World News In Brief

Salonica, March 20.—(Reuters) — John Zevgos, former Communist Minister of Agriculture in the 1944 Greek government, was shot dead in a Salonika street today. Three arrests have been made.

Durban, S.A., March 20.—(Reuters) — Nearly 500,000 people, the greatest crowd in Durban's history, were lining the streets to welcome the royal family when they arrived here today.

Thousands spent the night in the city gardens to secure places.

The King, Queen and Princesses had their greatest reception of the South African tour as they drove along the sea front and through the city to the town hall.

Three Zulus, including an economics research student from Yale University, and three Indians were among the guests at an informal tea party in the town hall.

The King opened the bronze gates of South Africa's first second World War memorial and talked to many widows and next-of-kin of war victims.

Amsterdam, March 20.—(AP) — The 4,355-ton Greek freighter Alexandria was being towed to the port of Amsterdam by rescue tugs today after striking a mine yesterday off the West Frisian Islands.

The stricken ship was reported listing heavily, but her crew still was aboard.

The Alexandria sailed from Baltimore Feb. 19 with a cargo of hides and was en route to Amsterdam when she struck the mine.

Paris, March 20.—(AP) — Faced with a showdown motion of confidence in the Ramadier government, the French National Assembly today recessed its discussion of military credits in Indo-China until Saturday, when the vote will be taken.

An atmosphere of impending crisis hung over the Assembly as the Communist floor leader, Jacques Duclos, defying Premier Paul Ramadier's call for unity, declared the Communists would abstain from voting on expenditures for the French campaign against Viet-Namense insurgents.

London, March 20.—(AP) — Viscount Mountbatten, India's new Viceroy, left today by air for New Delhi to wind up in 14 months, 90 years of British rule over the rich, sprawling sub-continent.

Mountbatten, accompanied by his wife and daughter, is scheduled to arrive Saturday, when he will meet the retiring Viceroy, Field Marshal Lord Wavell, due to leave New Delhi Sunday.

Their meetings will mark the first time two Viceroys have been in India at the same time.

France Demands Guarantees Of German Coal Before She Joins In Peace Settlement

Big Four Deputies Agree Foreign Ministers' Council Should Hear Views of Allied and Former Enemy Countries on German Peace Treaty—Russia Agrees to Larger Share of German Coal for France, Bevin Rejects Request.

Moscow, March 20.—(AP) — France notified the Council of Foreign Ministers tonight that she could not agree to economic reconstruction of Germany unless other powers agreed to her demands for guarantees of German coal.

Foreign Minister Bidault, answering the rejection of his request for coal guarantees by Foreign Secretary Bevin last night, said:

"I am directed by my government to state that we cannot be parties to agreement on other problems raised—economic unity, level of industry and reparations—without a previous settlement of the scheme for export of coal in a sense which is in conformity with our request.

"No different attitude could be adopted by any French government."

Russia agreed yesterday to a larger share of German coal for France.

Bail Sought In Wotton Murder Case

Because of continued delays on the part of the Crown, Cesaire Gervais, K.C., today pressed again for bail in the case of Mrs. Cyprien Ducharme, 46, charged with the arsenic poison of her husband.

Refused bail two weeks ago by the Court of Sessions, Mr. Gervais declared today that he would make application before a Justice of the Superior Court to obtain Mrs. Ducharme's freedom so that she could look after her seven children at home.

"If I get my bail," Mr. Gervais said, "I won't care if the Crown takes a year or 18 months before proceeding in the case."

Referring to Judge Marier's remark two weeks ago that there existed no precedent for setting of bail in a murder case in this district, Mr. Gervais said that such precedence existed. Ten years ago, he said, accused were liberated in a murder case when the crown was refused request for postponement to complete investigation.

(Mr. Gervais later informed a Record reporter that he was referring to the case of Louis and Conrad Audy, of East Hereford, who were charged with the slaying of Saul Gregoire. Both Louis and Conrad were liberated at their preliminary hearing, and re-arrested a week later, when preliminary hearing proceeded. Both men were later acquitted.)

Roland Dugre, K.C., Crown prosecutor, said that the frequent delays were occasioned by the bad condition of the roads in Wotton district and the impossibility, because of this situation, of bringing all witnesses to Sherbrooke. He asked that the case be fixed for April 8, and this request was granted by the Court.

Earlier it was learned that the Big Four deputies agreed that the Foreign Ministers' Council should hear the views of allied and former enemy countries on the German peace treaty but that Russia still is opposed to allowing the middle and small allied powers to participate directly in the deliberations.

The Deputies, who were ordered last week to go into business of treaty-drafting procedure, held their final session this morning but gained little ground. After the Russians still opposed any substantial liberalization in participation procedure, it was understood that the deputies drew up a report which will merely say that the drafting work should be done by four permanent committees of the Council of Foreign Ministers and that an information and consultation conference should be established to link the council to other allies.

Under this scheme it was agreed that the Big Four Foreign Ministers will hear at an unspecified date the views of all allied belligerents and all former enemy states which turned against and fought Germany.

Beyond these points, however, there was a series of disagreements. The Deputies could not get anywhere on the British suggestion that all 18 allies be members of the four permanent committees.

The United States generally supported Britain but would prefer the clause to read "a convenient number of states" rather than all 18 allies. But it was learned authoritatively that the United States was particularly anxious that all 18 allies be permitted adequately to participate and States Secretary Marshall may make a strong statement before the council itself.

Montreal Police To Sue Sullivan

Montreal, March 20.—(AP) — Three hundred Montreal policemen, members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Policemen, at a meeting here last night unanimously adopted a resolution "to study the opportunity of taking legal proceedings against J. A. (Pat) Sullivan" as a result of the accusation by the former president of the Canadian Seamen's Union that the Montreal police strike in 1943 was financed by the Communists to the amount of $9,000.

Constable Lucien Marion, one of the organizers of the Montreal Police Department's anti-Communist squad, presented the resolution.

Said Marion: "I resolve that we study the opportunity to take legal action against Sullivan, as a result of his defamatory charges against the police department and the brotherhood."

Debate was adjourned on a motion by Rene Chalout (Ind-Quebec) requesting "a distinctly Canadian flag and one that symbolizes the aspirations of the people of this province" be flown from the main tower of the Legislature Buildings.

Resignation of Maurice Hartt (L-Montreal St. Louis), official Liberal candidate in the March 31 Montreal-Cartier Federal by-election, was read and tabled. Text of a bill by Provincial Secretary Cote which provides that at least 20 persons of any group seeking the status of a syndicate must be Canadian citizens was distributed to members.

Describe How Ship Snapped Apart At Sea

Radio Operator Hailed as Hero by Ten Survivors of Tanker Who Were Adrift on Bow Section 50 Hours.

San Francisco, March 20.—(AP) — A one-armed radio operator who finally ground out a prayerful distress signal on a makeshift set after four attempts had failed was acclaimed a hero today by ten survivors of the broken tanker Fort Dearborn.

While the United States Navy continued to search for 12 or 13 more crew members still missing, the ten survivors who reached San Francisco yesterday gave the full, gripping story of how their ship snapped apart just after midnight March 12th during a storm and cost them adrift on the bow section for 50 hours.

They all credited "Sparks"—Radio Operator Henry F. Wiehr, of Los Angeles—with saving their lives.

Wiehr, despite the handicap of only one arm and smashed glasses, sought vainly to transmit an SOS with broken, water-soaked equipment and finally, with the help of the chief steward, rigged an emergency set.

The weak SOS was picked up by the S.S. John Foster nine hours after the Fort Dearborn broke, and was relayed to the American liner Gen. Gordon which was closer to the wreck scene. The Gen. Gordon steamed 300 miles through heavy seas and reached the drifting bow section in 16 hours.

Two of the Gordon lifeboats were smashed and one eight-man crew nearly lost in initial rescue attempts before the survivors were picked up by a motor launch from a second rescue ship, the freighter St. John Victory.

Wiehr told of a nightmarish experience trying to transmit a distress call.

"At 12:15 a.m., on March 12th, there were two terrific concussions," he heard Captain (Richard) Schoonoy yell. "Get up, Sparks! The ship's parted! Try to get out an SOS!"

The operator stumbled to the radio room and turned on an emergency light. He found the antennas had been carried away with the stern section. His regular radio was dead.

Three attempts to transmit with the emergency transmitter failed. What little equipment he had was damaged by the concussion or the water accumulating in the radio shack.

"There was one more chance—a small emergency transmitter for a life boat," Wiehr went on. "It was on a rack in the radio room. But the batteries were too far gone. We had to figure out something else."

Sanford Rogers, the chief steward, carried the transmitter up to the chartroom. Wiehr said, "and that was some feat, with our remnants of ship bucking and rolling and the decks slippery with water and oil from the broken tanks."

In the chartroom they rigged the transmitter to batteries from the direction finder and ran an antenna out the door and up a mast.

Tank Evacuates Flood Victims

Pressed into rescue service, an Army tank evacuates people stranded in Windsor, England, by flood waters four feet deep. Heavy rains and thawing snow swelled waterways throughout southern England.

Civilians, Soldiers, Police And P.O.W.'s Wage Losing Battle Against U.K. Floods

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, March 20.—(AP) — Thousands of civilians, soldiers, police and prisoners of war today waged a losing battle to hold back rain-swollen rivers which already have spread a trail of destruction in scores of towns and villages.

Flooded streams became unruly torrents as the snowdrifts left by Britain's severest winter of the century melted and rain fell to intensify flood hazards in low-lying areas.

More rain was forecast, even as weary volunteers toiled to repair breached dykes in the Fenslands of the East Midlands and as army assault boats were dispatched to the aid of 1,000 persons trapped by the overflowing Don River in the Yorkshire village of Bentley.

The army acted after the people of Bentley, two miles north of Doncaster, telephoned an urgent message for help. The message, sent out late yesterday, said the trapped residents had been without food for more than 24 hours and must have help by this morning.

A police officer said over the telephone that water was four feet deep in the village and the swirling currents had prevented rowboats from reaching Bentley.

Officers of the Royal Engineers were brief at a conference at midnight Wednesday on anti-flood measures for use in the Fenland county north and east of Cambridge, where an estimated 40,000 acres of wheat-producing soil have been ruined and thousands of sheep, cattle and poultry have drowned.

Spotter planes were to be used to help the troops, who are equipped with Bailey Bridges, bulldozers and mobile radio-equipped cars.

Students Held In Explosion Deaths

Santa Ana, Calif., March 20.—(AP) — Two college students, engaged to be married next month, were in jail today awaiting outcome of police investigation into the explosion deaths late Saturday night of the girl's wealthy parents aboard their 47-foot yacht in Newport harbor.

Beulah Louise Overall, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Overall, and George Rector Gollum, 21, were arrested yesterday after police said 30 sticks of dynamite and a wired clock were discovered in the wrecked hulk. The yacht sank following the explosion, first attributed to gasoline, and investigators went aboard after it was raised the next day.

Interviewed separately last night, both Gollum and Miss Overall denied any responsibility for the tragedy. They said they had left the boat shortly before the explosion.

She disclosed that her 62-year-old father and 67-year-old mother had opposed her marriage to Gollum.

Controversy Continues In Freight Case

Counsel for Provinces Urge Production of Group of C.P.R. Financial and Operational Records.

Ottawa, March 20.—(AP) — A third straight day of argument on a point of controversy today faced the Board of Transport Commissioners as it continued its inquiry into the railways' application for general freight-rate increases.

Counsel for the provinces were expected to wind up during the day their presentations urging production of a group of Canadian Pacific Railway financial and operational records following two days of legal battle on the issue.

Application for the documents was made Monday, and Tuesday and yesterday were given over fully to argument by the provinces' spokesmen and railway counsel. Five lawyers from each side submitted arguments.

During yesterday's submissions, C. H. Locke, counsel for British Columbia, suggested to the board freight traffic might take a drop if the 30-per-cent rate increase sought by the carriers were put into effect.

He put forward this contention after railway counsel, replying to a provincial suggestion that the burden of added revenues might be spread through the system, declared any increase in passenger rates would cause a falling-off in that traffic as they now were at the highest possible level consistent with maintaining revenues.

