LAURIER'S MISSION.

As the Americans View It.

New York, Nov. 11.—The New York Sun says editorially of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's mission to Washington:—"Our neighbors of the Dominion have had of late years many subjects of controversy with us, although some of these are less bitter and menacing than formerly. In the Northwest there are various questions arising out of the Klondike gold discoveries and the proposed taxes or other restrictions upon American miners. There is possible trouble, too, over the boundary line between Alaska and British Columbia, while the future of pelagic sealing is one of the pressing problems of the hour. The readjustment of our tariff has led some of our friends at the north to consider various reciprocity projects, while the laws or proposed laws of the two countries affecting transportation between them, including the crossing of the border by laborers, are also matters for serious consideration.

It is not surprising, therefore, to find that Sir Wilfrid Laurier has chosen the few weeks just preceding the meeting of Congress, at which the annual message of the President and the reports of his Cabinet officers will be presented, for a visit to Washington. The subjects of discussion between Canada and ourselves are indeed numerous, and sometimes grave. But underlying them are innumerable grounds of sympathy. In fact, a leading cause of these differences is the fact that, with such fundamental common interests, the two countries are under different systems of government, our neighbors holding on to an antiquated colonial dependency which we throw off, to such an obvious advantage, more than a century ago. At no distant day we may hope that they will outgrow this strange anachronism, and cast in their fortunes with ours as an American community. Meanwhile we must try to arrange amicably any controversies that arise out of this false condition of affairs.

REVEALED THROUGH JEALOUSY.

New Orleans, Nov. 10.—Six years ago the body of Gen. Harrington of Abbeville was found floating in Bayou Vermilion. An autopsy showed that he had been murdered, but no evidence could be found as to the murderer. Today Mrs. Horace Guidry testified that her husband had murdered Harrington. She had concealed the guilt of her husband until he had abandoned her for the widow of the man he had murdered. Jealousy prompted her action. Guidry was arrested and is now in jail charged with murder.

Do not neglect your business if you have a cold but take Menthol Cough Syrup, it will cure you.

He Wouldn't Grow.

A well known M. P. was addressing an agricultural meeting in the south and in the course of his remarks expressed the opinion that farmers do not sufficiently vary their crops and make a mistake in always sowing wheat.

One of the audience, opposed to him in politics, asked him what crops he would recommend.

"Everything in turn," he replied. "Well," said his interlocutor, "if Sweden don't come up, what then?"

"Sow mustard," said the M. P. "And if mustard doesn't come up, what then?"

And so he went on through a whole list of crops until the M. P.'s patience being exhausted, he put an end to his questioning, amid roars of laughter, by saying:

"Oh, sow yourself, and I hope you won't come up."—Strand Magazine.

Vain Longing.

Ardu looked up bitterly from the book he was reading. "The words 'one touch of nature' had caught his eye and had started a train of thought.

"I wish it were possible," he soliloquized. "I've touched everybody else."—Chicago Tribune.

Western Australia.

A feature of the population statistics in Western Australia is the large proportion of males to females. The disparity is maintained in the arrivals by sea. At present there are 45 females to every 100 males.

Saharan Oasis.

French experts in the desert of Sahara are expressing apprehensions at the gradual diminution of the fertile oases. It is known that the large oases were much larger in the time of the ancient Romans and that they are being constantly reduced in size by the encroachments of the sand dunes. The problem is how to stop these.

Sure Sign.

"Barber's wife is rather the boss of the outfit, isn't she?" "I would not like to say so positively. But I do know that they have only two wheels, and one is a woman's wheel, and the other is a tandem."—Typographical Journal.

WHERE WAS THE JOKE?

Yesterday afternoon a guy wire connected with the derrick used in lifting the stone for the foundation of the Whiting block, broke and fell across an electric light wire. A workman seeing what had happened, at once proceeded to pick it up—but he dropped it and it dropped him. The foreman, who saw that the man had received a shock, thought it would be a good joke to play on a workman who was standing a short distance away, with his back turned. He accordingly called him over and asked him to remove the wire. The man was instantly frightened, and fearing that the man was hurt, ran to pick him up—but, alas, he also came in contact with the wire, and in his turn went down. As he picked himself up he was unable to see the joke he had anticipated, though the bystanders seemed to be amused at something.

JUBILEE PROCESSION.

The magnificence of the production of the great Jubilee procession, as it appeared in London, England, on June 22nd, 1897, was seen at the Art Hall last night, and gave good satisfaction to those who attended. The pictures are shown with remarkable clearness, although the length of the hall being less than required, interferes somewhat with the production of the pictures. A splendid view is obtained of Her Majesty in her carriage, which was drawn by eight cream-colored horses, elaborately decorated, and attended her royal escort, including the Prince of Wales, the Duke of Cambridge and the Duke of Connaught, mounted upon high bred animals. The enthusiasm of the vast concourse of people, as Her Majesty passes by, is easily discernible. The passing of the Canadian contingent of military men was greeted with loud applause. The performance will be repeated tonight.

A LADIES' MORNING MUSICAL FOR SHERBROOKE.

