Democrats crush Republican drive, retain Congress control

WASHINGTON (CP)—Crushing a Republican drive, Democrats retained control over Congress for the next two years in a cross-current U.S. election where Republican Richard M. Nixon apparently bit the dust in California while his party seized control over other big industrial states.

It was an election without a clear pattern, producing major breaches of party strongholds. Personalities and policies of individual candidates seemed to have a greater impact on voter decisions than Cuba, Negro rights and other national issues.

The big Republican star was New York Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller who walked away with a second four-year term as head of the country's biggest state. His victory and Nixon's evident defeat in the California governorship race appeared to make Rockefeller a front-runner for the 1964 Republican presidential nomination.

ROMNEY WINS MICHIGAN

But the New York multi-millionaire probably will have plenty of competition from other bright new political stars. Former auto - maker George Romney, in his first political contest, scored an upset to win the Michigan governorship. In Pennsylvania, another wealthy tycoon, rookie Congressman William Scranton, beat Democrat Richardson Dilworth, former Philadelphia mayor, for control of that big industrial state.

In Ohio, where President Kennedy had given personal support to Democratic Governor Michael DiSalle, voters snubbed the roly-poly party veteran in favor of Republican state auditor James Rhodes who now takes over the state for the next four years.

The Democrats suffered a stunning defeat in Oklahoma, which had been a party stronghold since the state entered the union 55 years ago. A 41-year-old Republican wheat farmer, Henry Bellmon, took over as governor.

In fact, Kennedy's big personal drive to crack a congressional coalition of southern Democrats and right-wing Republicans and get more liberal-type legislators into Congress seemed a flop.

VOTERS TURN AWAY

In some of the states where he intervened with speech-making and hand-shaking, voters simply turned the other way. And in places where he didn't appear—such as the old Republican strongholds of Vermont and New Hampshire — voters pulled a surprise and pushed the Republicans out.

Unemployment and lack of opportunity may have been on the minds of Vermonters, Republicans for more than a century. In New Hampshire, family feuding among the Republicans may have been instrumental in turning a 40-year tide.

The president scored in Massachusetts where his younger brother, 30-year-old Teddy, got the president's old Senate seat with a thumping margin over Republican George Cabot Lodge. The Kennedys and Lodges have been feuding in Massachusetts for 46 years. This will be the first time in

Police probe vandalism at camp

STOKE LAKE — (Staff) — Richmond Provincial Police today began an investigation into acts of vandalism that occurred at the St. Pat's Old Boys Camp here where four of the buildings on the premises were ransacked over the weekend, and an estimated $500 damage caused.

The vandals pried the door open to the camp directors residence, smashed several panes of glass on the inside of the building, tore out the porcelain toilet bowl and split it in half, littered the place with small cardboard boxes and a variety of other objects and left the inside a complete shambles.

The main dining hall was also damaged. Flour and rice were dumped on the floor, various liquids were spilled on the linoleum, molasses and sugar were spread about freely and a variety of articles such as paper cups, first aid supplies, candles and bottles were scattered around the room.

Just outside this dining hall the intruders pulled a telephone pole to the ground and ripped off a string of colored lights that had been strung between the pole and the eating quarters.

Damage to two other buildings on the grounds was less serious. However the cook's living quarters was left in a messy condition a few panes of glass were shattered in a fourth cabin.

In addition to the destruction that they inflicted on the camp property the intruders also walked off with a good quantity of the camp's moveables.

A sleeping bag, mattresses, baseball bats, some softballs and several other smaller objects were stolen from the director's hut; while two electric clocks and a toaster were taken from the dining hall.

The trespassers also broke into the Camp tool shed and stole some shovels, screwdrivers and a few hammers.

Henry Crochetiere, director of the boys camp, remarked that only one week prior to the raid, he had removed two water pumps, a sink, an electric water heater, and a refrigeration unit.

Mr. Crochetiere said that the first person to discover the mess at the camp was a part-time handyman named Sam Boisvert.

Mr. Boisvert, who occasionally drops by to look the camp over, happened to be passing near the camp on Monday morning when he noticed that the wooden entrance gate was wide-open.

His suspicions were further aroused when he saw that it had been hacked open.

On Saturday afternoon of the same weekend, a farmer in the area, Sebastien Lieutenant spotted the lights burning in the camp dining room, but because he thought that there was a party going on among the St. Pat's members, he did not bother to investigate further.

PRETORIA (Reuters) — Nelson Mandela, 44-year-old former underground leader of the banned African National Congress Party, today was sentenced to five years in jail for incitement and illegally leaving South Africa.

A special court sentenced Mandela to three years on the incitement charge and two years for leaving the country.

The court magistrate said there was no doubt Mandela, known as "the Black Pimpernel" because of the way in which he eluded police for more than a year, was "organizer, mouthpiece and mastermind" behind a nation-wide strike of African workers in May, 1961.

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The U.S. drive to get Soviet offensive weapons out of Cuba and international inspection of the withdrawal appeared today to have taken a critical turn.

U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson said after a five-hour meeting Tuesday night with Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuzentsov, "this one was not fruitful."

"The missiles are moving out and the talks are moving on," Stevenson said. But he gave no indication that the missiles and jet bombers were leaving Cuban soil.

MONTREAL (CP)—The Seafarers' International Union of Canada is trying to repair its public image.

Under fire for weeks before the federal investigation into waterfront labor strife, the Seafarers' Union launched Tuesday what is shaping up as a determined attempt to refute, point by point, allegations made against it.

The technique of replying to the charges was to file documents — union minutes, correspondence, payroll sheets, convention proceedings and so on—designed to contradict, deny, or cast doubt on earlier evidence.

KRISHNA MENON
Criticized

TOKYO (AP) — Communist China announced today its readiness - under certain conditions - to withdraw its troops 12½ miles north of the McMahon line on the eastern sector of India's border.

The McMahon line, drawn by a British diplomat in 1914, is regarded by India as her border with Tibet, now occupied by Red China.

The two sides do not agree just where the McMahon line lies, however.

On the western sector of the border in Ladakh, Red China's Premier Chou En-lai said the line to which Red Chinese troops have advanced "coincides in the main with the traditional, customary line which has been consistently pointed out by China."

Nehru told the Congress Party executive today the key Indian post of Chusul, in southern Ladakh on the northwestern end of the disputed border, still was in Indian hands and was being well guarded.

An Indian defence ministry spokesman said Chinese reinforcements were arriving near Chusu—site of a key Indian airfield—in what was obviously the prelude to an offensive on the airfield.

Johnson speaks in Thetford

Would seek tariffs

QUEBEC (CP)—Daniel Johnson says a Union Nationale government would press Ottawa for higher tariffs and import quotas if Quebec industries need them.

Campaigning in Thetford Mines Tuesday night, the Union Nationale leader did not specify which industries might need such help, but added: "I'm certain the Social Crediters will cooperate with us."

He renewed his appeal to Social Crediters to help his party defeat the Liberal government of Premier Lesage in the Nov. 14 provincial election. Thetford Mines is in an Eastern Townships area that voted Social Credit in the last federal election.

Meanwhile, campaigning in the Montreal district, Mr. Lesage said his government believes that borrowings for capital expenditures are "an investment for the future."

He said borrowing encourages economic development, which in turn would mean higher income for the government. This added revenue would pay off the borrowings.

"We build for the future, and it is with the increased profits of the future that we will pay," he said.

This policy was contrary to that of the Union Nationale, which wanted to pay this year's capital works with this year's revenues.

Today, Mr. Lesage was in Quebec City for a rally tonight. Mr. Johnson campaigned in the Eastern Townships, with a rally scheduled in Sherbrooke at night.

Answering reporters' questions during a television press conference on the CBC French network, Mr. Lesage was asked whether public ownership of hydro power was worth the life of his government.

"I have never considered a defeat," he replied, "and what is going on now indicates a complete sweep."

On the issue, Mr. Johnson said in Donnacona, near Quebec City, that a Union Nationale government would appoint a cabinet committee to study the question.

The committee would include Jean-Jacques Bertrand and Armand Maltais, former Union Nationale cabinet ministers who have expressed support in principle for expropriation.

Mr. Johnson has not committed himself on the issue, but has promised a referendum not later than next June 30 on the question.

Meanwhile, Luke Dougherty, an independent candidate, said Tuesday night he opposes expropriation of private power companies because it will "make it hard to borrow money, stir up racial feeling, and cost us too much money."

War threat worsens in Middle East

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP)—The Middle East moved a step closer to an Arab shooting war today as Saudi Arabia accused the United Arab Republic of attacks by sea and air and massed troops to battle a threatened invasion.

Saudi Arabia announced it has broken diplomatic relations with Cairo in the deepening crisis touched off in September when a revolution backed by U.A.R. President Nasser toppled the monarchy in Yemen.

Saudi Arabia and Jordan, both monarchies, have been supporting royalist Yemeni warriors seeking to crush the revolution while the U.A.R. has been pouring men, planes and tanks into Yemen to back the republican regime.

Bond sales up

OTTAWA (CP)—Sales of Canada Savings Bonds are running well ahead of last year with individual purchases larger in both number and size, Finance Minister Nowlan reported Tuesday. Sales totalled $527,000,000 as of last Friday's close of business—28 per cent higher than at the comparable stage in 1961.

Menon resigns from post

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — Prime Minister Nehru today announced the resignation of Defence Production Minister V. K. Krishna Menon — replaced by Nehru last week as defence minister.

Nehru made the announcement at a meeting of the ruling Congress party here.

The announcement came after Menon had been the subject of mounting criticism for his handling of the smouldering Sino-Indian border war.

His critics had blamed him for the poor equipment supplied to India troops fighting on the border and said his attitude toward communism had lulled him and the nation into a false sense of security.

Eighteen of the 24 members of the ruling Congress party executive were reported to have signed a letter to Nehru urging Menon's withdrawal from the cabinet and referring to charges that India was unprepared to meet the Chinese offensive.

OFFERED RESIGNATION

Menon, a close friend and adviser of Nehru, offered to resign his defence ministry post verbally Oct. 26 and in writing Oct. 30. He was removed the next day and assigned to defence production.

Party sources quoted Menon as saying in the Oct. 30 letter that "in the situation which faces our country as the result of the unprovoked invasion of our territories by China, I submit that it is appropriate and necessary that the portfolio of defence be taken over by you."

Menon's defence production resignation come as an Indian defence official reported Indian troops had shelled Chinese reinforcements near Walong at the eastern end of the disputed northeast frontier.

He added that the Chinese troops were continuing to build up strength in Chusul, Ladakh, at the western end of the frontier. No fighting was reported there.

Royal opens on Friday

TORONTO (CP) — The traditionally high-toned Royal Agricultural Winter Fair will be officially opened Friday.

Judging of poultry, butter, cheese, honey and maple products has been under way since Monday, although results will not be made available until Thursday.

The fast pace of parties, receptions and other social affairs has started, and for the last week railway cars, vans and trucks have been arriving at the Canadian National Exhibition grounds with prize livestock.

More than 1,000 entries have been received in the field crops division, and the classes of pigs, horses, cows, chickens and other animals are also heavy this year.

Six countries have entered teams in the international equestrian competition this year.

Ireland, the United States, Mexico and Canada will have full teams in competition, and Italy and England have each entered a one-man team to compete for the individual riding championships.

Weakening in government support

PCs weather confidence votes

OTTAWA (CP)—The Progressive Conservative minority government weathered two more confidence tests Tuesday night in the Commons but there was a perhaps-significant weakening in the voting base on which it has relied to stay in office.

The Social Credit party, which in the last six weeks has united with the government against Liberal non-confidence motions, failed to do so this time.

Two Social Credit MPs voted with the Liberals and four others — including Deputy Leader Real Caouette—deliberately abstained as the motion was defeated 121 to 108. The remaining 15 Social Credit MPs present teamed up with 106 Conservatives against their two dissident colleagues, 91 Liberal members and 15 New Democrats.

Just before this, the Liberals had thrown their votes behind a Social Credit non-confidence motion—only to watch the New Democrats uphold the government. That count was 121 to 113 against the motion—technically, a Social Credit amendment to the main Liberal motion.

The eight-vote margin was the slimmest of seven confidence tests—including six opposition non-confidence motions — that the government has withstood since this Parliament of minorities opened Sept. 27.

