Both sides claim successes

Fighting continues in Middle East

From AP-REUTER

Both sides in the new Middle East war are claiming successes, but there is no talk in Israel of a six-day blitz to match their 1967 victory. And on the Arab side Syria, at least, also is controlling its optimism.

A senior Israeli air force officer said Monday that Israel had command of the skies but the Egyptian and Syrian air forces "are still basically intact."

"We did not attack and eliminate them on the ground as in the six-day war," he said in a television interview.

Another interviewed Israeli officer, fighting on the Suez Canal front against Egypt, praised the ferocity and discipline of the Egyptian attack and said he was encountering weapons and tactics he hadn't seen before.

On the Golan Heights front, the responsibility of Syria in the Arabs' two-pronged attack, there were no victory claims from the Syrian side, an indication that Israel's claims of advances there were accurate. Damascus Radio has issued no new communiques since before noon Monday, merely repeating earlier information.

Israel reported by Monday afternoon that the Syrian troops and armor were "fleeing in disarray" toward Damascus, but later admitted there were stubborn pockets of resistance.

Israeli chief of staff Gen. David Elazar, asked if Israeli troops intended to move on Damascus, replied:

"The troops are moving from our territory against the other side. We shall see in the next few days the direction and the results."

Israel's top military analyst and former military intelligence chief, Gen. Chaim Herzog, forecast Monday night that a final decision could be a few more days away.

Egyptian communiques were more optimistic than the Syrian. They said Egyptian troops captured the town of El Qantara of the east bank of the Suez Canal in hand-to-hand combat and raided an oilfield, both held by Israel since the 1968 war.

Cairo said fires were set at the oilfield, a driller was destroyed and "our troops returned safely to their bases."

There was no word on the attack from the Israelis. The field supplies most of Israel's domestic oil needs.

Egypt said Israeli planes caused some civilian casualties when they attacked the city of Port Said at the northern end of the Suez Canal Monday night. An Israeli spokesman said the attacks lasted all day Monday but insisted only missile batteries and other military targets around the city were hit.

Egypt warned today it might make retaliatory air strikes against Israeli towns.

An Israeli military spokesman said the Syrians had fired long-range Soviet-made ground-to-ground rockets at Israeli civilian settlements during the last two days.

He said the rockets, which have a range of 40 miles and a 110-pound warhead, caused some casualties and damage. A school was destroyed but the children were in the shelter at the time.

Intermittent mortar fire also was fired early today from Lebanon at three Israeli settlements, Israel radio said. No damage was caused.

Each side's claims differed widely, and foreign correspondents were prevented from going to the fronts to get confirmation.

Egypt and Syria said they brought down 60 more Israeli planes Monday for a three-day total of 160, a third of Israel's 480-plane air force. The Israeli command said its air losses were far less than those of the Arabs, which it estimated at 85 to 90 planes.

Naval action also was reported, with Israel claiming its naval units sank three Egyptian missile boats in a Mediterranean battle off the Nile Delta without suffering damage themselves.

Security Council—stalemate

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Prospects for swift Security Council action to end the Middle East war looked bleak after the 15-country body cut short a meeting Monday night. Backstage negotiations continued.

The main disagreement was over the positions the opposing armies should take up following an end of hostilities. No date was set for a further meeting, but diplomatic sources said it could be held late today.

The United States appeared alone Monday with its proposal that the council call for a return to military positions held before the outbreak of fighting Saturday.

China called the idea "preposterous" and, with the Soviet Union, demanded Israeli withdrawal from all Arab lands occupied in the 1967 war.

Some sources said war news was so contradictory that some council members were waiting for a clearer picture to emerge before taking position on a ceasefire resolution.

U.S. Ambassador John Scali told the council the "least damaging way" to end the fighting was to restore the ceasefire lines that Egypt and Syria crossed Saturday. Later he said the United States had "ideas which we will be discussing within the government and with other governments."

SOVIETS, CHINESE AGREE

Soviet Ambassador Jacob Malik said Israel must be forced to abandon the parts of Egypt, Jordan and Syria it has occupied with the "support of imperialist circles" since 1967. He blamed Israel and its allies for the outbreak of fighting.

while in the Red Sea Israeli planes attacked and hit two Egyptian vessels.

At the United Nations, a Security Council meeting broke up after less than two hours Monday night after the United States rejected Soviet and Chinese demands that a ceasefire resolution include a demand that Israel withdraw from all territory seized in the 1967 war. The U.S. proposed that the council call for a restoration of the ceasefire lines before Egypt and Syria attacked Saturday.

U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger warned in a speech in Washington Monday night that the U.S.-Soviet detente could fall apart if the Soviet Union failed to act responsibly in the Middle East. Earlier, the White House disclosed that President Nixon admitted that "fierce fighting" and Soviet Communist party was continuing.

The Egyptian version was changed messages Sunday night about the new crisis in the Middle East.

Israel said its troops had canal Saturday "drove back halted the Egyptian thrust into Israeli forces, destroyed most of the Sinai peninsula and pushed their equipment and forced them the Egyptian troops and tanks to retreat."

Election notebook

PQ weekend whipping boy

MONTREAL (CP)—Leaders of three of Quebec's four political parties spent Monday criticizing the Parti Quebecois while PQ leader Rene Levesque claimed that voters' lists in Montreal ridings were inaccurate for the Oct. 29 provincial election.

Mr. Levesque told 650 persons attending his first public campaign meeting in his home riding of Dorion just west of here that more than 100,000 qualified voters have been left off lists in 24 east-end ridings.

He also told reporters that another 25,000 are missing from lists in 10 west-end ridings.

Those figures, he said, were arrived at by checking Montreal water tax records and by door-to-door surveys by party members.

A permanent voters' list for all Quebec was drawn up last summer but Montreal voters have a nine-day period starting Oct. 11 to make corrections to the list.

Earlier Monday, Premier Robert Bourassa told a rally in Dorion that the Parti Quebecois will "meet its Waterloo" today when it unveils its budget for the first year of an independent Quebec.

Mr. Bourassa, who is not campaigning during the next three days, said he had asked earlier that the Parti Quebecois unveil its budget but the separatist party is doing so just before election day, cutting short debate.

"I have the impression this will be a gloomy document," Mr. Bourassa said. He suspected the Parti Quebecois would present a surplus but "they have worked very hard to arrive at the surplus

He said the Liberals would have answers for all the Parti Quebecois figures, with the proof to back up their replies.

At St. Raymond, 30 miles west of Quebec City, Creditiste leader Yvon Dupuis, who has called Rene Levesque a traitor to Quebec, said he might once have considered joining the PQ if Levesque had acted differently when he was a Liberal cabinet minister in 1965.

Mr. Dupuis told 500 persons attending a nomination meeting that Mr. Levesque, then minister of natural resources, had been mistaken in renewing mining contracts with American firms in the northern Quebec region of Ungava.

He said he is not afraid of debating the PQ leader because "I have already confronted Maurice Duplessis at the age of 25 when I was a member of the national assembly."

Mr. Dupuis, who referred to Premier Bourassa as "little Boubou" and the "little fellow in short pants," also claimed credit for stopping the terrorist Front de Liberation du Quebec (FLQ). Although the FLQ has been dormant since the October crisis of 1970, he said they have stood aside since he re-entered politics last winter "because they're afraid of Dupuis."

Gabriel Loubier, Union Nationale leader, told 70 party organizers in Chateau riding, near Quebec City, that "I have no lesson on nationalism to learn from Mr. Levesque."

He recalled that the Parti Quebecois leader, when he was a member of the Liberal government in 1965, sought to have Quebec accept the Fulton-Favreau formula

Police chief found beaten

NEWPORT, Vt. (AP) — Officials decided Monday not to release any more information on the investigation of the disappearance of Police Chief Roger Plante of Barton Village.

Plante, 43, was found Sunday night following a widespread search after his cruiser was found Saturday night with a shattered window.

Police said Plante was "dropped off" from a car on a back road Sunday night.

Dr. Terrance Gage said Plante suffered contusions and abrasions of the face and forehead and that "other than being very lame, he's quite all right. He is mentally alert."

In a prepared statement, Orleans County State Attorney John Howard ordered "no more information be released by any police officer involved in the investigation."

Barton Village, with a population of about 1,500, is a major resort on Crystal Lake.

It is less than 50 miles from the Canadian border in an area known as the Northeast Kingdom.

Frontal collision claims five

GRANBY (AR) — Five people were killed and one seriously injured Sunday in a head-on two-car collision on Route 1 in Shefford county.

Dead at the scene of the accident were Mrs. Celine Brien, 24, Remi Brien, 2, Guylaine Brien, 21 months old of Ste. Anne de la Rochelle and Aurele Bolduc, 62, of Magog.

Pronounced dead on arrival at the University of Sherbrooke Medical Centre was Gaetan Brien, 24, driver of one of the cars.

Madeleine Labrecque, 17, of Granby, passenger in the Brien automobile, is in serious condition after being transferred from hospital in Granby to the Medical Centre. Her sister, Claudette, 18, is reported in good condition in Granby hospital.

A Quebec Police Force spokesman revealed early this morning that a coroner's inquest will be held today in Granby.

Also killed in traffic in the Eastern Townships over the weekend was seven-year-old Raymond Poulin of St. Robert, Frontenac county, who was struck by a car while riding his bicycle outside his home Monday evening.

The six local fatalities were among 25 in Quebec over the Thanksgiving Day weekend. The death toll was 74 for the nation.

A cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press from 6 p.m. local times Friday to midnight Monday night, showed the traffic toll fulfilling a prediction by the Canadian Safety Council that between 65 and 75 would die on the country's roads. In other accidents, four persons were drowned, two died in fire and 11 died of other causes.

Last year's Thanksgiving weekend traffic toll was 72. The worst ever recorded was 1966, when 109 died.

This weekend's traffic toll, together with 47 who died in road accidents during the week, brought to 2,809 the unofficial count of persons who died in traffic accidents so far this year.

Ontario and Quebec counted 50 dead—25 in each province. In Quebec, 23 died in road mishaps, one person was drowned and a child died in a playground accident. Ontario had 20 dead on its roads, two dead in one fire and three dead in water mishaps.

The worst single traffic accident of the weekend was recorded in Quebec, where five died in one crash near Ste. Anne de la Rochelle, about 45 miles east of Montreal.

TOLL HEAVY IN EAST

The Atlantic provinces had a heavy toll with 16 dead. In Newfoundland, five died in traffic, and one person was killed in a hunting accident.

New Brunswick recorded five road deaths. In that province a child was killed by a falling boulder.

Low-pressure light system wins award

A low-pressure safety lighting system, much like the installation on the Richelieu Bridge, has won an award from the American Public Power Association following a competition which attracted submissions from electrical utilities throughout North America.

The award was presented to the designer of the low-pressure sodium installation on the Borden Bridge, 30 miles northwest of Saskatoon, D. Hoogeveen, an electrical engineer for the Saskatchewan Power Corporation. Co-designer was SPC engineer Ed Sopinski.

The low-pressure sodium system utilizes luminaires, lamps and ballasts, supplied by Philips Electronics Industries Ltd.

It was installed at the request of the Saskatchewan Highways Department. In the five years previous to the completion of the project there had been 34 vehicle accidents, resulting in five deaths and injuries to 18 persons at the location.

The bridge is located at the bottom of a valley where approach speeds of most vehicles is high. Half of the accidents occurred in darkness when only 30 per cent of traffic travels the road.

Approaches to the bridge are lighted by 35-foot pole-mounted luminaires, while the bridge itself is lighted with catenary luminaires suspended on cable down the centre of the bridge, 24 feet above the centre of the roadway at intervals of 100 feet.

The structure of the bridge was utilized because of the facility of mounting.

$30 million commodity loan

OTTAWA — Canada and Pakistan have signed a $30 million commodity loan agreement that will provide Canadian raw and semi-processed materials for Pakistan's industrial sector for the next three years, the Secretary of State for External Affairs, the Honourable Mitchell Sharp has announced.