Ladies interested in forming a club for mutual benefit and instruction in vocal and instrumental music are requested to meet on Saturday (tomorrow), at 2:30 p. m., in the Odell Hall, Wellington street.

BRIEFLETS

Baldwin, Spy and Greening apples, 40c peck. R. W. Darby & Co.

While turning the corner near Skinner's store this morning, the wheel of a wagon, driven by a farmer, caught between the two electric car rails. Seeing a car approaching, the driver attempted to get off the track, with the result that he broke an axle and twisted a wheel.

Have you tried our home made and crimped bread. R. W. Darby & Co.

A very successful entertainment followed by a dance was given in Odell hall last night. A large number were present and passed a very enjoyable evening. The affair was under charge of the Sherbrooke Cricket club, and was for their benefit.

CRICKET AND BASE-BALL AT BISHOP'S COLLEGE.

Bishop's College, Lennoxville, Nov. 12.—(Special)—At the annual meeting of the Bishop's College Cricket Club, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: president, Rev. Prim. Adams, D. C. L.; vice presidents, Rev. Prof. Wilkinson, M. A., and Rev. Prof. Parrok, M. A.; Captain, Mr. Chas. Rothera, Warden, Mr. W. Carroll; committee, Mr. E. N. R. Burns, B. A., Mr. J. Johnson, Mr. C. Carter.

A Base Ball Club has been organized (at Bishop's College) and the following officers elected for the year 1898: president, Mr. H. Richmond; vice president, Mr. J. Johnson; secretary treasurer, Mr. F. LeGallais; Captain, Mr. Woodside; Warden, Mr. V. Bonelli; committee, Mr. T. C. Taylor, Mr. W. H. Mon, Mr. R. Walker.

A NEW FACTORY INSPECTOR.

Coaticook, Nov. 12.—(Special)—Dr. C. N. Stevenson has received the appointment of factory inspector for this district, in place of Dr. C. R. Jones, of Hatley, who has been dismissed for active partisanship. Dr. Stevenson, who was once one of the prominent Conservatives in the county of Stanstead, has been an ardent advocate of Liberal doctrines since the appointment of Dr. Jones three years ago. He has, however, succeeded to the position after having taken an active part in two campaigns, probably much to the sorrow of his opponents.

WATERVILLE NEWS.

Nov. 11.—Mr. Hammond, of Montreal, spent Sunday with Mrs. Jas. McIntosh.

Miss Annie McIntosh is visiting relatives in Montreal.

Miss Clara B. Craik returned to her home at Franklin, Que., on Friday last.

Miss Alice McIntosh and Miss Cowan, of Sherbrooke, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Ward.

Mr. Hall, of Parry Sound, Ont., who is working for the Royal Templars of Temperance, seeking to increase the membership in the beneficiary degree of that order has been in Waterville for the past week. He is meeting with fair success.

The robbery of the post office and of the store of Messrs. Rowe & Rowe on Sunday morning, created no little stir, and surmises as to who the miscreants were are numerous, but as in such cases nothing has been done to secure their arrest and connection.

Dr. G. W. Powers has improved in health to the extent that he was able last week to visit his sister, Mrs. Brown, of Eaton, and his friends are hoping that the improvement may continue and result in a permanent recovery.

Prof. Taylor, of Birchton, has organized a chorus, which he will train for a concert to be given at a later date.

Messrs. Geo. Gale & Sons have sold their blacksmith shop to Mr. W. A. Edgcombe, and Messrs. Taylor and Edgcombe, as tenants, will continue their blacksmithing business at the old stand.

Four agents at the station, in three months, is the record in Waterville, of one of Canada's greatest railway corporations, and all as a result of attempting to do the impossible—to get one man to do the work of two, in order to save the wages of a day laborer. The long suffering community is longing for the coming of the day when this company will quit its meanness and be willing to pay one hundred cents on the dollar for labor rendered. Meanwhile the receipts are falling off weekly, the last returns showing a decrease of 68,000 dollars below the "hard times" record of the corresponding week a year ago, and people are drawing their own conclusions as to the cause of the results thus wrought out by the "brand new up to date, American penny wise and found foolish" policy of the new management. A management, that gives large increases of salary to its leading officials, nearly if not all of whom are foreigners, and then turns its agents, even at as important shipping points as this, into switchmen, and expect them to tend switches, clean lamps and scrub station floors, and attend to the manifold duties of agent as well, and do it, mark you, for the magnificent sum of forty-five dollars a month. No wonder the public are getting tired of such a management, and receipts are crawling down in striking contrast to that other Canadian company, the receipts of which are moving up, even more rapidly than those of the former tend downward.

COATICOOK.

October, 11.—The board of Catholic School trustees have decided to collect interest on all taxes in arrears in the future.

The loss by fire of the Taplin barn has been adjusted by the fire company. Mrs. Taplin receives the full amount of her insurance viz $200.

The stereopticon views of the "Shuns of New York" were given in Shurtleff's hall tonight. There was a large attendance and the views and lecture by Mr. Nichols were good.

