Debate limiting proposals start wild talkathon

OTTAWA (CP) — The debate on how to limit debate in the Commons is turning into the windiest of the session.

It began last September and went on until December when a partial new set of rules was agreed upon.

The controversial issue of time allocation was handed to a committee which produced a report June 20. Debate on it began Tuesday.

Hydro workers seek conciliation

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian Union of Public Employees announced Tuesday it has broken off negotiations with Hydro-Quebec and will ask Labor Minister Maurice Bellemare to name a conciliator.

Fernand Daoust, Quebec president of the union, told a news conference Hydro-Quebec had shown a "provocative" tendency.

He said that Hydro management has refused to negotiate any point put forward by the union, which represents some 8,000 Hydro-Quebec employees.

Mr. Daoust said four items are at the centre of the deadlock.

The union said the publicly-owned utility refused to include the different social security plans in the negotiations, even after Hydro president Jean-Claude Lessard publicly invited the employees to "participate" in the utility's activity.

The second item is Hydro's monetary offer of a three-per-cent pay increase over two years and an additional two per cent for the third year of a three-year contract.

Mr. Daoust said the offer would actually be "salary decreases," since the percentages are lower than expected cost-of-living increases over the period.

The union is asking for a two-year contract with a 20-per-cent pay increase for office employees, a 15-per-cent increase for technicians and a 21.6-per-cent increase for tradesmen.

Another point of contention is Hydro's practice of sub-contracting work on a permanent basis, which Mr. Daoust says leads to patronage and supplementary expenditures.

Also, the union maintains that the company has attempted to include in the negotiations a number of acquired employee rights.

The dispute involves four collective agreements that have been under simultaneous negotiation, covering office employees, employees in energy transportation, craftsman and technicians.

The union submitted its demands Nov. 20. Management presented its offer last Wednesday.

recommendations in the report could limit debate on a bill to two days. Tuesday proposed that the whole issue be sent back to committee, presumably to come up again in the fall.

The motion by Gerald W. Baldwin (Peace River), the Conservative House Leader, drew NDP and Creditiste support.

However, the government, apparently hoping to talk the opposition into accepting some formula, gave no sign of acceptance of this idea.

In July, the numbers games should be played at county fairs, not in the House of Commons," R. G. L. Fairweather (PC—Fundy-Royal) growled.

The government in the spring estimated that the House could rise for summer recess June 27 but some MPs predict the rules debate could last another two weeks.

As the Commons argued about the rules, the Senate gave second reading to the official languages bill. The upper house meets again today.

Meanwhile, the Commons will continue the locked rules battle with no sign of retreat on either side.

Eldon Woolliams (PC—Calgary North) said his party is prepared to debate the subject all summer.

An unusual feature of Tuesday's session was the lack of a question period, the daily grilling of the cabinet by the opposition.

The reason was that the House never got past the first order of business, consideration of the procedure committee's report. A question period will be held today because under House rules the speaker is not again the first item of business.

Government House Leader Doris S. Macdonald began Tuesday with a surprise withdrawal of a government motion containing rule changes similar to those proposed in the procedure committee's report.

The government had introduced this motion to allow amendments without being forced to send the matter back to committee. A committee report cannot be amended in the Commons.

The opposition said the government motion made a mockery of the committee system.

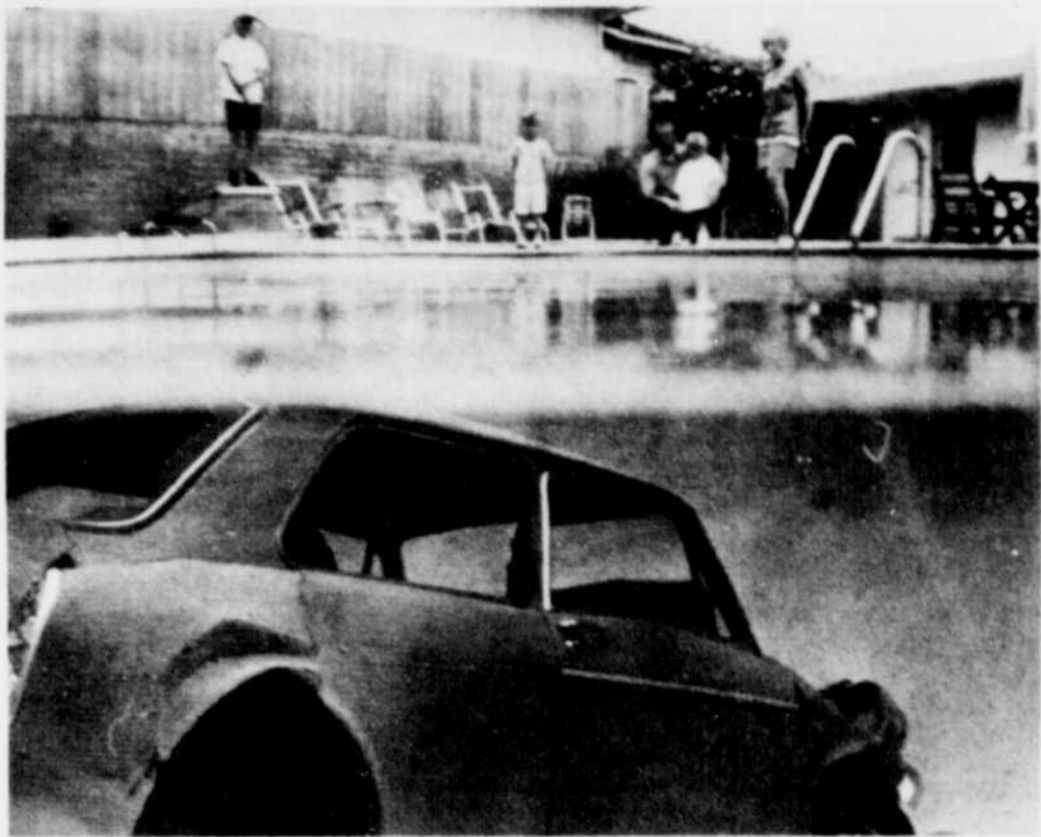

Mr. Macdonald's withdrawal came after a morning session in which Liberal members of the committee, under Chairman Gordon Blair (Greenville-Carleton), were reported to have criticized the way the matter has been handled.

Mr. Blair asked Commons concurrence in the committee report, touching off the debate proper.

The committee report proposes three new rules on time allocation.

They are: 75A, which would provide for all-party agreement on debate limits; 75B, which would allow limits to be set by agreement of three of the four parties; and 75C, which would allow the government alone to limit debate.

Bombs rock Quebec City region

CAR SWAN DIVES INTO POOL — How to get this foreign-made auto out of his swimming pool is a problem confronting Robert Howe of Glendale, Cal., pictured with his wife, Helen, and children, Jeff, 9, Brad, 7, and Stacey, 2. The empty auto slipped its parking brakes, crashed an embankment and fell over a 40-foot cliff into the pool. Howe says there's no way a wrecker can get in without rearranging the back yard. QUEBEC (CP) — Two bombs, one apparently linked to a construction dispute, exploded in the Quebec City area late Tuesday night and early today. There were no known injuries.

Spaced about 1½ hours apart — the first exploding shortly before midnight — the bombs destroyed an empty car in suburban Cap Rouge and heavily damaged a building under construction in Quebec City.

Dollar estimates of damage were not available.

Police said the first explosion shattered windows in surrounding homes.

The second explosion was on the site of a six-storey commercial building under construction.

The bombings were the sixth and seventh in the province since early Monday when five blasts linked to a construction dispute rocked Montreal.

There were no injuries in the Montreal blasts which occurred in four different sectors of the metropolitan area.

They exploded in less than 45 minutes, starting about 5:05 a.m.

The bombs, made of several sticks of dynamite, were planted at the entrances of construction company offices.

The bombings are the latest in a series of blasts aimed at construction company offices in Montreal and elsewhere in Quebec.

The last previous explosion damaged the headquarters of the Calcific company in Quebec City June 21.

Eleven thousand construction workers—members of the Confederation of National Trade Unions—are on strike in Quebec City and the Eastern Townships.

They are seeking higher wages and better job security.

In Quebec City, 6,000 workers went on strike May 12 and another 5,000 in the Eastern Townships stopped work one month later.

Chartered bank general loans in June totalled $14,873,000,000 and had grown since March at an annual rate of more than 20 per cent. But during June they were reined in with little or no expansion.

Most recent DBS figures on consumer credit show $8,099,000,000 outstanding at the end of April, though this does not include large amounts of retail credit for such things as gasoline credit cards, doctors' and other professional services. Figures for these are either not available, or are collected only at infrequent intervals.

While Mr. Rasminsky said the fight against inflation must be persevering—and tough—he told the committee he sees a glimmer of hope that interest rates will reach their peak and turn down in the foreseeable future.

He described himself as "an optimistic central banker."

To distinguish himself from the other and more dour gnomes of finance, he defined an optimistic central banker as "one who believes the situation may be deteriorating at a somewhat slower rate than it has force. In industrially-rich Ontario it was 3.2 per cent, but in the Atlantic provinces and Quebec it was 7.8 and 7.2 per cent respectively.

Mr. Rasminsky said the Bank of Canada is fighting inflation—and the psychology which has led people to believe prices will keep on going up—by tightening the money supply and letting interest rates rise to unprecedented levels to discourage spending.

Currency in circulation and privately-held chartered bank deposits totalled $27,687,000,000 last month, down 2.6 per cent from March. Canadian chartered banks now charge a minimum of 8½ per cent a year on loans to their most credit-worthy customers, compared with 7½ at the beginning of June.

All other interest rates range higher than these so-called "prime" rates. Some trust and loan companies are paying depositors more than eight per cent for their money, which the companies loan out at 10 per cent or more.

