Time factor could aid Agnew defence

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal prosecutors investigating Vice-President Spiro Agnew are being pinched by the knowledge that a good portion of their case may be unusable in as little as three weeks.

Agnew is under investigation by a special grand jury in Baltimore for possible violation of extortion, bribery, tax and conspiracy laws during his tenure as Maryland governor.

Under federal statutes of limitations, prosecution for bribery, extortion and conspiracy to commit either offense must be initiated within five years of the commission of the crime.

Agnew's lawyers may argue that the statutes, as they relate to the extortion and bribery allegations against the vice-president, expire Oct. 22, it was learned Monday.

It was on Oct. 22, 1968, almost five years ago, that Agnew attended his last major session of the Maryland board of public works. At that meeting, seven major engineering contracts were awarded totaling more than $5.6 million.

All records relating to the awarding of those contracts have been subpoenaed by the Baltimore grand jury.

LONGER ON OTHERS

The statutes of limitations on tax evasion, tax fraud and conspiracy to commit those crimes is six years, so presumably the grand jury would have until some time next year to act on those allegations against Agnew.

Sources close to the case reported that if Agnew's lawyers claim Oct. 22 as the expiration date on the extortion and bribery statutes, the federal prosecutors may counter with a claim that the five years don't expire until Jan. 7, 1974, five years after Agnew formally resigned as governor or even Jan. 20, 1974, five years after he formally became vice-president.

Nonetheless, the prosecutors are moving quickly to present evidence to the grand jury, expected back in session later this week.

Meanwhile, an attempt was under way to force the House of Representatives to consider the allegations against Agnew.

Representative Paul Findley, an Illinois Republican, invoked a rarely used parliamentary device, seeking a "resolution of inquiry" that would require the justice department to submit all the evidence it has against Agnew to the House.

COULD FORCE VOTE
The House has already refused Agnew's request that it conduct an investigation and either impeach him or clear him, and Findley's resolution could force the House to at least vote on the case rather than just standing aside from it.

Agnew returned from a long weekend on the West Coast to find himself in another skirmish with the justice department.

During a speech in Los Angeles Saturday, Agnew criticized Henry Petersen, the assistant attorney-general who has been quoted by unnamed sources as saying about the Agnew investigation: "We've got the evidence; we've got it cold."

New legislation

B.C. creates powerful labor board

VICTORIA (CP) — The British Columbia government introduced labor legislation Monday which includes provision for an expanded, more powerful Labor Relations Board (LRB) and a labor ombudsman.

The provisions are contained in the Labor Code of the British Columbia Act which repeals the Trade Union Act, the Labor Relations Act and the Mediation Services Act.

Labor Minister Bill King told a news conference he feels the most profound change in the new code for labor relations in the province is the new powers given to the LRB.

"It will be an agency equipped to get at the cause of disputes rather than deal with them in a punitive manner as the courts have done in the past," Mr. King said.

Under the legislation, the courts will no longer have the power to interfere in labor disputes by issuing injunctions. The LRB will be charged with the responsibility of issuing cease and desist orders in the case of strikes and picketing.

The board would be the enforcement agency to see that employers and trade unions obey the law in respect to strikes, lockouts and picketing.

Asked why the government thought it necessary to take the injunction-serving capacity from the courts, Mr. King said it was generally agreed the courts are not the proper agency for adjudicating labor disputes.

The minister said the new board would be made up of 10 members, with a chairman, three vice-chairmen and three representatives from labor and three from management.

The existing board is made up of a chairman, who is the deputy minister of labor, two vice-chairmen who are the assistant deputy labor ministers and five other members.

He said he would announce the composition of the new board today.

The legislation also provides for a type of Rand formula whereby, if an employee objects to joining a union on religious grounds, he may appeal to the board for exemption.

If the board agrees, the employee would not have to join the union but would still have to pay union dues.

ALLOW FOR CHANGE

Also included in the bill is provision for technological change clauses to be included in collective agreements. If such clauses are not contained in the collective agreement, the minister would have the power to put such technological change provisions in the agreement and these would be binding on both parties.

The technological change clauses would include opportunities for retraining, for transferring employees and provision for severance wages for employees displaced by technological change.

The provincial cabinet would be empowered to appoint an ombudsman to hear complaints against the department of labor, trade unions or employers. He would be appointed for a five-year term.

In the area of disputes involving the public interest, the legislation states that members of a firefighters union, policemen's union or hospital union may vote unilaterally to accept binding arbitration as an alternative to going on strike.

In these cases, a single arbitrator would be appointed and his award in the dispute would be binding on both parties.

Another provision which Mr. King said would possibly lessen the number of strikes and labor disputes is that bargaining in good faith must begin 60 days prior to the expiry of a collective agreement.

Also in the case of first collective agreements, the board may impose such an agreement if both parties have not been successful in hammering one out. Such an agreement, however, would be for one year only.

Austria to refuse Russian Jews

VIENNA (CP) — Austrian Chancellor Bruno Kreisky says he will reject Israeli Premier Golda Meir's plea today that he repudiate his pledge to Arab terrorists to close the Schoenau transit camp.

Mrs. Meir decided to fly to Vienna today to meet with Kreisky after delivering a speech Monday in Strasbourg, France, to the Council of Europe's advisory Parliament.

Kreisky told reporters Monday he had no intention of going back on his promise to close the camp for emigrating Soviet Jews. That pledge was given Saturday to obtain the freedom of three migrants and an Austrian border guard kidnapped by two Arab terrorists.

Kreisky said he would explain to Mrs. Meir the "practical steps" his government plans to take so that emigration of Soviet Jews can continue via Austria. These have not been made public, but the chancellor declared:

"The decision of the Austrian government is of such a nature that it allows us to fulfill all our obligations as a humanitarian state in the future. Cancellation of the government's decision is unthinkable even under the hardest pressures."

SAY CAMP NEEDED
The Israelis contend that a closely guarded transit camp like the one they have created at the Schoenau Castle is necessary to protect the emigrants from Arab terrorists.

But in an interview with Israeli television Monday night, Kreisky said Schoenau was a security threat to Austria. The government had known for some time that a raid was being planned on the camp.

Kreisky said he wished to avoid the possibility of the Arab-

Israeli conflict being fought out on Austrian soil, giving as an example the brief arrest Saturday of five armed men guarding Jewish migrants on the Moscow-Vienna express.

But he stressed that his decision would not prevent Jews crossing Austria, suggesting that arrangements be made with airlines so that their stay here might be as brief as possible.

Mrs. Meir put aside her prepared speech to the European parliament Monday to say that Kreisky had given "the greatest encouragement to terror throughout the world" when he promised to close the camp in exchange for the four hostages.

BUSINESS AS USUAL
The Austrian government has not said when it will carry out Kreisky's promise, and Schoenau is reported still processing its usual 40 to 120 Soviet Jews a day.

In Beirut, a guerrilla organization called the Eagles of the Palestine Revolution said it was responsible for the terrorist operation last weekend. It warned of reprisals against Austrian citizens and interests throughout the world if Kreisky went back on his promise.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat announced Monday night he was sending Tourism Minister Ismail Fahmy, a former ambassador to Vienna, to thank the Austrian government for its decision and to urge Chancellor Bruno Kreisky not to rescind it.

Nine killed in Chile

SANTIAGO (Reuters) — Nine persons have been executed in Santiago for resisting and attacking security forces during the curfew imposed on the city by the military junta that seized power in Chile three weeks ago, a government spokesman said Monday.

The spokesman said six were shot by firing squad Sunday night when they tried to escape during a raid on a shanty town in the northern outskirts of the city, and the other three after they fired on a suburban military barracks.

One of the six shot at the shanty town was a member of the personal bodyguard of the late president Salvador Allende, who was ousted in the Sept. 11 coup which led to his death.

An announcement by provincial authorities in the northern province of Tarapaca said six Allende supporters were given jail sentences ranging from three to 15 years for planning to sabotage a salt mine.

A mission from the Geneva-based International Red Cross is in Chile studying conditions under which prisoners arrested by the junta are being held.

Hundreds of suspected militant Allende supporters are still being held at a football stadium here while their individual cases are studied. The junta has said many were being released daily and others sent up for trial, but it was believed others were being rounded up every day.

Bourassa attacks opposition, labor leaders

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Premier Robert Bourassa kicked off his Quebec election campaign Monday night with swipes at his opponents both in and out of the legislature.

In addition to attacking opposition parties, the premier aimed an attack at Quebec's three top labor leaders, Marcel Pepin, Louis Laberge and Yvon Charbonneau.

Mr. Bourassa was speaking in his home riding of Montreal-Mercier, where he officially opened his campaign for the Oct. 29 election.

Among the accomplishments of his government he listed was its handling of the province-wide public service strike in which the labor leaders advised some of their union members to defy back-to-work injunctions.

He said it was intolerable that thousands of old and infirm persons were the victims of the strike, which affected hospitals, and said the labor leaders will find Quebecers do not support their defiance of the law.

FIELDS WOULD OPEN

Rene Levesque, Parti Quebecois leader, told a student audience in Jonquiere, 115 miles north of Quebec City, that Quebec independence would enable young Quebecers to enter fields such as aviation and foreign trade that he said are currently closed to them "unless they disguise themselves or go begging."

In Montreal, however, Premier Bourassa said independence would be costly and the small wage earner would be hardest hit.

He repeated his insistence that the Parti Quebecois reveal a budget for an independent Quebec.

The premier also lashed out at Creditiste Leader Yvon Dupuis. Mr. Dupuis, he said, "tells the chamber of commerce that I'm a socialist and tells workers' groups that I'm an agent of high finance."

Icelandic ultimatum spurs British action

LONDON (AP) — British Foreign Secretary Sir Alec Douglas-Home met leaders of the fishing industry Monday amid reports that Britain may temporarily withdraw its warships and tugs from disputed waters around Iceland.

The hastily arranged conference came one day before the expiry of Iceland's ultimatum threatening to break diplomatic relations with Britain. Iceland's coalition government has said the break will come at midnight tonight unless three Royal Navy frigates and tugs are pulled out.

During the weekend, Prime Minister Edward Heath, Douglas-Home and Defence Secretary Lord Carrington discussed the advisability of a temporary withdrawal of the warships and tugs, informed sources reported.

The vessels went into the 50-mile fishing zone Iceland claims last May as a move to protect British trawlers against what the British regard as harassment and what the Icelanders say is the enforcement of their own laws.

