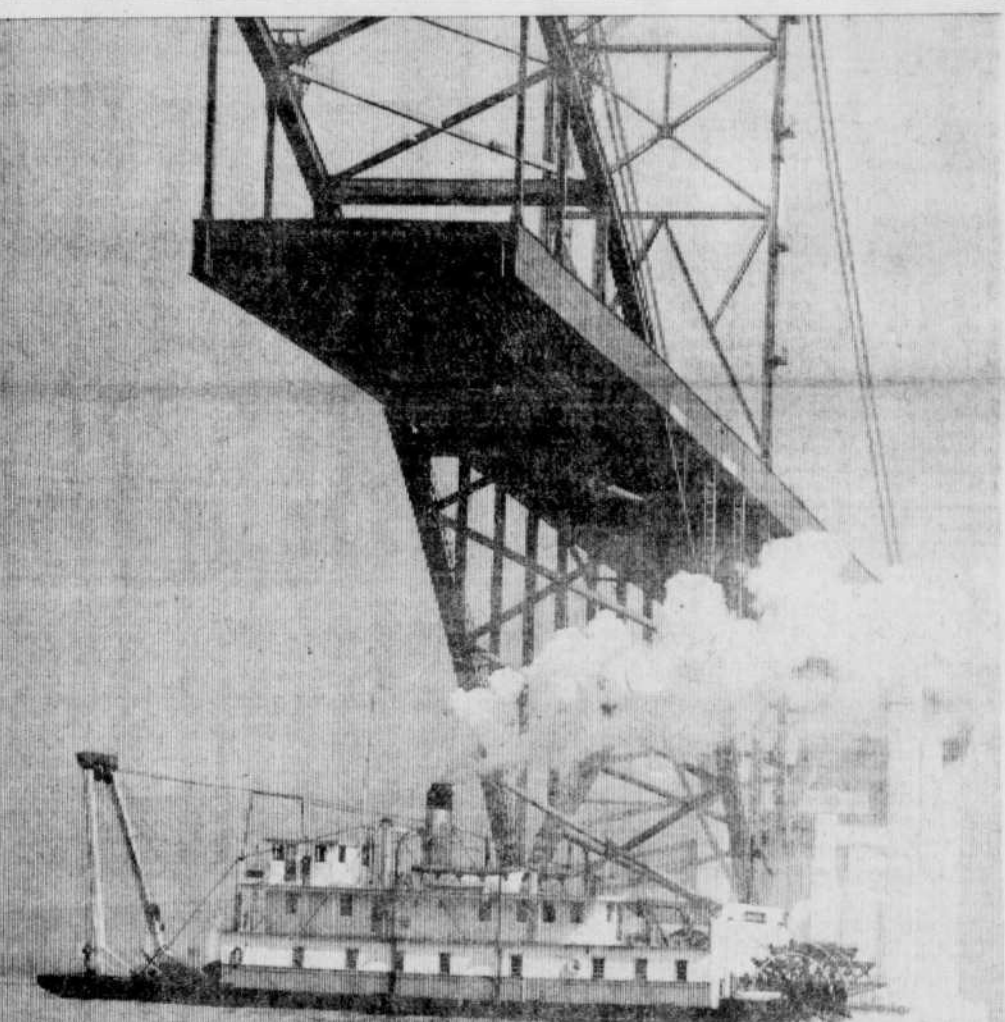

Support talks

GENEVA (CP)—Canada said today it strongly supports a major round of negotiations for breaking down trade barriers and is in a position "to pay and pay fully for advantages received."

Liberals set up commission

To re-draw political map

By RON COLLISTER

OTTAWA — (TNS) — The Pearson Government, as part of its 60 days of action, will set up a non-partisan commission to re-draw the borders of Canada's 265 Federal constituencies. For the first time in our history, action on constituencies is being taken out of the hands of a Parliamentary Committee and given to a non-partisan group.

But, if the present political climate continues, the outcome is sure to be a huge bonus in seats for the Liberal Government, and some for the New Democratic Party.

The revamping will mean more seats in the cities, where the Conservatives and Socialists flourish.

The objective is to get all constituencies close to an "average" figure.

TORONTO'S York-Scarboro, Canada's largest constituency with 267,232 people, will be carved into three or four constituencies. And Toronto's York Centre is likely to be halved. But Toronto, overall, may not end up with more seats than it has now.

The rule of thumb the Liberals hope to apply is 70,000 people in each constituency, with a "tolerance" swing of 20 per cent. This means that any figure between 56,000 and 84,000 would be acceptable.

THE "PEANUT" RIDINGS

In large cities, like Toronto, larger constituencies, nearer the 84,000 figure, are likely to continue. The smaller Toronto riding — there are five with fewer than 60,000 people — would be beefed up and maybe a few of them would be absorbed.

At the other end of the seesaw, the smallest constituency in Canada — Ile-de-la-Madeleine (12,479) in the Gulf of St. Lawrence — is sure to disappear.

However, constitutionally, all the "peanut" ridings can't be wiped out.

PRINCE EDWARD Island has four constituencies, the largest 40,894, the smallest 17,893. Under the new rule of thumb, none could survive as it is today; but PEI's four seats will be saved by the British North America Act, which rules that no province can have fewer MPs than it has Senators.

This will protect PEL's representation, and also the ten seats of New Brunswick.

Both Conservatives and Liberals favor the setting up of the non-partisan commission, but the Diefenbaker Government seemed to drag its feet on implementing it. During the 1957 and '58 campaigns, Mr. Diefenbaker said he would set it up. He introduced a bill to do it last year, but the bill was lost when Parliament broke up for the '62 election.

That bill allowed a 33 per cent "tolerance" swing, compared with the Liberals' 20 per cent, which is already in effect in Australia. Chief electoral officer Nelson Castonguay will study the Australian system there, in effect for 60 years, and Canada will probably model itself on the Australian system.

Introducing his bill, Mr. Diefenbaker criticized the redistribution of seats every 10 years, after the census, by parliamentary committee. It was "not in keeping with the preservation of democratic representation by population," he said. But that principle, he stressed, could not be

One of hottest spots in the world

Fallout thick in Canada

Apart from whatever other international distinctions Canadians may have, we are acknowledged as living in one of the "hottest areas on earth" so far as nuclear fallout is concerned.

And 1963 is expected to be a record radioactive year for Canada, as the fruits of last year's nuclear tests in Russia descend from the stratosphere and are showered over the land in the form of spring rains.

For various meteorological reasons springtime is fallout season, as well as the growing season. That is of special concern for Canadians who must live with this 20th Century hazard.

THE DANGER

Will the fallout on Canada this year reach dangerous levels? Have Canadians — especially those living in the "hot" zones of this hottest of all nations — cause for alarm?

"There is great danger," say some scientists, like Nobel Prize winner Dr. Linus Pauling who predicts the Russian tests alone will result in "tens of thousands" of cancer deaths and "grossly defective" births.

"No, it is largely a false scare," think other experts, like Dr. Lauriston Taylor, chief of Radiation physics with the U.S. National Bureau of Standards.

"We don't know... it's impossible to judge the amount of fallout we'll get from the tests," say others, like Dr. P. M. Bird, of the Radiation Protection Division in Ottawa.

If you find this mish-mash of conflicting expert opinion confusing, you've got plenty of company; the only people who don't seem beset with doubts and fears are those in Russia, United States and France who are in charge of the actual testing — and they may be wrong!

If the people of the world are someday to suffer from nuclear tests, Canadians will probably be first.

NUCLEAR VILLAIN

But before panicking let's check a few fallout facts. Of all the lethal radioactive elements in fallout, strontium-90 is painted as the villain that's most persistent and dangerous.

Dr. Bird cautiously warns: "From our previous experience we expect a rise in strontium-90 levels this year; but we can't predict how high it will go." However, he doesn't think it will come anywhere near a life-endangering level.

If there's one thing all scientists agree on it's that there is no such thing as "good" radiation. ALL radiation does some damage to living organisms, even if it's too infinitesimal to measure and

Continental vacuum in leadership plagues most of newly-formed countries of Africa

By Ward CANNEL

ACCRA, Ghana — (NEA) — A continental vacuum in leadership plagues the development of sub-Saharan Africa today.

It is an ailment that will keep battalions of technicians, educators and truce teams from the rest of the world shuttling in and out of Africa for years to come.

This is not to say that Africa has no leaders. On the contrary, one comes away from an audience with Kenya's Jomo Kenyatta overwhelmed by the personality. Even outspoken critics of Tanganyika's president Julius Nyerere and Ghana's Kwame Nkrumah admit freely that they are dealing with leaders as forceful and convincing as any in the world today.

The vital gap in African leadership begins just below the presidential office, in those lieutenantships that keep nations running smoothly through the business of government and bridge the ravines between administrations.

In Tanganyika, for example, most white residents admit that the changeover from colonial to African government has been handled well. "But" a reporter hears again and again, "who is there to replace Nyerere?"

In part, of course, the vacuum at the top is the doing of colonial administrations which pursued a careful course of training non-political African civil servants and squelched most African attempts at political maturity.

But in ever larger measure, the responsibility for leadership lacks can be traced back to the African heritage of tribalism.

In areas where tribal life has been generally untouched by colonialism, a strong East Africa's Masai for example, the chief's word is law and the aged are venerated for their years alone. Property is communal and every man is every other man's brother.

Translated into terms of modern, booming Nigeria, for example, this tribal heritage confuses everyday life. A young executive in a prosperous firm or government ministry will think more than twice before he gives an order to an elderly clerk. A minister of state is under ancient imperatives to staff his offices with members of his tribe, whether or not they are qualified.

Put together, ancient tribalism and recent colonialism conspire to apply further restrictions against the development of African leadership. Much of the Congo Republic's misery today stems from this unhappy combination. Six colonial provinces have been turned into 22 to satisfy a tribal hunger for governmental power and the result is a jungle of border disputes, tribal rivalries and a paralysis of government.

