18 still suspended

CE employees back at work

SHERBROOKE (JC) — Disgruntled Combustion Engineering employees returned to their jobs this morning, after a wildcat work stoppage resulted in one-day suspensions handed down by management. Workers staged a work stoppage shortly before 10 a.m. Monday and were ordered out of the plant by 4 p.m. the same day.

The local union said the company locked the doors Tuesday and refused to allow workers into the building, but management has denied the lock-out, saying the unionized employees had received one-day suspensions for their participation in the "illegal work stoppage."

The work stoppage began after a shipping and receiving employee said he was physically harassed and threatened by company straw-bosses after filing a grievance about the distribution of overtime.

The 18 shipping and receiving employees who management says incited the illegal stoppage received three-day suspensions, and one unnamed worker was suspended for "an indefinite period."

Several of the men who received three-day suspensions attempted to return to work this morning, but were refused admittance to the plant.

At a union meeting yesterday afternoon, President Raymond Roy told workers the company had promised to set up a special committee to study the issues in question, and present solutions acceptable to both parties.

A company spokesman confirmed the study was underway and said meetings will be held with union executives.

Combustion Engineering-Superheater's parking lot was deserted until this morning's shift.

Highway plans fuel lively debate

By JANET COTTON
Of The Record
LENNOXVILLE — Three proposed routes for a major highway to be built within town limits met with strenuous opposition at an information meeting last night.

The four-lane highway, to be begun in 1981, will reroute Montreal and Vermont traffic to bypass downtown Sherbrooke and Lennoxville. Although the highway was proposed by provincial authorities as early as 1968 and possible routes had been under study since last May, no public announcement was made until last night.

The alternative routes prepared by the engineering firm, Lemieux, Royer, Donaldson, Field and Associates would run:

— Across Belvidere Street, atop Warren, Academy and Warner Streets, across Queen at Convent Street, across the St. Francis River and through to Fleurimont.

— Parallel to Belvidere Street, across Queen at the Herring farm, skirting the Bishop's University golf course, then south to cross the Massawippi River, through Bishop's College School property, parallel to Moulton Hill and through to Fleurimont.

— Parallel to Belvidere, across Queen at Herring's farm, following line of university golf course, then further south than the second route to a point midway between Alexander Galt Regional High School and the Experimental farm, across the Massawippi River. See HIGHWAY, Page

Gull Island power scheme

Churchill project tops list

OTTAWA (CP) — Leaders of the federal and provincial governments have agreed to give priority treatment to development of a major hydroelectric project on the lower Churchill River in Labrador.

Sources at the federal-provincial economic conference said Tuesday the proposed hydro dam on Gull Island will receive a boost at the conference windup today.

The Gull Island development, planned to generate a massive 1,600 megawatts of power, is one of a number of multi-billion-dollar energy projects awaiting national approval.

Newfoundland, which includes Labrador, and the federal government, will assign study teams to work out financing programs and technical proposals.

The immediate economic gain would be a federally-aided $4-million project to clear timber from the proposed reservoir site.

Earlier Tuesday, Premier Rene Levesque of Quebec said his province is prepared to work out a mutually beneficial agreement with Newfoundland for Gull Island power development.

But he told Premier Frank Moores of Newfoundland at the federal-provincial economic conference that his concern would be that once the project is under way Newfoundland would seek to change contractual arrangements as it now is doing with the Upper Churchill contracts signed in 1969.

Labrador is part of Newfoundland but the boundary is a point of dispute with Quebec.

Moores said during energy discussions the money to develop the Gull Island site on the lower Churchill is available, but customers are lacking. The project would generate 4,000 megawatts to serve four million people with their total energy needs.

The Newfoundland premier struck a nerve with Levesque when he recounted his "frustrations" regarding the deal struck with Quebec when the Upper Churchill was developed in the 1960s.

Newfoundland has gone to court in an effort to change the contract whereby Hydro Quebec buys Churchill power for the energy equivalent of $1.80 a barrel of oil. In the last 25 years of the contract that price will drop to the equivalent of $1.20 a barrel.

SUPPLIES QUEBEC

Churchill Falls provides 30 per cent of Quebec's electricity needs, Moores said, and if compared with the price of oil his province is losing the equivalent of $725 million annually under the contract with Quebec Hydro.

"I wonder how long such a situation would last if it was between two other provinces," Moores said.

Levesque said the contract was signed in 1969 with the full agreement of both parties. He suggested that the upper Churchill would not have been developed without Quebec's assistance.

"Now, understandably, it doesn't look so good," Levesque said.

However, his province remained ready to negotiate with Newfoundland the development of the lower Churchill.

Moores agreed that the upper Churchill would not have been developed without Quebec, but only because Quebec refused to allow transmission lines through its territory to serve other customers.

TRUDEAU TAVERN PLANS SCRAPPED

OTTAWA (CP) — The Liberal party has withdrawn plans for a giant bash on Parliament Hill, a party for 4,000 persons that at least one wag said was converting the buildings into "Trudeau's Tavern."

Announcement of the cancellation of the Feb. 24 party to be held in connection with the Liberal convention here was made in the Commons by Speaker James Jerome.

He was responding to questions of privilege raised by the opposition last week. Speakers said then the dignity of Parliament was being offended and, in the words of Conservative House Leader Walter Baker the Liberals were wallowing in the public trough.

The bash was expected to be the largest held in the buildings. Organizers had said the buildings would be turned into a giant discotheque. There would be 26 bars and three bands.

Last Wednesday opposition MPs expressed their indignation for almost an hour, demanding that Jerome revoke his permission to the Liberals to hold the party.

Jerome said Tuesday he would have let the party go on, but he received word from Deputy Premier Allan MacEachen that the Liberals were cancelling the bash.

Quebec office losing trade Sun Life tells shareholders

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec government's commitment to independence has led some prospective policyholders to refuse to buy insurance from any company with its head office in Quebec, Sun Life Co. of Canada policyholders were told Tuesday.

Company president Thomas Galt also told reporters that competing insurance companies outside of Quebec were using the fact that Sun Life is Quebec-based to sell against it.

He said the company has recorded a 10-per-cent loss in individual policy business in Canada for the period ended Dec. 31, 1977, because potential customers refused to buy insurance from a company whose head office was in Quebec.

The company had also "a small decline in new business in Quebec" since it announced last month it wanted to move its head office to Toronto.

Galt earlier told about 400 people at the annual policyholders' meeting the company "had received a great many letters, telegrams and telephone calls both for and against, but substantially in favor" of the proposed move.

THANKS WRITERS

"I am very grateful to those many people who have taken the trouble to write in support of our actions."

Asked whether directors who voted to propose the move to policyholders were thinking of doing the same with their own companies, Sun Life chairman Alistair Campbell said directors "reacted purely on the grounds of the special circumstances of Sun Life."

The meeting took place under tight security, designed to keep Galt and his board of directors out of the range of photographers and television cameras.

The meeting was videotaped for company employees and shown in a cafeteria, but news photographers and camera crews from television stations were not allowed into the meeting.

While management got more support from the policyholders, a sizable group applauded Montreal lawyer Richard Holden when he argued against the move.

Holden, who has threatened to take the company to court because it has refused him access to computers and mailing lists of policyholders, accused the board of directors of "being overwhelmed" by recent events in Quebec and described them as "fleeing to Toronto."

Elliot Lake: An oasis of prosperity

ELLIOT LAKE, Ont. (CP) — No miners have been laid off here this winter and none are likely to—for winters to come. Not as long as Elliot Lake has uranium and the world pays good money for it.

Other mining towns may be troubled, but the boom which began here two years ago still is strong.

The three hotels in town are usually booked, as are all the rental cars. Most of the visitors are consultants, contractors, engineers and highly-skilled tradesmen associated with the boom.

"There is a smell of money in the air," said one resident.

He might have added that most long-time residents appear to be taking the town's good fortune in stride. Who can complain, they say, as long as the big queues in town are in the banks on pay day rather than at the local unemployment insurance office.

They know that Elliot Lake is an oasis of prosperity in an increasingly troubled part of Ontario. Just 160 kilometres to the east, at Sudbury, 4,000 nickel miners are being laid off by Inco and Falconbridge, and other resource-based industries in the region have fallen on hard times.

For older residents, the boom has dulled memories of the black years in the early 1960s when the market for uranium went sour, almost killing the town in the process. The population dropped to 6,000 from 25,000 between 1960 and 1963. Many residents just boarded up their homes and moved away.

COUNT TO SOAR

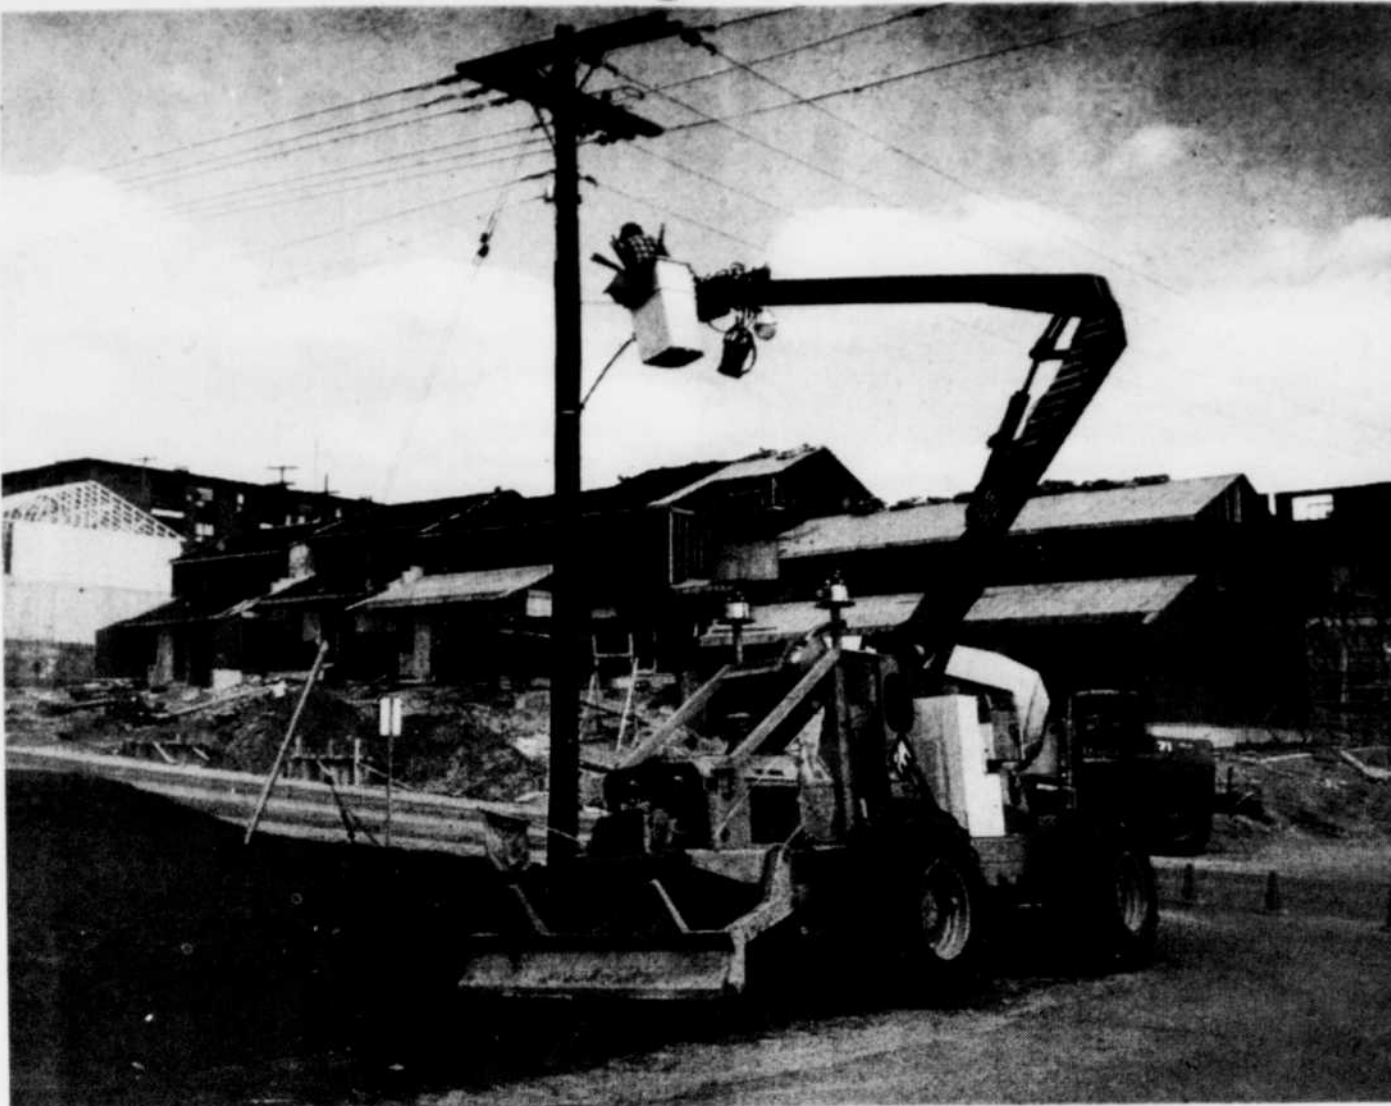

Now, there are more than 12,000 and the total—according to government projections—will soar to about 30,000 by the mid-1980s.

The reason is the price of uranium oxide, which has jumped to more than $40 a pound from $6 since 1972 in response to soaring world demand. To meet that demand, Rio Algom Ltd. and Denison Mines Ltd., the companies which own the mines here, started expanding in 1975 to fulfil contracts stretching into the next century.

Rio Algom says it will more than double production by 1980 while Denison expects to do the same by 1985.

About 300 men worked underground at Denison in 1975. Now there are 800 and the company is to add another 150 by April. By the time the expansion is complete, Denison's current 1,500-man work force, taking all categories, will have doubled.

Rio Algom will double its 1,200-man work force by the end of the decade and Rio Preston Mines Ltd., a Rio Housing is in big demand in the uranium boom town and construction sites have sprung up everywhere.

Algom subsidiary, will create 1,000 new jobs by reviving its Stanleigh operation, dormant since the 1960s. All of which makes Elliot Lake a magnet for job-hunters as well as entrepreneurs looking for gilded business opportunities.

Don McKay, manager of a local real estate office, said he has been inundated with requests from outsiders to set up shop in town. "People are coming in every week to set up dental clinics, jeans shops, pizza parlors, taverns, restaurants."

A work force of 1,000 employed by contractors is handling the mine expansion and the construction of new housing. Rio Algom and Denison need experienced miners whom they recruit across the country; the bait they use to get them here is heavily subsidized housing.

But the boom has produced some unwanted side effects. A housing shortage is one, as is a rising crime rate and growing traffic headaches.

The mines own many fine homes and apartments—and are building hundreds of additional units—which they rent out to their employees at bargain-basement prices.

But not all the newcomers work for the mines. Those who don't must cope with rents for vacant apartments—the few available—which may start at $200 for a basement flat.

Single-family dwellings, which went begging for buyers during the black years, now go for three or four times their original value.

Most of the homes are modern, the streets wide and clean, and residents have such amenities as a hospital, theatre, community centre and complete outdoor and indoor recreational facilities.

Some families are living in trailers until the housing supply catches up with demand and there are people who say they know of 10 men sharing a basement.

BUILD HOUSING

To ease the crush, Rio Algom and Denison have built about 700 subsidized units in a new subdivision.

Dick Dottle, Rio Algom's manager of administration, has a waiting list of people already living in trailers or company dormitories, and he uses a points system to allocate new units.

Compounding his problem, the province refused to allow people into the new homes this summer until each unit passed a special test for radon gas, which is present in the ground here. Minute quantities of radioactive gas were found to be seeping into basements and the companies installed special ventilation to alleviate the hazard.

While they wait for better accommodations, people have made do the best they can.

Crime has been on the rise since the expansion began, but the town's 13-man police force can't expand fast enough because, among other reasons, Chief Nick Cooke has trouble finding accommodations for new officers.

Thefts and break-ins have soared to the point where most residents lock their doors now when they go shopping, said Cpl. Ted Hyndman of the six-member Ontario Provincial Police detachment.

"This town is full of transients, some with a criminal past," he said. "They get out of stir, they hear there is some work at Elliot Lake, so they come here and rip off some of the contractors and rip off some houses."

All this pales against the rough-and-tumble days of Elliot Lake in the mid-1950s. Prostitution and bootlegging were big business then.

Pollution-free vehicle designed

TOKYO (AP) — Japan Air Lines reported achieving a speed of 304 kilometres (190 miles) an hour today in a test of a quiet, pollution-free vehicle it hopes some day will carry passengers between airports and city centres.

The "high-speed surface transport" has no wheels, but "floats" less than an inch above its track, held up by magnetic power, JAL said.

The vehicle has an electric linear motor, which JAL said produces no noise or exhaust in normal operation. JAL said it intends to operate a high-speed surface transport system between Tokyo and the new international airport due to open next month at Narita, 64 kilometres (40 miles) northeast of Tokyo. The system could carry passengers in 120-seat coaches to the airport in under 15 minutes.

Hawker Siddeley workers fired

TRENTON, N.S. (CP) — Six workers were fired and almost half the labor force at the Hawker Siddeley Canada Ltd. rail car works here was suspended today as a result of a wildcat walkout Monday, union officials said.