Informants said the British ministers have seemingly become convinced Iceland's threat of a diplomatic break has to be taken seriously and would, if it comes, gravely jeopardize prospects of an ultimate compromise.

Prime Minister Olafur Johansson, in a letter to Heath last week, pledged that the removal of the warships and tugs would open the way to a resumption of negotiations for a stopgap agreement on fishing rights between the two countries.

If, after meeting with representatives of the British fishing industry Monday, the British advise Iceland of a decision to withdraw its vessels, it would have to be on the understanding that negotiations for a compromise would follow swiftly.

High population not desirable - official

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The federal government can take steps to preserve the Canadian style of life through new immigration policies, William Lane, chairman of the British Columbia land commission, said Monday.

Mr. Lane, who said he was expressing a personal opinion, suggested unlimited population growth could threaten the way of life in Canada.

One federal approach might be to require that adequate housing and services be available for prospective immigrants he said.

Mr. Lane spoke to reporters after addressing to the Community Planning Association of Canada (CPAC) annual meeting here. CPAC is a voluntary organization promoting good planning and citizen participation in urban programs.

Mr. Lane told a CPAC luncheon meeting:

"In my opinion, the worst disservice we can make to Canada is to take no effective steps to stabilize the growth of the country. But it is the least popular subject matter for virtually every level of government."

MEET IT HEAD-ON
He said that the "style of life will suffer unless this problem is tackled head-on."

One of the main complaints of Vancouver residents at a recent meeting called to hear their views on new city plans was that their life-style was being "whittled away from day to day."

Vancouver city planners had been surprised to find that residents were ready to limit growth.

Many development problems can be traced to growing population, Mr. Lane said. It was for the people to decide how this was to be dealt with.

There were compassionate reasons for allowing unlimited immigration—people expelled from their home countries, for example.

But, Mr. Lane said the federal government should ensure that adequate housing and services await incoming immigrants. Grants should be provided to municipalities who have to bear this additional burden.

PROTECT FARMS

In B.C., a land commission had been established to protect good agricultural land which amounted to three per cent of available territory in the province.

Provincial governments must step in to ensure good land use, he said. Local governments were no longer able to handle the problem alone.

Earlier, Norman Pearson, political science professor at the University of Western Ontario, said it is time to move beyond "urban guerrilla warfare and piecemeal reactions to change."

He called for clear ground rules guiding change. There should be consultation with people affected by changes.

Ratepayers "who stop things which are vital for everyone must be heard but not obeyed."

Deziel likely Liberal candidate in St. Francois

By CROSBIE COTTON
Record Reporter
SHERBROOKE (CC) — Sherbrooke municipal councillor Gerald Deziel is likely to win the liberal nomination for the new St. Francois riding. The nominating convention will be held Wednesday.

Others interested in seeking the nomination include another municipal councillor, Romeo Quintal, Gerald McManus, president of the Eastern Townships Health and Social Services Council, Claude Dallaire, liberal association president and long time liberal Raymond Drouin.

Jean Paul Pepin will be seeking re-election in Sherbrooke county. Union Nationale leaders are to finalize preparations for nominating conventions in Sherbrooke and St. Francois ridings late this afternoon.

Marcel Cote, Gabriel Loubier's economic advisor, has said he will try to procure the party's nomination in Sherbrooke riding. Ex-MNA Raymond Frechette has said he will not return to active politics despite offers from three parties.

Jean-Jacques Lafontaine, who resigned as president of the Eastern Townships Regional Development Council and Jean Marie Cliche will be vying for the Parti Quebecois nomination in St. Francois. The Parti Quebecois will hold its nominating convention in Sherbrooke county October 4 at 8 p.m. at the New Wellington Hotel.

Jean Claude Boutin was acclaimed liberal candidate in Johnson riding. More than 500 liberal supporters attended the convention which was held in Windsor Sunday.

Denis Morel, ex-president of the Parti Quebecois executive in Richmond riding was nominated to represent the party in Richmond.

Albert Claude was nominated creditiste candidate in Johnson riding at a convention held Sunday in Acton Vale.

Both the Liberals and Parti Quebecois will hold their nomination conventions in Drummond riding Wednesday. Drummondville municipal councillor Roger Marier is the only one who has officially announced he will seek the PQ nomination in the riding.

The liberal nomination in the riding is up for grabs since incumbent Bernard Pinard has resigned. At least five people are after the nomination. They include Michel Houde, Robert Malouin, Guy Lahaie, Gilles Gagnon and Jean Guy Moreau.

The Liberal party will hold their nominating convention for Sherbrooke county on Wednesday evening. It will be held at St. Eugene school in Granby.

The Liberal convention for Richmond will be held Thursday at the Danville town hall. Jerome Choquette will be the guest speaker.

Georges Vallancourt has been acclaimed liberal candidate in Orford riding.

Brown to contest Brome-Missisquoi

COWANSVILLE (JD) — Election fever is slowly coming to a boil in the newly-formed provincial riding of Brome-Missisquoi. Incumbent Glen Brown has been chosen by Premier Robert Bourassa to wage the fight in traditional Union Nationale country — held for the previous 24 years by the late Jean Jacques Bertrand. The Union Nationale will be holding a nomination convention at 8 p.m., October 3 in the Ste. Therese school.

Cowansville, to chose Mr. Bertrand's successor.

The Creditiste nomination meeting will be held Thursday, October 4, at 8 p.m. in the Cowansville Knights of Columbus hall.

A Parti Quebecois spokesman at their Montreal headquarters told the Record a convention will be held at a yet undetermined date. He indicated Brome-Missisquoi will be among the last counties to receive their attention.

Cattle theft topic at council meeting

By CROSBIE COTTON
Record Reporter
SHERBROOKE — City council took a step to stop cattle rustling at last night's first council meeting of the month.

Council agreed to a request presented by farmers who have land situated on McCrea street. The farmers asked council for permission to close McCrea street from St. Joseph road.

McCrea street has been a dead end ever since the Trans-Quebec highway was built and no buildings are situated on it. However, cattle are at pasture along the side of the street. The farmers, led by Keith Rose, believe the dead end street offers the perfect opportunity for cattle rustlers. Numerous cattle have been stolen and according to the petition the farmers "are expecting to lose more."

Council decided to allow the farmers to block off the road themselves. Some form of fence may be erected.

The reason council decided they did not want to close off the street themselves was because such a move would have involved numerous and lengthy legal proceedings.

In other business last night council faced a large delegation from the Jagues housing development. The delegation was seeking land for a park area.

Council decided to investigate all possibilities and to make a decision next meeting.

Counselling said important service

LENNOXVILLE (MI) — The counselling service assumes an important function in high schools and colleges. In a situation where there are many students striving for self-advancement and many decisions being made by each of these persons, the service naturally gains significance.

Counsellors themselves are very clear about the nature of the role which they play in a student's life. They emphasize the fact that they do not make decisions for students but, rather, assist the individual to understand the parameters of the decision which he is making.

The areas in which the counsellors operate are generally divided into educational, vocational and personal. However, as Joe Gallagher, guidance counsellor at Alexander Galt Regional High School, notes: "All three areas walk in the door when someone arrives for consultation."

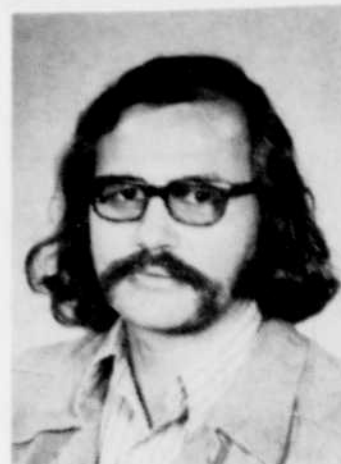

For the most part, student concerns center on two questions: further study and employment possibilities. As a consequence, much of the work done by counsellors consists of accumulating, distributing and directing students toward information on these matters.

One of the major problems which face the counselling operation is the ratio which is provided for by the department of education. The ratio of students to counsellors, as allowed high schools through financial grants, is more than 900 to one.

Obviously, this apportionment makes for little time for individual attention. Yet the student is still expected, more than ever before, to make early and responsible decisions.

Library instructional programs are becoming far more sophisticated, the University of Toronto professor said. Professor Marshall, who is with the University of Toronto School of Library Science and Chairman of the Sub-Committee on the Training of Library Technicians, Canadian Library Association, outlined reasons for the higher standards required.

Mr. Gregory Rickerby, Champlain Regional College's

Library Technology instructor served as Chairman of the meeting, which was well attended, indicative of interest in the library field.

Mr. Andre Houde, formerly from Sherbrooke, now Co-ordinator of the French Section of Library Techniques, Algonquin College of Applied Arts and Technology, represented the Ottawa institution John Abbott College was represented by Mrs. Rabab Naqvi, that CEGEP's Co-ordinator of the Library Techniques Program.

Food prices

The second report of the food prices review board, released last Wednesday, is likely to be greeted with as much contention as previous statements by board members. It is cold comfort to the housewife to be told that food prices are likely to continue to rise at least for the next six months.

On the other hand, there is some encouragement in the board's prediction that the increase will not be as pronounced as in past months: so there may be some light showing at the end of the tunnel.

There have been loud cries for a scapegoat as a result of the 13 per cent increase in food prices in the January - August period compared with the same period last year. But the board — wisely — says there is no scapegoat.

The farmer is getting higher prices for his product, but there is a lot of catching-up to be done here — and nobody begrudges the farmer a reasonable price for what he raises. (Furthermore his costs, like everyone else's, have gone up sharply.)

Nor does the board point its finger at retailers as a class. Their costs have been rising — processors' charges, labor costs and so on. As costs have risen, prices have had to rise as well. There appear to be a few bad apples in this particular barrel, but as a segment of the food chain, retailers as a whole get a clean bill of health.

(Nor will opponents of producers' marketing boards overlook the report's observation that there is a "worrying lack of competition" among some marketing boards — a lack of competition designed, of course, to keep prices high.)

Indeed, if there is a scapegoat in the food price picture it is the federal government, for its failure long ago to implement price and wage controls and so keep prices at a reasonable level until long-range measures against inflation could be put into effect.

True, the government has moved, through subsidies, to prevent further increases in the cost of some basic foods — bread and milk; but this can be carried only so far. Without controls, as the prices board review predicts, the weekly supermarket bill will continue to get larger.

Contradictory objectives

Unlike the interim increases in family allowance payments, the broader program taking effect next year is not a hasty response to the inflationary crisis. It is a social reform measure planned and negotiated over a long period and based on the working paper of April, 1973.

