THE STRATIGRAPHY OF THE QUEBEC GROUP.

The above is the title of a small pamphlet published by the Geological Society of America. It forms part of the transactions of that body for 1889. The author is Dr. R. W. Ells, of the Geological Survey of Canada, to whom we are indebted for our copy. As is probably well known to the majority of those who take an interest in the subject of geology, the classification of the series of rocks known as the "Quebec Group"—extending over an area comprising Gaspe, the greater part of the Eastern Townships and the states of New Hampshire and Vermont has, been a matter of dispute with scientists for a good many years. The discussion has turned upon the various theories advanced as to the relative age of the group, and the several formations comprising it. The mere question of the relative age of a group of rocks may seem to many to be of little more than theoretical importance, but to the mining engineer it is often one of considerable practical importance. The stratigraphy, or in other words the "mapping out," of the strata of large districts affords the safest clue to the tracing of any portion, and the mining engineer or prospector is often obliged to form his conclusions with regard to limited areas upon the date furnished by the study of the whole group of rocks of which his area forms a part.

The relative age of a group of rocks is determined by two principles. The first is that of superposition, and the other is the evidence afforded by the fossil remains of animal and vegetable life embedded in the strata. The first principle is readily comprehended. Of two horizontal beds of sedimentary rock the topmost is usually the newer. The exceptions we will note further on. The second principle on which the relative age is determined is somewhat more difficult. As a branch of geology it is known as paleontology. Briefly stated, it is a comparison of the innumerable forms of animal and vegetable life which have appeared in succession in the world and which have left fragments of their history in the rock-formations. This fossil record extends, as everybody knows, over many million years.

In the case of the "Quebec Group," however, both of these principles are difficult to apply. The sedimentary beds which form the group were undoubtedly laid down one upon the other long ages ago, but enormous forces—which can only be slowly realized—have upset and overturned the strata, and the overlying drift and soil largely disguise their real position. Where they "crop out" or appear through the drift and soil, they are so contorted and in many cases so eroded that it is next to impossible to determine the original order of their succession. The sparse distribution of fossil remains forms the other difficulty. The very considerable metamorphism which the group has undergone has destroyed all but a few traces here and there of those remains of animal and vegetable life which enable the geologist to arrange the rock masses of the world in the order of their historical succession.

The "Quebec Group" has been studied by a good many geologists in Canada and the United States. The first Canadian publication on the subject was that by Dr. Bigsby in 1827, and the second that of Admiral Bayfield in 1845. Before Dr. Ells' recent explorations, the group was also studied by Mr. Richardson, Dr. Sterry Hunt, Dr. Selwyn and above all by Sir William Logan. On the American portion of the group the best work was done by Dr. Hitchcock and Prof. Rogers. Dr. Ells' paper gives an admirable historical review of the results obtained by these various investigators and of the advance of opinion on the subject up to the present time.

THE PROVINCIAL ELECTIONS

The House has dissolved, and the nominations take place on the 10th of June and the elections on the 17th. In no narrow spirit, but with a laudable regard for their interests, the English minority may justly consider the situation from their own point of view. In a high sense, indeed, the best interests of the whole province include the best interests of the English minority, but there are features of government or administration to which a single rule is not applicable for the majority as well as the minority. The question of Education is one of these. The decided difference in spirit and method between Catholic and Protestant education calls for a difference in treatment which will require careful statesmanship as long as the education of the people is assumed by the state. That the minority of this province have suffered, and still suffer from disabilities in this respect will hardly be questioned, and that they will turn to an administration which gives substantial promise of removing the greater difficulties can hardly be doubted. Which party should they turn to? Our answer to this is, unhesitatingly, the Liberal party. As the Richmond Guardian, a conservative journal, said a few months ago, our "natural allies are the Liberals" and as the same paper admitted, a grave "mistake" was made when the English minority did not give a more general support to Mr. Joly. Now that the power of the Nationalist-Conservatives whose "support hampered Mr. Mercier, has been broken, it is to be hoped that the minority will not repeat the "mistake" of failing to support a truly Liberal government. That Mr. Mercier has cut himself adrift from the narrow sectionalism which endeavored to hamper him at the earlier part of his ministerial career, and that he has freely adopted the broader spirit and principles of true Liberalism is apparent in many ways, and particularly in the recent cabinet changes. The appointment of Mr. Robidoux as Provincial Secretary is an instance of this. Mr. Robidoux is a Liberal in every sense of the word, and his long connection with McGill University has put him in active sympathy with the higher spirit of the English minority.

If the minority, we repeat, fail to give a general support to their "natural allies" the Liberals, a grave "mistake" will again be made. The one hope of allaying those discords in our province which at times threaten the very existence of Confederation and the one hope of establishing an equality of right and justice, lies, we believe, in the Liberal party. Its very spirit, whenever it has had free play, has been in these directions, and it should therefore receive the support of that portion of the minority who have trust in the possibilities and the destiny of the Province.

As an out-and-out Nationalist, in spirit as well as in name, Mr. Belanger can hardly look for the support of the Liberals of this district. Nationalism is dying out as it ought to. It can only live at the expense of antagonizing two races who can live and work together in harmony, good-will and to the best interests of both. Nationalism is dying, we believe, because the good sense of both races in the Province is opposed to it. The spirit of Nationalism will be replaced, we trust, by a broader and nobler Liberalism.

VISIT OF THE M. W. THE GRAND MASTER AND OFFICERS OF GRAND LODGE—INSTALLATION—BANQUET.

Tuesday the 13th inst will mark a red letter day in the history of Victoria Lodge, No. 16, A. F. and A. M. of this city, it being the occasion of an official visit of the most Worshipful the Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Quebec, I. H. Stearns, accompanied by the following Grand Lodge officers Dr. Russell D. G. M., J. H. Graham P. G. M., E. R. Johnson P. G. M., H'y Davidson G. S. W., J. H. Isaacson Grand Sec'y, H. Dunne P. G. R., B. Tooke G. D. C., G. Aylmer Brooke G. Organist, J. Fales G. P., C. Greaves G. D., E. Higginbottom G. D. S. Lebourveau P. G. S. W. Lodge was opened in form at eight p. m., Worshipful Master Ames, presiding. B Tooke G. D. C., introduced the Grand Lodge officers, who were received in due and ancient form and conducted to their stations in the Lodge. The Grand Master returned hearty thanks to the officers of Victoria Lodge for their invitation to visit them on this occasion. He said it was very seldom that a Grand Master in making an official visit had the pleasure of so many of grand lodge officers accompanying him as was present this evening. He said he also wished to record his high appreciation of the hearty reception accorded them. He said that as there were other business to be transacted he would not occupy the time with any extended remarks, but before sitting down he had a pleasant duty to perform and that was to install two officers who were appointed to office at the last meeting of Grand Lodge, and appointed R. W. Bro. H. E. Channell to present V. W. Bro. Jno. Fales to be installed as Grand Pursuivant and V. W. Bro. G. A. Brooke as Grand Organist. At the close of this ceremony the routine business of the lodge was proceeded with, and the meeting closed in harmony, at ten p. m. The brethren then adjourned to the Sherbrooke House where a banquet was held, at which about sixty of the brethren were present, all of whom did full justice to the good things provided to satisfy the cravings of the inner man by mine host Bro. Cote of the "Sherbrooke House." Mr. Cote is deserving of much praise for the bountiful spread so capitally served on this occasion M. W. Bro. E. R. Johnson P. G. M., presided, having on his right the M. W. Grand Master I. H. Stearns, M. W. J. H. Graham P. G. M., R. W. Bros. Dunne, Lebourveau Presby; on his left were R. W. Isaacson G. Sec'y, R. W. Bro. Lucke P. D. D. G. M., and V. W. Bro. Brooke and Fales. After having feasted upon the good things the usual toasts were proposed by the chairman and were very enthusiastically responded to, interspersed with songs and readings, the company separating at about one o'clock after singing Auld Lang Syne and the National Anthem, feeling that a very pleasant as well as profitable evening had been spent.

THE LUMBER TRADE.

(From our Portland Correspondent.)

The amount of business done last week was somewhat limited owing to the strikes in all kinds of building trades, although the labor question did not amount to so much as was looked for. Most of the contractors and master builders gave the men the 8 hours asked for as a day's work. Here in this city 9 hours is what they asked to constitute a day's work and all agreed to it except three and they are expected to come to terms soon. Spruce and all kinds of lumber are selling well although many dealers through Massachusetts perfer to wait till the middle of the month before stocking up, and only give their order for small quantities. Clapboards still rule high but very few dealers care about giving orders for full car load lots. Dry hemlock and spruce boards are very scarce and meet with quick sales, and very few are in the market. Birch and ash boards are being bought up in the Boston market, but in small lots. Lath are a little on the decline some lots offer for 5c per thousand off the market quotations. Many of the Canadian mill men might do well this year if prices keep up in sawing New York orders instead of South American orders, as the price is $2 00 per thousand better than last year. Any one could run a random order for New York that had timber suitable for the South American trade. Any one who would saw a bill of such we will give all the information that they require by addressing your correspondent,

The Canada Lumberman.

This excellent publication is now published at 20 Yonge street, Toronto having been transferred from Peterboro. It is a most ably conducted journal and should be in the hands of all those interested in the lumber trade. It contains the latest and trustworthy market reports from various points throughout the world. Subscription only $1.00 a year. Address G. Mortimer, 20 Yonge street, Toronto.

A series of striking memoranda on the life of Lincoln will be printed in the June Century, accompanied by a full-page illustration, showing the exact appearance of the stage and proscenium boxes at Ford's Theatre as they appeared on the night of the assassination.

Election Notes.

Now that the date of the Provincial election has been fixed, (nomination 10th and polling 17th of June) there is considerable activity being manifested in political circles.

In Sherbrooke there now appears to be three Richard's in the field, first the ex-M. P. P., Hon. Mr. Robertson; second J. A. Chicoyne Esq. our worthy Mayor, both conservatives; third Mr. L. C. Belanger, Nationalist.

THE CLUB CARTIER MEETING.

At a meeting of the members of this Club and other French conservatives, held Tuesday evening, Mr. Chicoyne was asked to contest the county and he accepted the nomination with the understanding that he would retire if he became satisfied that his candidature would injure the political interests of his compatriots. The meeting also appointed a committee to wait upon Mr. Robertson for the expressed purpose of coming to an amicable understanding with him and his friends so as to avoid a split in the conservative ranks but insisting upon their right to choose a candidate for Quebec.