Aluminum, copper, newsprint, rubber, woodpulp and zinc are among commodities that will be supplied under the agreement, administered by the Canadian International Development Agency.

Industry accounts for 30.4 per cent of Pakistan's gross domestic product and employs 24.2 per cent of the country's labor force. In the last two years Pakistan has successfully reoriented its trade patterns and more than doubled exports.

Despite this progress, studies by the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development (IBRD) and the United Nations Development Program (UNDP) reveal that increased use of Pakistan's existing industrial capacity can be made to provide a rapid and low-cost means of industrial growth.

Canada's commodity assistance provides essential materials for that industrial growth. By financing the purchase of internationally competitive goods, Canada also provides important balance of payments support to Pakistan.

The three-year duration of the loan agreement ensures Pakistan of continuing industrial commodity assistance.

It also enables that developing country to negotiate multi-year contracts with savings and benefits to both purchaser and supplier.

Pill inventor's kids

Minister throws out hitchers

By KAY BARTLETT
TEMPLE, N.H. (AP) — Two of the doctor's children were hitch-hiking near West Roxbury, Mass. A priest picked them up and asked their names. He then abruptly pulled the car to a halt and told them to get out.

"I cannot in good conscience give a ride to the children of John Rock," he said.

It was their father's conscience that started the trouble in the first place. A Roman Catholic, Dr. John Rock was one of the men most instrumental in developing the first birth control pill. And he took to the podium, to scientific journals and the writing of books to present his stance, a stance his conscience dictated and a stance not in accord with his church.

His conscience was always his guide. He recalls a discussion he had with a parish priest when he was 14, back in 1904.

"John, always stick to your conscience," the priest said. "Never let anyone else keep it for you."

The priest paused, then added: "And I mean anyone else."

Now 83, Rock lives in a brown clapboard house amid the woods of Temple, N.H. Puffing on a pipe before a roaring fire, he talks about the early days when the world felt there was something dirty in studying sex, when contraceptive devices were not discussed, and the phrase "population explosion" was not known.

WINS ACCEPTANCE

He remembers the early Planned Parenthood meetings, a group of 20 or so meeting in a hotel room in New York.

"Now, of course, they rent the biggest ballroom in New York City," he says with pride. As he talks about Margaret Sanger—whom he once suggested should be canonized—and Alfred Kinsey and Masters and Johnson and the other pioneers, he is generally optimistic.

"We're not breaking through by the virtue of the wisdom of the adults, but by the effervescence of the youth, the spontaneous outburst toward individuality on their part," he says.

Rock doubts that the pill has any effect on the changing sex mores. Nor does he feel the laws and attitudes of society retarded the development of the pill.

He feels there will never be a switch back to puritanism, but he believes a greater understanding about sex has been reached by the young.

"The peak of permissiveness is passed. The radical libertarians have lost much of their prestige. The young people are beginning to realize you can't tamper with the sexual function, that much more is concerned than pure pleasure and a thrill."

SALUTES COLLEAGUES

Rock's praise for the men and women who worked with him in the early days is still fresh. He once suggested that the Nobel committee establish a group prize and award it to Planned Parenthood.

On Margaret Singer, a pioneer of United States birth control clinics, he says:

"She had bullet vision. She was a real trail-blazer. The Norwegians and the English who preceded her weren't as dynamic. She became the spokesman for the U.S. and eventually for the world. As a nurse, she became acutely inflamed at the conditions she saw in the ghettos and attributed it all to over-population. She was utterly fearless. She would face anyone."

For the men who worked with him in the development of the oral contraceptive, Drs. Gregory Pincus and M. C. Fhang, and his own close associate Dr. Selzo Garcia, Rock again is ebullient with his praise. He downplays his own part.

Graduating from Harvard Medical School, Rock wanted to be a neurological surgeon, and second to that to work with the reproductive system. There was a greater demand for residents in the reproductive field in the Boston area at the time.

In 1924, he started a fertility clinic at the Free Hospital for Women in Brookline, Mass., served as clinical professor emeritus of gynecology at Harvard from 1947 until 1956, and served as director of the Rock Reproductive Clinic Inc. until his retirement.

TABLE TALK WAS RACY

Rock's research was concerned mainly with couples who couldn't have children.

When his four daughters and one son were growing up, they often discussed his work at dinner.

"I don't know how old I was at first, maybe five or six," says one daughter, "just as soon as we were old enough to eat with the grown-ups."

"Some of our dinner-time discussions were known to curl the hair of certain guests."

The editorials really began when Rock's book, The Time Has Come, was published and when he appeared on television, as a Catholic, advocating the oral contraceptive as an adjunct to nature and therefore compatible with the church's position on natural means of contraception.

The Pilot, Boston's archdiocesan paper, warned him to "Watch his step or else."

"I told them they couldn't excommunicate me. It was my church as much as theirs," he says.

Loomis: Diploma not so important

SHERBROOKE (MI) — Sylvia Loomis, directress of instructional services for the Eastern Townships Regional School Board (ETRSB) thinks that "The diploma which one gets from an educational institution isn't worth much more than the cost of the paper itself."

Loomis was speaking at the board offices in reference to one of the major problems which she must encounter regularly in working with instructional personnel — classification.

The largest complaint which she professed against the system as implemented in recent months is that "It does not give fair recognition to instructors in the technical-vocational fields who learned their trades as apprentices and not in school."

She summed up her feelings toward education in asserting that "Education is an interesting business though unfortunately there isn't much freedom left."

The freedom which is lacking, she specifies as that undermined by provincial government designation of texts, length of school year, courses, ratios between students and teachers, high school leaving examinations and program direction.

In terms of educational philosophy, she asks the question: "Does formal education aim towards assisting the student to fit into society or is it directed towards causing students to obtain the greatest possible accumulation of knowledge?"

While she does not supply a direct answer to the question, she does establish that she believes that the student is best served through accumulated knowledge as opposed to social adaptability.

The example she employs is that of the student who is studying algebra with difficulty at the grade eight level. She asks whether he should study the subject in French in order that he become more fluent in that language.

Her answer is "No, he should not learn algebra in French if it means sacrificing understanding of algebra."

With regard to student involvement, she says: "Kids probably do not have as much participation in determining directions of courses and programs as they might have. They can choose their courses, though not what is done in those courses once they are chosen."

Her final comment was personal and rueful. She suggested that, although an important element of the educational administrator's obligations is that of reflection upon the educative process, the administrator has too many everyday problems to which he must attend and, consequently, too little time to devote to the activity.

Bourassa visits Magog, East Angus; attacks labor leaders, opposition

MAGOG (AR) — Premier Robert Bourassa stormed in and out of the Eastern Townships Saturday, defending his government's record and attacking his political opponents.

Catchpaugh praises program

LENNOXVILLE (MI) — Charles Catchpaugh, public information officer for Champlain Regional College, says of the college's library science technology program: "The program is doing very well this year. I am very pleased with the interest which it has attracted."

Enrollment in the continuing education portion of the program is 25 students. This portion, given at night, began this year as a result of the discussions of a community advisory committee on library science which included representatives of local school and municipal libraries as well as those from Champlain College.

During the committee's deliberations, it became evident that many persons presently employed in libraries were in need of upgrading. As a consequence of this realization, the college established a night program of courses for these persons who work during the day and are free to study at night.

Enrollment in the regular program during the day has not fared so well statistically. Last year, during the program's first year, some 18 students were registered in library science.

This year, however, the number has dropped to nine and the first year of the three-year program has been omitted.

Catchpaugh is uncertain as to why the attrition rate has been so high, though he suggests that perhaps the students found jobs after one year of the program.

He does point out that library science is generally considered by persons in overly narrow terms. Graduates of such a program, he contends, are not only in demand by libraries, but also by all persons or institutions who are seeking a systematic approach to information storage.

He asserts that they need not concern themselves solely with books, but are also qualified to attend to films, slides, prints, tapes and cassettes.

Dupuis delivers fiery speech

Creditistes plunge into campaign

By PETER LLOYD
MONTREAL (CP) — The Parti Creditiste plunged into the Quebec election campaign with a fiery weekend speech by leader Yvon Dupuis who criticized his party's opponents before about 2,000 supporters.

Mr. Dupuis told the Quebec City gathering that if his party forms the government after the Oct. 29 general election it "will govern with respect for the human person."

He called Premier Robert Bourassa a "marionette" and Rene Levesque, Parti Quebecois leader, a traitor to Quebec. His speech also contained barbs for some reporters and the terrorist Front de Liberation du Quebec — "a shabby minority who preach violence and hate."

The fourth and last official party entrance into the campaign came Sunday afternoon when Gabriel Loubier, Union Nationale leader, held a rally in his home riding of Bellechasse on the south shore of the St. Lawrence River, east of Quebec City.

Meanwhile, Premier Bourassa was running into technical problems which had some members of his entourage wondering if sabotage was involved.

His appearance Saturday on an open-line radio program in Riviere du Loup was interrupted for 20 minutes when the link between station CJFP and its transmitter failed.

POLICE INVESTIGATE

The interruption came after a call to the station earlier protesting Mr. Bourassa's participation in the broadcast. The premier asked provincial police to investigate.

YVON DUPUIS

Later Saturday in Joliette, the gremlins struck again. At a rally attended by about 1,000 persons, the lights and sound failed during Mr. Bourassa's attempt to drum up votes for his Liberal party.

The blackout was caused by over-loaded circuits but some members of the premier's entourage were referring to Saturday as "a real day of sabotage."

Mr. Bourassa concentrated his campaigning Sunday on Montreal and Hull while Mr. Levesque shifted from his tour of the Laurentians Saturday to campaign in Montreal. Mr. Dupuis was in his home riding of St. Jean before moving Sunday to Rouyn in northeastern Quebec.

Mr. Dupuis, whose party has been accused in the past of being vague about Quebec's constitutional future, reaffirmed his devotion to Canada during his Saturday night speech.

"There are persons who spit on Canada. Personally I'm proud to be a Canadian and proud to be a Quebecer."

In his verbal attack on terrorism, he said:

"I, too am for cultural survival of French Canadians but this is not to be won by murder and kidnapping."

Mr. Dupuis criticized a "small minority" of journalists he said are "destroying respect for all journalists in Quebec." This minority was involved in objective reporting and attempts to smear reputations, he said.

The platform party at the rally included 95 of the 110 candidates. Mr. Dupuis said will contest the 110 seats at stake in the election.

RIFT HEALED

With the party leader on the podium were Real Caouette, federal Social Credit leader and Camil Samson, leader of the party in 1970 when it won 12 seats in the Quebec national assembly during its first appearance on the provincial scene.

Challenge to Ottawa

It appears Ottawa, once again, is to be the whipping boy in a provincial general election.

Premier Robert Bourassa of Quebec is appealing to "profitable federalism" but at the same time to the nationalism which is always a force in the politics of Quebec. The slogan this time is "cultural sovereignty."

If the general concept is somewhat vague, the immediate and politically important challenge to the central authority has been spelled out in regulations applicable to the cablevision companies.

These directly challenge federal jurisdiction, and Communications Minister Jean-Paul L'Allier of Quebec has emphasized their significance by describing them as "only a first stage on the way to a recovery by Quebec of all the instruments of its cultural development, notably in the sector of communications."

What should be the response of the Liberal government in Ottawa to this unilateral action by a Liberal government in Quebec City? Federal ministers, now caught in a difficult and probably embarrassing situation, will be well-advised to base their conduct on certain clear guiding principles.

First, while there may be some provocation — especially in the late stages of the campaign, if the outcome appears uncertain — ministers should avoid polemics with their Quebec counterparts. Nothing which may be said in Quebec will alter, by one jot or tittle, the constitutional position.

