Get cheques

MONTREAL (AP) — Bandits who took $50,000 in worn-out but negotiable bank notes in a mail truck in Sherbrooke Monday night also got away with about $1,000,000 in cancelled cheques, bank authorities here disclosed Friday.

The cheques were of no value to the robbers, authorities said, and probably were dumped or destroyed. But the loss tangles bank cheque clearing procedures.

Forced to land

A twin-engine Beechcraft Expeditor aircraft, en route from Maryland, U.S.A., to the Sherbrooke municipal airport, made a forced landing at the Saint-François Xavier de Brompton airport near Windsor late Friday afternoon.

Owner and pilot of the plane, John Clemens of Towson, Maryland, and his only passenger, Peter Gault of Glen Arm were uninjured in the mishap. Mr. Gault was coming to Sherbrooke to visit his son who is a student at Bishop's University.

Killed in mine

FUKUOKA, Japan (AP) — At least 55 miners were killed today and some 600 others trapped underground in a gas-filled coal mine in northwest Kyushu, police reported.

Police said 80 injured miners had been brought to the surface after a coal dust explosion collapsed the main tunnel of the Mitsui Mikawa mine at Omuka, 65 miles southwest of Fukuoka.

Give back pay

MONTREAL (CP) — The possibility of another waterfront stoppage receded Friday after some employers gave assurances that they will pay retroactive wages to dock workers before Dec. 6.

Members of the International Longshoremen's Union had been agitating for quick payments of a wage raise retroactive to the beginning of the season. This had been agreed to in the new contract signed Oct. 12.

Stop picketing

CHICAGO (AP) — Picketing has been called off in the dispute that has made idle Canadian ships at four Great Lakes ports in a protest involving a Canadian government trusteeship order.

The decision, announced Friday, followed conferences between Jules Serot, a lawyer for the National Labor Relations Board, and Irving Friedman, lawyer for the Great Lakes district of the Seafarers' International Union (AFL-CIO) and Local 19 of the International Longshoremen's Association.

Chinese here

WINNIPEG (CP) — Grain trade sources said Friday a Communist Chinese delegation in Canada for several days is likely negotiating for more wheat under a three-year agreement signed Aug. 1.

Under the agreement China agreed to buy anywhere from 112,000,000 to 186,700,000 bushels of wheat to July 31, 1966.

FOG PUTS IT OUT — Spray from a fog nozzle fire hose turns into vapor and smothers a demonstration fire yesterday at Victoria Park. Manning the hose is Andre Aube; assisting him, Dominique Gonthier. They are employed by the Quebec provincial civil protection organization to train instructors who will go back to their municipalities and set up brigades of civil aids for their fire departments. There were 12 municipalities represented at Friday's demonstration in Sherbrooke. See also Page 3. (Record photo by Gerry Lemay)

not have pink eyes and has a few brown spots on its ears and hind legs, the little deer is not a true albino. (CP Wirephoto)

PICKET CANADIAN SHIP — The Mondoc, with about 600 tons of newsprint unloaded, was picketed this week by the AFL-CIO Seafarers International Union (SIU) in Chicago. The ship berthed alongside the Chicago Sun-Times and Chicago Daily News buildings, right, and some of the cargo of about 1,400 tons of newsprint was unloaded. Then picketing of the ship, owned by Peterson and Sons Co., Fort William, Ont., began. (AP Wirephoto)

A strong Vietnamese

Out of confusion, Big Minh

From the confusion and turmoil of the coup in South Vietnam, a strongman has emerged who should please the Pentagon.

Tall (six feet), as solidly built as a wrestler, Maj. Gen. Duong Van Minh, 40, has been installed as head of a committee of generals and colonels who will run the war against the Communist Vietnamese while keeping an eye on the civilian leadership of the country.

"Big Minh," as the general is called, is a favorite among the 16,000 American military "advisers" in South Vietnam. His military junta has named Nguyen Ngoc Tho, a gentle, liberal-minded Buddhist as premier of a caretaker government. Tho is a figurehead responsible for civilian and political niceties.

Tho, popular among Americans and the Vietnamese Buddhists (70 per cent. of the country's 15,000,000 population), was a powerless vice-president in the Diem family compact dictatorship. He likely will have more influence now, but still, very little real power.

The army is the key to the future—as in most revolutions. And the key to the army is Gen. Duong Van Minh.

He's no stranger to the Americans. In fact he's the "pet of the Pentagon," and a personal friend of the U.S. commander in Vietnam, Gen. Paul Harkins.

In the old days of French colonial rule, Minh was colonel in the Vietnamese national army. After the partition of French Indochina in 1954 he was promoted to general, and became the struggling President Diem's most trusted and successful commander.

Trained in fighting by the French, he was taught in staff work and organization by the Americans at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

Gradually, as the war against Communist guerrillas dragged on, Gen. Minh became disillusioned with Diem's apparent half-hearted campaign. And Diem, in turn, became suspicious of Minh's success and popularity among potentially dissident junior officers.

His enormous size (by Vietnamese standards) is impressive and his sense of humor, confidence in himself and fondness for action won him a following of Americans and Vietnamese.

Questions are being asked in Washington. How will the coup affect relations with the U.S.? How involved was United States in the revolt? Will the war against Communist rebels be enhanced or hindered?

The American government undoubtedly will welcome the change of leadership. It seems a main problem in Washington will be to allow a discreet period pass by before granting enthusiastic recognition to the military junta.

It's inconceivable that the U.S. military wasn't fully aware of what was fermenting in South Vietnam. The 16,000 U.S. military "advisers" are so interlarded with the Vietnamese military that one often speaks for the other.

While the U.S. may not have actually sponsored the coup, it certainly wouldn't have discouraged it.

SPECIAL FORCES
The intrigue-prone Central Intelligence Agency has been hard at work in Vietnam and, judging by past record in Guatemala and Cuba's Bay of Pigs, would find it hard to resist not giving a crumbling regime a slight push.

gang is just good fun, the study finds, knows deep down how lethal that deck of cards really is.

Most revealing in this study, perhaps, are the responses of the ladies who uniformly begin by describing how amused or bored they are at a card game, or what a social convenience it is for spending happy hours with old friends and new acquaintances.

But it doesn't take a skillful psychological probe too long to get below the surface and considerably closer to the truth.

"I love to play and I play to win," a 22-year-old girl says eventually, after explaining that cards is a well-managed way to meet people.

"I'm really afraid to get too interested in playing cards," says a 37-year-old housewife who began by saying that cards bored her. "Every so often I force myself to sit back and look and I get frightened. I don't want to become that kind of person and get so savage."

For another woman, the heart of the matter bled profusely despite her effort to hide it: "I think bridge reflects more of one's personality, whereas poker is a more friendly cutthroat sort of thing."

Information scraps make a Chinese puzzle missionaries and refugees.

By RON POULTON

In this fashion the pieces of the Chinese puzzle are being juggled in a dangerous and frustrating game. The new pieces are too slippery to grasp. The old ones perpetuate the myths and personalities of the men behind Red China. And in handling either the old or the new there is little comfort for the West.

CONSISTENT

The most frightening quality of the leaders of Red China is their remarkable consistency. No purge or realignment has stripped their strength or caused them to deviate, a la Moscow, from the hard line of domination by force.

Their history stokes no optimism that Mao's inevitable death will blunt their dedication.

He is 69 now, and is said to have some difficulty walking. But it was apparent from his last photograph (taken at Peking airport last July) that he was being ravaged by neither disease nor age.

Once, Mao and his henchmen found it polite to talk to Western newsmen. They were locked in war with Chiang Kai-shek and needed the publicity. That data forms the bulk of the West's knowledge about them still. It is still useful because most of them are alive and very much in power.

NO CHANGE.

The ideas and ideals which sustained them when Mao led them 8,000 miles to Yenan in 1934 do not appear to have altered a whit.

Five men of the standing committee of the present 19-man Politburo have stood by Mao for 30 years. Their names are Liu Shao-chi, Chou En-lai, Teng Hsiao-ping, Chu Teh, Lin Biao and Chen Yun. Of these, Liu Shao-chi is the most important.

He has been standing in the wings, recognized as Mao's inevitable successor since 1956. Some recognized him even earlier. He has been chairman and head of state of the People's Republic of China since April 27, 1959. Mao's views are his.

Russia may hearten the Western optimist when it calls Mao a "foul liar." Peking may comfort the same Westerner when it scoffs at the Kremlin's fear of "paper tigers" if only because it is nice to see enemies fall out.

But schisms within the Communist world are cold comfort when one of the malcontents is imbued with Oriental fatalism and heads an army of 2,600,000.

Western leaders are more realistic. They remember that it was Liu who said: "We are too ignorant to be beaten by atomic bombs."

Current history shifts evasively, but it is highly likely that Liu now looms as the largest question mark shadowing the meeting table of Mao.

Untouchable Freedomites rankle

By JOHN GREEN

AGASSIZ, B.C. (TNS) — The feared Sons of Freedom Doukhobors, camped here for the past two months, have bothered nobody, but this hasn't changed the attitude of municipal Reeve James Fraser who would jail every one of them regardless of the consequences.

Fears of a reign of terror with dynamite and gasoline have largely subsided. But the fact that sect members are free to break laws other people must obey still rankles deeply.

Reeve Fraser, immovable as the rocks of his native Scotland, calls the refusal of the RCMP to take action "plain damn cowardice."

TRESPASSING
The Doukhobors are here to be close to their menfolk, imprisoned for bombings, arson and terrorism in the Kootenays. A few years ago many of the sect's children were seized by the RCMP and forced into camp-like schools when their parents refused to send them to public schools.

Today the Doukhobor children are attending school here, doing well and making friends.

The squatters are violating municipal camping regulations and the building code, both adopted specifically to prevent them from settling in the area; they are trespassing, ignoring provincial requirements for sanitation and fire precautions, and cutting firewood on other people's property at their pleasure.

But the police take their orders from the provincial attorney general, who is following a policy of letting the Freedomites alone in the hopes that they will continue to refrain from depredations and perhaps eventually turn against their leaders and settle somewhere permanently.

It may be that this policy is working. There has been no real trouble for almost a year, while the ranks of the trekking Freedomites have dwindled by two-thirds, and rumbles of disillusionment pervade the remainder. Guarded hopes are being expressed that a 60-year reign of terror could actually be ending.

Those who have known the Freedomites well, both in the Kootenays and on the march say the greatest change is the loss of their delusion of superiority to the rest of the world. For a sneering contempt for outsiders they now substitute appeals to public sympathy.

NO PUSHOVER

At the camp itself, life has settled into a routine no outsider would envy. A few men have found work, but the majority keep busy adding to the shackdown that is slowly swallowing the original tents.

At first the tents were given clear plastic coverings that extended in front to keep the rain off a working area. Then cardboard was added for insulation, often enclosing a larger area than the tent, and more plastic put over that.

More recently frame structures have become the standard, with poles or scrap lumber for studding and rafters covered with cardboard and occasionally old lumber or sheet metal.