A new court of Canadian Order of Forrester was organized last night in W. C. Webster's hall, by Mr. R. J. Stewart, of Norwood, Ont. The court was opened with twenty-six chartered members. Mr. Stewart is a thorough organizer of various other orders and successfully established the present one within a few days.

The Dominion Cotton Co., expect to receive next Friday two new gears from Montreal to replace the old ones which were broken a short time ago.

The cotton industry has greatly revived. The factory is now running at its utmost capacity. A large quantity of the raw material has been delivered here with much more forthcoming.

COMPTON.

November 11.—The funeral services of the late George Hughes will be held in the Methodist church, at 11:30 o'clock Saturday morning.

Mr. E. W. Brewster sails for England on Saturday next, to spend the winter with his family. They expect to return in the early spring.

Mrs. W. C. Henderson, from Toronto, is visiting her old home.

From The Toronto Globe.

"LOVED ITS TONE."

Antoinette Trebelli, the world-renowned French prima donna, writes as follows regarding the Gerhard-Heintzman grand piano used by her at two grand concerts in Quebec recently:

"Permit me to say that the Gerhard-Heintzman piano used at my two concerts completely fulfilled the highest expressions of excellence that had come to my ears. I loved its fine quality of tone, and I may also add that my pianist, Mr. Hubert de Blank, has expressed himself in most flattering terms of the many good qualities of the instrument."

The above fully carries out the statement repeatedly made in these columns that in the Gerhard-Heintzman pianos, foreign artists find an instrument that leaves nothing to be desired either by singer or pianist.—TORONTO GLOBE, October 30th, 1897.

COURT NEWS.

SUPERIOR COURT.

Judgment was rendered in this Court yesterday, by his honor, Mr. Justice White in the case of Taylor et al, vs. Thompson. The plaintiff in his quality of tutor to the minor Sarah Kennedy, sued for the recovery of this child who had been left in the hands of defendant by plaintiff's wife, who was an aunt of the child.

The Court held that the plaintiff was entitled to the possession of the child, but that plaintiff's action was not a necessity, as under his appointment as tutor, he was entitled to the custody of the minor, and also that plaintiff had acted hastily in the matter. The action was maintained, therefore, without costs.

The first of the winter series of the Young People's euche parties was held last night, at the residence of Misses Lemaire. There was a good attendance and a pleasant evening was enjoyed by all. MONTEAL MARKET.

Wholesale Prices.

Thursday Evening.

The steadiness noted in cheese yesterday was continued today, and it is learned there has been a considerable quantity of cheap cheese picked up during the past day or so.

The butter market continues dull. Shippers have modified their bids still further, and now talk 17 1/2c to 18c, instead of the outside figure. Holders are not ready sellers at these prices, and business is dull. In a jobbing way 18 1/2c is the current quotation.

Finest Ontario Septembers, 83-8c to 83-4c. Finest Ontario Octobers, 83-4c to 81-2c. Finest Townships Septembers, 81-4c. Finest Quebec Octobers, 73-8c to 73-4c.

THE CRISIS IN SPAIN.

London, Nov. 11.—The latest testimony to the desperateness of the internal situation in Spain comes through the Vatican, which according to the Rome correspondent of the Chronicle has received intelligence that the position is very grave.

An insurrection of the Carlists is imminent in the principal towns, and the Queen Regent is continually receiving threatening letters from Carlists.

The situation is a matter of negotiation between the European Cabinets. The Papal Nuncio at Madrid, who was recently summoned to Rome, has been instructed to exhort the clergy and the faithful generally to do all in their power to support the Spanish dynasty.

MAINE MEN STRIKE GO'D.

Bangor, Me., Nov. 10.—Daniel Lewis, who lives in Carmel, twenty miles from here, arrived in this city yesterday from the Alaska gold fields. He left Maine eighteen months ago and was accompanied from Seattle by his brother. They took provisions to last them two years. They struck claims on the Trinity River, which, Lewis says, is the richest region there. Lewis brought $14,140 to this city, and he says when he left Alaska he thinks that his brother had $200,000 in gold. Lewis will return in the spring.

STANSTEAD COUNTY ITEMS.

At the recent meeting of the Magog council a by-law was passed levying the following taxes: 2 mills for the town hall and market, 2 mills for the electric light, 2 1/2 mills for the consolidation of the debt, 3 1/2 mills for municipal purposes in general, 4 mills on Protestants for the schools and 3 1/2 mills on Catholics.

A serious accident recently befell Mrs. Widow Buzzell. While standing on a chair she fell and ruptured a blood vessel in one of her lower limbs. A physician was promptly summoned and the flow of blood with difficulty stopped.

Rev. E. A. Davis and family have moved to Smiths Mills from Georgeville, where Mr. Davis will go into partnership with Mr. P. N. Esneuf, merchant, successor to James Merrill. Rev. Mr. Davis will, until June next, continue to conduct the services at the Methodist church, Georgeville. His many friends there regret his departure.

ROUND HOUSE BURNED.

Nine Engines Badly Damaged.

St. Johnsbury, Vt., Nov. 12.—(Special)—At half past eight last night, fire was discovered in the round house of the Boston & Maine R. R., at this place. At the time there were ten engines in the building and only one was got out. The building was a total loss, the brick walls only were standing. The nine engines were badly damaged by the fire. Loss is heavy. Cause of fire unknown, although there was a watchman supposed to be in the building.

