In His Naval Policy Kaiser William Emulates Example of Britain's King Alfred

THE BEGINNING OF BRITAIN'S NAVY—Alfred the Great was unquestionably the founder of Britain's sea-power, and the above illustration depicts the famous Saxon King launching one of his war galleys. It is recorded that he built ships higher, longer and swifter than any that had been seen on the seas before. The illustration is a reproduction of a sketch in "Black and White," drawn by Mr. Charles M. Sheldon from materials very courteously placed at his disposal by the authorities of the South Kensington Museum. The three figures in the foreground on the landing stage are those of King Alfred and his Queen, and Archbishop Æthelred of Canterbury.

America's Finest Chorus; The Mendelssohn Choir of Toronto; Sings to 25,000

AMERICA'S FINEST CHORUS—Music-lovers throughout Canada may well feel proud of the pre-eminent position among choral societies in America to which the Mendelssohn Choir of Toronto has attained. In its recent trip to New York it created great interest at the two concerts given in Carnegie Hall, and won the approval of the best critics of the Metropolis. The New York Herald said such choral music had not been heard in a decade; and Mr. Henry T. Finck, the musical critic of the New York Post, said: "It is as perfect in its way as the Boston Symphony Orchestra." It is estimated that within three weeks, at the five concerts in Toronto, one in Buffalo, and two in New York, this Choir will have sung to twenty-five thousand people. Its great success is attributed to the musicianly ability, energy and tact of Mr. A. S. Vogt, who has been its conductor since its organization ten years ago.

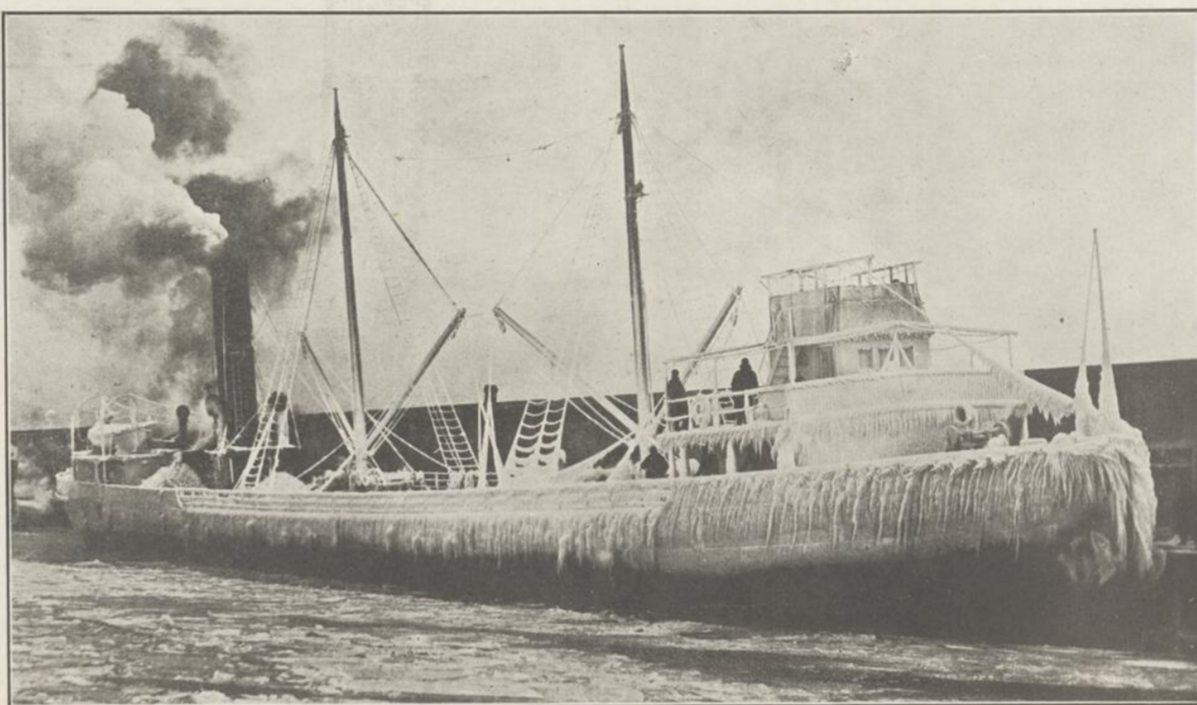

CANADIAN CURLING CHAMPIONS OF 1907—The two rinks, one from the Thistle Club, skipped by Mr. David Kinghorn, and the second from the St. Lawrence Club, skipped by Mr. David Guthrie, that went to Utica this year and defeated their opponents, playing granites, returning to Montreal with the famous Gordon Medal, worn by Skip Kinghorn, standing fifth from the left of the picture.

