

MEETS VOTERS — Gerard Deziel, Liberal hopeful in the newly-created district of St-Francois met with English voters last night in the Masonic hall in Lennoxville. While the language barrier hampered Mr. Deziel's communication with the audience during the formal question period, he had little trouble when meeting the constituents individually. See story on page 3.

Patrick, Bryant said nominated for council

LENNOXVILLE (CC) — Doug Patrick and Gerry Bryant have been selected by the Lennoxville council's nominating committee to replace two incumbent municipal councillors when nominations are accepted Monday.

The nominating committee, which was established by the existing council to choose successors for W.S. Richardson and Jim Mitchell, presented its report to council early yesterday evening.

Both Mitchell and Richardson, respectively nine and 14-year veterans of the council, will not seek re-election when nominations are opened October 28, The Record has learned.

Don Patrick, chairman of the nominating committee, was responsible for the final report. Along with the report the candidates handed in a list of signatures supporting their nomination.

Mayor Cecil Dougherty, who is seeking a third term, admitted

Patrick and Bryant were the men chosen and said he did not believe an election would be held in the town.

The nominating committee's role, according to informed sources, is to avert an election by persuading candidates not to run and by attempting to choose the best men to fill vacant posts.

"I don't think there will be an election because I think we have the best men for the job," Dougherty said.

However, rumors persist in Lennoxville that the nominating committee and the existing council averted an election in Lennoxville by selecting Doug Patrick as councillor.

Patrick, earlier this month, had set up a meeting of individuals interested in contesting an election against the present council. However, the meeting was cancelled before it even took place.

Patrick said yesterday the meeting was cancelled because he "didn't want to run as mayor."

Charged with kidnapping

SHERBROOKE — Pierre Charest, 20, of Montreal and Laurent Provencher, 28, of Sherbrooke were charged with kidnapping in Sherbrooke Sessions court yesterday.

Appearing before Judge Benoit Turmel the two men, reputed to be members of the Gitan motorcycle gang, were given notice of bail hearing October 25.

The two are charged with kidnapping a young Sherbrooke woman from a Brompton Road night spot last Saturday. The name of the woman, described in her late teens or early twenties, was not given.

According to a member of the Sherbrooke detachment of the Quebec Police Force the two individuals allegedly dragged the girl from the nightclub. She had apparently "caught their eye."

They trailed the girl when she went to the washroom and carried her out through the crowd to a car, police charged.

Patrons of the nightclub stood steadfast during the incident because other members of the motorcycle gang were nearby, inside, police believe.

Police apprehended the two individuals and the girl in the car shortly afterwards.

However, one of the gang members, Charest, escaped from police custody. He was apprehended later Sunday sleeping at the Gitan clubhouse in St. Denis de Brompton.

Election focus still on PQ budget

Liberals, PQ will release documents

MONTREAL (CP) — The already-heated battle of the budget warmed up another few degrees Monday as both the Liberals and Parti Quebecois prepared to release documents they said back their respective stands on the feasibility of Quebec independence.

Premier Robert Bourassa told an election meeting the Parti Quebecois budget for an independent Quebec under-estimated by more than two per cent the percentage of federal spending in the province.

In 1971-72, the province received nearly 26 per cent of federal spending, not 22.4 per cent as the Parti Quebecois's proposed budget claims, he told a Quebec City election meeting.

A Parti Quebecois spokesman here said party leader Rene Levesque and economic adviser Jacques Parizeau would release at a news conference today a government document dealing with foreign investment in Quebec.

The document was prepared for the industry and commerce department, the spokesman said, but never was made public. It would have "very considerable" bearing on the Parti Quebecois budget, focal point so far in the campaign for the Oct. 29 Quebec general election.

Speaking in Causapascal, 300 miles northeast of Quebec City, Union Nationale leader Gabriel Loubier said a vote for the Liberals is a vote "for the slavery of Quebec under the central government... under the arrogance of Prime Minister Trudeau."

Yvon Dupuis was campaigning in St. Jean riding, south of Montreal, where he is attempting to win a seat in the Quebec national assembly.

Premier Bourassa and Mr. Levesque continued their running battle over independence, main issue in the campaign since the election was called Sept. 25.

Mr. Bourassa said a document on the economics of federalism will be released as soon as possible in response to challenges by Mr. Levesque, who said the government was hiding documents concerning the costs and benefits of federalism.

Of total federal spending in 1971-72 of $18.130 billion, Mr. Bourassa said $4.723 billion was spent in Quebec.

The fact that the PQ was out by more than two per cent on this figure is only one of the shortcomings in that party's budget that will be shown by the document, Mr. Bourassa said.

Meanwhile, Mr. Levesque told more than 1,500 University of Montreal students his party must take power in either this or the following election.

French-speaking Montrealers are becoming submerged in a melting pot because of federal immigration policies, he said, and Montreal ridings are gradually becoming English-speaking.

Weekend events shake confidence in Nixon

Congressmen cope with impeachment problem

WASHINGTON (CP) — Congressmen returned from a traumatic holiday weekend today to cope with the possibility of removing President Nixon from office for his dismissal of special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox.

Judge John Sirica, also back in town in his district court chambers, must weigh a request from the president's lawyers that Sirica accept a compromise proposal for handling secret tapes of White House conversations about the Watergate scandal.

President Nixon spent the night at Camp David, Md., the rustic presidential retreat in the Catoctin Mountains, with his wife Pat. He was described by daughter Julie Eisenhower as being in good shape. "There is no desperation. There is no despair."

The president's popularity was apparently at a low ebb, however. An NBC-sponsored poll gave Nixon a 75-per-cent "unfavorable" rating, with 44 per cent of those polled favoring impeachment—twice the August figure. Nearly half said he should resign.

Nixon met Monday with aides, discussing the Middle East ceasefire but also being briefed on reaction to his abrupt dismissal of Cox.

Het met for a half-hour as well with Elliot Richardson, who resigned as attorney-general rather than fire Cox and who was scheduled to hold a televised news conference today.

MAJORITY NEEDED

If Judge Sirica rules against the White House, he could find Nixon in contempt of court. Whether the courts could enforce a fine or jail term is an open question, but the contempt citation could be grounds for congressional action against Nixon.

The president's lawyers were prepared to argue that their compromise satisfies a court order that Nixon turn the Watergate tapes over to Sirica so the judge can decide what portions should be given to a grand jury investigating the Watergate affair.

Under the compromise, which was rejected by Cox, Senator John Stennis (Dem. Miss.) would listen to the tapes and "authenticate" a report on them for the court and the Senate select committee investigating Watergate.

On Capitol Hill, meanwhile, Speaker Carl Albert of the House of Representatives was prepared to consult with fellow Democratic leaders about moves to impeach Nixon.

Five House members have pledged to introduce impeachment motions when the congressional session resumes at midday after a Veterans Day week-end respite.

Albert met for 3½ hours Monday with some of the leaders and tentatively agreed that the House judiciary committee should start a preliminary investigation of impeachment.

Such an investigation would be just short of a formal proceeding leading toward removal of the president from office, but would stall any attempt to force the House into an immediate vote on impeachment.

Under the Constitution, the House must first approve impeachment by majority vote. The Senate must then approve the action by a two-thirds majority after sitting as a "jury" under the chief justice of the U.S. Supreme Court.

An Associated Press sampling of sentiment in the House showed that 48 members—most of them Democrats—are willing at least to consider impeachment proceedings against Nixon.

There are 435 members of the House. Impeachment requires 218 votes.

The Senate Watergate committee scheduled a meeting for Thursday. Meanwhile, the Senate judiciary committee planned to meet Wednesday in closed session to discuss the firing of Cox.

Several Democrats on the judiciary committee pressed for open hearings. One of them, Senator Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts, said he wanted the committee to investigate whether the tapes dispute was a pretext for firing Cox because "he was too hot on the White House trail."

Kennedy also said he thought Nixon should consider resigning. Cox's refusal to compromise on the tapes issue received support from Senator Sam Ervin, chairman of the Senate Watergate committee. Ervin said: "I would have done exactly like Cox did."

The news was generally bad for Nixon from all fronts Monday.

An exception was the support offered by Senator Barry Goldwater, Republican presidential nominee in 1964. He said he couldn't imagine either the House or Senate impeaching Nixon on the basis of Cox's dismissal.

California Gov. Ronald Reagan said Mrs. Eisenhower compared the firing of Cox with President Harry Truman's dismissal of Gen. Douglas MacArthur during the Korean War.

"I don't think Truman should have been impeached when he fired MacArthur," the president's daughter said.

Energy problems discussed

OTTAWA (CP) — President Nixon's top energy adviser will meet Energy Minister Donald Macdonald today to discuss a growing list of Canada-United States energy problems.

John Love, the former Colorado governor who took charge of the president's energy policy office in July, was invited by Mr. Macdonald about two weeks ago.

It is the first meeting between the two men and their talks will cover a variety of thorny issues precipitated by changing Canadian energy policies.

The list includes:

- The 40-cents-a-barrel crude oil export tax that annoyed U.S. officials when announced last month without advance consultation.
- Possible cutback in Canadian natural gas exports to protect British Columbia consumers from winter shortages.
- Ottawa's proposed extension of the interprovincial pipeline to Montreal. This would reduce Quebec and Atlantic reliance on imported oil from Venezuela and the Middle East and could lead to cutbacks in Canadian oil exports to the U.S.
- Canada's possible retreat from an earlier commitment to supply northwestern U.S. areas with oil if the U.S. abandons plans for a Trans-Alaska Pipeline System (TAPS), opting instead for an overland route through Canada's Mackenzie Valley.
- The impact on both countries from war-related oil cutbacks in the Middle East.

The federal proposal to extend the interprovincial pipeline and reduce eastern Canada's reliance on foreign oil holds implications for customers in the U.S. Midwest dependent on Canadian oil.

Small fire in Lennoxville

LENNOXVILLE (BP) — Lennoxville volunteer firemen were called out at 9:02 last night to quench a small residential blaze.

The fire, in a bedroom at 19 Wilson street, caused minor smoke and water damage. When firemen arrived, a dresser and clothes pole were burning.

Approximately $200-$300 damage was suffered to the home. Fire chief John Nichol declined to comment on what started the blaze.

The firemen were on the scene for about one half hour before returning to the station.

Israel, Egypt report ceasefire broken

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israel and Egypt accused each other of new violations of the ceasefire today and said their forces were striking back in retaliation.

Israel said Egyptian forces along the Suez canal were "incessantly" violating the ceasefire ordered more than 14 hours before we were fighting in the southern sector, apparently on the east bank of the canal. Israeli forces in that area "have been ordered to continue fighting" a communiqué reported.

Egypt a few hours later said that Israeli troops during the night seized new positions, particularly on the west bank of the Suez canal, and Israeli planes strafed the Egyptian forces. It said this "compels our forces to use force to strike at the Israeli forces in the positions occupied after the ceasefire."

Cairo denied earlier Israeli charges of ceasefire violations Monday night and said they were an attempt "to find a pretext to violate the ceasefire."

The Israelis reported a quiet night on the Syrian front. But Syria, which this morning still had not agreed to the ceasefire, said that Israeli planes and artillery were attacking villages in the eastern foothills of Mount Hebron today.

An earlier Israeli communiqué reported heavy Egyptian fire Monday night and said, "toward the end of the night the shooting lessened but did not cease completely." Several hours later a second announcement in Tel Aviv reported: "At daybreak the Egyptians opened heavy fire on Israeli forces on the western bank of the Suez canal on the central sector."

There was no immediate word on Israeli retaliation in that area, but an official of the Israeli command said after the earlier reports of Egyptian firing that the Israeli forces "showed as much restraint as was possible before returning fire."

Israel also said that Palestinian guerrillas in southern Lebanon intensified their rocket and mortar attacks on settlements in northern Israel Monday night in defiance of the ceasefire. The Israelis said 11 settlements within 10 miles of the Lebanese border were hit, causing property damage but no casualties.

Israel said it returned the fire and captured three terrorists.

Damascus Radio announced that the Syrian government was still studying the ceasefire resolution voted early Monday by the UN Security Council and was exchanging opinions on it with other Arab chiefs of state.