Anything suggesting an open quarrel might, however, injure the Bourassa government, which would be serious from a national standpoint since alienated voters, lacking a responsible alternative, would be forced into the arms of separatists. Creditiste opportunists or the pathetic remnants of once-powerful Union Nationale.

Secondly, the federal government should realize that nothing is to be gained in the circumstances by a venture in appeasement. Pierre Juneau, chairman of the CRTC, has already indicated an apparent desire for accommodation by suggesting that the commission's announced opposition to cablevision commercials is not based on a regulation and thus lacks the force of the law.

Regardless of the merits of the issue, this obviously means that the commission is ready to scuttle its own policy. What cannot be enforced in one province certainly cannot be enforced in the other provinces and territories of Confederation.

Federal Communication Minister Gerard Pelletier has been commendably firm up to this point in defending the federal jurisdiction. To yield now in this constitutional dispute to Mr. Bourassa would be extremely unwise since it would assuredly invite invidious comparisons.

There are other jurisdictional disputes involving other provinces in other areas (for example, energy and resource ownership). A government that rightly rejects special status would destroy its own credit if it showed a willingness to abandon the federal right in one field, at the summons of one province, at the very time when it is strongly asserting the federal right in controversies with less powerful provinces.

On the other hand, it may be argued, with some validity, on this particular issue, that cablevision should not come under broadcasting regulations, in that it does not use the airwaves but transmits existing programs within cities and within provinces.

Undoubtedly in this area Quebec's success, or lack of it, will be watched by other provinces, some of which have indicated that cablevision should be considered in the provincial jurisdiction or considered as a common carrier; there does indeed exist some room for argument as to whether cable television clearly is an area within federal authority.

These considerations point to an obvious conclusion. The proper course is to rely on the courts, challenging the regulations (and the legislation on which they are based) when they come into effect in November.

Provincial governments also have some responsibility in this situation. At an early interprovincial meeting in Montreal, Mr. L'Allier will seek the support of other ministers in advance of a general federal-provincial conference. He may feel that the subject is a peripheral interest of people elsewhere in the country.

The other provinces should recognize that what is involved in the present case is the piecemeal destruction of federal jurisdiction in the communications field. The general interest will not be served by a further division of the country into separate compartments.

Banking committee: Conflict of interest?

OTTAWA (CP) — Eight of the 22 members of the Senate banking committee hold 130 company directorates, according to public records.

How does a senator who is a director of several corporations keep his objectivity while studying legislation that might affect the profits of one or more of those companies?

With conflict of interest a hot political issue and protective legislation in the wind, members of the appointed upper chamber greet the question with annoyance, indignation, reassurance or "no comment."

At present there are 91 men and women in the 102-seat Senate, with 11 vacancies. These former lawyers, businessmen, trade union officials, cabinet ministers, MPs, defeated candidates for provincial and federal legislatures, political fund-raisers and journalists together hold 220 corporate directorships as recorded in the Parliamentary Guide and two financial directories.

Directorates are concentrated mainly in the Senate banking, trade and commerce committee. The 22 committee members, half of them lawyers, hold 75 per cent of the reported directorates in the Senate—165 of 220.

BUSINESSES VARY

Members of the committee are executives or directors of a variety of businesses including banking, investment and insurance, mining, real estate development and manufacturing and retailing of soft drinks, pulp and paper products, aircraft parts, food products and clothing.

This apparent concentration of corporate power in a group charged with examining legislation in such areas as tax reform, corporate control, foreign investment, consumer protection, customs tariffs and anti-dumping laws makes the committee a prime target for those who would limit the extent of Senate business connections or abolish the upper house altogether.

Heading the list of eight senators who hold 130 directorships is Montreal businessman Louis-Philippe Gelinas, a Liberal from Quebec with a roster of 24 reported.

Liberal Senator John Aird, a Toronto lawyer, has 14 directorships recorded in the Parliamentary Guide and the Financial Post Directory of Directors.

Senator Paul Desruisseaux, a Montreal Liberal businessman, is listed as having 18 and Harry Hays, an Alberta Liberal rancher and former MP, 11. Alan Macnaughton, Liberal, a Montreal barrister and former Commons speaker, has 20.

Senate Opposition Leader Jacques Flynn, Quebec City lawyer, is listed as having nine and Louis-Philippe Beau-bien, Progressive Conservative and another Montreal businessman, 16. Senator Salter Hayden, a Toronto corporation lawyer and chairman of the banking committee for 19 years, holds a reported 18 directorships.

The fact that senators are appointed on recommendation of the prime minister and have no fear of being ousted by the voters has brought their business connections under heavy criticism. Until June 2, 1965, senators were appointed for life. Those named after that date must retire at 75.

Senator Gelinas argues that it is important to his role as a legislator to hold directorships, to enable him to be "apprised of what's going on in the economy."

"It's been my whole life. I didn't get all these directorships only since I was appointed a senator, you know. Some before and some afterwards. I'm going to continue my business relations."

"It's the morality of the thing. You declare your interests and you don't vote. I've never had any problems."

Senator Flynn said the banking committee votes "only about once a year."

The Senate spent 10 months in 1970 examining proposed income-tax legislation and proposed a raft of amendments, none of which were implemented at the time. During its study, the committee served as a forum for business interests that voiced opposition to the government bill.

Senator Flynn maintains that the proposed government legislation aimed at controlling conflict of interest among senators and members of the Commons will do more to reassure the public than change the face of the Senate.

The draft legislation, tabled last July, would bar senators and MPs from sitting on boards of companies that do $1,000 or more contract business annually with the government.

It would force disclosure of all directorships, clamp down on paid lobbying activities and restrict the proportion of a company's stock a parliamentarian could own. Infractions could result in removal from office for MPs and stiff fines for senators.

Disclosure of directorships is voluntary at present. Senators with no directorships listed in the Parliamentary Guide are often shown by other sources, such as the Directory of Directors, to hold several.

Senate Government Leader Paul Martin says: "There's nothing sinister in being a director in itself, you know. Why would they report that?"

There's no obligation, no law which says a man can't be a director of a company."

However, he agrees that directorships and business connections are a public matter: "I think the public does have a right to know and they (the senators) do state it."

The public generally mistrusts all politicians, Senator Flynn says, and the proposed legislation will help to polish their tarnished image, "but little else."

When the draft legislation was made public, an unidentified MP was quoted as saying it would "cause heart attacks all over the Senate."

"Not at all," Senator Flynn said. "I didn't get that impression at all. . . . There was a problem at first. People misunderstood what the intent of the legislation was."

"What are you doing here?"

The Chinese way with visitors

China has a characteristic way of handling its foreign visitors. Veteran China-watcher Peter T. Sum suggests there are some points to watch during Prime Minister Trudeau's visit Oct. 10-16.

By PETER T. SUM

TORONTO (CP) — Ask anyone in China what he knows about Canada and invariably the answer will be: "It is the home of Dr. Pai Chiu-en."

Pai Chiu-en literally means Seek Grace of the White Family. This is the name of the late Dr. Norman Bethune, native of Gravenhurst, Ont., who is deeply revered in China.

Past exchanges of pleasantries between Canadians and Chinese indicate the Canadian doctor who went to China in the 1930s to work among them during the Japanese offensive may serve as a common rapport between Prime Minister Trudeau and his Chinese hosts when he visits China next week.

All Chinese know Dr. Bethune as a Canadian Samaritan. They have to know about him. Chairman Mao Tse-tung decreed during the Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution of 1966-69 that they must learn from Dr. Bethune's "selfless spirit of serving people."

Communist Chinese historians claim that Dr. Bethune, who arrived in China in late 1937, was sent by the Communist party of Canada to work with the Communist-led Eighth Route Chinese army. They say he was a "true Communist . . . an internationalist."

Dr. Bethune died Nov. 26, 1939, from septicemia, a form of blood poisoning, after treating many wounded soldiers. He had frequently operated on wounded soldiers in abandoned temples just behind frontlines.

The Chinese buried him at Shihchiachuan, about 100 miles south of Peking.

During November, 1966, on the 27th anniversary of the doctor's death, Mao wrote a special article. In Memory of Dr. Bethune. The article, along with two others by Mao, are essential reading for all Chinese. They must study them over and over again. The three are known to the Chinese as: "The three well-read articles."

Three years ago when Canada and China established diplomatic relations, the Chinese Communist party newspaper People's Daily singled out Dr. Bethune as "a good son of Canada" in an editorial welcoming the occasion.

Since then, several Chinese missions have come to Canada for goodwill tours which never are complete without a visit to the doctor's birthplace in Northern Ontario.

External Affairs Minister Sharp was the first federal minister to mention Bethune to the Chinese publicly. He spoke highly of the doctor during a tour of the trade exhibition in South China's Canton in August 1972. The Chinese were pleased.

When Trudeau arrives in Peking, Dr. Bethune's name will undoubtedly be raised again. If not Trudeau, his host, Premier Chou En-lai, certainly will mention the Canadian doctor in his official speech of welcome. This will underline the people-to-people goodwill between the Chinese and Canadians.

As in the case of other visiting dignitaries, Chou probably will hold a banquet welcoming his Canadian guests on the night of Trudeau's arrival.

But hours before the banquet in the Great Hall of the People on the western edge of the huge Tiananmen (Heavenly Peace) Square, observers may detect just how friendly to Trudeau the Chinese are prepared to be.

A good barometer will be the size of the crowd at Pe-king's airport, welcoming the prime minister and his entourage. The numbers are carefully worked out.

Past cases show that leaders of Western countries, with the exception of President Nixon, got crowds of less than 10,000. There was no mass turnout for the U.S. president.

Nixon got a handful of officials led by Chou. But the Chinese showed him all the courtesy due to a head of state despite the fact that there are no formal diplomatic relations between the two countries.

Again, if past cases may be taken as a reliable guide, Chairman Mao may welcome Trudeau in his private library where he has received many foreign dignitaries, including Nixon. The Chinese are likely to set this meeting for the second day of the visit.

This would signify that the 79-year-old chairman personally approves of the prime minister's visit and that official talks may begin between Trudeau and Chou.

Though there are many issues which the two men may discuss, there are no serious outstanding differences between the two countries. Undoubtedly Chou will try to enlist support for the China view that the Soviet Union is bent on an aggressive course.

Parliamentary Notebook

OTTAWA (CP) — The political guessing now is that this current session of Parliament, which resumes Oct. 15, will prorogue about mid-December and that there will be an extended Christmas recess—perhaps six weeks—before a new session begins.

The government will try to clean up all the major legislation still on the order paper, along with several new bills, and sources say it will be prepared to leave over minor legislation for introduction in the new session.

There are 16 bills remaining on the order paper, two of which require only one more vote. There are six others before committees, and there are eight which still await second reading. "We want to pass all the bills which have reached committee stage," said a government source. "Too much time has been spent on them and we don't want to start all over again in a new session."

There are also some bills in their early stages, such as the legislation to increase family allowances to an average $20 a month, that the government is determined to get through this fall. And Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde is standing by with legislation—it requires provincial approval—to peg the Canada Pension Plan to the full increases in the cost of living index.

Other bills which the government is determined to get through include legislation on wiretapping, election expenses, changes in mortgage legislation to encourage greater investment in the area and the much-debated bill to resume a partial ban on capital punishment.

BRACED FOR FIGHT

And the government is bracing itself for a prolonged debate on legislation imposing the 40-cent-a-barrel excise tax on oil exports.

Sources say there may be several other new bills, and four days will be designated as "opposition days" when the opposition parties can debate a subject of their choice. There is provision on one of these days for a non-confidence motion against the government.

Since the current session began Jan. 4, the House has approved 33 bills.

Government sources say the only event likely to interfere with a December prorogation would be a clear indication that the New Democratic Party, which holds the balance of power between the government and the official, would not vote with the Liberals through another Throne Speech. Some NDP members have said they did not want to face the "humiliation" of supporting the government through the opening weeks of a new session.