Monday's walkout was confined to the car works division and did not have union backing, the officials said. Of the 267 suspended men, 55 were sent out for a month and 212 got onweek suspensions.

Local 1231 of the United Steelworkers of America, which represents the men, called an emergency meeting to discuss the suspensions.

The walkout on Monday resulted from the suspension of two workers who did not meet company production requirements during a special testing period.

A third worker was also involved but a union spokesman said the man's performance was close enough to acceptability that the company decided against any action.

OECD forecasts revised

PARIS (Reuters) — Economic experts of the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) have revised their forecasts for this year and now say the main non-Communist industrial countries will be in a better financial position and economic growth will be a little faster than previously predicted.

But they also predict that growth will still be painfully slow and that the 24 OECD member-countries are still likely to have a large combined balance-of-payments deficit.

The experts here in the secretariat of the OECD warn that the industrialized world faces a critical economic situation this year. They have called for urgent action to expand economies in order to escape from uncertainty since the recession of the early 1970s.

Informed sources said Monday that the major Western industrial countries, including Canada and the United States, are expected to have a combined balance-of-payments deficit of $18 billion to $20 billion this year, $2 billion to $5 billion less than forecast earlier.

Gillespie urges all-out energy effort

OTTAWA (CP) — Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie told provincial premiers today that all-out development of energy resources would provide one million short-term jobs in the next eight to 10 years.

In a 15-minute presentation to the federal-provincial economic summit, Gillespie also said energy projects under way or planned could provide 72,000 permanent jobs.

His outline of 40 job-producing energy projects came only moments after Saskatchewan Premier Allan Blakeney called for greater efforts to develop new energy supplies to reduce dependence on oil imports and to provide jobs.

"The time is right and the time is now to develop our energy resources," Blakeney told the meeting.

Gillespie told the meeting the projects would involve spending of $55 billion by the federal and provincial governments as well as private industry. But estimates on some projects had not been prepared and total spending on energy by 1990 is estimated at a whopping $180 billion.

Gillespie said some of the jobs he included in his estimate are on projects already under way, such as the James Bay project on which construction started in 1974 and will continue until 1985.

SOME SPENT

Some of those jobs already are available, he said. The job estimates "are already partly spent for those particular projects."

But Gillespie also said the employment estimates do not include jobs developing oil and gas reserves in conventional areas, such as Alberta.

Of his rough estimate of one million short-term jobs, the federal minister said half of them are on projects already committed, such as the natural gas pipeline from Alaska. The remainder would come on new projects that could be approved soon with co-operation between Ottawa and the provinces.

Strike puts jobs in jeopardy

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Spokesmen for Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. and Chrysler Canada Ltd. said today more than 21,000 jobs in Canada are in jeopardy as a result of a strike by United States coal miners.

The strike is in its 71st day and a number of power reductions have resulted.

Tony Fredo, public relations director for Ford, said about 8,500 employees at two Ontario plants—Oakville and Talbotville—might be affected if supplier plants in the U.S. are forced to close because of power reductions.

Business forms cut back

PORT ALBERT, B.C. (CP) — Tony Abbott, federal minister responsible for small businesses, said Monday that Canadian taxpayers would be saved $100 million a year if the flow of forms between government and small businesses was cut by 10 per cent.

Abbott, who represents the Ontario riding of Mississauga, told a gathering in this Vancouver Island community that his ministry hopes to achieve such a cut this year.

The minister said there are about 850,000 small businesses in Canada and their income represents about 20 per cent of the gross national product.

He said that a comptroller, responsible to the minister, will be appointed to change, simplify or drop forms now required of small businesses.

Reed may sell Canadian holdings

LONDON (CP) — The Daily Telegraph says Reed International, the ailing British multinational company, may attempt to cut losses by selling out its Canadian holdings, among other interests.

A firm decision to sell off all the company's Canadian interests was taken last summer, the newspaper maintains.

"The next test for Reed shares, which have taken a hammering over the past fortnight, will be with the figures from Reed Canada later this month," the newspaper says today.

"Paper and pulp interests are expected to have lost up to 12 million ($24 million) in circumstances which could well worsen."

"Sales of Canadian interests are looked for in the near future on the general principle that if they do not take place soon, the assets could cease to be saleable."

Ford offers repairs

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co., under pressure of a federal complaint, is telling owners it will repair for free a potential cold-weather problem on about 2.5 million cars. It might cost Ford $10 million.

This is the first time owners have been directly notified of the special warranty program covering the defect, though dealers began learning of it nearly a year ago.

Ford said today the letters began going out Feb. 1, about two weeks after the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) formally accused the company of continuing to sell the cars after it knew of the defect.

"We intended to notify owners some time ago," said Ford spokesman Tom Rhodes, but it took from December to now to gear up for the mailing.

The notification of owners does not settle the complaint by the FTC, which might lead to a fine against Ford.

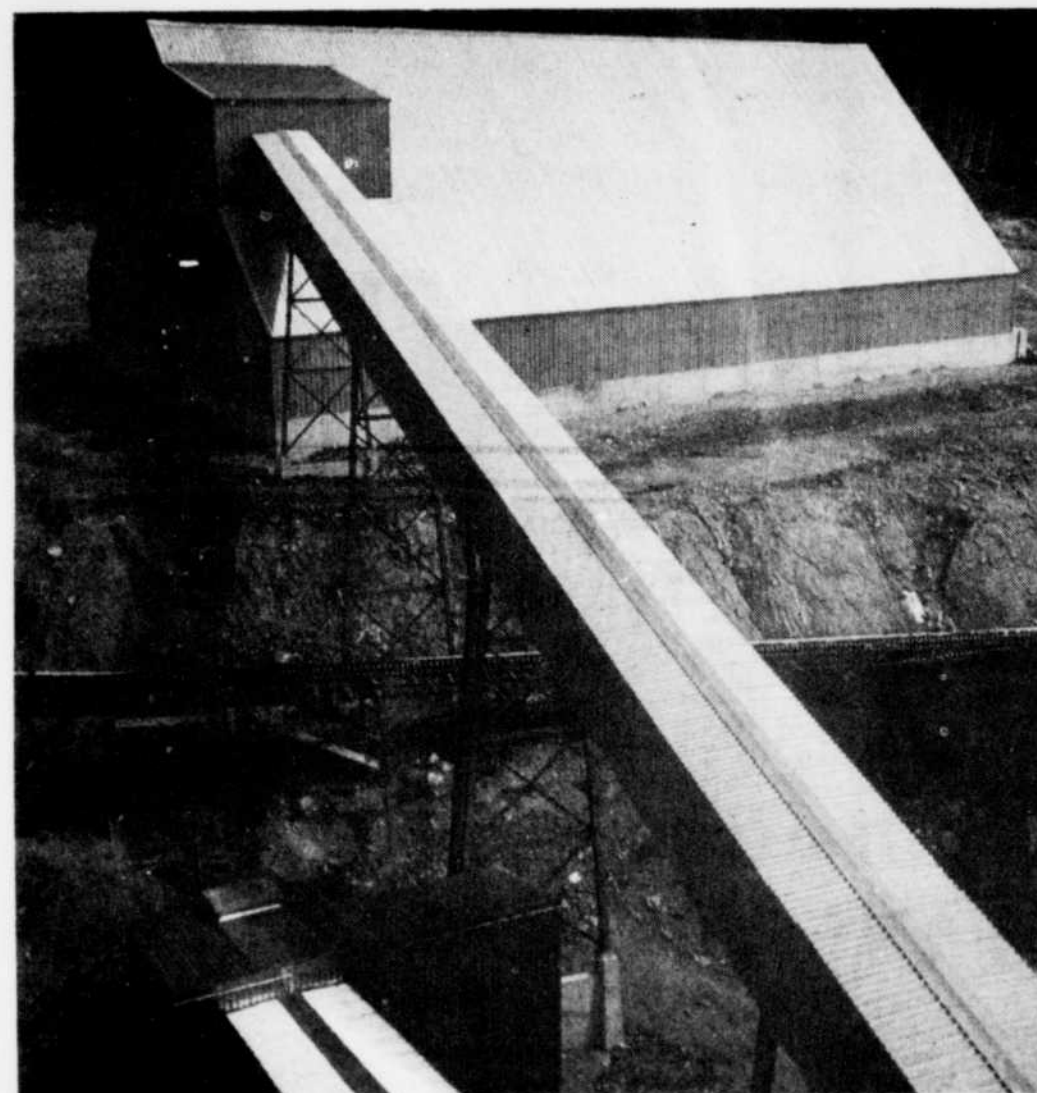

Pipeline start urged

WINNIPEG (CP) — John Allan, president of the Steel Co. of Canada, Ltd. (Stelco), has urged Canadians and Americans to "get on with the job" of building the proposed Alaska highway natural gas pipeline.

"The most important aspect is to get on with the job so that we can talk specifics rather than generalities and so that we can start employing Canadians in this great and challenging undertaking," he said.

Allan told a meeting of the Winnipeg Society of Financial Analysts that Canadians are the best pipelayers in the world.

"The many thousands of miles of pipe which lace this country is a testimony to this skill—and I'm sure we can put a line through the northern terrain with equal skill and, at the same time, satisfy the sociological and environmental needs of that area of our country."

Newly built coarse ore storage buildings and conveyors attest to the growing prosperity of Elliot Lake.

Trust company criticizes economic performance

Canada's insurance and trust company executives had critical comments to make recently on the nation's economic performance.

In Peterborough, Eric Brown, president of Canada

Permanent Trust Co., said unemployment is not the cause of Canada's sluggish economy because 91-to-92 per cent of Canadians have jobs. Only a fifth of one per cent of households are unemployed.

Canada, he said, is suffering from a lull that is world-wide.

In Waterloo, Ont., Thomas R. Suttie, president and chairman of Equitable Life Insurance Co. of Canada, said voluntary restraints on wages and prices won't work, nor will the government's proposed monitoring agency.

Both moves are planned when anti-inflation controls are lifted in Canada in April. "Voluntary restraints will no doubt receive almost universal lip-service, but in practice will be ignored by any groups or individuals strong enough to do so."

He said a monitoring agency will have no power to enforce its recommendations.

Meanwhile, J. C. Butler, president of the Toronto Insurance Conference, reported an increase in pricing competing in commercial property and casualty insurance markets. He blamed insurance companies who are seeking a larger market share because underwriting profits have improved during the last two years.

In another vein, the Trust Companies Association of Canada urged in a federal brief that trust companies be allowed to offer additional services, including issuance of debentures.

Low-priced stocks cause investment difficulties

The lure of low-priced stocks can bring as many problems as promises, a Toronto-based investment firm says.

Canadian Business Service, a division of Marpep Investment Reports Ltd., said shareholders in a small company should at least protect their interests with a sound portfolio.

"A lot of investors believe that low-priced stocks—under $10, say—are more likely to double in price than higher-priced ones," the firm said in a newsletter.

"There's some truth in that, but the trouble is that they can fall as fast as they rise."

"Momentum is a fact of life in the stock market, just like any place else. Big companies get to be big by doing what they do well—but adding the same percentage to your sales each year gets harder and harder as your total sales figure rises."

Citing an example, the investment firm said that if a company which had revenues of $25 million last year won a $5-million contract, its sales would go up 20 per cent if other factors remained the same.

But for a company that did $100 million in business, the same contract would have a far smaller impact, and for the one that did $1 billion in business, $5 million is "just an average working day."

'I left my heart in the ivy-covered walls'

I am sure that I am not alone in remembering, with a pang of nostalgia, the "old" Sherbrooke Hospital.

It was situated in East Sherbrooke opposite, of all places, the Fair Grounds. I trained there as a student nurse and worked there many years as a graduate nurse. It was inevitable, of course, that we had eventually to move to larger and more modern quarters. The old buildings had none of the gloss and sophisticated conveniences of the newer one, but I must confess, that when the move finally came, I left my heart behind, buried forever in the old brick, ivy-covered walls on Park Avenue.

It was at the Sherbrooke Hospital that we were taught the meaning of the word "hospital" as it relates to hospitality — "the reception of guests or strangers with liberality and kindness."

I read an article recently in a Montreal paper on the demise of the Florence Nightingale-type nurse. The young writer pointed out the intolerable conditions under which the nurse of yesterday had operated. It was all true, I suppose. Certainly we were overworked and underpaid, and yet who among our number would trade one moment of those years for the ease of the present set-up?

At the old hospital we were a family. Things did not always go smoothly. Life was not constantly happy or harmonious, but there was indeed, a togetherness, a feeling of being part of a team. We seemed united with the physician in a single, determined force, dedicated to the healing of the sick. Such a team, of course, was without the services of internes, orderlies, assistants and assistants to the assistants.

The article I read quoted a present-day nurse as saying that nurses have always felt like "glorified maids". Never us! From the moment we pulled on those black cotton stockings, fastened the cruelly starched collars around tender necks, and pinned down the elusive hairnets, we felt as though we belonged to the most distinguished sisterhood in the world!

We never found life in residence "confining and nun-like". It was one marvelous and completely unforgettable adventure for us.

The residence, as the hospital, was a building of old, mellowed brick with vines crawling halfway up its sides. It was situated beside the hospital and faced the Fair Grounds. The "Maids' Home" was on the other side of the main structure. We had large lawns between us and the sidewalks. We had flower beds, shrubs, and some lovely old trees. We boasted a huge vegetable garden at the back, and we even had our own tennis court.

Life was not always too comfortable there, however. When we first entered training it was September. Five of us, myself included, were assigned to what was known as "the second floor sunporch." This long narrow room held five old white-painted iron beds, five rickety bureaus, three straight chairs and no cupboards at all! The five of us shared an ancient wardrobe that was out in the hall! The room was really a porch. One wall was all windows. This gave us a near sub-zero temperature through the winter and a sub-tropical one in the summer.

In our group of five, we had a pixie of a girl whose name was Flossie. Each night of that long, first winter she would climb into bed, resolutely garbed in raccoon coat, tique, and wool mittens. We shivered and giggled and were truly cold, but just the memory of one of those Arctic nights makes me feel warm today!

We were awakened at six o'clock each morning. Breakfast started in the dining room promptly at six-thirty. This precipitated a headlong rush from our rooms in various stages of dress, down the old wooden stairs, through the tunnel to arrive at the elevator in the hospital basement. The dining room was located on the top floor of the building. Boys from the Gibbs Home manned the elevators and we would scowl at their cheerful and impudent greetings. (What nurse of my vintage will ever forget Jimmy Stockton?)

After hastily consuming the squishy prunes, damp toast, and weak, milk coffee, we would assemble on the ground floor in the Superintendent's office to recite, and here I blush before the moderns, the Lord's Prayer. This would be followed by a thorough inspection. We were quite apt to be sent off to clean our shoes or to find a missing hairnet. Our half-day off for the week might well be the price we would be required to pay for such negligence.

We would then be sent off to the wards to take over duties from the night staff who worked from 7 p.m. to 7 a.m. It is so easy for me to close my eyes and to feel again the apprehension and near terror of the first morning on duty as a "probie". Four of us were sent to the Men's Surgical Ward on the first floor. I can imagine what we looked like, pale, big-eyed and on the verge of absolute panic!

I remember that we were momentarily distracted by the presence of Miss Wark, who had been on private duty through the night. She looked as fresh as flower to us and her eyes twinkled in sympathy at our obvious misery.

ward, at my time, was fairly well dominated by Henry, a long-time patient, totally crippled with arthritis. We were warned that if Henry didn't like you, you might as well go home. Predictably, we practically grovelled at his bedside, attentive to his every whim.

The Men's Surgical Ward, as it was then, had perhaps eight or nine beds on each side of the big room. There were never enough screens to go around, so privacy was

We were starched and immaculate in bib, apron, collar and cuffs, and wearing the very mark of our success, the cap of our nursing school. We felt always that we were important and needed. One complimentary word from the dashing Doctor Lynch as he made his morning rounds, complete with boutonniere or one smile from the handsome and debonair Doctor Bayne, and life became ecstatic! I don't honestly think that we gave much thought to money. When graduated, we could earn eight dollars a day for twelve hours — how easy could life get?

In the evening in the residence, the day with all its tension and weariness would be obliterated in our small world of fun, gossip, horseplay, tall tales, cups of coffee and friendship. Did we mind having the lights turned off at ten o'clock? We couldn't stay awake that long!

I REMEMBER SHERBROOKE

by KATHARINE SNOW

She winked at us, and as she left the room, she sang softly for our benefit, "Lord, You made the nights too long!"

With alarmingly little preparation, we were thrust into a world of men and their various needs. We had to give them their breakfasts, their baths, their back rubs, and other things too terrible to mention. We performed a variety of duties. The bedpans were my bete noire! I was so shy and so aghast at these horrors that, after giving out a warmed pan to some poor, incapacitated soul, I would run and hide in what we called, "the small bathroom" and close my ears resolutely against the frantic ringing of his bell. We had many patients then who had been in the ward for months. These old-timers would have been fully briefed by our immediate predecessors, about our arrival. They put us through some pretty harrowing times which, I assure you, are funny only in retrospect! The at an absolute minimum! The dressing cart sat in the middle of the room, blithely bearing its cargo of alcohol, iodine, and all the things that are now so correctly under lock and key. We also had a long white table in the center, covered properly with a white cotton runner. We worked on the wards between our classes, from nine in the mornings and again in the afternoons. In the mornings, we had to be in the classroom over in the residence on the dot of 9 a.m. We had to be finished our assigned duties, report to our head nurses and then race through the long tunnel. We would arrive from all directions, hairnets askew, aprons twisted, breathless, disheveled, but dauntless and dedicated!