Causes of Gray Hairs.

Gray hairs are honorable no doubt, but their advent is not usually hailed with an exuberant joy by men and certainly not by women, and it is curious to note in going through life at what varying ages people commence to show the passage of years by the change in the color of the hair. And yet the whitening of the hair does not always portend the approach of age, for the hair of some individuals laboring under certain passions has been known to become gray in a single night. Many reasons have been suggested for gray hair. Some assert that the cause is a contraction of the skin about the roots of it, and from this cause suppose that polar animals become white, the cold operating as the contracting power. But this theory is untenable, or we might all turn gray if we happened to be exposed to particularly hard frosts. As a matter of fact, there are fewer gray people in Russia than in sunny Italy or Arabia. The more likely reason is that the vital power is lessened in the extreme ramifications of those almost imperceptible vessels destined to supply the hair with coloring fluid. The vessels which secrete the fluid cease to act, or else the absorbent vessels take it away faster than it is furnished. This certainly appears to be feasible, for grief, debility, fright, fever and age all have the effect of lessening the power of the extreme vessels. Against this theory it may be urged that if the body be again invigorated the vessels ought, according to our reasoning, to again secrete the coloring fluid, but to this it may be replied that the vessels which secrete this fluid are so very minute that upon their ceasing their functions they become obliterated and nothing can ever restore them.—New York Ledger.

Trade Devices on Wheels.

Various familiar articles of trade are used as models for the bodies of delivery wagons. Of these the trunk is perhaps the most commonly used. Wagons made with the body in the semblance of a big trunk may be seen in many cities, the delivery wagons of the dealers in trunks and kindred articles. Perhaps the next most familiar is the trunk with the body in the form of a great hat, the delivery wagon of a hatter. Another form not unfamiliar is that of the great shoe, made of metal, and mounted on wheels and used as the delivery wagon of a shoe dealer. Like the great hat, the shoe may be painted or all glazed. All of these devices have a seat outside, in front, and they have a door at the rear end. The shoe is mounted on the running part, with the toe to the front. The driver's seat is over the tip of the toe or in front of it. The door by which parcels are got in and out of the wagon is in the heel of the great shoe at the back.

A wagon used for the delivery of packages from a laundry has a body in the form of a great wash boiler. Perhaps the latest of these trade devices on wheels is shown in a wagon used for the delivery of a proprietary article that is sold in liquid form. In this case the wagon body is in the shape of a great bottle.—New York Sun.

A Fresh Clue—Warrants for Arrest Issued.

Cowanville, Nov. 12.—(Special).—Detective Gale, accompanied by District Magistrate Mulvena, of Sherbrooke, is here, endeavoring to get to the bottom of a fresh clue in connection with the Edly murders at Clarenceville some years ago.

One witness only was examined, and on the strength of his testimony, warrants were issued for the arrest of two men, which will likely be served in the course of the day.

All is mystery at present, but startling developments are promised.

McKINLEY'S GUEST.

Laurier Dined at the White House.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 11.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the Canadian premier, Sir Louis Davies, the minister of Marine, of Canada, and the other officials who are taking part in the Behring Sea negotiations, were entertained at dinner by President McKinley, at the Executive Mansion tonight. The list of guests assembled in the Blue parlor shortly before 8 o'clock, where President McKinley met them. Escorting Premier Laurier, the President led the way to the way to the private dining room, where the table, simply adorned with white chrysanthemums, was set. The Marine band was present, and played throughout the dinner. The guests were: Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Sir Louis Davies, the Secretary of State, the Secretary of the Treasury, the Sec. of War, Attorney-General, the Secretary of the Interior and of Agriculture, the Secretary to the President, Hon. R. W. Day, assistant secretary of state; Hon. J. A. Casson, Prof. D. Wentworth Thompson and Mr. James Macoun.

BATTLESHIP INJURED

Canca, November 11.—The first-class British battleship Empress of India has met with a serious accident in a gale, which is prevailing here. Her rudder was broken by heavy sea and her hull was seriously damaged. Her stern compartments is full of water. She has run for shelter under the lee of Standia Island, off the town of Candia. The battleship Royal Sovereign has gone to her assistance.

DYNAMITE DICK KILLED.

He Said He Preferred to Die With His Boots on and He Did.

Wichita, Kan., Nov. 9.—Charles Clifton, alias Dynamite Dick, the notorious outlaw, was killed yesterday at the house of Sid Williams, fifteen miles west of Checotah, Indian Territory, by deputy marshals. They had been on his trail for three weeks and had chased him all over the Cherokee Nation, but his knowledge of the country enabled him to elude them. Yesterday they learned that he was at the home of Williams and the house was surrounded.

Clifton refused to surrender and said he preferred to die with his boots on. He opened fire on the attacking party, but as Williams and his family were in the house, they did not fire until the outlaw exposed himself.