Department store "easy-payment" plans are charging nearly 20 per cent a year. Unless shoppers pay off one-fifth of their accounts and service charges each year, they'll never wipe out the debt.

WOULD FAIL

Mr. Rasminsky said regional favoritism can't be shown in Canada to the depressed areas. If artificially low rates were set for loans in the Maritime provinces, no money would be loaned there, and any maritime lenders would move their money to central Canada.

Nor should special solicitude be shown for consumer credit, in preference to loans for business, Mr. Rasminsky said.

No painless solution to inflation problem

OTTAWA (CP) — Governor Louis Rasminsky of the Bank of Canada is such a nice guy that the Commons finance committee seems to find it hard to believe he can be tough.

He doesn't, for instance, like to talk about unemployment, but he does talk about needing "a degree of slack" in the economy.

But he has every intention of being tough in the central bank's fight against inflation, he told Tuesday's committee hearing.

There is no painless solution to the current inflationary wave and high interest-rate structure, he said.

Some amount of slack—meaning unemployment of both men and machines—will have to be encouraged, and favoritism can't be shown the less-developed parts of the country.

Neither should any special solicitude be given to consumers wanting to increase their credit-card buying, he said.

Mr. Rasminsky returns to the committee after the Commons question period today for further cross-questioning by committee members.

He said Tuesday there is no rule of thumb among economists on how much unemployment there has to be in an economy such as Canada's to take care of those who are moving from job to job and to keep prices stable.

DOUBLE THRUST

When unemployment drops below some magic figure—whatever it is—labor scarcities result in bidding up wages, and higher total income results in bidding up prices. Higher wages also result in higher costs, putting a double thrust on price rises.

Latest Dominion Bureau of Statistics and manpower department figures show that unemployment in May amounted to 4.7 per cent of Canada's labor force. In industrially-rich Ontario it was 3.2 per cent, but in the Atlantic provinces and Quebec it was 7.8 and 7.2 per cent respectively.

Mr. Rasminsky said the Bank of Canada is fighting inflation—and the psychology which has led people to believe prices will keep on going up—by tightening the money supply and letting interest rates rise to unprecedented levels to discourage spending.

Liberals retain NS riding

MUSQUODOBOIT HARBOR, N.S. (CP) — The Liberals retained the Halifax Eastern Shore riding Tuesday with their first win in five bye-elections called since the last Nova Scotia general election in 1967.

A. Garnet Brown, 39, a Halifax food broker, polled 3,963 votes to win the seat held by Dr. Duncan MacMillan until his death earlier this year.

Progressive Conservative Murray Prest had 2,989 votes and Stephen Hart, the New Democratic Party candidate, had 369.

The returning office closed for the night after 59 of the 60 polls in the riding had reported. Results were expected today from an advance poll in which about 100 persons voted.

Mr. Prest, a 44-year-old lumberman, conceded the election in a surprise announcement at PC headquarters here. At the time, only 17 polls had reported and results showed Mr. Brown with 995 votes and Mr. Prest with 979.

But official returns were slow coming in and unofficial results at party headquarters showed the Liberals leading by about 600 votes when the announcement was made.

The election gave the Liberals five seats in the 46-seat house, compared with 41 for the Conservatives.

SHOWS AN INCREASE

Mr. Brown's plurality of about 1,000 was an increase from Dr. MacMillan's 519 in the 1967 election when he polled 4,201 votes. Mr. Prest's total of 2,989 was down from the 3,682 votes Conservative Nelson Gaetz received in 1967.

The New Democratic Party had been hopeful following the upset win by the party in Manitoba's general election June 25, but Mr. Hart, a 23-year-old schoolteacher, polled only 369 votes compared with 608 for NDP candidate James Yetman in 1967.

About 7,500—60 per cent—of the 12,500 eligible voters cast ballots.

Mr. Desjardins won June 25 by 1,550 votes over the NDP candidate.

Mr. Schreyer expects his cabinet will be sworn in next week, and his government will work toward calling the legislature into session "before Aug. 1."

Mr. Schreyer needed the 29th seat to form a majority government and has offered the Speaker's job to Jake Froese, the lone Social Creditor.

Mr. Desjardins won June 25 by 1,550 votes over the NDP candidate.

Mr. Schreyer, who came from Ottawa three weeks before the election, led the party to one of the biggest political upsets in Canadian history.

Misunderstood warning of impending collision

SUBIC BAY (AP) — The deck officer of the U.S. destroyer sliced in halves by an Australian aircraft carrier says he misunderstood a message warning that the two ships were on a collision course.

The officer refused to testify formally, but made statements that were read to a board of inquiry at this Philippines U.S. naval base today indicating confusion over the message apparently led to the June 3 collision that killed 74 American sailors.

The sworn statements were made a few hours after the crash by Lieut. Ronald C. Ramsey of Long Beach, Calif., the duty officer aboard the U.S. destroyer Frank E. Evans at the time it collided with the Australian carrier Melbourne in the South China Sea.

The statements said Ramsey thought the Melbourne had sent him a message saying it was changing its course to 160 degrees. This would have meant the carrier was making a left turn.

The Melbourne's commander had testified the message stated the carrier's course was 200 degrees. Officers aboard other ships in the area confirmed his testimony.

After the message was sent, the Evans and the Melbourne collided while trying to avoid each other.

REFUSES TO TESTIFY

Ramsey, who has been warned he is suspected of negligence, has refused to testify before the board of U.S. and Australian officers on grounds such testimony would be self-incriminating.

Ramsey made his statements in a handwritten report, a long-typed manuscript, and an interview with officers gathering information immediately after the accident.

He said in the interview that he had not immediately awakened the commander of the Evans—standard procedure when changes of course are needed—because he did

Two others injured

Magog man is killed in head-on collision at Bury

BURY — (Staff) — The twisted wreckage of his sports car trapped the body of a 25-year-old Magog man for hours last night following a collision with a truck on Route 28 between here and Gould.

The sports car driver, Onil Goyette of 318 St. Jacques Street, Magog, was travelling alone at the time. Two occupants of the truck, Jean-Guy Tanguay, 26, and Miss Micheline Tanguay, 15, both of St. Gideon de Beauce, were taken to the Hotel Dieu Hospital in Sherbrooke and were released after treatment for light injuries.

The accident at 11 p.m. last night, was a head-on collision between the small car and the heavy truck. The car was thrown for about 40 feet by the impact while the truck was only slightly damaged.

St. Francis District Coroner Dr. Louis Gagnon was called to the scene to pronounce the death of Mr. Goyette, whose body could not be freed from the twisted metal of his car.

Dr. Gagnon said an inquest into the accident will be held at a later date, as yet undetermined.

Quebec Provincial Police of the Cookshire detachment investigated the accident.

Gov't might buy Mont Echo

The provincial department of Tourism, Fish and Game is studying the possibility of buying Mont Echo, the ski centre between Knowlton and Sutton in Brome County.

"We are certainly interested in the site," a Quebec City source told the Record. "We find it most attractive, and we are having an appraisal of the area made by the department of Public Works."

The appraisal is expected to be completed later this month. Before making a recommendation to the cabinet the department of Tourism must decide what it can afford to pay for the property, keeping in mind the relative cost of other similar sites.

Mont Echo is presently controlled by the Trust General du Canada and the Montreal Trust Company. The manager is Andre Page of Knowlton.

If the Tourism Department acquires the site, it will be further developed as a winter and summer outdoor recreation area, along the lines of Mont Ste. Anne or the Oka recreation area.

According to Quebec sources, it is unlikely that Mont Echo would be called a provincial park, as this title is now reserved for larger areas, particularly game reserves.

One pleads not guilty, other suspended

An Asbestos resident pleaded not guilty to a charge of receiving stolen goods yesterday when he appeared before Sessions Judge Benoit Turmel.

He is 27-year-old Reneil Paille of Asbestos.

Paille is accused of having received stolen motorcycles in Asbestos.

He chose to be tried before a judge and jury.

He will appear again before the court on July 10 pro forma.

A 38-year-old Sherbrooke man He is Luc Montabault, 38, of Sherbrooke.

The man had disturbed the peace in the Township of Cleveland. Judge Dugre ordered the accused to sign a bond of $200 to keep the peace for one year.

Police check an East end break-in Sherbrooke police are investigating a break in at the construction site of the East Ward water reservoir on 20th Avenue, where about $300 worth of tools were stolen last night.

Police discovered the incident around 11:30 p.m., but indicate it took place some time between 7 and 10 p.m. in the evening.

The intruders used a wire cutter to break off the lock of the tool shed and then took the tools, police said.

In addition to the theft last night, Sherbrooke police are still investigating three break-ins that occurred over the weekend.

During the last weekend, police had discovered two break-ins in private residences and one in a commercial establishment.

City looking for a new dump yard

City officials are busy negotiating with an Ascot land owner to acquire a piece of property that would be used to bury old cars and other articles littering the city.

The original proposition for such a location came Monday when East Ward Alderman Romeo Quintal voiced complaints the city had no place to store old cars lying about town.

Up until recently, they were carried off to city dump and disposed of, he said.

The city feared the dump would become crowded with such an amount of trash and it would have to find another location for the garbage collected each week. On this point, the city feels garbage has a priority over old cars.

The proposed location is situated on Ascot road, but is not near the main highway.

Alderman Hilaire Beliveau said yesterday the location, would allow city residents with old cars and other articles, such as old furniture, stoves, and refrigerators to rid themselves at a minimal cost.

Mr. Beliveau pointed out the cars would be crushed before being buried.

He said he was planning an anti-litter education campaign for next fall.

He added it would take years to educate the public on litter, which will in fact become a real threat if it is not stamped out soon.

Calls for dissent, without destruction

BY REV. DONALD CAMPBELL (St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church)

The Beatles have a record entitled Revolution, which begins, "You say you want a revolution. Well, you know, we all want to change the world."

