

Bill 22 dispute takes on partisan overtones

MONTREAL (CP) — The ongoing dispute over Quebec's Official Language Act took on partisan overtones Wednesday as Parti Quebecois leaders criticized the legislation and Premier Robert Bourassa defended it.

PQ president Rene Levesque and Jacques Morin, opposition leader in the Quebec national assembly, told a news conference "confusing and discriminatory" clauses in the act had caused current conflicts over language rights in education. He referred specifically to the plight of Italian students refused admission to English-language schools of the Jerome Le Royer School Commission in east-end St. Leonard because of the quota system for English enrolment established by the language law.

Under the law, also known as Bill 22, enrolment in a school board's English sector is frozen at last year's level.

However, the law also says that students whose mother tongue is not English may attend English schools if they pass a language proficiency test.

At the Le Royer commission schools, more students passed the proficiency tests than could be lawfully accommodated in the board's English schools.

TESTS DISCRIMINATE

Mr. Levesque said the tests discriminate between immigrants from different countries.

Instead, he said, the PQ proposes that all new immigrants to Quebec, including those from other parts of Canada, be required to enrol their children in French-language schools.

The PQ also recommends the establishment of a regional or province-wide quota system for English schools. Enrolment would be tied to the size of the English-speaking population. Mr. Levesque said, thus avoiding present disparities among individual school boards.

The PQ president also said Bill 22 had failed to stop the primacy of the English language in the province.

Premier Bourassa countered PQ criticism of Bill 22 by noting that the Liberal government was the only Quebec administration to attack "a situation as complex" as the language question.

Mr. Bourassa said Bill 22 would not be changed. "Bill 22 is a good law," he said at a news conference. "It has all the flexibility necessary to face up to temporary problems."

STUDY PROBLEMS

However he left the door open for changes in the regulations, saying Education Minister Jerome Choquette is studying problems caused by the integration of immigrant children into French schools.

The premier also criticized a campaign for the repeal of the Bill organized by Montreal English-language radio station CFCF.

The 15-day campaign to gather one million signatures from Quebecers opposed to Bill 22 was started last Wednesday by broadcaster John Robertson and maverick Liberal MNA George Springate.

Mr. Bourassa said he would never support Mr. Springate, but would take no disciplinary action against him.

Meanwhile, Raphael Iadecola, chairman of Le Royer Commission, said it is too late to change school assignments made under the law this year. "For now, at the administrative level, things are fixed," he said at a school board meeting. "At the political level, anything is still possible."

However protests over school assignments have not died down completely.

Twenty-three Catholic priests serving six Montreal parishes have sent an appeal to Premier Bourassa calling for an amendment of Bill 22 to return freedom of choice in schooling to parents.

Finance Minister Turner resigns

OTTAWA (CP) — The resignation of Finance Minister John Turner is reported facing cabinet today as ministers meet together for the first time in six weeks.

It was learned Wednesday night that the handsome, 46-year-old finance minister, seen by many as the future prime minister, has submitted his resignation to Prime Minister Trudeau. He is reported to have explained that he wants to accept a new job with an international financial organization.

But well-informed sources said Mr. Trudeau made no move to accept the resignation until there was a full cabinet discussion on the ramifications of a finance minister resigning at the height of an inflationary period.

However, the CBC says Mr. Turner's resignation has been accepted and that he will give up his Commons seat to return to private law practice.

Earlier Wednesday, Statistics Canada reported that the consumer price index had risen by one per cent in the last month—and if this pace continues the rise in the current calendar year would approach 14 per cent.

There was no official confirmation of Mr. Turner's planned resignation late Wednesday night, although it is known that the letter had been received by the prime minister. Aides around both Mr. Turner and Mr. Trudeau made it clear that something had happened during the evening and officials, who would normally deny ill-founded rumors were saying such things as, "something is in the wind."

The question was what? The speculation ranged from Mr. Turner returning to private law practice to his becoming No. 2 man with the World Bank or even a new deputy secretary-general of the United Nations in charge of all economic aid.

The finance minister, who normally returns telephone calls with dispatch, was suddenly unavailable, and Mr. Trudeau's office would say only that no statements would be made until after cabinet meets today.

There were reports earlier this year that the athletic lawyer, who unsuccessfully challenged Mr. Trudeau for the party leadership in 1968, would quit politics for a highly-placed job with the World Bank. But, without any official comment from Mr. Turner, nothing happened.

There was speculation at that time that Mr. Turner emerged from the rumor mill in a much stronger political position—that, amid fears he might pack up politics at a difficult time, he won increased support from cabinet colleagues by remaining in office.

JOHN TURNER

Now, Mr. Turner is known to be anxious to take more direct, and tougher, measures to battle inflation—perhaps even wage and price controls—and some cabinet colleagues have speculated that if he is once again persuaded to remain in office he will wield a much heavier hand.

SEE SIDE-STEP

On the other hand, some say, he might simply be anxious to leave politics for a time and take up a new challenge. At 46 he could afford to step aside and build up another reputation while keeping a determined eye on the office which Mr. Trudeau shows no signs of vacating at the moment. And any international agency, or even a private law practice, would offer fewer dangers than the politically precarious finance portfolio.

Canada rejects proposal to reopen border to beef

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canada has rejected as too limited a United States proposal to begin reopening the border immediately to trade in beef and veal products, U.S. officials say.

A Canadian embassy official here confirmed Wednesday that an offer had been made to Ottawa and that it had been turned down.

The U.S. officials, who asked not to be identified, said there have been no subsequent moves by the Canadians to make a counter-proposal or to hold additional negotiations on the touchy subject. But embassy spokesmen stressed that Canada remains open to any new suggestions on what they described as a more balanced deal than the one just refused.

The situation currently is that both the U.S. and Canada have stringent limits, imposed more than a year ago, on the import of beef and veal from each other. These are generally expected to be removed at the start of 1976 but the trade loss in the meantime is substantial.

MADE FIRST MOVE

The controls, or quotas, were first put into effect by Canada on the import of slaughter cattle, beef and veal on Aug. 12, 1974. The U.S. responded by slapping barriers on the import of Canadian cattle, beef, hogs, pork and veal. Last month Canada told the U.S. it would not renew the cattle quotas beyond their one-year expiry date and the U.S. responded by lifting controls on Canadian cattle, hogs and pork.

Details of the latest U.S. offer have not been fully disclosed but the main outlines have emerged from discussions with various sources.

Basically, the United States proposed that both countries scrap remaining controls immediately, giving U.S. meat exporters full access to the Canadian market, but with Canada limiting its over-all sales in the American market to about 22 million pounds this year, rather than the 17 million permitted under the quotas.

Ordinarily Canada might be expected to sell up to 80 million pounds of beef and veal in the U.S. yearly. Full access would again have been granted to the Canadians next year under the proposal.

U.S. negotiators acknowledge that such an agreement would have been somewhat one-sided but they say their room for compromise is severely limited by the meat import law. Under this legislation major foreign suppliers each year set voluntary limits on their U.S. sales to keep total meat imports to the United States below a ceiling set by the government.

Committee is set up to probe bilingual air traffic dispute

OTTAWA (CP) — Transport Minister Jean Marchand Wednesday announced formation of a committee that is apparently designed to take some of the heat out of the controversy over bilingual communications in air traffic control.

A transport department official said no deadline has been set for a committee report on the touchy issue but the department considers a strike by airline pilots unlikely at least until the report has been turned over to the minister.

The Canadian Air Line Pilots Association (CALPA) touched off the latest uproar over bilingual air traffic control in Quebec when it announced in Vancouver a month ago that pilots would halt work for 24 hours Oct. 17 unless the bilingual experiment is stopped.

The committee will include representatives of the Air Transport Association of Canada, the airline pilots group, the Canadian Air Traffic Control Association, the Canadian Owners and Pilots Association, the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, the Quebec transport department and the federal transport department.

THREAT UNAFFECTED

Ken Maley, CALPA president, said later in a statement the association membership on the committee in no way affects its threat to shut down operations Oct. 17.

He said any suggestion that the association would withdraw its threat until after a report is filed was a destructive action on the part of the transport department.

He added that all groups represented on the committee had agreed with the department not to make any statements concerning the committee until after the report was filed.

Mr. Marchand's statement follows a meeting with airline pilots Monday.

Mr. Marchand said the committee will report to Walter McLeish, director-general of civil aeronautics in the transport department, on their conclusions on safety and bilingual air traffic control.

The principles guiding the committee include a requirement that committee members not make public statements or take any action "which might harm the climate of technical and professional objectivity needed to find a solution."

Sherbrooke native appointed

OTTAWA (CP) — Charles Caron, 43, and Pierre Gravelle, 34, have been appointed assistant deputy ministers in the health and welfare department, the government announced Wednesday.

Mr. Caron, a native of Sherbrooke, Que., will become assistant deputy minister, medical services branch. He presently is director-general of personnel for the environment department.

Mr. Gravelle, an Ottawa native, will become assistant deputy minister in charge of the health programs branch. He currently is an assistant secretary to the cabinet.

Assassination try?

CAIRO (Reuter) — An official Egyptian spokesman Wednesday night dismissed as "pure nonsense" a Voice of Palestine radio report from Bagdad that Egyptian President Anwar Sadat had been confronted by an assassination attempt in Alexandria.

The spokesman said that President Sadat has been in Cairo for the last week and received a stream of visitors during that time.

Earlier, the Voice of Palestine radio in Bagdad stated that Sadat had escaped an assassination attempt last week at his Alexandria headquarters and that two of his guards were shot.

The brief report was monitored by the BBC in London and by other western networks.

Buffer zones

BEIRUT (AP) — Moslem opposition threatened today the Lebanese government's plans to use the army as a buffer between warring Christians and Moslems in northern Lebanon.

The government named a new army commander Wednesday in an attempt to appease the Moslems and announced the army would establish buffer zones between Moslem-dominated Tripoli, Lebanon's second largest city, and the Christian hill town of Zagharta, five miles to the east.

Faces charge

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Lynette Fromme, a follower of jailed mass murderer Charles Manson, faces arraignment today on a charge of attempted assassination of President Ford.

Extra tight security precautions were expected at the courtroom of U.S. District Judge Thomas MacBride for the appearance of Miss Fromme, the first person ever indicted under a 1965 federal law covering the attempted murder of a U.S. president.

The law was enacted after the 1963 assassination of President John Kennedy.

Portuguese struggle

LISBON (Reuter) — A sudden flare-up between Communists and centre-left Popular Democrats (PPD) has forced Premier-designate Admiral Jose Pinheiro de Azevedo to propose a compromise in his efforts to form a new Portuguese government, political sources said today.

Under his plan the government would not be a formal-coalition of Socialists, Communists and PPD, and the party leaders would not hold portfolios, the sources said.

Instead, ministers drawn from the parties would sit in the cabinet as individuals rather than as party representatives.

New York Stock Exchange volume tapered off to 14.78 million shares from 15.79 million on Tuesday.

Prices began their slide at the outset amid talk that New York's First National City Bank might raise its prime lending rate to eight per cent from 7 1/2 per cent this Friday or next.

Investors also appeared uneasy over the oil price outlook as the Senate upheld President Ford's veto of a bill that would have extended price controls on domestic oil for six months.

There was an added negative note on the interest rate outlook after the close, when the treasury department raised its estimate of the cash it will need to borrow through the end of the year by $3 billion to $6 billion.

Analysts said there was some late short covering—the repurchase of borrowed shares sold earlier—in a Canadian Merrill was unchanged at $5. The company said the proposed $6-million offer for the purchase of its well-servicing and oilfield equipment has been withdrawn and that it has agreed to sell about 20 per cent of the equipment to a group of unidentified Canadian investors for $1.38 million.