Several of the deputies were wounded by bullets from Clifton's gun, and the outlaw stepped to the door so that he could do better execution. He received a volley of bullets and fell forward mortally wounded. The deputies carried the body to Checotah, where it was positively identified. Clifton had been the terror of the Indian country for several years, being the head of one of the boldest outlaw gangs that operated in that wild country. He got the name of Dynamite Dick because he used to bore holes in his cartridges and fill them with dynamite, which would explode with deadly effect after striking a solid substance. He was implicated in numerous bank and express robberies.

DURRANT REPRIEVED.

He Will Not Hang Today.

San Francisco, Nov. 11.—William Henry Durrant, who was sentenced to be hanged on the 12th instant, has received a reprieve, and will be allowed to live a little longer before suffering the punishment for the crime of which he has been found guilty.

Up to four o'clock this afternoon, when the news was flashed over the wires from Sacramento that the court now in session there, had granted a writ of probable cause, and instructed Warden Hale not to carry out the execution of Durrant until further orders, there was apparently no further hope for the condemned murderer of Blanche Lamont and Minnie Williams.

Captain Edgar, who opened the despatch in the absence of the warden, immediately wrote a note conveying the information to Durrant. The message was sent to the death cell by a guard. Durrant quickly read it, and without any great display of emotion fell on his knees and prayed silently for several minutes. Mrs. Durrant, the mother of the prisoner, was passenger on the 3:30 boat from San Francisco. When she reached the prison the news was told to her. She was cheerful on the way over, saying that she had put her faith in God, and felt that he would not desert her. On arrival at the prison she was informed that her son's life had been spared, and that she might see him later. "Thank God," she said.

Change of Heart.

Sweet Girl—I hope you will call again. Mr. Goodhead (new admirer)—Thank you, I should be delighted to call very soon again if I were sure of finding you at home.

"Oh, I'm nearly always at home, but—let me see—it won't do for you to call Tuesday evening, for that is the night of the Home Mission meeting, and Wednesday night the Emperor's Daughters meet, and Thursday the Blue Ribbons have a most important session, and Friday is the monthly meeting of the Dorcas club, and Saturday the Browning club—really I hardly know what day to set, but—"

"Um! Do you expect to belong to those societies always?"

"Oh, yes, indeed! I'm a life member of them all."

"Er—I should like to call again soon, but this is our busy season, and I shall be confined very closely to the office for several months. Good evening."—New York Weekly.

The Bloomer Question.

"Our society," said the young woman who belongs, "has decided that bloomers shall be banned."

"How vulgar!" said the girl who does not belong. "They ought never to be in either than solid colors."—Indianapolis Journal.

The Hawks of New England.

In my opinion the sparrow hawk is the handsomest of his race. His back is bright, golden cinnamon, his wings steel blue and jet black and his tail chestnut, with a broad black band. His breast is beautifully marked with chainlike patterns of black spots. His mate is chestnut above, banded with black. Unlike other hawks, the plumage of these birds does not vary with age. They usually make their appearance on some still, cloudy day about the last of March and take up their position in the meadows. From then until September they are always to be seen either perched on the topmost twig of some tall elm or hovering in the air on the look-out for prey. Their nest is in some hollow tree or deserted woodpecker's hole or even a last year's crow's nest.

I have often tried to account for the seemingly friendly relations existing between the sparrow hawk and golden winged woodpeckers. Both frequently occupy holes in the same branch and sit side by side on top of some tall stub without the least sign of disagreement, although, unless I am very much mistaken, the sparrow hawk often attacks larger birds and might easily carry off the young ones when the old birds were absent.—William E. Cram in Popular Science Monthly.

KELLY PLEADS GUILTY.

On Condition that the Date of Execution would be Jan. 16 1899.

Dover, N. H., Nov. 11.—Jos. E. Kelley, who for the past three days has been on trial, charged with the murder of Joseph A. Stiekney, the aged cashier of the Great Falls National Bank, of Somersworth, upon the opening of the court this morning, retracted his plea of not guilty and pleaded guilty to the charge against him, throwing himself upon the mercy of the court. Kelly addressed the court saying: "Your Honor: This question of retracting my plea all remains with Your Honor; if you will fix the date of the execution on the 16th of January, 1899, then, Your Honor, I retract my plea and plead guilty to the charge of murder. I plead guilty of murder," he repeated in a voice distinct and unmoved.

County Solicitor Nason, in answer to a query, said the State had made no concession, but that the prisoner pleaded guilty on his own responsibility.

Upon hearing Kelley's statement, the court decided that the jury should be discharged and the court would hear further evidence in the case to determine the degree.

HIGHWAY ROBBERS.

Mr. Boyer Held up and Robbed Near St Hyacinthe.

St. Hyacinthe, Que., Nov. 11.—Yesterday afternoon at 5.30, while Mr. Boyer, Inspector of the Bell Telephone Company, who had been making repairs on wires three miles west of this city, was attacked and robbed of $40 while returning home.

Mr. Boyer was driving along the road near a piece of woods and met a buggy containing three men. One of them sprang from their buggy into Mr. Boyer's rig, threw a blanket over his head and drugged him, probably with chloroform.

After relieving him of his money they took his revolver from his pocket, emptied it and then hid it in the back of his buggy.

