Recollections Of The Past Concerning Tullochgorum Road Settlement

The past week a Gleaner representative was privileged to have an interview with an old resident of Tullochgorum Road, Howick, when some interesting recollections of the past were given. The person interviewed was Mrs. Wm. Wilson, Sr., who celebrated her 88th birthday on June 7th.

Mrs. Wilson has an extremely keen memory and can recall much of the early life of the Tullochgorum Road settlement and quote dates. She is quite active, has good hearing and sight and moves around the house quite fast for a lady of her age. She assists in some of the duties of the house and lives with her unmarried and only living daughter, Helen. Two married sons live on farms on either side of her about one mile distant in each case, they are William on the farm to the east and James D. on the one to the west. Another son, Archibald, follows the trade of carpenter and lives at Ormstown.

Mrs. Wilson's grandfather, Donald Cameron, came to Canada in 1832 from Strontian, Scotland, and was a blacksmith by trade. He had intended to go to Ontario, but after setting out from Montreal to go there, winter weather made him turn back. While coming from Scotland to Canada by sailing boat, a daughter Sophia was born on the ship. A minister, who happened to be on the boat was coming to Georgetown Church, and he conducted the baptismal service. It was thus that when the cold weather forced Donald Cameron to return to Montreal, that he again met the minister and he advised him to settle on a farm at Howick. Mr. Cameron, not knowing very much about farming, decided to try his own trade at Bean River. He was very much needed and was the only blacksmith for many miles around the area. He remained there until he died in 1862.

Archibald Cameron, his son, and father of Mrs. Wilson, Sr., married a daughter of the Elliot family who came from Scotland with her family when she was only three years of age and settled at Howick. Five sons and three daughtrs were born, five born at Bean River and three at Tullochgorum Road, among the latter being Mrs. Wilson, Sr. Archie Cameron decided he was going to settle in the Tullochgorum Road area and in 1860 built a shanty after clearing away the bush. He had to blaze a trail into the area as the whole of that part was bush. This home was about one mile west of the farm on which Mrs. Wilson resides and on which her son James D. is now living. Her father was one of the few first settlers in this area and for many years there was only a trail through the bush to the shanty he had built. Mrs. Wilson recalls that her mother used to tell her that she became very tired of seeing just tree stumps all around her and water was very scarce. There were many trials and disappointments before this home was built and it was many years before much of the land was cleared.

On the death of the grandfather in 1862, the grandmother came to live with her son and died in 1867.

Mrs. Wilson was educated at No. 7 Tullochgorum School and her first teacher was Miss Jane Fraser of Dundee, who married a Mr. Farlinger of Dundee and went to reside there. Her second teacher was Miss Lindsay, who never married and when she retired, went to live at Ormstown. Here she took up painting as a hobby and Mrs. Wilson is very proud of one which she presented to her and has hanging in her living room. In 1930, the old school was pulled down in the march of progress and when consolidation was brought to Howick. Mrs. Wilson however, has a picture of the old school and proudly shows it, as also of her two teachers.

Mrs. Wilson was married on Christmas Day, 1900, at her home, to Mr. William Wilson, whose parents were also from Scotland aind had settled about one mile east of the home where Mrs. Wilson now lives. She tells of a bush fire which occurred shortly after her husband's folks arrived and had put up their shanty and they were temporarily driven from their home. Her husband's mother, who was then just a young bride, had a box containing a set of dishes given to her as a wedding present. When the fire occurred, nearby neighbors helped to save some of the contents of the shanty and threw out the box of dishes. Fortunately the fire did not harm the shanty and when the articles were moved back in, it was found there were only a few cups remaining whole of the set of dishes.

Sunset Service At "Morrison Homestead," Sunday

The public of Huntingdon and surrounding territory is invited to the "Morrison Homestead" in Elgin, near Route 4, Huntingdon, on Sunday evening, June 30th, to join in a religious service and film showing to be held there. It will be remembered that the Gleaner carried a story on the sale of the Morrison property for the purpose of converting this into a ranch for groups of young ranchers. Slowly this property is being converted to the purpose intended and on Sunday evening, will be the first time that the public has been invited to a gathering there.

Rev. H. W. Henderson, of Ormstown, will conduct the service out in the open on the grounds of the Homestead, commencing at 7.45 p.m. There will be the old time gospel hymns for all to join in and following the service, as soon as it is dark enough, there will be a showing of the film: "Son of Man". This film has earned a good reputation in the larger centres and is well worth seeing.

The work of converting the property is still going on and there is much work to be done, but small groups of ranchers have been attending and will attend from time to time.

It is a date on Sunday evening, June 30th, at 7.45, so come and bring your friends.

Imported Sire For Howick Club

A special meeting of the Howick Ayrshire Breeding Club was held at Burnside Farms, Howick, on June 18. The occasion was to inspect the Club's new bull, Carnell True Art, which had arrived at Burnside from Quarantine a few days before.

It will be recalled that this bull was purchased at the 1957 Ayr (Scotland) Bull sale on behalf of the Club.

After a study of the pedigree and on inspection of the bull himself, the members unanimously agreed that they had apparently made a good selection.

It was decided that the bull be kept at Terrace Bank Farm under the supervision of Robert E. Ness, Secretary of the Club. Also that the bull be put into immediate service.

Carnell True Art, born May 1, 1956, was bred by G. and R. Templeton of Carnell and Pocknave, Hurlford, Ayrshire. "His sire is Carnell Fine Art, an "Approved" Scottish Sire, by Hobsland Skymaster a noted prize winner and also an "Approved" Sire. The dam of sire, Carnell Flora, has to her credit 5 outstanding records including 18,133 lbs. M., at 4.77%. She is also the dam of 4 "Approved" Sires.

The dam of Carnell True Art is Carnell Tottie 4th, an "Approved Dam" with 13 outstanding records that puts her well into the "Hundred Thousand Pounds" milk class.

To add spice to the pedigree, Carnell Tottie 4th. was sired by Bargower Demonstrator, by Bargower Rothesay Bay, two outstanding Scottish sires. "Demonstrator" was from Bargower Lady Eva whose 4 Scottish records total 54,870 lbs. M., average test 4.22%.

TWO QUEBEC FARM FORUM MEMBERS WIN NATIONAL LEADERSHIP AWARDS

Mr. Walter Hodgman, Birchton, and Mr. Fred Green, Coaticook, each won a National Leadership Award for their efforts in promoting the Farm Radio Forum program during the past year. The awards, a piece of monogrammed Samsonite luggage, were made by Dr. H. H. Hannam, president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, on the occasion of the National Farm Radio Forum Conference held in Shediac, N. B., recently. Mr. Hodgman had served two years as president of Quebec Farm Radio Forum, while Mr. Green, a previous award winner, has written many newspaper articles in support of Farm Forum.

Five other members also won awards. They represent the provinces of New Brunswick, Ontario, and Alberta.

The Conference reviewed the activities of Farm Radio Forum in the past season. National secretary, Mr. Floyd Griesbach, reported that there were slightly over 900 active Farm Forums last year. Prof. W. B. Baker, Saskatchewan University, reported that the results of a survey carried out in Saskatchewan last winter indicate that television does not cause very many people to stay away from Farm Forum meetings. He stated that the satisfaction which members experience who take part in Farm Forum discussions seems to more than outweigh the satisfaction experienced by the same persons when watching TV programs. There was, he said, no other Rural Adult Education Project presently in Saskatchewan, which could duplicate Farm Radio Forum.

The Farm Radio Forum listening audience is not limited to just those persons taking part in Farm Forum discussions, according to Mr. R. G. Knowles, supervisor of the CBC Farm & Fisheries Department. He stated that a poll conducted last year shows that many city dwellers listen to the program, and that the Farm Forum rural listening audience is surpassed by that of only three other programs. These are the CBC news, the weather reports, and the noon farm broadcast.

Mr. Nicholson, producer of Farm Radio Forum, told the Conference that during the coming year an effort will be made to have Farm Forum broadcasts televised over a small area. It is not definite yet as to which TV station will carry the broadcasts.

Manitoba Forums have invited the Conference to Manitoba for its 1958 meeting. The invitation was issued by Mrs. Margaret Duncan on behalf of Manitoba members. Barring unforseen circumstances, the Conference agreed to accept the invitation.

Ormstown Resident Receives Red Cross Award Of Merit

At the recent meeting of the Ormstown branch of the Red Cross an Award of Merit for meritorious service for her work in the branch during many years was bestowed upon Mrs. Emily Mann. The presentation was made by the President Mrs. J. Ward Rember. Mrs. Mann not only served as the Convenor of the Women's Work Committee for quite a number of years during the last war and after, but was an energetic canvasser as well. Her many friends will be delighted to learn of this well deserved award.

The Ormstown branch now has a loan cupboard from the Red Cross. This will be in charge of Mrs. William Hooker. Any case of home illness, which requires an extended period of bed care, and unable to have hospital care, upon recommendation from a doctor will be eligible for the articles needed from the loan cupboard. A wheel chair is also available.

The exhibit of knitted articles displayed in Mr. H. Beaudin's store window recently, testifies to the very fine amount of work being done by the few faithful knitters under the Convenorship of Mrs. H. Beaudin. This second shipment this year consists of 194 pairs men's socks, 13 pairs boys' socks, 19 pair baby booties, 5 baby bonnets, also children's sweaters. Anyone wishing to assist with this very worthwhile work please contact Mrs. Beaudin.

It is hoped that members of the Swimming and Water Safety Committee, and others interested, will be able to arrange a limited training course, on a selective basis in a safe swimming place, for the children of the parents who are willing to give their consent for their children to benefit by some swimming instruction during this summer. Only a very limited number could be coached safely, at any one instruction period, in order to avoid any possible accidents. This ruling must be clearly understood, and strictly adhered to, in order to protect the possible participants and for the protection of the Executive and members of this Red Cross branch. If all co-operate well, it is quite possible that during coming years quite a number will be glad to have had this opportunity of voluntary instruction.

