Atom warheads at North Bay ahead of time

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP) — Nuclear warheads for Bomarc missiles at the RCAF base north of here arrived unexpectedly Tuesday night, just one day after the defence department in Ottawa said they would not arrive until sometime in January.

The warheads were ferried in by a United States Air Force C-54 transport at about 10 p.m. and were met by a four-truck convoy which took the missiles to the Bomarc base, about five miles away.

22 die

The mid-week holiday period which ushered in the New Year saw 22 persons killed in accidents across Canada in a 30-hour period from 6 p.m. Tuesday to Wednesday midnight.

A Canadian Press survey showed that 13 persons died in traffic mishaps, four died in fires and two were killed by trains. The survey listed one hunting death, one drowning and one asphyxiation.

Quebec led the provinces this year with eight deaths, all but two in traffic. One person was killed by a train and another was asphyxiated.

Fly to Cyprus

LONDON (Reuters) — An advance party of about 800 crack British paratroopers will fly to Cyprus tonight to protect British families and bases on the island, the defence ministry announced today.

The announcement said the main body of men will fly out at noon Friday.

Castro displays

HAVANA (AP) — Premier Fidel Castro rolls out his Soviet-built military hardware today at a huge parade marking the fifth anniversary of the overthrow of dictator Fulgencio Batista.

Thousands of Cubans are expected to line Havana's Avenue of the Presidents to watch the display of tanks, artillery and ground-to-air missiles.

Formosans leave

TOKYO (Reuters) — Formosa's charge d'affaires Chang Pe-chin and three other embassy officials left today for Taipei by air after being ordered home.

The order, regarded as a possible forerunner of an open diplomatic break, followed a Japanese decision to issue an exit permit to a Chinese Communist defector to allow him to return home.

The arrival made 446 Surface-to-Air Bomarc Air Defence Squadron the first Canadian military unit to be equipped with defensive nuclear weapons. There are 28 missiles at the North Bay base, part of an extensive underground installation that includes a SAGE—Semi-Automatic Ground Environment—system that also controls a Bomarc squadron at La Macaza, Que., about 80 miles north of Ottawa.

The convoy was escorted without incident to the Bomarc base by Ontario Provincial Police, Royal Canadian Mounted Police, North Bay city police and RCAF personnel.

The four trucks were marked "explosives" in red.

The warheads, when installed, will complete the North Bay defence installation. The Bomarc base was completed in 1961, and nine solid-fuel Bomarc B missiles arrived later in the year.

A 30-man USAF detachment which will have custody of the warheads has been here since mid-November.

The defence department said in September the warheads were scheduled to arrive by the end of November. But late in November the department revised its prediction and said the warheads would arrive by the end of the year.

Defector in Canada?

LONDON (CP) — Anatoli Dolynitsin, one of the most important fugitives from Soviet Russia, is reported to be living in Canada.

An announcement Thursday night said he has left Britain to start a new life under a different name in a Commonwealth country. Official sources said the country is Canada.

The Daily Telegraph says he went to Canada some weeks ago "with his appearance altered."

It adds that Dolynitsin is living "in the same province"—it does not say which one—as Igor Gouzenko, key figure in Canada's espionage case of 1946.

Dolynitsin is regarded as one of the most important Soviet citizens to defect to the West. His information played a part in the arrest of William Vasell, 38-year-old British admiral clerk who was imprisoned on charges of spying for Moscow.

BLUE RIBBON BABY — Little does 1/2-day new Sophie Demers know the excitement that she has caused by arriving on the first day of 1964. For one thing, she has brought her parents the best New Year's gift that the Leon Demers couple could have hoped for, and by being the first baby born here in the new year has made the event all the more memorable. Sophie, weighing 8 pounds, 9 ounces arrived at 4:07 a.m. (Record photo by Gerry Lemay)

1964's first baby is 8 lb. 9 oz. girl

The Hotel Dieu Hospital made it two in a row for Sherbrooke's Blue Ribbon when the city's first baby was born there early New Year's Day.

Sophie, as Dr. and Mrs. Leon Demers call their second baby was brought into the world by Doctor Gerald Beaudry at 4:07 a.m. She weighed in at eight pounds, nine ounces.

"I am glad that it's a girl," Mrs. Demers said. "We already have a little boy." Their son Jacques is one year old.

"But I suppose that I would have been just as happy with a baby boy," she said.

Sophie was asleep in her nursery cot, but her mother remembered "she has lots and lots of dark hair. Aside from that I guess she's like almost all other babies."

Mrs. Demers was not in the hospital long before she gave birth to Sophie. She and her husband arrived at the Hotel Dieu about 1 a.m.

Mrs. Demers was in good spirits and feeling well, although, she admitted, in need of a rest.

Mrs. Demers is the former Francoise Bouchard of Charlevoix. Dr. Demers is a native of Quebec City.

They were married two years ago, in Charlevoix. Dr. Demers practices medicine in Sherbrooke.

Citizenship rejection charge burns Thomson

LONDON (CP) — A published statement that Roy Thomson has relinquished his Canadian citizenship drew an indignant rebuttal today from the publisher, who said he was "burned up" over the report.

"I've acknowledged nothing," said Thomson, refusing to go beyond his promise that he will make a full statement in Toronto next week.

Thomson was created a baron in the New Year's honours list, instantly raising questions about his citizenship in view of the past policy of the Canadian government in opposing titles and decorations for Canadian citizens.

Thomson was born in Toronto and still has a home there. He has lived mainly in Britain for the last 10 years.

It was learned Wednesday that he became a British citizen last June, a procedure open to any person from a Commonwealth country who has lived in the United Kingdom for five years.

British citizenship does not necessarily involve giving up Canadian citizenship, however, since dual nationality is possible under U.K. law.

As speculation on Thomson's intentions continued, the London Daily Mail quoted Thomson as saying he had relinquished his Canadian citizenship to accept the barony.

This morning Thomson told a reporter that he repudiates the report in the strongest possible terms.

"I definitely and positively did not say that I have renounced my Canadian citizenship," he said.

In a television interview, the 69-year-old newspaper and television magnate acknowledged Wednesday night that becoming a peer had always been one of his ambitions.

Thirst-killed family buried

ADELAIDE, Australia (Reuters) — Five members of a British migrant family who died of thirst in blistering barren country north of here were buried today in a lonely desert grave.

Searchers found them early today after they became lost along an arid track in the far northeast of south Australia Tuesday when their car ran out of gas.

Dead were Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Page and their sons, Douglas, 12, Gordon, 10, and Robert, 19. They had emigrated to Australia four years ago from England.

Unrelenting peace offensive is favored by Johnson for 1964

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson is said to favor an unrelenting peace offensive in 1964.

A White House source reported that Johnson is determined to seek new breakthrough on peace and does not think the United States can wait until after the November presidential balloting before pressing ahead in this area.

The source made available to reporters Wednesday a summary of what were described as Johnson's views on a broad range of topics, including these:

—The president plans to propose a comprehensive housing program and will discuss this today at his ranch home with Administrator Robert C. Weaver of the housing and home finance agency.

—Johnson expects Congress to pass a civil rights bill this year, as well as an $11,000,000,000 tax cut. He also would like to see passage of a program to provide medical insurance for the elderly.

—Government officials will be expected to work hard and avoid the cocktail party circuit.

—Johnson is pleased with the results of his economy-in-government drive and believes the stage is set for further savings in the budget which will go to Congress in January, 1965.

Johnson told Soviet Premier Khrushchev in a message Wednesday that the time for talking peace has passed and "1964 should be a year in which we take further steps toward that goal."

