Plane crash kills three

Ottawa bomb kills woman

OTTAWA (CP) — A St. Jean Baptiste Day bomb blast ripped a gaping hole in a defence department building, killing one woman and injuring three other persons Wednesday.

Holiday calm in Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — For the first time in three years, Montreal's annual St. Jean Baptiste parade ended without violence Wednesday.

The traditional parade celebrating the feast day of French-Canada's patron saint was marked by violent clashes between police and demonstrators the last two years.

Youths who joined the end of the parade caught the holiday atmosphere of a hot, cloudless June 24 as they chanted "Quebec aux Quebecois" — Quebec for Quebecers — and sang the hit parade song "Quebecois-Nous sommes des Quebecois" — Quebecers-We are Quebecers.

When the parade started at 3 p.m. there were as many as five policemen at intersections, but for most of the 2½-mile route through the city's east end police did not show their strength. If any riot-equipped squads were available they did not show themselves.

Police estimated 25,000 to 30,000 spectators lined the route from Laurier Park down St. Denis Street to Place Viger in Old Montreal.

They said 2,000 to 3,000 young people joined the end of the parade and this swelled to 5,000 or 6,000, stretched over about 15 blocks, as the parade neared Old Montreal.

Along the route, a phalanx of seven police motorcycles separated the young marchers from the rear of the parade. The police were followed by a blue panel truck belonging to Reggie Chartrand's militant Chevaliers de l'Indépendance — Knights of Independence.

Dead is Mrs. Jeanne D'Arc St. Germain, 50, a communicator operator in the telecommunications section at defence headquarters.

Cpl. H. B. Vallance, 33, was taken to military hospital with lacerations. Pte. G. I. Swaffield, 23, was treated at the hospital for shock and later released.

Claude Giroux, 33, of Hull, Que., a janitor in the building, was treated at Ottawa General Hospital for shock and released.

City police assigned the entire 25-man detective section to the case immediately after the 6:26 a.m. explosion but no arrests had been made late Wednesday. The blast came one minute after an anonymous caller telephoned an Ottawa radio station to say an explosion was imminent.

Police gave out no information on the line the investigations were taking.

The fact that the blast came on the feast day of the patron saint of Quebec and that a federal building was the target led to immediate speculation that the explosion was the work of separatists or Quebec nationalist terrorists.

PLANTED NEAR WINDOW

The bomb, believed to contain perhaps a dozen sticks of dynamite, was planted outside a ground-floor window of the telecommunications room. Mrs. St. Germain, due to finish her shift in another hour, was working inside.

The building, a "temporary" frame structure built during the Second World War, is located in the heart of the downtown area at the corner of Lisgar and Cartier streets.

A rash of telephoned bomb threats followed the explosion but police were unable to find anything after evacuating the Beacon Arms Hotel, a main Dominion Bureau of Statistics building and three other government office buildings.

CHARRED SKELETON OF FATAL PLANE LIES BEFORE THE HOUSE

SHERBROOKE — The quiet of the St. Jean Baptiste holiday was shattered here yesterday when a small single-engine private plane hit a high voltage wire in nearby Rock Forest and crashed into the side of a house killing three persons.

Dead are the pilot of the pontoon-equipped plane, a woman passenger and an elderly man who was sitting on the veranda of the house when the plane struck and flipped over.

Police identified the victims as Normand Blanchet, 31, of Rock Forest, the owner and pilot of the plane, Miss Lizette Doucet, 23, of Magog, a passenger in the aircraft, and Henri Bedard, 75, also of Rock Forest who died of multiple injuries in St. Vincent de Paul Hospital two hours after he was admitted in critical condition.

A fourth person involved in the accident, 79-year-old Godias Saulnier of Rock Forest, who was also sitting on the veranda at the time of impact, was reported in satisfactory condition today. A hospital spokesman said he is suffering from leg injuries.

The accident occurred at about 8:15 p.m. yesterday evening, just a few minutes after the aircraft had left the shores of Little Lake Magog where the plane's occupants had spent the day.

Eyewitnesses said the plane came down over the village flying very low when it stumbled over a high-voltage wire and crashed into the veranda of the white two-storey house located just next door to the brown brick bungalow where Mr. Blanchet lived along with his family.

Fire broke out immediately in the plane when the fuel tanks exploded and police said both occupants of the aircraft were burned to death.

Mrs. Godias Saulnier, who was sitting alone inside the house at the time of impact, told The Record that at first she thought a bomb had gone off near the house.

"I heard a terrible noise outside on the veranda," the woman in her mid-70s said. "Then I looked out the window and saw the plane on fire."

"It was a terrible sight to see," she added.

Minutes after the crash curious townspeople surged to the site of the accident. Within half an hour at least a thousand persons, mostly from Sherbrooke, were also drawn to the scene after news of the crash had spread.

With the aircraft still smouldering and the odor of burnt flesh hanging in the evening air, the multitudes thronged around the house for a closer view of the spectacle.

A nearby lunch car dealt furiously in toasted hot dogs and coffee as the crowd swelled.

At one point cars were backed up for more than a mile as many people abandoned their vehicles on the road and hurried to the scene of the crash on foot.

Quebec Provincial Police had to mobilize most of its forces in the area just to look after traffic and to keep bystanders away from the burning plane.

A police spokesman said later in the evening that a department of transport inquiry will likely be launched into the accident.

Maharaja dies after playing polo contest

CIRENCESTER, England (AP) — The Maharajah of Jaipur, reputedly one of the world's richest men, collapsed and died Wednesday after taking part in a polo match. He was 58.

The Maharajah, who maintained seven palaces in Jaipur, was stricken during halftime of the polo match and rushed to hospital. He was declared dead on arrival.

He had been a polo player of international standing since 1933 when he brought to England and Indian team that won every tournament it entered.

His team also won the gold cup at Deauville, France, in 1957.

and the London Times describe him in an obituary as "one of the best polo players of his generation." The maharajah played polo several times with Prince Philip.

As the ruler of Jaipur since 1931 and the head of the Kachawa clan of Rajputs, the maharajah was entitled to a permanent salute of 17 guns here and 19 guns abroad.

A leading figure in Indian politics, the maharajah was appointed in 1965 as India's first resident ambassador in Spain.

He married three times and is survived by four sons and a daughter.

Senate repeals Tonkin resolution

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — The Senate voted Wednesday to repeal the controversial Tonkin Gulf resolution used by former president Johnson as authority for sending more than 500,000 American troops to Vietnam.

The repeal measure, attached as rider to a military financing bill, received behind-the-scenes approval from the Nixon administration and the vote was 81-10.

The House of Representatives is also expected to approve repeal of the 1964 resolution, and President Nixon is expected to signify his support by signing the Military Sales Act into law when it emerges from Congress, probably late next month.

The Senate vote resulted from a surprise move by administration supporters to pre-empt a debate, now six weeks old, on attempts to require the president to seek advance congressional approval for any future American military involvement in Cambodia.

The administration has told members of Congress it does not rely on the Tonkin Gulf resolution as authority for its Vietnam policy because it is withdrawing troops and not increasing the American presence.

The repeal amendment was introduced Monday by Senator Robert J. Dole (Rep. Kan.), a leading administration supporter.

Senator J. William Fulbright, chairman of the foreign relations committee, who backs repeal, and Senator John Stennis, chairman of the armed services committee, who opposes it, unsuccessfully argued that such an important foreign policy matter should be taken up in full-scale debate later this year in the form of a resolution.

Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said he plans to have the Senate take up the repeal resolution anyway, "just to make sure."

Congress hurriedly passed the Tonkin Gulf resolution in August, 1964.