Nursing has changed radically, of course, but people still become sick, still need the same compassion and understanding. I can only tell the "new nurse" that it really was not so bad!

Life in the nurses' residence was "one completely marvelous adventure."

Dube rumor denied

Sherbrooke municipal police have flatly denied rumors that the body of ten-year-old Manon Dube was found last night.

A police spokesman said there are now new developments in the case, but the search and investigation are continuing.

The young girl was last seen near her Bienville Street home 19 days ago.

Members of Operation Clean-up and the Memphremagog Conservation Club gathered at the Magog Community Center on Friday February 10th, 1978, to present a plaque with the Operation Clean-up crest to Ivy Hatch who has worked tirelessly in the fight against water pollution. Her articles appeared in major newspapers of the Townships and the Newport area. Above, from left is the president of Operation Clean-up, Gilles Pouliot, Mrs. Hatch and the immediate past president, Marcel Courchesne.

Housing statistics released

Construction was begun on a total of 1,796 homes in the Sherbrooke area during 1977, a total 1,887 were completed, and 854 were still under construction on Dec. 31, 1977, statistics released by the Central Housing and Mortgage Corporation reveal.

A total of 336 dwellings were begun in Ascot Township, 259 were completed, and 98 were still under construction on Dec. 3, 1977.

In Fleurimont, 223 were started, 217 were completed, and 55 were still under construction. In Lennoxville, 8 were started, 19 were completed, and 1 was still under construction. In Rock Forest, 205 were begun, 421 were completed, and 80 were still under construction.

In Sherbrooke, 1,024 were begun, 971 were completed, and 620 were still under construction on Dec. 31, 1977.

SENIORS' FARES CUT

Effective April 1, senior citizens will get discount rates on Sherbrooke's municipal buses, paying only 25 cents as compared to 45 cents for other residents.

The discount rates will be effective from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. and from 6 p.m. to evening end of service from Monday through Friday, and at all times on Saturday and Sunday.

Citizens, aged 65 and over, can receive discount cards by applying to the city.

Dunham fire kills one

DUNHAM (TS) — Fire swept through a basement apartment here yesterday, killing ten-month-old Sylvain Noisoux, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sylvio Noisoux.

The fire broke out at approximately 10 a.m. yesterday in the home, located on Rang Noisoux, formerly known as Northwest Road. The parents were unable to save their young son, who was quickly asphyxiated by the dense fumes.

Dunham fire chief Gilles Boucher said last night the cause of the blaze had not yet been determined.

The chief stated the house was only a year old, and the outside bricking had not yet been completed. The family had a finished apartment in the basement and were staying there when the blaze occurred.

The fire was the third in Dunham in less than two weeks. Earlier two horse barns had been destroyed by flames with electrical malfunction cited as the cause.

RCMP bill protested

The Sherbrooke Association of the Parti Quebecois has sent a letter to Premier Rene Levesque asking his government to officially oppose Pierre Trudeau's decision to allow the RCMP to open the mail in Quebec.

The letter says that the confidentiality of mail is a "fundamental human right that should be conserved."

The letter says the federal decision could encourage certain members of the RCMP to "commit further illegal acts".

The letter is signed by local association president, Thomas Somycynsky.

C'ville duo sentenced

SWEETSBURG WARD (JM) — Denis Duguay, 29, of Montreal changed his option here yesterday and pleaded guilty to charges of forceful seizure of Mrs. Ghislaine Campbell and Mr. Jacques Lalancette at the Cowansville federal institution Jan. 5.

He then pleaded guilty to a charge of attempted sexual relations with a female who was not his wife without her consent, thereby committing and attempted rape, on Jan. 5.

Crown attorney, Claude Noisoux cited the accused's prior record, which included a five-year conviction on a charge of rape in Montreal during 1977. Mr. Noisoux suggested prison terms of two years, consecutive, on the seizure charges and three years for the attempted rape.

Judge Gerard Normandin sentenced Duguay to three years, consecutive, on the attempted rape charge and two years, concurrent among themselves yet consecutive to the rape term, for the forceful seizures.

Duguay's brother-in-law, Michel Talbot, 24, also of Montreal, changed his option and pleaded guilty to two counts of forceful seizure in the penitentiary Jan. 5.

Mr. Noisoux suggested 18 months on each count in Talbot's case citing he was a follower rather than the

Rotary Club dance planned

STANSTEAD (CT) — The Boundary Rotary Club Dog Derby's Tenth Annual dinner dance is to be held at Stanstead College on February 18. Those wishing to attend are reminded that a limited number of tickets are available this year.

Tickets for the dinner and dance are $9 per person, while the dance only is $3 per person. They are available from the banks in Rock Island and Beebe, from Fluet's store in Beebe and from the Journal office in Rock Island as well as from Rotary members.

There will be a happy hour from 6:30 to 7:30, when dinner will be served followed at 9 p.m. by dancing to the music of Johnny Sicotte. As a special feature Peter Foulkes will be at the organ during the happy hour.

The dinner, to be served buffet style, will consist of an assorted relish platter, with various salads and Baron of Beef carved to order by the chef.

During the evening, there will be a drawing for several door prizes, including a microwave oven.

All the money that the Rotary raises will go back into the community. Some of the donations will go to the McKay Camp for crippled children where Rotary sponsors two children from the community. Last year the club sent Beth Ann LaFord from Stanstead and Linda Morau from the Sherbrooke area to the camp.

Other donations will go to the Border Youth Club, the Minor Hockey Associations, baseball teams, Christmas baskets, Frontier Swimming Project, new books for the Haskell Library, the hot lunch programs, Canadian Cancer Society, the sport complex, Understand Canada, the Wales Homes, and Weir Memorial Park.

Isolated events?

A 16-year-old girl lies in a CHU hospital bed with possible brain damage after falling down a staircase outside a Lennoxville drinking establishment. The 11-year-old son of a Lennoxville resident was severely beaten up by a gang of toughs who have been terrorizing classmates for several months. Authorities at Champlain College and Alexander Galt complain that their students seem to be spending too much time drinking and horsing around and not enough time studying and doing homework.

Isolated incidents? To the best of our knowledge, the drinking age in this province is still 18 and assault remains against the law, even when it's perpetrated by a bunch of pre-teen toughs.

These are our kids involved, not somebody else's, and it's their future we're talking about. Too many seemingly isolated events have happened and are happening in Lennoxville for us to stand back and say it's not our concern.

Increased police surveillance is not the answer, although it's one of them. Liaison between the police and parents should be good enough that the local force knows of problems such as underage drinking, hooliganism and various other phenomena which, when allowed to go their merry way, result in tragedy.

What are YOUR children doing right now? If you don't know, don't you think it is time you found out?

JAMES DUFF

Wishful thinking

Pierre Bourgault, the '60s separatist who headed the Rassemblement pour l'Indépendance Nationale before it dissolved in 1968, sees the Parti Québécois breaking apart once its goals are achieved.

So does Ottawa. So does at least one report done for the U.S. state department. As a matter of fact, there is a host of prophets seeing the PQ plitting into fragments over a score of ideological issues, much as the Montreal Citizen's Movement is undergoing internal strife.

So what? The Parti Québécois is still in power, it's still changing things in this province and the effects of even four years in office will be felt long after any potential breakup of the party.

We know what Bourgault's saying. He's talking about the phenomenon we remember having written about last fall: that the PQ is the only political party in Quebec to have successfully transcended class structures. Pipe-smoking, Volvo-driving, turtle-neck-wearing professionals rub shoulders at PQ organizational meetings with dope-smoking longhairs whose idea of transportation is the Metro or the bus.

Again, this is why the PQ was so successful in 1976. At a time when other parties were phoning their local bagmen to find out what the people of the riding were talking about, the PQ was evident at every level.

At school elections, one or two PQ-affiliated candidates would present themselves. At hospital directors' meetings, the PQ voice would be heard. On municipal councils, the pequisite point of view was coming through loud and clear even when the Liberals held 102 seats in the national assembly.

In short, we're saying there's no magic formula that keeps the PQ united, just as there's nothing that says they'll break asunder once its so-called goals are reached.

It was hard work toward a common cause that united all those people across social boundaries, and as long as one segment doesn't feel it's sacrificing too much to any other segment's advantage, the party will stay in one piece.

So Mr. Bourgault's blanket prediction is meaningless. Once the party's leaders lose touch of what's really going on in this province — as the Bourassa Liberals did from 1974 to 1976 — it will have been because people at the riding level no longer care about the party enough to keep them informed about what happened.

The trials and tribulations of the democratic process apply to the Parti Québécois just as much as to any other political party — and perhaps more so. But wishful thinking never got anything done, and until a party becomes more dedicated to grassroots support than the PQ, it's the only game in town.

Spies in Ottawa: Tass last to know

This city is only now beginning to cool down from the excitement raised by the discovery of a Soviet spy ring here last week. The startling announcement provoked an unprecedented amount of traffic on Charlotte St., where the embassy of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics stands.

It's a concrete block building of nondescript architecture surrounded by a high iron fence. Entrances are constantly monitored by a series of closed circuit television cameras. It's unnerving even when attending a cocktail party at the Soviet embassy to be greeted cheerily at the door, only to notice if you glance sideways, four or five hard-looking men lounging in a sideroom, their eyes glued to the cameras.

The Soviets are high-profile entertainers in this town. There's a constant stream of invitations sent out to journalists, politicians, other diplomats, academics and others asking them to attend film viewings, cocktail parties and receptions for visiting delegations.

Even at the cocktail parties the ever-present closed circuit cameras monitor the public rooms, suspended from the ceilings high above the crowds of guests.

In the parliamentary press gallery there are four Soviet journalists. They attend news conferences and sittings of the House of Commons question period frequently. They on occasion take Canadian journalists out for lunch and the topics, at least insofar as my experience has revealed, are confined to the Canadian political scene, the possibility of an election, the next cabinet shuffle, and what is the Canadian government's real attitude to the Soviet Union?

The feeling of the journalist who has been scooped extends beyond ideology, apparently. Last week one Canadian wire service reporter called the Tass office in Ottawa and asked the Soviet journalist who answered what he knew about the spy ring. The answer, "Just like always, Tass is last to know. Last night at the embassy all they talked about in front of me was cosmonauts."

The RCMP are upset about the way the publicity surrounding the spy case was handled. After being under fire for months the Mounties hoped to gain maximum favourable publicity for the force when the story broke. Their plans included a wide-open news conference with RCMP Commissioner Simmonds to answer newsmen's questions and give the James Bond details of the spy ring.

However that was not to be. The orders came to the RCMP from the government, so says a high RCMP source, that the spy ring would be unveiled by the minister for external affairs, Don Jamieson and that a news conference by Commissioner Simmonds wouldn't be necessary. Obviously, however the publicity was handled, the RCMP stood to gain, but they are upset that some of their fellows didn't at least share the limelight with Mr. Jamieson, Mr. Trudeau and others.

At his news conference last week the prime minister in a joking answer revealed some valuable political information. For the first time he admitted the possibility existed that a federal election might be called before a federal budget is brought down. The minister of finance, Jean Chretien has said the next budget would come at the end of March or early in April.

Terry Hargreaves

The Record's

Ottawa correspondent

But if Mr. Trudeau called the election prior to that, and he admitted that was a possibility, the budget would come afterwards. The question of an election is also heavily in everyone's minds here these days. Three Ontario Liberal MP's told me they'd like to see one — and soon.

A private study by some Liberals shows that one Liberal MP who is going to have a tough time winning is Commons Speaker James Jerome. He represents Sudbury and the layoffs at INCO have not helped his chances of re-elect-tion. In spite of that, Mr. Jerome is getting a growing reputation across the country as a fair-minded, intelligent and no-nonsense Speaker. The television and radio exposure works to his benefit in that way at least.

The Liberals at their Feb. 24-26th convention in Ottawa had planned a cocktail party in the Parliament Buildings. This was not such an outrageous suggestion as it has been labelled by some. MPs of all parties have from time to time held receptions in one of the rooms in the Parliament Buildings for friends, acquaintances and presumably campaign workers. The battle this time was over the size of the affair. The Liberals anticipated 4,000 guests and between two and three dozen bars. Even the Speaker said he'd have to reconsider the go-ahead he'd already given after hearing that. Now the Liberals have quietly withdrawn the idea and are rescheduling their bash in downtown Ottawa hotels.

Opposition leader Joe Clark and his wife, Maureen returned from a speaking engagement in Toronto last week by air. On boarding the plane they found they were sharing the first class compartment with former Conservative Jack Horner. Mr. Horner, now minister of industry, trade and commerce, was with an aide on a return flight from Western Canada. An observer says there was no friendly chatter between the two groups of travellers.

Letters

Damn those metricizers

Editor:

Just a note to thank you for publishing part of my letter in the Record Feb. 10. I regret you saw fit to reject parts of it. If there had been any special names mentioned, I could see your reason to reject it, but there wasn't. It seems to me this doesn't give the readers of the Record an idea how we feel about such things. Anyway, I don't like that metric system and to be honest about it I don't like the ones that started it either. If we had been surrounded by countries that used the metric system it would have made all the difference in the world, but since North America (except Mexico) uses the same system, why spoil it? You know, I know and the fellow that made long horned oxen knows. Canada and the USA have accomplished more since Columbus discovered America and Jacques

Cartier sailed up the St. Lawrence river, than the rest of the world with their metric and other systems in thousands of years back to the days of Adam and Eve and North America accomplished all with the yard measure, pound weight, 5280 feet for a mile and 2000 lbs for a ton.

Those bums on the other side of the world expect Canada and the U.S.A. to feed them, but don't want to take it free of charge with our measure, and all we get in return is a gang of their criminals and drugs ruining the youth of our country. Don't think I am against the young folks, they are my best friends. Many of them have the same ideas as I have myself. Whether those ideas are good or bad, time will tell. As far as I am concerned, a pack of damn fools started the metric system and the rest of us aren't far above them or we wouldn't put up with it. I like your editorials so why not give us a spiel on those subjects? Anyway I never was a newspaper editor, so let's say you are right and I am wrong, you can't be offended at that. Have a good day, and my best to you all at the Record office. (you can't please em all).

Hope springs... and flops

Editor:

For some time, I have been tossing around the idea of writing to your paper and so here goes.

"Hope springs eternal in the human breast."

And so it was, we had hopes, that after the Christmas recession, the government would be able to get on with the country's business. No chance, because he was at it again with his small minded nit-picking. Who? "Joe Wh-who," that's who. Oh! They have dressed him up in a new suit, combed his hair into a different style, and probably cleaned and filed his finger nails. But the leader of the Opposition is still acting like a pompous, posturing, postulating school boy. Maybe, the TV exposure makes him feel like a big shot. He is always criticizing the Trudeau government and the Prime Minister himself for all the country's ills, nothing constructive at all. It would seem that Clark has made some sort of a pact with the leader of the N.D.P. who screams and rants like a rabble-rouser to gain votes and curry favour with the labour organizations. This pact, evidently, is to nit-pick, criticize and try to embarrass the government as much as possible; just destructive criticism.

If I should refer to the leader of the N.D.P. E. Broadbent (more bent than broad, not broad minded,) again, it will be as Yak Yak, because that is all he does.

The problems that we have in Canada, namely unemployment, inflation, unrest etc. are world-wide. No matter which party is in power, the problems would be the same. For all the talk of "Joe Wh-who," the opposition would do no better than the present government.

The continual bickering about the R.C.M.P. is a bit much and boring.

The boring Russian embassy spying exposure by the R.C.M.P. should be good reason for this force to have all the aid possible, whether it be opening suspicious mail or whatever.

I am wondering, if it is possible that the Francis Fox fiasco, was first dug up by one of Joe Wh-who's henchmen, to further embarrass Trudeau and his government.

Way back, when Stanfield was mumbling his way around Parliament, the Opposition were yelling for controls on wages and prices. Clark took up the cry when he became the P.C. leader.

The Trudeau administration set up the Wages and Prices Control Board and subsequently the A.I.B.; which has helped the consumer some.

Now the Opposition are screaming for the withdrawal of wages and price control, and the A.I.B.

Maybe they feel guilty because they did not turn down the hefty raise the government and the Opposition voted themselves some months back.

Now comes the possibility of a federal election within the next six months. Whichever party wins, the economy of Canada will follow that of the U.S.A. Should the P.C. win and the economy improve, they will surely claim the credit. If, however, conditions remain the same, or get worse, this would be blamed on the Trudeau Government.

Better that the present Liberal government be left in power to get their just deserts one way or the other.

The present leader of the opposition is in no way capable of running a country. He doesn't even know which foot to stand on or put in his mouth. With his hands on his hips and his chest puffed up, his cheeks blown out with a stumbling Wh-who, he is just a bluff, a bag of wind.

It begins to appear as though Clark has met his match in debate, in the person of Finance Minister Jean Chretien and also in the newly-appointed Solicitor-General Jean-Jacques Blais. I hope so, anyway.

Pierre Elliott Trudeau will always be able to hold his own.

When Clark learns to make constructive criticism, he might become a politician.