In individual terms, the pressure of colonialism and tribalism are driving more and more young Africans with European training in the arts and sciences into politics, of this architectural wonder being lost to mankind. Then MacQuitty remembered something that he had learned while skin diving. When a diver wishes to see an object clearly in muddy water, or to mark it, he presses a transparent balloon filled with clean water against the object.

Why not do the same with the Abu Simbel temples — submerge them in filtered water? He claims these advantages for his idea: it is less expensive than other schemes put forward, it would preserve the temples in their original position.

Meanwhile, time is running out. The United Arab Republic and the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) must decide soon whether to save the temple or to abandon it. If a rescue operation is agreed upon work must start immediately, for the Nile will begin to flood the area in October, 1964.

The temple was built 3,200 years ago by Rameses II, who left the landscape dotted with giant statues of himself. The Great Temple at Abu Simbel has four such statues of Rameses II, each 70 feet high, flanking its entrance. There are also decorated underground passages and rooms extending 200 feet into the cliff. The temple is so oriented that at sunrise a shaft of light strikes into the inner sanctuary.

A smaller temple nearby is dedicated to Rameses' queen, Nefertari.

Various schemes have been put forward for saving the temples, but most of them have been too costly. UNESCO's appeal for money has not been heeded.

There is no doubt that many dedicated United States diplomats and employees of the United States Information Agency are going their best to bring the message of freedom under extremely trying conditions.

Traditional diplomacy is no longer able — is it ever was — to cope with the upsurge in Red subversion in Latin America.

SUGGESTS UNDERWATER TEMPLE PLAN

LONDON — (NEA) — Lack of money has compelled an international group to abandon plans to raise one of Egypt's most famous monuments into the air to escape the rising waters of the Nile Lake. But the temple at Abu Simbel, now in danger of being lost from view, may yet be saved if an English skin diver has his way.

He has come up with a novel idea for saving the 3,200-year-old temple in Egypt, which may soon disappear beneath the muddy waters of the Nile.

He is William MacQuitty, a Belfast film producer, and he proposes to build a light protective wall, or "membrane," around the temples and fill the enclosure with filtered water.

MacQuitty argues that the filtered water would not only protect the temples from corrosion, but would make them visible to sightseers viewing them from underwater chambers. The estimated cost of the scheme is less than $14 million.

On a trip up the Nile last year, MacQuitty saw the temple, which is due to be flooded under 200 feet of water as a result of the construction of the new Aswan Dam. He was appalled at the prospect

To counter Red cold war tactics

Urges creation of US propaganda academy

By LEON DENNEN

NEW YORK — (NEA) — The influx of Russian, Cuban and Red Chinese agents into Latin America points up the urgency for the creation by the United States of the long-delayed Freedom academy to train leaders in cold war techniques.

A bill (S. 414) to establish an academy to teach Americans and anti-Communist foreigners how to counter the Red's nonmilitary drive in sensitive areas was reintroduced in the Senate last January. It was sponsored by 13 Democratic and Republican senators and a group of private citizens, including the eminent American philosopher, Sidney Hook and Leo Cherne, president of the Research Institute of America.

Even Mexican intellectuals who once sneered at the "Yankee hysteria" about communism now realize that they are being swamped by Red propaganda, I learned during recent visits to Latin America. "What we need badly to check Castro's growing influence are knowledgeable Americans who will help us combat Communist propaganda as the Peace Corps is fighting to stamp out illiteracy and disease," a Mexican leader told me.

The political warfare relentlessly waged by international communism in Latin America is as much a threat to United States security as Soviet and foreign agents in political work and underground operations in non-Communist countries. Most Soviet "diplomats" were trained in political warfare at Moscow's Sverdlov University before they were assigned to missions in Latin America. There are 150 such diplomats in Mexico alone.

The Russians and their allies have developed their nonmilitary conflict to a point where they are waging the cold war in every possible field and with a variety of propaganda weapons.

Unfortunately, the techniques employed by the United States to combat Red propaganda do not cover the wide range of the East-West political conflict. They leave the Communists substantially unchallenged in vital areas of the cold war.

There is no doubt that many dedicated United States diplomats and employees of the United States Information Agency are going their best to bring the message of freedom under extremely trying conditions.

Traditional diplomacy is no longer able — is it ever was — to cope with the upsurge in Red subversion in Latin America.

South played dummy's four of clubs on West's dummy. East won the trick with the ace and returned the eight of diamonds. South played low and West's jack held the trick.

A club lead put South in dummy and he promptly led the queen of trumps. East covered with the king and South cashed his ace and jack. Then he led the jack of spades to East's queen.

East returned the five of diamonds and South went right up with the ace.

By this time South was quite sure that he had counted the hand perfectly. He assumed West had opened a fourth best club and that East's diamond plays had indicated a doubleton. Each opponent had shown up with two trumps so South was convinced that West had started with two spades and East with four.

Therefore South led a spade to dummy's ace and returned the ten. East ducked quickly, but South was sure of his count and promptly discarded the queen of diamonds on the ten of spades.

"Nice play," said North. "Right," said West. "My partner deserves half the credit. If he had played the jack of clubs

About Television

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress Betty White, much in demand as a panelist in various and assorted games shows, and Allen Ludden, host on CBS' Password, plan to marry in Las Vegas, Nev., June 14.

Apparently romance finally bloomed on a panel show—but in truth Password had little or nothing to do with it.

Betty and Allen, after a weekend honeymoon, will play together in Brigadoon. Allen Ludden sings? "Yes," said Betty, "and very nicely, too." Betty will be busy filling commitments she made months ago, before the sound of wedding bells was in the air, including a period starring in The King and I in St. Louis.

Allen is a widower with three children—two girls and a boy. Betty lives with her parents.

They expect to make their home a big rambling house in suburban Westchester County, where Allen is a dedicated gardener and a amateur cabinet-maker.

Urge new industrial commissioner

Military expenditure is vital for Canada, BCS cadets are told

Canada's mounting military spending is dismaying but necessary, the Canadian Navy's Atlantic coast flag officer told Bishop's College School cadets Friday.

Even an admiral sometimes looks with dismay on expanding military budgets, Rear Admiral K. L. Dyer told the cadets, but such spending is needed if Canadian armed forces are to fulfill their commitments. And such training programs as the B.C.S. cadet course must furnish the first-rate personnel the forces need.

Rear Adm. Dyer, who has two sons in the School cadet corps, made the remarks following his inspection of the corps on a sunny campus Friday afternoon.

The show the boys in pillboxes put on for the admiral included a precision drill commanded by his 16-year-old son Kenneth.

The admiral's and his aide's were not the only naval uniforms on view on the B.C.S. lawn Friday, however. Captain Sam F. Abbott, in charge of the school cadet corps, is himself a naval veteran, and wore his R.C.N. lieutenant's uniform.

The drill the admiral had seen included a general march-past of the blue-uniformed platoons, plus special performances by Staff Sgt. Kenneth Dyer's precision section and by the band.

There were demonstrations of practical skills the cadets had learned. Cadets Bruce Carter of Quebec City, William Lubecki of Granby, Ian Rankin of Lac Marois, and William Francis of North Hatley donned overalls and feigned such afflictions as broken back, cut head, and suffocation so that their comrades could apply first aid.

Of the 208 cadets in the corps, 89 per cent passed training tests.

Among those who shone, and had awards to show for it after yesterday's ceremony, were:

Cadet Major Peter Hutchins of Pembroke, Ont., winner of the Stratheona Medal as best cadet of any rank; Douglas Reynolds, winner of the Best Recruit medal; George Galt, winner of the Best Cadet medal for the ranks; Graeme Ross, winner for his command of the band, of the award for most efficient N.C.O.

Number three platoon, with Cadet Lieut. W. Mitchell, of Massawippi commanding, won the Hugh Anderson Scott Cup as the best in the corps; the G. W. Hess Memorial Trophy went to number two platoon, and was accepted by Cadet Arches-Shee, and the shield for smartest appearance went to Cadet Gale of the band.

Winners of stars as Master Cadets were Derek Abdalla, Michael Breakey, Victor Drury, Patrick Esmonde-White, Michael Patrick and Ian Weir.

The Sherbrooke Chamber of Commerce has told city council that it must give Sherbrooke an industrial commissioner with a free hand if it wants to attract new industries to the city.

"We are not criticizing the individuals at present in office," said Chamber President Herbert Simons in presenting a chamber brief on industrial promotion to Mayor Armand Nadeau at a special audience Friday afternoon.

But the brief says flatly that anyone who thinks the present structure of the Industrial Consulting Commission, a joint city-citizen board, can bring concrete results, "is fooling himself."

The Chamber urges that the commissioner be accountable to fewer people and be allowed greater secrecy in his work. He should receive a budget from, and submit an annual report to, the consultative commission, the Chamber says, but he should not divulge details of pending cases.

The "essential nature" of industrial promotion is confidential, the Chamber insists. It suggests the commissioner make contacts with consulates and embassies in Ottawa and also in the United States.

"One will possibly object to the fact that the necessary budget and the expenses incurred, being out of the control of city council, may be a cause for failure, but the Sherbrooke Chamber insists on the fact that the setting up of an adequate system of industrial promotion always makes it understood that there is an element of risk.

"Indeed, anticipatory results normally take several years before they materialize."

Industrialists want to be sure negotiations for the placement of plants in new locations are confidential, the Chamber says. "Failing this, they will not pursue their intention any further."

Factors which have to be recalled, according to the Chamber include unemployment and the scarcity of jobs; insufficient diversity of Sherbrooke industry and the lack of "growth" industries; the coming Eastern Townships automobile and World's Fair; and the soon-to-be-established Eastern Townships Regional Economic Council.

Pull out all the stops for cliff rescue

Sherbrooke Fire Director Percy Donahue directed this rescue operation himself.