Heating system check can save repairs

Summer's almost gone and winter's coming on. And now is the time to check your heating system to ensure clean, even heat all through the chilling months that lie ahead.

Your gas furnace is fully automatic. Adjustments have been carefully made by the manufacturer and should not be changed except by a qualified serviceman. However, there are several simple checks you can do yourself that may save you a service call later on. Your furnace is an efficient piece of equipment which will serve you well as long as you take care of it. It is easily maintained if you take the time to find out what makes it tick. A few minutes budgeted for a visual inspection, cleaning and minor do-it-yourself repairs will save you energy, inconvenience and money. Keep your instruction manual handy and read it over from time to time. All manufacturers include do-it-yourself, fuel-saving tips which, if followed annually, will keep your furnace performing efficiently year after year.

It is a wise precaution to have your furnace cleaned each year by a qualified maintenance man. This should be done each fall, as most heating accidents are most likely to happen during the winter months when your home is tightly sealed and your furnace is working to full capacity.

The greatest cause of inefficiency in a heating system is lack of cleanliness. Good housekeeping certainly pays off in fuel savings.

Air filters are inexpensive but very important to furnace effectiveness. They can become clogged with dirt and lint, reducing air circulation, thereby decreasing efficiency and increasing fuel consumption. They should be changed or cleaned once a month during the heating season. It is a wise precaution to turn off the power to the furnace blower before replacing filters to eliminate the chance of having your finger nicked by the fan blade.

Check to see if your fan motor is running properly and that the fan belt is in good repair. Clean and lubricate the fan motor but be sure to use no more than one or two drops of a good grade SAE20 oil. The motor should be lubricated every 5000 hours of operation.

Vent pipes should be checked each year to make sure they have not been dislodged or extend too far into the chimney which could cause a blockage. All joints should be taped with duct tape to prevent leakage.

Your chimney is the escape route for the products of combustion. It must be kept clean and this can be checked by holding a hand mirror inside the chimney at the clean-out opening or at the lowest pipe vent connection to check for obstructions.

Some homeowners turn off their furnace pilot light during the summer months to conserve fuel. You can relight it yourself in the fall by following the simple instructions affixed to your furnace or in the instruction manual. After relighting turn up the thermostat until all burners are lit. If the burner flame is yellow and smoky, call a qualified serviceman to adjust the air intake to get the proper flame.

Bell Canada taken to court for "interfering"

MONTREAL (CP) — Mr. Justice Claude Valleraud took under advisement Tuesday a petition for an interlocutory injunction against Bell Canada to stop "interfering" with the business of Harding Communications Ltd. of Thornhill, Ont.

He did not announce a date for his decision.

Harding applied to Quebec Superior Court for the injunction after Bell Canada allegedly foiled its attempts to sell a Divert-A-Call system to the Bank of Montreal. A Divert-A-Call is a device attached to a telephone which will divert a call to another telephone, perhaps hundreds of miles away.

Harding contends Bell Canada threatened to cut off the bank's telephone service if it installed the equipment supplied by Harding. The bank later agreed to purchase a similar system from Bell Canada.

Several other financial institutions and communications companies are awaiting the outcome of the decision before purchasing the Divert-A-Call system from Harding, the company maintains.

E. E. Saunders, counsel for Bell, said in his final summations that an interlocutory injunction is "an extraordinary measure" which must be granted only in cases of extreme urgency. He did not consider this case as urgent.

Henry Altschuler, counsel for Harding, said the company was losing potential customers because of Bell's position and the situation, therefore, was urgent.

Harding is the only Canadian distributor of Divert-A-Calls, company officials told the court earlier. The machines are manufactured by an American firm, Dasa Corp. Mr. Saunders said that according to Bell's regulations as approved by the Canadian transport commission, such machines cannot be attached to Bell equipment.

Microwave ovens catch on, fit into modern life styles

TORONTO (CP) — It has been said that if a man makes a better mousetrap, the world will beat a path to his door.

But 25 years ago when a company claimed to have invented a faster, cooler, cheaper and often better method of cooking, buying interest was scarce.

It may have been the $1.50 price tag or consumer skepticism, but the microwave oven remained little more than a conversation piece until recently.

Customers still aren't lining up at their doors, but industry officials report that microwave oven sales in Canada have begun to increase rapidly.

Last year, the industry sold 22,000 units for home use, compared with 15,000 the year before. The Canadian Appliance and Manufacturers Association predicts that by 1980, six per cent of Canadian households will be using microwave ovens.

By the end of this year, there will be about 35 models on the market, ranging in price from $399 to $689, with the more expensive units providing temperature and timing controls and automatic food defrost cycles.

Alan Surpin, executive director of the Canadian Microwave Cooking Bureau in Toronto, says microwave cooking is gaining in popularity because it fits into modern life styles.

"The growing percentage of women in the work force, the necessity of staggered meal times and the desire to provide good, wholesome family meals have created the demand for more convenience and flexibility in cooking," he said in an interview.

Foreign constraints may force closure of ports

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian exporters may be forced to compete for costly space at crowded United States ports if Canadian ports continue to lose business because of foreign constraints on international trade, an export forum was told Tuesday.

J. P. Yafcak, eastern region manager of overseas trade for Canadian Pacific Rail, said Canadian gateway ports have lost traffic due to national flag specifications in certain trades.

Several steamship lines have unilaterally withdrawn service from Canadian ports or have restricted it, he said.

"If this trend continues, our ports might no longer provide a viable alternative for the Ontario exporter. It also means that the price of goods moved in overseas trade would probably go up."

in Canada are approved by the Canadian Standards Association and must meet safety standards established by Health and Welfare Canada.

Mr. Surpin said that with maximum use, a microwave oven can save 75 per cent of cooking time and energy costs, compared with a conventional electric range. Microwave ovens operate on energy similar to radio frequency energy. The microwaves penetrate the food, causing the molecules to vibrate so quickly that heat is generated.

CUTS FOOD WASTES
 With microwave cooking, leftovers can be reheated without drying out, therefore reducing food wastage. Vegetables retain more natural color and flavor because they require little or no water for cooking, said Mr. Surpin.

A microwave oven is used as a complement to a conventional range rather than a replacement, he said. The oven capacity of a microwave unit is smaller than a conventional oven, although the largest model on the market can hold a 20-pound turkey. Also, a conventional oven is still needed for baking bread and cakes, said Mr. Surpin.

"However, it's highly probable that in a few years we may see a combination of the two as standard equipment or the microwave oven may become so sophisticated that it could handle both jobs."

Reports from the United States a few years ago suggested the possibility of a radiation hazard from microwave ovens. However, tests conducted by the radiation protection bureau of health and Welfare Canada have not supported those fears. There is no record in Canada of any injuries caused by exposure to microwaves from microwave ovens.

Ya' gotta be there!
 September 10th to 13th

"Where? Home! So that you will be able to answer our enumerators' call. This year, enumeration will take place in September. The Québec Election Act, regarding the permanent electoral list, provides that enumeration of electors takes place annually commencing on the second Wednesday following Labour Day weekend and lasting to the Saturday of that same week.

In addition to the change regarding the period of enumeration, the law specifies that anyone who attains the age of 18 before or on the last day of revision, automatically becomes eligible to have their name included on the electoral list.

In urban areas, two enumerators, recommended by the parties, will visit each home. In rural areas, one enumerator will prepare the electoral list by either visiting each home or by other means in which to complete the task.

If, for any reason, your name does not appear on the permanent electoral list, you can always visit the offices in your electoral district for that specific purpose from September 29th to October 4th.

Urban regrouping foreseen

SHERBROOKE (BP) — A regrouping of municipalities on the outskirts of Sherbrooke, forming an urban community, could be seen sooner than it has been thought.

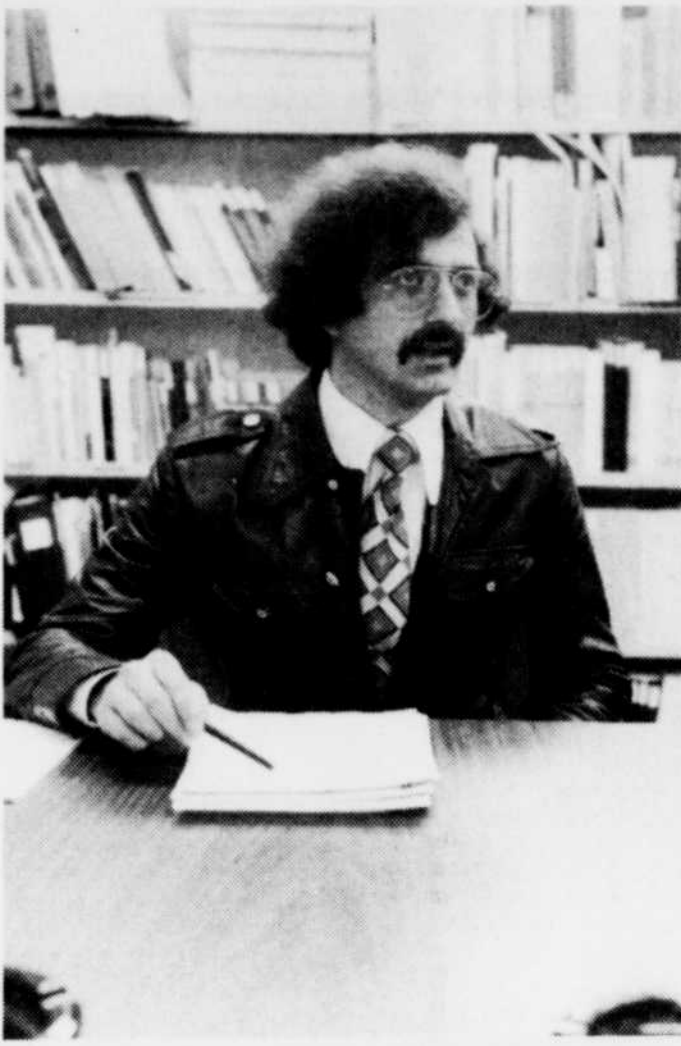

It is, in any case, an eventuality that the city will begin to prepare to reorganize its services for an expansion into the suburban areas.

This has been confirmed by Sherbrooke Mayor Jacques O'Bready, who has begun in the past couple of weeks to make known the plans on this case. He was quoted as saying, "All services in the city will begin to act in function with this objective."

The mayor made the remark that the matter of regrouping or regionalization of services is more and more pressing, with the needs right now being a point formula.

It is reported that the mayor was the first to publicly launch the idea of regionalization of services around Sherbrooke. The suggestion has received almost general approval from council members, local MNAs and mayors from surrounding municipalities to date.

Presently, Mayor O'Bready is going to the end of his abilities to handle the question of regionalization as the top priority for his administration. "The vast majority of problems in the city cannot be settled for a long term before we are fixed on the question of regionalization," he said. "...we want to act rapidly on this file."

Girl Guides plan meetings

THREE VILLAGES (IH) — The First Company of Three Village Girl Guides are preparing their meetings and programs after the summer holidays. However, many of the girls during the summer under direction of their Captain, Mrs. Jackie Cass kept busy at craft sessions.

The girls made several pretty and useful items and have now decided to have a craft sale and tea in Christ Church Parish hall the afternoon of Saturday, September 20 from 3 until 5 p.m. In this way they hope to earn a few dollars for things they need as they start their season.