Reporters arrive

JERUSALEM, Jordanian Sector (Reuters) — Twenty airmen landed at Jerusalem Airport Wednesday carrying reporters and foreign visitors for the Pope's pilgrimage to the Holy Land this weekend. An estimated 2,000 foreign reporters, photographers, radio and television announcers and technicians are expected to be on hand.

"In this spirit I shall strive for the further improvement of relations between our two countries," Johnson said in a reply to a New Year's message from Khrushchev and Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev.

The two Russian leaders had said that 1963 saw "a significant improvement in the approach to the solutions of urgent international problems and in the development of Soviet-American relations."

Makarios plans end of Turkey's position

(CP from AP-Reuters)

NICOSIA, Cyprus — Archbishop Makarios, Greek-Cypriot president of Cyprus, has begun a campaign to end Turkey's special role in Cyprus, granted by the island's 1960 independence treaties.

Charging Turkey with "aggressive actions" in the communal strife between Greek and Turkish Cypriots, Makarios announced Wednesday night he would seek to dissolve agreements under which Britain, Greece and Turkey guarantee Cyprus' sovereignty.

Earlier, Makarios said he would tear up the agreements. But after Britain challenged his right to act alone, he said he would "secure the termination of these treaties by appropriate means," meaning by negotiation.

The treaties with all three governments are interlocked, and all three must be abrogated to get rid of the agreement with Turkey. But Makarios and other members of his government have made plain the Turkish government is the object of their ire. They say they hope to preserve links with Britain as a member of the Commonwealth.

The diplomatic exchanges came amid fresh blood-letting on the 12th day since strife between the island's Greek majority and Turkish minority turned violent. Three monks were killed and another three wounded in a raid Wednesday on the Greek Orthodox monastery of Galactoforoussa, 25 miles southwest of Nicosia. Survivors said five or six Turkish-Cypriots made the raid.

And police reported today that a Greek-Cypriot and a Turkish-Cypriot were killed in a shooting incident Tuesday land.

night at Paphos, on the southwest tip of Cyprus.

Planes bringing reinforcements of British soldiers arrived during the night. The men were to be posted at the British base of Akrotiri to replace other forces transferred to peacekeeping duty in Nicosia.

In Britain, a unit of 800 paratroopers was on a 48-hour standby to move into Cyprus if the crisis worsened.

Earlier Wednesday 600 British troops were flown here.

STAND BY TREATIES

In Turkey's capital, Ankara, a foreign ministry spokesman said his government stood by the Cyprus treaties and promised "we will take every measure for their literal application."

In Athens, Greek caretaker Premier John Paraskevopoulos told the U.S. and British ambassadors Greece would intervene in Cyprus if Turkey took military action there, reliable sources reported.

Under the 1960 treaties ending 82 years of British rule, Britain, Greece and Turkey promised to act together or singly to prevent a partition or annexation of the eastern Mediterranean island.

Midnight mass Christmas Eve at Sherbrooke's jail and a planned banquet to follow it were abruptly cancelled last week to foil a plot by several prisoners to stage a breakout. The Record has learned.

The midnight mass has been a tradition at the Winter Street Jail for a number of years.

It was usually followed by a hearty Christmas dinner.

However, early last week, The Record learned, authorities at the jail discovered that a number of the prisoners planned to use the occasion to effect their escapes.

The event was called off for this reason.

However, on Saturday afternoon, one of the prisoners, believed by jail authorities to have been connected with the Christmas Eve plot, was caught in the act of what appeared to be an attempt to break out.

The prisoner claimed he was not trying to escape.

He was arraigned at the Sherbrooke courthouse Tuesday morning on a charge of damaging public property. At that time, he chose trial by jury.

He is scheduled to reappear tomorrow for preliminary hearing.

There are some 65 to 70 prisoners at the Winter Street jail at the present time.

Jail sheriff Donat Jacques, contacted this morning, said he could neither deny or confirm the discovery of the Christmas Eve plot.

Police shot kills athlete

CHICAGO (CP - AP) — Police searched today for an unidentified participant in a washroom fight which led to the death of pro football player Tony Parrilli on New Year's Eve.

The 24-year-old former Chicago Bears guard was killed by a policeman's bullet after an argument and scuffle at a bowling alley party.

Investigators called the shooting accidental. They said they were looking for the unidentified man to clear up conflicting accounts of the fight.

Robert Winthers, police chief in suburban Willowbrook, said his service revolver fired accidentally as he tried to break up the fight between Parrilli and the unidentified man.

The quarrel in the bowling alley, partly owned by Mike Ditka, Chicago Bears end, was reported to have started after an argument over Sunday's National Football League championship game between the Bears and the New York Giants, won by the Bears.

JURY TO CONSIDER

The Du Page County State's Attorney's Office said a grand jury will be asked to consider whether Winthers was guilty of either involuntary manslaughter or reckless conduct. An inquest was continued to Jan. 20.

Chief Winthers said his pistol discharged as he used it to club the head of Bears fullback Joe Marconi. The bullet hit the six-foot, 228-pound Parrilli in the head.

Winthers said Sgt. Stanley Lachta said they went to the washroom to quell a fist fight between Parrilli and the unidentified man—who left in the confusion after the shooting.

Bethlehem's birthplace battleground

Despite a clerical truce, windows may stay dirty

BETHLEHEM (AP) — Just in time for the Pope's pilgrimage to Bethlehem, rival church officials are soft-pedaling an old quarrel which sometimes led to fistcuffs in the rock-hewn cave where Christ was born.

Despite the surface truce, underlying jealousies continue. One likely result may be some dirty windows in the Church of the Nativity during the Pope's visit.

Disputes have been going on for centuries in Bethlehem's Church of the Nativity, a massive basilica built 1,600 years ago over a grotto accepted as the stable where Mary gave birth.

The grotto and parts of the church are shared by Roman Catholics, Greek Orthodox and Armenians.

Every Christmas for many years—and each church celebrates its Christmas on a different day—services beside the Christ child's manger were disrupted by arguments over whether a Roman Catholic monk could stand on a step owned by the Orthodox, or whether a priest of one faith should blow out its candles.

Flight to Holy Land Saturday

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican and the Italian government worked today on final details for Pope Paul's flight to the Holy Land Saturday.

The Italian government planned a big send-off for the Roman Catholic pontiff as the head of the tiny Vatican state.

A squadron of Italian Air Force F-84 jet fighters was assigned to escort the Pope's special Alitalia jetliner to international waters. The military planes also will greet the Pope's return flight from Jordan and before a New Year's Day crowd of 30,000 in St. Peter's Square.

Bells in Rome's 450 churches will peal at the moment of take-off for many years to come.

while the others celebrated mass. There was even a controversy over which religion's monks should have the privilege of washing windows.

Three cardinals and 30 other

Vatican aides will accompany the pontiff. The cardinals are Eugene Tisserant, dean of the college of cardinals; Amleto Cicognani, Vatican secretary of state; and Gustavo Testa, secretary of the Vatican congregation for the Oriental (Eastern) Church.

The Pope, in an appearance before a New Year's Day crowd of 30,000 in St. Peter's Square, said his trip "may have an impact for many years to come."

The issues seem trivial, but once priests took the argument up to the church roof where they threw bottles at each other Christmas Eve. Every year policemen are stationed in the grotto to prevent trouble.

Shortly before Pope Paul's visit was announced the Jordanian government got the bearded Orthodox priests and the brown-robed Franciscans to compromise and sign a truce, and this Christmas was trouble-free.

There could have been trouble during the papal visit next Monday, the Catholic feast of the Epiphany. For the Greek Orthodox this is Christmas Eve, and the great basilica will be filled with their ceremonies throughout the day.

The truce was counted upon to allow for an annual window-cleaning job. Catholics were to wash the outside of the glass and Greeks the inside.

