First Premium Fur Establishment.

A. BRAHADI, MONTREAL,

RESPECTFULLY invites those who are desirous of purchasing CHOICE FURS, to visit his establishment, where they can see an array of the LATEST FASHIONS and best description. A mere glance at the articles which he has on sale, will be sufficient to convince connoisseurs that they cannot be surpassed in either materials or manufacture. Even the unskilled may safely trust their eyes, his Furs being as good in their quality as handsome in their appearance. But, as there are persons who, distrusting their own judgment, require the attestation of the skilful, he thinks it right to mention that, at the Exhibition held here last autumn, he gained all the prizes [eight in number] offered for superiority in his line of business,—a success not surprising, considering that he obtained a knowledge of his art in those parts of Europe where it has been longest practised and carried to the highest degree of excellence yet reached.

Cash Capital, $400,000.

FLOUR can now be laid down in New York at Montreal rates, and 30 cents per barrel less than Boston, from all the Western Ports, making New York the best market for Canada Flour, as freights and insurance seaward can be had at all seasons at less rates than any other point. For many years past, Canada brands of Flour have been used by "American Millers" upon inferior Flour. This year, as the wheat is generally good, this counterfeiting will not be so extensively done; with care, Canada Flour will command full prices in the New York Market, both for export and consumption. Commissions charged in proportion to risks taken.

Twenty-five years experience as Broker warrants the Subscriber in assuming that he understands the wants of the trade, and will give it his personal attention.

CHANGEABLE WEATHER.—The effects produced on the System by the sudden change we are now experiencing from cold to heat, from dry to moist, are always to be feared; and how necessary, then, to take precaution and procure at once a supply of the celebrated Plantagenet Mineral Water, the extraordinary virtues of which are attested by hundreds, and the popularity it is now enjoying is almost without precedent in the history of Mineral Waters; and the benefit derived from its use is as great in Winter as in summer; and there is nothing which can fortify the system so much against the severity of a Canadian Winter as this celebrated Water. It is, therefore, necessary that all who require their winter supplies should get them at once, from the PAIN-KILLER.

The call for Perry Davis' Pain-Killer is increasing so very rapidly that I fear I shall soon be unable to keep pace with it. My object in writing now is to beg that, on receipt of this you will kindly despatch another shipment, as ordered in my letter of June last.
J. L. CARRAU, Calcutta, E. I.

Mr. Perry Davis,—Sir—I have used, in my family, your medicine called "Pain-Killer," for many purposes, and have found it a very useful and valuable article. I, therefore, very cheerfully recommend it to the public regards.
REV. HENRY CLARK.

Sometime in December last, my children were taken down with scarlet fever, or canker rash—my only medicine was Davis' Pain-Killer and Castor Oil, the Pain-Killer operating to a charm in cutting the canker, and throwing out the rash, so that in about five weeks my family were entirely recovered.
CORNELIUS G. VANDENBURG, Saratoga Springs.

Having used Perry Davis' Vegetable Pain-Killer in my family during the winter past, I would urge its general use for the purposes for which the inventor has recommended it. I think it invaluable, and would not like to be deprived of its advantages.

BEAUTIFUL HAIR.
From the Boston Daily Mail, of Feb. 22, 1846.

☞Bogle's Hyperion Fluid is becoming immensly and deservedly popular; it is unquestionably superior to anything of the kind now in use, and those will admit it who may test the matter. Ladies who wish the very best article in the world to give their hair beauty and natural gloss, as well as to give it a satisfactory set should try the Hyperion Fluid. We mean just what we say, and have no fears of having the matter tested.—Star.

We agree with the above, and can recommend the Fluid as the best article for destroying dandruff and restoring the hair. We believe it is having an extensiue sale at the inventor's, W. Bogle, 228 Washington street.