The girls and Leaders were involved with the summer Guiding on the Move, by joining with other Guides from across Canada at North Hatley one day and again at the Lee Farm Barn Museum and Border visit.

September 11 the Court of Honor Patrol Leaders and Seconds will meet at Christ Church Parish Hall in Stanstead to plan coming events. The regular Guide meetings will start on September 18 in Christ Church Parish hall at 6:30 p.m. Girls interested in Guides are invited to come to the hall to see what it is all about and to talk to Captain Cass about participation.

At Christ Church service on Sunday morning, September 7, the pastor, Rev. Owen Merriman in the presence of a proud congregation, presented to Guides Brenda Perreault and Lynn Cass the second stage Religion in Life emblem and to Scott Hospes, a Cub Scout, the first stage Religion in Life emblem. These three will now go on to the other stages which total four.

Conservation award goes for recycling

Natural Recovery Systems of Moncton, New Brunswick is a non-profit recycling company saving resources, both human and material, from waste. Mentally handicapped employees are trained for regular industrial jobs at the plant.

Although markets for used paper have been depressed, glass cullet is in great demand across Canada. The White Owl Conservation Awards Committee today granted $2,500 for an information campaign for glass recovery from Riverview households.

Natural Recovery Systems has distributed a plastic garbage pail (called a "glass gobble") to each of the 3300 homes in this New Brunswick community. Every two weeks the recycling company picks up the accumulated glass jars and bottles and processes them for sale to glass manufacturers. Riverview residents have responded well during the first month of operation, but NRS feels it needs more public awareness to encourage better participation and to eliminate confusion about details like pick-up dates.

Savings in energy and raw materials from such recycling processes are impressive. To cite an example of just one aspect, Ahlstrom Canada Limited, the New Brunswick glass container manufacturer, can save more than 1,000 gallons of oil a day by using used glass.

NRS has had many calls from Moncton residents who would like to participate, and hopes that once its system's effectiveness has been demonstrated, the city of Moncton will expand the project to cover its own households.

DIRECTORY

The Canadian Nature Federation has compiled an up-to-date list of environment groups in Canada, and the White Owl Conservation Awards Committee today provided a $2,500 grant towards its publication costs.

The directory lists key international and national organizations as well as over 300 local groups, according to province. Included are wildlife associations, nature clubs and centres, citizens' environment groups, outdoor recreation organizations and others. Federal and provincial government departments concerned with environment issues are also given. Information on this history, membership, publications and recent activities of each organization is provided, which makes the Directory useful to anyone who wants to be in touch with these groups. Copies are available for $2.50 (includes postage and handling) from the Canadian Nature Federation, 46 Elgin Street, Ottawa K1P 5K6.

OUTDOOR EDUCATION
"The Conservator Society: Challenge for Education, Hope for Environment" is the theme of the Saskatchewan Outdoor Education Association's upcoming national conference on outdoor and environmental education. Dr. Donald Chant, Head of the Department of Zoology at the University of Toronto, founder of Pollution Probe, and 1973 White Owl Conservation Award winner, is the keynote speaker.

There will be concurrent sessions and special workshops of interest to elementary and high school teachers, interpretive naturalists, camping and outdoor recreation personnel, government staff, university faculty members, citizens groups, and anyone else interested in environment education.

The conference will run from October 1-5 at the Echo Valley Centre, Fort Qu'Appel, Saskatchewan. For details, write N.O.E.E. Conference, c/o Saskatchewan Outdoor Education Association, P.O. Box 3461, Regina.

CALGARY HIKERS

The Chinook Trail Association of Calgary gets $400 from the White Owl Committee to build stiles and footbridges for a new hiking trail. The Association has obtained permission from ranchers and the Canadian Pacific Railway to establish a trail from the Bears Paw Reservoir to Cochrane, as part of a 150 mile loop it hopes to create from Calgary into the Forest Reserve and back. Only deadwood is removed for the trails, and routes are identified with painted markers.

Guided hikes are organized by the Association to introduce people to the natural fun of hiking and to good hiking practices. If you want to contact the Chinook Trail Association, call 252-9070 or write 40 Bracebridge Crescent S.W. in Calgary.

Oddities in the news

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—In the beginning, there was the roll-on deodorant, then the spray-on. Now, chemist Tyrone Vigo is looking for a zip-up deodorant.

Vigo and other scientists at the U.S. agriculture department's southern regional research center are trying to develop cotton clothing with a built-in deodorant.

The research centre tries to find new uses for cotton and other domestic products. Among its prized accomplishments is the now-popular permanent press process.

There's no problem finding chemicals that will kill stench-causing bacteria, although there are several other questions, Vigo said.

One is how long the deodorant drawers will keep their guard up. Vigo's goal is to find a treatment that will stand up through 50 launderings.

Bilingualism and Merit

The Trudeau government has insisted, over and over again, that its policies for implementing bilingualism will involve no breach of the merit system in the public service. As there is wide agreement that citizens are entitled to the services of government in the official language of their choice, it is fair enough that linguistic proficiency should be an element in merit. Much will depend, of course, on the nature of the position and, indeed, on geography since vast areas of the country are and will, presumably, remain unilingual. The public interest requires, however, that in recruitment and promotion fair competition should be the rule and that doors should not be barred by quotas based on considerations unrelated to efficiency.

This, in theory, is the situation. It is clear, however, that in the minds of many public servants, there is a widening gulf between theory and practice. The latest indication of unrest is the leakage to Walter Baker, a Conservative moderate who supported the Official Languages Act, of secret cabinet documents dealing with the implementation of the government's policies. Mr. Baker, whose constituency of Grenville-Carleton is home to many thousands of public servants, cites these papers as evidence that the merit principle is in reality being pushed into the background. It is difficult, on their face, to see what other interpretation can be placed upon them.

The basic trouble appears to be that the government, from the outset, has been attempting to achieve different things. It wants to make the service bilingual and to that end has expended large sums on linguistic training. But it is attempting at the same time to create a new "fair shares" balance in a service that was traditionally dominated by persons from the majority community. The second objective, worthy enough from a national unity standpoint, runs up against serious obstacles in the merit system. Therefore the government, attempting to reassure everyone, has been less than candid with the public. It has fudged the definitions so that words such as "Francophone," "merit," "quota" convey one thing to one group and something else to another.

What was presented as a linguistic policy is in fact something else. One cannot, by mastering a language, become "Francophone" or "Anglophone." One can achieve these distinctions only through identification with an established cultural and linguistic community.

Of the two documents which have now surfaced, one is a lengthy memorandum, the other the record of cabinet decisions based upon it. The memorandum, parts of which have been implemented in what is obviously a continuing process, sets out official thinking in some detail. It is interesting to learn, for example, that there is a distinction between a bilingual position and one requiring fluency in one or both official languages.

Don't blame the small abattoirs

To the Editor: First I would like to congratulate you on your column "The Inflation Fighter". It contains many good ideas.

However, it is the subject of the small abattoirs on which I wish to write at the moment. There have been efforts made over a considerable period of time toward having these places closed down. Large numbers of farmers came out against this, especially farmers in rural areas where, should the local butcher lose his business, the farmers would have to put their animals on trucks to be hauled, thirty, forty, or more miles to the large slaughter houses. This long ride as any farmer knows, results in loss, and sometimes considerable cruelty to the animal.

Since the bad meat scandal, I expect many city people who might have come out in favor of the small slaughter house, are now keeping silent, thinking maybe it is best of have all meat government inspected.

Letters to the Editor

I would like to point out that it was NOT the small abattoirs which were involved in the bad meat business. It was the companies which picked up dead and sick animals which were involved, coupled with at least one, fairly large packing plant. It is not fair in any way to make the small local butcher pay for the crimes of these hoodlums. I followed the bad-meat investigation fairly closely and as far as I know there wasn't one small slaughter house involved.

I agree that anyone who handles products such as meat, dairy products and such like should be open for inspection at any time, but it would be almost impossible to have each animal in these small businesses inspected. Most of these small abattoirs are in small towns or villages and the chance of their handling diseased meat is not too great, since in such areas the producer and consumer are rather close together and, should the butcher purchase a sick animal his customers would be very likely to hear about it.

I agree that these slaughter houses should measure up to a good standard of cleanliness, though not necessarily be required to install all the expensive equipment called for in larger plants. I don't think any meat should be shipped that is not government inspected, except to allow the butcher to haul his meat from the abattoir to his store, and this should be transported in the whole or sides of the beef, pork, or whatever.

I think city people should get behind the farmers on this subject especially those who are buying their meat from one of these small butcher shops. It only takes a few minutes to write a line to Kevin Drummond, Minister of Agriculture, or others in the government. Once all these small outlets are closed down the large companies will have things completely in their hands including the price of our meat.

Another service that the small abattoir can, and should be allowed to do, is to dress an animal for someone who wishes to buy one for his deep freeze. However, anyone wishing to do this should have to report it, and keep a strict record of animals handled.

Yours truly, D.M. Clouston

AUTUMN - "SCARLET BANNERS"

Scarlet banners in the sky
Vivid colors please the eye
"Golden pennies" on the ground
Drifting with a sigh of sound.

Hillsides blaze with colors bright
"Turning" more and more each night
Tree and bush, so richly dressed
By Nature, in their glowing best.

It seems as if the very air
Is filled with generous giving
We gratefully enjoy our share
Of harvests... beauty... living.

September! rich with beauty still
A pot of parsley on our sill,
Gardens reap a full reward,
We garner in our Winter's hoard.

And from the homes, as we pass by
A smell so tantalising,
Of pickles - spicy, zesty-sharp,
From kitchen windows rising.

Then, upon an evening bright
A real Fall smell wafts by - Someone's burning leaves tonight,
Beneath a twilight sky.

What sheer delight to take a walk
Through someone's sugar-bush,
To "rustle-suffle" through the leaves
To kick them with a "whoosh!"

Today, you smell the tangy beds
Of marigolds and asters,
One night real soon, there'll be a frost
And to the blooms... disaster!

Ah yes, the days of Fall approach
And shorter days on us encroach
The air is cooler, winey-clear,
And folks predict a frost is near.

Then in the hush of Autumn days
Our thoughts turn with thanksgiving
To the welcome sound of falling rain
We took ... but Nature's giving.

Each season brings its special gifts
And each, we long remember
But of them all - Spring, Summer, Fall
It's hard to beat September!

Scarlet banners in the sky
Waving bravely up on high
"Golden pennies" on the ground,
More and more, each day are found.

Hit man's lament

Jack Anderson's

Washington Merry-Go-Round

WASHINGTON -- Once you become a trigger man for the Mafia, it's dangerous to change your ways.

This has been the experience of John Patrick Tully, an admitted "hit" man for the murderous Campisi Family of the New Jersey underworld.

The repentant Tully became a witness for the state. Now he is locked in solitary confinement for his own protection. There has already been an attempt upon his life.

Meanwhile, the men he helped put behind bars got off with lighter sentences than he did. And another government informer, whose testimony was less crucial, has been provided a new identity and turned loose to seek a new life.

We were caught up in the Tully case a year ago. He called us and asked us to help arrange his peaceful surrender. He read to us from his wanted poster and told of his flight to Venezuela in 1971 to avoid a multiple mob murder charge.

The FBI reached Tully's hideout a couple hours ahead of our associate, Jack Cloberty. Since Tully has been in custody, we have kept in continuing contact with him.

We encouraged him to cooperate with the prosecutors. Within a week after his decision to testify, all nine of the Campisi mobsters pleaded guilty in return for reduced sentences.