The program continued with, It's Nice, by Joan Johann; Dad-Forget, by Meade Baldwin; Our Secret, by Liane Mayhew and Victor Peters; Memories of Christmas, by Eva Rose Baldwin; I'm Practising on You, by Louise Baldwin.

The Primary Pupils then presented a play, The Greatest Gift. A song, Silver Bells, was sung by Eva Rose Baldwin, Liane Mayhew and Linda Gill. A recitation, The Gift, was given by John Joyce, A Golden Deed, by Linda Gill, The Perfect Gift, by Rosemary Joyce, and a number, The Greater Light, by Andree Wuest, Irene Wuest, Joan Johann and Eva Rose Baldwin.

Carolyn Cook recited, The Shepherd's Story and Rene Wuest presented Grandma Says. The junior group sang, Deck the Halls.

Mr. Joyce expressed Christmas wishes to all present.

The part of the program by the children was concluded by a story, If I Had Not Come, read by Eva Rose Baldwin. A hymn, Joy to the World, was sung and the benediction was given by Mr. Beerworth.

Santa Claus then made an appearance and gifts were distributed from a prettily decorated tree, with the assistance of the Sunday School staff. Each child received a bag of candy and a candy cane.

New Zealand's problem

After lottery, who gets money?

AUCKLAND (CP)—New Zealand has found that controversy over state-run lotteries has diminished, but fighting continues over what to do with the profits.

New Zealand's government-sponsored lottery, the Golden Kiwi, has been in operation for two years. Objections still are made from time to time to the whole principle of a lottery by anti-gambling interests.

But these complaints make little real impact. The lottery has been accepted as part of national life and in itself it is no longer a political issue.

The distribution of the profits, however, is a live topic most everywhere and especially in politics.

THERE'S THE SNAG

Tickets in the Golden Kiwi cost five shillings (about 75 cents) and after administration costs, government duty and prizes amounting to about half the purchase price, the government has a profit of one shilling five pence (about 21 cents) on each ticket for distribution to good causes. In a year, that brings about $4,000,000.

That's where the snag comes in now. Distribution of the profits originally was left solely to the internal affairs minister, who bestowed gifts on a district hall committee here, a ladies' bowling club there, a Boy Scout group somewhere else.

At once an outcry arose that this was political patronage, and on a vast scale. In vain the minister and the government protested that decisions were made strictly on the merits of each case.

Critics insisted that however fair the government tried to be, suspicions would always arise with the distribution of such a large annual sum. And every one of the thousands of organizations that applied for aid felt it was being slighted if its application failed.

Over a period of trial and error a board of control was evolved, containing representatives of both government and opposition. In addition six advisory committees were appointed to recommend grants in the fields of welfare, arts, scientific research, medical research, aged, and youth and recreation.

NOT SATISFIED
But the public is still not satisfied and frequently complains that the funds should be devoted to a big project such as a hospital, that the prize should be increased, that the profits should be used to reduce taxation.

The minister of internal affairs, Sir Leon Goetz, widely known as father of the lottery, made the Golden Kiwi the central feature of his campaign for the general election of Nov. 30. A kiwi—a flightless New Zealand bird—appeared on all his campaign literature and he concentrated on the benefits of the lottery in his speeches.

He was the only minister defeated at the polls. He was contesting a marginal seat, but many observers attributed his decisive loss to dissatisfaction with the profit distribution system.

Sir Leon remains unrepentant. In a speech since the election he has advocated the introduction of an occasional mammoth lottery, to be called the Golden Moa.

The moa was a huge New Zealand bird, now extinct. This Sir Leon considers, would compete with the occasional big Australian lotteries with fabulous first prizes.

MANY BENEFITS
New Zealand had accepted the principle of conducting its own lottery, Sir Leon said. It should develop the idea to its logical conclusion and bar participation in lotteries abroad.

Surveying the benefits the Golden Kiwi had brought, Sir Leon said the lottery had saved New Zealand some $1,500,000 which formerly went abroad in overseas exchange, had returned $750,000 to the state through lottery duty.

Ticket sales had brought business to printers, the post office, newspapers and others. Prizes already paid out totalled $12,000,000 and 128 persons had made small fortunes.

Golden Kiwi grants, Sir Leon said, had enabled many projects to "get off the ground," projects that would have been delayed for years except for this assistance. They included 20 to 39 Olympic-size swimming pools, community centres, hostels, sports stadiums and many others.

Value of building in city quadrupled over 1962 figures

A building inspector's report released today shows that money spent on construction in Sherbrooke in December 1963 is more than four times the amount spent in 1962 for the same purpose.

Aime Gagnon revealed that his department issued 51 permits for building construction last December which allowed for $1,456,900 in construction.

Cyclist's death an accident

A five-man coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental death in the death of Roger Asselin, 16, of 534 Galt Street West in Sherbrooke in an inquest held at the municipal police station Tuesday.

Testimony showed that the youth was struck by a car driven by Edgar Bergeron of 1035 Pacific Street in Sherbrooke while he was delivering parcels on his bicycle.

Dr. Gagnon told the jury that the youth received a fractured skull and that he was being transported to Maisonneuve Hospital in Montreal when he died in the ambulance.

The jury failed to find any criminal responsibility on the part of the driver and had no recommendations to make.

Automatic gates at Burlington St. level crossings are urged

A five-man coroner's jury recommended Tuesday that the City of Sherbrooke seek to have the CPR install automatic gates at the Burlington Street level crossing where a Montreal bound Dayliner smashed into a car and killed the five occupants December 29.

The jury, presided over by St. Francis District coroner Dr. Louis Gagnon ruled that the deaths of Edmond Lebel, Mrs. Edmond Lebel, their daughter Christine Lebel, Jean Paul Martel and Mrs. Jean Paul Martel were accidental.

The level crossing traverses three sets of tracks and is at present marked by two painted signs which have no lights or signals other than the words written across them.

Testimony at the inquest showed that the accident happened on a sunny day when visibility was near perfect.

A neighbor of the Lebels, Mrs. Hubert Rousseau testified that Mr. and Mrs. Martel had arrived in Sherbrooke Saturday night from their Connecticut home to visit the Lebel family.

Martel was Mrs. Lebel's brother.

She said they were taking a Sunday drive in Martel's car when the accident happened.

The train's engineer, John Derby, 61, of Sherbrooke told the jury he was travelling at the regular speed of 45-50 mph, and that he made the required signal before approaching the crossing. He said he saw the Martel car crossing the track, apparently disregarding the warning.

He said he then released his foot from the acceleration pedal, which automatically set off the automatic brake, and withdrew to the baggage car for his own safety.

The engineer, who has been driving trains for the past 20 years, claimed this was standard procedure and cited the prece-

Receptions usher in New Year in the city

A brand new year was ushered in with receptions in various meeting halls and armories yesterday.

Sherbrooke city council marked the new year's arrival with a reception in the council chamber. It was attended by more than 70 people representing business, military, and social groups in Sherbrooke.

All council members except alderman Marcel Savard were present for the ceremony which took place from 11 a.m. and lasted for about 40 minutes.

The Ninth Militia Group held its annual New Year's Day reception in the officers' lounge of the Depot Street headquarters from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Among those present were Lt. Col. F. Tanguay, CD, from the Eighth Medical Corps RCAMC; Lt. Col. J. Hawkins, CD of the Sherbrooke Regiment RCAC; and Lt. Col. A. Penhale of Thetford Mines, honorary commanding officer of the Sherbrooke Regiment.

The Sherbrooke Regiment reception also took place yesterday at the Williams Street Armoury, in the officers' and sergeants' lounges.

At the reception there were some six former commanding officers of the Sherbrooke Regiment going as far back as 1943 when Lt. Col. B. D. Lyon, ED, was commanding officer.