BANKING.—The failure of the two sham banks at Toronto makes in not improper to take a review of the history of Banking within the Province during a few years past. Previous to 1850, we believe, no Bank had been incorporated in Canada for several years; one charter having been granted for a "Merchants Bank" of Montreal, which did not go into operation. The Banks of the Province were, and long had been, the Quebec Bank, the British N. American, the Montreal, the City, the People's, the Commercial, the Upper Canada, and the Gore. All these were incorporated, except the British N. American, by Provincial Acts of Parliament, having nearly the same clauses. The leading one for the security of the Public was that which made stockholders liable in double the amount of their stock. The fact of these institutions, however, being situated and controlled in the leading centres of commerce and capital, created a considerable feeling in the smaller cities and towns. Business men in such localities complained that their wants did not meet with fair attention; and many, no doubt, saw in the establishment of local Banks a means of obtaining the control of funds, much greater than their circumstances would justly warrant. There was some truth and a great deal of what was not true in the outcry for small local Banks. Mr. Hincks, in spite of the pressure brought to bear upon him, uniformly resisted the attempt to create such institutions. At length, however, Mr. Merritt, who had been one of the most influential advocates of the multiplication and wider distribution of Banks, devised, or rather adopted, a scheme which forwarded Mr. Hincks' financial plans, and, at the same time, promised to afford all necessary protection to the holders of notes. The Finance Minister, therefore, assented to the passage of the well known Free Banking Law, which declared that any person or Company could start a Bank; but he could issue no notes not countersigned by the Government, who on their side received, before granting this endorsation, an amount of their own debentures, equal to the amount of notes presented for their signature. Government was not liable to the note holders except for the securities deposited with their Finance officer; and these were to be retained in order to make good any default on the part of the Banks. This plan had the effect of giving greater currency to the Government debentures, of which great numbers were issued. This system continued till 1854. At that time several of the old established Banks obtained renewals of their charters or powers to augment their capital, and it was then contended by Mr. Merritt and the other advocates of the Free Banking Law, that it was absurd to continue charters to one class of Banks without requiring security for their notes, while the professed policy of the Government was to protect the public by requiring a deposit of collateral securities. It was true that a certain compromise was effected by insisting that these institutions should place part of the new capital in securities to be deposited with the Inspector General, like those of the new Banks; but it was said that the extension of the old charters authorizing the employment of the remainder of the capital was, in fact, an abrogation, so far as it went, of the Free Banking Law. The logic of these arguments it was difficult to gainsay, and was of course made every use of by those who desired to establish small local banks without the restriction of the Free Banking Act. Among these was Mr. Terrill. He had introduced a bill to incorporate the St. Francis Bank, with a very small capital, which was at first stoutly resisted by Mr. Cayley, who, as Finance Minister of the Coalition Cabinet, had now succeeded Mr. Hinks. But political influence was too much for the tory Inspector-General's virtue. After gradually bating his demands for such amount of capital as he thought necessary to secure respectability in the management, he at last permitted Mr. Terrill to take an act of incorporation, without any security clause, for a Bank with a nominal capital of £100,000; but which might begin business with a paid up capital of £25,000. This was one-fourth of the amount which he at first required. Mr. Galt took a similar charter in the same session for the Eastern Townships Bank, though it was generally understood that he shared in the scruples of Mr. Cayley, and only pressed his act in order that his constituents might have the same facilities granted as their neighbours. Five other new Banks were incorporated in the same session, of which two —the Molsons and Zimmerman—had previously been started under the Free Banking Law. This opened the flood gates for charters, and in the next session, that of 1856, acts were passed for two new institutions, to be called the Union Bank of Canada, and the Colonial Bank—one of those which recently closed its doors. In 1857 there was a new set of demands, and the crop this year consisted of the Ontario, Toronto, International, Niagara District, and Brantford—all without security. In 1858 there were a number of acts amending the old charters; but only one new Bank incorporated—the Canada. In 1859 there were several new applications to Parliament for Banking powers; and sufficient influence was brought to bear upon the Government to induce them to give their influence and aid to the very worst of these. The exposure, however, by Mr. Brown, of Mr. McCallum's character made them ashamed of their weakness, and the weight of the Opposition, under Mr. Brown's leadership, being directed against the reckless granting of new charters, all but one were rejected. That one, if taken as a specimen bank, would prove that the public of the Province were saved from a dreadful crash, by the precautions which prevented the building from being piled up higher, as the corporators, except their quality of ministerial members of Parliament—which is a sort of universal faculty—had no one qualification, so far as public notoriety is concerned, for the conduct of financial affairs. It is to be hoped that the the events of the last few days will render this late acquired caution permanent, and prevent our Government from lending their assistance to speculations on the public credit by men, who have no credit of their own.

