Désourdys declare bankruptcy, then repurchase Bromont hill

By René Bruemmer

Thanks to Hydro-Québec, the owners of the Bromont Ski Resort are in the process of declaring bankruptcy, and then buying the hill back again.

With an accumulated debt of $9 million, the Station de ski Bromont société en commandites that owned the resort and is owned by the Désourdy family, was forced to declare bankruptcy when Hydro-Québec shut off power to the hill last week. At almost the same time, the Statour company, also owned by the Désourdy family, signed a deal with CIBC bank to buy the mountain for $2.65 million, resort manager Charles Désourdy

Quebecers had a good time - including Bill Johnson He could barely stop giggling long enough to speak a complete sentence

I'm sure by now most of us have seen the videotape of William Johnson's Excellent Adventure at la Fête Nationale. It includes a message for everyone - but not the message Bill intended.

CHARLES BURY

A few days before this week's Saint-Jean Baptiste parade, the new Alliance Quebec president took the unusual step of asking the Montreal press corps to let it be known publicly that he was not on the list of 'dignitaries' the Société Saint-Jean-Baptiste de Montréal had invited to stroll along the last few blocks of their parade route. The unusually compliant newsies did as asked. They also reported, as Johnson requested, that he had asked to be added to the SSJB list, that the SSJB had refused, and that he declared that he was just as much a Quebecer as anyone, and would join the march anyway. Later Johnson made sure the press knew and publicized exactly where and when he would join the parade. When the time came, and surrounded by overheated camera people and reporters carrying their microphones on poles, Johnson made sure everybody watching the parade also knew he was there.

The strategy worked. A few minutes later, along came the pie. Strictly-speaking it wasn't a pie but rather a paper plate piled with whipped cream, but missing that key pie component, the pastry crust. Whatever. After viewing the tape two or three times on televised reports, I noticed that the very instant the dessert hit him in the face, Johnson started laughing. And while talking to reporters a minute or two later, he could barely stop giggling long enough to speak a complete sentence. And Johnson is not the kind of guy who laughs a lot when taken by surprise. If you don't believe me, ask Alliance's new board of directors.

Bill's instant mirth telegraphed his real intention. This was obviously a planned event. From the start, he wanted to seem like an innocent victim, a martyr to the anglo cause, who was attacked for simply walking down the street. It's a trick he may have picked up during his decade with the Jesuits. After all, they've been making martyrs of themselves for centuries, although until now the whipping has not usually been done with dairy products.

I'm not the only one to come to this conclusion. One veteran reporter commented privately that Johnson might as well have worn a sign that said 'Kick Me'. Others even suspect that he chose his own designated pie pitcher. I rather doubt this though; Johnson may surround himself with clowns, but none of them wear orange outfits - except maybe on the 12th of July. And Johnson himself had made sure that every crackpot for 500 miles knew just where to find him.

The net result of all this was to make Quebec look bad on newscasts from coast to coast. Six-and-a-half-million Quebecers had a good time on Wednesday - obviously including Bill Johnson - while only a handful of hoodlums tried to spoil the show - also including Bill Johnson, intellectual thug, along with the few dozen goons who stoned shop windows in Montreal that night and in Old Quebec the night before.

So what's that message I was talking about before? Don't take everything you see at face value.

Valcourt driver to be charged in teen's death

Charges of impaired driving resulting in death will be laid against the 55-year-old driver who struck and killed Danièle Dumas in Valcourt Township late Tuesday night.

The 16-year-old girl was killed as she was walking home on Range 4 Road at around 4:15 a.m.

The driver called police immediately after the accident, and was transported to Granby Hospital to treat injuries suffered when his airbag was triggered and to undergo a blood test for proof of alcohol consumption. The Valcourt Township resident was released soon afterwards and brought to the QPF headquarters in Granby for questioning.

Although results of the blood test were not yet available, it was decided Thursday to press charges on the strength of the police interview. The driver will appear in Granby court on September 21.

$9 million owed to banks, $400,000 to others

BROMONT:

said yesterday. The hill is open for business as usual, however, because two generators have been brought in to power the chair lift, used by mountain bikers, and the aquapark.

The confusing state of business affairs came to a head due to a bill totaling "more than $100,000" owed to Hydro-Québec. According to Désourdy, government law decrees Hydro-Québec cannot sell electricity to a commercial site until the accounts are paid, or until the company that owes money is bankrupt, and a new company takes over.

"They were the only supplier that didn't want to sell to us," Désourdy said. "Others said we either want a deposit or to do a credit check, or pay us $500 or something."

The company said it was negotiating a new financing deal with the bank and would be able to pay soon, but Hydro-Québec said its hands were tied by the law. The power was cut, and Bromont S.E.C. was forced to declare bankruptcy in order to get its power back. Bromont S.E.C. started proceedings last Monday, and expects to be officially bankrupt by early next week.

Meanwhile, the owners of the hill have been trying to negotiate with CIBC for the last year. The $9 million debt load forced the company to hand over all its profits directly to the bank, Désourdy said, hindering owners from investing in improvements to the hill for the last six or seven years.

"We were running it for the banks because it all went towards the debt," Désourdy said. "The bank got all the cash flow from the winter."

As of last year, hill owners said they were not going to pay anymore until a new financing arrangement could be arranged. CIBC spent half a year studying the accounts and unsuccessfully looking for new buyers. The bank decided to accept the Désourdy family's offer, the only one presented, of $2.65 million, and the decision was accepted by a judge on June 4. However, the decision hasn't been filed yet, and the Désourdy family are still waiting to achieve bankruptcy status, so Hydro-Québec still hasn't plugged them back in.

With the bankruptcy and transfer of ownership, the $9 million in debts will be erased, replaced with a $2.65 mortgage. The ease in debt load will allow owners to invest in a new chairlift and snowmaking equipment, and to remodel as opposed to patching, as they've been doing for the last few years, Désourdy said.

"When you have a company that you pay what it's worth, then the next day you can put some money in it and you don't feel you're losing it," he said. "But before that with $9 million in debt, you don't feel like putting money in it because it's gone."

Most of the $9 million was owed to banks, but at least $400,000 was owed to more than 100 different suppliers, who will never see their money again. Nor will Hydro-Québec get its more than $100,000 in unpaid bills.

Désourdy says most of his past clients took the bankruptcy in stride.

"Only one creditor is giving us trouble," he said. "The rest are like $2,000 to CKOI (radio station) or $3,000 to Télé-Metropole, it's not so bad. We didn't stretch the wire on all these people so they're not mad at us. They maybe ask us for a deposit or certified cheque now. They knew the situation at the ski hill, they knew the credit was tough," and they're willing to continue to do business now, he said.

Désourdy says his one unhappy creditor, apart from the bank, is a Granby company that is owed nearly $20,000 for rewiring and lighting repairs necessary in the aftermath of the ice storm.

The change in financing is a rebirth for the beleaguered mountain, Désourdy said.

"Everybody's pretty positive. The staff is happy - at least they see the future, see their jobs are more secure now... We always knew it wouldn't close, there's a positive cash flow, but we had to get rid of that debt."

Arson is likely cause of Cowansville blaze

By René Bruemmer

The fire that destroyed the Rona hardware store in Cowansville Wednesday was deliberately set, Quebec Police Force investigators concluded yesterday.

"We are treating the blaze as a criminal case," Cst. Serge Dubord said. "Investigators have found evidence that the fire was set on purpose."

Dubord could not specify details of the evidence, but said the blaze was started in the alley between the Ferronnerie Cowansville Rona Inc. and Papeterie Cowansville, probably in a pile of wooden pallets. Police have no suspects yet, Dubord said.

The hardware store was completely destroyed in the blaze, as were nine apartments situated above the building, housing about a dozen people. Papeterie Cowansville and the Meubler Ameublement Frigon furniture store located next door also suffered severe water and smoke damage. The total cost of the blaze was estimated at $2 million.

For the Normandin family that has owned the store for almost 50 years, the true cost is incalculable.

"I don't know what we're going to do now," said Gisèle Paquette, wife of owner Luc Normandin. "We haven't decided yet if we're going to rebuild. Right now it's just a time of reflection and decisions."

She said she has no idea who started the blaze.

Arthur Normandin bought the store in 1950, and passed it on to his sons Luc and Paul in 1956. Luc Normandin has run the store with the help of his family since his brother died. The family was insured, but have not decided if they want to rebuild, Paquette said.

For now, the important thing for her is to get on with life.

"You have to get up in the morning, and eat, and continue to live," Paquette said. "It's necessary that life doesn't stop."

Firefighters noted that the blaze could have been much more serious if there had been any wind, especially due to the amount of flammable products such as turpentine, paint and lumber housed at the hardware store. Since it was a calm night, firefighters were able to contain the blaze to the one building.

A broken ankle suffered by one fireman was the only injury.

Construction watchdogs

Efforts to curb the underground economy continue with a Revenue Canada initiative aimed at subcontract reporting. This mandatory system of reporting (start-date unannounced but look to 1999) will target all individual, partnership and corporate businesses whose principal activity is in the construction industry (a very broad definition that probably includes picking up a hammer!), regardless of their gross revenue levels. Payments by a construction business to any subcontractor for services (i.e. labour) in excess of 500$ including applicable sales taxes, will be reported annually by the contractor on a T4A, and will include the supplier's name and Business Number or Social Insurance Number. It is imperative that business accounting systems evolve into flexible information systems to meet these ongoing requirements.

residents know best as the former King's Hall School for Girls.

