FEI will not reconsider Bromont for the World Equestrian Games

By Rachel Newcombe Special to The Record

It is all over for Bromont. After the mid-July announcement that the community's bid for the 2018 World Equestrian Games was at risk over a lack of funding and a back-and-forth suggestion that budget adjustments might lead to more money from the Federal Government, a recent announcement from the Fédération Equestre Internationale (FEI) has settled the matter.

The original problem came from worries over the fact that there was a lack of private funding for the event, leading to the contract between the FEI and Bromont, who would host the games, to be terminated. Brome-Missisquoi Member of Parliament Denis Paradis, who received calls from the community on the issue, believed that could be changed.

Paradis had previously stated to The Record that if work could be done on the budget, some federal funding could be supplied. "I told them I was ready to push for them," he explained about his talk with the 2018 World Games committee.

They then would have approached the FEI to change their minds. Unfortunately, the FEI is holding firmly to the contract termination, shutting the door on any possibility of Bromont hosting the games.

Glen Villa Gardens to open for Massawippi Foundation Fundraiser

GORDON LAMBIE

Pat Webster standing in the part of her garden known as "the china terrace" because of the hundreds of pieces of broken china from the former Glen Villa Hotel she found on the site in 1996. She has since used the shards to create a small homage to the hotel in just one of a series of tributes to the history of the property the public will be able to visit this coming August 4.

By Gordon Lambie

On August 4, Pat and Norman Webster will be welcoming the public to the gardens of their home, Glen Villa in Saint Catherine de Hatley, as a fundraiser for the Massawippi Foundation. Established in 2010, the foundation helps fund local community projects as well as supporting the Massawippi Conservation Trust, an initiative working to preserve natural spaces around Lake Massawippi.

"We're committed to not just land conservation but to supporting the community projects that the foundation has funded," said Pat Webster, explaining that the foundation has funded more than $100,000 in community work since its foundation four years ago.

For $20 per person, anyone who is interested can visit the Gardens of Glen Villa on August 4 from 10am to 4pm. Over the course of that time people are invited to wander the 750-acre property on a self-guided tour through unique sculptures that highlight aspects of local history in what Webster calls "a different approach to creating a garden."

"It's definitely not a traditional garden," the owner said "there are so many things I've added that relate to the background of the property."

Noting that this is the first time she and her husband have had such a large-scale opening of the garden trail, Webster highlighted the open visit as an opportunity for people to experience something new while also contributing to a great cause.

"This year seemed to be the year to do this," Webster said, explaining that the funds raised are going specifically toward the efforts of the foundation to create a series of ecologically friendly walking trails within the Massawippi Conservation. "The public trails will officially open next July first for the hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the

KEEPING IN TOUCH

Help add to the collection of inspirational people

Do you know someone outstanding? How about someone inspirational? There are a large number of people in the historical Eastern Townships who are doing a great deal of important work. Their dedication, initiatives and tireless actions contribute to a healthier community for us all. While they don't ask for anything in return, wouldn't it be wonderful if there was a way to celebrate and thank these unsung heroes?

The Outstanding Townshippers award was established 17 years ago for just that purpose - to recognize and honour the efforts of those who are making a positive contribution to the Townships English-speaking community. Whether they are on sports fields, in our hospitals or schools, at the food bank or various local events, these individuals, couples and groups are a critical part of our vibrant community.

Each year, Townshippers' Association honours people who truly stand out from the crowd through their community contributions. To date, there are more than 70 Outstanding Townshippers whose individual stories are featured in a book at the Association's Sherbrooke office. Over the summer this record of people known for going above-and-beyond will be digitized for easier sharing. By highlighting these inspirational award recipients, Townshippers' hopes that others will be moved to contribute in the community by sharing their knowledge, skills and heart with those around them.

So what are you waiting for? Nominate someone today to receive this year's Outstanding Townshippers award at the 2016 Townshippers' Day opening ceremonies on September 17, in Brome [TDay.ca]. Applications must be received by noon, Friday, August 26, 2016, and will be blind-judged based on the description of the nominee's accomplishments or contributions, and a letter of support.

Visit Townshippers.org/OT for details, then follow the link to the online submission or to download a nomination form. Forms are also available at either of Townshippers' offices - 257 rue Queen in Sherbrooke, or 584 Knowlton Rd. in Lac-Brome. For more information, please contact Cathy Turner at 819-566-5717 (toll free 1-877-566-5717), ct@townshippers.org

Add Your Voice to the Prime Minister's Youth Council

Townships youth have a unique perspective about the challenges and successes experienced by members of a minority community. If you are age 16 to 24, make your voice heard at the national level by joining the Prime Minister's Youth Council.

According to his office, Prime Minister Justin Trudeau is forming the council to help the current government to do a better job of understanding and addressing the needs of Canada's young people.