THE NATIONALIST MEETING.

A large meeting of Nationalists was held in Pelletier's hall, South Ward at which Mr. L. C. Belanger was asked to stand as a candidate, to which he readily consented, provided the electors of Ascot and Orford were equally favorable.

There was also a meeting Wednesday evening of the Liberals at the Sherbrooke House, and those that were there suggesetd no change in the candidate proposed at the Nationalist meeting, Mr. Belanger.

Richmond, Que, May 15th, 1890.—At a Liberal meeting held here to-day, at which delegates from Danville and Shipton were present, the Hon. Henry Aylmer's nomination was unanimously confirmed. The two municipalities mentioned had not been represented at last week's meeting. The Rev. Mr. Sanderson and Mr. George Goodhue stated that Mr. Aylmer's candidature was entirely satisfactory to the temperance party.

City Council.

The Council met at a special meeting on Monday afternoon last at three o'clock to transact the following business: To confirm the proceedings of the last meeting; to receive the proces verbal of a new street in the East Ward; To receive and act upon the report for the relief of the poor; and to amend By-Law 127. Were present, the Mayor and Councillors Odell, Paton, Wood, Fortier, Murray, Dupuy, Read, McManamy and Belanger

The proceedings of the last meeting was read and confirmed.

Moved by Councillor Wood and seconded by Councillor Dupuy and Resolved

That the proces verbal of Murray street in the East Ward prepared by N. H. Green, P. L. S. dated October 5th 1889 and now before the council be and the same is hereby adopted, and said street established and homologated, according to the description given in said proces verbal; carried unanimously.

The committee for the Relief of the Poor reported recommending the payment of $24 to the superior Grey Nuns, and $39.25 poor "orders" paid during the month.

The mayor informed the council that two small girls had been sent here from Biddeford Me., aged about eight and eleven years, without any means of support and had been sent to the Hospital, where if they remained a charge of one dollar and a half a week for each would have to be paid by the city. The Mayor asked what action the council would take in the matter. After some discussion it was decided to leave them at the Hospical for a week or so and try and get communication with their parents, but if they failed, to purchase tickets for them and send them back, where they came from. The council then adjourned.

Presbytery of Quebec.

The Presbytery of Quebec met in St. Andrews Church, Sherbrooke, on Tuesday the 13th instant at 8 o'clock. The Moderator Rev. H. Lamont D.D., president. After the reading of the minutes a conference was held on the "Higher religious instructions of the youths of our church." The subject was introduced by the Rev. J. McLeod of Richmond, Messrs Lee, Tait, Ferguson and J. R. McLeod afterwards made short addresses. The importance of memorizing the scripture was strongly insisted upon, also the importance of parents and guardians co-operating with the Sabbath School teachers in the thorough preparation of the Sabbath School Lesson.

The Home Mission report was presented by Rev. A. Lee, which showed that all our Mission fields are at present supplied by missionaries and that the work is progressing favorably. Three new churches will be built this summer, viz. one at Sawyerville, one at Lake Megantic, and one at Ditchfield

Rev. C. A. Tanner submitted his report on French work, giving the names of laborers and mission fields within the bounds of the Presbytery.

He also submitted the constitution of a school to be established at Quebec for the education of French and English pupils. The whole scheme with relative papers was ordered to be transmitted to the French Evangelization, Montreal. A call to Danville Presbyterian Church in favor of Rev. G. H. Smith was sustained and on Mr. Smith's acceptance of the call his induction and ordination was appointed to take place the 27th of May.

A delegation consisting of Rev. A. McLeod, Rev. D. L. Dewar, and Rev. J. R. McLeod was appointed to visit Lingwick in the interests of the congregation. The Presbytery adjourned to meet in Danville on the 27th of May.

Canadian Order of Foresters.

On Thursday evening, 8th inst the Canadian Order of Foresters held a joint installation of officers of the courts in the district, comprising Court Beaver, (Lennoxville) Court St. Francis, (city) Court Friendship, (city) and Court Sherbrooke, (city) The idea originated with young and vigorous Court Sherbrooke, and its popular Chief Ranger, Alf. Martin, with the hearty co-operation of the officers and members of the Courts concerned, it proved a most enjoyable success. The installation services were conducted by Bro. James Dunsmore D. D. H. C. R., and he was ably assisted by Bro. Shaw, who acted as High Marshall, Bro. Millet acted as H. V. C. R., and Bro. Munkittrick was High Recording Sec'y. The Court Rooms of St. Francis and of Friendship were utilized for the occasion and were filled with a large and enthusiastic crowd of Foresters. The beautiful and impressive ceremony was done full justice to by the painstaking D. D. H. C. R. At the close of the meeting an adjournment was made to the "Grand Central Hotel," where a most sumptuous supper was partaken of, the chair being filled by Bro. Brown of Lennoxville, who had on his right Bro. Silvie, G. Squires and Dr. Edgar and on the left Bros. Dunsmore, Alf. Martin and Odell.

With speeches, song and sentiment a most enjoyable evening was spent.

The Tariff question will be discussed by Edward Atkinson in an article entitled "Comparative Taxation," in the June Century.

West Compton Farmer's Club.

The West Compton Farmer's Club had their usual meeting on Wednesday evening the 7th; the gathering was small, no doubt principally on account of the bad roads. Dr. Powers of Waterville came according to appointment, but finding but few people present and the roads being unsafe for a team after dark, he asked to be excused promising to be in attendance at the next meeting if possible, which will be the 21st inst. Dr. Powers has chosen for his subject the true nobility of the cultivators of the soil, based upon an oft quoted saying, viz. "he who causes two blades of grass to grow where only one grew before, is a benefactor to the race." Farmers, come and fill the place, surely you ought to come in crowds to encourage the good Doctor in trying to elevate your occupation to its proper place amongst the employments of mankind. Farmers have too long been looked upon as a set of dunces with lots of physical power but precious few brains; but to proceed with the meeting, for we had one notwithstanding the absence of the Dr. We have sufficient local talent to run an occasional meeting without outside help, but still we extend a hearty welcome to all sympathizers, and say in scriptural language, come over and help us, but to our subject; we had a kind of review of the benefits received by the members of the club during the two years and two months of its existence, led by Mr. Kerr. He said he was often asked what benefit do you receive from your club. He thought one very great benefit was each member could learn how the successful ones had attained to success without being at the trouble and expense of experimenting themselves. Some people told him they might learn that from agricultural papers, but he, Mr. Kerr preferred to learn from a farmer he knew whose land and circumstance resembled his own, to anything we might read in a paper, though often valuable information was gathered from papers. Others joined the discussion, after which a resolution was passed, namely, that we should have a yearly inspection of crops raised by members of the club, and have also a roll of honor upon which members names should be placed who excelled in any particular crop, and also be inserted in the local paper, and that the subject be further considered at the next meeting.

Richmond.

At the several conventions held last week only one resulted in definite action. The Liberals on Friday selected the Hon. Henry Aylmer as their standard bearer. The "irrespective-of-party" scheme was formally abandoned on Saturday afternoon. In the morning of the same day, the temperance convention was held at Alexander's Hall, but no candidate was decided upon. A silly objection that is being raised against Mr. Aylmer is that he is not an "agressive" temperance man. Mr. Aylmer is decidedly temperance, however, in his convictions and his practice and it should be better for the cause, one would think, that he is not a "hot-head," as a few would seem to desire....The election to fill the place of Councillor Dubrule, resigned, in the town council takes place on Friday. There are no candidates in the field so far. The interest in the provincial election swallows up even aldermanic ambitions ....Mr. Amable Trudeau, aged 65 years, was found dead in a woodshed about one mile from the Upper Melbourne post office on Monday morning. Coroner Pelletier of Sherbrooke was summoned and an inquest was held. No marks of violence were found on the body and Dr. Rochette testified that he had been treating the man recently for heart disease. The verdict attributed the death to heart disease....We record the deaths this week of Mr. Stewart of Upper Melbourne and of Mrs. Rochette, wife of Dr. Rochette of Richmond.

Waterville.

It was announced from the pulpit of the Congregational Church on Sunday last that the pastor with one of the members of the choir would be around during the week to canvas for the new hymn and tune-book which the committee of the Church, together with their pastor had decided to adopt. A new hymn and tune-book had been a felt need for a considerable time past and now they had an opportunity of becoming possessed of just the kind of book that was required. The book is entitled "Laudes Domini," edited by Chas. S. Robinson, D. D., being a very fine selection of hymns and spiritual songs, both ancient and modern. The music is equally in keeping with the words, both music and words being indeed eminently fitted to assist the worshipper in this most essential part of public worship. In order also that full justice may be done to the singing and general conduct of the musical part of the service, it has been decided to dispose of the present instrument, and to fill its place by a much finer organ. Previous to this, however, the Church has to be thoroughly cleaned, and renovated inside. This together with a few alterations requisite for placing of the new organ and choir seats will probably necessitate the closing of the Church for at least two Sundays. Due notice as to the closing of the Church, and particulars as to reopening services will be given in the near future.

ST. NICHOLAS for May begins with one of Miss Alice Maude Ewell's characteristic sketches of Virginian colonial life. It is called "The Passing of General Bacon," and tells an amusing incident of Bacon's Rebellion. Among the new features is one of especial interest to boys and young men. Walter Camp, author of the papers on "Intercollegiate Foot-ball," begins a series of eminently practical articles on baseball, called, "Bat, Ball, and Diamond." Mr. Glave, the African explorer, continues his narrative of "Six Years in the Wilds of central Africa," and shows that he can handle the pen as deftly as the rifle. Lieutenant Fletcher's charming story of "Marjorie and her Papa," is also continued, and is delightful reading for both young and old. "Lady Jane," Mrs. C. V. Jamison's serial of life in New Orleans, is certainly a beautiful story of child-life, and sure to be a favorite. "Crowded Out o' Crofield" loses none of its attractiveness. Other continued articles are the geological papers, "Through the Back Ages," and the Bunny Stories, the latter being completed in this month's issue. Besides the features mentioned may be named "A Submarine Ramble," by Charles Frederick Holder, a sketch of the experiences of a diver in seeking for wrecked cargoes; "In the Lumber Woods," a beautiful and interesting account of lumbering in the Northwest; a funny little article by Frances C. Baylor, describing "The Corkwells," an imaginary family to whom she was introduced by a very young friend. There are pictures in plenty, and the departments are very interesting. It is a number which will repay its readers. The usual number of poems are given in this issue.