The only former commanding officer between 1943 and the present that was not at the reception was Col. D. W. Ward, now of the Royal Montreal Regiment.

Capt. Charles Catchpaul, public relations officer, explained that the six former commanding officers present had all served in battle.

The names of former commanding officers in their order of service are, B. D. Lyon, ED; J. L. Blue, ED; F. H. Baldwin, ED; E. W. Arnold, ED; N. H. Welsh, CD; and E. P. Hall, CD. The present regimental commanding officer is Lt. Col. J. M. Hawkins.

In the receiving line there were, besides officers and former officers of the Sherbrooke Regiment, representatives of the women's medical units.

A light buffet lunch was served in the recreation room of the officers' lounge.

Captain Catchpaul explained that the Sherbrooke Regiment had a colorful history since its founding in 1867, a few months before Confederation. It was formed partly in fear of invasion by the powerful armies of northern United States, which had conquered the South two years earlier.

He explained that the Sherbrooke Regiment had fought in the Fenian Raids, the Boer War, The First World War, The Second World War, and the Korean War.

Captain Catchpaul added that he considered that the military tradition is strong in Sherbrooke and district.

Lennville family member killed in aircraft crash

Among the eight persons killed in the crash of an air force transport plane Monday night at Metz, France was a former Lennville resident, Flt.-Lt. Britton L. Johnston.

Flt.-Lt. Johnston, 33, attended school at Lennville, St. Lambert, and McGill University. He joined the RCAF in 1944 and had served in England and various parts of Canada. He had been posted to Europe only five weeks before the crash.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Johnston of Lennville.

Flt.-Lt. Johnston married the former Maria Belliveau at Monton, N.B., in 1944.

He is survived by his wife, three children Deborah eight, Michel six and Robert three, and three brothers, Group Captain E. R. Johnston of the Higher standards in B.C. cuisine

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia's top-notch chefs have banded together to promote higher standards in the preparation and serving of food.

"The way it is now everyone who takes a few months cooking course calls himself a cook," says Gottlieb Dambach, president of the Association of Chefs de Cuisine of B.C.

Almost anyone who can turn an egg can get himself a job in some places merely by calling himself a cook, says Mr. Dambach, himself a chef at the Bayshore Inn.

Restaurant standards are being raised as a result of more finicky eating habits and stiffer competition among cafes.

"I hope the competition gets a lot stiffer," says Mr. Dambach. "We might get rid of some of these greasy spoons."

Finnish bath is destroyed

Two blazes in the area yesterday, one a major one in Lennville, kept the Sherbrooke and Lennville fire departments hopping.

In Lennville a fire broke out in the Sauna Finnish Bath Incorporated on Belvedere Road around 4 a.m. yesterday morning and completely demolished the establishment.

The manager of the bath said this morning that the flames destroyed "everything in the place," which he said is only a year old and he added that damages amounted to about $12,000.

No one was injured. Firemen fought the fire for over two hours he said.

The manager, Mr. Jean Paul Dube said that he first received word of the fire at about 4:30 a.m.

He said that a neighbor in the area called him and that he immediately telephoned the Lennville Fire Department.

Although he said, firefighters were dispatched to the Belvedere Road establishment right away, he said that they could not save the building which was, he said, already mostly destroyed.

He thinks that the fire started in an overheated "hot room" and spread until it had burned everything including reclining chairs, refrigerator, a furnace, weight scales and personal objects such as fishing equipment that he had stored there.

This is the first fire in any of the Sauna places in Quebec, he said. The property is partly insured and Mr. Dube expects that the bath will be open again in the spring.

The second fire occurred yesterday morning in the L. O. Noel building on Wellington Street South in Sherbrooke but Sherbrooke firemen cleared this one up within minutes.

Only slight damage was caused to the building, firemen report. Fire in the two-storey residence of Maurice Pepin at 826 Wellington Street South began in the basement, officials said. There were no injuries reported.

Tighten up firearms storage rules

The death of four persons, including a former Eastern Townships resident, in the abortive hold-up attempt at an Ottawa church indicates that while Canadian laws on the purchase and carrying of lethal weapons are stricter than those prevailing south of the border they are still far from perfect. Or at least their enforcement leaves much to be desired.

According to police investigators, the two youths each wore a gunbelt with two holsters and two guns and carried much other equipment such as makeshift handcuffs, tubes to use as masks, knives and flashlights.

The Criminal Code makes it an offence for a minor to purchase a revolver and for anyone to carry such a weapon without a permit from the police officials. But, unfortunately, there seems little control over the stocks of weapons in the hands of dealers. By the simple process of breaking into a hardware or sporting goods store, would-be bandits can acquire for themselves an arsenal that would be the envy of an army in many of the smaller nations.

Many dealers fail to take more than the most elementary precautions for storing guns, in most cases it being deemed sufficient to keep them in glass covered shelves which might prevent pilfering by shoplifters but offer no deterrent to a determined thief breaking into the store at night.

While considering any legislation to tighten up on the sale of guns, the lawmakers might also consider closer control over the storage of weapons by dealers.

We've read about gold bricks but never believed anything until we got a builder's estimated cost of a new home.

British Columbia and safety belts

The whole question of safety belts for occupants of front seats in automobiles is opened up by British Columbia legislation which became effective New Year's Day.

The law, the first of its kind to be introduced in Canada, provides that two safety belts be installed in the front seat of each car and that motorists be required to use them.

But in presenting the rules, the B.C. authorities admit that the perversity of human nature may cut down their effectiveness seriously. There is little difficulty forecast in applying the section ordering the installation of the belts. Less optimism is expressed over the rule ordering motorists to wear them.

Attorney General Robert Bonner has admitted the gravity of this problem and his public admission may result in little or any action by police to enforce the second part of the legislation.

For some reason or another, humanity seems to take offence at any compulsive measure to assure their own safety.

However the B.C. officials are hopeful that enough motorists will have enough commonsense to use the safety belts if provided for them to make the legislation worthwhile.

The average thief looks it, says a judge. It's hard to keep a straight face when you're crooked.

Recipe for old-time corn chowder

One of the depressing aspects of the contemporary kettle food situation has been the decline of corn chowder. There was a time when a man could figure on a corn chowder about once a fortnight. Corn is king among grass products. Ever since the Indians showed the Pilgrims how to raise it, corn has been a solid prop of the nation's economy. A man no longer gets corn meal mush for breakfast; fried corn mush lathered with butter and maple syrup is out of fashion.

Someone should start a crusade for more corn chowders. The amalgamation of cream-style corn, rich milk, onions, potatoes and the right blending of pepper and salt, tempered judiciously by fried onions and herbs is satisfying fuel on a cold winter night. Here is a formula that is hard to beat.

Use four medium potatoes in small chunks, four medium onions sliced, two tablespoons butter or margarine, one eighth pound butter or margarine, two two-cup size cans of cream corn, one quart whole milk, one half cup light cream, one and a half teaspoons salt, one eighth teaspoon pepper, one fourth teaspoon parsley flakes, one eighth teaspoon thyme, one eighth teaspoon marjoram.

Fry the onions until brown in the two tablespoons butter. Cook the cubed potatoes for 15 minutes. Use one half cup of potato water to rinse out the corn cans. Warm milk and cream in a large pan and add potatoes, onions, corn, other butter, herbs, salt and pepper. Heat to piping hot but do not boil. Set aside to cool and let the chowder meditate a couple of hours. Reheat to piping hot just before eating. That, fellow citizens, is corn chowder, and before you make a speech because this is made without salt pork, try it and see what you think of its flavor.

IT'S NICE, BUT DON'T STEP BACK TO ADMIRE IT...

The 1963 crime series

Looney larcenies leave little loot; law laughs last, at times

By MEADER G. PATTINGTON

The 1963 produced some outstanding oddities in the theft department.

