All parties approve health scheme

CAUGHT IN THE ACT — This photograph depicts two of the men who robbed the Chittenden Trust in North Troy, Vt., June 23, escaping with $5,200. This was one of a series of three banks robbed in as many weeks; all ended with the robbers escaping into Canada. The Chittenden Trust has offered a reward of $1,000 for information leading to the capture and conviction of any one of those illustrated. Those with information should contact Mr. Robert E. Montgomery of the Chittenden Trust Company, Burlington, Vt. 802-658-4000 during daytime hours.

Border bank robbers lead the law on merry chases

By PRESTON GURD

A spate of robberies at U.S. points close to the border has been sending police forces of two countries on manhunts reminiscent of the misadventures of the Keystone Cops.

All three of the robberies have been characterized by the bandits' rapid departure North toward the border, posing major problems in capturing them. The best case in point is the June 23 robbery of the Chittenden Trust in North Troy, Vt.

Vermont State Police were on the case moments after the bandits headed North with $5,200 in cash. The police called in the United States Border Patrol and engaged an aircraft from Newport Flying Service to follow the suspect car.

The plane duly became airborne and followed a car matching the description the pilot had been given, said Cecil Wright, head of the service. The pilot followed the car to a cottage just North of the border. It didn't come out again, but another car did, which the pilot followed North through Vale Perkins and Knowlton landing.

The pilot followed the car into Magog, Wright says, and circled over the city for 45 minutes while the suspect car drove around and about the city.

The aircraft had been in contact with the police every inch of the way, Wright says, but was forced to return to Newport as the fuel level was dangerously low.

At no time did the pilot observe anything remotely resembling a police car get anywhere near the suspect car as it puttered through the streets of Magog.

And where were the police when the plane finally left? Why, they were sitting out on the highway, alertly guarding the approaches to the city.

For this they have been roundly condemned as bunglers by some of the media.

However, it was not a matter

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec national assembly gave the Liberal government's health insurance legislation unanimous approval in principle Thursday.

The bill now goes to the assembly's health committee for clause-by-clause examination.

All three Opposition parties—the Union Nationale, Creditistes and separatist Parti Quebecois—voted with the government to give the bill second reading by a count of 85 to 0.

There had been some doubt as to whether the Parti Quebecois would vote for the bill, but the six PQ members in the house when the roll was read stood one by one to signify their assent.

Despite the bill's quick adoption after only two days of debate prior to second reading, Opposition spokesmen gave indications Thursday that the legislation will come under heavy attack in committee.

The Opposition's main target was the provision which allows doctors to withdraw from the health insurance plan.

Jean-Paul Cloutier UN-Montmagny, the official Opposition health critic, said the withdrawal clause will "penalize" persons in areas where specialists are already scarce and jeopardize the agreements to be negotiated by the government and the doctors concerning the latter's participation in the plan.

Creditiste Leader Camil Samson noted that the Quebec Health Insurance Board will not pay for services rendered where more than three per cent of the doctors in a specialty or region have withdrawn.

"I think the minister will continue anyway to collect the insurance premiums in these regions," he said. "That won't be fair to the citizens, to the workers who have to pay these premiums."

Dr. Laurin said all doctors should respect the agreements signed by their respective professional associations.

COMPARED TO UNION

"If the medical associations are real unions, which they are in fact, the agreement their ne-

...but doctors disagree

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec Federation of Medical Specialists will not sign an agreement with the provincial government unless Quebec's law on the proposed medical insurance plan is changed, says the head of the organization, Dr. Raymond Robillard.

At a news conference Thursday, he said, "While we agree with the principles we are against specific details contained within those principles... and the federation will not sign an agreement if the law stays as it now is."

One of the main bones of contention revolves around the issue of a doctor's right to opt out of the "medicare system" if he wants to carry on an independent practice.

Bill 8, tabled last week in the national assembly, says any doctor has the right not to participate in the plan but that the government will pay only 75 per cent of the fee for a specific service as set by its scale of standards.

The federation feels the government should pay the entire 100 per cent of the fee just as it would if the doctor was participating in the medical plan.

MAY DROP SERVICE

The government has also stipulated that if three per cent of doctors in a given specialty within a region withdraw from the plan, that particular service will not be covered for residents of the area.

