Seventy-second year

Burnings may go on

PRAGUE (Reuters) — Fears that more Czechoslovaks may set fire to themselves to protest continual curbs of government liberalization programs grew today after another attempted "human torch" suicide Monday night.

The latest burning came as the Slovak Communist party warned the country faced a crisis as the result of the self-immolation last week of 21-year-old philosophy student Jan Palach, who died Sunday from burns covering 85 per cent of his body.

There also were reports from Budapest, Hungary, that a 17-year-old student set fire to himself on the steps of the National Museum.

News of the second burning here was given on television by President Ludvik Svoboda. It came after tens of thousands of Czechoslovaks, paying tribute to Palach, jammed Wenceslas Square in the heart of Prague in the biggest demonstration since the Soviet-led invasion Aug. 20.

Palach warned in a note found in his jacket that 15 other students would burn themselves unless censorship was lifted and the distribution of Soviet propaganda was banned.

It was not immediately known if the self-immolation Monday night by Pilsen brewery worker Josef Hlavaty, 25, was connected with the students' suicide ring.

EXPECTED TO LIVE

Prague radio said Hlavaty was in hospital with second-degree burns over a large part of his body. But he was expected to live if there were no complications.

A later news bulletin said the 17-year-old Hungarian in Budapest apparently set himself alight in sympathy with the Czechoslovak suicide protest.

A brief Budapest radio announcement said the incident in the Hungarian capital occurred Monday afternoon.

In disclosing Hlavaty's attempted suicide, Svoboda appealed on television: "In the name of humanity, I call a halt to these terrible acts."

"I understand the impatience of youth and its uncompromising attitude... but I know it is not always the short cuts or the straight ways which reach the goal."

The warning that the country faced a crisis over Palach's suicide came from the Slovak Communist party after a presidential meeting in the Slovak capital of Bratislava.

Stanfield scolds Pierre

OTTAWA (CP)—Like a tall, stern schoolmaster, Opposition Leader Stanfield dressed down Prime Minister Trudeau Monday for his performance at the Commonwealth conference in London.

It appeared, he said, that never in Commonwealth history had Canada "made a contribution less important and less useful."

"I do not think any leader of the Opposition has ever had occasion in the past to reproach the government of this country in any way in this connection, and, if I may say so, I hope it will not be necessary again."

NDP and Creditiste spokesmen joined in to make it a rough return to the Commons for the prime minister after his first official foreign trip as Canadian leader.

David Lewis, NDP parliamentary leader, accused the prime minister of "uncommitted delinquency" and said his London performance added up to "one big zero."

Mr. Stanfield spoke of an "attitude of casual non-involvement and non-commitment" that also threatened to become a government trademark at home.

He also said the prime minister had been guilty of "inexcusable taste" in suggesting police surveillance of Canadian reporters, even if the remark had been meant in a light-hearted way.

But in fact the remark had not been light-hearted, and he found it deeply disturbing.

Rene Matte (Creditiste-Champain) said London newspapermen noticed what Canadians have known since the election last June—that the prime minister is a tremendous disappointment.

Mr. Trudeau's troubles began almost as soon as he announced that he would report briefly on the Commonwealth meeting.

"Where you there?" one MP asked.

"Where the hell were you?" Mr. Trudeau shot back.

"We weren't invited."

"And you never will, I may tell you that."

The prime minister went on to describe the meeting as a successful and significant one with free and frank exchanges.

He said he was deeply disappointed with the lack of success of a Canadian attempt outside the conference to convince Biafran representatives to meet Nigerian representatives in an effort to end their civil war.

REPORTS ON VATICAN

And in connection with his trip to Rome after the conference, he said Canada is anxious to open diplomatic relations with the Vatican.

Mr. Stanfield said Canada in the past has played a leading role in the Commonwealth, and other members were disappointed by the lack of Canadian leadership at the most recent meeting.

"It would not be surprising if there had grown among members of the world community a concern that Canada might similarly abstain from other international responsibilities that she has heretofore assumed," he said.

There seemed to be little doubt that Canada has contributed to a weakening of the Commonwealth.

Mr. Trudeau had tried to excuse his role on the grounds that he was a "new boy."

"He may be a new boy in the Commonwealth, but Canada is not."

Grumbling Commons

MP's not impressed by new legislation

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative MPs were not impressed Monday with the quality of government legislation placed before them.

Despite the grumbling the Commons gave second reading and sent off to committee for clause-by-clause readings bills to amend the Canada Evidence Act and the Historic Sites and Monuments Act.

A third bill aimed at reducing drug prices by increasing competition was still under debate at the 10 p.m. adjournment. It will lead off House business today.

Lawyer Eldon Woolliams (PC—Calgary North) said he could not see the urgency in the amendments to the Canada Evidence Act. They dealt with changes in rules of evidence concerning hostile witnesses, expert witnesses, affidavits and other matters.

"It seems to me that our best procedure would have been to allow the standing committee of justice to examine the proposed changes in order that the entire Canada Evidence Act could be considered," said the leading Conservative spokesman on legal matters.

Walter Dinsdale (PC—Brandon-Souris) said the proposed amendments to the Historic Sites and Monuments Act were trivial and complained that the Commons was being asked to go into labor "to produce a mouse."

Quebec won't subsidize language classes

MONTREAL (CP)—Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal has told an English-language parents group in the Montreal suburb of St. Leonard that the Quebec government will not subsidize private English-language Grade 1 classes.

The classes were organized last fall to protest a decision by the suburb's Roman Catholic school board to eliminate English instruction from its elementary school system, beginning with Grade 1.

Robert Beale, president of the St. Leonard's Parents' Association, said Monday night the minister's refusal of aid to the private classes being held in basements of homes was "bloody deplorable."

He said he had received a letter from the education minister on the provincial government's decision.

The letter, written in French, said that according to provincial law only secondary and post-secondary private educational institutions are eligible for public funds.

OTHER COURSES OPEN

Mr. Beale said the minister's rejection of aid left his group with three possible alternatives: A provincial general election which could result in a change of government policy; a change in present policy as a result of hearings before the Quebec national assembly's education committee on a language rights bill; a change in policy as a result of a recently-appointed provincial royal commission on education.

He said the St. Leonard Parents' Association would consider placing school commission taxes in a trust fund to find more successful methods of overcoming acute organ rejection and post-operative infection.

Seven of the institute's nine heart recipients have died since the first operation was performed there last May 31, Canada's first.

Dr. David said in an interview he did not feel it moral to continue under the conditions and problems which now exist.

Dr. Paul Davis, the institute's medical director, said Monday studies are already under way decision.

Varicose Veins Are Not Hereditary

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Q—What symptoms do varicose veins cause? Are they hereditary?

A—Uncomplicated varicose veins usually cause no discomfort. In far-advanced cases there may be mild aching pains in the legs, easy fatigability and a feeling of heaviness around the ankles. Varicose veins are not hereditary but are caused by long periods of standing in one place. They often follow pregnancy and childbirth.

Q—I am 23 and have varicose veins. Can there be any complications? Is there any complete cure?

