

UN non-payment, greatest sham battle ever

News
in brief

UNITED NATIONS — (TNS) — The Question of Soviet non-payment of U-N peace-keeping costs has precipitated what may turn out to be the biggest sham battle in diplomatic history.

On the surface anyway, what is at stake is the very existence of the U-N because the contending parties have threatened to wreck the world organization if they don't get their way.

Legally speaking, the American case seems invincible. The Soviet debt for the Congo and the Middle East peace-keeping operations amounts to over $50 million, enough to disenfranchise the USSR in the assembly under terms of the U-N charter.

Another factor against a clear-cut American victory in the payments controversy is that many countries of Africa, Asia, and Latin America also stand to lose their assembly vote under Article 19. The picture would really look bleak if it weren't for the fact that neither the U.S. nor the Russians want to wreck the U-N. The world organization is a valuable diplomatic instrument which both big powers want to keep operating.

It is likely that a compromise agreement could be reached tomorrow if it weren't for one development — the American election in November.

One compromise solution most often mentioned would have the Soviets make a partial payment toward their debt and in return receive a greater voice in future U-N peace-keeping operations.

Thus the paradox appears that an idealistic adherence to Article 19 and to the principle of collective responsibility could mean the doom of the U-N while an unprincipled, compromising policy is likely to be the world organization's salvation.

Why do we lose?

Guerrillas: West's nemesis

SOUTH VIETNAM seems near collapse... Malaysia is threatened by Indonesian infiltrators... Laos is a mess... everywhere pro-Western regimes are in trouble.

Why... Why are aggressors today more successful than defenders?

It is partly because a new form of warfare has developed that the West can't easily cope with: Guerrilla warfare.

Though we manage to live with the threat of nuclear war and we hold our own in the cold war, this camouflage war — or guerrilla warfare — seems beyond us.

It's ironic that the nation with the biggest nuclear punch has been the one least able to adapt itself to the lightning jabs of the guerrilla.

The West has been slow to realize the power and potential of this form of warfare which is really as old as mankind itself — the secret weapon, so it to speak, of the nuclear age.

Barry Goldwater notwithstanding, nuclear weapons cannot be used effectively against guerrilla. British military expert Capt. Liddell Hart put it aptly: "Using nuclear weapons against guerrillas is like using a sledgehammer to kill mosquitoes."

With South Vietnam seemingly a lost cause, the U.S. has a quiet but intense program underway to develop guerrilla troops: The special Forces.

Guerrillas are going to be an increasing factor in future wars — a military necessity for success.

Canada seems unwilling to develop guerrilla forces. Yet if we continue in our U-N military role our troops would undoubtedly find such skills useful, both in surviving and maintaining peace.

Last fall Lt. Gen. Guy Simonds told the House of Commons committee on defense that Canada should have a special force similar to the U.S. Marines, ready to engage in brushfire war at the hint of a crisis on behalf of the U-N. Whether Gen. Simonds was suggesting that the Regiment of Canadian Guards that he created in 1953 should change its role was not made clear, but his views indicate a change of emphasis is needed in our army.

By PETER WORTHINGTON

The best known U.S. guerrilla warfare school is at Fort Bragg, North Carolina—known in Pentagonese as: The Counter - Insurgency and Special Warfare Course in Unconventional War.

Other training grounds are said to be in Guatemala, Panama, Florida and Louisiana.

The Canadian army has an open invitation to participate. But in four years we have sent only about 20 officers and NCOs. As far as is known these "graduates" have returned to routine square-bashing and garrison duty. Canada's reaction to guerrilla training seems more a token gesture than active interest.

The acknowledged master of guerrilla warfare is China's Mao Tse-tung. In 1937 he wrote the textbook on revolutionary warfare.

WHEAT SALES MAY ALLOW REDUCTION IN DEFICIT

By PETER DEMPSON

OTTAWA — (TNS) — Wheat, for the second straight year, is going to pour more than $1,000,000,000 into Canada's booming economy.

The huge sales to both the export and domestic market will have a healthy effect on just about every field of activity.

Finance Minister Walter Gordon, with an eye on sharply increased exports, mounting revenues, and the drop in unemployment has predicted that the gross national product this year would be up by more than six per cent.

CONFIDENT FOR '65 He was confident that the economic activity would be carried well into 1965.

"One of the by-products of this," he said, "should be a considerable reduction in the federal budget deficit."

With federal revenues steadily increasing, Mr. Gordon probably will be able to pare the 1964-65 deficit by as much as $150,000,000. He had forecast a deficit of $455,000,000. The 1963-64 deficit was $619,000,000.

Wheat sales, excluding flour, will total an estimated 510,000,000 bushels during the 1965-65 crop year which began Aug. 1. At roughly $2 a bushel, this means more than $1,000,000,000 will be channelled into the economy.

While the total falls far short of the record 590,000,000 bushels sold in 1963-64, it will still be the second highest in Canada's history. Trade Minister Mitchell Sharp admits that the sales in the former crop year were "unusual" due to the big demand from the Communist countries.

The sales expected in the current year do not include exports to the Soviet Union, which in 1963-64 purchased about 248,000,000 bushels from Canada.

The Soviet government has indicated, however, that new contracts with Canada will likely be signed at an early date. But the overall quantity to be bought will be down substantially, due to improved wheat crops in the USSR. Ivan Volovchenko, Soviet Agriculture Minister who has just returned to Moscow after a six-week tour of Can-

He's doing his best is the plea

VANCOUVER — (TNS) — The first sign of The Times was that it had a great disdain for punctuality.

But in a major "Please don't shoot the piano player" piece this week, Vancouver's newest daily paper earnestly pledged to change its young ways. It made a quick switch from cockiness to a cascade of self-confession.

But it has come out, appears set to come out for some time to come, and this in itself has confused some of the critics.

Up to a month ago, you could have got good money in a bet that The Times would be still-born.

In October, 1962, Val Warren, a Vancouver advertising man and publisher of a shopping throwaway sheet, announced a new paper within six months to a year.

Warren said it would require from $8 to $15 million capital which raised some eyebrows on the coast.

In May, 1963, The Times announced a $2 million stock issue of 20,000 units of $100. After that it went on a selling campaign that ranged from a booth at the Pacific National Exhibition to door-banging salesmen flogging $100 opportunities.

The Times proclaimed loud and long that it would be independent scoring the chain-ties and working agreement between the Vancouver Sun evening and The Province, morning.

Both move into a joint plant next year. Editorial departments are separate, but other departments are largely amalgamated.

The Times was aiming at a good target, Vancouver has been a city of only one afternoon paper since 1957, when the old News Herald was bought out and the Province went morning.

The monopoly has irked many people and a lot of advertisers, and the Restrictive Trade Practices Commission, which has warned it is watching the situation.

AMBITION But even when Warren announced The Times had raised more than $1 million, moved into a former motor-car company's plant on Vancouver's East Broadway, and started to hire staff, most people said it would never get off the ground.

The Times scaled down its early ambition of 100,000 circulation to 70,000.

It hired some old-hands in the editorial business around Vancouver, and a gaggle of young, enthusiastic, but largely inexperienced reporters from across Canada.

After many publication date setbacks, it blossomed forth on September 5, proudly proclaimed itself as Canada's first completely off-set daily newspaper — produced by the photographic rather than hot-type letterpress system.

Always says wrong thing at wrong time

Barry consistently outrageous publicly

WASHINGTON — (TNS) — An old gibe against Barry Goldwater is that he would rather be Right than President. The time has come to take it seriously.

Democrats are beginning to wonder if he has a political death wish. Why else would he jet-jump across the country saying exactly the wrong things in the wrong places.

On his Southern tour he chose Atlanta, Georgia to attack a Supreme Court decision to reapportion voting districts, giving city people more of a say in the rural-dominated states legislatures. Atlanta (Pop. 1,000,000) has been trying for years to shake off the farmers' yoke.

In St. Petersburg, Fla., which has 100,000 old people living off social security, he attacked medicare for the aged. He went on about "violence in the streets" (meaning Negro riots) in that peaceful sunset city where a traffic violation is news.

In Knoxville, Tennessee, where the socialistic Tennessee Valley Authority has become a popular way of life, he repeated his threat to sell it to private enterprise.

And in West Virginia, prime target of President Johnson's anti-poverty program where out-of-work miners hunch in sway-backed shacks, he reminded them there were a lot of people in the world much poorer than they. In fact, he said, they wouldn't have known they were that poor if Johnson hadn't told them. A Washington Star Reporter compared this lecture to an eviction at Christmas.