A source at Compton's Mararishi Vedic College confirmed that sometime in early June the school was approached by a man who needed an answer in 48 hours on whether or not the facility could house a film crew of 20-30 during the month of July and possibly into August. He said the crew would be making a film in Magog.

The Compton facility was prebooked, but The Record will continue its search to discover where the crew will find digs in the Townships.

HOLLYWOOD NORTH

Film production in Canada has boomed since the advent of free trade. So much so that Canada has been dubbed Hollywood North - or locally, Hollywood North Hatley.

When the Grey Owl shoot hit Montreal and its location site in Chelsea, the movie's principal star Pierce Brosnan and famed director

Lord Richard Attenborough complained of being harassed, stalked and bothered by star struck fans and media who were obviously unfamiliar with the protocol involved when dealing with the average superstar.

In Chelsea local "comedian" Tom Green actually kissed Brosnan on the cheek while singing a "tribute" during a press conference there. It was quite clear from the look of annoyance on his face that 007 was not amused.

For this reason, the calm and serenity of the Eastern Townships is gaining a reputation with movie makers. As one official pointed out, when a Panavision camera rolls at a cost of $1000 a minute, rounding out at $600,000 for a ten-hour day, 'time is money' becomes more than just an expression.

During the shooting of Grey Owl, the sanctity of the closed set was respected and local residents were not surprised to see the shy superstar and his family along with the rest of the cast and crew enjoying the resort setting of North Hatley and its surrounding area.

According to North Hatley resident and Hollywood producer Jake Eberts, Pierce Brosnan enjoyed the area so much he is contemplating buying property here.

If he does, he can join other Hollywood luminaries such as Donald Sutherland, Sly Stallone, director Francis Ford Coppola, and Eberts who are also part time Townshippers.

In the past, the Eastern Townships has also played host to famous musicians such as Rolling Stone Mick Jagger (Magog), Bob Dylan (North Hatley) and Ratpacker Dean Martin (St-Elie-d'Orford).

Our investigation is ongoing - so if you have any information on this major motion picture please call 569-6345 and leave a message for Richard McCallum, or fax documents to 569-3945 and remember - you read it in The Record first!

Decrees are undemocratic - Liberals

PQ is not respecting its own laws: Charest

By Rita Legault
SHERBROOKE

Liberal leader Jean Charest and the entire Estrie party caucus waded into the high tension debate over high voltage transmission lines through the Townships, denouncing the Parti Québécois government and Hydro-Québec for breaking their own laws.

Construction of the 735-kilovolt Des Cantons-Hertel line, which will cross through the Townships on its way from Windsor to the south shore of Montreal, is scheduled to begin in August. The utility has already begun surveying and clearing land to make way for the pylons.

Charest, who was accompanied by Liberal Environment critic Christos Sirros and all five local Liberal MNAs, said Energy Minister Guy Chevrette was lying last Friday when he said the Liberal leader agreed with the construction of a line through virgin territory in the Townships.

"When Chevrette says we agree with their methods, that's a lie," he said. "We don't accept that the government and Hydro are breaking their own laws."

"We just want the government to respect its own laws," Charest said. "That may seem unusual. We should not have to ask the government to respect its own laws."

Charest also said that Chevrette is lying when he portrays opponents of the line as people who don't want a solution to reinforce the power network in case of another ice storm.

"We all want to improve the network," he insisted. "We just don't agree with how Hydro is proposing to do it."

Nor did the Liberal leader agree with the tactics the Bouchard government is employing by imposing decisions on the line through a series of cabinet decrees.

"When I hear the word decree it just doesn't seem to me the kind of thing you hear in a democracy like Quebec or Canada," he said. "That's what I find objectionable."

Charest said Quebecers should be concerned that if the government decides to rule by decree, the next one could be aimed at them. And he challenged Premier Lucien Bouchard to call an election to elect a Liberal government which would respect the law.

So far the PQ cabinet has passed three decrees, the first imposing three new power lines, the second excluding the project from the usual environmental assessment process, and a third withdrawing the power of MRCs to submit the Des Cantons-Hertel line to their zoning plans.

Hydro officials have admitted the government is ready to pass yet another decree that would expropriate rights of ways from refractory landowners.

The Liberals said they suspect that decree is written up and ready to be rubber stamped and they vowed to remain vigilant over the summer in case the PQ takes advantage of the summer recess to pass the final decree while the population is away on vacation.

However if the government passes another decree suspending the right of citizens to appeal the expropriation of rights of ways on their property, Sirros said there will be little people can do to stand in the way of the Hydro line.

"Legally I suspect there is little recourse. Politically there is a lot of recourse," Sirros said.

In the meantime, Charest encouraged residents to be informed of their rights and to ensure they are respected.

You want alternatives Mr. Chevrette?

Val St-François citizen's group writes back

By Rita Legault
SHERBROOKE

The Citoyens du Val St. François Citizens, who are opposed to the construction of a 735 kilovolt line through the Townships, have risen to a challenge issued by Energy Minister Guy Chevrette and are presenting him with an alternative.

And the opposition Liberals have endorsed the alternative saying it definitely merits further study.

Last week, Chevrette criticized protesters, calling them a bunch of cottagers and claiming they weren't interested in reinforcing the network.

"We asked them if you have any mitigating factors, if you have any alternatives please bring them forward," Chevrette said responding to the final question of the session asked by MNA Yvon Vallières in the National Assembly on Friday.

"If Chevrette wants a solution, that's what he's going to get," said citizen's group spokesman Jacques Laval.

The alternative route proposed by citizens uses current hydroelectric corridors, is 45 kilometres shorter, and would be quicker and cheaper to build. It meets all the criteria Hydro has put forward for the Des Cantons Hertel line such as additional security for Montreal and the South Shore and it is less disruptive to the environment and the population.

"Furthermore, it is clear that the whole power network must be repaired and maintained, without which no solution, no matter how valid, will work," coalition president Monique Fournier says in a letter to Chevrette.

Vallières, who was to meet with Chevrette in Quebec City Thursday afternoon, agreed to deliver a copy personally to the energy minister.

"As long as we are in a democracy we keep the hope that something will happen," Vallières said, as he departed for the provincial capital.

"This alternative seems to me, who is not an expert, credible enough. It's certainly credible enough to allow a debate by real experts," said Liberal leader Jean Charest after meeting with spokesmen for the citizen's coalition.

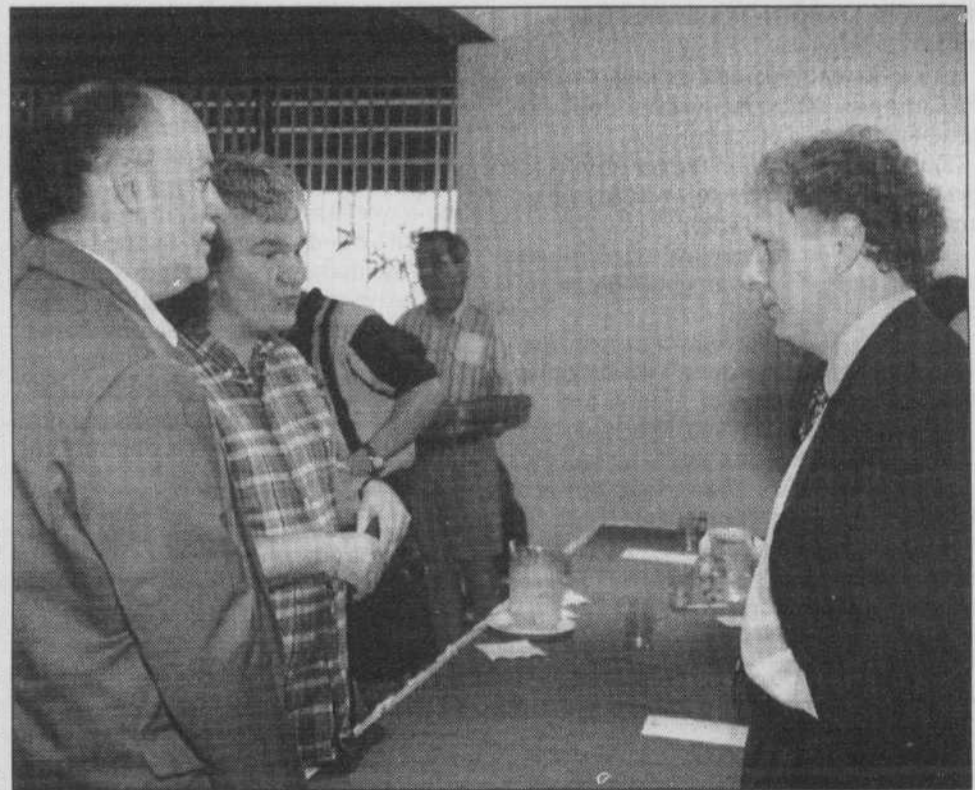

"What is not credible is Hydro acting as both judge and defendant," added Liberal environment critic Christos Sirros, adding that a third party must examine the proposed alternative.

Sirros said the PQ short circuited the usual process and are now dealing with the fallout from their decision not to respect their own laws and regulations.

"This government is not respecting its own laws and ramming this through the throats of citizens without any consultation," said Charest, demanding that the government study the alternatives that have been proposed in a constructive manner.

Charest said the government should defend its proposal in a public debate.

"If the government believes in the line, it should be able to debate it, defend it and discuss alternatives."

Ties that bind

Every Canada Day when the nation's leaders drone on about what a good life we have in this country, I begin to think something is missing.

And what seems to be lacking in these speeches is any sense of the nation's values.

Canada is a diverse country - both in terms of regions and ethnic backgrounds. To survive, it needs something all Canadians can agree on, something that brings us together.