The new Quebec plan, recently announced, fits the pattern of the new federal legislation. As federal Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde observed Sept. 21, it "does take into account the bill currently before the House and it is mostly thanks to the provisions of this bill that Quebecers will be able to benefit from an excellent family allowances program."

Up to this point everything seems clear. But why in these circumstances do Mr. Lalonde and Premier Robert Bourassa place such different interpretations on the program?

Mr. Bourassa, speaking to the Quebec Chamber of Commerce, explained that the new co-ordinated welfare programs are intended, among other purposes, to encourage the growth of Quebec families. The premier noted in this connection that there has been a sharp decline in the Quebec birth rate in recent years.

Earlier suggestions that more generous baby bonuses might have such an effect were scouted by Mr. Lalonde. After all, much of the world is gravely concerned about the population explosion, which is also observable in some of the poorer parts of Canada, for example on Indian reserves.

There is enough concern that the minister's department also supports family planning, as Mr. Lalonde has noted in response to his critics.

But Mr. Bourassa's views cannot be lightly dismissed, for the Quebec government has been deeply involved in the development of the new plan.

Agnew tried in fairy tale atmosphere

WASHINGTON — For weeks, the strange case of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew has been handled by Washington's political community on the method of one of Lewis Carroll's nonsense-rhymes. It is the rhyme that begins, on a tone of menace:

"I'll be judge, I'll be jury,
Said cunning old Fury."

In the present atmosphere, this has been not merely natural but unavoidable. Against the background of the Watergate horror, incredulity is an all but impossible response to serious charges; and silence about such matters, once charges begin to circulate, can hardly be expected either.

But one does wonder a bit about the present atmosphere, which rules out waiting for real judges and real juries.

For those with long memories, the contrast with the past is remarkably sharp. In the early stages of President Eisenhower's Administration, for example, Sherman Adams was one of the most powerful men in Washington — infinitely more important than the Vice President, who happened to be Richard M. Nixon in those days.

This thin-lipped former governor of New Hampshire, the outward model of old-fashioned New England rectitude, was the absolute boss of the Eisenhower White House. As a military officer, President Eisenhower had the habit of relying immensely heavily on his staff.

And Gov. Adams ruled the President's staff with an iron hand until he ran into trouble with Bernard Goldfine. Whereupon, he was promptly

of fact

with Joseph Alsop

fired. Compared with the Vescos and their like, Goldfine was a truly nostalgic figure. Briefly, he was a successful but eccentric textile manufacturer, whose main hobby was bribing politicians.

So far as was ever discovered, Goldfine never got anything particularly tangible in return for his money. He just liked having politicians on his payroll.

In the Eisenhower era, Gov. Adams was only supposed to have accepted a vicuna coat and a Persian rug from the compulsively generous Goldfine. Everyone — and particularly everyone in the same Washington political community now imitating cunning old Fury — shied away from the very idea that there could be anything worse to say about a man the President of the United States had totally trusted.

Something worse was said, to be sure, by a Boston publisher of that time, John Fox, who declared that Gov. Adams had also received large sums in cash from Goldfine. Fox's charge was based on the evidence of Goldfine's secretary, a lady by the name of Mildred Paperman, who had more than a trace of Goldfine's general oddity. Fox was widely denounced for his malice and levity in making such a charge.

Miss Paperman's evidence, which also incriminated two U.S. senators, then moldered in the hands of the Justice Department until after President Kennedy's election in 1960.

Just the other day, or no less than 10 years after the event, Jack Anderson uncovered the odd story of the chapter of accidents that provided the Justice Department with ample proof of Miss Paperman's entire reliability.

According to Anderson, the total of cash passed to Adams by Goldfine was about $300,000; and this is around the figure President Kennedy once mentioned to this reporter.

Both President Kennedy and his attorney general brother, Robert Kennedy, were nonetheless reluctant to prosecute an older man whose political career had ended with his dismissal from the Eisenhower White House. They felt, however, that they could not ignore the new evidence against Gov. Adams without President Eisenhower's assent.

President Eisenhower cheerfully assented to the Kennedy emissary. And there the story ended until Anderson's enlightening column of a few months ago, except in one significant respect.

Rather uncharacteristically, President Eisenhower had an intense partisan dislike for his successor. Yet when President Kennedy really needed support in the fields of foreign policy or national defense, that help was always forthcoming from President Eisenhower. If you are cynical, you may see a certain connection with the facts above set forth.

All this is worth considering now because of the difference in the political community's response to the charges of John Fox in those long gone days, and to the troubles of Vice President Agnew in these last weeks.

The key to the difference, of course, lies in quite another difference: that between President Eisenhower and President Nixon.

A young congressman from the far West once told this reporter, "When I was a boy, we thought it was wicked not to revere President Eisenhower." Among many people today, the reverse view of the Presidency plainly prevails.

More on North Hatley

Dear Sir:

The recent article on North Hatley has sparked mixed and controversial reactions. Many of the facts are true but we object to the interpretation given to the facts. This criticism applies to many news stories of the day—that is to play up the sensational and controversial elements and play down the good and beneficial aspects.

The Town Council may have its faults but it should not be blamed for an incorrect reason for closing the Cultural Center. The Center was closed before the municipal garage burned.

In North Hatley, we do have an organization which should have been included in the article — our Community Club. It occupies and maintains the lower floor of a building owned by the Municipality.

It consists of two large committee rooms and a well equipped kitchen. Fourteen member organizations, both French and English speaking groups, make up the Community Club.

Its main function is to supply space for meetings of church groups of all denominations, for art classes, for craft classes, yoga classes, Guides and Brownies, Legion Auxiliary activities, Women's Institute, Water Protection Association, a drama group and others — both English and French participating in some of these organizations together.

Each group pays a small annual rental fee (except the Guides and Brownies and some public meetings) and the remaining upkeep costs are borne by the proceeds from the annual Antique Show.

It takes many months to prepare for this Show and if you ask the participants who work to make this Antique Show one of the best in Eastern Canada, they will tell you it is not a "Social Event" but an event of hard work which brings many visitors to our town.

"Children pay to go swimming" The Municipal Beach and Pavilion receive grants from the North Hatley Council and the Township of Hatley Council as well as a possible government grant. Each family is asked to pay a fee for the summer's use of the facilities and the number in each family is not limited.

The seventy-five cent charge for adults who do not have a membership and come for the day. There is a beach and two grassy areas for play and sun bathing as well as the noted "cement wharf".

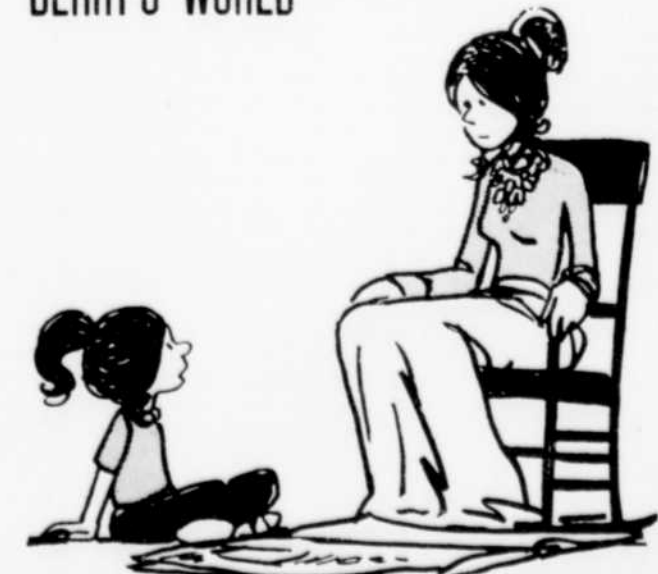

Swimming lessons with two qualified instructors are given for six weeks, with Red Cross examinations at the end of the course (no extra charge for lessons). There is a life guard on duty from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. Water skiing lessons are provided as well. In these days of rising costs, the Town is doing its best to provide recreation within its means without raising taxes.

As for the sailing project — space for up to fourteen sailing boats was requested at the above mentioned beach area. The request was turned down for safety reasons — there being so many children and crowded facilities. An alternate area on the lake was offered but this was not acted upon.

In this day of noise pollution, smog pollution, frantic hustle and bustle, is it wrong to enjoy living in a quiet peaceful village? In a democratic country, aren't people still allowed to choose their way of life? If change is desired, it can be brought about by use of the ballot and the majority decides.

Postal Service to blame for higher costs

WASHINGTON — Postmaster General Ted Klassen, who is now calling for higher postage to meet the rising costs of the Postal Service, has been contributing to those costs by handing out non-competitive contracts to his cronies and building fancy facilities for himself.

One of his old friends is Martin E. Segal, whose firm, the Segal Company, won a $50,000 contract last March — despite the fact that its bid was the third highest of five considered and was more than twice the amount of the low bidder.

Segal has also been known to arrange postal contracts for clients. But like everything else, the cost in influence peddling has gone up. In return for pulling the right strings with the Postmaster General, the Segal Company collects a 15 per cent finder's fee. This is triple what the five percenters used to receive in Harry Truman's day.

One of Segal's clients, for example, is Retirement Advisors, Inc., which wanted to sell its counseling service to the Postal Service. Postal employees already have available all the retirement counseling they need from the Civil Service Commission. But Segal fired off a personal letter to Klassen on March 5, 1970, recommending his client.

DUPLICATE INFORMATION

In a warm personal response, Klassen agreed to award a five-year, half-million-dollar contract to the company to produce retirement booklets. Not only do these duplicate information available from the Civil Service Commission, but no competitive bids were sought.

Our sources have brought us

Jack Anderson's

Washington Merry-Go-Round

the Segal file, which shows Klassen didn't sign the letter but rather turned it over to his aides to fill out the necessary paperwork. When the contract was awarded, the Segal Company took its 15 per cent cut from Retirement Advisors.

Segal insisted to my associate Jack Cloberty that he "didn't get a penny" from the deal. He acknowledged that his company collected a generous 15 per cent but explained he is now a "non-paid consultant" to the company. He did not explain how the profits are distributed.

Others besides Segal have benefitted from Klassen's loyalty to old friends. Paul Burnford, a public relations pal of the Postmaster General's, has picked up a whopping $821,000 worth of sole-source Postal Service contracts.

Klassen has also taken care of himself. On the top floor of the new Postal Service building, he has built a palatial penthouse replete with hand-carved wooden doors and a $50,000 kitchen.