Revenue-sharing problem at tri-level conference

EDMONTON (CP) — A major clash looks likely over revenue-sharing among different levels of government.

A federal position paper on public finance for presentation at the national tri-level conference today shows little sympathy for demands for more federal tax money for municipalities.

The strong federal position casts doubt on prospects for a national inquiry on revenue-sharing suggested by the municipalities Monday at the opening session of the federal-provincial-municipal conference.

Ontario and Manitoba support revenue-sharing proposals but other provinces are more reluctant.

Ron Basford, federal urban affairs minister, agreed to study the inquiry proposal with municipal and provincial representatives. The results of their discussions were to be announced at today's session on public finance.

WON'T REVIEW SHARING

Mr. Basford said in an interview later that he would support establishing a group to examine municipal financial problems, but he opposed a review of revenue-sharing arrangements.

Earlier, the federal government seized the spotlight with new proposals on urban transportation and housing.

Mr. Basford announced that the government plans to establish a national transportation development corporation in consultation with the provinces. It would aid development and marketing of urban transit systems in Canada and abroad.

He also said long-awaited railway-relocation legislation will be introduced in the Commons in mid-November. Under the bill, the government would assume 50 per cent of the costs to the railways of moving downtown rail lines to the fringes of cities.

On housing, he outlined measures to spur assembly of large tracts of land to reduce land costs.

Among these was a proposal to allow provinces and municipalities to defer interest on land-assembly loans until the land is marketed. Top priority in federal spending would be given to lands that can be brought quickly on the market.

Observers in nearby southern Lebanon said the sounds of fighting seemed to die out on the Syrian front just before the ceasefire hour, and Associated Press correspondent Alex Efty reported from Damascus that artillery flashes were not visible there Monday night for the first time since the war began.

Iraq, Syria's major military ally and one of the most outspoken Arab enemies of Israel, rejected the ceasefire. Jordan, which has about 8,000 troops with the Syrian forces, said Monday it would accept the resolution if Syria did, noting that its forces in Syria are technically under the Syrian command.

The ceasefire resolution said negotiations toward a lasting peace agreement should start "immediately and concurrently with the ceasefire... under appropriate auspices." A UN spokesman said the Security Council will determine the "appropriate auspices for the negotiations."

But there was no public move Monday to get peace talks under way. Sir Laurence McIntyre of Australia, the council chairman for October, said no council member has approached him about scheduling a meeting for today, and diplomats at UN headquarters did not expect a session until it was clear how the ceasefire was faring.

Hidden patients

CHICAGO (CP) — A program to seek out "hidden patients," who are unlikely to seek medical assistance, has been launched by St. Vincent's Hospital and Medical Centre in New York.

Dr. Vincent Brickner, director of St. Vincent's, writes in the Journal of the American Medical Association that many elderly residents of urban areas live alone in single rooms and welfare accommodations.

"Such people, out of contact with the medical care system, are often too disabled, frightened or bewildered to seek help, nor does medical assistance usually go to them," he writes. Sometimes, when a neighbor calls for emergency assistance, it arrives too late.

The St. Vincent's program sends physicians, nurses and social workers into the surrounding area to serve such patients, referred to them by churches, settlement houses and police. The service is free and the professional staff are all volunteers.

"While our project offers concrete help to only a small number, we hope it will focus attention on the magnitude and complexity of this gap in provision of medical services," the article says.

By BOB INGLE

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP) — An engineer who helped develop the Skylab space shuttle and Saturn V rocket says he believes beings from outer space landed on earth 2,600 years ago using equipment more advanced than anything man can have within the next 20 years.

During 18 months of working in his spare time, Josef Blumrich said he applied space technology to the Old Testament text of Ezekiel and came up with engineering drawings of what a craft described by the Hebrew prophet looked like and how it moved about.

"It all started in the fall of Engineer believes in spacemen of past

1970 when I got a German version of Erich Von Daniken's Chariot of the Gods and was convinced it was the same old nonsense," he said.

"When I came to the passages about Ezekiel I put Von Daniken's book away and took one of my Bibles. I told my wife, 'I will show you where he is wrong!'"

But, to his surprise, Blumrich—chief of the systems layout branch of the Marshall Space Flight Centre—saw things that made sense to him. "In chapter one, Ezekiel speaks at length about the structure. It just so happens that I have myself designed such things here."

From a modern English translation of the Bible, here is part of the passage to which he refers:

"One day late in June when I was 30... the heavens were suddenly opened to me... I saw in this vision, a great storm coming toward me from the North, driving before it a huge cloud glowing with fire, with a mass of fire inside that flashed continually; and in the fire there was something that shone like polished brass. "Then, from the centre of the cloud, four strange forms appeared that looked like men except that each had four faces and two pairs of wings... And beneath their wings I could see human hands."

Blumrich has been with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) since 1959, when he came from Austria to join the space program. In 1972 he was presented the Exceptional Service Medal by the federal agency. His career began in 1934 in the German aircraft industry.

He said that by using mathematical formulas, he was able to determine the craft was similar to a child's spinning top, concave on the bottom with a crew compartment above.

The ship was 55 feet in diameter, and the length of the rotor blades was 35-36 feet, Blumrich figured.

Faster mail coming

By VIC PARSONS

OTTAWA (CP) — Post office efforts to speed the mails are proceeding ahead of schedule and 26 major cities may have new mail-processing equipment by late 1976.

A final step in the first phase of modernization will be taken next month when new alphabet-numeral postal codes for the Atlantic Provinces will be announced. That will complete the coding process for the country.

The postal codes—keys to post office automation plans—must be on letters in order for them to be processed by a proposed $80 million worth of coding and letter-sorting machines.

Codes will be announced Nov. 5 in Saint John, N.B., and Halifax and the following day in St. John's, Nfld.

J. G. Fultz, director of the post office coding and mechanization branch, said in an interview that completion dates for coding are well ahead of schedule.

When officials mapped out the original coding plan in July, 1970, they planned to have the country coded in five years. This was later revised to April, 1974.

OTTAWA FIRST

With problems of processing some five billion pieces of mail a year and the desire to turn the post office into a competitive business motivating administrators, installation of coding desks and letter-sorting machines began in Ottawa last year.

During the summer machines went into Winnipeg. Installation now has begun in Regina and will start next week in Saskatoon.

At first they were to go into 15 cities but this was later expanded to 26 covering all communities with 80,000 or more population.

Estimated capital cost of the automation program now planned will be $96 million.

That includes the $80 million for coders and sorters, about $2.5 million for optical character readers and the rest for training equipment.

The optical character readers, being made in Japan, will eliminate the need for human coders who now read and stamp mail.

Coding desks and letter-sorting machines are being built by International Telephone and Telegraph (ITT) at Guelph, Ont.

READY BY 1976

Mr. Fultz says installation is expected to be complete by late 1976 but he added it could be later, depending on the readiness of buildings to hold the equipment.

A conservative estimate is that the machines will last for about 16 years, while officials expect a return on investment in about half that time.

In Ottawa, where the sorting machines were first installed, about 25 per cent of about one million pieces of mail is handled by the new machines.

Mr. Fultz said the post office has coded, without charge, 45 million names. The department offers to put codes on any reusable mailing lists—such as those used by companies.

But as Ottawa is the only city on stream at the moment it is difficult to test how mail has been speeded by the new program. When Prairie cities enter the automation plan in the spring it will be easier to test public use of the service, Mr. Fultz said.

"We have a system now that's as good as any in the world. The equipment is the best we can get," he added.

Live in girlfriend was not expected

Dear Ann Landers: My 18-year-old son is unusually bright. He's in his third year at engineering school. When he came home for summer vacation I was delighted at the thought of having young people around the house again. After a few weeks it dawned on me that one girl (whom he had been dating frequently) literally moved in with us.

Last week I got up at 3:00 a.m. for a drink of water and found them lying on the couch together looking at TV. A few days later when I was fixing breakfast, she popped out of our daughter's empty bedroom, cheerful and unembarrassed. I asked, "Did you sleep here last night?" She replied, "Yes, but my mother doesn't mind so long as she knows where I am."

This morning when I returned from shopping I found her seated at the kitchen table, hair in curlers, removing her nail polish and making herself very much at home. That scene was too much. With an undisguised edge to my voice, I suggested that she "move the manicure paraphernalia elsewhere."

She promptly informed my son that I had been rude to her and he let me have it with both barrels. I am now in the doghouse and find myself mysteriously on the defensive. What's your diagnosis, Dr. Landers? — Zapped in Scarsdale

Dear Z.: A physical deficiency, dear. No guts. You should have told the young lady when she "popped out" of your daughter's room that she was not at liberty to spend the night in your home because even though HER mother didn't mind, you did.

The only way you can regain control of this bizarre situation is to have a long talk with your son, outline the house rules and insist that he abide by them.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband owns a small business which is just getting off the ground. Last night I was informed that he had invited one of his best customers to our home for dinner Friday. I enjoy entertaining and it is important that I be hospitable to the people my husband does business with. In this instance, however, I was not very pleased and I let him know it.

The man he had invited told my husband that he would be bringing his girl friend, not his wife. I am not especially fond of the man's wife, but the fact remains that my husband is asking me to entertain a married man and his mistress. I believe it is improper and it also shows a lack of respect for me.

Am I old-fashioned, as my husband insists? Where do you see me in this picture, Ann? — L.H.

Dear L.H.: Behind the eight-ball, dearie. When you entertain a married man and his mistress you are an accessory. Hospitality signifies approval. Your husband should take them to a restaurant and leave you out of it.

Dear Ann Landers: In your column, which I enjoy in the Memphis Commercial Appeal, a provocative question from one of your female readers caught my eye. I think I have an answer for her that was better than yours.

The readers asked, "Do Scotsmen wear anything under their kilts?" According to my grandmother, they do — ever since Queen Victoria reviewed the troops on a windy day. How do you like that one? — Old-Timer

Dear O.T.: I love it! Thanks for my laugh for the day.

Deziel meets St-Francois voters

MEETS ENGLISH — Liberal candidate in St-Francois county, Gerard Deziel, met with English voters last night and even though language was somewhat of a problem, Mr. Deziel managed to impress the voters with his determination to work hard.

LENNOXVILLE — Gerard Deziel, the Liberal nominee for St-Francois riding, was left all alone last night.

Appearing before an English-speaking gathering of more than 100 in the Masonic hall here Mr. Deziel, one week before the election, was unable to handle the questions of the pro-Liberal gathering. His English failed him.

Furthermore, Liberal organizers of the meeting had not prepared Deziel for the questions he was to handle from the group.

"I told them there would be questions about classification and to prepare Deziel to answer the questions. But they didn't do it," he added.

When Deziel was asked the questions about classification he was unable to answer.

But classification was only one of the questions he was unable to respond to. Others included the Quebec pension plan and municipal projects for Lennoxville.

Organizers Robert Nichol and Henri Crochetiere, who sat along the head table beside Deziel, had to field questions which the Liberal candidate had failed to grasp.

However, it was not entirely Deziel's fault. Organizers had promised that Jean-Paul Pepin, Liberal incumbent in Sherbrooke riding, would appear alongside Deziel to handle questions pertaining to government legislation and the Liberal program.

Pepin failed to appear which irked at least one of the persons at the meeting.

"It's a damned shame that Pepin didn't come to help Deziel," he said. "After all it was us (Lennoxville voters) that won the last election for him."

Deziel, who has been uneasy throughout the campaign, was uncomfortable before the crowd last night. After the question period he was much more confident talking to individuals who attended the meeting.

More than anything else last night Deziel came across as an honest candidate ready to work.

"I am a new candidate in a new riding," he added. "I am willing to work hard to solve our problems."

Deziel, when unable to provide answers to questions, said he would find out and return with an answer. He continually excused himself for his poor command of English yet tried to communicate with the gathering.

But for most people Deziel's inability to speak English didn't make much difference. Many sympathized with him reflecting the general consensus of all who attended.

"I'm going to vote for him because there isn't a choice," one said. "We can't let that Levesque get in, can we?"