A—The usual complications are chronic leg ulcers and inflammations of the veins (phlebitis). Surgical removal of the veins or injecting them with an obliterating agent will cure them, but if the conditions that caused them persist they may return.

Q—At times bathers in the Gulf of Mexico are bothered by jellyfish. Pinpoint welts occur and later the gait becomes unsteady and one gets cramps or nausea. Is there anything the victim can do when stung to minimize the poisonous effects?

A—The results of stings by jellyfish, sea nettles or Portuguese men-of-war can be serious. Prompt local application of ammonia, alcohol or calamine lotion helps to neutralize the poison. Antihistamines will reduce the severity of the delayed symptoms. Drugs of the cortisone group have been tried with varying success.

Q—I have liver spots on my face. I know some women have them when they are pregnant but I never had them then. What causes them? What can be done for them? Are they contagious?

A—Liver spot is a vague term that is applied to different skin conditions including chloasma (the mask of pregnancy) and morphea (a skin manifestation of scleroderma), but most commonly it is applied to tinea versicolor. This is a mild fungus infection which most victims ignore because it causes no discomfort unless the spots are on the face and are considered unsightly.

Pragmatic ointment or a lotion that contains sulfur and resorcin should help you. A new prescription preparation, Tinver Lotion, has worked well on some victims. The disease is not contagious.

Domtar - union talk cancelled or never called

MONTREAL (CP) — A union representative for 1,200 striking employees of Domtar Ltd. says a scheduled meeting Monday between company and union officials was cancelled as a result of a "misunderstanding" between the two parties.

The meeting was to discuss a proposal that would end a six-month strike at company mills in Windsor and East Angus in the Eastern Townships.

Strikers voted Saturday to end their walkout if the company agrees to settle civil procedures against 31 workers out of court.

Raymond Pinard, director-general of the East Angus and Windsor plants, said yesterday there had never been a question of withdrawing court charges against union leaders and members. He also confirmed that there was no meeting yesterday between company officials and union representatives, as one union leader claimed over the weekend.

Gerry Taylor, strike director, said in Sherbrooke, Que., that the scheduled Monday meeting was to consider the possibility of an out-of-court settlement.

The meeting was not held, he said, because Domtar would not discuss the settlement until a new contract proposal accepted by union and company negotiators is ratified by the workers.

Mr. Taylor said ratification meetings were to be held today in Windsor and East Angus.

There was no question of dropping charges against 31 workers of contempt of court for violating injunctions. They are alleged to have taken part in a 26-hour occupation of the Windsor mill last Nov. 3-4.

Five other workers face criminal charges of conspiracy with intent to destroy property. Domtar claims $100,000 damage was caused by 150 workers who occupied the plant.

Workers earned an average hourly wage of $2.98 when they walked off their jobs July 18 in support of demands for a 35-cent hourly wage increase over two years.

A new contract approved Dec. 23 by union and company officials calls for a 30-cent hourly wage increase over 30 months and would bring the average hourly pay to $3.28.

City ski tows to run mornings; medals, no holiday for heroes

Council agreed last night to operate the ski tow lifts at the Municipal ski trail, beginning at 10 every weekday morning, but only on the condition that students of Montcalm School still want to use the lifts.

The lifts will be open to everyone, but the regular fees will be charged to the public and the students who use the lift for skiing courses during the morning.

The other condition is that the city director of recreation compile a report February 5, showing the results of opening the ski trail in the mornings.

The students of Montcalm asked council two weeks ago to operate the ski lifts in the morning for seven weeks, during which time the students participated in a ski course, conducted by experts.

The students asked that the city operate the lifts from 10:30 a.m. to 11:45 a.m.

Council refused but received more requests to operate the lifts.

The Montcalm students had the support of CEGEP students, their student council, the PTA and the University of Sherbrooke's Sports Service.

Council officially congratulated the Sherbrooke policemen who participated Friday in the capture of four men suspected of the attempted robbery of the Canadian National Bank, 830 Belvedere South.

Police arrested four men just minutes after the attempted holdup.

Last night, Mayor Nadeau personally congratulated the men, and suggested that council accord them a one-week holiday.

He said an official of the police department had told him this would be very appropriate.

Council members agreed the constables should be honored, but did not support the idea of giving them a week's holiday.

"That's their work," said Alderman Everett Nicol, who suggested the men be presented with medals.

Later during the night, Alderman Carl Camirand, chairman of the Protection Committee, congratulated the police constables, in absentia, in front of a delegation of 250 people at City Hall.

Mayor Nadeau expressed pride in the Sherbrooke constabulary force.

Canada is quiet but effective at UN says expert

Robert Reford, United Nations correspondent for the Montreal Star said last night in an interview that Canada, through unofficial negotiations, played a big part in setting up talks between the United States and North Korea for the release of the crew of the Pueblo, Mr. Reford, a former writer for the Ottawa Citizen and the author of a new book on Canada's role in the UN, "Canada and Three Crises," said that Canada's UN ambassador George Ignatieff negotiated with Hungarian representatives, who maintain diplomatic lines for non-member North Korea, to set up the talks.

Mr. Reford was speaking before he addressed the Sherbrooke - Lennoxville branch of the Canadian Institute of International Affairs at the St. George's Club last night. Mr. Reford, who is the editor of the institute's monthly letter on Canadian External Relations, spoke to the club on the current session of the General Assembly and the Security Council.

Mr. Reford stressed the fact that the public is usually only aware of the well publicized events at the UN. When asked about the failure of the UN to discuss the Nigeria - Biafra crises, Mr. Reford said that behind the scenes diplomacy played a part in keeping the question on the order paper.

Besides the fact that the UN is not supposed to get involved in nation's internal affairs, he said that many African countries who have their own tribal problems did not want the matter discussed. One small African nation, he said, had implicated that if Canada was to bring up the subject it would not be adverse to discussing the French-English problem in Canada.

Mr. Reford said many sides of the UN's work are practically ignored. Canada is playing a big role in committees studying better crop control, social, legal and educational problems and other matters which are of common interest to all countries.

Mr. Reford said he couldn't see Canada in any large peace-keeping projects in the near future. He said that most probably the extent of military contributions would be limited to observers. One reason for this, he explained, is the tremendous UN constitutional problems that arise with any proposed peace-keeping mission.

Mr. Reford gave another example of Canadian internal problems affecting their views at the international level, when he mentioned that Canada was the only one of seven white western nations to vote for a proposal to make Russian the sixth working language at the UN.

Protesting parents prompt council to extend arena dates

City council last night agreed to allow the teams of the Sherbrooke Minor Hockey Association to use the arena until the end of their schedules, a decision which was prompted by 250 protesting parents who formed a delegation and confronted council at City Hall last night.

They were protesting the Parks and Recreation Committee's decision earlier this week to close the arena March 15.

All the minor league hockey teams' schedules ended at the end of February, except the schedules of the Mosquito and Atomes leagues.

Alderman Amedee Roy, chairman of the committee, explained last night that to keep the arena's ice in good condition, an engineer would have to be maintained 24 hours a day.