Massey's Illustrated for May is to hand and contains as usual much interesting matter aside from the advertisements of this well known firm whose manufacture of farming implements is now of world-wide fame.

To the Electors of the Electoral Division of Sherbrooke.

GENTLEMEN,—The dissolution of the Quebec House of Assembly renders a new election of representatives necessary throughout the Province.

At the request of many of my friends I again offer myself for your suffrages as representative to the Legislative Assembly of Quebec.

The long time I have been honored by your confidence leads me to hope for the same generous support at the coming election. I trust the manner in which I have heretofore acted as your representative for so many years will show that I have carefully looked after your interests, and prove a guarantee for the future.

I am strongly in favor of a more economical management of the public funds than has obtained for the past three years, otherwise I do not see how direct taxation of the people can be avoided. I have been unable to support the present administration in many of its acts, and especially in its maladministration of the revenues of the Province and the persistent efforts made to introduce and foster division amongst the people of the Province, for political and party purposes, thus destroying the harmony which heretofore existed amongst all classes of the community.

I shall endeavor, if elected, to do all I can to promote the best interests of our Province, and especially of the Eastern Townships.

I shall not be able to see you all personally. We will have opportunities of more fully discussing important public questions in local meetings.

I am, gentlemen,
Your obedient servant,
J. G. ROBERTSON.

Sherbrooke, May 15th, 1890.

The Central Experimental farm at Ottawa have issued the first of a series of bulletins which they propose to issue regularly for the purpose of spreading useful information bearing upon dairying in the Dominion. The first three just issued treat of (1) milk for cheese factories; (2) notes for cheese makers for May; (3) butter making. They can be obtained by applying to the Dairy Commissioner, Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

One of the most remarkable narratives of recent African exploration is that of Lieutenant Victor Giraud, just published at Paris, with upwards of 106 superb engravings illustrating his journey to the lakes of equatorial Africa. Lafcadio Hearn, the author of the popular English version of France's Crime of Sylvestre Bonnard has selected and translated for Harper's Weekly, a series of excerpts from Giraud's work, which serve to convey an idea of the young Frenchman's journey, and of his singular adventures. The excerpts are to appear, together with reproductions of some of the most characteristic illustrations, in a four-page Supplement to the number to be published May 14th.

A number of young ladies, graduated from Vassar, Wellesley, and other similar institutions, have recently founded in New York what is known as "The College Settlement in Rivington Street," for the purpose of teaching the people of that neighborhood "how to live." Frances J. Dyer will describe the humane enterprise in the number of Harper's Bazar to be published May 16th.

The Dominion Illustrated for May 10 is well off in portraiture and scenery, and has, besides, some attractions of especial interest to all Canadians. Lieut.-Col. Chamberlin, C.M.G., has the place of honour, which none of his old confreres of the press are at all likely to grudge him. Dr. Burgess, the Medical Superintendent of the new Protestant Hospital for the Insane, Montreal, also appears in this number. The Rev. Mr. Sandwell, of Zion Church, Toronto, and Chief Crowfoot complete the portrait gallery. The Bubastis Stone, recently donated by Mr. H. R. Ives to the Redpath Museum, is depicted as in situ there, and is described by Sir William Dawson. Not the least interesting feature of the number is the series of engravings of work in carpentering, modeling, etc., done by pupils of the school of the Council of Arts and Manufactures. They are accompanied by descriptive letter-press and a general account of a most important and too little known movement. Two timely rafting scenes and a picture of the launch of the Minnedosa at Kingston, complete a really excellent number of this fine pictorial paper. Address: The Dominion Illustrated, 73 St. James street, Montreal.

HORSE MARKET.

May 13.—Since our last review of the horse trade we have to note a considerable falling off in the demand, which is due to the fact that American buyers have filled their wants for the present and also that the supply of horses in the States just now is far in excess of the demand. Consequently the market here has ruled quiet and will likely continue so for some time as few horses are bought for shipment during the summer months. Eleven horses at prices ranging from $50 to $125 each, since navigation has opened quite a number of imported horses have arrived and the indications are that the shipments this year will be larger than last.

CATTLE MARKET.

We quote the following as being fair values: Cattle butchers' good 4½c to 5c; Cattle butchers medium 4c to 4½c; Cattle butchers' culls 3½c to 3¾c; Sheep and lambs 4½c to 5c; Hogs 5½c to 5¾c; Calves $3.00 to $5.00.

Amalgamation of the Lime Co's.

By a recent act of Parliament, the Dominion Lime company and the Dudswell Lime and Marble company have been amalgamated under the name of the Dominion Lime company. The new company possess perhaps the largest works of the kind engaged in the lime trade in Canada. The quarries, situated in the township of Dudswell, P. Q., consist of an immense deposit of highly crystalline limestone of very superior quality. The lime produced during the years the quarries have been in active operation has acquired a first class reputation, being extensively used by paper manufacturers and builders in Canada and many parts of the New England states. The facilities for working and shipment are excellent, the works being immediately on the line of the Quebec Central and Hereford railways. The output is large, the companies now amalgamated having disposed of 100,000 barrels during the season. The capital of the newly formed company is $400,000. Hon. Frank Jones, of Portsmouth, N. H., is president, and Mr. F. P. Buck general manager and treasurer. The formation of this company, with such a large amount of capital invested, is only another evidence of the confidence felt in the wealth of the mineral resources of the Eastern Townships.

Flodden.

The weather is now something like spring and the farmers have made a beginning at their spring work. It rained incessantly since Saturday and the fields are looking quite green. ....Mr. Charles Rose has lost a valuable cow lately....Mr. Murdock Wilson of St. Paul who has been here with his wife and family intends to return to St. Paul this week. His wife and family will remain here during the summer....The school in this place closed on Friday last the teacher Mr. A. J. MacLeod has been well liked and has done all in his power to advance his scholars. An entertainment in connection with the school was held in the evening in the school house where a large number of people congregated to hear the scholars recite their pieces; the programme for the evening was a long one consisting of an address from the teacher, recitations, reading, songs and a debate on "what would men do the most for, women, wine, or money?" The debate was a long one, and at the close it was decided in favor of the women. As the evening was well advanced and everyone seemed to have enjoyed themselves, the entertainment was brought to a close by a short address from the teacher, and closed by singing God Save the Queen in which every one took a lively interest.

Waterville.

Our school house still stands in the grounds; but the boys and girls who are in attendance at the school house are by no means standing, mentally, where they were when they first started with their slates and pencils and books. They are progressing in knowledge, some more slowly than others of course according to capacity and opportunity, but all going on. Their teachers speak in high terms of the regularity of attendance, attention to lessons and general good conduct on the part of the scholars. I am sure also the scholars would speak in high terms of their teachers if I had questioned them. The rush they made to their schoolrooms when the bell rung to summon them from recess, told me this at least, that school hours were as pleasant to them as play time. The teachers I am convinced are fully aware of the importance of their work for in addition to the technical part of the training to which our young friends are put, I could see there was an undertone of seriousness on the part of the teachers as to their moral and spiritual welfare, and perhaps there is no more important work in its way than the instruction of the young. No time of life can possibly be so appropriate as these early years for laying the foundation of future usefulness. In these years of childhood and youth according to the mental and moral influence now being exerted upon the mind are being bred the germs, which in subsequent development, will terminate either in noble deeds or the reverse; head knowledge seasoned with heart culture is the soundest and safest education. Knowledge puffeth up but love edifieth (Greek. buildeth up) and this is the kind of knowledge which the young people of our village are being trained in. Their future, if only they lose not the impressions now sought to be made upon their minds, is sure. The school rooms I think leave nothing to be desired as to light, ventilation, neatness and general air of cheerfulness, so necessary to mental progress. It will not be long now before the summer vacation comes on when both teachers and scholars will be having a rest from their labors. I hear the teachers are at work with their scholars, in addition to their ordinary work, in getting up an entertainment in order to raise a little money for a library. This I believe comes off after school closes about the 10th of June. It is to be hoped that they will realise a substantial sum for so good an object.

Bury Corner.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Ellis celebrated their wooden wedding last Friday evening, May 2nd, 1890. The weather was all that could be desired, and a most enjoyable time was spent. The evening's entertainment consisted of music, both vocal and instrumental. A beautiful supper was prepared by Mrs. Ellis and Mrs. Wm. Barter which those ladies served at eleven o'clock, in their usual able manner, the two large wedding cakes especially were greatly admired. After supper was cleared away the young people indulged in dancing until the dawn of day gave warning that nature required a little rest before another days work began. Mr. Wm. Barter played the violin, Mrs. Ellis and Mr. Ernest L. Barter, presided at the organ. The presents consisted of cash to the amount of $11.50, a new harrow, the gift of Thos Stokes and family, a handsome bread box from J. R. Munroe, a pretty knife box from Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Turner, an elegant basket the gift of Herbert Turner; the other presents were very useful such as washtubs, mop stick, wash board, broom, etc. The following day an express parcel, containing a bread knife and a handsomely carved board was received from Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Bolton, Sweetsburg, Que, also tokens of remembrance through the mail from Mrs. Eastman and Mr. and Mrs. Audinwood, Derby Line Vt. The presents estimating in value to between twenty seven and thirty dollars. Letters of regret from those unable to attend, were received from Mr. and Mrs. James Stokes, New Portland, Me., Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Stokes, owning to the illness of Mrs. Stokes, Mr. and Mrs. Bolton, Sweetsburg, Que., Mr. F. Green, Sherbrooke, Mrs. Fastway and Mr. and Mrs. Audinwood, Derby Line Vt., all relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Ellis. Mr. and Mrs. Ellis desire to return thanks to the C. O. I. for their arduous task to Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Barter, for their kind assistance, and to the other friends who kindly assisted them and wished them as happy a future married life as the past five years have been....Mr. J. A. Simons is very poorly at present, he with his wife and child are staying at Mr. J. Barter's; may he soon be restored to his usual good health is the earnest wish of his many friends ....Mr. William Barter had the misfortune to lose a fine thorough-bred Polled heifer this spring, also a two year old colt. Quite an amount of sickness prevails among horses and cattle in this vicinity....John Taylor the man shot by F. B. Hunt, is reported to be gaining slowly....School in this district commences next Monday the 12th, Mrs. A. N. Turner being re-engaged to teach the coming term.