School scene

Champlain's Strickland

LENNOXVILLE (MI) — Jim Strickland, director of Champlain Regional College's Lennoxville campus continuing education program, says that his program has evidenced an increase in enrollment of more than 400 per cent since last semester.

Current enrollment stands at 208 students for the five location program. Last semester there were 38 registrants in a single site program.

Strickland accounts for the increase in terms of more centers of study, which he explains is a necessity in an area of widely distributed population. He also cites better relations with industries and organizations which are in touch with the public.

Of the 12 courses being offered through the program, Strickland asserts that eight courses are vocationally oriented and are offered in cooperation with Canada Manpower. Two are general interest courses, cooking and antique refashioning; one is intermediate French, and the last is a humanities course offered to residents of the Cowansville Institute and to some full-time students.

With regard to the majority of vocational courses, Strickland explains that they are being promoted by industries and are generally followed by employees attempting to upgrade themselves.

As for those courses which he calls "cultural" — drama, English, languages — Strickland explains that they are conspicuous by their absence because they have been difficult to promote among the public.

Strickland says that he is attempting to gain authorization to offer programs of specialty subjects which would include between four and 12 courses in a specific field and which would be recognized by industries. He adds that such programs, if authorized, would lead to certificates of attestation or study on successful completion.

He says that 29 per cent of the enrolled students in the continuing education program are French-speaking and that they are following primarily the bilingual library science course. He also notes that of the 208 students, 98 are female and 110 male.

Lecturer to discuss defective children

LENNOXVILLE (GH) — The Eastern Townships has the highest rate of infant mortality resulting from congenital malformation in the Western Hemisphere according to Dr. Louis Munan, epidemiologist at the Sherbrooke University Hospital Centre.

Dr. Munan will speak on the subject in Room 2, Nicoll's Building at Bishop's University at 7:30 p.m. tonight.

The talk will essentially be concerned with a three-year study done in collaboration with the World Health Organization. The study is a comparison of causes of infant mortality in California, Mexico, Jamaica, Salvador and many South American countries.

All the deaths of children under the age of five in the region in the years 1970 and 1971 were studied. The total was 371.

Death certificates and hospital records were obtained. Mothers of the children were interviewed.

These and all other collectable data were compiled and the specified correct cause of death was analysed by medical authorities.

All collected material was sent to a central office of the World Health Organization in Washington. The whole purpose of the study was to compare causes and rates of death in various countries. The end result was a compilation of material into comparative tables.

Malnutrition and infectious diseases were the causes of a high death rate in the Latin American countries. But the Eastern Townships was abnormally high in its rate of congenital malformation.

Congenital malformation is a defect, either absences or poor construction, in the central nervous system and in particular the brain.

The reason for this high rate of birth defects is not known, but Dr. Munan looks at it as an epidemic. He will talk about formulated theories for the causes.

"It's pretty much a generalized disorder," he said. "All theories are possible."

With only 371 deaths it is hard to theorize.

There will be no admission charge at the lecture and the public is invited to attend.

Pepusch here!

LENNOXVILLE (MI) — Peter Siefert, a pantomime known as Pepusch, will perform at Bishop's University's Centennial Theatre at 8:30 p.m. Thursday, October 25.

Siefert, who spends many months each year touring Europe and Africa, is director of the principal theatre in Göttingen, Germany. His themes are perennial and universal, though his concern with modern problems causes him to set them in contemporary contexts.

Admission for members of the general public will be $1.75 and $2.25; tickets for students will be $1.

Teachers plan to meet candidates

LENNOXVILLE (GH) — At present, no Liberal or Parti Québécois candidates from six counties have confirmed they will be present at a public meeting about Quebec education at Alexander Galt Regional High School on Wednesday, Oct. 24 at 8 p.m. in the auditorium.

The meeting is sponsored by the Eastern Townships Association of Teachers (ETAT), who have formed a Political Action Committee (PAC) as they are anxious to make the different political stands on the future of Quebec education known to the public.

All the electoral candidates from the counties of St-Francois, Sherbrooke, Richmond, Orford, Megantic and Drummond have been invited. As yet the only confirmations received are from: Maurice Theroux, Parti Creditiste candidate for Orford; Marcel Cote, the Union Nationale candidate for Sherbrooke; a representative will stand in for Rejean Giroux, Parti Creditiste candidate for Sherbrooke; Yves Dubreuil, Union Nationale candidate for St-Francois and Leo Leboeuf, Parti Creditiste candidate for St-Francois.

All candidates have been sent questionnaires. Candidates who can not attend are expected to fill out and return the questionnaires. Many candidates have made previous plans, but did not decline to be present in the event of a postponement of their commitments.

All teachers from the two regional schools and elementary schools in the area will be present, John Greer, chairman of PAC hopes. The meeting is open to all parents, school administrators and the public at large, he said.

"We feel very strongly that it is imperative parents, teachers and anyone connected with education know the political stand of all four political parties," he said.

"No Liberals have confirmed as yet and we have received no affirmative answer from the Parti Québécois," he explained. "Some candidates have expressed unhappiness that they have pre-scheduled events to attend."

"If we could get the whole amount in one shot it would pay the total cost," he said. "But with the interest over the 10 years, the grant will only cover about 90 per cent of it."

Smith describes the role which he as placement officer plays in the securing of employment by students Bishop's University. He says that he spends the first phase of his job in corresponding with as many potential employers as possible asking them to visit the university's campus and interview students.

He asserts that this phase lasts until October or early November, that the companies visit the campus by Christmas or January, and that the companies most interested in hiring university graduates are the larger firms.

Smith says that some 30 companies visit the campus each year and that, of those, some 10 are chartered accountant firms.

"More companies are looking for bilingualism; many companies are still hesitant to hire women because they fear losing them to husbands in a few years; more openings are becoming available in public service, and many companies do not care about the program in which a student gained a degree but only in the fact that he was able to do so," he believes.

In discussing the overall employment situation from his point of view, Smith contends: "In the early 1960s, it was a college market — 50 companies came to the university campus each year and jobs were plentiful; from the mid-1960s to 1971 or 1972, it was an employers' market and jobs were more scarce; last year, the market opened up a little. Some companies that had stopped visiting the campus returned, and opportunities increased."

He feels, however, that those students who begin to look for jobs early enough will be able to find them and that "the top-notch student will always be able to find employment."

"One of the problems is that there is a great deal of competition for the available positions. As a result, companies begin their interviewing in November and have completed it by Christmas whereas they used to begin interviewing in January," he notes.

"The majority of students don't know by that time what they want to do and are at a disadvantage in interviews because they have not done enough thinking about the careers they want."

Smith is also responsible for supplying application forms and for attending to summer job possibilities. These latter, he feels, were more plentiful last year.

"Summer jobs are not often related to a student's program of studies but if that is accepted as given, then a student has little difficulty finding a job if he starts looking early enough," he asserts.

Smith thinks that some 40 per cent of Bishop's graduating students inquire about the service and that, of these, some 30 per cent are serious about taking advantage of the assistance offered.

He explains that other students sometimes have jobs waiting for them as a result of connections within companies or a history of summer work with a company. Others, he continues, go on to post-graduate studies.

"In fact," says Smith, "Bishop's has one of the highest rates of students going on to post-graduate studies in Canada."

Smith: Placement officer

LENNOXVILLE (MI) — Garth Smith, placement officer at Bishop's University, says that the key to finding a job lies in the courses which one follows as a student.

Smith contends that his efforts to place people are most successful for students who study business administration and science while those who are gaining degrees in arts are usually more difficult to place.

He explains that the reason is that the largest block of open jobs are to be found in chartered accountant firms and that these firms look for graduates of administration and science programs only.

Smith describes the role which he as placement officer plays in the securing of employment by students Bishop's University. He says that he spends the first phase of his job in corresponding with as many potential employers as possible asking them to visit the university's campus and interview students.

Grant to Ascot

ASCOT CORNER (GH) — Construction of a water aqueduct and sewer system here began 11 days ago, said a town representative.

The project is being partially financed by a grant of $800,000 from the ministry of environmental and municipal affairs.

The grant will be distributed over ten years in equal annual amounts said the spokesman. The first payment will be made in one year, after the project is finished.

The gross cost of the project is between $500,000 and $600,000, but with an added 10 years interest, the figure is over $900,000, the representative said.

"If we could get the whole amount in one shot it would pay the total cost," he said. "But with the interest over the 10 years, the grant will only cover about 90 per cent of it."

Vandalism in Magog

MAGOG (GH) — A newly constructed tunnel underneath railroad tracks, linking Stanley and St-Luc streets here has been damaged by youthful vandals, city council believes.

Construction of the tunnel, which cost the city $17,000 was ordered by the council last April 6. It has been in use for three weeks.

The lighting system was damaged and had to be reinstalled, a city representative said. Youngsters have been seen trying to break a wall of transparent material with sticks, he said.

People of the sector are asked to report any incidents of vandalism they see to the police.

Club feted

SHERBROOKE (GH) — The Sherbrooke Optimist Club received a certificate of merit from their international counterpart in appreciation of the activities they have organized in the last year.

The certificate points out the interest members give to youth projects, particularly public speaking and sports activities.

Towards a French Quebec

The Quebec election is taking on an ominous tone for English-speaking Quebecers and many are not aware of it. It is time to sit and contemplate.

As voting day approaches it is becoming clearer and clearer that no matter which way they vote and regardless the outcome, the Anglophones of Quebec will not be secure. Unless the Liberals win by a landslide, which is extremely unlikely, Bill 63 and the whole question of language will be up for serious review.

Such examination will hardly favor the existing situation, not only for immigrants but for Quebec-born Anglophones.

There is certainly no doubt whatsoever that even a strong Liberal government will accelerate the dominance of French as the working language of the province.

If the Parti Quebecois finishes a strong second in the election, and there are signs to this effect, then it is highly likely that Bill 63 will disappear altogether. It is difficult to speculate what the new policy would be but it is certain that the privileged position of the English language will not be enhanced.

Traditionally, Quebec's English have voted unanimously Liberal, and they are expected to do likewise on October 29.

An argument commonly given is that they have no other choice. Perhaps an old federal election hangup will make them think twice. Last November the Stanfield team especially and all parties in general were guilty of saying one thing to the Quebec electorate and another to the rest of the country.

Without reservation, the Quebec Liberal party can be accused of saying contradictory things to the two language groups during the present campaign. This of course is true at the local riding level.

One prominent Liberal member in the Eastern Townships said recently that he had to take a strong pro-French stand in the language issue in order to undercut the Parti Quebecois. This is obviously true but where does it leave the English voter? What are people to believe.

The answer is simple. During the last few weeks the true strength of the Parti Quebecois has revealed itself and the bandwagon appeal has forced all parties to woo the nationalist.

A good gambler would probably wager that after the votes are cast the hue and cry for a French Quebec will not subside. English people take note.

PQ presence makes for unique election

MONTREAL (CP) — The challenge of a fully-fledged independence party makes the forthcoming Quebec provincial election different from other Canadian elections in both national and international terms.

Moreover, Quebec's role as the only majority French-language territory in North America is reflected in the policies of all four major parties in the 33-day battle now in its final week.

Premier Robert Bourassa, who describes next Monday's election as the most crucial in Quebec's history, pictures his governing Liberals as the only truly federalist party in the province which stretches from New York state to Arctic polar bear country.

Yet he places stress on economic federalism and speaks of cultural sovereignty by which the French heritage and language will be protected in an English-language continent.

Rene Levesque, who founded the Parti Quebecois in October 1968, dislikes the tag "separatist" commonly attached to his party. He speaks instead of Quebec independence of political sovereignty in "interdependence" with the rest of Canada in a sort of common market.

As elaborated by Mr. Levesque in the campaign, the Parti Quebecois policy envisages negotiations with the federal government and the preparation of a Quebec constitution on which a referendum would be held in 1½ or two years after a Parti Quebecois victory.

In at least one speech, he recalled that it required two referendums in Newfoundland before that oldest British colony became Canada's 10th province in 1949. Perhaps two referendums would be needed for Quebec to leave.