No Definite Proof Of Menopausal Arthritis

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Q—Is there such a condition as menopausal arthritis? Will it clear up after the menopause?

A—Although this condition has been described in medical literature, it has never been proved that the arthritis was caused by the change. Treatment with estrogens neither prevents nor benefits it and it does not clear up after the menopause.

Q—My uterus was removed eight months ago. Since then, I have taken female hormones. Now I have begun to have a heavy growth of hair on my face. Is this part of the surgical menopause?

A—Excessive hair growth on the face is due chiefly to hereditary factors. But, because it so often accompanies the menopause, some authorities believe, without much in the way of solid proof, that this is a factor.

Q—Is it true that the taking of medicines for the relief of the discomforts of the menopause will prolong it? Is the change always accompanied by a gain in weight, indifference to marital relations and general despondency?

A—Hormones and other drugs taken for menopa-symptoms will neither shorten nor lengthen the change. A gain in weight at this time is more likely to be the result of decreased physical activity without a reduction in food intake. In many, but not all, women, the wish for marital relations increases as the menopause progresses, especially if fear of pregnancy had formerly imposed restraint. General despondency has many causes, chief among which is aging. But the menopause gets blamed for just about everything.

Witnesses to conduct room campaign for convention

SHERBROOKE — "The largest door-to-door room hunt in Sherbrooke is now under way."

With these words, Harris Charland, convention director of Jehovah's Witnesses, described the scope of the work to be done by local Witnesses in the weeks to come.

Sherbrooke is presently the point of interest for Jehovah's Witnesses in Quebec Province. More than 3,000 delegates are expected there from August 6th to the 9th for their district convention to be held at the Palais des Sports.

Jean-Guy Tremblay, rooming director for this convention, did not minimize the work involved in organizing such an event.

Among other things he said, "Bringing 3,000 people to Sherbrooke creates an accommodations need. Obviously the commercial facilities will not be sufficient for our needs. We would like to call on the people of Sherbrooke to open their homes and take in these Christians."

"We believe that hospitality, a quality characteristic of the early Christians, is not obsolete." According to Mr. Tremblay, "Requests for rooms have already arrived from different parts of Quebec as well as from Ontario and the United States."

Mr. Charland mentioned that the purpose of this four-day gathering, which has as its theme "Men of Goodwill Assembly", is particularly appropriate for our times.

"While we live in a divided, apathetic world with its many problems, the Bible helps us to have an optimistic outlook for a solution."

"This convention will provide Bible training for each member of the family," he explained.

This will be the first convention of this kind to be held in Sherbrooke by Jehovah's Witnesses. All sessions are free and the public is invited to attend.

At Stanstead College

Old boys hold reunion

STANSTEAD — The second annual Day students re-union of Stanstead College took place here Saturday afternoon with registrations, in charge of Mrs. Alfred Middleton and the Alumni secretary, Mrs. D. W. Pringley, who also collected the Alumni dues.

A short program was held in the Amaran gymnasium. The alumni president, Russell French was emcee and welcomed the group, an encouraging number considering the many conflicting events in the communities the same day.

Mr. French gave an outline of the past year's activities highlighted by the awarding of a scholarship. Eric Webster, chairman of the College Board of Trustees, spoke to the assembly about the building program of the past, the construction of the new buildings and the present building campaign underway and future expansion to accommodate some 250 boys as students.

The school headmaster, Raymond Lester, gave a picture of the past, present and future of the school. Of the year 1958 when it was the board's decision to have Stanstead College cease to be co-ed and have it a completely male residence with openings for local boys to Grade 12, of the concern and hurt feelings of some of the area people, but of the necessity to have Stanstead become a nationally recognized institution of learning.

He took a look at plans for the future, 10 to 12 years from now, with Stanstead College's continued expansion as an independent school.

Lloyd Bliss, a graduate of the college, took the assembly "on a stroll down memory lane" as he mentioned the "old days at Stanstead", the consolidation of the area country one room schools with the college, the students "transported in vehicles" to the days when in 1958 it ceased to be a co-ed school and the students went to Sunnyside school.

Lloyd made reference to many graduates who have made names for themselves in the world by their professions and chosen careers, and said he is sure this trend will continue.

He recalled teachers who have taught at Stanstead, the depression and the war years and some of the boys who enlisted and gave their all for the freedom of our country.

His address brought back memories to many of their youth. There were former students there from several decades, Norman Flint, Lennoxville, a student here from 1898 until his graduation; Ralph Libby, now of Hamilton, Ont., 1907-10 and others through to 1958.

Mr. Bliss was introduced by Mrs. Ivy Hatch and thanked by Mr. French.

A tour of the buildings was taken by many and all found a real source of interest in the display in the dining room from the college archives, records of the years gone by.

annual AMA convention. Dr. Bornemeier announced he has asked the AMA board of trustees to study the residency programs for doctors.

He said some new national group might grant "a certificate of specialty" in, perhaps, internal medicine after the person works in a community for a time.

"The trainee," Dr. Bornemeier said, "would certainly develop an expertise for care of the patient outside of the hospital, rather than be trained almost exclusively to become expert in the care of hospitalized patients. He would be learning what it is that makes people sick, not just how to make them well."

Manitoba government squeezes auto insurance bill through

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba's New Democratic Party government twice needed the speaker's vote Wednesday to get its controversial automobile insurance bill through second reading in the legislature.

Speaker Ben Hanuschak, an NDP MLA, broke deadlocks both on second reading of the bill and on an earlier Conservative motion to delay reading for a six-month period.

The vote on second reading was 28 to 27 in favor of the bill, with 26 New Democrats, Liberal Democrat Larry Desjardins and Mr. Hanuschak voting with the government.

Twenty-two conservatives, three Liberals and the single Social Credit and independent MLAs voted against.

One Liberal was absent, but he was paired with a government back-bencher who also did not vote.

Earlier Wednesday the Conservative amendment which would have effectively killed the bill was defeated 29 to 28, with a similar vote division with the exception of the paired members.

In casting the decisive votes, Mr. Hanuschak said he was doing so to "leave the house another opportunity of deciding the question."

The two votes Wednesday were the toughest legislature hurdles so far for Premier Ed Schreyer's administration which came to power almost a year ago to the day, June 25.

ONE INJURED — A two-car collision Tuesday afternoon at the corner of London and Portland St., sent one man to hospital with injuries. New AMA president offers double barreled answer

CHICAGO (AP) — The new president of the American Medical Association offered a radical and immediate solution Wednesday for the shortage of doctors: Do away with training doctors in hospitals and put them to work in the community.

Dr. Walter C. Bornemeier, a Chicago surgeon, said too many doctors are being trained as specialists and that it should take a maximum of six years to go from high school to the MD degree.

"In some fields," Dr. Bornemeier said, "we definitely are oversupplied. General surgery is oversupplied, yet there seems to be no reduction in the number of general surgery residences that are created."

The 69-year-old surgeon's ideas, which run counter to medical tradition, were presented in an address to the

Changing the scenery

All it takes is a little will power to kick the habit, as any ex-smoker can tell you and probably has — again and again.

But other factors can help, too. For many who have stopped smoking, a change of scene or break from the daily routine was the thing which, combined with determination, helped them over the first high hurdle.

Like a Caribbean cruise, for instance?

This fall, would-be ex-smokers will participate in just such an experiment, sponsored by the Institute for New Motivations. The Institute, headquartered in New York, is a unique service dedicated to the proposition that the creation of special environments can help individuals deal with a variety of personal problems. Initial emphasis will be directed to the smoking habit.