THE FLOUR TRADE OF BOSTON.—No person can visit our business streets without noticing the large movements of Flour, says a Boston paper, constantly taking place, and in fact the trade of Boston in this great article is immense, far exceeding that of any other Atlantic city, save New York alone. In 1858 more than one million two hundred thousand barrels of flour was received in this city, or about four thousand barrels each working business day. The year ending Sept 1, 1859, the receipts were 1,077,720 barrels. From this great central market this article is distributed all over the Eastern New England states and British Provinces Western Massachusetts, and a portion of Maine, and the large seaports of this State, import their own flour to a considerable extent. For a general assortment however, of the finer grades of flour, nearly all of New England has to visit Boston market. The trade in this great staple is constantly increasing and becoming more and more important to Boston.

REVIVAL OF AN OLD COMMON-LAW WRIT IN THE UNITED STATES.—In the case of Quimbo Oppo, the Chinaman under sentence of death for murder, in New York, in whose favour the Court of Oyer and Terminer, through Judge Roosevelt, had entertained a motion for a new trial, the District-Attorney on Monday last invoked the rarely resorted-to old common law writ of prohibition, commanding the Court and Quimbo Appo to desist from further proceedings on the motion for a new trial, until the next General term of the Supreme Court. The District-Attorney holds that the Oyer and Terminer has no authority to grant new trials, and that by sustaining the jurisdiction of that Court in such cases a wide door would be opened to all convicted criminals to avail themselves of a newly-discovered remedy.

THE CONCERT.—We would recommend our readers to procure tickets for the Concert for next Tuesday evening, not less for the sake of aiding one of the most useful institutions of the city than for the rich treat in store for the lovers of music. Forty performers are now engaged in rehearsal for this Concert, under the directions of Mr. Crozier, and, having heard the rehearsal, we can assure our readers that the music to be performed has been admirably selected, and cannot fail to afford gratification to the most fastidious: His Excellency Sir Fenwick Williams and Staff are expected to honour the concert with their attendance.

The immense stock of Paintings, Engravings, &c., which has formed such an attraction to our citizens during the past few days, is to be offered for sale by auction, this day, by Messrs. Hill & Co. Doubtless there will be some strife among our art critics, for the possession of the beautiful productions contained in this collection. The pictures are all encased in elaborate gilt frames, and we presume there will be some bargains. See advertisement.

NEW BOOKS.

THE STUDENT'S HUME.—New York: Harper & Brothers. Montreal: Dawson & Son.

This edition of Hume, in an abridged form, is one which will be found of great service to the Student of English history. It comprises the history of England from the earliest times to the revolution of 1688; and the principal events from that date are continued down to 1858. The information which the volume conveys is enhanced by the engravings. In fact, all things considered, the book is one which ought to recommend itself to every one desirous of ascertaining, without the trouble of plodding through ponderous volumes, everything connected with the country. The volume is well bound, and its typography excellent.

RECOLLECTIONS BY SAMUEL ROGERS.—Boston: Bartlett & Miles. Montreal: Dawson & Son.