The final lineup: 91 Liberals and 22 Social Credit in fabor of the motion, 106 Conservatives and 15 New Democrats against.

The galleries were packed for the roll-call voting, which lasted for 1½ hours including lengthy periods during which the government and opposition whips saw that all available hands were in their places.

Despite the crucial character of the votes, members were in a generally carefree mood, small groups of Liberals and Social Credit MPs singing Alouette and Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here while awaiting the first vote.

Another knot of Liberals sang Good Night Tories to the tune of Good Night Ladies.

SPURS INTEREST

Interest in the voting spurted during the House's dinner-hour adjournment when Mr. Caouette told a reporter that the 26 Social Credit MPs from Quebec might possibly vote with the Liberals. This statement held out the prospect of a government defeat since the New Democrats had already announced their intention of doing the same.

Mr. Caouette said the Quebec Social Credit group would caucus during the meal break and decide a course of action. However, the caucus never came off —though there seemed to be a lot of informal strategy talks on the Commons floor and in the wings before the votes were taken.

As it turned out, the only two Social Credit MPs who supported the Liberal motion were Gerard Lamy (St. Maurice-Lafleche) and Henri Latulippe (Compton-Frontenac).

Mr. Lamy said later that his vote did not indicate his support of the "Liberal rot that indebted our country for 22 years." He had voted against the "Conservative rot" that was doing the same thing now.

DECLINES COMMENT

Mr. Caouette declined to comment on his abstention or about whether it indicated a split between him and Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson, who voted with the government.

CRACKS SHOW IN SOCRED RANKS

OTTAWA (CP) — Tuesday night's dramatic votes in the Commons on two non-confidence motions showed up publicly the first cracks in the 30-member Social Credit ranks which nominally have been supporting the government.

Two Social Credit Quebec members—Gerard Lamy of St. Maurice-Lafleche and Henri Latulippe of Compton-Frontenac—bolted from their colleagues and supported the Liberal and New Democratic parties in opposing the government.

A few minutes later, there was a barbed exchange between House leaders Lionel Chevrier of the Liberals and Gordon Churchill of the Conservatives which demonstrated the significance of the event.

Asking Mr. Churchill to announce the program of business for today's debate, Mr. Chevrier remarked that the government now had a short lease on life.

Replying, Mr. Churchill said he thought the Liberals would want a relaxing day to reflect upon their own political situation.

LIBERALS CHEER

The Liberals whooped and hollered when the two back bench Social Credit MPs voted with them.

NDP Leader Douglas announced earlier that his group would vote with the Liberals—as it has in previous tests of confidence — but the Liberals need the support of Social Credit to topple the government.

The Liberals now are confident that with the first crack appearing in the Social Credit camp, they may soon get the majority they need to force the government into a new general election.

But the Conservatives believe the Liberals will be uncomfortable with Social Credit backing.

The Conservatives since last spring, when former CCF House Leader Hazen Argue defected to the Liberal ranks, have been putting the Liberals and NDP

Population is on the increase

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's estimated population rose to 18,683,000 at Oct. 6 of this year, with all provinces except Prince Edward Island reporting increases.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics said today that the Oct. 1 figure represented an increase of 326,000 compared with the corresponding date in 1961.

The population estimate at Oct. 1 also was 445,000 more than the figure for the June 1, 1961, census.

About Television

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—You may have wondered whatever became of Miss Frances, who once conducted Ding Dong School, a television program well regarded by experts in child-bearing. She has been appointed director of children's activities of the Curtis Publishing Company.

After the program was dropped by network television, Miss Frances—educationist Dr. Frances R. Horwich—tried to sell the program to individual stations with a modest degree of success. Now, apparently, she has retired from broadcasting—and at a time when all three networks say they are trying so hard to improve the quality of programming for small fry.

George Bernard Shaw's Pygmalion, with Julie Harris playing Eliza Doolittle, will be the NBC Hall of Fame show for February. The 90 minute adaption will be the fourth Shaw play in the series, and is one of his most famous—particularly since it was the story on which My Fair Lady was built into record-breaking Broadway hit.

CBS is warming up an hour-long version of Rod Serling's Twilight Zone for possible replacement of a faltering series or, perhaps, for next season.

NEW TREE-SEEDING GUN — Research forester John Walters demonstrates his unique version of a jack hammer, developed for planting tree seedlings. The seedling, in plastic bullets, is loaded into the vertical shaft. When the shaft is depressed the bullet is automatically pressed into the ground. Mr. Walters, a researcher at the University of British Columbia's 10,000-acre forest reserve near Haney, B.C., says plantings can run to 1,500 an hour compared with existing rates of 1,000 a day. Show Business

By BOB THOMAS

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Product-starved theatre exhibitors can look with some hope on the new do it yourself trend of film production in New York.

With Hollywood production on a constant decline for the last decade, theatre owners have had to scramble for new sources of movies. They have tried imports and reissues with fair success.

The sole U.S. feature entry at the San Francisco Film Festival was a film called David and Lisa. It is a case history of two emotionally upset young people and it cost $200,000.

The film's artistic merits were rated high by the festival audience.

The producer of David and Lisa, Paul Heller, explained how the film came to be.

FICTIONAL CASE HISTORY

Frank Perry, a stage director, and his wife Elenore, a script writer, had come across a fictional case history, Lisa and David, by Dr. Theodore Rubin. They bought the rights and Mrs. Perry fashioned a screen play They showed it to Frank Teller, a longtime friend who had been a television and film art director.

"Frank said he'd like to direct it as a movie, because he had never directed a film before," said Heller. "I decided I would produce it, because I had never produced a film before."

They went after anyone they could think of to raise money. Contributions ranged from $300 to $15,000. Heller said they might have been financed faster, but they declined big offers that would have undercut their artistic control.

"We were going to make it our way or not at all," the young film maker said resolutely.

They found a large mansion near Philadelphia that had once been used for a school. The film was shot there in five weeks.

Now Heller is in the happy position of entertaining offers from three big companies that want to release the film and order more.

Camera stirs up excitement in East Berlin

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Mr. and Mrs. Ferd Hayward have found there's nothing better than a camera to stir up excitement in Communist East Berlin.

The Haywards visited East Berlin last summer after attending the Lions International convention in Nice, France.

Mr. Hayward said he made up his mind to photograph the Brandenburg Gate "from the wrong side of the wall" separating West Berlin from East Berlin.

Travelling on tourist visas, the Haywards passed through Checkpoint Charlie into the no-man's land between the East and West border points. Here they were asked to show their passports to East Berlin border guards.

Mr. Hayward said two "tough-looking" policewomen were checking his wife's papers when he decided to photograph them. The only thing forbidden, according to the signs, was smoking, so he snapped his shutter.

One of the policewomen saw him taking the picture and yelled. Immediately he was surrounded by border guards. He was whisked through two black curtains in a small building and then into a tiny room where he was told: "You are a spy."

"No, I'm just a tourist from Canada," he said.

"We don't believe you," they replied. "Your camera is much too good for a tourist. You are a spy."

For 30 minutes he was questioned. Finally they said he could go if he gave them his film. He refused. After more interrogation he was told he could go if he double-exposed some of the film. He agreed.

His wife then talked him into returning directly to the western sector where guards told the couple they were lucky to get back at all.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

WHY JACK LEAD IS CORRECT

The East and West hands are not shown today because East and West have nothing to say in the bidding and do nothing in the play except to follow suit.

South is in a safe six no-trump contract. No matter how the clubs break he is sure to make 12 tricks and his only problem is to give himself the best chance to make seven.

With ten cards in the combined hands a finesse is superior to a drop play, so he wins the opening spade lead in his own hand and leads a club toward dummy.

Which club should he lead? He should lead the jack! His intention is to play low from dummy if West follows small. If the jack loses to East's king South claims the balance. If East follows small or shows out South claims all the tricks.

The jack play is correct because if West hold all three missing clubs South can pick up the jack first, but if he leads small and rises with dummy's queen West will be able to take one club trick.

Sherbrooke Rotary Club members welcome District Gov. C. MacLean

One hundred and one members of the Sherbrooke Rotary Club turned out Tuesday evening to welcome C. R. MacLean, Rotary Governor of District 785

The attendance was one of the records set this year as the petroleum products distributor of Derby Line, Vermont, and member of the Boundary Rotary Club spoke of the internationality of the Rotary organization and the significant contributions Rotarians are making to the advancement of world understanding and goodwill.

Speaking to the largest club in this district which includes 33 clubs in both Canada and the United States, Mr. MacLean said Rotarians are helping to draw nations closer together through their efforts to build understanding among men.

The district governor, one of 271 governors in over 17,000 Rotary Clubs in the world, said, "We are urged to develop to the fullest our personal capacities for world fellowship and personal service," he said.

Speaking of the work of Rotary Clubs in international affairs, Mr. MacLean commended the Sherbrooke Club for its support of the Rotary Foundation which awards fellowships to graduate students for study in countries other than their own.

Suggesting ideas for Rotary projects, Mr. MacLean praised the work the Sherbrooke Rotary Club was doing with youth. He made particular mention of the boots and shoes project; air cadets, crippled children, camp and Little League baseball.

"One of my pet projects is helping to see what can be done to stop the large number of drop-outs in high schools," Mr. MacLean said. He also mentioned the clothing pool which is a project of the Boundary club.

Provincial Police recover bank holdup getaway car

STANSTEAD — (Staff) — The car used in the bank robbery at Ayer's Cliff Monday has been found, Cpl. Rene Simard of the Stanstead provincial police detachment reports.

It was, according to Cpl. Simard, "very, very empty."

Cpl. Simard and Ayer's Cliff Police Chief Peter Morgan found the 1958 green and white Ford deserted on Magoon's Point Road near Fitch Bay after receiving a tip from a farmer.

The car, stolen Sept. 17 at Laprairie according to police, was taken to a Magog garage.

There has been no report of another car stolen near where the robbery getaway car was found, Cpl. Simard says.

Police continue their search for the two robbers who entered the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce in Ayer's Cliff masked and armed at 11:30 Monday morning and escaped with about $2,000.

Branch manager Richard Cook could still not give an official estimate of the loot Wednesday morning. Nor would he comment on whether the bank's alarm system had functioned during the robbery. A witness, Mrs. Lillian McFaul, said she understood a new alarm system had been installed just the weekend before.

Sherbrooke H and S association urges action on drinking water

The Sherbrooke Home and School Association has adopted a motion urging city council to take immediate action to provide pure and safe water for residents.

Association members approved the motion of Dr. Alice Scott at a meeting Monday evening in Lawrence School. The motion was seconded by Rev. R. S. Jervis-Read.

George McClintock, principal of Mitchell School, lead a lively discussion on the topic Junior and his Homework which followed a skit of the same title. The cast for this amusing skit was recruited from the audience. Tom Walker, who had had professional theatrical experience, played the part of the father. Mrs. George Saanum handled the role of the mother very capably. And Rev. R. S. Jervis-Read and Mrs. Freeman Clowery did very well in the roles of the son and the daughter.

In his summation, Mr. McClintock stressed the need for proper attitudes on the part of parents in order to foster the respect of the student for learning. He suggested that parents try to provide as good a climate for study as possible—a definite time for homework and a place free from the distractions of T.V., family conversations, radio and phone calls. Parents were told that it was unwise to belittle the teaching methods or the textbooks used today in front of the children, since this would create negative attitudes toward teacher and school.

Children could be encouraged to greater efforts by the interest that parents take in their achievements. Mr. McClintock advised the parents not to take students out of school for such reasons as trips, dental appointments, haircuts, etc., as these indications of lack of respect for education could carry over to the child's attitude toward homework.

Parents were urged to do all they could to improve school conditions by taking an active part in their Home and School Association. Mr. McClintock invited the parents to consult with the principal and teachers of any of the four schools at any time on the progress and problems of their children.

A motion was made by Dr. Alice Scott and seconded by Rev. Jervis-Read that letters be sent to the city council and the mayor on behalf of the members of home and school requesting that immediate action be taken to give the residents of this city pure and safe water.

Committee reports were given by Mrs. M. Minor, head of the book committee, Mrs. D. Martin, chairman of the cafeteria committee and Mrs. D. Heilig, chairman fo the program committee.

Ernest Kimmis, president of the Sherbrooke Home and School asked Stanley Singleton to head the safety committee and Mr. Singleton accepted this responsibility.