The government could continue the current session into the new year with a recess at Christmas, but there is speculation the Conservatives would block such a recess. It is in the interest of official Opposition to get a new session underway, since it affords new opportunities for non-confidence motions.

If the opposition blocked a recess by debating the adjournment motion, the government would be virtually forced to prorogue the House—an executive decision that can't be debated.

Cosmic dustbin lost

By PETER MICHAELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — Somewhere over the southern hemisphere Canada's dustbin in the sky drifted on a lost and wayward odyssey.

The Canadian-built dustbin was contained in a giant U.S. designed funnel towed about 16 miles into space by a U.S. atmospheric balloon.

A National Research Council official confirmed today that the balloon is lost, probably down—its battery-operated tracking controls dead—and that no hope remains for the cosmic dust it was to collect.

The dust would have been priceless—the only type of its kind ever collected—and might have provided clues to how the sun and planets were formed.

The Canada-U.S. venture began Jan. 29 when the funnel and dustbin were launched behind a 65-foot balloon near Brisbane, Australia.

The balloon was to have been blown by prevailing winds eastward over the southern tips of South America and South Africa and back to Australia, where the dustbin would have been parachuted to earth.

BACK TOO FAST

The balloon did return over Australia—too soon, in fact—and the dustbin was not set free.

Ground control in Australia did not release the dustbin because it was thought the balloon should go around a second time, explained Romeo Wlochowicz, an astrophysics engineer at NRC.

Mr. Wlochowicz, who built the dustbin, said the balloon returned after only 19 days. The 20,000-mile journey was expected to take twice as long.

The balloon was becalmed on its second journey and didn't return over Australia until June 18. But it did not respond to ground control signals to sever the 500-foot tow cable between the balloon and the funnel.

Mr. Wlochowicz said the batteries must have been too weak. They were designed for 50 days in space at most. A weak signal was heard from the balloon Aug. 27, and nothing since.

Mr. Wlochowicz said another balloon probably will be launched to collect the valuable dust, though no date has been set.

TINY METEORITES

The cosmic dust from outer atmosphere is really micro-meteorites so small hundreds would fit on the head of a pin.

Rockets had collected this dust previously, but the dustbin was built to collect larger particles—from 2-1,000 to 10-1,000 of an inch in diameter—for more accurate analysis.

Such particles are scarce and can be collected only over a long period at an altitude of about 80,000 feet.

In 1859

New York-bound 400 died

By KEVIN DOYLE

ENNISCORTHY, Ireland (CP) — By early afternoon on April 27, 1859, the cloud over the west coast of England had disappeared. It became clear, bright and brisk, an ideal day for sailing.

Captain Charles Merrihew was pleased. His American ship, the Pomona, had a full general cargo and about 400 Irish emigrants bound from Liverpool to New York and new homes in the United States and Canada.

A swarthy native of the Bronx with years of sailing experience, Merrihew shouted orders for the moorings to be taken aboard and his three-masted, black-hulled vessel swung down the Mersey towards the open sea. He hoped to reach New York in 18 days.

Most of Merrihew's passengers were from the poverty-stricken rural regions of Ireland, headed for a fresh start in North America. They were jammed in the forward hold. Others, more well-to-do, were in fairly comfortable cabins.

Minutes out of Liverpool, families from all sections began gathering on deck, introducing themselves as their children raced excitedly in all directions.

WRONG COURSE SET

At 4 p.m., the watch logged "Holyhead, Wales, southeast-by-east, 10 miles off" and the course was altered to come down the Irish Sea.

Inexplicably, the new course set was west-southwest when it should have been a few points east of southwest. The wind increased and visibility faded. Still, the passengers lingered on deck, enjoying their first day at sea.

Just after midnight, the 1,400-ton ship smashed against the Blackwater Bank, perhaps the best known hazard off the Irish coast. The vessel heeled over. Freight was ripped loose and passengers burst into a blind panic.

The Pomona was still under sail and the wind drove her again and again against the bank as the captain tried desperately to sail her off.

One of the crew, Philip Mulcahey, whose home was near this County Wexford town, went below to check for leaks. He found plenty and called for male passengers to man the pumps. They died at their fruitless job.

GAVE FATAL ORDER

For eight hours, the stout oak hull withstood the pounding until Merrihew ordered the weather stays and masts to be cut away. He also set adrift a lifeboat with the ship's name and plight strapped inside in the futile hope that it might bring help.

With full tide and heavier seas, the ship was lifted and swept right across the bank. Then Merrihew made his last fatal mistake. He ordered both anchors out.

The captain had probably wished to hold the Pomona steady until daylight when he could get his bearings again. Instead, she sank quickly into the raging sea, taking with her 400 people, including passengers and part of the crew. Had the anchors not been dropped she probably would have swept ashore safely.

The Enniscorthy museum has collected fragments of the Pomona along with diaries, logs and other documents saved from the ship, to produce a stark and impressive memorial to the tragedy, one of the worst disasters on the Irish coast.

FOUND BODIES

There was no inkling ashore of the wreck until the body of a woman floated up on the rocks near here. It was the first of hundreds to be picked up in the following weeks.

Days later two boatloads of 17 men, most of them crew members, landed. Gradually the story emerged of how they had fought among themselves and against other passengers to grab the lifeboats and escape. Not a woman or child survived.

Mulcahey wrote afterwards: "The first group of bodies laid out had the features set in straight lines of terror, so terrible that viewers shrank away from them."

"Others clasped rosaries and their eyes faced upward to the only salvation they could hope for now."

Knowlton

Stephen Morson

On Sept. 18, 27 members of the Knowlton Leisure Club met at the Legion Hall in Knowlton prior to taking a bus trip to Shelburne, Vt., all members who took this trip had a wonderful time despite a rainy day. The remainder of the Leisure Club who did not go on the trip, played cards at the Legion Hall.

The Knowlton Leisure Club held their regular weekly get-together on Tuesday, Sept. 25, at the Legion Hall. A guest speaker, Mr. Gilbert Rotherham, President of the Knowlton Lions Club gave an interesting talk on the function of the Lions Club, as the sponsors of the Knowlton Leisure Club.

Thirty-nine members were present, and eight tables of cards played. Prizes were won by Mrs. Clara Gibbs, Ruth Bisley, Mr. L.G. Giasson, and Mr. James Godelroy. Door prizes were won by Mrs. Lyla Ows, and Mr. Robert Hastings. Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

The flowers on the Altar at St. Paul's Church on Sunday morning Sept. 30 were in memory of Mr. T. Stafford. The service was conducted by the Lay Reader, Mr. Stephen Morson, who spoke on the topic, Stop, Look, Listen and Learn, Before it is Too Late. Sunday, October 7 the service was a Thanksgiving Service conducted by the Rector Rev. Ian Dodd who has returned from his holidays in England.

There is a library of the late Peggy Keene on display at the United Church Hall; these books are available for anyone who may wish to take some, there is no price affixed, but donations will be received to the Bible Society, as a fitting memorial to the late Mrs. Keene.

At the meeting of the Bible Society held at the United Church on Sept. 26, Mrs. Marion Whitehead was appointed secretary-treasurer of the Knowlton branch.

The Main Street in Knowlton from the new Post Office to the Auberge du Relais is temporarily closed owing to the installation and construction of the sewer system, which has now reached to this point. Roads also partially blocked are St. Paul's Road, sections of Knowlton Acres, the Bolton Pass Road, at the Knowlton end. Residents will be relieved when this work is finished, at least for this year, as the many roads are in chaotic state, especially after heavy rains; however, it is expected that the major portion of this work will be completed by mid November, then in the Spring will come the installations to all the residences. There is no published date of final completion and restoration once again of good paved roads. It will also be nice to say good bye to the continual explosions caused by the necessary dynamiting of the roads.

CUT OUT AND KEEP ON HAND

PUBLISHED BY THE CHIEF RETURNING OFFICER OF QUÉBEC

Glazener-Embury wed

Gladioli and chrysanthemums in autumn colors were used to decorate the United Church in Derby, Vt., for the marriage of Robbin Michele, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James V. Glazener, Jr., of Beebe, Vermont, and Brian William Embury, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Embury, of Tomifobia, which took place Saturday morning, Sept. 8 at 11 a.m.

Rev. John Genco officiated the double-ring ceremony. The organist, Mrs. John Gaudreau accompanied the soloist, Miss Christine Leblanc of Derby. She sang Sunrise-Sunset and Climbed Every Mountain. The guest pews were marked with white satin ribbon bows marked with lilies-of-the-valley and glitter doves. Walking upon a white linen carpet, the bride was escorted down the aisle on the arm of her father who gave her in marriage. She wore a gown of white voile over taffeta, the highrised waist featured long bell sleeves to gather at the wrists and a round neckline with a Peter Pan collar.

The skirt was fashioned with lace inserts and a wide ruffle at the hemline. She wore a wide brimmed picture hat of white nylon straw banded with flowers centered with pearls. Her trailing bouquet of yellow bridal roses, white miniature carnations, stephanotis, baby's breath and ivy was arranged in a parasol, which was a gift from her parents and brought from England.

The strand of pearls she was wearing were also brought from England. The 'something old' was a handkerchief given her by her great-grandmother and was in the parasol. In her slipper was an original English sixpence that replaced a traditional good luck penny.

Miss Kathy Gray of Newport was the maid-of-honor. To emphasize the autumn color theme, she wore a gown of pumpkin gold polyester fashioned with long set in chiffon sleeves of the highrised bodice. This was complemented by a matching color picture hat having a large bow and streamers. She wore accessories to match.

The bridesmaids, Mrs. Gary (Patti) Bailey of Newport and Miss Debbie Huckins of Tomifobia, a niece of the groom, were in gowns of autumn yellow, fashioned identically to the maid-of-honor's gown. Their picture hats and accessories matched. They carried antique white wicker parasols with seasonal flowers in color tones of yellow, gold, and orange.

Mr. Scott Glazener, brother of the bride, was best man, the groomsmen were Gary Bailey and Robert Badger. The ushers were Steve Turner and Dale Huckins, the latter a nephew of the groom.

They wore black trousers, white brocaded jackets with black trim. The groom had a boutonniere of white stephanotis, the best man an orange tinted carnation, the groomsmen, yellow carnations and the ushers yellow and white two tone carnations.

Mrs. Glazener chose for her daughters wedding, a gown of yellow polyester in A-line having long chiffon sleeves and a front yoke effect with jewel trim. Her accessories were in yellow and she wore a corsage of tangerine bridal roses.

Mrs. Embury, mother of the groom, was in a gown of multi-color chiffon over aqua taffeta, fashioned with a full skirt. Her accessories were in beige and she wore a corsage of white bridal roses.

Mrs. E.B. Hightower, maternal grandmother of the bride, from Texas, had a corsage of two green orchids.

The groom's paternal grandmother, Mrs. E.R. Embury is at the Maple Mount Rest Home in Cookshire. She was unable to attend, however, the bride and groom visited her there.

The reception was held in the Fellowship Room of the church and was attended by approximately 75 guests. A four-course turkey and ham dinner was served.

The wedding cake, made and decorated by Mrs. Benoit Blais, was triple-tiered separated by pillars. The decor was in white with flowers, sugar doves and green leaves, accented with two doves holding the wedding bands in their beaks, to top the cake, beneath were the engagement rings placed atop of two silver bells.

Mrs. Shelley D. Weaver, sister of the bride from Texas, wearing a sleeveless gown of polyester in brown and white A-line styling accented with a corsage of yellow and orange tinted carnations, presided at the punch bowl and served the cake assisted by Miss Sandra Converse.

The initial cut was made by Mr. and Mrs. Embury. Later, Mr. and Mrs. Embury left by motor for their honeymoon trip to Niagara Falls and New York State. They will reside in Dover, N.H.

The bride travelled in a white and blue printed dress with matching accessories and a corsage of yellow bridal roses and baby's breath.