Earlier, Jean-Paul Cloutier, former Union Nationale health minister, said in Quebec that this provision will "penalize" citizens in regions where specialists are already scarce.

Dr. Robillard said the new bill violates three major principles of the medical profession—the right to negotiate; it entrusts the control of medicine solely to the Health Insurance Board; and deprives doctors of their individual right to opt freely and without consequences from the plan.

Drowned man's body found on Venice Beach

MAGOG — The body of a 42-year-old Magog garage owner was found yesterday just off the shore of Venice beach near here.

Quebec Provincial Police in Coaticook said the body of Rosario Caron, drowned in Little Lake Magog last June 13, was found about 600 feet from the shore of the Venice Beach.

Police said three persons in a sailboat first saw the floating body around 2 p.m. yesterday, tied a rope around it and hauled it to the shore.

Bury stabbing victim now off the critical list

SHERBROOKE — Doctors at St. Vincent de Paul Hospital here have dismissed the possibility of death in the case of a 27-year-old East Angus man, victim of a stabbing incident late on Dominion Day in Bury.

A hospital spokesman told The Record today that Jean-Marc Beaudoin is recovering remarkably well from three stab wounds he received after trouble broke out in a Bury hotel late Wednesday evening.

A team directed by Dr. Paul Chevalier spent three hours in the operating room early Thursday morning to save the man's life.

The same spokesman said that Mr. Beaudoin was stabbed twice in the chest and once in the stomach during the incident.

Meanwhile, a Quebec Provincial Police spokesman in Cookshire told The Record last night the QPP is intensifying its search for a Sherbrooke man they believe to be responsible for the stabbing of the 27-year-old East Angus man.

"There has not been an arrest yet simply because we are unable to locate our suspect," the police source said. But police did indicate they knew the identity of the man who committed the stabbing during the general uproar at the Jean Paul Hotel in Bury.

However, QPP were prompt in dismissing rumors that Mr. Beaudoin had been stabbed out of revenge by a member of a motorcycle gang.

Furthermore, police said they know nothing of the victim being part of a motorcycle gang, labelling the rumor as fictitious.

The day-long Dominion Day celebrations were nearly over when the incident occurred. Many had gathered at the local hotel where a dance was being held to terminate the event. A fight broke out suddenly and moments later, a man lay on his back with blood flooding the floor.

QPP in Cookshire arrived minutes later and an investigation was started immediately.

Rushed to hospital in Sherbrooke, Mr. Beaudoin spent three hours in the operating room.

Wednesday's stabbing incident ended the celebrations of Dominion Day in Bury, where every year, thousands of persons surge the playground to participate in the day-long festivities.

Reward for information

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec justice department Thursday offered a reward of $5,000 for information concerning the whereabouts of Landa Silverman of Ottawa during the 24 hours before she was found dead Jan 4 near the ski resort town of St. Sauveur, 40 miles north of Montreal.

In a press release, Quebec Provincial Police asked anyone with information to contact their Montreal headquarters.

Abenaki Indians to open trailer camp

PIERREVILLE — The shriek of war cries and the beat of tom-toms will resound through this area Saturday and Sunday as the Abenaki Indian tribe launches a public trailer-camp project on its Odanak reserve 20 miles north of Drummondville.

The camp, which will accommodate some 200 house and tent trailers, has been built in an effort to provide employment for many of the 135 on the reserve and in an attempt to attract commercial enterprise to the district.

The project, dreamed up about two years ago, was brought into being with the assistance of the federal department of Indian affairs and northern development.

Chief Walter Watso, head of the tribe since his election in March, will open the site for public camping at 7 p.m. Saturday. Traditional dances by 15 of the Abenaki will provide entertainment through the evening.

An 11 a.m. open-air mass will open Sunday's activities and will be followed by a parade from the CNR station at 2 p.m. The afternoon will feature dances by Indian tribes from New Brunswick, Caughnawaga, Huron Village, Odanak and Loretteville, and performances by majorettes from Drummondville, the Cavaliers and singer Alanis O' Bomsawin.

Sunday evening will close with Indian tales and chants at 8:45. All events will be open to the general public.

During a publicity tour of Sherbrooke this week, Chief Watso told The Record that his Odanak reserve "is the most beautiful in the province" — a fact which, he hopes, will help attract tourists and campers to the area.

Although this year's camp site is only temporary, it nevertheless contains all necessary conveniences for trailer travellers. A permanent site will be constructed next year.