In replying to railway arguments that regional costs could not be taken into account in setting rates, Mr. Locke said this had been British Columbia's contention all along in seeking the removal of its "mountain differential" in freight rates.

For the railways, it was contended the information sought by Mr. Locke with the support of other provincial spokesmen was irrelevant to the inquiry, particularly with respect to cost breakdowns by regions and by railway departments.

Further, they asserted, it was impossible to segregate costs by departments on an accurate basis. This could only be done on a statistical basis, they said, and figures obtained this way would be of no value in determining rate bases.

Matheson was described as a widower and a beneficiary of the welfare department.

Two brothers, Edward Benz, 13, and Michael, 10, said Matheson removed his overcoat, laid his cane on the ground and began pouring gasoline from a can on his clothes and on the ground in a circle about 10 feet in diameter.

Then he stepped within the circle and lit the gasoline.

"The flames were six feet high," Edward said, "and the man was jumping up and down."

A woman passerby and the boys ran for help. When police arrived the fire was virtually out and Matheson was dead.

The Day In Parliament

By The Canadian Press
Today:
The Commons continues consideration of control legislation. The Senate will sit.

Yesterday:
The Commons heard Agriculture Minister Gardiner say announcement of no announcement of increases in prices of dairy products would be made until April.

The discussion on dairy products arose during clause-by-clause study of the bill to continue for another year government controls on the sale and export of products of Canada's farm lands.

Mr. Gardiner said he would meet in mid-April with the advisory committee on agriculture prices, composed of government and producer representatives. He wanted to get the committee's advice before making any announcement.

He said announcements would be made "as soon as possible" after these discussions.

Senate Views Conflict In Oleo Debate

Members Argue Whether or Not Dominion Should Continue Ban Against Sale, Manufacture and Importation of Oleomargarine.

Ottawa, March 20.—(AP) — More conflicting views were in the Senate today as it moved nearer a repetition of last session's vote on whether Canada should continue to prohibit the sale, manufacture and importation of oleomargarine as a substitute for butter.

Of five speakers yesterday, two opposed a bill to end the prohibition, two favored it and a fifth—Senator John Sinclair (L—Prince Edward Island)—urged the subject be withheld until the world trade conference was over.

The debate was adjourned by Senator A. K. Hughesen (L—Quebec). A similar bill, also moved by Senator William Euler (L—Ontario) was defeated at the last session.

Sinclair maintained the time was inopportune for the bill. Canada's delegates to the world trade conference might be able to use the current ban on the product to strengthen their bargaining position and to pry concessions from other countries. The conference was going to consider a proposal that would prevent any signatory country from banning imports of any commodity from any other signatory country. This would mean Canada couldn't exclude oleomargarine.

Sinclair said the bill would injure farmers. Despite every effort to produce more butter there was a shortage. Most of oleomargarine's ingredients came from the farm. Consumers should not be denied a worthy substitute for a commodity in short supply.

Senator Peter Campbell (L—Ontario) belittled claims the bill would injure farmers. Despite every effort to produce more butter there was a shortage. Most of oleomargarine's ingredients came from the farm. Consumers should not be denied a worthy substitute for a commodity in short supply.

Senator J. P. McIntyre (L—Prince Edward Island) said oleomargarine had been legalized after the first world war and there had been so much indignation the government had to renew a prohibition dating back to 1883. The dairy industry of P.E.I. feared the bill, if passed, would turn farmers away from dairy production.

Senator Joseph Berch (L—Ontario) agreed with Senator Campbell that oleomargarine's prohibition would carry little weight at the world trade conference. He approved the bill and urged it be sent to a committee where all sides to the dispute could be heard. He doubted the prohibition was constitutional in that it fell, he thought, within the property and civil rights clause of the B.N.A. act which was reserved for the provinces.

Senator Iva Fallis (P—Ontario) criticized the bill because it would mean Canada took fats and oils away from countries which needed them much more, to make oleomargarine for herself. Canada was "an oasis of plenty in a world of scarcity."

It was "to our everlasting shame" that Canada had taken 12,000,000 pounds of New Zealand butter from butter-short, cold Britain. She did not favor passing permanent legislation to meet a temporary condition such as the butter shortage.

During the agriculture debate, Mr. Gardiner told the House subsidies on agricultural products have totalled more than $350,475,400 since 1939. They included premiums on cheese, cold storage, apples and agricultural products generally.

Replying to questions from J. F. Pouliot (Ind. L—Témiscouata), he said about 50 per cent of Canada's bacon and an average of 60 per cent of cheese production had gone to Britain since the start of the war.

The debate was enlivened by a charge by John Diefenbaker (P—Lac Centre) that the measure gave Mr. Gardiner "too much power" and by the minister's response he did not want "any extra power."

Mr. Gardiner agreed to a suggestion by Mr. Diefenbaker that the bill be amended to vest authority for the establishment of commodity boards in the Governor-in-Council rather than in the minister.

Diefenbaker asserted other sections of the bill gave the minister powers as wide as those held by the "Communist government of Yugoslavia" and said he doubted whether the bill was constitutional. It would give the minister power to make food agreements "at his will."

The bill was asking Parliament to give the "greatest manifestation of faith" in one man that it ever could give.

Gordon Leaves WPTB To Return To Bank Of Canada

Ottawa, March 20.—Resignation of Donald Gordon, C.M.G., as head of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, to resume his duties as deputy Governor of the Bank of Canada, was announced in the House of Commons yesterday by Premier Mackenzie King.

Attack Launched From Mars Is Predicted In Third World War

By ELTON FAY

Washington, March 20.—(AP) — The United States Army doesn't want a base on Mars or even the moon; it will settle for just a good guided missile.

Ordinance and research officials who read the prediction of Maj. James R. Randolph, a reserve officer, that a rocket race to build military outposts on neighboring planets might come sooner than expected, decided their own ideas sum up this way:

"The cold, practical people here are working just to get a guided missile. Any flights to the moon or Mars are so far in the future that we give them no study or attention. We are interested only in staying ahead of competitors in time and design."

Randolph, writing for the Army Ordnance Association Journal, a non-official publication, suggested that in a Third World War an attack launched from an outpost established on Mars would have "vastly greater opportunities for secrecy and surprise."

He urged peacetime studies of "these other worlds, sending expeditions to them, and devising equipment to meet their special needs."

Writing in the same issue of the magazine, Lt.-Col. Harvey Rivkins, chief of the Ordnance Department's office of technical information, was considerably less enthusiastic about the prospects for interplanetary travel.

Noting forecasts that it would take billions of dollars and years of research to perfect a rocket that would travel only as far as the moon, Rivkins added:

PITCHING HORSESHOES by Billy Rose

I don't know where this story comes from. It's been around a long time. I tried it out on some of my friends who can read, but it was fresh to them. It's a neat yarn, so I think I'll take a chance and spin it. Process servers will please form a line to the right.

Four people sat in a railroad coach as it rattled across the Jersey meadows. On one seat there were two men, one young, one older. On the seat facing them were two women, one young and pretty, one not so young and not so pretty. They didn't know each other, and not a word had been spoken all the way from Trenton.

The train slowed down as it crossed the Hackensack River bridge. As it entered the tunnel under the Hudson, everything went black. The conductor had forgotten to snap on the lights.

Mr. Walter Steen spent a few days vacation with relatives in Montreal.

A second later, there was the unmistakable sound of a kiss. And then the equally unmistakable sound of a slap in the face.

The Older Man heard the kiss and the slap and thought: "How charming. . . Like in a movie. . . Can't say I blame the young fellow."

That's a rather pretty girl. . . With I were young enough to steal a kiss in a tunnel. . . Worth a slap in the face. . . Girls like to be kissed in the dark. . . Wish I'd always known that. . . Trouble is by the time you learn the rules, it's too late to play. . . Young fellows don't know much about women. . . Look how wrong I was about Ethel. . . That night at her house when the fuse blew out, I went down to the cellar and fixed it. . . It wasn't 'till years later that I realized why she slapped me so hard when I came upstairs. . . Maybe I've got this all wrong. . . Maybe the young fellow kissed the older lady. . . Stranger things have happened. . . Maybe he was trying to make the old gal feel good. . . Nice thought. . . Maybe he was trying to make the young girl jealous. . . Anyhow, he got a kiss for the slap. . . That's better than I did with Ethel.

The Girl Who Was Young and Pretty thought: "How do you like that? . . . Imagine anyone kissing that old dame! . . . Wonder which one did it. . . Must have been old frozen face. . . Never can tell about those dignified-looking fellows. . . Some of them are pins. . . Bet the old dame is sorry she slapped him. . . He looks like a pretty good touch. . . Say, maybe it wasn't old frozen face. . . Maybe the young guy kissed her."

He's kind of cute. . . If he's passing kisses around, what's the matter with little Goldilocks? . . . She wouldn't slap him. . . She ain't slapping nobody. . . It don't get you any place. . . Would little Goldilocks be modelling at sixty bucks a week if she had slapped the boss? . . . Not recently. . . Supposing a girl does give away a few kisses? . . . So what? . . . She's got plenty left. . . A smart gal can do herself a lot of good spreading a little lipstick around."

The Woman Who Was Not So Young and Not So Pretty thought: "So the boy kissed the girl. . . Fresh guy. . . He rated that slap. . . Would have slapped him myself. . . Maybe not. . . Long time since I was kissed. . . When was it? . . . The New Year's party at Kate's, but Joe was drunk and it didn't count. . . That accountant from Camden used to kiss nice. . . Trouble was he kissed everybody. . . Say, maybe it wasn't the young fellow who kissed the girl. . . Maybe it was the old coot. . . Can't tell about these dignified-looking fellows. . . Some of them are lulus. . . No wonder she slapped him. . . I remember slapping a guy once. . . Wish I hadn't. . . He was pretty nice. . . I think he liked me. . . A lot. . . What was I trying to prove? . . . That I was a nice girl? . . . That's a laugh. . . He never came around after that. . . Hear he's in the chips now. . . Who knows? . . . Might have married him. . . Wish I had. . . Wouldn't be riding on this crazy train to answer a Help Wanted ad."

The Young Man grinned and thought: "Pretty cute stunt, kissing my own hand and slapping my own face. . . Wonder what they're thinking?"

CHARLEY, MARTHA KILLING
Hollywood, March 20.—We can let you in today on a secret Charley Chaplin has been guarding zealously for months—the plot of his new movie, "Monsieur Verdoux."

Charley plays a man who kills women for profit. His leading lady, Martha Raye, plays a gal who kills men for profit. Charley and Martha meet and spend six weeks trying to kill each other.

Charley says it's a comedy.

More fuel for James Mason's feud with Hollywood. In a forthcoming magazine story he's quoted as saying:

"I don't like Hollywood, because life doesn't go on out there."

There will always be an England—if it can have a cup of tea in its hand.

Angela Lansbury went to New York for some interviews to plug the movie, "The Affairs of Bel Ami."

The interview routine was pretty grueling for her, but she found a way to beat fatigue—brewing tea as black as coffee in her swank Hampshire House room.

"Only one shocked employee of this plush hangout has caught me working over a hot stove," she writes. "But I have to have my tea. It gives me a lift, about half way to the ceiling."

TAKOFF ON OLD GAG
It is Dennis Morgan who recalls that when he made his debut in the "drama" at Carroll College back in Wisconsin, a play doctor was called in to view their efforts and see what he could do to brighten things up.

The play doctor looked at the first act, stood up as he wearily shook his head and said:

"Is there an actor in the house?"

Roy Rogers, a widower, will take his two young daughters on his rodeo tour this summer. . . . Sneak reaction to "The Bachelor and the Bobby-Soxer" indicates that Director Irving Reis has turned Shirley Temple into a light comedienne.

Producer Benedict Bogeaus will release "Christmas Eve" in July. That's Hollywood for you. . . . Jack Haley is doing a 16-mm. color movie, "How to Boss Bossy" for the 4-H clubs. It's being filmed at a cattle breeding ranch in Escondido, Calif.

FROM HEROES TO BUMS
Sudden thought: Clarence Brown, famous for directing all those stories on family life, "National Velvet," "The Human Comedy," and "The Yearling," has no family of his own.