The Youth Council will serve this purpose by bringing a range of knowledge and experience to the table from diverse communities across all Canadian regions. They will provide non-partisan advice to the Prime Minister on issues facing the country, such as employment, access to education, rising student debts, and climate change.

From now until August 12, youth can apply to be a member of the first wave of the Council which will join 30 members from across the country for a mandate of up to two years.

The Council will meet multiple times a year - both online and offline - across the country. All travel and accommodation needs will be taken care of for meetings held outside of your community. Parents can rest easy knowing that youth members under the age of 18 will be supervised.

To apply visit canada.ca/youth. Have more questions? Call 1-800-563-3030.

For more information on Townshippers' Association and our activities, keep reading this weekly Keeping in Touch column in The Record and visit us on Twitter @Townshippers, Facebook and our website www.Townshippers.org. Mystery substance briefly shuts Beebe post office from the post office came at 12:45pm and explained that the nature of the situation resulted in a fairly large emergency services response even though the substance ultimately ended up not being a threat to public safety.

The post office in Beebe was the site of some excitement on Monday afternoon after a local postal worker discovered a mysterious substance while checking packages at the counter.

"We will not identify the substance because there is further analysis to be done," Guindon said, "but there was no danger to public security."

The SQ officer said that the provincial police force remained at the post office until just after 5pm, when the on-site analysis was completed. Further study of the substance will be carried out elsewhere.

SHERBROOKE

Five teenagers were arrested early Tuesday after taking a stolen golf cart on a destructive joy ride.

The 17-year olds were nabbed shortly after 2:40 after causing considerable damage to both private and public property.

Police say the kids travelled over a distance of several kilometres and damaged properties on Beckett, Duvernay, Rosstand, Beaudry and Vaudreuil streets before being stopped on De Liège.

Damaged property includes landscaping, fences, residential street lights, and waste bins.

The adolescents face various charges in Youth Court including theft, receiving stolen property, vandalism, and possession of a narcotic.

Le President lockout ends Wednesday

SHERBROOKE

The long-standing labor dispute at Sherbrooke's Hotel Le President will end this Wednesday, the employees union has announced.

Some 60 per cent of the approximately 30 employees belonging to Section 1791 of the Teamsters Union have ratified a tentative agreement reached late Monday

In addition to wage increases of 15.5 per cent over a contract period of five years, the agreement includes paid sick days and holidays.

The hotel isn't out of the woods yet however, as a Ministry of Labour investigation revealed that it had employed illegal strike-breakers during the two-week lockout and could face fines.

Magog library book sale raises $25,000

The Friends of the Memphremagog Library have deemed the 2016 Great Book Sale a great success, with almost 55,000 books, CDs, DVDs, games, and puzzles gaining a new life through the work of over 50 volunteers including a team of 15 volunteers who worked throughout the year sorting, classifying, and preparing for the annual event.

The objective of the sale is to contribute to the promotion and visibility of the books and reading. The 45th edition raised more than $ 25,000 from the nearly 2,000 people who took advantage of the sale.

The success of the sale will provide significant support to the Memphremagog help it provide an even wider range of services, activities, and events that encourage reading in Magog.

Unsold books are offered free of charge to local agencies, nursing homes, and other public places, contributing to both the spread of reading and the happiness of many people.

Wall art project: call for projects for artists in urban art (second phase)

Record Staff
SHERBROOKE

The City of Sherbrooke Tags and Graffiti Committee is calling on urban artists to apply for the second phase of its project to create murals in the multipurpose path under the roundabout at the intersection of Industriel and Portland boulevards. During the first phase this month, five works having under the theme "Sherbrooke's Green Future" were produced. This second phase will be in the same vein.

The legal graffiti project has several purposes, including beautifying the area and contributing to the improvement of neighborhood life, encouraging legal graffiti, and promoting harm reduction and respect for public property. Finally, the chosen location complements the theme, promoting sustainable transportation and healthy lifestyles. The multi-purpose trail allows active transportation users, such as pedestrians and cyclists to travel safely, away from traffic. The call for projects is open to graffiti artists living, working, or studying full-time in Sherbrooke. These have until September 5 to make their proposals. The murals will be produced in October of this year, depending on weather conditions. All project and competition details are available on the city's website (sherbrooke.ca/graffitis)

The creation of urban art on eight sections of concrete structures on the trail has been very popular with the public, a city press release claims, and pictures of the final results have been shared over 700 times on social networks, accompanied by positive and admiring comments.

The first phase of the project was produced by graffiti artists Ultra Nan, Vincent Arnold, Boris Biberdzic, William Marceau-Briggs, Dominic Lessard, Nicolas Lareau, Raphael Alin, Olivier Trottier, Jessica Chabot, and Samuel Beaubien.