THE accompanying illustration is the reproduction of a photograph especially taken for The Standard. The group, reading from left to right, includes:—Mr. W. D. Aldr, secretary of the Canadian Branch of the Royal Caledonian Society, who accompanied the rinks to Utica; Dr. A. Scott Ives, Thistle skip; Mr. Duncan McIntyre, second; Major Freeman, third; and Mr. D. Kinghorn, wearing the medal, skip. Mr. D. Guthrie, skip for St. Lawrence; O. W. G. Dettmers, W. Riddle, Harry Drysdale, The veteran curler, Col. A. A. Stevenson, who accompanied the curlers to Utica, stands at the extreme left of the group, and President Finnie, of the Thistle Club, at the rear, to the left of Mr. Guthrie.

THE WINTER TRIP OF THE WAHCONDIAH.

ONE of the illustrations on this page depicts this vessel (the property of R. O. and D. B. Mackay, of Hamilton, as she appeared when entering the harbor of Port Arthur recently. The vessel had passed through a trying experience on Lake Superior, and when she reached port, she was covered with ice from bow to stern, and her masts glistened with coatings of the same element. Capt. Zealand said that the weight of the ice had sunk the vessel down at least a foot. During the voyage a great sea was running, and the mercury registered 30 degrees below zero. As the waves broke over the vessel they formed into ice immediately. In fact, so severe was the storm, that the voyage to Port Arthur from the Sault occupied over forty-four hours. During almost the whole time Capt. Zealand was on the bridge looking to the safety of his vessel. When he arrived in Port Arthur it was found that the frost had played havoc with him, his feet having been frozen. He also had one of his cheeks frost-bitten.

PRELATES OF THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND IN CANADA—The Right Reverend Joseph Lofthouse, D.D., first Bishop of Keewatin; consecrated in the Church of the Holy Trinity, Winnipeg, on Sunday, August 17, 1902, by Right Rev. Richard Young, D.D., Lord Bishop of Athabasca.

LORD BISHOP OF KEEWATIN.

The Right Reverend Joseph Lofthouse, D.D., first Bishop of Keewatin, was born at Wadsley, Yorkshire, Eng., in 1855, and was educated at the Church Missionary College, Islington, London. In 1882 he came to Hudson's Bay for the purpose of beginning a mission to the Eskimos at Churchill, in the northern part of what is now the diocese of Keewatin. In 1883 he was ordained deacon by the Right Rev. John Horden, first Bishop of Moosonee, by whom he was advanced to the priesthood in the same year. He was missionary at York Factory from 1884 to 1886; missionary at Churchill from 1886 to 1897; and was appointed Archdeacon of York in 1896. The years 1900 and 1901 were spent in travelling across the vast territory known as "The Barren Lands" for the purpose of finding out the Eskimo of that interior region. In 1901-02 he was in charge of Moose Fort. For twenty years he served faithfully in all those northern missions of the Church in that vast country which is now the diocese over which he rules as Bishop. In 1902 the University of Manitoba conferred on him the degree of D.D., and in April of the same year, on the formation of the Diocese of Keewatin, he was elected its first Bishop. He was consecrated at Holy Trinity Church, Winnipeg, on Sunday, August 17, 1902, by the Right Rev. Richard Young, D.D., Lord Bishop of Athabasca; assisted by Bishops Pinkham, of Saskatchewan and Calgary; Newham, of Moosonee; and Griesdale, of Qu'Appelle. At the time of his consecration he was the youngest Bishop of the Province of Rupert's Land, yet he had the qualification of years and experience, to eminently fit him for the high office in the Church of God to which he had been called. Since his consecration over four years ago he has continued his reputation for energy and self-sacrificing labor, which few men so deservedly enjoy.

"Monklands," one-time residence of the Governors-General of Canada. This former vice-regal residence is situated a little to the west of Montreal, and is now occupied as a convent by the Sisters of the Congregation of Notre Dame. It was to "Monklands" that the father of the present Earl of Elgin, Secretary of State for the Colonies, was hurriedly driven on the afternoon of the day on which he gave assent to the Rebellion Losses' Bill. His action was strongly resented by the "patriots" of that day, and, as a result, he was attacked by a mob as he left the Parliament Buildings, which were then situated on what is now Youville Square. It was at "Monklands" that the present Earl of Elgin first saw the light of day.

BEAUTIFUL PARISIAN MODELS—The Standard, by special arrangement with the celebrated photographer, Henri Manuel, of Paris, is enabled to present, weekly, to its readers, the newest creations in fashion, posed specially by famous Parisian models. Unlike the illustrations in fashion magazines, these reproductions are from life. The above white cloth Princess two-piece costume is from the Maison Olivan Brevet, Paris. The satin girdle is overlaid by the box-plaits of the skirt, and the dainty bolero is made surplice fashion in the front. Buttons and lace decorate the bolero.

than any other sort of garniture. The dress is generally of Princesse cut, the skirt rather long, or merely touching the ground; and frequently a three-quarter-length semi-loose coat of the same material serves to complete the attire.

Evening Dresses are Very Handsomely Trimmed.