The camp site is a 400 by 1,200-foot area within the 1,900-acre reserve and is located on Route 3 near Pierreville, within 20 miles of the Trans-Canada Highway.

The rates, including all facilities, will be $3 a day for regular trailers, $2.50 for tent trailers and $1 for tents. The site is equipped with a swimming pool, fireplaces and picnic tables. Stores are located one-half mile away in Pierreville.

Plan no central police force

ROUYN, Que. (CP) — Justice Minister Jerome Choquette said Thursday his department will not initiate plans to set up a centralized police force for Quebec province.

Mr. Choquette told the annual meeting of the Quebec Association of Police and Fire Chiefs here that the establishment of a completely unified police force for the province "would create too many administrative problems."

He said the restructurization of police forces across the province will be concentrated "for the time being" on the planned urban community regions of Montreal, Quebec City and Hull.

Begins three-day visit here

Prince Charles watches football tilt

OTTAWA (CP) — Prince Charles saw his first North American football game in style Thursday—sitting in the first row at centre field with the governor-general and several pretty ladies, and getting play-by-play analyses from the president of the Canadian Football League Players Association.

The prince began his three-day Ottawa visit by watching the CFL all-stars beat the league champion Ottawa Rough Riders 35-14.

He joined the game during the half-time show after dining with Governor-General Roland Michener at Government House.

In the royal box with the prince were the governor-general and his wife, and Rider owner David Loeb, Health Minister John Munro, players association president Gary Schreider and their wives, Karen Rohr, a grand-daughter of Mr. Michener, was also in the official party.

Prince Charles arrived in time to watch a passing competition between quarterbacks Russ Jackson and Ron Lancaster. After riffling through his program, he settled down to watch the action.

At game's end he presented the winners' trophy to the captain of the all-stars, Greg Findlay of the British Columbia Lions. Ron Lancaster received the outstanding player award from the prince.

He then moved off in a motorcade back to Government House before the post-game traffic jam formed outside the stadium.

Mrs. Loeb said the prince showed keen interest in the game—asking about retired Rider great Russ Jackson, and the technicalities of the Canadian sport.

Midway through the half the party was served drinks. The prince chose the orange juice over the cola.

He looked weary after his long day's travel from London via Toronto.

The Prince arrived in Ottawa on a Canadian Forces Cosmopolitan aircraft after transferring at Toronto from a regular Air

Canada flight.

He looked tanned on arrival, dressed in brown suit, blue shirt and colorful wide tie.

He had flown with a staff of five in the first class section of the Air Canada jet.

He was greeted during a 10-minute stopover in Toronto by Ontario Lt.-Gov. Ross MacDonald.

Friday the prince will visit Parliament, the National Press Club and a garden party and state dinner at Government House.

He leaves for Frobisher Bay, N.W.T. Saturday, where he meets the rest of the Royal Family Sunday for a tour of the territories.

Youth centres are found across Canada

By JEAN SHARP

One of the ways in which the generation gap shows is in services for the young.

Today's 13- to 25-year-olds distrust the formality, questions and attitudes at an established aid agency. Those agencies in many cases are bound by the red tape that ties up their money, by laws they cannot bend and occasionally by unsympathetic staff attitudes.

New-style services are appearing to fill the gap. They are drop-in centres, soup kitchens, crash pads, information centres, clinics, temporary homes.

They are geared to help young people in all kinds of ways, including trouble with drugs. They are geared to help young people in no particular trouble, but in particular need of a bed, a bath and perhaps a job.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press indicates the services cannot be neatly compartmentalized. They arise out of need and do what they can. A grapevine among the young makes them known and even ties them in a loose sort of network.

TAKE TO THE ROAD

The network is important because of the thousands of young people taking to the road, especially during the summer. Some have run away, some are looking for work, some want to see the country or "find themselves."

Winnipeg estimates vary from 10,000 to 50,000 on the number of transient youth who will go through the city this summer. A welfare planning council survey done last year indicates the travellers spend an average of 22 days in the city.

A Halifax transient centre set up by a youth society provided accommodation for 519 people in the summer of 1969. Average age was 18, but the range was from nine to 30. The society is looking for funds this year.

These young strangers in such numbers are a source of worry to many towns. A Canadian Welfare Council report on transient youth suggests it often arises from the fact that they are not indigent vagrants in the traditional sense. It says many are middle class, could work, but see no reason why they should.