In the dialogue that goes on between the proponent of change by revolution and the singers, the revolutionary is challenged to show just where the whole thing is going, and is told that if it is only hate he has to peddle, he'll "just have to wait" — there are no contributions forthcoming for card-carrying Maoists who want to use others as tools in their propagandist and nihilistic programs.

I'm glad for this contemporary song. It speaks for the good sense of many youth who are not so naive as to be sucked in by Marxist slogans and propaganda. It recognises the need for social change, but refuses to be stampeded into remedies that may kill the patient. Like the sure cure for headache-decapitation, the solutions of the violentists of our days, students and older, are too extreme to be of any help.

We should recognize that all men, by virtue of their relation to God as His creatures in the natural order, have both the right and the duty to protest against all unrighteousness and injustice as wrong, as an offence against the divinely constituted moral order. This inherent right may be denied expression by external force or compulsion, but the right remains by the very constitution of things under God. As long as God lives, men have rights and responsibilities within a moral universe. God is better than evil, truth is better than lies, justice is better than injustice, love is better than hate, virtue is better than vice. Why? Because God is the kind of God He is, and that's the way things are in the world He has made.

But there is rebellion in the world against God and His will, which carries over into every aspect of life. We must protest the rebellion against righteousness, against law, against justice, but we must be careful about how we protest. Good ends do not justify bad means, nor may we do evil that good may come. Our protest must be within the bounds of reverence for God, and respect for law and the rights of others. We should say, to anyone who counsels violence and disorder for social change, what the Beatles' song says: "But when you talk about destruction, Don't you know that you can count me out!"

I'm for dissent, wherever unrighteousness raises its dirty head. I'm for dissent in the church when unbelievers try to foist another gospel than that of grace on the people of God. I'm for dissent in the school, when teachers try to dismiss God, morality and responsibility in the name of science or scholarship. I'm for dissent in politics, when governments try to require of the citizen when belongs to God alone or when laws are passed which contradict the revealed will of God.

In each case, any Christian worth his salt has to stand up and be counted, and respectfully dissent.

And here is the crux of the problem. Our dissent and protest must be respectful of constituted authorities, for conscience sake. We can use our legal rights of free association, resolution, petition, the ballot, to effect desired change. But, to violence, we have to say a resolute NO. For the Christian, the best word must be God's, and He counsels us to overcome evil with good.

Magog gets new radar and industry

MAGOG (Special) — The City of Magog will soon be dealing tickets to speeders on a more frequent basis, following a decision taken at city hall last Thursday evening to purchase a radar device for the police department.

The type of radar will be determined by efficiency and cost factors, and should be delivered shortly.

Meanwhile Magog will gain a new industry, La Compagnie Pannier Ceramique, which will occupy the former Industrial Specialty Manufacturing Co. premises.

June was a pleasing month

The weather for the month of June was one of extremes, reports the Research Station in Lennoxville.

Last month saw an average temperature of 62 degrees, two points warmer than the average for June last year. While the maximum average temperature for June was a comfortable 73 degrees, on June 9 temperatures plummeted to 30 degrees.

There was more sun and more rain than average. June proved a benefit to the vacationer and resort owner alike, who must have despaired at the meagre 129 hours recorded for the month last year.

The rainfall was five inches, almost double last year's June total.

Altogether, weather for the month of June had something designed to please everyone.

Civic motor Junkyard has some attractions

While some may question the wisdom of the city establishing a graveyard for abandoned automobiles that have outlived their usefulness, the proposal made by Ald. Romeo Quintal before the Council Monday night is one that deserves detailed study.

Certainly the graveyards now more or less "maintained" by private operators do nothing to enhance the beauty of the city and as most of them are established on the outskirts they do little to impress the visitors with what Sherbrooke has to offer. And, also, there is the problem created by owners of jalopies who find it's to their advantage to park the vehicles on a city street and conveniently forget them because they have lost all commercial value and require substantial outlays to restore them to serviceable condition.

These have to be towed away by the police and in most cases it is impossible to recover the cost of the towing from the owner. And after months of storage they are offered for sale by auction, sometimes fetching 25 cents if there are any takers.

At least a municipally-operated automobile graveyard, established on a backroad, would reduce the number of unsightly dumps now in existence.

But at best this is a poor solution to a problem that is facing all North American cities and towns.

Unfortunately the low prices offered for scrap metal as a result of improved methods of producing steel from newly-mined iron has cut the demand for these old vehicles.

One proposal, which would require action by the federal authorities or at least the provincial governments, is to impose a special tax on all new cars marketed, the receipts to go into a fund to establish balers to crush abandoned vehicles.

This might produce a two-fold result: Rid the countryside of wrecked cars and improve the sales position of the manufacturers by speeding up the time in which a car is consigned to the junkyard.

About 93 per cent of watermelon pulp is water, and 2 per cent sugar. With those odds and our betting luck, it's no wonder we always wind up with the needs.

Bonny's human feelings

The sudden ending of the planned thirty-day orbital flight of Bonny, the ring-tailed space monkey, who was brought back to earth after only nine days aloft, should serve as a warning that animals as well as humans may suffer from boredom.

Reason given by the NASA officials for recalling Bonny is that he was becoming "sluggish," an apparent indication that he was getting tired of doing the same things for the same rewards. In other words he wanted something different.

How often have humans expressed verbally the same idea — that the continuous repetition of the same task day after day is unnerving and that they might suffer a mental break if they do not experience some change in their activities or environment.

Obviously the brain is not a machine.

The abolition of slavery in Canada began 176 years ago today—in 1793—when Upper Canada prohibited the import of slaves and ruled slaves' children would be freed at age 25. In other Canadian colonies, courts refused to uphold slavery as an institution, without legal abolition. Slavery had been accepted by Indians and first French and English settlers but was formally ended by the British Parliament in 1833. Canadians helped run an "underground railroad" to bring Negroes to freedom in Canada from slave states in the United States of America.

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1944—British and Canadian troops captured Caen. Allied planes hammered bridges near Tour in France and attacked the Romanian oil refineries at Ploesti; American troops took La Haye de Puits.

Defence HQ forgets Trudeau hard line

OTTAWA OFFBEAT

BY RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Something funny — if it wasn't all a bit sad — happened on the way to the Confederation Day celebrations here in the National Capital. It sent Armed Forces Headquarters into such a blue funk and flap as hasn't happened since Paul Hellyer "united" the services.

It was the report from Quebec City that from Camp Valcartier, the Armed Forces base near the provincial capital, an official letter was being sent to the British Army's Loyal Regiment, asking that it cancel a scheduled summer visit there.

Reason behind it, explained the Quebec City reports, was that 210 years ago, the Loyal Regiment, known to history as "Wolfe's Own," had helped storm the heights to the Plains of Abraham, defeat Montcalm and wrest Canada from French possession.

Old wounds still rankled memories were long, so please forget the whole thing, an official Canadian Forces spokesman in Quebec City was quoted as requesting, in a letter, to the British Loyalists.

Britain's national newspapers on Fleet Street, and who knows, perhaps to CFHQ itself. It had to be something like that to cause the flap out of which headquarters took the long holiday Confederation Day weekend to shakily emerge.

To Brigadier General Louis Bourgeois, Chief of Armed Forces public relations, fell the tacky task of trying to tell it the way Headquarters thought Canadians might buy it.

COMPROMISE, THEY CALL IT

In from London came incredulous cables of enquiry to Canadian representatives of

It was the old soft-sell of the compromise, a saw-off between Ottawa and Quebec City. The British Loyalists, actually the North Lancashires, come to Canada at the end of this month for some summer training at Camp Petawawa in Eastern Ontario.

Their commanding officer is an old staff college buddy of the officer commanding Quebec City's Camp Valcartier, Brigadier General Roy Reid.

On instructions from his own OC, still in London, Major B. G. Pheysey, the North Lancashire's liaison officer and a one-man advance party already posted to Petawawa, wrote General Roy, saying his old pal thought it would be nice if he could send the regimental band to Quebec City for a spot of concert playing on the Boardwalk and perhaps for a bit of tootling for the Changing of the Guard at the Citadel.

FEEL "WELCOME:" The Quebec City newspapers got wind of it, and up went the balloon. Onto the news wires went the reports, described later by CFHQ here as "false," that the North Lancashire was being SOS'd to for goodness sake forget it, and the flap was well and truly on.

It took the Confederation Day weekend for CFHQ to shake off the panic with the explanation from General Bourgeois that General Roy now (after days of delay) was writing his old buddy-buddy, the CO of the North Lancashires, that the band would be "indeed welcome" in Quebec City — as rubber-necking tourists, but not as musicians specializing in those great, old, slow-beat British marches.

For to have "Wolfe's Own" play for the Changing of the Guard by Quebec's own "Van Doo's" at the Capital, Montcalm's old fortress of defeat back in 1759, might be a bit much.

So come and have fun, but please, no parades, essentially the message that General Roy transmitted to Major Pheysey and the British Loyalists, with the prayerful hope that this diplomatic dippy-do was least likely to offend everyone's sensibilities.

It was all in the name, explained General Bourgeois smoothly in his soft-sell voice, of not doing anything that might excite the separatist bomb-squads.

But wasn't it Prime Minister Trudeau himself just the other day who warned that a hard line had better be taken pretty soon "with those guys who want to throw bombs?" Apparently, National Defence Headquarters wasn't listening.

Who won, who lost in UN leadership voting

The Editor: Sir: The recent N.U. leadership convention appears to have disproved a number of previously accepted assumptions, rather than answer new ones.

The previously held assumption that the victor will be one who polls more votes at this convention must be discarded now. It is quite clear that Mr. Bertrand's 1,300 votes do not prove him to be a political victor any more than Mr. Cardinal's 900 votes prove him to be a loser.