Meanwhile, Klassen is crying for an increase in the rate of first class mail, from eight to ten cents.

VETO HASSLE: Another round in the battle between Congress and the White House was fought the other day behind closed congressional doors.

House Judiciary Chairman Peter Rodino, D-N.J., tangled with Assistant Attorney General Robert Dixon over the "pocket veto," which President Nixon has used to kill legislation when Congress is out of session. The President conveniently lets the bill languish and die, without signing it, when Congress isn't around to override him.

Rodino sought to prevent abuses of the "pocket veto" by restricting its use only after Congress has adjourned "sine die." This would stop the President from using the "pocket veto" when Congress is simply vacationing.

The doors were shut on the debate at the request of the Justice Department, which pleaded that an open discussion might jeopardize a pending court case involving the "pocket veto."

BLUNT REBUTTAL

In the august hearing room, empty of spectators, Chairman Rodino looked down from the rostrum at Dixon and informed him bluntly: "A 'pocket veto' is an absolute veto. Its use prevents Congress from considering a bill and voting on it in the light of the President's disapproval."

Referring to the Constitutional Convention, Rodino reminded Dixon: "The Framers voted on an absolute veto power twice and soundly rejected it both times."

Rodino was supported by the Judiciary Committee's ranking Republican, Rep. Edward Hutchinson, R-Mich., who argued: "The Executive Branch does not really possess a 'pocket veto' power itself. Instead, Congress simply 'deprives itself of its power to override a veto.'"

Faced with bipartisan opposition, Dixon was respectful but held firmly to the Nixon line. "We prefer," he said, "to appear in support of congressional proposals and especially to avoid constitutional disputes, but that is not always possible."

TWO ALTERNATIVES

He conceded that the Constitution did "possess a certain incompleteness" on the veto issue while Congress is absent. Nevertheless, he insisted that "Congress lacks the power to enact" Rodino's proposal.

Congress, he argued, "does not have the power...to narrow the meaning of the 'adjournment.' Indeed the fundamental constitutional doctrine of separation of powers would be in jeopardy" if Congress had such authority.

Dixon offered two alternatives to Rodino's plan to restrict the "pocket veto" — "careful scheduling of presentation of bills to the President" to avoid adjournment periods, or Congress "could repass the bill, present it to the President and, if necessary, override his veto."

Rodino, anticipating these arguments, claimed that such alternatives resulted in the "erosion of legislative power of Congress" and caused "duplication of time and resources."

YOU DON'T HAVE TO BE OLD...

...to be struck by arthritis. But a great deal is known about arthritis today and about its treatment, including the very special treatment required for juvenile arthritis. Today, most cases of arthritis can be controlled, in children as in adults, if diagnosis and treatment attack the problem early.

It is a great shock to a parent to be told that a child as young as two or three has arthritis, usually considered an "old people's" disease.

It does strike children, though in much smaller numbers than it does adults, just as it strikes such other unlikely targets as athletes and airline pilots, whose professions demand they keep themselves in the best of health.

The peculiar nature of juvenile arthritis is an excellent illustration of the complexity of all forms of the disease.

The manner in which it is treated, once diagnosed, is an excellent illustration of the great strides that have been taken in knowledge of arthritis generally, during the last 25 years.

THE GREAT CRIPPLER

The form of the disease which strikes children is the most vicious form, rheumatoid arthritis, "the great crippler." The great danger is that if it is improperly diagnosed, or improperly treated, the effects can last for life.

A redeeming feature is that in most cases, some 70 per cent, the disease fades away during the teen years by "natural remission."

But there is no guarantee of this. And when natural remission does occur, it will not correct any damage done during the years when the disease was operative.

A wide range of help is available now for children with arthritis, as it is for adults, help which will reduce inflammation, ease pain and avoid the deformity which is the special mark of rheumatoid arthritis.

their symptoms; the very young cannot describe them at all. And symptoms differ from the adult.

Most children feel little pain, though the disease may be active. And blood tests are much less useful. Where the rheumatism factor is present in 80 per cent of adult cases, it is found in only 20 per cent of juvenile patients.

Juvenile arthritis often appears in only one joint until it is well advanced. And it may well be dismissed, by child and parent too, as the everyday result of an everyday childish accident, from a fall in the playground or a fall from a bike.

Though it may eventually extend to many joints in children, it often begins in one knee. When swelling remains and a child develops a limp, arthritis may be present.

"There are special dangers in juvenile arthritis," says Dr. Camerlain, who has treated the disease both here and in Chicago, where she completed her rheumatology studies. "And there are special dangers in treating it."

"In children, arthritis can affect the eyes and cause blindness. It can affect the heart and spine more often and more seriously than in adults."

"The child is growing and developing during the period of the disease and it has not yet gained the resistance of an adult."

"These factors make great differences in the effects of the disease and in the effects of the various treatments."

MEDICATION DANGER

There is a wide array of medication available for children, now, as there is for adults. But because of these particular factors, medication must be used with great care.

Cortisone can retard growth. It is used only in such desperate cases as a threat of blindness. Radio-active tracers cannot be used; they could understanding participation by parents. The participation must go beyond the physical. The child's character is in a formative stage, too.

The restrictions of a crippling disease can have a lifelong effect on the sufferer's attitudes.

SYMPATHY HARMFUL

For the child patient, misdirected sympathy can be as harmful as neglect. The parent or teacher who does too much for the child may be depriving him of necessary exercise. Misdirected sympathy can be especially serious in bed care.

When arthritis affects knees in adults, it is customary to make the patient more comfortable in bed by placing a pillow under the knees.

If this is done for a child, it can cause the growing bones to set permanently in that flexed position, an effect that may require surgery to correct.

Most of today's extensive, detailed knowledge of arthritis had been gained in the last 25 years, as a worldwide campaign against the widespread disease has gained momentum.

Canada is one of the world leaders in this campaign and its most important contribution has been the development of Rheumatic Diseases Units, planned and supported by the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society.

When the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society (CARS), was founded, in 1948, advanced rheumatoid arthritis was often diagnosed as a "hopeless case."

By promoting research and assisting patient care, the CARS aided the progress of both knowledge and treatment.

90 PER CENT OF COST

Then hospital insurance came along and provincial governments took over 90 per cent of the cost of patient care.

The CARS was able to devote its energies to promoting the vital needs of research and teaching.

It became possible to set up the first rheumatic Disease Unit, now a Canadian specialty, in Toronto, in 1960, with the eventual goal of establishing one in each of Canada's 16 teaching hospitals. That goal is expected to be reached by 1975.

There are 13 RDY's operating in Canada now, two in Quebec. The newest one was set up at McGill-Royal Victoria Hospital this year.

The RDY's are ideally designed to meet the special needs of the fight against arthritis.

Teams of specialists in the varied fields concerned combine the duties of teaching (to produce more specialists), research (to produce more knowledge), and direct care.

As a result, more progress has been made in this field in the last 12 years than in the previous 25.

So much progress, in fact, that not only the general public but many family doctors have been unable to keep up with it.

The teaching duty of the RDY specialists, says Dr. T. Douglas Kinsella, head of the new McGill RDY, has to have two major aims.

The education of the general public to the help that is now available for arthritis victims.

And the education of the average doctor in the advances that have been made in specific diagnosis and in the control measures now available.

ONE IN EVERY 20

For the one million Canadians who suffer from arthritis and for the one in every 20 who will be struck by it, the message of the CARS and its Rheumatic Diseases Units is full of hope.

Although the cause and cure of arthritis are still to be discovered, control of the disease's worst features is available now and is effective in four out of five cases. And even more success is being steadily achieved.

The Quebec contribution to this progress is concentrated in its two Rheumatic Diseases Units, University of Sherbrooke and at McGill, and in its plans for two more RDY's, at Université de Montreal and at Laval, within the next two years.

It is to insure that this progress continues that the Quebec division of CARS is conducting its current campaign for $250,000.

Support of the campaign is an excellent investment. Almost a half-million Quebecers are victims of arthritis, 85,000 of them seriously affected. Their lost man-hours cost the Quebec economy $75 million each year.

Donations should be sent to: The Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society (Quebec), P.O. Box 2500, Station "H" Montreal 109, Quebec.

CAN BE LIFELONG — Angela Landry, 11, of Sherbrooke, is one of the most difficult cases to be treated by the Children's Arthritis Clinic at the Sherbrooke University Hospital Center. A long series of medications are being used in conjunction with supervised exercise, such as she is receiving here. Juvenile arthritis disappears during the teen years in 70 per cent of cases, but the effects can be lifelong if the child does not receive early diagnosis and special individual treatment.

SPECIALIZED CARE — Dr. Jean-Yves Lang, of the Sherbrooke University Rheumatic Diseases Unit, examines the swollen knees of Lynne Boisvert, 13, of Stratford, Quebec. Juvenile Arthritis is of the rheumatoid type, "the great crippler," and requires specialized care in treatment if lifelong damage is to be avoided.

But it must be very specialized help, even more selective and individual than the care of adult victims. Certain factors are the same, but many are not, and the differences are vital.

During the monthly children's clinic at the Rheumatic Diseases Unit in Sherbrooke University Hospital, Dr. Monique Camerlain outlined these differences and how they are met in treatment.

SYMPTOMS DIFFER

Diagnosis presents special problems. Juvenile patients are often unable to describe affect developing ovaries. Anti-malaria serum, useful to some adults, could be fatal to a child. If used at all, it must be given in very small doses.

Once proper medication has been decided, a most important element in recovery is exercise, preferably the natural exercise of running and jumping and playing, much more vigorous exercise than is prescribed for adult patients.

Where the disease makes this impossible, set exercise must be designed and followed regularly so that bones and muscles may develop normally.

Grant-Little marriage

The marriage of Pamela Ann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roderick E. Grant, of Pointe Claire, to Mr. Thomas Bruce Little, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Little of Thetford Mines, took place Aug. 25 in St. Paul's Anglican Church, Dunany, Que.

Rev. R. Guinness officiated. Mrs. G.G. Thomas played the wedding music. White chrysanthemums and yellow gladioli were used to decorate the church. The pews reserved for guests were marked with white ribbon bows.

The bride, given away by her father, wore an empire gown of white peau de soie, with a hood of guipure lace, the skirt falling into a slight train. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink roses and baby's breath.