Old wood stoves are gradually being accumulated, but some people still have no heat, others burn wood in old gasoline tins, and nearly all the chimneys are made of tin cans rammed together. Almost every tent has a gasoline cooking stove and lantern. There has already been one gasoline fire in which two men were burned. Had they not put it out it might have swept the camp. Provincial fire marshals either aren't looking or are keeping their opinions to themselves.

To get Buddy Ebsen out of those clodhoppers and into his dancing shoes. Bing had the star of The Beverly Hillbillies on his variety show.

Seeing Buddy in black tie after all that time as Davy Crockett's coon-capped kind kick and as yokel Jed Clampett—showed a side that a lot of us had almost forgotten. He's a marvellous and sophisticated dancer.

From year to year, Crosby usually turns out the same kind of tasteful, uncluttered and tune-tul variety show. Thursday night's was no exception.

NO OLD FACES

The sets were architecturally clean and dramatically effective. The guest stars were gratifying, and didn't include any of those same old faces that tour the TV variety circuit with boring regularity.

Welcome party held for couple at Waterville

WATERVILLE — Mr. and Mrs. Roger Smith were pleasantly surprised on Nov. 2, when a number of friends gathered at their home to welcome them to Waterville.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hitchcock of Montreal, formerly of Waterville, and Mr. and Mrs. David Halchak, arranged the party.

Gifts were presented to Mr. and Mrs. Smith and a social evening spent, after which refreshments were served.

KINNEAR'S MILLS — Miss Lina Morrison, and her niece, Miss Sandra Young, were weekend guests of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Morrison.

Covers of five political-comic books being distributed by the U.S. Information Agency are reproduced here. Four of them deal with Cuba and the other with one worker's part in the Alliance for Progress. They have proven especially effective in Latin America with semi-literate audiences as a doubled-edged device to unmask Castro's betrayal of the Cuban revolution and of building intelligent support for the "Alianza para el Progreso," the economic bulwark against communism in South America.

Many visitors at Coaticook

The regular meeting of the United Church Women's group of St. John's Memorial Church was held Nov. 5 at the home of Mrs. Wyatt Johann, with Mrs. Henry Hanson as joint hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Boisclair visited relatives at Asbestos on the weekend, and were delayed an extra day by the heavy snowfall in that area.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Turnbull returned on Sunday morning from a trip to Los Angeles, Calif., and Las Vegas, Nev., also spending several days visiting Mr. and Mrs. Harry Turnbull at Cultus Lake, B.C.

Mrs. John Stein, and Miss Jean Stein have returned from Scotland, where they visited relatives.

The Home and School Association sponsored a gay Halloween party for the children of the High School, held in the gym on Halloween eve. Games were enjoyed, a candy scramble and apple bobbing held. Prizes were awarded for the best costumes, with Mrs. A. Gregoire and Mrs. G. Kendrick acting as judges.

Over $50 has been turned in so far by the pupils collecting for UNICEF.

The regular monthly meeting of Ashlar Lodge was held on Oct. 30, when a report was given of the recent visit of several lodge members to Golden Rule Lodge, Stanstead.

Mr. Charles Audet and Mr. Yvon Lemieux were reelected by acclamation to their seats on the Town Council. For Mr. Audet it is his twelfth year as a town official. He is presently chairman of the finance committee. Mr. Lemieux has seven years experience in municipal affairs and is chairman of the public health and parks committee.

Members of the Coaticook Golf Club enjoyed a masquerade party on Halloween eve at the clubhouse. A few days previously the last tournament of the season saw some 50 golfers participating, with 18 winning prizes. Among the top winners were Paul Bruhmuller, Jean-Claude Tull, Charles Tull, Lyman Armitage, Mrs. Philippe Belisle, Robert Audet, Real Fauteux and Jacques Trudeau.

Members of the Das Muncher Kammerensemble, which presented the fine concert of chamber music at the L'Heureux School, were guests of Art Centre officials at the public library following the concert.

Mr. Otis Patterson returned to work after enjoying a week's

The United Church Women's group is planning a Christmas sale, to be held in the church hall on Nov. 14.

Visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hayes and Linda on the weekend at Baldwin's Mills and Coaticook were Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Bockus and Barbara, of Foster, Miss Sue Carroll, Montreal, Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Williamson and family, Knowlton, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. C. Levy, Montreal, and Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Stone, of Coaticook.

Snow removal machines got quite a good workout here on the weekend, as the first real snowstorm blocked most of the town streets. Church attendance on Sunday morning was noticeably smaller as some residents were unable to get their cars out of driveways.

COWANSVILLE —

Sixteen members of the local CGIT group collected throughout the Cowansville and Sweetburg area on Halloween night for UNICEF.

Collections for UNICEF in the Fordyce area were made by a child dressed as Little Red Riding Hood. The proceeds were given to her class teacher

500 played by Christmas Club

EATON — The Christmas Club met at the home of Mrs. C. H. Picard, when 500 was played at two tables.

The prize was won by Mrs. Everett McComb, the floating prize went to Mrs. Steve Brazel and consolation to Mrs. Austin Currier.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Miss Joan Glen.

General Notes

Mr. and Mrs. James Winslow were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Picard.

MELBOURNE —

Miss Jessie Stevenson, of Montreal, was a recent guest of Miss Nellie Burrill and Mr. Fred Burrill.

Mrs. Wilfred Atkinson, of Stratford, Ont., a former resident of Melbourne, has returned home after visiting Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Montgomery and other friends here and at Richmond.

ROSENBERG —

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Ball and family were in Montreal recently visiting Mr. and Mrs. Stevens. Mr. Jimmy Nairn, of Montreal, spent the weekend here at his home.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

SQUEEZE SAVES DAY FOR SOUTH

South's bidding was about as delicate as a rampaging elephant. Of course, he did have 20 high card points including three aces and his partner had opened the bidding so he had some justification for getting right to the no-trump slam.

A look at dummy was not cheering. He could count five spades, three diamonds, two clubs and a heart, but that was only 11 tricks. Where was the twelfth coming from? Some sort of a squeeze might develop and South decided to play for it.

He won the first trick in dummy, led the four of hearts and played his eight after East played low. This deliberate loss of a trick was necessary so that he could set up the squeeze later.

West could have shifted to a club and beaten the hand provided that East would hold back his king, but West led a second diamond and the squeeze was on.

It wasn't complicated. South cashed his ace and king of diamonds and ace of hearts and proceeded to run off dummy's spade suit. South had to make two discards, but they were automatic. He let go of the deuce of hearts and six of clubs.

East had to make three discards. The first two were easy. He let the jack of hearts and deuce of clubs go. For his third discard he had to select the nine of clubs, whereupon South finished against the king and made all his three remaining clubs.

He was lucky, but he had

MP attendance rules need revising

Reports from Ottawa indicate that Members of Parliament were somewhat perturbed over the unfavorable public reaction to their decision to raise their own pay by eighty per cent. Faced with widespread criticism from voters in all parts of the country they sought to soften the attacks by promising that they would be good boys in the future.

With an additional $8,000 annually in their pockets they indicated they could give more of their time to administering the affairs of the nation and that attendance at Commons sessions would increase.

But according to Stanley Knowles, NDP MP for Winnipeg North Centre, his fellow parliamentarians have shown little improvement in their attendance records. In fact he feels that the situation has reached such a point that something must be done about it. To this end he has introduced a bill to raise the quorum for a Commons sitting to fifty members from its present twenty.

On the surface this might seem a rather hefty increase but actually it is ridiculously low.

Even under the new limit proposed by Mr. Knowles the business of the nation can be transacted with less than one-fifth of the House membership present.

Making allowance for MP's who may be serving on special committees, attending official functions as representatives of Parliament and other legitimate reasons for absenteeism, it would be reasonable to expect that at least half the House strength be present at any time, thus fixing the quorum at 135.

Haydn S. Pearson's COUNTRY FLAVOR

Growth ends; land awaits winter

The countryside turns brown and gray. Fields and meadows, pasture hill-sides and upland mowings are gray-white at dawn with November frost. You can feel, see and hear the signs. Another season of growth and harvest is finished and the land waits for winter.

There is a lonely change about the eleventh month. Dawn comes slowly and reluctantly. There are days of cold, driving rain when a monotone theme echoes from the roof and drums on farm shop windows. Elms in the meadow stand like gray vases and bleached ghosts of golden-rod and asters line the roads.

But there are other days as Year slides down the slope to that day in December which marks the briefest period of daylight. There are memorable days when a golden platter of sun follows its low arc from southeast to southwest, and brilliant rays slant far into the woodlands. The sky is a pale blue and in the far distance ones sees a hint of the purple haze of early autumn.

Perhaps, as the ancients believed, Proserpine has gone to spend time in Hades and winter will reign until she returns. But a man who checks his farmstead, banks his house, and hauls in the bulky bean stacks, knows that Time is passing through the annual period of getting ready for winter.

Wild life has sought sanctuary if it hibernates and winter animals have grown thick fur. Grasses are bending to the soil that gave them birth. Chickadees chant their cheerful songs and blue jays bugle above the orchard. On clear days, the alpenglow shines on the mountain peaks for a few poignant moments before Night closes off the landscape. Nature is readying for winter. There are those who do not like November, but it is an integral part of the cycle that gives us a flowering world.

Other papers say:

Paul Martin's brave dream futile

(Ottawa Journal)

Comes Mr. Paul Martin, our minister of external affairs, to tell them at McGill University:

"I believe the trend toward internationalism will continue and eventually will result in a world ruled by international law."

"If we are going to establish a world organization under the law, national states must fall. There will be a pooling of authority and economics as well."

Mr. Martin went on to say (according to the Montreal Gazette) that he "did not think the concept of a sovereign state could exist in the modern world."

Mr. Martin, now at the United Nations, could be right. But looking back over the history of the past 150 years, and indeed surveying the current scene, one must wonder upon what he rests his faith, if faith it be?

At the turn of the nineteenth century many in Europe talked as Mr. Martin talks now, and deep hopes were placed in the Holy Alliance. But the Holy Alliance foundered because Castlereagh, following the precepts of Pitt, held England aloof, and because Metternich and Talleyrand, distrusting the mysticism of Russia's Alexander, put the interests of their own countries first. The sovereign state concept, nationalism, was too strong.

Followed the long period between Napoleon and the Kaiser; the period of "the balance of power," which ended, or seemed to be ending, with the League of Nations. Then, again, statesmen talked of internationalism, but Geneva was unequal to what had been carved out of Europe by the peace of Versailles, to isolationism in the U.S. to the rise of Hitler and Mussolini, to the emergence of Bolshevik Russia, with much of the imperialism of Peter the Great.

Came then the period of the Briand-Kellogg pact (its declaration all but a paraphrase of the words of the Holy Alliance), Locarno, and finally, after World War II, the charter of the United Nations.