John Bryant and Mrs. Diman Lynn volunteered to be co-chairman of the program committee.

The tunic and blazer exchange committee will be co-chaired by Mrs. Howard Leslie and Mrs. Douglas Bresee. Mrs. G. Morrison, L. Hutchinson and Mrs. A. Roy have agreed to head the 1963 UNICEF Drive.

Mrs. R. Carter, principal of Lawrence School, welcomed the parents to the school and invited them to visit the classrooms after the meeting.

Council should keep industrial site

The Sherbrooke Chamber of Commerce has forwarded a resolution to city council unanimously opposing the sale of city owned land near the new Lowney plant to permit the construction of a motel.

The land, is part of a farm originally bought by the city to provide a site for Sherbrooke's most recent major industry. It is land not needed by the Lowney company.

In its resolution, the Chamber points out that the land was specifically bought for industrial purposes, not for commercial purposes, which would be its classification if it were developed as a motel site.

The Chamber argues - and quite correctly, too - that the industrial zoning of the area should not be changed lightly simply because an opportunity arises to do so. In this connection, the Chamber points out that too often, zone changes are made in the city almost willy-nilly, while exceptions to existing zone laws are made far too frequently.

The Chamber also points out that the city does not possess a great deal of suitable land that can be used for industrial development. The section it owns near the Lowney plant, therefore, is a potential asset to the city which should not be eliminated until it has served its purpose.

There is no objection on the part of the Chamber - or anyone else - to the idea of a motel development.

It is realized that motels, as much as any other business enterprise, contribute to the prosperity of Sherbrooke. But this particular site is not the place for a motel. Its biggest value lies in the fact that it can be directly utilized by the city for industrial development.

Preserving balance in urban growth

As cities and smaller communities grow and develop - as many do at an amazing rate these days - complaints are often heard concerning haphazard growth to the detriment of park and recreational area.

The perpetual struggle that goes on to save Montreal's famous Mount Royal from the brick and asphalt tentacles of city progress is one of the more well-known examples of this situation.

But in smaller centres, too, it can be a serious problem unless proper steps are taken to make sure urban construction and maintenance of park facilities are kept in balance.

The Lennoxville town council has taken a large stride in this direction with the formation of a new parks committee. Like many others communities in the Townships, Lennoxville is burgeoning from year to year, and the area under the council's juridiction keeps growing.

The new committee has a two-fold purpose:

To maintain at a proper level existing park and public recreational facilities;

To plan extension, not only of existing facilities, but also those which are likely to be needed as new areas open up in the future.

The value of these goals cannot be overestimated. They ensure that a good place to live, in every sense of the word, remains just that.

Difficulties still face Mr. Kennedy

In the hodge-podge of the United States election results one central theme seems to emerge. President Kennedy will face another two years of frustration in attempting to sell his New Frontier policy to Congress.

Admittedly the Democrats registered minor gains in their Senate strength and suffered only an insignificant loss in their House majority. But the result can give little comfort to the President himself. The old conservative Democrat-coalitions apparently remain as strong as ever, dimming any hopes Mr. Kennedy may have of getting his medicare and other liberal-type welfare legislation through Congress.

Perhaps the greatest significance for the 1964 presidential elections rests in the gubernatorial races in which key Republican figures took part.

The impressive victory registered by Governor Nelson Rockefeller in New York coupled by the apparent defeat of former Vice-president Richard Nixon in his attempt to win the governorship of California undoubtedly strengthened the position of the New York Governor in any bid he might decide to make for the Republican nomination.

Apparently personalities played a greater role than issues in influencing the voters, the changes in individual seats being too scattered to give any indication of a major national trend.

Other papers say:

Communist China, a rogue elephant

From the Communist point of view, the United Nations voting on the admission of Red China to the world organization came at a bad moment.

With the Soviet Union's plans to turn Cuba into an offensive base just exposed, and the Chinese themselves in the middle of a new aggression against India, most UN members could hardly have been expected to sympathize strongly with any Communist-sponsored resolution in the General Assembly.

Yet although the vote turning down Red China's application was weightier than last year's—56 to 42, with 12 abstentions, as against 48 to 36 with 20 abstentions in 1961—it did not perhaps reflect hostile world opinion as much as it might have.

In part, this was because a number of members—including Britain and the Scandinavian countries— feel that it is unrealistic to bar from international councils a nation of some 700,000,000 people, about a quarter of the world's population. After all, they argue, if every nation that was disliked by some of the others was thrown out, would there be any UN left?

Far better, they say, to treat the Red Chinese as part of the world family and bring them to the council table, where there would be a better chance of bringing peaceful influences to bear.

This view is subscribed to even by India, which again supported the resolution, as expected. Indian spokesmen argued that the only effective way to halt Chinese "military adventurism" is to seat Peking in the UN.

But the opposite argument, as expounded by the United States, won more hearers. It was that the Soviet draft resolution, by asking the UN to withdraw recognition from the Nationalist Chinese, was virtually asking the General Assembly to license an armed attack by Peking on Formosa. And above all, why should the UN admit a country which has so flagrantly violated the UN charter by its aggressions?

As U.S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson said last year:

"No amount of goodwill, of tolerance, of generosity, or of wishful thinking can obscure the reality of 1961—that we are asked to offer membership in this body to a regime which believes in the rule of the gun. Not the rule of reason, or of negotiation, or of cooperative action—but the rule of the gun."

No country surely could have pondered the truth of those words—and how much truer they are this year than last—more ruefully than India. For India, now trying to beat back the Chinese dragon from the Himalayan passes, has been Peking's champion in past bids to win a UN seat.

Now that the debate is presumably postponed for another year, perhaps the peaceful Mr. Nehru will have to give up the idea of bringing Red China to the negotiation table. He will have to match guns with guns.

Urges better retarded children care

Dear Sir:

Your paper is doing a good job by writing about retarded children and some of the Institutions where many of them live.

As far as our institutions and homes are concerned it may well be noted that there is room for much improvement in care and living conditions.

A home (I rather use this expression instead of institution) for retarded children should above all be a place where "personal attention" is the main prescription.

Educable and untrainable children for instance should never live together in the same home, unless the home provides facilities for each group separately.

The totally dependent child does not fit into the living atmosphere of the educable or trainable child. This is not always taken into consideration by the director of our homes.

Overcrowded conditions are the worse thing that can happen to a retarded child, immediately the so badly needed personal attention is lost.

Being faced with many emergency admissions superintendents are often forced to take in certain children that should really be referred to other homes better qualified to look after the needs of the particular child.

Many parents seek admission for their child, and even by only admitting emergency cases, the homes to be overcrowded soon, funds for building additions are non-existing.

Public support is a very welcome thing for most homes but can never fill the gap of even the most stressing needs.

The present day situation in our homes asks for immediate action.

The Quebec Association for Retarded Children has an institutional committee, if this committee could have a freer access to the homes it might be able to do constructive work.

If our homes could be inspected not only by the government, but also on the same basis by representatives of the parent groups, higher government officials might have a better insight in what is going on in our homes for retarded children and be more aware of their needs.

Home would benefit by specializing in one type of child, educable, trainable or totally dependent.

Distances between the parents home and the residential home for retarded children should not exceed 2-3 hours by car, train or bus. This asks for several smaller homes rather than a few large ones. As far as being safe places to live, most homes are firetraps. Homelike, fireproof invidual cottages are as far as the retarded child is concerned ideal, it may cost the taxpayer a little more, but would also give him the satisfaction that his good money is not being thrown after bad.

Superintendents of homes should meet and try to work together, not only with each other, but invite, representatives of parent groups, assessment-clinics and government to meet together and work out a satisfactorily plan of operation.

As far as government interest is concerned, our work is more respected now than it was some years ago.

We can only serve adequately by first taking into consideration the child already placed in our care and his personal needs; secondly, by working together with those that work for the same object as we do, thirdly, by continuously advising the government of the needs of the retarded in residential setting. The retarded child cannot demand or stand up for his own rights. We have to demand for him, and fight for him, and restore to him his right to be treated as an individual.

Between Israel and Egypt

Canadians still patrol border

OTTAWA (CP)—Six years after the Suez crisis—the Anglo-French attack on Egypt following the Israeli invasion of Egypt—Canadians still patrol the desert border between Israel and Egypt for the United Nations.

There is not even an inkling that this task is near completion, or, indeed, whether it will ever be finished. Egypt, on whose territory the 5,300 - man UN Emergency Force operates, appears content with the thin blue-and-white (UN colors) line of protection.

Establishment of UNEF was proposed by Canada in the fall of 1956 as a means to keep Israel and Egypt apart and to allow Britain and France to withdraw their forces which, they said had gone in to protect the Suez Canal. Liberal Leader Pearson, then external affairs minister, won the Nobel Prize for Peace for his efforts in creation of UNEF.

There now are approximately 890 Canadian soldiers and 90 Canadian airmen in UNEF — roughly the original number contributed by Canada — doing desert patrols, handling signals, transporting personnel, fixing vehicles and the like. They serve one year in the Middle East.

The reconnaissance squadron of the Royal Canadian Dragoons has had the dusty end of the business for nearly the last year, keeping watch among the sand dunes for any incident along the border.

Canadians also comprise the UNEF engineer company, the 56th signals squadron, No. 56 transport company, the UNEF ordnance company and infantry workshop. Other Canadian corps represented in UNEF are the medical, dental, pay, provost and postal.

Outside the armored unit of the Royal Canadian Dragoons, the Canadians basically do the housekeeping for the entire international force.

The RCAF unit operates three Caribou and two Otter transport planes on transport and reconaissance duties.

The Caribou transport UN personnel between El Arish, the main air base, and Beirut, Lebanon (the UN leave centre), Sharm El Sheik, most southerly UN post on the Gulf of Aqaba, Cairo, Jerusalem and Gaza Strip.

The Otters carry observers who make reconnaissances along the Israel-Egypt frontier to supplement the ground patrol.

The Canadian contingent is supported by the RCAF which flies cargo and personnel between Pisa, Italy, and El Arish.

ASSIGNMENT WASHINGTON

with B. T. Richardson

WASHINGTON — The Cuban crisis left a big quesmark over Canadian-American relations. Put bluntly the question is: Should Canada march to war if the U.S. does?

The instinctive answer is No. But the answer to reason is that Canada is unlikely ever to remain outside the action if the U.S. does get involved in a war.

The best course for Canada is to face the world situation in which the destiny of Canada and America are linked in ways that cannot de dissolved and devise its policies to suit the realities.

One conclusion from high tension over Cuba and the possibility of nuclear war between the U.S. and Soviet Russia is so clear that it admits no room for argument. Canadian policy with respect to the U.S. is wholly inadequate for such a crisis.

THIS IS NOT a matter that disturbs Americans, at least at the moment. They should be interested since in the final analysis they cannot defend themselves without defending Canada. They should pay more attention to Canada. But they don't and that's one of the facts of life in North America.

There is only one answer around Washington to a question on Canada's conduct during the Cuban crisis. Canada acted as a friend and ally should, and there are no complaints here.

TWO SIDES

But why then is there a raging controversy inside Canada?

On the one side Prime Minister Diefenbaker is attacked for what one press gallery pundit described as a "sluggish" response to President Kennedy's program of action. On the other, he is praised for acting with cool caution and President Kennedy is attacked for not consulting Canada in advance.

Despite the dramatic backdown of the Russians President Kennedy still has the problem of Cuba on his desk.

THE MANNER in which he handles it and ultimately solves it will determine the climate of peace and security in the Western Hemisphere for some time to come.

It follows that Canadians who were horrified to discover that general war might result from an American clash with Communism in the Caribbean, should now consider whether Canada should try to influence events in Latin America before the choice reaches the stage of war.

This would mean joining the Organization of American States. Canada cannot postpone much longer a decision in this matter, if it is to avoid the dilemma of being inevitably involved in consequences while taking no part in efforts to guide events beforehand.

It may be that American policy joined with the Latin republics may achieve a peaceful settlement of the Cuban question. But this is by no means certain.

Moreover, the question of Communism establishing itself in the Western Hemisphere may arise elsewhere, such as in British Guiana. Canada needs to evaluate its position much more sharply than in the past.

Complaints that Washington failed to consult its allies have come in from many countries.

THE REMEDY

The new situation here is that President Kennedy, with a small group of diplomatic and military advisers, took direct and personal charge of the Cuban crisis. He may do the same thing again in other circumstances.