For the federal government of the day, that something seems to be money. We're told Canada's high standard of living makes us the best country in the world in which to live. Quebec and the rest of Canada shouldn't split because it would cost us all money. Foreign relationships are important because we'll make big bucks through increased trade.

And there's more: Atlantic Canada shouldn't get uppity because it might lose its social programs. Western Canada has a lot of monetary advantages because of confederation - it would only realize it. Newcomers to Canada should be gleeful because they can make buckets of money. The federal government deserves plaudits because it has balanced its budget.

It's a flinty-eyed bank manager's view of Canada. We've become a country renowned for its bottom line.

But is this enough? Do we only celebrate Canada Day because many of us are making a good buck?

Some nation states have tried to use unifying ties other than gross domestic product.

Europe's first contemporary nation state, Spain, used religion. Two Catholic monarchs, Ferdinand of Aragon and Isabella of Castile, kicked the Muslims and Jews out of Spain and formed Europe's first nation that could collect taxes and had a standing army.

Spanish scholars today believe the expulsion of the Muslims and Jews in 1492 - the year Columbus first left for the new world - cause the nation's intellectual life to atrophy. This decline was masked by the fact Spain became Europe's wealthiest nation because of the gold and silver it ripped from slave mines in North and South America.

In Canada, we've tried to unite citizens with such efforts as rapturous cries about our "beautiful land"; the development of crown corporations and national social programs and effusive praise for the British Empire.

None of these appeals is as strong as they once were. When all else fails, politicians can always wrap themselves in the flag or, as was the case earlier this year in a House of Commons debate, flagettes.

Unfortunately, national unity - or the lack of it - is becoming more of a problem. One sign of this: the fuss raised when a former candidate for the Parti Quebecois was appointed a hospital administrator in Ottawa.

Another: the growing militancy of anglophones in Quebec. The ever-present "Quebec question" is beginning to rub some nerves raw, both inside and outside the province.

Perhaps it's time for us to articulate the values most Canadians can agree on, and discuss these as a means of holding the nation together.

An added advantage of clearly setting out our values is that they can be used as a guide by governments developing policies, priorities and programs.

No government today has all the money it needs to meet every social need. This makes it difficult to agree on a legislative program. Should hep C victims come before people needing home care? Where do fishers forced ashore by the collapse of various fisheries rank? Do Aboriginal people deserve more help - or are they going to be on the bottom of most political lists forever?

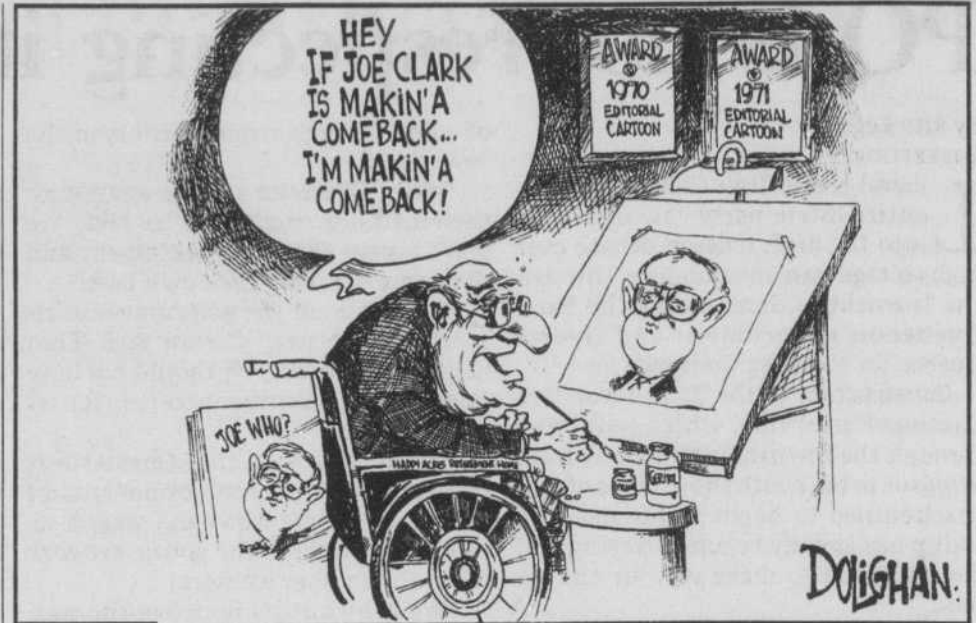

Laying out the nation's values, as specifically as possible, would help answer these kinds of questions.

And at least we'd know what we are standing on guard for.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

From one star to another

DEAR EDITOR,

When Chettie was just a little fellow we would sit out on his front steps and talk about the stars and look for the Big Dipper. I taught him how to sing "Twinkle Twinkle little star" so it was quite appropriate that Peter and Chrissy Mackey and the Wish Foundation gave him his own star. On behalf of me and my family I would like to thank Peter and Chrissy and their friends for all they do to make little children's wishes come true. Words do not express our appreciation for their dedication towards the Music Fest and the Wish Foundation.

MRS. DOREEN HODGE

From a Star on Earth to a Star in Heaven

"Hi Grandpa, Hi Grandma" you'd say This was just before you were taken away

If we asked ourselves, why?
It would only make us cry
Twinkle twinkle, you're our little star now we know where you are
You were chosen to wait at heaven's door to greet the little children our wishes were for

With your talent, style and charm you take each one by the arm
So busy and mischievous you always were

And still today you cause quite a stir
Punching holes in heavens floor
After counting the stars, to make a few more

These heavenly holes in the sky
Your ingenuity you do apply
Now what to do when night and day meet

Was to cover the extra holes with your big feet
The tiniest holes give gentle rain over all
And a cool breeze by a heavenly spitball

A star manicured just right could make moonbeams dance in the night
In connecting two stars to make a brighter light

The lightning flashed and a star shot into the night
Begging an angel for a wing feather
Tickles the man in the moon, no matter the weather
Your mandolin you could not bring
So with the angel's harp you make the birds sing
Getting bored, you grab your drum sticks
The thunder roars with quite a mix
Jumping from star to star and into the dipper
Down pours the rain like an overturned pitcher
You give a mischievous grin, then break into a smile
Out breaks the sun for miles and miles
Shaking down the rainbow's end
To all the flowers the color you do send
The pot of gold then tips up
Giving a golden yellow to all the buttercups
Now with all your work done
Ride the last storm cloud into the sun
Some days it seems you just miss your dad
So you pull over the clouds and we know you're sad
Quickly learning to have some fun
You find it on the backside of the sun
Rain, hail, sleet and snow
Was means of giving us quite a show
Finding a new star, big and round
Chiseling away until sparkly snowflakes cover the ground
If we have a very fast high wind
We will know it's just you out for a spin
If we see a cloud moving real fast
It's just you learning to cloud surf at last
You were always trying to solve perpetual motions
The angels say you're its perpetual com-mo-tion
All God's creatures great and small
Is touched by your magic, one and all
As you see Chet, you are not far away
You are with us each and every day
The Cosmos will never be the same.

Political appointees to get handsome pay hikes

By Kathryn May
SOUTHAM NEWS
OTTAWA

The federal government is handing out raises worth up to 19 per cent to its politically appointed heads of Crown corporations and agencies while it is heading for a labor showdown with its lowest-paid workers.

The Privy Council Office confirmed Wednesday that all 500 full-time political appointees will be getting salary increases ranging between four per cent and 19 per cent retroactive to April. These appointees of federal boards, agencies and commissions have been quietly getting their raises in recent weeks after a six-year wage freeze that affected all federal workers.

The government has 11 levels of political appointees whose salaries vary depending on the scope of their responsibility and the size of the agency. A four per cent increase will boost the lowest salary range to between $47,000 and $55,000. At the highest level, salaries will jump 19 per cent to between $173,000 and $203,500.

Some executives, such as those appointed to head Crown corporations, earn even higher salaries. For example, Gordon Thiessen, governor of the Bank of Canada will get a 17 per cent raise for a salary between $210,000 and $314,700 and Perrin Beatty, president of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, will earn between $173,000 and $228,000.

The government has not made a wage offer to most PSAC members, who earn an average of $35,000 a year, after 18 months at the bargaining table.

"I could throw up," said John Baglow, a PSAC vice-president. "Someone like Gordon Thiessen is making more than a quarter of a million dollars and his increase is bigger than the average salary of our members."

The move is destined to infuriate federal unions, which have been embroiled in contract negotiations for more than a year while the government doled out raises to executives, judges, MPs and senators worth far more than the one-to two-per-cent increases offered to rank-and-file workers.

"They continue to take care of the people in positions of influence and power while the unionized workers have to go through the difficult process of negotiations to get less than adequate increases," said Steve Hindle president of the Professional Institute of the Public Service.

A four per cent increase will boost the lowest salary range to between $47,000 and $55,000. At the highest level, salaries will jump 19 per cent to between $173,000 and $203,500.

Posties lose bid to see spy files

By Jim Bronskill
SOUTHAM NEWS
OTTAWA

Secret RCMP files on postal union activities remain sealed after a court ruled their release could endanger national security.

The Canadian Union of Postal Workers has lost a legal bid to see almost 2,000 pages detailing Mountie surveillance of the union, even though some of the documents are more than 30 years old.

CUPW representative Evert Hoogers said Wednesday he still wants the full story of RCMP Security Service efforts to infiltrate the union from the 1960s through the early 1980s.

"It isn't over by any means. It's certainly made me more determined to pursue this through," Hoogers said. "It's a dark side of our history, and it's something that we have to know."