Prior to the departure of the couple, the bride tossed her bouquet which was caught by the maid-of-honor. The groom tossed his wife's garter and this was caught by the best man, Scott Glazener.

Miss Sandra Converse of Newport was in charge of the guest book. As each signed they were presented with bags of orange and yellow rice and a tiny scroll of appropriate verses, held by silver rings.

Guests attended from Newport, Montreal, Texas, New Brunswick, Sherbrooke, Tomifobia, Magog, and the Boundary Communities.

Prior to the departure of the bride from her home the morning of the wedding, she received a telephone call from her aunt, Mrs. Celia Hardage of Texas, offering good wishes and congratulations to the couple.

The Friday evening preceding the marriage, Mr. and Mrs. William Embury, parents of the groom entertained for the rehearsal party at their home in Tomifobia. Refreshments were served. The bride and groom exchanged gifts and presented gifts to their attendants.

STANSTEAD — The fourth of five UCW regional rallies of the Quebec-Sherbrooke Presbyterian-Stanstead area on Thursday, Sept. 27, at Centenary Church, Stanstead.

This was attended by 100 women who assembled about 9:30 a.m. for registration. The registration was in the charge of a group from Lennoxville.

The Centenary UCW members were the hostesses and during the 'getting acquainted' quarter-hour served coffee and hot muffins.

A gracious welcome was spoken by Mrs. Marion Mayhew who was master of ceremonies for the day program. Mrs. Janice Soutiere, Allegro Unit president on behalf of the Centenary Church UCW also spoke a warm welcome to the visitors.

Mrs. Phillis Smith, Presbyterian president, spoke words of welcome and introduced the several Presbyterian executive members present. Mrs. Smith gave a fine address on the rally theme, 'Where are we going?' in our personal lives, the church, the community, where each can do a part, where are you going in your UCW group with church Union and Anglicans.

She said that she has hopes that in the coming two years 'We will all grow in our christian faith and when this day is over we will have a little more knowledge of where we are going.'

Relative to the rally theme, where are we going, each UCW group made a creative banner.

Aver's Cliff had a church in the center with extended roads of fellowship, service, christian witness and study.

Beebe, with a tree trunk and fallen blossoms depicted. This is the first day of the rest of your life.

Georgeville's banner challenged: What would do for the negroes, Indians, Eskimos, slum housing, starvation, seniors, drugs.

Hatley, depicted church union.

Lennoxville Unit 1 and 4 depicted: He's got the whole world in his hands, and Jesus Loves Us with explanation given in the reading of a poem.

Lennoxville Unit 2, had a banner portraying a traveller on a journey, the intersection of decision is reached, one is to take the road that is steep and leads to a star, the other, a lower road that goes to confusion and chaos.

Lennoxville Units 3 and 5 were represented but not with a banner.

Magog's banner was in three parts: Know thyself, the church and let's break bread together.

North Hatley was depicted by the faith of a grain of mustard seed. It is planted by man, watered and matured by God and with this faith and trust in God, 'We are going ahead,' said the speaker.

Sherbrooke had a poster with unnamed sign posts. The speaker said: 'Each must decide for themselves what the posts should read.'

Stanstead was a banner of challenge, challenge to change, progress, happiness, responsibilities and more active contribution to the common good.

Waterville was which way have you chosen, the comfortable and least resistance, self center citadel, Lend a Hand Lane, Mission Ave, foreign aid, self indulgence, or stewardship and church union.

Way's Mills: When it's action you seek make it live, love service.

Each banner portrayal was spoken of by a representative of each unit. Each gave everyone food for thought concerning the union of the United and Anglican Churches, which is so much in the thoughts of these people. Included in this gathering were a number of Anglican Church Women.

Mrs. Muriel Prescott, literary secretary, spoke about books, and other reading material on hand for sale. Her corner was well patronized and her carrying cases much lighter when she left for her home.

The Beebe UCW Unit 1 presented a skit. What About Church Union. The cast was, Miss Viola Moranville as Adora, who couldn't care less about the movement; Mrs. Jane Denney, as Anna, who believes in church union very strongly; Mrs. Frances Finlayson, as Bella, who is the exact opposite and angry when church union is mentioned; and Mrs. Sylvia Bronson, as Carol, who is not too concerned either way.

Mrs. Agnes Myers spoke the comments prior to the presentation. The scene was a doctor's office waiting-room. The cast did an excellent job of presenting a picture depicting the thoughts and actions of many people.

The script had been written by Miss Ruth Lanigan of Richmond, who was among those present and was introduced after the skit.

Mrs. Mayhew broke the assembly into groups of people to form eight separate groups. This was for a period of discussion based upon the church union plan using the

She referred in brief to the four lectures of Dr. Beck based upon trust and consequence, challenge as to the church, are we elected or called to serve God, and covenant, the new word with God, also touched upon other pertinent words of this great leader.

Mrs. Baldwin spoke about Rev. Douglas Wilson's talk concerning his work as chaplain at the Douglas Hospital, the waits and needs of so many of the people who are there.

Others spoke about events that took place at the three day session, addresses, morning devotions, workshops, summed up as three days of friendship, study, and service, three days where everyone is someone.

Rev. Dr. W.J. Close arrived to give the rally closing address. He was introduced by Mrs. Mayhew. In keeping with the rally theme he based his

THE BUST DILEMMA

Treatment for small breasts

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

With each new sack of letters that arrives on my desk I can always be sure there will be a number asking about small breasts. The only people in the world more interested than men in how a woman's breasts look are women. Most women's concern about small breasts is more than just appearing attractive to men. Women often equate femininity with their breast development. It is the inescapable proof of womanhood. Many women feel they have been shortchanged by nature, and in some instances they have. All want to do something about it. Today I want to review for those women just what they can expect from the measures that are now available.

Many women have tried those highly advertised breast development methods. Most of these don't work. A good many of these depend upon using a cup-like device that jets water over the breast. Others depend upon contrasting baths for the breast area, applying alternating hot and cold water. This isn't all that easy for the woman who hasn't got a lot to bathe to begin with, and the end result is disappointing to say the least. In general, you should avoid all publicly advertised breast development procedures.

An approach I have often recommended is to use exercises that improve the muscles of the shoulders and chest. These are the exercises of rotating your arms backward like swimming a back stroke or other exercises designed to strengthen the muscles between the shoulder blades to improve a woman's posture. These are of some help for the woman who has moderately small breasts. They will not enlarge the breast at all, but by improving the posture they help to accentuate the positive. Those exercises of placing your hands together with the palms against each other and pressing help to build up the muscles over the front of the chest. By building a muscular base, they help a small breast appear more prominent.

Another aid for women with moderately small breasts is the birth control pill. The female hormones in these tend to cause some water retention and, through this and other mechanisms, enlarge the breasts slightly. Usually these have the biggest effect in the woman who already has ample or even too much to suit her.

You can get a lot of different opinions from doctors about the advisability of using surgery for small breasts. Some are dead set against it and think a woman should be glad she has no other health problems than small breasts. Others feel it is so important to many women's ego that sensible measures are justified. There is no doubt about the importance of the ego to all of us, men and women. When a person thinks he is unattractive it undermines his self-confidence and prepares the way for innumerable psychological problems.

Yes, counseling sometimes helps, but it takes a long time to convince a woman she really doesn't need to look normal. That is all many of the women with truly small breasts want. Correcting the real problem, normalizing the breasts, is the fastest and most effective form of psychotherapy in some of these women.

What procedures can a woman use to do something about really small breasts? The most commonly used procedure today is the under-the-breast implant. These are made of a silicone bag filled with silicone gel. They are shaped like a breast and have the feel of a human breast. These are far superior to the old sponge-like implants used in the past. They often became rock hard and were disturbing because they didn't have that natural feel.

Another type of silicone sack is the inflatable. These are tucked under the breast between the breast tissue and the underlying muscle. Once they are in place, they are filled with salt water, similar to our own body water. The size of the breast can be controlled by how much salt water is injected. They contain a valve-like device that enables closing off the sack. These are somewhat softer than the silicone gel sacks.

One of their big advantages is that the incision required to insert them in their deflated state is quite small. It doesn't take much more than a puncture-like incision underneath the breast to obtain access to the space behind the breast. The gel sack implant, or other device, will require a larger incision, depending upon the size of the implant.

What about the silicone injections? They are horrible, and no reputable physician uses them. The silicone may actually move, and there have even been some deaths reported from injections. Even if all goes well at first, the silicone will harden and become indistinguishable from the lumps of breast cancer. The physician then has little choice other than to remove the involved breast tissue to be certain it isn't cancer. After the hardened silicone and the breast tissue are removed then the woman is in dire need of an implant of some type.

Do implants cause cancer? No. They don't prevent it either. A woman will continue to need regular examinations to detect any early changes. The implant will not interfere with the usual breast examination.

An implant in a normal but small breast will not even interfere with a woman's ability to lactate and nurse her baby. Some women, however, won't be able to do so adequately with or without an implant.

Some very flat-chested women with little or no breast tissue are the most difficult to help. The implant will be most noticeable. Some surgeons have placed the implant underneath the chest muscle in this case. Still another approach is to transplant some of the fat tissue from some other location on the body, if any is available, to help with the padding effect.

shows North's action with a club bust. He bids two spades and passes after his partner bids three clubs.

Jim: "The play at three clubs is fairly simple. South wins the heart lead and goes after trumps. Eventually he leads spades from dummy a couple of times; sets up the fourth spade in his hand for a diamond discard and winds up losing a spade, a diamond and one or two clubs depending on how he plays the suit."

Oswald: "Getting to three clubs with these North-South cards is not a unique feature of Jacoby transfer. They can get there in most any bidding system. We make no claims of sole perfection, but merely that Jacoby transfer is fairly simple and works well."

TODAY'S QUESTION

Your partner rebids three diamonds. What do you do now?

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Oswald: "When first learning Jacoby transfer there is no need to bother with transfers to minor suits. The important transfers are to the majors, but if you want to get into minor suit transfers later on there are several ways to use them."

Jim: "The very simplest is to use the two-spade response as a transfer to three clubs and the three club response as a transfer to three diamonds. If responder has a very bad hand he passes right there. If he bids again he is forcing to game and showing a good hand."

Oswald: "Today's hand

Homosexuals not always obvious

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: There seems to be quite a heated argument between Ann Landers, who says homosexuals are sick, and certain psychiatrists and gays who say they are NOT sick. Your opponents say you are ill-informed, stupid or nuts.

Anyone who witnessed the Gay Pride Parade from Belmont Harbor to Lincoln Park in Chicago has got to go with you, Ann. In my life I never saw anything to top it. Over 1,500 gays came out of the closet to march with their "brothers and sisters." Some of the costumes were out of this world — sequins, feathers, tights, black leather coats, whips and chains. The wigs were gorgeous and the makeup was fabulous. One fellow (I think) had a live snake wrapped around his neck. There was much cheering and singing. "Two-four-six-eight. Is your husband really straight?"

There was also good news from the first gay minister of the United Church of Christ. "Sixty-two gay ministers," he announced, "have decided to step forward and declare themselves. No more hiding. They are gay and proud of it."

If those people are normal and healthy, then I wanna be sick. Sign me — Freaked Out. Dear Freaked: I hope you don't think all homosexuals look and act like that. What you describe sounds like the L'Amatic fringe. Many homosexuals are dignified, soft-spoken people. They do not wear high heels or wigs. The only real difference between them and us is that they prefer as sex partners members of their own gender. Thanks for the report.

Dear Ann Landers: I visited my sister a few weeks ago. Something I saw in her home has been bothering me and I can't get it out of my mind.

My sister's husband is very strict with the children. They are nice youngsters — bright and well-behaved — but they are terrified of him. The middle child, a boy of seven, seems to have a small appetite. His father forces him to eat and every night there is a scene at the dinner table. Once the boy excused himself and threw up. Another time he began to cry because his father yelled at him for 15 minutes and shook him for being "a baby."