SOUTHERN CORNERSTONE True, he said some of the right things. At the cigarette-making town of Winston-Salem he spoke like a good politician should.

By GORDON DONALDSON

Admitting he didn't smoke the things, he still denounced a Government plan to label cigarette packs dangerous to health.

And without ever mentioning civil rights he threw out the code-words "violence in the streets", "States Rights" and "federal power" that drew cheers by assuring segregationists throughout the South that he was with them and against the Negroes.

No presidential candidate in the postwar years has dared not pay at least lip-service to civil rights in the South if only for fear of offending the North.

But Goldwater needs the election votes of four of five

Southern states as the cornerstone of his strength and will not weaken his stand against the Civil Rights Bill no matter how many Northern Republicans bite their nails.

Listening to him throw away his best lines and bumble drably about his most inspiring topic — freedom — you wonder if Barry Goldwater really wants to become president or whether his earlier statement holds good that he's "just pooping around" in politics.

It is doubtful, too, that Goldwater really understands Goldwaterism. Last week he said: "A lot of my enemies call me simple. The big trouble with the so-called Liberal today is that he doesn't understand simplicity... I refuse to go around this country discussing complicated, twisted issues." His "simple" issue is "freedom or slavery" — but he jumbles together slavery imposed by the Communists and slavery imposed by the U.S. government in Washington until he sounds like a bearded anarchist of 60 years ago, preparing to throw a bomb at the village postoffice.

LABELLED DANGEROUS

He is against central authority but he will strengthen U.S. military power and challenge the Communists. He is the "favorite son" candidate of the U.S. Air Force in which he is a reserve general. He promised workers at an air force base in Georgia that he wouldn't close down their base; factory workers in Seattle that they'd be building bombers again.

Still, he will end conscription and will be a president of peace rather than war.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

NORMAL BID VS. ABNORMAL PLAY
By OSWALD JACOBY

North might well have gone to three hearts instead of trying three diamonds as his second bid, but the final contract would have been the same four hearts.

Four hearts is one of those hum-drum, every-day contracts that we run into every time we play bridge. South has two spade losers and one club loser with normal distribution of the defender's cards and on happy days he would probably be claiming his contract very early in the proceedings.

This day turned out to be a miserable one for South. West made his normal opening lead of the spade king, and East proceeded to think the situation over for awhile. The defense needed four tricks — and two spades, one club and a ruff would total four.

Therefore, East overtook his partner's king of spades with his ace. Then he cashed his ace of clubs and put his partner in with a spade.

It took very little thought on West's part to place a club on the table and another laydown game had hit the dust.

Increased circulation is noted by area's libraries

Sherbrooke library and Lennoxville library have increased circulation in the past six months, and most of the increase is due to children who use the library very often during the summer.

Lennoxville library has obtained 500 new books in the last year.

Marion Le Beau, librarian in the Sherbrooke library, and Nancy Baker, librarian in the Lennoxville library, both remark this week on the great numbers of people, mostly children, who have borrowed books this summer.

In Sherbrooke, a new reading room has been provided and Marion Le Beau, librarian, and Evelyn Bradley, assistant-librarian, choose the latest books, with the help of Ava Walsh, assistant-librarian.

Two sections of children's books have been added in the past year. There are now sections on literature, biography, classics, travel, history, boys' sports, girls' mystery and romance, careers, animal stories, junior fiction and non-fiction, new fiction and non-fiction, mysteries, and miscellaneous.

The Sherbrooke and Lennoxville libraries are both served by the Sherbrooke and Lennoxville Community Chest.

Other social services supported by the Community Chest are the Boy Scouts, the Sherbrooke Welfare Agency, the Y.M.C.A. and the Y.W.C.A.

More than 300 canvassers are visiting approximately 2,000 contributors to the Community Chest between now and Oct. 5.

Objective is $24,000 for this annual drive.

Current magazines in the Sherbrooke library include, The Leader, Canada Month, Canada

Week, Japan, House Beautiful, Saturday Evening Post, Time, Life, Viewpoint, Panorama, The Jewish Review, Montrealer, Catholic Digest, Popular Mechanics, National Geographic, Holiday, Sign, Good Housekeeping, and the Financial Post.

Newspapers on hand are Montreal Star, Montreal Gazette, Sherbrooke Daily Record, and the Stanstead Journal.

New books are listed in the Sherbrooke Daily Record on Saturday and on bulletin boards in the library at 275 Dufferin Street.

Membership for adults is seven dollars a year, four dollars for six months, or 75 cents a month. For children, the charge for membership is $2.75 a year or 30 cents a month.

Sherbrooke library is open Monday to Friday from 10 a.m. to noon, from 1.30 to 5.30 p.m., and from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m., and on Saturday from 10 a.m. to noon, and from 1.30 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Patrons are allowed to take one book of fiction and one of non-fiction at a time and may exchange them as often as they wish.

Lennoxville library is housed on the Town Hall ground floor, 150 Queen Street, Lennoxville.

According to librarian Nancy Baker there has been a flood of children borrowing books this summer. Membership for children and teenagers is free and for adults is $2.50 a year.

The new books obtained in the past 12 months bring the total up to about 7,000 volumes on hand. About 15,000 books a year are borrowed.

The town of Lennoxville has provided a room for the library to occupy.

Lennoxville library is open to the public on Tuesday afternoon and evening, Friday evening, and Saturday afternoon.

All the latest books, both fiction and non-fiction, are offered to library users, who are allowed to borrow two books at a time or three non-fiction.

Young SSJB seeks split from elders

By DAVID WEBSTER
 (Record staff reporter)

English-speaking Quebecers may soon be able to join the youth committee of the St-Jean-Baptiste Society, Sherbrooke Diocese.

But it may no longer bear the society's name. According to president Pierre Lemieux, of the youth committee two resolutions on these matters are to be presented before the diocesan youth meeting to be held October 3 at the University of Sherbrooke.

One of the resolutions would allow non-French, non-Catholic youth who shared the aims of the organization to join.

The other would change the name of the society from the Comité Juvenile of the Sherbrooke SSJB to the Jeune Société Nationale (National Youth Society). Or J.S.N. for short.

A third resolution proposes that the youth committee be non-confessional; i.e. independent of the church.

The youth committee, a group dedicated to defending the interests of the "nation of Quebec", is semi-independent of the Sherbrooke SSJB.

CONFLICT

And in these three resolutions its policy conflicts with the SSJB.

According to Mr. Lemieux, the SSJB does not even recognize the youth committee as legal. Earlier the youth committee's president and vice-president sat at the Sherbrooke SSJB council for two meetings until their right to do this was withdrawn, he says.

Marcel Bureau, secretary of the Sherbrooke SSJB, speaking on behalf of president Marcel St. Cyr said, Friday, that if the youth committee passes these proposals they will be excluded from the society.

The SSJB is a Catholic group, he said. Thus it must remain confessional. If the youth committee is going off on adventures it must be dissociated entirely from the SSJB, he added.

Mr. Lemieux criticizes the Sherbrooke SSJB saying that it is outdated and will not accept new ideas. Furthermore, he says, it has not expressed any opinions on questions of national importance.

He describes the provincial SSJB federation as "much better". (The provincial federation condemned the political formula of cooperative federalism this year saying it was unsuitable to French Canada's needs).

The Sherbrooke society, however, will lose the support of young people because its thinking is 30 years behind the times, he said.

The youth section is aspiring to become the "veritable nationalist movement of the diocese," says Mr. Lemieux.

EXPANSION

At present it has plenty of room for expansion. It has 350 members in seven clubs, according to Mr. Lemieux. Four of these are in Sherbrooke: at St. Charles Seminary, University of Sherbrooke, Marguerite Borgeois Normal School and Notre Dame du Sacre Coeur Normal School. Two are in Asbestos: St. Joseph's Convent and the Asbestos trade school. The other group is at Marie-Rose School in Disraeli.

Members of the youth group are, thus, both male and female. (The president must be male and the vice president female according to the tentative constitution.)

The October 3 meeting is to be an assembly of delegates with one delegate to represent each 10 organization members, says Mr. Lemieux.

It is to be held in the afternoon at the university's Faculty of Science building.

In connection with the resolution allowing non-French youth to be members of the organization, Mr. Lemieux says "English-speaking people are residents of the Quebec nation as well as French-Canadians." Thus, they are free to join the youth group. (In the senior SSJB English-language people are prohibited).