Arrangements are being made for a proposed course in Home Nursing for French speaking appicants; course to start early in September. About twenty, not more than thirty, would be a good group for an instructress to teach at one time. So those who are interested in this should leave their names with Mr. A. Chabot soon.

The Executive and Mr. Chabot, Campaign Chairman for 1956-57, wish to thank all the canvassers who worked so willingly in raising the amount of $1157.32 for this branch of the Red Cross.

Outboard Motor Stolen At Hemmingford

A robbery occurred at Hemmingford, during the night of June 16 and 17, when a 25 h.p. outboard motor was stolen from a boat at Lake Hermas. This lake is a private one owned by Hermas Fortin and is in the process of being laid out with trees, etc. It is a very pretty spot. The motor is valued at $600.00 and Det. F. Wilmot of the Provincial Police is investigating the theft.

Circus Here On Friday At Fair Grounds

Friday is the big day in Huntingdon, for on that day, the circus will set up the big top and an afternoon and evening show of Garden Bros. Circus will be given for the enjoyment of patrons in this area. Huntingdon Agricultural Society Division "A" is sponsoring the circus and an advance sale of tickets is now being conducted.

The success of this venture will mean much to our local Agricultural Society and the officers are hoping that the people of Huntingdon and surrounding area will support the project to the limit of their ability. A percentage on the sale of tickets goes to the Society and this will do much to help pay off the obligations before the next Fair rolls around.

It is many years since a circus came to Huntingdon, therefore this may be an opportunity for all to refresh memories of the big top, the clowns, the animal acts and so forth. Get your tickets in advance of the big day and help your own Huntingdon Agricultural Society.

Man Drowned In Lake ST. Francis Body Missing

A boating tragedy occurred near Grenadier Island, Lake St. Francis, on Sunday, which involved two young men. Roger Allen, son of Wilfrid Allen, Montreal and formerly of Valleyfield, and Roland Begin, of Valleyfield, a companion, were out on the lake in a flat bottomed boat and it is believed that the boat overturned.

Details of the tragedy are very meagre, as only one of the men was saved and he was unconscious and not able to be questioned. The body of Roger Allen has not yet been recovered. The body of Begin was seen floating on the water as he had on a safety belt, by other persons and it was brought to shore. It was noticed that the watch he was wearing had stopped at 12.30 and he was picked up at about 2 o'clock, it is therefore presumed that the accident occurred sometime about 12.30. There is no clear understanding as to where the boat turned over, but it is believed to be near the island named. Police when notified searched around for a time, but gave up pending further information, Begin was taken to Valleyfield hospital, but has remained in a semi-conscious state and could not be questioned.

Roger Allen is a nephew of Roma Allen of St. Agnes.

With a population of about half of one of the neighbouring branches whose objective was $2000 this seems a very creditable and equitable sum to raise.

Results Of Examinations Huntingdon High School

School is out! The last examination in the Huntingdon High School was written this morning. As last year, no pupils in Grades 1-3 wrote examinations and about one-third of the pupils in Grades 4 through 8 were excused from examinations because of good work during the year. Others wrote one or more examinations in the subjects in which they were weaker. Final reports on all but Grade 10 and 11 pupils have now been prepared and given or sent to pupils.

It should be noted that 464 pupils attended Huntingdon High School this year, including the Kindergarten of 22. Last year there were 427 in H.H.S. This year only 24 pupils left during the year compared with 36 last year.

Below is the 1957 list of promotions for each class to the end of Grade 9. Each class is listed separately and pupils who have attained outstanding results in the year's work are grouped alphabetically in the honor group. Other promotions are listed alphabetically in a separate group.

Some pupils who have not attained the standard set by the Department of Education for each grade have been placed in the next higher grade at the discretion of the principal. This has occurred where the pupil's attainment is very close to the required standard, where the pupil is older than others in the class or where, for other reasons, it was felt that the pupil would derive more benefit by being advanced without the necessary foundation in subject material.

Examinations in Grades 10 and 11 are marked by the Quebec Department of Education and results will be available at the secretary's office about the end of July.

Canada's Nintieth Birthday

This is a birthday tribute to Canada, a country old in terms of human age but youthful among the nations.

It was in 1534 that Jacques Cartier made his first voyage to Canada, but the event we celebrate on July 1st did not take place until more than three centuries later.

Those three centuries were filled with pioneer toil, with a thousand rugged experiences for which the first French and British settlers were ill prepared. They contended with harsh winters such as they had never before known. They were surrounded by hostile tribes. They had to cope with war and famine and hardships of every sort. But worst of all was the loneliness of people cut off from the amenities of life, separated from relatives, governed by rulers who knew nothing of the hard conditions of making a livelihood in this new world.

Our ninetieth brthiday is a fit time to shine up the trophies our forefathers earned in those days, and to pay a small tribute of praise to their foresight, their hardihood, their determination and their work.

People all over the world look with respect, and somethimes with envy, upon living conditions on this North American continent. Life here is not the frugal, often barren, existence it is in so many other countries. We take for granted an ease of living that is beyond the day-dreams of people elsewhere. But we should remember that today's prosperity is built upon the lion-hearted endurance of far-off days.

To survive as an independent people on this strip of earth between the world's most rapidly developing industrial nation and the barren land the early Canadians had to be tough and adaptable, and they had only a narrow margin for error. Our growth into a settled nation is due largely to the fact that in no other land has there been such a genius for making full use of opportunities as they develop.

It is worth noting that Arnold J. Toynbee, the eminent historian, recognizes—even stresses—the virtue of adversity. It is, he says in A Study of History, difficult rather than easy conditions that produce achievements. People in lands where life is easy remain primitive savages. Canadians responded to the challenge of their environment in this new land.

Our Canadian Way

It would be surprising, in view of our stern history, if we had developed into a gay and frivolous people. We do not resent it when we are accused of having in us something of the canniness of the Scottish people, some of the coldness of the English, some of the attentiveness to precedent of the French, and some of the deliberativeness of the German.

The mixture of all these may have given us a certain perceptiveness, out of which will emerge a unique culture. Of one thing we may be sure: we are not following any ancient pattern blindly, nor have we been lured into following some utopian trail. It has been said of us that we tend to conduct even our business booms with good sense, and to keep our heads when things aren't so good.

There may be sound philosophical and psychological reasons for this. While the first adventuresome men who came here from France and the British Isles were not trained in the skills needed to exist in the wildwoods, they did have behind them many centuries of culture. They came of races that had learned to think. They had access, through their ancestry and experience, to the principles by which men live, and these they have passed on to us.

During these ninety years our country has, with some measure of success, united an Anglo-Saxon and a Latin culture, found a middle way between the British and the United States philosophies of life, and made a place for herself as a nation desirous of living her own life peaceably but yet willing to share the burden of world affairs.

What Sort of People?

Let us look at what sort of people we have in Canada. This is bilingual country. More than thirty per cent of our people are of French origin. In the Province of Quebec this large minority has maintained a cohesion of custom, religion and language that distinguishes it nationally and internationally.

Because of Canad's dual base and mixed immigration, it will never produce a narrow racial nationalism. This is made evident by figures provided by selected censuses:

Origin	1871 %	1931 %	1941 %	1951 %
British	60.55	51.86	49.68	47.9
French	31.07	28.22	30.27	30.8
Others	8.38	19.92	20.05	21.3

We can with advantage go a little farther in analysing the racial composition of the Canadian people. At the time of confederation the largest individual British racial group was Irish, and the Irish and Scottish together outnumbered the English almost two to one. After 1881 the English predominated, and the Scottish moved into second place after 1911.

By the time of the 1951 census the numerical strength of the principal racial stocks was in the following order: French, English, Scottish, Irish, German, Ukrainian, Scandinavian, Dutch and Polish. We had, at the time of the census, 165,600 native Indian and Eskimo people.

All of these people could not have been brought together without difference of opinion about this and that. Some sandpapering of the edges of belief and custom was needed.

Our great contribution to the amalgamation of many races in one people is due to the success we have had in going only far enough and not too far in this process. It is our individual right to be different, but our strength lies in being united on the important and basic things in economic and national life.

Under the impulse of confederation in a common citizenship we are, as the years pass, blending the best attainments, beliefs, customs and traditions of all the world into a Canadian culture.

Many organizations and many people help in this momentous and inspiring task. Of special significance now, because of our stepped-up immigration projects, is the Canadian Citizenship Council. Formed in 1940, it has continously stimulated and assisted in increasing Canadians' understanding and appreciation of the basic values in our society. It is a federation of the ten provincial departments of education, several federal government departments, and about sixty national and provincial voluntary organizations. It provides basic factual information and suitable literature to all who are interested in education for citizenship.

Freedom and Democracy

Canada is a free country. Its people are at liberty to worship according to their consciences, choose where and at what they shall work, think and discuss all manner of things, express their opinions without fear, and read a free press. Canada has a democratic government, elected by the people and responsible directly to the people.

Canadians believe in independence, and part of independence is individual responsibility. We do not wish to make men good citizens by compulsion, by statute or by fear. We believe that more good will be accomplished by applying the Golden Rule in all phases of life than by any number of government edicts. A deep feeling of regard for the rights and beliefs and even for the idiosyncrasies of fellow citizens is a cardinal principal of Canadian life.

No matter from what country a new Canadian comes, he is assured of three important principles that guide our way of life: government according to law, the recognition and assurance of certain rights of individuals, and change, if change is to be made, under due process of law. Within this framework every newcomer of goodwill has the fullest opportunity to develop his talents and aspirations.

Canadian Culture

We sometimes hear people talk about culture as if it were something apart from everyday life, made up of music and painting and sculpture and the dance. It is not so. These are some forms of expression. Our culture is something inside us. It grows out of our past, is developed and enriched by us, and unfolds into our future.