The program is built around Caribbean cruises, lasting about two weeks. The first two cruises will leave New York during September and November aboard a chartered 20,000-ton liner.

Cigarettes will not be available on the ship, say Institute officials and all passengers and ship's personnel are pledged not to smoke during the cruises.

Self-help will be stressed, but a number of professionally developed techniques will be available to help passengers, including lectures, group discussions and self-hypnosis.

A team of psychoanalysts, psychologists and other Institute personnel will also be there to lean on.

Even if some passengers do not reach their final destination, freedom from the smoking habit, just trying to get there will be half the fun.

Cutting mail delivery

The recurring delays in the movement of Canadian mail raises in some quarters the question as to whether daily home-mail delivery is a necessity.

For many people the answer will be no. Some might even find it a welcome relief, for example, to receive bills once a week only, instead of the daily diet of bad news that upsets digestion and intrudes on hours of relaxation. Even those who want their mail daily, would find little hardship involved in picking it up at a box at a local sub-station, much as people in the smaller communities pick up their letters once or twice a week.

Perhaps the greatest sufferers would be the neighborhood dogs who would suffer by the absence of the mail man as their favorite target for exercising their vocal chords.

Intransigence on the part of the postal workers will not prevent change. During the last strike, business found other ways of distributing material needed for its operation and the trend is increasing during the present period of rotating strikes.

Canadians have learned to live without Saturday deliveries and could easily learn to live without any deliveries at all if they could pick up their letters themselves.

Most business firms now pick up their mail at the post offices, individuals could easily do the same.

Mail walks are becoming less and less necessary as private distributing companies and electronic transmission of communications take over a larger share of the market.

Moderation in demands might stall off the inevitable, but change will come. It is incumbent on the post office, as an employer, to make sure that it comes with a minimum of hardship and disruption to the employees.

But digging one's heels in against progress will have no more effect than it did at the start of the industrial revolution.

"Latest enemy manoeuvres in Vietnam, Cambodia or the Senate . . .?"

THE ART BUCHWALD COLUMN

Rice: the ultimate weapon

WASHINGTON — Left-wingers and limousine liberals have been quibbling about the success of our incursion into Cambodia. While there has been some question as to how many weapons we captured and how many sanctuaries we wiped out, there is absolutely no question that we captured the largest rice supply dump in Southeast Asia.

Pictures of this rice have been shown on television and distributed to the press. According to intelligence reports, the invasion of Cambodia was worth it for the rice alone.

The Administration has claimed to have seized 51 million pounds of rice, which is the equivalent of 102 million cups of rice, which breaks down to 6,721,000,000 billion tablespoonfuls, which was enough to make rice pudding for every man, woman and child in the Viet Cong.

The problem, now that we have captured the rice, is what to do with it. We can't leave it in Cambodia because we have to pull out on June 30, and the rice might wind up on the black market. Trucking it back to Vietnam has been suggested, but that could get the Mekong Delta Rice Growers Assn. up in arms, particularly since Cambodia grows a better grade of rice than Vietnam.

American GIs hate rice, so there is no sense trying to make it part of their diet. And if we give the rice to the Lon Nol government it may be embarrassing, because rumor has it he sold the Viet Cong the rice in the first place.

A solution to the problem has been suggested by a Los Angeles lawyer named Arthur L. Martin, who studied the subject at Rice University in Houston, Tex.

Martin discovered that rice expands four times its size when it is cooked. He believes that the rice we captured in Cambodia should be dropped into Haiphong Harbor, where it would swell in the warm waters and block the harbor.

Bombing Haiphong Harbor with rice would not be considered an act of war, because the U.S. Air Force could claim it had dropped the rice on a mercy mission to Laos and had missed its target.

No ships could get in and out of the harbor once it was clogged with Cambodian rice. Hanoi would scream and shout in Paris, but international law would be on our side. We could prove that every grain of rice we dropped in the harbor came from a Cambodian Communist sanctuary.

Martin estimates it would take 13 months to dredge the Haiphong Harbor of rice, and by that time, if the Church-Cooper amendment isn't passed, we could go back into Cambodia and find more rice to drop in the harbor.

While the Pentagon refused to comment officially on the Martin Haiphong Saturated Rice Bombing Plan, one general with the Joint Chiefs or Staff told me "We're always ready to try anything."

DOUGLAS FISHER

The data-processing dilemma

Eric Kierans looked unusually wild-eyed, even distraught, during the Commons question period.

Afterwards he held a press briefing on a brand new 86-page paper he unveiled for all Canada. Don't choke on the title: Participation By Telecommunications Carriers in Public Data Processing. The minister of communications seemed rational though less definitive or cocksure than normal.

Some of us (certainly, myself) were prepared for a snow job; another grandiose projection into the science fiction future; a La Telesat (the communications satellite). It wasn't that kind of a conference. It isn't that kind of a paper. Whatever it is, the exercise represents a new procedure in decision-making and a new dilemma for political parties.

The initial statement of the policy problem can be summarized thus: We have a number of utilities in the telecommunications field (CN-CP, Bell, Alberta Telephone, etc.) which are regulated by Federal agencies, particularly with regard to rates and charges; the computer age is upon us and we have a number of firms which supply computers for various purposes (e.g. inventory controls, billing of customers) to government, industry, and universities; most of these firms set up the service and often keep it going.

What is to be the future of the big telecommunications carriers? Are they to get into the computer service? If they are encouraged to do so, what does it do to the competition and the variety of small firms which are already in the field?

The paper sets out three basic questions concerning carriers:

Should communications common carriers be permitted to provide public data-processing services or should they be barred from the field?

If these carriers are permitted entry to the data-processing business should they be permitted only the use of their computer hardware or should they be able to provide a full range of client services too; should such services be tariffed (i.e., rates set by government); should the carriers be required to provide the services through a separate corporate affiliate or merely through another division of the main company?

Should the data-processing firms be permitted to jump out from their service role into a carrier role? If so, would the big carriers be required to interconnect these new carriers with their own networks of lines?

If you've come this far with me you are as aware as I am that we (you and me and most people) don't know much about any of this. Enter the new procedure.

After raising questions like the ones above and many more (e.g., how to keep up with the Yanks) the paper does not lead to the Government's policy decision. Instead we get a summary of basic policy options and possible consequences (good and bad) of letting the big common carriers loose in the data-processing field.

The summary doesn't seem to follow the logic of the arguments, but it leads toward acceptance of the carriers as purveyors of computers and their services.

The next part gets more difficult because it follows the logic and presents five "basically different approaches" which can be taken by the Government.

Therefore, as a political problem posed to the public, to the corporate interests and to Parliament there is one major choice regarding the future role of giants such as Bell and CN-CP in the computer field; then assuming this role is to be extended there are five different policy choices.

All this needs to be done before the end of 1970. Why the rush? We're falling behind. Over on the data-processing side (all the small firms are there) concern over advent of the big utilities is playing havoc with investment and deterring expansion. Firms are collapsing all over the place.

Why doesn't the Government simply proclaim what is best and legislate it into reality? It hasn't reached a conclusion as to what is the best.

It wants the public to understand the problem (i.e., we must have an educational period) because the issues are so vital for the future and involve so much money. By 1980 it is likely that the data-processing business as a whole will be the third biggest in the nation.

The parliamentary committee is to read the paper, listen to representations, then recommend what the choices should be. I asked Mr. Kierans what the Liberal Party's policy was on such a major policy issue. It hasn't any. Neither has any of the other parties. Why not?

Because it is a highly complex, newly-emerging subject. Literally billions are at stake; expenditures which make the Seaway or the Arrow look like peanuts.