There is one who can be considered a clear winner — Rene Levesque, who didn't even attend this convention. We can also name one who is clearly a loser — Mr. Lesage. If 40 per cent of N.U. has gone nationalist what percentage of his Liberal Quebec following has also turned nationalist?

One prediction is almost a certainty now . . . a nationalist unification convention to be held in Quebec and designed to weld the nationalist fragments into an effective political force. We can expect to see Messrs. Tremblay and Cardinal play important roles in such a convention.

The leadership campaign also disproved the commonly held assumption that the N.U. party was a politically homogenous party. The convention was a full-dress political war, and it is doubtful whether the two factions can work together as a political party. It is doubtful whether the crafty old guard (Duplessis) elements, which support Bertrand, could dream up enough unimportant cabinet posts to keep the nationalist elements occupied.

What about the remnants of the N.U. and Liberal parties? They will obviously merge into a lost ditch, "Stay In Canada" political party . . . but no one will be listening to them. Both parties are becoming an unbearable bore to a honeymoon minded province, Quebec.

Hits discrimination

The Editor: Sir: QUEBEC ??? What does it spell out to me? . . . Quantities of U-nequaled E-english speaking Protestant people whose B-irtheplaces are in Quebec; E-ver C-utoff, and pushed aside by the Catholics.

I am a Protestant and I feel we are all just as equal by right as the Catholics of Quebec. It is our birthplace also, but we are treated like DP's aliens; even if we do pay equal taxes, etc to the government. The government calls on us to do our part just like the Catholics; but . . . if we have to turn to the government for assistance of any kind, we get all kinds of excuses.

As far back as I can trace my family tree, my ancestors were all born, Quebec, Canadians. A couple of months ago I tried to get assistance from our (my) provincial government. Well, I haven't even had a reply. Another example of our "wonderful" Quebec government: A friend of mine, who doesn't have much education, tried to get a card as a painter. He too is a Protestant. And he has also been at this trade since he started working. But . . . the union 'says' he has to take an exam. Does he get his card? Oh! No. More excuses. It's his work to keep his family, his bread and butter. Does the government help him get it? Do they want to give him assistance to keep his family? Oh! No! He's a Protestant.

In my position it's my health I am unable to work full time and have children to support as well as myself. I know of families who are getting the assistance. "Catholics of course," who don't really need it, they are working and have plenty coming in.

Now . . . I ask, is this fair? Why shouldn't my friend get his card; why shouldn't I get the help I need; or why shouldn't other Protestants who need this help, have to fight and beg and plead with Our government to receive any? Even if we are Protestants, we are still Canadians. Why shouldn't we be treated "EQUAL" with the Catholics of OUR province? Can anyone solve this problem? DISGRUNTLED PROTESTANT

Turkish university unrest to intensify

By RALPH JOSEPH
CP Correspondent

ANKARA (CP) — Student unrest at Turkish universities is seen likely to increase in view of the general election being held in October soon after classes begin in the fall. While activists form only a small percentage of Turkey's 100,000-odd university students, they are expected to turn from demands for university reforms to attempts to embarrass the ruling conservative Justice party before the election.

The government postponed the spring university final examinations until September because of earlier disorders. A number of arrests were made and some students went into hiding.

Vanloads of white-helmeted riot police still patrol Ankara's streets, but in general the government's handling of the students has been relatively mild. What is holding the ruling party's hand, observers say, is the memory of what happened to the Democrats in 1960. After roughing up the students, they found themselves ousted by an army coup.

But the Justice party is probably in part to blame for the unrest. It could have discussed university reforms before sending the Senate prematurely into recess.

The leftists in Istanbul University suddenly found something to sink their teeth into. Professors also registered their protest, some of them resigning.

HAD TO FLEE When the university rector objected to protest methods involving what he called "anarchy" after students occupied university buildings, he had to flee the campus under a hail of stones.

Efforts to hold the June examinations under "police protection" were abandoned after police-student clashes. The methods of protest were demonstrations, strikes or boycott of classes, and "ishgal," which literally means occupation. The students claim to have adopted the latter from the 1968 Sorbonne student protests.

The trouble spread to the Middle East Technical University, a UNESCO institute in Ankara, and Ankara University. Boycott and "ishgals" deteriorated into clashes with the police in the capital after students demonstrating in front of the Turkish-United States Logistics Office used Molotov cocktails and hand grenades, or "sound bombs" as the students call them. Police arrested about 38 METU students and about 15 from AU and the universities were sent into recess.

Trouble next erupted at the Aegean University at Izmir, where right- and left-wing students ended up in a bloody clash June 20, using clubs, stones, pistols and shotguns. Eight students were taken to hospital with serious injuries. The police did not interfere at the Izmir incident, claiming the university senate had not called for their help. They stood by, however, and later helped carry wounded students to the ambulances.

SUSPECT SAME GROUP The only institute from which no incidents have so far been reported is Ataturk University at Erzurum, near the Soviet border. Officials, judging from the pattern of the unrest has taken—it went from one university to the next, instead of erupting simultaneously all over—suspect the same group of troublemakers, numbering "50 to 100 in all," were responsible for all the incidents.

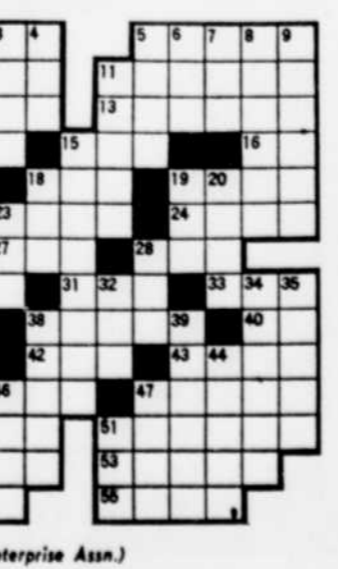

If this is correct, the government is fighting revolutionaries, not students. A talk with one of the student leaders at Ankara University did little to dispel this impression. After outlining complaints about instructors' salaries, lack of student representation in the faculties and refusal by the authorities to give students equal status to professors, the student leader added that "the Americans are directly or indirectly responsible for all Turkey's troubles." Asked what he thought the students had achieved, since the universities were sent into recess without consideration

Small town youths encouraged to become dentists

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The Ontario Dental Association is making an effort to encourage students from small communities, where a shortage of dentists exists, to enter the profession.

A group of 15 selected high school students from small towns in the Stratford-Owen Sound area visited the University of Western Ontario's $7-000,000 dental sciences building here as part of the ODA promotion.

Dr. Glen Mitton, former secretary of the ODA's dental public health branch, said his organization started in 1961 to find out why so few dentists settle in small communities.

"I made a survey of 15 years of student records and found that 64 per cent of the dentists practising in small communities originally came from similar-sized places," he said.

He said 80 per cent of dental students from large cities, such as Hamilton and Toronto, return to set up practices there. "It was obvious that it is very difficult to get these people to move away from the bright lights."

Dr. Mitton said eight of 35 high school students chosen for the two-day university visit in 1962 graduated as dentists and most returned to small communities.

Association officials are trying hard to attract women into the dentistry profession, claiming a woman's strong maternal instinct makes her suited for children's dentistry.

Silvia Schori, a Grade 12 student from Mitchell, Ont., and one of five girls on this year's tour, was convinced after watching Marilyn McLoghlin, a third-year dental student, working on a boy's tooth.

"I really didn't know what dentistry was all about before," she said, "but after this trip I know what I want to do now. This."

ISLANDS' BIGGEST INDUSTRY — Three major companies and a number of independents take $23,000,000 worth of timber a year from the Queen Charlotte Islands, off the coast of British Columbia. Timber is the biggest industry on the islands. Top picture shows a logger shifting timber in a boom near Sandspit and lower shows logs being hoisted onto huge log barge. (CP Photo)

Logging and fishing keep islands moving

By DENNIS BELL

QUEEN CHARLOTTE CITY, B.C. (CP) — The Queen Charlotte Islands, Canada's westernmost frontier, fracture the fast Pacific Ocean currents like the fins of a fantastic humpbacked sea monster.

This is a beautiful land of forbidden forests, jagged mountain peaks, muskeg flats and a hostile coastline chopped into deep fiords by an angry grey-blue sea.

The 200 islands are sprinkled with abandoned settlements, white and Haida Indian. Moss-covered tottem poles lie rotting in the mist near collapsed fish canneries and deserted homesteads.

The Queen Charlottes stand aloof from the rest of British Columbia, about 60 miles from the mainland coast. Settlers made a major attempt to conquer the fog-shrouded land a century ago; it failed miserably.

The islands, scattered in a ragged chain 150 miles from tip to toe, are 3,887 square miles in area, bigger than Prince Edward Island. Many of them are no more than barren rocks where seals sun themselves amid the creamy ocean foam.

Skidegate Inlet divides the islands into northern and southern groups. The northern group is dominated by Graham Island, the southern islands by Moresby.

STORMS BOIL DOWN

The mountains range down the western side of the islands, a massive formation that tears the guts from the ferocious storms that boil down from the Bering Sea.

Only the lighthouse keepers and meteorologists live on the western coastline because of the terrain and climatic conditions. It's one of the most beautiful but inhospitable regions on earth.

The 5,000 islanders dwell on the eastern halves of Graham and Moresby, depending on timber, fishing and mining for a generally comfortable, if isolated, living.

Included are 1,350 Indians, descendants of a race of 10,000 marauding Haida sea warriors. When the Spanish explorer Juan Perez discovered the Queen Charlottes July 17, 1774, the islands had reached their population peak.

The Queen Charlottes have the finest stands of cedar in the world. The Haidas made 75-foot-long war canoes of cedar that could carry 40 warriors and two tons of supplies and equipment.

They roamed the coasts in search of fish, furs and slaves from the Aleutians to northern California. Anthropologists have discovered that Haida canoes were built to exactly the same specifications as modern-day ocean liners, except on a 10-times-smaller scale.