Monks coming to Ayer's Cliff

By Rachel Newcombe
Special to The Record

Next Wednesday, residents of Ayer's Cliff will see a sudden increase in Tibetan monks. Monks from the Gajang Monastery in India will be in the community to create a sand mandala in the Buddhist tradition. This is not the first time that the monks have visited the Eastern Townships, though in previous years they have created their mandalas in Stanstead. These mandalas are created using delicate grains of coloured sand. The finished product is displayed only for a short time, and then is wiped away. The purpose of destroying the mandala is to demonstrate that nothing lasts forever, one of the spiritual teachings associated with Buddhism.

From August 3 to August 6, the monks will create the sand mandala, with an empowerment of compassion and dismantling ceremony on the Saturday afternoon.

The mandala will be created at the Beulah United Church Hall in the heart of Ayer's Cliff. There is a cost to visiting the mandala site, with all proceeds going towards the monks of the Gajang Monastery.

Solution to Canada's opioid crisis may lie in its origins, health minister says

By Kristy Kirkup
THE CANADIAN PRESS

It remains a mystery why Canada and the U.S. are the world's heaviest opioid users, but Health Minister Jane Philpott says divining the answer may hold the key to solving what she considers a national public health crisis.

Philpott, a physician herself, said the problem has only grown worse over the last several years as the number of overdoses and opioid-related deaths has continued to grow.

A number of theories persist, Philpott said in an interview with The Canadian Press, including relentless pharmaceutical industry pressure on North American health-care providers to use opioids extensively in treating chronic pain.

"Some have suggested that may be one of the reasons behind it like anything else, it is multisectorial," Philpott said.

"I think it is something we do need to ask ourselves and I think that part of answering that ... is where we are going to find some of the clues as to how we respond."

Opioids include prescription painkillers such as oxycodone, fentanyl, and morphine, as well as illegal street drugs like heroin.

One of the "unique realities" of the problem is that opioids play a legitimate role in responding to people with pain conditions, Philpott said.

"People need to have access to these effective medications where used appropriately but there is tremendous risk potential. People do become addicted to them and people die."

Philpott recently moved to expedite the availability in Canada of a nasal spray designed to stop or reserve the effects of overdoses. The spray contains naloxone hydrochloride, which is considered a life-saving medication.

It has been available in Canada in an injectable form and Health Canada recently took steps to make it available without a prescription in the case of emergency outside of hospitals.

"I think that from an international perspective, that's considered to be very good practice and I'm absolutely convinced that many peoples' lives will be saved," Philpott said.

"I've taken the technical steps from my perspective to say that it is available to be imported and sold."

Philpott said she's also pleased to see provincial counterparts taking action, such as Ontario's recent decision to stop paying for long-acting opioids. And British Columbia declared a public health emergency in April after a spike in fatal drug overdoses there.

There were 74 overdose deaths in Canada in January alone, said Philpott — a trend that means the total number of deaths in 2016 could far exceed the 474 deaths that occurred the previous year.

An opioid summit scheduled for the fall will bring together players from across Canada to develop a joint plan, Philpott said, noting the problem is more serious in some provinces than in others.

Nonetheless, it has a far-reaching personal and professional impact, she added.

"It affects health care providers, it affects organizations that represent people who use drugs or have used drugs and their family members ... we need research community on board, we need community associations on board," she said.

"There's a very wide range of organizations that need to be involved in order to address the problem from the point of view of prevention and treatment."

founding of Canada," she continued. "We wanted to have some kind of really significant project to mark that and this seemed to be the best thing that we could do."

"The foundation has a mother-daughter relationship with the Massawippi Conservation Trust," explained Margot Heyerhoff, President of the Foundation. "The trust has been acquiring land to preserve in perpetuity along the western side of Lake Massawippi. Now we have quite a bit of land under our belt and we are starting to put in trails for people to use."

Heyerhoff pointed out that the installation of sustainable, low-impact trails on the conservancy is a very expensive process, potentially costing as much as $600,000 for the full 25 kilometer plan. Though this first year only involves the creation of two kilometers in Scowen Park on the Capelton Road, every step forward in terms of funding makes a difference in what is ultimately a ten-year plan. "It's an ongoing thing," the President said "This year we'll have two kilometers of trail done, next year it will be probably a total of six. We'll do the trails as we have the means."

"It's quite ambitious," Webster said, highlighting that ongoing conservation efforts could cost as much as $2.5 million. "We've had extraordinary community support, but we need that to continue."

While sharing a hope that next week's Fundraiser might bring in as much as $10,000 Webster said that the goal is really to bring in whatever support is possible given the way the day unfolds. She suggested that people come dressed for the weather and prepared to walk over ground that could sometimes be slippery or uneven.

Glen Villa is located at 1020 North Hatley Road, just outside the village of North Hatley. More information on the site and its history is available at www.siteandinsight.com.

Bromont mayor Pauline Quinlan said that the community is sad and disappointed with the outcome.