When Boyer recovered consciousness the robbers had disappeared. At present there is no clue.

THORNTON-BUCKLAND.

Barnston, Nov. 11.—A fashionable but quiet wedding took place here last evening, at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. A. L. Parker. Miss Jennie Elizabeth, second daughter of Mr. Osmond Buckland of this place, was married to Mr. Paige R. Thornton, eldest son of the late C. P. Thornton, also of Barnston. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Geo. Stafford, assisted by Rev. Mr. Terry.

The bride looked very nice, gowned in a travelling suit of green novelty, trimmed with grey Persian lamb and green velvet, and carried a bouquet of callulilies. After many congratulations were tendered the newly married couple, they, with their many friends present, adjourned to the dining room, where a bountiful repast was provided. The decorating of the dining hall with flowers was beautiful, as well as artistic.

The newly married couple left about 10 o'clock, amid a shower of good wishes and old shoes for their newly arranged home in Barnston.

The presents, which were numerous and costly, testified to the many warm friends of Mr. and Mrs. Thornton, who wish for them every happiness.

PROMOTED FOR GALLANTRY.

A New York Policeman Rewarded for Catching a Burglar.

Hon. Theodore Roosevelt writes an article entitled "The Roll of Honor of the New York Police" for The Century. Mr. Roosevelt says:

Early in our term we promoted a patrolman to the grade of roundsman for activity in catching a burglar under rather peculiar circumstances. I happened to note his getting a burglar one week. Apparently he had fallen into the habit, for he got another the next week. In the latter case the burglar escaped from the house soon after midnight and ran away toward Park avenue, with the policeman in hot chase. The New York Central railroad runs under Park avenue, and there is a succession of openings in the top of the tunnel. Finding that the policeman was gaining on him, the burglar took a desperate chance and leaped down one of these openings at the risk of breaking his neck. Now the burglar was running for his liberty, and it was the part of wisdom for him to imperil life or limb, but the policeman was merely doing his duty, and nobody could have blamed him for not taking the jump. However, he jumped, and in this particular case the hand of the Lord was heavy upon the unrighteous. The burglar had the breath knocked out of him, and the "cop" didn't. When his victim could walk, the officer trotted him around to the station house, and a week afterward he himself was promoted, it appearing upon careful investigation that he was sober, trustworthy and strictly attentive to his duty.

Here again it seems to me that we followed the eminently common sense plan of promoting a man who had earned his promotion by faithful and distinguished service and by proved superior capacity. We cared no more for the policeman's views on the tariff or the currency than we did for those of the burglar. Our interest and the interest of citizens generally was to have the officer catch that burglar and otherwise do his duty. If he did his duty, we were for him; if he did not, we were against him. In neither event did we care whether the officer had or had not the backing of the congressional delegation of the city or the central committee of the county. Of course, as before, this exposed us to wild outcries from the local political bosses and heelers and much sneering at "civil service reform," but all the outcries and sneers meant was that we were doing our duty as decent men and as public officials, with some slight appreciation of what was implied by the words honor and uprightness. Political organizations are eminently necessary and useful, but when they are seized by professional spoils politicians of low morality, who run the "machine" in their own interests, who clamor against honesty and defy decency and rail against that device for obtaining clean government which is known as civil service reform, then it is time for all citizens who believe in good citizenship to rise in revolt.

A South American Revolution.

There came the sharp sound of a gunshot. Immediately it was followed by others, by a regular fusillade, by the howling of hasty commands, by the scurrying of feet in the corridors, the clatter of steel, a babel of raucous voices and all the confused tumult of an army caught napping by the enemy. Above the clamor rose a cry that sent the blood tingling through my veins. "Viva el presidente! Viva el Presidente Diaz!"

The press of conflict drew nearer minute by minute. The insurgents, getting the worst of it, were falling back upon the shelter of the farmstead. I was exultant. Now, by peering through the narrow slit that did duty for window in my carrel, I caught spasmodic glimpses of the strife—figures in dirty blue flitting from tree trunk to tree trunk, ever in the direction of the house, shadows in gray, with red sashes worn bandolier fashion—the president's soldiery—advancing steadily and surely, pouring in a hot fire that bade fair soon to make of the retreat a demoralized rout. A few stray bullets splattered against the walls of the alqueria, but I was too fascinated to heed the warning. Not until a missile more minatory than the rest, snipped a fragment off the window sill did I judge it wise to duck down and await the outcome of the attack with what composure I could muster.

Nor had I long to wait. As I afterward learned, Don Miguel had been killed early in the action, and his dispirited supporters, thus deprived of leader, retained small stomach for further fighting—indeed, most of them were quite eager now to eat their principles and cast their votes in favor of the opposition candidate. The campaign, both military and political, was at an end.—Chambers' Journal

Expert Opinion.

A MURMUR.

I wrote her name on the soft, shining sand, For love had written it with my blood. The incoming tide, with its incessant flood, Dashed o'er the letters, leaving level sand.

AMID ROMANCE.

The fact that he was riding a bicycle should have kept him from remembering that he was not living in an age of romance, but he forgot it, and to live in the midst of a matter of fact world and forget that it is such is what makes most of the tragedies of that world.