Ray Milland tracks down a murder suspect in his latest picture, "The Clock." The suspect turns out to be himself. . . . Tyrone Power gets the lead in "Nightmare Alley." It's a change of pace from his usual celluloid heroics. He'll play a bum.

Guess we were wrong about L. B. Mayer selling all those nags because he figured, along with other movie moguls, that racing will be outlawed in California next year. Harry Warner, who wrote a check for $385,000 for three of Mayer's best, ought to know what he's doing.

Preliminary Plans For Local Handicraft Display Are Made

Preliminary plans for the Sherbrooke Handicraft Exhibition to be staged in the Belvedere Street Armory during the week of June 8th to 15th were discussed last night by members of the organizing committee at a special meeting held in the Social Club under the chairmanship of the president, Maurice Fortier.

One of the main points touched upon during the session concerned the program to be given on Friday, June 13th, a day specially dedicated to English-speaking citizens of Sherbrooke and the surrounding district. Guests-of-honor will be well-known English-speaking public figures and a musical entertainment in keeping with the spirit of the occasion will be staged by a group of local artists.

A special invitation to members of the various women's clubs in the Eastern Townships to display their handicraft work during the exhibition is being extended by the committee, a special booth to be made available for the use of this group. Handicraft displays from individuals are also being sought by the organizers, who will accept any and all articles which pass certain requirements.

The Sherbrooke Handicraft Exhibition is being promoted by the Sherbrooke Junior Chamber of Commerce with the co-operation of l'Office Provincial de l'Artisanat, le Service de l'Enseignement Menager, l'Ecole des Arts et Metiers de Sherbrooke, l'Ecole des Arts Domestiques de Quebec, l'Ecole du Meuble de Montreal, the Veterans' Rehabilitation Centre in Sherbrooke and Cercles de Fermieres groups in the district.

LOCAL PARKING METER SYSTEM UNDER STUDY

A plan for parking meters in congested areas of the city is being studied by Chief of Police Edouard Moreau, who at the next session of the City Council will likely make a recommendation either to accept or reject the proposal, it was learned this morning from a City Hall spokesman.

Under the plan suggested, 75 per cent of the revenue obtained from the meters would be turned over to the firm setting up the machines until such time as the total cost of installation had been repaid. Estimated installation outlay is $100 per meter, one of which would be required for every car in the designated parking areas, located chiefly on King and Wellington Streets.

Should the plan be adopted, the motorists leaving his car parked in one spot for a protracted period will be forced to pay a sum based on a rate of several cents per hour, a rough estimate of the total revenue thus realized being described as sufficient to pay for the meters within a year.

The proposal was discussed at a special meeting of the City Fathers, the suggestion being then referred to Chief Moreau for consideration.

80 NEW BOOKS PURCHASED BY LOCAL LIBRARY

Reports presented last night at a meeting of the Sherbrooke Library and Art Union revealed that 75 to 80 new books have been purchased during the past six weeks and that at the end of the year a balance of about $600 remained on hand after $600 had been paid to the book buying committee and $200 for the new shelves just installed.

Howard Kennedy, in presenting this encouraging financial report, said it was due to the success of the financial campaign and to the increasing amount of money taken in at the library desk.

Miss E. Bradley reported that 75-80 new books had been purchased in the last six weeks and that a coin catalogue had been donated by Father Marcotte of the St. Charles Seminary. It was moved and carried that a letter of appreciation be sent to Father Marcotte.

The president, Lewis Rosenbloom, reported that the much discussed addition to the library of a number of good French books had finally become a reality. This was possible through the generosity of Louis P. Robidoux who donated some twenty-five well chosen books as a start for the French section. A further list of twenty-five books recommended by Mr. Robidoux has been placed in the hands of the book buying committee for immediate purchase. Each year more books will be added to this section and it is planned to devote one or two shelves exclusively to books in the French language.

The president acknowledged a donation of $25 from the Rotary Club. The books purchased with this money will be stamped on the inside cover showing that they were donated by the Rotary Club.

The president appointed the following as nominating committee to draw up a slate of officers for the ensuing year: Harry Grundy, Lennox Wilson, Robert Webster. A letter from John Bassett, Jr., was read by the president in which Mr. Bassett asked that the library give thought and consideration to the formation of an annual federated campaign.

After some discussion it was moved by Harry Grundy seconded by Howard Kennedy and duly carried that in principle the library was in favor of a federated campaign but that before making any commitment the matter would have to be more carefully studied and consideration given to the problems that might arise should the library enter such a campaign.

It was moved by Mrs. Hoge, seconded by F. J. Sangster, and duly carried, that the treasurer be authorized to turn over to the book buying committee the sum of $600 for the purchase of new books.

Dressing Sterilizer

Sterilizers in Red Cross outpost hospitals derive heat from the kitchen stove. Nurse Dorothy Stoughton is shown sterilizing dressings at outpost hospital at Wilberforce, Ont. There are now 54 outpost hospitals and nursing stations operated by the Canadian Red Cross Society and it is hoped to increase the number to 100 or more in frontier districts. The sum of $1,390,000 is budgeted for the operation and expansion of the outpost hospital service in the $5,000,000 sought in the present national appeal. Objective of the Sherbrooke branch is $10,000.

Total Of $2,961 Realized To Date In Appeal By Red Cross

Red Cross canvassers who started their city-wide collection drive on Monday have realized $2,961.50 to date against a Sherbrooke objective of $10,000. The financial campaign of the Sherbrooke Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society, with Forest Keene and L. A. Laberge joint chairmen, will run through to the end of the month.

The objective of the campaign is to finance the continuance and expansion of a half-dozen major peace-time activities of the Society in Canada and several lesser known services.

First item is the new nationwide blood bank by which the Canadian Red Cross will supply free blood and plasma to hospitals large and small from coast to coast.

in Canada for transfusions that will also be free to the patients. Already the blood-bank has opened in British Columbia and it will extend eastward to include all provinces.

A second major service of the Canadian Red Cross is outpost hospitals and nursing posts, of which there are 54 at isolated places in Canada. Four such outposts are located in the Province of Quebec—in Gaspé and in the Magdalen Islands. Kindred services are rendered in this province by the mobile medical and dental clinics which bring Red Cross benefits to isolated colonists in the Abitibi and Temiskaming districts. Also, the Red Cross has benefited hundreds through its dental clinic at Percé, in Gaspé.

Still other Red Cross services are the disaster preparedness and relief provisions by which it gives emergency clothing, food, medical treatment and shelter to fire and flood victims when asked by civil authorities. An example was the recent tragic fire on Mountain Street, in Montreal, where the Red Cross cared for scores of burnt-out persons, gave first aid, found shelter and distributed clothing.

Other activities are Red Cross comforts and outings and handicraft instruction for still hospitalized veterans, of which there are still some 3,000 in a score of veteran hospitals in this province; aid to other veterans who do not fall within categories entitled to government care; teaching of water security throughout the province by hundreds of experts previously trained by Red Cross in big centres and who spread their knowledge in small communities with Red Cross help; first aid instruction; home nursing and home dietetic instruction. The Junior Red Cross cares for needy school children, teaches book discipline and aids schools with lunch projects for children unable to get home for a hot mid-day meal.

LENNOXVILLE HIGH STAGED AMUSING PLAY

The Dramatic Club of Lennoxville High School played to another crowded house in presenting, for the second night, "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay." That this was considered very successful was shown by the keen interest of the adult audience present.

Of the sixteen young actors, most of whom did excellent work, Eileen Bennett and Marilyn Wolter filled their important roles with outstanding success for amateurs. Not only had they learned their lines and actions called for in the play, but these young actresses had interpreted the characters of Cornelia and Emily to a degree that speaks well for their training. Cornelia, who inherited from her actor father more than the usual young girl's ambitions for the stage pictured herself as a devastating Theda Bara, and in her tales which are most entertaining, regardless of the truth, she dramatized every situation in which there were many amusing ones. Emily, over-enthusiastic, loyal to her friend, yet entirely lacking Cornelia's dramatic ways, was a dreamer, yet engagingly impulsive. These girls so obviously enjoyed their parts and made them live that the audience lived and enjoyed them too.

Donald Kuehner and Dorothy Deacon, as Mr. and Mrs. Skinner, were convincing actors — Ocie Skinner, the tolerant father, amused and slightly bewildered by his ambitious daughter, Mrs. Skinner fustily concerned over her daughter's first trip abroad.

Delbert Butler as the steward, Gerald Frost as the purser, Sheila Richardson as the stewardess, and Edson Warner who was mistaken by the girls for an admiral, were all well cast and added to the humor of the ocean voyage by their efficiency in returning the girls' safety pockets as fast as the girls disposed of them. Dick Warner, played by John Kuehner and Leo McEvoy, played by Gordon Campbell, added the romantic touch to the voyage and the stay in Paris. As young doctors they rescued Cornelia from quarantine when she was stricken with measles the day they reached France. The English girls, Harriet St. John and Winnifred Blough, portrayed by Audrey Ladd and Joyce Allen added to the confusion on board ship and in Paris.

In Paris the girls wanted to take lessons in dramatics. In this they were thwarted by Monsieur de la Croix, Ernest Everett, a valuable Parisian. The minor parts of the inspector, Betty Parsons, the maid Therese, Marietta Walters and Madame Elise, Maureen Hodgman, all had their parts in the comedy.

J. Edward Perry, principal of Lennoxville High School, who was the director, is to be congratulated on a finished production of an ambitious play. Some scenes which might as slapstick comedy have lowered the tone retained their humor with no touch of vulgarity.

The efficient and responsible work of the stage assistants was apparent throughout the whole performance. Howard Sawyer, the stage carpenter, was assisted by a stage crew composed of Robert Burt, John Brown, Alan Hunt.

G. M. YOUNG IS GUEST SPEAKER AT LOCAL CLUB

G. M. Young, works manager for the Canadian Ingersoll-Rand Co. Ltd., last evening provided a word and picture study of his company's development and growth as he spoke at the weekly meeting of the Y's Men's Club in the Rose Room of the Chateau Frontenac.

Tracing the beginning of what is today Sherbrooke's largest industry, Mr. Young recalled that in the late '70's and '80's Sherbrooke was quite a mining center which had much to do with the location and development here of the machinery industry.

Development of the use of compressed air for the mining industry saw many changes in company name. Mr. Young stated. The present company was the outgrowth of the first Ingersoll Rock Drill, Jencks Machine Company and Rand Rock Drill, finally becoming the Canadian Ingersoll-Rand Co., Ltd.

Names of many prominent men were associated with the company in the early days, Mr. Young recalling that the following Eastern Townships men worked with the original companies: Will Davidson, O. C. Smith, O. M. Sangster, S. J. Hungerford and Grant Hall.

He showed slides on various phases of plant development, compressor and drill development from the early days to the modern buildings and machinery of today, accompanying the showing with various commentary, concluding with a brief summary of the great progress made in the past 25 years.

Judge Marier Delays Decision In Witnesses Of Jehovah Case

Judge Joseph Marier, presiding over Court of Sessions this morning, delayed judgment in the cases of the Witnesses of Jehovah because legal counsel for the defendants could not be in court at this time. Judge Marier has under advisement three charges against six members of the religious sect who are accused of sedition in connection with the distribution of pamphlets entitled, "Quebec, You Have Failed Your People," and "Quebec's Ardent Hatred."

He postponed his judgment until April 8, when Defence Counsel A. L. Stein, of Montreal, will be present.

Accused are Mr. and Mrs. H. W. MacDonald, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Nicoll, Marcelle Trudeau and Roy Browning.

Mr. and Mrs. Nicoll were absent from court this morning, and a member of the sect explained that they were on a trip in the south. He said that they had had no instruction to be present.

Charles White, counsel for Mr. Stein, said that he understood that attendance of accused was waived in rendering judgments.

Roland Dugre, K.C., Crown prosecutor, asked for a reopening of the preliminary hearing in the case concerning the raid by police on a Kingdom Hall, local headquarters of the sect, late last year. He said he wished to bring in new witnesses to complete this case.

This request was not granted by Judge Marier in view of the absence of the defence counsel. The matter will be considered on April 8, when judgment in the other cases will be handed down.