Some Parti Quebecois radical elements have been squeezed out of the limelight in recent months. Mr. Levesque presents an image of moderation to the electorate, estimated at more than 3.6 million. He has compared his social orientation with that of the British Labor party.

Commentators feel all four parties are striving to reach the political centre as each sees it, in contrast with the last election in April, 1970, conducted amid social discontent and turmoil.

The Union Nationale, under Gabriel Loubier, proposes a "different federalism" worked out by Quebec and the other provinces, with a new constitution being placed before the people. Other provinces besides Quebec have been agitating for a piece of the federal power.

... and then there was one ...

The Canadian businessman in Japan

TOKYO (CP) — A Canadian salesman in Japan has an uphill fight. He has to work through the maze of the Japanese retail system and convince the Japanese he is different from an American.

The Japanese consider Canada a supplier of raw materials and argue that Canada should consider itself lucky instead of complaining about not selling enough manufactured items.

Kazuo Nakazawa, staff economist with Keidanren (Federation of Economic Organizations), the powerful businessmen's association, says Canada is in a position to set many of the rules on two-way trade because Japan needs resources.

"God didn't give us minerals as in Canada. God didn't give us oil as in Arabia. So we have to work hard."

He says Canadians should sell resources, gain economic influence by buying into foreign companies and let people like the Japanese do the hard work.

What happens when resources, uranium as an energy source, for example, run out?

"You can use your profits from the sale of resources to buy into the solar energy company."

SEEKS MORE CONTROL

The official Canadian response is that Canada needs more control over its economy.

Alastair Gillespie, Canada's trade minister, was in Japan early in the fall to carry this message to Japanese businessmen. He complained that as Japan-Canada trade has grown in recent months the portion of processed materials being sold to Japan has declined.

Canada is pursuing its objectives through the General

Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT). Gillespie was in Tokyo to lead the Canadian delegation at the opening session of a new round of negotiations under GATT aimed at a significant realignment of world trade patterns.

The Japanese know the value of protecting home industries and protection of Japanese businesses, which has helped make Japan one of the world's major economic powers, runs through the entire economy.

Giant trading companies dominate the domestic market with the connections from manufacturing to the retail trade.

There are numerous stories of foreign businessmen who ignored the trading companies and lost money in unsuccessful attempts to become established in the Japanese market. About four-fifths of the imports into Japan are channelled through the trading companies.

Japanese consumers will not buy from foreign-owned independent shops. Generally the only place shelf space is available is in department stores and the trading companies either own department stores or can provide an essential recommendation.

Japanese government departments dealing with foreign governments usually have a North American division.

"We don't like being lumped along with the United States," External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp complained at a news conference following a meeting here with his Japanese counterpart.

Sharp was referring to a defence issue but there is the same problem with trade matters.

"The Japanese have grown up seeing no difference across that border," said Kinjiro Sato, assistant manager of the meat and dairy section of Sumitomo Shoji Kaishi Ltd., one of the top six trading companies in Japan.

HURTS FUR INDUSTRY

Furs, currently a hot luxury item in Japan, come under Sato's department and he has been handling preparations for a fall fashion show.

Canadian furs are finding a ready reception in Japan and the retail markup on high-fashion items, from clothing to jewelry, is 300 to 400 per cent.

For the fashion show, Sato said Sumitomo will use garments made by New York furriers because New York is the recognized fashion centre of the fur trade.

But once the fashion show is over and the sales campaign is under way they will concentrate on sales of Canadian furs and fur garments.

That high markup for retail sales is somewhat of an advantage to the Canadian fur industry.

The duty on raw furs imported into Japan is five per cent and on fur garments 20 per cent but with expensive items the tariff differential becomes less important because duty is assessed on the wholesale price. Thus it can be economically attractive to take advantage of the experience and craftsmanship of furriers from Montreal, centre of the Canadian fur trade.

MAKE NO DISTINCTION

Kengo Ishii of the ministry of international trade and industry said Japanese businessmen make no distinction between the head office and branches of multinational corporations.

Ishii, director of the Americas-Oceania division of the international trade policy division, said companies in Japan probably would prefer to deal with the head office.

A major portion of production by Canadian industry is from units of multinational corporations.

Ishii said Japanese buying missions to Canada found few manufactured or processed items that they wanted to buy and price was the principal consideration.

"What you need to have is international competitiveness."

Items the Japanese want and need from Canada are in the resource or raw material categories.

DISPLACES BRITAIN

Japan has become Canada's second-largest trading partner, after the U.S. Japan displaced Britain in the No. 2 position last year. During the first half of this year trade between Canada and Japan was worth $1.28 billion while Canada-U.K. trade was valued at $1.23 billion.

Canada has historically had a surplus in trade with Japan and is a major supplier of raw materials. Japan sold more to Canada than it bought last year but revaluations of the yen—by close to 30 per cent during the last three years—have made Japanese imports more expensive and once again the trade balance favors Canada.

Canada sold $233 million more than it bought—$756 million worth of exports and $523 million in imports—compared with a trade deficit for Canada of $107 million during the first half of 1972.

Minerals, timber and food products account for a major portion of Canadian sales while the major items in Japan's sales to Canada are automobiles and other vehicles, electronic equipment and finished steel products.

In language policy, Mr. Loubier calls for withdrawal of legislation placed on the statute books by a former Union Nationale government in 1969, allowing all Quebec parents to choose the language of their children's education.

Quebec's multi-ethnic non-French minority, 20 per cent of the total population of more than six million but concentrated mainly in Montreal, exceeds the over-all population of most other provinces. Most immigrants opt for English-language teaching and some French-Canadian nationalists fear the so-called Anglophones will eventually form the majority in Montreal, where they now constitute an economically powerful 40 per cent of the population.

While the 1969 measure enshrined in law what has been Quebec's traditional practice, the Union Nationale now would require all future immigrants to send their children to French-language schools. Unlike the Parti Quebecois policy, no exception is made for English-speaking immigrants.

Yvon Dupuis, leader of the Parti Creditiste, is firm in his personal commitment to Canada but pledges a referendum by which citizens could express their view specifically on the federalist-separatist question. He told one meeting:

"We suggest that the issue can only be solved by a referendum because there are some Creditistes who wish to see Quebec independent and some people who vote Parti Quebecois who are not separatists. Only by a referendum could you get a true indication of the people's wish."

Though separatism emerged as virtually the sole major issue in the quiet opening weeks of the campaign, the language of debate was economic in slant rather than constitutional.

Mr. Bourassa, 40-year-old lawyer-economist, has maintained since before he became premier April 29, 1970, that only a healthy economy can provide the base for cultural security.

Quebec's 22nd premier—the youngest to get the job and the first economist—underlines his government's performance in producing four successive budgets without tax increases.

He told radio listeners, incidentally, that the 1976 Montreal Summer Olympics, would be seriously compromised if the Parti Quebecois came to power because federal government participation would become impossible.

The Liberals needed another clear mandate to continue "the work that is being done for Quebec." They had already fulfilled their 1970 mandate "to get the economy moving again, to clean up our public finances, to improve our social climate and to affirm Quebec's role within Canada."

"Quebec now is experiencing the best economic year of its history," said the slim, bespectacled premier Sept. 25 when he went on television via videotape and called the election after ruling 42 months of a 60-month mandate.

What are the prospects? The picture seems to have changed somewhat in recent weeks though the main question generally revolves around which will be the second-running party in view of the overwhelming Liberal strength in the last Quebec national assembly.

Mr. Levesque, one-time war correspondent and television commentator, says the Parti Quebecois is assured of its "minimum objective" of becoming the next official Opposition and has a good chance of beating the Liberals.

The Bourassa Liberals won 72 seats in the 108-seat national assembly in 1970 but it was an election like none other, with two new parties—the Levesque group and the Creditistes—making their first appearance at the Quebec provincial polls.

The Parti Quebecois came up on the left and placed second to the Liberals in terms of popular vote, though winning only seven seats, six in Montreal. The Quebec electoral map now has been reformed to give more weight to the urban vote in a house of 110 seats.

The Creditistes came up on the right and captured 12 seats—none in Montreal—while the Union Nationale, the former governing party, skidded disastrously to 17 seats from the 56 won in 1966. The Union Nationale remained as official Opposition but lost much of its support among French-Canadian nationalists and countryside conservative elements in the massive political realignment.

Mr. Dupuis, Creditiste leader since February, predicts his party will win 55 seats. But observers note Mr. Loubier, striving to recoup Union Nationale power, has increasingly concentrated his fire on Mr. Levesque as apparently the more dangerous adversary than Mr. Dupuis, a former radio hot-line moderator and founder of a community newspaper.

Mr. Loubier also launched ferocious attacks on the Bourassa regime, however. He charged Mr. Bourassa "betrayed" Quebec by allowing the federal government to take a leading role in the kidnap-murder crisis of October, 1970, when Labor Minister Pierre Laporte was slain by the terrorist Front de Liberation du Quebec. James Cross, British trade diplomat, was held captive 60 days by the FLQ.

Mr. Loubier, minister in the former Union Nationale government, declared:

"I, like everyone else, would have liked the head of Quebec, the chief of our nation, to appear on TV with serenity and firmness to tell us what was going on in Quebec ..."

"But it was not Bourassa we saw—it was his boss in Ottawa, who came to sow confusion by saying, 'maybe tomorrow it is your son who will disappear.'"

Mr. Loubier, 41, also charged he is facing a sort of Liberal coalition—a "Union Liberale"—since all other party leaders are either Liberals or former Liberals.

Mr. Dupuis, who celebrated his 47th birthday during the campaign, served in the late Lester B. Pearson's federal Liberal cabinet in the 1960s. Mr. Levesque, 51, a leading light of Quebec's Quiet Revolution in the early 1960s, was a provincial Liberal minister in Jean Lesage's cabinets. He now describes his "Quebec option" as a natural progression of the old Liberal slogan, "maitres chez nous—masters in our own house."

Government business limits the travel of Mr. Bourassa but each travel-day covers much ground. Organizers arrange to touch on four or five different regions on the same day in an attempt to create an aura of omnipresence and get maximum publicity.

Mr. Levesque leaps from the province in an ancient chartered DC-3, his natural ebullience occasionally breaking through the image of calm and serenity cultivated by the party.

Questioned about apathy among voters, Mr. Bourassa said it indicated the people are satisfied with his government. He maintained the Parti Quebecois has produced its own "death warrant" by publishing a budgetary blueprint for the first year of an independent Quebec.

The budget's proposed establishment of a Quebec currency made it evident a flight of capital would occur as people tried to convert their assets into more stable currencies prior to independence.

Indians creating new housing for homeless

By RAM SUNDAR
CP Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP) — The Communist-dominated government of the south Indian province of Kerala has launched an ambitious housing project for homeless villagers.

Chief Minister Achutha Menon and Housing Minister Govindan Nair, both stalwarts of the pro-Moscow Communist party of India (CPI), say the project "will be a model not only to other provinces in our country but to all underdeveloped countries in Asia, Africa and Latin America."

One hundred thousand houses will be constructed at government cost and given to deserving families almost free.

Each house, consisting of two rooms, a kitchen, a portico and a privy, will cost the government about $300. All that the family moving into it will have to pay is $14.

Kerala officials say that to their knowledge the project is the most imaginative welfare measure concerning housing outside a full-fledged Communist state.

All over the lush coastal province construction work is going on round the clock on some 1,000 sites. These either belong to the government or have been purchased from farmers by village councils.

PRaises Project

To dramatize the importance of the Kerala project for the nation's other provinces, Prime Minister Indira Gandhi flew to Trivandrum, the provincial capital, to inaugurate it. She called the venture "a brave and imaginative experiment."

Half of the 100,000 houses will be given to the lowest caste in Indian society. Known as Untouchables during British rule, these desperately poor people are now known as Harijans, which means children of God.

Chief Minister Menon and Nair have been on a whirlwind tour of the province urging all sections of the people to make donations towards the project.

"This is not just a housing scheme but a movement to improve the lot of Kerala's long-suffering farm workers," Nair told a peasant gathering near Trivandrum.

Since there are more than 300,000 claimants for the houses, a system of lots has been drawn up for their allotment.

RUNS INTO SNAGS

Meanwhile, the project has run into some "teething troubles," as one senior housing ministry official put it.