Spokesman for the strong delegation, Gerry Hansen, president of the association, asked that the arena be kept open until the finish of the teams' schedules.

He also asked to have the arena for one day per year during Minor Hockey Week for the Sherbrooke teams to show their prowess.

Mr. Hansen asked that the minor league teams be given more ice time next year and he asked for a guarantee that the teams would have a place to play their playoffs series.

He also asked that no changes be made in the schedules of the arena by the committee without a consultation with the association first.

He said he couldn't understand how smaller cities than Sherbrooke, he cited Granby and d'Iberville as examples, have more minor league hockey teams than Sherbrooke.

He said instead of reducing the schedule for next year, the association was planning to double the number of mosquito teams, from 12 to 24.

"We don't like putting aside children who want to play hockey," he told council.

"Our cause is good," he added, and he said the association could raise funds if necessary.

Alderman Roy answered Mr. Hansen and the large crowd that because of the city's deficit budget for 1969, his committee as the other committees had been asked to cut expenses.

He said that because all the teams, except the Mosquitoes and Atomes, finish their regular season at the end of February, the teams could engage in their playoffs for 15 days before the arena closed its doors this year.

He said the arena is open to the minor league leagues for five months, from October 15 to March 15.

Mr. Hansen interjected, at this point that the minor hokey league's provincial championships were at the end of March and that if the arena closed March 15, Sherbrooke teams could not practice for the important games.

He said he had tried to get in touch with Mr. Roy to arrange a meeting between the committee and the association but said he could not contact Mr. Roy.

collapsed early Saturday evening under weight of ice and snow. Ernest Martin, of Stanstead, was injured. The Arena is owned by Stanstead College.

Earlier in the evening, members of the Bernard Laberee family who operate the Arena for the college heard a cracking noise. Taking precautions the Arena was immediately closed to the public.

A group of six men, Ernest Martin, his son, Richard Martin, Bruce Trevaill, Leslie Laberee, Wayne Lyonnais and David Beasley were on the roof attempting to clear the snow and ice when with a loud and third cracking noise the section caved into the building.

Three of the six men, Ernest Martin, Leslie Laberee and Bruce Trevaill fell to the ice surface, an estimated fall of 25 feet amid snow, ice and rubble. Leslie and Bruce were not injured, although Leslie was sore the following day.

Mr. Martin did not fare as well. He was given medical attention by Dr. G. LaPierre at the Arena restaurant, then taken to the office of Dr. LaPierre in Beebe in the police car where X-rays indicated no broken bones but an injury at the base of his spine. Mr. Martin was taken by ambulance to the Sherbrooke Hospital.

A great deal of praise was expressed towards the Laberee family in their foresight to immediately close the Arena to the public for the Arena is in constant use on the weekends and a hockey practice was scheduled for six o'clock that night.

The Arena was built in 1954 and put into use that fall and winter with the official opening in 1955. The Arena was built by the Arena Company of which Carroll Smith was the president.

Wasted breathing time in Quebec school row

Threats of a rotating strike by Quebec school teachers, tentatively scheduled to start within the next few days will cause grave concern to the people of this province, especially those with children in school.

The idea of an extended school stoppage at this critical time of the educational year, which possibly could cost many students their year is unsettling to say the least, but the inferences behind the threatened walk-outs are even more disturbing.

Nearly two years ago an extended work stoppage by the teachers was ended by the passage of special legislation ordering a return to work under the pain of heavy sanctions.

At the time the famous Bill 25 was approved by the Legislature the idea was expressed that during the effective period of the measure the two parties could get together and iron out their differences.

But it is now apparent that this hope was not achieved and indications are that the opposing groups are as far apart today as they were when the emergency settlement was imposed.

Instead of any effective negotiations to work out an agreement there appears to have been a hardening of the positions, a condition that bodes ill for the future of education in this province.

If you want someone to weigh your words carefully, put 'em in writing and take 'em to the post office.

Clear way for reptiles

For the past five years a team of University of California researchers into animals and reptiles has been pouring radiation onto a 20-acre Atomic Energy Commission compound in the Nevada desert to see what could happen to wildlife.

They report that reptiles remain unaffected by massive radiation while mice have become sterile.

Computer projections of their data indicate that all mammals in the area will eventually become extinct but that reptiles will survive.

Some scientists believe that changes in the sun's radiation had something to do with the ending of the 200-million-year reign of the dinosaurs, possibly by drastically altering the climate.

The passing of the dinosaurs paved the way for the rise of the mammals, of which man considers himself the ne plus ultra.

Creation's leading mammal can take scant comfort in the knowledge that should he decide to wipe out himself and all his evolutionary near-kin in a nuclear holocaust the world will once again be made safe for reptiles.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jan. 21, 1669... Louis XVI of France was guillotined 176 years ago today—in 1793—at the age of 39. Though mentally dull and interested in nothing much besides hunting, Louis was popular and did not lose the loyalty of the Paris mob until the war with Austria, three years after the revolution of 1789. The war aroused hatred of Queen Marie Antoinette, an aunt of the Austrian emperor, and the king's enemies were able to use this. During Louis' trial, only an exact majority of 361 of 721 members of the Convention voted for the King's death.

Angry citizen takes council to task over winter parking ban

Dear Editor:
In answer to the article in the Record about the banning of cars from the streets—could anyone tell us where we are supposed to park, if you don't have drive ways?
We certainly can't take them in the house with us. Why don't the public works employees try cleaning one side of the street one night and the other side the next night?

I can't see where it will cost them any more as they already have the snow removal signs. After all, Sherbrooke is not Montreal. I think it should be up to the citizens to make suggestions as it is we who are taxed. We pay enough taxes now and I think that we should have some say about it.

If each person has a car parked in no-parking zones, there will be lots of money made on we poor devils.

May I ask who will receive the money? The next thing we know City Council will be saying that they are in debt. They should have more men working instead of three or four workers to walk along beside the truck to supervise the job. Council spends too much money on those men who are doing nothing, they just stand around idle.

Just because the City Council members can afford garages, this is no reason the working class of people can afford to have them with the high cost of living and the high taxes in Sherbrooke. I am only one of the thousands that has this problem. The only place I can park is on the street.

How about some of the citizens of Sherbrooke expressing their views on the parking problem.

Yours truly,
A PARKER

There's a continuing need for youth to consider sex behavior

Dear Sir:
Current thinking mirrored in Playboy philosophy and situational ethics comes into immediate conflict with the very idea of the sanctity of sex (the sanctity of sex is exchanged for the sanctity or compulsion, as the case may be, of the situation).

Prevailing moods and mores are quickly filtered down to the younger generation and very often the pendulum is pushed more radically to the left in the process. The prevailing morality on many high school and college campuses is a discouraging illustration of this phenomena.

What about the new morality? Is it really new? Or is it really old—the old made more convenient by the pill or disguised behind welfare programs which pick up the tab for wrecked lives.

A continuing need exists in Sherbrooke for the young people to be given periodic opportunities to think through the implications of their sexuality. To do this, doctors instead of pills are being prescribed.

Experienced medical personnel who have developed a distinctive philosophy of the nature and potential of sex have been chosen for a two-week series to be held at Grace Chapel in Sherbrooke.