Is this Kierans' toss to the public a responsible act?

We won't really know until the debate develops. In relationship to the whole political system this is a possible means of opening up (what are normally) bureaucratic decisions on policy, at least to that part of the public with an interest or which chooses to develop one.

At the same time it underlines how ineffective, even useless, are political parties in keeping up with, let alone giving leadership in, the choices facing a technological society.

I've drawn one conclusion from the paper. Each one of us in dozens of ways is going to be increasingly affected by the growth of data processing. The corporate organization of this industry shall influence much of our lives. I'd be distraught if I had to make the choices. Perhaps it was a like reaction which made Mr. Kierans seem not his usual self.

MATTER OF FACT JOSEPH ALSOP

WASHINGTON — As a true sign of the times, there has been nothing to match the bill newly introduced by the strangest group of sponsors ever to put their names on a single piece of legislation — for the Republicans, Sen. Roman Hruska and Rep. William McCulloch, and for the Democrats, Sen. Philip Hart and Rep. Hale Boggs.

The two senators, the ultraconservative Hruska of Nebraska and the ultraliberal Hart of Michigan, make particularly macabre partners. And the bill they have joined in sponsoring, though perhaps unavoidable, is pretty macabre, too.

Until very recently, at any rate, old-fashioned Americans like this reporter would have been hard put to imagine anything more totally repugnant than putting federal marshals on university campuses. Yet that is where the violence-prone New Left has now pushed this country. And that is precisely what the new bill really does.

It puts marshals on the campuses under the guise of giving federal protection to the rights of free speech and peaceable assembly that are guaranteed in the First Amendment. It is undeniable that those rights have been viciously attacked, along with every normal academic freedom, by the New Left storm-troopers in the universities.

The bill is not limited to universities, of course. Yet the troubles on the campuses, and the popular reaction to those troubles, are the real sources of this bill. If Sen. Hart were not anxiously aware of the popular reaction (and perhaps if he were not running for re-election) he would hardly have joined in sponsoring the bill.

It is significant, too, that the real originator of the bill was Rep. McCulloch. No Republican could be further from Hruska than this gentle, good old man, who deserves such enormous credit for the passage of the great Civil Rights Act of 1964. But McCulloch put the new bill together, and then asked the others to be its co-sponsors because they had all served together, under Dr. Milton Eisenhower, on President Johnson's Commission on Violence.

The bill goes pretty far. Any private person, whether student or university administrator, can seek a federal injunction against anyone threatening to abridge the First Amendment rights by violence. Even the favorite New Left tactic of shouting down disliked university speakers and professors would be subject to injunction under this bill.

If the injunction were then defied, of course, the federal marshals would appear; and the federal courts would hand out contempt sentences to anyone found guilty of such defiance. Furthermore, the bill authorizes our iron chancellor, the attorney general, to act preventively. He may seek either temporary or permanent injunctions against "any person or group" he has reason to believe may infringe the First Amendment rights by planned violence.

In the House, finally, the chief fear of the new bill's sponsors is a punitive rider — one such would automatically deprive any university of all federal support when and if its administrators hesitated to seek federal injunctions to prevent on-campus violence.

To such a pass we have been brought, God help us. It is a black sign of the times. Yet it is only one of several. For example, everyone seems to have forgotten the so-called Senate anticrime bill, perhaps because they think it is better forgotten. Yet it should not be forgotten.

To be blunt about it, the anticrime bill is a repellent piece of legislation, bristling with doubtfully constitutional provisions. Yet the bill passed the Senate by the extraordinary vote of 76 to 1. And the liberal Democrats, including Sen. Hart and Sen. Edward Kennedy, held their noses and loudly voted "yea" along with everyone else.

In the House, the oldest Roman of them all, Rep. Emmanuel Celler, then swore he would never let the anticrime bill out of his judiciary Committee. His reason was that no-knock, preventive detention and other provisions in the bill were constitutional outrages. But now the feelings of the House, plus the pleas of House Majority Leader Carl Albert, have worn Manny Celler down.

The bill will finally be reported by the House Judiciary Committee, minus the constitutional outrages. The House will then put back the constitutional outrages, quite possibly adding a few newly invented ones, just for good measure. As one liberal Democrat remarked bitterly to this reporter, "You'd probably get a House majority for interment camps, if they were offered to stop crime on the streets and violence on the campuses."

Yet the feelings of the House, be it noted, never get very far from the feelings of the country!

The PRAYER FOR TODAY FROM The Upper Room

I am reminded of your sincere faith, a faith that dwelt first in your grandmother Lois and your mother Eunice and now, I am sure, dwells in you (II Timothy 1:5, RSV).

PRAYER: May we, dear Lord, maintain in our homes an atmosphere which keeps everyone within its walls conscious of Thy presence. May we strive to transmit to the children in the home a blessed heritage of faith. In the spirit of Christ, who taught us to pray, "Our Father who art in heaven. Amen."

Coaticook plant tops in safety

COATICOOK — A specially-commissioned painting of Chemcell Limited's Coaticook plant was unveiled here Monday by the company's chairman and president, C.S. Malone. The painting, by noted Canadian artist — and Coaticook resident — Stanley Cosgrove R.C.A., was presented to the plant's employees in recognition of their achievement in winning Chemcell's annual safety contest. It will be permanently displayed in the plant's cafeteria.

In unveiling the picture Mr. Malone noted that the unusual nature of the award was designed "To give the employees a permanent memento of their achievement that would have local meaning and significance." Formerly, the president's safety award took the form of a bronze plaque.

Coaticook employees earned the award by establishing an accident frequency rate of zero for the contest year 1969. This record was further enhanced by the fact that the plant had not had a lost-time accident since August of 1966, making a total of 1408 accident-free days as of the date of the presentation. Individual gifts were presented to each plant employee earlier this year.

"Your safety record," Mr. Malone told the employees, "is the best of all Chemcell manufacturing operations and one of the best in the Quebec textile industry. We are now looking forward to what we hope will be your next outstanding achievement — a record of 2 million accident-free man-hours." If no accidents occur before November of this year, the plant will reach this important milestone.

The unveiling ceremony was attended by Senior Officers of Chemcell, as well as Mr. Cosgrove, Georges Vaillancourt, Mayor of Coaticook, and MNA for Stanstead County, Henri Latulippe, Federal M.P. for Compton Riding, and other local dignitaries.

This was the second time the Coaticook plant, which manufactures acetate fabrics, has taken top honors for safety among Chemcell plants. The first award was won in 1964, in competition with 17 other locations in Canada. The contest group in 1969 included 12 Chemcell locations.

Mr. Malone added that Chemcell intends to continue the practice of commissioning paintings by Canadian Artists for use as awards in future annual safety contests.

weekend at beautiful Quebec Lodge on Lake Massawippi.

Synod meets at North Hatley

Quebec Lodge, on beautiful Lake Massawippi in the Eastern Townships, was the site of the 57th session of the Synod of the Diocese of Quebec, June 19-20. Quebec Lodge is about 12 miles from Lennoxville off Route 5 towards the Border.

The session was opened by an Ordination Service at which Clare Scratch was made a deacon prior to his appointment as Chaplain of Bishop's University, Lennoxville. He was sponsored jointly by the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Sherbrooke, the United Church of Canada, and the Anglican Diocese of Quebec. A committee with representatives from the student body, Faculty and the Administration, under the chairmanship of the Dean of Women, Miss G. Evans, has been searching for some time for a suitable candidate, and Mr. Scratch, who will have "as his special care pastoral oversight of the whole student body", will answer an urgent need felt by the young people at the University.