These recollections of the poet Rogers are rendered interesting chiefly on account of the references—now names in history—with whom, about Fox, Burke, Grattan, Porson, Tooke, Talleyrand, Erskine, Scott, Grenville and Wellington. The observations and opinions of some of these great men possess much interest, though there is sometimes a remark here and there which might be accounted frivolous. Still, the entire "Recollections" are well worthy of perusal. With regard to Wellington, one can see in some of his observations many indications of his character and actions, which are both interesting and instructive. The book is beautifully got up.

THE ECLECTIC MAGAZINE.—Montreal: Dawson & Son.

The November number of this Magazine is highly interesting, and its selections, as usual, well made. There is also presented a fine portrait of the late Hon Rufus Choate.

THE ATLANTIC MONTHLY.—This excellent magazine, we learn by the November number just received from Messrs. Dawson & Son, has passed into the hands of Messrs. Ticknor & Fields, the well known Boston publishers, from the estate of the late firm of Phillips, Sampson & Co.

In the present number, we think we have a satisfactory guarantee that, as its new publishers promise, there shall be no falling off from the high standard of excellence the Atlantic has attained. Its contents are varied and interesting. The opening article, "E. Felice Foresti," is by H. T. Tuckerman, Esq., the author of the able article upon Fenimore Cooper in the North American for October. "The Minister's Wooing" is continued. Mrs. Howe's "Trip to Cuba" advances pleasantly towards a termination; and last, but not least, the Professor gives an excellent dissertation upon matters well worth the consideration of the reader. We wish that every success may attend Messrs. Ticknor & Fields in their new undertaking.

KOSSUTH AND LOUIS NAPOLEON.—We cut the following from the Boston Traveller of Tuesday:—

A letter from England says Kossuth speaks without asperity of the French Emperor. He acquits him of bad faith to the Hungarians, but of course treats the peace of Villafranca as for the time ruinous to the hopes of his country. He does not, perhaps, say, (but I am assured by one who seldom has misled me about any matter of fact in which he speaks confidently) that at the last interview M. Kossuth had with Louis Napoleon before the battle of Solferino, the Emperor said emphatically, "Remember, I cannot help you tell your countrymen to rise in revolt until I get to Venice, for I do not know whether I may not have to conclude the war before I am half way thither." It is stated that the French were to send 40,000 men into Hungary when they had obtained possession of that city.

A BLACK BISHOP.—Rev. Hugh Stowell, of Manchester, in a recent missionary sermon, said:—

"I have no sympathy with the prejudices against a black Bishop for Sierra Leone; on the contrary, I think that a black Bishop would be just the right man in the right place. What would be more beautiful than to see the lawn sleeves contrasted with the black skin—an emblem of the change which had been wrought in the heart? Why should we be startled at a black Bishop? Was not the swarthy Cyprian a Black Bishop, and did he not sit in a conclave of eighty-six black Bishops? Even yet, for aught we know, Africa may in the end outstrip Europe, for "the last shall be first, and the first last.'"

RAILWAY COLLISION.—Tuesday evening, as the night train of cars of the Champlain and St. Lawrence Railroad were leaving Rouse's Point, they ran off the track, and came into collision with the train for Ogdensburgh, which left at the same time, doing considerable damage to the locomotive of the Ogdensburgh train, and also breaking a portion of its own truck. Fortunately the trains were not under full headway, or the loss of life might have been great. The only personal injuries received were by the two engineers. George Morgan, the engineer of the Montreal train, had his wrist sprained by falling while jumping from his engine, and Sanford Steambarge, the engineer, of the Ogdensburgh train, was rather severely injured on his back and hip joint, by being thrown against the tender of his engine. His injuries are, however, not dangerous. Other engines being at hand, the passengers, after a delay of about an hour and a half, were forwarded to their destination. The escape from large loss of life was truly providential. —Pilot.