Manning a loudspeaker on one 100-foot-high bank of the Magog River yesterday, he called out orders to three men stationed on the cliff on the other bank.

Slowly, at the end of a lifeline, two of them lowered Fireman Clement Beland down the sheer rock face.

On Fireman Beland's head was a protective helmet. He wore a life jacket, and carried a telephone set with which he communicated with the men above him.

The rope lowered Fireman Beland to within 20 feet of the swirling rapids of the Magog River.

There was the victim — a black Labrador retriever who had somehow fallen over the cliff onto a small edge opposite the Sherbrooke Laundry plant.

Fireman Beland popped him into a canvas bag attached to a second lifeline, and both were hauled back to safety.

High Times

By SANDRA PICKFORD

A good majority of High Times readers will be together today either participating in or just watching the events at the Sherbrooke Y Men's annual boys' track and field meet at the Parade Grounds, Sherbrooke.

Next Saturday is the girls' meet.

LONG WEEKENDS — Students attending St. Patrick High School, Sherbrooke, are looking forward to two long weekends of holidays. The students, as well as many other ET students, will have a holiday, Monday commemorating the Queen's birthday. On Thursday and Friday of next week, correspondent Richard Wilson says St. Pat's students will receive holidays for the celebration of the feast of the Ascension and the inspectors' holiday, May 24.

However, during the holidays, the senior students will be preparing for their provincial examinations which begin May 27. Senior students attending St. Patrick High School will finish school about June 6.

STUDENTS TRAVEL — Students of grade eight and nine at Lake Megantic Intermediate School spent last weekend in Quebec City. The trip included visits to historical places including many monuments and parks, the Citadel and King's Bastion, the Plains of Abraham, Lower Town, the oldest church, Our Lady of Victories; the oldest house built in 1635; the narrowest street, Sous le Cap; Chateau Frontenac and the Quebec High School. Mrs. Ernest Mills of the Home and School Association and school principal were the chaperones. Mr. and Mrs. Earl Veary also went along on the trip.

The students would like to thank those who made the trip possible through effort in the students food sale, car wash and church clean-up drive.

PHOTO CONTEST — There is less than one week left for you readers who plan to enter The Record's spring season photo contest to get your pictures in before deadline. The contest closes May 24 and all entries must be postmarked not later than that date. The photograph taken by an amateur ET photographer best depicting spring will win $10. Two honorable mentions will also be chosen and The Record will be publishing the three best pictures.

GRAD BANQUET — The graduates banquet for the class of 1962-63 at North Hatley High School will be held May 30 at the Pleasant View Hotel. J. E. Perry, principal at Lennoxville High School will be the guest speaker, says correspondent Priscilla McCourt.

DANCING TONIGHT — A dance will be held tonight in the gymnasium of Sunnyside High School at Rock Island. Dancing begins at 8 p.m.

SPORTS BANQUET — The annual Father and Son Sports Banquet will be held at St. Patrick High School, Sherbrooke, May 30. The banquet closes the sports activities at the school for the year and many awards are to be given out for different sports. The most coveted award to be given is the best athlete trophy awarded to the student for sportsmanship, scholastic standing, attitude toward sports and the practice put into each sport.

JUNE PROM JUNE 1 — The North Hatley High School prom will be held June 1. Theme of this year's prom is Springtime. Dancing is from 9 to 1 a.m. with Les Beaulieu's Orchestra providing the music.

SCHOOL PENNANTS FOR SALE — School pennants are being sold by the Students' Council of Sherbrooke High School, says correspondent Janet Baker. The pennants have maroon backgrounds with the SHS crest and Sherbrooke High printed in white.

ON THE MOVE TOO will be some 50 students from St. Patrick High School who are planning to take a trip to Quebec City June 1. Last year the students travelled to Ottawa and this year plans have been made for the trip to the provincial capital.

TRAVEL TO NEW YORK — North Hatley High School senior students travelled to New York City May 2, 3 and 4. They visited the United Nations building, the Empire State Building, took a boat cruise around Manhattan and visited the Statue of Liberty. The trip also included a shopping spree in some of New York's famous department stores.

GRAD DANCE HELD — The graduation prom of students at Magog's Princess Elizabeth High School was held May 10. Alfred Durocher's orchestra, The Black and Whites provided the music for dancing. Guest singer was Diane Michaud. Named king and queen of the prom were Allyson Trew and Martin Gorenflo. They were voted by students from grades eight to 10.

Chosen princesses were Kerry Lee and Sherry Emslie. Princes were George Patch and Gary Bryan. The president of the Students' Council, Catherine Milne and her escort Martin Gorenflo lead the grand march. The theme of this year's dance was Springtime and decorations included a tunnel of love, a wishing well, a swing, and paper decorations in pink, blue, white, green and yellow.

BEFORE the prom a banquet was put on by Home and School for the grads, their dates and the grads parents. Three grades provided musical entertainment, Catherine Milne, George Patch and Richard McLaughlin, who com-

With less than a week left before contest photo deadline, let's not have procrastination be the thief of time. There are subjects galore just waiting to be photographed. There is even plenty of time after supper as the light is still reasonably good for photo studies.

The Eastern Townships has on many occasions been labelled The Garden of Eden. We are inclined to agree after viewing the lush green fields and the changing color of the mountains.

comes obvious, but even in black and white one can still have this effect of change by photographing from certain angles to emphasize buds and small leaves etc.

One of the best angles is to have the sun coming almost at the camera (back light). This type of light will separate the twigs on the bushes from the background.

Details such as young leaves-important signs of spring stand out more sharply; also water in the brooks are usually swirling and bubbling and they too show up well in this light.

Sentenced for passing bogus bills

Sebastien Cloutier, of St. Samuel ran into bad company while on a drinking bout in Lake Megantic and was persuaded to pass some counterfeit $10 bills, his defence attorney Yvon Roberge told Judge Evender Veilleux Thursday.

Cloutier said he had been given ten of the bogus Canadian bills by Gerard (Frise) Chouinard who was sentenced to two years in penitentiary during the Assizes of the Superior Court, last January.

Cloutier was charged with passing eight of the bills in Lake Megantic December 7, 1961.

He had elected to stand trial before a judge and jury but changed his election when he appeared before the Supreme Court last January, choosing to be tried by a judge alone.

Police said Cloutier had gone from store to store, making small purchases and presenting bogus tens for payment.

Benoit Turmel, joint crown attorney with Stanley Steinman, said that he had no objection to the imposing of a minimum sentence on Cloutier. The Crown felt that the case as presented by the defence was the true one, he said.

Judge Veilleux agreed that Cloutier had probably been influenced by Chouinard and sentenced him to one day in prison with a $300 fine.

Music Festival concert tonight

Scholarships to about 40 musicians, winners of the local eliminations for the Quebec Music Festival, will be awarded at the Arts Faculty of the University of Sherbrooke tonight.

Brief recitals will be heard from each on Saturday evening at the free public concert in their honor. It starts at 8 p.m.

The scholarships ranging from $15 to $150 in value, will be awarded on the recommendation of adjudicators, James Sample, Wilfrid Pelletier, Vladimir Padwa and Boris Berlin.

Money for the scholarships was received from the municipalities of Arthabaska, Richmond, East Angus and Sherbrooke and some individual donors.

Your Hearing

QUESTION: Must a hearing aid be big and cumbersome to take care of a severe loss?

ANSWER: Ever since the Sonotone laboratories created the world's first transistor models, the size of hearing aids has been shrinking.

The newest and one of the most powerful Sonotones ever made is scarcely larger than a pocket lighter and weighs only a few ounces. Yet it can be "tuned" to nearly 500 different variations to correct severe and difficult losses.

The size and style of a hearing aid is less important than the amount of better hearing you need. Your Sonotone Hearing Aid Consultant can help any fittable loss after taking a thorough test. Call or write for an appointment without obligation.

Difficulties facing redistribution

In its efforts to restore some semblance of balance between urban and rural representation in the House of Commons, the Government may seek to expand the House membership. This step is favored in many quarters in preference to reducing the number of rural seats and transferring them to urban constituencies.

Strongest proponents of this policy, of course, are the rural MPs who see the danger of their own ridings being eliminated or merged with a neighboring constituency.

Most of these members admit that the principle of representation by population, one of the basic reasons for Confederation, has disappeared under the existing system of apportioning seats. In the last election the number of eligible voters varied from 134,000 in a Toronto riding to a bare 3,000 in the Magdalen Islands division of Quebec.

But at the same time they argue that the rural MP has a much more difficult task than does his city confrere. Whereas an urban MP finds his electors concentrated in an area a few miles square, the representative for a riding like Compton-Frontenac in the Eastern Townships must speak for people in a district 175 miles long by 100 miles wide.

He must travel thousands of miles

Should supervise use of fireworks

The Victoria Day holiday weekend is the first break people will have to enjoy warm weather which has slowly made its way to the Eastern Townships.

Because of the special nature of this weekend, celebrations in many centres will be cheerful, noisy affairs, and it's this aspect of the holiday which could bring pain and tragedy to some families. Youngsters traditionally mark the Queen's birthday with fireworks, not realizing that the fun they are having could very easily be marred by accidents.

W. E. Milton, superintendent of the Quebec division of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, points out that the celebrations will cause several children to lose the sight of one or both eyes.

Haydn S. Pearson's COUNTRY FLAVOR

Tooth of the lion is a fact of life

From the garden articles one reads and from comments of neighbors who are lawn perfectionists, one assumes that the dandelion is a problem flower.

The countryman rarely offers advice to his peers for the pertinent reason that it is seldom followed. However, a man should be helpful when he is certain of his anchorage. As one goes out on a beautiful May morning and surveys the bright golden dots against the green of the lawn, he should remember one fact. The logical method of handling the Tooth of the Lion is to enjoy the flower during the blossoming season, and not to worry about it after it becomes part of the lawn covering.