Doctors: Fish, Hill, Klink and Paulette will be participating and giving students opportunities to interact with them through questions and discussion.

Readers want info on law

Dear Sir:
I am writing to ask you if it would be possible for you to secure from the Quebec Government a copy of the law governing snowmobiles and publish it in your paper, as there seems to be a great deal of confusion among the general public as to where they can be driven and where they are not allowed to be driven.

Also, why are kids of 10 to 12 years of age allowed to drive them at will? Surely they are not licensed to do so when you

The topics are scheduled as follows: Jan. 25, "Sexual Morality—Old or New?"; Feb. 1, "Wrap-Up" session with the doctors and two special films.

The sessions are to be held at 7:30 p.m. with refreshments provided for the public.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Adam's apple is the popular name given to the lump in the front of the throat, more prominent in men than in women, caused by the thyroid cartilage of the larynx or voice box. The term is believed to have arisen, The World Almanac says, from the belief that a piece of the forbidden apple which caused Adam's fall stuck in his throat when he tried to swallow it.

Debate rules

Provinces are not following Ottawa

Provincial governments are showing no sign of following the federal lead in pressing for tougher debate-limiting rules.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows that the legislatures, in contrast to Parliament, are having little trouble cleaning up their legislative programs.

Unlike Parliament, it is rare for proposed government legislation to be left over at the end of a session. Bills allowed to die are generally those a government wants to drop or to put on ice for a time.

Quebec has extensive structural changes in its political system already under way which could include tightening up of speech and question-period time limits.

But none of the other provinces has forecast streamlining changes.

In Ottawa, the complaint for years has been that Parliament simply hasn't enough time to get through the program placed before it.

Most of the 47-bill program that Prime Minister Trudeau set out at the start of the present session in September was left over from the Pearson administration.

The government's answer to the problem was the proposed Rule 16-A, which would have given it ultimate power to set debate limits in advance for a piece of legislation.

That proposal was sent back to committee before Christmas—with an angry farewell kick from the Opposition—as the House adopted an extensive list of time-saving rule changes.

But Mr. Trudeau has indicated the government will insist on the implementation of 16-A or some similar rule.

In the legislatures, even the more-limited closure procedure now in effect in Parliament is almost unknown. Some provinces have closure machinery in their books but rarely if ever use it.

The legislatures also appear to be a good deal more flexible than the federal Parliament in arranging business and extending sitting hours.

In most cases the legislative timetables are lengthened as the session moves toward cleanup. Parliament follows a fairly rigid timetable, although it also may sit overtime on occasion.

WORD IS UNKNOWN
But in the provinces, closure apparently is almost an unknown word.

Nova Scotia Clerk Roy A. Lawrence, for example, says it has never been used in the 27 years he has had the post. Speaker George Clarke says he knows of no case where it has been used in the Newfoundland legislature since he entered it in 1956.

Under New Brunswick rules, revised extensively in 1963, the government lacks the power to invoke closure.

Both Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia can revert to rules of the Commons if their own do not cover a situation—leaving open the possibility that both legislatures could invoke whatever debate-limiting rule is eventually adopted by Parliament.

In the Quebec assembly, one possible closure rule is on the books in connection with spending estimates, but it has never been used.

Ontario also has a rule that can be used to cut off debate, but Clerk Roderick Lewis says it has been used only once in his 23 years in the legislature.

The four Western provinces all have closure rules, but they have rarely if ever been used.

TECHNIQUES VARY

Techniques for planning legislative business between parties vary widely but apparently are much more informal than in the Commons, which has a business committee made up of House leaders from each of the four parties.

Mr. Clarke says the party whips in Newfoundland "sometimes have an understanding" that debate on a given item won't be dragged out, but this happens only rarely.

In Quebec, Maurice Bellemare and Pierre Laporte, government and Liberal house leaders, meet regularly before sittings on procedure. But the informal arrangement tends to break down when tempers flare, with resulting arguments on procedure.

In Manitoba—and recently in Ontario—party leaders meet sometimes to work out informal arrangements on procedure. Party whips operate in a similar way in Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia.

On the actual handling of legislation through various stages in house and committee, the practice varies extensively from province to province.

Is anything being done about pollution?

Yes and NHA is helping!

NHA stands for National Housing Act. This Act enables your Federal Government to work actively for better living conditions across Canada.

Today — the pollution of soil and water is posing a direct threat to health in more and more parts of our country. And it is proving a hindrance to our full enjoyment of Canada's natural resources. Pollution is a matter of concern to all of us — individuals, organizations and governments. For its part, under the NHA, the Federal Government has for several years been helping provincial and municipal authorities to finance sewage treatment facilities in many Canadian communities — large and small. And Federal grants are providing funds for basic research into the problem.

This doesn't mean, of course, that the battle has been won — that the NHA is a cure-all. But it does mean that something is being done — and that NHA is a part of it.

In short, NHA is vitally concerned not only with the home you live in, but the kind of environment your home lives in.

She retires from the countess business

OTTAWA (CP) — A retired German countess wants to spend the rest of her life fighting illiteracy in South American countries.

Although many people think this task begins with the young, Countess Eva Finck von Finckenstein is going to work with adults. The countess, who recently retired from a seven-year stint as cultural attaché at the German embassy here, has in mind a voluntary teaching system with free evening classes.

She has proposed her plan to the Canadian Executive Service Overseas, a Montreal-based organization for retired senior executives, and is awaiting their decision.

"Money mustn't be involved," the countess said. "These people just don't have it."

To her, illiteracy is both an urgent problem and "the greatest barrier to happiness."

Adults who cannot read or write, she says, are excluded from "every pleasure in life—modern civilization."

CONCENTRATE ON YOUNG — The South American countries are concentrating on educating their young. Most children are being taken care of now.

"But what about the generations who have missed all this? What about the young adults who can't write their names, read books? Can you imagine being 24 and never having read a book?"

The enterprising countess also plans to do some free-lance stories for German newspapers on the political situation of Canadian women.

HEALTH & SAFETY

Mainly for Mothers

Plan for Accident Prevention

Shake hands with your clock, and make a friend of time. Studies by safety experts indicate that a lack of organization in the home often creates situations that lead to accidents.

The Council on Family Health suggests that homemakers write a plan for each day — even a rough outline will help — either the night before or the first thing in the morning.

Too often, the memory can play tricks. Two trips to the store — where one properly planned trip would have been enough — means less time for other chores, or maybe a needed rest period. When unfinished tasks pile up, the end of the day finds mother tired out and bewildered, her temper frazzled.

There are instances of mothers engrossed in household tasks forgetting to pick up little children at school, until a call from teacher.

Little children have a fear of being lost or deserted. If they experience neglect, they may take odd risks to gain and hold mother's attention. A youngster may climb to an unlocked medicine chest and reach for forbidden contents. Or he may injure himself playing with knives or other objects in the kitchen.

Mealtimes should be planned so that preparations are begun on time. Hungry youngsters are more likely to reach for non-food items to eat. The result can be accidental poisoning.