CUPW will decide in coming weeks whether to appeal the Federal Court of Canada ruling.

The legal battle is a reminder that some Cold War-era secrets continue to be closely guarded by intelligence agencies.

The union began its quest for the records six years ago, filing a series of requests with the National Archives under the Access to Information Act.

The Archives inherited the records in the 1980s after the Canadian Security Intelligence Service took over undercover duties once performed by the RCMP.

Of 3,700 pages, portions of about 1,700 were released to the union.

The memos and reports revealed the Mounties kept a steady eye on CUPW. The RCMP concluded militant left-wingers had assumed powerful positions in the union. In 1969, the force briefed the post office on the members of a union contract-negotiation committee.

The National Archives officials who reviewed the documents consulted third parties, including CSIS, as required by the access law.

The Archives withheld much of the material on the grounds its release could jeopardize current efforts to detect subversive or hostile activities.

Officials also cited provisions of the access law exempting material related to law-enforcement investigations and the privacy of individuals - presumably RCMP informants.

In his judgment, Justice William McKeown said the remaining pages can be kept secret under provisions of the act.

The ruling confirmed Hoogers belief the access law is too restrictive.

"Some of this stuff is 30 to 35 years old," he said. "The decision shows very, very decisively why it's necessary for there to be changes in the Access to Information Act - particularly in relation to security matters."

At one point, the court rejected a request by the union's lawyer to examine the remaining files in order to better prepare arguments. The lawyer's promise not to reveal the contents to CUPW failed to persuade the judge.

"We have absolutely no idea what is in the material," says Hoogers.

Benefits of hormone replacement therapy are underrated

Experts address myths about menopause

The Society of Obstetricians and Gynecologists of Canada are encouraging physicians to broaden their counsel about hormone replacement therapy to all women, including those with a family, or even a personal history of breast cancer. The Benefits of Hormone Replacement Therapy and Counselling Issues Related to Breast Cancer, published in the Society's Journal, provides up-to-date information for Canadian doctors about the benefits of HRT and challenges its perceived link with breast cancer. The paper was initiated by a round table consensus discussion of Canadian experts hosted by the SOGC.

"There are many misconceptions about hormone replacement therapy, but the reality is that for the majority of women the benefits are extremely significant," explained Dr. Robert Reid, President of the Society of Obstetricians and Gynecologists. "This paper will help physicians counsel women about HRT and its potential benefits and risks, so that together they can make an informed choice that will address each woman's present needs and future health."

PROVIDES PROTECTION

Hormone replacement therapy provides post-menopausal women with protection against serious illnesses such as osteoporosis and cardiovascular disease, as well as many of the unwanted physical signs and symptoms of menopause. Additionally, research is currently under way to study estrogen's effect on Alzheimer Disease - the prevention, the delay of onset of Alzheimer's and the reversal of the disease's symptoms. Early results of the research are very encouraging and suggest that women taking estrogen therapy are at a lower risk for the disease.

"Costs associated with osteoporosis alone for example, are increasing beyond what the Canadian health care system can accommodate," commented Dr. Reid. Currently in Canada there are approximately 4.3 million women over the age of 50 who could benefit from HRT when they reach menopause - and the number of women in this age group is projected to increase to more than 5.6 million by the year 2006.

"As more and more Canadian women approach the age of menopause, it is imperative that they receive complete and accurate information upon which to make their decisions about HRT," added Dr. Reid.

KEY RECOMMENDATIONS

The recommendations highlight the need for complete, up-to-date and accurate discussions about HRT. Specific recommendations include:

- All women need to be informed about breast cancer, whether or not they take HRT.

- Women should be counseled about the overall short and long-term benefits of HRT in relation to their general health to determine if HRT is an appropriate option for them.

- Hormone replacement therapy offers protection against cardiovascular disease, osteoporosis and colorectal cancer and may even protect against Alzheimer Disease. It also provides relief of such menopausal symptoms as hot flashes, dry skin and sleep disturbances.

- A link between hormone replacement therapy and breast cancer remains uncertain. If there is an increased risk, it is extremely small, particularly when compared with other known risk factors.

- Women who have a family history of breast cancer can be considered for HRT.

"Women over 50 incorrectly believe that breast cancer is their number one health threat. In truth, cardiovascular disease is the number one killer of women in this age group. And at least one in four women in this group has osteoporosis," said Dr. Christine Derzko, Head of the Reproductive Endocrinology and Infertility Division, Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology, St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto. "Women are often making decisions about HRT based on perceptions - not knowledge. This paper and the public companion pieces will help give each woman the information she needs to make the right decision for her."

PUBLIC EDUCATION BROCHURE

The information in The Benefits of Hormone Replacement Therapy and Counselling Issues Related to Breast Cancer is also the basis of a new public education brochure being created by the Society of Obstetricians and Gynecologists of Canada. The brochure will review what to expect during menopause and relevant information regarding hormone replacement therapy. It will also help each woman understand breast cancer and her personal risks and considerations.

The brochure, part of the Society's "Menopause: Let's Talk About It!" awareness program, will be available in October during National Menopause Awareness Month.

"The goal of the Society of Obstetricians and Gynecologists of Canada with the publication The Benefits of Hormone Replacement Therapy and Counselling Issues Related to Breast Cancer and the patient education brochure is to assist women and their physicians in having informed discussions about hormone replacement therapy," concluded Dr. Reid.

Cabinet shuffle in wind?

By Joan Bryden
SOUTHAM NEWS

A good rumor is hard to keep down.

Rampant speculation about a summer cabinet shuffle persists on Parliament Hill despite Prime Minister Jean Chrétien's blunt denial last week that he is planning any changes in his front bench.

Alas, shuffle rumors are the easiest to start and the hardest to stop - especially during the dull summer months when politicians and reporters have nothing better to do than speculate on what career changes Chrétien might have in mind for his ministers.

Easy to start because they need zero basis in fact. No one knows what's going on in Chrétien's mind, after all. So anyone can simply make it up.

The latest rumor likely started with the furore over hepatitis C compensation. Health Minister Allan Rock is in the hot seat, some politicians likely mused, so what if Chrétien moved him out of harm's way?

Chrétien could move him to Human Resources but then what to do with Pierre Pettigrew? Rock and Pettigrew could just swap portfolios but, as long as he's going to do a mini-shuffle, Chrétien might as well get rid of some dead wood and reward some old friends while he's at it. How about dumping Veterans Affairs Minister Fred Mifflin and appointing International Co-operation Minister Diane Marleau and Transport Minister David Collenette to the Senate?

And so it goes.

Sterilization no longer dirty word

By Joan Bryden
SOUTHAM NEWS
OTTAWA

Canadian men are getting over their squeamishness about vasectomies, helping to give Canada the highest rate of voluntary sterilizations among developed countries.

According to a 1995 social survey, Statistics Canada reports that 4.5 million Canadian couples under age 50 (46 per cent) were sterile for either natural, medical or contraceptive reasons.

The woman was the partner most likely to be sterilized (58 per cent), largely because more women are sterilized for medical reasons. However, when only sterilizations for contraceptive purposes were considered, slightly more men than women (1.76 million compared with 1.57 million) had opted to surgically snip their reproductive equipment.

The report, released Wednesday, says there has been an "appreciable increase" in the number of male sterilizations since 1984.

Bonnie Johnson, executive director of the Planned Parenthood Federation of Canada, said men must be commended for "catching up" to women. She attributed the increase in male sterilizations to men "becoming a bit more sensible about this and women a bit more assertive."

Still, she said there remains a psychological barrier to men having vasectomies, which can generally be done in a doctor's office and are much less risky than tubal ligations for women, which require more invasive surgery and generally a short hospital stay.

"(Men) have been programmed that way," Johnson said. "They've spent their lives protecting that area and now we're asking them to open wide and snip, snip. But it's changing."

The Statistics Canada report says Canada's rate of sterilization "stands out" in comparison to other developed countries.

Alain Belanger, of Statistics Canada's demography division, said that assertion is based on a 1994 United Nations study, which found that the rate of sterilization was significantly higher in Canada than in any other developed country.

According to the UN study, 31 per cent of Canadian women and 13 per cent of men under age 50 were sterilized. By contrast, in the United States, 23 per cent of women and 13 per cent of men under 50 were sterilized. Both Canada and the United States had much higher rates than European countries. Among developed countries as a whole, only eight per cent of women and four per cent of men under 50 were sterilized.

The Statistics Canada report found 47 per cent of Canadian couples under 50 underwent contraceptive sterilization after the birth of their second child.

Not surprisingly then, the third child has become a rarity in Canada. Only 25 per cent of women born between 1952 and 1956 have had a third child, compared with 60 per cent of women born between 1927 and 1931.

The report found the number of births in Canada declined for the sixth consecutive year in 1996. The fertility rate has remained stagnant for several years at 1.6 children per woman.

The combined effect of all these factors was a substantial decline in Canada's natural population growth from 7.7 per 1,000 in 1990 to 5.7 per 1,000 in 1995. Unless the fertility rate significantly increases - a "highly unlikely" scenario - Statistics Canada said the number of births will equal the number of deaths within the next 20 to 30 years, leaving Canada with a natural growth rate of zero.

Des Cantons-Hertel 735-kV Line: A Project that Respects the Environment

Hydro-Québec will implement all appropriate mitigation measures when building the 735-kV line between Des Cantons substation, near Windsor, and the Hertel substation, in Laprairie.