Canadians are close to nature. There are still places to go in Canada where never the foot of man has trod. We are not effete, we have no time to get bored. When you take the representatives of forty racial stocks, with all their traditions and customs and all their centuries of slow advancement in science and industry, and set them down in such a land as this, what a superlatively great culture they can bring into being!

Fortunately for us and our future, Canadians are not standstill people. They never cease to wish to learn about their environment, their place in the world, and themselves. This reaching toward knowledge and understanding, first catered to by such institutions as the Mechanics Institute, is met today by manifold opportunities provided by universities, institutions such as the Y.M.C.A., community study groups, branches of the Great Books Foundation and the General Semantics Society, and specialized associations like literary clubs, handicraft guilds and historical societies.

From a broad base, then, of many national qualities, Canadians are deepening their experiences so as to approach with intelligent discernment the building of their own truly Canadian way of life.

The Pioneers

If we have a fault, it is to take too much for granted what has been won already. This free society, in which men and women may develop to their fullest capability, was gained by the struggles and sacrifices of the men and women from whom we inherit it. We must respect the past for how great it was.

This has not been an easy country in which to live and work. Once our people hewed farm plots out of the wilderness, built their own homes, made their own clothes and grew their own food. Children and women laboured hard in the fields, and there was no diversion but sleep.

It was out of their pluck and energy that Canada grew to the scattered settlements of the year of Confederation, and then, despite obstacles that might have frustrated and disheartened lesser people, to the high living standards of today.

About Confederation

In 1867 a small, struggling, competitive group of colonies merged into a confederated state. Queen Victoria's proclamation giving effect to the Union Act was issued on May 22nd, declaring that "on and after the first of July, 1867, the provinces of Canada, Nova Scotia, and New Brunswick, shall form and be one Dominion, under the name of Canada".

Confederation was an attempt to solve many political and economic problems. Politically, it was sought to establish a new nation to meet the changed conditions of British policy and to unite the scattered provinces against pressure and possible aggression from the south. Economically it was designed to spread dependence over many industries instead of only a few, and thus lessen exposure to the effects of economic policies then being pursued by both the United Kingdom and the United States.

Enactment of the British North America Act establishing confederation did not of itself assure solution of either political or economic difficulties. It did, however, provide a framework within which we are still working to bring about the balance of loyalties and interests, of needs and supplies, which an effective federal system requires.

Throughout the years up to 1931 Canada advanced toward full nationhood. First there was undeniable gaining of equal rank within the Empire, and then followed, in the Statute of Westminster, the legal step which capped the arch. That Act declared the dominions to be equal in status, in no way subordinate in any aspect of their domestic or external life. Today, Canada is given a respectful hearing when her representatives speak for her among the nations of the world.

As Things Were

In celebrating a birthday we go back again and again to the beginning. The environment in which a person was born remains important to him for all his life.

The Canada of 1867 would be unbelievably foreign to young people of today. It had none of the features they take for granted, such as great factories, large cities, paved highways, automobiles, airplanes, radios, electricity. There were only a few miles of railway along the St. Lawrence.

About 3½ million people lived in all Canada, and four-fifths of them were on farms. Cultivation of the soil and extraction of raw products from the forest and from the sea supported a small group of manufacturing, handicraft and service industries in the settled areas.

Families were largely self-sufficient, as was to be expected in a pioneer society. Material income was limited to the basic requirements of life—food, clothing and shelter—and there was little left over for luxuries and amusement: if, indeed, there were any luxuries and amusement to be had.

People were hopeful, even optimistic, about the future of Canada. The Canada Year Book of 1868 remarked: "We may, with some pretension to probability, assume that the rate of progress of the population of all British America will be as rapid for fifty years or more as it has been for the past decade, and this would give as the population——in 1951, 68,361,000." Alas for the prediction of that ninety-year-old economist, our census in 1951 showed that we fell short of his figure by 44,351,571. At the end of 1956 we had an estimated population of 16,344,000. Just a few months ago the Royal Commission on Canada's Economic Prospects estimated that by 1980 our population may reach 26,650,000.

But large segments of our economy have made advances that would have more than satisfied those who ushered in confederation so hopefully.

There is not much point, obviously, in giving detailed statisical comparisons of the Canada of 1867 and the Canada of today, because is so little resemblance between them. But it is interesting to look at some figures, just to get an idea of the progress these ninety years have brought to us.

Agriculture is not mentioned in the index of the 1868 book, but it takes 62 closely-printed pages to cover its activities in the 1956 Canada Year Book.

In 1871, four years after confederation, manufacturing industries had 188,000 employees, paid $41 million in wages, and the gross value of their products was $222 million. In 1955, employees numbered 1,290,000, wages amounted to $4,111 million, and the gross value of products amounted to $19,469 million.

This expansion in industry has been based largely upon hydro-electric power. At the end of 1956 this country's installed capacity of hydro developments was 18,356,000 horsepower. New plants and extensions coming on line during the next two years will add some four million horsepower. Less than 28 per cent of our known hydro resources have yet been developed.

World Traders

Canada is rich in resources, and her people are energetic and efficient, but her market of consumers has been too small to absorb the production of her farms, forests and factories. In 1956, for example, our wheat production was 538 million bushels—a quantity that we could not possibly use in feeding our 16 million people. That year, we exported 302½ million bushels.

Everyone has heard of Canada's treasure caves of minerals vital to modern life. Our forests are exceeded in size by those of only two other countries. We have the largest sea fishing grounds in the world. We are the world's largest producers of newsprint, platinum, asbestos and nickel. We are second in aluminum, zinc, and wood-pulp. We are third in producing gold, and fifth in copper. During the past ten years something new has been added. There had been oil discoveries and developments in Canada in earlier years—at Turner Valley and Lloydminster—but Canada really broke into the big league of petroleum producers in 1947 when the Leduc field in Alberta was discovered. In 1955 we produced 129½ million barrels of crude oil valued at $305½ million.

And yet, and this is the rub, we have only six one-thousandths of the World's population.

A large export trade is, therefore, necessary to the health of our economy. The stuff we produce as a nation, plus the stuff we import, less the stuff we export, is a measure of our standard of living. What we export enables us to pay for what we import.

Our Nation Today

Our increasing foreign trade has expanded our horizon. Our neighburs are no longer the people in the next county or province, but people in continents at the other side of the earth. Every day sees thousands of transactions pass through this bank's foreign department, evidence of business being done by Canadians in Australia, Africa, Europe and all the countries in the Americas.

Canada stands between the great powers and the small nations. Our manpower weight is light, but our economic weight entitles us to a seat near the top in world planning, not alone because of our natural resources but because of our ability to process them efficiently.

Sir Anthony Eden, in an address to the Canada Club in London, credited Canada with growing influence in international affairs, but warned that its position would bring a growing number of headaches. He praised Canada's ability to provide sane guidance in international conferences without favour and in words at once reasonable and firm.

Our border marches with that of a powerful nation which shares our ideals of freedom. Our agreements are arrived at by law or by arbitration or by talking things over in a friendly way.

That Bold Step

It is difficult for us to realize today how bold was the step taken ninety years ago. The Governor-General, Lord Durham, had reported optimistically to the British Government thirty years before that time: "These small and unimportant communities (Upper and Lower Canada, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland) could be elevated into a society having some objects of national importance".

Adventuresome people brought about the union, and today when we see Canada against its background we are comforted by the thought that they did well. No one need live meanly in Canada except by choice. Everyone has the opportunity to progress. We live comfortably, but not so easily as to stagnate. We wish to live richly, rather than to be rich.

But we have reached the stage in our national life where we can no longer boast of our youth or plead out of mature responsibilities. We have no guarantee of continued improvement. While applauding the pageant of the past this first of July, in which each passing birthday is decked with laurel for achievement and rosemary for remembrance, we need to recall that 1957, whatever we made of it, will take its place in the cavalcade of the years.

Editorial Notes...

Our New Prime Minister

THE Liberal regime after 22 years has ended and a new party has taken over the responsibility for the Government of Canada. We have gotten over the surprise of the recent election and are now looking forward to what may be in store under the newly elected Progressive-Conservative Party. John Diefenbaker has been sworn in as the new Prime Minister of Canada and his duties have begun with the important meeting of Prime Ministers of the Commonwealth in London, this week.

On Saturday, the new Prime Minister spoke to the people of Canada by means of television and radio and thanked them for the honor they had given him in electing him their Prime Minister. It was a sincere, and heartfelt talk, in which Mr. Diefenbaker promised to carry out his duties to the best of his ability in the interests of Canada and the people. One was immediately struck by the fact that this man was taking his position quite seriously and was actually preparing himself to follow a course that would keep the people fully acquainted with what his government intended to do. It could also be sensed that this man was fully aware of the hard job which lay before him in the light of the election results. He made no promises in his talk, he merely outlined what had happened and what he had to do immediately. He mentioned that he had received thousands of messages of advice and goodwill and while he had not been able to answer them all, he offered his thanks and said he intended to do so upon his return from London.

The new Prime Minister, as he gave his talk, reminded us very much of the late President Roosevelt when he gave his fireside talks to the American nation. There was a sincerity in his voice and manner that made us think he should be given every opportunity to prove to the citizens of this country that his party was also sincere and that they wanted Canada to have the best form of government.

It is not known if Mr. Diefenbaker can heal the breach between this Province and the Federal Government, but it would be a fine piece of work if he can. We believe that if it is at all possible, Mr. Diefenbaker will do it, and is capable if allowed the time, of doing so. He has a way of winning friends, while being quite firm in his convictions and not being fearful of coming to grips with the most complicated problems. Being an excellent criminal lawyer, he is a man who thinks out the problems before trying to solve them. As shown by his having been defeated several times in his own party from attaining leadership, he is a man of determination and not easily defeated when he sets out to accomplish something. He is broadminded in his outlook and not one to bear malice.