It may be too soon, far too soon, to write off the United Nations, but alongside it must be placed vast evidence of nationalism not on the wane: the creation of some 30 new states in Africa and the Far East; the rise of Red China as a world power; the eminence of de Gaulle with his policy of "Grandeur" for France; the troubles encountered by the architects of the Treaty of Rome; and the astonishing opposition in Britain to the proposition that she should "join Europe."

Mr. Martin, a student of history, and also an actor in world current affairs, can hardly be unaware of these facts. Aware of them, one wonders how he can discern internationalism, the passing of national sovereignties, as much more than "a shore seen dimly."

Adventures with God

Bible shows faults, suggests, like the mirror to the obese

BEHOLDING as in a glass can be a humiliating experience or a lot of fun. Remember the good old days when you visited the Laughing Gallery at the CNE? The walls were lined with mirrors that distorted your youthful face and figure. Never were so many laughs had by so many for so little.

For five cents you could buy more laughs in that gallery than any place else on earth. They were indeed the good old days when the mirrors were especially designed to distort the face and figure. But the laughing is over now when our figures distort the mirror.

Two women were trying on garments in one of the shops. The younger one, in her late forties, was still attractive. As she posed before the glass wearing the new garment she commented: "This mirror makes me look terrible!"

Her older companion eyed her critically and said wryly: "Oh, I've stopped blaming the mirror."

HERE WAS a woman who realized that the mirror had not changed her into a grotesque figure, but time had. Long before Shakespeare wrote the famous lines: "The fault, dear Brutus, is not in the stars, but in ourselves," the writers of the Bible understood this principle.

James accepted the written Word of God as a looking glass that reflected man's true character. Like the woman who blamed the mirror for making her look terrible many reject the Bible because it tells the whole unpalatable truth about us.

Like Shakespeare, I am ready to admit that the mirror and the Bible put me in a bad light. But I also admit that I've stopped blaming either of them for my bulges, wrinkles, stoops, double chin and nasty disposition.

THE FAULT is not in the Bible or the stars or the mirror. IT IS IN OURSELVES. Not only Shakespeare but GOD says so.

The apostle James suggested a way to improve ourselves so that we would adorn the doctrine of God as a perfect 32 model adorns a Dior Creation. Neither the mirror nor the gown is at fault if the model looks like a bag of sawdust tied in the middle.

And neither the gown nor the mirror can change the situation. But the model can. She can bend and stretch and diet and rest and scrub to make herself more attractive that they might adorn the doctrine of God.

SAYS HE: "Wherefore lay apart all filthiness and superfluity of naughtiness and receive the engrafted word which is able to save your souls."

The amplified New Testament stresses the point that one must have more than knowledge of his need. He must have willpower to "obey the message; be doers of the word, and not merely listeners to it, betraying ourselves." James 1:22-23.

COMPARISON

I admire the figure of TV beauty specialist Gloria Kennedy. I sometimes listen to her advice and I suffer by comparison with her.

But because I am not a doer of her words I shall continue to suffer by comparison. The mirror that makes Gloria Kennedy look good makes me look terrible. So I avoid it.

Many people refuse to read the word of God because it presents an honest picture of their spiritual condition. It is a terrible book that faithfully details the gross sins of our lives but it points the way to improvement.

It offers us a Saviour who can change our vile bodies and cleanse us from the sin that defiles and present us faultless before our heavenly Father.

Those who will submit to the divine course and be doers of His word and not hearers only will be made "new creatures" with perfect proportions, posture and poise.

CLEAN, HEALTHY and vital people who can stand before a mirror and not squirm at the vision before them. The fault, dear Brutus, is in ourselves not in the Bible that mirrors our ungainly souls.

JANE SCOTT

If she really wants to improve her appearance in a mirror.

CORRECT US Nothing deflates ones ego like a look into a mirror that reveals a sagging chin and a spreading midriff. But such a revelation is often necessary before we will stop blaming the mirror and start correcting our physical and spiritual faults.

If we want to trim down the figure, we must cut down the calories and exercise ourselves. The same rule operates in the spiritual sphere.

For Jesus prescribes the course for those who would improve themselves so

(From the Record of Tuesday, November 9, 1943)

The C.G.I.T. held its regular meeting in College Street church hall Richmond, with the devotional period taken by Sheila Fee and Lois Lovett. Later the girls took part in a sing-song. The business meeting was presided over by Lois Boast and Mary Fraser read the minutes of the last meeting. Members decided to hold the annual Christmas vespers service in Chalmers Church. Lois Boast gave a report of the rally held in Montreal, attended by 250 girls and several leaders.

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

(From the Record of Tuesday, November 9, 1948)

The Sherbrooke County Women's Institutes held the regular quarterly meeting in the United Church hall, Magog, where Cherry River was the hostess branch. The president, Mrs. W. T. Evans, of Lennoxville, opened the meeting. Mrs. G. Richardson, of Sherbrooke, vice-president and Mrs. H. Worster, of Lennoxville, secretary-treasurer, officiated. Mrs. L. Clark, of Brompton Road, Sherbrooke, read a report on the annual School Fair, which was convened by Mrs. C. Sawyer, of Sherbrooke. Mrs. Evans was named as delegate to attend the board meeting in Montreal. Mrs. Turner, of Sherbrooke, extended a vote of thanks to the Cherry River ladies.

often made against it. "There have been mistakes, carelessness, delay, rigidity, and perhaps heartlessness, but nothing really sinful," he says.

He had found no evidence of corruption or moral obliquity.

MANY TURNED DOWN During the year, 776 complaints were submitted to the ombudsman. Many were outside his jurisdiction because he does not operate where normal grounds of appeal remain and he hasn't got powers to inquire into the activities of local bodies or other semi-public organizations.

After investigation, 54 complaints were held to have been justified. About half of these were immediately rectified by the departments or agencies concerned as soon as the matters were brought to their notice.

Anybody can make a complaint to the ombudsman simply by forwarding a fee of £1 and written submissions. There are no formal rules or elaborate forms. Initial investigations are made simply on the case made out by people in their own words.

The chief extension of powers being considered by the government is to throw open local body operations to inquiry by the ombudsman.

'We're good to our colored people'

Southern villagers perplexed

By DON MCKEE

CLINTON, La. (AP)—Wide-brimmed, western-style hat clamped tight on his head, the judge strode toward the ancient courthouse, a landmark of 1838 vintage.

Someone spoke to him, but Judge John R. Rarick retorted: "Hell, I'm worried about Negroes—I got no time to talk."

For Rarick and about one-third of Clinton's 1,600 population, there was reason to worry. Negroes, comprising the other two-thirds of the population, had gone to the streets with their grievances for the first time.

Clinton, little more than a cluster of stores around the old courthouse, is typical of the southern grassroots. Located in a cattle farming area of Louisiana, it is only 25 miles south of the Mississippi line.

Change in racial customs is inconceivable to a large majority of the white minority which controls the economy and the government—as in other southern towns.

A militant Negro group, jolting the town awake to racial issues, raised the threat of change — change that would leave no small town immune.

Perplexity and resentment prevail among the white residents; Negro spokesmen vow to keep up their drive, apparently triggered by a voter purge of six years ago.

The voter rolls of East Feliciana Parish (county), of which Clinton is the governmental seat, were purged after Henry Earl Palmer became the parish registrar.

At that time there were about 1,500 Negro voters among the 4,100 persons on the parish's poll list. Palmer said that since the purge, 2,600 white persons and 119 Negroes have re-registered.

"We don't discriminate," said Palmer, who operates a dairy. "I enforce the law to the letter. I don't care if a thousand register if they pass the test."

Sheriff Arch V. Doughty said that before Palmer took office unqualified Negroes were registered.

"I doubt if some of them could even read," said Doughty. "There were so many of them voting in some ways they gummed up the works. They couldn't work the voting machines."

Negro spokesmen protest that discrimination keeps them off the voter list. William Brown, 19, a college student from Tucson, Ariz., and a volunteer worker for the Congress of Racial Equality, said he believed some points in the test are administered illegally to Negroes.

Brown and other C.O.R.E. workers began holding mass meetings in August to push voter registration at a time when similar efforts were launched in other Louisiana parishes. Rarick issued a restraining order against demonstrations here then.

The Negro unrest spilled into the streets Oct. 12-13 when pickets walked in front of four stores. The pickets were arrested.

"Our picketing," said Brown, "is aimed at voter registration—at some communication other than the courtroom."

But, as in similar situations, the Negro drive first aimed at one issue and then spread over other areas of discontent. With a high unemployment rate, Negroes want better jobs; they want biracial talks.

"The variety store has a Negro clerk," said Brown. "He serves the customer, then the white manager rings up the sale. Negroes aren't allowed to use the cash register."

A Negro boycott has hurt business at several stores. White leaders voiced fears of violence if Negroes continue their anti-segregation activities.

"I'm just afraid to think of the consequences," said a prominent businessman. "I just don't understand it—we're good to our colored people."

A merchant, I. G. McKnight, said: "At this stage, I'm not going to be surprised at what happens."

What about the outcome? What can the Negroes hope to gain?

"There's no chance of changing our customs," said McKnight.

Stanley Steamer was fast but went

DETROIT (AP)—One of the most fascinating cars in the early days of North American motoring was the Stanley Steamer.

It chugged its way into the attention of the motoring public in 1897 and remained in production until 1925.

Through the years, stories about the Stanley grew in number and detail and the cars became almost legendary chariots of great speed and beauty.

Against this background, a retired Boston banker has made a new appraisal of the Stanley car which was developed by his father and his uncle.

He is Raymond W. Stanley, who retired recently as an executive of the First National Bank of Boston. His father, F. E. Stanley, designed the first Stanley Steamer in 1897. Two years later, he and his brother, F. O. Stanley, formed the Stanley Steamer Company.

Other companies were in the steam car business at that time. In fact, steam cars were far more numerous and more accepted than were gasoline buggies.

ANYTHING FOR FUEL The main value of the Stanley and other steamers was that they were a silent, smooth-running machine which needed only water and anything that would burn as fuel.

The steamers had their shortcomings. It sometimes took as much as half an hour to get boiler pressure to start. There were all kinds of valves to set and keep clean. The cars needed a vast amount of water and filling stations were few and far between.

There were many stories of explosions and fire hazards. Many of them were untrue, but they did the public to turn from the steam engine to the internal combustion gasoline engine.

Stanley confirmed that his father's car set a world speed record of 127.659 miles an hour on a test run at Ormond Beach, Fla., in 1906. This was the first time any man ever travelled two miles in less than a minute. The brothers resolved to try another run in 1907.

Stories of that day told how the red Stanley racer hit a speed of 197 miles an hour as it roared down the Ormond beachline Jan. 25, 1907.

The Stanley brothers sold their firm and retired in 1917. What happened to the steam car? Other companies made them successfully. There were such names as a White, a MacDonald, a Detroit, a Coats (which lasted into the 1920s) and the Doble which was built until the 1930s. One of the final blows to the steam car was the invention of the self-starter for the gasoline engine.

The steam car then drifted out of production and became a well-remembered relic of motoring.

The PRAYER FOR TODAY FROM The Upper Room.

Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on thee: because he trusteth in thee. (Isaiah 26:3.)

PRAYER: O God, teach us to trust in Thee. When we are faced with trouble and anxiety, help us to look to Thee for Thy guidance into the peace the world cannot give or take away. Keep us in Thy love, and help us to love Thee now and evermore. In the name of Christ we pray. Amen.

Canada has many famous photographers

Canadian photographers are known throughout the world for their interpretation of personalities, and the quality of their work is unequalled so this week I thought it would be a good idea to bring to light some of the names of these men throughout Canada.

For reasons that are quite obvious (his importance goes without contradiction) our most famous Yosef Karsh's work will not be covered. It is probably well worth noting, however, that he started in Sherbrooke with Nakash who also in his own right is well-known. My main interest is to tell you about photographers who are talented but perhaps at the moment not as internationally known as Karsh of

Ottawa, and Gaby of Montreal. Perhaps the first on the list would be Donald McKague a portrait photographer of Toronto who was commissioned by Ottawa to photograph Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh at Buckingham

Camera talk by Doug Gerrish

Palace. One technical note along with this assignment: he took along an 8x10 and a 3x7 camera and holders but no lights. A company that supplies the J. Arthur Rank Organization furnished the necessary illuminates and six men to act as grips. How successful was this trip? Well, it could be judged by the Queen's approval of 26 photographs for appropriate use, and it was considered a high percentage considering the conditions under which the photographer had to work and the pressure of working with completely strange lighting equipment. In all, 70 exposures were made in both colour and black and white in one and a half hours the time allotted him to work in. An example of his work is shown with this column.

Another notable photographer of Toronto is Jerry Campbell of Ashley & Crippen. His study of His Eminence Paul Emile Cardinal Leger D.D., Archbishop of Montreal, I found very rich in color and a rewarding interpretation.

Saskatoon has grown with the prosperity of the West, and another photographer Henry J. Thams has also enjoyed the growth but perhaps mainly through his profitable portrait photography. He does all his own colour processing and it appears that any bride-to-be gets Henry Thams on the phone, as he says that in June, July and August he averages 15 to 20 weddings each Saturday on a 15-minute to half-hour schedule.

Out in Chilliwack, British Columbia, which is 60 miles east of busy, beautiful Vancouver you will find a photographer by the name of Norm Williams. Norm's genuine interest in producing good work at modest prices. An example of his work is a Sikh from the Punjab, a good study with his turban and whiskers. Norman says these fellows make excellent workers in the lumbering industry, but to me it is an excellent indication of Norman Williams' capabilities as a photographer.

commercial photography. His commercial assignments sometimes involve 2,100-mile trips for an investment firm, and give a fair indication of the quality of his work as there would be a great deal of expense involved in a trip like this before he even took a picture. Mr. Rossio says too many photographers of today regard this business as an easy way to make a living. To me it is a way of life and an opportunity to create to find beauty even in the mundane.

We have covered only a few notable photographers but as they were mentioned in a Trade Magazine and along with some of their work it is quite evident they have made an impression in the world of photography. By doing so they show that Canada is not lacking in self-expression in photography.

DIGNITY IN DEPTH — This formal study of His Excellency, Major General Georges P. Vanier, Governor General of Canada, was originally made in full color by Toronto photographer Donald McKague. It was reproduced on the cover of the Kodak magazine Studio Light, and is a credit to the lithographer's trade in its fine definition and color balance. In black and white it still retains an impressive depth and realism.

Fleetwood Sixty Special Sedan

If ever there was a time when a car could have rested on its laurels—it would be Cadillac today.

For this magnificent automobile—beautiful to behold and fine in performance—has just completed a year which saw the introduction of a car many would claim to be Cadillac's finest ever.

And yet—just look what Cadillac did for an encore in 1964!

It introduced a full new measure of automotive beauty and elegance... brilliant and luxurious new interiors... magnificent new performance and handling... and a whole new concept of interior comfort.

Cadillac's new styling is by far the most elegant in its history—from its new divided grille to its dramatically new rear lighting assembly.

There are new fabrics and leathers... and new appointments that add pleasure to every journey. Exclusive new Comfort Control* lets you pre-set interior temperature exactly to your liking through winter and summer—while at the same time controlling humidity.

And performance? Just wait till you drive this one! There's a new engine, a remarkably improved Hydra-Matic, and on some models, a new Turbo Hydra-Matic. Both transmissions assure amazing agility and a brilliant new overall standard of performance.

All in all, Cadillac for 1964 is more than a hundred ways new. And the total result is the most tempting automotive creation of all time. Why not schedule a demonstration drive first thing tomorrow or the next day?

chairman of the government— but remains as head of the party—in 1958, Liu stepped into a position for which he had begun to train as a boy of 15 when he left his father's farm.

He was born, the sixth son, near Changsha in the southern province of Hunan, as was Mao. While his brothers stuck to the soil, he left for a university in Peking in 1918. By 1921 he was gobbling tainted knowledge at the Far Eastern University in Moscow.

Between times he had revealed revolutionary instincts by taking part in student uprisings as a member of the Socialist Youth Group headed by Chen Tuhsui, founder of the Chinese Communist Party. He developed fast enough to be among those who expelled Chen as a Trotskyite in 1927.

Reports vary on his age (from 65 to 88). But his last photograph, taken with Mao in July, revealed a moustached, stalwart man with greying abundant hair. His personality is said to be cold. His history makes his dedication clear.

His years have also been chronicled. Wherever he went, beginning as an underground organizer in 1922, rebellion flared. He formed the first coal miners' union; led rioters against the British in Shanghai; crippled Hong Kong with a boycott of British goods.

More trouble walked with him when allied with Chiang Kai-shek, he went ahead of Chiang's forces on the Northern Expedition of 1927. But when Chiang broke with the Communists Liu broke with Chiang.

Between 1927 and 1930 he was in Moscow twice, studying at the Sun Yat-sen University. In 1928 - 29 he travelled through Russia and western Europe. In 1932 he was in the mountains of Central China with the newly-formed army and government of Mao.

The Japanese hunted him through North China from 1935 to 1937. In 1938, he was near Shanghai, bemoaning Chiang Kai-shek. When Mao dickered with Chiang, after Japan's surrender, Liu was said by some to be already No. 2 man in the party. Patience is his virtue.

PARTY SECRETARY

Hints that his future was wavering did not come until 1954 when he was general secretary of the party. Chu Teh, commander in chief of the army, was named vice-chairman. But his was only a paper appointment.

Card of Thanks

BAILEY — I wish to thank my neighbors and friends for the kindness shown me at the time of the sickness and passing of my husband, Albert C. Bailey. For the food, the flowers, and the many cards of sympathy, I also wish to thank the bearers, Rev. Nurse of Knowlton, Dr. Hugh Miller and the nurses at the St. Louis Hospital, in Sweetburg.

MRS. CATHERINE BAILEY

FLANDERS — I would like to say thank you to all who sent me a lovely shower of cards, on my birthday. To Baptist Ladies Auxiliary for plant, Temple bowling Club and Mrs. A. Savage for birthday cake. To all who sent gifts and flowers, I can only say thank you for making a shut-in's birthday a happy one.

MRS. RALPH FLANDERS

KELSO — I would like to take this opportunity to express my sincere and heartfelt appreciation to my family, friends and neighbors, for all that was done at the time of my accident. To Dr. MacLeod and Dr. Wells, the nurses and nurses aides at the Sherbrooke Hospital. To all who visited me, sent cards, letters and gifts during my stay in the hospital and since my return home. Special thanks to Mrs. Jessie Porter and all who helped out at home during my absence, to all who cut wood, to the Oddfellows for the party and all who donated, and for all the donations received from the ones who were unable to attend the party. All was very much appreciated. Your kindness and thoughtfulness will never be forgotten.

KENNETH KELSO

MOUNTAIN — We would like to express our sincere thanks to all friends and relatives for their kindness while Johnny was in hospital. ALAN AND MARIAN MOUNTAIN

In Memoriam

SANDERS — In fond and loving memory of our dear wife, mother and grandmother, Sarah A. Sanders, who passed away Nov. 9th, 1962. Your memory is our keepsake. From which we will never part. God has you in His keeping. We have you in our hearts. Ever remembered by, Her husband, EDSON AND THE FAMILY

SYLVESTER — In loving memory of our dear son and brother, who was called home so suddenly three years ago today, November 10th. Memories are treasures, no one can steal. Death is a heartache, no one can heal. Some may forget you, now you are gone. But we shall remember no matter how long. Lovingly remembered and sadly missed by, MOTHER, BROTHERS AND SISTERS

Loaves for lunch

Raisins are among our oldest foods. Records indicate the Persians and Egyptians grew grapes for raisins 4000 years ago. Nearly 3000 years ago, the Israelites used raisins as currency for their tax payments to King David.

Over the centuries, the nutritious dried fruit has been prized in many countries as a flavor booster to meat and other savory dishes as well as just about every type of sweet concoction.

In Canada, a slightly sweet, tender loaf studded with dark, moist raisins probably vies with pie as the most popular vehicle for the fruit.

Today's recipe for Raisin Sandwich Bread makes two delicious loaves — fragrant and full of flavor. It's perfect for pepping up lunches toted to school or office or for between-meal sandwich snacks at home. A word to the wise, though — Raisin Sandwich Bread is mighty good "as is," so keep the family out of the kitchen as it cools, or you may find there's not enough left for sandwich makings! This loaf makes wonderful toast. It also freezes very well.

To plump the raisins, as required in the recipe, cover the fruit with cold water, cover, bring to a boil, remove from the heat and let stand about five minutes. Drain well and dry on paper towels before measuring.

RAISIN SANDWICH BREAD (makes 2 loaves)

- 1 cup milk,
- 1/2 cup butter or margarine,
- 1/2 cup granulated sugar,
- 2 teaspoons salt,
- 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg,
- 1/2 cup lukewarm water,
- 2 envelopes fast-rising active dry yeast,

- 2 teaspoons granulated sugar,
- 3 eggs, well-beaten,
- 6 1/2 cups (about) pre-sifted all-purpose flour,
- 2 cups dark seedless raisins, plumped,

Soft butter or margarine. Scald milk; stir in the 1/2 cup butter or margarine, 1/2 cup sugar, salt and nutmeg. Cool to lukewarm.

Meanwhile, measure the lukewarm water into a large mixing bowl, stir in the 2 teaspoons sugar. Sprinkle with yeast. Let stand 10 minutes, then stir well. Stir in lukewarm milk mixture and eggs. Add 3 1/2 cups of the flour, beat until smooth. Beat in raisins. Work in sufficient additional flour to make a soft dough — about 3 cups more.

Turn out on lightly-floured board or canvass and knead until smooth and elastic. Place in lightly greased bowl. Grease top with soft butter or margarine. Cover. Let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk — about 1 1/4 hours.

Punch down dough. Turn out on lightly-floured board or canvass and let rest 10 minutes covered. Divide dough into 2 equal portions.