I didn't say anything to my sister, but I feel now that I should write to her. Or would she consider it interfering? — On My Mind.

Dear On: That father needs counseling. And the kids will need it, too, from your description. Perhaps if you suggest to your sister that SHE discuss the family situation with the school counselor, it would be a useful first step.

Dear Ann Landers: What is this world coming to when a woman can't telephone her aging mother from the office three or four times a day? And whose business is it if they talk about the price of meat — or even whether or not the rain will hurt the rhubarb?

My mother is 84 and she lives alone. God bless her. I'm sure my telephone calls mean a great deal to her. I try to telephone at least four times a day.

The world needs more love and consideration and less criticism of people who show it, especially to their aging parents. That office must be a real zoo. — Glad I Don't Work There.

Dear Glad: I'm not. I think perhaps you could teach those dumbbells something.

Met win puts pressure on Reds

NEW YORK (AP) — After some belting from Rusty Staub and a couple from Bud Harrelson, too, Cincinnati Reds are on the brink of a knockout.

Staub hit two home runs and Harrelson hit Pete Rose in a brawl-filled game Monday in which New York Mets won 9-2 for a 2-1 lead in the best-of-five-game playoff to determine baseball's National League representative in the World Series.

Staub's homers drove in four runs, but it was Harrelson's battle with Rose that literally drove the Reds from the field in one of the most bizarre playoff affairs in history.

The final score was almost anti-climatic after what happened in the fifth inning.

A crowd of 53,967 was buzzing as the Mets held a 9-2 lead after four innings.

ROSE STRIKES

Then came the fifth, when Rose barreled into Harrelson in an attempt to break up a double play at second base.

"He hit me with his elbow," Harrelson said. "I'm tired of being used as a punching bag."

The Mets' giddy, little shortstop said something to the burly Rose. The Cincinnati left fielder gave Harrelson a shove and the two exchanged blows, fell to the ground and tussled in the infield dust.

This battle brought a floodtide of players from both benches and the bullpens. They raced on the field and began fighting among themselves while the crowd noise swelled.

"If what happened out there doesn't wake us up now, nothing will," said Cincinnati manager Sparky Anderson, whose defending National League champions face extinction today.

STAUB MAKES IT TOUGH

If Staub, formerly with Montreal Expos, keeps hitting in this series like he has been, it'll be a tough job for the Reds.

He hit a bases-empty homer in the first inning and then a three-run shot in the second, when the Mets put it away with five runs.

They gave the right fielder three homers in the series.

"I'm excited," Staub said. "I want to play in a World Series. I've always gone home after the last day of the regular season—until this year."

Staub unloaded against Cincinnati starter Ross Grimsley with a homer over the right field fence and gave New York southpaw Jerry Koosman a quick 1-0 cushion.

In the second, the Mets got rid of Grimsley. Jerry Grote walked. Don Hahn singled and Koosman beat out a bunt for a base hit to load the bases.

Then Wayne Garrett knocked in the first New York run of the inning with a sacrifice fly and Felix Millan followed with a run-scoring single.

That was all for Grimsley. Anderson brought in Tom Hall—and Staub promptly homered off the auxiliary scoreboard in right field.

The Mets evened the series Sunday with a 5-0 triumph in Cincinnati, thanks to a two-hitter by Jon Matlack and a bases-loaded single by Jerry Grote which drove in two runs. Staub hit a solo homer in the fourth inning to give the Mets a 1-0 lead.

Saturday, Tom Seaver of the Mets set a NL playoff record with 13 strikeouts, but still lost in Cincinnati when Johnny Bench hit a ninth-inning homer for a 2-1 Reds' win.

Bud loses fight

NEW YORK (AP) — "Maybe I did lose the fight—but we won the ball game," said Bud Harrelson of New York Mets.

There was a three-inch scrape over the left eye of the shortstop but little bitterness as he looked to the fourth game today against Cincinnati Reds in the National League baseball playoffs and a possible second confrontation with left fielder Pete Rose.

"I don't think this animosity is going to carry over to the rest of the series," Harrelson said after the altercation at second base in Monday's third game which started one of baseball's wildest brawls.

"I don't hold any hard feelings. Rose is an aggressive professional. I am an aggressive professional. As long as he didn't do it out of spite, I've got no kicks."

Rose, the National League's batting champion, insisted his role in the melee was not ignited by spite.

"I slide hard but I don't play dirty baseball," he said. "I don't think anything would have happened if somebody hadn't hit me while Harrelson and I were down."

MELEE BEGINS

It was a play at second base ending the top half of the fifth inning that set off the melee.

The Mets were leading 9-2, the final score of the game, and Cincinnati was batting. There was one out. Rose was on first after a single. Joe Morgan the Reds' second baseman, hit a ball sharply down the first base line.

John Milner, the Mets' first baseman, fielded the ball and threw to second, where Harrelson was covering, to get the lead runner. Rose, Harrelson shot the ball back to Milner for the double play. As Harrelson released the ball, Rose slid into the base with feet flying. The two went down together. As they arose, Harrelson said Rose bumped him with his elbow.

"I said something to Rose—I don't know exactly what—and he said something back at me," Harrelson said. The two started pushing each other around.

Then players poured out of both dugouts.

GARRETT JOINS BRAWL

Rose and Harrelson were on the ground. Wayne Garrett, the Mets' third baseman who had jumped into the Rose-Harrelson fight at the outset, was flailing away. Buzz Capra of the Mets and big Pedro Borbon of the Reds, both relief pitchers, were throwing punches at each other.

"I was standing there watching and trying to break things up," said Capra, "and then—pow—somebody belted me one. I looked around and there was Borbon at my elbow."

"I thought he did it and I let him have one. Pretty soon both of us were swinging at each other."

Borbon was one of the most incensed of the Reds. He swung wildly at anybody within reach and had to be restrained as he was led back to the bench after the situation had cooled.

applauded

DETROIT (AP) — "I was looking for a hole to climb in," Gordie Howe said. "It was beautiful but then there was no place to hide."

The former National Hockey League superstar was reacting to his first appearance on the ice in the city where he became famous since retiring from Detroit Red Wings two years ago.

Monday night Howe, making a comeback with Houston Aeros of the World Hockey Association, received a 51-second standing ovation before the team's exhibition against Minnesota Fighting Saints at Cobo Arena.

The 45-year-old Howe assisted on two goals in the 3-3 standoff before a crowd of 8,454 which cheered virtually every move by Howe and his team-mate sons, Mark, 18, and Marty, 19.

GORDIE NERVOUS

Gordie admitted being nervous before the game, but he said he wasn't any more tired than usual when he came off the ice.

Redskins top Dallas, tie for first place

WASHINGTON (AP) — Brig Owens intercepted a Craig Morton pass and returned it 26 yards for a touchdown late in the fourth quarter Monday night to give Washington Redskins a 14-7 victory over Dallas Cowboys in a bruising National Football League defensive battle.

Washington's defence preserved the victory for the Redskins, stopping the previously unbeaten Cowboys four times from the four-yard line in the final 38 seconds.

On fourth down—with 16 seconds left—safety Ken Houston stopped Walt Garrison, who had caught a Morton pass, on the one-yard line to end the Dallas threat and prevent a tie.

Owens' interception return came 1:06 after quarterback Sonny Jurgensen threw a one-yard touchdown pass to wide receiver Charley Taylor to tie the score 7-7 with 2:33 left.

Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach threw a 15-yard touchdown pass to wide receiver Otto Stowe with 49 seconds remaining in the first half to provide the only scoring of the game until the final wild four minutes.

BOTH SHARE LEAD
The victory tied the teams for the National Conference East lead with both showing 3-1 records.

In the hard-hitting battle, which produced three blocked field goals, one blocked punt and two roughing-the-kicker penalties, the first two touchdowns were aided by defensive miscues.

Staubach's touchdown pass culminated an 80-yard drive that was sustained by a roughing-the-kicker call on Redskins' special team member Bill Malinchak.

Jurgensen's touchdown pass on third down, came with 3:39 left in the game and after Cowboys cornerback Charlie Waters was penalized 17 yards for interfering with Taylor on a pass play which placed the ball on the one.

Sunday's results were: Miami 31, New York Jets 3; Green Bay 16, New York Giants 14; Cleveland 17, Cincinnati 10; New England 24, Baltimore 16; Pittsburgh 38, San Diego 21; San Francisco 13, Atlanta 9; Buffalo 27, Philadelphia 26; Kansas City 16, Denver 41; Oakland 17, St. Louis 10; New Orleans 21, Chicago 16; and Minnesota 23, Detroit 9.

HILL TOP RUSHER
In Washington, both defensive units and specialty teams were devastating, even though Calvin Hill of Dallas rushed for 103 yards on 22 carries, the game's top ground gainer.

The Cowboys held Larry Brown, last year's most valuable player, to 36 yards on 18 carries. Duane Thomas, the one-time running hero for the Cowboys who sat out the 1972 season before joining the Redskins, saw duty for Washington only on the specialty teams.

Gaiters romp to second straight win

By BRUCE PORTER
Record Reporter

MONTREAL — The Bishop's University Gaiters were blessed with excellent weather for the second straight weekend and, to avoid breaking any possible spell, clobbered the Macdonald College Clansmen 39-0 Saturday.

Quarterback Mike Munzar again proved his running abilities for Bishop's by picking up two touchdowns. Both TDs came on roll-out patterns with the QB having the option to run if no receivers were open. The runs were 20 and 7 yards respectively.

Mike Bookalam scored a single major after last week's outburst but it was just as spectacular. He crossed the goal line after a 17-yard scamper, leaving three Clansmen blockers chomping on grass after he had knocked them down. Dave Mullins also scored a major on a 35-yard reverse. Brian Higgins closed the TD barrage with a 15-yard run.

Greg Brown booted five converts and a single for the Gaiters. Punter Dave MacMillan also kicked a single, while the BU squad nailed Macdonald for a safety touch.

Coach Bruce Coulter was content with the performance.

"We got the points we needed and everybody played," he said. "We have a film of the players in action and should get a good evaluation of them."

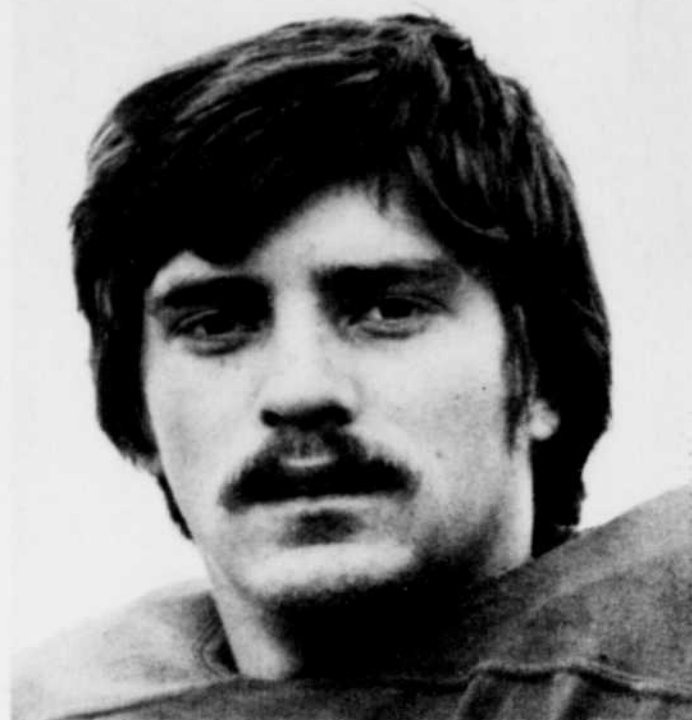

"The offense was sloppy in spots, but overall I was very satisfied," he added.

He mentioned that the first stringers played less than half the game, making way for the non-regulars on the squad. Because they had not played together as a unit, Coulter noted, most showed weaknesses but there were no glaring errors.