FUR BUSINESS BOOMED

Furs attracted the British to the islands, a full 12 years after Perez and his Spaniards had left the area. By the late 1700s the islands were doing a booming business in seal, otter and sea lion pelts.

The islands drew their name from Captain George Dixon's ship, the Queen Charlotte, which in turn was named after the wife of King George III of England.

By 1825 more than 250 ships had visited the Queen Charlottes—Spaniards, Frenchmen, Russians and Portuguese in addition to the English. Trade was dominated by the Hudson's Bay Company, which gradually gained ascendancy over American traders, called "Bostonmen" by the Haidas.

Fashions changed and the fur market fell apart in 1836. However, 15 years later the islands were the site from B.C.'s first gold rush following reports of a major strike by the Haidas.

Men poured into the islands in 1851 from the mainland as well as Washington and Oregon but only small traces were found. Less than $100,000 in gold had been taken out by the time the rush died in 1856.

The emphasis changed from gold to copper and coal. But the copper proved to be of too low a grade to be worth mining and the coal was of the wrong type for industrial consumption.

Around 1870 there were approximately 7,300 whites and Indians in the islands. The white population was increasing rapidly, while smallpox and influenza were taking a terrible toll of the Haidas.

GAVE AWAY LAND

The colonial government in Victoria began parceling out huge sections of land in the islands to prospective farmers and ranchers: the Queen Charlottes were going to be the produce area for booming Prince Rupert, 90 miles to the east on the mainland.

The farmers soon discovered that about the only thing that would grow properly in addition to timber was lettuce, and there wasn't much of a demand for lettuce in Prince Rupert.

Cattle ranching ran into similar problems. The market was too far away and transport costs were high.

When the ranches were abandoned along with the homesteads the cattle were left to fend for themselves. They still roam the islands, huge shaggy-haired beasts that show a strain of Texas longhorn.

The islanders frequently hunt them as big game animals and their numbers are diminishing. A kind of Canadian Galapagos, the islands are devoid of reptilian life but have produced species of mammals that show distinct differences from their mainland cousins.

The islands black bear is built differently from the mainland variety. Caribou, extinct now but which were once quite numerous here, showed marked differences in size and shape.

A team of botanists from the University of British Columbia last year discovered 600 types of flowering plants here, 11 of them previously unknown anywhere in the world.

The new strains were found in the mountains at high altitudes, apparently survivors of the last ice age 40,000 years ago.

HAIIDAS RECOVERING

By 1900 there were less than 600 Haidas left and their great art form, totem pole carving, had died with the last remnants of their culture and social system.

Today, the resilient Haidas have made a remarkable recovery. The 350-member Skidegate reserve on the southern shore of Graham Island is the wealthiest band in the province, one of the richest in the country.

Haida men are in demand by the three major timber companies which annually take $23,000,000 worth of timber out of the islands—enough to build 24,000 homes.

They earn top salaries as tree fallers, cat-skinners and truck drivers. Many of them own and operate their own fishing boats and leave the woods a couple of months a year to take part in the annual $3,500,000 Queen Charlotte Islands fishing catch.

Conditions are not as affluent at Haida, where 1,000 more Indians dwell across Masset Inlet on the northeastern tip of Graham Island from their long-abandoned ancestral villages.

Generally, the future looks bright for both whites and Indians in the islands.

MOVING BETTER, ELECTRICALLY. Carrying and accurately positioning 150-ton, 20-foot-diameter sections of concrete pipe is an easy task for this electrically driven "Pipemobile." Equipped with a GE transmission with a 1,500-horsepower four-wheel drive, the machine is placing pipe for a water line in southern California. A unique feature of the 21-foot-high, 64-foot-long pipe transporter is its modular design. When the six-mile-long pipeline is completed late in 1970, the machine can be quickly disassembled for transport to another site and easily reassembled there.

play to guard against the loss of two trump tricks. He led his three of spades and played dummy's seven on West's five. This play protected him against four spades in the West hand. That was roughly a 5 per cent chance.

It did not protect him against all sorts of 2-2 and 3-1 trump breaks combined with a 3-1 break in diamonds.

Of course, it took good defense to punish South for his unsafely play but that good defense was forthcoming.

East was in then with the jack of spades. He didn't have too much of a problem. His ace of diamonds was only going to take one trick, no matter when it was played, so he led it.

Then he put West in with a heart. West thought awhile but he was merely wasting time. He was surely going to lead a diamond and, when he did, East ruffed and another game had been lost, strayed or stolen.

Uranium king prepares for retirement

URANIUM CITY, Sask. (CP) — Gus Hawker, 64-year-old "King of Uranium" is preparing for the last hurdle of a flamboyant career: retirement.

He wants to leave this boom-and-bust northwestern Saskatchewan town as prosperously as he came to it. That means sticking around until world demand for uranium climbs again and makes him a healthy profit on the mining stocks he owns.

On paper, Hawker is a millionaire. He has a big portfolio of shares and other interests, much of it acquired in early swabbing operations that are part of the folklore of the Toronto and Vancouver stock markets, and more acquired in the boom years after he founded Uranium City.

A British blueblood, he first came to Canada to homestead in the Peace River country. But the land required patience and in three years it broke Hawker the farmer.

He became Hawker the trader.

Despite several early misfortunes, Hawker persevered and 1942 brought him a $30,000 bonanza in furs.

TOWN SPRANG UP
 In 1950, he left the bush and made camp on a point on the north side of Lake Athabasca in the northwestern corner of Saskatchewan. This was to be the location of Uranium City, which now has a population of about 3,000.

The prospectors started arriving. Hawker sold them potatoes at $40 a bag and says he staked claims in the region before uranium was found and a town sprang up around his trading post.

The world clamored for radioactive minerals and Uranium City delivered. "Instant money" was heralded by the sound of geiger counters going mad.

Hawker's name became synonymous with success.

In 1953, he chartered a plane for his family to attend the coronation of Queen Elizabeth in London.

The next winter he was flooded out and $85,000 worth of material was damaged. That, however, was taken in stride by Hawker, who had become accustomed to losing as well as winning.

He journeyed to California, New York and other states, forming companies, selling stocks and dealing with the rich and famous.

Then the uranium market collapsed. Investors panicked, mines were abandoned, stores were closed and Uranium City became a ghost town.

Hawker stayed on, determined to ride out what he thought was a slump. He braved temperatures that reached 60 below zero. And he reached the isolation.

STUCK IT OUT
 He took over lapsed claims or bought them for pennies from disillusioned owners and he walked the wilderness, chipping away at rocks, convinced the world would again want uranium.

Fur was the only thing active in Uranium City's formerly booming trading centre, and Hawker stuck it out.

Today, he dislikes friendships, advocating that all relationships should be on a business footing. He says he adopted this independent attitude from the Indians. He raised eight children — three of his own and five adopted Indian children.

When demand for uranium began an upsurge two years ago, it strengthened Hawker's hopes.

"I told you so," he says with a grunt and a smile as he tugs at his bow tie.

Hawker says things will prosper again, only this time on a stable basis unlike the "wildfire" that struck nearly 17 years ago.

He wants to leave Uranium City as a town he not only helped build but resurrected. And he's promised himself a retirement in a warm climate once his dreams come true.

London officials run in circles over 109-year-old house

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A 109-year-old house—empty, boarded up and crumbling—is causing city officials a headache and providing the type of comedy which comes when someone gets hit on the funny bone.

The house is in the way of a proposed road extension. The city wants to buy it and tear it down.

Two years ago, owner Jennie Morrow asked the city for permission to tear it down. But it was part of a row of historic homes the city was then thinking of preserving, and authorities turned her down.

Now Mrs. Morrow and the city cannot agree on a price. So the city has to expropriate it in order to tear it down.

This was exactly what Mrs. Morrow wanted to do—two years ago. But the expropriation battle could take another two years, by which time the house might fall down.

So the city's building inspectors and engineers think that up to $500 should be spent to see what chance there is of that happening.

If the house falls down, it will take a semi-detached home to the south with it. However, that already belongs to the city and is also to be torn down.

But the city cannot just let the buildings fall down, since its lawyer says there is some question of liability because of the public nature of work in the area.

But if an expert decides the house is going to fall down, the city then can apply in court for permission to tear it down.

Then the city can go back to court to expropriate the mess that's left.

Ram testing started

QUEBEC — A total of 103 animals have been enrolled for the first of the ROP tests for rams now being carried out, for the time being, at the St-Hyacinthe beef bull testing station. Seven of the rams are Hampshires, 25 North Country Cheviots, 19 Suffolk, 23 Oxford, and 29 Leicester.

The aim of the program, the first of its kind in Quebec, is to give sheep raisers an accurate idea of their rams' growth rate and, through progeny testing, of their flock sires' capacity to pass on the ability to make fast, economic gains to their offspring.

The present test was started after a period of 10 to 14 days to let the animals get adjusted. It will continue till they weigh 100 pounds or for 84 days. Following the test, the station will issue certificates showing each animal's average daily gain and its rating in comparison with others of the same breed.

Orford JMC offers service to the ET

Jeunesses Musicales is a world wide association which promotes music to the young. More than 28 countries contribute to the organization which has its central agency in Brussels.

JM's international exchange program sponsors more than 1,500 concerts a year. Each individual country arranges its own bookings. The association may very well be the largest booking office for musical talent in the world. Everywhere JM stresses the importance of the teaching music. It offers cultural enrichment to young people which might not otherwise be available.

The organizers feel that they have a responsibility to the generations ahead and must supply them with every possibility to expand their background in the art. They say "The future of Canada and the world will be shaped by its youth with-out adequate opportunity for cultural development that future could be a dismal one."

Canada's camp at Mount Orford has a 222-acre spread to host its young artists. Small huts among the trees allow the students to practise in a quiet, natural setting. The art of these young musicians is developed in a peaceful atmosphere where they are encouraged to be creative.