The youth group is, according to its tentative constitution, "a

Nature's splendor can pass overnight

Ah, for the warm sun and the smell of fall leaves, the blaze of color in the wooded hills. Photographers take heed — Nature's splendor is here and can well pass its peak overnight.

Perhaps most people in this region are not aware that Quebec's fall color show is not enjoyed in the same degree by other provinces either in quality or quantity.

The Eastern Townships, largest maple syrup producing centre in Quebec, has naturally the finest show of color. Notice the orange and yellow maple trees and the flaming red of the rock maple.

This weekend, if the weather is half way decent, you owe it to yourself as a photo fan to walk, cycle or drive to the nearest sugar bush and treat yourself to some fantastic color.

I believe that this year the color show is of particularly fine quality. Some years it seems a little bit off.

Side roads are the best. Rail fences and undisturbed countryside, with the big maples overhanging country lanes, casting yellow and red hues across the winding road, literally fires one's enthusiasm for taking pictures.

Other interesting scenes may include yellow leaves against soft, brown woodland. You might find an orange maple merging into a cove of green spruce beside a bubbling stream, colors bouncing off the sunlit waters.

There is no limit to the variety of shots you can take. Your scope is as wide as your imagination. So why not capture some of our annual colorama?

Named to C of C executive

The Sherbrooke Chamber of Commerce announced in a press bulletin this week that a former chamber president has been named to the organization's provincial executive.

Named was Claude Genest, president of the Sherbrooke chamber for the 1959-60 term.

Paul Desruisseaux of Sherbrooke was named to the provincial chamber as director for a second term.

The press bulletin also announced that the speaker at the first general meeting of the Sherbrooke chamber will be Philippe de Gaspé Beaulieu, operations director of Expo '67.

The meeting will be held on October 1 in the Wellington Hotel's Cavalier Room.

The bulletin recalls that the tourism brief the chamber had recently presented to city council had emphasized the benefits Sherbrooke businessmen could gain from the world's fair.

"Without doubt Mr. Beaulieu will have interesting remarks to make on how the world's fair will affect Sherbrooke," the bulletin said.

Members of the provincial chamber for the coming year are: president, Charles de Lotbinière Harwood of Montreal; vice presidents, Jacques Caron of Batican and Georges de L. Demers of Quebec; honorary secretary, Roland Dugre of Asbestos; and honorary treasurer, Barnabe A. Boivin of Roberval.

Also executive members are Roger Bourgon and Donald Byers of Montreal, Robert de Coster of Quebec, Mr. Genest of Sherbrooke, and Jean-Paul Legare of Rimouski.

Scouting and Cubbing

By KEN BARTLETT

The Sherbrooke District Scout Camporee, held last weekend at Lovering Lake, was a resounding success. Though fewer in numbers than other years, the group that attended had a wonderful time in perfect weather.

Fifty-six Scouts in eight patrols, and six leaders were present. The Owl Patrol of the First Sherbrooke Troop won an "A" Pennant for highest proficiency. The remaining seven patrols were awarded "B" pennants. The Barclay Westgate Trophy for Camp Projects was awarded to the Wolverine Patrol of the Second Lennoxville Troop.

The Commissioner, himself recipient of honors, officiated at the investiture of an Assistant Scoutmaster, Steve Wells of the Fifth Sherbrooke Troop made his vows before the assembly. Following these functions, an outdoor campfire was staged — and incidentally Steve Wells was Campfire Chief.

On Sunday morning divine services were held. Father Harry Peterson of St. Patrick's presided.

COMMISSIONER HONORED

The Commissioner, P. Gray was honored at a Saturday evening ceremony. He was presented with his Wood Badge Insignia. A number of District Officers and a delegation from the Sherbrooke Rotary Club, who had come to dedicate the new Cub Hut, were in attendance. District Scoutmaster, Bob Henry presented Commis-ioner Gray with the traditional grey Gilwell neckerchief. The beads were given by Clarence Blake, and the certificate was awarded by the President of the Rotary Club, Bill Richardson. Former Commissioner, Jim Wark addressed a few remarks, appropriate to the occasion. Following this ceremony a plaque was attached to the inside of the hut by Mr. Richardson, District President Stan Lothrop, after thanking the Rotarians for their generosity in making this building a reality, received the hut on behalf of the Scouts.

Transcending all our differences

The death of Rev. Hugh I. Apps, minister of St. Ann's Church, Richmond, this week deprived that district, the Anglican church and indeed, the whole Townships of a man whose untiring work for his God and his community knew no religious or linguistic barriers.

So it was that on the day of his funeral Thursday, a requiem mass was sung for his soul in the Roman Catholic church of the parish of Ste. Famille. This was a rare gesture of spiritual unity, but symbolized the common sense of loss felt by Protestants and Roman Catholics alike.

Commenting on the Ste. Famille service, the French-language Sherbrooke daily La Tribune paid tribute yesterday this way:

"This occurrence deserves recognition, because it is only very rarely . . . that a Catholic religious ceremony is celebrated to honor the memory of a member of another faith. We see in it a display of a new spirit which honors those responsible for the decision, and more generally, all those who enter in heart and in fact into the ecumenical spirit.

"We are not at all surprised that this precedent should be created in the Eastern Townships . . . the spirit of religious amity that exists among residents of this area could serve as an example to many other parts of the country."

Today in Quebec, the emphasis is put almost daily on the differences that divide us: Quebec from the rest of Canada; English from French, Protestant from Roman Catholic.

That there are problems cannot be denied, but it is also true that there exist harmony, understanding and mutual respect in many parts of this bicultural province. Too often, these avenues of friendship are closed or overlooked in the heat of controversy.

Rev. Apps was a man who did not overlook them, or allow them to be closed. On the contrary, he explored every one as far as possible. That his explorations in faith and understanding were successful cannot now be doubted.

His example will always remain as a monument to his life. For those who knew him — whatever their faith, or language — there can no longer be divisions or racial bitterness, only the certain knowledge that what we all share in common is a richness and fullness of life that differences cannot dilute.

With all the hootennannies, the square dance is really getting round.

Hayden S. Pearson's COUNTRY FLAVOR

Horse trading principles apply now

The countryman is not a politician and is not competent to assess political goings-on. But there are times when he reads the paper that he wishes our leaders had been brought up in the country and understood the principles of horse trading.

When two good men met in the farm shop on a rainy day and one casually mentioned to the other that he might be able to use another horse, the second man always observed the amenities and asked first about the man's family and whether his son was planning to go to university.

Not that the second man was really thinking of trading Old Bess. "Might consider letting her go," he said. "Hate to do it, but feed is sort of short. Probably she's about 10 years old. Mighty good worker. Might let her go for a hundred fifty and a sledge hammer and crowbar thrown in."

"Family all well?" asked the potential buyer. "Heard your Aunt Zylpha wasn't feeling good. A hundred and fifty! Have to get off your little joke. I was thinking perhaps of seventy-five if you'd throw in a work harness. Seems as though Old Bess might be a mite older than ten."

"Could be. I haven't kept track. She might be twelve or perhaps a bit more. Mighty good horse though and lots of work left in her. Good family horse. My wife always wants her when she's driving to the village. Couldn't think of seventy-five dollars for a horse like her."

Eventually they reached a compromise. Old Bess goes for one hundred and five dollars plus a sledge hammer and crowbar. Two men make a bargain in open and above board dickering. Each knows that the ancient rule - let the buyer beware - is still the basis of bargaining. We wish that as the billions pour away to help others, that somehow we could make a horse trade of the deal. We think it might be better for both sides.

If phone calls from home had to be paid in cash, as at a pay station, it wouldn't take a teen-ager long to break dad.

Other papers say:

Prairie provinces, too, could unite

Premier Robichaud of New Brunswick appears to have taken his colleagues at the Charlottetown conference aback by his suggestion that the four Maritime provinces unite to form one province. The other premiers and the prime minister could hardly have been more surprised if the ghost of Sir John A. himself had materialized in the conference room. When the New Brunswick premier insisted that his proposal was to be taken seriously, the others fell back on wisecracks or on the fairly safe platform that a proposal of this nature required much study.