The cooperative Tully was promised a sentence lighter than those given to the mobsters he helped to convict. Yet he was sentenced to 15 years, while two of the Campisis got off with three-year terms.

Another informant, Ira Pecznick, a three-time killer, walked away from the courthouse a free man. Pecznick was the first to sing for the state. But it was Tully who gave the charges credibility and, therefore, is credited with breaking the case.

Pecznick is described by federal prosecutors as "a dangerous psychotic." Yet he is out on the street, complete with a new identity arranged by the Justice Department, in return for his testimony.

In contrast, Tully has been described by federal probation officials as "a new man who has undergone a complete metamorphosis."

We have held wide-ranging discussions with Tully during the past year, and we have noticed a dramatic change in him. In his first call, he was a hard-bitten tough. But slowly, he began to change.

Now he speaks convincingly of serving his time and starting a new life. This former gunman, once regarded as the most brutal of the Campisi mob, wept openly when a federal judge gave him a sentence that allows for immediate parole.

The judge acted upon the report of parole officials. But it won't help Tully unless his state sentence is reduced.

Meanwhile, the only safe place for him is in solitary. He is marked as a "stool pigeon," and the mob is out to get him.

There is no way to wipe out Tully's past. He murdered for hire. For this, he owes a debt to society. But in light of the treatment of Pecznick and the Campisis, the state is demanding a curiously high price from John Patrick Tully.

Cancer Controversy: The Chicago chemical company, Velcol, is conducting an undercover campaign to discredit Environmental Protection Agency chief Russell Train. His offense: he banned two of the firm's pesticides, heptachlor and chlordane, as cancer agents. The company insists its pesticides don't cause cancer. Meanwhile, letters have gone out from Velcol to 120,000 corn farmers urging them to deluge Congress with letters and telegrams attacking Train.

Kidnap Plot: Supporters of the Greek junta scoffed at our story last April that the military dictatorship plotted to kidnap a prominent Greek exile, Elias Demetrapoulos, and return him to Greece to be killed. We now have a copy of a confidential government memo, dated Oct. 24, 1973, describing how Greek information official Dimetrios Petrounakos was supposed to "undertake a special mission of extermination of the reactionary, Elias Demetrapoulos, active in the USA." According to another startling memo, the junta expected "the cooperation of the various agencies of the U.S. government" to help kidnap the exile.

Congressional Computers: For years, tradition has held out against technology on Capitol Hill. But now the Senate is installing computers to provide instant data on legislative matters. Personalized computer terminals are available to each Senator, providing direct contact with the computers, for a monthly $262 fee. Perhaps because the taxpayers pay the fee, 73 Senators already have signed up.

Fluoridation Report: The National Cancer Institute, in response to questions raised by Rep. James Delaney, D-N.Y., is doing a broad statistical study of cancer and fluoridation. Though it is still confidential, we have learned its tentative conclusion: no link. The study pokes holes in the allegations of a dissident medical group, the National Health Foundation.

Record Yester Years 20 Years Ago

September 11 fell on a Sunday, 20 years ago.

45 Years Ago

The first Ladies' Field Day ever held for local club members took place at the Sherbrooke Country Club on Thursday, September 11th, and was a most auspicious commencement for what will no doubt in future be an annual event. The weather man was kind, the day being ideal for play; there were sixty-one entries; fifteen in class A and forty-six in class B.

Sixteen attractive prizes were given, eight in each class, in order to stimulate interest in field day and local matches, and providing opportunities for players with low or high handicaps to win. The committee was very grateful to Mrs. Stephen Newton for the donation of a lovely silver water jug. This prize was given in class A, and won by Mrs. K.B. Jenckes.

Special mention should be made of the scores made by Mrs. S.G. Newton in class A, who won the best gross for twenty-seven holes as well as for eighteen holes. Mrs. R. Costley, in class B, won the best gross on the second nine, giving a total of 104, being the lowest gross score of the day. As no one is allowed to accept more than one prize for the day, these ladies had to limit their choice to one prize.

Meat marketing Ayer's Cliff UPA topic

AYER'S CLIFF (IH) — Douglas McKinnon and a good number of area farmers welcomed three men from the Sherbrooke UPA office to the Ayer's Cliff Sector meeting held the evening of Thursday, September 4 in the IOOF hall in Ayer's Cliff.

Meat Marketing in Quebec was the main topic of the program. There is now a drive on to form a beef syndicate in the Sherbrooke area resulting from the commission dealing with tainted meat. The syndicate proposes measures to remove dead or ill animals definitely from human consumption but which would allow producers to continue to enjoy an active market in good quality meat and prevent such market from falling into the hands of a few enterprises only.

Several recommendations were made and discussed after being read by Mr. McKinnon, with all these possibilities and many more that could be studied by the government to ensure that the consumer gets high quality meat at the best possible price and that the producer receives an equitable price for his product.

A copy of a telegram from Regional Director, Clement Lanoue, of UPA to Kevin Drummond, Minister of Agriculture, with copies to Robert Bourassa, Lionel Bombardier, Reg. Office MAC, George Vaillancourt and Confederation of the UPA on behalf of the Eastern Townships.

The government reply was that the government is going to look into the matter later and in the near future Mr. Drummond will announce his policy on beef. Mr. Tessier noted there is a surplus of beef in the Western Provinces as well as in Quebec.

The UPA is asking for a minimum of 12 slaughterhouses in the Townships. The question came up of emergencies, such as an animal breaking a leg on a Saturday night or Sunday when no inspectors are available. According to laws now the cow must be inspected before and after the kill.

Several resolutions as prepared from the Sherbrooke office were reviewed dealing with insurance and imports of agricultural products in Canada, such as New Zealand butter.

Other topics were: Education to adults; clearance of stone in fields; drivers' permit which will allow a 14-year-old and over a special driver's permit to drive the farm tractor; pulpwood shipments, seeking pressure for a wood distribution plan of lands and forests; assistance to control the spruce budworm by using biological control.

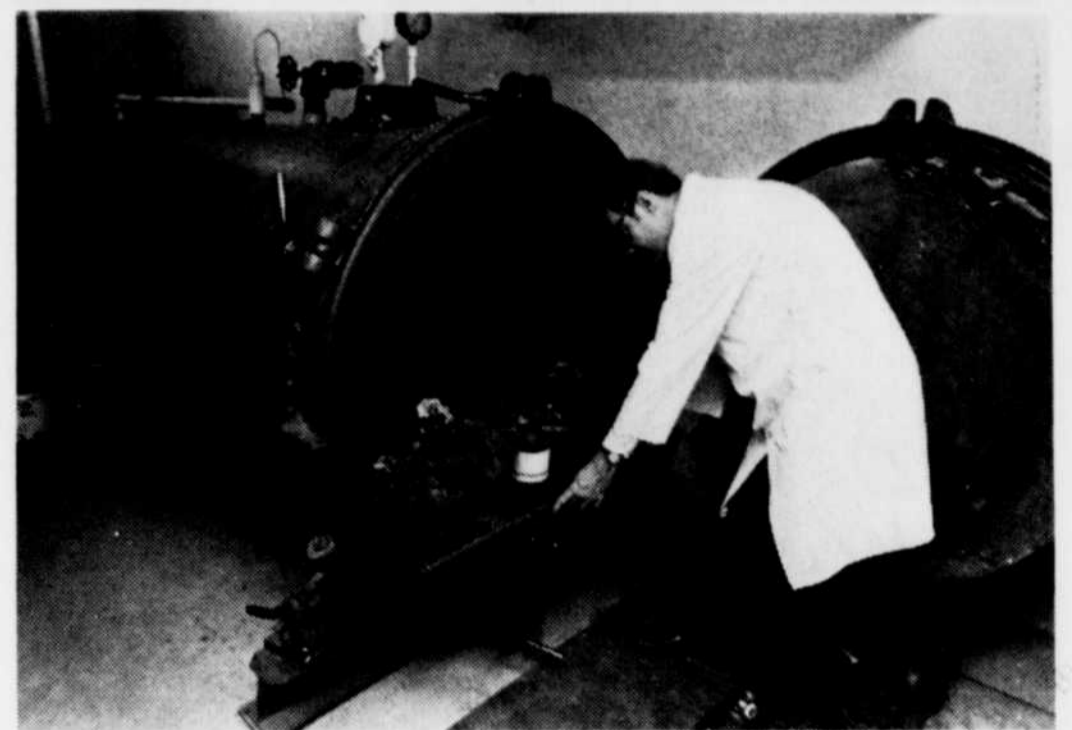

A request to the UPA to immediately undertake action on an income stabilization program for beef producers.

Ayer's Cliff members also introduced a resolution whereby a farmer can have assistance financially for brucellosis, a disease that can kill off a farm herd of cattle and takes at least 160 days before he can make another start. The resolution will be drawn up at the Sherbrooke office with aid to be based upon production of each animal. Mr. McKinnon told the assembly that if they have any problems the UPA can help. Place a call at the office and ask for Jacques Tessier who is perfectly bilingual.

Mr. Tessier took the chair for the election of officers for the Ayer's Cliff sector. The floor re-elected Mr. McKinnon as president; Stanley Whitcomb, Vice-President; Mrs. Steve Brus, secretary; Bill and Rita Brus as delegates.

Mr. Tessier announced that on October 15 the UPA Congress will hold a meeting in the Science Building of the Sherbrooke University, starting at 10 a.m. Mr. McKinnon urged as many English farmers as can attend; the meeting will be conducted in English and French. These resolutions will come up at congress and those approved to go to Confederation.

Milk can be safely stored on shelf at room temperature

OTTAWA — Would you store milk on the shelf, without refrigeration, for six months?

Of course not — but it's being done routinely in Europe, Africa and even in some Canadian institutions.

The secret is "sterilized" milk (in its commercial sense) — raw milk subjected to a high temperature to kill all microorganisms. This ultra high temperature milk, when sealed in air-tight containers, has a shelf life of six months. Its food value is the same as pasteurized milk. It must, of course, be refrigerated after opening, just like pasteurized milk.

The milk is sterilized by heating it to 285 degrees Fahrenheit (145 degrees Celsius) for three seconds. Pasteurized milk is heated to 165 degrees Fahrenheit for 15 seconds.

UHT milk is common in Europe and some parts of Africa, where refrigeration is not as widely available as in Canada. A dairy in Toronto is now producing the milk, chiefly for sale to institutions. Another in Quebec City will be turning out UHT milk this fall in one-litre, brick-shaped packages for the retail trade.

UHT milk has been late in arriving in North America because our dairy industry is geared to refrigerated shipping and storage. However, Claude Lambert of Agriculture Canada's Dairy Division sees three reasons for producing the milk here.

"Because it needs no refrigeration, it conserves energy and minimizes the cost of handling and storage," he says. "And it is ideal for remote areas, like northern construction sites, where refrigeration is scarce."

UHT milk could eventually be useful to the dairy industry in compensating for the fluctuations in production.

"Milk production peaks in summer and drops in winter," Mr. Lambert says. "Some of the summer milk could be sterilized and stored economically until needed in the winter."

The success of UHT milk in Canada depends on consumer acceptance. Agriculture Canada's Food Advisory Service taste-tested UHT milk processed in Europe and found a slight difference between it and pasteurized milk.

"However, the quality of the raw milk has an influence on the final flavor of UHT milk," Mr. Lambert says. "North American milk has very high quality."

Farmers' Association meets

AYER'S CLIFF (IH) — Following the UPA meeting Thursday, the Quebec Farmers Association meeting took place with Douglas Johnston presiding. In the report of the secretary, Mrs. John Brus, it was noted the August 13 picnic at the McKinnon farm had been a pleasant and successful day. Marc Cote of Montreal was attending as a guest and carried on agricultural discussion with farmers.