Munzar was replaced in the second half by backup QB Jim McLellan. Coulter added that McLellan "got the team moving in the third quarter, and did a real good job."

Looking ahead to next week's tangle with the McGill Redmen, Coulter simply offered: "It all depends on how badly they want to win."

The Redmen are undefeated so far this season, having downed Macdonald, Loyola and Bishop's.

Two touchdowns for the Gaiters

Smith powers Alouettes

By GLENN COLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Young Larry Smith enjoyed his finest football performance Monday since the days when he romped through the Lennoxville, Que., pasture that serves as the home field for Bishop's University Gaiters.

Smith, No. 1 college football player in Quebec in 1971 and Montreal Alouettes' top choice in the draft that year, grabbed three touchdown passes from quarterback George Mira as the Alouettes thrashed Calgary Stampede 45-0 in a Canadian Football League interlocking game.

The Stamps lost 37-10 to Toronto Argonauts Saturday.

The win gave the Alouettes a 6-4-1 record, leaving them one point behind front-running Toronto and one point up on Ottawa Rough Riders in the Eastern Football Conference.

The Rough Riders kept pace Monday as they defeated Hamilton Tiger Cats 16-13 in Hamilton.

While the Stampede were tough in the first quarter, they fell apart in the second and third. Montreal held a 3-0 lead on Don Sweet's 18-yard field goal going into the second quarter, and then Sweet, who converted all five Montreal TDs, booted his second of three field goals with 4:08 gone.

ALS START MOVING

On their next series of plays, Montreal marched from their own 30 and on the fifth play of the drive, Mira connected on a 20-yard pass to Smith.

The Stampede, who managed only two first downs in the first half, failed to move the ball again and Mira took Montreal down from their own 54 before tossing a short pass to Smith who lugged it in from 11 yards out.

Things went from bad to worse for Calgary as quarterback Jim Lindsey was intercepted by Ward Smith who ran the ball from the Stamps' 28 in for Montreal's third TD.

In the second half, Mira led Montreal from their own 34 after the kickoff pass and following his blocking down the right side.

Mark Harris scored a single on the ensuing kickoff when Rudy Linterman could not handle the ball, and John Harvey danced through the Stampede's defence on the final play of the third session for a 34-yard TD after he took a pass from second-string in the final 15 minutes.

TD ON LONG RUN

In Hamilton's game against Ottawa, defensive half Lewis Porter scored the Tiger Cats' only touchdown in the third quarter when he raced 119 yards with a pass interception.

Ian Suter kicked a pair of field goals and a convert to account for the balance of Hamilton's scoring as the Ottawa defence contained quarterback Chuck Ealey and running back Andy Hopkins.

Gerry Organ booted two field goals, three singles and converted Rhone Nixon's TD on a four yard pass from quarterback Jerry Keeling.

Ottawa also managed to cut off the sprint out pass and the sweep which forced the Tiger Cats to run inside, right into the arms of the Riders' linebackers.

Keeling was hurt late in the first half, getting a shot in the ribs right under the arm and also one on his knee. However coach Jack Gotta said the ex-Calgary quarterback should be back in time for Ottawa's game against the Stampede out west next Sunday.

Reed stars for Roughies, Highbaugh helps Eskimos

By JOHN SHORT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

For more than 59 minutes Monday, Larry Highbaugh of Edmonton Eskimos had the kind of day most defensive backs only dream about.

Then he failed by inches in a bid to improve upon perfection and his club settled for a 14-14 tie with Winnipeg Blue Bombers in a Western Football Conference game before 21,841 fans at Edmonton.

He returned a wide field goal attempt by Walt McKee of the Bombers from the rear of the end zone on the last play of the game, after complicating the attempt by fumbling the kick. He swept to his right and appeared safe until the last instant when McKee forced him out of bounds for the tying point.

The play almost nullified Highbaugh's masterful performance. He returned a series of kickoffs to keep Edmonton in good field position, intercepted a Bomber pass in the end zone and contributed to a pass defence that grew tougher as the game progressed.

Highbaugh was one of the dominant Eskimos in a comeback that led them from a 13-3 halftime deficit to a 14-13 lead.

FELL INTO SECOND
The Eskimos fell into second place in the WFC standings, one point behind Saskatchewan Roughriders, who rallied behind George Reed for a 24-9 triumph Sunday over the B.C. Lions.

After the Thanksgiving weekend football festival, each western club had played 12 games and Saskatchewan had 16 points, one more than Edmonton. Calgary Stampede, battered 37-10 by Toronto Argonauts Saturday and 45-0 by Montreal Alouettes Monday, remained in third spot, five points behind Edmonton and three ahead of B.C. and Winnipeg, tied for fourth place.

Reed provided all the momentum Saskatchewan needed after being saluted by almost 22,000 fans, including Premier Allan Blakeney, as "the greatest full-back in the world."

Reed, who has scored more touchdowns by rushing and gained more yardage along the ground than any player in organized football, scored on three

VD concern Preventive education

By GLENNIS ZILM

OTTAWA (CP) — Concern about the prevalence of venereal disease in the "kid" generation—ages 10 to 14—has prompted federal consideration of more preventive educational material including films.

In 1971, there were 273 youngsters under 15 treated for either syphilis or gonorrhea.

"But education programs aimed at youngsters aged 10 to 14 have to be very carefully planned," says a federal health department educationist. "They have to be tasteful and tactful—but they have to make youngsters aware that there are problems associated with the facts of life."

Michael Palko, federal health education consultant, said in a recent interview two films have been approved—one called VD—Kids Get It Too, and the other, More Common than Measles and Mumps.

More Common than Measles and Mumps was produced specially for the health department by students themselves. It is an animated cartoon about two students who have to research the story on VD for their class.

"The film may be used by a responsible adult as a means of initiating discussion about VD and to clear up misconceptions about the problem," says a film review for the department.

VD—Kids Get It Too is a commercially-produced film and was prepared for Grades 6 to 9. It deals with a 14-year-old girl in hospital being treated for gonorrhea who learns that because she had ignored her infection, she may never be able to bear children.

Both syphilis and gonorrhea are dangerous if untreated. Although they may not cause serious discomfort in the early stages, especially for males, they can cause sterility and even death in later stages.

The health department also is revising and reviewing all its own pamphlets and printed educational materials on VD to ensure that the contents are relevant to today's young people, Mr. Palko said.

The federal government makes its materials available to health workers and to provincial governments for distribution.

Tim Buckley doesn't want to be known as the creator of Deep Throat rock 'n' roll, he just thinks it's time the music dealt with sexuality on a real, instead of allusive, level.

He doesn't do it in the nude, in drag or suspended from a gallows pole. He has an incredible five-range instrument in a voice that takes audiences to places they've never been before.

The lyrics are light years away from kisses sweeter than wine and the clinical aspects of most love songs.

"Rock 'n' roll has never said anything about sex, all the way down the line," says Buckley, whose poetry and tortured guttural scat are presented with sweating intensity.

"It was always hinting at it, implying, but never saying anything about actually being in bed, or even starting on that premise. I figured it was high time to be very blatant about it."

However, sex and hit singles don't mix and the reaction of AM radio to his album Greetings From LA was predictable. Even the supposedly-liberated turned reactionary when they heard the new Tim Buckley.

HECKLED IN NEW YORK

"I was playing a concert in New York a couple of weeks ago and there were some gays in the audience calling me a sexist pig, which at my age (26) is pretty much of a compliment."

"At first it threw me. I said: 'My God, I'd better lighten up,' then I figured that's their hangup, their mental block. So I had to say:

'You may be the inner-city stud today; tomorrow, you'll be the suburban stud and eventually, checkers at the firehouse. It's all love. I'm not doing anything to put you uptight.'

"Actually, they're play-acting at being gay. A person who is gay doesn't scream or paint themselves up. It's a fad. I know my little sister's going through it, she's 15."

So-called fag rock groups like the New York Dolls and Sylvester and the Hot Band are part of probably the worst exploitation since advertising executives discovered black is beautiful, says Buckley.

FAD WON'T LAST

"I think it's very unfair to the gay population, because it doesn't say anything about any of the problems or the joys of gayness. People are making money on it, but it won't last."

Buckley believes there's nothing on stage unless there's sex, but it's not something he plans to flaunt.

"Dylan was very sexy, never said a word, just spewed out his prayer wheel of words. And what you caught, you caught. I think if you do what you do honestly and people accept it as sexy, that's the way it is."

But to flaunt it... The telegram I sent (the late Jim) Morrison (of the Doors) when he took off his pants in Miami was: 'It may get you in (jail), Jim, but it won't get you out.' And that's pretty much the way I feel about it."

The influences that helped shape Buckley and his amazing voice came from all corners of the musical spectrum: Nat King Cole, Johnny Mathis, Gerry Mulligan, John Coltrane, Miles Davis. His album, Blue Afternoon, was written around Edith Piaf.

STARTED EARLY
"I gained consciousness in 1952. I heard on the radio that Dylan Thomas had died, then it went into Jo Stafford singing Cross the Jungle When It's Wet With Rain. And I started there."

"My mother was dating Mulligan at the time. I never met him, but there were a couple of albums around the house. My first real incentive to sing was Nat King Cole, and then I learned a little from Johnny Mathis, odd as it may seem now."

"Then she started bringing home things that Coltrane and Miles had done, and then I started hearing music. It sounds so far away today."

Locked away in a vault in Los Angeles is an opera Buckley has written based on the novel Outcasts of the Islands by Joseph Conrad. The mysteries of the recording studio have allowed him to form a 16-voice choir.

"I paid for it myself. It may be released or not... The most important thing is to have done it. I know it will be heard sooner or later."

ACCT to promote culture among its members

By DONAT VALOIS

PARIS (CP) — The Agence de Co-operation Culturelle et Technique (ACCT), supported by 24 French-language countries to promote cultural and technical programs among its members, will meet at Liege and Brussels in Belgium Oct. 14 to 21.

The ACCT was created in Nigeria in 1970 with Canada as one of its founding members. Since 1971, Quebec province has had the status of a participating government in its activities.

The third general conference will be asked to give final approval to a budget proposal for 1974 and 1975 which would almost double this year's $4.6-million spending, an ACCT spokesman said. At a June administration meeting in Monaco a budget outline was prepared increasing spending to more than $7 million in 1974 and possibly $8.5 million in 1975.

Beyond budgetary considerations, the delegates will examine and evaluate present programs—regional and international exchanges, publishing, and tourism in the wilds of Nigeria, Senegal, Mali and Gabon—but the emphasis will be on the Third World development notably French African countries, the spokesman said.

SEEKS CO-OPERATION

The conference will be asked to encourage co-operation among underdeveloped nations. A country with a surplus of specialists in one skill would lend them to another country lacking that skill.

Jean-Marc Leger, former journalist with Montreal Le Devoir and secretary-general of ACCT from its beginning, said such co-operation has been rare. He stressed its relatively low cost compared with aid given by industrialized countries in the form of subsidies, loans and grants.

The ACCT recently inaugurated a Third World Centre at its International School at Bordeaux, which already maintained a management training centre for developing countries.

Canada's contribution of about 35 per cent of the budget, combined with those of France and Belgium, made up more than 90 per cent of the ACCT's financing this year. Quebec pays 68 per cent of the Canadian total.

If the present scale of contributions is continued in future budgets, Canada will give $2.5 million to the organization in 1974 and $3 million in 1975.

Cattle rustling up over 400 percent

By BRUCE EASSON

CP Staff Writer

Remember how it goes in the westerns? The good guys—they wear the white hats—are rounding up the dogies scattered over eye-busting distances.

One good guy rides up a ridge and in a nearby coulee spots a herd of cattle surrounded by a bunch of other guys wearing black hats.

The good guy yells to his fellow cowpokes:

"Rustlers!" and the hoof-pounding chase is on.

Every year some cases of cattle rustling are reported in Canada, usually in the open-range areas of the Western provinces.