Certainly it does. But superficially, at least, Mr. Robichaud's suggestion has much merit, even if those politicians and others who could find themselves out of a job if it were implemented might be less than enthusiastic. The four Atlantic provinces have many economic problems in common. This is recognized by the high degree of co-operation that already exists among them in this field. Such an amalgamation would also strengthen the voice of Maritimers at federal-provincial conferences. There is a feeling now that the big provinces—Quebec and Ontario—carry most weight at these meetings, while other smaller provinces are pushed into the background and get only crumbs from Ottawa. (At the conference in Ottawa last fall, Prince Edward Island's premier was obviously unhappy at the pittance his province received compared with the amount received by other provinces, some of them much richer than P.E.I.) At present the four provinces have populations ranging from 105,000 to 737,000. Unification would create one province with around 2 million people.

Is it too optimistic to hope that Mr. Robichaud's advanced ideas may be infectious and that other premiers start to think along similar lines? The one area in Canada, other than the Maritimes, where an amalgamation of the kind suggested could prove extremely beneficial is here on the prairies. Quebec, Ontario and British Columbia must remain pretty static geographically and politically (although Quebec has been eyeing Labrador and British Columbia could claim the Yukon). But Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta are, largely speaking, all of a piece. All the arguments for consolidation of the Atlantic provinces apply with almost equal validity to the prairie provinces. Instead of three provinces, each with around a million people, there would be one big province with more than three million people.

There is concern these days that Canada is becoming Balkanized. If Mr. Robichaud's proposal were accepted and extended, the number of provinces (and provincial administrations) would be reduced from ten to five. The number of provincial politicians would be substantially reduced. Savings would be made all round. Efficiency would be improved. Present inequalities in the strength of provincial voices and influence would, to a degree, be ironed out. Surely here is a project that the country could well consider at the start of its second 100 years.

Adventures with God

Biblemaniacs like Miss America say 'Yeah, yeah, yeah' to Jesus

Beauty, brains and a Bible made headlines when a forthright young woman from Arizona was named Miss America.

I missed the TV show but scores of viewers have discussed it with me in recent days.

Earlier I heard and saw Miss Arizona on a Billy Graham broadcast and I was impressed with her straightforward witness.

PRECEPTS

Witness to faith in Jesus Christ as Saviour and Lord and in the Bible as His inspired word which gives light and directions to young men and women who apply its precepts.

Miss America carried a Bible. She was asked: Do you carry the Bible as a charm? She is reported to have replied: No. I do not carry it as a charm.

But to thousands of viewers the Bible lent a peculiar charm to the young contestant.

Miss America is one of thousands of young people who are Biblemaniacs. Many are wholesome, winsome, talented young people who have said: Yeah, Yeah, Yeah to the claims of Jesus Christ.

They have the gumption and the grace to take the ribbing that is part of the price of devotion and discipleship in these days when it is a mark of sophistication to scoff at morality and the laws of God as set forth in the Bible.

It is my hope that she will retain her sanity and humility and keep her feet firmly planted on the solid rock though she may momentarily have her head in the clouds.

Her success restored faith in the integrity of the judges who acclaimed her winner. The vote of one scoffing judge might have made the difference between her success and failure.

And the Bible might have been a contributing factor in the decision.

The much despised Book has become like the cross, an offense and stumbling block to the worldly wise of this generation.

But Miss America discovered that it made her "wise unto salvation."

Anyone who has made this discovery will cling to the Bible and obey its precepts and serve the Lord who is both the author and subject of THE BOOK.

God seeks young people of character, talent and conviction to be His witnesses in this wicked and perverse generation.

The Bible is NOT A CHARM but it contains the recipe that will make and keep young people charming and make them winners when they parade before the judgment seat of God.

Yes and it will help them to walk the runway of life with a degree of grace and dignity which will impress their contemporaries.

What are the essentials for true beauty? The Bible stresses a pure heart and clean hands, good posture which comes from walking uprightly and working righteously and speaking truth.

Poise is the sense of balance which comes from the inner consciousness that one is on good terms with God and man.

BEAUTY

Perfect proportions are the result of self-discipline, exercise of body and mind, proper hours of rest and proper diet for the body and the soul.

Young people who would acquire "the beauty of the Lord" will find no better formula than that prescribed in the Bible.

When God begins to make a model he doesn't begin with a mud pack on the face. He begins in the heart and gives to those who are in earnest about a change of personality a new heart cleansed and empowered.

OTTAWA — "John Diefenbaker," said a politician friend, "is the greatest political tactician in the House of Commons. And the worst political strategist."

"How come?" I asked.

"He wins tactical victories," my mentor explained, "like filibustering the flag debate so that the only practicable way for the prime minister to break the stalemate and get Parliament back to work was to agree to turn the flag question over to a committee."

"But when you look at his strategy — what's its result?"

"I bite. What?"

"He's the only Conservative leader in history who has succeeded in alienating both Ontario and Quebec at the same time. And without strong support in at least one or the other he can't win an election."

Now, there's something in what my friend says — but he also is looking through rosy-hued Grit glasses at the works and ways of the indomitable Dief.

It's true, as he says, that Dief is dead in Quebec — but conservatism is not. I saw in Ontario last year that some true blue Tories stayed away from the polls rather than vote for the discredited messiah. But Ontario is still full of Tories.

It's true that Dief, pap-fed the prairies and buttered up the Maritimes out of loyalty and political purpose. In the Diefenbaker team, Ontario was no longer the wheelhorse.

But as I read the record, it's not true that Mr. Diefenbaker brought the Tory party to a new low in the central provinces. In last year's election 27 Tories won in Ontario, and eight in Quebec. That's no worse, give or take a handful of seats, than George Drew did, or Bennett in 1935.

And it's not true that simply on this account Diefenbaker can be written off. What my Liberal friend forgets — and it's so easy to forget in the heat of political thrust and parry in Ottawa — is that in the final analysis opposition leaders and parties don't win elections. Rather, prime ministers and governments lose them.

So we come back to Mr. Diefenbaker's allegedly disastrous strategy. Time passes, things change, voters forget. Today's John Diefenbaker is a commanding leader again — risen like a phoenix from the ashes of his career 18 months ago.

What is most important next election isn't what happened before 1963; it's his strategy now. It's a strategy of belittlement of the Pearson government, of exposing clay feet, of denying credit, of obstructing, of ridicule, of embarrassing, of tearing down a positive Liberal image and trying to replace it with a negative one.

Among political technicians — although perhaps not among political idealists — this strategy of political cynicism merits intellectual respect.

We are talking only about the techniques of getting elected. If we look past elections to the techniques of governing that is an entirely different matter. Mr. Diefenbaker has shown little comprehension of these techniques. They are essentially techniques of compromise, of working out generally acceptable solutions — and at this Prime Minister Pearson is the great master.

So what it boils down to is that John Diefenbaker is the master politician, and Lester Pearson the master statesman. Each is jealous of the other's mastery. Maybe that's why they hate each other's guts.

BANNER TIME

The pennants wave, the pageants gleam, On wooded slope, by pasture stream; All up the glade and down the glen The Autumn banners dance again.

There lies a sheen across the land, How flaming fair the maples stand! Rare, gold-set rubies deck the view, Where Autumn banners float anew

New wonder wraps the trails I take, Reflected glory girds the lake, Strange glamor gleams on wave and shore, While Autumn banners blend once more.

Questions readers ask

Q—I read that one of the major lacks in the average American diet is vitamin A. Just what is vitamin A and where do we get it?
A—Vitamin A is essential for growth, vision and healthy skin. One of the best sources of it is a yellow pigment, called carotene, found in carrots and squash. Carotene is found as well in green leafy vegetables where its yellow color is masked by a concentration of the green pigment chlorophyll. Milk, butter, cheese, ice cream and margarine also contain some vitamin A.

For and about Women

Forgues-Cloutier wedding

The marriage of Gay Muriel Sylvia Cloutier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Cloutier, of Rock Forest, to Mr. Jacques Lucien Forgues, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Forgues of Sherbrooke, took place on August 29, 1964, at 11 o'clock in St. Patrick's Church. Father Clark officiated. Mr. John Codere played the wedding music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white peau de soie, the lace bodice being fashioned with short sleeves. Her bouffant veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a crown of flowers. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses and white mums.
Mrs. Carolyn Marlow was the matron of honor, and wore a dress of light green organza, with a green veil for her headdress, held in place by a crown of white flowers. Her bouquet was of yellow gladioli.
Mr. Raymond Forgues, brother of the groom, acted as best man and the ushers were Messrs. Russell Marlow and Gordon Ditchburn.