Protecting croplands, orchards and sugar bush

The line runs through protected agricultural land for almost its entire length. Sugar bush, orchards and farmland with good potential have been avoided as much as possible to minimize crop losses.

With the agreement of landowners, Hydro-Québec will look at the possibility of building the line along the edges of farmland and woods, to minimize surface area losses. Property lines and the location of drains, fences and ditches will be considered in selecting tower sites.

Piping systems in sugar bush will be protected. With the landowner's agreement, the piping will be removed during construction work and reinstalled after.

Once the work is finished, wooded areas of the right-of-way can be recultivated or planted with low-growing species.

Protecting water courses and plant life

The line crosses rivers and streams. Hydro-Québec will take care not to alter the quality of these water courses during the work.

To prevent shoreline erosion and ensure flow is not altered, selective cutting methods will be used for clearing. These clearing methods will also be used along bogs and marshes.

Protecting the landscape

Hydro-Québec is very much aware of the concerns of local communities and will try to keep towers away from homes and recreation/tourist facilities by running the line through forested landscape whenever possible and using the natural slope of the land to minimize its visual impact. At highway crossings, Hydro-Québec will try to conserve a forest screen in front of the right-of-way and will ensure that a visual screen will be maintained or installed, particularly along Highway 55. Planting will be done along sensitive environments such as bicycle paths.

Absolutely Fab Four-ulous

The Beatles spend the summer in Sherbrooke

By Jessie Aulis
RECORD CORRESPONDENT
SHERBROOKE

The 60s was a magical era when larger-than-life personalities left their mark on the world. There was Kennedy. There was Monroe. There was Sullivan. And there were The Beatles. All summer long, Le Vieux Clocher de Sherbrooke pays tribute to the group that revolutionized popular music.

Yesterday... Les Beatles was created by Pierre Marchand and it's a show that delivers - from the high quality of performance to the minute details in the costumes.

It's an enjoyable trip down memory lane as Ricardo Branchini (John), Robert Lavoie (Paul), Jean-François Cyr (George) and Rejean Fecteau (Ringo) step into the personas of the Fab Four.

These Montreal musicians came together under the direction of Luc Phaneuf in 1994 after playing the bar circuit for a few years. They all love The Beatles's music and they did their homework because they didn't want to simply be a cover band but rather create a Beatles revival.

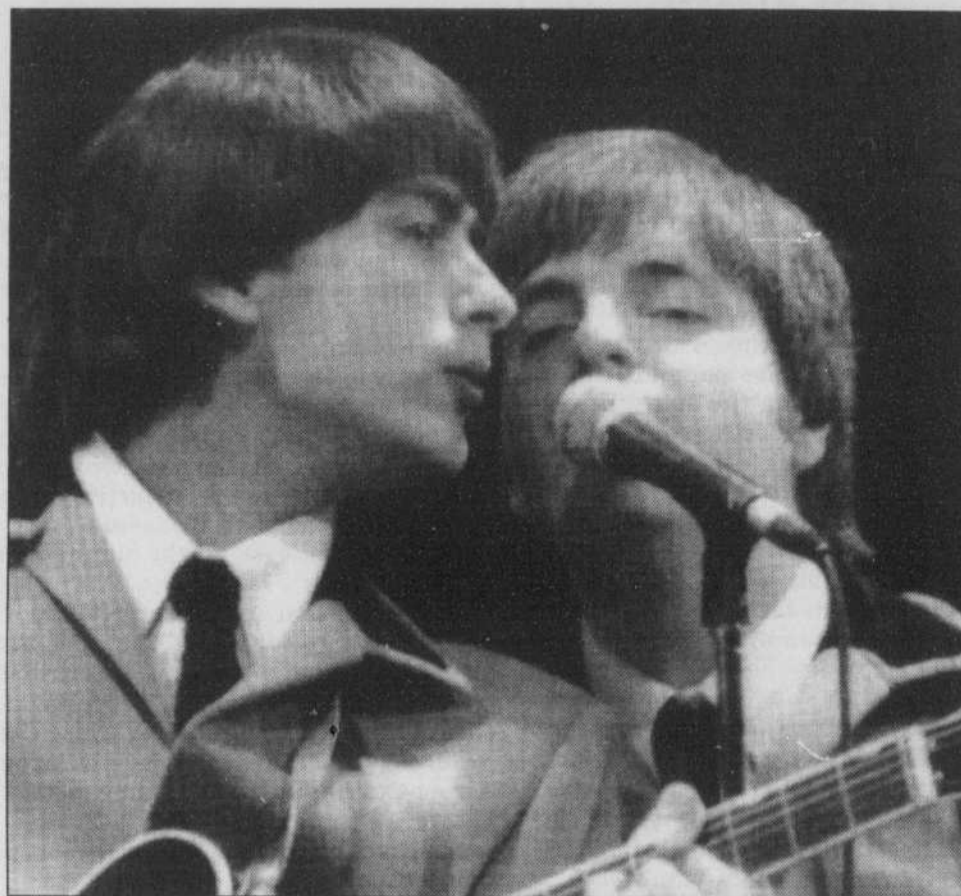

A great deal of research was done to pin down the vocals, the music, the Liverpool accents and the mannerisms that made The Beatles such an original band.

"Back in the 70s I didn't find anything interesting musically or something that suited my taste so I looked back at what was done in the past and I fell in love with The Beatles's work," said Branchini at Le Vieux Clocher.

The four did a lot of reading and watched many videos to capture the essence of the band. Branchini, fascinated by his research on The Beatles, even made a pilgrimage to England to see where it all started.

"I loved doing that and retracing all the places I had read about, to hear people around me talk with this accent I was trying to perfect. I enjoyed this trip very much," said the John Lennon impersonator.

Marchand, the driving force behind this mop-top revival, pushed it to the point of finding instruments similar to the originals. So Lavoie, who is really left-handed, plays a trademark left-handed Hofner bass, just like Paul McCartney, Cyr a George Harrison-like Gretsch guitar while Branchini picks his Rickenbacker.

COURTESY LES BEATLES

Two of the Fab-Four impersonators who are performing this summer in the Townships.

"Playing the same instruments as they did is part of the accuracy of the show, as well as the talking in between tunes being done in English with the proper Liverpool accent. All of this is a must to recreate the right atmosphere. I think that people attending the show are kind of expecting that," said Branchini.

The group play anything The Beatles recorded but find Sgt. Pepper and The Magical Mystery Tour more of a challenge.

So far, their show has been a hit at the Capitol Theatre in Quebec City and they've toured the province, as well as a tour of Mississippi in the U.S.

The concept of this show goes much farther than being simply a Beatles tribute. It recreates an era when our world changed. A video played on a giant screen chronicles the events that made the era memorable, including The Beatles's famous appearance on The Ed Sullivan Show.

Along the way, memories of more local events are stirred up, such as Charles de Gaulle's controversial speech to Quebecers when he pronounced "Vive le Québec libre!"

The dynamic show features no less than 14 costume and wig changes. Among the tunes played are perennial favorites "Love, Love Me Do," "I Saw Her Standing There" and "Twist & Shout." The vocals are great when they sing solo and the harmonies are as tight as they should be. The members prove to be accomplished musicians who care about the perfection of their renditions.

This is an accurate and delightful tribute show that is a must see for Beatles fans.

Enjoy food and friendship at the Multicultural Festival

On Aug. 8 Potton displays its diversity

RECORD CORRESPONDENT
MANSONVILLE

Organizers of this year's Multicultural Festival are hard at work planning Potton's 7th annual bash scheduled for Saturday, Aug. 8.

Mansonville's village square promises to fill up with fun, friends, food and festivities. Back for yet another year will be costumed dancers from diverse cultures and activities with an eye on diversity.

The Multicultural Festival is a day set aside to celebrate the many ethnic groups who have come to call Potton home, and in the process made it a better place to live.

"The day begins with a parade full of surprises (including) flags representing the many nationalities present in the region," said Alison Hannan, the committee's publicist.

"Throughout the day, the cultural thread is sewn into children's activities, music, dance, artisans and information booths. And all this is free," she added.

For the past two years a midday "goûter international", or food tasting buffet, under a huge tent, has offered samples from around the globe.

"For a few dollars, one can savor the culinary delicacies of many different cultures."

Later on, the public can enjoy the Reilly House's "famous barbecue supper accompanied by live music."

As usual, continuous entertainment and live music can be seen and heard throughout the day on the main stage. In addition, organizers have added a street platform, "for those, who will no doubt, dance the night away," added Hannan.

Artisans and organizations requiring kiosks should get in touch with Micheline Cardinal, 292-0019 and Gérard Leduc, 292-3522, respectively. The committee has also issued an invitation to those wishing to participate in the parade (Barbara Koch, 292-5747) and the international buffet (Roxanne Rouillard, 292-5588). A volunteer to act as coordinator for children's activities is still needed.

This year the Potton Heritage Association, under the direction of Gérard Leduc, is organizing the one-day festival. Other members include: Christian Rodrigue; Pierette Lepine; Claude Cossette; Réjean Champagne and Nicole Raymond. Sponsors include the Mansonville Caisse Populaire and Shell station.

If you have a suggestion or would like to help the organizers, contact Gérard Leduc, 292-3522.

In Lac Mégantic, Québec, waste reduction isn't about losing weight.

Whether it's composting, or recycling anything from clothes to tin cans, an environmental challenge is too big for Les Chevaliers de la Verteure. Various environmental projects organized by this remarkable group of students from Polytechnique Montagnac in Lac Mégantic, Québec, have diverted more than 11 tonnes of waste from landfills in just 3 short years.