Major tasks such as the laundry, a thorough house cleaning, preparing for a party, or caring for a sick member of the family, should be scheduled so that other members of the family are not neglected.

Pre-school children in the home need continuing supervision in a safe play area with safe toys to keep them busy.

Most accidents to small children happen when there is no supervision.

Plan your work so that it does not crowd into any one area of the day. Too much left to do, and not enough time to do it, can create tensions and friction.

Studies indicate that friction in the home is frightening to small children. They feel neglected, and may turn to risky exploring at the kitchen stove, the cabinet beneath the sink, or a closet which seems inviting.

The Council on Family Health says that a planned schedule of household responsibilities will help prevent accidents in the home.

Keep Wig on Block

A tip to the wig wearer: Keep your wig on a wig block or styrofoam head when not in use. This will retain the shape of the cap and help to maintain the styling as well.

POLLY'S POINTERS

More Ways to Clean Tarnished Pewter

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—Like Sandra, I had some dull and tarnished pewter. I washed mine in a medium solution of baking soda and water. That was over two years ago and it is still as bright as pewter should be.—MRS. M. H.

DEAR POLLY—I want to help Sandra clean her tarnished pewter pitcher. Soap (not a detergent) and a sponge or cloth will do wonders. Old-fashioned yellow soap is the best and worked like magic on a couple of antique pewter spoons that were actually black. Hope this helps her as other Pointers have helped me.—DORITO

DEAR GIRLS—A soft luster is the desired result for cleaned pewter, not a high shine. Never use metal polish, only silver polish. You might try putting on the silver polish. While it is still wet, apply a heavy lather made with soap. Rinse in hot water, dry thoroughly and rub with a flannel polishing cloth—never use abrasives.—POLLY

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I have a sofa slip cover that has a foam rubber backing. How do I launder it or should it be dry cleaned? Can it be put in the washer? Does one press such a cover with a steam iron or a regular one? Thank you for any help.—PUZZLED

DEAR POLLY—When traveling you can cut your initials out of reflective tape and stick them on your luggage. Thus among dozens of other bags, many alike, yours will stand out with much shine and glitter and be easy to spot. We tried this and it works.—JOHN

DEAR POLLY—My Pointer is not timesaving but child-saving. When I discard a spray can such as most everything seems to come in, I pull off the little push button and throw it away at the same time so small children cannot figure out how to use them. It seems there is always one more spray left in a can after it has set for awhile. I discovered this after my three-year-old picked a can out of the wastebasket and sprayed the remaining contents in his eyes. They were most painful for quite a time. Keep up those wonderful Pointers. We homemakers can sure use them.—RAMONA (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

For and about Women

The Jessops honeymoon in Europe

WATERVILLE — A pretty Christmas wedding took place in the Waterville United Church, Dec. 21, at 2 p.m., when Donna M. Learmonth, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Learmonth of North Hatley, became the bride of Emlin L. Jessops, only son of Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Jessops of Huddersfield, England.

Rev. James Brooks, minister of the church, officiated at the double-ring ceremony, and the organist, Mrs. Clifford Burton, played the wedding music, featuring a Trumpet Voluntary and the hymn, Gracious Spirit, Holy Ghost. Traditional Christmas decorations were used in the church, along with bronze and white poms. The guest pews were marked with white satin bows.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of white velvet with a high collar, and a panel of white Swiss lace down the front. The Empire bodice supported a short train of white velvet, and the long sleeves were trimmed with pearl buttons ending at the wrist. A large white velvet flower with mother-of-pearl seed trim held her chapel length veil. She carried a cascade of red poinsettia and white mums.

Mrs. Patricia Lowry, a friend of the bride, was matron of honor, and she wore a floor-length velvet gown of Christmas red. The bridesmaids, Miss Heather Learmonth, a cousin, and Miss Helen O'Lonegan, a friend, wore gowns of the same style in forest green velvet. They wore matching velvet bows trimmed with sprigs of holly in their hair, and carried white fur muffs trimmed with holly.

Robert Dawson, of Glasgow, Scotland, acted as best man, and two other friends of the groom, Brian Langan of Edmonton and Richard Bogehold of Montreal were ushers.

The bride's mother chose a deep rose brocade puff ensemble, with black accessories and a pink jacket. Her corsage was pink carnations. The groom's mother wore a peacock blue brocade ensemble, with matching hat and navy blue accessories. Her corsage was yellow carnations.

The reception was held at the New Sherbrooke House, where luncheon was served. The bride's table was centered with a wedding cake, its only ornament being a glass bride and groom which had been used on the wedding cake of the bride's mother and father. Sprigs of holly and bronze and white poms were used as decorations in the room. A cousin of the bride, Miss Karen Little, was in charge of the guest book.

Following the reception, the couple left for their wedding trip to Switzerland. For traveling, the bride wore a forest green Scotch tweed dress and jacket, with brown accessories, and a corsage of yellow carnations.

The last week of their trip was spent with the groom's parents and other relatives in England, where another reception greeted them. Upon their return, they will be living in Calgary, temporarily.

Guests at the wedding were from, including the groom's parents, England, Calgary, Montreal, Cumberland Mills, Thetford Mines, Stanstead, Three Rivers, Milby, Birchton, Cowansville, Sherbrooke, Kinnear's Mills, Lachine, Waterville and North Hatley.

Family party and trip celebrates 40th

DERBY LINE—Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Lafoe recently observed their 40th wedding anniversary. The occasion was marked by a family party held at the home of their niece, Mrs. Dawson Field and Mr. Field at White River Jet, and given by Mrs. Lafoe's sisters, Mrs. Rachel Chaffee, of North Troy, Mrs. Rebecca Derusha, White River Jet, and Mrs. Richard Benner, of Newport.

Upon the arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Lafoe they were presented with a corsage of flowers and a boutonniere. A three-tier decorated anniversary cake graced the attractively arranged bride's table.

The family left the Field home for Lebanon, N.H., where in one of the private dining rooms of the Green Gables a banquet was served the family group. A toast was proposed to the bride and groom of the ruby years.

Afterward all returned to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Field for coffee and the sharing of the anniversary cake. Mr. and Mrs.

Lafoe received several gifts from relatives and friends and numerous congratulatory cards.

Mr. Lafoe and Ruth Bates were united in marriage at Derby in the home of the bride which is now owned by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Taylor. The couple have two sons, David, of Plymouth, N.H., and Richard, with the US Airforce presently in Denver, Colo., who expects to go to Vietnam in the spring. There are three grandchildren, Laurie Jeanne, and the twins, Richard and Charles.

ship fund for young musicians of the Eastern Townships.

The flamboyant 'omelet king' entertains and feeds the famous as well as the sick

MONTREAL (CP) — Patients at Montreal's Jewish General Hospital had a taste of gourmet eating recently, thanks to Rudolph Stanish, the flamboyant "omelet king."

He was invited here by the hospital women's auxiliary to make his famed omelets at a two-day bazaar.

Recently married

Mr. and Mrs. Yves Alain of Windsor, wish to announce the recent marriage of their only daughter, Carole Rosemary to Mr. Richard Allan Cilles, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cilles, Sherbrooke, which took place at Plymouth United Church, Sherbrooke, Rev. M. W. Williams officiated.

Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Armstrong of St. Laurent, announce the engagement of their daughter, Elaine Carole, to Mr. Cedric Bailey Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Cedric Bailey, Sr., of Highwater, Que. Wedding plans will be announced at a later date.

A chef for 25 years, Mr. Stanish became the darling of the rich and won fame overnight when he decided to launch omelets as his specialty at a party in 1950.

Since then, he has entertained at many soirees and is usually surrounded by a fascinated crowd.

Most of the time the party doesn't even continue until the chef stops cooking. "Danny Kaye is a great offender," he said in an interview. "I think hostesses get furious with him because he doesn't leave my side."

PROUD OF WAISTLINE — The chef, who is as proud of his 32-inch waist as he is of his omelets, says he has rubbed shoulders with the world's elite and seen the inside of many famous kitchens.

"Mrs. Richard Rogers has the most beautiful kitchen in the world because the hammered pans are so exquisitely kept."

"The smallest kitchen in the world belongs to Arlene Francis—it is like a postage stamp."

Whether the location is a boxroom or a ballroom, Mr. Stanish always turns omelet-making into an unusual work of art.

"The secret of successful omelets is having fresh eggs at room temperature, a warm pan and a good grade of butter," he said, tossing a daub of butter into the bottom of a pan and watching it foam.

Then he poured in the egg mixture, seized the pan from the flame, and stirred vigorously "like the hammers of hell" until it thickened.

He added prepared mushrooms, cheese, onions or herbs from side dishes.

"I can make an omelet in 15 seconds," he announced proudly, "but today I will take 20."

WORE LADIES OUT

His omelet repertoire ranges from jelly to caviar and sour cream. He recalled that the most omelets he ever made in one day was 3,000 "during the pre-election breakfast for John Kennedy."

Talks with teachers may escalate

MONTREAL (CP) — After dragging on unsuccessfully for the last 18 months, contract negotiations between Quebec province and its 70,000 teachers appear on the verge of escalating into open confrontation.

Both sides in the dispute have drawn battle lines and neither seems prepared to budge an inch.

In mid-January this year, Raymond Laliberte, president of the 60,000-member Quebec Teachers' Federation, announced he had authorized his union membership to begin rotating or spot strikes by the end of the month.

Finance Minister Paul Dozois countered a day later, saying the government would not increase its salary offer by one cent.

Nor would the government bow to the teachers' demands for arbitration of the dispute.

Mr. Dozois said the "present state" of the province's finances prevents the government from meeting teachers' demands.

Mr. Dozois' firm stand was followed two days later by an appeal to the teachers by Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal to think of the students involved.

Rotating strikes were "certainly not a means of helping the students' school year or the negotiations with the government and the school boards."

STRIKE MAY SPREAD

Planned for the end of January, the rotating strikes would affect French-speaking pupils in the Roman Catholic school system but could spread to English Catholic and English Protestant classes if members of the two smaller unions—the Provincial Association of Protestant Teachers and the Provincial Association of Catholic Teachers—decide to follow suit.

The strike would close a few schools or a few classes each day and could last until the end of the school year in June.

Students would not be sure from one day to the next when their school might be closed.

School administration would also be complicated: School boards for one thing, would have trouble keeping track of the number of days to deduct from teachers' pay cheques for time struck.

Seven of the 62 teachers' associations within the Quebec Teachers' Corporation have already advised the labor department that they will strike. Others are expected to follow suit.

PLAN TO USE PRESSURE

The strikes are designed to exert pressure on the government and the province's 1,200 school boards to have negotiations resumed under binding arbitration.

Talks broke down Dec. 18 when the government refused to grant arbitration on the grounds that most issues still to be solved would require amendments to legislation or to the education department budget.

Settlement of the issues would therefore require action by the legislative assembly, not simply by an arbitration board.

The teachers' dispute is rooted in difficulties in working out for the first time a province-wide contract to replace working agreements formerly drawn up between individual school boards and their teaching staffs.

Agreement

MONTREAL (CP) — Seven unions representing 22,000 railway shop-craft employees have reached agreement with Canada's major railways on a new two-year contract providing for wage increases, higher skill-differential payments and improved fringe benefits.

The joint railway-union announcement Monday came on the heels of another early railway-union settlement affecting 75,000 non-operating employees.

In both cases, it was the first time in many years that railways and employees have reached agreement without going through protracted conciliation and arbitration processes that often were settled by the Commons in Ottawa.

Contributes

MONTREAL (CP) — The 8,000-member Provincial Association of Protestant Teachers has contributed $500 to the St. Leonard Fund for the maintenance of Grade 1 English classes in the Montreal suburb, the association said a statement Monday.

The classes, held outside the school but patterned on public school curricula, were organized last fall when it was announced that instruction in English would be phased out of all St. Leonard schools.

Beginning with Grade 1 in 1968, and Grade 2 in 1969, each succeeding school year would see another progressively higher grade become unilingual until all English-speaking classes had disappeared.

To announce

QUEBEC (CP) — Cultural Affairs Minister Jean-Noel Tremblay, was to announce plans today for the promotion of the theatre and arts in Quebec City following a one-hour sit-in at his offices by local actors Monday.

Complaining of government "inactivity," the actors had warned they would occupy Mr. Tremblay's offices for several days but left after the minister agreed to meet with three of their representatives.

Wants action

MONTREAL (CP) — Lebanon urged the International Civil Aviation Organization Monday to condemn and apply sanctions against Israel for its attack last month on Beirut airport in which 13 civilian aircraft were destroyed.

Dr. Assad Koteite, representing Lebanon on the 27-member ICAO council, told the extraordinary session that the privileges and facilities which Israel now enjoys as part of the 116-member organization should be withdrawn.

Quite a meeting

MONTREAL (CP) — The International Civil Aviation Organization opened an extraordinary meeting of its 27-member council Monday to consider complaints from Lebanon and Israel about recent attacks on their airliners.

Lebanon, a member of the ICAO council, requested a meeting following an Israeli commando raid on Beirut airport Dec. 28 in which 13 civilian aircraft were destroyed.

Awaits

QUEBEC (CP) — The break-away Quebec wing of the Canadian Junior Chamber of Commerce is awaiting a reply from the national group on a reunion proposal, it was learned Monday.

Jean Marie Beaulieu of suburban Loretteville, president of the French-language Jaycee organization — la Federation des jeunes chambres du Canada francais — made the statement in an interview.

Will check

OTTAWA (CP) — State Secretary Gerard Pelletier plans to investigate what part the CBC played in the production of a taped 15-hour radio program of French-Canadian music, songs, plays and commentary on politics and economics broadcast Sunday in France and Quebec.

"I have asked for a complete report from the CBC," Mr. Pelletier said Monday in an interview.

Won't lose

MONTREAL (CP) — Lucien Saulnier, chairman of Montreal's executive committee, reiterated Monday that city employees will not lose a penny as a result of suspension of the city's payments to their pension funds.