The result is often a resistance to providing help in any but unacceptable form, and sometimes semi-official harassment.

An editorial in the Barrie Examiner expresses what some people in that Ontario resort town felt when a local youth group, Embryo, asked the town council for part-time use of a town recreation building as a drop-in centre.

COMPROMISE ASKED

"Local adults... fear that a drop-in centre would be an invitation to transient youth to stop over in Barrie on their journeys to wherever it is that young people with their shaggy hair and sleeping bags are going."

It suggests council should find a compromise with local young people.

A report from Banff, Alta., says the town has made no provision for the young people who flood there. They sleep in the woods or anywhere else they can. The report says shoplifting reached record levels last summer and attributes it to young transients stealing food.

One spot in Banff where these young people are made welcome is in the Unsquare Cellar in Rundle United Church. A drop-in centre, it recorded 21,396 visits last summer. It has an $8,000 subsidy from the national United Church of Canada.

In some areas, community support is coming.

Vancouver's Cool-Aid is described by Ray Chouinard, who runs it, as a social action centre. It offers temporary housing, meals, a list of permanent accommodation, a clinic. Mr. Chouinard says they hope to expand their new co-operative housing scheme and medical clinics and eventually to open a shop to sell things made by youth in the drop-out culture.

After a history of efforts to close it down, Cool-Aid now has a federal grant promised and the city is subsidizing similar efforts by established organizations.

TOWNSPEOPLE HELP

Sudbury's Thing began with a meeting of interested people called to form a committee to provide a hostel and youth centre. The mine-mill union has provided a barrack at a recreation area five miles out of the Ontario city for transient youth, and a downtown church has provided the property for a youth centre. Townspeople are working with both.

The Calgary Youth Aid Centre Society will operate a summer youth hostel in a church hall. They have $16,000 from the city, the province and private organizations. Director Bill Dixon says it is designed for 75 boys and 25 girls but may take 300 at times "if nobody complains."

In common with most others, the hostel will have counselling available for people who want help, and rules against drugs or alcohol on the premises.

The House of Zodiac has been running in Regina since May. Like many such centres, they move people on after three days. They offer food and bare mattresses at no charge, have relied on donated food and money and are hoping for provincial help.

In Ottawa the mayor's committee on youth runs a hostel in a school gym. It hopes to repeat last year's feed-in centre this summer. The centre charged 60 cents a meal and was reimbursed under Ontario welfare legislation for eaters who couldn't pay.

MANY TURNED AWAY

The Central Y in Toronto has a 68-bed Stop-Over that offers bed, breakfast and a shower for 25 cents. John Britton, who runs it, says he was turning away 30 people a night in June. In nine days 285 different people slept there.

The same sort of setup is being organized by the YWCA in Edmonton with help from the province.

Margaret Hart of the national YWCA in Toronto says the Ys want counselling services available in such hostels, and feel it might be useful to have legal and medical help on tap. They have had to deal with vagrancy and trespassing charges, drug charges, the possibility of violence, and a tangle of welfare and juvenile legislation.

"Too often young people who are under age have been returned home. We've uncovered some serious problems that mean returning them home is not the answer."

"That's one of the reasons we need back-up services. It's really tough for some of these kids to find out what their status is."

Treatment of Polyps Dependent on Cause

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Q—What causes nasal polyps? Could they cause headaches? How can they be prevented? What treatment is recommended?

A—Polyps are usually associated with chronic sinusitis, allergic rhinitis or cystic fibrosis. Often a combination of these is present. They may cause headaches but there are so many other possible causes that a thorough diagnostic search should be made.

If the cause of the polyps can be identified the treatment should be directed toward its elimination. Since these grape-like benign tumors may obstruct the nasal passages they should be removed. If they recur after repeated operations, it may be necessary to remove the entire mucous lining of the involved sinus.

A—This drug is not related to cortisone. Since it contains a barbiturate, it may be habit forming. Its side effects include nausea, abdominal discomfort, drowsiness, dizziness, sweating and headache.

Q—I am a man, 70. I have been taking pancreatin and am now taking Festal which my doctor says is better. He also said that these drugs would not harm me even if I took more than I needed. Why, then, aren't these digestive preparations available without a prescription?

A—They are.