In Alexandria, La., thieves cleaned out one home, including the kitchen sink. And, in Milpitas, Calif., someone walked off with the town's jail, a trailerlike affair on wheels.

A Denver thief, who apparently thought big, took an earth mover, 22 feet long, 10 feet high, 10 feet wide, painted bright yellow. To add on to the large items, a 15-by-25-foot signboard weighing 1,000 pounds was removed from its foundations in Chattanooga, Tenn. And a three-room display house was stolen in Mobile, Ala., along with a German shepherd dog purchased as a watchdog.

Another thief in Los Angeles was arrested for stealing a bus, remarking that he had always wanted to drive something big. And, for the third time in four years, a man in Baltimore was arrested for stealing an airplane.

An auto thief returned a stolen car to a man in San Diego after using it a month, and complained in a wordy letter that it needed new spark plugs, a wheel alignment, a new radio and that the back seat was very uncomfortable. A careless thief in Los Angeles threw suede jackets out of a store window. Two policemen, after getting out from under the pile, made the arrest.

A widow in Buffalo had $8 taken from her cash register. However, the gunman had given her a $10 bill for a purchase, which she kept. Net profit: $2.

Some burglars have an odd sense of humor. In Wichita, Kan., a burglar stole liquor from a home, then proceeded to cut off the left legs of 17 pairs of trousers.

Ice box raiders at Hutchinson, Kan., really hit something besides food. They found $2,400 in stocks, four valuable rings, plus important papers. The owner said he used the refrigerator as a strongbox because it was insulated and nearly fireproof.

Food was very much in the 1963 larceny spotlight. In Tucson, Ariz., a returning couple found burglars eating ice cream and drinking milk in their kitchen. Yeggs opened a vault in a Fort Worth, Tex., lumber company. The net take, one pie: placed there for safekeeping by the manager. Another group in Topeka, Kan., looted a home and invited in a stray cat for some milk. And, on the second time for stealing a jar of olives, a thief in Wichita, Kan., was sent to jail for a year.

Some thieves had a rough time of it. In San Francisco, one was scared off from his attempted crime when the owner of an apartment threw his master's home and then bit the policeman sent to investigate the crime. In Spartanburg, S.C., a tire company had eight tires, money and the company's watchdog taken.

And two prisoners escaping from a work farm near Wheeling, W. Va., took the prison bloodhound along with them. A dognaper in Lawmen came in for their share of 1963 troubles when a thief stole the battery from a police cruiser in St. Louis. A judge in Albany, N.Y., lost his car. However, two policemen at Coon Rapids, Minn., finding a gasoline can standing at the rear of their police car, arrested the man underneath who was stealing gasoline.

Police in Phoenix, Ariz., surrounded a motel and demanded through a loud-speaker that a bandit surrender. In addition to the wanted man two others sought for burglary walked out. The surprised pair thought the police were after them.

Animals were in the 1963 larceny news. At LaPlace, La., thieves stole 150 alligators from a snake farm. And at Albuquerque, N.M., the loot consisted of seven baby skunks, a baby coyote and a monkey. But the most twisty job was in the stealing of the entire stock of a worm farm near Jacksonville, Fla.

Gerald Waring REPORTING

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Pearson's problem now, with two Quebec vacancies in the cabinet, is to find men who will further identify the Pearson administration with the spirit of reform that is the driving force of Liberalism in Quebec.

The fact that Mr. Pearson did not announce the names of his new ministers of justice and the post office at the time he announced that Lionel Chevrier and Azellus Denis would be leaving the cabinet is significant. But just what it signifies isn't clear. It could mean that the new Quebec ministers are not yet in the House of Commons; that the PM intends to bring in one or more "outsiders" who will contest the by-elections in Montreal-Laurier and Montreal-St. Denis on Feb. 10.

On the other hand, it could mean that Mr. Pearson proposes to make further changes in his cabinet — perhaps a reshuffle of portfolios keyed by moving Immigration Minister Favreau to the justice ministry. It is interesting to note too that some wood dealer than Mr. Denis still remains in the cabinet.

If Mr. Pearson does embark on a major shakeup, perhaps with one or two additional resignations from the cabinet, it might well include taking in an "outsider," even though this would certainly put some Liberal MP's noses out of joint. But this would depend on the Grits getting a candidate whose prestige would add strength to the cabinet, and no "big names" have yet been suggested.

While the pre-Christmas rumors concerning the impending departure of Chevrier and Denis proved well-founded, it is now confirmed that both men wanted to go. Chevrier will become high commissioner to Britain, and not ambassador to France. He has been bugging Pearson for the London post, and from Pearson's point of view the appointment of a French-Canadian to London should be a political plus with Quebec voters.

I am reliably informed that Denis had not wanted the responsibility and work of a cabinet portfolio, and there had been an understanding that he would be released and appointed to the Senate at an early date. It is perhaps not entirely coincidental that this occurred at a time when his patronage activities had made him a target for the opposition.

Their imminent departure from cabinet focuses speculation on four Quebec MPs as potential cabinet timber: Jean-Luc Pepin, parliamentary secretary to Trade Minister Sharp; Yvon Dupuis, parliamentary secretary to State Secretary Pickersgill; Maurice Sauve, MP for Iles-de-la-Madeleine, and Guy Rouleau, MP for Montreal-Dollard.

Pepin and Sauve are bright young men who identify with the "rebellion" in Quebec. Dupuis' main asset in his great ability as a fire-snorting orator in the traditional French-Canada style. He battled Sauve last spring for a cabinet seat that neither got, and no love is lost between them. Rouleau is ambitious and eager, and has the advantage of representing a Montreal riding at a time when Montreal is losing two cabinet ministers.

Sauve is the most brilliant of the lot, but he has not won the trust of his new political colleagues at Ottawa. One reason is his overweening egotism: after the election he let it be known that he would not accept a parliamentary secretaryship. He wanted "the cabinet or nothing."

Few young MPs have had a wish granted so quickly. Miami, telephoned the owner and asked him for the dog's diet.

The year's meanest thieves were probably those who broke into a man's apartment and stole his wooden leg. A man in Peoria, Ill., after installing a burglar alarm, had it stolen almost immediately. And a friendly thief in Homewood, Pa., shook hands like a long-lost friend. After he left, the hand-shaker realized that his $245 diamond ring was gone.

Some years, it seems, you just can't win. (NEA).

To influence foreign policy

Canada has stake in 2 meetings

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's foreign policy for years to come will be influenced by two major conferences in Geneva in the first half of 1964.

One is the so-called Kennedy round with its target of across-the-board tariff reductions. The other is the United Nations trade and economic conference due to begin in June.

Canada's stake in both is big — so big, that it shows the extent to which commercial considerations are coming to determine her international policies, rather than the other way round.

Atop the delays in preparing for the Kennedy round, there are doubts whether the conflicts in Europe, especially within the Common Market, can be resolved in time to give the conference a good chance of success.

Incidentally, while Prime Minister Pearson's visit to President de Gaulle in January may be significant on other counts — notably NATO military questions — there is little optimism in Ottawa that he can mediate the internal tariff conflict in Europe. Even the United States is given little chance of that.

Should the Kennedy round fail, both Canada and the United States would find themselves left with less-than-bright long-term trade prospects on the other side of the Atlantic. They could be virtually locked out of some markets.

Such a development could mean another big crunch in Canada-U.S. relations, for both countries then would have to look again to trade in the Americas to ease their own balance-of-payments difficulties.

And it was just such problems — and the snappish counter-suggestions that they were being solved at each other's expense — that led to the almost continuous dust-up between Washington and Ottawa in the last eight months in 1963.