Mrs. Brus also reported on the successful operation of the food canteen at Ayer's Cliff the four nights and three days which brought in a most satisfactory sum of money to the treasury.

At the June meeting of the Quebec Farmers the "old timers" agreed that they could use some younger people to work at the canteen and the Young Farmers 4-H Club, Ayer's Cliff-Hatley, agreed to work for a portion of the proceeds. Mr. Johnston had high praise for the several young people's work, and presented them with a cheque for a substantial sum of money they had well earned. Mary Brus accepted the cheque.

Mr. Johnston also thanked the "old timers" for all their work and efforts to make the project a financial success.

It was announced by Doug McKinnon that the Quebec Farmers Scholarship for 1975 will go to Morgan Bowen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Beaven Bowen of Hatley. Morgan was chosen by a committee which received three applications. He plans to attend Macdonald College taking an agricultural course.

Members voted to offer another scholarship in 1976 to a boy or girl taking an agricultural course.

The next meeting will be on October 2 at Ayer's Cliff and the Old Fox chemical men will be attending to show slides and announce the corn-growing competition winners of 1975. It was announced the judges have been visiting members' cornfields during the week completing their work on September 6.

The ladies served coffee, sandwiches, squares and cookies as all enjoyed chatting about current farm affairs.

Prices paid were:
Commercial heifers: $20.50 to $27.50; cows, D-1, D-2: $20.50 to $23.25; D-3: $18 to $20; D-4: $11 to $17.75; bulls: $20.50 to $27.50.

Canada turns down talks on egg market

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canada has declined a United States invitation to make a joint approach to a major international body to determine whether recently-imposed Canadian quotas on egg imports are legal, reliable U.S. sources say.

As a result, the sources said Monday, President Ford's special trade representative has unilaterally asked the Geneva-based General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) to begin an immediate investigation of the egg import controls and to try to reach a decision by Dec. 31.

It was not immediately clear why the Canadians had decided against a joint approach to GATT but U.S. sources speculated that Ottawa is so certain the quotas, which took effect July 5, are legal under GATT rules that an investigation is unnecessary.

There was no reaction from Canadian embassy officials here but some sources in the past have indicated Canada considered the question of a joint approach to be largely a technicality which had no real importance.

Nevertheless, one U.S. official, who asked not to be named, said: "I suppose we had hoped the Canadians would move with us if for no other reason than to further cross-border harmony."

Meanwhile, the special trade representative's office in the White House is conducting its own investigation of the quotas independently of GATT and has set early January as an official deadline for reporting to the president.

The trade office has a virtually unlimited mandate under the 1974 trade act to recommend a vast range of retaliatory measures to the president if it believes the quotas to be illegal or simply unfair. It is not bound by any conclusions reached by GATT.

Water for everyone's needs

If the numerous lakes and waterways of Québec are to provide universal benefits and pleasure to its citizens, they must be maintained as free from obstructions as possible and must only be modified when it is really necessary.

With this in mind, shoreline proprietors are reminded that the construction of any installations, either for personal or industrial use, which encroach upon the river or lake bed is forbidden unless a permit for such construction is obtained from the proper authority.

To ensure the observance of this directive, various methods of control have been instituted, including aerial observation. We can hardly advocate water for everyone's needs without treating it as a collective asset.

Requests for permits related to installations on, or modifications of, waterways should be submitted to:

Military Origi
A margrave was the German title of the count (graf) in charge of a mark, or march, one of the large frontier military districts set up by Charlemagne and his successors to protect the Frankish Empire. Of the six marches, two frontiers lent their names to modern nations — the Danish march gave its name to Denmark and the east march of Bavaria, Ostmark, evolved into Österreich and Austria.

Treatment for marble tops

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — The looks of the marble sink in our bathroom are spoiled by spots from a lot of things including alcohol in shaving products. Bleach and cleansers do not work so I hope you can help me. — MRS. J. J.

DEAR MRS. J. J. — I do hope the polish on your marble has not been etched from the various spills for, if so, it will have to be repolished. First, you might try baking soda if the spots are not too bad. A treatment often recommended for marble tops that are stained is to wipe off with an ammonia dampened cloth. Then apply a poultice of hydrogen peroxide and ammonia. After stain is removed, rinse and dry with a soft cloth. This is presuming that your sink is real marble and not laminated plastic with a marble finish. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — I want to tell Diane I have a solution to the bumper sticker problem that really works for me. I soak the sticker with a wet rag or sponge until I can remove the paper and then nail polish remover to take off the remaining glue or paste. Rub hard and it will not hurt the chrome. — MIKE.

(Polly's note-Do not let any drip on the car paint.)
DEAR POLLY — and Diane — The best way I have found to clean off those bumper stickers is to first scrape or pull off as much of the sticker as possible. Put on rubber gloves if you are allergic to cleansers and use some of the gasoline you put in the car to take the sticker off without any damage to the chrome. — RAYMOND.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with the way groceries are "sacked" at the store. They fail to remember that a woman usually has to carry them into the house. The bags are so heavy they are almost impossible to lift and some are torn even before you get home. I live in the country and it would be so nice to have all items requiring refrigeration in one bag so I know which is the first that should be unpacked.

Also, when purchasing a product that contains a prize for kids I try to remove the prize before my three little ones spot it. I put it away with the others I have saved for Christmas stocking stuffers. This also eliminates an argument as to whose time it is to get the prize. — MRS. L.S.

DEAR POLLY — When making a dress I always start with the back and then insert the zipper. I next proceed to the shoulders and then the sleeves. Finally I sew a long seam from the end of the sleeves to the bottom of the sides of the dress. I find this much easier than the usual method and it is faster, too. — GLORIA.

DEAR POLLY — Save all those fabric samples that come in the mail and sew them together to make useful and colorful patchwork pockets or even to patch worn or torn clothing. — JUDY.

Christening

MAGOG (CG) — David Andrew John, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Gauvin (Marlayne Hudson), was baptized at St. Luke's Anglican Church in Magog on Sunday, August 31, 1975.

The Reverend John McIlmurray, rector of the church and Father Jobin officiated.

The godparents were Mr. Jean Leduc, Mr. David Hudson and Miss Sharon Hope.

The baby wore a christening dress, originally made from his great-great-grandmother's wedding gown and also worn by his mother, aunt and uncles.

Following the service, a garden party for approximately 50 relatives was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Gauvin.

Guests attending were from Montreal, Ottawa, Mass., Sherbrooke and Waterloo.

UCW meeting

WATERVILLE — The Waterville UCW held their opening meeting following the summer recess on Wednesday afternoon Sept. 3, at the home of Mrs. P. Ingham with an attendance of 15.

The meeting was opened by the President Miss Margaret Swanson with members reading the Purpose in unison. The devotions were prepared and read by Mrs. K. Spafford, the theme being Thoughts of Labor Day. Bible readings were from Proverbs and Matthew.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. The treasury report was read by Miss Edith Swanson.

The President read an invitation from the St. John's

ACW for members to attend a coffee party held on Sept. 10. She also read a thank you letter from a summer bride thanking the UCW for a gift.

Mrs. Edward Ball has been appointed by the Regional Council of Sherbrooke as representative of the UCW on the board of the home in Waterville. This is a two year term.

The UCW rally was held at Magog on Sept. 9 with a number of members attending.

The annual rummage sale is being held Sept. 25 and 26. The President reported mailing knitted bandages to the Mission in Angola, Africa. Mrs. Charles Smith has asked for donations for a layette so that one can be sent to the McDonald house in Montreal in October.

Mrs. Caron had bought material to be used in making articles for the sales table at the fall Bazaar being held on Nov. 12, and distributed to the members.

The meeting was closed by the President reading the benediction.

Lunch was served by the hostess Mrs. P. Ingham with Mrs. M. Barter and Mrs. P. Bean presiding at the tea table.

Here are our ratings, based on polls taken by 20 high school students, of the four categories we have listed:

PRUDE	0-22
NORMAL	23-42
IN TROUBLE	43-64
TOTALLY FREAKED	65-124

Dear Clevelanders: I have never been crazy about the "Know Thyself Sex Tests" but apparently my teenage readers attach a great deal of importance to them.

This is the fourth one I've printed — none composed by me. Scarcely a week has passed (since 1971 when the first one appeared) that I haven't had at least three tests submitted.

My personal opinion is that you Clevelanders are far too lenient. I'd rate anything above 28 "In Trouble." Furthermore, your questions mix behavior that is a normal part of growing up with some really far-out stuff — such as hard drugs. I don't dig it.

CONFIDENTIAL to Finished: Don't label yourself "finished" until you've given Recovery, Inc., a try. They're in the phone book, free, and have had remarkable success with people who are depressed and emotionally unsure of themselves.

Made of various thicknesses of jute rope and wool yarn, Mrs. Ulp employed a combination of weaving methods such as knotless netting and wrapping for what she calls "three-dimensional environments." Toronto group interested in Giants

TORONTO (CP) — Almost everyone is denying that San Francisco Giants are about to move to Toronto except the man who heads the group trying to buy the baseball franchise.

And Lorne Duguid, one of the key men in talks to bring the Giants north, has an explanation for all the denials.

Duguid said his group had also talked to other major-league teams, "but, as in the case of San Francisco, it's the same thing, if people found out how serious we were, the fans would probably drop off."

The Giants, of course, can ill afford to lose any more fans. The team has been losing $1 million annually in recent years and there has long been talk that the San Francisco Bay area can't support both the Giants and the champion Oakland A's.

Despite the denials by the Giants and other officials, Duguid said Tuesday that negotiations to buy the National League club and move it here were progressing favorably.

TWO MOVES REPORTED
There were reports that transfer of the Giants to Toronto and of the American League Minnesota Twins to Seattle were on the agenda for baseball's inter-league committee meetings later this month in Kansas City, but members of the inter-league committee, which handles expansion and franchise moves, denied knowledge of such moves.

Bud Selig, president of Milwaukee Brewers, and Montreal Expos president John McHale, both committee members, denied that any recommendations had been put before the committee.

Selig called the reports "ridiculous" and "absolutely unfounded."

McHale said: "We on the committee have been meeting many, many times and will continue to meet concerning expansion. I'm fighting like hell to get a franchise for Toronto. It would be great for us up here (Montreal), but no formal recommendation has been put together this month."

McHale said he couldn't predict when Toronto might get a franchise.

"You're dealing with a very complex question. It involves the minds of many, many people and I can't read their minds."

Duguid, a director of Maple Leaf Gardens, is allied with a group headed by R. Howard Webster. Together, they have formed the Toronto Baseball Club which Duguid says "has been together since we started."

CONTRACT A PROBLEM
Duguid said negotiations with the Giants have been going on for seven months but have been kept quiet because of a long-term contract which ties the Giants to San Francisco's Candlestick Park.

"But we have found a way around that," said Duguid, refusing to elaborate.

Minnesota Twins owner Calvin Griffith said the inter-league committee had not contacted him on a possible Twins move to Seattle.

"I flatly deny this story," said baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn, referring to the reports of the Twins and Giants moves. "The franchise committee has not made any recommendations and there's no guarantee it will happen in Kansas City."

Giants owner Horace Stoneham said: "We're not ready to sell, and if and when we are, the Giants will be sold in this place. They are not going to leave San Francisco."

NHL president no comment on anti-trust suit

MONTREAL (CP) — Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, said Tuesday he had no immediate comment on a $4.5-million antitrust suit brought against the league by player Greg Neeld.