"The games would have brought a lot of visibility to the town," Quinlan said adding that the resulting economic boom that would have benefitted the local businesses. "I think it would have had a positive impact."

Quinlan stated that now the only thing they could do was move on. Despite this setback, Quinlan said there was still a plus side. Since the Olympics in 1976, the Bromont Equestrian Centre still hosts a variety of international events.

While this time didn't work out, Quinlan remained optimistic that Bromont would still see many large-scale events. When asked if Bromont would pursue the opportunity of hosting the World Equestrian Games in the future, Quinlan was hesitant.

"It would be up to the community to make that decision," she said. "There was a need for financial support. That was the downfall this time," she added. If the opportunity did come Bromont's way again, it would have to be carefully considered.

Coeurs villageois program tries for responsible tourism

By Scott Stevenson

Townships tourism leaders used North Hatley and Knowlton last week as examples of tourism success, as our tourism association launched a new program to attract visitors to other towns. The problem is that most local residents don't want their village to become a North Hatley or Knowlton.

Unaffordable property values and taxes as well as crowded village centres are not that attractive to people who call this region home. Townships residents have never been interested in Laurentians-style tourism and traffic.

“Like so many of the loved places in the world, this one is struggling to cope with the tension between wanting to earn money from tourism and its potential to sweep away that which is special in the first place,” wrote Lake District author and shepherd James Rebanks, about a region in China he was visiting, in his 2015 book The Shepherd's Life—excellent reading for tourism leaders and land-use planners in the Eastern Townships.

“Walk enough people over a stone step and you will eventually wear it away to nothing.”

The challenge we face is how to balance the competing economic interests of tourism and other sources of living, as well as social well-being.

The Townships tourism association has its heart in the right place with its “Coeurs villageois” program, whose goal is to have visitors form a true bond with a community rather than just flit in and out, according to the association's executive director Alain Larouche speaking to the Record and others at the program's launch in Danville last week.

But the association's first try at the program, with six of fourteen eventual participants being unveiled, leaves a fair bit to be desired. Coaticook, Cookshire, Danville, Eastman, Piopolis, and Sutton have all now had the professional help of Tourism Eastern Townships to describe their own individual personality—and promote it.

The language is unfortunately more about flitting than bonding. “Danville, heart of the village, built its reputation for ‘beauty’ by preserving its origins and promoting its heritage and culture,” according to the association's Web site. “As you stroll through it, you will perhaps glance at the clock at the heart of the village and feel like doing one thing: watching the minutes go by and telling yourself for once that there is no need to rush because you are running out of time.”

In the town of “Cookshire-Eaton,” we are encouraged to ring the town's bells and learn about its religious heritage. Cookshire-Eaton is in fact not a town but a large municipality, with Cookshire being one of its towns, along with Birchton, Bulwer, Eaton Corner, Johnville. To bond with any one of those communities is not just to stroll through it for a day and visit the attractions but rather to attend one of the church services, stay with locals, and perhaps even work—not just play—in the community.

The tourism association's effort toward more meaningful visitor relations with Townships communities is in the right direction—encouraging tourists to learn about the culture and history of each place and to take time to interact with local residents. But the old North Hatley and Knowlton resort-type models still reign too strongly in our minds.

Author James Rebanks lives with two feet in his family's centuries-old tradition of shepherding in England's Lake District—now also a popular tourist destination. Under unusual circumstances he pursued higher formal education and also dabbles in advising UNESCO on the challenge of responsible tourism. He believes in identities being rooted in the land—as many Townshippers do—and that local ways of life make up cultural landscapes.

Responsible tourism respects, appreciates, and contributes to those ways of life and landscapes.

Island Brook church Speaking of churches, kudos to Cookshire's Don Parsons who was in the news again this week for trying to save the former United Church in Island Brook. It seems the church has been sold, and the local cemetery association is still insisting that it be moved. Don Parsons is hoping the buyers will be interested in saving it at a new location, at least. May he be right.

CBC Radio reported that the Island Brook cemetery association needs the church moved for cemetery space. Who ever thought we'd see the day that a cemetery kicked the church off its property!

Cirque Machine aims break Guinness record in Sherbrooke

Record Staff
SHERBROOKE

Two Quebec City circus performers will attempt to set a Guinness world record during Sherbrooke's “Bouffe ton centro” downtown food festival on August 6.

Maxim Laurin and Ugo Dario of the Machine de Cirque troupe will defy gravity by attempting to break the record for ‘most consecutive back flips on a Korean

Plank in front of the City Hall

“The current record is fifty back flips” says group artistic director Vincent Dubé. “For us, the goal is to establish a new brand that will last.”

Viewers should expect an unusual sporting challenge performed by acrobats who are among the best in the world,” he continues. “The special performance will also include excerpts from the Cirque Machine show presented at Place Nikitotek from September 2 to 4.