Archbishop Fortier was represented at Synod by the Rev. Father Dandenault and Rev. Father Moisan. Rev. A. B. Lovelace represented the United Church. The joint sponsorship by these three churches is particularly significant at this time of growing desire for unity.

Unity was, in fact, the theme for the 1970 session of Synod. Canon Ralph Latimer and Dr. Robert Craig, the two Commissioners, made a brief presentation and answered questions from the floor.

Reports were heard by the Lord Bishop of Quebec and by others on many aspects of the work of the church, including Social Service, Religious Education in the public schools, the situation of Indians in Quebec, and the increased scope for women working within the Church.

The session was brought to a close by a famine agape, at which a loaf of bread was served, along with half a cup of rice and wine. It is worth remembering at this time that the rice represents a whole day's portion for two people and that, while this food is being served, 600 people in the world will die of starvation.

South Bolton W.I. hold monthly meeting

SOUTH BOLTON — The monthly meeting of the South Bolton Women's Institute was held in the club room, June 3.

Twelve members and visitors were present. Also fourteen members of the Sutton branch were most welcome visitors.

The meeting was opened by the President and all repeated the Collect and sang the Opening Ode.

Roll call was given as many pennies as the size of your shoe. Minutes of the last meeting and Financial report was read and approved.

Program was: bring an antique article and tell its history or what you know about it. Some of the visitors brought items and it was a very interesting program.

Plans made to send a delegate to the Annual Convention at Macdonald College, June 22.

Articles brought in for ditty bags and same to be filled. Get well cards were signed.

A delicious lunch was served and a social hour enjoyed by all. July meeting will be held in the Club Room 1.30 p.m.

Planning board for senior citizens meets at Border Community Centre

ROCK ISLAND — A group of 12 prominent persons from Rock Island, Stanstead and Beebe whom had received a letter from Director, Rev. G. Joyce to act on a planning Board for the Senior Citizens Home at the Border met in the Community Center on Thursday evening, June 11 with 11 present. The 12th was unable to attend because of his business.

Mr. Joyce gave an outline of a communities survey by women's group with phone calls made to 817 homes and three questions asked.

The survey showed the need for such a Home, or residence for the elderly people from the areas. There were 781 who said there is a need, 712 who will contribute financially to a residence and there are already 111 who have made applications for themselves or relatives.

In addition with the residence, the plan is to include a medical clinic to serve everyone who has this need in the area.

E. J. Struthers, Mayor of Stanstead, was named as chairman with a committee of Hugo Lapenna, Mayor of Beebe and Dr. Gilles Bouchard, and Lloyd Bliss, secretary, to take the next step now that the fact has been established of the great need. This committee will approach the Provincial government for assistance, starting through the County member, Georges Vaillancourt, N.L.A., a resident in Coaticook.

Several sites have been mentioned, primarily the Beebe Protestant school which can be purchased for its indebtedness of $23,000 then it would require a few thousand to make it adequate for a residence and clinic. There is a good acreage of land so that this building can be expanded in size in the future.

Thought was also given the Rock Island Catholic school if it should become vacant but there is immediate need for this residence so the latter may not be feasible.

Without a doubt the next step will depend upon the reaction and rulings of the government.

To camp under the stars

Vermont has a place for everyone

Campers vacationing in Vermont can still find a niche of their own under the stars on the shores of Lake Champlain, in a grassy plateau above a winding river or in a pine-scented forest at the foot of gentle hills.

More than 40 private campgrounds offer the beauty of natural surroundings combined with a unique historic heritage and special recreational activities.

Swimming, boating, waterskiing and fishing are all close to camp sites on Grand Isle in Lake Champlain. There, too, the state's earliest history left its imprint. At Isle La Motte, a statue of Samuel de Champlain carved in Barre granite commemorates the passage of the French explorer in 1609. Very close by is the Shrine of St. Anne where Mass was first offered in 1666.

Along the shores near North Hero, beautiful button-shaped stones are a rare find, but a more common treat are the delicious apples and spicy cider from South Hero orchards. The two island villages were named after Vermont patriots Ethan and Ira Allen. A tavern owned by the Allen family, the historic South Hero Inn, still welcomes wayfarers.

Country stores and antique garrets scattered around the Champlain Islands invite leisurely browsing. Community bazaars, church suppers and fairs add to the convivial summer atmosphere of island life.

Across the Sand Bar Bridge lies Burlington, an ivy-covered university town, with theaters, museums and lively night spots. The band concerts and summer sunsets at Battery Park on the lake front are a special attraction.

In the vast woodlands of Vermont's Northeast Kingdom are more rustic campgrounds with secluded tent and trailer sites. This is great country for fishing, hiking, and canoeing.

Yet, enjoyable side trips can be made to the Fairbanks Museum of Natural Sciences and Planetarium in nearby St. Johnsbury or to the mountain resorts like Stowe and Jay. Aerial lifts used for winter skiers offer thrilling rides to the summit of Mount Mansfield and Jay Peak.

In the Black River Valley, a pastoral landscape dominates. There, campgrounds are often part of a large operating farm. Besides swimming, fishing and boating, horseback riding is a popular sport here. Children will especially enjoy seeing the activities around these modern farms. At Plymouth Notch, campers can visit President Calvin Coolidge's birthplace, the house where he was sworn into office, the Vermont Farmer's Museum and a typical Vermont cheese plant.

For those who camp west of the Green Mountain National Forest, the Exhibit Halls of the Vermont Marble Company in Proctor are within easy reach. Special exhibits include the portrait gallery of United States presidents, reproductions of great religious sculpture, and marble samples from different quarries in Vermont and foreign countries.

Further north near Lake Dunmore, and along the Otter Creek, campers will find excellent sites near spectacular mountain passes. The Middlebury Gap, for example, goes over the mountains by Ripton and Bread Loaf where poet Robert Frost lived and taught.

These hamlets were settled by Joseph Battell, 19th century breeder of Morgan horses. His holdings in Weybridge south of Bristol have become the University of Vermont Morgan Horse Farm where visitors are welcome to tour the stables and watch the graceful animals graze and exercise on surrounding meadows.

In southern Vermont, dozens of well-equipped campgrounds can be found near colonial villages where summer theaters, arts and crafts complement the pleasures of outdoor life.

A helpful guide in selecting sites for a camping vacation in the Green Mountains is the 1970 edition of Vermont Private Campgrounds published by Vermont Association of Private Campground Owners and Operators. It is available free by writing to Camping, Vermont Development Department, Montpelier, Vermont, 05602.

CAMPING IN THE GREEN MOUNTAINS

Israel breaches ceasefire lines

DAMASCUS (AP) — Syria sent tanks and motorized units into the Israeli-occupied Golan Heights Wednesday in its first reported attempt to breach the ceasefire line since the 1967 Middle East war.

The incursion lasted two hours before the Syrians withdrew under fire from Israeli tanks and jets, a military spokesman said.

The attack was an apparent retaliation for Israel's airborne assault near Damascus last week.

A Syrian spokesman said 175 Israeli soldiers were killed or wounded in the attack. Israel said eight soldiers were wounded as its tanks repelled the invaders.

A military spokesman here said the Syrians stormed two fortified Israeli positions under cover of an intense artillery barrage, destroyed 12 Israeli tanks, five halftracks, five observation posts and two radar stations.

In Tel Aviv, the military command said three Syrian tanks crossed the ceasefire line and fired on Israeli positions.

Israeli tanks returned the fire, hitting and destroying two of the Syrian intruders in the demilitarized strip while the third turned and fled, the Israeli spokesman said.