These traits should carry him along on the road he has set for himself and his party and in leading the government of Canada. Mr. Diefenbaker will tackle this new task, quietly, but determinedly and will be ready to meet argument with argument for the rights of all concerned. He has several strikes against him, however, and it may be these that will terminate his will to serve before he has been allowed the opportunity to show his merit.

The End Of Another School Year

JUNE signals the end of another school year and some have already completed examinations and announced results, while others are in the process of winding up the year. It is an event in the lives of all attending elementary and high school, and colleges and universities, especially for those who are graduating. For those in the earlier years, there is the eagerneess to know if they have passed and how well. For those who are graduating, wonder what the next step will be. Have they made sufficient marks to continue their education, or will they have to accept a position temporarily, or permanently.

Some graduates have already made up their minds that they will seek employment in a trade or profession which will provide them with further education and experience. Others have made up their minds and will already be on their way on the chosen path.

Along with eagerness, there will be a certain amount of misgiving. What lies ahead, is it success or failure? Will they be able to do what they have set out to do? It is a new world that they are starting out into and its pitfalls are many and varied. They face new experiences, new acquaintances, they must learn to make their own decisions without guidance from teachers. In most cases they are no longer pupils, they are there to do a job and they will be expected to do it. Depending on their ability to satisfy their employers, will be the difference between success and failure.

In these days, employment does not present too much of a problem. Employers are anxious to secure the services of youth, especially when they can train them to their way of doing business. To the college graduate, his chances are even better and more so if he has been trained in one of the professions such as engineering, science or chemistry.

To the younger person, the end of the school year just means school is over for a couple of months and it is time to go swimming, camping or some other form of spending a summer vacation. Then back to school again in the fall for a further round of education.

Automation

RENAISSANCE Italy produced many ideas in which machines did some of the tedious, repetitive jobs. About 1785 a Philadelphia miller put automatic handling and processing together and conveyed, milled and loaded the grain without human handling. Throughout history man has attempted to mechanize the time-consuming back-breaking jobs to leave himself free to invent or produce additional things. Automation then is not a new idea. There have always been people who question the established method of doing things and who try to invent methods of producing a given article using less physical energy and improving the product. Higher productivity, more goods and services per working day, means higher living standards. Automation holds the hope of producing more goods of higher quality and greater accuracy, with less labour and at lower unit cost, thus enabling new goods and services to be produced with the consequent increase in living standards.

The word automation arouses an emotional picture rather than a precise thought and so it has become rather difficult to define. Automation describes the results of the complete rethinking of production methods utilizing such technological advances as integrated lines of production, computers, and feedback control. The emotionalism which surrounds automation has given rise to some unfortunate misconceptions. It is often believed that automation is only applicable to the big factory. While the automated line at Ford's Detroit plant turning out 5,400 engines per day has captured the public eye, the use of automation in smaller plants may have proportionately greater advantages. Thus, today there are factories producing potato chips without the product being touched by hand from the time the potatoes are delivered, to the time the boxed chips leave the factory.

It is true that automated machines can be expensive. This is particularly true in industries where there is already a high degree of mechanization, where any new equipment has a comparatively low rate of return. On the other hand, in small plants there is often room for immediate improvement at a very moderate cost on which the return may be very high. It must be emphasized that automation depends on its context. As problems vary between plants employing thousands of workers and those employing a mere handful, no estimate of average cost per worker should be given for automation. Costs depend on a specific problem, in a specific plant, in a specific industry. An industry where large sums of money have been spent over a long period of time in improving its mechanization, could well be faced with huge outlays to gain even moderate improvement. Small plants which have grown up without too much thought as to fundamental alterations in method may be able to obtain an enormous improvement with little cost. One of the great advantages of automation is that it involves a completely new assessment of methods of production. This basic study of the aims and means of production is a first step to any intelligent use of automation. In itself, this takes time and means that automation is not an over night procedure. — News Letter.

Looking Back Along the Trail

"Echoes of The Past"

The Late Colonel McEachern

Colonel McEachern died on Sunday. The event had been anticipated, for during the past three months his friends saw the contest between his vigorous constitution, and the insidious disease that assailed it, might have a fatal termination at any time. A visit he made on business to Huntingdon and Valleyfield a fortnight ago, during one of his bright spells, hastened the inevitable end. He had reached a ripe age, for he was born in Montreal, 20th September, 1819. His youth was spent in Lachine, where he learned the baking business. His father lived in Lachine until 1835, when, attracted by the growing settlement on the Chateauguay, he rented from Rutherford the old yellow house, and opened tavern. He did not stay there long, for on the seignior deciding to build a gristmill at the foot of the rapids, he moved to the site of what is now the village of Ormstown, renting from Lovell the old Jones place and boarding the workmen. While the mill was slowly building, he put up a brick tavern for himself, the brick being made from clay on the creek which is now the site of extensive brickfields. Hardly had the father got into his new tavern than the rebellion of 1838 broke out, which had an important bearing on the after life of his son Archibald.

Col. Campbell took the young man as his despatch bearer, and his first errand was to convey the news of the rising to Huntingdon (History of District p. 531). He remained with the Colonel until the militia was disbanded, thus acquiring that taste for military service which remained strong in him during the remainder of his life. When the companies were disbanded, he found employment on the steamboat that ran between Lachine and Chateauguay Basin; one season as captain of the opposition boat. In 1840 he married Martha, second daughter of William Bowron. The young couple took up their abode at the Basin and remained there until 1845 when they moved to Ormstown, and began storekeeping. To this auctioneering was added, and he had the monopoly of the office and his services were in requisition far and wide. A better auctioneer for a rural sale could not be. The election to choose the district's first representative in the legislative council led to office. The candidates were the late eminent Joseph Doutre and Louis Renaud. The contest was keen, and perhaps none since left as much bitterness. On Mr. Renaud's return he showed his gratitude to the Colonel, who had contributed largely to his success by securing him the appointment of collector of inland revenue.

His appointment dated from 1860 and he held the office, with the modifications consequent on Confederation, until his death. His services to the excise department, after the closing of the Beauharnois brewery, became nominal and were ended in 1880, when the Dominion allowed him a pension of $290. a year, which he enjoyed during the remainder of his lifetime. For over a quarter of a century he filled a host of local offices, secretary to the municipal council, to the school commissioners, to the commissioners for trial of small cases, and to the agricultural society. The latter he held until the society fixed its shows at Ste. Martine. The others he resigned only a short time ago. On the call for volunteers consequent on the Trent affair, the Colonel tendered his services which were accepted, and he raised what was then known as the Durham Company. This was in 1863, and it remained one of the most efficient companies in the province for many years. In 1866 it was called out, and was stationed in this village until the Fenian demonstration of that year collapsed. In 1870, at the second Fenian raid, the Colonel was again out with his company, which now was number 4 of the 50th battalion. When the Fenian entrenchment was sighted, on the morning of the 27th May, the commander, Colonel Bagot, gave the local corps the place of honour and ordered Colonel McEachern to open the 50th battalion in skirmishing order and carry the position by assault. What promised to be a gallant affair was nipped by the flight of the Fenians, who did not await the approach of the 50th, but ran back to the United States. When Prince Arthur visited Huntingdon the following week, he thanked the Colonel and his men for the zeal shown, and received from the hand of Mrs. McEachern, on behalf of the ladies of the district, a stand of colours which he presented to the battalion. Later on, when honours and decorations were being showered on those who had taken part in thwarting the attempts of the Fenians, the Colonel received the Star of the order of C.M.G. Soon after the organization of the Methodist Church at Ormstown, the Colonel united with it, and became its leading member. His last public appearance was in laying the corner-stone of the new church on Queen's birthday; a function he succeeded in doing despite his feebleness. His funeral on Tuesday afternoon was the largest Ormstown has witnessed. The service was conducted by the pastor, Rev. J. H. McConnell, B.D., assisted by Rev. S. E. Maudsley, Dr. Muir, Rev. D. W. Morison, Rev. J. E. Duclos, and Rev. Mr. Strong. The interment took place in the new cemetery, the Ormstown cornet band accompanying the procession.

MEMBER AUDIT BUREAU OF CIRCULATIONS

The Week at Ottawa...

OTTAWA — (CP) — Prime Minister John Diefenbaker left by air Sunday for the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in London, two days after he had been sworn in to succeed Louis St. Laurent as prime minister of Canada.

The swearing-in ceremony of Mr. Diefenbaker before Governor-General Vincent Massey last Friday ended 22 years of Liberal rule in Canada. Prime Minister Diefenbaker then presided at his first cabinet meeting, with 16 new Progressive Conservative cabinet members — and the promise of more appointments later.

The partial cabinet will be expanded by two or three appointments, Mr. Diefenbaker explained, after he returns July 6 from London.

In the new cabinet, Mr. Diefenbaker holds the external affairs portfolio as well as the prime minister's office. He indicated there will be little or no change in foreign policy from that followed by the defeated Liberal administration.

Average age of the new government is 54, compared with 56½ for the outgoing Liberal cabinet. There are five ministers from Ontario, two from Quebec, three from British Columbia and one each from the other seven provinces.

New Cabinet

Here is the list:

Prime Minister and Minister of External Affairs: John Diefenbaker, 61, Prince Albert.

Finance Minister: Donald Fleming, 52, Toronto Eglington.

Trade and Commerce: Gordon Churchill, 59, Winnipeg South Centre.

Secretary of State: Mrs. Ellen Fairclough, 52, Hamilton West.

Labor: Michael Starr, 46, Ontario riding, Ont.

Transport: George Hees, 47, Toronto Broadview.

Public Works: Howard Green, 61, Vancouver-Quadra.

National Defence: Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, VC, Esquimalt-Saanich.

Solicitor-General: Leon Balcer, 39, Trois-Rivieres, Que.