We hope, of course, that all citizens appreciate the efficacy of a few messes of dandelion greens, boiled with a piece of salt pork in which there is a sufficiency of lean meat. You cannot achieve the ultimate tangy, satisfying goodness of dandelion greens without lean salt pork. Some misguided cooks use bacon, but the flavor is definitely inferior.

Dandelion seed came from Europe in dirt used as ships' ballast and the first mention of the plant that research reveals was in 1672. We would not know about such things, but it is reported certain citizens use the plant to make a drink that with age generates considerable horse power.

We shall not make an issue of the matter. It is undoubtedly beneficial to the waist line to criss-cross the lawn digging up the roots, but a dandelion root is a tenacious thing and goes deep. A half-hearted cut retards but does not discourage the Lion. We continue to feel that certain facts in life must be accepted, and one of them is the dandelion. If you cannot defeat it, you need not necessarily join. All one needs is a philosophical attitude.

Real menace to future of Dominion

Separatism in Quebec may not be the greatest danger to the Canadian confederation, a noted educator has suggested. It may be much more difficult to keep British Columbia from drifting into union with the United States—and perhaps to hold other western areas and the Atlantic Provinces, too.

This view was advanced by Dr. N. A. M. MacKenzie, former president of the University of New Brunswick and recently retired as president of the University of British Columbia. He was speaking as head of the Canadian Centenary Council, the non-governmental advisory body helping to plan our nation's 100th birthday observation in

Dr. MacKenzie feels that the principal stresses and strains on our union are not located in Quebec and Ontario and a much greater danger is a gradual break-up "under the pressures and attractions of our most interesting neighbor."

His thought is striking. There isn't one among us who has not heard the twin suggestions that the Maritimes should secede from Canada and become a small nation trading with the United States, or actually join the union ourselves.

Not many take the idea seriously — at present. But there is general agreement that our "natural" trade pattern is north-south, and many recall that our years of pre-eminent prosperity were those when our trade was mainly with New England and overseas markets.

Economic ties have often led to political ties. Planners of the new Europe are frankly starting with trade and moving towards outright political union, and this among peoples of different languages who were at each other's throats in war less than a generation ago.

It would be easier here. There are no comparable barriers of language or even customs between English-speak-

Adventures with God

Thank God for gift of parents; they know value of discipline

Memory plays down the weakness of past generations and magnifies their finer qualities. When memory assesses a man or woman all the evidence is in. When the total of virtues and vices is tallied and the circumstantial evidence is weighed, virtue tips the scale in favor of the departed one.

Many a critical young person has packed his bag and left home because he or she refused to accept the discipline imposed by a good parent. They saw their parents as tyrants ruling with a rod of iron and they resisted every command made for their own good.

Many leave home today full of bitter resentment toward mother or father because they cannot understand the necessity of discipline.

But life has a way of teaching them hard lessons which will bring the wanderers home again subdued and full of appreciation for the parents who stood their ground and administered discipline in the spirit of love.

GUILT COMPLEX

We have known many older men and women who have developed a guilt complex as memory focused their thoughts on their wonderful parents. Some of them left home in a huff. They were going to show the old folks how utterly impractical they had been.

Some of them married and had children of their own and after a few years of wakeful nights and turbulent days they began to see grandma and grandpa in a new light.

And then one day they envisioned a halo around the tired gray heads and soft lines around their eyes and a wistful loving smile around their patient lips.

Memory had tipped the scales in favor of the strict but loving parents. But for some of them it was too late to tell mom and dad how much they appreciated their love and firmness.

So they placed a memorial wreath on the stone that marks their place and they raised an altar in their sad hearts where they would keep the flame of love and devotion alight to their dying day.

COMPLETE TRUST

We have written before of the four periods in parent-child relationships.

In the period from 1 to 12 years parents are idolized as miracle-working gods. This is the time to capitalize on ing parts of Canada and the U.S., and we have been officially at peace since 1814.

One of the oft-cited objections in Britain to that nation's application to join the European Common Market was the possibility that this would weaken the Commonwealth ties and might impel Canada to look toward even closer association with the U.S.

Dr. MacKenzie is not suggesting that a dramatic revolution may come. He uses words such as "automatic" and "without publicity" and "gradual slipping away."

We do well to ponder his thought, and the judgment that accompanied it: "Our survival and our prosperity as a nation and as individuals is much more likely if we continue together in one united nation than if we break up and go our separate ways.

the children's complete trust and train them up in the way they should go.

This is the time when parents know all, can do all and are all in all to their children. These years pass quickly and parents must seize the opportunities.

During the second period, from 12 to 24 years, many young people go into reverse. They see their parents as old fogeys who are behind the times, joy-killers bent on cramping their lives. And they criticize continually.

There isn't much a parent can do in these years but pray and try to be patient while life teaches the young rebels a thing or two. It is helpful to remember that God is on the side of parents who have worked with Him in the early years.

New Zealand 'ombudsman'

Complaints justify new position

By J. C. Graham

the setting up of the new office. It has been pointed out that the most valuable effect is not the action taken in these specific cases but the constant reminder of the rights of the individual.

Sir Guy Powles, lawyer, administrator and diplomat, has shown himself to be an excellent choice to inaugurate the new office. He has displayed both tact and common sense and already the position has gained esteem.

Reviewing the complaints submitted in the first six months, Sir Guy said that 143 of the 334 complaints were outside his jurisdiction. He does not act where other means of appeal are available, and has no power to inquire into complaints against local bodies.

Of the remainder, 74 were still under investigation. Of the 117 fully investigated, 91 had been rejected as without foundation and 26 had been found to have some substance in one way or another.

The ombudsman does not have power to reverse decisions of government officials, but he can bring a good deal of pressure to bear.

Sir Guy reported that 13 of the 26 cases held to be justified had resulted in departments rectifying their errors after he had made preliminary inquiries. He had made specific recommendations in five cases. In the remaining eight cases, specific remedies could not be applied, but he had made recommendations of principle on the general issues involved.

In general he said he had found government methods to be fairly efficient. No resentment had been shown at his investigations.

However, he said: "We find many cases of real distress caused by what appears to the sufferers to be cold, impartial and often implacable application of the rules. We try to resurrect humanity from the files."

Cases laid before the ombudsman have come from one end of the country to the other and complaints against New Zealand government activities have also been forwarded from Britain, Hawaii, Fiji and Australia.

Gerald Waring REPORTING

OTTAWA — Two dollar wheat is apparently not included in the government's 60-days-of-action program. And perhaps, in view of the Liberals' election misfortunes on the prairies, this is not too surprising.

But on the other hand, observers who know the prairie picture tell me that if the government fails to carry out its promise of a guaranteed minimum wheat price of $2 a bushel, prairie voters will lose all confidence in Lester Pearson's promises.

The $2 wheat floor was originally promised by Pearson in the 1962 campaign as a means of equating farm revenue with farm costs — and was branded as impractical even by the Winnipeg Free Press, of which Liberalism there is no whither. It was repromised by Pearson at Saskatoon March 6 in these words:

"Given a mandate to form a stable government, we Liberals will immediately provide a floor price of $2 a bushel for No. 1 Northern wheat at Fort William. There will be appropriate differentials for other grades."

If we overlook the question of how stable 129 seats are we get to the question of how immediate is immediate.

This may well be the election promise that the Liberals relish least of all. Two dollar wheat in present circumstances is certain to encourage farmers to increase their wheat acreage next year at the expense of other grains. On the other hand, the master sales agreement with Red China expires this year, and there is no assurance that it will be renewed.

Government sources from ministers down either won't say or don't know the answers to the questions of when? and how? The likelihood is they don't know. A check a few days ago showed Prime Minister Pearson had not even set up the cabinet's wheat committee, which must deal with the $2 promise.

What $2 wheat appears to mean is that the Wheat Board will make up the difference, at public expense, between the price it sells wheat for and the floor of $2 — if there is any difference. Wheat is now selling for about $1.95.

Except for that word "immediately" there is perhaps no great urgency about the $2 wheat. The PM said it would "apply over the life of the present International Wheat Agreement" which expires Aug. 1, 1965 — but what he means by this hasn't been explained. Will $2 apply retroactively to the start of the present IWA agreement last Aug. 1? Or to the date the new government took over, April 22? Or will it apply only when the new crop now being seeded is sold?

A rough guess is that $2 wheat would cost the treasury about $50 millions this year. In effect, this is straight subsidy — but then, most other wheat growing countries subsidize their wheat farmers, and by much more than a few cents a bushel.

Ottawa is already paying western farmers an acreage subsidy amounting to about $40 millions a year. Whether acreage payments would be abolished by a $2 wheat floor is another of the unknowns in the equation of Liberals plus $2 equals x plus y plus z farm votes next election.

The city votes? Well, Pearson has an equation there too: $2 wheat plus consumer subsidy equals no rise in the price of bread.

Lawn parking law to stop unsightliness

Unsignificance is the main reason that city officials have passed a bylaw to forbid the construction of parking lots in front of buildings.

Bylaw number 1304 passed in three readings by Sherbrooke council will be put to property owners at a public meeting scheduled for Sherbrooke city hall May 27 from 7 to 8 p.m.

The bylaw is designed, according to City Services director Charles Langlois, to avoid such situations as exist on Heneker Street where there are paved lots for parking in front of houses.

The bylaw would also control lots at establishments, he added.

This will, although not specified in the bylaw, not affect parking in driveways in the normal fashion, nor will it affect dwellings that already have no provision elsewhere for their vehicles said Mr. Langlois. The city hopes to see that proper parking space is set out at the time of building construction.

Nothing will be done about structures that do not comply with this bylaw at the present time, according to Charles Langlois.

Bylaw article number three reads as follows:

The second paragraph of article 679 is replaced by the three following paragraphs: It will be forbidden to make way for parking spaces or to park vehicles in all front yards and on all parts of land comprised of the area between the required limit from the street and the street line.