Letter From the South

DALTON GA.,
May 5th, 1890.

To the Editor of the EXAMINER.

Having changed my abode from Fort Payne, Alabama, to this place, will endeavor to give you a brief discription of the city and its surroundings. It is situated in the Northwest portion of the state of Georgia, 40 miles south of Chattanooga, Ten., and 100 miles north west of Atlanta, Ga., in an excellent agricultural portion of the state, on two trunk lines of railway, which do an extensive business, both in freight and travel, there being seven passenger trains on each road through the place every twenty-four hours.

A portion of the city was destroyed by the union army in sixty-two, but has recovered from that, an has a much larger amount of wealth now, than at that time. A large amount of Northern capital has been invested here in the many industries, and the city is growing fast this summer.

It being tha county seat has a good court house and gaol, supports a good graded school, ladies seminary, Methodist college, six churches for the white population, and three churches for the Negroes.

Vegetation is as far advanced at this date as it would be in the Eastern Townships the last of June or the first of July. Rye, oats and some pieces of grass have headed out, and late peaches are about as large as filberts, the early varieties were destroyed by the frost the first of March. Irish potatoes are ten to twelve inches high, and all kinds of vegetation is as forward as those above mentioned.

It is considered as healthy as any place in the United States, being 1200 feet above the level of the sea, with good springs of water and pure air.

Will give you more particulars in future if spared. I remain sir,

Yours truly
JAS. OSGOOD.

ANNIE REID Teacher.

Farmers and Protection.

The following is an extract from Mr. Charlton's speech on the Budget:

It is said that a farmer down in Western Ontario died recently, and some spirit medium professed to say what happened after his death. He had gone to market and sold his little crop of wheat for 81 cents a bushel. He had gone to his storekeeper, and finding he had only sufficient money to pay one-half his bill, he gave his note at six months for the balance. He had saved a little money for the absolute necessaries of life, and he made a few small purchases. He bought a dollar's worth of sugar, and he found that between the government and the refiner they took 50 cents of the dollar he expended. Then he wanted a felt hat for his little boy, and on it there was a duty of 25 per cent., which, with the profits of the wholesaler and retailer on the duty, brought its cost to 37 per cent. more than it should be. He bought a few nails to fasten a few boards on his barn, and on them there was a duty of a cent a pound, and the profit of the merchant on the duty was half a cent, making the amount one and a half cents more that they could have been purchased at under Free Trade. He bought a razor, and that was taxed 25 cents. Then he looked at some glass goblets for his wife, but as the dnty was 30 per cent., they were beyond his resources. Then as to binding twine, he found when he came to settle his bill for that article that it cost 25 per cent. more than should have been charged in consequence of the duty, and he tried in vain to figure out how the government had benefitted the farmer in that matter. He wanted a cloak for his little girl who was attending Sunday-School, but he found a duty on it of 7½ cents a pound and 20 per cent. ad valorem, and the cloak was beyond his wealth. Next he bought some yarn for his poor old mother-in-law to knit two pairs of stockings for herself, and on that there was a duty of 7½ cents per pound and 20 per cent. He looked at some kid gloves, as his daughter was about to be married, but he could not reach them as the duty was too high; then he bought a sheet of paper to write his will on, and he paid a tax of 35 per cent on that. He went home and when he came to think over matters he got gloomy, and he made up his mind that this world, with its combines, rings and monopolies, preying upon the producer, was no world for the farmer to live in, so he took that 25 per cent. razor, and he went out to the barn and committed suicide. We have the rest of the transaction only through the spirit medium, and I do not know whether it is true or not, but it is represented that the farmer went to Hades, and his Satanic Majesty took him kindly and cordially in. He took him into a chamber where there were a great many Conservative politicians and Conservative editors, who had died in their sins, but the farmer did not feel at home there. Then he moved him to a place where there were a couple of deacons and a number of election agents, who had met together in a Conservative caucus to devise means for carrying the County of Haldimand, and had not been allowed to live out half their days, but he did not like that association, and he went next into a place where there were a number of doctors and lawyers, but there he did not feel at home either. Then the devil came around and asked him what he wanted, and said to him, "What are you?" and the other replied, "I am a farmer." "Where are you from?" asked the Prince of Hades. "I am from Canada," he replied, and "Who did you vote for?" inquired his Satanic Majesty. "I voted for Sir John Macdonald and the National Policy," he said; and the devil said: "Why did you do that?" "Well," said the farmer, "I did that under the impression that it was going to raise the price of produce." "Oh," said the devil, "then come along, I have a place for you;" and he took him to another large room, a thousand feet long, three hundred feet wide and a hundred feet high, with lines stretched across it and a great number of people hung up, and the farmer said, "What does this mean?" "Well," said the devil, "these are Canadian farmers who voted for Sir John Macdonald and the National Policy, under the impression that it would raise the price of grain, and as they are too green to burn I have hung them up to dry." Now, Mr. Speaker, the class of farmers who will be too green to burn after the next general election is, I believe, growing small. They are beginning to realize that all these promises were fallacious, and they are not going to take the assertions made by the friends of the National Policy as law and gospel hereafter.

The Public Warned.

Many people are deceived into neglecting bad blood, dyspepsia, constipation, etc., and thus allow these and other diseases to become established. Act promptly by using nature's blood purifying tonic, Burdock Blood Bitters, which regulates the entire system, curing all diseases of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. 3w38

Kingston, Ont., May 5.—Stanley Chown, now missionary in Azabu, Japan, where Rev. Mr. Large was murdered, writes to his father here the first particulars of the murder. About midnight he and Mr. Beale were aroused and saw that burglars had entered the Gakko. He hurried to the place, but the robbers had flown. Two masked men entered the back door of the institution, and bound the night watchman and made him lead them to the school safe, but not being able to open it, they went to Mr. and Mrs. Large's room. While feeling around for the keys they awakened Mrs. Large, who asked, "What is it?" They replied "We have business," and then made a blow at Mrs. Large. She raised her right hand, when two of her fingers were broken and badly cut and her face bruised. Instantly Mr. Large jumped out of bed, and the robbers ran out into the hall, where they turned on Mr Large, who was unarmed. They cut him down with knives, and he was wounded in thirteen places. The noise awakened the Misses Hart, who went into the hall and saw Mrs. Large bending over the body of her husband. They picked him up and carried him into the room. He was dead. It was three o'clock before a doctor could be secured. He amputated two of Mrs. Large's fingers, and sewed up the wounds. When she came from under the influence of choloform she prayed for strength to forgive the murderers of her husband. She continually manifested her thoughtfulness for others. The Misses Hart were also heroic on the occasion. Mrs. Large, Mr. Chown says, is a wonderful woman and is supported by a noble band of Canadian ladies.

The Century for May, the month of Memorial Day, is made notable by the number and variety of articles it contains which concern United States national life and history.

Mrs. Edith Robertson Cleveland writes of "Archibald Robertson, and his Portraits of the Washingtons." William Armstrong and Edmund Law Rogers contribute two articles on "Some New Washington Relics," and these papers are supplemented by a short one on "Original Portraits of Washington," by Charles Henry Hart. All of these articles in the Washington series are profusely illustrated.

A series of articles, varied in style and subject, but all having reference to Memorial Day, are "A Decoration Day Reverie," Brander Matthews; "Theodore O'Hara," by Robert Burns Wilson, with which is given in full O'Hara's stirring battle-song, "The Bivouac of the Dead"; a poem, "Twilight Song, For Unknown Buried Soldiers North and South," by Walt Whitman; and a Memorial Day ode, "The Fallen," by John Vance Cheney; besides appropriate articles in Topics and Open Letters. The first instalment of Mrs. Amelia Geri Mason's valuable series on "The Women of the French Salons," opens in a delightful way, and is finely illustrated. Mr. Stillman, in his Italian Old Masters, writes of Andrea del Verrocchio's "The Baptism of Christ." Articles which will have a wide reading are George Kennan's striking paper on the methods of the Russian censors, entitled "Blacked Out," with which is given a facsimile of two pages of one of Mr. Kennan's Century articles on Siberia erased by the Government censors; "Chickens for Use and Beauty," by H.S. Babcock, profusely illustrated; "Two Views of Marie Bashkirtseff," with portraits and pictures. Richard Malcolm Johnston writes one of his characteristic pictures of Georgian life, "Travis and and Major Jonathan Wilby," which is illustrated with pictures by A. B. Frost, and Mrs. Elizabeth W. Champney contributes a short story. "The Romance of Two Cameras." Other articles of interest are: "George Washington and Memorial Day," "The New Movement in Education," "The Lingering Duello," "The Churches and the Poor," in Topics of the Time. These are only a portion of the readable articles of this popular magazine.

Editor—You said in your report that "the table groaned under the weight of the edibles." Is that word groaned used advisedly?

Reporter—Yes, sir; the young wife had just placed a plate of her first biscuits on the table.

Easily Ascertained.

It is easy to find out from anyone who has used it, the virtues of Hagyard's Yellow Oil for all painful and inflammatory troubles, rheumatism, neuralgia, lumbago, frost bites, burns, bruises, sprains, contracted cords, stiff joints, aches, pains and soreness of any kind, it has no superior. 3w38

Weeping Spouse—I shall erect a monument to you, dearest, when you are gone. I shall have "Loving Husband" engraved at the bottom of the column.

Dying-Advertiser—Good Heavens, Pauline, that will never do! Top of column, eighth page, next reading matter—or—I refuse to die!

What Am I To Do?

The symptoms of Biliousness are unhappily but too well known. They differ in different individuals to some extent. A Bilious man is seldom a breakfast eater. Too frequently, alast he has an excellent appetite for liquide but none for solids of a morning. Hi, tongue will hardly bare inspection as any time; if it is not white and furreds it is rough, at all events.