WOMAN'S RIGHTS IN THE UNITED STATES.—We cut the following amusing evidence of the chivalrous deference of the law, among our neighbours, towards the fair sex, from a New York paper:—

Mrs. Nancy Stevenson was tried before Judge Monro, at the last term of the Court at Anderson, S.C., on an indictment found against her in March last, setting forth that she was a common scold. Mr. Speaker Orr conducted the defence and moved to quash the indictment, on the ground that being a common scold was not an indictable offence in South Carolina. He made a brief but able argument in support of his motion, sustaining himself by reference to the case of "Commonwealth agt. Samanthia Hutchinson," which was tried in the Sixth Judicial District of Pennsylvania, and found in the American Law Register, p. 118. The defendant in that case was discharged on the ground "that the offence of common scolding is not indictable as a crime in Pennsylvania." The public prosecutor Mr. Read, on the other hand, read from the books much law to sustain the indictment. After argument pro and con. the following order was passed:—

"Upon hearing the motion in this case, it is ordered that the indictment be quashed, on the ground that it is not an indictable offence, that portion of the common law relating to this offence being obsolete in South Carolina."

THE PARMA TRAGEDY.—If the barbarous murder in the streets of Parma has proved a political convenience for the banished dukes and conspiring cardinals, there is no reason why it should not also be turned to account on the part of the cause which alone detests it with sincerity. As it has furnished the Italian tyrants with a commodious sophism, we do not see why it should not supply Italian freedom with a sound argument. For that purpose we have only to ask ourselves why the crime has excited so much astonishment. Can there be a stronger tribute to the marvellous and general freedom from passion and violence which has characterised this magnificent revolution? Where is there on record a popular movement against misrule of the same inveteracy, against grievances of the same enormity, amidst the like excitements and provocations, in the face of the like confederacy of temporal and spiritual enemies, against which so few excesses are to be charged? We have been startled at the butchery of Count Anviti, but we ought rather to be amazed that the atrocity stands alone in the history of the last 6 months; alone, we mean as a crime imputable to the people; for that period includes, be it not forgotten, the wholesale carnage at Perugia, perpetrated not by an infuriated rabble, but by an organised force,—not the act of a mob but of a government, and that government the last that should have set the example of violence and bloodshed.—After that ruthless massacre, it well becomes the Italian Herods to affect a speechless horror of a solitary and exceptional deed of the same hue. Behold, they cry, the enormities that disgrace Italian patriotism; let liberty be judged by its fruits; if these things are done in the infancy of independence, what is not to be expected from its maturity? Is how simple is the reply! The deeds are yours, oppressors of Italy. Liberty retorts them on you. They are the legitimate spawn of your little demoralising and brutalising sway. The popular licentiousness that has been witnessed, those excesses without virtue, moderation, and temper have been conspicuous in their actions, as they have been by the confession of an admiring world, is their desert, not yours. The justice of this answer receives its most opposite illustration from the fate of the miserable Anviti. The tool of ducal tyranny, he represented its violence in the ruffianism of his life, and the recoil of that violence in the cruelty of his death. He contributed more than any man to educate the passions in the tempest of which he perished. He made the mob that tore him to piecemeal.

No!—this tragedy of Parma has grieved the friends of liberty, but it will not serve her adversaries. It only proves that liberty has been too long delayed, and exacts from her champions increased vigilance and redoubled effort. Men in the arduous posts of revolutionary leaders must carry a two-edged sword, for they have to contend not only with tyranny itself, but with the vices that tyranny engenders. While they resist one class of malefactors, they have to punish another, and for the stern performance of the latter duty it is plain that Farini and his illustrious colleagues are no less prepared than they have already proved themselves equal to the former. They have acted too wisely and boldly hitherto to allow us to doubt their prudence and spirit under all combinations of circumstances. If it is possible to bring the perpetrators of Anviti's murder to justice, it will be the spontaneous act of the Italian patriots themselves, no servile compliance with the insolent dictation of the French Emperor, who has no more right to dictate measures of justice to the Goverment of Parma than to any other foreign Government in Europe.—London Examiner.