The bride's mother was attired in a three-piece light blue linen suit, white straw hat, trimmed with flowers and a corsage of white carnations.
The groom's mother wore a red and black boucle three-piece suit, black accessories and a corsage of red and white carnations.
Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Pleasant View Hotel, North Hatley, the bride's table being centred with the three tier wedding cake, the base being surrounded with pink morning glories and topped with a large white satin ribbon bow. Gladioli and seasonal flowers completed the decor.
Later the couple left for a trip to the Laurentians, the bride wearing for travelling a pink two-piece suit, white accessories and a corsage of red roses.
Guests attended from London, England, Ottawa, Ontario, North Hatley, Sherbrooke, Montreal and Lennoxville. The couple are residing in Rock Forest.

DEAR POLLY — I am a 12-year-old Girl Scout who does a lot of camping. I always had trouble finding what I wanted to get out of my duffel bag. I devised a way to find my belongings easily. They also are safe from water. I put my socks in one plastic bag, toilet articles in another, underclothes in another. I tie each bag with a string and run the string from each plastic bag out the opening of my duffel bag and put label tags at the ends of the strings. I find each item by following the string along until I reach the plastic bag.—MARLA ANNE

The annual Founder's Day set of stamps from Ghana features Hibiscus flowers this year along with a portrait of President Nkrumah. The set consists of four values and a souvenir sheet will be issued at a later date with a block of the 2d value, it is interesting to note that the sheet will have the music of the new National Anthem on the margins. Ghana will also issue a World's Fair-Space issue later this month in the popular compact sheets of 12. This issue will combine Ghana's tribute to the international space program and the New York World's Fair "Unisphere". This set will consist of three values. The compact sheets will have some unique features and should be attractive and popular. This country will join the many countries in honouring the Olympic Games this fall. The Olympic set will be colourful and will show the hurdles, track, boxing, broad jump, soccer and the high values the Olympic Torch and Emblem. This will also be accompanied by a souvenir sheet.

Abstract art will make its debut on a United States stamp. A melange of red, blue and black squiggles by Stuart Davis, a top ranking modernist, will be reproduced as a commemorative five cent stamp that salutes the fine arts. It has been recent policy of the United States Post Office Department to use diversified art styles in efforts to provide verve and variety to new stamps, and the abstractionists are now to have their inning. Davis is regarded as the father of pop art. Proposal for a fine arts stamp came from the United States Committee of the International Association of Art which asked the Society of American Graphic Artists to produce suitable designs. An invitation contest was financed by a grant of $4,700, from Mrs. Albert Litz of New York City, who has often been a benefactress of the arts. Artists who participated were among the best in country. The abstract art stamp is based on a lithograph printed by the Pratt Contemporaries Workshop about eight years ago and was adapted for the Giori press by John Ross. The artist was born December 7, 1894 in Philadelphia of artist parents. When Davis was 16 he quit school to begin art training under Robert Henrie, in New York City. Henrie was the founder of the ashcan school of art, so-called because it was in violent conflict with the conventional art of the day. In 1913 America saw for the first time an exhibit of vanguard European art. Davis came under the spell of the French Impressionists and van Gogh and imitated these until he found his style in 1927. He spent that year painting and repainting an eggbeater, an electric fan and a rubber glove which he nailed to a table in his studio. These paintings he titled "Eggbeater No. 2" and so on. His concentration on the geometrical planes in the eggbeater series enabled Davis to divorce himself from naturalistic forms and to develop what he termed colour space compositions. What resulted was what a critic called a blaring harmony. Others have said that he painted jazz music sounds. His work is clean cut and hotly coloured. Davis usually had only a few colours on his palette — black, white, a special mixed blue-green, a bright yellow and a deep red. These he applied in broken squiggles. The stamp will certainly add colour to your collection and will be far different from the stamps you presently have.

There are many topics to be collected and the American Topical Association caters to the many subjects which intrigue stamp collectors. This society offers a great number of books on many topics and also a bi-monthly magazine to its many members. Other enticements to membership include a translation service, slide and lecture shows, check lists, credit reference, awards for stamp shows, the exchange of ideas and information, a membership directory and many other items. The annual dues are only three dollars a year, to this must be added the joining fee of one dollar. The society is well established and highly recommended. Details about joining may be obtained from the writer at Dixville, Que. And be sure to join the stamp club in your area. The stamp clubs offer much and ask little.

Clear-cut pictures through eyes of boy

CHILDREN AND OTHERS by James Gould Cozzens; 343 pp. Longmans Canada Ltd.; $6.75

This is a Book-Of-The-Month Selection. The author, perhaps, is best known by his novel by LOVE POSSESSED which was also a Selection; indeed being one of four others. His novel GUARD OF HONOR was awarded the Pulitzer Prize for fiction. He is presently working on a new novel titled MORNING, NOON, AND NIGHT.

CHILDREN AND OTHERS is divided into five sections. The first and second are made up of ten stories and are memories of the author's youthful experiences. The next section is made up of two stories about the American Civil War. Then, there are four stories under the heading Love and Kisses, and in conclusion, a long story titled Eyes To See, an adult recollection of the loss of a boy's mother, and the gathering of the relatives for the funeral. Fifteen of these stories have been published in periodicals but the last one, Eyes to See appears here for the first time.

distinction, having clear-cut pictures which appeal. There is no obscurity of meaning and he shows a diversity of style which enlivens the book. He can jump from a picture seen through a boy's eyes, to one seen by one much more mature with no sense of having bridged a gap. In his last story, which will appeal to many as the best in the collection, although the funeral of the boy's mother may be quite unlike that of one of our own relatives, we still feel an association; a link between the intense feelings of the boy and of our own on such an occasion. He sits there watching the faces of his relatives. Some of them he likes, others he despises, or at least dislikes. He realizes part of his life has gone forever. He describes the memory lapse which makes him unaware of the service ending and his mother's casket being removed, then the procession leaving the church. Surely the capacity of a writer in projecting his pictures so that they have universality appeal and understanding is the highest skill he may acquire.

Jottings

By GLADYS TAYLOR

"I'll read your book when it comes to the library." In some respects these are the most discouraging words a writer ever hears. Why? Because they mean one more royalty he won't get. For years writers have been fighting an unsuccessful nonetheless sustained fight for a fairer return from the reading of their books.

When an author's book is bought by a library he gets an average royalty of about 40 cents. It doesn't matter whether this particular copy of his book is read by one person or by one hundred, he still only gets the 40 cents. Authors feel this is unfair. They feel they should get some return per reader rather than per book.

Though many people, including librarians, agree that the author does not get a fair return for the hours of work that go into the producing of a book, there have been so many obstacles, not least is the almost insurmountable one of the book-keeping it would entail, inherent in any plan for the remuneration of authors on borrowed books that the question has always been dropped with little but a few words of commiseration to the hapless writers.

Dropped, that is, except in the Scandinavian countries. Here, during the last nine years, has been developed a system of writers-share-the-wealth which Canadian authors would gladly see adopted in Canada.

In 1955 in Sweden a special State Fund, called Sweden's Fund for Authors (Denmark, Finland and Norway have similar funds) was established.

This fund receives money from the State Budget, calculated on the library circulation during the previous year at a rate of about one cent per loan. The number of loans calculated by sampling methods. A hundred libraries or so, chosen at random, are requested to copy the book cards for certain lending periods — for a remuneration from the Fund — and send the transcripts to the secretaries of the Fund.

The money the Fund receives, based on an analysis of this sampling, is then used either in direct compensation to writers or for pensions and scholarships for writers. The distribution of the part of compensation paid directly to writers is founded on the estimated sum of the circulation during the last year of books written by the author in question. He usually receives, per calendar year, a rate of about half a cent per estimated loan.

Though the above is a very sketchy synopsis of the plan it can be seen that it is feasible for authors to be paid according to the number of readers of their books rather than to the number of buyers, and that it can be done, under the Scandinavian system, with little extra burden on librarians.

Along with most Canadian writers I would like to see Canada follow the Scandinavian lead in this project. However I am aware that it is one of those things very easily lost in the shuffle of government unless more people than the writers themselves get behind it. For this reason I cannot but hope that some women's organizations — possibly those which have derived the most pleasure from books through their reading group — would take up this idea as a project and join with the writers in requesting that parliament requesting that parliament set up a fund similar to Sweden's Fund for Authors.

Such a project becomes especially meaningful when we remind ourselves that a country cannot exist without libraries, and libraries cannot exist without authors.

Splendid story about people and an excellent crime novel

THE SPOILT KILL, by Mary Kelly, 207 pgs. Penguin Crime 85 cents.