The digestive system is wholly out of order and Diarrhœa or Consumption may be a symptom or the two may alternate. There are often Hemorrhoids or even loss of blood. There may be giddiness and often headach, and acidity or flatulence and tenderness in the pit of the stomach. To correct all this if not effect a cure try Green's August Flower, it costs but a trifle and thousands attest its efficacy. t

Parrott—I'm thinking of starting a paper whose mission will be to fight all our modern corruptions and abuses and frauds—but I don't know what name to glve it.

Wiggins—Call it the Earth.

Parrott—Why?

Wiggins—Because it will be one everlasting bawl!

The Safest

AND most powerful alterative is Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Young and old are alike benefited by its use. For the eruptive diseases peculiar to children nothing else is so effective as this medicine, while its agreeable flavor makes it easy to administer.

"My little boy had large scrofulous ulcers on his neck and throat from which he suffered terribly. Two physicians attended him, but he grew continually worse under their care, and everybody expected he would die. I had heard of the remarkable cures effected by Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and decided to have my boy try it. Shortly after he began to take this medicine, the ulcers commenced healing, and, after using several bottles, he was entirely cured. He is now as healthy and strong as any boy of his age."—William F. Dougherty, Hampton, Va.

"In May last, my youngest child, fourteen months old, began to have sores gather on its head and body. We applied various simple remedies without avail. The sores increased in number and discharged copiously. A physician was called, but the sores continued to multiply until in a few months they nearly covered the child's head and body. At last we began the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. In a few days a marked change for the better was manifest. The sores assumed a more healthy condition, the discharges were gradually diminished, and finally ceased altogether. The child is livelier, its skin is fresher, and its appetite better than we have observed for months."—Frank M. Griffin, Long Point, Texas.

"The formula of Ayer's Sarsaparilla presents, for chronic diseases of almost every kind, the best remedy known to the medical world."—D. M. Wilson, M. D., Wiggs, Arkansas.

The Song of the Spinning Wheel.

Up in the attic stowed away
All in a cob-web mantel dressed,
Grandma's spinning wheel stands at rest,
Turn it round with a motion strong,
And loud it singeth an old-time song;
Round and round,
Round and round,
Drowsy droning with dreary sound;
Steady motion the spindle keeps,
Thread runs smooth while the baby sleeps—
Baby sleeps.

Turn again and the wheel will tell
How happy days to the old home fell,
And children played all the cottage o'er,
While, back and forth on the sanded floor,
Grandma stepped in her golden spring.
And this is the song that the wheel will sing—
Round and round,
Round and round,
Loudly laughing with lithesome sound;
Thread like gold in the sunlight's ray,
Spindle whirls while the children play—
Children play.

Turn again and the song flows on,
But some of its merriment is gone;
It singeth now in a sadder key;
It tells of the children, one, two, three,
Boys, fast growing from day to day,
Soon to wander from home away;
Round and round,
Round and round,
Lazily lagging with lonesome sound,
Thread runs slow to the whirling spool,
Happy children are gone to school—
Gone to school.

Give the old wheel a few quick turns—
The kettle sings and the back log burns;
The old log cabin looms up to view;
Grandpa and grandma, loving, true,
Wait for the boys to come back again,
And this is the old wheel's sad refrain;
Round and round,
Round and round,
Softly singing with solemn sound;
Gone, alas! all the children gay—
Grown to manhood and gone away;
Gone away!

One more turn at the droning wheel,
One more glimpse of the past to steal;
Boys grown aged, all far away;
Cabin fallen to sad decay;
Two old graves on the neighboring hill—
That will do—let the wheel be still;
Round and round,
Round and round,
Softly sighing with sobbing sound;
Baby, childhood, youth, grey head;
Death comes softly and snaps the thread;
Snaps the thread

Beaton's Bargain.

A Novel,

By Mrs. Alexander.

CHAPTER X.

BROKEN BONDS.

Then she felt calm and equal to meeting Mrs. Winington.

These were dreadful days of trial to Mr. Tilly. He never knew when he was safe from the incursions of the reckless South African. No longer able to pass on all his responsibilities to the universal Dargan, nor to escape the searching queries of the new heir, who fulminated the most tremendous accusations against the acting guardian, and almost called him rascal to the face.

The day after Beaton had succeeded in shaking off the shackles of his distasteful engagement, David Vivian descended on the victimized Mr. Tilly before he had quite swallowed his breakfast.

"This is a pretty business," he ejaculated, throwing a letter on the table, and drawing a chair violently opposite to Tilly. "That hound Beaton has broken with Miss Vivian. There, read that! I appointed him to be with me this morning, to talk over a settlement, and intended to make a handsome addition to my cousin's little fortune. I understood he agreed to come, and this morning by first delivery I got that precious epistle."

Tilly with an air of resignation took it up and read the contents. It stated in cold, clear terms that as Miss Vivian had never cordially responded to the writer's feelings, they had, after a calm and friendly discussion of their relative position at present, agreed to put an end to their brief engagement; therefore, as there was no necessity for occupying Mr. Vivian's valuable time, Mr. Beaton begged to bid him adieu with all good wishes for his and his charming cousin's future happiness.

"Well, what do you think of that?"

"Ahem! I am not much surprised on the whole," said Tilly, slowly. "You see it was entirely a marriage of convenience on his part."

"Then why did you consent to it?" asked David, angrily.

"Well, you see it was hard to know what to do with the young lady, and Mr. Dargan thought——"

"Never mind what he thought! He'd sell her to the blackest imp in hell if he could make sixpence by the transaction! I suspect, for all he is such a fine gentleman,—Beaton and your right-hand man understand each other."

"Not that I know of, not that I know of, I assure you, Mr. Vivian! He—" But Mr. Tilly was not destined to finish his sentence. Another letter was laid before him, which in his turn he handed to David. It was Edith's expressive little note.

"Ha! it is a regular split then," cried David. "I suppose nothing is to be done?"

"Well, no, a breach of promise of marriage case is not to be thought of."

"No, by George! I was hesitating whether I should lick the scoundrel or not." He stretched out his right arm, and a fierce light came into his restless hazel eyes; then taking the letter from Tilly he read it over again, pulling his long mustache as he did so. "Yes, we must get her out of that house at once. I'll go over to Dargan and tell him I am going down to Liverpool this evening. I'll bring back Mrs. Miles with me to-morrow, and settle matters about lodgings and that. Shall I go and see Edith? No, I'd better not, I'd be kicking some one downstairs. Give us pen, ink, and paper; I'll write a line and tell her to keep up her heart, and another, by Jove, to Beaton, telling him he is a good riddance. Suppose that poor young thing has given him her heart? What equity can adjust that balance? I have been in love a good many times myself, and I can tell you it's no joke. Where is your blotter?

He made a hasty vehement search among Mr. Tilly's belongings, to that neat and orderly gentleman's distress, and set himself to write, assuming the attitude of a spread eagle while at his task; but he covered the paper rapidly with large scrawling characters, occasionally pausing to look with an air of satisfaction at his work.

"There," he said, at length, when he had addressed the envelopes, and folding his notes, not too neatly, thrust them into the covers, "that will settle Mr. Beaton, and I hope my nice little kinswoman will feel she is not without a backer when she reads this. Mind you write too as kind as you can. Now I'm off to Dargan: if he hasn't that statement of accounts ready it will be the worse for him. In whatever I may be obliged to undertake against him, I can, of course, count on your help, Mr. Tilly, otherwise you are an accomplice; and I believe you are an honest well-meaning man. Good-bye to you! I don't think I can see you till the day after to-morrow." He clattered away noisily, leaving Tilly in a state of collapse.

After a while he pullee himself together, and went away in much agitation to see Dargan, whom he found in an undescribable condition of rage, despair, and terror—his wig awry, the tie of his high-black neckcloth twisted round under his left ear, his spectacles pushed up above his eyebrows.

"Oh, Mr. Tilly, it's you is it? I little thought you would be talked over by that madman, to turn against your best friend, for that I have been to you in every way I could, even to my own loss (there's half a year's interest due on the little loan I got you last autumn). And what right has he to come here worrying over the savings of his cousin's minority? He'll turn against you next mark my words. His friend, Mr. Wolff, was here yesterday, and says his mother was mad as a hatter. What will he be after next? He can't even leave that stupid creature of a sister of mine alone. It's the devil's own bad luck that sent him here to upset everything, and give the lie to a better man than himself. Look here, now, I'll have nothing more to say to you and your ward; and how will you get on by yourself, I'd like to know?

"You have been of very great service to me, I acknowledge, Mr. Dargan, but the affairs of the minor are not so complicated as to be beyond my power to—to conduct. I must say, I think you made a great mistake when you over-ruled me in the matter of that advertisement, and——"

"Lord, what a weather-cock you are!" interrupted the other, with a contemptuous toss of his chin. "I was the cleverest chap in three kingdoms when we planned it. Was it my fault that this rampaging digger has turned up to set the Thames on fire?" &c., &c., &c.

After much recrimination and squabbling, it was agreed on between the spider and the fly that everything must present a smooth surface to the new actor, who had appeared so inopportunely to interfere with Dargan's little game, even if it cost him money to repair a few of the well-meaning mistakes which unavoidably occurred from over-zeal in the minor's service.

* * * *

David Vivian's energy was of the feverish order. No sooner had he forced the tortured Dargan to write a few words to his sister, authorizing her to return to Edith, than he rushed off to Euston Square, and just caught a train reaching Liverpool early in the evening.

His errand explained, Mrs. Miles' heart leaped for joy. The astute reader need scarcely be informed that the suffering relative whose claims on her assistance drew her from Edith was an apocryphal personage. She eagerly carried out his wishes for an early start, and by the afternoon of the next day they were again in town, seeking admission to the lodgings occupied at the commencement of this true tale by Mrs. Miles and her charge.

To Edith the hours which intervened between her parting with Beaton and the moment of leaving Mrs. Winington were painful in an irritating sense. The consciousness of having been so completely deceived lowered her in her own estimation, and though far from perceiving how completely Mrs. Winington had been her brother's accomplice, common sense suggested that she could not be completely innocent of his schemes.

Indeed this interval was neaaly as distressing and irritating to Mrs. Winington as to her guest. Even Mrs. Winington's world-hardened self-possession was ruffled by the constant presence of the guileless young creature she had assisted to blind.