Postmaster-General: William Hamilton, 38, Montreal Notre-Dame-de-Grace.

Justice Minister: Davie Fulton, 41, Kamloops, B.C.

Northern Affairs and National Resources: Douglas Harkness, 54, Calgary North.

Fisheries: J. Angus MacLean, 43, Queens, P.E.I.

Revenue Minister: George C. Nowlan, 58, Digby-Annapolis-Kings, N.S.

Veterans Affairs: Col. A. J. Brooks, 66, Royal, N.B.

Minister without Portfolio: W. J. Browne, 60, St. John's West, Nfld.

Minister without Portfolio: J. M. Macdonnell, 72, Toronto Greenwood.

Trade Problems

Sales abroad of wheat, and sales at home of fruit and vegetables, are among problems facing the new Progressive Conservative government.

The Bureau of Statistics reported last week that, despite increased export, Canada's bins held almost 70,000,000 bushels more wheat on May 1 than a year previously. Meanwhile, stocks in the United States and Australia, also major wheat exporters, were down.

The Progressive Conservatives promised during the election campaign that they would pay cash advances to prairie farmers on their farm-stored grain. With a record 459,000,000 bushels of wheat in farm bins, this could mean an outlay of $459,000,000 if the advances were set at $1 a bushel. Once the grain was sold, the money would of course be recovered.

Tariff Study

The new government will get help with its fruit and vegetable sales problems from the tariff board which is to begin July 29 to consider the first comprehensive revision of Canada's fruit and vegetable tariffs since 1947. The board's findings will be ready in time to be used for government guidance in renegotiation this fall of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

Former Finance Minister Harris requested the study, one of his last acts before leaving office June 21 with the rest of the Liberal administration. The new government could, if it wished, cancel the investigation. This, however, was considered highly unlikely.

One of Mr. Diefenbaker's pre-election promises was that his government would seek protection for Canadian producers against dumping of United States agricultural products in Canada.

Canadian growers, as they appear before the board, are almost certain to ask for such protection. The tariffs to be studied cover virtually all fruits and vegetables, including potatoes. Seasonal duty on potatoes was extended to a year-round basis at the last session of Parliament.

Trade officials say the big stumbling block to higher Canadian wheat sales abroad is the U.S. giveaway program for surplus agricultural products. Mr. Diefenbaker and other Conservative leaders have criticized the U.S. scheme. The problems of meeting the U.S. challenge to Canadian wheat sales presumably would take on added urgency when and if Mr. Diefenbaker implements his campaign promise of cash advances.

The CCF and Social Credit parties, which hold the balance of Commons power, also advocate cash advance payments.

Khrushchev Is Televised

By LEWIS MILLIGAN

Washington is for ever complaining about the Kremlin seizing every opportunity for propaganda, and yet American statesmen, news services and radio have provided the Soviet leaders with more such opportunities than anyone else. The recent televising of an interview with Nikita Khrushchev by the CBS was a priceless gift of world-wide publicity for Soviet propaganda. Khrushchev was more than a match for the American panel of inquisitors. They plied him with questions regarding Soviet internal and external policies, and his replies, through the interpreter, were straightforward and logical enough, from his own point of view.

There was one question, however, that bothered him. He had said or implied that the United States was preparing to make war on the Soviet Union, and he called for a general or partial disarmament agreement, including the abandonment of hydrogen bomb tests and the outlawing of the use of nuclear weapons in warfare. He said the Soviet government had withdrawn 30,000 troops from Eastern Europe and would withdraw the remainder if Britain, France and the United States would do the same. It was at this point that he was asked how many Russian troops were maintained on a war footing behind the iron curtain.

Khrushchev hesitated and quibbled in replying to that question. He said he could not state the exact figures offhand. He probably realized the importance of the question, the gist of which was: What does the Soviet government want with such a mighty military force if its intentions are peaceful, as Mr. Khrushchev had claimed? Such a force is too large for defence against an attack by the comparatively small allied occupation forces in Western Europe. Its obvious purpose is one of aggression or, at least, of intimidation. But the hydrogen bomb has changed all that, and Mr. Khrushchev admitted that only a "madman" would start an atomic war.

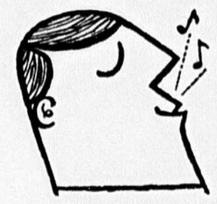

That admission was all to the good, for it was an admission that the atomic bomb had rendered the vast aggregation of military power behind the iron curtain useless for defence or aggression. For that reason alone Mr. Khrushchev wants the manufacture and use of nuclear weapons banned. But if the Western nations agreed to that they would at once be practically defenceless against the overwhelming conventional military power of the Soviet Union. Mr. Khrushchev and other Soviet leaders have repeatedly said, "We are not afraid of anyone." But they are afraid of the atomic bomb, and they are annoyed because it has checked their monopoly of conventional military power as a threat to the Western World. The only solution of that situation of stalemate is universal disarmament to a level at which neither side would want to start a war with conventional weapons, just as neither side now wants to start an atomic war in which both would be obliterated.

The real answer to the question as to why the Soviet leaders are maintaining such an enormous army behind the iron curtain is because they are afraid of their own people and the subdued peoples of their satellites. In the first place, the communist system cannot survive without dictatorship, and dictatorship requires, not only a host of boss bureaucrats, but also large police and military to keep the workers in subjection and to quash any possible mass uprising and counter-revolution. The Russian people are told that their country is surrounded by "capitalist" enemies who are preparing to attack and destroy the Soviet Union. They are urged patriotically to endure the hardships and privations of the communist system in the face of national peril. That, of course, is a piece of fiction, and the Soviet leaders do not believe it. But they do believe in the dictator's doctrine, that "the fear o' hell's the hangman's whip to keep the wretch in order."

Quebec Holstein Sale

The fifth annual Quebec sale of purebred Holsteins, held May 22, at Victoriaville, says a Holstein-Friesian Association report, realized a total of $20,450.00 for 57 head, to give a general average of $358.00.

Eleven bulls averaged $304.00; 12 milking females $447.00; 28 bred heifers $356.00; 2 open yearlings $338.00; 4 heifer calves $270.00.

The top priced female, at $800.00, was consigned by P. Pepin, Victoriaville and sold to Albert Pepin, Warwick.

John A. Meyer, Lachute, sold the 2 year old heifer Mayercrest Ajax Melba, at $750.00, to College de Levis, Levis, Que.

The only local herd figuring in the report is that of J. Armand Pinsonneault, Ormstown. A bred heifer from that herd was sold at $460.00 to Origene Gatien, St. Dominique.

Low Percentage Reactors

At the present time, says a Holstein-Friesian Association report, there is widespread interest among Ontario breeders of purebred cattle, in having their herds officially Brucellosis Free Listed. One of the questions most frequently asked is: "What percentage of the animals tested are found positive to the blood test for Brucellosis".

Answering this question, Dr. G. H. Collacott, Toronto, District Veterinarian for Ontario, reports that of the 3,723 animals subjected to the initial blood test during April and the early part of May only 5 proved to be positive and 13 questionable.

Thus the incidence of definitely positive animals was less than one in 700, and of positive and questionable animals combined less than one in 200. The questionable animals must be re-tested at monthly intervals until they show either a positive or a negative reaction.

Credit for the low percentage of reactors is given by Dr. Collacott to the policy of official vaccination that has been practised in recent years by the herds that are now being tested.

Dr. Collacott also directs attention to the results of a survey made last year in which 60,000 head selected at random from all types of herds, dairy and beef, in Ontario showed an average of 4.2 per cent positive reactors to the Brucellosis blood test. Many of these animals, of course. were not from herds where official vaccination had been practiced.

Good Record

It is noted that Elm Manor Model Fashion, noted prize-winner for J. Grant Whyte, Huntingdon, from calfhood up, qualified in the 4 year old class, 365 day division of the R.O.P. with 12.739 lbs. milk, 548 lbs. F., average test 4.30%. This works out at 140% milk, 145% fat of the breed class average of milk and fat, respectively, produced during the lactation. Very good indeed, in fact it is the top record in the senior, 4 year old, 365 day division reported during the period May 16 to June 15, 1957.

R.O.P. Leader

Wynyates Reunion Beauty owned by J. G. Wilson, Alderwood Farm, St. Valentin, Que. figures in the Mature Class, 305 day Division list of the May-June R.O.P. Qualifications with 12,566 lbs. M., 485 lbs, F., Her B.C.A. ratings are 143% for milk, 136% for fat.

In the same class and division is Marbrae Pride owned by R.B. Macfarlane, Howick. She produced 12,261 lbs. M., 473 lbs. F. Her B.C. average for milk being 140% and 133% for fat.

Beauharnois Richelieu Club Hears Timely Address On Fluoridation

Dental diseases, their relationship to general and Public Health, fluoridation and other means found by research to control tooth decay were discussed during last Wednesday's dinner meeting of the Beauharnois Richelieu Club.

The guest speaker of the subjects concerned was Dr. C. Aberdeen E. McCabe, D.D.S., L.D.S., F.I.C.D., D.D.P.H., representative of the Dental Hygiene League of the Province of Quebec for Montreal and vicinity.

Dr. McCabe was introduced by Mr. Jules A. LaRose, druggist, and opened his talk with the information that "Dental decay amongst Maysville, Kentucky, children has been reduced by 87.4%, within a five year period, by combining fluoridation with a nutritional and oral cleanliness program". He explained that dental decay has four causative factors, namely: bacteria contained in the mouth, sugars and starchy foods we eat, acids formed by the action of these bacteria on the food and last but not least, a weak enamel covering of the teeth which easily becomes the prey of the acid so formed.

"If we can totally eliminate anyone of these four causative factors" said the speaker, "dental decay should no longer be a problem".

Oral cleanliness does eliminate some of the bacteria but those remaining soon remultiply. It also eliminates remnants of food and dilutes the acid formed.