Having written this letter, I now feel much better.

"You're right, this iceberg did come down the Mississippi from Ohio."

Jack Anderson's Washington Merry-Go-Round

Violence a national scourge

by Jack Anderson and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — The cruelest violence in America today is found not in the crime-infested streets or behind prison walls, but right in our own homes, where husbands, wives and children, tragically, are abusing each other.

Domestic violence, according to experts, is threatening the fabric of American family life. Millions of Americans know someone whose wife or child is being regularly terrorized behind closed neighborhood doors.

"Violence," noted one expert, "is at least as typical of family relationships as love." Indeed, 30 percent of all murder victims are relatives of the assailants.

Corporal punishment in the home mostly goes unnoticed. The FBI reports that wife beating, for example, is the "most unreported crime in America." By all accounts, there are at least three million battered women suffering in silent fear. Many experts place the number at triple that figure.

The rise of the Women's Rights Movement, ironically, has been accompanied by an alarming increase in the number of bruised and battered women. One in three women responding to a Minneapolis survey told of being struck by their husbands or boyfriends.

The prevalent American attitude that a wife and a child are the property of the man of the house hasn't changed much, despite the cultural revolution of the past decade.

For example, a New Hampshire State

Commission on the Status of Women, incredibly, refused to help battered wives, claiming that wife beating was provoked by militant feminists.

The media may be partly to blame, according to investigators. Pictures of women bound, chained or being beaten are becoming increasingly common in widely circulated national magazines and are thought to be "chic."

The only alternative open to mistreated women and children often is to leave their abusive husbands and fathers. But family shelters set up to help those literally fleeing for their lives are all overcrowded far beyond their means to help.

Women aren't always the victims of household violence, a number of men have also been beaten by aggressive wives. But the most pitiful victims are the young and adolescents.

Because of a stubborn reluctance to report abusive parents, no one knows exactly how many children suffer the scars of parental rage or neglect. At least one million children under the age of 18, according to the most reliable estimates, are beaten, sexually attacked, or starved each year. Two thousand of the young victims die, some battered beyond recognition.

Whatever the cause, living in a violent household has dire permanent effects on youngsters. Assassins Lee Harvey Oswald and James Earl Ray, to name just two, were abused during deprived childhoods.

The impact of this physical and psychological warfare is being felt in every corner of the nation. An unpublished study by Nashville's mayor and Police Department reported 241 cases of domestic disturbances in a six-month period. More significantly, the study suggested that 10 times as many cases go unreported.

Sixty per cent of the night calls to police in Atlanta involve fights in the home. A Denver study on battered women charged that police discouraged victims from reporting acts of abuse against them.

But family squabbles are the police's toughest assignments. One of every five policemen killed in the line of duty is trying to settle a domestic quarrel. Consequently, police officers are sometimes reluctant to intervene. Most officers estimate that only about 5 per cent of the complaints result in arrests.

Worse yet, one New York expert maintains that police departments practice an informal "stitch rule" — only if a wound requires a certain number of stitches will an officer make an arrest.

But as long as violence is accepted as normal behavior in American society, conclude investigators, our most savage crimes will continue to be our most silent ones. Footnote: A house subcommittee headed by Rep. James Scheuer, D-N.Y., is examining the domestic violence issue.

A Senate subcommittee chaired by Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., meanwhile, is considering legislation aimed at preventing family violence.

Exhibition committee

The committee for the ladies section of the Sherbrooke Exhibition met at the arena. Mr. Donald MacMillan chaired the meeting and the prize list was finalized.

This committee is made up of member representatives from various local women's organizations and the local agricultural office.

Many new items have been added and changes made to the list. Copies are available from the secretary, 400 Park Street, Sherbrooke.

It is hoped that many will participate and that the women's exhibits will be more interesting than ever before. Let's bring our craft work to the fair.

Chronic constipation

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have read your columns about constipation and irregularity with great interest. My problem is chronic constipation. I'm 36 years old and have been taking laxative for almost 20 years. As far back as I can remember, I was given a laxative, and I continued that habit.

Over the years I've tried every concoction that people have told me about to become regular but nothing seems to help. I eat all the right foods and am now eating bran and taking bran tablets.

You mentioned a natural reflex and using this response to stay regular but my body doesn't respond, and I very seldom feel the urge to go to the bathroom. Is it possible that my intestine and colon have lost the ability to send a message to my brain after so many years of abuse from laxatives?

I have bad breath, also, which I'm told goes along with constipation. Any information that you can give will be greatly appreciated.

DEAR READER — Your letter is a good example of the misuse of laxatives. I hope all parents who are tempted to use laxatives for children will take note of your history.

It is true that long-term constipation can cause the colon to become atonic (flabby, if you will) and not contract normally. It can also cause the colon to be spastic. And most importantly in your case, the laxative can cause the colon to be always prematurely empty.

The usual pattern is that the person takes a chemical laxative and empties the colon. It will take about two days for the colon to fill again. Meanwhile, the person can't wait for nature to take over and takes another laxative, emptying the colon prematurely again and irritating the colon with the harsh chemicals the laxative contains. The vicious cycle is set in motion. You have to keep in mind that you can't empty ashes from the stove if there are no ashes there. Improving the bulk in your diet will help. Adding bran to your diet is a step in the right direction. In your case, though, and others who have long-standing constipation, it will take more than that.

There is a normal reflex action that occurs after eating, particularly in the morning. If you will readjust your life and be patient — avoiding laxatives and using tap water enemas only when absolutely needed during the training phase, you can train that reflex. To give you more information on this I would like to send you The Health Letter number 2-1, Irritable or Spastic Colon and Constipation, but you didn't have your address on your letter. Others who need help in this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Readers should be sure their address is on the letter itself and not just the envelope, or I can't send them a Health Letter.

It is not true that constipation causes bad breath, although that is a popular misconception. The colon is shut off from the stomach and there is no way its contents will add to the breath. The only exception is the rare person who has a hole between the colon and stomach (fistula), and I don't think you need worry about that. Bad breath is also a symptom and it can be caused from chemical imbalances of the body, lung disease, sinus disease and dental problems.

I might mention that some people have chronic constipation as a manifestation of psychological problems. A depressive reaction may result in constipation rather than an apparent depressed mood.

Ann Landers says

Check recurring nightmares

Dear Ann Landers: Never thought I'd see the day, but here I am — writing to Ann Landers. The problem is this: For several years (perhaps five or six,) every two months or so I have the same terrifying nightmare.

A man is standing beside my bed, sometimes old, sometimes young, never anyone I know — just stand-ding close to the bed staring at me. I'm 50 years old and have been married 29 years.

Last night's episode was especially horrible. I screamed and yelled — almost pushed my husband out of bed, begging him to turn on the light. I kept hollering, "He really is in this room!" When the light was turned on and I calmed down I was completely exhausted. My heart was pounding like a triphammer. I felt ill.

This nightmare occurred after a lovely day — church in the morning, breakfast out with our daughter and son-in-law, and dinner at another relative's. It was all very pleasant — no tension of any kind. Can you help me? — Haunted In Concord

Dear Friend: When a person has the same nightmare time and time again it has special significance.

You need counseling. Something is bothering you and it will take professional probing to learn what it is. I hope you will contact your local mental health association if you can't afford private therapy.

Dear Ann: Yesterday while I was driving my car, some jerk threw a rotten banana in the window. I think he was aiming to hit me but instead he hit the side DONIPHAN, Mo. (AP) — Mau Blossom, a former Californian with a penchant for wearing suspenders, has become an unlikely feminist symbol in this Ozark hill country after her arrest for delivering babies.

Ms. Blossom is a midwife, a profession older than the Bible and once commonly practised in the rugged Ozarks.

For almost four years she operated the Golden Light Birthing Service for women who wished to deliver at home or who could not afford to pay a doctor. She said it was not unusual for her to accept vegetables or a cord of firewood as payment.

All went well until one day last December when she was arrested and charged with practising medicine illegally. She goes on trial later this month and prosecutors admit they might not be able to find a jury willing to convict her.

"There's a strong tradition down here of helping yourself," said James Hall, Ripley County prosecutor. "A jury is just liable to say that it's your right to go to a midwife—or even to a witchdoctor—if you want."

Ms. Blossom has received messages of support from feminist groups around the country. Her legal expenses are being underwritten by the National Midwives' Association, which views the upcoming legal battle as a test case.

CHARGES WOMAN

Missouri has not licensed midwives since 1959. After a year-long investigation by the state board of registration for the healing arts, Ms. Blossom was charged with illegally aiding in the delivery of two children, a misdemeanor.

The 42-year-old registered nurse, who left Sacramento five years ago to "escape from consumerism," found what she was looking for in this rural community near the Arkansas border, about 290 kilometres southwest of St. Louis.

"I am not a warrior," she said. "I didn't choose this path. But when someone starts interfering with what is a woman's basic right—to have her baby at home—it is necessary for someone to stand up for that right."

The American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists is also watching the case closely. Dr. Warren Pearse, executive director of the Chicago-based group, says the doctors are alarmed by the increasing trend toward home births and the use of midwives, especially in the South and on the West Coast.

Ms. Blossom says she hopes her case will lead to laws that will make her profession legal in Missouri and other states.

"The way it stands now, a woman can have her baby alone," she said. "She can have it with her husband present in a pigpen. She can have it in her backyard with her neighbors watching. But the minute she invites someone there who knows something about birthing, she's breaking the law."

Outdoor picnic breaks winter tedium

A winter picnic. Untried by most, yet considered as natural to many Canadians as donning a pair of skis, mounting a snowmobile or strapping on a pair of snowshoes.

Nothing elaborate is necessary. Make-your-own sandwiches plus a thermos of hot soup, finished off with good Canadian cheddar cheese and fresh fruit, are all you need.

You'll find crispbread the easiest choice for carrying because it is naturally dry and crisp so is unaffected by the cold weather and it is compactly packaged. Another advantage, because it is baked very slowly in order to get its unique dry, crisp texture, it remains fresh indefinitely so there is no need for preservatives.

Sandwich toppings are limitless. The cold winter air acts as a natural refrigerator so there is no need to worry about food spoilage. Let your imagination be your guide. Sandwich ideas that are easy to serve on a winter picnic and go especially well with hot soup are:

mayonnaise and green onions on Ry-King golden rye crispbread cottage cheese sprinkled with chopped parsley on dill on Ry-King wheat crispbread boiled egg slices with sardines and lettuce on Ry-King light crispbread

a variety of cold meat slices with tomato slices on Ry-King golden rye crispbread peanut butter and cheddar cheese with apple slices on Ry-King wheat crispbread cold chicken topped with canned peach slices on lettuce on Ry-King light crispbread.

If your imagination runs dry, you can help it out with a super booklet that gives countless ideas for make-your-own sandwiches. Called Crispbread On Your Table, it is available free of charge from United Biscuits (Canada) Ltd., 2141 Jane St., Downsview, Ontario.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Curtains won't take dye

By Polly Cramer

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY — I have tried, but unsuccessfully, to dye some sun-faded kitchen curtains yellow. They are no-iron cotton and were originally a bright yellow color. Is there something I could add to dye to make it "take?" — JUANITA

DEAR JUANITA — Are you sure you bought the proper kind of dye? Also, did you follow the directions to the letter — dyeing yellow fabric yellow is just about as easy a dye job as one could ask for. Perhaps you forgot to make the curtains completely damp before putting them into the dye. Reread your instructions. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — My Pointer is for cat lovers who do not let their cats outside. I have three cats who stay indoors and use a litter box. I found that buying cat litter was getting to be too much of an expense for me since I had to change it so often. I also found litter all over the house from my cats' paws. My solution for this was to line the box with about 10 sheets of newspaper and then place shredded paper on top of that. When the paper is fouled up out comes the mess with the paper. No more litter around the house either. I find this works great and I have no odor since I change the paper daily. My cats love it. — BONNIE

DEAR POLLY — On a recent trip on a commercial airliner the stewardess spilled red cocktail sauce all over my beige slacks. She brought a can of club soda to clean me up. She rubbed this on the stain and when it dried there was not a trace of the sauce, nor was there a ring, left. She told me they use it all the time. — CAROLINE

DEAR POLLY — Put orange peels in a plastic bag and store them in the refrigerator. When you want to get rid of cooking odors boil them in some water for a little while and you'll find it works. — MARY R.

DEAR POLLY — After using one of those foam sheets in my dryer I use it to give the lint trap. A quick swipe and it grabs all the lint and cleans the trap without leaving a trace.

My Pet Peeve is with the manufacturers of plastic ware who print on the wrapper whether or not the product is dishwasher safe. If such information was embossed directly on the product I would not ruin so many gadgets. — MARGRETH

DEAR POLLY — My Pointer is for those who buy clothes for someone who is in a nursing home, particularly those confined to wheel chairs. Usually their joints are stiff and it is very hard to dress them. I suggest buying such clothes at least two sizes larger than those usually worn. I work in a nursing home and see the pain patients suffer when we dress them in clothes that barely fit. The style should also be considered. — MRS. E.L.

DEAR POLLY — Moist children's shoestrings with a cloth before tying them and find they will stay tied all day.

When I am beating something in a mixing bowl I place it on a damp towel or thin piece of foam or rubber and the bowl stays still. (Polly's note — This is especially good when using a portable electric mixer.)

Stuff a stocking with cedar chips and place behind a sofa when you have a musty smell. — DORA

Unions: the only way to change hiring practices

WINNIPEG (CP) — A Canadian Labor Congress (CLC) official told a weekend meeting here that women must become more involved in the trade union movement if they want to improve their employment prospects.

Mary Eady, head of the CLC's department of women's affairs, told a meeting organized by the Women in Trades Association that unless women become more involved with unions they will have little opportunity to change hiring practices.

The association, founded last summer, consists of about 60 Manitoba women tradesmen who were having trouble getting work in their fields, which have been traditionally reserved for men.

Ms. Eady told the conference that a woman's attempt to find employment in the construction trades is not just an individual matter.

"We are trying to change the world, to change the way men and women deal with each other in a personal way and in an on-the-job setting."

Ms. Eady said many women don't understand unions, citing statistics which show only 20 per cent of the women in the Canadian labor force belong to unions, while the figure for men is 40 per cent.

Bedford U.C. Pastoral Charge annual meeting

BEDFORD — The Annual meeting of the Bedford charge of the United Church was held in the Bedford Church Hall on Tues. Jan. 31st, with a good representation of each point.

Rev. K.H. Eddy presided and opened the meeting with prayer and scripture.

Mr. T. Bird read the minutes of the last annual meeting, and also of a special meeting held in June. These were duly accepted.

Most reports had been read at the local congregational meetings, so all were given, for general information, in a condensed form. All reports were most gratifying.

Mrs. Keith Oussoren read the Mission and Service fund report for the Charge, $7007.00 having been raised and forwarded to headquarters.

It was decided that the M. and S. committee would meet and rearrange the percentages.

Mrs. Oussoren was re-elected Treasurer.

Mrs. Carol Soule gave the manse report; no special repairs had been done during the year. A meeting will be called shortly to deal with suggested repairs.

The report of the newly formed "Eglise de Francophone du Bedford" was given. Some 35 families are associated with this new congregation, which, at a service held on Dec. 4th, 1977, officially became part of the Bedford charge of the United Church of Canada.

Rev. Ralph Watson, Presbytery secretary, and Mrs. D. Stalker, president of the Montreal Presbytery U.C.W. were present to officiate at the reception service of this fifth congregation made up primarily of former Swiss citizens. Rev. Charles Odier of Montreal will serve as their Pastor.

A church service will be held every second Sunday afternoon each month in Wesley Church, Bedford.

A Sunday School will be held, and baby sitting service provided during the Church service.

All births, marriages, baptisms and deaths will be recorded in the Bedford Charge registers.

This congregation will assist in operational expenses.

Mr. Bird, secretary and Mr. Stanley Soule, treasurer, were re-elected to their offices.

Presbytery representative to be chosen by Philipsburg Congregation.

Prior to the joint meeting the committee of Stewards of the Charge met and agreed to follow recommendations of General Council regarding minister's salary, percentages to be: Bedford 52 per cent, Stanbridge 24 per cent, Mystic 14 per cent and Philipsburg 10 per cent. This was accepted by the assembly.

Thanks were expressed to Rev. Eddy for his leadership, with the hope that he would remain as Pastor for many years.

Mr. Eddy expressed his appreciation for the cooperation of the entire charge and particularly the lay preachers who had so greatly assisted him during the year.

Meeting closed with benediction by Rev. Eddy. A social hour followed and refreshments were served.

WI meeting

SAWYERVILLE — The Women's Institute held their regular meeting on Feb. 1st, in the Community Center with the Pres. Mrs. Douglas Twyman presiding and opened with all repeating the Collect.

Motto — Never be afraid of cultivating some interest because the people in your immediate circle think it queer.

Roll call, answered by 12 members and one visitor, was: Which meeting did you enjoy most and why? Most answered all meetings but the December meeting was especially enjoyed.

Minutes of December meeting read by Mrs. F. Robinson and approved. Treasurer gave a satisfactory report. Several thank you notes were read.

Committees — Agriculture — Mrs. Geraldine Lowry read a poem, plants make music, Hungry re milk and The Good Old Days.

Education — Mrs. A. Fowler Pre-Kindergarten class start March 6, to be held at Mrs. Bernice Black's for 15 weeks.