One critic has compared Mary Kelly's writing with that of Dorothy Sayer; Mary Kelly's may not have the underlying sense of humor characteristic of many of Dorothy Sayer's stories, but does have the same mastery of integrating her characters and while never losing the suspense, making it somehow subservient to the persons — in contrast to people — involved.

There is much of compassion in THE SPOILT KILL. It is the kind of book a prison chaplain might recommend to those who think all men and women who break the law, criminal unconditionally.

The story is told by a private detective by the name of Nicholson who has been hired by Luke Shentall of the family pottery in England's Midlands, to investigate the leakage of their new design Vinca. The design has appeared on a very inferior merchandise already on the market before Shentall's quality were in ready to be sold.

Nicholson finds himself falling in love with Corinna Wakefield, the designer and chief suspect, a woman he considers beautiful and in whom he recognizes a submerged passion though her fellow-workers seem to consider her cold and remote.

Nicholson's work is made difficult, but is not hampered, by his jealousy of Corinna's past and of one of the engineers, Freddy to everyone, a man whose good looks and humor make him a general favorite.

These, as well as Colin Dart, his greedy wife Gillian; the tyrant Bullace; Judith, the pretty receptionist, and the whole staff of Shentall's feel the cold shadow of theft and death, and suffer the agonies of love, betrayal, weakness or courage before the story reaches its denouement.

Bible personalities re-created

LIVING PERSONALITIES OF THE OLD TESTAMENT by Hagen Staack; Longman's; 147 pp.; $3.85.

Here we have an interesting little book which re-creates ten key figures in the religious history of Israel. The author, Hagen Staack, is a well-known television personality who has given a series of programs on the subject, pointing out why these men and women were so important to their times.

For those who are puzzled as to why God chose men and women with human failings as His instruments, there is an explanation, quite acceptable, pointing out that God used, and still uses, the least likely of men to work out His purpose. King David was an example of a man who had weaknesses but whose political demands became hard to reconcile with his religious dedication.

Ruth, in the fields of Boaz, is pictured as a foreign woman who had accepted the faith and the God of her mother-in-law Naomi although she was a daughter of the hated Moabites. But she was to become a great-grandmother of David, Israel's most illustrious ruler. Her blameless character and engaging personality won for her the approval of her Bethlehem neighbors. The Book of Ruth, then was an example of the fight against isolationism.

The story of a foreigner quietly entering a hostile country and entering into the community of Israel and becoming a member of their society without discord or the battle of readjustment.

Charlie's queen outdared them all in topless dress

THE COURT AT WINDSOR by Christopher Hibbert 347 pp. . . . Longmans . . . $7.75.

Those who have been scandalized recently by the topless bathing suit and the topless dress fad might find it reassuring, or at any rate timely, to read this passage from the part of THE COURT AT WINDSOR which deals with Charles II and his wife.

"But whatever the fashion, the Queen's clothes not only reflected but exaggerated it. At a time when it was fashionable for a dress to be cut so low that the swell of the breasts was seen even to the nipple's aureole, the Queen 'exposed' her breast and shoulders without even . . . the slightest gauze; and the tucker instead of standing up on her bosom, is with licentious boldness turned down and lies upon her stays."

The above quotation is just a sample of the spicy, amusing, often critical and almost always devastatingly honest reading there is to be found in this highly entertaining and a d carefully researched book.

Beginning with William I who chose the site of Windsor Castle the reader meets all the kings and queens who lived there up to the present Royal family. Through the years he watches the architectural changes taking place in the castle and inadvertently the monarchical changes taking place in the kingdom.

If Windsor Castle is the hearth of the Royal Family, it is also in many ways the heart of the Empire. A study of the Castle such as this one is like a family letter containing almost 800 years of domestic activity. This book is both entertaining and worthwhile reading — not only for the student of history but for the student of human behavior. G.T.

Timely and refreshing

CRADLE OF CONFEDERATION: By Lorne C. Callbeck; Brunswick Press.

In spite of the Confederation material which has assaulted and will, I am afraid, continue to assault our eyes and ears until 1967 is safely past, the publication of Lorne Callbeck's book is timely.

It is a refreshing book. The author has the ability to do what his facts. The sum of these facts presents a clear and satisfying picture. This is no mean feat. Often those who write about a particular area in which their own roots are sunk deep, lose the necessary objectivity. The reader sees through the dark glass of the writer's emotions.

Not so in this case. Lorne Callbeck has lived and breathed the history of Prince Edward Island since the day he was born. His ancestors helped to govern it. One has a feeling that each fact has been meticulously verified, painstakingly fitted into the picture in such a way and at such a spot that it adds significance to the whole.

If the reader has visited the Island, or seen pictures of its lush beauty, it is not easy to imagine that the soil has been soaked with blood, or that enemy ships ever sailed into its sheltered bays to loot and sack its villages.

There is humor in the book, too. Altogether the author has given a valuable work on this Island about which, until recently, the average man-in-the street knew far too little.

KATE MUNRO

OBSCENE, DISMAL, CHEAP, SHAMELESS

THE BRIDE By Alex Austin, Holt, Rinehart & Winston. 349 Pages. $5.70

THE BRIDE is the story of a young girl and of her marriage. At least, it is the story of the sexual side of the marriage — Author Austin seems unaware that there is any other aspect. The jacket of the book advertises it as being "a novel for all who seek adult and absorbing entertainment." It seemed to this reviewer that Alex Austin had overlooked no type of human degradation in his attempt to achieve such mature absorption.

One wonders about the life of such an author. It seems almost unbelievable that he himself could grow to manhood and know nothing of dignity, decency or beauty; that his only knowledge of his fellow beings is that they speak in constant blasphemy and are preoccupied with one thing only, sex, sex, sex.

He takes his heroine through premarital experience, of course, then much more of the same after the blessing of the family Rabbi. From there we go on to her extramarital adventures, so shamelessly detailed that we become sick with pity and horror at the wreckage of this twenty-three year old life.

As though it were not enough, this dismal and obscene account, Mr. Austin launches into side issues involving abnormal sex in children, behaviour of lesbians and abortion. He delves into this latter with such alarming relish and clinical precision that one wonders if he has ever been a serious student of medicine and gynecology. Most certainly he is intimately familiar with every feature of anatomy, male and female, external and internal and too, he is not ungenerous in sharing his knowledge.

This book, I feel, can do nothing but bring discredit to both writer and publisher. The written word is indeed a strong force for good or evil. This novel, in my opinion, would present to the young and inexperienced reader a concept of life that simply is not true. I have never found that Mr. Austin's four letter words are used as commonly as he seems to believe and, surely it is not true that there is nothing in the world to interest men and women but

MUSIC ON RECORDS

By SUSAN

PERGOLESI — Concerti Armonici Nos. 1-4; Stuttgart Chamber Orchestra; Karl Munchinger, cond. (LONDON mono CM 9383) — These four are from a set of six "Concerti Armonici". They are popularly attributed to Pergolesi but in fact it is doubtful whether he did write them. The name "Pergolesi" was a password to success as far as the publisher was concerned, and it has even been suggested that the publisher, Ricciotti himself was the composer. In spite of their shadowy beginning however, the pieces are delightful. They are full of rhythm, counterpoint and tuneful melodies. They contain all the freshness and spontaneity of which Pergolesi was capable. In the slow movements a found tenderness and depth of feeling. The Stuttgart Chamber Orchestra is at its best in this fine recording.

SCHUBERT — Die Winterreise; Dietrich Fischer-Dieskau; Gerald Moore, pianist. (ANGEL stereo 3640B) — This is a great and moving performance of the twenty-four songs in this song cycle. The interpretation is a very dramatic and tragic one. No singer pays more attention to the words and their significance than does Fischer-Dieskau, and his articulation is therefore always clear. Fischer-Dieskau is fortunate in having Gerald Moore as his accompanist. In a few notes he can evoke the atmosphere called for in every song, and with his unerring sense of poetry identify completely with the music. If anyone thinks that the singer sounds a little too close to the microphone he can be compensated by the feeling of immediacy that this produces.

The coin by winifred mather, f.r.n.s. box

Michaelmas, the Feast of St. Michael and All Angels, which for centuries was the traditional beginning of the British fiscal year, falls on September 29. This was the date for payment of annual dues and rents, and the custom, I understand still continues in rural areas of the British Isles.

St. Michael the Archangel has been portrayed on coins of many countries but the most famous is the English gold coin known as the angel, from its design of St. Michael defeating Satan in the guise of a dragon, on one side of the coin.