Les Chevaliers de la Verteure recycled 7 tonnes of paper in 1994. They also set up a composting program in the school cafeteria in 1996. By June they had composted 4 tonnes of organic waste, and the project was expanded to include recycling aluminum cans and other items. Les Chevaliers de la Verteure also hold an annual clothing drive.

Taking initiative to help the environment helps us all. If there is a group or individual taking on environmental challenges in your community, let us know. SPORTS

Preregistration key to surviving major races

20th Tour Du Lac Brome set for Sunday

Other races gasp and heave in the hard times of the '90s, but the Tour Du Lac Brôme continues to draw a steady subscription from its traditional following.

Competition from other, less training oriented activities, have given athletes and their families appealing alternatives to road racing and lessened the long term viability of longer, more strenuous events. Most West Island and Montreal organizers have dropped the 20-kilometre distance and the internationally renowned Maski Courons, in St-Gabriel-de-Brandon is now in serious jeopardy as in line skating threatens its base of support.

Roger Pagé is the founding chief of the Brome Lake Runners and driving force behind this annual reunion in Lions Park at Knowlton. Despite the woes of other contests, he has continued to motivate his volunteers and maintain the sponsorship of Brome Lake Ducks Inc. into the 20th year of the "Tour".

Faced with the hard facts of decreasing attendance at high budget events and the need to guarantee sufficient revenues to maintain the high standards of race support, awards, food and souvenir shirts, Roger has opted for a sharp increase in race day registration fees ($30) with corresponding reductions ($10-$20) for early, non-refundable, advance commitments from participants. With a budget in the vicinity of $5,000 and weather variations, the chance of last minute major reductions in numbers has prompted these and other adjustments to minimize risks to organizers and long term sponsors.

So far this year, the plan is working. For the 20-km race, approximately 150 runners have registered in advance while numbers for the 10-km are only slightly less favorable. The project seems well on it's way to maintaining the magic 400 attendance of previous years, and, the prepaid funding permits a confident look ahead to further editions.

On the down side, the "Tour" now ranks as prohibitively expensive for those who look at the weather before jumping into the car on race day. In particular, last minute "racing families" will surely find other less expensive ways to spend quality time together.

AEROBIC SPORTS

And so it goes. While small country races suffer from low budgets, lack of publicity exposure, and are criticized for limited race support, they tend to have a loyal following of fundamentalists who insure their survival even when numbers dwindle to a point where organizers try to discourage them. Larger races expand and improve to the point where the risks of their high budgets force them to try to lock in their financial support from participants. Highly individualistic runners soon object to being coerced and charged excessively and look elsewhere for better value. It's a hard row to hoe.

The "Tour" remains a class act in every sense. Hopefully the new adjustments will strike a balance that is both tolerated by competitors and viable for the organization. Both parties to this dilemma have everything to gain and everything to lose.

As usual, the 20-km goes first, at 9:15 a.m. on Sunday.

Beavers name new GM

Gosselin ready to restore junior hockey in Sherbrooke

By Michael Innes
SHERBROOKE

The Sherbrooke Beavers announced that Normand Gosselin will be the next general manager. Until just last week, Gosselin was head recruiting scout for Val d'Or.

"I'm not a savior, I will not reinvent hockey but I have great confidence and I'm sure I will be able to relaunch junior hockey in Sherbrooke," said Gosselin minutes after the announcement. Gosselin, who replaces Normand Dubé who left the team after last season, already has his sights on possible coaches.

"I already have some people in mind and we should be able to make an announcement later this week or early next week," said Gosselin.

"I'm looking for a coach able to work as a team because that's the way a team has success. I'm not really looking for someone with experience in the league."

Mario Durocher is a possible candidate for the position as are Eric Lavigne (Patriote of the University of Quebec in Trois Rivières), Martin Raymond (McGill Redmens), and Martin Daoust (College Charles-Lemoyne).

"It does not matter where the coach is from but the bottom line is the final results at the end of the year. I will be the one to blame if the team does not win."

As for the team, several players will be back next season and Gosselin thinks the team can go forward and make it to the year end playoffs. "I will not trade 10 or 12 players this year even if the other general managers in the league will be calling me to make me all sorts of offers," said Gosselin.

Normand Gosselin did not waste any time in making an important decision about the head recruiting scout for the Beavers. Gosselin called Gaetan Boucher up Sunday night shortly after being hired by the Beavers to inform him that his services as head scout were no longer needed but if he wanted to stay on as a regional scout he is welcome. "I called Gaetan and he should give me his decision later this week," said Gosselin. The new head scout should be announced at the same time as the new coach and a possible candidate is Marc Chamard.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) An objective of significance to you might not be equally special to others. Don't overreact if you generate a low level of enthusiasm.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A day's work for a day's pay is a motto worthy of adoption today. Disappointment is probably if you expect more than you deserve.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Try not to blow insignificant issues out of proportion today. If you get upright, others might respond in kind.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Family obligation requiring personal attention today should be given top priority. Sweeping them out of sight is not a lasting solution.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Conditions are not as difficult as you imagine today. Positive thinking will enable you to see the truth of the situation.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Life has a lot more to offer than material things. If you allow yourself to dwell on perishable objects, you could overlook your blessings today.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) In most instances, the challenges in life offer the greatest rewards. Bear this in mind if you have to contend with difficulty today.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You'll have to risk letting depression take over today if you're too withdrawn. Plan to keep busy with pals as energetic and enthusiastic as you are.

Saturday, June 27, 1998

In the year ahead, you may finally receive the perks, benefits and acknowledgment that should have come to you in the past.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Someone's offer of help may be rescinded due to unforeseen circumstances today. Be prepared, and you'll be able to handle the disappointment. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If an important matter is negotiated too hastily today, the arrangement could collapse at the first signs of stress.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You may have difficulty trying to figure out how to handle things today, because you didn't listen closely when the initial instructions were given. Learn from this.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) To be on the safe side, taken an extra bit of cash with you today. Unexpected expenses might surface, and you don't want to be caught embarrassingly short.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Because you'll tend towards indecisiveness today, you may start several endeavors and not finish any of them to your satisfaction.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) An interesting conclusion can be drawn from a lesson you'll learn the hard way today. Keep this experience foremost in your thoughts for the rest of the week.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Revelations in your chart indicate you might be penny wise and pound foolish today. If you want to come out ahead, put emphasis on saving the larger amounts.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Something difficult may be achieved today. To the casual observer, it will appear that luck is the major factor in your accomplishment, but it will actually play only a minor role.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Before involving others in your plans, be certain that they're sound and functional.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) People you're closely involved with will have a strong influence over your attitude and work habits today. Spend time with those who know how to get things done.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Usually you're not a quitter, but today your aims may go unfulfilled. You'll be more emotional than enterprising.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't let an arrogant associate dissuade you from using your ideas today. Chances are, you're right.

Sunday, June 28, 1998

Your chart indicates more material rewards in the year ahead than you may have received in the past. Keep moving in the present direction and work towards closure in your business involvements.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) This could be a good day to increase your resources and expand your financial prospects. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Constructive benefits can be garnered today through friends and contacts you've cultivated recently. Two friends in particular are in favorable position to help you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) There are indications that you might receive a raise or benefit from a job that doesn't usually provide dividends or perks.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Get your party clothes ready today, because someone who likes you is going to make certain you're going out on the town for a good time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A few kind words today will mean a great deal more to the recipient than you imagine. Make an effort to be gracious and attentive.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Benefits may come to you from different directions today, so you'll have to be alert to catch new opportunities.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't be a couch potato! The exciting things that could develop for you today won't happen at home or on your TV. Try to circulate and spend time with people you've recently met.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A generous gesture might come your way today. It'll be in return for the help you gave someone in the past, so accept it graciously.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You could find yourself in demand today, but what's even more pleasant is the fact that the people who'll seek you out are the ones with whom you want to establish links.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Lady Luck will operate behind the scenes today, backing up your ambitious urges. If things start going better than expected, it could be due to her influence.

Rev. Ross Davidson delivered a very fitting address on Hope. The hymns sung were "The Lord is my Shepherd" and "My Hope is Built."

FISHER, Clifford Bertrand - In loving memory of our dear little "Pooh", son, brother, grandson, nephew and cousin, who went to heaven one year ago on June 26, 1997.

"Little Angels"
When God calls little babies to dwell with him above,

We mortals sometime question the wisdom of His love,

For no heartache can compare with the death of one small child,

Who does so much to make our world seem wonderful and mild,

Perhaps God tires of calling the aged to His fold,

So He picks a rosebud before it can grow old,

God knows how much we need them, and so He takes but few,

To make the land of heaven more beautiful to view,

Believing this is difficult, still somehow we must try,

The saddest word that mankind knows will always be "Good-Bye",

So when a little child departs, we who are left behind,

Must realize God loves babies, Angels are hard to find.

Asthma inhaler violated zero-tolerance drug program

Dear Ann Landers: You have printed a few stories about some of the ridiculous repercussions of the new zero-tolerance drug programs at our schools. Please print this article that recently appeared in the Watertown, N.Y., Daily Times. I do not know if good judgment and heroism can be taught, but I would hope educators could at least be trusted to recognize and reward a noble act of citizenship rather than punish it. — Norwood, N.Y.

Dear Norwood: I received at least 40 copies of that newspaper article. I think what happened was outrageous. Here's the story:

When a 12-year-old Maryland student saw a classmate having a severe asthma attack, she shared her prescription inhaler, making her a hero to the other girl's mother. But according to officials at the sixth-grader's school, that makes her a drug trafficker. And that gets entered in her records for three years.