THE ONLY REMEDY for Canada is closer direct contact with the President, both for evaluating sudden crises that may arise and for warning of action that may be taken.

The barriers between Ottawa and Washington need to be broken down in the age of instant crisis and push button response.

This is not entirely a matter of speedier evaluation of intelligence in the channels of diplomatic and military links between the two capitals, for each country maintains a large staff in the other's capital.

It is also a matter of informed public opinion on both sides of the border.

Canadians need not expect to jump to the ready when the U.S. faces a war threat. But they do need to know and understand what's doing in matters next door that involve their lives and their destiny. (TNS)

under one tent.

The Conservatives now point to the lengths to which Liberal spokesman Paul Martin of Essex East went before the vote was held to explain how it was that the Liberals could support a Social Credit proposal endorsing "debt free money."

This, Mr. Martin said, while it may be a cornerstone of Social Credit monetary theory, had other definitions including ones given by the great small Liberal economist Maynard Keynes.

In return for Liberal support on the Social Credit non-confidence motion, it was naturally the Liberal hope that they would get Social Credit votes for their motion. They got two.

Another feature of the two votes was the fact that 22 Social Credit MPs were present, including Quebec Leader Real Caouette, for the first vote on the Social Credit motion. But four, including Mr. Caouette, were absent a few minutes later when the vote was called on the Liberal motion.

In the House of Commons there is no way of recording an abstention. A member in the House must vote yea or nay. He can only abstain by ducking behind the curtains into the lobbies.

Mr. Caouette prior to the meeting of Parliament said he would never vote for the government in support of its so-called austerity program, and demanded that the government replace it with what he described as a prosperity program.

When confronted with the Liberal non-confidence motion demanding an end to austerity measures, Mr. Caouette was absent from the House.

DEMOCRATS CRUSH

history where two brothers hold the White House and a Senate seat at the same time.

Kennedy also was happy with the Senate victory of his former health secretary, Abraham A. Ribicoff, who upset the Republicans in Connecticut.

OK FOR DEMOCRATS

All in all, it was not a bad showing for the Democrats. Traditionally, in non-presidential election years, the voter trend is against the party in power. The Democrats managed to stave off a Republican onslaught. In heavy balloting, the present Democratic margin of 261-174 with two vacancies may be reduced by a half-dozen seats in the new 435-seat House opening next January.

In the Senate, Democrats sprinkled their present 64-36 margin with a few gains, picking up seats in Wisconsin, Maryland, New Hampshire and Connecticut and losing to Republicans in Colorado and Wyoming.

400 vote in Magog referendum

MAGOG — (Special) — Four hundred property owners registered votes at Magog City Hall on Tuesday in the first day of a two day referendum called to decide the fate of the proposed $400,000 artificial ice arena. This was a record number of votes, for a community referendum, and represented close to 25% of the Magog landowners.

Some 150 school children appeared at Magog's town hall at 3.30 Tuesday afternoon, shouting and carrying placards and banners, demanding an arena. After their demonstration, the children paraded through the city, shouting their demands.

Today, voters began voting when the poll opened at nine o'clock. It is expected that more than half of the 2,021 landowners will register their votes.

A short council meeting was held Tuesday evening.

Most of Tuesday's business was routine matters, the most important being the council's decision to amend the August 9th resolution regarding the purchase of land from Wilfred Lamontagne off Bellevue Street. The city has appropriated funds to buy 66 X 400 feet, which will be used to extend Tarrant Street south of Bellevue.

Several appeals for donations were heard, and will receive further study. The only donation agreed on, was that for $50, which will be given to the Magog Lions Club sponsored drive for the blind.

Silver wedding celebration held at East Farnham

FARNHAM — Over 100 friends and relatives gathered at the United Church Hall, on Oct. 27, to celebrate the occasion of the twenty-fifth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Shufelt.

The guests of honor were met at the door by their wedding attendants of 25 years ago, Guy Shufelt, best man, Miss Edna Whittaker, bridesmaid, and Mrs. Stanley Horner, matron of honor.

Miss Whittaker presented a boutonniere to Mr. Shufelt and Mrs. Horner a corsage to her sister, Mrs. Shufelt. Then, to the strains of the Wedding March, the bride and groom were led to their seats by Rupert Shufelt and Guy Shufelt, brothers of the groom.

Pink and white streamers and wedding bells hung above the head table, which was graced by a beautiful wedding cake, made by Miss Harriet Shufelt and decorated by Mrs. P. Mahannah White tapers in silver holders and a bowl of pink and white carnations completed the decorations.

Seated at the head table with the members of the wedding group were Rev. Mr. McCore, Mrs. Guy Shufelt, Stanley Horner and Mr. and Mrs. James Beattie, parents of the bride.

Coffee was poured at a lace covered table by Mrs. R. Shufelt of Belleville, Ont., and Mrs. J. Whittaker, of Montreal, while several young ladies served sandwiches and cakes.

A short address by Mr. McCord preceded the presentation by Gary Shufelt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Shufelt, of a silver steak platter and a "money tree", gifts from the family. On behalf of their many friends, Lawrence Horner spoke highly of the honored couple and presented them with a chest of silver.

Mr. Shufelt voiced his sincere appreciation to which Mrs. Shufelt added her thanks. Music was provided by Alan Webb, who had taped appropriate music for the occasion, including a solo by Miss Harriet Shufelt.

This day also being Alan Webb's birthday, all joined in singing Happy Birthday to him.

Guests were present from Belleville, Ont., Montreal, Granby, Cowansville, Sutton, Austin, Magog, Sweetsburg, Sturbridge, Mass., Riverside, R.I., Dunham, Ste. Anne de Bellevue, and East Farnham.

SWEETSBURG —

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Peron and of Mr. and Mrs Stanley Peron were Miss Verda McAllister, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas McAllister and their daughter Mrs. H. Armitage, of Billings Bridge and Ottawa.

Friends will regret to learn that Mrs. M. R. Hodge, of the Dunham Road is ill, and that Mrs. Wilfrid Royea, of Yamaska Boulevard, was taken by ambulance to the B.M.P.Hospital.

MELBOURNE —

Miss Dora Lambert, of Montreal, is spending a few days at her cottage here.

Mr. Charles Higgs is a patient in the Neurological Hospital, in Montreal, where he underwent surgery.

Drive shaft of first steamboat in Pacific found

VANCOUVER (CP) — The main drive shaft of the Beaver, first steamboat to churn the North Pacific, has been found by two skin divers in the harbor off Stanley Park.

The Beaver, considered a wonder of the age when she was built in England in 1835 for the Hudson's Bay Company, was wrecked off Prospect Point in 1888.

Fred Rogers, an amateur skin diver and a welder at a shipyard, set out two years ago to find the wreck. He discovered it lying in shallow water just west of the First Narrows Bridge.

Recovery of the Beaver's engines had been a long dream for Rogers who, with diver Eddie Seaton, recently brought to the surface a large section of the old paddle machinery.

Also found was the Beaver's main transverse drive shaft, a chunk of metal weighing almost three tons.

Several bronze and brass fittings Rogers recovered in earlier dives were given to the Maritime Museum.

The Beaver was built by a Thames shipyard. It was equipped with two side-lever engines, each of 35 horsepower. They were vertical engines connected by oscillating levers to a paddle shaft.

The Beaver was sent around Cape Horn under sail to Fort Vancouver. Her paddles were shipped to her there and the engines took over, pushing the steamboat up and down the coast collecting furs for the Hudson's Bay Company.

The Beaver later was converted to a towboat. She was wrecked in 1888 and lay on the beach here for years until the wash of a passing steamer pushed her into deeper water.

Hitch your wagon to a steer...

A good store has good meat because MEAT MATTERS MOST. STEINBERG Red Brand Beef is the best in the land. STEINBERG stick to steers. Nefer, but nefer, do we buy a heifer. A girl cow's place is in the dairy. Girl cows are food for calf-dropping and milk — and that's all there is to say about girl cows. Ah, but steers! Steers are raised with MEAT IN MIND. STEINBERG buys the finest steers for its Red Brand Beef. They are 1 up to 1½ years old. At this tender age a steer's muscles have not yet begun to toughen (and it's the muscle you eat). STEINBERG Red Brand Beef is beautiful because it comes from beautiful animals. Not too young — and tasteless. Not too old-and-tough. Not too puny - and meatless. Red Brand Beef has more flavour, more tenderness and more juiciness.

Stan Musial plans to play next year although Rickey wants him to retire, need his bat, says Busch

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Stan Musial plans to play baseball next season despite Branch Rickey's proposal to St. Louis Cardinals that the great outfielder retire.

The proposal apparently set off a major disagreement between Bing Devine, general manager of the Cardinals, and Rickey, hired recently as a senior consultant on player development for the Cardinals.

Cardinal President August A. Busch Jr. said Tuesday Musial, 42 this month, not only will play with the Cardinals in the National League in 1963 but will become a club vice-president when he decides to retire.

"We need Stan's bat," Busch said. "He'll let us know when he's ready to quit. . . . Since when do you ask a .330 hitter to retire unless you have his equal to replace him."

When he learned of the Rickey proposal, Musial said: "I won't retire. If the Cardinals don't want me, there are some other clubs that do."

Rockets edge Beavers 5-4, Vics win 1-0

CLOSE CALL — Andre Vallieres, left with back to camera, has just rifled a hard shot at Claude Groulx which brought the Drummondville goalie to his knees to make the save. R. Fortin, the Rockets' husky rearguard, is taking Vallieres out of the play with Gilles Picard standing by Groulx. (Photo by Gerry Lemay)

Locals run into redhot goalie in Claude Groulx who stopped flying Beavers in hard-hitting contests

Fighting Sherbrooke Beavers ran into a red-hot goalie last night and emerged on the short end of a 5-4 count. Claude Groulx of Drummondville Rockets was a standout and his terrific saves played a big part in the outcome of the tilt.

The Beavers came up with their best effort since the start of the season and it was only Groulx's outstanding work which stopped them from posting a victory. Groulx was called upon to handle a total of 37 shots compared to 24 by Joe Lacoursiere. The win moved the Rockets into a two-way tie with Granby Vics for top spot in the standing.

The Beavers got off to a bad start in the opening frame when they got tagged with several foolish penalties and it was only the good work of Joe Lacoursiere which held the Rockets to one goal. Just after the halfway mark the Beavers picked up five over-lapping infractions on good calls. They were completely lost but managed to hold the Rockets at bay.

The Beavers were all over Groulx even at this stage and bombarded him with 13 shots while Lacoursiere had only six to handle. Rene Pepin came up with good defensive work during the stage in helping to nold off the Rockets.

Two bad moves by the defense were responsible for the Rockets' next two goals. These came within three minutes and a half. Andre Vallieres registered Sherbrooke's first tally when he went to the side to bat the disc by Groulx.

Pepin and Blouin, a new player, had carried the play behind the net and contained the defense to allow Vallieres to pick it up and step around Groulx to catch the net. It was nice work by the trio.

Robidoux came up with a lucky goal to give the Rockets a 4-1 lead. His drive from the blueline hit a defenseman's stick to deflect by Lacoursiere, who had no chance on the shot.

Vallieres got his second marker of the evening when each team had a man in the sinbin. Rene Pepin and Pierre Gendron drew assists on the play. The period ended with the Rockets holding a 4-2 lead.

At the start of the third period things looked bad as the Rockets came up with their fifth marker for a 5-2 lead. It was a break away and Michelin made no mistake on this opportunity.

Following this the Beavers commenced to roll. They were all over the Rockets and held a big edge in the play. They kept fighting and never let up until the final whistle. They drove the disc from all angles and gave the fans a real exhibition of a fighting club.

Rene Pepin chalked up Sherbrooke's third tally when he kept fighting and had three shots at Groulx before he finally sank the disc in the net. This gave the young Beavers added spirit and they kept rattling away and finally Cardin registered the fourth tally.

Coach Dube kept changing his lines often to keep refreshed players in the battle. The young crew kept the pressure on but time ran out before they could get the equalizer. Lacoursiere was yanked for a extra player but this failed to help the situation.

Sherbrooke gave a very good impression and with more work together will turn into a real battling club. They didn't give up despite the big lead the Rockets held at one time and the visitors were lucky to emerge with the decision.

