In addition, an extra dividend of 10c per share was declared payable January 30, 1948. Earned surplus stood at $4,314,212 at October 31, 1947, up from $4,232,968 at the previous year-end.

India and Afghanistan are connected by the great Khyber Pass, through which Alexander and other conquerors came, and Afghanistan is much under the influence of her mighty Russian neighbor to the north. Over the generations a lot of trouble of one sort or another has come into India across that northwest frontier. Apropos of this, the Pathan tribesmen who are invading the state of Kashmir come from the northwest frontier, and they are a tough lot, as your correspondent well knows, having had some first-hand experience with them.

However, while there is no doubt that many Red agents have come into India through the northwest frontier, relations between the Indian Dominion and Moscow seem to be on normal lines.

That's the way Nehru is tackling the high and mighty who, for their own purposes, want war in India. As for the hundreds of millions among the rank and file, they want peace, just as do the rank and file in all other countries of the world. And because of that desire among the masses, I believe that in the long run peace will win in India, though the going may be tough and even bloody for a time.

One thing we certainly must expect, and that is much political confusion as the new Dominion governments feel their way. Apropos of this I am getting inquiries as to what this situation may mean to Russia and to Communism.

There is Communism in India, though as in many other countries it is a hidden disease and it's hard to say how many people are infected. Certainly there are no Communist elements discernible in the present government. Nehru, for example, is a Socialist but has a deep abhorrence to totalitarianism.

However, it is a truism that Communism flourishes amidst chaos, and the disturbed conditions in India might provide soil for the ism's growth. The British government, before granting India her independence, was much concerned over Red potentialities and kept a sharp lookout along the northwest frontier which provided a conduit for the Red ism.

The Pack then gave the Grand Howl which was followed by Akela bringing the four Going-Up Cubs into the circle. The Cubs then gave their Promise for the last time and the Akela then brought that through the Archway of the combined colors to the Scoutmaster and formally introduced each cub to him. The Scoutmaster spoke a few words of welcome and then introduced the cub to their respective Patrol Leaders. The Pack congratulated the cubs by giving them the Pack Yell while the troop gave out three rousing cheers. The Pack then dispersed to leave the troop to carry on with the rest of the pack. The Pack was under the leadership of Scoutmaster Stan Lebe while the troop was under Scoutmaster Earl Sharp. Mr. McGregor, who joined T.C.A. in 1945 after serving with the R.C.A.F., succeeds H. J. Symington, who relinquished the post last November.

The first combat flier of the Second World War to become president of an air line, Mr. McGregor was appointed general manager, with system jurisdiction, including overseas service, in January, 1946.

Last autumn he was appointed chairman of the International Air Transport traffic conference at Petropolis, Brazil.

From 1923 until the outbreak of war in 1939 he was a member of the staff of Bell Telephone Company of Canada, serving in Montreal, Ottawa and Kingston, Ont.

Born in Montreal in 1901 he attended Montreal High School and St. Andrew's College, Toronto, later studying engineering at McGill University.

While in Kingston he became interested in aviation and in 1939 went on active service.

During the Battle of Britain he ran up a score of five Nazi aircraft destroyed and shared credit in downing a sixth.

He was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross in 1939 and the Order of the British Empire in 1943. He was also awarded the Order of Orange Nassau by the Netherlands, the French Croix de Guerre and the Czechoslovakian War Cross.

U.S. CHARGES REPEATED VIOLATION Protest Made Against Romania as War of Words With Russia Continues.

Washington, Feb. 3.—(P)—The United States aimed a counter-punch today in the war of words with Russia. It charged Communist-dominated Romania with violating its new peace treaty.

State Secretary Marshall gave notice at the same time, however, that the United States is ready to discuss again the Soviet price for a peace treaty for Austria.

Marshall proposed that deputies of the Big Four foreign ministers' council reconvene Feb. 20 in London to take up the Russian demands. These include a 50-year concession on most of Austria's oil output and a lump sum payment of $200,000,000 in reparations.

The American protest to Romania charged that country with denying "human rights" and "fundamental freedoms" by crushing opposition to the Communists—all in violation of the peace treaty which went into effect last December.

The United States political representative in Bucharest, Rudolph E. Schoenfeld, was instructed to make the protest. There were indications from London that Britain will make it a joint action.