Shape each portion into a loaf and place in greased loaf pans (9 x 5 inches, top inside measure). Grease tops with soft butter or margarine. Cover. Let rise in a warm place, free from draft until doubled in bulk — about 1 hour.

Bake in a preheated moderate oven (350 deg. F.) for 40 to 45 minutes. Turn out on racks to cool. Brush tops of warm bread with soft butter or margarine or glaze by brushing with corn syrup, if desired.

Polly's pointers

by Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY—When I buy a package of bacon it is usually soft by the time I get home from the store. Before storing it in the refrigerator, I divide the slices into twos and fours and wrap separately in waxed paper. Then I can reach for a packet from the refrigerator and toss into the skillet for a fast breakfast. There are no broken pieces such as used to result from trying to pull apart a hard lump of sliced bacon.

DEAR POLLY—Mine is a timesaving bath tip for young mothers. When folding laundry for baby, make separate groupings of clean clothes. Place a diaper, nightgown, shirt and blanket together in a drawer. At bath time, a complete clean wardrobe is available in seconds.—MISS R. C.

DEAR POLLY—I made up a game called "Bathroom Courtesy" and taught it to my husband and four youngsters as we all share one bathroom. The first one to take a bath empties the tub, cleans and refills it for the next one who does the same for the person to follow until the last bath has been taken. While the tub is emptying and refilling, the one in the bathroom can brush his teeth and so on. Everyone knows the terms of the game. It teaches courtesy, saves time and is like having an invisible maid. Oh! I almost forgot to say the soap and towel are laid out, too, so all one has to do is

Carry-On-Club

★ Christmas atmosphere prevails at tea ★

A Christmas atmosphere prevailed at the Norton Residence on Thursday afternoon, when members of the Carry-On-Club, held their annual tea.

As guests arrived in the foyer, they were confronted with a gaily decorated table, which was arranged with a Christmas motif cloth. At one end of the table was a large bronzed twig, trimmed with sequined snowballs. Snow men, angels, and centre-pieces for the holiday season and Christmas novelties completed the decor. A bronzed wicker basket of Christmas cards, was also on display at this table, proceeds of which were for the School for Retarded Children. In charge of this table was Mrs. D. Coates.

The co-conveners of the tea were, Mrs. G. E. Brault and Mrs. S. M. Cross. Receiving the guests into the lounge, which was decorated with arrangements of dried flowers, orange Japanese lanterns and colored wheat, were Mrs. D. R. Armitage, president; and Mrs. J. A. Allen, vice-president.

Mrs. Geo. Delisle was in charge of the tickets and Mrs. R. Dietz acted as cashier for the afternoon. The tea table was arranged with a lace cloth, centred with an arrangement of yellow and bronze chrysanthemums, and autumn leaves, flanked by toning tapers in silver holders. Pouring tea were: Mrs. Evans Joslin, Mrs. J. Lynn, Miss Clara Aitkenhead and Mrs. J. Rose.

The individual tables were centred with multi-colored candles, in crystal holders, with a flowered base, to correspond with the blue and pink fan-shaped doilies, which divided the individual plates of sandwiches and squares. The waitresses were: Mrs. H. Mooney, Mrs. M. Scovell, Mrs. R. Allatt, Mrs. W. Mutchler, Mrs. F. Bampton, Mrs. W. Willard, Mrs. F. Fleming and Mrs. G. Brault.

Mrs. H. Williams was in charge of the kitchen, assisted by Mrs. T. Quintin, Mrs. G. Delisle, Mrs. G. Burt and Mrs. L. Monty. The tea was made by Mrs. R. Cotterell and the tea replenishers were Mrs. D. Lynn and Mrs. S. M. Cross.

The food table was centered with an arrangement of yellow mums and was supervised by Mrs. Wm. Murphy, assisted by Mrs. Guy Bryant, Mrs. R. Badger and Mrs. A. Hall. In charge of the knitting table was Mrs. L. Morgan and the sewing table was cared for by Mrs. L. Pettigrew.

and Mrs. Wm. Lavallee. In charge of publicity was Mrs. Eric Fuller and the decorations were handled by Mrs. J. Allen.

The tea proved to be a financial success, proceeds to be used to provide equipment for the Children's Ward of the Sherbrooke Hospital.

Scorecard of womanhood

The surest way for a man to make his wife happy with her lot, however meager, is to show her how much he appreciates her love and loyalty.

In today's mail there is a letter from a woman who wouldn't be blamed for complaining that life is hard. She has six children and her husband's income is small.

Her house isn't partitioned into rooms because that "luxury" has to wait until the loan which made the bare structure possible is paid off.

Yet this woman sounds happy. And the reason for her happiness, I'm sure, is explained in these few words: "My husband has kept me filled full of hope and blarney for years and helped me develop a sense of humor."

Then I have a letter from another woman reader. This woman doesn't have the money problems, nor all the work since she has just one child, yet she isn't happy at all. Why? Because her husband points out her shortcomings, and never offers any praise or encouragement.

"I get so discouraged," she says, "that if it weren't for the baby I think I'd just walk out."

Comparing those letters any husband ought to realize how important praise and appreciation are to a woman.

One woman takes hardship in her stride, simply because she has a man who values her happiness enough to keep her spirits high by encouraging her to see the funny side of life.

MUSIC ON RECORDS

By HUGH DOHERTY

AS CHRISTMAS approaches, recordings of all kinds are tumbling out of the record factories at a rapid rate. Here are three that should suit just about any kind of musical taste as Yuletide gifts:

★ ★ ★
WONDERLAND OF OPERA: 18 orchestral highlights from well-known operas, Andre Kostelanetz and his orchestra (COLUMBIA stereo CS 8795) — From Carmen to Aida, from Tales of Hoffmann to Love for Three Oranges, here is a wonderfully buoyant performance of the most melodious tunes from a number of well-known operas. For voices, Mr. Kostelanetz substitutes his especially voluptuous strings. It's all familiar music always easy to listen to.

BARBERSHOP CHORUS WINNERS: Official SPEBSQQA recordings of performances from the 1963 international contest (DECCA stereo DL 74403) — Annually, the Decca people put out recordings of the quartet and chorus winners of the annual contest of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America. They're always a delight to listen to, especially for anyone who likes vocal music. Top chorus on this recording is a group from Pekin, Illinois. But there's a Canadian chorus on the recording, too — from East York, Ont. This is one to hum along with.

SING OUT ON THE BEACH: The Troubadours sing the big folk music hits (HORIZON RECORDS, WP-1619) — If the folk music world has a standard recording, this is probably it. Not too far out, but not too square either, the Troubadours give the folk treatment to some tried and tested tunes — They Call The Wind Maria, Kisses Sweeter Than Wine and Sixteen Tons among others.

One of the larger purchases in the Hans M. F. Schulman Golden Sale in New York in October was made by a Canadian and amounted to $6,600 for two silver-gilt patterns of the famous $20 and $10 British Columbia gold pieces.

It is thought that there were only three patterns struck for each coin. The two in the sale were offered separately, the $20 pattern going to $2700 and the $10 to $3200. Then they were offered together, when there was more spirited bidding, sending the price for the two pieces to $6600. The suggested prices in the auction list were $3000 and $2500.

A coin which did not reach the suggested price was another of interest to Canadians, a Newfoundland $2 gold piece, which reached only $490 while the suggested price was $750.

Many coins have bilingual or trilingual legends and values, but the $2 Newfoundland gold piece is unusual in that it shows the value in three different denominations in one language.

The obverse of this coin portrays the young head of Queen Victoria while the reverse shows only the value and the date. There is a border around the reverse, showing above, "Two Hundred Cents" and below, "One Hundred Pence" while in the centre it reads "2 Dollars" and the date.

The one offered in the Golden Sale was the rarest date, 1890, and it was purchased by a European dealer, several of whom had come to New York specially for the sale. The Calico brothers of Barcelona were there, a representative of Spinks of London, Dr. Cahn of Munzen and Medaillen of Switzerland, Jacques Schulman of Amsterdam, as well as German, Swedish and Finnish dealers.

Novel within novel sounded far better

SECOND WIFE by Lewis Meyer Prentice—Hall Incorporated $4.95.

Ann, young attractive and a writer of brilliant radio advertising, is married to a successful book traveller John Long who divorced his first wife, Madge, a plain but magnetic woman so over-sexed that she seduces almost every man she meets. Obsessed by a fear that part of her husband still belongs to his first wife, Ann writes a novel about a similar situation, thinly disguising the names of the three main characters. Against Ann's will, as a result of her strong, underlying fear, the "book Madge" takes over the story and the husband from the faithful but rather colourless second wife. The book becomes a best seller, is bought by a movie company, adopted by a book of the month club. Ann goes on lecture and autographing tours, gains fame and fortune; while her book soars, her marriage flounders.

Though the reader gets only bits and pieces about the novel within the novel, it sounds more intriguing than SECOND WIFE. Mr. Meyer's story is complicated by long and tedious discussions among publishers, travellers and store managers, and by too many characters, not all of whom are interesting. Also, at the beginning and ending of SECOND WIFE and scattered throughout the novel, the author inserts a one-page discussion between a book dealer and her customer, the reader, about the merits of the novel, so the reader is constantly reminded that it is only a story he is reading. In themselves, these bits are distracting and have the effect of flattening the story itself, almost of apologizing for it.

A review Mr. Meyer gives his heroine's novel could equally be the epitaph of his own: "...the author has a nice way with words which should enable her book to live at least through the current fiction season."

STAMP EXHIBITION

We will be at the stamp show in Lennoxville on Saturday, November 23rd, in St. George's Parish Hall. We will have a small part of our stock with us but we really want the opportunity to meet our customers and friends, talk stamps and discuss collecting. We will look for you. Next week's ad will contain a special offer for the show.

In my opinion the next four years are either going to be the best — meaning the most lucrative — or the worst — meaning the most competitive — which the Canadian writer has ever experienced. I base this prediction on the number of Centenary plans being formulated by various groups across the country which include, or consist of, the publishing of the histories of the organizations concerned. My forecast that these next four years will be either the best or the worst for Canadian writers hinges directly on who is going to write these histories.

If professional writers are commissioned to do them then it would appear as though every hungry word-hunter in Canada will be going around with a nice fat writing contract in his pocket. On the other hand if the groups plan to designate one of their own members to write the history, who knows what hitherto unsuspected talent may be uncovered — and consequently how many professional writers will have to move over to make room for these newcomers to their competitive ranks?

Incidentally, at this point, another thought strikes me — and it is a rather horrifying one. If amateurs should write these histories — and if their attempts should be less than professional — think what an avalanche of dreadful reading is about to be launched on the Canadian public during the next few years!

In any case, as will be seen, the realization that so much historical writing, either professional or amateur, is about to take place in Canada has given me pause for thought. Perhaps it will you too.

In the meantime in case you are interested in knowing what groups are planning these additions to your library, here is a recent list of planned histories:

The Women's Institutes are planning a 10-volume history, titled CANADIAN MOSAIC, on the handicrafts of each province.