A toy sale to be held at the Elementary School on Feb. 14.

Home Ec. — Mrs. R. Griffin — Cranberries chopped while frozen for easier handling. Candles kept in freezer last longer when lit. For wrapping gifts, strips cut from fabric with pinking shears is very effective.

Citizenship — Mrs. E. Watt read a poem taken from Sherbrooke Record in Tribute to Miss Clara Aikenhead, R.N.

Cheer and Courtesy — 36 cards sent at Christmas, one sympathy and six get-well. Program for 1978 was given by Mrs. Fred Robinson.

12 A.C.W.W. pins are to be ordered.

The meeting was adjourned by Mrs. A. McLeod.

Program was in charge of Publicity. Mrs. Donald Laroche welcomed Mrs. Thelma Montgomery, also Mrs. Mildred Knapp of East Angus. They gave a very interesting and enlightening talk on their visit to Germany and Paris. They were thanked by Mrs. Laroche.

A drawing was held with Mrs. Montgomery holding the lucky number. Each member brought an item which was sold, realizing a nice sum.

Delicious home-made bread and cheese was served by Mrs. F. Robinson and all enjoyed a social chat.

Ladies Aid meets

HUNTINGVILLE — The January meeting of the Huntingville Ladies Aid was held at the home of Mrs. Bernice Sewell with 8 members and two guests present.

The president Mrs. Clifford Spaulding was in the chair and opened the meeting with the Lord's Prayer and a reading "The Magic of a friend." Devotions, Psalm 19 was read by Mrs. Sewell.

The secretary and treasurer gave their reports which were accepted. Mrs. Parker Lyonnais said she sent out three sympathy cards, ten Christmas cheer boxes and a box of oranges to the Grace Christian Home. $25.00 was given the Huntingville Christian Church.

Thanks went to Mrs. Stanley Chute for taking a basket of cheer to Mrs. Eva Fairbrother at the Youville Hospital.

Mrs. John Klinck as guest speaker gave a very interesting talk on cancer. Sandra expressed one very important thing was to be sure and have a yearly checkup by your family doctor.

Mrs. Spaulding thanked Mrs. Klinck for coming and giving such an interesting talk, which everyone enjoyed and hope Sandra will come again soon. Mrs. Sewell presented her with a gift in appreciation.

The meeting was closed with the Mizpah Benediction, after which lunch was served by the hostess and a social hour enjoyed.

by the regular business. There was no correspondence.

Mrs. Wm. Paterson turned in two quilt tops which she had pieced. These will be finished at a later date. An amount of yarn had been purchased and Mrs. Brock will knit this into socks.

A motion was made to have all outstanding bills paid. Cards were signed to be sent to a member, Mrs. H. Farquhar, who remains a patient at the Sherbrooke Hospital. A card was also signed to be sent to Grant Watson who is a patient at the C.H.U.

Articles for auction were brought in by Mrs. Corriveau, Mrs. Langlois and Mrs. Poudrier. Two articles to be used for card party prizes were received. The names of Joan Farquhar and Dot McCourt were drawn to bring articles for next month's auction.

A drawing was held on a pretty cup and saucer, designed with shamrocks, and won by Mrs. Kathleen Lacroix. Mrs. W. Paterson acted as auctioneer for the sale of articles.

Mrs. Randy McCourt offered to have the March meeting at her home, with Mrs. Rita McGee and Mrs. G. McGee as assisting hostesses.

At the close of the afternoon, delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. Caron, assisted by Mrs. Delbert Watson and Mrs. P. Corriveau.

WINTER REVERIE

The winter wind is whistling
And trees are bending low.
Out there the snow is glistening.
In here, the fireside glow.

Creaky steps approaching.
A kindred spirit comes!
To share as pleasant evening.
As the song he gaily hums

Did you meet up with Sir Rabbit
In the woods along your way?
Or notice dainty foot-prints
Of small friends, who could not stay?

— Or see some little snow-birds
In delightful snowy whirls!
— Or look to distant chimneys,
With smoke rising up in swirls?

— Or gaze down in crystal waters
From the little bridge you crossed,
And hear enchanting sounds from Underneath, the sparkling frost?

And with each succeeding foot-step — Awareness greatly heightened?
In the path of quiet beauty,
The shining moon has brightened.

Now to enjoy sweet repose,
Far from the city's din,
Just close your eyes and listen,
To the whistling winter wind!

Mrs. Milborne is visiting her daughter Brenda (Green) for the winter. On Christmas Eve they were entertained at the home of an American French Canadian where they were eating tortieries. The letter goes on: "Miss Annette Fleury will smile as she had written 'how nice to be able to enjoy a traditional German Christmas.' They spent a wonderful Christmas — 'the Germans seem to know how to make Christmas mean something.... I was just thrilled with our weekend at Nuremberg and all the fascinating stalls in the market place with their wonderful wares.'"

At New Year's they drove along the Rhine up to Essen and "no wonder it is supposed to be the most beautifully decorated city in Germany — out of this world!" Mrs. Milborne then goes on to mention she

STANBRIDGE EAST K.D. Tree

This community was greatly saddened to hear of the death of Mrs. Alton Laduke which occurred on Saturday morning at the Royal Victoria Hospital in Montreal, after a very lengthy illness, which she bore with great fortitude. Mrs. Laduke "Viny", as she was affectionately known, was one of those rare persons who always maintained that cheerful disposition, under all circumstances over the years, never complaining, knowing that her end was only a matter of time. She will be greatly missed by a host of friends, her neighbours and especially by her family to whom the deepest sympathy is extended.

On Jan. 25, Mrs. Elma Harvey of Stanbridge East was given a birthday party at her home in the Van Herck Apartments which had been arranged by her daughter Mrs. Ellis Jones of Bedford, and her daughters-in-law, Mesdames Clayton, Calvin and Junior Harvey.

Mrs. Harvey was pleased to receive a phone call from her daughter Mrs. Darby, who was on holiday in Florida.

After a pleasant social hour when Mrs. Harvey opened several lovely gifts, and received thirty birthday cards, and expressed her thanks to all, a very lovely afternoon tea was served, and all joined in singing "Happy Birthday", when the beautiful cake was carried in and served.

One of the latest victims of the flu in our town is Mrs. Wesley Gage who has been quite ill with it, but is now on the way to recovery.

Mrs. Homer Bedee and Mrs. Bernice Moore were recently calling on Miss Brenda Heney at the Nesbitt Home and found her greatly improved in health, much to the gratification of her many friends here.

Mr. Robert Appleby of Nelson N.Z. has returned from a few days spent in Florida visiting relatives. He accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Lyal Rhicard to Florida but returned here alone. Mr. and Mrs. Rhicard are remaining in Florida for a few weeks. Danny Rhicard accompanied him as far as Montreal where they took in the Canadiens hockey game, this being the first live hockey game that Mr. Appleby had ever witnessed and needless to say he was greatly impressed.

They have excellent skiing in the very southern part of N.Z. which is very mountainous but evidently no hockey games there.

Mr. Colin Gage has been sent to Newfoundland by his company and expects to be gone for about three weeks. Miss Rosemary Gage has secured a position in the office of Champlain Milk Industries.

Mrs. Thelma Muncaster of Moose River, Mrs. Norma Miller and Mrs. Judy McDonald of Bedford were recent dinner guests at the Tree home.

Several from this community have discovered that trips to the South in winter are not always what they are cracked out to be. Some have stuck it out in Florida for a few weeks, where rain and cold have spoiled their stay while others have returned home prematurely. Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Taylor spent a month in Los Angeles area of California and while there experienced one of those dust storms and to add icing to the cake it rained mud the next morning. The dust from the desert is so fine that it penetrates the houses wherever there is a crack around the doors, even through the key hole. It is carried high into the upper atmosphere. In this case it started raining the next morning and Bill said that it actually rained tiny balls of mud. Just a bit of rather clouded liquid sunshine. Unfortunately Mr. and Mrs. Taylor only had four nice days during the entire month that they spent in California. We complain of all the snow and very cold weather that we are experiencing here in Canada this winter, but at least it is clean atmospherically.

Mr. Foster Wightman has returned from a trip to British Columbia where he visited relatives for several days. Foster says that he is not at all favourably impressed with air travel, especially during the holiday season.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Boomhower have left Stanbridge East to make their future home in South Carolina, much to the regret of their many friends here; another sorrowful aspect of conditions here in Quebec, where so many worthy young couples have to seek greener pastures.

Mr. David Monette has rented the home of Mr. Elmer Boomhower for an indefinite length of time.

BIRCHTON

When the mercury touched well below zero on the afternoon and evening of February 4, David Taylor, in charge of the planning of the Winter Carnival at the Birchton rink, and his co-workers, were rather discouraged about the attendance and the promised opposition to scheduled broomball game did not brave the cold. The sub-zero weather certainly lessened the attendance at the Sports evening of Fun and Games in the Community Centre in Bulwer.

But when the sun shone brightly the morning of the 5th and the mercury started

ASTRO-GRAPH
Bernice Bede Osol

Feb. 16, 1978

Take time this coming year to add to your knowledge by studying subjects that you find pleasurable. Your enjoyable pursuit could take a profitable turn.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) A wily antagonist may try to put down someone you like in front of mutual friends today. Step forward in his defense should he appear overmatched. Having trouble selecting a career? Send for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter by mailing 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You have the unique ability today to turn "nothing" situations into something beneficial. Don't ignore small opportunities.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Say what needs to be said today, not what you think a friend might like to hear. Sincerity serves, evasion solves nothing.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) An associate who occasionally succeeds with crafty tactics is no match for you today. You'll see through his guile and fail him.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your ability to arouse the spirit of cooperation is your greatest asset today. What you can't cut alone can be achieved with enthusiastic allies.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Where you are motivated by selflessness, your efforts will be amazingly effective today. Be a giver, not a taker.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll be able to adapt yourself with ease today even in unfamiliar groups. One who lacks this talent will eye you with envy.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) By overcoming innate uncertainties and meeting challenges head on, substantial advantages can be gained today careerwise. Don't be timid.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You may become involved in an incident today where you'll be tempted to respond to pettiness, with pettiness, but you'll rise above it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) In negotiating commercial matters you may feel intimidated today. You shouldn't. It would be a mistake to bargain from weakness.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A pleasant surprise may be in store today, when you learn of the compliments paid you by an associate whom you felt didn't respect you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Performance, not appearance, is what really counts today. If your endeavors are honest and productive, don't fear what others may think.

climbing, many gathered at the rink when three teams, those from Sawyerville, Huntingville and Birchton each played the other two at Broomball, with Mr. Odell Winslow as referee.

About one o'clock a goodly number were glad to partake of the hot casseroles, and other foods, at the pot-luck lunch in the Hall, in charge of the Youth Group, assisted by some of the U.C.W., whose assistance had been solicited.

In the afternoon some enjoyed cross-country skiing and snowshoeing, while others cheered at the hockey game between the dads and sons. The score was not noised abroad by the elders!

Those who planned and helped are to be congratulated, and it is hoped that much activity will be enjoyed at the Birchton rink, with good weather.

Executive of the B-B Sports Association includes T.J. Harbinson, Conley Harbinson, Herb Gaulin, Craig McBurney, as Past President, President, Vice-President, Secretary, Treasurer, respectively along with a Committee of Directors.

Mr. and Mrs. Basil Prescott were supper and evening guests of Mrs. Kenneth Johnston in Bulwer, recently.

LIBBYTOWN

Mrs. H. Carl Mayhew

Mr. and Mrs. Wellman Smith of St. Bruno were recent overnight guests of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Dunn. Luncheon guests of the Duns were Mr. and Mrs. A.J. Buckland and son, James, of Waterloo. Mr. and Mrs. H. McElroy of Sutton were also guests at the same home recently.

Mr. and Mrs. J.E. Dunn were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. C.P. Rhodes in Newport, V.I., to wish Kimberley Rhodes "Bon Voyage" prior to her student exchange trip to France.

Mr. and Mrs. J.E. Dunn spent a recent day in Waterloo visiting relatives and friends.

Mr. Thornton Cass of Hamilton, Ont., was a weekend guest of his mother, Mrs. Stuart Cass. Mr. Trevor Cass of Montreal also spent a few days at his parental home.

Miss Cathy Marshall of Montreal was a weekend guest of Mrs. Stuart Cass.

Mrs. Rene Lewand and Liane of Waterloo, Ont., were guests of Mrs. Lewand's mother, Mrs. Muriel Cass on February 4.

Miss Donna Nutbrown was a weekend guest of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Lachapelle and, with Mrs. Lachapelle, attended the Ice Follies at the Forum.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Parsons of Beaver Ridge Farm, Cookshire, were luncheon guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. Carl Mayhew on January 30. Mrs. Parsons had many interesting bits of data to relate concerning her recent trip to Barbados.

RICHMOND

Friends of Mr. Eric Malboeuf are pleased to hear that he is improving slowly since returning home from the hospital.

On January 27, a surprise birthday party was given by the family for Mrs. Eric Malboeuf at her home, when a delicious dinner was served. Her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Wayne Malboeuf made the pretty birthday cake which was trimmed with colored candles. She received a number of gifts and cards for which she thanked everyone and for the lovely dinner and gifts.

Mr. Wayne Malboeuf, with his wife and family, of Melbourne celebrated his birthday at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Malboeuf. Mrs. Malboeuf made a delicious birthday cake and it was prettily decorated for the occasion. The celebrant received a number of gifts and cards for which he thanked everyone.

ACW meeting

NORTH HATLEY — The Anglican Church Women of St. Barnabas Church held their regular meeting at the Community Hall on January 18, chaired by Mrs. V. Wilson.

The devotions were prepared and read by Miss A. Gillard.

The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. C. Coleman and approved. The treasurer, Mrs. E. Ditchburn gave the financial report.

Mrs. A. Sytan, Community Club delegate, gave her report on the annual meeting.

Miss H. Ireland, Prayer Partner Secretary, read a most interesting letter from Mrs. Brian Ford describing their work at Port Harrison, Que.

The Budget Committee report was read by Mrs. G. LeBaron.

Plans for the year are as follows:

Scotch Auction — April 19. Bazaar — July 12. Christmas Tea and Sale — November 15.

The World Day of Prayer meeting will be held at the Baptist Church on March 3rd.

Tea was served by the hostesses, Mrs. E. Hartwell and Mrs. R. Spriggs.

UCW meeting

RICHMOND — The first meeting of the New Year of the Richmond-Melbourne U.C.W. was held in Chalmers Church parlor on Wednesday, Feb. 1st, with 16 members present. Mrs. Vesta Armstrong presided and after opening the meeting called on Mrs. Grace Taylor to lead the devotional period.

Mrs. Armstrong then read the slate of officers for the new year as presented by the nominating committee. It was moved and approved that the list be accepted as read. Mrs. Armstrong asked Mrs. Taylor to conduct the Installation service, after which the regular business meeting took place.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Correspondence consisted of thank-you notes for sympathy cards from Mr. and Mrs. Perry Lemoine and Ernest Bradfield and family, also a number of letters from Wales Home residents and shut-ins expressing appreciation for their remembrances and visits, at Christmas time.

Arrangements were made to serve refreshments after the Ecumenical Service held in Chalmers Church on Feb. 6. Food lists were given out for the World Day of Prayer, also to be held in Chalmers Church on Friday, March 3rd, at 8:00 p.m.

Mrs. Ethel Moreland reported 91 Wales Home and 21 local calls had been made by the group.

Mrs. Armstrong reported that the social committee had met and chosen dates and had verified with Mrs. Doyle for the Chicken Salad Tea on April 26, a Harvest Supper on September 14 and the Christmas Tea on Nov. 11th.

Annual reports were given by the treasurer, the Manse committee, the visiting and card committees as well as all Units.

Mrs. Armstrong explained that the Duty sheets for the year had not yet been printed, but will be ready shortly.

The question of new dishes for the kitchen was discussed, as there are not enough to set the required tables for a supper. It was moved by Mrs. Isobel Dykeman and seconded by Mrs. Douglas Kerr that we purchase four dozen cups, saucers, plates and side plates. Mrs. R. Griffith, Mrs. D. Kerr and Miss Jean Pepler volunteered to take charge of this.

A minute's silence was observed in memory of Mrs. G.W. (Pearl) Ewing, after which the meeting was adjourned and the Mizpah Benediction repeated. Refreshments were served by several ladies.

Correction — In February 8 - Record in the Scotstown U.C.W. News, in the report of the activities, the donation to the Second Mile Ministries for the Senior Citizen Center at Sawyerville should have read $50.00 instead of $5.00.

Weekend guests of Donald Matheson and his sister Mrs. Melvin MacDonald were Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Thoma of Lachine and Mrs. Robertson and son Kevin of Montreal. Sunday guests were Mr. and Mrs. Percy Blick and Mrs. Doris Price of Lennoxville and Mr. and Mrs. William Covey of Coburn Gore, Maine.

All are pleased that Frank Haskell has returned to his home after his stay in the Sherbrooke Hospital, much improved in health.

Stanstead Chapter IODE annual meeting

STANSTEAD (IH) — The annual meeting of Stanstead Chapter IODE was held on Monday afternoon, February 6 in Stanstead College LeBaron Hall reception room with a good number attending, who were welcomed by the Regent, Miss Barbara Lax.

After the usual prayer of the Order, Miss Lax called for a moment of silence as all remembered a dedicated member and Past Regent, Mrs. Ellen Wallbridge, who died January 11, 1978.