Proper Nutrition Essential To Dental Health

"You cannot expect your children to form sound healthy bodies and strong teeth if you do not supply them with the materials needed for this purpose", said the speaker, "too many children are reared on diets which lack body and tooth building foods and contain excessive amounts of refined sugars and starches".

Fluorine An Essential Nutritional Element

"Even if we eat the proper quantity and variety of foods during the prenatal and postnatal periods of tooth development" said the speaker, "if it does not contain the right amount of essential nutritional elements, including fluorine, it will produce a weak enamel covering of the teeth, the most important of the four causative factors of tooth decay."

Most foods contain traces of the essential nutritional element called fluorine, but sometimes an insufficient quantity, for the fluorine content of food is not only derived from the soil which produces this food, but also from the water used in its preparation.

"Water from deep wells usually contains fluorine, surface water is also known to pick up fluorine from the rocks and soil over which it flows" said Dr. McCabe, "but when this water mixes with that of other rivers and streams fluorine free, it becomes diluted and the slake, so formed, lacks the proper concentration needed to prevent tooth decay."

Dr. McCabe explained that Lake Ontario contains one tenth of the required concentration and that this water, on its way to Montreal picks up a certain amount of fluorine, but not enough for Montreal's water supply contains only one fifth of the recommended quantity. "It is not surprising that 33% of your two year old babies and 90% of school age children have decayed teeth, for your water supply is taken from the St. Lawrence River, about midway between Lake Ontario and Montreal" said the speaker.

It has been scientifically proven that when the water supply contains the optimum amount of one part fluorine for every million parts of water, the incidence of dental caries is reduced. "By following Brantford's example, your community can improve the nutritional value of its water supply and thus reduce by about two thirds, your children's incidence of decayed teeth" said Dr. McCabe.

"Fluoridation is a Public Health measure which has been adopted by 1463 Canadian and American communities which supply over thirty one and a half million individuals. It consists in the addition of accurately quantities of fluoride salts to the communal water supply to obtain the required concentration of one part fluorine for every million parts of water" explained the speaker. "It is safe, effective and economical, it costs only from 6 to 12 cents per person per year".

Now is the time to act. Beauharnois and Melocheville are both improving their water works, why not include a fluoridation system? "Ask your dentist about fluoridation? Ask your administrators for it" concluded the speaker.

Dr. McCabe was thanked by Mr. Roger McGowan, notary.

Dundee

DUNDEE — Mrs. Malcolm Marston and son Wayne, of Montreal, spent the past week visiting Mrs. Marston's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Ferguson. Dr. Marston came on Sunday and his wife and son went back with him.

Mrs. Fred Nora is spending the summer at her farm home in Dundee. Part of her house has been rented to Mr. and Mrs. Roland Genier. Mr. Genier is employed at the Chez Maurice Hotel, at Dundee Lines.

The Dundee Consolidated School which closed on Thursday, held a closing picnic on Friday at Somerville Park. Pupils of all the classes were represented. The two teachers, Mrs. Charles Fraser and Mrs. Vernon Elder were both present to superintend the picnic arrangements. A swim before lunch and another dip in the afternoon gave some of the children nasty sunburns which took a few days to recover from. The few trees which were to be seen when the park was laid out two years ago seem to be dying so there is little protection for bathers when they come out of the water.

The children from St. Agnes School with their teacher, Miss Mary Louise Leblanc and the Durocher School with Miss Colinn Quenneville also held closing picnics at the Somerville Park on the same day. Their entertainment included luncheon, swimming and ball games.

Mr. William Elliott, also the Misses Isabel and Jane Elliott of Howick and Mr. Tate of Montreal were dinner guests at the home of Mrs. E. Fleming on Monday.

Mrs. Gerald Deschambault has been a patient in Barrie Memorial Hospital for the past week where she underwent a major operation. She is expected to return home on Wednesday.

Mr. Guy Stowell of Seattle, Wash., has returned to his home in the West after spending a couple of weeks visiting his brother, Mr. T. W. Stowell and Mrs. Stowell and other members of the Stowell family in Dundee, also Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Stowell of St. Agnes.

Mrs. Henrietta Bastin who came to Canada in June, 1956, to visit her uncle, the late Dr. W. C. Winfrey, expects to leave for Belgium early in July to visit her aged mother and family. Her home is in Lote.

Dr. Winfrey died in August last year and since the fall closing of Winfrey's Island, last November, she has been staying at the Dupuis Hotel. This week, prior to her departure to Belgium by Atlantic Liner she was a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Stowell and Mr. Guy Stowell.

Last week Miss Thelma MacMillan motored to Schnectady, N.Y. to visit her mother, Mrs. H. S. Smith and Mr. Smith. Mrs. Smith returned to Dundee with her daughter and spent a week at the MacMillan home. Mrs. Smith's sister, Miss Corabelle Elliott of Malone spent the latter part of last week with her in Dundee. Mrs. Smith returned to her home in Schnectady on Tuesday morning by bus.

WRONG PLACE

GOGAMA, Ont. (CP) — Pilot George Campbell can't be accused of letting the grass grow beneath his feet, but something like that happened here. During a one-day layoff forced by heavy rain, a pair of birds laid the foundation for a nest under the engine cowling of an airplane.

Quebec Expansion Assured For Years To Come

The rapid rise of Quebec's industrial strength has been made possible by the province's aggressive development of its hydro-electric power resources, B. J. McGuire, Montreal writer and public relations official, says in the current issue of the Canada Geographical Journal. . .

In a especial study prepared for The Canadian Geographical Society on Quebec water power, Mr. McGuire reports that Quebec is among the leaders in developing this form of energy. He says that the province already has an 8,000,000 installed capacity and has set a goal of 12,000,000 horsepower by 1961. The province's commercial potential, he writes, is a staggering total of 26,000,000 horsepower.

Comparing Quebec's hydro-electric development with that of other countries, Mr. McGuire says that Norway for many years led all countries in installed power on a per capita basis,with 1.5 horsepower per person. Canada was in second position with 1.1 horsepower per person, but Quebec with a total of 1.7 is now high above the Canadian average. The United States has an installed capacity of .2 hydro-electric power per person; France, .2; Italy .19; and the Soviet Union, .03. Quebec, he adds, will eventually possess about half of the total Canadian capacity.

According to Mr. McGuire, "Quebec's hydro-electric power comes from 500 different plants on the many power rivers of the province. These plants are grouped in generating stations ranging in installed capacity from as little as twenty horsepower to as much as 1,400,000 horsepower. Her largest producing rivers are the Saguenay, with 2,776,000 horsepower; the St. Maurice, with 1,695,000; the St. Lawrence, with 1,658,000; and the Ottawa, with 1,415,000." To this group was added in 1956 the Bersimis, "which will eventually produce about 2,000,000 horsepower".

"Full advantage of the developed hydro-electric power installations of the province could not be enjoyed if the power were available only where it is developed", Mr. McGuire informed the Geographical Society. "At locations where large quantities of power are required, power sites may not be available in sufficient size, and long and expensive transmission facilities may be required. Also, in an area as large as Quebec, seasonal variations are not uniform. In the southern section of the province, spring occurs from two weeks to a month earlier than in the Saguenay or Bersimis regions. The lower St. Maurice area will have mild weather earlier and longer than the upper section. Conversely, the nset of winter conditions will usually occur later where spring is earlier. These differences can occur also to a minor extent within one generation district due to variations in topography such as elevation."

Mr. McGuire reports that Quebec power interests have overcome this problem by developing voluntarily "an interconnected grid system to utilize the available power with a minimum of waste". He says that "with maximum demand occurring at varying times on the various systems, these interconnections allow maximum use of the installed facilities without, in many cases, any actual loss of power by the producers. Power provided for peak periods is returned over a longer off-peak period with the result that storage water is utilized to the best advantage."

The existing and potential hydro-electric power, in addition to the co-operative scheme of utilization, makes Quebec "uniquely endowed with an asset which unites a self-perpetuating utility and reliability in a manner which ensures expansion for years to come."

Powerscourt

Week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Aime Lafond were: Mr. and Mrs. Dolor Robidas and four children, Sherrbrooke, Que.; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Baker and daughter of Montreal.

Recollections of

Mrs. Wilson, Sr., had a family of three daughters and four sons, one of the daughters and one son died in infancy, another daughter died when she was 22 years of age. Thus there are three sons and one daughter living, who have been named previously. There are four grandchildren of school age, two girls and two boys, children of James and Archibald.

Some of the early history of this family is contained in Robert Sellar's History of Chateauguay and Huntingdon,and Mrs. Wilson showed a copy of this book which was given to her husband for service he rendered Robert Sellar, Sr., when he was gathering the data for the book.

Mr. Wilson kept beef cattle from which he made his livelihood, but since the sons have taken over the farms, they have introduced dairy breeds in common with other farmers now in the area. The present farms are far removed from what were described in the early part of this story. The three Wilson farms are quite nicely laid out and have good sized brick houses on them. The land about is all cleared and used for growing crops and pasturing the fine herds of dairy cattle. The road is now paved for the most part and one has no difficulty in driving along at a good speed.

The cold spell of the past winter brought back nostalgic memories of some of the winters in the earlier years of her life. She recounted some of her experiences of this nature and the difficulties which had to be overcome. She said that there were no particularly exciting events in her life, it had been one mostly of hard work. The recent anniversary of Georgetown Church, which was the 134th, brought to her mind the minister on the ship who had baptized her aunt, was probably the first inducted minister of the church. His name was Calhoun.

Mr. Wilson, Sr. passed away in 1931, but Mrs. Wilson has continued to live on the farm with her daughter, while the stock and the farm itself is cared for by one of the sons.