Drummondville: Groulx, G. Picard, Fortin, M. Boivin, Leblanc, Aubry, Harvey, Morin, Robidoux, G. Boivin, Micheline, Racette, B. Leblanc, Joncas, Lemay.

Sherbrooke: Lacoursiere, Bourassa, Black, Hamelin, R. Picard, Drouin, Nadeau, Ducharme, Gendron, Pepin, Gemus, Vallieres, Cardin, Rousseau, Harpin, Blouin.

Home ice theory not working out this year in NHL

Home ice is usually considered a big advantage in the National Hockey League, but it just ain't so this season.

Of the 32 games played so far, the home team has won only 12. The visitors have taken 13 and seven have been ties.

Playing on a more familiar rink and having an enthusiastic crowd behind them, home players are generally conceded to have an edge over their opponents.

In fact, strong "homers" like Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs just didn't lose at home.

This year, though, the Leafs have won only one of their five home games and tied another. Canadiens have done somewhat better by winning thr and tying on at hom.

Th trend reflects the big surprises of this NHL season—the 10-game unbeaten streak by the red-hot Detroit Red Wings and stumbling showings by the league champion Canadiens and the Stanley Cup champion Leafs.

Toronto, with a record of four wins and a tie in eleven games, plays in New York tonight. A Rangers' win would shoot them past Leafs into fourth place with 10 points.

COULD TIE HABS

If Leafs—who have a record of three wins and three losses on the road—take the game they'll have 11 points, enough for a third-place tie with Canadiens.

In tonight's other game, last-place Boston Bruins take on the Black Hawks in Chicago. Chicago has 13 points, five less than the first-place Red Wings, while Boston has only five points.

Detroit and Montreal, both idle tonight, meet in the Forum for the first time this season Thursday night. The Wings will be opening a six-game road trip.

Assigning reasons for Detroit's amazing record of eight wins and two ties since the season started has become the latest sport for critics of the puck-pushing art.

Three often-mentioned explanations are:

1. Tight defensive play, led by veteran goalie Terry Sawchuk. He's allowed only 13 goals in 10 games, recording three shutouts on the way. Sawchuk adopted a face-mask this year and started playing with the sharpness he had 10 years ago, when he won the Vezina Trophy two years in a row. Coach Sid Abel also points to a strong defence led by a rejuvenated Bill Gadsby and rookie Doug Barkley.

2. Formation of a new forward line of centre Alex Delvecchio, right winger Gordie Howe and left winger Parker MacDonald. A 29-year-old native of Sydney, N.S., MacDonald is leading the league goal-scorers with eight and is tied for most points with Delvecchio at 13. MacDonald never hit his stride in pro ranks after a brilliant junior career, but playing with two unfailingly strong performers like Delvecchio and Howe has transformed him Howe, tied for fifth place in league scoring with 11 points, shows no sign of slowing after 16 seasons in the league.

3. A new third-period tonic of Abel's—rest and easy workouts between games. Abel says he got tired of seeing his players get tired and lose leads late in the game last season. So we decided to give his players more days off between games and take it easier on them in practice sessions. Apparently, the recipe works.

Detroit won boths its games against Toronto and Chicago over the weekend by third-period rallies.

Andy Payette standout as Granby Vics blank Olympics 1-0 for second time, Rene Boudreau gets marker

MONTREAL — (Special) — Granby goalie Andy Payette shut the Montreal Olympics out here last night, for the second Vics' 1-0 win in a row over the Montreal club.

Payette stood out strongly in the third period against an Olympics rally. The Vics were locked in their own end, but Payette kept the puck out of the net. He held the fort in the early minutes of the game too, when the Vics had two successive penalties.

The Olympics dominated the third period, the Vics getting only four shots on Andre Binette, one of which got past him for a goal.

No goals were scored in the first two periods, which saw fairly even play. Both teams were on the defensive until the second period, when the Vics forced some important saves on Binette.

Rene-Yves Boudreau scored the sole goal of the game. Les Strike shot on the boards, and the puck rebounded over goalkeeper Binette to land in front of the goal. Boudreau fired it home.

Vics suffered an injury to Gaetan Boudreau, a dislocated shoulder which will put him out indefinitely. Vics play their next game at home against the Beavers tomorrow, while Olympics will pay the Rockets their first visit of the season.

Paul Pender and Jose Torres bout cancelled as Torres' manager can't post $100,000 guarantee for event

BOSTON (AP) — A middleweight title fight scheduled between Paul Pender and Jose Torres for Nov. 15 has been cancelled because of inability of challenger Torres' manager, Cus d'Amato, to post a $100,000 guarantee.

Pender is recoguized as the 160-pound titleholder in Massachusetts, New York and Europe.

D'Amato told a news conference Tuesday night the reason he could not produce the guarantee is the internal revenue service's seizure of the proceeds of the Sonny Liston-Floyd Patterson world heavyweight title bout in Chicago. D'Amato, who also manages Patterson, said he had intended to use money due him from that bout to pay a $95,000 balance of a guarantee to Pender.

He now must forfeit a $5,000 deposit.

Torres, unbeaten in 26 pro starts, was to challenge Pender for his share of the crown. The fight previously was postponed from Nov. 2.

"I in no way am criticizing the U.S. government," d'Amato said. "They have good reasons known only to themselves for seizing the money from the Patterson-Liston fight. They did it because of the promoters.

"However, Torres and I became innocent victims of what the internal revenue bureau did. I did everything humanly possible to raise the money and as late as this morning I thought I would be able to get it.

"I apologize to every one in boxing."

D'Amato said government officials have "expressed sympathy that the unfortunate circumstances have befallen innocent victims like the fighters and myself."

D'Amato said he hopes the fight can be held at a later date.

12 horses lost in fire at Suffolk Downs

BOSTON (AP) — Twelve horses perished early today as fire destroyed three barns at the Suffolk Downs race track.

The fire broke out some two hours after a crowd of 8,000 had left the track following an election night harness racing program.

Four alarms brought a concentration of fire fighting apparatus before the blaze was declared under control.

Ernie Davis' chances of playing dim

CLEVELAND (AP) — Ernie Davis' chances of playing with Cleveland Browns of the National Football League this year appear dim.

There are indications that coach Paul Brown wants to pick up a player on waivers to replace injured safety man Bobby Franklin.

"Nothing will be done on Bobby's status until he is checked further," Brown said Tuesday night There is a possibility Franklin, out with a broken collarbone, will be placed on the injured reserve list.

"Meanwhile, we'll be scanning the waivers to see if anybody we think can help will turn up," Brown said.

The league would be required to give its approval before Davis, a star backfielder who has had a complete remission from leukemia, could be put on the active list.

Aces keep home record intact, whip Rochester

Quebec Aces, rolling along in first place in the Eastern Division of the American Hockey League, have been invincible at home this season.

They whipped Rochester Americans 6-1 Tuesday night for their fifth victory in five starts on Quebec ice.

Springfield Indians extended their winning streak to five games with a 2-1 triumph over Baltimore Clippers.

The Aces built up a 3-1 first-period lead over Rochester and were never headed. Guy Rousseau, Terry Gray, Danny Lewicki, Michel Harvey, Jean-Marie Cossette and Bill Dineen were the Quebec marksmen. Johnny MacMillan averted a shutout for the Americans.

Three games are scheduled tonight—springfield at Hershey, Providence at Buffalo and Pittsburgh at Cleveland.

MORRIS'S FINEST SLOE GIN

Curtis Bishop elected president of ETABA

Eastern Townships Amateur Basketball Association held its second meeting of the season Monday night with some definite plans being drawn up for the coming year.

Curt Bishop was elected president of the ETABA taking over the job from Garth Smith who previously held, office for three years while 'Dick Bean took over secretary-treasurer chores from Andy Smith.

Jim MacKinnon was voted into the vice-presidency replacing John Boland of last season while Johnnie Evans became the new referee-in-chief; taking over from Jim MacKinnon.

Six Teams This year

Some six teams are to participate in the ETABA this year: Sherbrooke Saints, Bishop's Seconds, St. Pat's, Lennoxville, Bury and Molson's Independents.

Last season's league consisted of seven teams but Bell and Drummondville dropped out this year while Sherbrooke Saints were the only new squad to enter the ranks this season.

Fees were raised from $55 per team to $60 per team mainly because a substantial increase in the salary of the referees was voted for.

This year when two referees work a single game, they each receive four dollars compared to three last year while a doubleheader with two referees pays seven dollars per man.

If just one referee works a single game, he receives six dollars where last season he got five and if he does a doubleheader alone, he gets ten dollars where last year he received seven.

It was hoped that this increase in referee payments would help to promote better refereeing and more referees in the ETABA this year.

Player lists of a team's 15 possible players are to be sent to the secretary-treasurer along with their entry fee of $60 by December 1.

Each team is allowed to register 15 players but can only dress 12 for any single game. In addition, in order to be eligible for the playoffs, each player must have participated in at least four games.

The matter of postponement of games also arose at Monday's meeting and it was finally decided that only a home team could postpone a game and only if facilities or the weather made it impossible to play that game.

In addition, the postponed tilt must be played within 10 days of the postponement otherwise the home team forfeits the game. This rule was added to eliminate any lengthening of the schedule due to re-slating of postponed fixtures.

With the groundwork laid out for the 1962-1963 season and with the new executive now in office, plans for the year will be forthcoming and it is hoped that play will start within a few weeks if not less.

All officials are looking forward to another successful year of the ETABA and would like to invite the general public to attend some of these games over the winter months.

George Dixon and Tommy-Joe Coffey named finalists for top Canadian football award of year by writers

MONTREAL (CP) — George Dixon of Montreal Alouettes and Tommy-Joe Coffey of Edmonton Eskimos, scoring leaders in the East and West, Tuesday were named finalists for the Canadian professional football player of the year award.

The winner is to be announced in Toronto Nov. 28, three days before the Grey Cup game.

A distillery sponsors the award. Nomination come from each of the nine teams in the Canadian Football League and the winner is determined through progressive balloting by picked selectors in each city.

Dixon, a fullback, in the Eastern Conference with 90 points in 14 games while Coffey, an end, topped the West with 129 points in 16 games.

Quarterback Russ Jackson of Ottawa Rough Riders and defensive halfback Harvey Wylie of Calgary Stampeders were selected finalists for the outstanding Canadian award.

FIRST UNDER NEW RULE

Wylie, who attended Montana State College, is the first to qualify under a rule change admitting players who took part in pre-college football in Canada.

Previously, only players with all their football experience in Canada qualified for the Canadian award.

Defensive tackle John Barrow of Hamilton Tiger-Cats and linebacker Wayne Harris of the Stampeders were nominated for lineman of the year.

The awards carry a total of $5,000 in Canada Savings Bonds as prize money, up from $2,000 last season. This year the all-round outstanding players gets $2,000 and the other two winners $1,500 each.

Jackson is the only previous winner still in the running this season. He was picked the outstanding homebred in 1959.

Last year Barrow lost out to offensive tackle Frank Rigney of Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the final voting.

Hamilton's Bernie Faloney was the 1961 player of the year and Tony Pajaczkowski of Calgary the top Canadian.

18 year-old Halifax ballet dancer has own business teaching ballet

By IRA DRYSDALE

HALIFAX (CP) — Roberta Mills is a slight brunette ballet dancer just out of high school who likes jiving, jazz and the twist.

She's 18 and already has her own business—teaching ballet to 150 children in the Halifax-Dartmouth area. It's a six-day-a-week job but still leaves her time to take a few courses at Dalhousie University.

Born in Montreal, Roberta started dancing when she was four. She explains that her mother sent her to dancing school then because she was born in December. She was a little too young to start grade school with her playmates and her mother decided to give her dancing lessons "for something to do."

She has studied ballet in Montreal, Toronto, New York and Halifax, where she is still taking instruction.

The five-foot-three, 110-pound dancer disagrees with those who think it's bad to start ballet young. If it is properly taught, four or five years old is not too young, she says.

HELPS POSTURE

"It helps posture, provides grace . . . and can take off inches." If improperly taught, however, it would do serious harm, causing muscular and bone damage.

"Ballet is the most important thing for me," Roberta says, "but I don't eat, drink and sleep ballet. I go to dances and twist and jive, and enjoy it just as much as any other teen-ager."

However, she regards these dances as "passing fancies" and feels that two or three twists an evening are plenty.