Edith's composure and good temper commanded her respect. The girl seemed to have suddenly devoloped a quiet, unassuming womanly dignity, a degree of maturity which impressed her hostess. The only allusion she made to the sudden rupture of her engagement was when she gave Mrs. Winington the packet containing Beaton's gifts saying—

"This is for your brother. You know what it is, I am sure. Do not let us say anything more about him. I have a note from Mr. Tilly, he promises to take me away to-morrow or next day at furthest, so I need hamper your movements no longer. You have been very, very good to me whether you really like me or not, and I am heartily grateful."

"My dear," cried Mrs. Winington, with tears in her beautiful eyes (they always came quite readily unless she chose to keep them back), "no words can express how grieved and ashamed I feel. It is all too painfully fresh to talk about now. Later I hope to explain away some of the blame which naturally seems to attach to me." So saying she kissed her brow, patted her shoulder, and hurried away to give orders respecting the packing up and preparing for an almost immediate journey to Scotland.

When, the following day, towards evening, the automatic footman ushered "Mrs. Miles" and "Mr. Vivian" into the morning room, where Edith was sitting with a book which she could not read, so highly strung were her nerves, it seemed as if the peace and hopfulness of her old life was restored to her in the solid, not to say stumpy, form of her good old friend. How she darted forward to throw her arms round her neck, to cover her honest homely face with kisses, to utter confused exclamations of pleasure! David Vivian stood looking on, both touched and surprised. He did not think his little cousin had so much warmth and tenderness. The next moment she was shy and downcast again, as she turned to thank him softly, earnestly, for bringing her trusted friend back so soon.

"All right! I knew it was the best service I could do you. Now are you ready to start? We have a place to take you to. I suppose you can come at once?"

"Yes, I can; but I am ashamed to say I have too much luggage for a cab."

"We'll call another then. Now go, get on you bonnet and say good-bye if it's necessary. I don't want to see Madame Doubleface again."

"Mrs. Winington is out. I hardly like to leave without seeing her."

"Nonsense," growled Vivian, in his harshest tone. "Picking oakum is about what she and her brother deserve. I shall not leave you in this house nor stay any longer in it myself. Hurry up my little kinswoman."

Edith was somewhat afraid of David, his great height, his deep voice, his rugged manner made her shrink into herself. Moreover, she knew that anyone looking at the bare facts of the case would not think her charming hostess deserving of much consideration, though she could not rid herself of a strong liking for her. She compromised matters however, by writing a few lines of adieu which she left in the hands of her maid, and hastily donned her outdoor attire.

As soon as Edith had left the room Vivian applied himself vigorously to the bell, which immediatel evoked the splendid apparition of Thomas.

"I say, get down Miss Vivian's boxes, and call another cab; look alive, will you, and there's for your trouble."

The tip was handsome enough to temper the supercilious expression of the functionary, who responded with a gracious "Thank'ee, sir," and retired to execute the "tipper's," commands.

It was with a new sense of safety and exhilaration that Edith found herself sitting down to a late tea. To be sitting opposite Mrs. Miles in the old familiar fashion, as if the last couple of months had been an unsubstantial dream, was something so amazing and delightful that she could hardly persuade herself that her ardent desire was really fulfilled. She was tempted every now and then to catch her arm, or seize her hand, to assure herself that it was really her good friend in the flesh.

By degrees she mastered her excitement, and they fell into their old confidential tone. Edith before she slept had told the whole story of her engagement, and its mortifying conclusion. Over this recital she shed no tears, and the mental exercise seemed to clear her own impressions, and reveal to her the systematic deception practised on her in its fulness. The strongest feeling left in her mind was a conviction that there was something in herself not lovable, as the man she liked avoided her because she showed her liking, and the man who seemed to like her forsook her with unflatter ing readiness directly she proved deficient in those solid attractions which real and personal estate possess.

She was glad to take shelter in the humble haven of Mrs. Miles' motherly companionship, and thought it would be long before she could bear the thought of a lover, if indeed she could ever believe any man's professions. Mrs. Miles, who was much moved, wept a little and blew her nose a good deal.

"Ah, dear Miley," said Edith at the end of her story, "if you had not deserted me, I might have escaped a good deal. I should not have made so great a fool of myself."

"Ah, dear, but I couldn't help it," cried Mrs. Miles, eagerly. "I won't submit to seem a cold-hearted, selfish creature. I did not desert you of my own free will, that you may be sure. I never said a word against my brother before, but I am vexed with him, and you are wiser and older and won't betray me. I have had to obey him. He has been hard on me. You know I was left a widow with one boy, a dear son, kind and gentle, but weak and easily led, and the good God only knows what I went through to give him food and clothes and a little schooling. At last I was struck down with illness, and then I was obliged to beg my brother for bread. He wasn't bad, for he gave me a trifle, and set me to look after you. My dear child, it healed my heart to have you to love. Well, my brother took Jimmie—you remember Jimmie?—into his office, and promised to do for him, but he was just an unpaid errand-boy. One unlucky day my poor boy, who had fallen in with bad companions, was tempted to try his luck at some game, and won and won, and then lost all. Joshua had, for a wonder, left some gold and notes just inside his drawer where he wrote, and my poor misguided boy took some of it thinking he would win back everything. Then his uncle came in, missed the money, followed Jimmie, and caught him at play. Oh! it was an awful time! Well he got back his money, for Jim was winning again; but he insisted on sending him ever so far away, to Hull, to a builder there—a very hard place; but Jim hadn't suffered to no purpose, he persevered, he was getting on nicely, he being trusted to pay the men, and I began to hope he might have a holiday and come and see me, when my brother writes to me that he has let the cottage, and that I must leave you, and keep away in spite of what you might say or do. I would not agree, and then he threatened to write off to Jim's employers and warn them not to trust him with cash, as he was a detecced thief. What was I to do?"

Here Mrs. Miles rocked herself to and fro, covering her face with her handkerchief.

Edith knelt down by her and soothed her with tender caresses, exclaiming with indignant fervor against Dargan's unfeeling harshness.

"But why did he want to separate us?" asked Edith with a puzzled look.

"Your cousin swears that Joshua sold you to Mrs. Winington and her brother, but he was sold himself, because he, Mr. Vivian, turned up. He is a kind, generous man that Mr. Vivian. I can tell you it is a different matter travelling with him and with my brother. It was he insisted on my taking this drawing-room floor, because the rooms were fitter for you. He is kind and thoughtful."

"Yes, he is, he is indeed; but I am afraid of him; I don't know why, but I am certainly afraid of him."

"Nonsense, my dear; he will be a good kind friend, and he will not stand any of Joshua's tricks. God forgive him, he has been no brother to me; many a sore heart I owe him."

"Well, thank heaven we are together again," said Edith, drawing a chair, and laying her head on Mrs. Miles's shoulder. "I want no more finery or grand people, only to be at rest and safe."

Then the tears stole from under her downcast lids, and she had the relief of a copious though quiet flood of tears.

CHAPTER XI.

AN INTERREGNUM.

David Vivian found ample occupation between his young cousin, of whom he constituted himself protector and champion, and Dargan, whose life he made a burden by his persistent searching into accounts and demanding vouchers. Under his influence Mr. Tilly began to assert himself somewhat, and occasionally paid his ward a visit. He was extremely gratified by her interest in some old prints he had picked up on his way to see her one day. She listened with evident pleasure to his explanations, and showed such quick perception that the old antiquarian offered to read her a few chapters of his unpublished work on monumental Brasses.

He was very careful not to mention either Mrs. Winington's or Beaton's names, and once when Edith, in the innocence of her heart, asked him how long he had known Mrs. Winington, he answered testily,

"Too long; and I don't want to hear any more about her. She has wasted such a quantity of your money on a lot of useless clothes; she can have no principle."

This conversation took place at tea one warm afternoon, and Edith was glad enough to let it drop. Soon after Mr. Tilly bid his ward good-bye and departed.

"It is a lovely evening," said Vivian, who had walked to and fro once or twice in silence, "one can hardly breathe indoors. Get your hat, Edith, and your sketch-book; we'll have a hansom and drive up to Hampstead. There will be some air to be had on the heath. I'd like to see you draw a tree or a house on the spot. It seems a wonderful thing to be able to do it."

"Very well," said Edith, readily enough. She was always glad to shake off thought and memory by motion, and missed more than she would have liked to say her frequent drives with Mrs. Winington.

They were soon en route. Vivian, who was either profoundly silent or extremely talkative, lit his pipe without asking leave, and smoked without speaking till they reached "Jack Straw's Castle," where they alighted. He then knocked the ashes out of his pipe, and exclaimed, with a sniff—

"Ah the air is fresher up here; it may bring some color to your cheeks, little cousin. I don't like to see you so white."

"It's my nature, David."

"If you could get the breeze on one of the big wide plains of South Africa, or from a mountain-side, you would know how delicious air could be. Cities, and the crowds of men who build them, take the freshness and fragrance out of the atmosphere. Ah! I think you would like colonial life well enough." And he talked on, not badly, describing his hunter's life, his adventures among the Boers, whom he greatly disliked, the character and career of a favorite horse, &c. Edith listened with interest and sympathy, asking a leading question here and there, and so, in good humor with each other, they reached a spot where Edith thought she might attempt a sketch.

In a hollow, widening as it sloped downwards, displaying a country undulating far into the blue distance, stood a clump of beech trees, and a thatched hut, possibly a shelter for some goats at night.

"I think I might manage that," said Edith, and looking round, found a suitable seat on the grassy edge of a small sandy hole. David re-lit his pipe, and lounging by her side watched her pencil with lazy pleasure.

Edith was not easily satisfied with her work and rubbed out a good deal; at last she succeeded in making a very fair representation of the scene before her, which elicited strong expressions of approbation from her cousin.

She began slowly to close and strap her book and pencil-case. Vivian rose, stretched himself, and sat down again. "I say," he exclaimed, as if making up his mind to some difficult utterance, "wasn't it rather nasty of old Tilly mentioning those clothes, hey?"

Ayer's Hair Vigor

IS the "ideal" Hair-dressing. It restores the color to gray hair; promotes a fresh and vigorous growth; prevents the formation of dandruff; makes the hair soft and silken; and imparts a delicate but lasting perfume.