Of the 24,000 houses already completed, nearly 400 have collapsed.

When the first dozen houses came down, Nair blamed the monsoon. But a government committee which went into the matter found that some officials and contractors used sub-standard materials. Their report said that large quantities of cement and timber meant for the project went into the black market.

The government has suspended several officials following the inquiry. Expressing his shock, Nair has appealed to the people not to overlook the greatness of the project because of "lapses here and there."

WORKERS INDIFFERENT

The CPI leadership is also concerned over the general indifference of the urban working class towards the housing project. While hand-some donations have come from the upper and middle classes, industrial workers have contributed little.

Nair told a Times of India News Service reporter that the working class should have been in the vanguard of a movement meant for the rural poor.

"The minister noted with despair that the textbook theory of Communist ideology has not helped him in building houses for the poor," the reporter said.

Some CPI workers are alleging that the pro-Peking Marxist Communist party is "sabotaging" the housing project by appealing to factory workers not to make donations.

Nair is planning visits to the Soviet Union and other Communist countries to obtain funds, building materials and expertise for expansion of the project.

Celebrates birthday

KINGSEY FALLS — Mrs. Leslie Perkins entertained in honor of her youngest son's 12th birthday on Oct. 10 in the afternoon and evening.

Arriving by school bus, Irwin and his school mates enjoyed games indoors. A game of guessing the correct number of pennies in a small glass jar was played with Joyce Blouin being the winner. Gifts were presented for which Irwin thanked both the children and grown-ups.

Lunch was served with Peggy Blouin assisting. All joined in the birthday song when Mrs.

Perkins placed the candle lit birthday cake on the dining room table. The youngsters played outside for a short time before leaving for home.

Guests for supper included Russel Frost who was also celebrating his birthday the same day. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Frost and baby daughter, Mrs. Francis Cleveland and little boys Larry and Kenneth and Donald Gifford.

A pleasant evening followed bringing to a close a happy birthday celebration.

Chewing and spitting out

By JIM NEAVES

SASKATOON (CP) — The days of Prairie farmers chewing and spitting kernels of wheat in their fields to test whether the crop is ready for harvest may be numbered, thanks to an inventor at the University of Saskatchewan's engineering college.

George Dyck, 56, manager of the college's central shops, has devised a portable moisture meter to make the test quickly and accurately.

Mr. Dyck, who has been at the university for 11 years, originally came from Russia in 1923, settling in the Hanley, Sask., district. "I was teaching before joining the university, but really I'm an inventor and have about 10 patents out—some good, some so-so."

He worked on his moisture meter for about six years taking "a different approach to the problem from some other university people who were working on the same idea."

It has taken an estimated $10,000 to develop the unit which looks like a cross between a flashlight and a thermos bottle. Development was aided by a grant from the Hantelman Research

Foundation and "I've been given about $4,000 in cold cash."

DEVICE BEING TESTED

The meter has been tested in laboratories and eight prototype models now are being tested in the field by Saskatchewan farmers.

"Initial tests are encouraging and I should be able to make a decision on mass production within two months," Mr. Dyck said in an interview. He already has talked to interested manufacturers.

He estimates it will sell commercially for about $75.

The unit will save time during the busy harvest season eliminating the need for farmers to take samples of grain to the local elevator for testing.

Heavy financial losses can result from combining fields that are too wet. The price may be reduced on grain delivered to the elevator that contains more than 14.7 per cent moisture.

The meter weighs less than four pounds and requires no power supply. It also, in most cases, does not require use of a weigh scale.

Grain is placed in a specially designed compression chamber and a direct reading of the percentage of moisture appears on a calibrated dial.

The compression chamber, made of moulded plastic, is the instrument's main feature, the design overcoming the problem of obtaining uniform pressure throughout the sample of grain.

This is done by removing the effects of wall friction which would cause the pressure to be uneven and give an inaccurate reading.

"There's still a lot of work to be done, but if it is successful with wheat, perhaps it can be used to test other grains that soften with moisture including barley, rapeseed and flax."

Patents have been applied for in Canada and the United States and one of the units will be taken to Australia this fall to obtain a patent in that country. Mr. Dyck also wants to see the unit patented in France.

"I'd like to get it patented in all grain-producing countries and have a particular interest in getting it patented in Russia," he said.

Card Party

MELBOURNE — The Melbourne Townships Youth Centre opened their series of five card parties at the Melver Hall, Upper Melbourne on Thursday evening, Oct. 11, when Mr. and Mrs. R. Westman were host and hostess for the evening, welcoming the members and friends present. The next three card parties will be held on Oct. 25, Nov. 1 and 8. The 2nd one was held on Oct. 18.

The winners were: Ladies 1st, Mrs. L. Porter, 2nd, Mrs. O. Wilkins, consolation, Mrs. G. Healy.

Gents 1st, R. Fortier, 2nd, O. Wilkins, consolation, P. Boisvert. The door prize for the evening was drawn by Patsy Gunter.

At the close of a very pleasant evening refreshments were served by the parents of the members of the Youth Centre.

Aulis-Rediker wed

BEEBE — A quiet wedding was solemnized at 3 p.m. on Oct. 13, in Wesley United Church, when Nancy Evelyn Aulis, daughter of Mrs. Evelyn Aulis of Beebe and Mr. Lewis Aulis of Stanstead, became the bride of Gary Rediker, Brampton, Ont., son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Rediker, of Beebe, in a double-ring ceremony performed by Rev. Gary Stokes in the presence of the immediate families.

The bride chose a blue floor-length gown, with a band of blue flowers in her hair. Her only jewellery being a Horoscope brooch pinned to her gown.

Mrs. Lester Aulis, of Brantford, Ont., as matron-of-honor for her sister-in-law was in an orange-figured floor-length gown. Her jewellery being matching gold necklace and earrings.

Mr. Lester Aulis acted as best man for his brother-in-law.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Aulis in Stanstead, brother and sister-in-law of the bride, where approximately 15 immediate family members and close friends assembled.

The happy couple left on a short honeymoon. They will take up residence in Brampton, Ont., where the groom is employed.

Guests, attended from Brantford, Ont., Leeds Village and the border areas.

Waldron-Gemmell marriage

LENNOXVILLE — St. Mark's Chapel, Bishop's University, was the scene of a pretty autumn wedding on Saturday, September 22, 1973, when Judith Irma, daughter of Mrs. Edith Waldron, of Cookshire, Que., was united in marriage to Douglas Morrison, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Neil Gemmell, of Lakeside, Ont. Rev. John Ando officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

Mr. Morrison played the wedding music. Judy was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. George Buck, of La Salle, Que.

Her gown was of white silk brocade and featured a mandarin collar and A-line skirt, falling into a short train. The Empire waist was accented by self-piping, coming to a point in the front bodice, with a wide half-belt crossing in the back and fastened with matching covered buttons. The long, fitted sleeves ended in wide bell cuffs, which were trimmed with covered buttons. Her short veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a white satin bow, with pearl-headed pins. She carried a cascade bouquet of red sweetheart roses, pink and white miniature carnations, baby's breath and ivy.

Mrs. Douglas Matthews was matron-of-honor, and was dressed in a light burgundy gown, and Linda Gemmell, sister of the groom, and Mrs. Charles Chute, sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaids, and were attired in light forest green. Their gowns were identical, featuring cap sleeves, A-line skirts, low square necklines, tied in the back with shoestring laces. The front bodices were enhanced by two-toned pink embroidered flowers. They wore matching picture hats, trimmed with pink nylon sheer. Their colonial bouquets were of pink and white miniature carnations and baby's breath and white satin streamers.

Mr. Malcolm Loucks was the best man, and James Waldron and Robert Gemmell, brother of the bride and groom respectively, acted as ushers.

The groom wore a dark blue pin-stripe suit and a red rose bud boutonniere. The other men of the wedding party were attired in navy blue blazers with grey flannel trousers, and wore white carnation boutonnieres.

The bride's mother chose for her daughter's wedding, a floor-length gown of fortrel knit brocade in mint and forest green, accented with silver threads. It featured long-fitted sleeves, scoop neckline, set in waist, and straight skirt. Her corsage was of yellow carnations with silver ribbons.

The groom's mother was attired in a long gown of rose polyester crepe and featured a jewel neckline, long fitted sleeves, with matching stole-type cape. Her corsage was of white carnations and silver ribbon.

The reception was held at La Paysanne Motel, Lennoxville, where a delicious buffet lunch was served. The three-tiered wedding cake was made by the bride's mother and decorated by Mrs. Allan Goodfellow.

For travelling, the bride wore a two-piece raspberry-red suit, accented by white top stitching, navy and white accessories, and a white gardenia corsage. Mrs. David Bridges was in charge of the guest book, and Miss Elizabeth Lavallee caught the bridal bouquet. The young couple are residing in Montreal, following their honeymoon in Bermuda.

MR. AND MRS. D.M. GEMMELL

40th anniversary feted

RICHMOND — Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Goodhue, Sawyerville, were guests of honor at a dinner held in observance of their 40th Wedding Anniversary.

The celebrants innocently entering the home of their youngest son, Mr. Kermit Goodhue, were pleasantly surprised when greeted by 20 members of their families. At this time, Mrs. Kermit Goodhue (daughter-in-law) pinned a corsage of red carnations on the bride of forty years, and Mrs. Richard Goodhue (daughter-in-law) pinned a red and white carnation boutonniere on the groom of forty years.

The dining room was gaily decorated with red and white streamers and wedding bells. After enjoying a delicious turkey dinner, the guests-of-honor were presented with many lovely cards, gifts, and also currency from relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Goodhue expressed their thanks to their children for arranging the pleasant event, and to all those for coming from far and near and for all the gifts and lovely remembrances which made the afternoon so enjoyable.

Leonard and Lois Goodhue were united in marriage on October 3, 1933.

Guests attending were - Mr. Howard Goodhue and Mr. and Mrs. Donald McGrath, Abercorn; Mr. and Mrs. Osee Hackhousen, Cowansville; Mr. and Mrs. Ross Lockwood and family, Richmond; Mr. and Mrs. Keith Goodhue and family, Ottawa; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Goodhue, Ulverton and Mr. and Mrs. Kermit Goodhue, Richmond.

"To finesse or not to finesse, that is the question," soliloquized Hamlet, the melancholy Dane.

Guidenstern had opened the queen of diamonds against Hamlet's four-heart contract.

The fair Ophelia, who had merely raised Hamlet from one heart to two, put down a sound dummy. Hamlet's hand was sound also and a quick look at dummy indicated that everything was fine in the state of Denmark.

He won the diamond lead in dummy and played the queen of hearts. Rosenkranz, sitting East, was too good a bridge player to cover one of equal honors with another honor, so his failure to play the king or to stop to think gave no clue to the monarch's location.

Hamlet soliloquized further, "The fair Ophelia will be mad if I don't make this contract. Can I lose it if I finesse? Yes, I can. Can I lose it if I don't finesse? No, I can't."

He was right. If he finessed, West would take his king and lead another diamond. Dummy's second high diamond would be ruffed and with two tricks in the defense would still collect a diamond and a spade.

But Hamlet went up with his ace, led a second trump and claimed his contract.

Windsor whistle

WINDSOR — The whistle today is a horn worked by compressed air. It is designed to be powerful enough to be heard a half a mile away in a closed car, with the motor running.

Its goal is safety through noise.

Unfortunately, the noise also wakes people, interrupts ordinary conversation and is heard for 5 miles around.

We live in a small town with six crossings in a mile and a half. Someone in the early days decreed that every train had to blow four times before every crossing. Thus every train blows 6 times 4, or 24 times as it passes.

The horn is powerful, it blows at all hours. It wakes one just when one goes to sleep. It is heard at 4 a.m. The way freight shunts forth and back, keeps on blowing its horn even when no car is in sight.

Now, as we have traffic lights at some street crossings and stop signs at others why can't rail crossings be protected that way?

Traffic lights at frequented crossings — Stop signs at the small private ones, and let the train use its bell if it must.