The angel was first issued in 1465, during the reign of Edward IV and had a value of 6 shillings and 8 pence. However, the value was raised early in the reign of Henry VIII to 7 shillings and 6 pence and later to 10 shillings. The coin was issued continuously for nearly two hundred years, with the last angel being struck by Charles I.

There are specimens extant of both pierced and unpierced angels as this coin was used by the Tudors and the early Stuarts as a touch-piece, and those used as touch-pieces were pierced for suspension.

In the ancient royal ceremony of healing by touch, sufferers from scrofula were 'touched' by the monarch and in England, after a sufferer had been 'touched' a white ribbon, with a golden coin or medalet suspended from it, was placed around the neck of the sufferer, not merely as a memento, but as an amulet, to be worn until a cure was effected.

After the issue of angels ceased in the reign of Charles I, gold medalets were struck to be used as touch-pieces, with the same design of St. Michael and the dragons.

The first English monarch known to have 'touched' was Edward the Confessor in the eleventh century, and the last was Queen Anne, and in the British Museum there is a medalet which was worn by Samuel Johnson as a small child, after he was 'touched' by Queen Anne.

THE MAN ON THE ROCK by Francis King, 213 pgs., Penguin Books 85 cents

MAN ON THE ROCKS has for its opening scenes the appalling destruction of a poverty-stricken Greek village by rebels during the civil war and the abduction of three teenage girls and fourteen boys, among them Spiro, the son of the Orthodox priest who, with his wife, is killed by the insurgents.

During the interminable time between their capture and their eventual release by Greek soldiers, the children endured almost unbearable hardships — seven of the children died — and were subjected to obscenities, brutality, to hopelessness, loneliness and grief. Spiro determined that never again would he live in his poverty-stricken village and that never again would he suffer from want or allow himself to be placed in a position where he would suffer indignities.

In Athens, he puts his determination into force by using his good looks, his charm and his native intelligence to get the most of what he wants with the least possible effort.

What he wants are comfort, good clothes, money to spend, a position that will force recognition of his talents, and a gift for a friend.

I shudder to think of the reaction it might produce in a young and prospective bride. It would also be a great shame to waste five dollars and seventy cents on this literary outrage when, unfortunately, the same material can be cheaply bought under the counter at any street corner in any town.

KATHARINE SNOW Waterloo.

women. He exploits the emotional needs of the people he meets, in particular Irvine Stroh, an American who becomes his protector; Helen Bristow a middle-aged Englishwoman who becomes his mistress; and Kiki Vrisogolou, the daughter of a wealthy London Greek, whom he marries.

Each one he destroys, as he destroys others who are kind to him, but in destroying them, destroys himself.

The reader may ask himself whether Spiro would have been different had his intelligence, good looks and charm been given an opportunity to mature under happier conditions or whether his destruction of himself and everyone who befriends or loves him is the result of an intrinsic amorality.

If truth is beauty, then MAN ON THE ROCK is a beautiful story, for one must recognize truth in the portrayal of Spiro's ruinous personality. If hate, anger, betrayal are ugly, then it is also an ugly story. I think that Mr. King has bound these qualities into a novel that may appeal, but one that the reader must feel is essentially honest and certainly powerful.

THE WORLD OF SPORTS

Serpentine Rally takes place today starting from Drummondville, to count for Quebec Region Rally title

The Serpentine Rally, counting towards the Quebec Region Rally Championships, will take place in the Eastern Townships Saturday, Sept. 26. Starting in Drummondville, the teams will cover almost three hundred miles of secondary roads before finishing Saturday evening in the vicinity of Danville.

Organized by the Eastern Townships Motor Club, this annual event is planned to be a test of driving ability as well as navigational skill. Ed Day, of 129 Manville St., East, Asbestos, said today, "This is the most important event of the year for our Club, and a tremendous amount of work has gone into its preparation. Because this Rally counts towards the Quebec Championships for drivers and navigators, we expect a large entry from all over the province."

Scrutinizing of competing cars, that is the safety inspection of the cars, will take place between 8:00 a.m. and 8:30 a.m. The contestants briefing will be at 8:40 and the first car will leave at 9:01. The remainder of the cars will leave at one minute intervals.

The competitors will be trying for the Canadian John-Manville Trophy, a unique, perpetual award, going to the first place car. Replicas will also be presented, to be retained by the winners.

Last year's hotly contested edition of the Serpentine saw a record number of 36 cars entered, comprising some of the best crews in the Province. A large local entry is also expected. The formation of the "Auto Club Sherbrooke" has given auto-sport in the region a tremendous boost. Interest is higher now than it has ever been, and the organizers have been assured of a large entry from the Sherbrooke club.

Bookies install Rough Riders as 15-point favorites to down Als, Coach Clair not taking any chances

OTTAWA (CP) — City bookmakers have established Ottawa Rough Riders as 15-point favorites to beat Montreal Alouettes when the two Eastern Football Conference clubs clash here today at Lansdowne Park.

Riders go into the game in first place with 11 points, three more than second-place Hamilton Tiger-Cats and five over the third-place Alouettes.

The feeling that Riders will have it easy against Als isn't shared by Ottawa coach Frank Clair who still winces when he remembers the way Riders were manhandled by the lowly Edmonton Eskimos earlier this month.

To hammer home the point to his players, Clair has just about decided to dress defensive halfback and punter Ed Ulmer, with an injured knee, missed the first game between Als and Riders last Saturday which Riders won easily after a poor start. It had been expected the injury would sideline him again today but Clair now says Riders will need all they've got to take Als a second time.

"There is no place in the schedule where you can take it easy if you want to shoot for first place," said Clair. "and we do."

Montreal coach Jim Trimble says he still hasn't made up his mind whether to start George Bork or Vern Cole at quarterback.

King Clancy signs son to pro contract

TORONTO (CP) — Frank (King) Clancy, assistant general manager of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, has signed his son Terry, 24, to a professional contract.

Said Clancy before leaving with Leafs for an exhibition tour of Western Canada: "It was Terry's decision. He wanted to give pro hockey a whirl and Joe Crozier (manager-coach of Leafs' farm club, Rochester Americans) said he wanted Terry for his team in the American Hockey League."

"He got the same deal we offered the other amateurs. I think it's fair and so does he."

Terry said: "This was something I had to get out of my system. I'll give it a whirl for two seasons at Rochester. If I am not satisfied with my progress as a pro hockey player I'll return to school and take a pre-med course."

Reds win twice as Phillies beaten; NL pennant race is suddenly red-hot

"I can't believe it. It's beautiful, but I just can't believe it," Dick Sisler exclaimed Friday night over the unbelievable pennant race that has developed out of nowhere in the National League.

Sisler, acting manager of Cincinnati, had just seen his Reds sweep New York Mets 3-0 and 4-1. The victories, coupled with Philadelphia's 7-5 loss to Milwaukee in 12 innings, shot the Reds to within 1 1/2 games of the floundering Phillies.

The Reds have won six straight while the Phillies, 6 1/2 games ahead at the beginning of the week, have dropped five in a row for their longest losing streak of the season. The Reds, with eight games remaining, have lost only one more game than the Phillies.

Worse still for Philadelphia, St. Louis Cardinals have crept to within 2 1/2 games and San Francisco Giants to within 3 1/2. Five of the Phillies' remaining seven games are with the Reds and the Cardinals.

St. Louis defeated Pittsburgh Pirates 5-3 and San Francisco stopped Chicago Cubs 3-1. Los Angeles Dodgers whipped Houston Colts 7-2 in the other game Friday.

ERROR HELPS

The Reds put the first game away with two runs in the first on Vada Pinson's run-scoring single and an error by Al Jackson.

Bob Purkey (11-9) and Sammy Ellis combined for a three-hitter in the nightcap. Frank Robinson cracked a two-run homer in the sixth inning and Marty Keough connected with none on in the seventh. The Phillies rallied for a 3-3 tie in the eighth inning on STANSTEAD — The Dufferin Heights Golf Club held their closing Thursday evening and a good crowd was on hand for the annual event.

Following a roast beef dinner, served by Mrs. Winslow and greatly appreciated by all, President Fred Bedard welcomed the members and called on Mrs. Helen Edgar, who represented Mrs. Louis Shaw, ladies president, for a few words.

Mrs. Edgar then called on Mrs. Beatrice Bishop, convener of the ladies match committee, for her report. Mrs. Janet Walker won the ringer competition for class A while Mrs. Noella Ashworth took class B. Miss Charity Greenwood won the Mary Flint Trophy and Mrs. Bishop copped class A in the Sunset League and Miss Greenwood class B.