“Both artists have already completed nearly fifty consecutive back flips on the Korean Plank, but have never done so respecting the many standards required by the organization responsible for the Guinness Records. It will therefore be a huge challenge which requires a lot of concentration, accuracy and preparation. Obviously, several parameters must be considered and may affect the success of the challenge. But still, Ugo and Maxim are confident and believe they are able to break this record,” Dubé predicts.

Since its premiere in the Quebec City last year, the Quebec troupe has enjoyed critical and popular success for its self-titled show, with over 200 performances in Germany, France, Switzerland and Italy, and has received a number of prestigious awards.

Cirque Machine will continue its European tour in the fall and then tour across Quebec this winter to finish at Salle Albert-Rousseau Hall in Ste Foy on February 26.

The record attempt will take place at 2:45 p.m., August 6. The performance will be postponed until the next day in case of rain.

Toronto Blue Jays acquire outfielder Melvin Upton Jr. from Padres

By Gregory Strong
THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Toronto Blue Jays added some outfield depth for the stretch drive Tuesday by acquiring Melvin Upton Jr. from the San Diego Padres in exchange for pitching prospect Hansel Rodriguez.

Upton is batting .256 this season with 16 home runs, 45 RBIs and 20 stolen bases. He sat out San Diego's past two games, including Monday's 4-2 loss to Toronto at Rogers Centre.

The Blue Jays, also received cash from San Diego.

General manager Ross Atkins said at a news conference that the Jays started looking at Upton when starting right-fielder Jose Bautista injured his toe last month.

"We've been talking to San Diego since Jose's injury because we felt like (Upton) would have complimented us well then, and it just got to the point that the acquisition cost was right," Atkins said.

Upton, 31, had a .304 on-base percentage and a .439 slugging percentage in 92 games for San Diego. He was in his second season with the Padres.

"What attracted us to him was several things, the defence at all three positions, speed, baserunning, power, versatility and depth," Atkins said.

He joins an outfield mix in Toronto that includes regular starters Bautista, Kevin Pillar and Michael Saunders. Ezequiel Carrera has served as the primary backup outfielder.

With Carrera sidelined with an Achilles injury, Upton will be looked upon to fill in for Toronto's starting outfielders as the Jays press for a playoff spot.

"If for some reason those guys just need a spell ... we feel much more protected now than we did yesterday," Atkins said.

Bautista and Saunders are in the final year of their respective contracts. Upton, meanwhile, is in the fourth year of a US$75.25-million, five-year deal he signed with the Atlanta Braves before the 2013 season.

Upton will earn $16.45 million next season. He was selected by Tampa Bay with the second overall pick in the 2002 draft and made his big-league debut with the Rays in 2004.

"I'm excited to join my new Blue Jays teammates today and can't wait to help continue the winning tradition that's been built here. #letsgo," Upton said on Twitter.

Toronto will make a move to open a roster spot before Tuesday's game.

The Blue Jays are in the thick of the playoff race in the American League East. The defending division champions entered play Tuesday with a 56-44 record, three games behind the 58-40 Baltimore Orioles.

The Boston Red Sox are 2 1/2 games behind the Orioles at 55-42. The Red Sox and Blue Jays currently hold the two

The struggling Padres are looking to the future. San Diego took a 43-57 mark into Tuesday's game.

The 19-year-old Rodriguez is in his third season with Bluefield in the Rookie level Appalachian League. He's 2-1 with a 3.06 ERA in six starts.

Rodriguez was originally signed by Toronto as an international free agent in January 2014 out of the Dominican Republic. He made his pro debut in the Blue Jays organization that season.

Over parts of three minor-league seasons with the Blue Jays, he has a 3-6 record with a 4.61 earned-run average.

Ray throws three TD passes to lead Argos to first victory at BMO Field

By Dan Ralph
THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Toronto Argonauts' first regular-season win at BMO Field might've have come at a terrible price.

Quarterback Ricky Ray threw three TD passes to lead Toronto past the Montreal Alouettes 30-17 on Monday night. But dampening the Argos' enthusiasm about the historic win was Ray leaving the game in the fourth quarter with a suspected sprained left medial collateral ligament.

Toronto will know for sure Tuesday and if that's indeed the case, Logan Kilgore will start Sunday when the Argos visit the Ottawa Redblacks. Ray, 36, missed most of last season recovering from off-season shoulder surgery.

Ray left at 10:16 of the fourth quarter after Montreal defensive lineman Vaughn Martin rolled into his left knee. He finished the game 29-of-34 passing for 235 yards and the three TD strikes gave him 80 over his Toronto tenure, leaving him alone in second all-time to Condredge Holloway (97).

Ray felt Martin's hit was a late one. "It felt late," Ray said. "It felt like I was standing there for about two seconds watching the play and I got rolled into."

"Hopefully, it's not as bad as it felt out there."

