A park to remember Muffy Tippet

By Matthew McCully

Artists are able to do something very special. They can capture a moment and with their choice of colours and textures, immortalize a feeling within an image.

Artist Ann Malcolm, better known as Muffy Tippet, was well-known in the Townships for her ability to capture the essence of local gardens, historical buildings and landscapes in her paintings.

Thanks to a recent dedication by the city of Sherbrooke, patrons and friends can visit Ann Malcolm Park at the corner of Lemire and Virginie-Laflamme Streets, to remember the life and work of the local artist, a fitting tribute to one who recreated so many familiar landscapes for others.

Muffy's work is best described in her own words.

"I paint from the heart and I have to be present with the subject. I tell myself when I do a painting that it has to best one I have ever done," she said, during an interview at Aube-Lumière in Sherbrooke on April 8, 2011. She passed away on Aug. 31 of that year, following the opening of a retrospective exhibition of her work organized by the Lennoxville-Ascot Historical and Museum Society (LAHMS) at Uplands, attended by hundreds.

Ann (Muffy) Malcolm was born in Montréal in 1935. Her mother, Bernice De Pencier-Malcolm, was a gifted amateur artist and encouraged her daughter's artistic development.

She received her first art lessons under Betty Jacque, a pioneer art teacher who had worked with Arthur Lismer. Muffy and Betty became lifelong friends and kept in touch through the years. Later, in the 1950s, Muffy received further art training under Fritz Brandtner (1896-1969), a Canadian artist who taught at Miss Edgar's and Miss Cramp's School in Westmount.

She lived in Toronto for around 10 years before moving to Lennoxville in 1977 to enroll in the Fine Arts Department at Bishop's University, where she studied with Ophra Benazon, Morton Rosengarten, David Sorensen and print-maker Micheline Durocher. After getting her B.A., she spent a year with her son Christopher in Avignon, South of France.

Muffy is known for more than her artwork. While in Lennoxville, she founded a Montessori School on Church Street. From 1989 to 1998, under her leadership, children attending her pre- and kindergarten classes developed their creativity and their spontaneous expression of art and music.

Muffy's art was inspired by the people, their gardens, their houses and the landscape of the Townships. Working in ink, watercolour, oil, and different print-making techniques, she captured the picturesque scenery around Lennoxville and the beauty of the surrounding countryside.

"She got a lot of joy out of her painting," said Naisi LeBaron, a friend and fellow artist. "They were full of life and humour; she took pleasure in her surroundings," she added, regarding her paintings.

"I'm all for naming parks after artists instead of politicians," LeBaron joked, regarding the dedication, calling it a good fit for Muffy, so inspired by the scenery of the Townships.

According to art historian and archivist Monique Nadeau-Saumier, who guest curated Muffy's retrospective exhibition in 2011, over 300 members of the public attended the show, and the majority of her available paintings were sold.

Nadeau-Saumier pointed out that much of Muffy's work is in private collections. She was commissioned to paint the North Hatley home of former Quebec Premier Jean Charest, who owns a number of her other watercolours.

Muffy also took several trips to St-Benoit, and presented an etching of the monastery to Dom André Laberge, Abbot of St-Benoit-du-Lac.

"I am the proud owner of the painting of Owl's Head," Nadeau-Saumier said, calling her work whimsical and lovely.

"I'm amazed the city is naming a park for her-but in a good surprised way," said Graham Moodie, a friend of Muffy.

"She was well plugged into the arts community in Sherbrooke," Moodie said, describing her as a wonderful watercolourist, and 'eccentric as hell to boot.'

"When she entered Aube Lumière for what we assumed would be a week or so, she astounded her doctors by staying several months.

She wanted to live for that Uplands show," commented Moodie, explaining that she attended the vernissage on a stretcher, and passed away peacefully at Aube-Lumière a few weeks later.

"The more I think of it I'm deeply moved that Sherbrooke is doing this.

I suspect Monique (Nadeau-Saumier) may have been the driving force," Moodie said, adding that her lobbying shows just how deeply Monique loved Muffy and admired her art.