Mrs. Janet Walker won the ladies championship while Mrs. Gwen Greer took class B and Mrs. Elizabeth Miller, class C. Robert Gardyne and Douglas Henderson, match committee, gave the results of the men's competition.

President Bedard presented Mrs. Edgar with the trophy won by her husband for copping the club championship. Mr. Edgar was absent on business. The team of S. Edgar, R. Wing, M. Minor and C. Cordeau won the W. A. G. tourney. W. Mutchler, P. Ellis, M. Rollins and J. Lepine finished second while H. Lilley, T. MacLean, R. Bishop and G. Poulin took the consolation prize.

Mac Winslow won the ringer competition with E. Alger taking class B and A. Boiesse class C. R. Winter won the handicap tourney with Steve Bronson the runner-up. M. Winslow won class A title, J. Lees class B while G. DeSalva took class C.

President Bedard thanked all the members who helped to make the past season such a success and mentioned that the annual meeting will be held in the club house October 15. He asked that all members be on hand for the final report of the season.

Ticats and Lions clash in big one tonight

The chips will be down and the wheel spinning this week end as six teams take the field in Western football action.

All six will be gambling heavily and the stakes will be high. Hamilton Tiger-Cats take on British Columbia Lions tonight while Edmonton Eskimos go after Saskatchewan Roughriders in Regina.

Sunday it's Toronto Argonauts against Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Lions haven't beaten Hamilton since a 1962 exhibition game and B.C. coach Dave Skrien says they are "anxious to win" the Eastern champs.

"We feel it's a big challenge and we want it."

Tiger-Cats topped B.C. 21-10 in the Grey Cup championship last November and took them 3-0 in an exhibition game this year.

"The fact that this is the third game in a week cuts down our preparation, but because our coaching staff has been together we can get the job done with less preparation than we could have last year or the year before," said Skrien.

GROUND GAME

Hamilton coach Ralph Szabo has had quarterback Bernie Faloney concentrating on the ground game.

"You can't depend on the long bomb to keep saving you. You have to be able to run the ball as well."

In Regina, the Eskimos will be fighting to keep their playoff hopes alive and the Roughriders will be looking at first place in the West.

"If we beat Edmonton, then maybe we can sit down and assess our first-place chances," says coach Bob Shaw.

In their last meeting, Eskies were trounced 36-8 but coach Neil Armstrong says: "We're improving, though our last game didn't show it against B.C. But we got 16 first downs against Lions and Stampede's 12-7."

Of the Lions, Shaw says: "I think we're capable of knocking them over with what we have now, but we want to keep improving to the point where we can beat them consistently."

In their last meeting, Eskies were trounced 36-8 but coach Neil Armstrong says: "We're improving, though our last game didn't show it against B.C. But we got 16 first downs against Lions and Stampede's 12-7."

"I have to respect any team that can handle Ottawa 20-1."

KEY TO PLAYOFF

For the Eskies, victory tonight "is the key" to playoff hopes, says Armstrong.

Sunday's afternoon game in Winnipeg will also be the key to Blue Bombers' hopes.

A loss—it would be their ninth in a row—would eliminate Winnipeg.

It would be the coup-de-grace to a season that has seen Bombers suffer serious injury to 17 players, including elimination early in the season of safety Dick Thornton and end Farrell Fumston.

It's no less a crucial contest for Argos.

"As of right now, third place is our objective," says coach Nobby Winkowski.

He's counting on Jackie Parker going all the way at quarterback but if anything goes wrong, he'll go to Karl Sweetan, a 21-year-old rookie.

INJURIES HIT CANADIENS WITH PREVOST LATEST

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens announced Friday that left-winger Claude Prevost, who has been with the National Hockey League club eight seasons, has suffered a slight rib separation and is not expected to play in an exhibition game here tonight against Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League.

Two other casualties were reported from the training camp. Claude Larose, right-winger who was with Canadiens and Omaha of the Central Professional Hockey League last season, suffered a fractured nose in Valleyfield, Que. Noel Picard, defenceman with Omaha last season, has a fractured toe.

LEAGUE OPENS — Clair Kuntz, Public Relations Officer of the Canadian Ingersoll Company, is seen accepting the first ball to officially open the Circo Bowling League. On the left is Miss Francine Letre, secretary, and Paul Rodney, centre, president of the loop.

BUSY SEA

The North Sea has the densest traffic with a vessel passing any central point every 8 1/2 minutes.

$4,375 at stake, classes well balanced, seven in main pace on Sunday's card, 156 to compete

A Preferred Trot and a combination Trot and Pace, both number one Preferred events, will headline the weekend racing card at the Sherbrooke Racing Club.

This evening a pace for a purse of $300 is the main feature on the card while 78 horses will fight it out for the major share of the purses. A total of $1,975 will be at stake tonight while Sunday afternoon the amount will be $2,400 for an overall total of $4,375.

On Sunday seven trotters will fight it out for the top shares of a $350 purse while in the combined race eight will go to the wire. The next top class on the card is in the fifth when seven of top pacers will class for a purse of $325.

In the Preferred Trot Hauver's Lady Jersey Ritz has drawn the favored position while Beaudoin's Lynn IBAF has second spot with Dillon IBAF, the favorite, in third slot. Lura Morris has fifth, Hero Pick sixth and Bennett's Premium has the back row to himself.

Ferland's Dillon IBAF, with Fern Desrochers driving, came home head of the field Wednesday in 2:09 which makes him look like a sure repeater Sunday. Amedee Beaudoin will be back in the sulky following his suspension and could prove to be a tough customer with Lynn IBAF.

In the mixed class Hauver's Singing Duke has the pole position but this class will be tough as any one of the eight starters could emerge the winner. Guertin's Mighty Council C was the winner last Sunday in 2:09 but McElwyn Song, Sonny Boy B, Adios Widow, Rhythm Mac-

Express Beauty and Dick Adios could make things tough. Mrs. Frank Newell's Lone Elm Reddy pulled through a winner last week in 2:10 2/5 and with the pole position could cause the rest of the field trouble. Martel's Sir Symbol was second in 2:08 while Brochu's Eddy Mite was third in the same race.

Sir Yankee, with A. Rouleau driving, is another who could emerge a winner. He has the fourth spot while Granby Express has drawn the sixth spot with Eddy Mite in the back lane. Yis could be a tough battle the whole way.

This evening seven are entered in the main event, a pace Sunday. Amedee Beaudoin will be a good race as anyone could lead the field under the wire. Breaks of the race will be a big factor in the outcome.

The rest of the classes are well balanced and things should be tough before the winners are declared. In the Ninth race seven trotters and the horse which remains on his feet will emerge the winner as several in their past starts have broken stride during the race.

Maris continues hot hitting streak as Yankees extend lead in the AL

Roger Maris, virtually unused despite his daily contributions in New York Yankees' phenomenal stretch run toward another American League pennant, stepped out of the chorus Friday night and did a one-man job on Washington Senators.

His second home run of the game, a solo shot in the ninth inning, gave the Yankees a 6-5 victory, strengthening their winning streak to 10 games and reducing the flag-clinching magic number to five.

Any combination of New York victories and Baltimore Orioles or Chicago White Sox losses totaling five will nail down the Yankees' fifth straight pennant.

If it happens, as expected, a good part of the credit will be long to the club's new centre fielder.

The quiet Midwesterner swapped positions with Mickey Mantle in the Yanks' outfield alignment at about the same time the team began to jell.

The Orioles and White Sox deadlocked for second place, four games off the pace, each produced 17-hit splurges Friday night. The Orioles whipped Cleveland Indians 10-6 and the White Sox slugged Kansas City Athletics 11-3.

Chance became the league's first 20-game winner—he has lost eight—and recorded his 11th shutout, tops in the majors, in a duel with Minnesota's Jim Kaat (17-9). The Angel right-hander allowed eight hits, struck out eight and lowered his major league - leading earned run average to 1.59.

Wickersham held the Red Sox hitless for five innings and finished with a four-hitter but the Tigers barely squeezed by. Don Demeter's sixth inning home ersham of Detroit Tigers won run proved decisive.

Home runs by Ron Hansen, Dave Nicholson, Tom McCraw and rookie Ken Berry helped Juan Pizarro make his sixth try for victory No. 18 a success. The southpaw held the Athletics to six hits, losing his shut-out bid in the seventh when Ed Charles homered.