Toronto head coach Scott Milanovich is hoping for the best but said if Ray can't play then Kilgore will be the next man up.

"That's why Logan is here," Milanovich said. "It's time for him to stand up and shine."

Kilgore was 1-of-3 passing for 15 yards with an interception versus Montreal. But after watching the likes of Zach Collaros (now in Hamilton), Trevor Harris (Ottawa) and Mitchell Gale (Saskatchewan) all patiently wait for their chance to play in Toronto, Kilgore is anxious for his opportunity.

"All of those guys continually prepared themselves and that's what I picked up from those guys," he said. "You never know when, or if, it's going to happen."

"That's what pro football players prepare for."

Ray's 13-yard touchdown strike to Phil Bates and two-point conversion to Kenny Shaw put Toronto ahead 30-16 just 15 seconds into the fourth. That allowed the BMO Field gathering of 16,048 to exhale after Montreal's Kevin Glenn hit Duron Carter on a 61-yard touchdown pass at 3:33 of the third cut the Argos' lead to 21-16.

Then after Montreal recovered Anthony Coombs' fumble, Glenn drove the offence to the Toronto six-yard line before being intercepted by T.J. Heath, who returned it to the Alouettes' 54-yard line at 7:15. But Lirim Hajrullahu missed from 49 yards out for the single at 10:18, giving the Argos a precarious 22-16 advantage.

"I'm not the first and won't be the last to do something like that," said Glenn, who left the game briefly in the second half before returning. "You've just got to make sure you get it out of your system, get it out of your head."

"We can't carry any of this mentally over into the next game (Friday night hosting Saskatchewan). We've got to get rid of it."

Toronto (3-2) earned the victory after dropping its first two games at its new stadium. The Argos became the first East Division team to win at home this season and moved into a second-place tie with the Hamilton Tiger-Cats (3-2).

Monday's attendance was a dramatic improvement from the 12,373 fans who attended Toronto's 30-20 home loss to Ottawa on July 13. Over 24,000 spectators watched the Argos drop a season-opening 42-20 loss to Hamilton in the first regular-season game at BMO Field.

CFL road teams are still a dominant 14-5-1 this year.

Montreal (1-3) suffered its third straight loss and first in two road games. But head coach/GM Jim Popp said the Alouettes were their own worst enemy with 13 penalties for 130 yards, three turnovers and four sacks allowed.

Glenn finished 24-of-28 passing for 285 yards with a TD and interception. Carter had six catches for 124 yards.

"We shot ourselves in the foot," he said. "You can't squander opportunities when you have a chance, you can't do that."

"It was the missed opportunities tonight. We thought we should've won that football game ... but too many mistakes."

Kicker Boris Bede didn't help Montreal's plight, missing all three field goals he tried (from 40, 36 and 43 yards out). Popp said the Als will have new kickers in camp this week.

"We're going to bring some other people in," Popp said. "Whether Boris continues kicking or not there'll be some competition."

Coombs, Shaw and Devon Wylie had Toronto's other touchdowns. Hajrullahu booted the converts.

Brandon Rutley had Montreal's other touchdown. Bede added two converts and three singles.

Death

Donald WING
(1931-2016)

The family of Don Wing is saddened to announce his sudden passing at the B.M.P. Hospital in Cowansville, Que., on July 22nd, 2016, at the age of 85. Beloved husband of Louise for almost fifty-four years, he is survived by his dear wife, devoted sons Bill (Janie Collin) and John (Kyle De Vito), loving granddaughters Sara and Magaly, sister Barbara Elmhirst, brother-in-law Robert Kirby (Madeleine), and many caring nieces, nephews and friends.

Years ago Don was a City Councilor for the Town of Brome Lake where he displayed his passion for civic politics and the environment. A proud member of the Knowlton Lions Club, and an advocate for preserving Brome Lake, Don will be missed by many.

Funeral services will be held Thursday, July 28th, 2016 at 2:00 p.m. at St-Paul's Anglican Church in Knowlton at which Rev. Tim Wiebe will officiate. The family will receive guests at the church one hour prior. The service will be followed by interment at the Knowlton Protestant Cemetery. For those who wish, in lieu of flowers, family would appreciate donations in his memory to the B.M.P Hospital of Cowansville (www.fondationbmp.ca) or the Town of Brome Lake First Responders (<http://ville.lac-brome.qc.ca/first-responders/>).

Datebook

WEDNESDAY, JULY 27, 2016

Today is the 209th day of 2016 and the 38th day of summer.

TODAY'S HISTORY: In 1789, Congress established the Department of Foreign Affairs, later renamed the State Department.

In 1953, a Korean War armistice was signed after three years of fighting.

In 1974, the House of Representatives voted to recommend the first article of impeachment against President Nixon.