"Several months ago my hair commenced falling out, and in a few weeks my head was almost bald. I tried many remedies, but they did no good. I finally bought a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor, and, after using only a part of the contents, my head was covered with a heavy growth of hair. I recommend your preparation as the best in the world."—T. Munday, Sharon Grove, Ky.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for a number of years, and it has always given me satisfaction. It is an excellent dressing, prevents the hair from turning gray, insures its vigorous growth, and keeps the scalp white and clean."—Mary A. Jackson, Salem, Mass.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for promoting the growth of the hair, and think it unequaled. For restoring the hair to its original color, and for a dressing, it cannot be surpassed."—Mrs. Geo. La Fever, Eaton Rapids, Mich.

"Ayer's Hair Vigor is a most excellent preparation for the hair. I speak of it from my own experience. Its use promotes the growth of new hair and makes it glossy and soft. The Vigor is also a cure for dandruff."—J. W. Bowen, Editor "Enquirer," McArthur, Ohio.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for the past two years, and found it all it is represented to be. It restores the natural color to gray hair, causes the hair to grow freely, and keeps it soft and pliant."—Mrs. M. V. Day, Cohoes, N. Y.

"My father, at about the age of fifty, lost all the hair from the top of his head. After one month's trial of Ayer's Hair Vigor the hair began coming, and, in three months, he had a fine growth of hair of the natural color."—P. J. Cullen, Saratoga Springs, N. Y.

License in Nebraska.

Nebraska will soon vote upon a constitutional amendment providing for the alternative of prohibition or license. The question has taken on a curious and unexpected complication. The intention was doubtless to provide a license system on a local opposition plan, but the phraseology of the amendment is such that if adopted it will fasten a license system on the State without remedy. There is no State in the Union that has such a provision in its constitution. The result would be, if the amendment is adopted, that the saloon would be clothed with a constitutional power not given to it in any other State, and the Legislature would be helpless. The State would be completely under the thumb of the saloon. This view of the question strikes many of the citizens of Nebraska of anti-prohibition tendencies, so forcibly that numbers of them will vote against a license amendment, even with the alternative of adopting prohibition. Mr. R. R. Randall, a prominent citizen of Lincoln, formerly of Burlington, where he was connected with the land and passenger department of the C. B. & Q., a contemporary with the late A. E. Touzalin, was in the city recently, and gives it as his opinion that the prohibition amendment will carry by a large majority. The vote for it will be augmented because of the reason above stated, as well as the moral influences that are opposed to licensing the saloon. In reply to our inquiry as to the working of the license system in Nebraska, Mr. Randall pronounced it a great curse to the State. "We have thirty-eight saloons in Lincoln, at $1000 each, making $38,000, all of which is paid into the school fund. It does not help us to pay the expenses of the city government. It leaves our taxes high, and it is building up a corruption fund, out of which only evil can come. Men now seek the offices of school director and school treasurer because of the vast moneyed interests centered in that department. The State license shields the saloon, and the city maintains a police force to protect and guard the saloon. The whole business is demoralizing and debasing. The State ought not to give it its countenance. Prohibition is the only remedy for this evil." Mr. Randall and a large number of other business men of Lincoln will enter the canvass this year. They have seen the evils of the saloon system as affecting the business of Lincoln and of Nebraska, and they look upon it as a public duty of all good citizens to antagonize it in every way possible.—Burlington Hawkeye.

CONSUMPTION CURED

An old physician retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East Indian missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all Throat and Lung Affections, also positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousand of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe in German, French or English with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. A. Noyes, 820, Power's Block Rochester, N. Y. 10 e.o.w. October 21, 1888.

Mothers-in-Law Take Warning.

Here is some good advice for mothers-in-law who are honestly anxious to see their daughters happy after marriage, if anyone can be considered an expert in cases of that kind. It is the advice of the clerk of one of the courts in the County Court house. He is now over seventy years old and has been a clerk for almost 50 years. Nearly all of that time he has been in the part of the court where a large majority of the divorce cases are tried. Besides this, he has several daughters who are happily married, and he is a keen observer of human nature. A suit for limited divorce was tried in the part in which he is clerk the other day, in which too much mother-in-law was the principal cause of complaint. After it was finished he said to the writer:

"I'll tell you what it is, after all that has been said about mothers-in-law as disturbers of domestic happiness among young married couples, not one quarter has been told that might be said about the subject. I have watched the proceedings in not only hundreds, but I presume thousands, of divorce cases, and I tell you scores of those cases are brought to court in consequence of mothers-in-law. The trouble is, too, that the mother-in-law often causes the disturbance by actions which she honestly believes are for the best interests of her daughter, and because she thinks that she is making her child happy by her conduct. Not only that but she would consider herself derelict in her duty to her offspring if she did not do as she often does when she causes the disturbance. This misapprehension of her duty very often causes serious trouble, if not a divorce suit. When my first daughter was married she and her husband came to my house to live, and they had not been married a month before they were quarrelling. I saw how things were going, and I bought them a small house in Brooklyn and sent them over there to live. Since that time they have lived happily together and they have never had a serious quarrel since that time. When my other daughters were married I insisted upon their going away from home immediately, and they are now all living happily with their husbands. I tell you what, the less a mother-in-law has to do with her daughter during the first few years of the daughter's married life the better that daughter will get along with her husband. It's all right for a mother to visit her daughter for short periods, of course, but she must let young people run their own affairs to suit themselves. From the many cases which have come under my observation, I know that there is nothing a young man with any spirit resents so quickly as the interference by his mother-in-law in his domestic arrangements. A young couple will make a great many mistakes, of course, during the first few years of their married life, but they will learn, by experience, quickly enough, to be practical, and they will be all the more closely bound together in consequence of the experience. Whereas, if the mother-in-law thinks it is her duty to teach them, there will be no end of trouble, and their married life is likely to end with a divorce suit before they have really become acquainted with each other."—N. Y. Tribune.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of Cutting Teeth? Royal Hand-Bell Ringers

We publish herewith an account of the special performance of the Royal Hand-Bell Ringers before the President of the United States and the elite of Washington, in that city on 25th ult.

"The highest honor which America can accord to any artists was conferred to-day on the quintette of English Musical Specialists who are now on their fourth tour in the United States.

The round of appearances, by command, before Her Majesty Queen Victoria, the Czar of Russia, the King of Sweden and Norway, the King of Denmark, the King of the Belgians, and others, was appropriately followed by an invitation to entertain the President of the United States at the Executive Mansion.

For this puspose a special journey from Philadelphia was arranged. The hour appointed was 4 p. m., when the splendid East Room of the White House was suitable set out, and at its longer or eastern side, the Bell Table was prepared.

The President and Mrs. Harrison received their visitors in an informal manner and everyone found a seat for himself. Mr. and Mrs. McKee and Mrs. Russell Harrison mingled with the visitors. Benjamin and Mary McKee and Marthena Harrison were interested spectators and attracted much attention in their little rocking chairs.

The guests, who included the cream of Metropolitan Society, numbered about 100, and sat in a double crescent before the Artists, who were costumed in the picturesque dress of the period of Edward IV, A. D. 1470.

In the centre sat the President and Mrs. Harrison, while between them was perched little Benjamin McKee, the 2½ year old grandson of the President."

We doubt if any Company has ever performed in Sherbrooke as highly recommended as this organization. The following are among the names of eminent people who have heard and recommended them: His grace the late Archbishop of Canterbury; the Lord Bishop of London; Rev. Mr. Spurgeon; Rev. Newman Hall; Rev. Cannon Farrar; Rev. Cannon Fleming; late Rev. Henry Ward Beecher; Rev. T. De Witt Talmage; the late J. B. Gough; Bishop Vincent; Rev. Lyman Abbot &c. They will appear at the Art Hall here on the 26th inst. See adv. next week.

Compton County Reform Association.

Johnville, May 14th, 1890.

A meeting of the delegates of the above association took place to-day at Johnville for the purpose of selecting a candidate for the Local Legislature, An excellent turn out of delegates was present; it was moved and seconded that Thos B. Munro be elected President, instead of Mr. H Cairns who on account of ill health could not attend to duties of such.

Mr. Talbot's name was proposed as a candidate, but on this gentleman being heard from he declined accepting the nomination; after several other names being mentioned, and short speeches by those present viz Mr. Pelletier, Mr. L. C. Belanger, T. B. Munro, Mr. Barber, Mr. Gosslin, Mr. Roberge, Mr. Millar and Messrs Hugh and John Leonard, it was moved and seconded that Mr. Geo Layfield be nominated. Mr. Layfield addressed the delegates thanking them for the honor conferred upon him, but would prefer some other candidate would have been chosen, but since the majority decided in his favor, he felt in duty bound to accept. Mr. Layfield spoke in English and French and the Reformers of Compton are to be congratulated on the choice, as he is favorably known as a young man of great promise. He is an Independent Liberal, a temperance man, and one in whom all can have utter confidence.—Com.

The Fisk Jubilee Singers gave one of their entertaining concerts at the Art Hall last Friday evening to a full house. They were brought here by the Library and Art Union who have done a good deal the past winter to provide high class entertainments for the public, and we are pleased to hear that they have been fairly successful.

A very neat store with a choice assortment of new and seasonable goods will be found in the old Morkill stand kept by Mr. L. A. Bayley. The latest novelties in dry and fancy goods can be found at this store, and at prices within the reach of all. His sales so far have been very satisfactory.

The former partners will continue to occupy offices together, but the business lately carried on by Hall, White & Cate will be continued under the name of White & Cate.

A man was brought before A. G. Woodward Esq. J. P., yesterday by the city police who was supposed to have strayed from Longue Pointe at the time of the fire there. He says his name is Simeon Durocher, and that he is from St. Ours, where his father resides, he also claims to have been at Longue Pointe at the time of the fire. He was committed to jail until further enquiries could be made concerning him.

St. Andrew's Church Social.

On Thursday evening, 15th instant, a social musical and literary entertainment was held in the Lecture Hall of the Church, under the auspices of the ladies of the congregation.