CHARGED WITH INDECENT ASSAULT

Adelard Lamirande, of St. George de Windsor, arrested by police on a technical charge of vagrancy on Sunday, was accused in Court of Sessions here this morning of indecent assault on the person of a fifteen-year-old girl.

Judge Joseph Marier, who presided, ordered him sent to Bordeaux Jail in Montreal, for mental examination. Hearing of the case will proceed when the report of the examination is received here.

When he appeared before Judge Dorais Panneton in Magistrate's Court on Tuesday, Lamirande pleaded not guilty to the vagrancy charge.

Reviewing activities of the Sherbrooke Mobile Force, Major W. W. Foote, V.D., L.D., C.S.C., Commander, recently stated that the M.F. had been kept busy ushering at hockey games, boxing and wrestling matches.

A new first aid class under the supervision of William Hartley is being conducted, it was also learned.

The Mobile Force has its headquarters located in Sherbrooke, with a branch at Dixville and is not connected with any other unit in Montreal or elsewhere in the Province of Quebec. Operating independently from the city constabulary, the Mobile Force stands ready to assist any police if the need arises, Major Foote stated.

Major Foote said that no man on the Force is allowed to carry firearms and that all arms were owned by each member personally and have to be registered with the provincial police before joining.

LEWIS CANCELS THE COAL STRIKE

The decision of John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers, to cancel the coal strike in the United States scheduled for the end of the current month ends a rather delicate situation facing all interests in that country. The miners' boss may give any reason or excuse he likes to explain away his action, but the move only serves to strengthen earlier beliefs that Lewis is not ready to risk a showdown with the administration and with an enraged public.

Both President Truman and the Supreme Court have increased their prestige by the manner in which they uncompromisingly dealt with the coal strike last fall and have enhanced their reputation by their uncompromising stand in face of bitter organized opposition designed to make them alter their decision.

To the general public, however, the action in calling off the strike goes even further than the somewhat abstract victory of the forces of law and order. Both Canada and the United States have experienced an extended period of labor peace, with the result that both industry and commerce have been buoyant during the past few months. The prospects for the immediate future are bright with the possibility of full-time employment for all who want to work.

The great dark cloud on the picture was the possibility that the coal miners would lay down their tools, thus bringing on a period of industrial stagnation, with its consequent depression. The cancellation of the strike call removes this danger for the time being and will permit industry and the workers to lay their plans for the future.

It is hoped that the Lewis decision will be reflected in the Maritime coal fields of Canada where the workers have been idle for several weeks. Resumption of operations in Nova Scotia would be of great value to the Canadian economic picture.

A POINT WELL TAKEN

One important warning stands out in the scathing denunciation of the farm products marketing bill voiced by Jean Francois Pouliot, Liberal Member for Temiscouata in the House of Commons. In attacking the bill, which he declared sounded the death knell of true democracy in the Dominion and took a long step in the direction of a permanent planned economy for Canada. Mr. Pouliot pointed out the weakness of the Government argument that the drastic powers sought were to be effective for a one-year period only.

This assurance carried little value as it was exactly similar to the promises made many times during recent years that some restrictive measure or another was designed to cover a temporary emergency and that it would be repealed when the condition had passed. Unfortunately, once officialdom had gained some special power or privilege it immediately began a campaign to entrench its position with the result that few of the measures have ever been repealed.

Certainly he was justified in his complaint that the bill confers power upon the ministry "no one would have dreamed of in this country." The measure gives the Minister of Agriculture complete authority over the sales of all agricultural produce in Canada except wheat and provides that those who do not obey the orders of the Minister may be sentenced to two years imprisonment or a fine of $5,000.

The Canadian farmer is one of the most rugged of individualists. The very nature of his business requires that he proceed by a system of trial and error to determine the crops most suitable for his land and which would provide the best economic return in the light of marketing conditions in his particular locality.

This would be done away with under the terms of the new measure and he would be told what he could produce and how much, while he would be forced to market his output through a government bureaucracy with no say as to the prices he wants. This would disrupt the normal channels of agricultural trade for the duration of the act and would probably create such a condition of chaos when the measure expires that the government planners could make out a good case for the continuation of the regulations from year to year.

As socialist planning cannot remain static, the next move would be the extension of the provisions of the act to other branches of the national economy until finally the idea of a socialistic, totalitarian state is a reality with the death of freedom for the individual.

A QUARTER-CENTURY OF SERVICE

City Treasurer Maurice Cormier today completes twenty-five years of service with the City of Sherbrooke, during which period he advanced from the post of accountant to his present position of responsibility. Anyone who has had experience with the financial operations of the city cannot but appreciate the great increase in efficiency of the various services under the control of Mr. Cormier, much of which can be credited to the organizational ability of the Treasurer.

The latest financial statement, just adopted by the Council, stands as proof of the work he has carried on, especially in improving the position of the city in connection with arrears of taxes and utility charges. Today these arrears are at an almost irreducible minimum whereas some years ago they threatened the financial stability of the city.

As he enters his second-quarter century in the service of the city, Mr. Cormier will carry with him the best wishes and regard of his fellow citizens.

BY PETER EDSON

JOHN L. LEWIS' PHILOSOPHY

Every once in a while some amateur scribbler turns out a piece of writing that makes all the professional word-mongers look like bums.

Definitely in that class is a letter just received from a town in Texas. The postmark is blurred. There is no signature and no return address.

The manuscript is written in green ink. With a minimum of changes in spelling, punctuation, grammar and paragraphing — which are artificial conventions at best and totally unnecessary if the meaning is clear — this is it:

Tom, Charlie, Frank, and me walked over to the cafe this morning to have some coffee and Tom picked up the paper and looked at the headlines and said, "Well they fined them miners good and we all agreed they had it coming."

Frank sipped his coffee and said, "Tom you made a lot of money building that Army camp didn't you?"

Tom said, "About $75,000. The government called on us contractors to bid on the job but we said, 'Nothing doing. We'll build them on a cost plus basis. We stood pat and they gave the job to me that May.'"

We drank some more coffee. Then Charlie said to Frank, "Did you sell those fat calves on OPA here a while back? And Frank said, 'No I sold them at the highest bid. Got a lot more than OPA.'"

And then Frank said to me, "Are you selling your cars at list price? I said, 'Well I played it this way. I didn't take any orders for cars as some did and I am selling to customers who have cars to trade me. That way I get $200 or $300 more than list price.'"

Frank took a long swig of coffee and said, "Well fellows it looks like it's all in who's doing what. Everybody is getting all they can for what they have. Do you reckon they ain't entitled to ask more?"

We finished our coffee and all went out wondering if anyone was entitled to cast a stone.

"JUST AN OLD FOGIE"

That's all there was to the letter, except that it was signed: "Just an old Fogie who never belonged to a union, but we all belong to a union in a way."

The key sentence in this bit of folk wisdom is, of course, Frank's observation that, "It looks like it's all in who's doing what. Everybody is getting all they can for what they have."

That was the key to the philosophy expressed by John L. Lewis in his appearance before Senator Taft's labor committee. The real meaning of it is that in a free-enterprise system, it's every man for himself, and devil take the hindmost. It is a completely selfish and vicious philosophy. It is the justification for Tom's holding up the government on building the war camp, for Frank's selling his calves above OPA ceiling prices, for the anonymous letter writer's trading in cars so as to make the most profit. The only difference between them and John Lewis is that Lewis got caught by the courts.

WELL, WHAT IS THE MATTER?

Of course, Lewis carries this idea one step farther by saying it is this strife and competition which has made America great. His view seems to be that this constant war between labor and management, and between labor, management, and government, has resulted in progress. To meet the threats from an ambitious labor movement and to beat competition, American business had to become more efficient.

"Well, what's the matter with our country?" asks Lewis.

Answering his own question he says, "Someone says we spend too much time contending with each other. Those are the bickerings of the market place that have been going on for the thousands of years of history."

As Lewis growled to the Senate, "If Congress passes a law to abandon the right to buy and sell, you are changing our form of government."

That would apply equally, says John L., to men who have only their labor to sell as well as the men who deal in contracts, fat calves, or cars.

PRESS COMMENTS

SAFETY OF THE CIVIL SERVICE OR THE ADVENTURE OF BUSINESS?

Ottawa Journal

Mr. John T. Hackett had this to say in the House of Commons the other day:

"At times it is impossible to find young men and women to undertake tasks in the business world. The reason is that they have some kind of job with the government."

The great attraction of government service is security, the reasonable certainty it offers of continuous employment at fair if not spectacular wages, the prospect of promotion, with a pension at the end. And there are, of course, glittering prizes in the well-paid and responsible posts for the small minority.

The prizes are at least more numerous, and perhaps greater, in private business—but so are the risks. There is more of the spirit of adventure; progress is less automatic, more depends on the initiative and enterprise of the individual, at least on the lower rungs of the ladder.

As The Journal has said before, it seems unfortunate that more of our bright boys, particularly, do not train themselves for a business career. A young fellow who enters a business office in no matter how humble a capacity has the traditional field marshal's baton in his knapsack if he has a sound working knowledge of shorthand, typing, and bookkeeping. In those circumstances he is certain to come to the attention of his superiors, given integrity and industry to match his technical knowledge, and many a man has risen to a high place in the business world from a position as private secretary to his employer.

Yet we find that in our High School of Commerce, where a sound business training is available to Ottawa boys and girls free of cost, the great majority of students are girls. There are never enough boys to meet the demands of business houses for lads who deliberately have chosen business as a career and have trained themselves for it.

EUROPE, NAZI STYLE

Kansas City Times

As the Second World War turned out, we and our allies will write the terms of peace for Germany. But had the result been otherwise, and, particularly, had the Germans gained a total victory in Europe (as contrasted with an inconclusive armistice), it is at least academically interesting to know what conditions they contemplated imposing on the defeated nations. One German peace program recently has been disclosed in a book by the late Heinrich Himmler's personal physician, Dr. Felix Kerstner.

Himmler's description of the postwar map of Europe corresponds generally with pronouncements by other Nazis on the same subject and so may be accepted as an indication of the thinking of Adolf Hitler and his principal associates.

One of the most interesting features of that map would have been the appearance of a state entirely new to modern Europe, centred on the eastern province of Eastern France, known as Burgundy. This country, which was to be organized on ultra-Nazi lines under direction of the Belgian Quisling, Leon Degrelle, would have included a part of western Switzerland and a long strip across northern France, giving it access to the English Channel. It would also have taken in Luxembourg. The rest of Switzerland, divided between Germany and Italy, was to be erased from the map. The rest of France was to be converted into a German "protectorate," after the fashion of Czechoslovakia, and called "Gaul."

Holland was to become a province of the Reich. So were Norway and southern Sweden, Northern Sweden was to be annexed to Finland. Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania were to be cleared of their present inhabitants, and all this Baltic coast was to be given to a deserving "Elite" Guard. The non-Nazi Belgians and Dutch were to be transferred to Poland—and the Poles were to be "liquidated." Russia and the Balkans do not appear to have been covered by Himmler's remarks to Dr.

McKENNEY ON BRIDGE

By Wm. E. McKenney, America's Card Authority

DON'T BE AGGRESSOR WITH LIGHT OPENER

Travelling around the country today, one finds good bridge players in every community. We met many fine players at the Winter Carnival at St. Paul, Minn., and their analysis of bridge hands was very interesting. For example, I listened in while a group discussed some points of bidding on today's hand. I am showing only the North and South hands because it is simply the bidding that we will follow.

Many players feel that a light opening bid is justified on distribution, and I agree, but after opening with less than an original bid, do not continue to be aggressive.

When North bid one heart, the consensus was that South should have signed the bidding off with a bid of two clubs. In bidding a spade, he indicated that he had top honor strength. Certainly he should have realized when North bid three clubs that the bidding might easily get out of hand. Instead of bidding three no trump, his proper bid was four clubs. This would have placed the whole burden upon North, who, with three small diamonds, would simply bid five clubs. However, when South bid three no trump, North took him to four clubs.

The War Is Not Over For Them

Thousands of veterans are still hospitalized in Canada — 3,000 in the Province of Quebec alone. The services of the Red Cross to these veterans is but part of the post-war work of the Society in Canada. Services such as the new blood-bank for civilians, outpost nursing and such will cost the Society $5,000,000 in Canada in 1947 and the March campaign is to raise this sum.