Mr. Saulnier at a news conference said the city was only deferring with the permission of the Quebec national assembly, its payments to the pension funds. Payment of the pensions now was guaranteed by provincial statute.

Henry's here

PARIS (CP) — Henry Cabot Lodge arrived here Monday night to head the U.S. team at the Vietnam peace talks but ruled out an immediate start to substantive negotiations.

He said substantive talks would not begin today, and reliable sources said the South Vietnamese delegation did not expect them to get under way before the end of the week.

Deaths

BROWN, Rhoda — At the Sherbrooke Hospital, on Sunday, Jan. 19, 1969, Rhoda Ludkin, beloved wife of James E. Brown, and dear mother of Clare (Mrs. W. Thomson) and Doctor Edwin. SPORT SHOTS and pot shots

RUSSIANS HIT STONE WALL

THE RUSSIANS pulled one of their favorite tricks in trying to bluff their way into a game with a NHL team but ran into a person who didn't fall for their way of doing things.

DAVID MOLSON, president of the Montreal Canadiens and the Montreal Forum, called off the game at the Forum with the Canadian Nationals while the Russians were taking their time in reaching Montreal. No doubt they figured they could do just what they wanted and take their time in doing so.

FOR YEARS THEY have been dominating the hockey world by telling everybody just how good they are and have been dictating their terms for any trip to Canada. This time however they ran into a different person in David Molson. They were seeking propaganda for themselves but I think they failed to do so.

WE UNDERSTAND the position of the CAHA in this matter but they at least made a good move when they asked the Federation of Ice Hockey International to suspend the Russians from the World Hockey Championships in Stockholm in March. I believe this changed the whole matter and brought it to a head.

AS FOR THEIR other reasons saying that they didn't know who they were going to play, and where, was just another of their tricks. All trips are lined up weeks before and they were told by the CAHA just where and whom they were going to play so in our mind that was a poor excuse.

I BELIEVE it is about time we tell the Russians to stay at home and not bother with them any more. They come here and stay at the best hotels and eat enough for a crew of forty players but when a team goes to Russia it is a different thing. You take what they give you and like it. I know. I was in Russia with the Sherbrooke Beavers and you do what they want you to do and that is it.

SO FOR MY PART I say the quicker we forget, the better it will be for everybody concerned. David Molson didn't fool around and called their bluff by calling off the game slated for Montreal and refusing to play hosts at Saturday's NHL game. This must have hurt their prestige a lot but they will come up with a bunch of lies for an excuse because as they say in Sweden you can't trust them and they should know. I sincerely hope the Nationals can trim them but it will be tough.

LOCAL HOCKEY FANS are wondering what happened to the Victoriaville Tigers on their trip to the Ahearne Tournament. There are several reasons but the important ones were the change of time and the food. Several of the younger players were making their first trip overseas and after a few days they were home-sick and this effected their play in more ways than one.

THEY HAVE BEEN called a second-rate club by various newspapermen which is far from the truth. They are still a good hockey club in my mind and they have proved this the past year. After all they trimmed the best in Canada last spring in winning the Allan Cup and no second-rate club could achieve this.

I BELIEVE A LOT of reporters don't know just how good the Swedes are at home. They have made considerable progress in the past three years in all departments. They have better players at home than those who appeared in Canada with the Swedish National team. They are good skaters and set up nice plays but their shooting is a little off but this is coming. They have now adopted the slapshot, after watching the Canadians using in the past few years and are becoming pretty adept at it.

THE TIGERS WERE without their general in Bob Chevalier, who was unable to make the trip owing to a new job and he was sadly missed. The youngsters on defense just couldn't fill the hole. Coach Charbonneau had to use Johnny Mentis, Guy Black and Mike Labrosse in an effort to give his goalie more protection. This hurt his attacking units forcing extra changes all around.

IT WAS JUST near the end that the boys commenced to click but it was too late in the tournament. This just about sums up matters from one who was there and witnessed all the games. The Tigers just left their team spirit at home which didn't help them. They were a bunch of home-sick youngsters.

THE BEAVERS seem to have made considerable progress since the last time I had the opportunity of watching them in action. Returning home from three weeks in Europe, with the Victoriaville Tigers, I noticed a big change in the local crew.

LOU POLIQUIN seems to have adopted the "iron hand" method with the boys and when he speaks they listen. There is no question in my mind that the Beavers have a good club and when they decide to play they can be tough.

THE BEAVERS in their last five games have posted two wins with the same number of losses and a tie with Granby. They are playing better hockey since Lou Poliquin took over. One big factor is the playing of Bruce Cline. He now has only to worry about getting goals which makes things a little different than before.

THE RACE FOR honors is turning into a real battle with only 14 points separating the five clubs. Granby is tied with St. Hyacinthe while the Beavers are right on their heels, five points behind. A couple of wins can make a big difference.

THE BEAVERS FACE the Tigers this evening and Thursday journey to Victoriaville for a return engagement. These two games are big ones as far as the Beavers are concerned and the outcome will play a big part in their bid for higher spot in the standing. So it is a case of all out for the locals but the Tigers could be tough. In their last match the Tigers walloped the Poliquin squad 8-2 so tonight it will be a battle of revenge.

DISTRICT OF BEDFORD and Knowlton Intermediate Schools made a clean sweep of the Hi-Y Girls' Basketball Jamboree Saturday at the Sherbrooke High School. Congratulations girls for your fine showing.

SIXTEEN TEAMS from nine schools from the Townships were on hand and some very close games were played according to the different scores. Next Saturday the Boys' Invitational Basketball Jamboree, which is sponsored by the Hi-Y Club also will take place at the Sherbrooke High commencing early Saturday.

SHERBROOKE BONSPIEL ended Saturday evening and the survivors of 48 rinks which commenced last Monday clashed in the finals. Some very good matches were played before the winners emerged.

DUKE DOUCET of Windsor should remember it for some time. Duke, with a brand new "side-burns" fashioned after some of the top artists of the country, will have a hard time forgetting the 'Spiel. For the first time in years I saw Duke miss two consecutive shots at stones right in the middle of the house wide open.

THE EXPRESSION ON his face was something and what he said only Roger Chretien knows but one can imagine. To those just taking up the game this should be a big help as it is very seldom you see a veteran skip miss such shots. Anyway Duke better luck next time and don't forget your promise in cutting those side-whiskers.

First East-West hockey classic to be staged in Forum tonight at 8 p.m.

MONTREAL (CP) — The opposing coaches in tonight's 22nd annual National Hockey League all-star game—Toe Blake, formerly of Montreal Canadiens, and Scotty Bowman of St. Louis Blues—have different theories as to how to use the talent made available to them.

Blake, who retired at the end of last season after 13 successful years in Montreal, will be guiding his ninth all-star squad.

Bowman is a freshman and came by the job because his Blues and the Canadiens were Stanley Cup finalists last season.

Tonight's game will be televised nationally by the CBC starting at 8 p.m. EST.

The format has been changed this year—with the East Division stars, picked by NHL Writers' Association, facing a like number of outstanding performers from the West Division. In previous years the formula was for the defending Stanley Cup champions to meet an all-star aggregation.