Neeld, prohibited from playing in the NHL because of a league rule barring players with less than 25-percent vision in an eye, is seeking $1.5 million damages, which would be trebled under United States anti-trust laws.

"I don't know what his complaint is," Campbell said, except that "somehow or other he's not eligible to play in the National Hockey League."

The suit, filed Monday in U.S. District Court in San Francisco, alleges that NHL teams conspired to prevent Neeld's selection in the first round of the amateur draft last June. It also alleges that the league's board of governors and others conspired to prevent him from playing for Buffalo Sabres or any other NHL team.

Scotch Hill Shooting Club to hold annual competition Sunday commencing at 10.00

DANVILLE (MF) — The Scotch Hill Shooting Club will be staging their annual shooting competition on Sunday, Sept. 14, commencing at 10.00 a.m.

Four different types of categories of shooting are listed for the day: 22 calibre rifle chicken shoot on a 20-yard range with sporting rifles and iron sights; running deer shooting with high calibre rifles on a 100-yard range, rifles and ammunition will be available for those who don't possess rifles; trap shooting, regular 25-shots at 16 yards and partridge walk, on which the shooter must fire five shots while he is walking.

Ray Hutchinson of Asbestos won the Expert Class for August with an average of 22.8 hits on 25 with Dennis Castonguay, also of Asbestos, next with 22.1 on 25 while Paul Murphy of Richmond had 21.8 on 25.

Jean-Yves Villeneuve of Valcourt led the Intermediate Class with an average of 21 on 25 while Gerard Tessier, also of Valcourt, had 19.2 on 25 and Yvon Pilote of Asbestos had 19.2. In the Novice Class Andre Huard of Richmond emerged the winner with an average of 21.8 hits on 25 and Denis Tear of Windsor was second with 21.4 and Jacques Lauzon of Valcourt had 21.3.

Prizes will be given in all categories of shooting. Refreshments will be available at the Club. All hunters are especially invited to participate in the different activities at Scotch Hill Shooting Club to help practice for the coming hunting season. The positive effects of practice can be seen during the hunting season by the hunter who gets his game on the wing or on run.

Regular Club shooting is held on Sundays from 10:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. and on Tuesdays from 6:00 p.m. till dark.

Minnesota Twins' future is still pending, will depend on new contract with City

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Minnesota Twins are out of the American League west's pennant race—and now there's talk they might soon be out of Minnesota, too.

While Twins' officials were trying to work out a new lease agreement Tuesday for Metropolitan Stadium, their home since moving there from Washington, D.C., in 1960, the Toronto Star reported that the team would move next year into Seattle's new indoor stadium, the Kingdome.

Calvin Griffith, the majority owner of the Twins, holds a strong hand in the negotiations because the team's 15-year lease with the Metropolitan Stadium Commission expires this season and because of poor attendance in the last five years. The team will draw about 800,000 fans this year.

He denies vehemently that the Twins are north-westward bound. "We're trying to come up with a lease we can live with. I don't know where anyone gets this stuff about us going to Seattle. If there was anything to it, you'd sure think I'd know what we're going to do."

$5,000 gift package goes to winner in Miss Alouette 1975, forms at Miracle Mart Stores

MONTREAL — Miss Melanie Strauss, "Miss Alouette 1974", inaugurated the regular football season in Montreal July 29th with her opening kick-off. This event also signalled the launching of the Miss Montreal Alouette '75 Contest which will see the crowning of the new Miss Montreal Alouette '75 October 24. Many candidates of last year's contest were special guests at the event.

Organised and sponsored by the Miracle Mart department stores in cooperation with the Alouettes, the 1975 contest is open this year to all young girls in the Montreal, Trois-Rivieres and Sherbrooke areas.

Miss Montreal Alouette will receive prizes totalling over $5,000 in value. In addition to an all-expenses paid trip to Calgary where she will compete for the Miss Grey Cup title, Miss Montreal Alouette will also receive other outstanding prizes from prominent Canadian companies. These will include six months' free use of an Avis Canada-leased 1975 Duster, a portable T.V., a stereo, a complete wardrobe and many other equally fine prizes.

According to Sam Berger, owner and president of the Montreal Alouettes, the Miss Alouettes '74 contest achieved great success with its new format which will be carried on this year. "I'm sure," he added "that in 1975 the contest organizing committee will see its efforts fully rewarded with the success they deserve by encouraging an even wider participation from among young female Alouette fans."

The Contest
As in the previous year, this year's contest aims at having a much broader participation. For this reason, the 1975 Contest will be open to all single young ladies between the ages of 18 and 22. Contest application forms will be available at the information counters of all Miracle Mart department stores in the Montreal, Trois-Rivieres and Sherbrooke areas. Contestants need only to return the completed application form (along with her photo) to the same store, or mail it directly to: The Miss Montreal Alouette 1975 Pageant Committee, Miracle Mart Division, 1500 Atwater, Montreal H3Z 2W2. Miracle Mart spokesman, Jean Dessureault stated, "approximately 100 contestants will be selected from all those who applied. They will be invited to compete and model sports fashions in area semi-finals."

These fashion shows will be held at 8:00 p.m. at Les Rivieres Shopping Centre, Trois-Rivieres, on Thursday, October 9th, at Place Belvedere, Sherbrooke, on Friday, October 10th, and at Place Versailles, Place St. Martin and Les Galeries Lachine, on Friday, October 17th.

The idea of semi-finals has been introduced to promote more football interest.

Twenty-six girls will be selected at the semi-finals by six independent judging committees composed of media people and other dignitaries. These girls will be invited to compete for the title of Miss Montreal Alouette at the Pageant to be held at 8:00 p.m., Friday, October 24th in the Alexis Nihon Plaza. The Pageant will feature a Miracle Mart Fashion Show and live entertainment. An independent judging committee composed of a representative from the semi-finals selection committees and other personalities will choose Miss Montreal Alouette 1975.

LEN O'DONNELL

SHERBROOKE BEAVERS seem to be getting into high gear. They now have three straight victories to their credit and tomorrow evening at the Sports Palace they will be hosts to the Hull Festivals in their fourth pre-season game.

IT WAS FIGURED THAT they might have trouble with Three Rivers but they managed to pull out with a 4-2 win right in the backgrounds of the Draveurs and that is something. It looks as though they will have another good club for the coming season.

ROOKIES ARE PLAYING a big part in the make-up for clubs this coming season as the majority of the teams have lost their key men from last year and the success depends on what scouting the club did over the summer months.

IT WOULD SEEM THAT the Beavers didn't waste their time, hence the reason why the club is doing so well. I know it is early to go out on a limb but on the other hand the Beavers look as though they are in for another good season.

COACH DELAGE IS NOW rounding his club into top shape and from the look of his rookies he should have another good club to represent Sherbrooke in major junior hockey. They lost a lot of top players but the boys left, with the new crop, will get adjusted soon and from then on it should be interesting to watch the results.

WE STATED PREVIOUSLY that Guy St. Pierre, chief scout, and his assistants did a good job and one can see that they didn't waste their time. They picked up a good, big strong bunch of youngsters and Coach Delage is rounding off the rough edges and things should get better as they go along.

I WONDER WHAT THE City of Sherbrooke is waiting for to get things in order at the Sports Palace. The hockey season has now been going along for over a week and the condition of the inside of the building is just simply terrible.

THE FIRST THING THE loudspeakers on the west side of the building are just useless. No one can hear anything. Reports have been made about this but so far nothing has been done. I wonder what they are waiting for.

ANY ATTRACTION THAT draws close to 8,000 people certainly deserves a little more consideration. The public, who pay good money to support the club, should be given more attention than they have up to present. The board of directors of the Beavers have nothing to do in this matter, they just rent the rink, at a good price, so it is up to the City to see that things get fixed. So now we will just wait and see what happens in the very near future. Members of the press, radio and TV have spoken out about it and now it is up to the CITY FATHERS.

WE WERE SORRY to hear about Charlie Gordon's sudden death in Halifax. To Mrs. Gordon and his brothers we offer our sympathies. Charlie was well known in Sherbrooke years ago and was a very interested member of the different sporting associations. Everything he took part in he was always going out 100 per cent and had numerous friends in these parts.

PHYSICAL FITNESS PROGRAMS are moving to the fore and in the very near future The Record will be carrying a program put out by Participation regarding fitness for all ages, male and female.

WE HAVE READ several of their articles and they are really good. Once we have everything in line we will carry them daily, or so, depending on how things go. I have glanced through their 16-week Jogging Plan and there is more to it than just buying a jogging suit, sneakers, and running around the block.

THEY CLAIM IT IS a gradual fitness program and shouldn't be rushed, which makes good sense. I think a lot of people go at it too hard at the start and by doing this they can injure their health.

JOGGING IS GOOD but it should be done under the proper conditions. This program is being put into action all over Canada and the results are really surprising. We should be ready to start in the near future.

THOSE INTERESTED IN Hang-gliding should journey down to Stowe, Vt. next week and see some of the best in the sport in action. It runs from Sept. 17 till Sept. 21 and it should be very interesting to watch.

Ailing Reed scores three majors, boosts Roughriders over Calgary

REGINA (CP)—An ailing George Reed gave Saskatchewan Roughriders all the scoring they needed Wednesday as the Roughriders scored a 31-17 Western Football Conference victory over Calgary Stampeders.

Reed, the perennial conference rushing star, shrugged off a painful arm and shoulder injury, to score three touchdowns. His majors, on runs of two, three and six yards, moved the veteran fullback into fourth place in the Western Conference scoring race with 42 points on seven touchdowns.

The victory, Saskatchewan's second over Calgary this season, left the Roughriders in a first-place tie with Edmonton Eskimos who were idle Wednesday. Calgary, now with five losses in eight games, shares the conference cellar with British Columbia Lions.

"The name of the game is execution, and we didn't execute on offence," said Calgary coach Jim Woods whose team jumped off to a 7-0 lead in the first quarter but began to falter in the second.

Calgary took a 14-10 lead into the second half, but from there it was all downhill as Saskatchewan scored 21 points, 14 of them in the final quarter.

THREE INTERCEPTIONS There were three interceptions, two of them off Calgary quarterback Joe Pisarcik. Saskatchewan's Ron Lancaster had one picked off. Jim Marshall ran back one Pisarcik interception back 57-yards for a touchdown. Other Roughrider scoring was supplied by Jack Abendschan who booted four converts and a 17-yard field goal.

Tom Forzani opened scoring for Calgary on a 25-yard pass from Pisarcik. Larry Cates scored on a 37-yard interception runback and Cyril McFall rounded out Stampeders' scoring with two converts and a 14-yard field goal.

Part of Calgary's trouble in the second half was due to an injury to halfback Willie Burden who suffered a leg cramp late in the third quarter that put him out of the game. He was Calgary's leading rusher with 70 yards on 14 carries.

Saskatchewan piled up 395 yards with Lancaster gaining 259 through the air. He was good on 20 of 33 passes. Calgary gained 267 yards, with 181 through the air. Pisarcik completed 17 of 28 tosses while Karl Douglas failed on the four attempts he made in relief.

On Saturday, Toronto Argonauts move to Vancouver to meet the Lions in a Canadian Football League interlocking contest.

Filion setting unbeatable pace

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP)—Herve Filion had a sulky full of hopes back in 1964 but only 191 winners after four years of harness race driving. Now he is setting records that may be impossible dreams for drivers of the future.

Last Monday night at Atlantic City, the 35-year-old owner-driver from Angers, Que., won the 5,312th race of his career to become the winningest harness race driver of all time.