Kerstner. But a Nazi Europe apparently would have consisted of a huge Greater Germany, with a few completely secondary "independent" states (Burgundy, Italy and Finland) and a few slave protectorates (Gaul, Czechoslovakia and Poland).

This, or something like it, is what Europe escaped. Set Himmler's plan beside these two sentences from the Potsdam declaration: "It is not the intention of the Allies to destroy or enslave the German people. It is the intention of the Allies that the German people be given the opportunity to prepare for the eventual reconstruction of their life on a democratic and peaceful basis."

VOICE OF GOVERNMENT

London Spectator

Where is the voice that could stir the country in this extremity as Mr. Churchill's stirred it in the extremity of the war? Mr. Attlee has many admirable qualities, but not this one. And you may search the Government Front Bench for it in vain.

Which of them all would you choose to put before a microphone and tell the country where it stands and how alone it can save itself? Mr. Bevin possibly; if he knows anything he knows how to talk to men; but Mr. Bevin is just off to Moscow. Mr. Shawwell? Sir Stafford Cripps? Mr. Bevan? No, to all of them for different reasons. Mr. Morrison? Possibly, but he is in hospital. Mr. Tomlinson? I don't say No nearly so certainly there. I believe George Tomlinson might do it, and if I were the Prime Minister I would make him try.

There is something to be said, after all, for setting the Minister for Education to teach the people this indispensable lesson.

"WHO IS MY NEIGHBOR?"

Christian Science Monitor

A group of prominent Protestant churchmen have issued a challenge to Christians in today's world.

Natural science, they point out, has brought Americans and Chinese, British and Russians, as close together as were formerly the residents of neighboring villages. The command to "love thy neighbor as thyself" cannot be interpreted in a "mechanical and naive sense." A Christian must take practical steps to "enlist and fight against ignorance, suspicion, fear and hate"—the root causes of war.

For the American Christian this means above all a determined effort to understand Soviet life and culture, the ministers believe, and they propose a broad program of education toward this end.

An interesting contribution has been made by the Saturday Evening Post in a striking series of articles by Edgar Snow designed to explain Soviet ideology and terminology to Americans. This

OLD GRANDEUR TO NEW

Chicago Daily News

The State Department in Washington is moving this month, and a lot of U.S. diplomats are pretty unhappy about it.

They feel like members of a family who've lived in the same old house for three generations and now have to move into a fancy, new-fangled flat building full of sharp angles, plate glass, chromium trim and surrealist furniture.

The department has been in its present building since 1875. The building was supposed to be the last word in grandeur when it was built.

It's in the pachydermous French neo-classic style of the Second Empire, and it has more pillars, porticos, chimney pots and mansards on the outside than a dog has fleas.

Inside, it's like a mammoth cave. The huge, long, gloomy corridors are flanked by rows of fake Corinthian columns and borders of miscellaneous doodads. The floors are checkerboard-paved with 12-inch blocks of black and white marble.

SPENDTHRIFT BUDGET

Winnipeg Free Press

Mr. Fines, the provincial treasurer of Saskatchewan, has budgeted for total expenditures of $58,097,800 of which $45,571,114 are from current account. He has estimated revenue at $45,591,101, thus anticipating a surplus of about $20,000.

Back in the boom years of 1928-29, the only period comparable to the present in the annals of Saskatchewan prosperity, the budget was $15,392,866. And

SENTENCE ON THREE COUNTS

Pleading guilty to two further charges of forgery, Jules Lussier, 18-year-old resident of Watton who appeared before Judge Joseph Marier in Court of Session this morning to receive sentence on an initial forgery charge, was sent back to jail to await sentence on the three charges on Tuesday, April 8.

On the first count, Lussier was accused of having forged the name of Louis-Paul Durocher, of Weedon, the payee, to a Carnation Milk Company cheque payable at the Bank of Montreal, in Sherbrooke, and of having cashed the cheque at the Caisse Populaire, at Lingwick, on or about March 31, 1946. The cheque was for $105.15.

He pleaded guilty to this in a summary trial last week.

This morning he pleaded guilty to charges of forging two cheques, totalling $50.75.

The first, payable to Leo Corriveau, and signed by Anne Bureau, was drafted on the Caisse Populaire, at St. Margaret de Lingwick, on December 2, 1946. This cheque was for $19.75.

The second for $31 also drafted on the Caisse Populaire at St. Margaret de Lingwick, was signed by Thomas Corriveau and payable to Leo Corriveau. The cheque was dated December 24, 1946.

Lussier endorsed the both, signing the name of Leo Corriveau.

In his trial this morning Lussier told Judge Marier, of Drummondville, that he had never before been condemned in a criminal court. Judge Marier said that he would render sentence on April 8.

Symbol of Progress

Argus Corporation Limited, an investment company whose funds are employed in various "growth" enterprises has made marked progress since its inception in November, 1945. Total assets have increased steadily; in February, 1947, they exceeded invested capital by more than $4,000,000. This gain was clearly reflected in the position of the preferred stock; behind every $100 share of preferred there were assets with a market worth of $350.41.

In addition to this security of principal, earning power of the preferred is substantial. Based on present dividend rates of securities held, income from the portfolio is equal to $10.91 per share of preferred against dividend requirements of $4.50. An attractive conversion feature provides an opportunity to share still further in the company's future growth.

W.I. OFFICERS ARE NAMED AT AYER'S CLIFF

Ayer's Cliff, March 20.—The annual meeting of the Women's Institute was held at the home of the president, Mrs. R. Gordon McHarg, who presided over the meeting.

The reports of the various committees were heard and proved that a successful year had been spent. Lunches have been served to thirty-six school children, and to aid in the financing of the same a dance was held.

The reception for the "War Brides" had been an interesting feature of the year's work. They were appreciative of the gifts that they had received at that time. The parade was sent monthly to the needy in England. The annual medical examination had been held in the school and Dr. C. L. Brown had been ably assisted by members of the society. Three dollars a member were pledged to aid in the W.I. county room in the New Sherbrooke Hospital.

The highlights of the various activities were Rev. Mr. Stewart's address on the "Greater School Unit," explaining just what it meant to have the school associated with the larger unit and showed that it was of great advantage. An impressive Armistice Day program was put on and was largely attended by all districts.

The visit to the Way's Mills Institute, when they entertained the Newport Group was very entertaining and the trip to Newport, Vt., was much enjoyed by the ladies who accepted the invitation extended to the W.I. by that organization. All in all the program had been varied.

The slate of officers was presented by Mrs. R. V. Merrill and was as follows: President, Mrs. M. L. Kezar; first vice-president, Mrs. M. B. Thompson; second vice-president, Mrs. J. A. McVea; secretary, Mrs. E. Crook; treasurer, Mrs. W. Robinson.

Miss Kezar, then took the chair and expressed appreciation for her appointment and made some plans for the year's work.

A picnic lunch was served by the hostesses, Mrs. McHarg, and a social hour pleasantly passed.

Take the Laughter

by Karen DeWolf

THE STORY: Peter calls to see Sherry, bringing her flowers. After he leaves, the three boys build cloud-castles to amuse her. Tony says he and Sherry will live in a mountain lodge; Sandro says that's impossible he intends taking Sherry to France; and Kris announces Sherry will go back to Denmark with him as his wife, the Countess Von Rantmann.

CHAPTER XVIII

Sherry stretched luxuriously on the davenport and stared dreamily out through the open windows.

It was funny that so many things had happened since the day she had first found the cottage among the trees. She had changed so much and everything was different, but Hidden House was just the same. They still drank tea from the blue and gold tea cups, and the sunlight through the trees made the same dappled patterns on the floor.

The boys had won after all, Sherry thought; she was almost well again. There had not been a single coughing spell for two months. She could walk about a little now, from her bed to the living room; and Dr. Drexell had said that pretty soon she could go for rides in the car.

The last time he had come he had looked at Sherry very gravely and had said, "It's remarkable. Really, very remarkable." And Sherry had known by his worried look that she was quite well.

"I can't get over it," he had said to Sandro, "but that's the way it is with these youngsters—one minute they're ready to die, and the next minute they're up and around."

Sherry did not think that five long months were exactly the "next minute," but she had let it pass and asked Dr. Drexell about his bill.

He had said, "Oh, don't worry about that," so she had worried about it ever since. But there was no use asking Peter about it until she had some money, and anyway the boys came first.

They were all working now, thank goodness. Sherry smiled as she remembered their "darkest hour." It had been before the coughing had stopped. The boys had not worked for nearly two weeks and they were worried and tired and cross with one another. Kris had been expecting a job as technical director on a Swedish picture, but the starting date had kept being postponed and the milkman had kept coming to the door for his money.

They were even out of soap and things like that, and Sherry was finally willing that they should borrow from Peter, only he was on location.

Finally Sandro had got a day's extra work for an independent company, and had managed somehow to get his check immediately. He had dashed in excitedly at 7 o'clock one night and waved a 10-dollar bill to them.

"Believe it or don't!" he had said, and Tony had said, "For Peter's sake, either learn slang or forget it."

They had made out a list of things that were absolutely necessary, and Kris had gone to the boulevard while Tony and Sandro made ready for the feast to follow.

By eight Kris had not returned and when he did come back at half-past eight he carried an amazing armful of yellow tea roses.

He had piled them in Sherry's arms and strewn them on the bed. He had said, "There, my lovely one, I've always wanted to do that!" and Sherry had cradled the flowers and said, "Why, Kris! I never saw so many all together in my life!"

Kris had said, "Six dozen!" very happily, and Tony had exploded. He had talked a lot in German and called Kris all kinds of dreadful names.

Kris had said, "Whenever you get off the soap box, you Wiener Schnitzel, you can get the food out of the car," and Tony and Sandro had spent the next ten minutes unpacking boxes.

Kris told Sherry what had happened. He had met the man who was in charge of the technical end of the Swedish picture, and the man had told him that he might as well start the next day as there was a lot of preliminary work to be done. The salary was $150 a week, and Kris had simply touched him for the first week's pay.

They had had a dreadful time finding enough vases and milk bottles to hold the long-stemmed roses, but it was in a fragrant yellow bowl that they had celebrated Kris's good fortune.

The boys had wine and there was caviar for Sherry, and cream and imported chocolates. Even Tony had laughed about his outburst.

A month later Marcia had come

The Doctor Says

EYE INJURY ACCIDENTS ARE AVOIDABLE

By William A. O'Brien, M.D.

Eye injuries are one of the common causes of blindness. The victims in most cases are children or workers, and the accidents causing the injury are usually preventable.

Dr. O'Brien.

Children injure their eyes by playing with toys and sharp objects. The BB gun has resulted in a large number of cases of blindness in young boys. A BB shot when it hits a portion of the body covered with clothing does not have much power of penetration. But when it strikes the eyeball, loss of sight may follow.

Legislation prohibiting the sale of fireworks has reduced eye accidents in the states where this law is in effect. Resistance to legislation to control BB air guns apparently comes from the same persons who were against efforts to limit the use of fireworks to responsible adults.

Many children have lost their eyes from experimenting with explosive mixtures. Sharp objects that penetrate the globe during play claim additional victims. A young child should not be allowed to play with his mother's sewing basket because of the sharp objects it contains.

Worker Precautions
Most industrial accidents occur in operations in which small flying particles strike the eye such as grinding, polishing, sand blasting, woodworking, riveting, etc. In addition to mechanical safeguards on machines to protect the eyes of workers, they should wear good goggles or face masks.

Cleanliness is of first importance in care for eye injuries. Before the eye is touched, the hands should be washed with soap and water. When a small foreign particle is lodged in the eye, the tears most often dislodge it. But if it is located under a lid, it may be more difficult to extract. Closing the eye and suddenly opening it may dislodge it. If ordinary methods fail, a physician should be consulted.

Question: I am pregnant. Are there any exercises that I may do besides walking during the remaining period of pregnancy?

Answer: Pregnant women are urged to lead normal lives. No special exercises are recommended. Walking is a good form of exercise for everyone.

back and had had a fit because the boys had not told her that Sherry was ill. She had matter-of-factly taken over the managing of Sherry's routine, and still slept at Hidden House every other night, which gave the boys a rest.