Diplomatic officials said Schoenfeld's instructions included a reference to the arrest and trial of Julia Maniu, opposition leader who was sentenced to life imprisonment last November.

The treaty, which both Romania and Russia accepted, specified that Romania must "take all measures necessary to secure to all persons, under Roman jurisdiction, the enjoyment of the fundamental freedoms, including freedom of political opinion."

ROSENBERG The weekly meeting of the Dutch Street Farm Forum was held at Brigham, attended the wedding here of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Ingram with a good attendance.

CHURCH SEEKS TO PENETRATE SECULAR WORLD

By STUART UNDERHILL Canadian Press Staff Writer London, Feb. 3.—A commission appointed by the Church of England to weigh the task of the church in the age of the "mass man" makes two strong recommendations that church workers seek Christian vocations in the secular world and that family life be fostered in the orbit of the local parish church.

"The real dilemma for the church today is to penetrate the secular world through its handful of active Christians, whom it has first to inspire with the knowledge of continuous experience of its own divine fellowship," said one part of the commission of 37, which has as its chairman Sir Anderson Montague-Barlow.

It recommended that the church "consider the need for directing the attention of Christians to those occupations within the industrial and professional world which are particularly liable to turn the scale for or against family and social well-being."

There should be "positive encouragement" toward vocations directly concerned with personal development, such as teaching, maternity and child welfare, housing and estate management, adult education, psycho-therapy, community centre work and youth work.

The commission recommended the suggestion that the church should withdraw from worldly affairs, although admitting that "the circumstances of our time impose such conditions upon people's lives. . . that the ordinary communicant finds it well-nigh impossible to fulfill the obligation of faithful churchmanship and at the same time play an active part in the social life of the secular community."

The church, however, "cannot be true with the notion that God is interested in man and woman only when they are being in the narrow and specific sense 'helped.' The church is committed . . . to a concern with the secular activities of men and societies."

At the same time it must not come to be regarded as "just one more voluntary agency for promoting social welfare under the direction of the Welfare State."

The report tended to be critical of social influences of the "Welfare State," contending that "in a healthy society the family would be seen primarily as a self-reliant unit serving the nation on its own initiative."

In its summary the commission said the parish church was the outlet for the work of each person, and therefore everything possible should be done "to make possible a family worship in which all our activities find a focus."

Parish meetings should be ready to sponsor special discussion groups to deal with common problems, and should be prepared to consider local and national issues even though they entered politics.

"Shall we in England continue to attempt to spread a thin Christian veneer over a non-Christian society, or shall we attempt the creation of truly Christian communities of one sort or another, parochial and non-parochial?" it asked. "Can every parish in England become a truly missionary community again?"

The topic for the evening was "Do we need a National Marketing Act?" After much discussion, refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by her daughter, Miss Gergette Ingram. Cards were played at five tables. It was decided that the next Fourth Night meeting would be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Muncaster, when friends would be invited and "500" would be played.

Farmers in this district are reporting their supply of ice and cutting very good for this winter.

Miss Beryl McNeil, of Ormsworth, spent a week with her sister, Mrs. Clayton Harvey, and Mr. Harvey.

Miss Lila Primmerman and Miss Betty Cook, of St. Johns, spent the week-end with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Primmerman, and Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Harvey and Mr. and Mrs. Billis Jones spent an evening with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Harvey, at Farmans Corner.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Jenkins and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Mahannah, of Brigham, attended the wedding here of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Clarence Ingram with a good attendance.

It was understood that Indian delegate Gopalaswami Ayyangar would renew his objections to a Belgian plan for settling differences between the two dominions.

In the Economic and Social Council the 18 delegates gathered for their second meeting in the wake of an opening session marked by name-calling, charges of suspicion and vote splits.

Russia's A. A. Arutinian sought yesterday to delete one-fifth of the Council's agenda and was voted down overwhelmingly in each case. He drew continuous support from White Russia and scattered backing from Poland and Venezuela. The rest of the Council refused to go along with the Soviet demands.

The U.N. sub-commission on Freedom of Information defeated in a series of votes yesterday Russian proposals to commit the world press to a fight against what the Soviets call war propaganda and Fascism.

The sub-commission also voted down Soviet proposals against what the latter called a press monopoly.

BREAKDOWN OF NEWSPRINT DOLLAR GIVEN

Montreal, Feb. 3.—(P)—R. M. Fowler, president of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association, today tackled the question of who gets the newsprint dollar, in an address prepared for delivery to the Association's annual luncheon.