The victory pushed Filion ahead of Hans Fromming of West Germany, but it's only a matter of time before Filion leaves Fromming far behind.

Filion, who added a winner Tuesday night at Roosevelt Raceway, is 30 years younger than Fromming and, as the West German says, drives more winners in a year than Fromming does races.

In the last five years Filion has won 486, 543, 605, 445 and a world-record 637 winners.

He also became the first driver to break the $3 million mark when his horses earned $3,474,315 in 1974 to boost his career total to $15,819,133. Only Billy Haughton and Stanley Dancer rank ahead of him in money winnings, Haughton with $20,735,949 and Dancer with $17,109,646.

Filion has slowed down a little since the days when he regularly flew from one track to another in the New York area to drive afternoon and night. It allows him to spend a bit more time with his wife Barbara and their four young children.

But he still counts on winning at least $1 million a year. "I've got to earn a million because I've got mouths to feed and lots of horses to look after."

He has said that with 130 horses in his stable and about 90 training at any one time, he prefers to drive as many as possible himself instead of paying someone else to do it.

Danville belts Windsor Mills, Lennoxville-Richmond tie in E.T.T.F.L. opening fixtures

DANVILLE—The ETTFL season officially opened Sunday in Danville with Danville defeating Windsor Mills by a score of 55-0.

The outcome of this contest was very surprising because in the previous seasons Windsor has always been one of the stronger teams in the league along with Danville. It is hoped that some of Windsor's former players will again come out and play for their team.

Leading the way for Danville was J. Letendre with three touchdowns followed by M. Boisvert with two, B. Garthshore with a touchdown and single, R. Arpin with one touchdown, M. Dailleire with one touchdown, and J. Boisvert with one touchdown.

In the second game Lennoxville and Richmond battled to an 18-18 tie.

The quality of play was exceptionally entertaining considering that this was the first game of the season for both teams.

Lennoxville received the opening kick-off and subsequently marched down the field on a combination of running and passing plays only to be stopped on the 1-yard line by a determined Richmond defensive unit. Neither team managed to score until Mike Chabot put Richmond ahead early in the 2nd quarter. The lead was short-lived as Johnny Daniels combined with Bill Horocks to tie the game.

Throughout the remainder of the second and third quarters the Lennoxville defensive unit led by Rick Dupuis, Bud Butterfield and Bill Horocks kept Richmond off the score sheet. The Lennoxville offensive unit led by Johnny Daniels, K.O. Mullins and Barry Badger piled up offensive yardage but no points.

Mike Doyle put Richmond ahead late in the third quarter only to have Lennoxville come back early in the fourth quarter to tie the game on a touchdown by Barry Badger.

Once more Richmond took the lead late in the fourth quarter when D. Mallette scored on a pass-and-run play. The final scoring play occurred in the last two minutes when Lennoxville again managed to tie the game on an end around run by Robert Henry. Final score 18-18.

Action resumes Sunday in Lennoxville at Bishop's University, behind the sports complex. Lennoxville takes on Danville at 10:00 and Windsor Mills plays Richmond at 12:00.

CBC-TV starts new entertainment series

TORONTO (CP) — Sidestreet, a new police television series in which the cops don't always solve a case or get their man, makes its debut on the CBC-TV network next Sunday. It will run for eight weeks.

The series features Sean McCann and Stephen Markle as Insp. Alec Woodward and Sgt. Johnny Dias of the Metropolitan Toronto police department's community services division—involved mainly in non-violent forms of crime.

The first of the eight one-hour dramas tells the story of a widow's attempt to hold onto her family home in a seedy part of downtown Toronto against the pressures of a big land developer who has bought up all the surrounding lots to make way for a high-rise building.

The woman, played by Ruth Springford, befriends a young Pakistani couple who are being blackmailed by a sinister rent collector, played by Jon Granik. He also is trying to force the woman out of her home.

The story, in short, is about block-busting, reducing a city block's property values to a pittance to make way for redevelopment. As the play shows, the big men and profiteers often are not caught, not

Something new for old-fashioned radio

TORONTO (CP) — Amid all the glamor and drama the modern world finds in television, does anyone plan anything new for old-fashioned radio?

W. T. (Bill) Armstrong is one who does, and as the new head of the English radio services for the CBC he is ready to start trying to recapture its popularity.

By November, the CBC will have a fully-connected cross-country FM (frequency modulated) radio network, with a new super-time show featuring Peter Gzowski, the popular former moderator of This Country in the Morning on the AM network.

The new FM network will serve Halifax, Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Winnipeg, Calgary and Vancouver and will add one or two stations a year in other communities.

Such a network has in fact been operating in recent years with live newscasts and recorded shows. But it hasn't been a physically connected network. Transcriptions have been sent from station to station by mail or parcel delivery services.

CARRIED BY SATELLITE
The new network will be carried across the country by satellite and will not depend on station-to-station relay.

Gzowski's new program will be oriented towards the arts, on the principle that the arts are for everyone, with news and interviews of theatre, music, art gallery and other activities.

Using a new stereophonic microphone technique based on the sound perception of the human head, Armstrong is also planning to schedule 13 specially-prepared dramas.

He said his planning is really aimed at the fall of 1976, after next summer's Olympic Games, when technical facilities and personnel

Stone-age man found by Ontario scientists

LONDON (CP) — A stone-age man with a leaf-shaped arrowhead between his ribs, described as a find of exceptional archeological interest, has been discovered by a group of Royal Ontario Museum archeologists near Peterborough, it was disclosed Tuesday.

The man, buried in a crouching or fetal position, was the most remarkable of four neolithic bodies found in a single grave on the site where Ontario Museum groups have been digging since 1971.

Although these were the oldest bodies ever unearthed on the site 80 miles north of London, older pre-neolithic specimens have been found elsewhere in Britain, said Francis Pryor, 30, the group leader.

VALUE ASSERTED
While not a find of "major" significance, he said, the man with the arrowhead "is of considerable human interest and of great value to researchers" now rewriting some of Britain's early history.

"I dig up a lot of bodies in my work," he said in a telephone interview from his Peterborough apartment, "but it gives one a start to come across someone who has been murdered or killed in battle." But it is unlikely the bodies ever will be put on display in Canada, Pryor said.

"They are very fragile and, personally, I wouldn't want to see them travel across the Atlantic."

He said the man, probably buried between 2000 and 3000 BC, "was likely a pretty ordinary sort of chap." There were no "grave goods"—jewelry or prized pottery—buried with him, as was the custom with more eminent citizens.

At the man's feet were bones of a small child, perhaps aged about three years, and the dismembered remains of two other adult bodies. The neolithic era was in the later stone age, when ground or polished stone weapons and implements prevailed.

The grave, removed with a solid gravel base, now has been packed in plastic to protect it and will be taken to Cambridge University for closer study. It requires six men to lift it. Still undecided is where it will finally be put on display, Pryor said.

DIGGER OVERJOYED
Pryor, a London-born graduate of Cambridge who moved to Canada in 1969, was ecstatic over the find. He said it is the latest in a string of remarkable discoveries the team has made on the Peterborough site, the most important prehistoric site in Britain.

The group, sponsored by the Ontario Museum with some support from the British environment department, has made discoveries of "outstanding importance, including the earliest wells in Britain, thatched houses, fish and grazing areas," Pryor said.

The site covers 20 acres and research there resulted in experts rewriting a large part of British history.

"Much of what was earlier assumed to have been Roman has now been proved to date back as far as 4000 BC."

It now seems there was a continuous settlement in the area from before 3000 BC to 300 AD, Pryor said.

AFTER MONKEYING AROUND with the water fountain at Florida's St. Petersburg Zoo, this chimp finds it easier to quench his thirst if Officer J.M. McCarthy lends a hand.

Dief on TV

OTTAWA (CP) — Two half-hour drama documentaries marking the 80th birthday of former prime minister John Diefenbaker will be broadcast this week and next by the CTV Television Network.

Seen on most CTV stations at 9:30 p.m. each Thursday, the programs, produced by Rolly Desmarais, include interviews with the former Progressive Conservative leader about his early days as a lawyer in Saskatchewan, and with editorial cartoonists who depicted him—sometimes savagely—during the height of his political career.

Diefenbaker: The Legal Years was filmed mainly in Prince Albert, Sask., where Mr. Diefenbaker had his law office. In the courts there and in the Supreme Court of Canada, Mr. Diefenbaker set many legal precedents which still hold today.

This film, to be shown this week, includes some dramatized portions in which Gerry Potter, a young Ottawa actor, plays the part of the young Diefenbaker, interviewing police and clients in his office.

WAS TOP LAWYER
Scenes with Mr. Diefenbaker in court are based on the transcript of court proceedings, in which Mr. Diefenbaker rose to be Western Canada's most formidable defence lawyer.

Mr. Desmarais met Mr. Diefenbaker for the first time when he was a cameraman at CJOHTV, the CTV affiliate in Ottawa, and was assigned to cover one of Mr. Diefenbaker's fishing trips.

"His never-ending humor and jokes made me feel right at home on what I thought would be a boring assignment," Mr. Desmarais said. "It was a treat to be with him."

The second show, to be seen on the night of Mr. Diefenbaker's 80th birthday, Thursday, Sept. 18, is Dief Is The World's Best Editorial Cartoon Subject, an awkward title for a show which could be both the wittier and more biting of the two.

Cartoonists Russins of Ottawa Citizen, Yardley Jones of Montreal Star, MacPherson of Toronto Star, and Ting of London Free Press will appear on the show, along with many of their Diefenbaker cartoons.

Mr. Diefenbaker reacts to the cartoons with an occasional grin or crusty comment.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be willing to go a few steps further than the boss expects of you today. Later, he'll do the same for you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're lucky with just about everything today except finances, so don't do anything foolish in that area.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Good things happen if you let events run their course today. Trying to force issues will only

Dr. Lamb
Lung cancer hits more smokers

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I would like to ask about lung cancer. Are there other causes of lung cancer besides smoking? I recently had surgery for it, and I don't smoke, but in some areas where I have worked there have been some caustic fumes, and also, when I was a child I had a bad case of virus pneumonia. Could that have caused this? Would appreciate your opinion.

DEAR READER - About 90 per cent of cancers of the lung in men occur in smokers.

As a woman you will be interested to know that women are far less prone to lung cancer, particularly during the child-bearing years, but a higher per cent of lung cancers in women occur in the absence of smoking. Also, the type of lung cancer that occurs in the non-smoker is often different from the type that occurs in the smoker.

The virus pneumonia you had as a child would have nothing to do with your problem, and I doubt that any of the caustic fumes you may have been exposed to are related to it either.

Tobacco is associated with a lot of health problems, but you can have health problems and never smoke. For more information on tobacco and health write to me in care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019, send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents and ask for The Health Letter number 2-6 on Tobacco: Cigarettes, Cigars, Pipes.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I read your column stating that breasts were not muscles and that muscles will increase in size when exercised. Does this mean that breasts will not increase in size and shape when using certain exercising methods since the breasts are not muscles?

I had the opinion that exercising would increase the bust size. I know exercising helps firm and prevent sagging, but will it cause a lasting increase in size rather than just temporary as in the case of weight gain and fluid gain?

DEAR READER - No, exercise does not increase the size of the breast. The breast is all fat, glandular tissue, blood vessels, and fibrous connective tissue and ligaments.

Exercise will improve the appearance of the breast, but not by enlarging the breast. Most of those exercises you read about or see demonstrated are designed to work the muscles behind the breast, called the pectoral muscles. A good example is the one of pressing the palms of the hands together. When you strengthen and enlarge the muscles behind the breast even a small breast is pushed forward, like putting the breast on a pillow.