The United Church is planning a religious history of Canada.

The Girl Guides are planning a history of the Guides in Canada.

The Ethnic Groups are considering a history of their life in Canada.

Mr. C. Gray of the Council of Montreal Historical Societies recommends that there be a single text book of Canadian history. Miss Simone Daigneault of the Canadian Women's Press Club recommends that a history be published in both French and English for simultaneous release in 1967.

Novia Scotia writer, Dr. Will Bird, has written what has been termed a "monumental" history of The North Shore (New Brunswick) Regiment. The book, containing particular emphasis on the regiment's record during World War II, is published by Brunswick Press.

CLARKE, IRWIN Publishers are enthusiastic about one of their new books, namely Harry J. Boyle's HOME-BREW AND PATCHES. Mr. Boyle's latest book, following the pattern of his earlier popular MOSTLY IN CLOVER, is said to be the "delightful, heart-warming, rib-tickling, so-true-to-life story of every boy who ever grew up on a farm, and the people who knew him."

Maritime writer, Sara Woods has published a new mystery THE TASTE OF FEAR.

Writes book

Rev. Paul B. Smith, minister of Toronto's non-denominational People's Church who four years ago began offering a daily service of telephone sermons, now has put his messages into a book, Daily Gospel.

Some may challenge its claim as a novel, but it's Canadian

THE FAVOURITE GAME by Leonard Cohen, British Book Service, Toronto, 233 pp., $4.00. "Breaman and Krantz often used to drive through the whole night. They'd listen to pop tunes on the local stations or classics from the United States. They'd head north to the Laurentians or east to the Townships. Breaman imagined the car they were in as seen from above. A small black pellet hurtling across the face of the earth. Free as a meteor and maybe as doomed."

The above quoted passage — one of any number that could have been selected from The Favourite Game — is used in order to reveal something of the vivid and distinctive style and imaginative perception of Mr. Cohen. At last a major novel has been written by a Canadian. It may take awhile for Canadians to recognize this fact.

Some people may say that The Favourite Game is not a novel; if they say this, it is because they have preconceived ideas of what a novel should be, and fail to realize that every genuine work of art creates its own form. The form of The Favourite Game suits the intention and the material.

There is no plot to The Favourite Game; it is not divided up into chapters, but rather into three books representing different periods in the life of Lawrence Breaman, a young Westmount Jew and poet. Each book contains a series of episodes — experiences in which Breaman discovers some personal or significant truth about himself or others.

Some may say the book is pornographic. There is nothing pornographic in the book. It is simply candid and honest where sex and love are concerned. Undoubtedly, this book will have wide appeal; it will appeal especially to the young intelligent adult, and it may replace The Catcher in the Rye and The Lord of the Flies as the university student's favourite novel.

"Life is a comedy to those who think, a tragedy to those who feel," Horace Walpole wrote in one of his letters. Breaman is one of those who feel, who feel deeply. Thus there is little that is comic in Breaman's life and much that is tragic. He has understanding plus the sensitive and intuitive insight of an artist; he is romantic, idealistic, adventurous and intelligent. He has a capacity for love and has compassion, but there is a flaw, a serious one, which because of so many fine qualities strikes the reader with particular horror. The horror comes with the realization that even when Breaman fully understands and sympathizes with the feelings of someone, especially someone he loves, he will proceed to hurt them knowing and understanding the hurt he causes. The beautiful Shell, who loves him, cries out, "Lawrence, you treat people like this."

It might seem that the purpose or main message of The Favourite Game is "You always hurt the one(s) you love," but it goes deeper than that. Breaman realizes towards the end of the book that when he believes he has the confidence to live alone, then he could live with Shell.

The book leaves the reader with the feeling that Breaman may somehow solve the dilemma that every creative person faces, and if he is to be happy must solve. (That of retaining his freedom and integrity as an artist while living as a man amongst men.) Somehow, Breaman must know himself even better than others know themselves; he must realize that because he exists and has imagination, he is free; he must find the confidence in himself to remain himself regardless of the demands society may place upon him, and, finally, he must realize that he is involved and lose his fear of becoming involved. He must do all this because the greatest man or artist is the one who retains his own integrity while becoming the most involved. He is the one most apt to have the greatest insight and understanding, and hence have the most to record and express about human experience and human relationships.

ON THE OTHER HAND

After the sweet, little meat

ON THE OTHER HAND by Rachel Adams, Mussion Book Co. Ltd. $6.25. 242 pp., illustrated.

This is a wife's account of the comings and goings necessitated by the demands of her husband's political jobs, starting in the early days of her marriage and ending with her abrupt and well-publicized departure from Washington, where Sherman Adams had been Assistant to President Eisenhower for several years.

Now, in their years of private life, the Adamses are finding fulfilment in the comfortably congenial atmosphere of their own New England, where they belong. The last chapter of ON THE OTHER HAND tells of this happy ending, and is by far the most interesting and moving chapter in the entire book.

The book can scarcely be called an autobiography; Mrs. Adams is less interested in projecting her own personal opinions or ideas than in graciously acknowledging various friendships made during her husband's years of public service.

It seems highly likely that copies of ON THE OTHER HAND have been despatched, suitably inscribed, to all the people whose names are mentioned in the book, more or less as a gesture of thanks. The book's aura is one of over-emphasized consideration and tact, and so much sweetness and light is enough to make most non-partisan readers balk.

In shading her memoirs so carefully, so as to offend no one, Mrs. Adams has sub-

The cult of the Corn Maiden minus its traditional purpose

THE GROUP, by Mary McCarthy; Longmans Canada Limited; pp. 378; $6.95.

Adroit and knowledgeable, Mary McCarthy animates her specimen against the mirror of New York during the period of the New Deal. Her specimen being a group of eight Vassar girls from the Class of '33. Under-educated and over-sophisticated, not one of them achieves a vital personality or becomes a real character throughout the 378 pages of the book.

Kay, perhaps the most popular member of the Daisy Chain, is married one week after Commencement, in a bizarre wedding which leaves everyone uncomfortable; though "The worst fate, they utterly agreed, would be to become like Mother and Dad, stuffy and frightened. Not one of them, if she could help it, was going to marry a broker or a banker or a cold-fish corporation lawyer, like so many of Mother's generation."

Under the powerful lens of her microscope and the analytical eye of the author, The Group plans to move with the times—the times being the early-days of the Roosevelt administration—and put into action the ideas they picked up at college. For these privileged young ladies this meant a long step backward to the cult of the Corn Maiden but without its traditional purpose—fertilization. One and another planned to explore the experience of sexual intercourse and avoid its natural result by using this or that device; descriptions of the devices becomes a disgusting repetition or a serial catalogue of birth control methods.

Why, then Mary McCarthy fails to clothe her combined specimen with the mental equipment and living flesh of human beings, does she feel compelled to spell out explicitly every single detail

THE BOOK BASKET

THE SERPENT, a 444 page novel by Jane Gaskell about the "living world of the lost continent of Atlantis." "I have tried," says Miss Gaskell "to make this time as real as any we know more about". Hodder & Stoughton, $4.90.

THE LEARNING TREE, a 303 page novel by Gordon Parks containing "a notable fictional study of a Negro family and a Negro child in a Kansas town in the 1920's." It is billed as a Harper "find". Harper & Rowe, $5.25.

HUSSAR HONEYMOON, a 219 page novel by Jerrard Tickell of the era when Emperor Franz Joseph the First of Austria ruled his vast, ramshackle Empire from Vienna. Hodder & Stoughton, $3.85.

LOVE, LET ME NOT HUNGER, a 323 page novel by Paul Gallico being "the saga of a little British traveling circus stranded in Spain". Doubleday, $5.25.

THE PLATINUM YOKE, a 253 page novel by McCready Huston in which the author again brings his reader to the Philadelphia Main Line, this time to follow the career of a young Episcopal priest from the Midwest who becomes curate of a fashionable suburban church. McClelland & Stewart, $6.00.

"BY ECILE", a 219 page novel by Teresa Torres, suggested by "the early years in the life of Sidonie Gabrielle Claudine Colette known throughout the world as the great French novelist Colette". Mussion, $4.25.

merged her own personality and her book becomes a testament to her own endurance in the face of a heavy social schedule, and to her patience with a husband whose job took precedence over all family considerations.

Collecting

in the

Townships

The Postal Administration of the United Nations has existed for twelve years and during that time has offered mail service to the Official Delegations and the staffs and to many private companies and individuals. The United Nations issued its first postage stamps, a six stamp definitive set, on October 24th, 1951. While this date marks the beginning for most non-specialized United Nations collectors, the origins of UN philately are older than that. Some specialists begin with the 25th of March, 1946, when the first mail bearing the United Nations emblem was despatched from the UN's temporary headquarters at Hunter College, New York City. Still other specialists start with the San Francisco postmark of October 24th 1945, the day the world organization was founded at the West Coast Conference. Others, reasoning the existence begins with conception rather than delivery, start with the Bretton Woods conference which laid the foundation for the San Francisco birth. Since its inception, the world peace organization now has 111 member nations, has produced 150 different items for postal use. These consist of 117 regular and commemorative postage stamps, two souvenir sheets, ten airmail stamps and twenty-one pieces of postal stationery, such as postcards, stamped envelopes and air letters. Last year alone, over ten million letters and other pieces of mail were posted from the United Nations post office in New York. This included official mail from the delegations, letters from more than 3,000 employees of the UN Secretariat, philatelic mail (including first day covers), educational and informational matter from the various UN organizations and general mail from business firms and individuals. This operation is unique in the postal history of the world, for the UN Postal Administration is the only stamp-issuing body, not a national government, whose postal paper is recognized by the Universal Postal Union as valid for carrying mail across national borders. Historically the idea of the United Nations engaging in postal activities was first broached at informal talks among UN officials in 1946. The question reached an official stage in 1947 when it was discussed in the coordination committee. In the same year the delegation from Argentina submitted a draft resolution on the creation of a United Nations Postal Administration. The proposal was studied in committee and found to be feasible and the third General Assembly approved the resolution in 1948.

Stamp collectors who either purchased stamps from the Shanahan company in Ireland or participated in one of the services they offered will be interested in the sales of their extensive stock. The liquidators have ordered that a portion of the stock be offered for sale by tender by the Bournemouth Stamp Auctions a branch of Robson Lowe Ltd. The balance of the stock will be offered by auction on December 6th by the same firm. The stamps to be offered at the auction are owned by syndicates and must be sold in this manner. Members of the syndicates will be watching the press for details of the sales and the amount realized. The Gold Coin set from Tonga still is in the news. This set was offered as a new issue for about six dollars and now commands a price of fifteen to twenty dollars, first day covers are in the higher priced range and although there was probably sufficient for the usual demand the increased interest has placed them beyond the reach of most collectors. There are covers available at dealers but they are holding onto them in anticipation of higher prices. The sets should not be scarce but here we find that many coin collectors have wanted them and that people who would not collect stamps from Tonga for any price are now demanding them. It is the old story of supply and demand and the usual shenanigans that accompany anything speculative. The stamp collector who obtains his stamps at new prices is the one who benefits. The plans for the forthcoming stamp show seem to have been pretty well finalized and collectors should participate in this event. This column will contain more details of the final plans next week. The scarcity of old covers from Canada and the comparison with prices for stampless covers from Italy, France or England is puzzling to many collectors. The stampless covers from Europe are much lower in cost and far more plentiful simply because there were many, many more people to use the mails than there were in Canada.