Mrs. Simone DuBois gave the secretary and the correspondence reports. The luncheon proposed for May will not be held due to circumstances beyond the control of the Chapter. The communication from the Women's Center in Stanstead will be relayed to the program secretary, Mrs. Mabel Wallace.

Mrs. J.S. McCannel appealed for broken toys to be remade for Christmas 1978. She volunteered to pick up any donations if called by phone.

The work and achievements of the past year were shared as the secretaries gave their annual reports as one of great satisfaction and the feeling that much has been done to help people in the communities, and further afield.

Mrs. Merton Davis, treasurer, noted 48 members the past year, this includes three life and to Honorary. In addition to the amount of money from the secretaries to worthwhile programs, the Chapter donated to Canadian Scene, Peace Garden, Queen's Silver Jubilee fund, Shipping Fund, and met all obligations of the Provincial and National levels.

Membership, Mrs. Howard Aikman noted four new members the past year as interest grows in the Order. Visits were made to communities new comers and the women have been invited to attend a meeting of the Chapter as a "get acquainted" measure.

Mrs. Louise Shaw, Education, in her report stated that in 1977 a sum of $1,960.04 was spent to assist young people. IODE calendars were sold at cost price. Two memorial books were placed in the Haskell Library. Two books in French were given as prizes to the Stanstead Ursuline convent and a sum of money to Stanstead College for prizes.

Sunnyside, the adopted school of the Chapter was supported by $500. for the hot lunch program for needy children, plus other gifts of vitamins, cash and books. A sum of $465.05 was donated to the local Swim School. Assistance given by money to the Brownies and Girl Guides. Students bursaries and assistance were given by the Chapter to local persons. Money was also donated to the Dixville Home and Butters Memorial Center.

Services at Home and Abroad secretary, Mrs. Douglas Jackson reported on clothing taken to the Dixville Home and to the Butters Memorial Center, also a shipment of training suits to Grand Ligne school. Gifts to the Douglas Hospital, Verdun, at Christmas time totaled a value of $35.00 and gifts were sent to Fort Chimo, N.W.T.

Echoes, Mrs. Florence Finlayson stated all members receive the IODE Quarterly issue of the magazine and she has presented at each meeting an item of special interest.

Public Relations secretary, Mrs. Ivy Hatch said all accounts of meetings and Chapter activities were printed in the news media serving the Boundary areas and posters advertised the annual bazaar.

Citizenship secretary, Mrs. Jean Beasse spoke to the Senior Citizens by money towards trips, visits to their homes, and to sick and shut-ins. An armistice wreath was purchased from the Stanstead Legion Branch and placed at the base of the Rock Island cenotaph.

Members also placed wreaths on Remembrance day and all purchased poppies to wear. The Chapter support a foster child in Swaziland and one Chapter member and her family have a June picnic luncheon and afternoon program at their country estate.

Standard Bearer, Mrs. W.B. Dustin reported the three flags, Maple Leaf, Quebec flag and the Union

Jack are displayed at all meetings and the fall bazaar. It was also noted money was given in support of the local hockey Club and prizes to Sunnyside students for the essay prizes on Canada's Royal Heritage.

The annual bazaar in September was decided a success, so reported Mrs. DuBois in her report. Money was raised for the Swim School through marathon bridge played nine months of the year. Programs have been an interest with narrated films, speakers, Brownies visit and demonstrations.

Miss Lax, vacating the Regent's chair said she was greatly impressed with the accomplishments of the past year and spoke appreciation to her executive and every member for their loyalty and dedication upholding the aims of IODE.

Mrs. Agnes Myers, Chairman of nominations presented the slate as follows: Honorary Regent, Mrs. C. Scarth; Honorary Vice-Regent, Mrs. Ada Curtis; Regent, Mrs. Myers; Associate Regent, Mrs. W.B. Dustin; Vice-Regents, Mrs. Don Gerber and Mrs. Alice McHarg; secretary, Mrs. Ralph Rogers and treasurer, Mrs. Merton Davis.

Secretaries: Service, Mrs. Douglas Jackson; Citizenship, Mrs. Jean Beasse; Public Relations, Mrs. Ivy Hatch; Membership, Mrs. Howard Aikman; Echoes, Mrs. Frances Finlayson; Education, Mrs. Louise

Shaw, Standard Bearer, Mrs. W.B. Dustin; Program, Mrs. Mabel Wallace; Hostess, Mrs. F. Finlayson.

With Mrs. Myers in the Regent's chair, she graciously thanked Miss Lax for her leadership and dedication carried out so faithfully the past two years. Mrs. Simone DuBois, secretary for the past six years, was also accorded words of appreciation for her excellent work.

It was announced the annual 1978 bazaar will be held on September 24 and further plans will be made in March and April. A finance committee is to be named at the March meeting to draw up a budget.

Founders Day, Feb. 13 of IODE in Canada will be observed at the March 6 meeting when seven members will each read the history of a decade.

Members volunteered to assist at the Senior Citizens luncheons by doing the "cleaning up" operations with Mrs. J.S. McCannel and another to the February gathering, Mrs. W.B. Dustin and Mrs. Douglas Jackson, the March gathering in Stanstead South Church Fellowship Hall.

A book is to be purchased and placed in the Haskell Library as a memorial to the late Mrs. Ellen Wallbridge; books in French are to be ordered as prizes for the Ursuline Convent closing in the spring.

The meeting adjourned and the hostesses, Mrs. Louise Shaw and Mrs. Jean Beasse served refreshments. Mrs. Howard Aikman poured at the lace-covered table centered with Valentine decor.

KINGSEY FALLS

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Blake, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. David Gifford, attended the Capping Ceremony of Nursing Assistants, Class of 1978 on February 2nd, in Alexander Galt School, Lennoxville. Mrs. Judy Bushey was one of the twelve graduates.

Mrs. Eva Leith spent a few days at the home of her niece Mrs. Dorothy Leith, Danville.

Mrs. Gerard Roux (nee Prefontaine) of Sherbrooke visited her sister, Mrs. R. Boisvert.

Mrs. Velma Snaden, Mrs. Delmar Marston and son, Fraser visited their aunt, Mrs. Eva Leith on Sunday, Feb. 5.

News Briefs

Housewife slur draws ire

OTTAWA (CP) — An MP demanded Tuesday that Science Minister Judd Buchanan apologize to millions of housewives for a gratuitous insult contained in a departmental report.

Robert Howie (PC—York Sunbury) said the report says that "because the household labor force is technologically unsophisticated it cannot make the right decisions when it purchases."

Italian judge gunned down

ROME (Reuters) — An Italian magistrate was murdered Tuesday in an apparent attempt to intimidate the judiciary only weeks before the trial of a leftwing terrorist leader.

Dr. Riccardo Palma, 63, was cut down by machine-gun fire as he climbed into his car outside his home shortly after 9 a.m.

Witnesses said three masked men surrounded the car as Palma stepped into it and one of the group opened fire with a machine-gun, hitting the magistrate six or seven times.

Sweetheart draw results

MONTREAL (CP) — A total of 770 winning numbers were drawn in a special Loto Canada "Sweetheart Draw" here Tuesday.

In a departure from its usual million-dollar lottery, Loto Canada awarded 70 prizes of $5,000 each and 700 prizes of $500 each. The winners were part of a Valentine's Day bonus program.

Both winning and losing tickets in Tuesday's draw are still eligible for the next million-dollar draw on April 2.

The 700 winning numbers worth $500 each were to be released by lottery officials today.

Here are the 70 winning number combinations, each worth $5,000:

and through to Fleurimont. Engineering firm representative Andre Poulin, said planning was in "very preliminary stages" and that the Ministry of Transport's final route choice could be influenced by local reaction.

Bishop's College School principal John Cowan said the second route would be "severely destructive" to the private co-ed boarding school.

According to Mr. Cowan, close to 50 per cent of the school's property would be destroyed by the highway and any further construction or expansion plans would be aborted.

The proposed route passes within 1,000 feet of the school's residential Gillard House.

"We're talking about kids, about education, about recreation," he said. "I'm not fighting the construction of a highway, but there is certainly somewhere else it can go, and still serve its purpose just as effectively."

Mr. Cowan said he plans to discuss the problem with B.C.S. Board of Governors. Bishop's University Corporation President, Dr. James Ross said he saw "nothing good" about the second route, which will pass within 200 feet of university property.

"The noise, the traffic — the proposed route would turn a quiet residential campus into a mid-city campus," Dr. Ross said.

"We have to find the route which serves the purpose without taking away the advantages, the small-town atmosphere in which we live."

"It's not a question of just fighting the highway; we have to present constructive alternatives," he added.

Dr. Ross said he will be meeting with the university administration and noted the possibility of enlisting the help of the geography department in presenting alternate routes.

Municipal councillor Robert Calder said he was "alarmed" at the second route, which he said poses a definite threat to Lennoxville's two "most valuable assets," B.C.S. and the university.

Councillor Robert Nichol said the council strenuously opposed the first route which would cut through several residential areas without rerouting Vermont traffic.

Mayor Cecil Dougherty told those attending the meeting they should be more concerned with constructive opinion than destructive objection.

"We're much too quick on the defensive. We argue, we object. We want a highway, and see the need for change, so we have to make suggestions and recommendations for the best possible solution," Mr. Dougherty said.

Richard Glass, director of the Coalition des Conservateurs des Cantons, said that while the third route seemed most acceptable to the community as a whole, it would present the greatest threat to the environment.

"The exhaust, the construction, the noise would definitely affect the wildlife, the birds, the fish that inhabit the Massawippi River area, and the highway would run through excellent farming land. There are problems, but we have to look at the global effect this economically, socially, and culturally," he said.

Mr. Poulin encouraged all residents to voice their opinions on the proposed routes, and added that any recommendations would be included in the company's report to the Quebec Ministry of Transport.

Obituaries

LLEWELYN A.R. BOOTH of Melbourne

Llewellyn Ariel Ralph Booth, well known resident of Melbourne, Que., passed away at the Sherbrooke Hospital on Feb. 1st, 1978 in his 82nd year.

He was born at Melbourne Ridge on April 18, 1896, son of Duncan Booth, and his wife Alice Brown.

On July 11th, 1977, he was married to Lucilla Alice Norris at Bethany. They lived a very happy married life, farming on Melbourne Ridge for many years.

Of that marriage were born five children: Leila, Ariel, Leslie, Elsie and Roland.

Mr. Booth served in World War 1. His eldest son Ariel served in World War 2, gave his young life in 1943 and lies buried in Morrow River Cemetery, Ortona, Italy.

Mr. Booth's wife predeceased him May 12, 1953, in her 58th year.

He remarried in 1956 to Janet Norris, they retired to live in Melbourne in 1961, where Mrs. Booth's brother Hiram Beauregard lived with them for the past 17 years.

One sister Beatrice and a brother Campbell predeceased him.

Left to mourn the loss of a loving husband and father are his wife Janet, two daughters, Leila and husband Frederick Fleming of Sherbrooke, Elsie and husband Raymond Woods of Melbourne Ridge, two sons Leslie and wife Gweneth of Chomedey, Que., Roland and wife Ruth of Bridgewater, N.S.

Sixteen grandchildren, Marilyn and husband Rodney Bennett of Thornhill, Ont., Sharron and husband David Hill of Notre Dame de L'Isle Perrot, Que., Bruce Fleming and wife Sheila of Yarmouth, N.S., Sheila and husband Bruce Blackley, Gainsville, Virginia, Deborah and Linda Booth, Chomedey, Que., Brian Woods, Melbourne Ridge, Larry Woods and wife Linda, Ottawa, Ont., Donna Lee Woods, Montreal, Randy and Kimberley Woods of Melbourne Ridge.

Charles Booth and wife Diane, Gary Booth and wife Donna, Wendy, Joan and Cindy Booth, all of Bridgewater, N.S. A grandson James of Bridgewater, N.S. predeceased him in a drowning incident in May, 1977, five great-grandchildren, Jeffrey and Julie Bennett, Suzanne Hill Melanie Booth and Jason Booth.

Also left to mourn are one sister Isola, Mrs. S. McMannis of Melbourne, two brothers, Vernon Booth and wife Jean of Melbourne Ridge, Oswald Booth of Assiniboia, Sask., and many nieces, nephews and friends.

The bearers were Clifford Taber, Ernest Wilkins, Lloyd Fowler, Neil Fowler, Charles Chagnon and Thomas Gilchrist, all friends of the family.

Funeral service was held at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Upper Melbourne and was conducted by Rev. Jack who spoke words of comfort and sympathy to the bereaved family.

The choir sang "What a Friend we have in Jesus", and "There is no Night in Heaven".

The remains will rest in the Maple Grove Vault until spring when interment will take place at Melbourne Ridge Cemetery, beside his late wife Lucilla.

Lunch was served after the funeral.

"At the root of it all is a continued lack of confidence in the Canadian economy," a currency trader for the Bank of Montreal said. February is usually a bad month for the dollar because of the heavy volume of travel by Canadians abroad.

Tuesday's meeting contrasted with the first day of the conference. Monday the premiers agreed to hold the line on government spending and cut government red tape.

But trade policy, always a controversial topic because of the diverse regional interests across the country, was Tuesday's first topic and the talks soon ran into stormy weather.

Davis, leading the discussion, suggested there should be federal assistance to weaker industries to help them adjust to coming freer world trade.

He was quickly supported by Quebec, which has a variety of industries, such as textiles, clothing, footwear and furniture that are facing low-cost foreign competition.

funeral by the ladies of St. Andrew's.

Friends and relatives attending the funeral were from Montreal, Granby, Waterloo, Sherbrooke, and surrounding area.

MRS. ARTHUR BRADLEY of Knowlton

Mrs. Eva Bradley died on January 27, 1978.

The former Eva Jane Walker was born on April 15, 1889 in South Stukely and lived in that vicinity until her marriage to Arthur Leon Bradley of West Bolton on Wednesday, November 11th, 1914, at St. Matthew's Church, South Stukely, the Reverend F. Charles Ireland officiating.

Her husband died on December 31, 1928 of pneumonia. Since then, Eva lived alone in their house on St. Paul's Road until she broke her hip on December 31, 1977. Following two weeks as a patient in the Royal Victoria Hospital, she spent a further two weeks in the Montreal Convalescent Hospital where she passed away.

She was buried from St. Paul's Church, Knowlton on January 29 at 2:00 p.m., the Reverend David Stanway conducting the service and the choir in attendance.

She was a faithful member of St. Paul's Church, singing in the choir for about 45 years. She was always a willing participant in special choir events, such as funerals, and belonged to, and worked hard for the W.A. where she acted for many years as apron conveyor for the work table for the various sales.

She leaves three cousins, all living in the United States, Elmer Lewis, Raymond Lewis and Laura Lewis Ingalls.

Bearers were Gordon Aude, Keith Mizener, Lawrence Rhicard, Lawrence Page, Ernest Badger and Norman Crandall.

MARY J. McCOMB of Bulwer

Mary Josephine McComb entered into rest on January 12, 1978 at the Sherbrooke Hospital.

Born in Magherafelt, County Derry, Ireland on Sept. 24, 1910, daughter of William O'Brien and Sarah Jane Wright. They came to Canada in 1926, taking up residence in Gould area.

On May 28, 1929, she was united in marriage to Thomas McComb of Jordan Hill Road. She became the mother to his young daughter Violet. Of this union there were four boys and two girls.

She was a person of great strength, a more devoted wife and mother could not be found. She was a loving grandmother to several grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. She diligently cared for her late husband the past few years in his failing health, he predeceased her by only two months before her sudden death.

She leaves to mourn her loss, three daughters, Violet (Mrs. Wallace Mathew), Matheson, Ont., Fern (Mrs. Keith Nutbrown), Aylmer, Ont., Jewell (Mrs. Alson Loukes), Williston, Vt., four sons, Walter of Rock Forest, Everett and Eugene, both of Eaton Corner and Allan of Tracy, three sons-in-law and four daughters-in-law, 23 grandchildren, five step-grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

She also leaves one brother, Jack O'Brien of Gould. She was predeceased by her sister Kathleen in November 1957.

A private funeral was held at her home on Sunday, Jan. 15 at 2 p.m., the service conducted by Rev. Barry Crowell.

She was tenderly laid to rest in the family lot in the Eaton Cemetery, the bearers being her sons and sons-in-law.

The funeral arrangements were under the direction of the Bury Funeral Home.

Many floral tributes and donations to various charities were received in her memory.

Gone but not forgotten.

CLARK POWERS of Brigham

On Jan. 26, 1978, Mr. Clark Powers, a resident of Brigham for many years passed away at the Pine Gables nursing home.

He was born at Farnham

Centre in 1887 to Margaret Clark and Edward Powers.

Of a family of five, he was predeceased by all but his twin brother, Clarence, of East Farnham.

He was married in 1924 to Muriel Gilbert of Bishopton.

He worked for the Eastern Townships Bank until 1912 when it amalgamated with the Canadian Bank of Commerce. He was appointed manager of the bank at East Angus. From there he was moved to the Farnham branch where he continued as manager until his retirement in 1948.

After retiring, Mr. and Mrs. Powers built their own home in Brigham where they resided until his death.

He was interred beside his mother and father in the Farnham Center Cemetery. He is survived by his wife, Muriel.