But with the recent abrupt increases in meat prices, rustling has hit Eastern provinces.

In a Cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press, Quebec police report 200 head of cattle stolen in three months up to Sept. 1, compared with 50 head in the same period last year.

Not all rustling involves cattle. In New Brunswick at least one pig rustling case was reported. In Newfoundland, sheep have been stolen with one farmer reporting the loss of 47 animals and another 25.

However, despite soaring meat prices, the survey indicates rustling is not a major problem in Canada.

RCMP and cattlemen in British Columbia say there has been no noticeable increase in cattle theft and the comment is similar from Alberta officials.

Rustling has been slightly higher in Saskatchewan but an RCMP spokesman said this is because "there's just more of them around to steal."

Saskatchewan now has an estimated 2.7 million head of cattle and the spokesman said many are in small herds up to 20 head with inadequate fencing.

In Manitoba, an RCMP official said 430 cases of stolen cattle were recorded last year and early estimates were that this year's total might reach 1,000.

Ontario has had only isolated cases of cattle theft. In Nova Scotia one farmer lost 12 breeding cows and in Prince Edward Island two animals listed as missing were believed stolen.

Although rustling does not appear significantly higher in most areas, officials in almost every province say they are braced for a big increase in illegal hunting—poaching.

Big game—moose, elk, deer—generally is the target of poachers seeking to fill the freezer with free meat. But in New Brunswick illegal catches of Atlantic salmon are a prize although the poacher faces a fine up to $1,000 if caught.

A common form of illegal hunting is "jacking"—using a glaring light at night to dazzle game.

One RCMP officer in Nova Scotia said "our deer-jackers will jack no matter what the price of meat."

Poaching is a provincial offence and, depending on the province and the game, carries fines up to $1,000.

However, rustling, despite its long history, is not recognized as a specific offence under the Criminal Code. Rustlers usually are charged under the code with theft under or over $200. Conviction carries a maximum sentence of 14 years.

The cattlemen's association in British Columbia offers rewards up to $1,000 for conviction of rustlers. It has been joined by Alberta cattlemen in asking Ottawa to amend the Criminal Code to make rustling a separate offence and to provide stiffer penalties.

"Too many times a rustler will get off with a suspended sentence," said Andy Russell, president of Alberta's Foothills Protective Association.

In B.C., Alberta and Saskatchewan, the RCMP, who act as the provincial police, maintain special cattle-theft squads. In Quebec, the provincial police instituted special daily reports from each farm area in an effort to halt the increase in rustling.

A newspaperboy learns to keep good records

Young man taking a business course!

During the school day this boy takes courses in English, arithmetic, the social sciences. And he does well at them. On his newspaper route, he takes another course—a business course, in which he applies in a practical way the things he learns in the classroom—he also learns something more.

He learns the basics of business, which will stand him in good stead throughout his life. As a newspaperboy, he operates his own retail business, with the counsel of our circulation people who make a career of working with boys. He buys his newspapers from us, and he sells them to you. In managing his business, he delivers, collects, keeps records, learns to deal with people. Little wonder so many business leaders of today will tell you the most valuable experience they had as a boy was managing a newspaper route. It's one good way a boy can round out his education. Alarming increases

SHERBROOKE (GH) — The number of fires and the resulting losses have been increasing alarmingly. In 1971, there were 24,334 fires in the province. 1972 saw 26,367 of them. 1972 saw 47 more people die in blazes than the previous year. Some 140 deaths resulted from fires in 1971. Last year 187 people became statistics. Some 181 more injuries were caused by flames in 1972 than in 1971. There were 689 injuries in 1972. Fire losses in 1971 totalled $69 million. In 1972, losses totalled $79 million.

High-rise fires

Better building regulations

By PETER MICHAELSON
OTTAWA (CP) — Alarmed by disastrous high-rise fires in other countries, the National Research Council has prepared building regulations to make such buildings safer—and, in some cases, 12 per cent more costly.

The increased costs will be passed on to tenants, said Don Chutter, general manager of the Canadian Construction Association.

The increase could be as high as 12 per cent for new buildings requiring major design modifications. Mr. Chutter said Wednesday in an interview.

David Cox, a spokesman for the Ottawa Construction Association, said Ottawa contractors "have millions of dollars of building designs on the drawing board," many of which will have to be altered.

Once the bugs are worked out, however, and drawings and systems can be mass produced, prices should come down, he said.

REDUCE DANGERS

The regulations for new construction, to be written into the National Building Code this month, are designed to reduce the dangers of smoke asphyxiation during high-rise fires.

Stair and elevator shafts are to be separated at the ground floor to prevent smoke from a basement fire rising through the shafts.

Duct systems to blow smoke outside or contain it in a small area also are required. Safety or refuge rooms, made smokeproof with fans and vents, must be provided throughout each building.

Under the regulations, however, a builder is not required to provide all these features, explained Murdoch Galbreath, a NRC senior research officer.

Balconies that jut out five feet from the wall and other basic safety features were all that was required in high-rise residences under 120 feet.

SPRINKLERS OPTION

Builders would also have the option of providing a sprinkler system in lieu of other safety measures, or could construct twin towers joined by bridges at varying heights.

Mr. Galbreath said the regulations are required because high-rise buildings cannot be evacuated quickly, and some residents have to remain inside until the fire is put out. Because smoke tends to rise from floor to floor, asphyxiation, not the fire itself, was the major danger.

There has not been heavy loss of life in a high-rise fire in Canada, but more than 160 persons were killed in a high-rise fire in Seoul, Korea, in 1971.

The Canadian Association of Fire Chiefs endorsed a resolution in August calling for mandatory fire-sprinkler systems in all high-rises. However, this was rejected because of the high cost, said Mr. Galbreath.

Public Works Minister Jean Eudes Dube announced last month that all government high-rise buildings being designed and, where possible, those under construction will be equipped with sprinkler systems.

The code is not uniformly imposed across Canada. Some provinces have legislation made the code standard while municipalities in other provinces usually adopt the code with minor variations.

Do it for your family

Exactly what would you do if right now you heard the crackle of fire in your kitchen?

Exactly what would you do if, in the middle of the night, your family was sleeping soundly and you awakened to the smell of smoke?

People who don't have ready answers to these questions are risking their family's and their own lives. For these are the people who don't know how to act when fire strikes in the home.

The first rule of safety from fire is escape: Get everybody out at the very first sign of fire.

Unless you have done some thinking and planning, you may not be able to escape. National Fire Protection Association studies show the great majority of the lives lost in home fires needlessly lost because of failure to pre-plan and rehearse escape measures.

So prepare a home life safety plan for your family. Make sure everyone, including the children, knows exactly what to do. Then hold family fire drills regularly.

Here are some pointers to help you plan:

Carefully figure out at least two routes to the outside from every room in the house, especially bedrooms. Allow for blocking of stairways and halls by fire.

Particularly for nighttime fires, remember that closed bedroom doors will hold back flame and smoke, allow extra time to escape.

For upper floor escape, use any available porch and garage roofs, ladders or—for agile children, especially—trees as ways down to safety. Be sure exit windows work easily, and that they are low and large enough to get through.

Pick an outside assembly point where the family will meet, and be sure everyone understands the rule "Once out—Stay out."

Know how to call the fire department from a street box or neighbor's telephone, and do this as quickly as possible once everyone is out of the burning house.

Check
HAZARDS

Prevent Catastrophe

by following the rules set by the City of Magog Fire Chief. More than half of the fire and loss of life by fire are in the home. Nearly all could be prevented by practising the following rules:

Fire Prevention Week OCTOBER 7th — 13th

SMOKING — Never smoke in bed, in the barn, the clothes closet or the garage.
MATCHES — Do not let children play with matches. Keep matches in a safe place.
Put burnt matches in a metal container. Use safety matches. PUT OUT CIGARETTES AND MATCHES BEFORE THROWING AWAY. BE SURE THEY ARE EXTINGUISHED.

GARBAGE — Do not keep garbage and waste, especially in the cellar, barn or cupboard. Burn carefully. Never while it is windy. Burn in protected place or incinerator. Watch the fire and be sure it is completely extinguished.

ALL SHOULD BE CLEAN — Pipes and all heating equipment should be cleaned and checked at least once a year. Use a pro-active screen wherever necessary. Do not install pipes between ceilings, roof or partitions.

DO NOT OVERHEAT —

CHIMNEY COVERS — Use metallic covers. Do not wallpaper over. Do not stuff with rags.
ASHES — Only use metal containers. Do not dump ashes near places that may cause a fire.
GASOLINE - BENZINE - NAPHTHA — Do not use for lighting the fire, the explosion that may result can cause fatal burns and death.

ELECTRICITY — That all work be done by experts. Light cords should not be used as extensions or hung over nails.

ELECTRIC FUSES — Use only 15 amperes for ordinary circuits. Never use a penny to boost the fuses.

ELECTRIC IRONS — Always disconnect when not in use.

PORTABLE GAS STOVES — Protect the top with asbestos covering.

LAMPS, CANDLES ETC. — Do not put close to curtains, or other inflammable materials.
DECORATIONS — Do not place inflammable decorations over light bulbs, flame or warming oven.

OILY DUST MOPS OR CLOTHS — Keep the mops in a closed metal box. Burn the cloths, they may cause spontaneous combustion.

REMEMBER — A careful person rarely has a fire; a neat and orderly place rarely burns.
ATTENTION: We ask that you cooperate by keeping stove and furnace pipes clean, and replacing any defective pipes. Chimney sweeping is now terminated.

A minute can mean tragedy

"Four youngsters dead in blaze."

"Fire kills two children while mom shops."

Headlines such as these have shocked the nation in recent months.

Unfortunately, such tragedies continue to occur.

Why? Because many parents are so easily deceived by the faulty notion that "it can't happen here."

The terrible truth is that it can. Picking up an item at the local market, returning a book borrowed from a neighbor — these little tasks take only a few minutes, the busy parent can rationalize. Actually, the young child who is left unattended for "just a few minutes" is in great danger. A major cause of fire, in fact, is the child who has been left alone, often for just a few, fatal minutes.

The fall issue of the Junior Fire Marshal Magazine, distributed by The Hartford Insurance Group to millions of school children all over the United States and Canada says "A home is never as safe as a castle unless there's a guard on duty."

"A mother preparing lunch discovered she needed something from the store. It was only a few blocks away. While she was gone, her six-year-old daughter decided to feed the baby. She reached across the stove to heat the baby's bottle. Her clothing caught fire. She was fatally burned. That home was no castle — the guard was gone!"

"With winter weather coming on and heating and electrical appliances in greater use, the unattended child problem becomes most acute," says Fire Chief Charles Audet.

As a member of the International Association of Fire Chiefs he heartily endorses the program of the Hartford, aimed at warning parents of the importance of guarding their children at all times.

Guard your castle and its young occupants. Never leave your child unattended. Avoid the tragedy of returning home "after just a few minutes" only to find that fire has destroyed those you love.

FIRE CAN TAKE IT ALL!

Fire Prevention

Sherbrooke joins all municipalities in Canada and the United States which will observe "Fire Prevention Week," during the week of Oct. 7 through Oct. 13, 1973. The slogan for this campaign is "Help...stop fire."

Our aim during this fire prevention week is to make everyone aware that fire prevention is a question of life and death, that every individual owes it to himself to protect himself, his family and fellowman at every moment, and all year round in thinking and behaving "fire cautiously."

The program, for this fire prevention week, includes the following events: Fire evacuation practices in hospitals, shops and schools conferences and films in schools' fire extinguishing practices.

Fire prevention week is the most observed week of all the proclaimed weeks in this country, and also the oldest. By tradition, it is to commemorate the Chicago fire, on Oct. 9 1871, in which 250 citizens perished and 17,430 houses were destroyed, for a total loss of $168,000,000.

Winter is coming, the season of fires, it is the chosen time to draw the population's attention on precautions to take against fire in each home.