There were excuses for him, of course—the first that he was young; the second that he was care free, and the last and, as the nursery rhyme has it, the best that he had come from the early spring of New York to that of southern California.

He had ridden through willow paths along the gravel roads that a month before had been the bed of the San Gabriel. He had crossed the shallow gleaming branches of the stream time and again. He had loomed from the green swell of the divide over as green a valley, where wild flowers were thick on the ground and where peach and almond trees made pink and white patches.

He coasted down the incline of the divide and made for the Monte road by tree bordered byways and paths. There was not a flake of dust in the splendid air. All kinds of picturesque, old world things ought to happen. In a garden of this sort man ought certainly not to be alone.

The woman entered the garden. She was neither nymph of the zanja nor sprite of the field, only a black gowned school-girl, who stood on the schoolhouse steps and waved a handkerchief at the passing tourist. The tourist was a man and young, which was all the schoolgirl cared about.

The girl was pretty and willowy, like the figure moving through the decked sunshine that came in through the plummy branches of the peppers. They were all alone in the midst of spring and the garden, birds were singing from the earth, the sun was shining from the sky and the soft wind blew from the sea beyond the valley.

Her name, she said, was Alicia. How sweet the sound of the vowels, how different the stern Nelson to which he had to confess! But even that was pretty when she said it. How old was she? She was 15. The heroines of the poets were that age. Where did she live? Some vague way over there among the pink blossoms.

All the wisdom he had accumulated in the years between then and now had vanished. He did not want it. He forgot that he had meant to reach the hotel of the valley by luncheon time. He was not hungry, but Alicia was. She put her plump brown hand into her pocket and brought out a newspaper roll. Inside of the paper there were two tortilla and a bolita meat. She ate these while she talked to him, and when she had finished she started to draw the back of her wrist across her mouth, but remembering the teachings of school and the presence of the foreign young man she took out her handkerchief.

"What is your father's name?" "Mateo Manzano," she answered, winding one of her heavy braids around her hand. "I will come to see you tonight," he told her. "Yes," she murmured, with musical indifference, as she went leisurely up the pathway and never once looked back.

The man rode on to the hotel and returned to real life as he asked if a valise and a trunk had come and if there were any letters for Nelson Cameron. There was one. After he had had his luncheon he sat on the long piazza, from which the snow capped mountains could be seen through the climbing roses, and read it, but the letter was dull, and the memory of the brown hair and eyes that had always seemed the most beautiful in the world paled beside that of two soft, black braids and two orbs as soft and as black. There was a vague promise that the owner of the brown hair and eyes might be in California, too, ere long. Cameron was not so pleased as he tried to think he was. He began to imagine the meeting of that night.

It came about. Old Manzano and his fat, black wrapped wife did not object to him in the least. He walked for hours up and down the moonlit road with Alicia's hand in his and went from her—a Lord

Love on a steed of glittering steel—at midnight.

The poison was in his blood. He had eaten of the lotus, and he forgot how to die. He gave reckless rein to the coursing of young blood, and so a fortnight passed away. There were no more letters. They were being sent to Santa Barbara, where he had told the brown eyed girl that the first weeks in March would find him. He had not written to her. He had meant to, but it was the land of poco tiempo.

In pursuance of the romance he was living, he one day put on the dirty overalls and hat of old Manzano and went with Alicia to the San Gabriel railway station to wash and pack oranges. Alicia was dressed in faded dark blue, with a yellow handkerchief around her neck and a pink bow in her hair. She was very pretty and very open in accepting the open devotion of the American. It was still just a lark for him. It was rather more for her—a little more.

A stately drove up to the station, and the driver stopped, that his eyes of tourists might watch one of the really picturesque scenes left to the United States. Some of the washers looked up. Cameron and Alicia Manzano were talking together and did not. Both were gazing light love into each other's eyes. The boss of the gang came up to the tally with a handful of oranges. The finest one, all wet and glistening with its scrubbing, he offered to the girl on the next seat.

"Thank you. What a splendid one!" she said. "I am so thirsty that it will taste good." "May I peel it for you?" he asked, with an intonation that showed him English at once. He had not offered to peel them for the others, but this was a very beautiful woman, with brown hair and a skin that reminded him of the women at home. While he prepared it she looked at the washers, and when he handed it to her, "Thank you," she said again. "And can you tell me who that man by the girl in the blue gown is? He is evidently not Mexican."

He wondered why she should care to know, but he answered: "No, he is an American. All I can tell you about him is that his name seems to be Nelson. It is what the girl calls him."

"The girl?" "A picturesque flirtation, I gather from her father. It has been going on for some weeks, and the old man says Nelson, or whatever his name really is, means to marry her, but it is unsaid."

"Very, I should say," said the girl reflectively. "They rarely do, these whites that make love to pretty Mexicans," added the Englishman.

The pretty Mexican cast up her dark eyes just then and took notice of the tally-ho. She had known it was there all along, but she had not been interested in it. "The lady on the front watch you," she murmured to her companion. Cameron glanced up. He caught the unflattering look of the brown eyes, and the scales—the rose scales of romance—fell from his own. He dropped the orange that he held in the water in his tub and started to the tally-ho, but he took only a step, then went back. The girl on the front had turned to the others.