Challenge Cup game planned

LENNOXVILLE — Game number 620 for the Quebec Challenge Cup will be held at the Lennoxville Curling Club on Sunday Feb. 19 starting at noon.

Royal Montreal will be visiting the LCC and trying to dethrone the current holders of the coveted trophy.

Bishop's player injured

Centre Blair Shier will be out of action for at least 10 days from the Bishop's University basketball team lineup following an injury sustained during Monday's contest against Concordia. The re-occurrence of torn ligaments in his ankle from the first semester will have him watching from the sidelines with a cast on his lower right leg. It is presently unknown if his condition will allow him to participate in the playoffs later this month.

QMJHL roundup

A goal by team captain Kevin Reeves with 9:48 remaining in the third period snapped a 6-6 tie and Montreal Juniors went on to defeat Chicoutimi Saguenéens 8-6 in a Quebec Major Junior Hockey League game before 2,362 fans Tuesday night.

In another game, Trois-Rivières Draveurs blasted Shawinigan Dynamos 14-2.

Denis Cyr had three goals for Montreal with Richard Suwek getting two and Denis Savard adding the other. Andre Boudreau led Chicoutimi with three goals with Louis Sleigher netting two and Luc Richard getting the other.

Jean-Gaston Douville scored four goals and Mario Savard had three to lead the Draveurs.

Yves Therrien, Robert Mongrain and Denis Pomerleau fired two goals apiece with the other added by Ghislain Gaudreau.

Gilles Hebert and Michel Damboise replied for the Dynamos.

Quebec plays Hull tonight at Gatineau, Que.

Former ump testifies

NEW YORK (AP) — Art Williams, fired from his job as National League baseball umpire after last season, testified at a hearing in the league offices Tuesday.

Williams, the only black umpire in the league last season, has suggested that his firing was racially motivated. A representative of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People was in attendance at the hearings.

He was told in November that he would not be rehired for 1978 because of low ratings from managers and general managers.

Williams, from Bakersfield, Calif., wants the league to allow him to report to spring training on probation in hopes that he would get better ratings from officials.

The league office had no comment on the case.

Rogers' golf earnings up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bill Rogers' first tour victory in the Bob Hope Desert Classic moved him to third from 17th place in golf earnings this year.

Tom Watson, fifth in the Hope event, retained the earnings leader, pushing his total for the year to $103,181. Hubert Green held second place with $63,422, followed by Rogers at $61,892. Jay Haas is fourth at $46,285, with Miller Barber's $43,376 completing the first five.

Bill Kratzert holds sixth place with $38,861, followed by Gene Littler at $34,658, Lee Trevino with $33,517, Jerry McGee with $33,348 and John Schroeder, $31,403.

Goal ball team named

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Names of the five-man team which will represent Canada at the first annual goal ball world championship in Nussdorf, Austria, June 11-18 were announced Tuesday by Doug Vickers, executive-director of the Canadian Blind Sports Association.

Team members are Gordon Hope, Ottawa; Bill Koch, Calgary; Bill Royle, St. John's; Brian Arthurs, Toronto and Rodney Hershey, Halifax.

Team coach is Dave Fraser of Halifax. Vickers will be the team's manager.

Goal ball is a competitive game played by the blind using a ball containing bells.

Ashe unimpressed by tokenism

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) — Arthur Ashe, the world's best black tennis player, says he's not impressed by South Africa's decision to name a black to its Davis Cup team and that the move smacks of "political expediency."

Ashe, playing in the $225,000 Tennis Games here, said in an interview that South Africa's move was a token gesture to smooth over criticism of the country's political and social structure.

Peter Lamb, a black who is labelled a colored in South Africa, has been named to the South African Davis Cup team that will play the United States March 17-19.

The matches will be held at Vanderbilt University, where Lamb is a sophomore. But since he is a junior member of the squad, Lamb probably will not play on the four-man team that will challenge the Americans.

Canadian boxers in Cuba

OTTAWA (CP) — Three amateur boxers are in Cuba today ready to gain all-important international tournament experience.

Rick Anderson, 18, and Don Downey, 21, both of Halifax, joined Ian Clyde, 21, of Montreal, for the Cordova Cardin tournament in Havana. With them are coach Prince Gordon of Halifax and manager Etzel Ross from Traylor Edward Island.

Stuart Charbula, president of the Canadian Amateur Boxing Association, said today the tournament includes fighters from 20 countries and will be an excellent training opportunity.

"Our boxers are good technically but they have little experience in multinational bouts."

Flesch scores winner for Penguins

Some people had given up on John Flesch, as a National Hockey League player, but Pittsburgh Penguins decided to give him another try at the big time and their faith in him appears to be justified.

Tuesday night, the six-foot-two left winger from Sudbury, Ont., appearing in his eighth game in a Pittsburgh uniform, scored his third goal of the season at 6:44 of the third period to give the Penguins a 2-1 victory over Chicago Black Hawks in one of three games.

In other action, Vancouver Canucks downed Washington Capitals 4-2 and New York Islanders nipped Los Angeles Kings 3-2.

Flesch, 24, was an outstanding player at Lake Superior College and earned enough attention to be drafted by Atlanta Flames in the fifth round of the 1973 National Hockey League amateur draft.

He started out well in the pro ranks scoring 27 goals and 27 assists in 69 games with Omaha of the Central League during the 1973-74 campaign.

During the summer of 1974, Minnesota acquired him from the Flames, and the North Stars noted in their 1975-76 media guide "that the talent is there. Time and experience in the NHL are what is needed."

The North Stars decided during that season they had seen enough of Flesch and dispatched him to the American Hockey League. From there Flesch went to the International League where he performed adequately enough and

Pittsburgh decided to give him another try last month. "I've been playing better hockey lately," said Flesch. "The thing (coach) Johnny Wilson has emphasized is that he doesn't want me to get out of position."

"Gene Carr and Rick Kehoe are helping me to be where I should be and as a result, I'm getting some good scoring opportunities."

The latest goal for Flesch, which came on a deflection of Tom Edur's shot from the blue line, marked the third consecutive game in which he has scored the tying or winning goal.

It was enough to end the Black Hawks' 10-game unbeaten streak and it was only the second loss in 16 games for Chicago.

The Canucks, now 15 points behind first-place Chicago in the Smythe Division, snapped a six-game winless streak.

Spinks ready for 15-rounder

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Leon Spinks, who was 11 years old when a youthful Muhammad Ali beat an aging Sonny Liston in 1964, Ali's plus factors are his ability to take a punch, his long experience and his size. Ali, who stands 6-foot-3, is 1½ inches taller than Spinks and will enjoy a four-inch reach advantage and a 27-pound weight advantage.

Ali was 22 and in his 20th pro fight when he won the title for the first time with a stunning seventh-round upset of Liston in Miami Beach, Fla.

A victory by the 24-year-old Spinks would be equally stunning. Nevada bookmakers have not established a betting line.

There are some boxing observers, however, who feel Spinks can pull a surprise. They feel his winning combination could be his youth and aggressiveness, combined with Ali's age and the fact he has slipped as a fighter.

Ali's plus factors are his ability to take a punch, his long experience and his size. Ali, who stands 6-foot-3, is 1½ inches taller than Spinks and will enjoy a four-inch reach advantage and a 27-pound weight advantage.

SHEDS POUNDS Ali officially weighed in Tuesday at 224½, three-quarters of a pound less than when he outpointed hard-punching Earnie Shavers last Sept. 29. Spinks weighed 197½.

The scheduled 15-rounder between the two former Olympic light heavyweight champions—Ali in 1960 and Spinks in 1976—will begin about 10:15 p.m. EST, at the 4,500-seat Hilton Pavilion.

The card—to be televised by CBS, beginning at 8 p.m. EST—also will feature a 15-round bout between Danny (Little Red) Lopez of Alhambra, Calif., the World Boxing Council featherweight champion, and David Kotay of Ghana.

Spinks, from St. Louis, is getting $300,000 for his title shot. His record is six victories, five by knockouts, and a 10-round draw against Scott LeDoux. In his last fight, he scored a 10-round decision over Alfio Righetti here Nov. 18, 1977.

Orford County network

X-C trails opening up

A new symbol, X.C. has entered our vocabulary and public cross country ski trails are opening throughout the Townships in response to growing enthusiasm for this sport.

Orford County has several organized trails, most of them government supported and free of charge.

For several years now Orford Provincial Park has operated a network that provides an alternative to downhill skiing. Trails circle Cherry Pond which lie northeast of Mount Orford and is the source of the Cherry River which flows into Lake Memphremagog.

The trails are clearly marked and are classified beginner, intermediate or expert. Four cabins are situated along the way. There is no charge for using the trails or cabins.

I skied there on one of those lung-searing cold days. My partner and I found we were more intent on our destination than the trip itself. "I thought I saw the cabin," she exclaimed when the mirage of warmth turned out to be a granite cliff partially covered in snow.

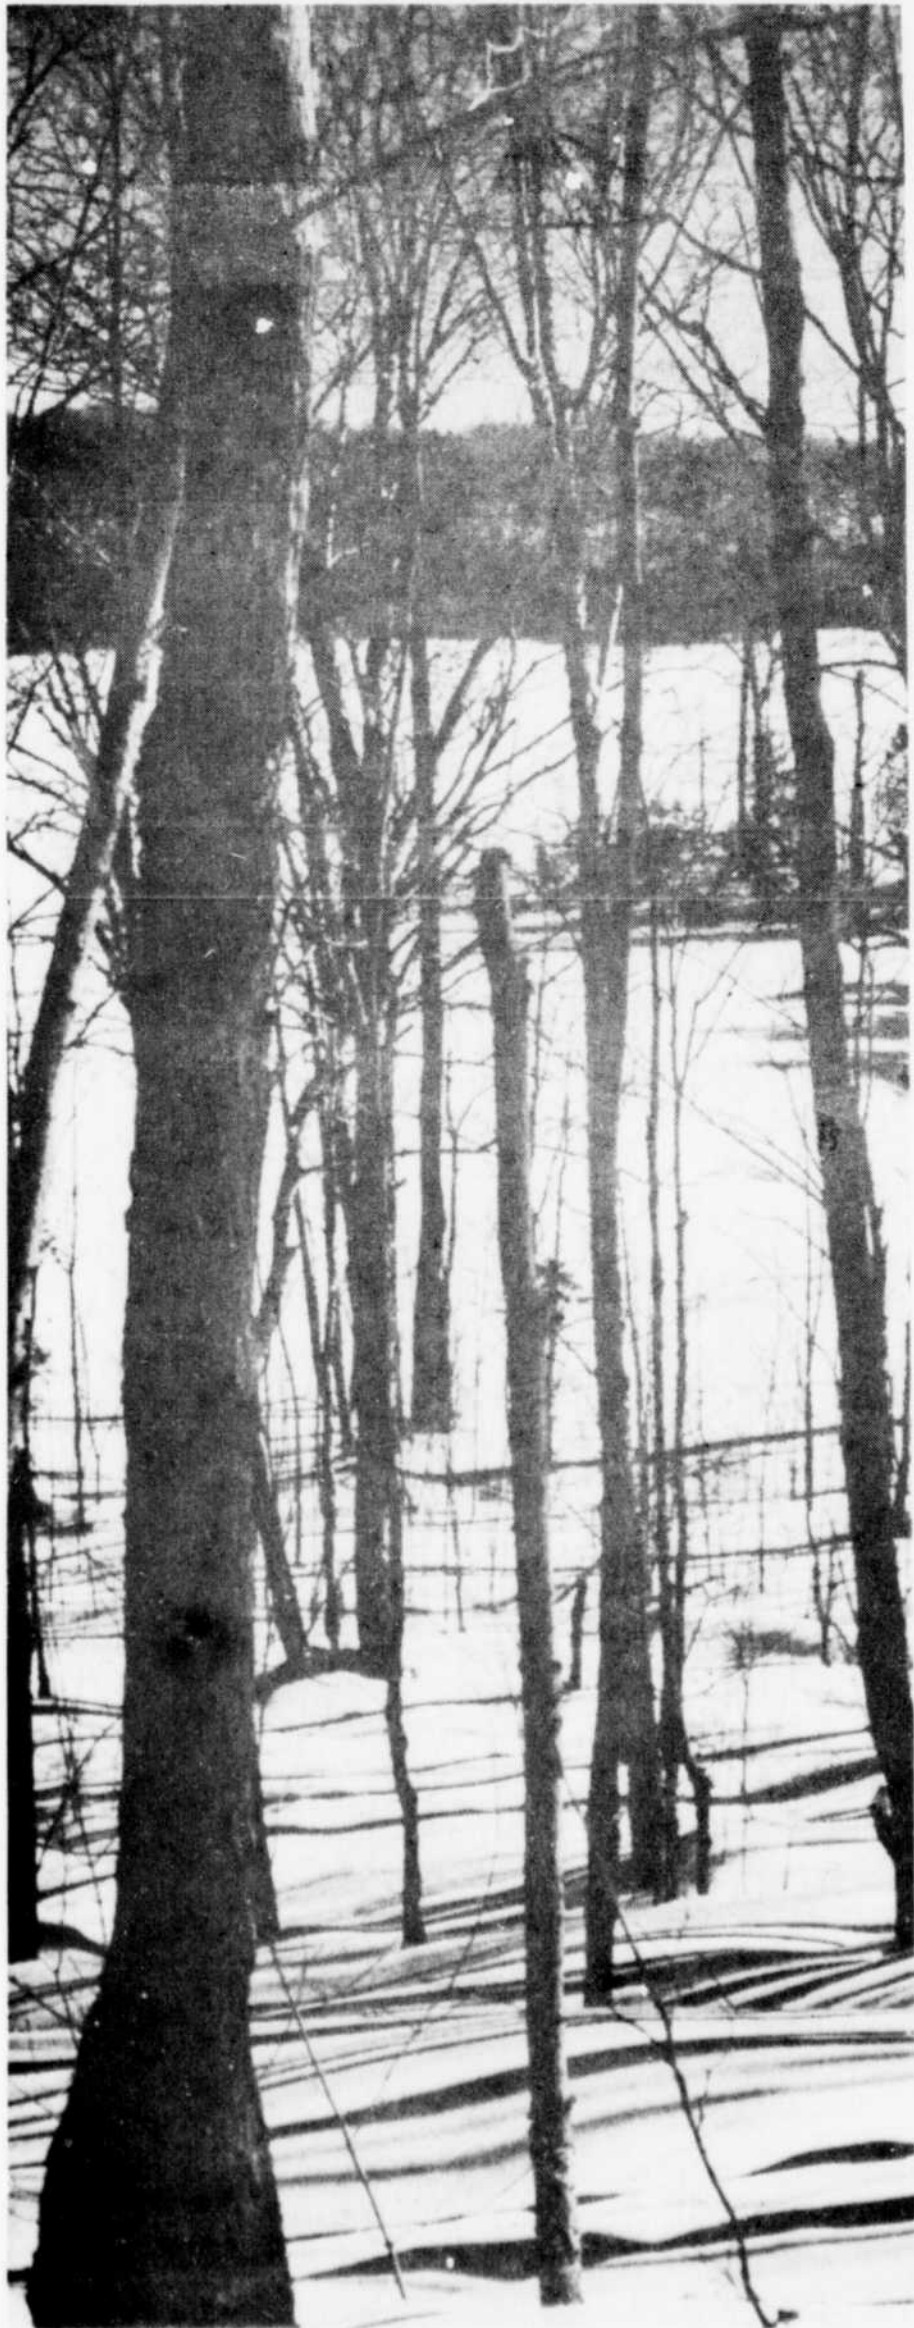

When we finally reached our haven, we quickly warmed ourselves at the open fire in the centre of the log cabin. Benches and tables provide room for about 50 people. There is also an outdoor privy.

We skied the expert trail, but found it quite manageable although we don't consider ourselves experts.

Maps are available at the central office where the trails start. Skiers register there and can also eat their picnic lunch or buy small snacks and coffee. Outside an arrow points to the "salle de fartage". I somewhat cautiously went to investigate and and a map detailing them is available at the provincial fish hatchery office. Ask for Paul Morin. There is no charge using the trails.

At Katevale there is another spectacular set of trails, available free of charge. They begin from the centre of the village where a large sign marks the starting point. Heading up into the hills behind the village, skiers enjoy a sweeping panorama that takes in Sutton, Owl's Head and Mt. Orford. The trails are also graded beginner to expert.

Stories and photos

found that it's where you wax skis. Bilingualism can be fun.

Skiing on weekends at Orford is not recommended unless you like the feeling of skiing on Wellington Street during the Christmas rush. It has been known to be so crowded on a sunny Sunday that skiers were turned away at the parking lot.

Thirty miles of trails are also open near Magog at Wilvaken, the site of a camp during the summer. Those who are not club members are charged a daily rate but the cost is reasonable. Overnight accommodations and meals are also available.

Wilvaken is situated at Lake Lovering, head four miles east of Magog on Route 141 and then two miles south towards Fitch Bay. A ski rental service is also provided. The phone number is 843-5353.

A club has also been formed at Stanstead. Begun three years ago without government support, the Stanstead Ski Club is now expanding its 10 miles of trails to include a new one built with government financial aid. The membership fees are also reasonable and there are family rates.