"I'll play my lines the way they were picked," Blake says. "I don't want the hockey writers mad at me any more."

KEEPS MATES TOGETHER

Bowman, on the other hand, says he intends to keep players from the same expansion teams together as much as possible.

On paper the East appears to be a shoo-in, but both coaches claim this could be the most competitive all-star game in several years.

Each member of the winning squad will pocket $500, while each loser will get $250—the first time the players have been paid for their participation. All proceeds go to the players' pension fund.

"We've got strong goaltending and a solid defence," Bowman says. "If we check a little, who knows?"

Bowman has eight of his Blues on the West Division team.

The Blues are currently 17 points ahead of second-place Oakland Seals in their division. "I think we'll do better with players of the same team playing together," Bowman adds.

He has the league's two top net minders working on his side—veterans Jacques Plante and Glenn Hall—both from his club. The pair have registered five shutouts each and allowed 24 fewer goals than their closest rivals.

POSES A PROBLEM

However, Bowman's big problem will be to stop the explosive power packed into one big East Division line, that is, if Blake executes his proposed plan.

For example, who will Bowman use to check centre Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins, left winger Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks and Gordie Howe on right wing. Esposito is currently leading the NHL scoring race with 29 goals and 38 assists. Hull has 30 goals and 32 assists and Howe has 21 goals and 37 assists.

To back up his top trio Blake has Jean Beliveau of Montreal Canadiens at centre between Detroit's Frank Mahovlich and Bob Nevin of New York Rangers.

Standing in the wings are centres Stan Mikita of Chicago and Norm Ullman of Toronto Maple Leafs, right wingers Bobby Rousseau of Montreal and Rod Gilbert of New York, and left winger Dennis Hull of Chicago.

Blake's lead-off man in front of goaltenders Ed Giacomin of New York and Gerry Cheevers of Boston, is the Bruins' Bobby Orr. He will be joined by Chicago's Pat Stapleton, Toronto's Tim Horton, and Montreal's J. C. Tremblay.

Race tightens

Beavers meet Tigers tonight

Sherbrooke Beavers meet the Quebec Provincial Senior Hockey League leaders, the Victoriaville Tigers, tonight at 8:30 p.m. at the Sports Palace.

In other Provincial League action Chicoutimi is at Granby and St. Hyacinthe travels to Ottawa. A win by the Beavers this evening, provided either St. Hyacinthe or Granby lose, could leave Sherbrooke only three points out of fourth place and a playoff berth.

Sherbrooke defeated what many people believe to be the most consistent team in the league Sunday night when the Beavers downed the Chicoutimi Saguenens 4-2 before a home town crowd of 2,900.

Friday evening the Beavers outclassed the St. Hyacinthe Gauls 6-0 on the strength of a superb performance by Bill Sweeney and outstanding goaltending by Jacques Monette.

The Victoriaville Tigers have wasted no time in restoring their league-lead since returning from Europe last week.

Granby, battling for all its worth for fourth place, edged the Ottawa Eastern Canada Nationals 3-1 Sunday night to move into a third place tie with the St. Hyacinthe Gauls.

Sherbrooke, no doubt, would welcome a third place finish. Chicoutimi, presently in second place, according to most observers, won't catch the Tigers but won't be caught by the Vics, Gauls or Beavers.

Chicoutimi has lost only once all season on home ice, the reason they have done so well in the standings thus far, and could be very tough to beat in the playoffs at home.

The Beavers, besides playing heads-up hockey of late, are healthy as well. Bob Foster remains the only doubtful starter. Foster re-injured a foot Friday night following the game. The elated, robust defenceman, in an attempt to congratulate Jacques Monette on his shutout, leaped onto the goaltender and as the two men fell, Foster's ankle was turned.

The Beavers drew 5,000 fans over the weekend and the pair of victories will do much to attract even bigger audiences in the home games to come. Friday 2,100 fans watched as Sherbrooke trimmed St. Hyacinthe 6-0 while Sunday 2,900 looked on.

Esposito eyes Art Ross Trophy as NHL's top scorer, Hull slows pace

MONTREAL (CP) — The name of a Boston Bruin has never been inscribed on the Art Ross Trophy, but centre Phil Esposito is making a valiant effort to have that omission remedied this season.

Statistics released by the National Hockey League Monday show the rangy Boston centre in first place in the individual scoring race.

The last time a Boston player won the scoring title was in 1943-44, when Herbie Cain turned the trick-four years before the late Art Ross donated the trophy to the NHL in 1947. Ross served for years as the manager-coach of the Bruins before his death Aug. 5, 1964.

Esposito finally overtook left winger Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks after following him closely in the race for several weeks. He has set the pace for his Boston team-mates—a pace that could smash all existing records for most points by a player and most goals by a team in one season.

Esposito scored a goal in each of Boston's four five-goal outbursts last week to run his total to 29 goals and 38 assists for 67 points, five more than Hull, who still leads the league in goals with 30.

HAD BROKEN JAW Hull, playing with a fractured jaw for the last month, was able to gain only two assists last week, but his 62-point total is four more than that of third-place Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings.

Howe, a 22-season veteran with the Wings, scored two goals last week, giving him 21 for the season—the 20th consecutive term he has scored at least 20 goals.

Stan Mikita, Chicago centre and scoring champion for the last two seasons and four of the last five, is fourth with 55 points, including 38 assists—which ties him with Esposito in that department.

Fifth is Red Berenson of St. Louis Blues who now has 21 goals and 29 assists for 51 points in 55 games. Norm Ullman of Toronto Maple Leafs, Jean Beliveau of Montreal Canadiens and Alex Delvecchio of Detroit are tied for sixth place with 49 points each, followed by Ken Hodge, Esposito's right winger, and Jim Pappin of Chicago, each with 46 points.

Goaltenders Jacques Plante and Glenn Hall of St. Louis, although they failed to gain a shutout for the first time in five weeks, maintained their lead in the Vezina Trophy race and their 2.00 goals-against average.

They now have a lead of 24 goals over their nearest rivals—New York Rangers, Boston and Toronto.

Jim Dorey, rookie Toronto defenceman, continues to lead in penalty minutes with 146, but forward Forbes Kennedy of Philadelphia Flyers has moved into second spot with 129.

Hall of Fame expected to open to Stan Musial

NEW YORK (AP) — The doors of Baseball's Hall of Fame were expected to swing open today for Stan Musial who rewrote record books during 22 years with St. Louis Cardinals.

The results of the balloting by veteran members of the Baseball Writers' Association of America were to be announced about 11 a.m. EST. A player must be named on 75 per cent of the ballots to be elected.

Since the first election in 1936, when former greats Ty Cobb, Babe Ruth, Honus Wagner, Christy Mathewson and Walter Johnson made it, only Ted Williams in 1966 and Bob Feller and Jackie Robinson in 1962 were chosen on their first try.

Joining Musial among those eligible for the first time—a player must be retired for five years to be eligible—were Red Schoendienst, Musial's close friend and former team-mate who now manages the Cardinals, Early Wynn, Gil Hodges and Vic Wertz.