In retrospect, however, there was another factor in that friction, which developed not only on investment and dividend tax policies but over wheat-pricing, Great Lakes labor strife, defence-production sharing and trade in automobiles.

It was identified by observers here as the rapid-action philosophy of the minority Liberal government in the early weeks after it took office in April, and its effort to wring out solutions of outstanding problems with the United States before Ottawa-Washington communications became more or less paralyzed by the U.S. presidential election slated for the fall of 1964.

Now, with the transition from the Kennedy to the Johnson presidency, another element has actually advanced what Canadians felt was coming anyway — a temporary hiatus in relations with the U.S.

The impact of the other Geneva conference will be broader. Its object, as seen here, is to improve the living standards of the less-developed countries, not so much by grants and loans but through trade.

Obvious problems are restrictions on, and discrimination against, the basic export of commodities of tropical countries. Internal taxes on some of the tropical beverages, for example, are as high as 100 per cent in parts of Europe.

Canada feels it can be a little self-righteous in this regard. It has been a leading exponent of commodity agreements — notably the one already signed on coffee, and the effort at year-end to reach some agreement on sugar.

And, in addition, Canada is practically a free market for virtually all tropical products. Its tariffs are either negligible or have been wiped out altogether, so that Canada has one of the most liberal import regimes in the world in this respect.

Hence, Canada may have a leading role in the UN conference.

But there is apprehension in Ottawa that, while the industrialized nations try to concentrate their efforts on expanding trade of the less-developed nations, the have-nots may make success difficult by dwelling on aid instead.

Late in 1963, Canada's federal aid abroad was stepped up. While outright grants will be increased $20,000,000 in the year starting April 1, another $50,000,000 will take the form of long-term loans. They will raise foreign aid to between $180,000,000 and $190,000,000.

Some additional lending also was planned through the Inter-American Development Bank — a move that was seen as the first step toward Canadian membership, long sought by other members, in the Organization of American States.

Here again, trade considerations will loom large — large enough, most observers feel, to outweigh the financial burden that goes with OAS membership and the inconvenience and annoyance of becoming involved in troubled Latin politics.

In all these ways, the commercial emphasis in Ottawa is brought home.

Only a short time ago, there were two theories here on how to relax world tensions. One was to make an assault on political problems and thus hope to create an atmosphere for disarmament. The other, the line taken by Howard Green when he was Conservative external affairs minister, was to concentrate first on disarmament in hope of a political detente.

Destroying old aircraft peace aid

If Russia eventually agrees to join the United States in its suggested plan to destroy obsolete aircraft in a symbolic "bomber bonfire," the gesture will have little significance as far as the two super-powers are concerned.

There will be no fundamental change in the relative strength or position of either nation. The U.S. no longer needs its B-47 long-range nuclear bombers, and Russia can easily dispense with its Badgers. Both have been outmoded by advances in missile technology.

There are, nevertheless, two ways in which the world could gain by this type of friendly co-operation.

First, it would be another way in which the U.S. and Russia could make a contribution to further thaw in the Cold War. Any move in this direction can have value even if it doesn't have deep significance.

Even more important, destruction of the bombers would place them out of the reach of lesser powers which still regard them as first-rate weapons. Use of a squadron of B-47 or Badger bombers — obsolete in the arsenal of the U.S. or Russia — by a belligerent small power could be the spark that ignites another world conflagration.

By deciding to take these weapons permanently out of circulation, the two big powers would be showing the rest of the world that their peace-keeping aims have real meaning.

The Royal Commission on Bilingualism and Biculturalism has acted gracefully in putting within its terms of consideration the first inhabitants of Canada.

The Indians and Eskimos were for years the forgotten peoples of Canada and never more forgotten than in the present anxiety over national unity.

The commissioners, in a working paper giving their interpretation of their mandate, note that various cultures have contributed to the development of Canada and must be respected and safeguarded although not being given official recognition. The paper continues:

"But there is also a prior contribution that all the others followed: that of the first inhabitants of the

Year of predicted prosperity for Canada greeted in fine style across the country

A year of predicted prosperity dawned for Canada Wednesday and Canadians ushered it in in style—eating, drinking and enjoying themselves.

They weren't paying too much attention to the economists, who say 1964 will be a rich year. They were less concerned with traditional matters—the spanking of the new born, the toast at midnight, the Happy New Year tooted on a horn.

Certainly not a sedate beginning for a year that will be anything but sedate.

For one thing, it has an extra day—366. It is, also, the funny year when the girls are supposed to chase the men.

WEATHER, BABIES, DEATH At any rate, here's how it started:

The weather—Snow in the East, snarling traffic in Toronto and Montreal; balmy weather in the West; a high in Winnipeg near 40; a snow storm in the Maritimes; mild and wet at the West Coast.

Babies—Two boys, born at the stroke of midnight: for Mrs. Jean Bertin of Montreal, a son weighing seven pounds, 14 ounces; for Mrs. Brian McGowan of Hull, Que., a son weighing seven pounds, eight ounces.

Deaths—13 on the highways, nine from other causes.

In the capitals of the 10 provinces the lieutenant-governors, representatives of the Queen, turned out in morning coat for members of Polar bear clubs their New Year's levees. In Ontario and Alberta, long-standing tradition was broken when non-military women attended the receptions.

U.S. must fight the Viet Cong way if South Viet Nam war to be won

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE

SAIGON (AP) — "The hard core Viet Cong is probably the best fighting man in South Viet Nam, and we're going to have to start fighting the Viet Cong's war if we're going to beat him."

This comment came from a senior American military adviser stationed here, who requested that his name be withheld. It probably was the bluntest assessment of enemy strength yet from any American official here.

"We've cut some of his advantages with modern equipment, such as helicopters, but when he chooses to fight he has the advantage," the officer said.

"He digs the right kind of hole in the right place. He forces us to manoeuvre in plain sight, while he is perfectly hidden. His use of camouflage and the discipline of his troops are superb. To defeat one of his strong points, you must either be very lucky or accept losses, perhaps five government troops to every one of his.

TERRAIN IS PROBLEM

"The best way to get him is to surround him under cover of darkness, wear him down, and force him into hand-to-hand combat. But in this terrain, it's very hard to do that.

"The advantages swing our way when we have good intelligence and good luck, and exploit every break we get."

What makes the Viet Cong such a dangerous adversary?

"It's partly ideology. He's a fanatic. But it's also a question of discipline. He exploits every little thing that can work in his favor, and these little things add up to a big advantage.

"He is always willing to dig, and dig deep, so his fortifications are very hard to clean out. He is willing to undergo all kinds of rigors. He has to survive."

ATTACK AT WILL

"The Vietnamese Army is primarily a French-trained army, and traditional American military training is not suitable to Viet Nam. There still are hundreds of indefensible government outposts all over the country that are really nothing more than supply depots for the Viet Cong. Any time he needs some weapons or a few grenades, he can knock one over."

"Most of all, it's discipline and careful attention to all the little details of guerrilla warfare that we lack."

"There's no reason why our troops can't do the same things, ambushing Viet Cong patrols at night, for example, or planting mines along their supply lines. There's nothing wrong with Vietnamese soldiers and there's nothing wrong with their officers. It's the system of warfare that's at fault."

Nickel consumed at record level during past year

TORONTO (CP) — Consumption of nickel in the free world reached a record level in 1963 but it still has not caught up with production capacity, Henry S. Wingate, chairman of International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd., says in a year-end statement.

As a result, research to find new uses for nickel and development of new markets remains important to the industry.

Consumption of nickel in the free world in 1963 is estimated at 525,000,000 pounds, an increase of 50,000,000 pounds over 1962.

But production capacity of the industry stands at 640,000,000 pounds, with Canada capable of turning out about 80 per cent of that total.