His answer, based on replies from 12 companies with total incomes of $400,000,000 was:

"Out of each dollar received in the first 10 or 11 months of 1947, 19.2 cents went to direct labor in the mills and offices; 28 1/2 cents to provide wood. Wood cost includes woods labor, probably at least two-thirds; it is fair to say that labor employed directly in the industry, in the mills and woods, received over 38 cents of every dollar that came in.

"Other materials required in manufacture account for 15.5 cents; power and fuel 7.9 cents. Taxes paid to Federal, Provincial and Municipal governments (but not including stumpage dues and other governmental payments in addition to wood costs) took 12 cents. Depreciation of plant and machinery required 4.8 cents and bond interest 1 1/2 cents. This left 3.9 cents paid out as dividends to shareholders and 6.7 cents held in company funds as a so-called 'surplus.'"

INSURANCE CO HEAD URGES LESS CONTROL

Special to the Record Toronto, Feb. 3.—The need for Canadians to rely on their own resourcefulness and energy rather than expecting governments to provide a remedy for every ailment was stressed by Norman S. Robertson, president of North American Life Assurance Company, in his address at the company's annual meeting this week.

Mr. Robertson remarked that in the closing months of 1947 there was uneasiness because of the rapid increase in the price level of all commodities and the rapid drain of United States dollars. Inflation and the dollar shortage were part of the harvest of war, he said.

"I think all of us have great sympathy with those who are charged with or have assumed the responsibility of dealing with these problems; their solution will not be easy and success will require whole-hearted co-operation of our Canadian people. . ." said Mr. Robertson.

"On the other hand, I suggest that we cannot rely on restrictions, controls, subsidies and other currently fashionable nostrums in the hope that their continued use can alone supply a permanent remedy."

Controls were accepted during the war, Mr. Robertson said, and there has been a tendency to continue this regimentation and planned living into the present peacetime period.

"Overall planning by government through its fiscal policy may be necessary but rightly or wrongly we have allowed our governments to extend their influence and control into all segments of our national life and also to get actively into business, as contrasted with the regulation of business.

"I suggest that we have greater promise of a healthy economic life if we as Canadians rely on our own resourcefulness and industry, functioning in a climate where the basic laws of supply and demand and practical principles of trade are allowed to operate in open competition."

MRS. LAUGHLIN J. MacKINNON, FORMERLY OF MILAN, QUE.
Milan, Feb. 3.—The death of Mrs. Mary Ann MacKinnon, of Saskatoon, Sask., occurred in a hospital there on January 13. The deceased had been an invalid for two years, bearing her illness with great patience and fortitude. She had been confined to the hospital for several months.

Mrs. MacKinnon, formerly Mary Ann Beaton, was born at Milan, on January 10, 1860, the eldest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Donald Beaton.

She was united in marriage to Laughlin John MacKinnon, on May 7, 1881, and lived in Chicago, Ill., until 1903, when they moved to Clavet, and to Saskatoon in 1912.

Her husband and two sons, Beaton and Robert, had predeceased her, the latter in 1947.

Surviving are two daughters, Annie, Mrs. J. R. Patience, of New Westminster, B. C.; and Mary, Mrs. C. R. Fish, of Beacon Hill, Sask.; one son, John William MacKinnon, of Saskatoon, Sask.; two brothers, William Beaton, of Ardash, Sask.; and Angus Beaton, of Evesham, Sask.; four sisters, Mrs. Alex J. MacLeod, of Evesham, Sask.; Mrs. Effie MacAskill, Mrs. Catherine MacDonald and Mrs. Christie Thompson, all of Saskatoon, Sask.

The funeral service was held on January 15, at 2:30 p. m., from Westminster United Church. Mrs. MacKinnon was one of the charter members of Westminster Church, Saskatoon, Sask. The Saskatoon Funeral Home was in charge of the arrangements.

The deceased had many relatives and friends in the Eastern Townships, who extend sympathy to the bereaved family.

South Sturley, Feb. 3.—Funeral services were held at the Church of the Advent, in Magog, with Rev. E. D. Mitchell, of Waterloo, officiating, for Mr. Caradog Griffiths, who passed away at his home here in his sixty-third year.