Hatley supper attended by 250

HATLEY — A very successful turkey supper was held in the Guild Hall on Nov. 2, when supper was served to approximately 250 people.

The tables, attractively centered with apples and grapes, were in charge of Mrs. Tom Ride, assisted by Mrs. Margaret Johann, Mrs. Kay Hartwell, Mrs. Dorine Morse, the Misses Lillian MacDougall, Jackie Cutler, Dale Bryant, Rena Bowen, Sandra Whitcomb and Keith Morse.

Rickey Johann, David and Wayne Townsend looked after the tea and coffee.

Mrs. H. Moulton and Mrs. Nellie Hartwell were in charge of the pies and Mrs. W. D. Dustin, Mrs. C. Schoelcraft, Miss E. Miller, Mrs. B. Bowen, Mrs. R. Bray, Mrs. H. Denton, Mrs. L. Whitcomb and Mrs. W. Cutler were in the kitchen.

Rev. Canon Denton, Bill Cutler and Jim Townsend carved the turkeys.

The proceeds were very gratifying and will go towards cost of installing a new oil furnace in St. James Church.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE... with... MAJOR HOOPLE

Show Business

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The show's rating grows each week. The network and sponsors seem pleased. And is Jack Palance? "No," he says. "I'm disappointed."

The rough-hewn actor is major domo of The Greatest Show on Earth. The new ABC television show scored among the top 40 in the first major audience rating (it was 39, something such stars as Danny Kaye, Judy Garland and Jerry Lewis couldn't do.)

"This show isn't developing the way I had hoped it would," Palance commented during lunch in an art-filled dressing room. "I believed I would be getting a chance to do something light for a change. . . . What do we get? Stories about men going blind, men dying in the ring, arms being torn off by angry bears.

"When we did the pilot film, there was a choice of two scripts—one a drama and one a comedy. We did the drama and have never got around to the comedy."

WANTS CHANGE

"What do people get on television? Fabian with a gun in his hand, running through the streets. Maybe that's what the audience wants. But that's not what I want. I've been through that."

Palance said he has made his representations to the bosses in no uncertain terms. There has been no great change in thinking so far, but they have allowed him to revive the comedy script and work with a writer on it.

Palance, who spent five years in Europe, said he is not cutting his European ties even if the series succeeds. "I am keeping my apartment in Lucerne," he said. "I love Europe. I love America, too, but I'm not ready to divorce myself from the European way of life."

intercession of Richard Burton. Burton told the story on the Night of the Iguana location: During the Toronto tryout of Camelot, bosses of the show told Burton that Goulet was too stiff and he was to be replaced. "Not bloody likely," thundered Burton, who was having enough nerves in his first singing role and wasn't about to break in a new Lancelot.

Hollywood's social set turned out for Laurence Harvey's pre-Broadway debut with Elaine Stritch in The Time of the Baracudas. The macabre farce about a wife-and-husband-killer who marry each other seems destined for rough waters.

FINAL RACING PROGRAM OF SEASON SUNDAY

The 71st program of the Sherbrooke Racing Club will be presented Sunday afternoon to end the current season. The club enjoyed its best year in 1963. No statistics for the pari-mutuel betting are released but it is reported to be in seven figures which for a track like Sherbrooke is terrific. Most of this money, which has been wagered weekly throughout the season, comes from outlying districts of the Townships.

A lot of bettors come from across the line and each program plenty of American money finds its way into the club's vaults.

The track has gradually improved and today is considered one of the better ones in the Province. A lot of credit goes to President Roger Trudeau and his executive, Roger Roberge, presiding judge, who is in charge of the races and drivers, has done a good job. We know that odd things slip by once in a while but today those who are caught infringing the rules are tagged with severe suspensions. This is one way to keep things on a sound basis. Years ago it was a tough game but today with the fine backing of the Canadian Trotting Association, drivers think twice before they are willing to take a chance.

Sunday's program looks like a well balanced card to finish the season. A total of 78 horses will battle it out for $2,400 in purses.

Miss Eileen Morgan, racing secretary, has done a fine job in arranging classes during the season. Classifying horses is no mean job but she managed to come through with flying colors regardless of the many obstacles.

Post time is slated for 2 p.m. and a good crowd should be on hand to wrap up the 1963 racing season. The drivers will be going all out to pick up some money for the long winter nights ahead and the fans should witness good racing for the finale.

Due to the inclement weather last Sunday, when many referees were unable to attend the annual Q.A.H.A. Referee's School, another has been slated Sunday at the Arena.

Henry Crochetiere, District vice-president of the Q.A.H.A. and Jacques Rousseau, Referee in Chief, will hold forth at 10 a.m. with a written test followed by a skating test. All interested in refereeing this winter must pass these tests so boys don't forget SUNDAY AT 10 A.M. AT THE ARENA.

Dates for the Eastern and Western football playoffs are set. This afternoon at 1 p.m. it will be Alouettes at Ottawa while at 4 p.m. the Western semi-final between Regina and Calgary will be seen over CTV. The Eastern semi is slated for CBC.

On Monday evening the second game of the Western battle will be carried over CTV commencing at 9 p.m. EST. The site for the second game in the East will be decided following today's game. It will be played either next Saturday or Sunday depending on who wins. So fans have the opportunity of watching pretty good football for the next few days.

Ticats' halfback Garney Henley was in disagreement with his most ardent admirers over their choice of the outstanding player in Canadian football. They chose Henley while he picked Russ Jackson of Ottawa.

At a Ticat Quarterback Club luncheon Henley was presented with a plaque inscribed: To Canada's most outstanding football player. It was presented by a group representing Hamilton football writers and broadcasters, presumably in the form of a mild protest of the vote which named Jackson as the East's outstanding player and Canadian.

Henley claims Jackson is the most outstanding player in Canada and should win the top award which is presented prior to the Grey Cup each year.

The Beavers surprised their fans Thursday evening when they came up with a complete reversal of form to post a 7-6 win over the Gauls of St. Hyacinthe. The addition of Claude Groulx played a big part in the outcome.

The biggest factor of all was the showing of some of the veterans on the squad. The youngsters, after only two games, held their own with their older opponents and with a few more games should be a driving force for the Beavers.

Tomorrow evening they tangle with the Vics of Granby. Game time 8 p.m. and this should be a real battle as Coach Roger Bedard will be out seeking revenge for the setback they received from Drummondville Thursday. The Beavers will get a real test against the Vics.

R. C. Stevenson of the Royal St. Lawrence Yacht Club addresses local sailing enthusiasts at the Belvedere Street Armory at 3 p.m. this afternoon. Films will be shown. Purpose of the meeting is to create interest in sailing for youngsters.

Jackie Robinson to head NYS Commission

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller is expected to campaign for plans to appoint former major-league baseball player Jackie Robinson as chairman of the national U.S. presidential athletic commission, it was learned Friday.

A highly-placed source said Robinson, first Negro to play the appointment would be made

Arnold Palmer leads Masters

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Palmer, who had a 68 Thursday, had a 36-hole total of 145, one stroke ahead of Australia's Kel Nagle, the first - round leader who shot a 79 for 146. Behind Palmer and Nagle came Gary Player of South Africa, 70-77-147. No player was able to break par 72.

Final racing card Sunday afternoon

Invitation Handicap Pace is main feature on closing card, 87 horses entered, $2,400 at stake in purses

The final program of the Sherbrooke Racing Club takes place Sunday afternoon with an Invitation Handicap Pace for a purse of $450 featuring the finale. Post Time is slated for 2 p.m.

Seven pacers have posted their entries for the main event while in the second top feature of the afternoon, a Pace for a purse of $350, eight side-wheelers have registered for their final bid for honors.

D. Hebert's Mr. Sand has drawn the third position in the Invitation Pace while Mighty Gerry C, with N. Masse teaming, has the pole with Fern Desrochers and Bluet Scott getting away from the two slot. Solitude has the fourth position while Gordon Adamson and Tony Clap, has fifth and Mr. Hughby completes the front row. In the back Brochu's Rilla's Song is alone.

Tony Clap and Mr. Sand should be fighting for the lead on the first turn as both get away from the starting gate in quick order. Solitude, who has raced only once here in the mud, also has a good record and could cause plenty of trouble. He has a mark of 2:05 3/5 this year.

In the other headliner eight will go to the gate with Poplar Dream, Jean Clap H and Fanny Clap, getting away 1-2-3 gets the edge on the rest of the field. Stuart Direct S and Bordervue Ester are two newcomers and they could throw the fight wide open while Clay-heaven Chamer and Navago Boy complete the field.

In the Sixth race, a pace for a $300 purse seven horses are entered. In all the other classes eight will go to the gate in their bid for a major share of the purses. Seventy-eight horses are entered in Sunday's card.

The other classes should produce plenty of action before the winners cross the line ahead of the field. If the weather holds out some good times, and racing, should be witnessed. A few new horses are competing in the final card of the season.

Beavers at home to Granby Vics tomorrow evening at 8 p.m. as Rockets travel to St. Hyacinthe Sherbrooke Beavers face tough opposition tomorrow evening when they square off against the Vics of Granby in a regular fixture of the Provincial Hockey League at the Arena. The game originally scheduled for the afternoon has been put off until the evening and is slated to commence at 8 p.m.

This is the Beavers third game and they will be seeking their second straight win. On Thursday they posted a 7-6 decision over St. Hyacinthe after dropping their opener to Drummondville Rockets last Sunday.

The Vics copped their opener against St. Hyacinthe 4-2 but Thursday evening were knocked over by the Rockets 5-3. The win gave Bobby Pepin's squad sole possession of first place in the standing. Drummondville is at St. Hyacinthe Sunday afternoon when the Gauls officially open their home season.

Odds and playoff history favor Stamps over Roughriders in WFC semi-finals, CTV to carry game

CALGARY (CP) — Desire and luck may prove equalizers but all indicators establish Calgary Stampede as favorites over Saskatchewan Roughriders in the Western Football Conference two-game, total-point semi-final series.

Stampede are 8½-point favorites to win the first game and 12-point favorites to win the series, which kicks off today and winds up in Regina Monday night.

Workmen invaded McMahon Stadium Friday to clear the field of three inches of snow which had fallen Wednesday. The field was in good condition.

Sunny skies, temperatures in the low 40s and 15-mile-per-hour westerly winds were forecast for game time. A sellout crowd of 20,500 is expected.

The game will be televised on the CTV national network. Performances in 1963 and in past semi-final action favor Stampede.