Safety through noise is old fashioned — it makes life harder, day in day out. Is there no other way in the 20th century, in this electronic age? Let's blow the whistle on the whistle — so we can live in peace.

A word to the wise

SWEETSBURG — If we get in touch with you today, it is by no means for publicity, because we know that it is sufficient to inform you that this year's Bazaar, Tea and Food Sale will take place at the hospital Friday, Nov. 2 at 2 p.m., and right away our faithful friends (and they are many all over the Eastern Townships) will be planning to attend, help and participate.

Our customers know that it is the opportunity to buy at reasonable price the little something different from anywhere else: the arts and crafts, pottery, porcelain, knits that they want for themselves or as a gift. To day's treasure, tomorrow's heirloom. Their only problem will be keeping it a secret till Christmas.

What we specially want to do now is give recognition to the innumerable persons who work for us in the background, whose names are not known and who, I am afraid are never thanked enough.

We want to pay tribute to these gracious young mothers, charming grandmothers and those wonderful grandams, some of which knit for us, embroider, make carpets, tapestry, cushions, work bags; others outdo themselves in the cooking of squares, tartlets, pastries, confectionery, for the enjoyment at tea time, not forgetting to mention the food table with its cakes, pies, nut, date and apricot breads, sometimes still warm from the oven and whose recipes are traditionally kept in the families through generations. Our customers are so fond of them, that it would not be exaggerated to say that they disappear in a twinkling of an eye, much to the disappointment of the late comers.

To all these persons we want to express our gratitude and thankfulness. Without their contribution this occasion would not occur. We thank them whole heartedly. As long as we have their support we have the assurance that we are not alone and we endeavour to go on devoting ourselves.

DUPLICATE CELLS ARE MADE

What happens in pregnancy?

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I have just found out that I am pregnant. Of course, I am very excited and so is my husband. I know that pregnancy all begins with sex and that there is fertilization of the egg, but I don't know what happens after that. Just how does this grow to form all the different parts of the body and what determines what our baby will look like? I have a vague idea that it is based on inherited traits of both of us, but I'd like to know more now that I am actually going to be a mother. Could you explain a little bit of this to us?

Dear Reader — Having children really is the closest thing we have to biological immortality. Regardless of theological considerations concerning life everlasting, there is a form of biological immortality necessary to every species for their continued existence. In the single cell organisms the cells simply divide and continue to live as their children. This is the simplest form of biological immortality.

In living organisms essentially there is a strip of magnetic tape in each cell nucleus that has the entire recorded information or instructions for you can produce a duplicate tape of your favorite music, the information in the nucleus of the cell can be reproduced or a copy made to build another cell.

In single cell organisms, the master tape is simply reproduced and when two strips of tape exist in the cell, the cell divides so that each new cell contains only one strip of tape information. By a process of continually producing new tape copies and splitting the cells, single cell organisms can continue to reproduce as long as they can obtain the materials for the building process. It follows that such single cell organisms are really copies of each other — hence, the term "genetic copy."

The cell that is going to become a liver cell will only use the recorded bit of information that provides the instructions to build a liver cell. The cell that will become a heart cell only uses the segment on the tape that has the information about how to build heart cells.

It has already been proved that each cell nucleus has all the information to build a complete body. The nucleus of a cell taken from the wall of a frog's intestine was removed and used to replace the unfertilized nucleus of a frog egg. The newly formed frog egg then developed into a mature frog, since it had a complete set of genetic information. The new frog was a "genetic copy" of the old frog. Thus, the intestinal cell nucleus contained all the information necessary to build a frog heart, brain and all the complex structures involved.

The actual building process depends upon available building materials — particularly the amino acids, or separate building products that make up proteins. There are no more than 25 of these. They are hooked together in a variety of sequences to form new proteins and, hence, body structures. If you wonder how so complex a structure as the human body can be built with such few parts, remember that the arrangement of 21 different musical notes (three octaves) can produce an infinite variety of music. And even more remarkable, the entire universe as we know it is made up of little more than 100 different chemical elements.

The instructions for building the new body exist in pairs. This again is much like music, existing as a melody and its accompaniment. In some instances the melody will come from the male and the accompaniment from the female. The teeth may be large like the father's, set in a small mouth like the mother's, leading to some problems in the dental area concerning space for the growing teeth in the years to come. In this instance the genes responsible for the teeth from the father are the "dominant genes" and the genes for the shape and size of the mouth from the mother, the "dominant genes" for that characteristic.

The upshot of this is to provide in higher life forms a variety of characteristics from the parents — a mixing of genes — as opposed to lower or one cell organisms merely producing genetic copies of themselves by simple cell division.

Of course, the environmental influences also affect the subsequent growth and development. If there is not sufficient protein and, hence, amino acids available, the building plans may not be able to proceed normally. If an amino acid essential for growth or building of a particular protein is absent, then that protein cannot be formed and the cell needing it won't develop. This is one reason why your nutrition during pregnancy is so important. Some authorities think that inadequate amounts of protein in the diet will affect the way the brain develops and the future intelligence of the offspring.

Finally, these same chemically taped instructions that the baby is born with are used then to grow new cells as old ones degenerate or are damaged. In this way the body has a mechanism for continued renewal. This in turn, if it continued to remain active, could provide the basis for continued biological immortality of the individual in an optimal youthful state. Hence, the mysteries of life that begin with birth are the same ones that are involved in the intriguing mystery of perpetual youth or biological immortality.

An Expert

Bible Society October Brompton Road WI meeting

The Mansonville branch of the Canadian Bible Society held its annual meeting in the Anglican St. Paul's Church the evening of Oct. 10.

Rev. Martin C. Thomas, Assistant District Secretary, welcomed those attending and conducted a short service of worship.

Mr. Martin told the group that part of the new testament has been translated into the language of the Copper Eskimo which took upwards of 13 years to finish and also mentioned that the works was published this year and books were distributed to the Eskimos on April 15, 1973. A film titled A New Spring Comes to Copper Mine was shown, which gave the whole story of the beginning right through to the point where the books were loaded onto the airplane and later passed out to these people. An Anglican Priest, a Roman Catholic Priest and a Pentecostal Minister joined together in the dedication service when these books were distributed (which are also being used as text books in the classroom there).

After Mr. Thomas opened the business part of the meeting, Mr. Hermann Ommerli asked the group to accept his resignation as President of the Mansonville Branch due to ill health, after having served the society for 20 years; at the same time he took the opportunity to thank the canvassers and all those who showed much effort towards making the campaign, this year as well as previous years, a success.

Sec. Mrs. Bertha Webb read last year's report followed by the canvassers' report for 1973, which topped last year's donations. Mrs. Webb was renominated as Sec.-Treas. by acclamation, likewise, Mrs. Wayne Bedard as Vice Pres. The office of Pres. was left open pending Mr. Martin's visit in the spring to various persons mentioned as potential candidates for this office.

Following the offering, the meeting was closed by the Pastor with prayer.

On display for sale (and can be obtained through the Montreal office) were modern translations of Proverbs and Ecclesiastes titled Wisdom for Modern Man, and the book mentioned in the film, along with free pamphlets. Donations are still coming into the hands of the Sec.-Treas. Mrs. Webb, of which final results will be revealed at a later date.

Moe's River

Recent dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Haseltine were Mrs. David Nicholson of Milan, Mrs. Joe Rankin of Montreal, and Mrs. Dale Farrell and son Sean of Sherbrooke.

Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Draper of Bracebridge, Ont., recently spent a few days at the home of his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Ewart. They also called on many friends in the area.

The October meeting of the Brompton Road Women's Institute was held at the Community hall, on Oct. 9, with the president, Mrs. Donald Cullen in the chair.

The meeting opened with the Opening Ode and the Collect, also the Salute to the Flag. Mrs. D. Cullen welcomed the ten guests. Waterloo-Warden Branch to the meeting.

The roll call was Recite a Poem, tell a funny story or pay a 10 cent fine.

Mrs. D. Cullen explained that Mrs. G. Hatch and Mrs. M. Brown were pinning pieces of paper in the shape of pants, on each member and our guests. She said if we saw anyone crossing their legs or their ankles you could take the pants off the person and put on yourself. The end of the afternoon the one with the most pants won a prize. First prize was won by Miss Linda Decoteau and second prize by one of our guests.

We held a two-minute silence for Mrs. Beattie who was our Past Provincial President. She passed away on Saturday Oct. 6.

Secretary, Mrs. E.M. Goodfellow read the minutes of the last meeting.

Mrs. Gerald Decoteau handed in the Sherbrooke Fair Booth money, which was $51.00 for our branch.

Mrs. Gerald Decoteau showed us our quilt now that it is finished. She said Mrs. Sidney Savers had worked on it for three days or so to finish it up. It is to be raffled at our Christmas tree.

Due to the time of the last meeting, Mrs. Gordon Westman was unable to report on our County meeting so she did so to-day.

Treasurer - Mrs. Gordon Hatch read the treasurer's report.

Mrs. E.M. Goodfellow read the correspondence.

Agriculture - Mrs. Gordon Westman said she had phoned all our members about the trip to Macdonald College to attend a meeting about agriculture on Oct. 11, and also reported Mrs. Georges Hadenko had taken the school Fair money to each school.

Education: Mrs. Archie Wright was absent.

Home Economics: Mrs. Gerald Decoteau read an article on The Common Errors of Diets.

Welfare and Health: Mrs. Milton Brown said three members had gone to the last cancer clinic and made 196 pads.

Publicity - Mrs. Laurence Emery reported meetings to the Record and Macdonald Journal.

Sunshine: Mrs. Aubrey Graham sent out cards to sick and shut-ins.

Stamps: Mrs. George Hadenko reported she had received a few more stamps today.

New Business: We voted if we wanted to continue the School Fair and the Fair Booth.

Mrs. Y. Alain has given up her office as Citizenship Convenor so Mrs. Cullen asked if someone would take over the office. Mrs. Terry Peasley will take it for the month of October. Mrs. George Hadenko to take care of the UNICEF Card Party to be held Nov. 3, at the Community hall.

Mrs. Laurence Emery asked if the Branch would sponsor a Halloween Party to be held at the hall on Halloween night.

Mrs. G. Westman to buy gifts for prizes, also Mrs. Westman to be delegate to County meeting in November.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Gordon Westman with Mrs. Alan Roarke assisting.

The meeting was adjourned and a delicious lunch served with programme committee in charge and all members assisting in the lunch.

- Parents will have priority rights regarding the education of their children.
- School premises will be available after hours to non-profit-making groups for authorized acceptable purposes.
- Community Centres will be built for retired people.

Obituaries

MRS. J.F. STONE of Montpelier, Vt.
Mrs. J. Frederick Stone (Annie Murray), 66, died Thursday, Sept. 27, 1973, at Central Vermont Hospital after a long illness.

She was born on the Isle of Lewis, Scotland, June 25, 1907, daughter of Donald and Annie MacLeod Murray and came to Canada as an infant with her family. Her childhood and girlhood was spent around Milan, Que. The family resided for a time in the late Mrs. Marjorie MacAulay home near Milan Village and for some time in the late Roger Stevenson house in Victoria, Que., then the family moved to Granvilleville, Vt. She was a graduate nurse of Heaton Hospital, Montpelier, Vt. and worked as an R.N. doing private duty for several years, later serving as Supervisor at Heaton Hospital.

On April 14, 1934, she was married to Atty. J.F. Stone in Montpelier, Vt.

Besides her husband she leaves two sons, Frederick and Albert, both of Montpelier, a daughter, Mrs. John (Barbara) Frame of Southington, Conn., several grandchildren, four sisters, Miss Christine Murray of Hartford, Conn., Mrs. Dolores Callahan and Mrs. Violet Barquin both of Montpelier and Mrs. Betty Lasalle in Washington State, a brother, George Murray of Essex Jct., Vt., as well as nieces and nephews.

Funeral services were held at 10 a.m. Sept. 29 in the Guare Funeral Home, Rev. G.R. Fitzpatrick of the Unitarian Church officiating. Burial in Green Mount Cemetery.

The bearers were John Burgess, Earl King, John Kilmurray, Morris Leventhal, James Burns, Carol Duke and Newton Martin.