"She went from feeling like she was on top of the world to feeling like she had done something terribly wrong," said the girl's mother.

The incident happened when a 13-year-old girl suffered an asthma attack on the bus on the way home from school. While the bus driver called for help, the 12-year-old found her inhaler and shared it with the other girl. "I think she's a heroine," said the other girl's mother, who is outraged about the treatment from the school. Her daughter is "fine, thanks to this girl. This is what makes people not want to help other people," she said.

The school principal said she could not comment on the case. The 12-year-old's mother said the principal did exercise leniency by not suspending her daughter from school and was as fair as possible under school rules. "I'm not sure what the answer is," said the girl's mother. "I wish there was a Good Samaritan clause in the school regulations for this situation."

This is Ann speaking. I understand the need for schools to institute rules prohibiting drugs, but school authorities need to show some common sense. A distinction must be made between children who use harmful substances and those who give lemon drops to a friend or save another student's life with an inhaler.

Dear Ann Landers: Thank you for being such a strong proponent of Al-Anon and Alateen for families of alcoholics. The support and assistance of these wonderful programs is almost impossible to describe.

Eleven years ago, at the insistence of a counselor, I went to my first Al-Anon meeting. I wasn't sure my husband was an alcoholic, but I was in so much pain, I didn't know what else to do. The first thing Al-Anon taught me about my husband's drinking was the "Three C's" — I didn't cause it, I can't cure it, and I can't control it.

The reason I attend Al-Anon is not to make my husband stop drinking but to find out how to have a happy, secure, serene life regardless of whether he drinks or not. I have learned how to stop being a victim, how to say what I mean and mean what I say, and how to do it in a calm manner.

The only advice I was ever given in this program was "Keep coming back. It works." I am still married to my alcoholic husband, but he started going to Alcoholics Anonymous nine months after I started Al-Anon, and today, he is in recovery. I remain active in Al-Anon because the program gives me the tools that help me live my life. Please tell your readers again, Ann, how important these programs are. — Grateful in the USA

Dear Grateful: Thank you for the opportunity to remind my readers about Al-Anon and Alateen for families and friends of alcoholics. It costs nothing to attend meetings. They do a wonderful job and are as near as your telephone book.

Gem of the Day: Thrift is a wonderful virtue — especially in an ancestor.

Charlene Atkins honored at bridal shower in Waterloo

On Sunday afternoon May 24, at 2 o'clock Charlene Atkins, a July bride-to-be was honored at a miscellaneous shower held at the Canadian Legion Hall in Waterloo. Twenty-five relatives and friends attended.

The guest of honor arrived at the hall where she was led to believe that a flea market was being held.

On entering the hall, she was taken by surprise as she was met at the door by Mrs. Wesley Thompson, who presented her with a corsage of pink roses and baby's breath.

She was then escorted to her chair and seated between her two cousins, Mrs. Leon McGovern and Mrs. George Clark, thus completing the circle in which the ladies were seated.

Located at the back of Charlene was a beautifully decorated table where gifts were attractively arranged.

Charlene was assisted in opening her gifts by her cousins who carefully prepared each gift to be circulated around the room, then arranged them on the table.

During the opening of the many beautiful and useful gifts a "clothes pin" game was played with Miss Kimberly Clark being the winner of the prize.

After all gifts were opened and passed around for all to admire, Charlene graciously thanked all for attending the shower and expressed appreciation to the hostess.

The hall was beautifully decorated with a white wedding bell, pink and white balloons and pink and white streamers.

A colorful hat of bows and ribbons was assembled which Charlene later modeled as pictures were taken.

Mrs. Wesley Thompson, Mrs. Scott Brown, Mrs. Robert Cleary and Mrs. Eric Newton provided the ladies with a delicious buffet lunch.

A shower cake made and beautifully decorated in the color theme, by Mrs. Pauline Wheeler entitled "Showers of Happiness" marked the occasion.

As the afternoon was coming to a close the prospective groom with his best man arrived and joined the bride elect and the ladies for lunch. During this time a napkin was passed around and was signed by all who attended, as a remembrance of a day filled with much happiness and joy.

UCW meeting

BIRCHTON

Birchton UCW met in the hall for the June meeting led by the president, Hazel Rogers, and eleven present.

Eleanor Taylor led in devotions and all sang the hymn "Behold that manner of love that the Father has given us." Psalm 107 was read by Serena Wintle. As a prayer, Eleanor read a poem by the late Isabel McColm of Huntingville and continued with a meditation from the Upper Room. She ended with the hymn "May the Lord Mighty God."

The treasurer reported a successful garage and food sale. Some bills were brought in to be paid. It was decided to give our usual amount to M&S and the Board of Stewards. Some money will be put in the In Memoriam Fund in memory of the late Elwin Brazel. Some knitted goods were brought in and priced.

Rena Halsall reported visiting the Home in Sawyerville and taking some food to the sick.

Hazel Rogers for Stewardship told about how our gifts to M&S make us act in more responsible ways to prevent the destruction of God's creation. She also reported on the UCW Presbytery Executive meeting she had attended in Georgeville. She mentioned that we can get help from Presbytery for pulpit supply and that we should invite the area Vice President to a meeting. She also gave out information on the summer event to be held this year at Bishop's on August 7th, 8th, and 9th. Our Fall Rally will be held in Sawyerville on September 28.

As the meeting ended Rev. Martyn Sadler arrived and had lunch with us. Heather Turchyn presented him with a picture done by Mr. Stelfox of Montreal and framed as a parting gift as he is leaving to preach in Quebec City. He responded with kind words for the Birchton congregation.

Women's Institute meetings around the Townships

HUNTINGVILLE

The Ascot W.I. meeting was held in the lounge of the Grace Christian Home on June 4. At 1:30 President Margaret Hall welcomed members. We were pleased to have Elaine Hatcher with us.

The meeting began with the Opening Ode, the Collect, Salute to the Flag and the Oath of Citizenship. Eleven members answered the roll call with gifts for the Hospitality Shop. The Motto for this meeting: "Wrinkles are hereditary, parents get them from their children."

The minutes of the May meeting were read, accepted. Treasurer Linda Hoy gave the financial report. A card of thanks was received from Margaret Hall for lunch served after her aunt's funeral. Information from Communications Quebec was read. The food sale on Friendship Day was convened by Jean Naylor.

Margaret Hall gave an excellent report of Convention. The project for the next three years will be the wean-a-mix weaning diet for women in Ghana. Quebec was one of three provinces to meet its objective for 'Bob the Beaver.' Quebec and British Columbia will be twinned. The October tea money that was collected for the Quebec Extension Fund will now be the Travel Fund. Our thanks to Margaret for being our delegate. She urged us to read the annual report.

Convener's reports: Agriculture - Isabel Butler reported that Saskatchewan had only half the normal rainfall in April. This year may be comparable to the severe drought of 1988.

Citizenship and Legislation - Dorothy Marlin reminded us of school board elections on June 14.

Education and Cultural Affairs - Hilda Little reported that Massey Vanier won the Intellectual Olympics by one and a half points. The new School Boards start July 1.

Home Economics and Health - Marion Annesley read "Are car air conditioners good for your health?" To avoid allergic reactions to mould that may have accumulated in the system open car windows for the first ten minutes that the air conditioner is operating. Turn vents away from your face. Marion also spoke of early edibles, dandelions, rhubarb and asparagus, all full of vitamins and minerals.

International Affairs - Brenda Lyons mentioned the nuclear tests in India and Pakistan, the demonstrations in Indonesia and Jean Chretien's meeting with the Pope.

Safety - Linda Hoy noted Safe Kids Week was June 1st to 7th and read "Is your home safe for children."

Social Services - Lorna Savage had received a letter from Myrtle Winget.

We were reminded of the next County meeting on August 11 at the Eustis Hall. Our next meeting is on September 3. The meeting was adjourned, Margaret wishing everyone a good summer.

Residents of the Home joined us and members served refreshments. Musicians Eileen Drew and Eddie Custeau entertained us all with a good selection of old time tunes, much enjoyed by all.

SPOONER POND

The W.I. met on June 11 at the home of Thera and Auke Devries. Edna Mallette opened the meeting.

Each member present read an article on health. The cowboy boot quilt is finished and a sample quilt to be shown at the fair is in progress. The minutes and the treasurers' report were heard.

For Agriculture: Myrtle Fleck informed us of the proposed "fun-day" at the fairgrounds on June 14, to raise money to help the fight against Hydro.

For Citizenship and Legislature: Spooner Pond will participate in a July 1 float, by making two posters, one on Saskatchewan and one on Manitoba. The Keenan farm has graciously allowed the use of one of their wagons.

For Education and Cultural Affairs: A list of prize winners in the essay contest was read. Decision made on a bursary.

For Safety: We were reminded of the recent death of their sister, Edwina. A get-well card was signed for Cecile Hamelin who at the present time is a patient at the CUSE in Sherbrooke. We all wish her a speedy recovery.

Door prizes were won by Georgie Hooper, Toni Lamothe, Betsy Beaulieu, Verlie Aiken, Lucy Perras, Alfred Vintinner, Rose Alma Pouliot, Judy Gaboriault, Mr. Kolba, Reginald Landry, Rita Mossa, Mildred Atyeo, Bertha Smithers, J. McDuff, Juliette Laliberté, Karl Steinbach, Jackie Jersey, Evelyn Dubuc and Ida MacKay. 500 winners were Julieanne McDuff and Toni Lamothe.