Born in Porthell, South Wales, on August 12, 1884, the deceased was the son of the late William Griffiths and his wife, Ann Evans. In 1927 he brought his family to Canada and settled in Magog.

Left to mourn are his wife, nee Ada Thomas; one son, William, of St. Johns; five daughters, Camelia, Mrs. Rex Dezan, and May, Mrs. Harold Draper, of Waterloo; Winifred, Mrs. Joseph Chapman, of Magog; Olive, Mrs. Omer Girard, of Bordenaux; and Beryl, Mrs. Jules Lise, of Waterloo; and nine grandchildren.

He was laid to rest at Pine Hill Cemetery, Magog, with full military honors.

The bearers, fellow members of the Canadian Legion, were Comrades Daniel Raminage, James Conway, James Connors, Arthur Wotther, E. O. Gravel, Roy Bean, Arthur Ruck and Kenneth Bryant. The color guard included Comrades G. Renaud and J. Hubbersty. The firing party, taken from the 73rd Battery, was under R.S.M. George Malcolm.

The floral tributes were both numerous and beautiful and bore silent testimony of the high esteem held for one who will be greatly missed not only by his family but by all those, who had had the privilege of knowing him.

Those from out of town, who attended the funeral services were Rev. Mrs. F. W. Walden, and Mr. and Mrs. James Law, of St. Johns; Mr. and Mrs. William C. Courville,

The Doctor Says

ONE OF AMERICA'S MEDICAL PIONEERS

By Edwin P. Jordan, M.D. Dr. Daniel Drake, who lived from 1785 to 1852, is one of the great figures in American medicine. For some reason, however, his name has been much neglected and he is little known today even by medical men.

Jordan

The most important of Drake's many contributions to medicine is a great book of nearly 900 pages which appeared in 1850. This book covered geography, geology, botany and weather conditions and their relationship to diseases. It also discussed the diagnosis and treatment of the illnesses known at that time.

To get his material he travelled the whole western part of the country. He studied the earth, rivers, plants, animals, the air, sky, and the people. His journeys led him from the Rio Grande to Hudson Bay, from Florida to the headwaters of the Mississippi, from the Great Lakes to the mouth of the St. Lawrence.

He collected and studied in the villages, hamlets, and tiny settlements in all these regions.

The full title of his book reveals his enormous labors. It was "A Systematic Treatise, Historical, Etiological and Practical, on the Principal Diseases of the Interior Valley of North America, as They appear in the Caucasian, African, Indian, and Esquimaux Varieties of Its Population."

Studied Cholera

Although this tremendous book is Daniel Drake's greatest contribution, he did many other things. He struggled hard to improve medical education, which was then in a sad state. He studied a cholera epidemic, and published a small booklet about it. He is noted for having been the teacher of many prominent men who came after him.

When one thinks of the monuments which have been erected to honor military leaders who have led great armies to destroy each other, it seems wrong that a great physician like Dr. Daniel Drake of Cincinnati, whose efforts were all directed toward saving life, should remain so long neglected.

Q—What causes small, itchy pimples to appear between the fingers and on the palm of the hand? A—It is impossible to guess which of several skin conditions could be causing the pimples. There are several possibilities, and only a physician who saw you personally could tell with any certainty what was the cause.

Why Do Women Sour On Marriage?

Too Many Spouses Build Impossible Ideal Husbands Cannot Live Up To

A correspondent says: "Practically all women want to marry, and they feel that life is cinch, arks and duns; if they do not get a husband, yet women are the chief sufferers in the divorce cases. Why is it that so many of them so soon lose their taste for marriage?"

That is a conundrum that no one can answer for true for there are as many different sources of domestic grouches as there are married women; and each wife has her own pet peeve if she is one of those pernickety ladies who is always searching for a crumpled rose leaf under her 40 mattresses of ease.

Any woman can find a grievance if she looks for it hard enough, for even the Creator was not able to make a perfectly satisfactory husband, as is proven by the Adam and Eve affair. But I think that the reason that so many women go about beating their breasts and crying out that marriage is a failure is because they expected too much of it. They had built up an impossible ideal of earthly bliss in which there would be nothing but sunshine and roses; where their husbands would always be great lovers; where they would be always clothed in bridal finery and where, as the old cowboy song says, they would never hear a discouraging word.