He said Israeli jets were then called in to hammer Syrian fortifications and gun batteries and all planes returned safely.

The clash lasted two hours, he said, and all was quiet on the front "after the sources of Syrian fire had been silenced."

But fires were reported burning on both sides of the ceasefire line for several hours after the shooting ended.

The Syrian spokesman said the Arab forces returned to their bases across the ceasefire line after the two surprise forays.

While the raiders retreated, he said, Israeli jets harried them for almost two hours and one Skyhawk was shot down by ground fire and was seen crashing in flames on the Israeli side of the line.

The spokesman said two Syrians, including the commanding officer of one of the raiding units, were killed and five wounded in the attacks.

"At least 175 Israeli soldiers were either killed or wounded in the two surprise forays," he said, adding that several Israeli helicopters and ambulances were seen evacuating casualties.

The Syrian communiques claimed two Israeli positions were "occupied by Syrian troops for long enough to destroy them completely and to kill all enemy defenders."

In Tel Aviv, military observers said the Syrian attack was "one of the heaviest ever."

Indian splinter group seeking independence

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — Iroquois Confederacy Warriors, a splinter group on the Six Nations Indian Reserve, asked the Queen Wednesday for support in anticipated squabbles over independence with the federal government.

The request is one of a series of moves by Indians on the reserve aimed at asserting independence from the Canadian government.

A rift that developed over the question of independence has split the reserve into three groups: The elective band council and supporters; the Iroquois Confederacy, a group of hereditary chiefs; and the Warriors.

Early Wednesday, a group of about 75 militant Warriors took over the council house, replacing locks on the door with their own locks.

Then they nailed a notice on the front door, proclaiming the reserve near Brantford an independent nation.

LOCKED OUT

Members of the government-recognized council were refused admission to the house.

Comment from Richard Isaacs, head of the council, was not immediately available but no attempt was made early Wednesday to remove the Warriors.

A spokesman for the Warriors said at a meeting Tuesday night that 812 of 878 residents interviewed on the reserve signed a petition supporting the campaign for independence.

An issue in the dispute is the scheduled closing Friday of the Mohawk Institute, a reserve school which the federal government says is too costly to operate for the few pupils who attend.

Chief Emerson Hill, head of the Iroquois Confederacy, said in a telephone interview the situation may have been aggravated by the appearance Tuesday of geologists from the Guelph, Ont., Agricultural College, taking samples of reserve soil, and previous aerial surveys of the reserve.

There are fears, he said, that the reserve may be split up.

The question of independence, he said, has become more urgent because of attempts by the federal government "to legislate us out of existence."

"They want to call us Canadians," he said.

INDEPENDENCE DECLARED

Last week, the warriors declared the Six Nations peoples politically sovereign and independent in their rights to administer their domestic affairs.

The declaration came on the heels of a visit by Chief Hill to Europe when he used an Iroquois Confederacy passport to enter England, Sweden and Finland.

The Ontario government, meanwhile, has adopted a wait-and-see attitude towards the council house incident.

William McKim, regional director of the provincial Indian affairs department, said it is mainly an internal problem and is up to the council to settle.

He said there is no question of the land being split up. Geologists took samples of the soil and made aerial surveys as part of a nationwide land inventory program.

The study is to find out what the land may be useful for, and findings will be made available to the Indians, he said.

Dubcek loses post

PRAGUE (AP) — Alexander Dubcek, who led the reform move that touched off the Soviet bloc invasion of Czechoslovakia nearly two years ago, was nudged a little closer to political obscurity Wednesday.

Prague radio said President Ludvik Svoboda had removed Dubcek from his post as ambassador to Turkey. The move had been expected since May when the former Communist party head had returned from Turkey, ostensibly because his mother was ill.

The broadcast said Dubcek would be assigned to other duties but did not specify them. There have been rumors that he might be brought to trial for activities which led up to the August, 1968, invasion.

The dismissal of the 48-year-old envoy left him with only one official post, membership in the National Assembly, and he is expected to lose that.

The Communist party suspended Dubcek from its membership and its central committee is expected to expel him from the party during a two-day meeting beginning today.

Dubcek began his downward slide in April, 1969, when he was replaced as party chief by Gustav Husak, who was favored by the Soviet government. He was then named president of the Assembly, but five months later was fired from that job and from his post on the party's presidium.

SENT TO TURKEY

Dubcek went to Turkey last December and a short time later left the party central committee.

There has been speculation that Dubcek may return to his native Slovakia in an obscure post.

Dubcek had been a Communist for 30 years. His removal as ambassador to Turkey was carried out by the man believed to have saved him at the time of the Soviet-led invasion. Svoboda, the white-haired president, was reported to have refused at that time to negotiate with Soviet officials after the military intervention until they brought Dubcek to the table along with Oldrich Cernik, who was premier, and other arrested Prague leaders.

The central committee also is expected to take action this week against Cernik who resigned two days ago from his post as chairman of the federal committee on technology and investments. Informants said Cernik's party membership has also been suspended and he faces possible expulsion.

Bridal showers

BURY — Miss Lorraine Gauthier, a popular bride-to-be of the month, was feted at a miscellaneous shower given in her honor by Mrs. Clara Ward and her daughter Miss Jean and several other friends assisting, in the Parish Hall of St. Paul's church, on Friday evening June 5. Totally unprepared Miss Gauthier was levied to the hall on a pretext to be met at the door by Mrs. Ward who presented her with a corsage of small kitchen utensils, and escorted to a table laden with gaily wrapped parcels. Seated at the table were her mother, Mrs. Marcel Gauthier, her grandmother, Mrs. J. Gauthier, the groom's mother, Mrs. Eva Coates and aunt, Mrs. Allan Brazenail, each of whom was given a dainty corsage of daisies and lilies of the valley.

After the many useful and lovely gifts had been opened and admired by all, Miss Gauthier expressed her appreciation both for the nice gifts and the kind thoughtfulness of those who had arranged such a pleasant surprise.

Refreshments, which included a beautifully decorated shower cake, made by Mrs. Henry Gauthier, were served to the 35 guests present. The tables and hall were decorated in yellow and white. Miss Gauthier's marriage to Mr. Teddy Coates took place on Saturday June 13 in the United Church. The young couple will reside in Bury.

COOKSHIRE — Miss Gail Pope, a July bride-to-be, was the guest of honor at a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Wallace Matthews on June 13th. A corsage of measuring spoons, a strainer and a scouring pad, made by Mrs. Elizabeth Richardson, was then presented to her. She was escorted to the seat of honor under an inverted umbrella decorated with streamers, done by Mrs. Colleen Carrier. Seated on her right were Mrs. Doris Pope, her mother; and Mrs. Irene Maskell, her grandmother. On her left sat Mrs. Arlene Olsen, her prospective mother-in-law. All wore corsages made by Mrs. Colleen Carrier.

Miss Cindy Pope and Miss Kathy Ladd brought in several baskets of beautiful presents.

Gail was presented with a hat of ribbons and bows made by Miss Karen Olsen.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Elizabeth Richardson and Mrs. Colleen Carrier. Gail cut and served the confetti shower cake, in a twin heart design, made and decorated by Mrs. Dorothy Green of Lennoxville.

Gail proceeded to thank everyone for the lovely gifts and later, left with her fiancé, Mr. Bruce Olsen.

KNOWLTON — On Sat. June 13th Miss Dorothy Lenz Duboyce's Corner, was sent Knowlton to attend to some matters with the minister and found about thirty-five friends, relatives and neighbors waiting to "shower" her with an assortment of bridal gifts. After being greeted by Mrs. Brian Badger at the door and escorted to her chair of honor, Miss Lenz proceeded to open her gifts assisted by Mrs. Lenz and the groom's mother, Mrs. Coulson.