In 1996, a bomb exploded in an Atlanta park during the Summer Olympics, killing one person.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAYS: Hilaire Belloc (1870-1953), writer/historian; Leo Durocher (1905-1991), baseball player/manager; Norman Lear (1922-), TV producer/writer; Jerry Van Dyke (1931-), actor; Bobbie Gentry (1944-), singer-songwriter; Peggy Fleming (1948-), figure skater; Bill Engvall (1957-), actor/comedian; Triple H (1969-), professional wrestler; Nikolaj Coster-Waldau (1970-), actor; Maya Rudolph (1972-), actress; Alex Rodriguez (1975-), baseball player;

Jonathan Rhys Meyers (1977-), actor; Jordan Spieth (1993-), golfer.

TODAY'S FACT: The Republic of Korea (South Korea) refused to sign the armistice agreement that ended the Korean War. It has never made a peace treaty with the Democratic People's Republic of Korea (North Korea).

TODAY'S SPORTS: In 1986, 83 years after the Tour de France was established, American cyclist Greg LeMond became the first non-European to win the race.

TODAY'S QUOTE: "When friendship disappears then there is a space left open to that awful loneliness of the outside which is like the cold of space between the planets. It is an air in which men perish utterly. Absolute dereliction is the death of the soul." — Hilaire Belloc, "The Four Men: A Farrago"

TODAY'S NUMBER: 4 — Major League Baseball teams (Dodgers, Giants, Cubs and Astros) managed by Leo Durocher on his way to a career total of 2,009 wins.

A closed-off husband

WEDNESDAY, JULY 27, 2016

Annie's Mailbox

Dear Annie: I am a Care Bear, and my husband is a cyborg. What I mean is that I get emotional from almost anything. I once cried during a commercial for laundry detergent. I know it sounds clichéd, but I love happy endings, puppies, babies, the color pink and — of course — talking about my feelings.

My husband, on the other hand, is pretty much the exact opposite. I've never seen him cry. He barely talks to his siblings (although they're a little nutty, but that's a different letter). He is constantly on his phone either working or playing solitaire. And getting him to open up is like pulling teeth. Actually, I think pulling teeth might be easier, because he wouldn't have to talk.

We have two kids, and he is great with them. He is super engaged and talks to them on their level. Maybe he feels safe because they won't judge him.

He's not mean or neglectful to me. He says "I love you." But I can't help feeling frustrated when I love talking about feelings and emotions and he doesn't. How do I connect with a man who is so closed off? — Funshine Bear each other nuts. But with effort, you and your husband can use your differences as a source of strength and balance. The key is good communication, even if your communication styles are totally different.

Dear Funshine: Opposites attract — and then drive

I would say your husband is more Secret Bear than cyborg. He has feelings. He just expresses them nonverbally, through actions — such as spending time with the kids or putting his arm around you when a Tide ad tugs at your heartstrings. Try to recognize these as legitimate expressions of love.

When you'd really like him to talk about something, let him know. Don't be judgmental or accuse him of never opening up, as this would only make him withdraw further. Instead, put those Care-a-Lot skills to work and articulate how you feel.

Dear Annie: A few weeks ago, my boyfriend and I went to a beach bonfire for my cousin's 15th birthday. We enjoyed chatting and catching up with the family. Everything was going great until I had to use the bathroom and, unfortunately, the only bathroom in sight was a port-a-potty.

I hate port-a-potties. They're disgusting. I don't even care if I find a freshly placed port-a-potty and I am the first person to use it. I still think they're full of germs, and I get incredibly grossed out.

Anyway, after weighing my options and realizing that I could not hold it until I got home, my fate was sealed. I was going to have to use the port-a-potty.

I asked my boyfriend to walk over with me, and he didn't get what the big deal was but agreed to walk with me. I told him that because he — as a man — doesn't always have to get near the seat, he will never understand the trauma that is the portable toilet.

Why is this such an issue for me? I'm not germophobic or obsessed with cleanliness, but I can't stand these things. — Reluctant Reliever

Dear Reluctant: I've never seen anyone heading into a port-a-potty looking especially jazzed, but clearly it bothers you more than most. Your best bet is to be prepared. When you know you're going to be in a situation where you might have to use a port-a-potty, pack some hand sanitizer, toilet paper and toilet seat liners in your bag. It might also help to practice holding your breath.

Brain implant can reverse effects of hydrocephalus

ASK DOCTOR K
 By Anthony L. Komaroff, M.D.

some of the fluid leaves the brain and enters the blood to travel elsewhere in the body.

In most people, the amount of fluid inside the ventricles remains mostly constant during adult life. In people with hydrocephalus, the ventricles (and the amount of fluid in them) expands.

Your father most likely experienced a type of hydrocephalus known as normal-pressure hydrocephalus (NPH). NPH occurs in a small number of older adults. It can result from head trauma, bleeding in the brain or inflammation of the membrane covering the brain. In about half of cases, doctors never identify what caused it. Something goes wrong with the system that moves fluid out of the brain and into the blood.