Finally the day had come when Dr. Drexell had said Sherry could get up, and from her new throne, the davenport, she had given a party. There were only the boys and Marcia and Peter, but it had been fun, and Peter had said something sentimental about Sherry's being the only girl in the world to him.

Now Sherry lay quietly and thought about it. A little breeze had sprung up from somewhere because it was almost evening and she drank it in.

She hoped, really and truly hoped, that Peter had not meant that. Or at least that he had not meant it very seriously. After all, it was pleasant to have people say nice things to you, but she did not want Peter Barton to be in love with her.

SCOTSTOWN

The March meeting of St. Alban's Women's Auxiliary was held in the Church Hall convening in the forenoon. Nine members were present, and quitted a quilt for the co-operative bazaar. Articles were also cut and prepared for the Indian Girls outfit. Following a picnic luncheon at noon, the business session and devotional period was directed by the president, Mrs. H. A. Scarth. The scripture lesson, from Colossians, II, was followed by the "Members Prayer," and prayer for assistance in the work. Several donations were gratefully acknowledged and the sum of ten dollars was voted towards heating the Church Hall. Mrs. B. G. Mayhew kindly offered her home for the April meeting. A letter of appreciation was read from Rev. R. J. Skillen, of Croydon, England, for the generous parcel of food, sent by this branch, stating that the food had been distributed. Plans were made for an auction food sale, to be held in Mr. Riglar's store, and plans were also formulated to give a treat to the Guides, following a sleigh ride. The committee in charge is

Dr. Davidson, Canadian delegate to the Council, was speaking on the International Children's Emergency Fund, set up at the General Assembly meeting for the purpose of continuing the work of U.N.R.R.A. in the field of children's welfare.

Dr. Davidson spoke in support of a plan under which workers would voluntarily donate one day's pay to the fund.

HOW TO SPEND A MILLION DOLLARS

Companies are very like people. They are born, they live and unless they are taken care of they may die suddenly.

Like people, they try to earn money. Some spend it as soon as they get it, others put some of it aside for a rainy day or for future development.

Dominion Textile believes in the latter procedure.

Some people think the shareholders, or owners of a company should divide up all the profits. Some believe the workers should share all the profits between them. Either course results in bankruptcy — no work, no wages, no profits.

By saving some money each year we can improve our plants and buy new machinery when it is available. This leads to better products, more wages, better working conditions, more earnings. Consumers, employees and shareholders all benefit.

During the next few years Dominion Textile and other members of Canada's cotton industry will spend millions of dollars in plant modernization. It should result in more and better products, bigger payrolls, and steady earnings for many persons whose savings are invested in this industry.

It will mean another page in the history of an industry which has been an important part of Canadian economic life, producing needed goods, providing steady employment, paying taxes and buying other Canadian products and services.

Many a Domestic Quarrel Averted by Writing Note To Mate

I often wonder that husbands and wives do not more frequently use the epistolary, instead of the word of mouth, method of settling their difficulties. If they did, it would save many a domestic brawl and prevent many a divorce. For it is next to impossible for a married couple to discuss any topic on which they disagree and stick to the subject of debate.

The argument may start over an apparently innocuous matter, such as whether they shall accept the Jones' invitation to play bridge or to go to the movies; or whether Johnny shall have a new sweater like all the other boys have; or if Sally is old enough to have dates; or why the wife can't leave to make a decent cup of coffee; but before it ends, they are in a free-for-all fight, with mercy neither asked or given.

One word has led on to another and before they know it, they are calling names, and raking up past grievances, and delving into each other's family histories and casting Aunt Jane's indiscretions and Grandpa's spees in each other's teeth.

And in the scrimmage, the real subject under consideration has been forgotten. Both parties have been so busy hurling brickbats at each other that they have lost sight of the line of reasoning that might have been convincing to the other if they had been calm enough to think it over without anger. The real reason why there is so little co-operation between husbands and wives is that they can so seldom talk things over together without getting into each other's hair.

WAY OUT OF QUARRELS

Most husbands and wives think that this is one of the inevitable tragedies of marriage and that there is no way out of it. But there is. It is via the postal service. It is by writing letters instead of talking. If every husband and wife who failed to see eye to eye with each other on any subject would sit down and write a letter to the party of the other part, presenting his or her point of view, it would have many a heartache and many a broken-up home.

There are many good reasons why a letter would be the great ambassador of domestic peace, if it were used to clarify a dangerous situation instead of attempting to do it viva voce. In the first place, it would eliminate the sound of the angry human voice, which gets on our nerves in an argument and raps them to fiddle strings. Nobody can consider a matter dispassionately when they are being screamed at. And, in the second place, just the mere act of sitting down to write a letter steadies us. It throws responsibility upon us, and it makes us think out our case more clearly than we would do if we were just having a husband-and-wife spat.

And, in the third place, the receiver of the letter would read it in cold blood, not when he or she was boiling over with anger. The husband, who had left home after a breakfast-table fight with his wife over the bills, would be apologetic, instead of vituperative, as he read Mary Jane's letter telling him that she appreciated how hard he worked, how generous he was to his family, and how she tried to be as economical as possible, but that the high cost of living compelled her to ask for a bigger housekeeping allowance.

And many a bitter quarrel would be saved if Mary Jane would just write husband a letter explaining that Sally and John were no longer babies who had to be put to bed with the chickens, but nearly Glorify Yourself...

HOSPITALITY IS A JOINT AFFAIR

By ALICIA HART

Homes where guests have the most fun and want to return oftenest are those in which the man of the house takes as active a part as his wife in entertaining their friends.

Do you "allow" your husband to play host, or do you take over the role all by yourself?

The question is asked because there are so many wives who think that entertaining is the exclusive domain of the little woman. At best, such women treat their husbands as guests when they give parties; at worst, as pieces of furniture. Lacking other opportunities to dramatize themselves, they give their all to the role of hostess, and are unwilling even for their "leading man" to share the bows.

What their parties lack, as a result, is the vitality which a male host contributes, and the extra flavor which a man's efforts at hospitality add to the woman's graciousness toward guests and thoughtful concern for the smooth functioning of her household.

In defense of the right of a husband to help entertain, it may be said that he DOES enjoy the status of head of the house. He should be allowed to function as such when guests gather under his roof.

MIND YOUR MANNERS

The Situation: You would like to entertain a bride-to-be, but know that there already are several showers planned for her.

Wrong Way: Plan to give her still another shower.

Right Way: Realize that it is an imposition on the bride's friends to invite them to a number of showers, and so have a different type of party for her, a tea, luncheon, dinner, or evening party.

Great is the power of a letter to promote domestic harmony, but if written in the heat of an argument it should be kept on ice for 24 hours and then destroyed.

The Record will be pleased to receive any letters to this Dorothy Dix column. These will be forwarded to Miss Dix who will answer them as quickly as possible.

ALWAYS READY FOR HER MEALS

SCIENCE has proved there are certain food elements everyone needs for health. If there aren't enough of them in a child's food, serious things can happen—such as loss of appetite, stunted growth, soft bones, poor teeth, faulty nerves, defective eyesight.

Ovaltine supplements the diet with elements frequently deficient in ordinary foods. Three servings of Ovaltine furnish a significant portion of a child's daily requirements of Vitamins A, B₁, C, D, Riboflavin (B₂), and Niacin and Minerals Calcium, Phosphorus and Iron.

In addition it provides the basic food substances—complete proteins to build muscle, nerve and body cells—high-energy foods for vitality and endurance. It thus acts as an insurance against food deficiencies that retard normal growth.

So if your child eats poorly, is thin, underpar, perhaps nervous, why not try delicious Ovaltine for normal growth and better appetite.

Address On Norway Was Heard By Members Of Boundary Rotary Club

Rock Island, March 20.—"Norway had one of the largest merchant fleets afloat during the late war, they flew their own flag and the fleet was entirely civilian." This was one of the many informative and interesting parts of a fine talk on "Norway and the War," given by Mrs. Anna Nordby, native Norwegian, at the regular Monday evening meeting of the Rotary Club of the Boundary, held at the Del Monty Hotel.

The shock of war struck Norway April 9, 1940, and a government in exile was immediately set up in London; the merchant fleet that was outside Norwegian waters continued to operate all during the war; the sailors sent 40% of the wages home, though many of them had no way of knowing how their families were getting along for nearly five years. Many Norwegian ships were lost as a result of submarine warfare, and many sailors lost their lives bringing food and supplies across the ocean.

Denmark was of the greatest possible help to Norway during the war through a thoroughly well developed underground that the Germans were completely unable to conquer. Food was the main item delivered to Norway through this underground. Norway is now engaged in a gigantic reconstruction attempt that again will place this gallant country in the forefront of the democracies of the world.

Mrs. Nordby closed her talk by saying that nowhere had she found such splendid hospitality and friendliness as in the Border Communities.

The speaker was introduced by J. A. Grady, and the thanks of the club expressed by H. A. Rice. The singing was led by Charles Hepburn, with Mrs. Amy Taylor at the piano. Elwin Chadsey brought his brother with him as a guest.

Rotarian Ernest Hills announced that the Montreal Men's Choir was definitely to appear at the Haskell Opera House on Saturday evening, April 26th. The group will come from Montreal.

Will Not Oppose Royal Marriage

London, March 20.—(AP)—A government source said today there was reason to believe the government would not oppose a marriage between Princess Elizabeth and former Prince Philip of Greece. The source, who would not be identified by name, said the cabinet had discussed the long-rumored romance informally. The members, he indicated, appeared to have recognized that "the two young people are very fond of each other" and that Elizabeth's affection for Philip is "very real."

Under Britain's precedent the government would have to approve any man whom the heiress presumptive to the throne might select as her consort. Some sections of the people have objected to Philip because of his connection with Greece, which many labor leaders consider now to be a neo-fascist country.

The official London Gazette announced last night that Philip had been granted British citizenship under the name of Lieut. Philip Mountbatten—the same name as his uncle, Lord Louis Mountbatten, Viceroy-designate of Greece. The step had been regarded as a necessary prelude to any announcement of his engagement to Elizabeth.

OBITUARIES

CPL. FINDLAY MacDONALD, OF LAKE MEGANTIC
Lake Megantic, March 20.—The death occurred on March 3, of Mr. Findlay MacDonald, younger son of the late Mr. Findlay MacDonald and the late Mrs. MacDonald, Mr. MacDonald, who has been ill only a short time with pneumonia, aggravated by heart trouble, died in Berlin, N. H., where he had been employed for the last few months.

His remains were brought to the home of his brother, Mr. Murdoch A. MacDonald, on Wednesday, March 5, and the funeral was held on Thursday at the United Church. Prayers were held at the house, and the casket covered with the "Stars and Stripes" flag was borne by six of his former friends, Messrs. Charles Morrison, Douglas MacLeod, John Smith, Otto Wood, Borden Patton and Raymond Komery.

The service was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Pollitt, who at the opening of his sermon, first spoke of grief and dark mystery, yet can, and does, bring light to those who see behind and beyond the vale of grief to the light that Jesus has brought to the meaning of death. The hymns sung were, "Safe In The Arms Of Jesus," and "Nearer, My God, To Thee." Burial took place at Echo Vale Cemetery.

Before the interment there was a ceremony of removing the "Stars and Stripes" from the coffin, after which a bugler sounded the "Last Post" and "Reveille." Mr. MacDonald's parents predeceased him, his father having died in 1915 and his mother in 1934.

He leaves to mourn his passing his brothers, Murdoch and Malcolm, of Lake Megantic; Rogerick, of Hartford, Conn.; Angus, of Brooklyn, N. Y.; and Donald, of Montreal; his sisters, Margaret, Mrs. B. Sprague, of Randolph, Mass.; Mary, Mrs. F. Bagnall, of Boston, Mass.; Catherine, Mrs. J. Balcom, of Woban, Mass.; Jean, Mrs. Raymond Wilder, of Hyde Park, Mass.; and Ruth, Mrs. Guy Rinfret, of Montreal; besides several nieces and nephews.