Mr. Wingate said the United States, Japan and the European Common Market were the areas where the best gains were made in 1963 in selling nickel.

Potential increases in the use of nickel now under investigation include applications in making ultra-high-strength steel, promotion of nickel stainless steel and development of nickel powders and expansion of their markets.

South's jump to three no-trump is not recommended. His hand is worth a no-trump bid, but two no-trump is sufficient.

I was sitting South and it was close to the end of a long session. I had intended to bid two no-trump, but the number three came out of my mouth and I was at least one trick too high.

On the other hand, I did have something going for me. My opponents would think that I had a better hand than I did. Sometimes mistakes don't cost you anything. Had I bid two no-trump the hand would have played there. My partner who had opened a minimum of minimums would have passed and we would not have reached the game that I made with the friendly aid of both East and West.

West started with the unfriendly lead of the queen of West shifted to the three of hearts and the jack, king and ace were played. I led the 10 of diamonds. West dropped the seven of spades and I played low from dummy.

Now came the next bit of help. East took his jack and returned the king. West completed his spade signal by dropping the three. I took dummy's

Take it from Kathy

By KATHY PETERSON

Dear Kathy: I have a friend, 13, who finds fault with everything and everyone. I like her at first but she takes all the fun out of things. Who can help her?—Upset.

Dear Upset: Thirteen is early for your friend to be religious with a woeful state. We all have our sad moments and don't get everything we want. But she is going to be a miserable adult if she doesn't change her present attitude.

There is little you can do except suggest she take her problems to an adult — a teacher, minister or priest, or a sympathetic relative. You should not be her wailing wall.

Dear Kathy: I find it difficult to talk with boys. I don't know much about sports or cars or other interests they seem to have. My grades are good and I'm fairly attractive, but I sure sound like a dummy on a date. —Jeanne.

Dear Jeanne: The mark of a good conversationalist is being able to juggle many topics. But, this takes a lot of reading, listening and practice. So, start now. Fortunately, the fellows are easy targets because the male ego is unbelievable. Many also are shy and need priming.

Just ask them to share their superior knowledge with you. And listen.

Kipling's letter preserved name of Medicine Hat

MEDICINE HAT, Alta. (CP) — This southern Alberta city is still called Medicine Hat because Rudyard Kipling favored the name.

In a leaf from the history of Canadiana, it goes this way: In 1910, newcomers to the booming centre started a move to change the city's name and succeeded in obtaining approval for a plebiscite.

Oldtimers felt it would be absurd to change the city's distinctive name, a translation from the Cree word for the district.

"I wish that Rudyard Kipling knew of this," said one of them. "He would lay the hide off these blighters."

So Francis F. Fatt, postmaster, was selected to write to the famous British author, who had visited here three years earlier.

Kipling's reply was contained in a letter so intense that the question of holding a plebiscite was dropped.

The city's name, wrote Kipling, echoes "the old Cree and Blackfoot tradition of red mystery and romance that once filled the prairies."

"Also, it hints, I venture to think, at the magic that underlies the city in the shape of your natural gas. Believe me, the very name is an asset, and as years go on will become more and more of an asset."

The name had the "qualities of uniqueness, individuality, assertion and power."

"Above all, it is the lawful, original, sweat-and-dust-won name of the city, and to change it would be to risk the luck of the city, to disgust and dishearten the oldtimers, not in the city alone, but all over the world, and to advertise abroad the city's lack of faith in itself."

TEXTURE WILL PLAY a decisive role in determining the new look for the Spring of 1964, judging from styles to be previewed in the National Collection of Union Label Fashions in Montreal tomorrow. For the show, regarded as the weather vane of Canadian ready-to-wear, Van Brit of Vancouver teams a dual-weave pink and grey double-knit suit with a soft pink jerkin of suede. For the second consecutive season, Canadian-made fashions are being previewed in advance of the New York press showings.

The clothes poll

by Helen Hennessy

From what I've seen when I do my weekend shopping, the standard supermarket ensemble is pants, sloppy flats, a tired jacket and a kerchief big enough to go over hair rollers. And it puzzles me. Why this peculiar assortment of garments?

Last week a woman sporting her version of the "uniform" had a firm grip on a shopping cart with one hand and on a toddler with the other. A cigarette was clamped in one side of her mouth.

This vision of dainty femininity was loudly berating a man who hadn't held the door open for her.

Men, as a rule, aren't rude to women—especially to attractive women. But we can't hope to be treated gallantly if we dress to look like so many unmade beds and act as though we could easily hold our own in a wrestling match.

Shopping is a tiring chore. No one expects us to don satin and lace to go forth for Sunday's chicken. But there's a world of difference between casual, comfortable attire and sloppy dress. Unfortunately some of us have overlooked this obvious fact.

A woman who wants respect and admiration from the men she encounters must first develop some respect for herself. Certainly no one needs a cigarette so badly that she must puff away even when both hands are occupied.

There's no valid excuse for leaving the house with a head full of hardware, tied up in a scarf. A simple skirt and sweater are more comfortable than tight pants and a lot more attractive. And broken-down flats should be replaced by good-looking walking shoes before they ruin your feet.

Any woman can get decently dressed in 15 minutes. So lack of time can't be the reason for this awful get-up that has become the shopper's uniform.

It may be a man's world, but we don't have to dress like Rosie the Riveter to hold our place in it.

Chic Chat

Q—"I have large hips, a small waist and narrow shoulders. I know I should reduce my hips, but in the meantime what new silhouette can I buy that will make my figure look more balanced?"—J. L.

Dear J. L.—Stay away from the new bias cuts. They will make your hips look bigger. Wear overblouses so as not to point up the difference between your small waist and large hips. The blouses should have wide rolled collars or middie collars to widen your shoulder line. Your skirts can be either straight but loose, or they can have straight hanging pleats. That should do the trick until you get on that diet.

VEGE-CLAM SOUP

Hot soup is ideal for a cold winter day. As a matter of fact it's the "ideal" for any day. To a can of condensed vegetable soup add a cup of bottled clam juice; heat and serve piping hot. Three generous servings.

Farmer's potato pie with that homemade flavor

Far from what some misanthropic folks proclaim, the taste for good food is not dying. In fact, there are probably more gourmets and gourmands now than ever before. We have developed the finest meats and herbs, fruits and vegetables. And thanks to conveniences unknown to our ancestors, we can avail ourselves of these foods plus the recipes and preparation time that combine to produce superb meals.

With a recipe from home economists, you can whisk together in minutes a delicious potato-cheese pie that would have taken your grandmother a whole day to prepare. Dehydrated sliced potatoes are the secret... cutting preparation time while still providing the flavour of finest Canadian potatoes. You'll naturally want to keep a few packages of the dehydrated sliced potatoes on hand all through the holidays.

...all through the year. Serve them simply, according to package directions or combine them with other favoured foods.

We call this dish Farmer's Potato Pie, for it's rich and filling and has that old-fashioned homemade flavour. But that doesn't exclude suburbanites and city dwellers from enjoying it as a delightful change from traditional holiday foods.

FARMER'S POTATO PIE
(Makes 6 servings)

- 12 cups dehydrated sliced potatoes
- 2 cups creamed cottage cheese
- 2 eggs
- 1/2 cup dairy sour cream
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
- 1 medium onion, thinly sliced
- 9-inch unbaked pie shell
- 3 slices bacon, diced and cooked crisp
- 1 tablespoon chopped parsley

Cook potatoes according to package directions; drain, cool slightly. Beat cottage cheese until smooth or strain through sieve. Beat in eggs, then sour cream, salt and nutmeg. Fold

- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon dry mustard
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- Flour
- 3/4 cup fine dry bread crumbs
- Salad oil for deep frying
- Zesty Tomato Sauce*
- Mix together beef, potatoes, 1 egg, onion, parsley and seasonings. Cover and chill thoroughly. Shape into 1 1/2 balls; roll in flour. Dip in remaining egg, beaten; then roll in bread crumbs. Chill. Fry meat balls in deep oil heated to 375° until golden brown, about 2 minutes. Drain on paper towels.