Also, certain exercises improve posture which throws the front chest out and enhances the breastline without increasing the size of the breast at all. Any exercise that improves holding the shoulders back and corrects or prevents round shoulders has this effect.

Some of the programs for breast enlargement also include a high calorie diet. The accumulation of fat will enlarge the breast in some women, but the other effects may outweigh, if I may use that term, the advantages obtained.

Anything that stretches the breast might enlarge it, but it also produces more "natural sag" than most women want. Overstretching of ligaments can occur from going without a bra, particularly in a moderate or heavy-breasted woman.

So, you can get some improvement in your appearance with those exercises, but strictly speaking, they won't increase the size of the breasts.

Your Birthday
Sept. 12, 1975

There will be some major changes made this coming year that will not be entirely of your doing. However, they will work just as well as if YOU had planned them.

WI meeting

The regular meeting of the Spooner Pond Branch of the Quebec Women's Institute was held in the hall of the Trenholmville church on Sept. 4.

Members and guests, the Melbourne Ridge Branch, were welcomed by the President, Mrs. W. Lancaster.

At the close of the usual opening procedures, a minute's silence was observed in memory of Mrs. Ernest Lancaster, whose recent death was a shock to all. The sympathy of all goes out to her family.

Roll Call was "Draw a road sign and comment on it" — was answered by 23 members. Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

Treasurer's report was given by Mrs. D. Biggs and bills were paid.

Correspondence was read, consisting of notes of thanks, and also letters from the QWI office and from the Provincial President, Mrs. Westover.

This branch had been guests of the Fordyce Branch at Cowansville on September 3rd, and had enjoyed a most pleasant day with these ladies. Sixteen members had attended, arriving there in cars driven by Mrs. Muriel Gillin, Mrs. V. Ignatieff, Mrs. H. Knight and Mrs. W. Parkes. After a delicious lunch, and the regular meeting of the hostess branch, a representative from the local Tupperware Co. showed a film on the procedures used in making the materials used in Tupperware, and gave a very interesting talk on these. Each lady was given a set of four colored Tupperware glasses as a souvenir.

After hearing a report of this interesting trip by Mrs. J. Walker, the reports of conveners were given.

Mrs. L. Davidson, convener of Agriculture, read out the names of the children who had won prizes at the Children's Fair which was held at her home. The exhibits had been the best that have been shown to date, and the judge, Mr.

Davidson, was very much pleased with them.

Seven members had also exhibited collections of vegetables, with 1st prize going to Mrs. Orvis Taylor, 2nd, to Mrs. W. Parkes and 3rd, to Mrs. W. Fraser. The door prize was won by Mrs. Ignatieff.

Convener of Citizenship, Mrs. Taylor, asked that members continue to bring in used stamps and to buy UNICEF cards. She read an interesting article on Estelle Coates (Mrs. Welles Coates), who is keenly interested in WI work and the interests of women. Mrs. Coates is 2nd vice-president on the Provincial slate.

Convener of Education, Mrs. H. Blanchard, read an article on the transporting of pupils to Regional and Secondary schools and said that the only other people who will be allowed to ride on the school buses are voluntary workers at the Regional and Secondary schools.

Home Ec Convener, Mrs. Blanchard, read an amusing article on Fashions, and later conducted two games which were very much enjoyed.

Convener of Publicity, Mrs. D. Oakley, read articles on the cost to consumers of the conversion to the Metric System, and on the apparent lack of interest shown in International Women's Year, as voiced by Mrs. John McLean, President of the FWIC.

Mrs. Ignatieff, convener for Welfare and Health, had no report, but felt that women should make known to storekeepers their feelings concerning prices marked up on goods which are already bringing in a profit. Mrs. Ignatieff, like most of her fellow members, feels that the conversion to Metric System is entirely unnecessary, and only adds to the already high prices of goods.

Mrs. Walker outlined plans for the County Bazaar and Tea, which will be held in the Legion Hall on Sept. 20, and members were told what they are to do for this project. A donation will be made from the funds towards buying tea, coffee and sugar.

The Hymn of All Nations was sung, and members handed in Pennies for Friendship and Birthday money.

Mrs. B. Rodgers, reporting for the out-going Ways and Means Committee, said that the social evening which had been very successful and had brought in a nice sum to help the funds.

The President reminded members that the County meeting will be held on Oct. 18, with this branch to be in charge of the kitchen. Those who are to take articles for the Sales Table are Mrs. Hilda Henderson, Mrs. D. Goodfellow, Mrs. E. Hutchings, Mrs. V. Ignatieff and Mrs. R. Hughes.

A nice Crownware container was then drawn for, with Mrs. Muriel Gillin being the winner.

After the meeting had been adjourned, games were played with Miss Vera Miller winning the card game.

Door prizes were won by guests, Miss Marion Kerr and Mrs. Allison Lynn.

Marked cups had been held by Mrs. Sid Johnson and Mrs. W. Marshall, who were also guests.

Lunch was served, and a brief social time enjoyed.

The October meeting will be held in the hall of Treholmville church again, with the regular hostesses providing lunch.

UCW meeting

BIRCHTON — Several ladies gathered at the Kirkby-Harron home for the regular meeting of the Birchton UCW, after the summer recess.

The President called the meeting to order with the repeating, in unison of the Purpose, followed by the Worship Period under the direction of Mrs. Murdo MacKinnon, assisted by Mrs. George Judge, the theme being "Labor Day."

Satisfactory reports were given by all the Committees, showing all in good order to start the season's activities.

It was reported that the Hall curtains had been made and hung.

After some discussion as to the Mission and Service Department, it was left to Mrs. Murdo MacKinnon and Madame President to choose the Live-Love Project for the year, fifty dollars being allotted to each one or two.

Welfare reported that four boxes of used clothing had been sent and twelve bandages turned in. More string was distributed for more bandages.

The meeting was reminded that the Fall Rally for this Area is to be in Bury on September 18.

The date for the Community Pot-Luck supper was set for Saturday, Sept. 27 and it is hoped that our new residents will be there to get acquainted with the older residents. There will be a showing of slides after the supper.

For a finale, Miss Gail Harron and Mrs. Basil Prescott gave a very interesting and informative account of their three days at the Summer Event at the University of Ottawa.

After the Mizpah Benediction, there was lively chatting while delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Robert Kirkby, Mrs. Gordon Harron and Miss Gail Harron.

Mrs. George Judd's invitation to meet at their home for the October meeting was unanimously accepted. The meetings are for all ladies of the area, no members' fees.

Victor Mollo's book is written for rubber bridge players. Therefore, when he asks, "What should declarer play from dummy to trick one?" the answer is obvious.

Declarer should play a low spade. Once this play is made South can win the trick with his ace and take an immediate club finesse. If the finesse loses, that queen of spades will still be in dummy to stop the suit. South will be sure of four clubs, three hearts, one spade and one diamond for a total of nine tricks.

In match point duplicate there is a real problem facing declarer. He is in a normal contract since almost every one else will open one notrump and play in the notrump game.

The queen of spades play from dummy becomes an attempt to score an overtrick and overtricks are what win match-point tournaments.

Of course, if South knows that West never leads from kings (there still are such people playing bridge), he will make the rubber bridge players play of the low spade. If South is a natural pessimist, he will also play safe for his contract.

Ask the Jacobys

A reader from Hawaii wants to know if the rules of bridge allow a player to pass when his partner opens with a forcing two-bid.

This question comes up quite often. The answer is that the rules of bridge allow you to make any legal call when it is your turn to bid and a pass is always a legal call.

At the same time it is seldom advisable to pass when your partner forces. He may have his bid and you may be missing a game or even a slam.

(Do you have a question for the Jacobys? Write "Ask the Jacobys" care of this newspaper. The most interesting questions will be used in this column and writers will receive copies of JACOBY MODERN.)

BURY

Mrs. H. Rowell 872-3607
Sunday guests of Mrs. John Dougherty were Mrs. Lila Webster Downes, Rockwood, Ont., daughter of the late Walter Webster, her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Downes, Guelph, Ont., and Mrs. Maxine Webster Ellery, Erin, Ont., daughter of the late Harold Webster. They also visited St. Paul's Church and the Bury Cemetery, where their parents and grandparents are buried, and their old home, now the home of Mr. Irene Beaudoin. As it has been nearly 70 years since Mrs. Downes had last visited Bury, she found many changes, especially Peabody Hill.

It is interesting to note that Walter Webster and his brother Woodie Webster helped to rebuild St. Paul's Church in 1910 after the first one burned in 1903. Mrs. Walter Webster was the first president of the A.C.W. in Bury. Rev. Robinson came from Cookshire to help organize this group. Mrs. Webster's picture is hanging in St. Paul's Church.

Miss Isabelle Taillon of Montreal spent a week visiting her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Taillon and family. Mr. and Mrs. Dave Purich (nee Priscilla Taillon) and two children of St. Hubert were guests of her brother, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Taillon and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Taillon, Arthur, David and Danny were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Wintle and family in Gould for a "cook-out."

Sympathy is extended to Mrs. Allan Sutherland of Danville, formerly of Bury, on the death of her father, Mr. Montgomery, on Aug. 25, 1975.

Sympathy is also extended to the Mathieu family, on the sudden passing of Mr. Mathieu.

Mr. and Mrs. Rejean Lapointe and family of Sherbrooke were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Reggie Thompson.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Perkins and Tina and Mr. and Mrs. Robert McLeod and family have gone to B.C. for a holiday.

Miss Marjorie Kirkpatrick has left for Fredericton, N.B., where she will be attending the University of New Brunswick.

Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Joyce of Bishopton were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lawrence. Other guests at the same home were Mr. and Mrs. Edgcombe of Island Brook.

Labour Day guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lawrence were Mrs. Eunice Goodenough and daughters Pauline and Pamela of Sherbrooke.

Compton County W.I. Rug Display

The number of pieces of yarn in the guessing contest was 4252. Lois Thompson of Richmond made the closest guess of 4266 and won the rug. C.A. Connors of Sherbrooke and Violet Mackey of Lennoxville were tied for second place and each won a cushion.

In the children's guessing contest, the correct number of beans in the frog was 2654, with Leona Hodge of Bury making the closest guess of 2651 and Irwin Watson, also of Bury, being second, guessing 1749.

First of a series of card parties was held in the Bury Town Hall on Wednesday evening, Sept. 3, sponsored by the local Association for Rangers, Guides and Brownies.

Winners for highest scores were: Ladies 1st - Joy Statton, 2nd - Lizzie Wray. Gents 1st - Cathy Jacklin (playing as a gent), 2nd - Randy Vintinner.

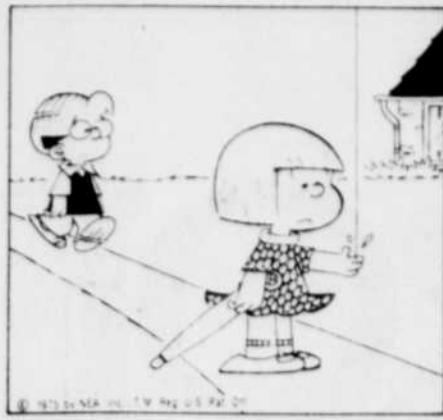

This Association will sponsor card parties every Wednesday night throughout the month of September.

Mr. Brian Rowell visited his friend David Gosselin in Lennoxville one evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Rowell were supper guests of Miss Mildred Waldron in Sawyerville and attended Church Service in the East Clifton United Church.