A liberal supply of tempting dainties covered the tea tables, which were tastefully decorated with choice flowers. The attendance was large and all seemed to enjoy themselves. And how could it be otherwise with so many sociable guests and winsome ladies to wait on them? After tea an excellent programme was given to the satisfaction and pleasure of those present. The Symphony orchestra of Sherbrooke, assisted by E. F. Waterhouse, Esq., gave several selections during the evening which were much appreciated. Master Clark gave a cornet solo, and Miss Avery, Miss J. Davidson and Miss G. Frazer favored the audience with selections on the piano-forte, which were well received. Mrs. Armitage sang "Ruth and Naomi" Topliff; and in response to an enthusiastic encore "Jenet's Choice." By request the Harmony Quartette sang in good style "The Old Canoe." Messrs Woodside and Ballantyne contributed to the evenings enjoyment by each giving a reading, and Rev. G. S. Eldridge gave a pleasing address, showing some false theories of manhood and how our boys can become true men. The social was a success and netted a fair sum in aid of the building fund.

Live Stock Market.

Farmers, butchers and others will be glad to learn that the City Council have determined to open a horse and cattle market near the Aylmer Bridge, on the site formerly occupied as a cattle market. They have given orders for the erection of a building that will hold at least fifty head to begin with, so that stock will not have to stand out doors in all kinds of weather. The market is intended to be kept open the year round, once a week, on Wednesdays, which must be a great convenience to any one having animals to dispose of. The building is expected to be ready by June when the market will be opened. There is a hay market beside it so parties can get hay to feed their stock.

Corporal Angus McClellan of the N. W. Mounted Police, son of James G. McClellan of Sherbrooke, returned home this week after five years service in the Northwest, the greater part of the term being spent at Fort Saskatchewan, He made short stays at Edmonton, Red Deer and Calgarry. He likes the country, except the water which he says is bad, and intends returning after a while. During the Riel rebellion he was stationed at Regina and therefore saw little of that skirmish.

Obituary.

Died at Hatley on the 9th inst, Ruth Hodgeson, native of England, aged 83 years, wife of James Thwaite Esq. The deceased came to this country with her husband in 1831 where, with nothing else but their hands to begin with they not only reared a large family, but became very prosperous, leaving at her death a handsome estate. Her husband is known in the gates, where he sitteth among the elders of the land. "Her children arise up and call her blessed, her husband also, and he praiseth her. Many daughters have done virtuously, but thou excellest them all. Give her of the fruit of her hands and let her own works praise her in the gates." F. B.

Free Ammunition

Sir Adolphe Caron has added another of the many practical evidences of his hearty sympathy with the Canadian volunteers. The request for free ammunition for the league matches preferred by Lieut-Col. Denison, Lieut Col. O'Brien, Mr. Cockburn, Major Carpenter, Mr. Macintosh, Mr. Dickenson, Mr. Brown, Mr. Montague, Lieut.-Col. Amyot, Mr. Hall, Mr. Curran, Mr. Kenney, Mr. Daly and Mr. Davin, members of Parliament, has been acceded to. Yesterday the Minister of Militia intimated that ammunition for these matches would be served free to the contestants. This concession should materially help to promote rifle shooting this season.—Ottawa Citizen.

Compton County

At the adjourned meeting of the Reform Association held at Johnville Wednesday, Mr. George Layfield, of Gould, a rising young man, received the final nomination, which he accepted and is now in the field as a candidate for the suffrages of the electors of that county. Mr. Layfield is well and favorably known in the eastern part of the county at least where he has been for several years engaged in milling operations and as a general trader. He is an intelligent, well read man, and a fair speaker in French and English. He has had some experience in election contests and no doubt realizes that he has no small contract on his hands when he attempts to carry the county, but has evidently made up his mind to try, in which his friends will wish him success. He comes out has an Independent Liberal.

Measuring Air Temperature.

A novel method of determining the temperature of the air at great heights has been proposed by a German physicist, and is to be adopted by the Berlin society for ballooning. Small balloons are sent up at night, each provided with a thermometer arranged to give flashes of light by the closing of an electric circuit when certain temperatures are reached. A so-called "phototheodolite" is affected by the light and gives a photographic record of the temperatures, while the corresponding altitudes are indicated in a mechanical way. A more accurate idea of the rate of decrease of temperature with height is expected with this method.—New York Telegram.

We hear that a meeting of Stanstead County Liberals is to be held at Ayer's Flat on Tuesday to decide as to a candidate for the coming elections.

Rev. Mr. Seitz, of West Concord, will preach in the Universalist Church at Huntingville, May 25th, morning and afternoon, and North Hatley in the evening.

He will be over the main line from St. Lambert to Portland and also the Richmond and Point Levi and Champlain and Valleyfield lines. His head-quarters will be at Richmond and he assumes his new duties at once. Mr. Trenaman showed himself, while here, to be a competent and careful official and under his guidance the east of Montreal division will be well looked after.—Stratford Evening Herald.

MORRISON STARVING.

A report received from St. Vincent de Paul yesterday stated that the authorities at the penitentiary were very anxious aa to the state of health of Donald Morrison, the Megantic outlaw. It appears that he caunot bear his incarceration, and that he is now trying to starve himself. He is at present in the infirmary of the penitentiary in a dying condition, and refuses to take nourishment of any sort. For the last twelve days he has not eaten a single bite of food and refuses to do so, saying that he cannot digest the food offered. He is suffering greatly from his wounded leg, which is now in a worse state than ever. All those who have seen him are of opinion that Donald Morrison is now lying on his death bed.—Herald, May 15.

The sugar season just closed has in this vicinity been the best on record both as regards quality and quantity. The Council of this Municipality met on Monday last, all the members present. A cash appropriation of $219.00 was made by the Council to a sist in improving the new roads in the Municipality. The Sec.-Treas., H. E. Cairns, was unable to attend the Council meeting, as he has been very ill, confined to the house for several days. We hope to see him able to attend to his business soon. Mr. Whelan swears that he paid $10,000 to Mr. Pacaud in order to get an item inserted in the Provincial Estimates in payment of his claim against the Government. A contemporary seems to think that this revelation must utterly destroy the chances of the Government in an appeal to the country. Unfortunately experience shows that the electorate is very little influenced by revelations of this character. It will not always be so, sooner or later the Province will be driven to the necessity of resorting to direct taxation and then the electors will begin to take a lively interest in the details of the provincial expenditure. Of course even at the present time the more intelligent of the voters will read such evidence as that given by Mr. Whelan yesterday with disgust, but it is the less intelligent and more prejudiced voter who makes and unmakes governments in this province. Moreover, the action of the honest and intelligent voter is much embarrassed by the consideration that corruption did not begin, and, it is to be feared, will not end, with Liberal or Nationalist rule.—Star, May 14.

Owing to most of the members of our Lodge, I. O. G. T. being so busy with springs work, and also one or two being ill, it has been decided not to hold the concert on May 22nd as was announced last week

In its stead a subscription will be raised, and given to John Taylor.

General Middleton, who in 1885 was the first man to receive a vote of thanks from the Parliament of Canada, was very severely handled in the House of Commons (May 12) and not a voice was raised in his justification. Naturally many of the members were disposed to speak of the General's "error of judgment" in as lenient terms as possible, but it is evident that if Sir Fred Middleton has not already resigned, yesterday's proceedings must make his resignation inevitable.—Star.

Not a Pimple on Baby

Baby one year old. Bad with Eczema Hair all gone. Scalp covered with eruptions. Cured by Cuticura. Hair splendid and not a pimple on him.

Cured by Cuticura

I cannot say enough in praise of the CUTICURA REMEDIES. My boy, when one year of age, was so bad with eczema that he lost all of his hair. His scalp was covered with eruptions, which the doctors said was scall-head, and that his hair would never grow again. Despairing of a cure from physicians, I began the use of the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and, I am happy to say, with the most perfect success. His hair is now splendid, and there is not a pimple on him. I recommend the CUTICURA REMEDIES to mothers as the most speedy, economical, and sure cure for all skin diseases of infants and children, and feel that every mother who has an afflicted child will thank me for so doing.

MRS. M. E. WOODSUM, Norway, Me.

Fever Sore Eight Years

I must extend to you the thanks of one of my custumers, who has been cured by using the CUTICURA REMEDIES, of an old sore, caused by a long spell of sickness or fever eight years ago. He was so bad he was fearful he would have to have his leg amputated, but is happy to say he is now entirely well,—sound as a dollar. He requests me to use his name, which is H. H. CASON, merchant. JOHN V. MINOR, Druggist, Gainesboro, Tenn.

We have been selling your CUTICURA REMEDIES for years, and have the first complaint yet to receive from a purchaser. One of the worst cases of scrofula I ever saw was cured by them.

The Canadian Pacific Railway is about to put on a fast night express to Chicago. The train will be composed of vestibule cars, which are now being built upon the most approved models, and it is expected that it will be running by the 1st of June. It will leave the Windsor station at nine o'clock every night and run through to Chicago in about twenty-four hours.—Witness, May 3rd.

If the season is "dull" and buyers few, I put such prices on my goods as will make them buy.

HOW TO MAKE A

HOLIDAY HAPPY

Nobody is above enjoying a holiday. Of course very dignified people pretend to call holidays rubbish and childish folly, but when you get below the surface, even these dreadfully dignified people turn out to be wonderfully human and only want a decent excuse to go romping with the merriest.

Now, gentlemen, we help make it pleasant Good clothes express a conventional but sincere homage to Her Gracious Majesty's birthday. A change of toilet stamps a holiday with a peculiar and grateful significance.

We have a splendid collection of fresh, elegant and beautiful furnishings, appropriate alike for the season and the day. There is certainly not anywhere in Canada a more handsome collection. We do not except even the large cities.

Our customers expect to find brightness and originality marking the goods we offer them. They are not dissappointed, and now we are making a

JOHNSTON'S FLUID BEEF

ONE POUND OF JOHNSTON'S FLUID BEEF CONTAINS AS MUCH ACTUAL AND REAL NUTRITION AS FOURTEEN AND A QUARTER POUNDS OF PRIME BEEF STEAK.

The value of a food like this to invalids, dyspeptics, and all needing STRONG NOURISHMENT in an easily digested form must be apparent.

A PERFECT FOOD FOR THE SICK

SELFISHNESS

Has developed very materially among the farming community during the last few years. No farmer would fancy for a moment that he could get along without the modern improvements in the way of farming machinery, and they would be foolish indeed to try and do so. But why not share the benefits of modern inventions with the wives who strains their wrists and breaks their backs in the work of the dairy and garden. The

reduces the work of the dairy one half or more, and

BATEMAN'S GARDEN TOOLS

the "JEWEL" & "GEM" transform the backbreaking work of the garden into a pleasurable exercise.