Miss Morven Gardner, maid-of-honor, wore a frock of turquoise-blue cotton, with a bodice embroidered in multi-color flowers. She wore a bandeau of white daisies and yellow carnations matching the flowers in her bouquet.

Mr. Jack Little was the best man for his brother. The usher was Mr. Robert Grant, brother of the bride.

Mrs. Grant, mother of the bride was gowned in gold chiffon and wore a corsage of yellow roses.

Mrs. Little, mother of the bridegroom, was in a gown of pastel floral lace and wore a corsage of green orchids.

The reception was held at the Lachute Golf and Country Club. Guests were present from Pointe Claire, Beaconsfield, Ottawa, Toronto, Jamaica, Maine, Sherbrooke, Stanstead and Thetford Mines.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Little left for the Maritimes. The bride travelled in a tan, yellow and green plaid pant-suit and had tan accessories. The young couple are now residing in Fredericton, N.B.

Mr. Little is a graduate of the University of New Brunswick. Mrs. Little is a student there.

EAST ANGUS — A regular meeting of Protector Rebekah Lodge was held in the lodge room with N.G. Sister Jeannine Dearden presiding.

Sister Betty Webb, PNG introduced the appointed and elective officers of the Rebekah Assembly who were Sisters Grace MacLeod, DDP, Hattie Smith, Marshal, Bernice Clark, Color Bearer, Mabel MacKay, Chaplain, Christine Matheson, right herald, Beryl Haskall, left herald, Isabelle Rowland, Vice-Pres., and Brothers McHarg and Morrison Sister Hattie Smith then introduced the Pres. Sister Doris Gordon and all these members were welcomed and escorted to their various seats.

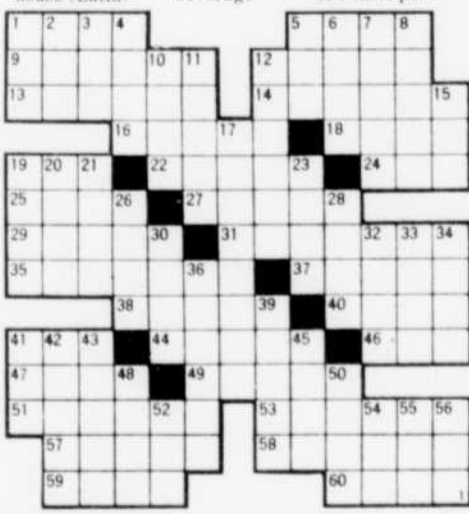

Six Sisters put on a drill and each presented Sister Gordon with a different colored tea rose. She also received a monetary gift from the members of Protector. The President installed Sister Vera Davey as Inside Guardian of the Assembly. Sister Davey had been in poor health and unable to be installed before this time. Sister Doris Gordon gave a very interesting address which gave us food for thought. Delicious refreshments were served by the members and included a beautifully decorated cake with the President's watchwords: Patience, Understanding, and Be Kind. This was made and decorated by Sisters Marion Ord and Jeannine Dearden.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Four spades is a very good contract for South. Give East the ace of diamonds and West the king of clubs and he would have no trouble making five odd, but those two cards are placed just where he doesn't want them to be.

In spite of this unfortunate situation, South found a way to make his contract after West was kind enough to open a trump, rather than a club.

East took his ace and led trumps back. South won in dummy and decided to attack diamonds right away. The normal play would have been to lead the deuce and go up with his king, but South had a slightly different idea. He led dummy's jack!

If East just played low, South would still have played the king, but East covered the jack with the queen. A bad play, but the sort of bad play that even the best players are going to make nine times out of 10.

Now South held back his king. This left East on lead. He couldn't do any good by playing a club and did lead a heart to dummy's ace. A second diamond was led and now the king lost to the ace.

West led a club, but it was too late. South went up with dummy's ace, ruffed a diamond and eventually discarded his losing clubs on good diamonds.

Engagement announced

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Dickson of Amherst, N.S., are pleased to announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Valerie Lynn, to James Frederick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Currier of Sherbrooke. The wedding is to take place Oct. 20, 1973, at 3 p.m. in the Immanuel United Church, Amherst, N.S.

Mayor fetes 45th

BURY — On the 45th anniversary of their marriage, Mayor and Mrs. Gordon Dougherty were feted by relatives and friends at a party held Saturday evening, Sept. 15, in the Armory. Unaware of what was underway, they were greatly surprised to hear of it the previous evening.

All arrangements had been made by their three daughters Jean (Mrs. Letky of Asbestos), Marguerite (Mrs. Gordon Bennett) of Sherbrooke, and Connie (Mrs. Lionel Martel) of Montreal, also their nephews Robert and Janice Parsons, Raymond and Nicole Parsons of Lennoxville and Stanstead respectively.

Upon the arrival of the guests of honour their daughter, Marguerite, pinned a corsage of pink and white carnations on her mother and a white carnation boutonniere on her father.

Mr. and Mrs. Dougherty then mingled informally among their guests greeting each one who responded with congratulations and good wishes.

Cards were played at several tables, with prizes awarded to Mrs. Rosaire Vachon, Ladies 1st, Mr. W.R. Batley, Gents 1st, and consolation to Mrs. James Dougherty and Mr. Willie Beggs.

Seated at the head table with the honored couple were his sister, Mrs. Mayotta Wootton of Lennoxville, and sisters-in-law, Mrs. Winifred and Mrs. Marjorie Dougherty, Mr. and Mrs. W.R. Batley and their aunt, Mrs. Geo. Parsons who asked the blessing.

Table decorations featured a lovely anniversary cake flanked by candles and low arrangements of seasonal flowers.

Mr. Dougherty in a few well-chosen remarks expressed their surprise and pleasure in being thus remembered.

Mrs. Dougherty added her thanks to all both in English and French for the benefit of so many of their French friends who were present.

Mrs. Russell Dougherty played several selections on the piano, and the guests extended their wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Dougherty for many more happy anniversaries.

Gordon Dougherty and Lena Parsons were married Sept. 15, 1928 at St. Raphael's Church. They began their married life at the home of his parents, where they have lived ever since.

Four children were born to them, three daughters and their first born little son who died in infancy.

Both are well known for their industry and thrift. Besides her usual domestic duties, Lena is proficient in any types of handicrafts including weaving and their home is further enhanced by the lovely flowers in the cultivation of which she takes much enjoyment.

She is a member of the Women's Institute and president of the Cercles des Femmes.

Gordon has taken an active part in civic affairs, he has been Mayor of Bury since January, 1961. For eight years previously had been a councillor here.

He has now retired from farming, devoting his leisure time to other interests.

The Day Under Your Sign

ARIES (Born March 21 to April 19): Entertain at home for family solidarity. Don't let outside interests interfere with domestic situation.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): You'll have plenty of time to contemplate as you straighten up the house. Good ideas occur to you.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Take interruptions in stride. Some people are still exhilarated from yesterday and seek companionship.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21): A soft answer turneth away wrath but you may have to bite your tongue to keep your answer such just now.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Don't put all your eggs in one basket. A romantic dream could turn out to be a nightmare in reality.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): This is one time when you may have to turn the other cheek, as there seems to be no choice.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Warnings are up regarding traffic safety. Drive defensively—anticipating what the other fellow may do.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): If you don't have to be on the job, clean dresser drawers, closets, etc. You'll find something you thought was lost.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Nothing contributes to such a feeling of personal freedom as having money you've earned to spend as you like.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Spend for comfort and beauty with a clear conscience. Both are necessary for a Capricornian to be happy.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): A guest may have had such a good time that he or she remained overnight—a compliment to your hospitality.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): Ability and opportunity don't always go together, but Pisceans are lucky under today's planetary influences.

Auxiliary for the Retarded

A busy, interesting meeting of the Lennoxville Auxiliary for the Retarded was held in the Lounge of the United Church with a record attendance.

Six new members have joined, bringing the active membership to 51. The associate membership is listed at 81. Continuing increases are an encouraging healthy sign.

The most important discussion concerned the Bazaar and Tea to be held in the Lennoxville United Church Hall on Thurs., Oct. 4, from 3 to 5:30 p.m.

Plans were finalized and present indications point to an even larger Bazaar than last year. It is one of the largest in the area. Money realized from it is used for retarded children's projects.

It will feature not only the usual items but many unusual ones, such as footwear, beautiful woollen yard goods and blankets. It is worthy of note that the closing time has been extended to 5:30 p.m. to allow ladies to attend who otherwise would be unable to.

The Dixville Home will have a table of articles for sale made by the children there. The Alderbrook Home will not have a display this year.

The self-service Tea Room in the lower hall will have new tea cloths in autumn shades for all tables, to coordinate with the color scheme.

Girls from Champlain College and AGRHS will assist in the Tea Room and girls from Champlain will baby sit.

The winning tickets for the raffle of a True-to-Light Mirror and an automatic Skin Machine will be drawn at the Bazaar. The tickets have sold well and the proceeds should help considerably to pay off a debt of $700.

Money was voted for the purchase of wool for winter knitting and will include enough for an afghan to be made for the auxiliary by a friend. Material will also be bought for sewing.

Mrs. Jack Noble gave a fine report on the local Optimists' recent Radiothon over CKTS Radio, in which the auxiliary was involved.

It was very successful in obtaining many bicycles, tricycles, sporting equipment and miscellaneous articles for the Dixville Home. Donations are still coming in.

The hostesses for the evening were Mesdames Kay Baker, Dorothy Bown and Muriel Bennett who served dainty refreshments. The next meeting will be on Oct. 29, usual time and place.

You'll believe it, too. Especially since your first night in Holland is absolutely free! That's right, free, in a good hotel! Simply start or end your European trip in Holland between Nov. 1 and March 31, and enjoy a "Stay on the House" in Amsterdam, The Hague or Rotterdam. Your "Stay on the House" also includes a day's free car rental per person; free sightseeing, admissions, and many other free surprises.

But perhaps the nicest surprise is that the Dutch people have a special good feeling towards Canadians that dates back to the war years. This, plus the fact that almost all Amsterdammers speak English, combine to make you feel you really belong. So different from many places where you get that helpless, foreign sensation!

Another thing, Amsterdam is truly picturesque, neat, easy to explore. And although the city abounds in historic landmarks, somehow they're all people-sized, people-oriented, unforbidding. All Amsterdam is like that. Built for the enjoyment of people.