After opening all her gifts Miss Lenz thanked all those present for her surprise party. A lovely "bride's cake" made and decorated by Mrs. Doreen McPherson centered the tea table. A buffet lunch was prepared by Mrs. Wm. Badger and Mrs. McPherson. Mrs. Coulson and Mrs. Lenz poured tea for the guests. Miss Lenz will be married on July 11th to Mr. Ted Coulson also of Duboyce's Corner.

MAGOG — Miss Barbara Buzzell of Magog was the guest of honor at a miscellaneous shower at the home of her future mother-in-law, Mrs. Ronald Provost. Miss Buzzell was led to a table where the many pretty wrapped gifts were displayed.

Barbara was aided in unwrapping the gifts by Mrs. Provost. The gifts included bathroom accessories, kitchen iron and porcelain ware, and other articles. Afterward she thanked everyone for their lovely gifts.

At the end of the evening a buffet lunch was enjoyed by those attending. Guests were from Sherbrooke, Beebe and Magog.

STANSTEAD — Miss Cecile Larocque of Stanstead was the guest of honor at a delightfully arranged shower honoring her approaching marriage to Mr. Claude Roy of Magog.

The shower was held in the hall of Sacred Heart church in Stanstead and attended by a large number of relatives and friends, all of whom Cecile was surprised to find awaiting her.

Miss Nicole Nadeau had invited her for a drive in the pleasant spring evening. The ride terminated at the church hall. A corsage of liquid plastic yellow flowers with green ribbon bows was presented to her. She was seated with her sister, Mrs. Pierre Dube of Rock Island and her future mother in law Mrs. Hercules Roy of Magog, also three of the bride elect's sisters who had come from Montreal.

The gifts were attractively arranged on a decorated table and on the floor which the group opened to reveal a vacuum cleaner, electric clock, table flatware, linens, china and other lovely gifts from the assembled group and others unable to attend.

A bonnet of the ribbons and bows was made by friends and worn by Cecile as she thanked everyone in French and English for the shower and gifts.

A clothes pin game was played and the winners were Mrs. Rolnad Carbonneau and Miss MacLure. Mrs. Joseph Blais was the winner of a card game.

Refreshments were served. The shower cake was made and decorated by Mrs. Hector Grenier in shades of turquoise and white which was in keeping with the color scheme used to decorate the hall.

Guests attended from Magog, Montreal, Longueuil, Beebe and the Boundary Villages.

The hostesses were Cecile's co-workers from the Royal Bank of Canada staff and friends.

The couple will be married in Rock Island on June 27.

SAWYERVILLE — A linen shower was held at the home of Mrs. Omer Drouin, Sawyerville, in honor of Miss Carolyn Dillon, a June bride-to-be. Upon arrival, the bride elect was met by Mrs. Drouin, who pinned on a corsage of yellow roses. She was seated in a chair decorated in pink and white, between her mother, Mrs. Carl Dillon and future mother-in-law, Mrs. Hollis Cairns.

She was presented with a basket of gifts, the basket was replenished several times. The guest of honor thanked the guests for the lovely gifts.

Refreshments were served by hostesses, Mrs. Drouin and Mrs. Clinton Rand, assisted by Mrs. Danny Hodge, Mrs. Raymond Loveland and Mrs. Brian Kydd. The shower cake was made in the shape of two hearts decorated in pink and white, by Mrs. Clinton Rand.

Once upon a time there was a girl who had never heard of the

And when she decided to go on a wonderful vacation (and perhaps meet a prince charming) she went out and bought lots and lots of new clothes and paid lots and lots of money for them.

And when she got to the bus station she found she had no money left to go away with.

No vacation.
No Prince Charming.
Sad.

Now if she had shopped the Bon Marché first, she would have had her clothes and big savings. The

WILL THE REAL...? Which of these copies of Henry Maitland is the real thing? Is it Dave Bennett, John McIlmurray, or John Whitmore? The one person who ought to know is Barbara Mair, but she just as obviously doesn't know. To solve this puzzling problem for yourself, head for the Lennoxville Player's Production of Tons of Money at the Piggery playhouse, with performances tonight, Friday, and Saturday.

Stock-car racing in N.B. uncertain

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — Operators of the stock-car tracks in New Brunswick are expecting the 1970 season to decide the future of the sport. It has become one of the province's top summer sports, but there is still a fringe of uncertainty surrounding the future.

James Quinn of the Miramichi Speedway at Douglastown, near Newcastle, says "if it doesn't work this year, it never will."

Quinn's track just broke even in the first two years of operation and, like most other stock car setups in the province, the Miramichi Speedway underwent vast renovations during the winter months to get ready for the 1970 season.

Weather has been the major question mark at Danny's Speed Bowl in Bathurst. Manager Bob DeGrace says: "We've had a few problems here the last couple of years, especially the weather."

Because of the weather, the track's operators were hesitant about making plans. "At first we didn't know whether we'd be able to run every week or just a few races, or what."

It took a couple of organization meetings, and DeGrace said he found that more cars would be available than last year.

BETTER FOR DRIVERS

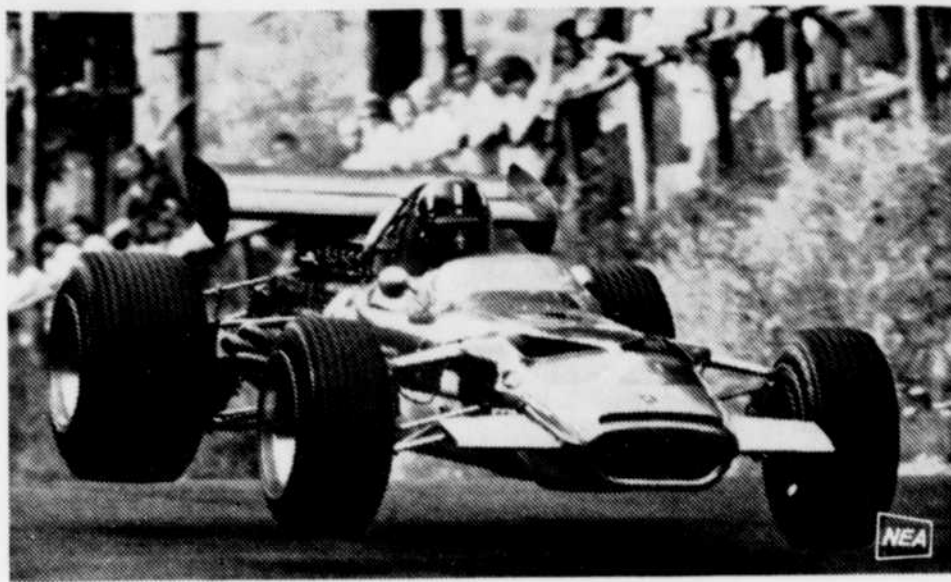

Both Gordie Halpin of Hammond River Speedway near here, and Joe McEwan of Moncton were counting on the formation of a rumored stock-car racing circuit that was to have been formed in the New Brunswick-Nova Scotia area.

This would have meant an end to racing every week at the participating tracks but, as McEwan said, it would have meant better races and bigger purses, since it would be possible to draw cars from a wider area.

McEwan said: "Most tracks in the States are organized this way. It's better for drivers and for the tracks."

He added that racing has been dropping off somewhat in his area in the last few years, and he's still hopeful a circuit plan will be effected next year.

But in the meantime, the plan fell through, leaving both the Moncton and Hammond River tracks in a state of uncertainty about their futures.