As well as regular weekend concerts by well-known international artists, the Orford JMC Centre presents a number of seminars for the benefit of the public.

Seminars are presented each Tuesday evening in the JMC Concert Hall. These seminars are on themes pertaining to music and the arts in general.

They are presented by members of the teaching faculty and by assorted guest artists.

Wednesday's program features the Orford Arts Centre in collaboration with the CBC in the presentation of concerts by professors and advanced students at the centre.

There will be a program of concerts by the students at the centre Thursday evening.

Dallapiccola is Hopkins guest

Philosopher, historian, linguist, man of letters, and dedicated artist whose creative drive culminates its expression in music, Luigi Dallapiccola comes to Dartmouth College to open the seventh Congregation of the Arts as composer-in-residence. He arrived at Hopkins Center on Sunday June 29 from his home in Florence, Italy. Mr. Dallapiccola is an unusual musician, not only because he is a leader in contemporary music, but because in his leadership he exercises a remarkable discipline and integrity with contagious energy.

Mario di Bonaventura, director and organizer of the Congregation's music program and a former student of Mr. Dallapiccola, had extended an invitation to him four years ago to participate as a composer-in-residence. Mr. Dallapiccola could not accept because he was working — and had been for the last six years — on his opera "Ulysses." Last fall when the work was completed and premiered at the Berlin Opera, Mr. Dallapiccola sent his acceptance.

Mr. Dallapiccola is best known for his work in the 12-tone system and the crucial role he played in cultivating the genre among Italian musicians. This is a particularly difficult idiom for a composer and for an audience, but Mr. Dallapiccola has achieved great distinction in using the 12-tone system in vocal as well as instrumental work. Of a recording of five of Mr. Dallapiccola's vocal and instrumental works Eric Salzman said: "Twelve-tone here is a way of thinking, a vocabulary, but it is not a 'style' or 'expression'! These come out of a more fundamental sense of structure, beautifully integrated with the Lyric impulse."

Mr. Dallapiccola, as composer-in-residence will present two lectures each week, among them one on "Don Giovanni" and one on the birth of a libretto. In addition to lecturing Mr. Dallapiccola will conduct and participate in the performance of his works.

In a Chamber Concert, on July 10, Mr. Dallapiccola will conduct his "Rencessals" (1946) with Robert Jones, tenor soloist. He will also conduct his "Liriche Greche" (1942-45) with Donna Klimoska, mezzo-soprano, and Christine Asher giving solo performances on the same program.

Reserved seats for all concerts during the sixth Congregation are now on sale at the Hopkins Center box office. Individual Chamber Concert Tickets are $2 with a complete series subscription available for all eight concerts at a substantial saving.

IN ALL WALKS OF LIFE, Josephine Lawrence, Longmans Canada Limited, 185 pages, $5.50.

Life in the newspaper milieu may not be as glamorous as some people believe. It is a world of hustle and bustle, deadlines, complaints, competition and noise. Mercedes Willis, home editor of the Hanover Daily Observer, entertainingly introduces us to the hub-bub of the daily round of producing an edition of the newspaper.

It is a world uniquely its own. The paper must be printed. Any editor must be prepared to have her (or his) material scrapped at the last minute, or to be presented with a half column blank minutes before the edition must go to press. The struggle for a by-line is lightly (or schemingly) pursued by all. One must produce or else. And produce material the public will read. What the public will read is apparently becoming less and less news and more and more such things as your "Horoscope," "My Favorite Recipe." The complaints when favorite items are left out: "If it's the last thing I do, I'm going to find out why the horoscope isn't in tonight," or when something doesn't suit the reader: "Do you think I can't read?" requires patience and above all a sense of humor.

But on the positive side is the camaraderie among most workers. "Coffee flows in a continuous stream from many sources," the shared complaints about such things as no automatic raises. "You appreciate it more when you have to fight for it," and the drama which is generated in such a fast moving media.

Canadian cinema — its history and development, particularly in Quebec — is the new presentation in the former Venezuela pavilion at Man and His World.

The pavilion is formed of three enormous cubes, each of which is devoted to an aspect of cinema. The first contains a towering sculptural creation developed from an assortment of film reels and painted with fluorescent paint, which glows psychodetically when lit by ultra-violet light. The work rests in a pool of water.

The second cube features regular screenings of a 60-minute film, "Culture Vivante Cinema", which traces the history of Canadian cinema. Composed of slides and excerpts of other Canadian productions, the film is divided into two parts — general development from 1894 to 1955, and the Quebec contributions from 1956 to its present flowering as an industry.

Children and their parents will thrill to Fantasy '69 — a trip around the world and a memorial to Expos 67 — conducted by the fabulous puppets of Andre Leduc at the Puppet Theatre at Man and His World.

There will be two shows per day — at 2 p.m. and 4 p.m. Admission is free.

A new audio-visual technique in puppetry will give visitors the feeling of being on a world voyage. According to Mr. Leduc, other professionals in the field believe this theatre is the best in North America

A most enjoyable day was spent in games for young and old, singing of Swiss songs and Swiss music and everything that goes to make a gathering of this type a happy and memorable occasion, as well as an opportunity to meet and renew old acquaintances with those who have come to Canada from Switzerland. It was an event that will linger in their memories for the days ahead.

Als drop double header to Thetford Miners maintain tie for fifth place in the League

The Three Rivers Eagles are less than half a game from the leaders in the Provincial baseball league, the Drummondville Royals. The Eagles move comes after two victories over the Granby Cardinals. Three Rivers won by scores of 5-0 and 3-1, while Quebec and Drummondville shared the honors of their double headers last night when the Royals won the first by a score of 4-3, to lose the second game 4-2. In Sherbrooke last night, the Als lost both games to the visiting Thetford Miners by scores of 9-7 and 7-5. The Als are now in 5th place in the Provincial league.

In league action tonight, two double headers with Drummondville playing in Plessisville and the Eagles playing in Sherbrooke. A single game between the Miners and the Indians will be played in Quebec City.

In Thetford Mines last night before a record attendance, the Miners joined the Als in 5th place by beating Sherbrooke twice by scores of 9-7 and 7-5. The Miners have won three consecutive games which gives them five victories out of their last six games.

In the first game, Charles Middlebrooks, who was replaced by Ricardo Quiroz in the seventh and last inning, allowed Sherbrooke 13 sure hits, of which two were homers. Nevertheless he won his first game.

The Als made 10 sure hits against pitcher Matt Gayeski who now has four wins and three losses.

Billy Bouier distinguished himself for the Miners with two double and one single hits. Jesus Frias and Jeff Albies helped out with two single hits each, while Pascual Ramirez, Chuck Klimchuck, Al Sommerstad and Don Ruris made the other sure hits. On the losing side, it is worth mentioning the homer and three hits by Juan Joa.

For Sherbrooke also, Ernie Rodriguez made three hits, Teofilo James hit a homer while Haley Young, Erasmos Felipe, Jim Ridley, John Van Ornum and Gayeski each made hits.

In the second game that ended in a victory for the Miners with a score of 7-5, pitcher Bill Pettengill allowed Sherbrooke nine sure hits, while his own team mates made 11 hits, of which three were homers.

The Miners took the lead by scoring three times in the first inning, with singles from Bouier and Ramirez. These were followed by a homer from Chuck Klimchuck. They scored three times again in the fourth inning, with a base on balls followed with two homers from Pettengill and Billy Bouier.

Scoring in the fifth and seventh innings, Sherbrooke became dangerous again in the ninth inning when they rallied to score three points with one homer and three sure hits, and a base on balls runs.

Felix Mantilla made the last minute homer for Sherbrooke in replacement for pitcher Gary Parent.

Sharing the honors for the Miners' second game are Mike Bouier with one homer and two single hits and Chuck Klimchuck, equally distinguished, with one homer and a single. Jesus Frias made a double and a single hit, and one homer came from Bill Pettengill.

For Sherbrooke in the second game, the only homer went to Felix Mantilla, with single and double hits going to Teofilo James and Jim Ridley.

In NL action...

Expos start 2nd half of the season being walloped 8-1

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal Expos started the second half of their National League season on the wrong foot Tuesday, losing 8-1 to the Pirates in Pittsburgh.

In 81 games played by the Expos in the first half, they won 26 and lost 55. Their record against Eastern Division teams is 20-29 while they are 6-26 against Western division clubs.

The Expos enjoyed most of their first-half success against Chicago Cubs, Eastern Division leaders, with six wins and eight losses.

There have been as many highlights as disappointments for the fledglings.

On opening day, April 8, the Expos defeated the Mets 11-10 at Shea Stadium in New York.

Pitcher Dan McGinn will go down in the record books as the first Expo to hit a home run. He connected in the fourth inning to give Montreal a 4-3 lead against New York.

PUT DOWN CARDS

McGinn was also a hero here on opening day April 14 at Jarry Park. He was the winning pitcher as the Expos defeated St. Louis Cardinals 8-7 before more than 29,000 fans in the first major league game in Canada.

Three days later in Philadelphia, righthander Bill Stoneman etched his name in the record book with a 7-0 no-hitter against the Phillies.

There were unpleasant moments for the Expos:

When Houston Astros defeated the Expos 10-3 at Jarry Park on May 13, Montreal started a 20-game losing streak against Western Division clubs. The streak ended June 8 when Montreal defeated Los Angeles 4-3.

The Expos return to Jarry Park next Monday to open an eight-game, seven-day stand. Club officials are looking to capacity crowds during that stretch which will see Pittsburgh and New York visiting.

So far, the Expos have drawn 543,091 fans in 35 home dates and the fans have turned up in all kinds of weather to support their ball club.

The Expos hope to improve or their home record. In 38 home games, the Expos have only won 9. As Bob Bailey said following the Expos' recent series in Philadelphia, "It's a shame we don't win more often for those people—we should do better than that."