Nowhere is this fact better illustrated than when you go shopping. Shopping in Amsterdam must be experienced to be believed! The city's 3 main shopping streets are pedestrians-only malls. And that really makes browsing and buying, a delight. So much so, that even the most shopping-hating men will stroll along with a smile. The Kalverstraat and Nieuwendijk are where to find the biggest department stores, as well as some of the most fun clothing boutiques in the world. And a walk along Heiligeweg and Leidsestraat, with their elegant and/or avant-garde fashion shops, will tell you why Amsterdam is Europe's newest, swiftest fashion capital!

Amsterdam is also an antique hunters paradise. If you love to seek out special little treasures, head for a narrow little street called Spiegelstraat. Here, all clustered together, are no less than two dozen fascinating antique shops. Some are more expensive than others, of course, but they're all full of marvellous objects collected from all over by people who love beautiful things.

Even the most energetic shopper has to take a breather now and then. And what better way than to relax with a Dutch "broodje". A broodje is a fresh buttered roll, stuffed with one of dozens of the most delicious fillings you'll ever taste—roast beef and onions, stumps, smoked fish, liver pâté, almost anything your heart desires. You'll find broodje shops dotted all over Amsterdam. Anyone of them will sell you a scrumptious lunch for about one dollar.

Now you are ready for Amsterdam's most modern surprise, the brand new Van Gogh Museum, on Museumplein. This is a showcase truly fit for a genius, a building where the sun slopes in from all angles to light 200 paintings, 400 drawings, and even the letters and personal memorabilia of Vincent Van Gogh, Holland's master-painter of modern times.

The variety of things to see, do and enjoy in Amsterdam is endless. So, too, is the number of surprises you'll discover when you come to visit. One of the nicest surprises for many people is the fact that Amsterdam is the perfect starting point for a European trip. It's on the continent, right in the middle of the most popular part of western Europe, right where you want to be. Amsterdam is just minutes by air from London, Paris, Brussels, Frankfurt, Copenhagen. And the hub of rail lines and modern highways leading to every part of Europe.

And Amsterdam Airport has one extra surprise for you—the world's largest duty-free shopping centre! The array of bargains here is astounding—some say almost worth a trip in itself.

So, when you plan your trip to Amsterdam and we hope it's soon... plan to fly KLM, the reliable airline of the surprising Dutch. The moment you board your KLM jet, be it a 747-B or DC-10, you'll begin to feel that special Dutch welcome for Canadians. Every KLM staff member, on the ground or in the air, wants your trip to be the most comfortable and enjoyable of your life.

And KLM makes shopping for a vacation package a pleasure too. Thousands of Canadians have taken KLM's 3-City Show Tour—and loved it! 15 days in Amsterdam, Paris, London, with tickets to entertainment events for as low as $399 from Montreal. That's value! And there are departures weekly all season.

KLM also offers sensational 8-Day Break-Away holidays, starting at $295 from Montreal. Seven different plans, including 2-City show tours and an Amsterdam visit plus car rental. Departures twice weekly most of the season.

Use the coupon to get your free KLM brochures. As well as the Travel Books listed which cost just 25¢ each to cover handling and mailing. And remember, always consult your Travel Agent when planning a holiday. He's the most helpful person we know.

CONT'D P. 11

By Ann Landers

Hitchhiker raped, beaten sadistically

Dear Ann Landers: What I have to say will probably give you the chills. It did me.

A group of kids (all of us between 16 and 18 years of age) were sitting around about three months ago talking about your column on hitchhiking. You spoke out against picking up hitchhikers and you also mentioned the dangers of getting into a car with a stranger.

I was the only one in the crowd who agreed with you. The girl who was most vocal in her disagreement said she'd been hitchhiking since she was 13 and had never had any trouble. According to her, if a girl doesn't invite "trouble" she doesn't get any.

Maybe you read about her in the paper a few days ago. She was hitchhiking in Indiana and was found in a cornfield by a passing motorist. At this moment that poor kid is in serious condition in an Indianapolis hospital.

She had been raped and beaten, all her teeth and part of her gums were knocked out. The police said the person who picked her up must have been a sadist.

No point in saying, "I told you so," but I remember how alone (almost foolish) I felt in that crowd when I said I thought Ann Landers was right.

Say it again. Maybe this time more people will listen.—A Hoosier Who Appreciates You

Dear H.: Here's your letter and my thanks for writing it. I don't need to say it again. You did.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a bit of a museum piece — same vintage as you. It's with a sense of joy that I see ballroom dancing is coming back. Will you answer a question, please?

When doing the fox trot with a refined, middle-aged woman, how close should I hold her? This is no joke. I need an answer.—Big Band Era Bert

Dear Bert: Hold her close enough so you'll know you're dancing with a woman, but leave enough space so she'll know you think she's a lady.

Dear Ann Landers: I've done some research and found out that you are a fake. There are, in fact, dozens of "Ann Landers" around the country. Local newspapers answer the letters they find interesting and tear up the rest.

The people who write to you for advice are really getting their answers from a pseudo Ann Landers who lives in their town and works on the local newspaper. Those poor fools are thrilled when they receive their advice because they think it's from you.

I am an employee of a large newspaper and can prove that what I have said is true. Try to get out of this one.—Hip From Hicksville

Dear Hick: The Ann Landers column that you read in Hicksville is syndicated to nearly 800 newspapers around the world. There is only one Ann Landers and that's me — here in Chicago.

No newspaper has the right to open a letter addressed to Ann Landers, much less send out advice over my signature.

You say you can prove that what you have said is true. That's a very strong statement and I challenge you to produce the evidence. You didn't sign your letter nor did you send an address, but I'm printing it, not only for your eyes, but the eyes of 54 million readers. Now put up or shut up. Try and get out of this one.—Ann Landers

Are your parents too strict? Hard to reach? Ann Landers's booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How To Get More Freedom," could help you bridge the generation gap. Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to this newspaper.

Dear Ann Landers: I want to commend you for your recent column stressing the need for federal gun control legislation. A new handgun is being sold every 13 seconds in the United States. Americans are being murdered by handguns at the rate of one per hour. Police killings by handguns are nearly doubling every five years.

Since I began public life as a Member of Congress in 1961, I have advocated strong federal gun controls requiring that all firearms be registered and all firearms owners licensed, with only those who can demonstrate a specific, legitimate need receiving a license to own a handgun. Surely, if we can impose such controls on motor vehicles and drivers we can do the same with firearms.

New York City already has the nation's most stringent local gun laws. These local regulations work to some degree. New York's murder rate is ninth among the nation's largest cities, 50 per cent lower, for example, than Dallas, which has minimal firearms control.

However, the positive effect of these local statutes is severely limited by the absence of uniform federal controls. Nearly all the guns used to commit crimes in New York in recent history were guns illegally brought in from other jurisdictions which have little or no firearms controls.

You can be sure that mayors, police officers and citizens across the country deeply appreciate the prestigious voice you have added to the fight for stringent federal gun control. Sincerely, John V. Lindsay, Mayor Of New York

Dear Mayor Lindsay: As a citizen of The Second City, I thank the Mayor of the First City for his good letter. The facts and figures cited by you underscore dramatically the need for Americans to wake up and smell the coffee.

Dear Ann Landers: I feel as if I have been slapped in the face. Will you please tell me if I have a right to feel insulted, or is there a side to this story that I am not seeing clearly?

My sister and I have grown close and only have each other to lean on. She is our mother, and we will try anything to help her, but what can we do? We've prayed and asked God to guide us, and we are writing to you.

It's truly heartbreaking to watch someone you love destroy herself and the loved ones she loves. We just can't take much more. Help us, Dr. Lamb, help her. Please give us an answer in your column.

Dear Reader— Your letter expresses well the problem of an alcoholic in the family — and it can be a woman or a man. If your description is reasonably accurate, there is little doubt that your mother is an alcoholic and a problem drinker.

You have fallen into the trap of thinking you can solve your mother's problem. Family members can seldom do anything about the alcoholic in the family. It takes professional help. All of these efforts to rescue her merely prolong the time before she will accept the fact that she has a problem and seek professional help. Probably the most common and biggest mistake that friends and family of the alcoholic make is rescuing the victim. Natural-

A very close friend of mine who has been married about as long as I have (20 years) is being cheated on left and right. Her husband, a handsome swinger-type, is making a fool of her. I thought she deserved better treatment so I told her, giving full details of the young woman he was sneaking around with, places they had been seen, specific dates and so on.

Her response was a very chilly, "Thank you for your good intentions, but I wish you would mind your business."

If that were MY husband I would have been grateful that someone had taken the trouble to tell me. Am I crazy, or is she?—Seeing Red

Dear Red: Some wives would like to be gold, others already know and appreciate the silence of their friends. Figuring out to which category a cheated-on wife belongs is pretty sticky stuff. She gave you good advice. I hope you take it.

Dear Ann Landers: My mother believes that what people are shows on their faces. She says a sneaky person usually has small eyes, a stinging nose, etc. She could talk for hours on the subject— and has. Do you believe in this theory?—Moon Child

Dear Child: No. But I'm firmly convinced that the type of life people lead shows on their faces—especially women. Boozing and carousing takes its toll. By the time a woman is 40 she has the kind of face she deserves.

Going to a wedding? Giving one? Or standing up in one? Even if you're already married Ann Landers's completely new "The Bride's Guide" will answer questions about today's weddings. FAMILY IS DESPERATE

Mom is an alcoholic

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I am writing this letter in desperation. My mother is an alcoholic. Not your everyday kind, though. She can go a week or longer without touching a drink, but when she starts, there's no stopping her. She seems to drink to get drunk, that somehow is her goal.

My sister and I are at our wits end. When she is drunk she is the most vulgar person you could imagine. She's sloppy, passes out and curses my sister and me (words that would make a sailor blush) in front of anybody around. She is in her late 40s and has always drunk, even when we were children. Our father died when we were young, my brother and sister were in their early teens. I even younger, but not too young to remember his death. She drank before his death, but my father kept things under control. After his death that was it.

When she was under the influence of alcohol we suffered abuse. Even when she wasn't drunk if we did something wrong we would suffer beatings. A man would have difficulty taking such as beatings with a metal baton, choking, hair pulling, scratching, clawing, kicking and even being hit on the head with a shoe until she drew blood. Even then she would continue until she tired. We had to see and put up with her latest boyfriend, one after another. Still we were supposed to love her, and believe it or not, we still do.

Now that we are married and have families of our own she works on us mentally. We had to put up with the falling downstairs, vomit and the embarrassing glares of other people, but don't intend to inflict these sights on our children. Yet my mother will get that way in front of them no matter how much we protest.