"Monique and the Ville will have made Muffy's many friends very happy and proud," Moodie said.

On Wednesday, July 6, the North Hatley Library will sponsor a trip to the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts to see an exhibition of artifacts from the ancient city of Pompeii.

Townshippers may remember studying Roman history in school and learning about the city, situated near modern day Naples, which disappeared in 24 hours under the violent eruption of the nearby volcano, Vesuvius.

When it erupted in 79 AD, Vesuvius produced a 12-mile high cloud of debris followed by a blanket of ash that covered the city, killing more than 2000 people.

The ash and debris served as a sealant, preserving the buildings, people and artifacts in Pompeii, offering a unique glimpse into what life was like in the city, with the day of the eruption essentially frozen in time.

For more details about the exhibition, visit the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts website at www.mbam.qc.ca/en/exhibitions/on-view/pompeii.

The cost of the trip is $70 and includes the bus trip, museum entry and a guided tour of the exhibition.

To reserve a spot on the bus, visit the North Hatley Library or call 819-842-2110 to reserve.

Brandy Clark is committed to making great country music

COUNTRY CONNECTION

JESSIE AULIS

Brandy Clark's debut album, 12 Stories was a hit and made her an artist to watch. Up to her first release, she had mainly been known as a successful songwriter. When she finally announced her second album title Big Day in a Small Town, and her collaboration with producer Jay Joyce (Little Big Town's Pain Killer), fans were impatient to hear the results.

Clark's sophomore album offers a great selection of songs telling stories about the day-to-day life in small town America. It is sometimes humorous and sometimes heartbreaking, but always great.

Brandy Clark is an amazing writer and really knows how to put together a cohesive music experience. Clark puts a fresh spin on drinkin', cheatin', and small-town life. Country singers have been singing about it for years, but never has it been done that way!

Although she has written hits for (and with) quite a few of today's bigger country stars (The Band Perry, Kacey Musgraves, Miranda Lambert, Reba and Jennifer Nettles to name just a few), somehow she has not yet got the recognition and credit she deserves in her own right as a singer/performer and songwriter. This new release should do it.

After careful consideration of Big Day in a Small Town, it feels honest to say that this effort by Brandy Clark and producer Jay Joyce is worthy of ranking up there with a very few others, as one of the best country music albums released in the last few years.

While her first album had more sparse instrumentation, this one features an appealing range of music that supports the excellent songwriting. If you are not familiar yet with her work, this album should get your attention.

From the gossip heard and repeated in the local beauty shop to a surprised new grandmother who had been getting on her daughter's back for gaining weight, until her water breaks in the middle of geometry class, to the young woman dealing with the loss of her father, this is true life and we have all lived it or witnessed it.

"Soap Opera" sets the theme and style for the album. Everyone has their own relationship issues, from ex-spouses to interfering in-laws, and the song focuses on the local hairdresser and bartender who hear so many complaints from their customers.

This is a collection that deserves to be heard like you would be reading a book and not just some chapters out of sequence. It looks like a lot of effort has been involved in picking the order of the songs on the album.

There's also "Homecoming Queen" about life after graduation. The celebrated homecoming queen is now a mother of three living down the road from her own mother. Her life didn't work out quite like she had planned. She's a girl trying to make a better life for her kids while putting her own life and dreams on hold.

"Broke" is about a farming family who has a hard time to make ends meet. Brandy Clark offers a light-hearted and humorous take on poverty as she sings: "The white left the picket/the fleas left the hound/And even the crickets have moved into town."

Brandy Clark uses humour on the heartbreak number, "Daughter." After getting dumped by a smooth talking guy, Clark wishes for karma to get back at him. "I hope you have a daughter/and I hope that she's a fox. Daddy's little girl/just as sweet as she is hot. She can't help but love them boys/who love to love and leave them girls/just like her father."

This track offers a great country production, and Kacey Musgraves provides vocal harmonies during the chorus. It's a fun, lighthearted song with a catchy chorus and some great lyrics.

Brandy Clark is committed to making great country music to help the genre move forward. Music does indeed need to evolve, but that doesn't mean it should evolve away from the roots of what makes the genre or the artist outstanding.