His sisters and brothers were all present at the funeral except Mrs. Rinfret, of Montreal; and Angus, of New York. Miss Dorothy Sprague, of Randolph, Mass.; Mr. Charles Morrison, of Millenocket, Me.; and Mr. Douglas MacLeod, of Montreal, were among those from out of town who were present.

The profusion of beautiful flowers, which accompanied the remains testified to the esteem in which he was held.

WILLIAM D. HYDE, OF PORTLAND, ME.
Portland, Me., March 20.—William David Hyde, 79 years old, passed away on March 5, at his home, 27 Broadway, Portland, Me. Born in South Durham, a son of the late David and Catherine Barton Hyde, Mr. Hyde spent his early life there, moving to Springfield, Mass. in 1928, where he was employed by the Hampden Lumber Company. He afterward resided in Passumpsic, Vt., and came to Portland three years ago.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs.

Bertha Wilson Hyde; two daughters, Mrs. Stuart T. Stalker, of Springfield, Mass.; and Mrs. John T. Fallona, of Portland, Me.; a son, Elmer E. Hyde, of Augusta, Me.; two grandchildren, Mrs. Walter V. Hill, of Upper Darby, Pa.; and Neil S. W. Stalker, of Springfield, Mass.; and a great-grandson, Charles Stuart Hill, of Upper Darby, Pa.

Funeral services were held at his late residence at 2:30 p. m., on Saturday, March 8. The Rev. W. K. Miller, of the Steven's Avenue Congregational Church was the officiating minister.

The beautiful floral tributes and large gathering of friends and neighbours at the funeral service were a testimonial of the high esteem in which Mr. Hyde was held in the community. Interment was made in Evergreen Cemetery.

SHIRLEY JENNIE SULLIVAN, OF TRENHOLM

Trenholm, March 20.—The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Sullivan, Shirley Jennie, passed away after a few days illness at the age of two months.

She leaves to mourn her loss her father and mother; two sisters; a brother; and a number of other relatives.

The funeral took place on March 12. A short service was held at the home and was conducted by the Rev. T. N. Mitchell. She was laid to rest in the Trenholm Cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Parker, the maternal grandparents, of Cooksville, Ont., attended the funeral.

Sympathy is extended to the bereaved relatives.

MRS. ARCHIE H. FULLERTON

Dunkin, March 20.—The death of Mrs. Aurilla May Fullerton, widow of Archie H. Fullerton, occurred at Dunkin, on March 7, and came as a shock to the community. While she was unlocking her door to enter her house a large cake of ice slid from the roof striking her on the back of her head and causing her death.

The funeral services were held at the Union Church, Dunkin, on March 11, at 2 p. m., when the Rev. John Champion, of Highwater, spoke to a crowded house from Luke XIV: 8, "She hath done what she could."

He referred to her life of usefulness to the community for a good many years, assisting in sickness, attending to the cleaning of the church and lighting the lamps and fires, also playing the organ and teaching a Sunday School class.

He said that only last summer he had advised her to take it easier and let someone younger shoulder some of the responsibility but she had said "No, years ago I promised the Lord that I would do what I could whenever I was able," and she had kept this promise to the end.

Rain or shine, cold or heat, she never failed to have the church open for service, and truly it could be said of her "She hath done what she could." She also corresponded for the "Record" for many years.

Mrs. Fullerton was the daughter of the late Jared Peck Sargent and his wife, Dianne Barnett, and was born at Dunkin, on June 5, 1872, and spent the greater part of her life there except for a few years, which she and her late husband, A. H. Fullerton, spent in Saskatchewan.

To Mr. and Mrs. Fullerton six children were born. Those who survive her are Wilbur H. Fullerton, who lives on the old home farm, at Dunkin; Sydney J., of Moose Jaw, Sask.; Leslie, of Vancouver, B. C.; and Mrs. Beth Miller, of Chicago, Ill., who was unable to come to the funeral on account of illness, and Leslie, who was unable to get here on time but came later.

She leaves also an aged sister, Miss Edna Sargent, besides several grandchildren and great-grandchildren to mourn her loss.

The flowers were beautiful, especially a pillow from her Sunday School class.

Interment took place in Dunkin

Cemetery beside her daughter, Florence, and son, Woodrow, who predeceased her a number of years ago.

The bearers were Messrs. Levi Cote, Clinton Sherrer, Frank Sargent and Herman Ommen. Sincere sympathy is extended to those left to mourn her passing.

Friends from Sutton Junction, Glen Sutton, Highwater and Mansonville were present at the funeral.

Mrs. Theodore Graves and four children have returned to their home in Holland, Vt., after a week's visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smith, in Newport, Vt., having to extend the length of their visit on account of the recent storm. As the roads were impassable.

Mr. Ernest Greene, who left a short time ago for St. Louis, Mo., intending to spend the winter with his wife's sister, Mrs. Penney, and family, has returned to Derby Line and is living with Mr. and Mrs. Carl Greene, on Caswell Avenue. He was accompanied here by Mrs. Penney and Miss Needham, who remained for a few days' visit before returning home.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Whitehouse and little daughter, of Rock Island, were week-end guests of his parents, in Dixville.

Faith and John Garfield spent a few days with their grandfather, Mr. E. P. Lyon, in Ayer's Cliff.

William Dustin, Jr. and his sister, Beverly Dustin, of Rock Island, were guests of their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Ticehurst, in Tomfobia.

At a meeting of the committee, the rules of the Boundary photo contest were clarified and plans for the program on March 28th, when the winners will be announced, were discussed. There will be two classifications in the contest; one will be snapshots (contact prints) and the other will be enlargements. The enlargements will be divided into three divisions, landscapes, still life and miscellaneous. First and second prize will be offered for each group, the prizes and the judges are to be announced later. The photos submitted will be on display at the Haskell Library from March 20th to 27th, and the prizes will be awarded at a special meeting in the Haskell Opera house on Friday, March 28th. In order to give those looking over the display a chance to pick their favorites, ballots will be provided at the library so that those visiting the exhibit may vote for the pictures they like the best. It will be interesting to see whether the pictures that receive the most votes will be among the prize winners picked by the judges. On March 28th, besides the announcement of the prize winners there will be music, singing and some very special moving pictures.

Mrs. Edmund Dudd, and daughter, Pearl, and son, Clifford, of North Troy, Vt., and Mrs. Guy Duff, of Newport Centre, Vt., were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lucius Rye, in Derby Line.

Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Foster, of New York, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Earle, in Derby Line. Mr. Earle, who has been a hospital patient in Montreat, has returned to his home in Derby Line.

With the ideal situation of a town-owned beach at Lake Salem, in Derby, an attempt is being made to have a swimming instruction program for the young people of Derby and Derby Line, this coming summer. Only 27 boys and girls out of 342 have passed swimming tests to know their swimming ability, the majority of these tests being a result of instructions given at 4-H and South Bay camps, where the emphasis is placed on learning to swim and swim right. With a small expenditure of funds and an energetic town committee, a well planned swimming program could easily be inaugurated. The country committee on swimming and water safety of the County Red Cross Chapter stands ready to co-operate with any local committee to assist in carrying out such a program and in providing competent, well trained Red Cross instructors. Emphasis is out upon the need for early consideration of every citizen in the county of such a program and the reminder is made that the number of local young people ready to serve as instructors is not too many.

A number from Derby Line attended the St. Patrick's card party held in the Parish Hall of the Episcopal Church, in Stanstead. The hall was attractively decorated in St. Patrick's motif. Sixteen tables were in play. Winner of the highscore was Mrs. Larry Frank with Mrs. Mabel Drew, second. Delicious refreshments were served at the tea hour, a number of ladies coming in then.

Mrs. B. Brewer, of Holland, Vt., was a guest of Miss Agnes Greenwood, in Derby Line.

Ask Standard Contract For Quebec Sales

Brief Presented Duplessis by 250 Representatives of Provincial Chambers of Commerce.

Quebec, March 20.—(C)—Demand for standard contracts for installation plan sales in Quebec was contained yesterday in a brief presented to Premier Duplessis by approximately 250 representatives of provincial Chambers of Commerce.

Maurice Trudeau, president of the Montreal Chamber of Commerce, headed the delegation. Premier Duplessis told the delegation, legislation would be introduced in the House during the present session in connection with the Chambers' demands "upon which we have made an extensive study."

"The project will be publicized in the press before it is moved in the House in order to get public reaction. . . . because we do not want to institute legislation which would harm the public," Mr. Duplessis said.

The contracts sought by the chambers would consist of: 1. 20 per cent down payment. 2. Terms of six, 12 or 18 months depending on the merchandise. 3. Obligatory indication of the sales price.

4. Administration costs, above sales costs, to be between three quarters and one per cent. 5. No lien to be allowed on current accounts.

The delegation presented a survey showing that of persons approached in connection with their proposals, 656 parish priests, 793 industrialists, 118 professional men and 14 service establishments were in favor. Nine parish priests and 14 industrialists were opposed.

New Danger In Uses Of Atom Energy

People May Suffer Harm if Exposed to Article Containing Radioactive Atoms.

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
New York, March 20.—(AP)—new danger lurking in peacetime uses of atomic energy, in the form of radioactive metals, plastics, oils, gasoline and possibly household articles and food, was pointed out yesterday to the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers.

This widespread radioactivity would come from the expected use in chemistry and industry of the radioactive atoms that are created by atomic ovens. The possibilities, and some preventives, were reported by H. A. Winne, vice-president of General Electric, and B. K. Prentice.

Radioactive atoms would be used, and in fact some already are in use, to find out how to make new alloys, improved plastics and all sorts of chemical products.

Initially the amount of atoms added to a process is so small as to be harmless. But the atoms always stay there. In time, it was declared, some materials will build up too many. Then there will be a problem to get rid of them and to protect the public.

People exposed to an article containing such atoms, if the exposure were intimate and long-continued, might suffer some harm. Some of them might get into food. Industrial plants might have troubles with materials getting too radioactive, even though the materials were not sold to the public.

Serious Food Crisis Facing Irish Nation

Position Described as Grave as Any in Country's History on Centenary Year of Terrible Famine.

By MICHAEL ROONEY
Canadian Press Correspondent

Dublin, March 20.—(C)—Eire soaked by almost continual rain, fall totalling 40 inches since last August, is confronted with a grave food crisis this centenary year of the famine which cost the lives of 3,000,000 people. One Dublin paper quoted Eire's position as "grave as any in its history."

The average Irishman sees his country faced with bread famine next October or sooner because the sodden condition of the soil makes it impossible so far to undertake sowing. By this date a year ago, 500,000 acres of wheat was sown, and sown acreage this year is estimated to be about one-fifth of that figure.

Prime Minister de Valera has asked for 700,000 acres of wheat and observers say he will be lucky if he gets half of that.

Destruction of a large portion of last year's grain crop by rain has left Eire short for the cereal year ending Sept. 30. Canada and the United States have been scouring for grain. Small supplies were received but if the country is short of a substantial quantity of wheat at the start of October—and indications now are that it will be—a serious food problem will develop.

The famine of 100 years ago was commemorated in more than one Canadian cemetery where fleeing Irish people who died from "famine fever" on reaching Canadian soil were buried. That famine paved the way for the "great clearance," as history described it.

Potatoes were the staple diet at that time and rain destroyed them. Wheat now is the staff of life and rain can ruin that too.

LOCALS AND LACHINE OPEN FINAL SERIES TONIGHT AT ARENA

Red Wings Complete Stanley Cup Lineup By Ousting Rangers

The draw for the Stanley Cup playoffs was complete today with Detroit Red Wings entrenched in the final berth and that meant the National Hockey League's top four teams had about a week to formally wind up the schedule and map out strategy for the money round.

Red Wings cut themselves in for a chance at the $18,000 player's pot when they blanked New York Rangers 2-0 last night to wipe out the last chance the fifth-place Blueshirts had of catching them.

In the meantime, Toronto Maple Leafs edged Montreal Canadiens 5-4 on Harry Watson's counter, and Boston Bruins laced Chicago Black Hawks 7-3.

Red Wings victory completed the circle, the other three having clinched their positions last week-end. The defending cup champions Montreal Canadiens already have first place wrapped up for the fourth straight time, with Toronto second and Boston Bruins third.