No matter what she does under the influence of alcohol, we are supposed to act like nothing happened or suffer the abuse of being called ugly names. She will call us and never mention a word, even if my sister the night before had thrown out some man she'd picked up. My sister has saved her many times from physical danger, jeopardizing her own safety.

When my mother is sober you can depend on her for most anything. She loves her grandchildren, and they love her. She has a heart of gold and tries to do the best for anyone who needs her. Yet, in a split second she will change on you and the drinking starts.

What can we do? She won't listen to anyone, my sister or me, my grandmother, her sister, or her friends. She doesn't believe she's a drunk. She says she "just takes a few drinks once in a while." But, Dr. Lamb, we are tired of phone calls from people telling us what our mother is doing now, or our husbands having to go bodily and pick her up somewhere and take her home, and one man after another (age of late makes no difference, even if closer to ours than hers).

She will drink all weekend but manage to get up on Sunday to attend church. She also will manage to go to work after being boozed up the night before.

My mother is not incompetent, so even if we tried to seek help she would easily undo her being signed into a hospital the very next day. But we are really frightened that one day someone is going to hurt her or she may hurt herself. We don't drink at all and don't keep liquor in our home but that doesn't matter, she'll bring her own. Isn't there someone somewhere who will help us? She is driving us and drinking us insane.

She believes, or at least she will say, her daughters don't love her. I wouldn't bother writing this lengthy letter if we didn't. She believes only her drinking buddies are her friends. She always has either my sister or myself feeling guilty the next day for something only she can control.

My sister and I have grown close and only have each other to lean on. She is our mother, and we will try anything to help her, but what can we do? We've prayed and asked God to guide us, and we are writing to you.

It's truly heartbreaking to watch someone you love destroy herself and the loved ones she loves. We just can't take much more. Help us, Dr. Lamb, help her. Please give us an answer in your column.

Dear Reader— Your letter expresses well the problem of an alcoholic in the family — and it can be a woman or a man. If your description is reasonably accurate, there is little doubt that your mother is an alcoholic and a problem drinker.

You have fallen into the trap of thinking you can solve your mother's problem. Family members can seldom do anything about the alcoholic in the family. It takes professional help. All of these efforts to rescue her merely prolong the time before she will accept the fact that she has a problem and seek professional help. Probably the most common and biggest mistake that friends and family of the alcoholic make is rescuing the victim. Naturally, you are concerned, but part of her continued drinking habit is your fault. By rescuing her and tolerating her behavior you enable her to continue this way without suffering the loss of your love and attention.

Your description of her past behavior raises serious questions about her suitability as a parent, even during your childhood. Now that you have your own family you should tell her while she is sober that there are certain ground rules she must follow if she comes to YOUR home and visits with YOUR children.

She should not be allowed to bring any alcohol to your house, and she should not be allowed to come to your house if she is drunk, and she should be left on her own to sink or swim. Sounds harmless, doesn't it? Actually it is the best thing to do. Force her to seek help or recognize her problem. If she can't, don't let such a person ruin your life and influence your children.

There should be certain minimum standards of conduct for people who come to your home, and you have a right to expect that they be followed.

When she is ready to help get her to a psychiatrist if you can. If your description is accurate, she has been in need of professional help most of her life. Child abuse and alcoholism are signs of severe problems.

If this letter helps you to understand that your protecting your mother is the worst thing you can do, that you must be firm with her when her life touches yours, then you will be far ahead of where you are now.

Stanstead County School Fair results

AYER'S CLIFF — The Stanstead County 57th school fair took place Saturday, September 15 at the Ayer's Cliff fair grounds.

There were 846 exhibits shown by the children of the county. This fair is under the chairmanship of the Stanstead County Women's Institute who were its original organizers.

Each spring youngsters are given seeds, vegetables and flowers. These are planted and cared for and in their maturity exhibited in keen competition at this fair.

This year there were some excellent displays of flowers, vegetables, cooking, school lunches, art and other work of the young people.

The male trophy for highest aggregate was presented to Brian Butler, of Brown's Hills and the female to Cathy Gilbert of Tomitobla. Both are students at Alexander Galt Regional.

In the morning while the judging was taking place in the horticulture building, a talent show took place in the lower hall of the main building.

Arthur Langevin was M.C. The judges were Mrs. Edward Brown, Miss M. Foster and Rev. Ralph Rogers. The talent was all of superior quality but the judges chose the winners as follows:

Juniors: 1 Lisa McTavish, Karen and Sharon Hornby; 2 Susan Wintle; 3 Pauline Roger and Lisa Decoteau; 4 Laura Hornby and Donna Keet.

In the senior class: 1 Janice Smith, Cathy Gilbert, Kim Philip, Nancy Quillman, Kim Prangley and Kathy Goodsell; 2 Allen Bacheider; 3 Nancy Quillman and Kim Prangley; 4 Kim Prangley and Kim Philip.

Mrs. E. Cook and Mrs. M. Cheal judged Ayer's Cliff students in first place in the square dance presentation and in public speaking Elizabeth Cooper placed first. Judges were W. Walls, Mr. Dyer and Mrs. Carl Mayhew.

Other judges were W.G. MacDougall, D. Richardson, Don MacMillan, Mrs. W. May, Mrs. M. Hall, Mrs. R. Bailey, Mrs. T.L. Dustin, Miss E. Miller, Mrs. M. Dustin, Miss V. Moranville, Mrs. O. Bray, H. Costello, C. Pederson, Mrs. H. McClary, L. Bliss, Mrs. C. Laatin, Mrs. D. Graham and Mrs. L. Naeve.

Money for the school fair comes as follows: Stanstead County Council $150, Stanstead County Women's Institute, $100, Ayer's Cliff W.I. Branch, $15, Austin W.I. $25, Magog Home and School, $25, Baldwin family, $45, Ladies Group of Baldwin's Mills, $25.

At noon the judges and others on the grounds enjoyed a chicken pie supper in the nearby church hall served by members of Ayer's Cliff Institute branch. The branch also operated a snack bar on the fair grounds and was popular throughout the day.

In the afternoon there were races for the youngsters in front of the grandstand. This was under the chairmanship of Elwyn Baldwin assisted by a crew of school teachers and a couple of institute members.

In all but the pony races the first, second and third prize winners received cash money.

About 3:30 p.m. the doors of the exhibition hall were thrown open and every exhibitor anxiously went to see "if I got a prize," delightful if they did, perhaps a little disappointed if not.

W.G. MacDougall, who has been at the school fair all 57 years, spoke his usual comments and gave advice on the growth of seeds and selection for exhibition. He presented the trophies to Brian and Cathy.

TROPHY WINNERS — Youngsters Brian Butler and Cathy Gilbert won the Ayer's Cliff fair trophies for the highest aggregate in boys and girls exhibits at the Stanstead county school

Trail ride

STANSTEAD — The Massachusetts Valley Horsemanship Association held a trail ride, cook out and meeting on Sunday, September 9.

Despite the fact that the weather was cold and raw 19 people left from Bernie's camp grounds in Stanstead for a long horseback trail ride through the woods.

Soon after arriving back at Bernie's, three hibachis were ready and people cooked steaks, chicken, hamburgs and hot dogs. The youngest rider was three-year-old Amy Whitcomb from Hatley. The oldest was disputed between Stan Whitcomb and Bob Dewey.

The Laberees, Bernard and Sybil, had the chalet heated and tables arranged so those who wished could eat inside.

President Erwin Taylor presided for the business session. He voiced appreciation to Philip Morin and Marius Willard for arranging the trail ride, to Mrs. Taylor and her hospitality committee and to the Laberees for use of the chalet and grounds.

As the next meeting will be the annual it was approved that the treasury books be audited. Persons having bills are asked to have them handed to the treasurer Arthur Laberee by mid-September before he closes the books.

The question of having association crests was again discussed. A committee composed of Mrs. Bernard Laberee, Marius Willard and Miss Anne Taylor was named to make inquiry of costs and to draft a suitable design.

Memberships stand at 71. Additional members are always welcome, it was noted.

Bob Dewey agreed to act on the nominations committee.

Rose, Carew win for third time

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK (AP) — Pete Rose, the hustling Cincinnati Reds outfielder, and Rod Carew, Minnesota Twins' steady-hitting second baseman, each ran away with their third batting title as the regular 1973 baseball season ended Monday.

Rose, 31, who won the National League hitting crowns in 1968 and 1969, batted .338 with 230 base hits and finished 18 points ahead of his closest rival, Cesar Cedeño of Houston Astros hit .320.

The exciting Cincinnati outfielder nicknamed "Charlie Hustle" has batted over the .300 mark the last nine seasons.

In the American League, Carew had no trouble gaining his third hitting title with a .350 average and 203 hits. The second baseman piled up a 44-point bulge over first baseman George Scott of Milwaukee Brewers and designated hitter Tommy Davis of Baltimore Orioles, who each hit .306.

Carew, 28, has hit .300 club the last five straight years.

HITS MOST HOMERS

Willie Stargell of Pittsburgh Pirates nipped a trip of Atlanta Braves in the National League home run race with 44.

Atlanta's Dave Johnson hit 43, a major league record for second basemen. Darrell Evans added 41 and Hank Aaron, who finished the season one short of Babe Ruth's record 713 career homers, hit 40.

The Braves were the first team to have three players hit at least 40 homers each in the same season.

Reggie Jackson of Oakland Athletics took American League honors with 32 homers. He also led the league with 117 runs batted in and was the 10th leading hitter with a .293 average.

Frank Robinson of California Angels and Jeff Burroughs of Texas Rangers tied for the runner-up spot with 30 homers.

DRIVES IN MOST

Stargell captured the National League runs-batted-in title with 119.

Jim (Catfish) Hunter of Oakland was far and away the best percentage pitcher, finishing with a 21-5 record for .808. Baltimore Orioles Jim Palmer, 22-9 and 710 was second.

In the National League, Los Angeles Dodgers' Tommy John, 16-7, for .696 edged Don Gullett of Cincinnati, 18-8, .692.

Nolan Ryan, the rapid right-hander from the Angels, broke Sandy Koufax's major league mark for strikeouts when he fanned Minnesota's Rich Reese, the final batter he faced in the 1973 season, for his 384th strikeout of the American League season.

Tom Seaver of New York Mets was National League strikeout leader with 251.

Lou Brock of St. Louis Cardinals stole 70 bases to lead the National League in that category for the third year in a row and the seventh time in the last eight years.