Bobby, as her friends call her, says that dancing is more demanding than most office jobs available to a girl her age. "You've got to give everything you have. It takes a lot of planning and worrying. . . . You've got to be dedicated or not a success at all."

Business has been good but while she makes enough to pay her mother board, buy her clothes and neatly cover expenses, she's got to be careful not to throw her profits away.

Interest in ballet has been on the rise here and she hopes that with the opening of a repertory theatre there may be more chances for her and her pupils to perform publicly.

THE WELL CHILD ..... AL VACCINES NOW PROTECT AGAINST MEASLES EFFECTS

If you are an adult you almost surely were exposed to measles as a child. This contact may have produced a lifelong immunity.

For a very few lucky ones, it may have produced an immunity without causing an attack of measles. For most healthy children, measles is an annoyance but recovery is complete.

Many parents regard measles as something to be gone through with little worry about the outcome. This attitude fails to take into account the very real dangers involved. Measles has been described as a cold with a rash. A cough, running nose, and inflammation of the whites of the eyes are usually the first symptoms. The rash does not appear until three or four days afterward.

The danger, always more serious in children under 2, and in those who are in a weakened condition lies in the complications that may develop. Pneumonia is the most common. This is serious enough, but most dangerous is encephalitis or brain fever. Less dangerous but by no means unimportant is infection of the middle ear with its threat of deafness.

In order to prevent these complications doctors used to give gama globulin or serum from an immune adult to children who got measles. But now, with the development of measles vaccine, it will be possible to protect all children. As a matter of fact two kinds of vaccine have been produced from the measles virus and both have been found to stimulate the blood to produce protective antibodies.

In one, a live but weak virus is used so that the child who receives it actually has a mild attack of the disease. This parallels the situation that occurs when small pox vaccination is given. Because even with this weakened virus there is some danger of severe reactions, a small amount of gamma globulin is given simultaneously The results with this combination have been excellent and the reactions on the whole have been less severe than those following ordinary smallpox vaccination.

The other vaccine consists of a killed measles virus. This sounds like a safer vaccine but the important question is whether or not it will give your child a lasting immunity.

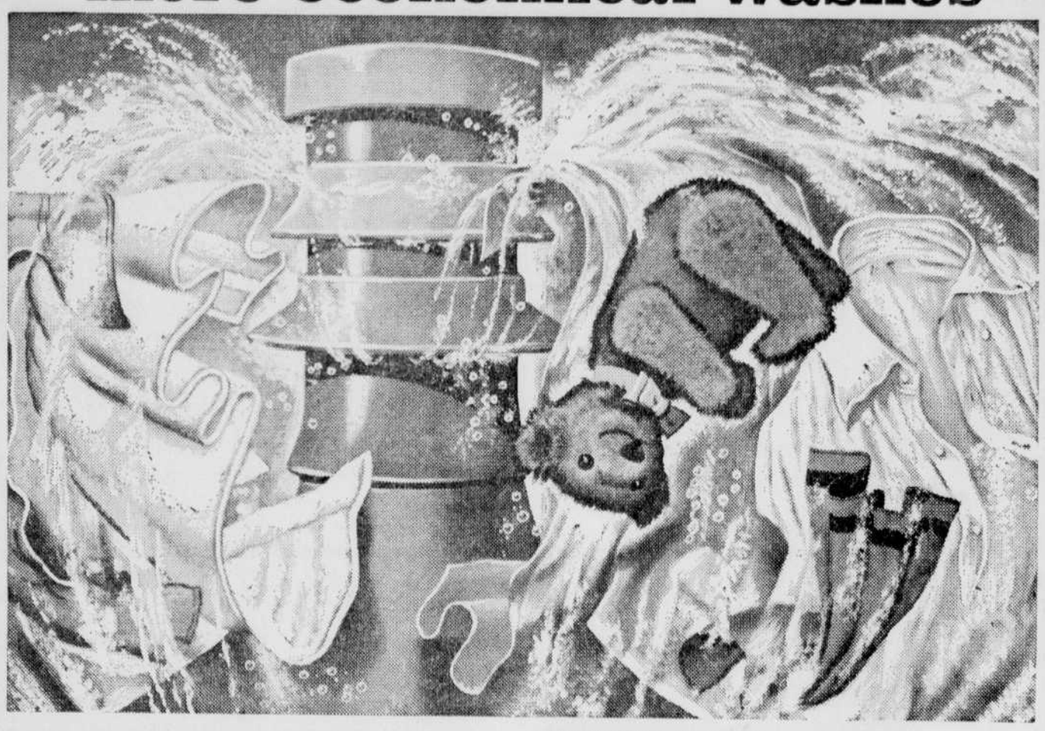

Although the question of which vaccine is preferable has not yet been definietly decided, your doctor can be relied on to give your child a vaccine that will protect him against a disease the seriousness of which has been often underestimated.

It is no longer advisable to wait until measles strikes, and then try to modify it with gamma globulin. An effective vaccine is available and every child should be given its protection.

Young Canadians take up career in museum field

MONTREAL (CP) — Two young Canadians have begun an eight - month training program for a career in the museum field.

The program is sponsored jointly by the big three in Canadian art galleries—the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts, the Art Gallery of Toronto and the National Gallery of Canada in Ottawa.

The trainees are Gillian Dean Edgell, of Victoria, and John Barry Lord, of Hamilton, both 23.

The pair will be working at the Montreal museum until the end of November, then will move on to Toronto and Ottawa.

Dr. Evan H. Turner, director of the museum here, said:

"The purpose of the program is to create an awareness of the nature and variety of problems facing a large city museum in the organization and presentation of its program."

The program—first launched in 1957—will keep the two busy. They will work on cataloguing, the handling of objects, assist in the installation of exhibitions, observe packing procedures, participate in the guide-training program, give tours to school children and the general public, attend all public functions of the museum to assess the degree of achievement, follow the activities of the public relations department, assist in the organization of the membership program and campaign and visit exhibitions in commercial galleries as well as other Montreal museums and art schools.

New device for Army use

OTTAWA (CP)—With a bit of cord and plastic sheet, the Canadian Army has developed a simple device to give infantry overhead protection against shell bursts.

The cord, transparent sheet and aluminum anchors fold up into a small kit weighing about a pound and a half.

The device works this way: The infantryman first digs a slit trench. He then stretches four cords across one end of the trench. They are anchored by removing a sod, putting the aluminum piece, about the size of the hand, upright in the hole and replacing the sod. A toggle keeps the cord from pulling through the hole in the aluminum rectangle.

The infantryman then unfolds the sheet and places it over the supporting cords. The sheet is folded under the end cords and then is covered with the dirt dug from the trench. In this way, it will support the weight of the rear end of a truck.

The device can be rigged up in five minutes—once the trench is dug. The army plans general issue to field troops and other NATO countries are reported interested in the development.

You may sleep 200,000 hours

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — If you live to be 70 years old, you will probably spend about 200,000 hours in bed—and uncounted more hours wishing you were there.

Here are a few tidbits of bed lore and sleeping customs through the ages:

The ordinary person changes position 20 to 54 times during a night's rest.

One U.S. art collector recently had a merry-go-round bed built so he could admire all his masterpieces without turned his neck.

Japanese now are developing a yen for latex foam rubber mattresses.

Experts say that for comfortable sleeping a bed should be at least six inches longer than its intended occupant.

THREE-WAY BED

The ancient Spartans slept on rocks to prove their physical hardihood. But the luxury-loving Athenians created the triple-purpose sofa bed. It served as a daytime couch, a divan at dinnertime and a bed at night.

The world-ruling Romans fought insomnia in adult-sized cradles, in which they were rocked to slumber by slaves.

When northern barbarians of that day felt like "hitting the sack" they did so literally. They slumbered on portable sack pallets filled with straw.

The eighth century Vikings, among history's most rugged he-men, were the first to develop beds of soft eiderdown.

In Elizabethan times beds—costing $5,000 or more — became a status symbol with royalty and the aristocracy. King James I of Scotland dozed in a vast bed valued at $40,000.

SLEPT 12

Jonas Fosbrooke, a British cabinetmaker, labored 30 years carving a mammoth bedstead—it could sleep 12 people—for King Edward IV. The monarch was so pleased with it he pensioned Fosbrooke for life.

Merrie old England also was the home of something called "the trinity bed," a real community affair. The immediate family slept in the main deck, poor relations in a smaller bed that pulled out from the side, and servants in a poop deck portion that pulled out at the foot.

Twin beds first made their appearance in Britain in 1893, and were immediately denounced by some Victorian clergymen as immoral, indecent and a threat to family life.

But somehow civilization has managed to survive.

F!TCH BAY —

Friends are sorry to learn that Mr. Arnold Warner is suffering an infection in his hand.

VALUABLE TRADE

Canada's exports of raw furs in 1960 were valued at $25,690,000, an increase of $1,250,000 over the previous year.

Congregation at Cookshire bids pastor farewell

COOKSHIRE—Following the morning service of Trinity United Church on Nov. 4, a buffet lunch was served by the ladies in the church hall in honor of the Rev. and Mrs. E. E. Breen who are leaving the Cookshire-Bury pastoral charge. They will take up residence and their new duties on Nov. 14 in Pugwash, N.S.

Raymond Stevenson acted as master of ceremonies and presented Mr. Breen with a purse of money from the Cookshire congregation. Gifts were presented to Mrs. Breen by Lee Forand from the Baby Band, by Barbara Ann McDonald from the Explorers, and by Mrs. J. H. Vogell from the W.A.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Breen expressed their appreciation for their gifts. Mr. Breen stated he had enjoyed working with the various groups and gave special thanks to the organist, her assistant and the senior and junior choirs for their support in the Sunday services during his sojourn in Cookshire.

Are insecticides very effective?

SASKATOON (CP) — A University of Saskatchewan professor says insecticides are not as effective against grasshoppers as had been generally believed.

Prof. Roy Edwards of the department of biology said he has carried out tests which confirmed his suspicions that a significant number of grasshoppers are not killed when sprayed with insecticides but simply move out of the sprayed area to which they can return later.

Prof. Edwards said the results of spray tests, in which the number of live grasshoppers in an area is estimated before and after spraying, are unreliable.

He said more work has to be done to determine the effectiveness of existing methods of using insecticides as well as trying to find improved methods.

Prof. Edwards agrees present-day insecticides are effective in killing grasshoppers under laboratory conditions. His argument is that when they are used in the field they are not nearly as effective as claimed.

LISTENS TO PROBLEMS— Rev. Frederick W. Metzger, Presbyterian padre of Vancouver's Central City Mission, listens to problems of a man who has come for help. First World War slaughter

Western front a charnel house

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—On Oct. 17, 1917, Sir Arthur Currie, commander of the Canadian Corps in Flanders, noted in his diary: "Battlefield looks bad."

This must rank as one of the classic understatements of all time. The battlefield Gen. Currie was referring to was Passchendaele and the diary notation was made before the Canadian assault through the mud.

Apart possibly from the Nazi death ovens, the 1914-18 Western Front was the greatest charnelhouse in human history. Both sides committed "infantrycide" —genocide confined to young men—on a 500-mile front which never moved 10 miles in either direction until the battles of the last Hundred Days.

Canada's part in this human abattoir has, at long last, been recorded in painstaking detail in a single volume, Canadian Expeditionary Force 1914-1919 (Queen's Printer), published today, four days before the anniversary of the 1918 armistice.

HEAVY CASUALTIES

The author is Col. G. W. L. Nicholson, recently retired head of the army historical section. The book was authorized in 1956 by former defence minister Ralph Campney after earlier attempts to write a comprehensive history had been abandoned. The 536 pages attest to a magnificent job of research.

Col. Nicholson says in the preface that he hopes the book, which includes photographs, maps, appendices and index, will be of particular interest to survivors of the four - division Canadian Corps. The amazing thing, it seems after reading the history, is that there were any survivors at all.

A total of 60,661 Canadian servicemen perished in the First World War, 9.28 per cent of all who enlisted. In the Second World War, fatal casualties numbered 31,992 or 3.86 per cent.

Col. Nicholson is not one of those military historians who in recent years have condemned out of hand the First World War generals as butchers.

But even he cannot stomach the generalship of Sir Douglas Haig, commander-in-chief of all British forces in France, in the battles of the Somme in 1916 in which the Allies suffered 624,000 casualties, the Germans 680,000. The Canadian casualty toll was 15,654.