So now Red Wings meet Maple Leafs at Toronto Wednesday in the opening game of a best-of-seven semi-final. Bruins start a similar series in Montreal Tuesday night. In each series, as in the final between the ultimate winners, there will be a cash bonus of $1,000 for every player on the winning team, $500 for the losers.

Just about all that remains to be settled in the concluding contests of the 180-game schedule this week-end is the individual scoring title. That came no closer to being decided in last night's matches.

At Toronto, Montreal's Maurice Richard notched two tallies, his 42nd and 43rd of the season. Chicago's Max Bentley managed one assist at Boston which leaves him with 68 points, one more than the Rocket's total, with two games each to play.

Veteran Syl Apps, reputedly playing his last season with Leafs, garnered two goals and an assist at Toronto while Howie Meeker, Ted Kennedy, and Harry Watson, with the winning tally nine seconds past the half-way mark of the final period, plunked home the others. Meeker's goal was his 25th of the season and set a record for goals scored by a rookie in his first season. The New Hamburg, Ont., rookie has lapped home one more than Gaye Stewart of Leafs scored in his first full N.H.L. season in 1942-43 when he won the Calder Trophy as the outstanding rookie.

Red Wings played it close to the vest to out Rangers before a crowd of 14,389 at Detroit. Giving goalie Harry Lumley plenty of protection for his shutout, they hammered away at the New York nets until Pat Lundy broke the ice at 7:06 of the first period and Sid Abel converted passes from Pete Horek and Ted Lindsay in the finale.

At Boston, veteran Joe Carver turned in the hat trick for Bruins while Woody Dumart denied the Chicago twine and Bill Cowley and Milt Schmidt each earned one. Besides his goal, record-maker Cowley earned three assists. Adam Brown, Clint Smith and Frank Asl-worth scored for Hawks.

Had Newhouse picked up right where he left off last fall, striking out four and shutting out the Reds for five frames in Lakeland.

Newhouse gives remarkable exhibitions in what, with him pitching, is laughingly called batting practice. Though the home-grown Detroit southpaw calls his shots, the superior Tiger tappers—Kell, Cullenbine, Wakefield, Evers and Mullin—can't get a loud foul.

Newhouse calls out, "Low curve outside, high and fast," etc., and nothing happens but the swish of the bat.

Prince Hal already is as swift as he will ever have to be. The only flaw in his armament at the moment is that his high hard one is inclined to be a little too high.

When he gets that one down with in the strike zone the opposition will draw nothing but blanks.

Steve O'Neill was even higher

on his pitching when he lost entirely a fast one thrown by Virgil Trucks and the ball struck him on the chin, putting the old catcher in the hospital for four or five days.

"The ball might have hit me between the eyes," philosophizes Stout Seave.

O'Neill hopes Connie Mack is right in holding that pitching is 90 per cent of baseball. If that were true, the Bengals would have a tremendous jump, but even Stephen knows to what extent good pitching can be wasted.

"Somebody has to get them guys out," as Dizzy Dean used to say, and the biggest Detroit problem is picking up the slack left by the departure of Hank Greenberg, his 44 home runs and 127 runs batted-in.

Look alikes: Ted Kluszewski of the Reds and the late Lou Gehrig, and Cincinnati second baseman Bobby Adams and Bill Werber.

The left-handed throwing and hitting, 22-year-old, six-foot two inch, 205-pound Kluszewski, being given a whirl at first base, wears his knickerbockers pulled down a al Carlos Hubbell, screening Gehrig-like piano legs. He has Columbia Lou's neck and sloping shoulders, only has to hit like him to be reminiscent of the immortal Yankee at bat.

An end of All-America calibre at Indiana, Kluszewski played first base and the outfield for Columbia, S.C., in his one season in professional ball, was setting quite a pace with his war club when he tore muscles. Despite this he finished with an average of .352 in 90 games to be declared the league batting champion after manufacturing 40 extra-base hits, 11 of which were home runs, belting in 87 runs.

The Reds' interest in Kluszewski increased when in a workout at Crosley Field last year he drove five of 30 balls pitched to him into the bleachers. One of his size and ability can't be very far away, as the baseball people say.

Mr. Kluszewski may do-ski.

DESIGNER OF AMERICA'S CUP BOATS DIES

Hoboken, N.J., March 20.—(P)—W. Starling Burgess, 68, noted naval architect and designer of three famous America's Cup defenders, died yesterday.

Burgess, who designed more than 2,000 yachts during his career, was best known for his design of the America's Cup defenders enterprise, Rainbow and Ranger. The last, built for Harold S. Vanderbilt, sailed to four successive victories in the 1937 races.

He was a native of Boston and the son of another yacht designer. His father, Edward B. Burgess, designed the cup defenders Puritan, in 1885; the Mayflower, in 1886, and the Volunteer, in 1887.

Los Angeles, March 20.—(P)—To state the case positively, and hoping not to injure anyone's sensitive soul—certainly no left-hander—the biggest need of New York Giants this year is pitching.

The Giants could use another hitter or two, and may get one in the published sand-banned rookies from Texas, Clint Hartung, or some other freshman on the roster.

But Manager Mel Ott can rest fairly easily with such power batters as Johnny Mize, Walker Cooper, Willard Marshall and, in a pinch, Lou Lombardie.

Ott's main headache rests in the hurling department, which still re-members such great ones as Christy Mathewson and Joe McGinnity. Master Melvin probably will rely on four regulars from last year and pray for help from several newcomers.

Of the seasoned men, Lefty Monty Kennedy, with a 9-10 record from 1946, looks like a good bet, and marked improvement is expected in Junior Thompson.

Thompson blamed a knee injury as the basis of arm trouble, and having had the knee condition corrected, believes he'll be in fine shape this season.

Dave Koslo, busy with 14-19 last year, gives Ott another southpaw, and the fourth is right-hander Bill Voiselle—9-15 — and either will or won't remain a major leaguer this season.

The top three rookies are Larry Jansen, a right-hander who led the flag-winning San Francisco club to a Pacific Coast League championship with 30 wins and 6 losses; and two top men with the championship Atlanta club of the Southern Association, Bill Ayres, who won 21 and lost 10 and had the lowest earned run average of 1.95, and Earl (Mickey) McGowan, 22-10, the league leader and a good control pitcher for a left-hander.

Ott's infield is rated pretty fair —Mize, Buddy Blattner, Buddy Kerr and "Lucky Kid" Lohrke, if St. Gordon doesn't beat him out at third.

The Giants have two saleable properties which could be peddled quickly but so far are holding on to—first baseman Babe Young and shortstop Billy Rigney.

Unless things change, the inaugural trio in the outfield at the Polo Grounds will be Marshall, Carroll Lockman and Hartung.

The Giants could use another outfielder—maybe one named Mel Ott, who could add on to the 22 records he already owns in the books.

MILT SCHMIDT VOTED TROPHY BY WRITERS

Boston, March 20.—(P)—Milt Schmidt, Boston Bruins star centre, today was voted the Elizabeth Dufresne trophy by the Boston hockey writers.

It is awarded annually to the Bruin player whose performances have been the most outstanding during the club's National Hockey League home games.

Five years ago Schmidt figured in the Dufresne award when it was voted to the Kitchener line, which also included wingers Bobby Bauer and Woody Dumart.

Since the trophy was put up for competition during the 1935-36 season it has been won by such Boston hockey greats as Tiny Thompson, Eddie Shore, Dit Clapper, Frank Brimsek, Billy Coxley and Jack Crawford.

Chicago Stags lead Western Cage Section

New York, March 20.—(P)—St. Louis Bombers, with four games yet to play, were three games behind Chicago Stags today in the contest for Western Division honors in the Basketball Association of America.

Bombers had little trouble in whipping Ironmen 79-54 at Pittsburgh last night, and got an assist from New York Knicks on their roster when the 1947 Inter-provincial Rugby Football Union season opens including Dan Santis and Sirio Delferba, who both played last season, club officials announced last night.

HAMILTON TIGERS TO IMPORT 5 AMERICAN PLAYERS

Hamilton, March 20.—(P)—Hamilton Tigers of the Big Four will have five American players on their roster when the 1947 Inter-provincial Rugby Football Union season opens including Dan Santis and Sirio Delferba, who both played last season, club officials announced last night.

Waiches were invented during the fifteenth century. They were small clocks, however, and were suspended from a girde about the owner's waist.

DiMaggio Out Of N.Y. Lineup Until After May 1 Owing To Operation

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 20.—From the time he broke in with the Senators 27 years ago, Stanley Raymond Harris dreamed of managing the Yankees in the big town.

"Now I have them," signs Bucky Harris, "and no DiMaggio."

Right now, Harris would gladly settle for any 1 in the case of Joe DiMaggio, who underwent a skin-grafting job following the removal of a spur on his heel. A heel is the hardest to heal. When able to run, DiMaggio will still have to get in shape.

The trouble with the Yankees is that there aren't enough Yankees left in the party. In the spring exhibition inaugural at St. Petersburg's new Al Lang Field, the finest little ball park in the country, the pitching was so bad the fans wondered if Harris started the wrong Chandler against the Cardinals—Happy instead of Spud.

That Senators are playing night exhibition games in Orlando, Clark Griffith's theory being, no doubt, that the noble athletes might just as well get used to staying up all hours and not knowing when to cat. Nothing like good old Florida moonbeams to put a club in condition.

Had Newhouse picked up right where he left off last fall, striking out four and shutting out the Reds for five frames in Lakeland.

Newhouse gives remarkable exhibitions in what, with him pitching, is laughingly called batting practice. Though the home-grown Detroit southpaw calls his shots, the superior Tiger tappers—Kell, Cullenbine, Wakefield, Evers and Mullin—can't get a loud foul.

Newhouse calls out, "Low curve outside, high and fast," etc., and nothing happens but the swish of the bat.

Prince Hal already is as swift as he will ever have to be. The only flaw in his armament at the moment is that his high hard one is inclined to be a little too high.

When he gets that one down with in the strike zone the opposition will draw nothing but blanks.

Steve O'Neill was even higher

on his pitching when he lost entirely a fast one thrown by Virgil Trucks and the ball struck him on the chin, putting the old catcher in the hospital for four or five days.

"The ball might have hit me between the eyes," philosophizes Stout Seave.

O'Neill hopes Connie Mack is right in holding that pitching is 90 per cent of baseball. If that were true, the Bengals would have a tremendous jump, but even Stephen knows to what extent good pitching can be wasted.

Steps To The Easter Parade

Spring shoes will step out with new fashion details in color and styling for the Easter parade. A bow-trimmed swing sling in new sandstone beige suede is modeled on the center figure. The patent pump, upper right, with its softly vented vamp typifies the return of the closed shoes. Brilliant colors such as the geranium red crushed kidskin suit pump, lower right, will blaze this spring. White stitching and an extension sole distinguish the brown suede flat, lower left. High stepping platform anklestrap sandal, upper left, of black suede is piped in gold kid.

New York—The novelty of seeing women's toes and heels fully covered is promised Easter-parade spectators who this spring also will also get the biggest eyeful of colored shoes in years.

Sidewalks will blaze with shoe colors that are out to rival any shows put on by border plant blooms. Geranium red, hothouse violet, Kelly green, airway blue and admiral blue will lead the color march. On the subtle side of the shoe color card are pewter grey and new shades of beige. Timber tan, honey, caramel and sandstone are shades slated to step out with fashionable dress companions in the beige-and-brown families.

The covered-up shoe sticks its modest toe back in the fashion door, but this spring it's vented with a cut-out vamp to create an airy look and to give women more comfort afoot for the march into summer.

Designer Herman Delman announces the fiercer use this spring of genuine patent leather and celebrates its return by making it into closed shoes.

Slated to be the high-steppers in the parade are platform shoes with height-building soles which add from one-quarter to one inch to a gal's stature. Designers' pet, created for the well-nigh perfect ankle, is the platform sandal with the strap which encircles it and advertises its flawless charms.

This spring's footwear is in itself a parade ground for smart dressmaker details. Contrasting piping and white stitching appear even on flat-heeled casuals. Dressier shoes take fancy bows, tucking, pleating, and draping. Draping as intricate as that used for fabric