GRAND PRIX DRIVER GRAHAM HILL is practically airborne in his Formula 1 racer as he maneuvers the car into a straight.

It's raining letters in Rosemount, Minn.

By MURRAY OLDERMAN

NEW YORK—(NEA)—The question seems logical enough: Why should I be sending a baseball ballot to Rosemount, Minn.? I mean one of the 26 million ballots circulating to choose the 1970 All-Star teams.

The address on them reads like this: Rosemount, Minn., the postmaster informs me, is a bucolic little community of 1,300 eight miles south of St. Paul down Highway 3. Between now and the end of June, millions of voting cards will pass through the portals of the

BASEBALL COMMISSIONER
ALL-STAR ELECTION HQS.
P.O. BOX 942
ROSEMOUNT, MINN. 55068

Hon. Francis Bohnert's sleepy post office. "It's about the same for us," said Bohnert, "as the Christmas rush."

"If we get half the 26 million ballots back," said Joe Reichler, the commissioner's press aide, "we'll be happy." "At first," said Postmaster Bohnert, "they told us it'd be 8 million pieces of mail. Now we're expecting 4 million."

That's still a lot of five-cent stamps. The ballots, punched for computers, get post card rates.

Some diligent reportorial sleuthing has also solved the mystery of Rosemount. It goes like this:

When Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn decided to revive fan voting-at-large for the first time since 1957, he also learned it would cost his establishment a cool million for the simple mechanics of conducting an election.

Enter blue blades, or a company which makes same. For the privilege of producing and collecting the vote, this company was willing to pick up the $1 million tab and add another $1½ million for promotion.

The ballots are distributed to baseball fans through its 75,000 sales outlets, plus 24 ballot boxes in each major league park and 10 in each of 150 minor league parks.

They are then mailed, by the individual voters, to Rosemount, Minn., because that's the post office for Adams-Burke Corp., a computer firm which does the tabulations.

Baseball is extremely wary about ballot stuffing since six out of eight starting positions (excluding the pitcher) were won by Cincinnati Reds in the '57 election. There were no controls then. A local radio station, exhorting the good burghers to get behind the Reds, proved its communal spirit by filling in a Red-dominated ballot and running off thousands on a mimeograph to tilt the count.

This time there'll be a regional tabulations made. "They're going to let me know of any overload," said Reichler. "After all, this is a big thing. In numbers (26 million) they tell me this is second only to a presidential election."

Already there has been considerable furor because nominations for inclusion on the ballot were made in mid-February by the managers and team player representatives, leaving off such current worthies as Rico Carty, Al Kaline, Alex Johnson and Bill Grabarkewitz.

There is space on the ballot for write-in votes, which must be hand-counted and which explains why Adams-Burke will put on 20 extra girls as the June 28 deadline approaches and work all its hands in three shifts.

Abandoning his neutrality for the moment, Reichler admitted, "If Rico (hitting over 400) is not elected, I'll be terribly disappointed."

Carty is a pretty easy write-in. Now Grabarkewitz—that may tax the Rosemount staff.

3-How to Concentrate

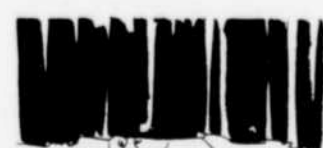

I imagine the touring pros were as thrilled as the fans this year when Ben Hogan came out of retirement and played in Houston and Fort Worth. Played unbelievably well, too, for a man who is nearly 60 and who laid off for so long.

Ben's concentration always has amazed me. I believe he concentrates intently on his game from the time he gets up in the morning until he makes his last putt of the day. That is a span of probably eight hours, and I could never do it. It would flat wear me out.

I try to concentrate hard for about 30 seconds before each shot. Then after I make that shot I like to relax and let my mind wander. I'll talk with my caddie, or lolly-gag around, or look at a pretty girl in the gallery. I can't play this tour otherwise.

I like to use a mental image of a big stage curtain coming down in my head 30 seconds before I hit the ball. That's my curtain of concentration.

tration falling. In that next 30 seconds I'll size up the shot and decide how I want to hit it. I find it's enough time, and I don't worry before or after the shot. Each shot becomes a separate little game. Especially if you play only once or twice a week, you probably could benefit from adopting this attitude toward concentration.

Lennoxville Pony League launched this Saturday

SLIDING HOME and it's close. The boys playing in the Lennoxville Pony League are between the ages of 13 and 15, and their enthusiasm provides for keen competition, which in turn assures spectators plenty of excitement.

OLD ENOUGH TO BE TRICKY, these Pony Leaguers have lots of tricks up their sleeves, such as the occasional bunt, like being played here. If you like sports, especially baseball, you'll enjoy watching these promising young sportsmen, whose games will terminate after playoffs just before Labor Day.

This Saturday, the second season for Lennoxville's Pony Baseball League shall be launched with a doubleheader at the Lennoxville Optimist Park, which is close to Bishop's University. The season opener will see the Reds taking on the Hawks at 1:30, then the Braves match the Cubs at 3:30.

With some 60 boys enrolled in the league, sponsored by the Lennoxville Recreation Association, there's also a dozen adults involved in the schedule, which will feature playoffs just prior to Labor Day.

1970 has seen many changes in the Pony League structure, and an expansion from 1 to 4 teams for Lennoxville, and the beginning of an inter-city schedule, which this season, saw another 4 teams playing in Magog. At the end of the summer games, it's hoped there'll be playoffs between the Lennoxville and Magog champions.

Community spirit has been high in supporting these 13 to 15 year old ballplayers, but even more help is needed, organizers say. To date, a number of local firms have generously supported the league, and as enthusiasm increases, more and more are throwing weight into play, with financial backing, and help where needed.

One thing that's important, directors of the league say, is spectator support. "Give our boys a good grandstand, and they'll show their appreciation with good sportsmanship, and the type of baseball that's hard to match," Don Montgomery, one of the directors told the Record. Don, one of the coaches, and typical of the many who give their time and effort for the good of youth, says that plenty of help is needed. He's counting on a crowd this Saturday, when the season opens.

Playing for the Hawks are: Chris Mitchell, Randy Warner, Bobby Deacon, Peter Turpin, Karl Hunting, Bill Mulcahy, Victor Ramage, Allan

THE REDS, one of four teams in the Lennoxville Pony League, which will be playing Saturday, June 27th against the Hawks. In all, there are sixty boys in the league, which is sponsored by the Lennoxville Recreation Association.

THEY'RE FAST, ACCURATE AND KEEN, that's why Lennoxville's Pony Leaguers are bound to provide their audiences with lots of thrills this summer. When that ball heads for the plate in this league, it's going like a bullet, and when batters hit, you can be sure of plenty of great playing. (Photos: Don Montgomery)

Charlebois, Michael Loach, Brian Peck, Dan Vincent, John Drew, with coaching by Mike Clarke and Jeff Harte. The Lennoxville Braves coached by Bill Rourke, feature players: Gino Sirignano and

Terry Clarke as catchers, Brian Trussler, Eric Dezan, Steve Mooney, Bob Coley, Ken Richardson, Pierre Campagnon, Alfred Aleska, Danny Doyon, Arnold Winget, Steve Patrick, Danny Speck and Guy Samson.

Special invited guests for Saturday's opening are Mr. Cecil Dougherty, Mayor of Lennoxville; Paul Bouthillier of Bryant Beverages Ltd.; and Gerry McKindsey, chairman of the Pony League in Lennoxville.

The following firms and places of business extend their compliments to the players and organizers of the Lennoxville Pony Baseball League, and express hopes they'll have an enjoyable season!