But in the evening dress it is totally different. Never have toilettes been so handsomely trimmed, or of higher grade of material. A new and very suitable evening color is peach pink (the peach blossom, of course). It exists in several shades, from an almost white tint to a medium one. A very beautiful garniture is made of narrow metallic braid, of which a mass of loops, from three to four inches long, are drawn together beneath a large button, metallo also. The result is a large and very accurately imitated sun flower. These flowers are used as a dainty touch to a dressy toilette, or on one of the new lace and cloth-of-gold hats.

Very dressy waists are composed entirely of Valenciennes-allover, black or white, and of which the design, of a detached order, is rather large. The front and back are gathered together at the shoulder seams, giving a considerable amount of fullness. This is drawn together at the waistline toward the centre of the back and front, so that a draped effect is produced, but without blousing. One-inch broad bands of satin are the adornment of these bodices. They either start in "V" form from the throat, four or five in number, and do not reach more than half way down the figure, or else they begin at that point, and in that case terminate beneath the draped or corselet waistband.

There are rather voluminous elbow sleeves, on which the same slanting trimming is placed. The effect is greatly improved by a row of quite narrow, beaded passementerie placed in the centre of the bands, and is rendered more dressy by omitting the lining in the upper part. A slight but important detail which French dress-makers now observe, is to place between the lace forming the corsage and the silk lining a layer of self-colored mousseline.

Handsome Gown of Heavy Black Silk.

A particularly handsome costume was worn by a leader of fashion, a grande dame, but who is no longer young. It was of heavy black silk, of the sort called Ottoman. The long, full skirt was trimmed at the foot with shirred velvet puffings, set on in Greek key design, covering a deep space. The half-long coat had full skirts, gathered Directoire-fashion to a plain bodice, and it was trimmed with a smaller design of the velvet puffings. The bodice opened nearly to the belt, crossed there, and then turned back into revers; these were faced with black velvet, and hemmed inch wide with gold lace, all dotted with the finest of black crocheted buttons. The same decoration was on the edge of the short, wide open sleeves, with the velvet puffing above.

On her luxuriant hair, tinted with gray, was set the prettiest small turban, composed entirely of small, grayish white birds, and on one side was a smart bow of black velvet. The ensemble was dignified yet charmingly modish.

Sleeves have not varied very much, the half and the long sleeve holding fast to familiar features. But one of the French models recently shown—a mulberry-red silk trimmed with superb Irish lace and velvet harmonizing with the silk—had sleeves that were fitted close to the arm, in a crush drapery of silk and mousseline de sole as high as the silk sleeve-cap fell over.

THE REV. CANON BURKE.

There entered into rest at Carleton Place, Ont., on Jan. 31, at the age of 81 years, one of the most venerable and devoted of the Anglican clergy in Canada, in the person of the Rev. Joseph William Burke, Canon of St. George's Cathedral, Kingston. The deceased was born in Dublin, Ireland, and was the only child of Dr. Joseph Burke, of the 95th Regiment. He graduated in Trinity College, and came to Canada in 1852. In 1854 he returned to Dublin to marry Miss Emily Conroy, who survives him. He was ordained in 1854, and was among the first priests to be ordained by the then young Bishop Lewis, of the diocese of Ontario. He served at Lanark, Almonte, and Prescott, and his last church was St. Thomas, Belleville, where he was rector for twenty-seven years. He retired five years ago, and went to live in Carleton Place, where resides his daughter, wife of the Rev. Arch. Elliott, rector of St. James. Four years ago he slipped and fell upon a piece of ice, and was unable to walk afterwards. The funeral service was conducted in Carleton Place by Archdeacon Bogert, of Ottawa, and the Rev. A. Elliott, and the remains were taken to Belleville, where a deeply impressive service was held in St. Thomas' Church.

The Handsome New Suits and Costumes for Women

THE offering of Women's Suits and Costumes for 1907 embrace a wider range than usual of exclusive styles at those prices which might be called popular. We refer to models that sell at $25.00 to $40.00. Indeed its surprising that we are in a position to present an assortment, in view of the fact that merchandise deliveries, especially of ready-to-wear garments, are difficult to get. Of course our own manufacturing branch helps wonderfully, more especially in the better-class of garments. Our equipment is producing the finest tailored garment in Canada, and in style effects we are in company with the leading cloak and suit manufacturers of New York. Therefore there remains nothing further but that you should know that for the class of tailoring, the fine materials and the clever styles featured by us, our prices are remarkably moderate. We show smart Eton Suits, coat silk lined, of lovely imported tweeds, at $16.50, $18.50 and $20.00. Stunning new stripes and smart checks at $25.00, $35.00, $40.00.

NOW ABOUT A FINAL WORD TO BUY—Now is the best time—well for you to bear in mind that Easter comes early. Two or three weeks from now the offerings are likely to be broken to an extent that may not leave you as good an assortment as you'd like to choose from. We recommend that you visit our cloak and suit section some day this week.