MARRIAGE CAN BE TEDIOUS

And when they found out that marriage was mostly cooking and washing and scrubbing and baby-tending and putting up with the peculiarities of husbands who are always throwing their mothers in their teeth, and who had dropped all of their love-making at the altar, they just couldn't take it. They turned on their tear ducts and began filing their bills of complaint against marriage.

Another reason why so many women find marriage a chore instead of a picnic is because mothers so seldom rear their daughters to be wives. Not one bride in a dozen knows how to cook, or whether to buy a sheep or a chop for lunch, nor has her mother ever given her any tips about how to stroke her husband's fur the right way instead of getting in his hair. So it is no wonder that, when the young husband sits down to a meal that is inedible, he says things that sour her on the whole matrimonial relationship.

Of course, a gloomy and disgruntled wife, who is always complaining and fault-finding, isn't what the husband bargained for in marriage, either. But, to a large extent he is to blame for it; for the great majority of husbands take mighty little trouble to make marriage a happy experience to the women to whom they are married. They think that all that any woman needs to keep her entertained and amused is to sit up and look at her wedding ring.

Unfortunately, such is not the case. Little as husbands suspect it, their wives have the same need and desire for entertainment and amusement that they have. The girl who has been accustomed to putting on her pretty clothes and stepping out in the bright lights can be just as bored spending every evening at home as her husband would. She doesn't even enjoy hearing the baby cry any more than he does.

But husbands are obsessed with the belief that wives need no other entertainment than just being married to them, so there is no use in wasting time and money in showing them a good time. It is his wife's boredom that costs many a man a lot of alimony.

The Record will be pleased to receive any letters to this Dorothy Dix column. These will be forwarded to Miss Dix who will answer them as quickly as possible.

MODERN MARRIAGE

CHOOSING BETWEEN TWO HUSBANDS

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

Mrs. Enoch Arden didn't get a fair chance.

You remember Alfred Tennyson's poem. Enoch Arden came home, years after supposedly being dead, and found his wife married to his best friend. Rather than interfere, he disappeared again; they never knew that he still lived.

Was that a square deal for his wife? Mrs. McN. raises the question. She thinks Mrs. Arden might have been allowed to take her choice. "Men not only want to boss their wives, but to determine whom they shall have for a husband," she objects.

The affair of Enoch Arden isn't one of those things that just happen in books. We have seen it wholesale in Germany during the last few years. When the German attack on Stalingrad was defeated, Hitler announced that the German soldiers had fought to the last man and their families were notified of these deaths. Many women, officially told that they were widows, remarried.

Actually, it transpired, the Germans didn't fight to the last man. More than 15,000 of them surrendered, and these prisoners of war have been filtering back gradually into the Reich ever since—often to find their "widows" living with second husbands.

Who gets the wife, in such a case? "I say, let her take her choice," Mrs. McN. advises. "If she is forced to take her first husband, she may never forgive her for having lived with another man. Maybe she prefers the second anyway. Or maybe she's tired of the second, and looks upon the return of her first love as an act of Providence. It's up to her to decide."

In most countries, the law will certainly try to settle it for her. New York State has a so-called Enoch Arden law which presumes that a man, not heard of during five years, is dead; his "widow" can remarry legally. In Germany, some wives are having the second marriage annulled to resume life with the first husband; others are legally divorcing the reappearing husband in order to stay with the second. They are exercising their right of choice, as Mrs. McN. thinks they should. But what about the husbands? Do they have no choice? What's your opinion?

Q—How can I answer a child in my school who says, "I don't have a daddy"? His parents are separated and the child is continually upset by the fact that his father is not in the home.

A—Help him to concentrate on the existence of a father rather than on the absence; and help him to get as much other masculine companionship as possible through youth organizations, or through friends or relatives.

Q—Newspapers quoted someone as declaring that women's hats cause many divorces; that one-fifth of 10,000 divorces admitted their marital troubles started in arguments about clothes. Is that true?

A—Troubles certainly didn't start there. If husband and wife were at swords' points anyway, they might argue about the wife's clothes, or the husband's lack of them, or anything else that was handy. The real trouble goes back to personality defects and childish ways of dealing with difficulties that arise in everyday life!

Q—How many men allow their wives to buy the husband's clothing?

A—According to a recent survey, women shoppers buy more than two-thirds of the ties, shirts, socks, pajamas, and underwear worn by men. Isn't it time to start a movement to emancipate husbands? Will you take the lead?