"This requirement applies to all the zones indicated on the plan accompanying the present bylaw as mentioned in bylaw number 5" (This bylaw applies to the city in general).

"Meanwhile in the case of commercial or industrial buildings it will be permitted to put aside and to make use of parking spaces for vehicles in all parts of the land other than that comprising the area between the street and the required distance from the street of the structure."

adopted without exceptions. WITHOUT EXCEPTIONS, it would mean that as the "tremendous surge" from the rural areas into the cities continues, the rural areas would be left with "negligible representation."

THE EXCEPTIONS Mr. Diefenbaker, who once lost his seat through redistribution, now leads a rural party in Parliament and would face much tougher city representation after redistribution along the lines the Liberals now suggest.

The Liberals were committed to the non-partisan commission in the 1962 and 1963 elections. They attacked the "characteristic delay" of the Diefenbaker government for not having arranged redistribution on the basis of the 1961 census. As a result, some parts of the country were denied their proper representation, the Liberals charged.

The huge task of redistribution will take about three years. The Commission will go to work this fall report in late '64 or early '65, and Parliament will be asked to approve the report in 1965.

How it will be done, is not yet firm, but it seems that the Commission will be divided into four regional, independent groups.

THE UNFAIRNESS One would be set up in the Atlantic Provinces, others in Quebec and Ontario, and the fourth in the West, covering the three Prairie Provinces and B.C.

THE IDEA IS TO make representation as fair as possible, but it can never be absolutely fair, nor will it please everyone.

Who will be the non-partisan members of the non-partisan commission? Here's a political football. And the population changes always underway in Canada sometimes make what is fair today unfair tomorrow.

The unfairness of the present situation is caused by an increase of 4,000,000 in Canada's population between the census of 1951 and the census of 1961, nearly all in the urban areas.

By 1965-66, when the legislation is ready, Canada will probably have added another 3,000,000 since 1961, but the redistribution will likely be based on the 1961 census.

The distribution will never satisfy anyone. ESPECIALLY IF you're a defeated candidate, who feels you just might have won if only — if the riding had been bent here, pushed out there twisted a bit in the middle.

Among the items to be discussed during Synod will be the controversial issue of female representation.

Quebec Diocese remains one of the few in Canada which under Canon Law may elect only male delegate to Synod. The question of percentage apportionment for budget will also be debated.

Reports to be presented during the 54th Session will include those of the diocesan board of education, the board of missions, the council for social service and many others. Delegates will hear about Quebec's participation in the Anglican Congress to be held in Toronto during August.

A highlight of the Synod will be the blessing of a Motomara which begins its tour of Canada in the ancient capital. The Motomara will display exhibits from every ecclesiastical province in the world and should be of great interest to Anglicans through Canada and the United States.

Synod will close with a great missionary rally organized by the Woman's Auxiliary at which the speaker will be the Rt. Rev. Hall. This will take place in St. Michael's Parish Hall, Sillery, May 22nd at 8 p.m.

Bylaw article number three reads as follows:

The second paragraph of article 679 is replaced by the three following paragraphs: It will be forbidden to make way for parking spaces or to park vehicles in all front yards and on all parts of land comprised of the area between the required limit from the street and the street line.

"This requirement applies to all the zones indicated on the plan accompanying the present bylaw as mentioned in bylaw number 5" (This bylaw applies to the city in general).

"Meanwhile in the case of commercial or industrial buildings it will be permitted to put aside and to make use of parking spaces for vehicles in all parts of the land other than that comprising the area between the street and the required distance from the street of the structure."

adopted without exceptions. WITHOUT EXCEPTIONS, it would mean that as the "tremendous surge" from the rural areas into the cities continues, the rural areas would be left with "negligible representation."

THE EXCEPTIONS Mr. Diefenbaker, who once lost his seat through redistribution, now leads a rural party in Parliament and would face much tougher city representation after redistribution along the lines the Liberals now suggest.

The Liberals were committed to the non-partisan commission in the 1962 and 1963 elections. They attacked the "characteristic delay" of the Diefenbaker government for not having arranged redistribution on the basis of the 1961 census. As a result, some parts of the country were denied their proper representation, the Liberals charged.

The huge task of redistribution will take about three years. The Commission will go to work this fall report in late '64 or early '65, and Parliament will be asked to approve the report in 1965.

How it will be done, is not yet firm, but it seems that the Commission will be divided into four regional, independent groups.

THE UNFAIRNESS One would be set up in the Atlantic Provinces, others in Quebec and Ontario, and the fourth in the West, covering the three Prairie Provinces and B.C.

THE IDEA IS TO make representation as fair as possible, but it can never be absolutely fair, nor will it please everyone.

Who will be the non-partisan members of the non-partisan commission? Here's a political football. And the population changes always underway in Canada sometimes make what is fair today unfair tomorrow.

The unfairness of the present situation is caused by an increase of 4,000,000 in Canada's population between the census of 1951 and the census of 1961, nearly all in the urban areas.

By 1965-66, when the legislation is ready, Canada will probably have added another 3,000,000 since 1961, but the redistribution will likely be based on the 1961 census.

The distribution will never satisfy anyone. ESPECIALLY IF you're a defeated candidate, who feels you just might have won if only — if the riding had been bent here, pushed out there twisted a bit in the middle.

Among the items to be discussed during Synod will be the controversial issue of female representation.

Quebec Diocese remains one of the few in Canada which under Canon Law may elect only male delegate to Synod. The question of percentage apportionment for budget will also be debated.

Reports to be presented during the 54th Session will include those of the diocesan board of education, the board of missions, the council for social service and many others. Delegates will hear about Quebec's participation in the Anglican Congress to be held in Toronto during August.

A highlight of the Synod will be the blessing of a Motomara which begins its tour of Canada in the ancient capital. The Motomara will display exhibits from every ecclesiastical province in the world and should be of great interest to Anglicans through Canada and the United States.

Synod will close with a great missionary rally organized by the Woman's Auxiliary at which the speaker will be the Rt. Rev. Hall. This will take place in St. Michael's Parish Hall, Sillery, May 22nd at 8 p.m.

FALLOUT THICK

consists merely of "aging" the cells slightly.

Why is strontium-90 more similar than other elements of fallout debris — such as iodine-131, cesium-137, carbon-14, strontium-89 and barium-140? The strontium-90 that is showered on the land during spring-time infects growing plants and to some extent the animals that eat these plants. It is therefore especially prevalent in milk.

Strontium has a long life, whereas other deadly elements like iodine-131, have a short life; iodine-131 has an eight-day half-life expectancy, strontium has 28 years.

REMAINS FOREVER Strontium collects in the bone marrow and can cause bone cancer and leukemia (the amount is still undetermined and hotly debated by scientists). Because of its long life and residency in the bone, strontium is virtually impossible to eliminate from the body.

Iodine-131, on the other hand, tends to collect in the thyroid and though it can cause cancer, it can also be eliminated easier by biological means. Cesium-137, too, collects in the muscle and tissue and can be eliminated through normal cells nad tissue turn-over.

The damage being done to future generations by fallout radiation today is still only a matter for speculation — and provides provocative material for science-fiction writers.

In Canada the danger level for strontium-90 is set at 78 to 80 (the formula for measurement is complicated and unimportant for us potential victims to understand). This means it's considered safe to have a constant, year-long intake of strontium-90 in the diet if its count is below 80. The highest average count in Canada has been 30 to 32.

The figure varies every month, but no area in Canada where 17 government milk-testing stations are located has ever had a count higher than 60 — and that only for a short time.

"We certainly aren't anticipating a rise to the danger level this year," says Dr. Bird.

Understandably the United States has done more research into radiation hazards than has Canada, and the U.S. has suggested limits for exposure.

Range two, based on a yearly average of exposure, is a "warning zone" but doesn't necessitate any action. Parts of Canada are in the lower end of Range two — considerable distance from the order of Range three, which is the "danger zone" that requires countermeasures.

PASTURE PROBLEMS In the U.S. (but not Canada) cows have been switched to uncontaminated pastures and fresh milk supplied have been diverted because of the presence of short-lived but potentially deadly iodine-131. Iodine fallout occurs soon after high altitude tests so there is no danger at the moment.

Canada's Radioactive Protection Division has 60 or so workers and is part of the federal Health and Welfare Department. It has 17 whole and powdered milk testing stations across southern Canada, and 24 meteorological stations splattered over the nation that test rainfall and air for radiation. The government radiation division cooperates with provincial, municipal and university testing groups. But comparing statistics of areas and other nations is difficult because there is no uniform standard of measurement.

HIGHEST EVER Last year Sussex, N.B., won the dubious honor of having the highest strontium level in milk FOR A SHORT PERIOD — a count of 55 for strontium-90 and 78 for strontium-89. One of the "safest" areas was London, Ont., which had a high of 15 in strontium-90 and 23 in strontium-89.

Critics of the government say we should have more than 17 milk-testing stations because there may be "freak" concentrations of fallout that are blighting communities without anyone knowing it

Miss Marjorie Moir elected president

The annual meeting of the local Business and Professional Women's Club was held as usual at the Baptist Church hall when a turkey supper was enjoyed, served by ladies of the church.

The attractively decorated tables were arranged by Miss Marjorie Moir, with spring flowers provided by Miss Alice Milford.

The retiring president, Mrs. Neil Tracy presided at the monthly meeting, followed by the annual business meeting.

All departments presented reports and acknowledgments of flowers and sympathy were read. A minute's silence observed the passing on May 1, of a valued member for several years, the late Miss Ethel Taylor of Lennoxville.

A vote of thanks to all retiring officers and committees was proposed by Miss Bessie Milford.

The following is the new slate of officers: President, Miss Marjorie Moir; 1st vice-president, Miss Suzanne Dubois; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Lillian Turnbull; recording secretary, Miss Margaret Heigh; corresponding secretary, Miss Leta Seymour; treasurer, Miss Luvia Farnsworth; directors, Mrs. Neil Tracy, Miss Bessie Bryce, Miss Leslie Fales, and Mrs. Eva Labelle.