Descendants of the original settlers still remain on the farms in the area, but many new settlers have come in from time to time. Among names of descendants are such as Younie, Chisholm, Rutherford, Lamarre, McRae and Ness, who are carrying on the family homes and farms of the pioneer settlers.

Covering The SPORTS

Baseball

In a close and exciting game played at Cunningham's Field Sunday afternoon, the Huntingdon Merchants defeated Malone 7 to 5. Pat Presley, Huntingdon's new pitcher, held Malone to 7 hits and was very good when the going got tough.

Presley and John Parrot both hit home runs in the second inning for Huntingdon.

Pop Poupore, former Huntingdon player, gave the Merchants only 9 hits, but 3 errors by his team mates allowed 5 unearned runs to cross the plate. Poupore also led Malone at the bat with a home run and a single.

This was the fourth win of the season for the Merchants. Their record now stands at 4 wins and 2 losses.

This Sunday the Merchants will play at Hogansburg against the Chiefs and the following Sunday, July 7th, will see the All Star game played at Chateauguay.

Little League

This Saturday the Little Leaguers will meet to form their teams for the coming season. The first game will be played on Tuesday, July 2nd.

In Memoriam

PATENAUDE — In loving memory of a dear husband, Ernest, who passed away June 24th, 1955 —
"Somewhere beyond the shadows
Dwells a dear husband of mine,
Whom I looked on as a treasure
Who I cherished as divine,
I little thought the end was near
Only those who have lost can tell
The sorrow of parting and no farewell,
But God is good, He gives me strength
To bear my bitter cross,
He is the only one who knows
How heavy is my loss."
Always remembered and sadly missed by your loving wife,
Hazel.

On Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hutchinson, now of Waterbury, Conn., came to Huntingdon to make a number of calls on old family friends and at the same time visit the Cemetery where the Late Rev. P. H. Hutchinson, D. D. was laid at rest, and who was the minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian congregation, when the present St. Andrew's church was built back in 1904-05. It was Dr. Hutchinson who was the main power toward having that beautiful edifice built and which when completed cost approximately $25,000, a mere pittance as to present day costs and values.

Leslie Farquhar Killed In Car Accident

A fatal accident occurred in the early hours of Monday morning, June 24th, at the McIntosh concession, one mile north of Rockburn, at about 1.30. Leslie Farquhar, 18-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Alton Farquhar of Hinchinbrook, was driving the car on the road between Dewittville and Rockburn, when it is believed he lost control, swerved and hit a tree.

The unfortunate part was that it was not until about 3.15 a.m. that Mr. Earl Sutton of Covey Hill passed the spot and noticed the car. By this time the victim was already dead. He notified Traffic Officer Hirsch and Det. F. Wilmot, who investigated and called Dr. George Lefebvre, coroner, who declared death due to accident.

The deceased is survived by his parents, four brothers and five sisters. The sympathy of the entire local community is extended to the bereaved family at this time.

The Editor
Huntingdon Gleaner

Sir:

As an annual subscriber to your paper, could you find space for a few comments and corrections on one of your Editorials, in the issue of June 19, entitled Stamps or Posters.

You say that you are not interested in stamps.

To a Philatelist, that is obvious.

You say that every time you go to the Post office, you get a fresh design, if that is the case your visits to the Post office cannot be very frequent.

Certainly there have been a number of new issues in the last 10 years but nothing in comparison with our neighbours across the border.

With regard to the Post office having a surplus, I have no comment. But as far as them disposing of it, by issuing a variety of new issues you are certainly Barking up the wrong tree.

This is done for the purpose of increasing, and NOT decreasing the funds. Has it ever occured to you of the MILLIONS, of stamp collectors in the world. Quite independent of Stamp dealers, who purchase thousands of sheets of every new issue.

Lots of collectors save blocks of four, instead of a single copy. Then there are the, DAY OF ISSUE, covers.

You send an addressed envelope, with an order covering the cost of the stamps affixed, and 5 cents extra to cover the charge. This 5 cents charge applies to each individual envelope, and as a large number of collectors have a block of 4 affixed, there is another good revenue producer. Dealers also get these, by the hundreds, for re-sale. Then there are the overprinted 'G' stamps, used for Government mail only but saved by collectors, and Dealers.

As to size, you certainly are wrong there, the size of the recent issues of large stamps are, one inch by one and a half.

Over covering the face of the envelope. Seeing that the largest are only size stated above. How come? The smallest envelopes permitted by the Post office regulations are 4 by 3¼, giving a face area of 13 square inches, thus the stamp is only one ninth of the size of the envelope.

Take the ordinary business envelope 6 by 3½, 21 square inches, the stamp is only one fourteenth of the face area.

Certainly they are a harvest for the collectors, and the Dealers, but a far richer harvest for the Postal department.

Over the designs, if such they can be called, they have been criticised by innumerable people in letters to the various papers. If you will permit me to use a common expression. I think they are Lousy. The stamps of Nigeria? Uganda? Ghana, and the South African Republic, are a thousand times better than ours, in any way you look at them. So why not send to Darkest Africa, for a few designers. They could certainly give us a few good hints.

Over affixing the stamps wrong way up. Certainly that does apply to the Fire Stamp, that was issued several months ago, but as to the others, a person's sight would have to be pretty bad, if they could not read the word, CANADA, right way up.

Over the figure denoting the value, that applies to a great extent. Especially to the 1953 issue of Queen Elizabeth. We had far more artistic stamps published in Queen Victoria's time, than we are getting now.

This is rather a long letter, but I have been a collector since 1888, but only have about 6,000. But your editorial got me going. I have always remarked on the fairness, and impartiality of your paper, in all respects, but that editorial to me appeared otherwise. Over the old Greenback, you speak of.

Well the Government might well reduce the size of that, to bring it in line with it's present purchasing power, and save a little on the Paper.

Montreal. G. Hughes.

Retirement Savings Plans Eligible for INCOME TAX DEDUCTIONS

The Income Tax Act (Canada) was recently amended to permit individual taxpayers to deduct from their income, within certain limits, premiums paid for retirement savings plans in 1957 and later years.

The savings portion of either a new or an existing life insurance policy may be qualified as a retirement savings plan. Existing life insurance policies therefore need not be surrendered in order to take advantage of this tax relief.

The possible advantages of the deduction should in each case be considered in relation to the restrictions required by law to be included in a savings plan to make it eligible for the deduction, and in relation to the policyholder's own particular tax circumstances.

Policyholders interested in the new deduction should consult their life insurance underwriters or their companies.

"Work-horse jobs are a cinch for Fargo Trucks"
says Eastern Construction Company, Limited

1. It's the ruggedness Fargo builds into a truck that pays off. Eastern's big-muscled Fargos work day in, day out, hauling masonry to construction jobs like this big $2,000,000 project. It's a punishing schedule that requires reliability.

2. This Fargo "construction job" can meet all the demands placed on it—and then some! Frame has double-width front crossmembers. Springs are of durable chrome-alloy steel.

3. Extra V-8 power, rated from 180 to 232 h.p., makes Fargo trucks the power leaders in their price ranges, from agile Fargo express and panel models to rugged heavy-duty trucks.

4. Safer operation is a cinch, too. Big wrap-around windshield and optional wrap-around rear window, constant-speed electric windshield wipers are just a few of many safeguards.

New Rates Car Insurance To Go Into Effect July 1st

MONTREAL — The continuation of the spiraling cost of automobile accidents during the first four months of this year will mean increased insurance rates for many Quebec motorists.

The Independent Automobilie Insurance Conference, following a survey of its member companies, an nounced increases will go into effect on July 1 in some categories.

The increase is a mid-year one and is in addition to the regular annual rate adjustment announced last December. It does not apply to northern or north-eastern Quebec. Officials said the increases were mainly aimed at drivers with accident records and young, under-25 drivers. Accident free drivers, they said, would get little or no increase and would continue to receive a "no-accident" discount. Similarly, no change in rates is contemplated for private passenger cars operated for business purposes.

Insurance officials said that the cost of accidents in the first few months of 1957 had been the highest ever—up from 10 to 15 per cent.

The situation had been further complicated, they said, by the fact that under the present rating system the insurance companies are paying today's higher losses on premiums collected up to 18 months ago when costs were much less. The automobile insurance industry suffered substantial operating losses in 1956 due to rising accident costs.

The new rate increases were intended, insurance companies said, to bring premiums more realistically in line with the rising costs of accidents. For instance, collision costs for repairs due to changes in 1957 car models were up eight per cent over 1956 models, while the more elaborate design of all recent model cars tends to make even the most minor accident a costly affair.

Insurance premiums are based on a "you set your own rates" system, they said. "When the cost and number of accidents increase, so do most insurance rates. When accident costs go down, insurance rates follow suit."

The Week at Quebec

QUEBEC — (CP) — The case of the Witnesses of Jehovah seeking annulment of a Provincial law they feel is a threat to their religious freedom this week was adjourned until September.

Premier Duplessis, as Attorney-General of Quebec, is the defendant in the case. The Witnesses are protesting against the law which prohibits publication of papers containing abusive or insulting attacks against religious beliefs of any section of Quebec's population.

Toronto Lawyer Glen How, appearing with Samuel Bard of Quebec for the Witnesses, called Mr. Duplessis as a witness Tuesday. Superior Court Judge Louis-Philippe Lizotte is hearing the action.

Mr. Duplessis said "the activities of any and all religious groups are treated equally."

"If someone breaks the law, then I, as Attorney-General, must take action," he said when asked if he would enforce the law.

Mr. How attempted to query the premier on remarks he allegedly made when the bill was being debated in the house three years ago. Counsel Noel Dorion of Quebec and Emery Beaulieu of Montreal objected stating the alleged remarks must be supported by testimony of witnesses. Judge Lizotte upheld the objection.

There were several sharp exchanges between Mr. How and Mr. Duplessis.

Mr. How asked if Mr. Duplessis was prejudiced against a member of the Witnesses' sect.