Big Day in a Small Town is a great example of country music evolving. This new Brandy Clark album has songs embedded in country's traditional styles, yet there is room to explore in order to permit a fresh take.

Thanks to great production and songs that stand on their own, yet put together, they follow a theme and tell a story. This is exactly what country music is all about and should always be.

These last years, we have heard a lot of bad country music, in the name of evolution. This comes as a proof that you can evolve and yet stay faithful to the genre. Brandy Clark has followed up a great debut album with an even better album. Buy it — you won't have any regrets!

Mourning Ralph Stanley

Music City is mourning the death of Ralph Stanley. The well-known bluegrass musician died Thursday, June 23 at the age of 89. He leaves behind an enormous body of work.

Stanley was known for his distinctive singing and banjo playing. He began playing music in 1946, originally with his brother Carter as part of The Stanley Brothers, and most often as the leader of his band, The Clinch Mountain Boys.

Stanley's work was featured in the very popular 2000 film O Brother, Where Art Thou? in which he sings the Appalachian hymn "O Death." With that song, Stanley won a 2002 Grammy Award in the category of Best Male Country Vocal Performance.

Stanley and his music have been an influence on many musicians through the years. His voice was unique as much as his banjo picking. Farewell to this pioneer of bluegrass music!

I stopped at Derby Short Stop Mobil in Derby, Vermont, on my last road trip and I want to say a loud thank you to Miss Hope for her patience and smile. Now that's the way to make a customer feel welcome and thanks for reading my column every Friday!

Theatre production hoping to catch a big crowd in Knowlton

By Matthew McCully

Well-known local actress and director Emma Stevens is in rehearsal mode these days, prepping a production by Canadian playwright Norm Foster, scheduled to premiere at the Lakeview Inn in Knowlton on July 20.

“It’s typical summer fare,” Stevens said, “we want to be laughing and having fun.”

The play, entitled The Great Kooshog Lake Hollis McCauley Fishing Derby, described as a story about a small town, a big fish, and a handful of interesting characters, has a five-member cast, including Darleen Bell, Danny McAuley, Ari Snyder, Michaela Baines, and Andrea Conway.

Stevens has worked with all the cast members in previous productions with the exception of Conway, who has stage experience, but is new to this type of theatre, she said.

When she first started a community theatre group in 1984, Stevens mounted shows all over the Brome Lake area and other parts of the Townships.

Bringing her new show to The Lakeview Inn will be a return to a familiar setting for Stevens, but will pose some challenges.

“It wasn’t built as a theatre,” she explained. “It’s an awkward space, but we’ve figured it out.”

Stevens said the set will include a fishing dock, and the lake will be the area usually used as a dance floor in the venue, keeping the audience up close and personal with the actors.

An experienced actor and director, Stevens embraced the space limitations and believes the blocking will work out well.

“I think I managed to get some fun stuff in there,” commented Stevens.

“A long time ago someone once said, you should be able to do a show on a penny stamp,” she joked.

“People should understand what it takes to put on a show,” Stevens went on.

Just buying the rights to perform Foster’s play for seven nights cost $800, she explained. After building and painting the set, the production costs will be at least $1,000, she said, “and that’s on the cheap.”

She compared the upcoming show to previous projects she has worked on in the past in the area some of which were big blockbuster productions during her time with Echo Art.

“When we did Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat it cost over $16,000. If we broke even we considered ourselves lucky,” Stevens remembered.

Discussing the financial woes and challenges of keeping theatre alive in the area, Stevens said seeing kids she has worked with continue on in theatre makes all the work worth the effort.

“It’s so neat to see them go on from there,” she said, referring to one of her former protégés, now working on a TV show in Toronto.

While Stevens has seen the peaks and valleys of many different theatre-related endeavours in the area over the years, she remains open to new possibilities.

Unable to give details at this time, she hinted that she is in discussions to get involved in a new project, where she could lend her expertise and vast stage experience to a new generation of theatre lovers.