Elsewhere, New York Mets rallied to nip Chicago 4-3 and trimmed the Cubs' lead in the East to four games, Cincinnati Reds whipped San Diego 8-2,

San Francisco Giants turned back Houston Astros 7-4, St. Louis Cardinals downed Philadelphia Phillies 6-3 and Pittsburgh Pirates walloped Montreal 8-2.

Los Angeles Dodgers ace all over but Atlanta Braves are feeling the pain.

Led by injured Manny Mota, who banged out eight hits, one short of the major league record for most hits in a doubleheader, the Dodgers swept Atlanta 5-3 and 4-3 Tuesday night and took over first place in the National League's Western Division from the Braves by one-half game.

After rapping seven singles and a double in 10 at-bats, driving in three runs, scoring twice and stealing a base, Mota limped into the clubhouse, where his left elbow and left knee were packed in ice.

Mota broke the elbow playing winter ball in the Dominican Republic and injured the knee sliding a few days ago. The elbow probably will require post-season surgery, but the injuries didn't stop the five-foot-11, 168-pound outfielder from raising his average since coming to the Dodgers from Montreal Expos to .412 and his overall mark to .366.

SCORE ON BAD THROW

Mota's big night began with an infield hit in the first inning of the opener, after Hank Aaron had put the Braves ahead 1-0 with his 23rd home run and 533rd of his career. Willie Davis singled Mota to third and they both scored when Orlando Cepeda threw wildly to second trying to trap Davis in a rundown.

In the third inning, Mota singled and was out trying for a double. In the fourth, he doubled a run home and was out trying for third. In the sixth he got a harmless single and he fled out in the eighth.

Mota singled in the first inning of the second game and stole second, but was stranded. He wasted a single in the third and grounded out in the sixth, one of 14 straight batters retired by Ron Reed.

But Maury Wills broke the spell in the eighth with a two-out triple and Mota singled him in, cutting Atlanta's lead to 2-1. Mota then scored the tying run on singles by Davis and Len Gabrielson.

Little League action...

White Sox pull 3-2 upset over Orioles

White Sox pulled an upset in their Little League game played last night, with a 3-2 win over the Orioles. At Lennoxville the Red Sox had it easy defeating the Yankees winning 24-1.

Tonight the Senators meet the White Sox while the Indians and Yankees tangle. Both games are at the Parade Grounds.

White Sox and Orioles left it late in their game before any scoring showed. D. Pepin and G. Doucet the respective pitchers had their slate clean until the bottom of the fourth inning when the White Sox came up with two runs three errors. A single by Alain Phanuef sent the runs across the plate. A hit by Sylvain Delisle and an error gave the White Sox another run in the last of the fifth.

Orioles got their two runs in the top part of the sixth inning. A wild pitch, three walks and a fielder's choice sent the runs home. Doucet in his win allowed only two hits.

His opponent was touched for four.

Yankees still playing loosely in the field were at no time a threat in their game against Red Sox. The Sox scored runs in every inning. Errors and loose fielding was a big factor in the Yankees' play.

It was one all at the end of one. Red Sox built up their score with eight in the second, two in the third, three in the fourth and six in the fifth and finished off with four in the sixth. Daniel Denault had three home runs. Daniel Caron also hit a homer with two men aboard.

Denault was the winning pitcher with Marc Bedard the loser.

SHAVING STROKES

by Frank Beard

8-Grounding Out

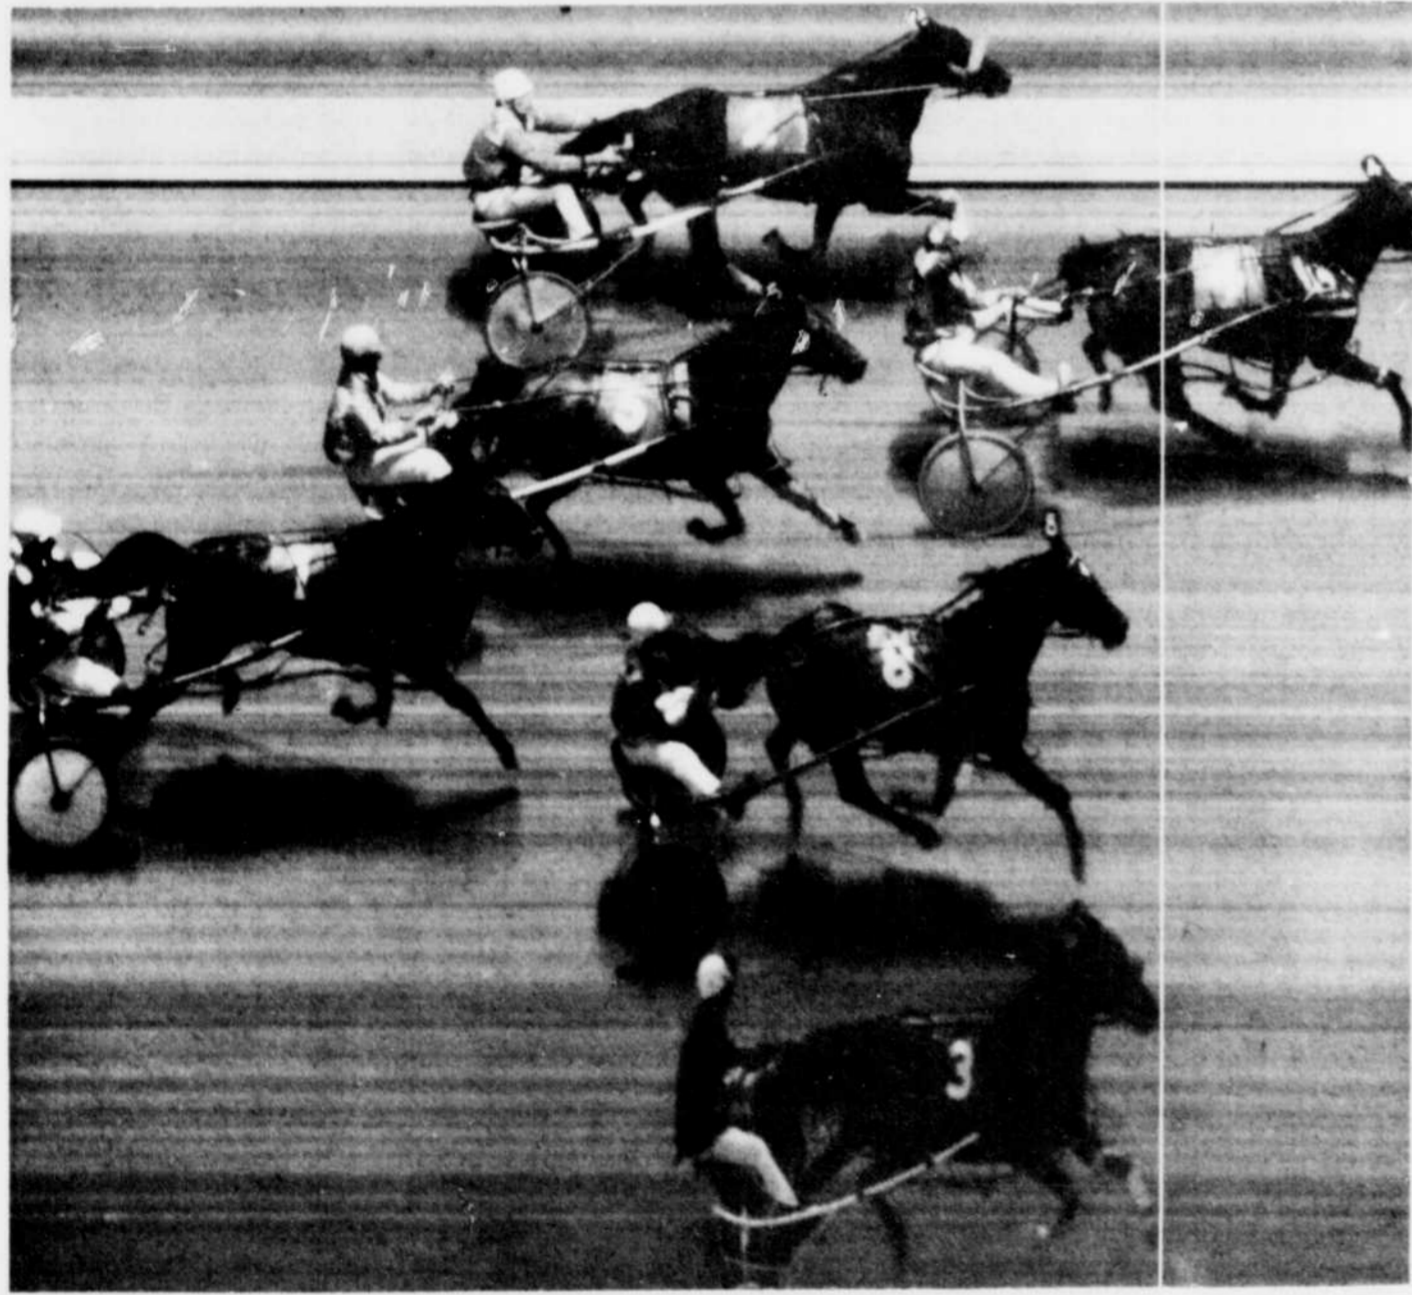

It seems like such a little thing — maybe a grain of sand or a blade of grass — but grounding one's club (that is, touching the turf, sand or whatever) in a hazard is a two-stroke penalty.

Most beginning golfers get to be near-veteran golfers before they realize this. You cannot touch the sand in a trap with your club before actually striking at the ball.

Grounding your club in a bunker is a two-stroke penalty. And, although you couldn't actually call it "grounding" per se, you cannot first test the depth of a shallow water hazard before deciding to knock it

You cannot remove anything of a natural nature close to the ball — rocks, sticks, leaves. An infraction here is worth two strokes. Soup cans, candy wrappers and such are removable.