The family requested in lieu of flowers donations be made to the Cancer Society.

Funeral Services were held at 10 a.m. Sept. 29 in the Guare Funeral Home, Rev. G.R. Fitzpatrick of the Unitarian Church officiating. Burial in Green Mount Cemetery.

The bearers were John Burgess, Earl King, John Kilmurray, Morris Leventhal, James Burns, Carol Duke and Newton Martin.

The family requested in lieu of flowers donations be made to the Cancer Society.

CHARLES MAIDEMENT

of Sutton

After only a week's illness from a heart attack, Mr. Charles Maidement passed away at the Sherbrooke Hospital, Sept. 24, 1973. The remains were brought to C.E. Wilson & Son Funeral Home, Main Street, Sutton, where they rested until Wednesday, Sept. 26. Funeral service was held in Grace Anglican Church with Rev. J.H.M. Brett officiating.

Mr. Maidement had been a member of the Senior choir of that church for several years and his favorite hymn Rock of Ages was sung with Mrs. Leon Darrah at the organ.

Burial was in Grace Church Cemetery, Sutton. The bearers were Comrades Douglas Wighton, Norman Goyette, Ernest Haynes, Reg. Parmenter, Harry Lawrence and Archie Demers.

The many floral offerings showed the high esteem held for the deceased.

Mr. Maidement was born in England, March 12, 1890, and as a young man came to Canada and worked on several farms around Sutton. He married Miss Louise Staphenhill in 1911 and of this marriage three daughters were born. Mr. Maidement served in both World Wars and was a member of the Royal Canadian Legion, Sutton No. 158. The Comrades held their Memorial service at the Funeral Parlour, Sept. 25 with a short service at the grave side.

Eleven years ago Mr. Maidement went to the Wales Home in Richmond to reside, making frequent visits each year to his family in the States and in Sutton.

Mr. Maidement was of a quiet nature and made many friends wherever he went. He leaves to mourn his loss his three daughters - Dorothy, (Mrs. Leonard Weston) her seven children and their families, Miss Alice Maidement of Stoneham, Mass., Marjorie, (Mrs. Kurt Jonas) a son-in-law, Mr. Jonas, granddaughter Donna Jonas of Garden City, N.Y., a grandson, Mr. Glenn Maidement, his wife Louise and their four children of Toronto; a brother-in-law, Mr. Henry Staphenhill of Farnham, Corner; two nephews Raymond Page of West Sutton and Gerald Page of California. All were present at the funeral with exception of Gerald Page, who, owing to distance, was unable to attend. Sympathy is extended to the family in their bereavement.

HOLLIS S. TIBBITTS of Mansenville

After many months of suffering, the death of Hollis Spicer Tibbitts occurred at his residence on Sunday, Sept. 23, 1973.

The deceased was born in Abercorn, Que., on April 21, 1916, the second son of the late Delbert J. Tibbitts and

Dupuis: the style shows experience

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
MONTREAL (CP) — The campaign style of Yvon Dupuis shows the timing and knack of a politician who has been active in electoral battles one way or another for nearly 30 years.

So reports circulate of a split in the Parti Creditiste hierarchy? What does party leader Dupuis do? He grabs Camil Samson, former party leader, and warmly embraces the taller man—though stopping short of the dance. For good measure he embraces Real Caouette and anyone else within reach. The faithful cheer that, too.

It helps, mind you, that Mr. Caouette, federal Social Credit leader, and Mr. Samson have already extolled party unity in characteristically uninhibited fashion. Only the Quebec election next Monday can give a verdict on the controversial new role of Mr. Dupuis in the political life of the province but his campaign techniques were evident at contrasting meetings in Montreal and in Ste. Agathe, 60 miles away in the Laurentians.

RESULTS SIMILAR
The meetings were different in prelude, setting and scale and the tactics of Mr. Dupuis and his organizers may also have been different but the results were much the same.

The main target of the Creditiste campaign—"socialism"—was lambasted in both places, to hearty response from the audience of 6,000 in Montreal and 300 in Ste. Agathe.

Organizers let it be known that Mr. Dupuis expects to concentrate his fire on Premier Robert Bourassa and his Liberals in the last days of the campaign, rather than on Rene Levesque, leader of the Parti Quebecois. The party is striving to make its first inroads in Montreal, including the English-language population of the city.

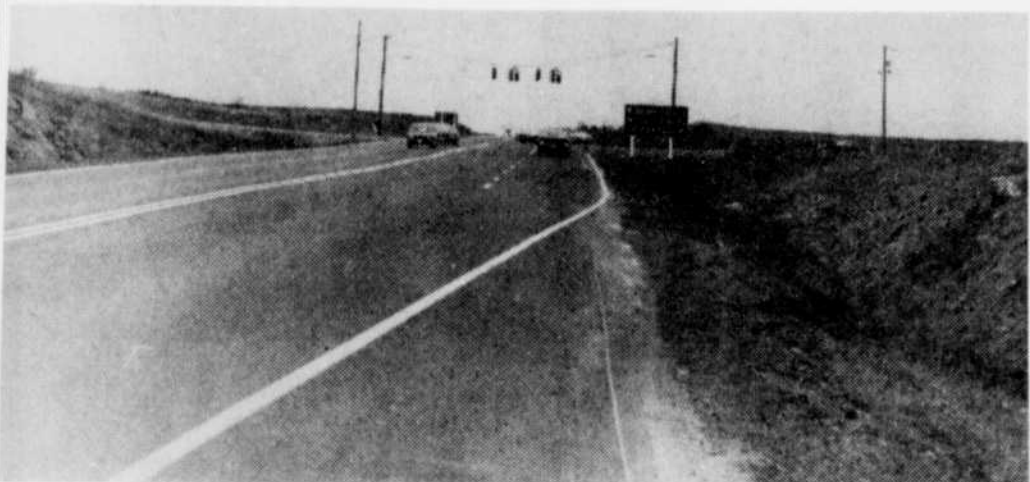

Jean-Guy Sabourin, Creditiste candidate in Laurentides-Labellé, set a more sober tone for the Ste. Agathe affair than Montreal, where Dupuis was virtually carried to the stage amid the blare of horns and roars of the crowd. Mr. Sabourin spoke in moderate terms of the party program, attacked separatism and easily squelched a single heckler.

NATIONALIZING 'ILLNESS'
The Laurentian townsfolk were told that Mr. Levesque is "hell bent on nationalizing everything in sight because that is his illness."

"Mr. Levesque is a demagogue... but an intelligent demagogue who is more dangerous than the others," said Henri Courtemanche, former Progressive Conservative minister under John Diefenbaker.

So Mr. Dupuis, a former Liberal minister, is sometimes criticized for switching parties? Mr. Dupuis got a laugh by displaying the red lining of his jacket, showing he is still a bit "rouge"—Liberal—by accident.

At other times he has obtained the desired result by demanding from his audience:

"How many of you out there were once Rouge like I was? ... How many of you voted Bleu (Conservative)?"

So Mr. Dupuis has tangled with journalists? Mr. Sabourin escorted his dapper party leader over to the press table to shake hands with reporters in amiable fashion.

CITES 'ARROGANCE'
Mr. Dupuis makes his pitch to what he sees as the centre in Quebec politics, ordinary people bewildered and hurt amid rushing change, official arrogance and intellectual pride.

"A human program for a strong Quebec" is the Creditiste slogan. Mr. Dupuis says a "whole catalogue of experts" from sociologists to sexologists think they know more about the wishes of the people than the people themselves.

Besides his province-wide campaign, Mr. Dupuis is fighting a tough personal battle in St. Jean riding near Montreal, held by the Liberals in the last Quebec national assembly.

He started his political career as an organizer in 1944, and served in the Quebec house before going to the House of Commons, later becoming a radio hot-line moderator after being acquitted of influence-peddling charges.

Mr. Dupuis flatly contradicts Premier Bourassa's statement that the Liberals constitute the only truly federalist party of the four contesting the Quebec election.

Obituary

MRS. ANGUS A. MACLEOD
of Jamestown, R.I.
formerly of Granvilleville and East Brookfield, Vt.

Mrs. Jane MacLeod, 87, a former resident of Granvilleville and East Brookfield, Vt., died Sunday, Sept. 23, 1973, at South County Hospital in Wakefield, R.I.

She was born Sept. 22, 1886, in Sinter, Mo., daughter of John and Helen (Caldwell) Donald.

Educated in Gloucester, Mass., she worked for a Telephone Company in Boston, Mass., before moving with her parents to Westbury, Vt. On Jan. 6, 1909, she was married to Angus Allan MacLeod, son of Malcolm (Calum Garabost) and Catherine (Mackenzie) MacLeod of Marsboro, Vt. They lived in Granvilleville, Vt., until 1932, when they purchased a farm in East Brookfield, Vt.

Her husband died Oct. 31, 1942. After her husband's death she was employed at the former Barre City Hospital; in more recent years she had been employed at the Home for the Aged in Salem, Mass., as long as her health permitted; since then she made her home with her youngest daughter, Donelda, Mrs. Gayland Dickinson, Jamestown, R.I.

She was a member of the First Presbyterian Church, Granvilleville, Vt., where she and her husband had served many years as Sec'y-Treas. of the Church; she was also a member of the Ladies Aid and Women's Missionary Society of that church. She was a member and Past Matron of Charity Chapter 57 O.E.S. of Williamstown, Vt.

She leaves three daughters: Catherine, Mrs. Thomas McCall, Quincy, Mass.; Helen, Mrs. Ronald Anderson, Albany, N.Y.; Donelda, Mrs. Gayland Dickinson, Jamestown, R.I., seven grandchildren, a sister, Mrs. Walter, J. Weir of CP Rail University.

All good railways have basically the same equipment. But we want to set something straight. It takes people to run a great railway. People like Paul Bissonnette, one of our Marketing and Sales Representatives. That's why at CP Rail, we have our own little university. Our curriculum includes 30 different courses. Paul has taken almost all of them. One Marketing and Sales course is a 3-week session with tests each day. Our courses cover every aspect of the freight transportation business. We make extensive use of video tape recording equipment as well as the most modern audio-visual equipment. Our courses average 8 hours a day and often go up to 12. It isn't exactly kindergarten. At CP Rail we believe people like Paul Bissonnette are the key to a successful operation. People who study freight as a science, to meet your transportation needs. If you're planning on shipping something somewhere, our people are professionally trained to help. Call your District Manager: Jean Tessier at 563-3220 and see.

Champlain action

LENNOXVILLE (BP) — Three Champlain Regional College intercollegiate squads went into action over the weekend, winning two of their encounters.

The men's and women's basketball teams faced the St. Lawrence campus of Champlain, coming out on top of both, while the men's soccer team were edged out by Sherbrooke CEGEP.

Lennoxville's contingent nipped their male opponents 62-59, coming back from a half-time deficit. Charlie Patterson scored 31 points for the locals, while Bob Copping and Bob Ross also had good games.

The women outscored the Quebec City mentors by a 43-31 margin. Maureen Hallam netted 15 points for Lennoxville, while Diane Mullins sunk eight points.

Karen Cook and Susan Desautels each had six points in the game.

The locals really dominated the first half, having a commanding 28-6 lead at half-time. A good effort by Quebec was made to fight back and end up with only a few points behind.

In men's soccer play, Sherbrooke CEGEP squeezed by the CRC squad for a tight 2-1 victory. Peter George scored the single Champlain tally.

Edwards retreats

DETROIT (AP) — The threat of being upstaged by a rookie apparently has caused Detroit Red Wings' goalie Roy Edwards to go into seclusion.

The Red Wings announced Monday that Edwards has been granted a leave of absence by the National Hockey League club.

The 36-year-old veteran of 15 seasons in professional hockey told the club he wanted to have some time to "think things over," team spokesmen said.

Edwards was lured out of retirement by Red Wings' general manager Ned Harkness the day before last season opened. He turned in an outstanding 52-game performance, allowing an average of 2.63 goals a game and tying for the league shutout lead with six.

But this season he has been playing in the shadow of rookie Doug Grant, the sensational goalie who was last season's Player of the Year in the American Hockey League. He played college hockey in Newfoundland.