Serve as is or with Zesty Tomato Sauce. Mix contents of 1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce with 1/4 teaspoon Worcestershire, 1 teaspoon thinly-sliced lemon peel and 2 tablespoons water. Heat slowly; simmer 2 minutes.

Polly's pointers

DEAR POLLY — One of our sisters-in-law lives far from friends and family so when she was expecting her first child, I dreamed up the idea of a parcel post shower. Her sister and I made a list of names and addresses of interested friends and also a typical layette list. These were mailed around to the selected friends with instructions to cross off one's name and the item she would send so there would be no duplicates. Also each was to see that the next person on the list received the letter. Each donor mailed her gift to arrive on a specific date about two months before the expected birth. This young mother-to-be was both surprised and delighted with the "showers" and reported that her excitement extended to her landlady and even the mailman.—MRS. E. L. F.

DEAR POLLY — The flat plastic covers that come on certain food items make excellent out-of-doors toys. Collect several, initial them and use for competitive games. Simply sail them through the air to hit a target or even to just see whose goes farthest.—MRS. R. R.

DEAR POLLY — Decorating a child's room or kitchen with decals can be quite an expensive project if decals are used lavishly. Buy, by the yard, plastic-coated, adhesive-backed paper or juvenile or other appropriate designs. Cut out the pictures and apply as many to furniture, walls or cabinets as your heart desires and for very little money.—MRS. L.

DEAR POLLY — To entertain my 3-month-old baby, I made a gadget to stretch across her crib. I took a scrap of denim and doubled it to make a strong strap 1-inch wide and 38-inches long, finished. I attached gripper snaps at each end so it would stretch tightly and inserted five belt eyelets about 4 inches apart along the strap. In the eyelets I put five small hinged rings. Baby's rattles and toys are attached to these rings. They are easily changed for variety. I also replaced the buckle on baby's infant seat with gripper snaps. It is much quicker to get baby in and out of the seat and holds just as securely.—L. W. C.

GIRLS — Two gripper snaps could be put on the seat strap about an inch or two apart, for extra safety.—POLLY

Just not his nature

Among a list of things the ideal husband should do, expressed by women polled in a recent survey, was this wishful desire: that a husband should know how to pull his wife out of the dumps when she gets into them.

Grown women ought to know better than to expect that kind of intuitive understanding of another's moods and what to do about them from a man—just because he happens to be a husband.

For the ability to sense when another person is in a low mood and the willingness to try hard to bring the person out of it is a feminine, not a masculine, asset.

A truly feminine woman is well attuned to a man's moods. If she cares about him, she seems to know instinctively how to cope with them. She knows whether she should be quiet, or try to get him to talk out a problem, or whether to leave him alone or to think up something to take his mind off his troubles.

But a man reacts differently to a woman's moods. If he happens to notice that she is downhearted, he wants a quick answer to his blunt, "What's the matter with you, anyhow?"

When he is told, he expects any simple solution he offers to take care of the matter, and he doesn't care to hear any more about it. Much less does he want to sit around while his wife mopes, trying his best to find some way to brighten her mood.

His natural impulse when his wife is out of sorts or down in the dumps is to get away and stay away until she is once again a cheerful companion.

So it's kind of foolish for women, even when talking of the ideal husband, to expect from a man something that is entirely foreign to his nature.

A Public Trust

Daily newspapers regard their advertising space as a public trust, just as they recognize the responsibility they owe the public to report the news accurately and impartially.

Canadian newspapers will not knowingly publish false or misleading advertising. Or advertising that violates accepted standards of ethics or good taste. To protect these standards, newspapers scrutinize the advertising they receive in the same way that they might investigate the reliability of news sources.

Indeed, Canadian newspapers turn down many mil-ions of dollars worth of advertising each year because it doesn't meet these standards. Last year alone, for example, one metropolitan daily rejected over $300,000 worth of advertising space.

What does this mean to you? It's your assurance that the products advertised in your local newspaper are fairly represented. You can buy them with confidence. Just as you can be sure that the news columns of that paper report the facts objectively. It's something to keep in mind the next time you pick up your daily newspaper.

'The stakes are too high'

Disinterested US gets shelters

WASHINGTON (CP) — While diplomats talk of peace and the declining arms race, United States civil defence authorities are pushing ahead with expansion of a national fallout shelter program amid signs of increasing public disinterest.

So far, the main effort has been in finding and stocking buildings that could provide some measure of temporary protection against the poisonous byproducts of nuclear wars. But Assistant Defence Secretary Stuart Pittman says much more must be done. And he feels that Congress and the federal government must show leadership even though there may be widespread disinterest and even some hostility toward shelters in some communities. "Regardless of how one rates the chances of a nuclear war," he says, "the stakes are too high to ignore any practical measures to minimize the destruction."

JOB PROGRESSES

Space in existing buildings that could provide shelter for 104,000,000 persons threatened by nuclear fallout has been recorded. And the job of stocking these buildings with dried biscuits, water, sanitation kits, medical kits and radiation detection instruments is moving ahead.

By HAROLD MORRISON

Space for some 20,000,000 persons has been stocked and Pittman estimates he will have a total of 50,000,000 stocked by the end of 1964.

"That doesn't satisfy me," he said in an interview. "My eventual aim is to provide 240,000,000 shelter spaces—enough for our population of 190,000,000 around-the-clock basis, no matter where they are."

Pittman says he realizes that achieving his aims in the present mood of "resistance" in some civilian quarters is a tough proposition. His most immediate objective is a piecemeal approach—trying to get Congress to agree to a one-year program under which federal funds would be used to encourage more shelter construction in public buildings through federal payment of part of the construction costs.

This proposed $190,000,000 project has been approved by the House of Representatives but has not yet been approved by the Senate. Congressional progress has been slowed by lack of public enthusiasm combined with growing demands for economy in government spending.

CHANGED MOOD

The mood is in sharp contrast to the near-panic for shelters that existed at the time of the Berlin crisis in 1961 and the Cuban nuclear threat in 1962. At that time some Americans talked of building shelters secretly and shooting their neighbors if they tried to get in.

But Pittman says responsible officials cannot wait for another crisis to stir up public response. The time to build the shelter program is during a time of peace. This would prevent panic in time of crisis and would save countless millions of lives if nuclear bombs should strike.

"The Soviet Union is doing a lot more than we are doing," he adds. "The Soviet shelter program is a long-term, continuous effort to build up a wide range of different types of shelters."

While the Canadian government has made no policy announcement on public shelters, a survey of some 4,000 federal buildings in Canada as possible public shelters has been completed and surveys by the provinces and municipalities are continuing. Perhaps between 3,000 and 4,000 shelters have been built privately in Canada, the Emergency Measures Organization estimates.

IDEAS STUDIED

"We know the Canadians are studying the shelter program, though their government hasn't been doing much to encourage construction," Pittman says. "However, the Canadian Army's civil defence survival mission is attracting a lot of attention in the Pentagon and we are moving toward adoption of some of the Canadian ideas."

Pittman finds that more activity is going on among North Atlantic allies and other countries in Europe. "Six European countries have either new or long-standing mandatory shelter programs," he has told Congress. "Countries which have surpassed the U.S. in civil defence organization, training and shelter development are Sweden, Norway, Finland, Denmark, The Netherlands and Switzerland. Countries with mandatory shelter programs under consideration are Germany, Belgium and Portugal."