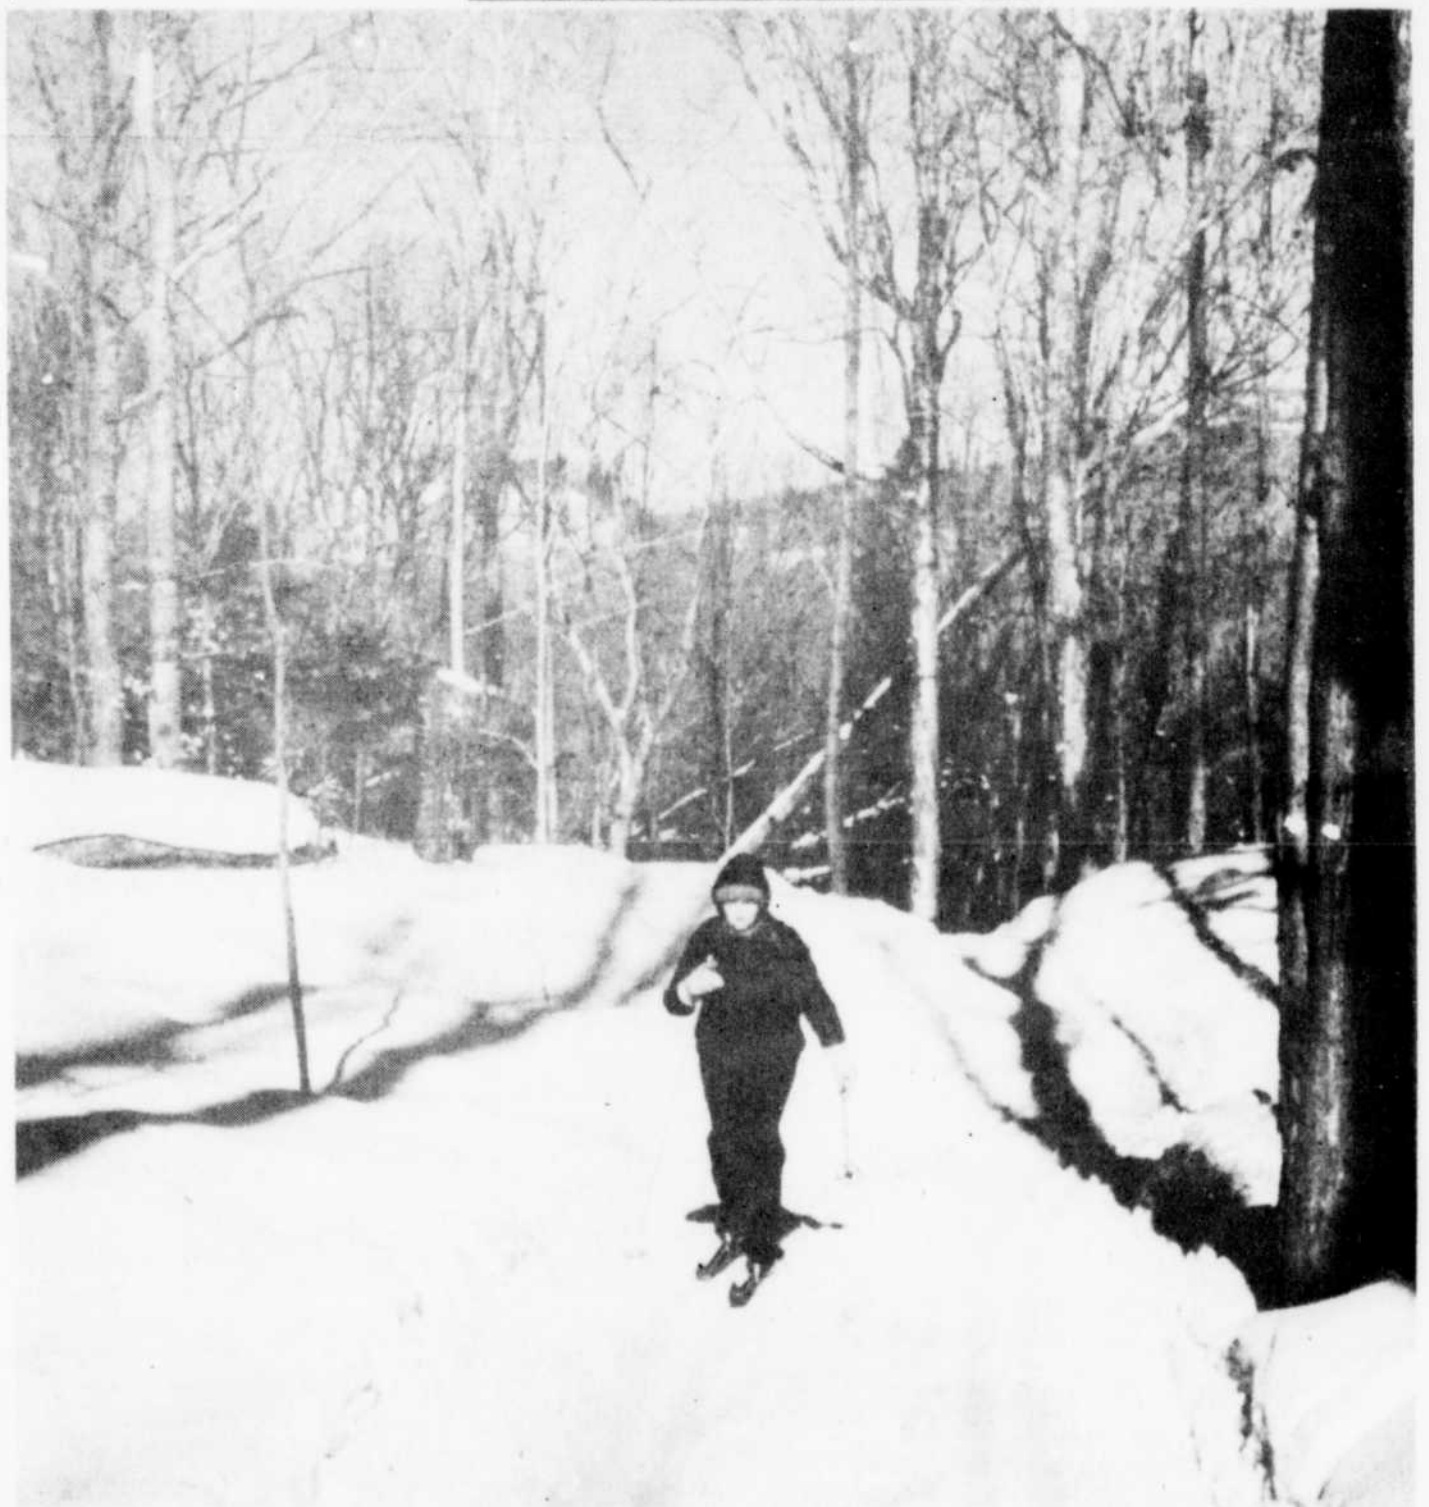

Trails head towards Tomifobia and a warm-up hut with a wood stove provides a resting place along the way. For more information contact club president Denis Parent at 876-5352 or Maxime Doyon at 876-2440.

Several communities have organized trails with the aid of government grants such as the Canada works program.

Now that snowmobile clubs are well organized through government funding, the focus is being turned to cross country trailmakers. The necessity of this has become evident as many skiers illegally use snowmobile trails.

The Baldwin's Mills Recreation Association has approximately 20 miles of trails that circle Lake Lyster. It is a particularly beautiful setting. The trails run along the lower slopes of Barnston and Pinnacle mountains.

A story in the snow...

There is a story to be read on the snow, a naturalist friend said to me on a recent cross country ski trip. Although we were only five minutes from the village, she was right.

I no longer charge head down through the woods but pause often to search for the signs of wildlife that so enrich skiing.

The easiest trail to identify is the rabbit's. The small front legs and large back ones making a hopping pattern that can not be confused with any other trail.

We saw where one had circled low shrubs as if it had been gaily dancing and twirling across the snow. Newly cut twigs showed that it had been at the more sober business of eating.

Next we saw the delicate design of wing marks where a grouse or an owl had landed on the snow, taken a few steps and then flown off. There were no other tracks that might have told us the bird was preying on a smaller animal.

Further on we found a tiny trail that looked like an embroidery stitch across the snow surface. Discussing what animal had made it, we followed the line with our eyes and were startled to find the answer. A tiny field mouse hung frozen by the mouth to a barbed wire which was protruding from the snow. Likely he had thought it a tasty twig to nibble on. Now his body hung limply over the branch he had climbed and one ear lay beneath him, perhaps torn off by a small bird. There were no other marks.

This particular page from nature's story told us beyond a doubt that the embroidery stitch tracks were those of a mouse. Their pattern is forever printed on my mind.

Books are available to aid in the identification of tracks. In this area you may see signs of porcupine, fox, deer, and many others. Sometimes when I stand with friends pondering the origin of a certain track, I wonder if perhaps the animals huddle about in similar groups at daybreak or dusk, asking each other what strange creatures have made these lines, which had polkadots on either side, through forest and field.

BROOKBURY

Daisy A. Allison
872-3341

Supper and evening guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lionel Allison last week were Mr. and Mrs. Everett Boynton and sons, Philip and Neal.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Dubeau and family of Island Brook spent a day with Mr. and Mrs. Junior Thompson and family last week.

Several ladies have been quilting on the Brookbury W.I. quilt at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Batley on different afternoons during the last two weeks.

Mrs. Flora McIntyre and Mrs. Oral Downes were supper guests at the Batley home one afternoon and quilted for awhile in the evening as well.

Mr. and Mrs. Durwood Dougherty motored to St. George de Beauce on Saturday, Jan. 28, where they joined a group of skidoo friends and all enjoyed supper at the Skidoo Club there and dancing in the evening. They spent the night at a nearby motel returning home on Sunday after a very pleasant outing.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Dougherty of Lennoxville were among the group of skidoo personnel, and, on their return, were supper guests at the Durwood Dougherty home.

While in Richmond on business last week, Mr. and Mrs. Lionel Allison were afternoon and supper guests of the latter's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Pease.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Coleman were supper and evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Darcy Eryou on Sat., Feb. 4, to help their son, Philip, celebrate his 2nd birthday. Other guests at the same time were Mrs. Eryou's sister, Mrs. Osborne

Lowe, Mr. O. Lowe and son, John.

Mr. and Mrs. Junior Thompson and family spent the afternoon on Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Dubeau at Island Brook.

Mr. Durwood Dougherty was confined to the house last weekend with the flu. We are pleased to hear that he is much better and out again and hope the rest of the family will be fortunate enough to escape having it.

Mr. and Mrs. L.A. Allison were in Hatley on Sunday, afternoon and evening, guests of Mrs. Wallace Gemmell and Mr. and Mrs. Homer Cote. During the week they spent an afternoon with Mrs. Eva Goodenough, and, with Gwylm Lawrence, enjoyed a pleasant game of cards with Eva, after which they were supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gwylm Lawrence and there, also.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert

Harper were in Montreal on Sunday to visit Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Gibson for the day.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lowe accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Burton Lowe and family to Lennoxville on Sunday where they visited Mr. and Mrs. Monty Winget.

ABERCORN

Mrs. Pauline Wilkins
Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Poulin Sr., have left to spend a month in Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Bailey of Waterloo were Sunday dinner guests at the Loren Sherrer home.

Friends are pleased to hear that Mrs. Dolly Fryer has left the hospital and is staying with her daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Keith La Chasseur and family in Cowansville.

Mrs. W.M. Sylvester and daughters of East Farnham spent the weekend with their aunt, Mrs. Pauline Wilkins. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Derby of Sutton were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Lahue.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Haggerty were recent Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Haggerty in Morrisville, Vt., to celebrate the birthday of Mrs. Francis Haggerty.

Mr. and Mrs. Danny Jones and family of Mansville, Mr. and Mrs. John Haggerty and son of Georgia, Vt., and Mrs. Keith Sherrer and daughter, Susan of Jefferson, Vt., were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Haggerty.

Mr. and Mrs. Andre Loubier were weekend guests of Mrs. Pauline Wilkins.

WATERLOO

Alice Ashton
Mrs. Alan McKergow entertained at a Luncheon Bridge one day recently, prize winners being Mrs. Dorothy Copping, Mrs. Alice Buckland and Mrs. Lois

Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. A.J. Buckland and son Jim spent a day last week with Mr. and Mrs. Jim Dunn at Way's Mills.

Mrs. Evelyn Doherty of Warden who was recently a patient in Sherbrooke Hospital is now convalescing at the Bailey Nursing Home.

Mrs. Dorothy Copping has been spending a ten day holiday in Bermuda with a party of friends.

After a short illness, as a patient in B.M.P. Hospital Mrs. Guy Streeter passed away on Feb. 3rd. Funeral service was conducted by Rev. Tucker at the Ledoux Funeral Chapel.

Mrs. Malcolm McKenny and Miss Ivy King of Montreal were guests over a weekend of Mr. and Mrs. Alan McKergow while here to attend the funeral of Mrs. Bradley at Knowlton.

Friends and members of Eastern Star Chapter were in Knowlton to attend a service at the Funeral Home and on Thurs., attend the funeral at the United Church for Mrs. Ray Duboyce.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Hall, Mrs. Marian Rowe and accompanied by Miss Jean Cooke of Montreal have been spending a two weeks holiday in Barbados.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Whitehead have been enjoying two weeks in Florida.

EASTHERFORD

Mrs. R.A. Owen
The annual Vestry meeting of All Saints' Church was held on Feb. 3, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Howe.

Deacon Ron Owen chaired the meeting and opened it with all repeating the Lord's Prayer together.

Mrs. Phoebe Owen, Vestry Clerk, read the minutes of the past meeting and they were adopted.

Mrs. Maude Howe, Sec. Treas. gave her report and the financial report, which were accepted.

Mr. E.W. Owen was re-appointed as Minister's Warden, and Mr. Arnold Cunningham as people's warden. Mr. John Howe was named to attend the Synod meeting.

After the close of the meeting, lunch was served to all and a social hour followed.

Mr. and Mrs. John Howe visited Miss Nina Howe at the Wales Home, Richmond, on January 29.

Recent guests at the John Howe home included Mr. and Mrs. Tony Howe and family of Colebrook, N.H.

Mr. Leonard Gray, Canaan, Vt., visited Mr. and Mrs. R.A. Owen recently. Mr. and Mrs. Guy Shallow and children of Colebrook, N.H. spent a day at the home of Mr. Edmund Howe.

Misses Fern Owen and Kathy Bolduc spent the night of Feb. 4 in Lennoxville. Feb. 5 they attended the Cross Country Ski races at Sorel.

Four spades and three no-trump would have been easy contracts to make. However, South, seduced by his beautiful diamond suit, enthusiastically leaped to game in diamonds, which was not an easy contract at all.

After ruffing the opening heart lead in his hand, South surveyed the dummy. He could count 10 top tricks; seven diamonds, two spades and one heart. If West held the club ace, the king of clubs would be the 11th trick. This was most unlikely, however, because East had overcalled two hearts. South could lead a club at trick two, lose two club tricks and eventually ruff a club, but East could foil that plan by leading trumps each time he got in.

South found a better plan. He drew the outstanding trumps in two rounds and led the nine of spades. He was trying to duck a spade into the safe East hand, thus keeping West from leading through the vulnerable king of clubs. West cleverly stopped this move by playing the jack of spades which South won in dummy with the king.

South had one more weapon in his arsenal. He led a heart to his hand and trumped. Then he led the five of spades. West was unable to play the queen because that would topple East's now singleton 10. West played low, North played the eight and East won with the 10. East was end played!

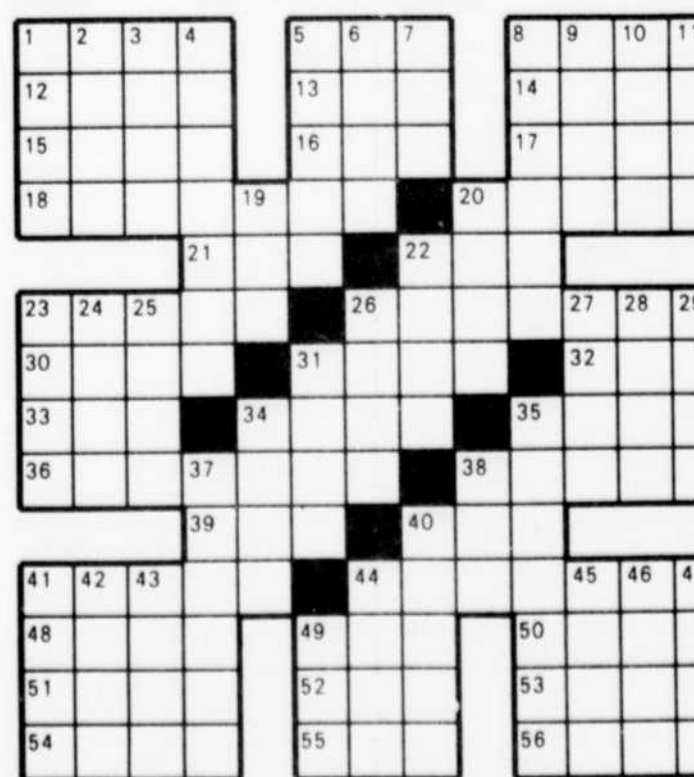

If he led a heart, the ace would win in dummy. If he led a club, the king would win in dummy. The best he could do was cash the club ace, hold declarer to the contract, and grudgingly congratulate South on a well-played hand.