'MASS BUTCHERY'

Col. Nicholson says that after all has been said in vindication of Haig, "we cannot close our eyes to the horror of the mass butchery to which Haig's tactics had condemned the troops under his command."

In the old film All Quiet on the Western Front, there is a scene in which only a man's hands and wrists are shown swinging on the barbed wire. Col. Nicholson doesn't set out to shock but he paints similar scenes in words throughout the book, especially when he records how each Canadian Victoria Cross was won. Nearly all were awarded posthumously.

In contrast to other generals, Sir Arthur Currie, only Canadian commander of the corps, receives praise. Col. Nicholson says Gen. Currie was determined that the Canadians be spared unnecessary casualties and that he exploited gunpower to save infantrymen's lives.

ARTILLERYMEN LAUNCH ATTACK — Canadian artillerymen are set to launch and attack from a ruined village in the battle of Leamy Ridge during the First World War. By 1918, Canadian artillery under the command of Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton was recognized as the most proficient on the Western Front. (CP from National Defence).

By 1918 the Canadian artillery was the most proficient on the Western Front. It was commanded by Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, who became chief of Canada's overseas army in the Second World War.

Politically, the most interesting chapter in the book deals with the 1917 conscription crisis and the general election of that year with conscription the issue.

ACT WASN'T FAILURE

Col. Nicholson says the coalition government of Sir Robert Borden tried to have the Canadian Corps taken out of the Third Battle of Ypres Passchendaele to vote. As it turned out, the battle ended before the election but Gen. Currie resented attempts to get him mixed up in politics.

Col. Nicholson's conclusion on conscription: "The administration of the Military Service Act was often inefficient and attended by many gross malpractices (but) the act itself was neither a failure nor ineffective. Statistics show that it did produce the military results (reinforcements) which it was designed to produce."

He questions Borden's figures that up to March 31, 1918, a total of 147,505 Canadians of "British descent" and only 16,268 of "French descent" had been sent overseas. He says it is impossible to authenticate figures on enlistments by French-speaking Canadians because in official military records all Canadian-born were treated alike as "Canadian."

Col. Nicholson also says that of the first volunteers, 65 per cent had been born in Britain and that claims for exemption from conscription were 93.7 per cent of total registration in Canada.

In contrast to recent times, when the government has obtained parliamentary approval before sending a contingent abroad for United Nations duty, Canada's lightning response to Britain's call to arms in 1914 seems almost incredible.

In 1914, in fact, the Governor-General, the Duke of Connaught, on his own initiative, immediately advised London that Canada would go to war and asked assurances that Canadians would be sent to the front as soon as sufficiently trained.

Canada originally committed 25,000 to the expeditionary force. This grew later to 250,000 men. In 1917, Borden promised a force of 500,000 men in the field but this figure was never met and Canada had to rely on conscription to meet the reinforcement needs of the four divisions.

The Canadian government had to be resolute to keep the corps intact as a single fighting unit and to put Canadians in the senior command posts. Lord Kitchener, British war secretary, wanted British officers for the Canadian troops.

Currie on occasion was critical of his British superiors. Gen. John Pershing, U.S. Army commander, recorded after a talk with Currie that the Canadian general was bitter that in the 1918 German offensive the British lost Passchendaele in a few hours after his corps had lost 16,000 men in a series of bloody battles to win it.

The early experiences of the 1st Canadian Division in Flanders read like an unending tragedy: the first German gas attack of April 22, 1915, the shelling of Canadian troops by Canadian artillery, incorrect intelligence reports, the jamming Ross rifle, faulty ammunition, the lack of preparation for attack and contradictory orders.

Despite all this, Col. Nicholson says, the Canadian Corps was welded into a highly efficient fighting machine with high morale and confidence in Gen. Currie.

As the chilling tale of horror continues through the accounts of the battles of the St. Eloi craters, Regina Trench, Vimy, Hill 70, Passchendaele and Amiens, one is left wondering why the Canadian footslogger didn't mutiny, as the French did.

Mutiny, in fact, did come, but only after the war and on a small scale. Riots erupted over the method of repatriating the troops and in one incident in England five soldiers were killed and 23 wounded. There were 13 such disturbances.

Haig insisted on a war of attrition and even Prime Minister David Lloyd George couldn't stop him. This meant, simply, killing Germans. But it also meant, as in the case of Regina Trench, that when the final objective was reached, at dreadful human cost, it was not worth having because it had been blown to bits. It is little wonder, as Col. Nicholson records, that the armistice was accepted by Canadian troops in almost utter silence.

Liberals in power 29 months

The Nov. 14 Quebec comes only 29 months after the June 1960 contest in which the Liberals edged the Union Nationale, which had governed the province since 1944, out of office.

Sherbrooke and the Eastern Townships participated in this switch. Sherbrooke itself had been represented by Union Nationale Finance Minister J. S. Bourque. Mr. Bourque was defeated in 1960 by L. P. Brousseau, his Liberal challenger.

Two Townships Liberal members who had held their seats during the Union Nationale regime saw their majorities shoot up in their party's victory.