Tommy Harper of Boston Red Sox led the American League with 54 steals.

Durocher retires

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ

HOUSTON (AP) — Leo Durocher became manager of Houston Astros last year on a shot in the dark—and missed.

Durocher, 67, who has managed three World Series baseball teams, took charge of a team many forecast as a pennant contender for 1973.

He said in the spring he'd like to take a team all the way one more time. Instead, the Astros tumbled from a second-place finish in 1972 to a disappointing fourth this season in the National League West.

So, Durocher announced his resignation Monday and general manager Spec Richardson named third-base coach Preston Gomez as his replacement.

The official wording said Durocher resigned but it was more likely a retirement for the volcanic Durocher, whose career as long as a player and manager span about 50 years.

"There were no factors involved in my resigning," Durocher said. "I feel great. But for someone who's been in baseball as long as I have there comes a time to rest."

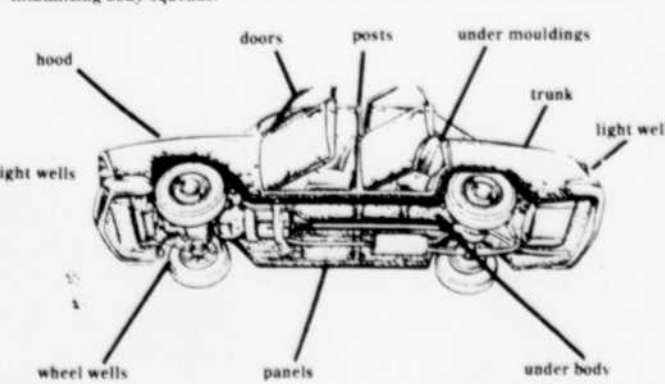

"My plans for the future include going back to Palm Springs and tending it up."

Richardson told a news conference he had tried to talk Durocher out of resigning but his efforts were unsuccessful.

Durocher's 13-month tenure

Mets champions, same old story for Cubs

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York Mets are champions of the National League East and they did it in Chicago, as if to flaunt their success in the face of the failure-ridden Cubs.

The Mets clinched it Monday in a 6-4 victory over the Cubs, who once were eight games ahead of the field, but then did their customary fold.

Third baseman Wayne Garrett said in the champagne-drenched dressing room that he never was discouraged when the Cubs were so far ahead.

"Not really," he said. "Chicago has always done it (fold). Three out of five years I've been here the Cubs have gotten way out in front at the start then all of a sudden they hit the wall."

"But I'll admit back in June when they had the best record in the majors I thought they had a lot better chance than we did."

WIN IN MORNING
 The Mets clinched their title in a morning game, the first of a scheduled doubleheader. Fifteen minutes after it was over, the meaningless second contest was called off and the champagne was uncorked.

Rusty Staub, former Montreal star who had four hits in leading the way into the pennant playoff against Cincinnati Reds, said: "A couple of months ago we were out of it, then we put it all together."

Berra said that only once during the season did he think the Mets might not make it. "That's when we were about 12 games out," Berra said, "and had all those injuries."

"I guess the baseball race is like a distance runner," Garrett said. "If you give it all you've got at the beginning, you've got nothing left at the end."

METS SAVE A LITTLE
 "You've got to save a little so you have that last kick."

The Mets wound up 1½ games ahead of St. Louis Cardinals who could have been involved in a playoff for the East Division title if the Cubs had beaten New York twice. Pittsburgh Pirates, who finished third, also had a chance to tie for first but lost 4-3 to San Diego Padres in the only other National League game Monday.

The Pirates, however, could be excused for not winning their afternoon game as they knew they were eliminated before they took the field against the Padres. Pittsburgh's only hope was a win over San Diego while Chicago defeated New York twice.

The Mets, who won their first divisional title since 1969, also received strong hitting from Jerry Grote and brilliant relief pitching from Tug McGraw.

Grote singled home two runs in the third inning, giving the Mets a 3-0 lead. McGraw allowed one hit after taking over from Tom Seaver, 19-10, in the seventh inning to earn his 26th save of the season.

FANS WELCOME METS
 Later in New York, a crowd estimated by police at 1,000 gathered at LaGuardia Airport's remote marine air terminal to welcome home the Mets.

It was a young crowd that came equipped with tape decks for entertainment while they waited for the Mets. The team's flight was delayed two hours on the ground in Chicago.

During the delay, McGraw entertained the team party with a series of awards. Willie Mays won the champagne contest after taking only three swigs of the bubbly stuff and passing out.

When the Mets' plane landed, Berra was the first one out and he was greeted by chants of "We're No. 1, we're No. 1, we're No. 1" from the crowd.

The Mets were in last place, 12 games behind in July and battling a seemingly endless string of injuries. At various times, catcher Grote, shortstop

Bud Harrelson, left-fielder Cleon Jones and first baseman John Milner spent terms on the disabled list.

Lions dazzle Falcons

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit

Lions shifted to reverse gear Monday night and left Atlanta Falcons stuck in "park."

A pair of razzle-dazzle reverse plays, plus the superb running of substitute fullback Mel Farr, led Detroit to a 31-6 thrashing of Atlanta in the National Football League game before 45,599 fans.

The win was the first for the Lions—members of the National Conference, Central Division—against a loss and a tie. Atlanta, in the Western Division of the National Conference, has lost two straight after a 62-7 win over New Orleans Saints.

Atlanta wasted little time in getting on the scoreboard as Nick Mike-Mayer kicked a 48-yard field goal four minutes into the game.

The Lions turned the game around three minutes later as wide receiver Larry Walton sprinted 57 yards for a touchdown on an end-around reverse.

LANDRY STARTS IT

The Lions did it again in the fourth quarter when Ron Jessie scored on a nine-yard reverse for the final TD. That put the game out of reach with 12 minutes remaining.

Farr, who played in place of Steve Owens who pulled a leg muscle in pre-game warmups, rushed for 90 yards in 16 carries including a 32-yard touchdown run with one second left in the first half.

The Falcons lost three of five fumbles and Detroit intercepted two Dick Shiner passes.

Atlanta, which fumbled 42 times last year, has 10 in three games this season and you can add one "muff" to those turn-

BROWN LOSES BALL

Punt returner Ray Brown didn't cleanly handle a kick bouncing his way in the final period and Lions' rookie Dick Jauron scooped up the ball and ran 10 yards into the end zone. Since Brown didn't have control it was not considered a fumble and could not be advanced.

Detroit did get the ball, however, and Jessie's touchdown came two plays later.

Tackle Bob Bell recovered a shiner fumble midway through the second quarter at the Falcon 39 and three plays later Taylor got a key block from Jessie and scored on a 10-yard run.

Errol Mann kicked a field goal and four converts for the Lions. Mike Mayer had two field goals for the Falcons.

Orioles to play Davis at first

more Orioles, having grown accustomed to Tommy Davis' bat, may find a spot in the lineup for the American League's top designated hitter should they reach the World Series.

Davis, who finished tied for second in the league with a .305 average and topped the Orioles with 89 runs batted in, could wind up playing at first base.

Regular first baseman Boog Powell was sidelined periodically during the final weeks of the regular season with a sore shoulder, and Davis played several games at that spot after not performing on defence all season.

"We're still not sure about Boog's shoulder," manager Earl Weaver said today, prior to the first of three intra-squad games designed to prep the Orioles for Saturday's playoff opener at home against Oakland Athletics.

"Our lineup would be much weaker without Davis," said Jim Palmer, a 22-game winner who will start the opener of the best-of-five series. "But, with him in there, the club wouldn't be as good defensively."

PITCHERS MAY BAT

Weaver doesn't expect much change in his strategy without the designated hitters, who can still be used in the playoffs, except that pitchers "might sacrifice to move runners along."

But Dave McNally, slated to start game No. 2 against, said bunting may be the most difficult thing for pitchers to recapture after not batting all year.

"We'll be at a definite disadvantage, more so bunting than hitting," he said. "Bunting is five times more difficult than it appears, and we haven't done any since last September. Half the players who play every day can't bunt."

McNally, a 17-game winner, conceded he would welcome the change in facing a batting order which includes a pitcher, instead of nine free swingers.

Palmer and Mike Cuellar, an 18-game winner scheduled for game No. 3, took batting practice most of the year on days when they were to start. McNally has done the same prior to his last three starts.

LOST SEVERAL MONTHS

"But even batting against 'live' pitching, won't make up for the four or five months we've lost," said McNally, who has hit two homers in World Series play, one with the bases loaded.

Palmer, who batted .224 in 1972 and made hits which contributed to seven of his 21 victories, said: "Batting practice ... is not like hitting against Tom Seaver or Jack Billingham."

Weaver said Davis, former two-time National League batting champion, also might prove valuable in the World Series as a pinch hitter and noted: "Not many National League pinch hitters have 500 times at bat."

"But when you're pinch hitting," Palmer said, "you're either tied or losing."

As weak in centre

OAKLAND (AP) — Oakland

Athletics will open post-season baseball play Saturday the way they finished the World Series last fall, with centre field a trouble spot.

"With Bill North out, we're a little unsettled," admits third baseman and team captain Sal Bando. "I'm not sure if Reggie Jackson will move there or if Angel Mangual will stay there."

Manager Dick Williams said Sunday after the Athletics completed the regular American League season that Mangual will open in centre against Baltimore Orioles in the championship playoffs. Jackson is scheduled to stay in right field.

But Jackson, the league's home-run and runs-batted-in champion, stayed in bed over the weekend with a fever and sore throat.

"We're having a throat specialist take a look at him as a precautionary measure," said Williams, adding that he expected Jackson to be back in today's practice.

PLANS WORKOUTS

The Athletics, who took Monday off, will work out in the Oakland Coliseum today, Wednesday and Thursday mornings before leaving for Baltimore Thursday afternoon.

North tore ligaments in an ankle Sept. 20 at Minnesota. The team's regular leadoff batter, who had 53 stolen bases and a .289 batting average when he was injured, may be available if the A's return to the World Series.

HUNTING TIPS

Field Cleaning Partridge or Grouse

Soon after you've bagged your partridge, try this method of cleaning. Lay the bird on its back with the wings outspread. Stand on the wings, grasp a leg in each hand and pull steadily. The entrails, along with the skin, crop and head will be removed, leaving the "bare breast". The legs are then clipped from carcass, and you have a clean partridge with no mess. Another advantage is that immediate cleaning improves the flavor!