"I have no prejudices against anybody, not even you. I'm very patient," the premier replied.

Mr. How asked if the law was passed to limit the freedom of religion granted the Witnesses by the Supreme Court of Canada.

"The question is insulting," the premier replied before his counsel could object. "This is not what a decent lawyer would do."

Mr. How said he was trying to prove the state of mind and intention of Mr. Duplessis concerning the bill.

"We don't have to wait until we are in jail before we find out what the intentions of Bill 38 are," Mr. How stated.

The next day Mr. How called Frederick William Franz, of the Witnesses' Watchtower Bible and Tract Society, to the stand. Questioned by Mr. How, Mr. Franz said Witnesses' practices in Quebec are controversial and might be characterized as abusive by some persons.

The defence objected the statement was an opinion of the witness and were upheld by Judge Lizotte.

Mr. How said counsel for the Attorney-General should not object on "technicalities" which only obstructed the case. The testimony should be admitted under reserve, he said.

Mr. Dorion said it was the duty of the Attorney-General to defend himself and no one would keep the defence from making "objections we feel are well-founded."

Judge Lizotte adjourned the case until Sept. 11 because of pending vacations for court personnel.

Quebec's Libery Party had its representation in the Legislative Assembly cut to 17 this week when two Montreal members resigned from the party.

Leader Georges Lapalme announced resignation of Dave Rochon, member for Montreal St. Louis, and Lionel Ross, Montreal Verdun. They will sit in the Legislature as independents.

The two frequently broke away from the party in the Legislature's last session. They often disagreed with acting Liberal Leader Rene Hamel.

Mr. Lapalme did not attend the session because of illness. He returned as party chief last week.

Mr. Ross had represented Verdun since 1944 and Mr. Rochon had held his seat since 1948.

Present party standings are: Union Nationale 69, Liberal 17, Independent 3, vacant four.

Gaspe Copper Mines Limited at Murdochville, Que., this week sent another letter to its striking workers hinting they are to be replaced by new personnel if they do not return to work.

One thousand workers left the plant last March 11 when the United Steelworkers of America called the strike. The company resumed production April 29 but are only treating some 1,800 tons of ore daily compared to the prestrike figure of about 5,000 tons.

The letter said Company Policy is "to hire the highest percentage of Gaspesians possible, but it is impossible to wait indefinitely."

Both sides are standing firm in their original positions. Gaspe Copper says it will not negotiate with an uncertified union and the USWA says it will not send the men back until it gets a contract.

Last June the company obtained a writ of prohibition keeping the Quebec Labor Relations Board from ruling on a union application for certification. It still is before the courts.

Dundee

DUNDEE — On Sunday morning, Rev. Howard Fraser was the guest preacher at the Service of Worship in Montreal West United Church. After the service Howard and his mother, Mrs. D. A. Fraser, were guests at the home of the minister, Dr. G. Campbell Wadsworth. Later in the day, Mrs. Fraser and her son visited Rev. and Mrs. Rodney Booth in N.D.G. at the home of Mrs. Booth's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Adams.

Rodney and Howard have been college classmates for seven years and this spring were members of the "Three Saints and a Sinner", men's quartette, which won the Intercollegiate Barbershop Singing Competition at Hart House in Toronto. Rev. and Mrs. Booth will soon be leaving Montreal to commence their ministry together at Nakusp United Church in the Kootenay Valley, B.C.

At the time of his Ordination to the Christian ministry, the Settlement Committee of the Montreal-Ottawa Conference of the United Church of Canada appointed Rev. Howard Fraser to the Sawyerville Charge in the Eastern Townships. The Induction Service when Howard will begin his ministry there has been set for July 4th at 8 p.m. in the Sawyerville United Church. Randboro and East Clifton are the two other appointments on this rural charge. New ordinands are expected to serve at least two years in their first pastorates and many stay longer.

Rev. Alex Cameron has been the United Church minister in Sawyerville during the last nine and a half years. He is moving to the Longueuil United Church when he will be inducted early in July. Before Rev. Hagar came to serve as pastor in Dundee, he was the pastor in Sawyerville where Howard is now going. At present 332 members are included on the Church Roll there.

Cartierville Club Wins 50th Annual Chateauguay Regatta

The 50th Annual Regatta to be held by the C.A.C. took place on Saturday, June 22nd.

The heat and brilliant sunshine drew a large crowd of spectators, and members of the R.C.M.P., the Provincial Police and the local force were kept busy moving traffic along the packed highway.

One of the main points of interest to the more knowledgeable spectators and the members of other clubs was the innovation of the new larger-sized paddle used by the Cartierville Clubs. The Cartierville Coach has also begun the changeover in his paddlers' style to bring it more into line with European style. This being the first Regatta of the season for the Eastern Division, it will be interesting to see how Cartierville fares in the following Regattas of the season. Whether Cartierville's success was due entirely to the new methods cannot be judged as yet, but it certainly was their day, the only Club coming anywhere near them being Lachine, the present Division Champions. The final point score was — Cartierville 51; Lachine 47; Chateauguay 17; Otterburn 10.5; Grand Trunk 9.

Possibly the heat caused tempers to be a little more edgy than usual, but from whatever cause, two paddlers, Bob Morton of Lachine and Evan White of Cartierville, were banished for their part in a fight which broke out on the dock following the junior double-blade single race. Several of the scufflers got duckings in the river, which probably helped to cool off heated tempers, as the flare-up was quickly brought under control by the Police, aided by threats from the Officials' Box to have the Regatta called.

The results of all races were as follows —

D.B. Single — 1 Harris, Lachine; 2 Reece, G.T.B.C.; 3 Luckanovich, Cartierville; 4 Melia, Lachine.

Senior Four — 1, Brady, Morrison, Hamilton, Duffey, Chateauguay.

2: Davis, Holloway, Kelly, McDermott, G.T.B.C.

3: Descany, Valliere, Grandmaison, Jordon — Lachine.

4: D. Brown, McCleery, G. Bossy, L. Bossy—Cartierville.

Juvenile Single — 1, Winslow, Lachine; 2 Ambrose, Lachine; 3 F. Powell, Otterburn; 4 Jarry, Otterburn.

Junior Tandem — 1 Marton, J. G. Lavoie, Lachine; 2 D. Bossy, M. Brown, Cartierville; 3 MacGregor, Rock, Chateauguay; 4 J. C. Lavoie, Jordon, Lachine.

D.B. Four — 1 Gregor, Pearse, Hemmings, D. Brown, Luckanovich, Cartierville; 2 Steppacher, White, Rice, Blank, Cartierville; 3 Ewart, Goodale, White, King, Otterburn.

Juvenile War Canoe — 1 King's crew, Otterburn; 2 Ramsey's crew, Cartierville; 3 Smith's crew, Chateauguay.

Jr. D.B. Single — 1 M. Brown,

Several Thefts At Chateauguay -

During the night of Friday-Saturday, June 21-22, three powerful outboard motors were stolen from various points along the river at Chateauguay Basin.

Mr. Pierre Morin (35 h.p.), Mr. Leo Lalumière (25 h.p.) and Mr. W. E. Poole (15 h.p.) were the owners involved. All the motor were Evinrude, and all were recent models.

Four houses were broken into during the week-end — one being a duplex, both parts of which were entered.

After the Regatta on Saturday, several small accidents occurred, but fortunately no deaths or injuries were involved, but the damage to the cars involved amounted to over $1,000. One of the drivers involved was charged with drunken driving and driving without a license.

Man Thought Drowned - Alive

A comedy of errors which could could so easily have been a tragedy took place on Sunday at Chateauguay Beach. Jean-Guy Labreche, of Cote St. Paul, went for a swim, leaving his clothes on the beach. After his swim, he was offered a drive, and went off still leaving his clothing on the beach. The clothes were found by his friends who, assuming he had been drowned, took them and called the Police. When Jean-Guy returned, he found no clothes, no friends, and no one knew anything about it.

He was driven back to Montreal by a local taxi driver, who loaned him pants and money. Then on Monday, he called at Provincial Police headquarters, collected his clothes, and got himself officially restored to life. He probably feels, like Mark Twain, that "the report of his death was greatly exaggerated".

Part Of Valleyfield Regatta To Be Televised

This famous Valleyfield International Regatta will this year, be televised through channels 2 and 6 from four o'clock to five, Saturday and Sunday, July 13 and 14.

A crew of 36 men and with 7 cameras will televise the races directly from the St. Francis Bay, situated in the very center of Valleyfield.

This year a record number of boats are expected and more than 2000 circulars have been sent all racers of Ontario, Quebec, and the United States. Many new boats will appear on the course this year but all these racers try to keep secret the construction of their new boats.

Ernie Roberts of Cornwall will now drive Dr. Latour's famous boat, "L'escapade" François Lavigne who used to drive this boat has been obliged to quit racing but he will be among the commentators of the Valleyfield Regatta at the TV. On Saturday, July 13, there will be only outboard races and on Sunday, July 14, it will be for the inboards.

Jean Paul Clermont, who last year won the championship of the 225 class, will have a new boat with a bright new Chrysler engine. Gerald Patry has changed his boat. It is the same name, "My Own" but a brand new yacht and brand new motor.

Commodore Paul Chartrand and his officers are working hard so that the organization of the regatta will be perfect. The club-house is now opened and boat owners are always welcome.

The 29th. of June, will be the official opening of the club-house. A dance and a real show by famous artists will be presented at the club-house. If you care to come make your reservations now because the number of tickets is limited. Did you buy your admission ticket for the regatta? Hurry! You may win one of the three prizes $100.-$50. and $25. if you buy your ticket before the 29th. If at this date you have not won one of these prizes, your ticket will give you the chance of winning a beautiful runabout with a 40 H.P. motor given by the O'Keefe Brewery.

There is still time to send your FURS to our modern Fur Storage Vaults.