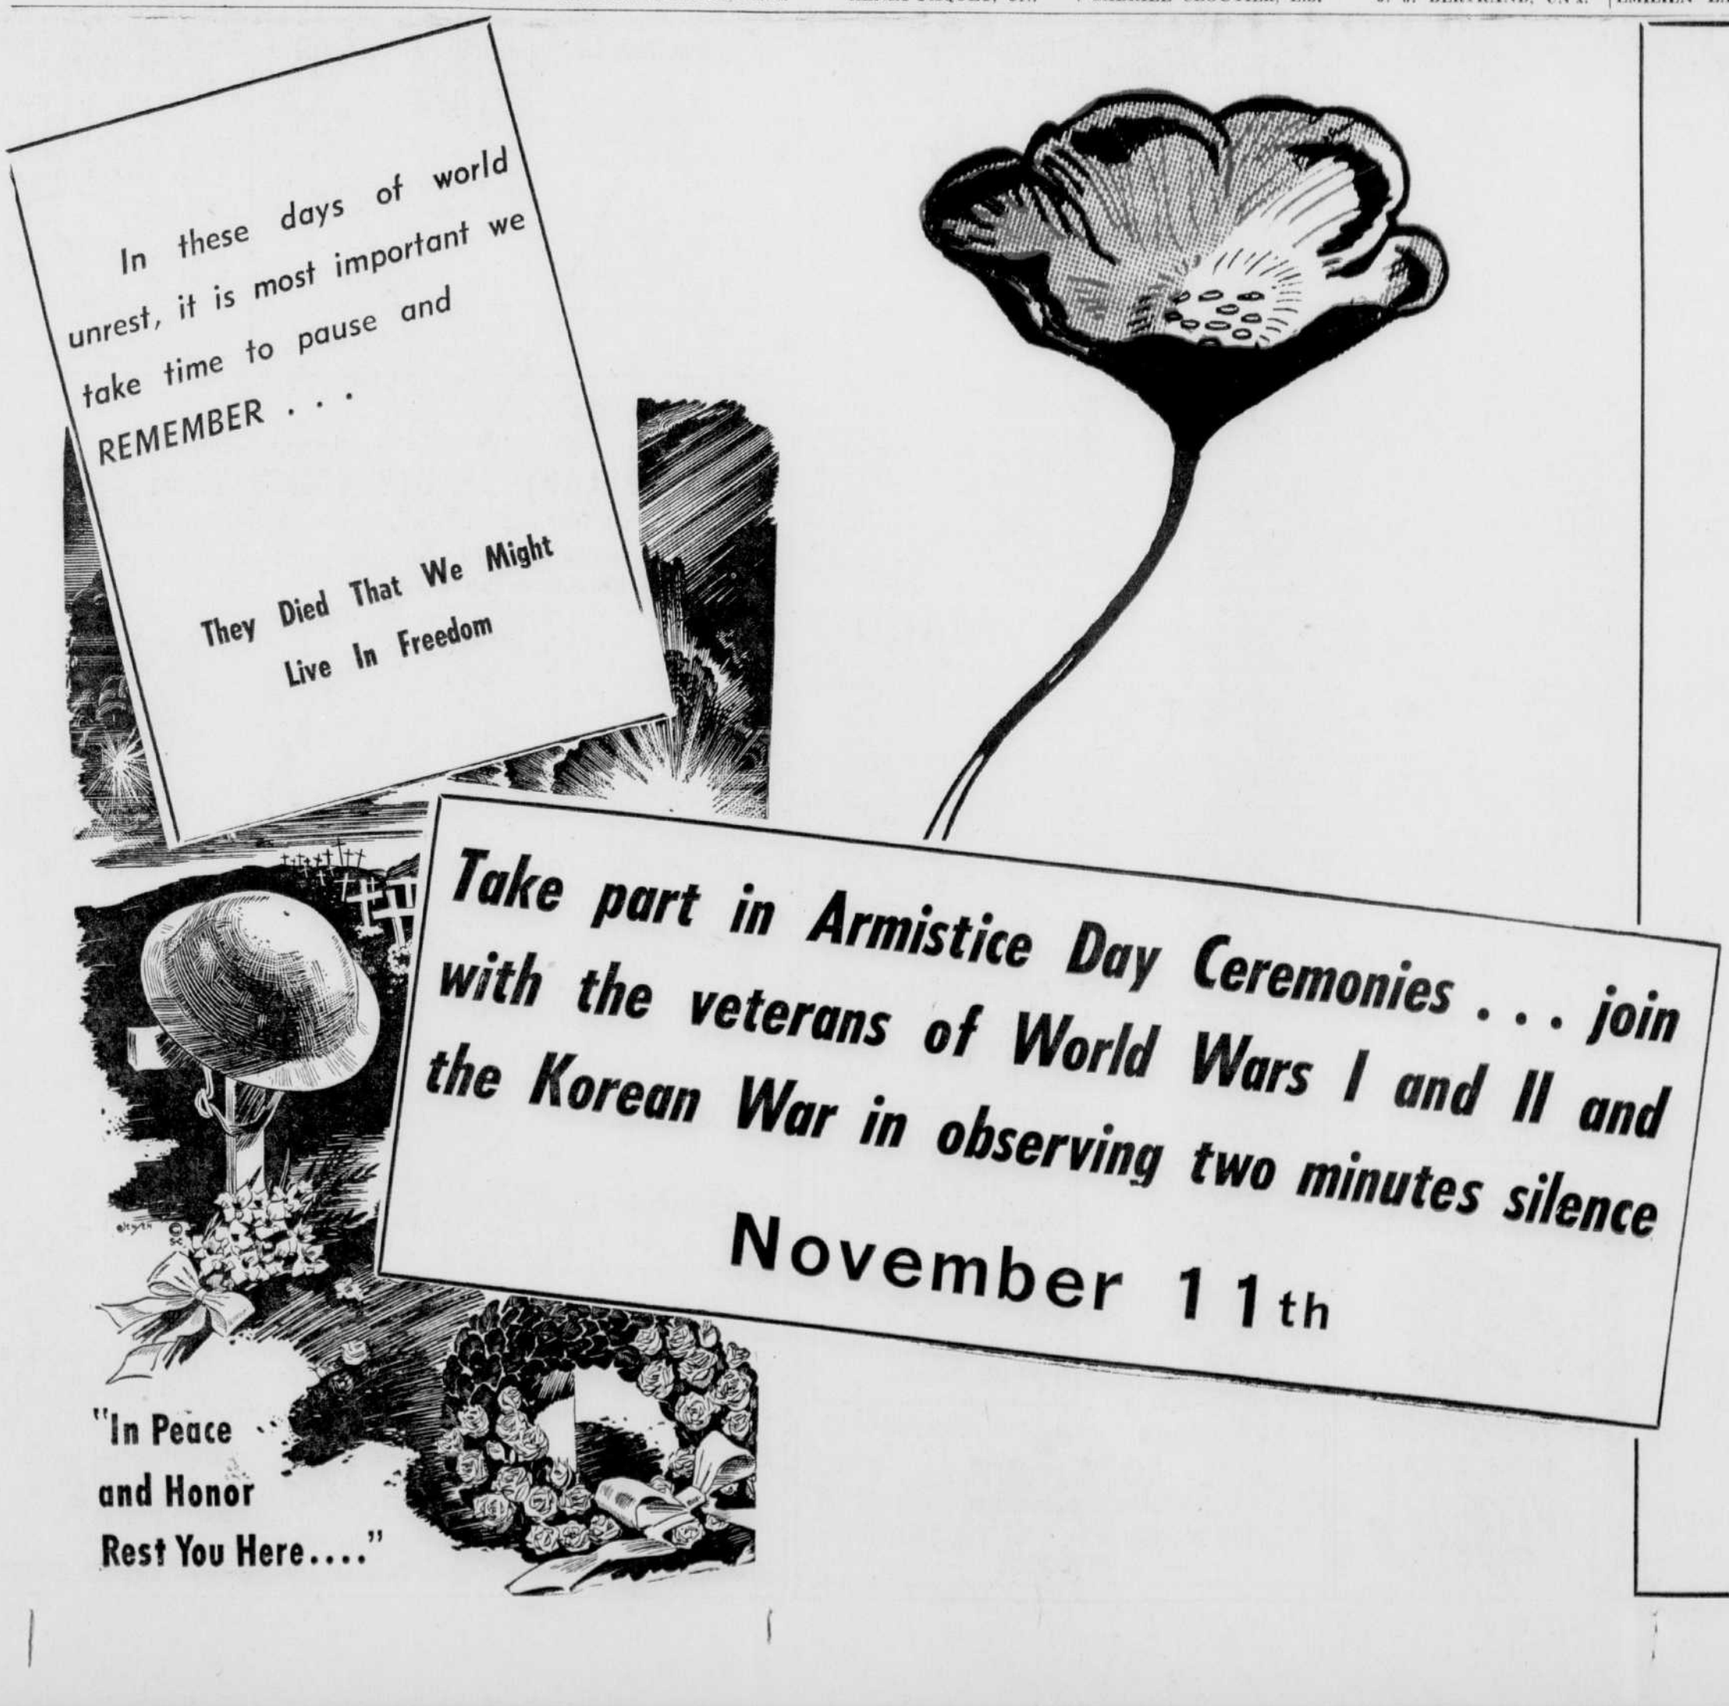

They were Glen Brown in Brome and Emilien Lafrance, who took the welfare portfolio in the cabinet Premier Jean Lesage assembled following his victory, in Richmond.

Stanstead was another of the E.T. counties which changed loyalties in 1960, Georges Vaillancourt of the Liberals defeating Union Nationale incumbent Denis Gerin by 420 votes.

Compton and Missisquoi were counties which remained in the Union Nationale camp, Claude Gosselin and Jean-Jacques Bertrand defeating Liberals Omer Dionne and Lionel-Andre Gautier.

Mr. Bertrand had ben Union Nationale youth minister, and Mr. Gosselin first entered the legislature in a 1957 by-election.

Sherbrooke Diocesan Council

Miss. F. Mullins honored at regional conference

The members of the Catholic Women's League, representatives of eight Parish Councils, met on Saturday, October 27, in St. Patrick's Church hall at 10 a.m. to hold a Regional conference.

Mrs. Geneva Thibault, president of St. Bridget Council, acting hostess, welcomed the members, and assisted by members of her council, served coffee and doughnuts in the Library.

Diocesan president, Mrs. Paul Labrosse, opened the meeting and thanked the ladies for responding in such numbers to her invitation, and opened the meeting with the league Prayers. Prayers were also offered for the Holy Father Pope John 23rd and a special memento for peace.

Minutes of the September meeting were read, by Mrs. E. J. Wolfe, and the treasurer, Miss P. Baird, gave her report, showing a very satisfactory balance in the various funds.

Several Councils reported special prayers on October 11, opening of the Ecumenical Council. In Sherbrooke, a Youth and Children's Day was organized on that date. In East Angus members offered a Novena of Masses. St. Theresa Council, Richmond, offered Mass at Notre Dame school, which all students attended, also a High Mass in Holy Family Parish on the same date at 9 p.m. which was well attended.

Other Councils reported special prayers for the success of the Vatican Council at regular meetings. In Magog School children offered special prayers during month of October.

After the business meeting the president gave a most interesting talk on the National Convention C. W. L. held in Halifax, in August which she attended. The theme of the convention was, "The Social Teaching of the Church on the Encyclical Mater et Magistra".

Mrs. Labrosse thanked the members for having sent her as delegate to the convention. She gave special commendation to the hospitality and friendliness of the Halifonians to the Mayor, and others who made her stay in Halifax so pleasant. Here Mrs. Labrosse mentioned a custom, which must surely contribute to the "bonne entente" within the city. The Mayor of Halifax is elected for a period of three years, a Catholic and a protestant, being chosen alternately.

Reports serve to show what an immense organization the C. W. L. is, and the almost incredible amount of work done through the year, for example: education alone $125,000 was spent by the League.

Miss Gladys Mullins thanked Mrs. Labrosse for her interesting resume.

The Conference then conformed to plan with Miss M. McCormick presenting a questionnaire together with replies which serve to settle many points of discussion, on the particular problems of each council.

CONVENERS REPORTS

Mrs. Wolfe, 1st vice president on the Provincial, gave a report on the functioning of the Provincial Council.

Mrs. Halchak of Waterville spoke on Legislation.

Mrs. P. McKenna on Girl Guides and Brownies, encouraging sponsorship by the C. W. L.

Convener of Immigration, asked members to visit new Canadians who settle in local communities.

In the absence of the Social Welfare convener, Mrs. J. Beaubien; her commendations were given by Miss M. O'Donnell.

Convener of Spiritual activities suggested that all Parish Councils have a Mass offered for Peace in the world.

Mrs. Alexander made a report on the Second Vatican Council being held in Rome.

Miss O. McKeon Radio and T.V. convener reported a letter received from Archbishop M. O'Connor expressing approval for what the C. W. L. does in regard to these means of communication.

PRESENTATIONS MADE

At the conclusion of the reports the president broached the subject previously approved to present Past President pins to the past Diocesan presidents.

Presentations to Miss Florine Mullins was made by Mrs. M. J. Shelley who warmly recommended her for this honor, since she is a Charter Member of Our Lady of Good Counsel Council, an organiser of numerous Study Clubs, has been keenly active in C. W. L. work in Parish, and Diocesan levels. The Guard of Honor of the Blessed Sacrament was organized by Miss Mullins, and she directed the ladies choir for many years. She organized Youth and Children's Day and attended as delegate at the National Convention at Ottawa and Vancouver. Through the recommendation of her Pastor, Miss Mullins was awarded the Bene Merente Medal for which award she was most deserving.

Miss Mullins thanked the members, insisting that she has been fully repaid for all her efforts in the interest and enjoyment she has derived therefrom.

The presentation of a Past Diocesan President Pin to Mrs. E. J. Wolfe, 1st vice president on the Provincial Council, was made by Mrs. Ross Alexander, who pointed out that this member has shown a spirit of self sacrifice and devotion, to her League works and efforts. She has proved a dedicated worker on Resolution as also on the Annual programs. Mrs. Wolfe, taken completely by surprise graciously thanked the Council.

The president thanked everyone for their constant co-operation and Mrs. Harrison thanked the president and her executive for the very interesting and informative conference.

The meeting then adjourned followed by a social period and refreshments.

RECEIVING GUESTS — Mr. and Mrs. J. S. CRAZE FOR CRAZY HATS

Teen-age girls will be crazy about crazy hats this winter. Kookie chapeaux range from head-covering wigs of curly lamb or opposum or a three-cornered kerchief of "leopard" pile to a yellow wool cloche fringed in black or a pigtailed watchcap.

Polly's pointers

by Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY—Now that some of us are raking fall leaves, the question is where to put them for city pick-up when all the boxes are full. Save the plastic dry cleaning bags and put a rubber band or string around the small, top hole so the leaves will not fall through at this point. Fill the plastic bag, tie a string when it is full and you have a waterproof way of keeping the leaves intact until city collection time.

MRS. N. H.

DEAR GIRLS—I am going to have to get my clothes soiled quicker so as to get more bags from the cleaner. How about you?

POLLY

DEAR POLLY—A small piece of foam rubber glued to the rubber floor mat at the base of the gas pedal in the car will protect milady's high heels from scuffing.

SIS S

DEAR POLLY —I folded diapers for the last time about a month ago. Since then they they have all been sewed. I folded the oblong type in thirds and then stitched them in place. They fit my 2-year-old. In two months, with an extra fold they'll be used for a new baby. Such a joy to know that tiresome job is ended for good. Also, I write the contents of each drawer in the children's chests on separate cards and tape the cards to the drawers. Either daddy or a baby sitter can quickly find anything needed without mussing through everything else. If you do not want these labels on the drawer fronts, make a little picture map of the drawers that shows the drawers' contents.

MRS. C. J. E. JR.

DEAR GIRLS — Evidently this smart gal makes every motion count.

POLLY

DEAR POLLY — I found that by picking several small holes with a pin in the covering that comes over a box of loose face powder you don't waste so much powder nor get it all over everything. Use the box like a shaker and shake on to the powder puff. Saves time, as you don't get too much on your puff.

Beauty Tips

Give your hair a milk bath — a light misting, really — to add body and bounce, glimmer and sheen. After shampooing, mix one part water to three parts skim milk. (Mix powdered non-fat milk with one-third more water than directions call for.)

Spray lightly on clean wet hair with atomizer bottle; comb and set.

FINE FURS

Of 2,300 fur farms in Canada in 1961, a total of 1,600 were for mink and 520 for chinchilla.

Teachers, board members and public exchange views

AYER'S CLIFF — An out of the ordinary meeting of the Stanstead County Protestant Teachers' Association was held here on Oct. 30.

For the first time, the general public and county school board members met with the teachers for an exchange of views on what was expected of the community, the school boards and the schools.

Speaking for the community, Mrs. A. Scott outlined her views on possible improvements in in modern educational prac tice. These included the inclusion of a kindergarten in primary schools, the adoption of the subject promotion system rather than grade promotion, and an attempt to eliminate inefficiencies which contribute to the high failure rate in the Province.

Changes were also necessary in the curriculum to prepare the child better for after-school life; art, music, and physical education should be considered, not as frills, but as basic subjects.

Representing the county school boards, H. Brookhouse spoke on what the boards expected of the school building, the principal, and the teacher, the three elements which make up the educational atmosphere.

It was important that the principal remain as teacher as well as an administrator in order to keep in touch with the pupils. However, he felt that the younger teachers should take on some of the lighter administrative duties. Lastly, he mentioned that an adequate amount of homework should be given so that students should have sufficient practise in learning.

The third speaker, Dr. K. Harper, spoke on what schools expected of the community and school boards. The community, she felt, should actively support the extra-curricular activities of the school and display its loyalty to the school ahdnd teachers. It was iImportant that people inform themselves of the changes in educational methods and aims.

Of the school boards, teachers expected good physical working conditions and confidence in them. Attendance at school activities was also of importance. She felt that school boards should be prepared to spend money for art, music and physical education.

B. Hodge, who introduced the speakers, then initiated a discussion period by assigning the topics to groups formed from the audience. Results of these discussions were later reported at the end of the evening. It was generally felt that this innovation at the teachers' meeting was a great success.

Weather upsets Pekingese plans

By ADAM KELLETT-LONG

PEKING (Reuters)—After a bad summer drought and an unseasonably cold fall, Peking is full of people in padded winter clothes.

Autumn in Peking is traditionally the best season of the year. By then, the dusty spring gales have blown themselves out, the torrid summer heat is only a memory and the icy Siberian blasts of winter are still to come.

But the weather this year has been causing people in North China to shake their heads ruefully and say "things aren't what they used to be."

This year's weather was a particular disappointment to members of the diplomatic corps, who look forward to a sunny Windless summer for sight-seeing in the ancient parks, temples and palaces and picnicking at the nearby Ming tombs and the Great Wall of China.

WINDS COLD

But this year murky clouds have spoiled the view and the chilly north winds have made it too cold for comfortable picnicking.

Peking women have put away their light, gay summer dresses and the capital again has become a city of blue-clad people relieved now and then by the bright red scarf of a member of the youth pioneers or an occasional khaki army uniform.

Almost the only exception to the universal blue quilted uniforms are the countless toddlers still playing in the narrow lanes and parks.

Most children up to the age of six run around naked or nearly so during the hot summer months. But as autumn sets in, they put on colored smocks, which become steadily more padded as the weather gets colder.

GRANBY — The United Church Women members held their fall bazaar in the lecture hall of the church on Nov. 3.