The Red Wings released a statement quoting Edwards as saying:

"I have to consider my family and what they have to sacrifice when I'm playing hockey. It was easier when the girls were small (the Edwards have two small daughters). Now it means uprooting them from school for a part of each school year."

"The extensive travelling keeps me away from them a good part of the time, too."

"There are many things to consider. All in all, I'm starting to feel it's time to hang 'em up."

Detroit called up Terry Richardson from their Virginia farm club in the American Hockey League to replace Edwards.

Numerous records set during series

NEW YORK (AP) — Eight individual and 13 team records were set during the 1973 World Series between the Oakland Athletics and New York Mets, with Oakland relief pitcher Darold Knowles establishing four of the marks.

Knowles set a record for most games by a pitcher in one series, pitching in all seven games for the A's. The seven games were also a record for most games at a fielding position by a pitcher and for most consecutive games by a pitcher in one series.

He also set a record for most World Series saves, lifetime, four. Don Hahn and Jerry Grote of the New York Mets set two records apiece.

Hahn set a record for most at-bats in one game, coming to the plate seven times in the second game of the series Oct. 14. That was the game won by the Mets 10-7 in 12 innings. The seven times at bat were also a record for an extra-inning game.

Grote had 71 chances in the field, most for a catcher in one series. He recorded 67 put outs, also a record for a catcher.

Gene Tenace of Oakland tied a record set by Babe Ruth by drawing 11 walks in the series. Last year, Tenace tied another of Ruth's records, slugging four home runs in the 1972 series against Cincinnati.

Reggie Jackson of Oakland and Rusty Staub of New York tied the World Series record for most hits in a game, four. Jackson had four hits in the 12-inning second game, while Staub—playing despite a torn right shoulder—rapped out four hits in Game No. 4.

In addition to the 21 records set, 16 individual records and 10 team records were tied.

Angels, Brewers trade

ANAHEIM (AP) — California Angels announced Monday that pitcher Clyde Wright has been traded to Milwaukee Brewers in a 10-player deal that brings Brewers catcher Elie Rodriguez to the Angels.

"We had to have a catcher, and Rodriguez is a good one," said Angels general manager Harry Dalton.

Other Angels going to Milwaukee are veteran relief pitcher Steve Barber, outfielder Ken Berry, catcher Art Kusnyer and a player to be announced later.

The Brewers reciprocated with pitchers Skip Lockwood and Gary Ryerson plus outfielders Ollie Brown and Joe Lahoud.

"We have given up some age for younger players, which should help our building process," Dalton said.

Wright, 30, holds the Angels' pitching records for victories (87), games pitched (266), games completed (51), games started (189) and innings pitched (1,404). His 22-12 mark in 1970 was also a club record. Wright slipped to an 11-19 and 3.68 earned run average mark in 1973.

Rodriguez, 27, had a .269 batting average this year, with no home runs but 31 runs batted in. He led the Brewers last year with a .285 average. He has been on two all-star teams—1969 and 1972—but he didn't play in either game.

Kicking duel indecisive

Broncos surprise, tie Raiders

DENVER (AP) — Denver Broncos, who have died by the field goal twice this season, learned to live with it Monday night as the Jim Turner-George Blanda kicking duel ended in a standoff.

Turner's third field goal of the second half, a 35-yarder with three seconds to play, enabled Denver to salvage a 23-23 tie with the favored Oakland Raiders in a National Football League game.

Blanda, 46, also had three successful boots, and his final one, from 49 yards out with 36 seconds left, appeared to have won it for the Raiders.

Denver had lost to San Francisco 36-34 and to Kansas City 16-14 earlier this season on fourth-quarter field goals by the opposition. It looked like more of the same until Charley Johnson moved the Broncos 34 yards on three plays to the Raider 28-yard line, setting up Turner's final kick.

"You can't take anything away from George's kick," Turner said, "but as soon as he hit it we felt we could get it right back."

The deadlock dropped the Raiders into a first-place tie with Kansas City in the American Conference's Western Division. Both clubs have 3-2-1 records. Denver stayed in contention with a 2-3-1 mark.

"We still haven't quite turned the corner, but we're right at the corner," said coach John Ralston, whose Denver team never has finished above .500 in its 14-year history. "Tonight's game had to be uplifting at this time."

"We developed poise and confidence by coming back, first down 20-17 then down 23-20."

Battleship Kelly not launched...yet

By AL COLLETTI

NEW YORK (CP) — St. Louis Blues were about to launch Battleship Kelly when the time was right. But he didn't throw a punch.

The Blues had won only once in New York in seven National Hockey League seasons, and thought a little muscle at the right time just might shake up the team enough to take New York Rangers.

John Robert Kelly, a 27-year-old rookie with the Blues, has muscle, lots of it. He's a fill-in who rides shotgun on any line that may be going soft.

Nobody can say where Kelly got his nickname, but the club says it is appropriate.

"He just seems to get into fights," said a St. Louis executive.

RANGERS STILL WIN

Ranger coach Larry Popein said smart players avoid fights, and to prove his point New York blanked St. Louis 4-0 Oct. 17.

Battleship was as puncheon as his team. But he did display a nifty pair of elbows.

Muscle power worked for New York Golden Blades at the World Hockey Association. They brought up three players who can hit and won their first game of the season Sunday.

One of them, Ted Scharf, didn't last a half-game. But he won three fights, drew three majors and was thrown out of the game.

"If I acted the same way on the street, I'd be in jail," Scharf said after the Blades beat Quebec 4-3. "The guys told me after the second fight to just leave my gloves at the penalty box and save time. I seemed to give the club a lift."

BLADES NEED HELP

It needs it. The club was so broke the WHA took over the franchise. Managing director Jerry Delise said he had to lay out $2,000 of his own for meal money.

He brought up Scharf, Butch Barber and Craig Reichmuth from the Syracuse farm.

Battleship Kelly is older than most rookies after spending five seasons in the minors. He joined some illustrious hostiles on the Blues this season.

For company, he has Steve Durabano and Bob and Barclay Plager.

Barclay says willingness to fight is more important than winning. Otherwise, "everyone will be taking a shot at you."

STARTED ON STREET

Bob Plager admits he was a street brawler at 17 and fought on the ice everywhere from Quebec to Vancouver.

Battleship Kelly, six-foot-two and 185 pounds, is a left winger who scored 27 goals for Rochester last season and led the American Hockey League in penalties with 206 minutes.

Born in Thunder Bay, Ont., his main claim to success so far appears to be two decisions he holds over the NHL's most penalized player, Dave Schultz of Philadelphia Flyers. They clashed in a pre-season game.

Blonde Bob Nystrom of New

After safety Bill Thompson raced 80 yards with an Oakland fumble in the first quarter, Denver had to bounce back from a 13-7 deficit—as Blanda kicked two field goals and Mike Siani hauled in a scoring pass from Ken Stabler in the second quarter. The touchdown play covered 80 yards.

PASSES RIDDLE DEFENCE

Stabler and wide receiver Fred Biletnikoff picked the Bronco zone defence to pieces. Stabler hit on 16 of 24 passes for 313 yards and two touchdowns, and Biletnikoff caught eight of them for 116 yards.

"Biletnikoff is fantastic," Ralston said. "We tried all week to practice defending him, but he came up with moves tonight that we hadn't seen before. He's a great one."

Despite a lopsided Raider edge in the final statistics, in which Oakland held a 417-216 advantage in total yards, neither team appeared to take control of the contest. Three Raider fumbles kept giving the Broncos new life, and Denver turned the trio of turnovers into a touchdown and two field goals.

"Denver showed a lot of poise," said Oakland coach John Madden said. "They picked up our fumbles and turned them into points. When you have all those turnovers you can't expect to win."

Centre Jim Otto started his 118th consecutive game for the Raiders to tie the NFL mark for uninterrupted appearances. The mark, also shared by Blanda, was set by Forrest Gregg, formerly with Green Bay Packers.

York Islanders is another player who figures his fists will help him make it in the NHL.

Nystrom, 6-foot-1 and 195 pounds, and Gary Howatt, only 5-9 and 170, came to the Islanders from New Haven late last season.

Two weeks ago, Nystrom roughed up Brad Park of the Rangers.

"I just wanted to show him I wouldn't back down," Nystrom said.

Nystrom scored his first NHL goal against Chicago Black Hawks Sunday night in a 4-4 tie.

Bob was born in Stockholm, but his family moved to Hinton, Alta., when he was four. It's a paper mill town and "it had a good old stink about it," Nystrom recalls.

Later the family moved to Kamloops, B.C. One of Nystrom's team-mates, Bert Marshall, also is from Kamloops and still operates a hockey school there in the off-season.

Battleship Kelly will be in action tonight when the Blues play host to Boston Bruins in one of three games. Other games have Minnesota North Stars at Toronto Maple Leafs and Atlanta Flames at Vancouver Canucks.

Baseball in Japan?

NEW YORK (AP) — It is October, 1984. The opening game of the World Series matches the Peking Reds and the New York Yankees.

Preposterous? Not at all, says baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Kuhn says he expects more expansion in the next few years, and he'd like to see Japanese teams in the majors now.

"It would certainly be possible to have a Pacific League, with American teams from the West Coast and Honolulu; Japanese teams like Tokyo and Osaka and perhaps Taiwan and Manila."

"And can Peking be far behind?" the commissioner asked, only half in jest, in an interview Monday.

With improved relations between the West and China and with air travel speeds increasing all the time, there is no reason why athletic teams from the Orient could not enter into regular competition with Western Hemisphere teams.

TORONTO HIGH ON LIST
Kuhn said baseball is on the verge of expansion. He mentioned such cities as Toronto, Seattle, New Orleans and Mexico City as prime candidates.

"We'd like to be playing in Mexico City and Toronto right now. There is no reason why not."

Travel is virtually no problem. The flying time from Seattle to Tokyo is less than six hours. West Coast major league teams already are flying more than five hours to get to the East Coast.

Japanese baseball is well developed and well supported. A number of American ex-major leaguers are playing for Japanese teams. As far as is known, the sport has not been introduced in China, but Taiwan has an extensive program, and the Taiwan entry in the Little League World Series has won two straight titles.

Kuhn sees the possibility of three major leagues, the Pacific League plus two others.

A number of United States cities, including New Orleans and Seattle, are building domed stadiums. The majors have not expanded since 1969 and several cities are clamoring for franchises.

College football's star '73 performer

SASKATOON (CP) — College football fans here have no doubt who is going to be the next winner of the Hec Creighton Trophy, presented each year to the outstanding college football player.

Their choice is 23-year-old Dave Pickett, quarterback for University of Saskatchewan Huskies and holder of every game, season and career passing record at the university.

"If he's not the best college quarterback in Canada, there's no justice," says University of Alberta coach Jim Donlevy.

Donlevy gave that assessment after a game against Saskatchewan during which Pickett completed 30 of 43 pass attempts for a total 541 yards gained through the air. Saskatchewan won 40-38.

Before this season, Saskatchewan had little success against Western Intercollegiate Football League teams like Alberta, whose Golden Bears are defending national champions.

But for four weeks running the unbeaten Huskies have been rated No. 1 team in the country.

Huskies have beaten both Alberta and Manitoba—another former college bowl winner—with fourth-quarter comebacks directed by Pickett.

Whalers win

BOSTON (CP) — New England Whalers took over sole possession of first place in the Eastern Division of the World Hockey Association with a 4-1 win Monday night over New York Golden Blades.

The Whalers, winning their fifth game against three defeats and a tie, scored two unanswered goals in each of the first and second periods. They now have 11 points, two more than the idle Cleveland Crusaders.

It was New York's fifth defeat in eight starts.

Goalie Joe Junkin of New York was weak on long shots as three goals beat him from a distance of more than 30 feet.

Hugh Harris opened the scoring with a 35-foot drive and Paul Hurley made it 2-0 with a goal from 80 feet away. Second-period goals by Brad Selwood, 45 feet, and John French, on a power play, completed New England's scoring.

Mike Laughton scored for the Blades on a breakaway at 6:19 of the third to break Al Smith's shutout bid. The Whalers outshot the visitors 43-30.