The Great Kooshog Lake Hollis McCauley Fishing Derby will run for seven nights between July 20 and 29. Tickets are available at Brome Lake Books.

‘Hard to unravel’: k.d. lang reflects on her career and coming out

By David Friend
THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sometimes k.d. lang is ready to wind up her singing career and ease into retirement, but then inspiration strikes for a new project.

That’s what happened when she dreamt up the new “Case/lang/Veirs” album about three years ago.

Envisioned as a collaboration with folk artists Neko Case and Laura Veirs, lang tapped out an email to her friends and suggested the trio get together to record some cover songs.

Within half an hour of sending the message, both other singers were on board with the idea.

“It was really easy,” lang says of making the pitch. “(But) we decided instead of a cover record, we felt it was an absolute necessity to write it. That’s when the real work started.”

Veirs and lang committed to working together in person, since they both lived in Portland, while Case joined them mostly to provide vocals.

“We sang it in the same room, we wrote it in the same room,” lang, 54, says. “So old-fashioned.”

Tradition is something lang became accustomed to while growing up in Consort, Alta., where her family’s home was rich with music. Her siblings were all trained classical pianists and she fondly remembers her mother playing “Peter and the Wolf” and the “Sound of Music” before bedtime.

In her waking hours, lang spent time flipping through her older sister’s vinyl collection.

“A 12-inch album cover was like a portal into a world,” she says. “You could stare at that thing for an hour and just go off on a journey.”

Her teenage years were filled with music from genre pioneers like the Flying Burrito Brothers and Delaney & Bonnie who bridged the gap between rock and country.

A gift of Patsy Cline albums on her 21st birthday gave lang the final push to explore country music further — and eventually form the Reclines, a band which started as a tribute to the American country star.

Two years later lang was picked as most promising female vocalist at the 1985 Junos on the strength of her debut “A Truly Western Experience” with the Reclines.

When Nashville came knocking, the singer quickly learned that U.S. record executives wanted her to wear the boots of a more mainstream country singer — less punk and more pop.

Instead of following the industry’s vision, lang decided to revisit her earlier influences.

She would win her first Grammy a few years later in 1989 for a duet of “Crying” with Roy Orbison, and picked up another the following year for her album “Absolute Torch And Twang.”

Her rise would instantly expose her to a different world where casual encounters with Naomi Campbell and dinners with Gianni Versace were commonplace.

“I didn’t think anything of it,” she says. “When I look back at it I think, wow, it seems so far-fetched.”

But underneath the glamour of the time, the HIV/AIDS crisis was tearing through the arts scene. Party conversations often shifted to friends who fell victim to the disease.

Lang says she remembers frequently discussing the crisis with close friend and fashion photographer Herb Ritts and label-mate Madonna.

“We all knew we had a social responsibility to make some inroads and strides in acceptance, but it’s so hard to have clarity when you’re in the thick of it.”

When radical activist group Queer Nation began publicly outing celebrities in the early 1990s, a panic swept through the entertainment industry.

Even though lang told her family at 17 she was a lesbian, she says coming out publicly “felt like it was the most responsible thing for society and myself.”

Sitting down with LGBTQ magazine the Advocate for their June 1992 issue, she addressed the question she knew they’d ask — and it pushed her even further into the global spotlight.

Her single “Constant Craving” from “Ingenué” took off, becoming the biggest hit of her career, and its lyrics became a talking point about her sexuality. The famous Vanity Fair cover with supermodel Cindy Crawford followed the next year.

Despite the sales boosts, lang found it painful to watch her career writhe on the narrative of her new public persona and sexual identity. It was a world built on “the clothes and who you’re hanging out with,” she says.

When her followup “All You Can Eat” landed with a thud on the album charts, lang decided it was time to regroup. She stopped chasing the celebrity lifestyle and took up Buddhism.

She’s also tried to digest her feelings about coming out publicly.

“It’s a very hard thing to unravel for me and decipher,” she says.

“In a way you can’t. It’s all just a big ball of wax of who I am and what my role in popular culture was — and what pop culture’s role was in me.

“Now I have my music and the part of coming out,” she says. “I kind of like where I’m at.”