The June meeting will be held on the second Monday of that month, at which the officers will be installed.

On the wall of a 2,000-year-old tomb in Jerusalem there is a carving of an ancient galley, full rigged and with banks of oars. This carving served as the model for the reverse design of the latest commemorative coin issued by the Bank of Israel.

On May 15 the State of Israel will celebrate its 15th anniversary. Each year, beginning with the 10th anniversary, there has been a commemorative silver coin of five Israel pounds.

This year the theme of the coin is "seafaring" and each side depicts a ship, one ancient, one modern. On the obverse of the coin is the smokestack of a modern steamer and part of its superstructure. In the background is the Bay of Haifa and Mount Carmel.

On the base of the smokestack there is the numeral 5 and underneath the Hebrew words for "Israel Pounds."

Around it, there is the inscription "Israel" in Hebrew and Arabic, and the year 1963, with its equivalent in Hebrew letters.

Below the representation of the ancient ship on the reverse, there is a legend in archaic Hebrew, "Year 15 of the Liberation of Israel."

Around the edge of the coin there is an incuse inscription in Hebrew, "15th year of the State of Israel."

The coin, which is .900 fine silver, was struck at the Italian state mint, La Zecca, and the issue is limited to 6,000 regular coins and 4,000 proofs.

MUSIC ON RECORDS

By HUGH DOHERTY

MOUSSORGSKY: A Night on Bare Mountain; Pictures at an Exhibition Royal Philharmonic Orchestra, Rene Leibowitz cond. (Stereo RCA Victor VCS 2659) — This recording, part of a two-record special offer, is billed as an example of the "orchestra in all its sonic glory," and it lives up to its billing completely. Both works are well-known for their color and tunefulness, and under the baton of Mr. Leibowitz, they fairly blaze with musical brilliance. As a stereophonic treat, this recording has much to recommend it.

MOZART PIANO MUSIC: Sonatas, vols. 4 and 5; Arthur Balsam, pianist; London-L'Oiseau-Lyre (mono OL 253) — All that is Mozart is contained in these sonatas composed in the 1770's both for his own pleasure and on commission. Mr. Balsam's performance is faultless, capturing in a crisp interpretation the sparkling mastery of the composer.

Karl Barth

A theological success story

Portrait of Karl Barth by Georges Casalis, Doubleday, 135 pp., $4.

Karl Barth was born in Basel, Switzerland, on May 10, 1886. In April 1962 he made the cover of Time magazine.

This is a man who has been something of a mystery to English-speaking people. He has written a six-million-word, seven-thousand-page, twelve-volume Dogmatics, not to mention 40 or 50 other books, and several hundred learned articles. Not since Calvin and Luther has Protestantism had a single theologian of the stature and importance of the Karl Barth.

The purpose of this book is to give to the English-speaking readers what its title suggests, a Portrait of Karl Barth. In a very long introduction, Robert McAfee Brown has endeavored to provide a link between Barth and the American community.

The difficulty we experience in understanding Barth is that his theology comes across the Atlantic "second-hand". As a result, many of Barth's theories and tenets have been widely attacked.

Dr. Brown's introduction will give us a finer appreciation of Barth's life, and give greater significance to his thought. "One can responsibly disagree with Barth; one cannot responsibly ignore him", Dr. Brown states.

Part two of the book, The Direction of Barth's Life, tells something about the man. It traces the development of Barth's profound teachings from his youth and early ministry in Switzerland through his encounter with the Nazi regime in pre-war Germany; his struggle to lead the Confessional Church to repudiate Nazi doctrine; his prophetic role during World War II, and his rise in recent years to world-wide prominence.

The book concludes with a Critical Analysis of Barth's Principal Works.

Those who are acquainted with Barth will appreciate this analysis and find it very profitable. I would imagine, however, that those who approach Barth for the first time will find this quite academic.

Since Barth is, without doubt, one of our greatest theologians, this book should prove helpful to those anxious to know something about the man himself.

Saturday's book shelf

Edited by GLADYS TAYLOR

By GLADYS TAYLOR

This week one of my extra-columnar (if I may coin an expression) duties was to "promote and encourage the buying and reading" of "inspirational" books at the annual meeting of the Quebec-Sherbrooke Presbyterian United Church Women, held on Thursday in Trinity United Church in Sherbrooke.

Although this task, as I find everything related to books, was pleasant and stimulating, one thing about it bothered me. That was the apparent gap, at least in the minds of some, between what might be termed secular and sacred reading.

Why do people expect, and usually find, such a great difference between the books found in a church library and those in a public library? Is it necessary for there to be such a difference? If it isn't necessary how can we overcome the fallacy held by so many that some books are Sunday reading and some are sexy reading—and never the twain shall meet?

It has been my unfortunate experience to find there is a great difference between the books in most church libraries and those in a public library. Personally, I blame this state of affairs on psychological rather than moral causes. I suspect too many church libraries are in charge of that generation which believed that certain books were not to be read on the sabbath and certain subjects never discussed or read about. Ergo there is a limited type of book found in a church library. Ergo the books in a church library are seldom disturbed, because the average reader is convinced that though he may be improved by reading them he'll most certainly be bored!

Is it necessary for there to be this censor curtain between the books we borrow from a church library and from a public library? In my opinion, no. There was no such division in the church's first library, namely the Bible. The objective reader must surely admit that there is no sin or perversion dealt with in contemporary literature which was not already mentioned in the Bible. At the same time, I don't for a moment suggest on these grounds that every book based on a Biblical sin should be included in the church library; they shouldn't—but this is not because of the sin itself, but because some writers manage to debauch even debauchery.

What I am trying to say is that there may be a place on our church shelves for books of the Lady Chatterley ilk, not only because they would revitalize our libraries, but because ladies of ill-repute are as much a part of our contemporary scene as the adulthood of Jesus' day—and He taught a lesson through her. Isn't it possible that there is more to be learned from reading a few questionable books than from leaving unread all the "good" books now gathering dust in most church libraries?

How can we bridge the gap between the purely lift-your-eyes-to-heaven type of book customarily found in church libraries and the life-like-that type of book popular in secular circles?

To judge by the books from the church publishing houses displayed at Trinity United Church this week, I would say the editors of religious books—long the prime culprits in making church book shelves repellent to the lay reader—have finally given over foisting Victorian-age writing on space-age readers and "got with it." Titles as up-to-date as "Telstar" indicate to me that church books can now compete successfully with any books being offered to the public by the secular presses today.

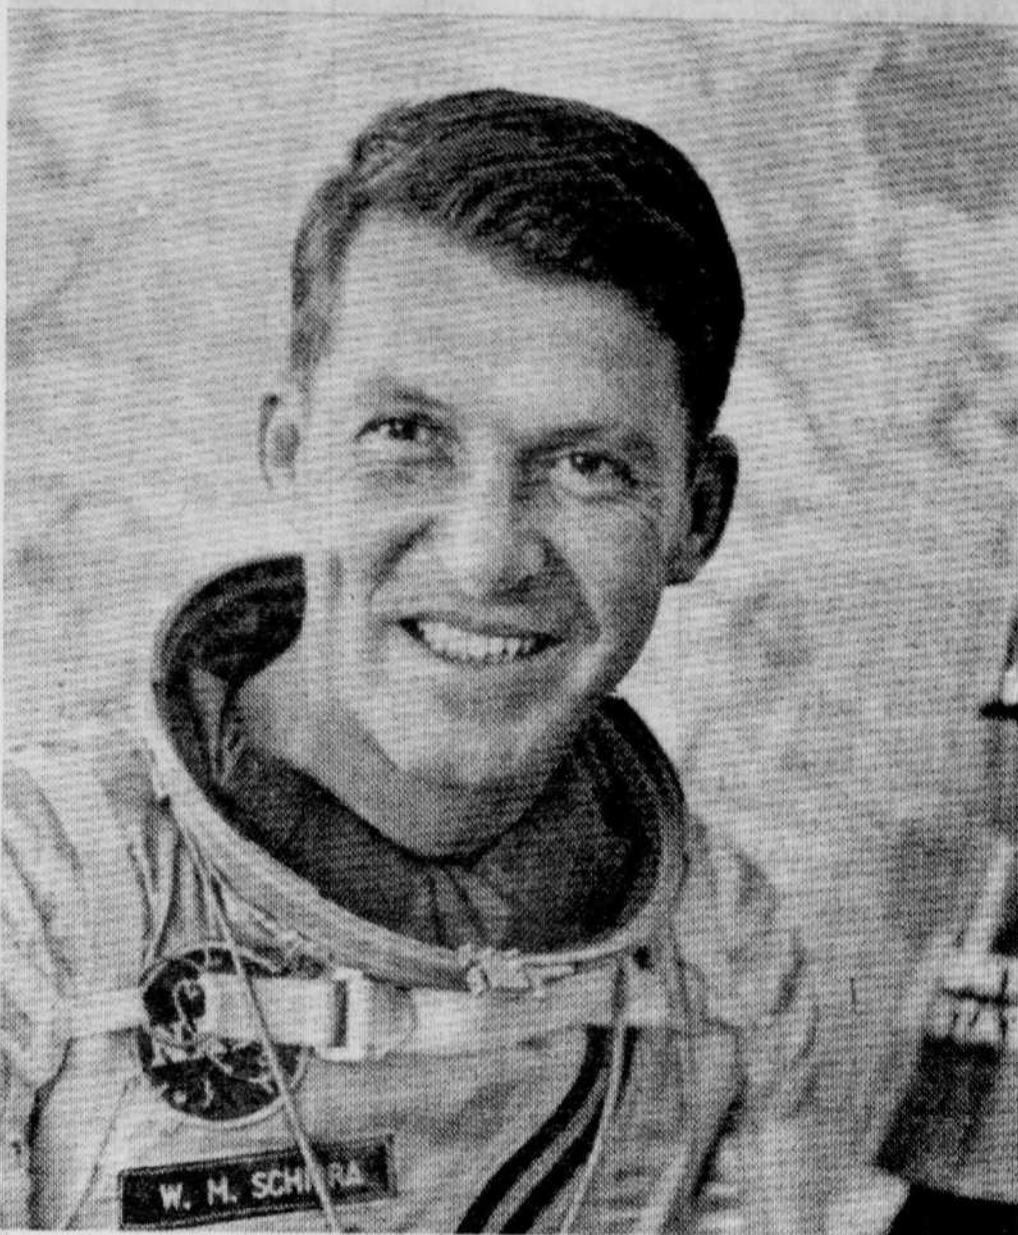

Also encouraging to those troubled by the hiatus between so-called sacred and secular reading is the fact that more writers, following the trend of such notables as Lloyd C. Douglas and Scholem Asch, are attempting to write books which effectively

FAMOUS PIONEERS IN SPACE

Clarke Newlon

FAMOUS PIONEERS IN SPACE by Clarke Newlon, Dodd, Mead, 122 pp., $3.75.

