

Owing to the alteration in the route of the "Halifax and Quebec Railway," the city of Halifax has been relieved from the pledge that stock, to the amount of £100,000, it well. The city should now do itself the duty of placing its credit in the future. The £40,000 may be required for purposes of improvement connected with the enterprise above named. We question the wisdom of the policy, therefore, which would oblige the city, at this time, to an appropriation for branch lines.—Halifax Star.