Pay particular attention to course rules concerning hazards. Some, you will find, entitle you to free lifts from certain difficult situations.

BLANKET FINISH — Six horses are caught under the wire as they stage a battle for top honors in the fourth race at the Sherbrooke Race Track Tuesday evening. Stony Mite, No. 4, with Noel Paquet driving emerged the winner in the stretch battle while Stanley Kidd with Deane Cash was second nosing out Cardinal Buster, No. 8.

Mr. Bing Express, No. 2, Senator Spencer, No. 5, and Miss Jessie Direct, No. 1, finished in that order. The quinella paid the top price of the evening $251.20 while Stony Mite paid $129, $18.40 and $6.80 across the board. (Record photo - Ron Jenne)

Williams has talent but no humility Author wrote a wild book and told his daughter not to read it

By ROGER DOUGHTY
NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK — (NEA) — "I'm fascinated by my own head," Mason Williams was saying the other day, patting the neatly trimmed lengthy locks that trickle down past his ears and run smack into a recently cultivated crop of chin whiskers. "I just don't know where everything comes together."

The head Williams is hooked on (it in turn is hooked on him) is indeed a fascinating cranium, not so much for its exterior, which is nice enough, but for its interior.

Out of the Williamses have sprung such treasures of our times as "Classical Gas," a song that earned him two Grammy Awards (best instrumental performance and best instrumental theme); "The Mason Williams Reading Matter," a book that had an advance sale of 65,000 copies before it was released in mid-March; a 36-foot-wide reproduction of a Greyhound bus; the world's largest flower and many of the gags mouthed by the Smothers Brothers and Glen Campbell, which, as Williams sees it, makes him something of an up-to-date Da Vinci.

"I never sell myself short," admits the 31-year-old Texas-born talent. "I'm not interested in being humble."

What does interest Williams is how he got to be what he is today—wealthy, famous, a campus idol who never sets foot on campus—while, as he puts it, "most of my friends from school are still back in Oklahoma driving trucks."

Williams knows he's big with the college crowd because his record sales in campus communities are very high. Most of the advance orders for his books came from the same areas.

"Kids don't like to be thought after," the writer-composer-producer-guitarist-creative thinker claims. "Which is probably why they like me. I never appear on campus. I don't make statements pro or con about demonstrations. I don't say anything about anything. They must like my work for what it is rather than who it is and I hope it stays that way."

Two years ago, when Williams was a struggling $75,000-a-year television writer with short hair and a pinstriped suit (his taste runs to leather today), he was best known for his bus, a $40,000, life-sized reproduction that is now in the Museum of Modern Art, and his desire to create the largest flower ever. He accomplished the latter by setting up a camera in the middle of a desert area in California and hiring a sky-writing pilot to "paint" a stem and petals on the setting sun, thus giving birth to the largest sunflower ever seen by man or beast, all at the mere cost of $4,500. He managed to break even by selling the photograph as an album cover.

But Williams, who admits he can make $200,000 in six weeks making a record, says money is of little concern to him.

"I'd rather be cheated out of it than worry about it," he says, flashing the smile of a man who knows he's not about to be cheated out of anything.

Williams, who is working on a creative philosophy (he may turn out to be a musical McLuhan) has only one hangup in life and it centers on other people's lack of versatility.

"Too many people with real talent," he reasons, "confine themselves to one area. Take Beethoven. He really learned how to think, but he stopped with music. He might have come up with a great political system if he had only tried."

In his book, a collection of random thoughts and poems for the most part, Williams has this to say about Beethoven.

"I think it would be nice to have shared a room with Beethoven and when someone remarked, upon hearing one of his compositions, 'Isn't it great!' I could say, 'Yep, my roommate wrote it.'"

Which is probably the same punch line Beethoven would have used in reference to "Classical Gas."

LOS ANGELES—(NEA)—"I see your father has written a dirty book."

Herbert Kastle's 15½-year-old daughter gets that remark a lot these days from her friends. It is understandable because Kastle's novel, "The Movie Maker," is one of the current crop of sexy novels. But Kastle has an answer for his daughter when she complains to him.

"I tell her not to worry," the author says. "I tell her just to think about that leather miniskirt she got out of my book. I tell her to cry all the way to the boutique."

"The Movie Maker" is Kastle's ninth novel. None of the earlier ones made much money. In fact, during the two years he wrote "The Movie Maker," Kastle has been virtually supported by his publisher—Bernard Geis, who liked the idea—and his agent.

"I had no money myself," Kastle says.

He has now. The paperback rights to "The Movie Maker" were sold to Dell for $200,000. The English rights were sold for 10,000 pounds. And the bidding for the movie rights is spirited, but Kastle believes Geis will hold out for a few months, hoping that the book will travel well up the best-seller list and thus further increase the movie sale price.

How does Kastle account for the fact that eight earlier novels went nowhere, while "The Movie Maker" is a financial winner?

"I feel this is my time," he says. "Every author has a few cracks at the big money. I wrote one book earlier—'Sick'—which might have done it for me, but it wasn't published at the right time. This is my second chance."

He has had plenty of sex in his earlier books, and he doesn't think that "The Movie Maker" is better or even sexier than the others.

But it has, he feels, three things going for it—the promotional ability of Geis, good timing and its setting, Hollywood and the movie industry.

Kastle spent two years in Hollywood, '66 and '67. At the time, he was dispirited with his novels and felt he was "written out." He wrote for television during his stay here, but that wasn't the big thing that came out of the trip.

"I had only been here two weeks," he says, "when I knew I would have to write a book about Hollywood."

"I feel," he says, "that sex is a part of life, so I might as well write about it."

He is honest with himself, in his assessment of his own ability and ambition.

"This is the kind of book I want to write," he says.

SURE FOOTED as a WILDCAT

PREMIUM QUALITY NYLON TURNPIKE SAFETY '4'

Safety '4' Wildcat has a lot going for it. Much more than you'd expect to find in medium-priced nylons. Where else would you get the tenacious grip of a great cat, the racy look of a Grand Prix tire? Yet that continental look runs more than skin-deep. Built to set your car closer to the road, Safety '4' has the high-speed stability and easy handling that take highway problems in stride. Like a Wildcat, it has the instinct for swifter stops, faster take-offs. Its inner strength and stamina spring from a Dupont Nylon 4-ply cord body that measures up to the toughest road tests. A great tire—a great value! And it's not alone. If long mileage is on your mind, take a look at its running-mate—Turnpike '78' Nylon. This one has the low, wide proportions of tires you'll soon be seeing on the new 1970 high-performance cars. And it's a Whitewall at only $2.50 more than the regular Safety '4' Blackwall.

Manufacturers' List Price—If you're confused about this term, here's the gen: Each manufacturer publishes a list of prices. Generally speaking, for similar grades, these prices are pretty much the same. Newspaper advertised sale prices may cut these list prices 15% to 25%. By contrast, Canadian Tire cuts list prices by more than 50%. Come in—compare—and see for yourself!

Masonic Fraternity meets on Owl's Head

STANSTEAD — Since 1857 a communication of Masonic Fraternity has been held each June atop Owl's Head Mountain, in all kinds of weather and under all sorts of conditions.

This year the weather was perfect, some climbed the mountain, others took the lift, and when assembled there were some 250 to 260 Masons.

Fraternal greetings were exchanged with Masons attending from 50 Lodges of the Province of Quebec, from lodges in New York, New Hampshire, Vermont, Connecticut, a bus load of 36 came from Maine, as well as from other lodges of that state, from Ontario and as far away as Tulsa, Okla., Tuscaloosa, Ala., St. Vital, Man., Prestwick, Scotland, Southborough, England, Halifax, N.S., and Australia.

Among the speakers were Frank M. Brownell, P.G.M., Grand Lodge of Vermont, as well as numerous other distinguished Masons. All were warmly welcomed by Worshipful Master, Richard Eryou of Golden Rule, the hosting Lodge fraternity.

The Masonic degrees were conferred upon the candidate, Gunter (Tommy) Hospes of Stanstead. A 50-year jewel was to have been presented to Harold Bean of Beebe, but Mr. Bean was unable to make the mountain trip and will receive his jewel at a communication in the Lodge in Stanstead this autumn.

Meanwhile the Lakeshore Shrine Club of Montreal provided entertainment for the women and children at the base of the Mountain. A charcoal steak dinner was available and many brought picnic lunches.

The over a hundred year communication was probably the second largest in attendance to date, the largest was when the Golden Rule Lodge held its 150th anniversary in 1953.

CHURCH SERVICE

Sunday morning lodge was opened in form again, and all journeyed to Wesley United Church in Beebe for the worship service, the usual custom after the mountain climb. E. Down, a lay minister, officiated for the service and gave a sermon of challenge on the Bible, and the works of Solomon, he was afterward complimented on the excellence of his address.

Lemesurier

Mr. and Mrs. Celian Galvin, Lennoxville, Misses Estella and Winnifred Galvin and Mr. Charles Galvin, Sherbrooke, spent a day at their old home and visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Gillanders. Other guests at the same home were Mr. Stokes and Mr. Leonard Montgomery.

Sympathy is being extended to Misses Alice and Edna Stewart in the death of their father, Mr. Elmer Stewart, who died at the home of his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Robertson in Lennoxville. Those attending the funeral from this district were Mr. and Mrs. Aime Proulx, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Fortier, Messrs. Robert Wilkin and Gerald Tuite, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Casteau, Mr. Leo Casteau and Mr. Almen Connolly and Mr. Desmond Beattie.

Mrs. Thomas Beattie has returned to her home much improved in health after spending three weeks in Laval Hospital, St. Foy.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Hutchison, Lennoxville, spent a weekend at their home here. They had as their guests Mrs. Hugh Savage, Lennoxville, and Mr. and Mrs. Roland Hutchison, Ste. Foy.