Calgary scored 427 points and piled up 6,512 yards in winning 10 and tying two of 16 regular season games. Roughriders had seven victories and two ties on a point production of 223 and 4,011 yards.

The offensive figures are tempered by Saskatchewan's defensive performance and the club's personal season record. Roughriders surrendered only 266 points to Calgary's 323 and intercepted 34 passes to Stampede's 23.

There was but a single point difference between the two teams in three 1963 games. Calgary won 17-16 and the other matches ended in 4-4 and 33-33 ties.

Performances in past playoffs shift Stampede back in front. Calgary has won two of the five semi-finals they have played in the last 14 years—including 25-0, 18-7 decision over Roughriders last year. Saskatchewan has won one of seven semi-final playoffs in the same period.

Desire should be a major factor as both clubs are looking for a berth in the Grey Cup final for the first time in many years. Roughriders last reached the national final in 1951 and Stampede in 1949.

Saskatchewan coach Bob Shaw indicated that Ray Purdin will get the nod over Ed Buchanan, who joined Roughriders from Calgary late in the season, at halfback for the opener.

Doubtful starters, both with knee injuries, are tackle Bill Clarke and safety Gene Wlasiuk. Roughriders' starting quarterback will be Ron Lancaster, former Ottawa Rough Rider.

Calgary coach Bobby Dobbs says his squad is in its best physical shape since mid-August.

Riders hope for lucky third time with Als

OTTAWA (CP) — Third time lucky?

The last two years Ottawa Rough Riders have been knocked out of the Eastern Football Conference playoffs in the sudden-death semi-final, in 1961 by Montreal Alouettes and in 1962 by Montreal Alouettes.

Montreal is again Ottawa's opponent in the semi-final today starting at 1 p.m. EST. The game will be on the CBC's national television network.

Friday night the portents were ominous for the Riders. It had been raining steadily for two days and nights and the weather forecast was for intermittent rain or showers Saturday.

On the strength of last year's semi-final, Alouettes are the better mudders. Under atrocious playing conditions, they won 18-17 with eight points in the last quarter and never completed a single pass throughout the game.

Under probable similar conditions today, the great passing talent of Canadian quarterback Russ Jackson, the league's leading thrower, may count for little.

This would reduce the contest to a sloshing infantry battle between, in the main, George Dixon and Don Clark of the Als and Dave Thelen and Ernie White of the Riders.

Another factor in the game is that Riders aren't used to losing in Lansdowne Park, their home field. In fact, they won all seven of their home games this season.

In three meetings this season, Riders beat Als twice and lost to them once in finishing a close second to Hamilton Tiger-Cats. But Montreal had an even worse record against Riders last season—two losses and a tie—and still won the semi-final.

Clair said he had hoped Riders wouldn't have to play in the mud so they could use their favorite passing play frequently: Jackson to Whit Tucker.

But he has in Thelen a full-back who apparently couldn't care less about the playing conditions. In last year's semi-final, Thelen rushed for 188 yards in 24 carries, caught two of Riders' four completed passes and scored both Ottawa touchdowns.

If the teams are tied after regulation time, they'll take a 10-minute rest and play two 10-minute halves. If still tied after that, the first team to score a point would win.

Four important games on tap in NHL, Canadiens take on Rangers and Wings without Hicke, Tremblay

High spirits or frustration, temper or temperament, whatever the cause the National Hockey League is going through some rough times, literally.

Elbows cocked and sticks held high, the clubs square off for a four-game weekend schedule after a week in which they piled up three hours and 35 minutes of collective penalty time in eight 60-minute games.

The week's tally included 75 minor penalties, seven majors and three misconducts. In addition, the first penalty shot of the season was awarded in New York Sunday against Jean Beliveau of Montreal Canadiens after he tripped Ranger Don Marshall on a breakaway (Marshall missed).

Chicago Black Hawks, prime source of frustration to the Stanley Cup holders in Toronto, are back in Maple Leaf Gardens tonight in an effort to stretch their unbeaten streak to 11 games. The last encounter between Hawks and Leafs, in Toronto last Saturday, was a rough-house that produced 14 minor penalties, three majors and three misconducts.

Montreal Canadiens take on New York Rangers at the same time with Gilles Tremblay and Billy Hicke sidelined by wounds.

Chicago stands second in the penalty toll with 189 minutes, but Hawks have played 12 games. The league as a whole has rolled up 999 minutes in 68 games. New York has the cleanest record with 108 minutes in a dozen games.

The Black Hawks rampage—eight wins, three draws and a single loss (a month ago in Detroit)—has prompted even Toronto coach Punch Imlach to predict that Chicago will end up on top next spring—"if they keep on using Stan Mikita and Bobby Hull the way they have."

HABS HAVE PROBLEMS
With Hicke out for at least three or four days and Gilles Tremblay sidelined for anywhere from two weeks to two months, Canadiens have called up left winger Claude Larose from Omaha of the Central Professional League and are trying to get Bernie Geoffrion fit. Geoffrion will try skating with a light cast on his injured left wrist.

NBC won't carry game at Montgomery

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Broadcasting Co. said Friday the network had decided against televising the Blue and Gray football game at Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 28 after being advised Negro players could not participate.

A spokesman said the action was decided upon after consultation with sponsors of the scheduled telecast—Gillette Co. and Chrysler Corp.

The spokesman said the blue and gray association informed NBC that Negro players would not be eligible to participate in the game.

Forum gets penalty box decoration

MONTREAL (CP) — Something new came to the Montreal Forum, home of the National Hockey League Canadiens.

Two signs on the penalty box, facing the ice surface, read:

Visiteurs Canadien
Bad guys Good guys

Mauvais Garçons Bon Garçons

The signs—painted on plaques screwed into the boards—were there when Chicago Black Hawks met Canadiens Thursday night. The thumbed-off players duly obeyed and went to their respective sides of the penalty box.

The bad guy - good stuff was something of a gag. That part was gone Friday, but the words Visiteurs and Canadien remain.

The new arrangements arise from a penalty - box slugging match staged by Terry Harper of Canadiens and Bob Purford of Toronto Maple Leafs in a game at Toronto Oct. 30.

Trust-busting law is prepared in Australia

CANBERRA (Reuters) — The Australian government is preparing legislation to curb restrictive trade practices and monopolies.

Many leading industrialists and businessmen are openly opposed to the move, initiated by Attorney-General Garfield Barwick.

As an example of "collusive tendering," the attorney-general reported that an Australian public authority, which invited tenders for a project recently, received 19 separate "quotes"—each of exactly the same amount down to the last shilling.

He published a special brochure containing a list of various restrictive trade practices. Many businessmen who challenged his proposals said they would create an erroneous image of Australian commerce and industry.

PRESENTS LIST

The attorney-general's list of 32 practices included:

1. Agreements between manufacturers to supply only certain re-sellers, to fix prices for their products, to fix different discounts for different classes of re-sellers, and to refuse supplies to re-sellers who cut manufacturers' prices in trying to improve turnover.
2. Agreements between manufacturers to limit the life or quality of their product, and to refrain from supplying each other's customers.
3. Supply of a product by a manufacturer on conditions that the re-seller takes other products from the same manufacturer.

4. Imposition of economic sanctions to force a firm to become a member of a trade association.

F. T. Ramsay, federal president of the Associated Chambers of Manufacturers, said Barwick had drawn on information gleaned from inquiries in the mid-1950s which might by now be well out of date.

Pot luck supper held at U.C.W. Border meeting

ROCK ISLAND — A meeting of the Stanstead South Church, U.C.W. was held in the church hall on Oct. 30, with about 33 gathering for a pot luck supper.

A business meeting followed, presided over by the vice-president, Mrs. George Carruthers. Miss Ruth Wing, devotional convener, opened with the singing of a hymn.

As reports were heard it was noted with satisfaction that a sum of $229.67 had been realized from the turkey supper after all bills were paid. Mrs. Carruthers thanked Mrs. Carl Gustafson, chairman of the supper and all who had assisted in the success of the project.

A thank you note was read from Mrs. E. R. Greaves, who was remembered while in hospital.

The resignation of Mrs. Merton Davis, because of ill health, was read and accepted with regret. Mrs. Davis had been president of the U.C.W. since it was organized about two years ago, during the time she served she had accomplished much.

The date of Jan. 6 was set for the annual meeting in the church hall.

Mrs. Davis agreed to be convener of sunshine cards to the congregation. The United Church calendars are to be ordered and sold by the women.

Following the meeting, Rev. Carl Gustafson presented a film in color, Household of Faith, showing the phases of Christian education in the Gospel, medicine and education in Indiana, Thailand and Africa. Mr. Gustafson was thanked by Mrs. Carruthers.

Laymen's Service held at Bedford

BEDFORD—At a largely attended morning service at St. James Church on Oct. 27, the Laymen's Service was held, in which men of the congregation participated. The service opened with the singing of a hymn, when the choir, headed by Gardner Campbell carrying the new cross, the rector and those participating in the service, entered the church.

The reading of the Psalm was given by Wayne Kemp, the lessons read by R. W. Craighead and W. H. Baglow, the prayers led by M. S. McCaw and B. W. Draper and the address was delivered by Raymond Whitcomb. Prefacing his address Mr. Whitcomb stated that this was the first time in the long history of St. James Church, in which a Laymen's Service had been held. Mr. Whitcomb expressed the appreciation of the congregation to Rev. and Mrs. Trickey for the splendid work, which they are doing in the parish.

Fund raising plans made, speakers heard at Bedford H and S meeting

BEDFORD — The monthly meeting of the Home and School Association, held Oct. 29 in the high school, was conducted by the president, Mac Bradshaw. The report of the treasurer, Austin Campbell showed expenditures of $78.68 and a balance of $225.66.

Mrs. E. Wood, reporting on the recent questionnaire sent to parents, in regard to raising funds for the library, stated that favorable plans suggested included a fee of $1 per child or $2 per family: food sales; boxes in which a dime a week would be placed to be turned in at the end of the year. The various plans will be used.

At the November meeting a food sale will be held, also a book fair, at which books may be purchased for the children, who after reading them will give them to the library.

Fred Gilman outlined the new method of holding the annual skate, ski, gym uniforms and the ski boot sale. Anyone with articles for sale may send in the information to the school. A list will be prepared and purchasers may contact the owners, thus saving time at the November meeting. It was felt that this was a more satisfactory method than the former, having articles on display at the meeting.

SCOUTS AND CUBS

A letter was read from the president of the local Scout Association, urging parents to have their sons join the Scout and Cub organizations. If there are enough boys from out of town, wishing to attend meetings transportation will be supplied.

The president, reported that further consideration would be given the Student Loan Fund, with the view of trying to combine it with another fund, at the high school, which can be used only by students, wishing to take up the teaching profession.

Mr. Bradshaw introduced Ann Whitcomb, who attended the UN Seminar at Macdonald College last August as a high school representative. Miss Whitcomb gave a graphic description of the meetings and the great benefit obtained through the meeting of students from all parts of the world. The president thanked the speaker.