Game winners were Rita Mossa, Jackie Jersey, Irene Carrier, Ida MacKay, Verlie Aiken, Rose Alma Pouliot, Betsy Beaulieu, Rita Mossa, Mildred Atyeo, Juliette Laliberté, and Huguette Levoy.

collection of corrosive materials on June 20. For Sunshine: Seven cards were sent and a visit to Drummondville.

Edna Mallette gave an informative report on her days at Convention. The theme for 1999 Convention will be "Revitalizing the Community."

The W.I. has been requested to help out the fair board at their barbecue by making cakes.

For those wishing to visit the barter store, "Troc-a-Tout," the doors are open from 1 to 8 p.m. every Thursday.

Our next meeting will be on Sept. 3 at the home of Vera and Roy Hughes, with Laurie Walker as co-hostess.

China is a major force in the world of bridge, despite taking up the game seriously only about 20 years ago. For this, many people played a critical part, none more so than Kathie Wei-Sender. American teams have been regular visitors there for tournaments and exhibition matches.

Last December, though, the Chinese organized a memorial for Jack Perry, an Englishman who had traded with China for more than 40 years and had been made an honorary Red Guard by Mao. Three politicians, along with the chairman of the English Bridge Union, Peter Stocken, its vice president, Tony Priday, and his wife Vivian, took part in a series of matches against Chinese politicians in Beijing. The hosts won, 220-206, primarily, it seems, because the British "professionals" had a couple of accidents. The best-played deal was this one, with the Right Honorable Sir Peter Emery, PC, MP, sitting South.

In four hearts, it looked as though Sir Peter would lose one trick in each suit. Yet he gave West just enough egg noodle to hang himself! West started with his two top diamonds. Sir Peter ruffed, cashed the heart ace, then led a low club to dummy's queen. Caught napping, West played low. (If he had won with the ace and exited with a club, he would have defeated the contract.) A second club endplayed West. If he returned the diamond two, declarer would ruff in the dummy and discard his spade loser. A trump away from the queen was clearly suicidal. So West tried a low spade. However, that ran to South's queen. As one loser had disappeared, the contract succeeded.

The eyes have it

By Phillip Alder

One of the pictures in this year's cat calendar has three white cats. One has two blue-colored eyes; one has a left blue eye and right yellow eye; the third has a left yellow eye and a right blue eye. Very strange — though no doubt some geneticist could explain it easily enough.

In bridge, the good players keep their eyes open, regardless of their color. They look at each card as it is played. They also keep their ears open, listening closely to the bidding.

In this deal, how do you plan the play in four hearts after West leads the spade king?

Your three-heart advance after partner's takeout double shows some 9-11 points.

Start by checking losers. With one in spades and one in hearts, you must avoid losing two diamond tricks.

In particular when an opponent has bid, once the dummy appears, check the points. Here, there are 16 in the dummy and you have 10. That leaves only 14 for the opponents, yet West opened the bidding. So, he must have the diamond ace. Just hope that it is a singleton or doubleton. If West has ace-third of diamonds, you have no chance against best defense.

After winning with the spade ace, play a trump. Let's assume West rises with his ace, cashes the spade queen, and exits with his final trump. (If West ducks the heart ace, or if you think he started with the singleton ace, you might go for an endplay: Cash two or three of dummy's clubs, then lead a trump to West's ace, hoping he has only spades and diamonds left.) Now you play a diamond to dummy's queen, then duck a diamond on the way back. West's ace dropping onto the table is a sight for watchful eyes!

Cousins born three days apart celebrate their 75th birthdays together

Agnes Buck and Evelyn Boynton celebrate 75th birthdays.

Evelyn (Bowker) Boynton and Agnes (Bowker) Buck celebrated their 75th birthdays recently at the Boynton home in Bury. It was fitting that they celebrate this milestone together, as they had begun their lives together in 1923 in the same house in the Sawyerville area.

Evelyn was born on May 21 to Edmund and Naomi (Gilman) Bowker and Agnes to Austin and Ruth (Gilman) Bowker three days later on the 24th.

Evelyn's daughter, Mary Meed, had arranged a birthday tea, which was attended by family and friends. As each guest arrived she was handed a sheet entitled "Little known facts about the Bowker cousins." This contained

The tale I tell is quite well-known
As all of us will see.

It took place down in Flanders
In nineteen twenty-three.

It concerns two pregnant ladies.
Please believe me, it's the truth.
The one was called "Naomi"
And the other one was "Ruth."

No, not the ones from Bible days.
In history there were others.
These two special girls were sisters,
Who were married to two brothers.

As the month of May progressed that year
Their house was in a whirl.
Within three days, the selfsame week
Each one produced a girl.

Now Naomi had her Evelyn
And Agnes came to Ruth.

The days were filled with diapers questions about the habits, preferences and families of the birthday ladies. Some of the facts were revealing, even to Agnes and Evelyn!

Mary pinned a pretty corsage on her mother and her aunt Agnes, and the cake she had made was a beautiful centerpiece for the table which was filled with other goodies.

Little 4-year old Naomi Meed recited the 23rd Psalm especially for her Grammy and aunt, but it was appreciated by the others as well.

Memories of bygone years were enjoyed and shared as photos were passed around and viewed.

Audrey Bowker read the following poem, which she had written in honor of the occasion:

Submitted by Alice Wilson

Right up to that first tooth.

The months passed by - the two girls grew,
And before folks even knew
Young Wesley followed Evelyn
And Agnes headed up a crew.

So since that time the years have gone,
Their paths went separate ways.
Three-quarters of a century
Filled with many kinds of days.

Marriage, children, even grandkids,
So the story never ends.
We come today to wish
A happy birthday to our friends.

We love you both it's plain to see.
As through the days you plod
May you know the peace and happiness
And strength that comes from God.

And indeed, this is the wish of us all.

St. Peter's Church celebrates 175th anniversary at Sunday service

At a meeting of St. Peter's Heritage Group the plans for our 175th anniversary celebrations were discussed.

The Bishop of Quebec, Rt. Rev. Bruce Stavert, will officiate at the 10:30 a.m. service, Sunday, June 28.

We are hoping that as many people as possible, parishioners and friends will join us. After the service there will be a social hour at the back of the church and refreshments will be served.

On Saturday afternoon there will be an Open House from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m., with tours of the church. Iced tea and cookies will be served.

This Heritage Group meeting was held June 5 at the home of Marguerite Cotton with all members present.

President, Peter Kandalraft, conducted the meeting which was opened with our prayer read by Lisa Banks.

The minutes of the last meeting were read by the Secretary, Marguerite Cotton, and were approved as read.

The Treasurer's report was given by the new treasurer, Lisa Banks.

Peter reported that he and James Taylor had delivered Easter flowers to our shut-ins. Thank you letters for these gifts were read by the Secretary.

Peter reported that several parishioners have requested that a Canadian flag be flown in the church. Lisa Banks has been authorized to purchase one. As we already have a Quebec flag, both flags will be displayed.

Peter announced that the Sherbrooke historical tours of the church will continue this summer. It was decided to serve tea and cookies at these tours.

After completing other items of business the meeting was adjourned and refreshments were served by the host, Peter Kandalraft.

Secretary*

At the 11 a.m. worship service held at Candlish United and conducted by Rev. Ross Davidson, the baptism of Anne-Marie Bouffard, infant daughter of Donald Bouffard and Louise Trepanier, took place. The flowers at the Altar were in loving memory of Jack and Edith Allan, given by the Lawrence Allan family.

Scary soup a June delight?

INVERNESS

The Women's Institute met at the home of Lois Marshall on June 4 with all members present and two guests from Kinnear's Mills. Mildred R., president, opened the meeting with all repeating the Salute to the Flag, Mary Stewart Collect and Oath of Citizenship.

Motto: A cheerful heart is a good medicine but a downcast spirit dries up the bones. Roll call: Name your paternal grandfather.

Mildred read a poem, "Scary Soup." Marion read a poem "June's Delights." Lois read a poem "Lineage."

The secretary read the minutes of the April 3 meeting. Correspondence was read. Sent out one birthday card in May. The treasurer gave a satisfactory report.

The conveners gave their reports. Agriculture: Marion - Spring planting is done, crops are growing and some farmers are cutting hay for silos.

Citizenship and Legislation: Lois - An investment of $327,000 for Craig and Gosford roads by Hydro Quebec in the municipalities of Leeds, Saint Jean de Brébeuf, Ireland and Saint-Julien.

Home Ec. and Health: Jean - Place a wrapped fragrant soap bar in your dresser or linen closet to give clothes and linens a nice light scent. Untangle a thin chain necklace by dusting it lightly with powder.

To discourage barn swallows from nesting in the eaves of your house or garage, brush dish soap wherever you don't want them.

Education and Cultural Activities: Mildred - Students are writing their exams now at A.S.J.M. High in Thetford Mines.

The president welcomed Audrey Allan and Natalie Wintler to the meeting at which time Audrey thanked her for the invitation to give their report on the Macdonald Convention they attended in May. They spent a busy and enjoyable three days there. Macdonald Campus has been given help for the ice damage to their trees. Three students in Grade 6 at A.S.J.M. High School in Thetford won prizes for their essays and will be at the awards ceremony on June 30 by A. Allan.

Our W.I. handbooks are to be changed. There are 51 branches, 861 members and 300 associate members in the country.

Mildred thanked them for their excellent report. Collection and Pennies for Friendship were taken. Parcel was won by Natalie Wintler. Margaret closed the meeting by reading a poem "Borrowed Time." Tickets were bought to be drawn at a card party at Kinnear's Mills on October 16.

Lois served a very delicious cold supper and a social hour was enjoyed.