"Mankind will not remain tied to Earth forever. In his quest for light and space, man will penetrate beyond the atmosphere, timidly at first, and will then win for himself all the space around the sun."

These words quoted in this newest book from "Famous Biographies for Young People" series, were written in 1898 by a Russian scientist named Konstantin Tsiolkovsky.

In spite of the let-down at Cape Canaveral earlier this week, we can see how prophetic he was.

Famous Pioneers in Space describes the story of man's moon-search, from the day in 1926 when Dr. Robert Goddard launched from a New England hilltop his first "Nell"—forerunner of Atlas, Apollo and the continuing development of space vehicles—to the successful six-orbit flight of Walter Schirra.

Including in its pages photographs and details of both the Russian and American astronauts and of the two countries' race for space, the book is attractive, readable, instructive and fascinating. Certainly it's a must for the boy with his sights set on the moon.

G. T.

Could it happen?

TWO HOURS TO DARKNESS by Antony Trew, Collins, 320 pp., $3.75.

In an age when man has made it possible by advanced scientific discovery to eliminate himself with nuclear arms, one might well ask oneself this question: Is it possible to trigger nuclear war accidentally? This question and others like it have resulted in a trend of speculation which has produced a number of fictional accounts dealing with the causes of nuclear wars of one kind and another.

All take place in the very near future, a time which in itself is rather disconcerting. Nevertheless, this novel has one saving factor. Even though the reader knows after the first fifty pages what the point of conflict will be it is very doubtful that he will force the conclusion; thus Mr. Trew is to be congratulated for his originality.

Four saints

They were Godly — but obsessed

THE SECRETS OF THE SAINTS by Henri Gheon, Doubleday, 395 pp., $1.25.

It is difficult to decide just what were the secrets of these Saints, since Author Gheon seems to be familiar with the most intimate details of their individual lives. There seems to be nothing left untold. He deals with the lives of four Saints—St. John Baptist Vianney, who was the Cure d'Ars; St. Therese of Lisieux; St. Margaret Mary, and St. John Bosco.

This is a book that will be best tolerated by Roman Catholics, and even they may be hard-pressed to accept and digest the incredible behaviour of this obsessed quartet. Such a book is a delicate problem to review honestly. We feel compelled to make a decision between accepting these Saints as they are here depicted with faith and love, or rejecting them by sheer force of common sense.

On one side we have St. John Baptist Vianney with his rather sober habits of flagging himself nightly and of going without food and sleep; we have St. Therese, having visions at the age of six years and lengthy illnesses, complete with hallucinations, terminating abruptly by miraculous cure.

There is St. Margaret Mary taking a vow of chastity at the age of three years and, in her adolescence, binding her arms with chains "which pulled off flesh when they were removed"; and finally St. John Bosco, who, for two years, was engaged in a struggle with the devil to quote: "The devil sat on him, dragged him up by the shoulders, loosened wild beasts against him—bears, tigers, serpents—and sometimes even took the form of a prehistoric monster, filling the whole room with his scaly length, plunging and roaring."

On the other side of the scale we have the deep sincerity of the author and the Saints. There is no doubt of their purity, holiness, and enormous love of God.

Unfortunately, M. Gheon dwells on the physical weakness that seems peculiar to each of his four.

However, the book gives food for thought. He presents these four, so dedicated, so single-minded, so full of love that they have been selected by the Master for His own designs.

Even if we reject this idea as contrary to reason, the feeling persists and because of it, the book bears reading and the memory of it lingers.

A HISTORY OF CANADA, Vol. I, by Gustave Lanctot, translated by Josephine Hambleton, Clarke Irwin, 393 pp., $6.75.

In this first volume of his History of Canada, those who do not read French or read it with difficulty have in the competent translation of Josephine Hambleton the work of one of the leading veterans of Canadian history, Dr. Gustave Lanctot.

It is the product of a lifetime of study and research, and tells with thoroughness

Scotfield scores three in a row

LONDON—Dr. Paul Scotfield's performance in the Stratford, Ont., production of Coriolanus two years ago began a dramatic tour de force that has seldom been equaled in modern English theatre.

From Canada the 41-year-old actor proceeded to take Broadway by storm as Sir Thomas More in Robert Bolt's Man for All Seasons.

and sweep the story of what Dr. Lanctot calls the "heroic period" of the Canadian story.

And heroic it was. New France may be described as the creation of the Roman Catholic Church, a small group of Huguenot investors, who controlled "the commercial enterprises of Canada," the Indians, who taught the settlers how to live and travel in their rugged country, and above all the few hundreds of missionaries and pioneers who were led for nearly thirty years by the great Champlain.

These were the builders of the colony. They watched over its morals and teaching and maintained its sobriety and industry. They defended its soil and trade as bravely as they could. They explored and trapped and brought in the furs on which the economy rested. And they built into its early history the devotion, heroism and durable character which have enlivened and inspired the people of today who sprang from these remarkable ancestors.

Dr. Lanctot's history has many interesting facets. Taken as a whole, the achievement summed up above is the lasting moral of his tale. But during the first 60 years of the 17th century the reader will probably be more immediately impressed by the vicissitudes, dangers and nearly total disaster that threatened the little colony from one end of the period to the other. Just about every obstacle and set-back conceivable fell upon it.

Over all hung the greatest problem of all, "the shortage of man-power," and the refusal of Louis XIV and Richelieu to release to the colony the few hundred soldiers which, by giving New France adequate defence, might have completely altered its history. Plan after plan to bring in settlers, and to establish a system of defensive posts was drawn up, but all failed.

It is adversity and massacre, therefore, that stalk through so many of these chapters. They were overcome, as we know, and as Dr. Lanctot shows in his plain and closely told story, by the determination of the few who came to New France and drove their roots deep into its soil.

Readers of the older histories will be interested too by the early chapters that take us back into the misty

Collecting

Townships

The post office department of Australia has some interesting new issues planned for the near future. The worldwide centenary of the Red Cross was commemorated on May 8 with a fivepenny stamp printed in blue and featuring the symbol of this organization and a stylized drawing of a lamp.

A fivepenny stamp will be issued on May 28 to commemorate the 150th anniversary of the crossing of the Blue Mountains. This stamp will be in the usual large format.

The big news from "down under" is the set of stamps for the Cocos (Keeling) Islands. This will add another country to the stamp albums of many collectors.

There is no country that has the number of pictorial stamps in the definitive set as do Papua and New Guinea. The newest ones show small fishing boats on one and an aircraft landing at the Tapini airstrip on the other. Collectors have found that the stamps from Australia are readily available and issued in number that sustain the interest throughout the year, and used copies are really cheap to obtain.

Ascension Island was discovered by the Portuguese navigator Joao da Nova on Ascension Day, 1501. It remained uninhabited until 1815, when it was occupied by the British in connection with the detention of Napoleon on St. Helena.

From 1815 to 1922 it was under the British Admiralty, and it is worthy of note that all those born on the island during this period were deemed to have been born at sea and were registered at Wapping, England.

In 1922 the Colonial Office took over its administration and annexed it to St. Helena. It is a solitary island of volcanic origin lying 750 miles southeast of St. Helena. It consists of a rugged tableland with the largest crater, Green Mountain, rising to a height of 2,870 feet. The climate is hot, but healthy and fairly dry.

At the moment the United States maintains a base on the island. This base is part of the Bahamas Long Range Proving Ground for guided missiles. This offers employment and consequently the population has increased. Normally the only people on the island are the employees of the cable and radio stations and their families, two St. Helena constables, and the manager of the radio station, who also acts as the representative of the St. Helena government.

The postal work is done by another employee, and the justice of the peace still another one. Through the years many expeditions have stayed on the island to examine the wildlife, especially the wide-awake or back-backed tern which breeds there.

The Freedom from Hunger stamps are still arriving daily, and there are some sets now in the higher priced range, up to two dollars for a set. This was to be expected, as many Governments cannot resist the temptation to add some extra dollars to the treasury from the sale of stamps.

The Eastern Townships Stamp Club held a successful meeting the other evening. The auction was well balanced with British Colonials, foreign stamps, covers, both first day and stampless, early Canadian, and plate blocks.

The bidding was lively on many items and the prices realized were satisfactory to the sellers. This group has surely had a good season. The coming of spring and the summer weather in a few months will slow down stamp activity but it does seem that one of the clubs should be able to arrange a small stamp exhibition, and do so successfully.

It could very well be that many are setting their sights too high and become discouraged after seeing the professional shows in Montreal or Toronto. There is no need for a fabulous display of early Canadian stamps or the imperforate issues of Upper Bavaria. Instead, colorful issues such as the Polish dog set, collections of flowers or stamps, and so on, are the stamps that the man in the street will look at.