"Can't we get out for awhile? I'm sure we are all cramped and tired, and I should like to watch this pretty scene for a bit." The Englishman heaved her down, but she thanked him and walked away. Her manner implied that she would make her own investigations. She wandered among the boxes and the trays, hearing a word to the washers here and there. Most of them did not understand her. She came up finally beside Cameron's tub and spoke to him. The onlookers fancied that she might be asking how many oranges he had cleaned that day. Alicia, a half dozen feet away at the end of the tray, was unconcerned. So the Anglo-Saxon conducts his tragedy.

"It is evidently more attractive here than in Santa Barbara," the fair American said in cool, placid tones. Cameron stammered. "I can't blame you. It breaks my heart, of course, but that can't be helped. I can stand it, and better now than later. Only I cared for you a great deal—a great, great deal." She stopped.

"Don't you now?" asked Cameron baldly. "Yes, I suppose I always shall, too; but, of course, I shall never see you again. He started to protest, a little outraged in feelings at her severity. "Please don't make a scene," she said anxiously. "It won't do any good. You ought to know me well enough to know that."

Cameron reflected that Alicia would have screamed and cried and stampered perhaps, but would have forgiven. That was her Latin blood. This girl was Anglo-Saxon. She would never forgive, but neither would she ever forget. He understood. He was of her race. So he kept silence. "Do you love her?" she asked him. "No." "Is she—was she good?" "I think so."

"Did you tell her you would marry her?" "Yes." He did not attempt to evade. "Then you will keep the promise, will you not?" He did not answer. "I must leave that to you," she finished. "If you think you should, you will do it. Goodbye."

The cool possessors of hot, young blood parted after the manner of the well bred of their kind. The girl drove away through the country romance. She was in Elysian fields and her heart and soul were in hades, but no one knew that. The man washed his fruit in silence while the little daughter of the land stood beside him, patiently waiting for him to speak. When he did, he said, "We shall be married in a week at the mission. Alicia."

"Yes," she answered, pleased. And the romance was closed.—Gwen. Olsen Overton in Argonaut.

Another Kind. Lord Wolsey makes no secret of the fact that he is extremely superstitious—indeed, he once owned, in a letter to the members of the Thirteen club, that while in Ireland he had worn out several hats by the thorough saluting single magpies and that he would never "on any account" walk under a ladder. He also believes in ghosts and can tell some exceedingly strange stories of regimental spooks. He would be curious to discover whether this renowned soldier has ever planned any military engagement upon the dreaded Friday.

THE GREATEST WONDER OF THE AGE—RHEUMATISM CURED. Rheumatism is caused by uric acid in the blood. This acid is poisonous matter and is nothing more than the waste, worn out matter—the refuse, so to speak, of the fire that burns when you think, speak, act or work. This waste is carried in the dark current of the vein back from all parts of the body to the heart, to be forced through the kidneys for purification, and this poison constantly forming must be kept out of the blood. If not, this poison acid will gather in all the muscles and joints of the human body, and to remove it has so far defied the skill of all physicians up to the present day. The Great NORTH AMERICAN INDIAN RHEUMATIC CURE. The only thing that has ever been known to effect a perfect cure. It is a new thing to the white man but an ancient thing to the North American Indian. This medicine contains no drugs, and is made of purely roots, herbs, barks, seeds and flowers gathered by the dusky sons of the forest. Two bottles of this medicine are guaranteed to cure any case of Rheumatism, no matter how long standing or the money will be refunded. Sold by all druggists.

This remedy is the best blood purifier yet known, as it excites the kidneys to a healthy action at once, causing them to throw the poisonous matter off and therefore it must be recognized also as a kidney cure. PRICE, $1 per bottle.

WHAT A HERFORD LADY SAYS. I was taken sick last fall with Rheumatism. I was so bad that I could not move in bed and they had to move me on a stretcher. I had the doctor. He did not help me. I was advised to get a bottle of the Great North American Indian Rheumatic Cure, as many of my neighbors had been cured by using it. After using three bottles, I am thankful to say, I was cured, and I am thankful that the Indian medicine ever came to light. Mrs. W. G. Hibbard, Sept 19, '97. Half Street, Coaticook, N.P.

WHAT A PROMINENT NOTARY SAYS ABOUT THE REMEDY. This is to certify that I have suffered from Rheumatism for many years. Last spring I tried the Great North American Indian Rheumatic Cure. I took a few bottles of it and found great relief. I have much pleasure in recommending it to those who may suffer from Rheumatism, being convinced that this remedy will, at least help, it cure them entirely. H. C. Chagnon, N.P. Coaticook, Sept. 18, 1897.

WHAT A PROMINENT DOCTOR SAYS. I am now prescribing the Great North American Indian Rheumatic Cure for my patients. I believe this remedy is the surest cure for Rheumatism and Kidney Disease or anything yet discovered. DR. C. N. STEVENSON, Coaticook, May 3, 1897.