People with NPH can develop dementia; they may also lose bladder control. They walk with difficulty: short steps, feet placed wide apart and toes pointing outward for balance. Because of the problems with walking and balance, people with NPH tend to fall. Therefore, they are at increased risk for fracturing their hips and other bones.

To make a diagnosis, a doctor will use computed tomography (CT) or magnetic resonance imaging (MRI) to look for enlarged ventricles in the brain. Next, the doctor will remove a large amount of this fluid with a spinal tap. If NPH is causing the problems, removing the fluid will lead to a temporary, but dramatic, improvement in symptoms.

To treat the condition permanently, a surgeon will implant a tube (called a shunt) that continuously drains excess fluid from the brain. The shunt is inserted into a ventricle through a hole in the skull. It is tunneled under the skin and carries the fluid into another area of the body, where it can be absorbed.

It is possible to largely reverse the effects of NPH, particularly if the problem is diagnosed and treated early. If your father's CT or MRI scan shows little or no loss of brain tissue, or of impaired blood flow in the brain, those are encouraging signs. Hopefully, he will have a good response to the treatment.

Black & white value

What is black and white, read all over and serves as a great teaching tool? The newspaper, of course.

Teachers can use the newspaper in a number of ways in the classroom to enhance students' education. They can cut several pieces of art from the paper and have young students just learning to write name them, or clip a feature story from the paper and have older students respond to it in an essay.

Whatever the activity, newspapers benefit students. When used in the classroom, they improve students' reading, writing and critical thinking skills, inspire them to participate in discussions and debates, and expand their knowledge of past, current and future events.

THE RECORD

Your Birthday

WEDNESDAY, JULY 27, 2016

Your desire for change will be met with emotional opposition if you aren't clear about the way you want to pursue your goals. Plan your strategy with precision and detail before presenting your ideas and goals. Refuse to let your personal life interfere with your professional gains.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Don't feel the need to explain everything you do. Wasting time will not get the job done. Make sure that you complete everything before you show off your accomplishments. A sudden turn of events will favor you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — The doors are wide open for you to make a move, learn something new or just forge into the future with a positive attitude. This is no time to be critical.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) — An opportunity will develop if you offer assistance. Your ability to mediate thorny situations will give your reputation a positive spin that will encourage an interesting proposal.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — Refuse to let anyone stifle your creativity or put you in jeopardy by misinterpreting what you stand for. Express the way you feel and keep moving forward.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) — You'll be torn between what you want to do and what you should do. You'll be enticed to head down the wrong path. An unhealthy choice is a risk you shouldn't take.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Look, listen and make things happen. Any challenge you face will be worth winning. Put your all into whatever you decide to pursue. Home improvements are favored.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) — Don't worry about the reaction you get from others. If you are satisfied with the way things are progressing, you don't have to answer to anyone who doubts your decisions.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) — Too much of anything will be to your detriment. Pace your every move and don't spend more than you can afford. Patience and tolerance will help you come out on top.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Focus on getting ahead. Doing your best to stabilize an iffy situation will lead to solutions, relief and a brighter future. Address issues instead of ignoring them. Romance will ease stress.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Don't let inflexibility stand in your way. If you are open to suggestions and willing to compromise, much will be accomplished. Learn as you go and be willing to adapt.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Be careful who you trust and what you promise. Problems will arise if you are indulgent or neglect to get your facts straight before taking part in something that could lead to regret.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Participate, but don't agree to do things that push you beyond your comfort zone. Offer alternatives. Home and personal investments and relationships are highlighted. Express your plans.

Find the discard that helps partner

By Phillip Alder

Students will occasionally ask me this question: Why use fourth-highest when it sometimes helps declarer instead of the defenders?

It is true that all of the defenders' methods can be analyzed by declarer, and he may benefit from the "free" information. However, defense is so difficult that the defenders just have to accept those bad deals. With no leading or signaling agreements, many contracts would make that could have been defeated. For example, in this deal, how should the defenders card to defeat three no-trump after West leads his fourth-highest spade seven?

At trick one, East must put his spade jack onto the table, the bottom of equivalent cards when playing third hand high. (In general, assuming a defender can afford to do it, he plays the top of touching honors — except when he is the third hand to play to a trick and is going to put up the highest card so far played — he might even take the trick.)

South wins with his spade king, leads a club to dummy's ace, and returns a club. What should East discard?

It looks tempting to pitch the heart queen, but that isn't right. East applies the Rule of Eleven to the opening lead. Seven from 11 is four. So, there are four spades higher than the seven in the dummy, his hand and declarer's hand combined, and he has seen them all: dummy's nine, his jack and queen, and declarer's king. So, West's spade suit is ready to run. But West doesn't know who has the spade queen. East must clarify the position by discarding the aforementioned spade queen.