How about it—do we have a show in Lennoxville or Sherbrooke in the near future?

Artistic crisis in New Zealand

AUCKLAND—The naming of a play has brought a crisis in Auckland's annual Festival of the Arts.

The play was Fairy Tales of New York by the American dramatist J. P. Donleavy. When it came before the planning committee, it was attacked by Canon E. Blackwood Moore, an Anglican vicar, who explained:

"There was quite a bit about homosexuality and there was a passage about a woman becoming pregnant through sitting in a bath."

Rejection was by majority vote. Paul Beadle, professor of fine arts at Auckland University, at once resigned. "I cannot continue," he said, "to be a member of a committee which is obviously determined to have Sunday-school purity and drawing-room respectability as its standards."

The Auckland University Drama Society intends to produce it anyway without festival support.

foundation of research that has gone into this period in recent decades. Dr. Lanctot concluded that the first discoverers of the continent, who landed and established themselves on the banks of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, were a group of Irish refugees from Iceland.

These landings belong to the last quarter of the ninth century. The first account on them comes from the year 1007, and a few years later two Eskimos told the Norsemen that "there (south of Labrador) dwelled men who walked clad in white, bearing before them as they sang in loud voice, long poles to which were attached strips of stuffs."

Dr. Lanctot comments: "A native could not describe more graphically a procession of Irish monks in white frocks, chanting their liturgies."

There are sketch maps, including one of Quebec in 1370 and one of Montreal in 1683, and a half a dozen interesting reproductions of ancient prints of Hochelaga, Quebec, and Norse maps.

Y'S MEN'S TRACK MEET ON TAP TODAY

The 21st annual Y's Men's Track and Field Meet take place today at the Parade Grounds and if the field is in good condition a few records should be set. This year only nine schools will be competing compared to 19 last year. This is owing to the Bedford District Track and Field Meet which takes place today in St. Johns.

The Sherbrooke meet is sanctioned by the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada and the only qualified starter is Jack Martin of Montreal. He couldn't come next week, the usual time the meet is held, owing to the fact he is working the provincial meet in Montreal.

In past years the Y's Men's meet was the last in the District and all winners of the various meets throughout the Townships converged on Sherbrooke to seek higher laurels. It is a shame the two meets are taking place on the same day as this will split things, but Curtis Bishop, general chairman, states that with only nine schools they will have about the same number of contestants in Sherbrooke.

The Bedford meet is a mixed event, boys and girls, while the Y's Men's is strictly boys. The Hi-Y sponsors the girls' meet next week. It would be interesting to see all the boys competing this year since for the past few months plenty of interest has developed around these parts with the formation of the E. T. Track Association.

The youngsters have competed in Montreal in a few meets and did very well. They picked up quite a few prizes and topped the top team honors. This is quite a change from past years when the only meets were the ones sponsored by the various schools prior to the Y's Men's event.

As to what school will win it is hard to judge if you glance over the remarks from the different coaches. No one predicts his team will win so it looks like a wide open battle for the Skinner Team Trophy. We think Bishop's College School will be hard to dethrone.

Sunnyside High School of Stanstead might be the dark horse of the meet. We figure they will be pretty close to the top after the final tabulations. They have been working hard, we understand, and will come up with some pretty good runners and field representatives.

The school which has the largest number of contestants in Pee Wee, Bantam and Midgets should do well in the results. A few in Juvenile and Junior classes to pick up a few points and the outcome could be decided. BCS, last year, was forced to come from behind in the final three classes to win the team trophy and from what Sam Abbott says it will be tougher this year since he has lost a few good boys.

SHS and LHS should be right along with the rest in the thick of things. Coach Jim Terauds of Sunnyside is the only one who predicts his team will win 20 points more than last year and if they do that then they will be the 1963 champions.

The National Hockey League Statistical Cards are now available and can be had by writing to Information Bureau, National Hockey League No. 922 Sun Life Building, Montreal. They contain the final official statistics for both the regular season and playoffs for 1962-63.

The B. M. Bombers, members of the Metropolitan Football League, are in search of players for the coming season. Anyone interested is asked to contact Buster Longtin at Farnham by calling AXIOME 3-6093. The executive wishes to find out how many players they will have from last year's team with new ones.

The Orleans Country Club is staging its fifth annual Spring Rumble tomorrow with prizes in all three classes, A, B and C. All contestants require Provincial handicap, 1962, and must produce card when registering. There will be gross and net prizes in each class. You may register with the pro for starting time.

The Lake Massawippi Fish and Game Protection Club is holding its annual banquet at Ripplecove Inn, Ayer's Cliff, next Wednesday. This is a social evening and a special program has been arranged. All members are asked to contact Leland Mosher, secretary, for tickets for this enjoyable affair. The dinner will commence at 6 p.m. followed by social activities.

Baseball fans will get their first glimpse of the 1963 edition of the Sherbrooke Alouettes Sunday afternoon at the Park Avenue Stadium when they play hosts to the Acton Vale Beavers.

The game will commence at 2:30 p.m. and Coach Claude St. Vincent will no doubt use as many hurlers he can in order to see what condition they are in. The season officially opens here next Sunday when the Coaticook Canadians will be the visiting club.

Manager Yvon Ellyson is still hunting for players although he has 10 in the fold. He may sign a few over the weekend. The team will work out today in preparation for tomorrow's game. Coach St. Vincent will use as many players as he can to give everyone a test under fire. The Beavers will be tough as they have a good team.

Gaston Bergeron, chairman of the ticket committee, will be on hand this afternoon to look after any fan desiring season tickets.

Rain may cause upset in $150,000 added Preakness, outsiders stand chance in winning over favorites

BALTIMORE (AP) — Rain, the total purse of $150,000, rich was added Friday to the probability of a three-year-old.

Pre-race excitement centered on the return showdown among John W. Galbreath's Chateaugay, Harry F. Guggenheim's Never Bend and Rex Ellsworth's Candy Spots, who finished in that order in the Kentucky Derby May 4.

It was scored as an upset for Chateaugay and the experts are not convinced he can go on to become the first grand-slammer since 1948, when Citation added the Preakness and Belmont for the triple crown.

The Pimlico program will carry Candy Spots as the probable favorite at 7-5, Chateaugay and Never Bend each at 5-2.

Racing season officially opens Sunday

Free-for-All pace main event on ten-class program, Post Time 2:15, 79 horses entered in initial card

The Sherbrooke Racing season officially opens tomorrow afternoon when a ten-class program will be presented. A total of seventy-nine horses will face Starter Alexis Loranger with Post Time booked for 2:15 p.m.

Eight horses are entered in the main event, a Free-for-All Pace for a purse of $350. Three will be making their initial start at Sherbrooke while the other five are well known at the local oval. Gypsy Rose Chief, Nifty Chief, Mighty Counsel C, Ruth Dudley, Gee Dee Frisco, Lotus Volo, Tony Clapp and Flagman comprise the class.

This season the horses are classified by their winnings in 1962 which is a little different from past years. This is a new system introduced by the Canadian Trotting Association and is in force at all tracks across Canada.

A new feature has been added on Sunday's card which is known as the "Maidens Pace" and this class has seven starters. This is a class for young horses and should be interesting as they will be making their debuts in racing.

The First and Tenth races are for purses of $275 and have eight starters in each class.

Rudy Pilous will be fired as coach of Black Hawks, decision made last week, Billy Reay will take over ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — The Standard says that Chicago Black Hawks coach Rudy Pilous will be fired within the next two days. Source of the information was not revealed.

The newspaper says the decision was made last weekend at a meeting of Hawks' general manager Tommy Ivan and co-owners Jim Norris and Arthur Wirtz.

Johnny Gottselig, veteran Chicago publicist, agent and former Black Hawk player was fired a week ago after 35 years with the club.

Pilous, manager-coach of St. Catharines Teepees in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series from 1950 until 1957, took over as coach of the Hawks Jan. 1, 1958, when they were in last place in the National Hockey League.

He helped them into fifth place in the last half of the schedule and they made the playoffs for the next five years, winning the Stanley Cup in 1961. They finished second to Toronto Maple Leafs in the 1962-63 season.

The Standard says the reason for the dismissal is probably the Hawks' slump late in the 1962-63 season and their elimination by Detroit Red Wings in the semi-final.

Pilous refused to confirm the dismissal.

The Standard says Billy Reay, former Montreal Canadiens star and one-time coach of the Leafs, may become the Hawks' 22nd coach in 37 years.

Reay coached Chicago's American Hockey League farm team, Buffalo Bisons, to the league pennant and playoff championship this season.

Reay, who was with the Bisons for two seasons, was fired last week after 35 years with the club.

Harness racing opens in Sherbrooke for the 1963 season Sunday afternoon.

Sherbrooke Race Track officials have announced a ten-race program, and expect a good crowd.

The track grandstand, which will be serving its first complete season this year, can accommodate 1,800 — plus 1,000 in supplementary seats if the weather is fair.

Sherbrooke Pacing Club President Roger Trudeau has announced spot saliva tests as an innovation at the race meetings this year.

Tests are designed to protect competing stables, and bettors at the pari-mutuel machines, against the use of drugs on horses.

A lab for the checks has been set up in the paddock, and President Judge Roger Roberge will receive reports of analyses made in Montreal. Lifetime suspensions can be placed on offending stables.

Eileen Morgan, secretary, has announced that a number of new stables have registered to enter horses in this year's competition.

Owners include Ovila Surprenant of Farnham and Marc Noisieux of Philipsburg.

The new grandstand was officially opened Aug. 26, 1962, but had been in use for racing cards for a month before that.

The Eastern Townships Agricultural Association's previous grandstand was razed by a 1961 fire.

Plans were already afoot during the 1962 season to install the saliva-test facilities in compliance with a Canadian Trotting Association request, but the late start of the season caused postponement.

Dr. L. Gendreau, track veterinarian, will supervise the tests—which will be on a spot basis—this year.