Visiting Mr. and Mrs. Jack O'Brien were their daughter, Mrs. Larry Kerr, Mr. Kerr, Birtchton, and their daughter, Miss Bonnie O'Brien, a student nurse in Montreal.

Mrs. K. N. McIver and Mr. K. W. McIver were visiting Mrs. McIver's sister, Mrs. E. Johnson of Clapham.

Mrs. Allan Matheson and Mrs. Gilbert Wintle were among those attending the annual convention of the Women's Institute, held at Stuart Hall, Macdonald College, Ste. Anne de Bellevue.

Q—My daughter, 15, has two polyps at the opening of her rectum. Is surgery the only treatment?

A—In this location a polyp may become malignant but, since this is not as common as was once thought, some authorities advise withholding operation unless the tumor is more than one centimeter in diameter; its surface is rough or it bleeds. If it is removed, a microscopic examination of the specimen should be made to rule out malignant change.

Q—My doctor says I have a polyp on my cervix. Would it cause a mucous discharge? What caused it? Should it be removed? If so, will it return?

A—A cervical polyp may cause a slight mucous or blood-tinged discharge. The cause is unknown. It should be removed and examined microscopically. If it is completely removed, recurrence is rare.

Q—I am taking Pavabid for hardening of my arteries. Is this drug related to cortisone? Is it habit forming? Will it have any bad side effects if taken for a long time?

Derby Line first grade teacher honored after 28 years service

DERBY LINE — Mrs. Ulford (Margaret) Cargill, a beloved first grade teacher here at the Derby Line Elementary School for 28 years retired this year, with the closing of the school year and June 21, Mrs. Cargill was guest of honor at an Open House held in the vestry of the Universalist Church.

It was an informal affair, the good number attending were greeted at the door by Miss Claire Chenette and all signed the guest book.

Mrs. Cargill was presented with a corsage of miniature white carnations and her husband, with a carnation boutonniere.

A short program took place with Harvey Gardyne paying tribute to a beloved teacher and person, he presented her with a gift which, when she opened, assisted by a number of her little folks, revealed an engraved silver tea service from people of the Town of Derby School.

There were telegrams from her daughter, Judith, Mrs. Richard Phillips, son, David, and their families, cards and other gifts, including a gift of perfume from a group of her former students, still in elementary school.

Mrs. Doris Lewis read an item from the Prophets which fitted Mrs. Cargill and her work over the years.

With deep feelings of emotion, Mrs. Cargill thanked everyone for their thoughtfulness shown in so many ways, making brief reference to her years of teaching and concluded by reading a poem, A Child Goes Forth.

Refreshments were served from a table centered with a cake, made and decorated by Mrs. Benoit Blais, and iced in white with green leaves and yellow roses to represent a pedestal on which reposed an open book, inscribed with the name, Margaret Cargill and the years 1942-1970. The initial cut was made by Mrs. Cargill, the open book cake removed to be kept as a souvenir for awhile, then cut and served by Mrs. Raymond (Christina Darby) Routhier, Miss Leslie Gardyne presided at the punch bowl. The hostesses were parents and friends from the Derby area.

Good wishes were extended to Mrs. Cargill that she and Mr. Cargill may have good health to enjoy to the fullest their retirement years and do things they have been looking forward to do together.

Cookshire

Recent guests of Mrs. Clarence Wilson were Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Wickwire, Ottawa.

Recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hamilton were Mr. and Mrs. S. Rough, Sutton, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fuller and Geoffrey, Red Wing, Minn., Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Hamilton, Mrs. J. R. Sutherland, St. Lambert, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Miller, Baie Comeau.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Friendship and Mr. Norman Friendship, Burlington, Ont., have returned home, called here by the sudden death of Mrs. Friendship's father, Mr. A. W. Wheeler.

A good representation of parents, pupils and friends from Cookshire attended the joint congregational Sunday School picnic, held at Clinton French's farm at North River, Sunday afternoon, June 21. The children had a good time, and all reported an enjoyable outing for the Eaton Valley Pastoral Charge.

On June 26 Mr. Robert Burns, Island Brook, conducted both services at the regular hours, 9:30 a.m. in Birtchton and 11 a.m. in Sawyerville. There will be combined services each Sunday during July, with a visiting speaker, the schedule will be, July 5, Sawyerville, 10:30 a.m.; July 12, Birtchton, at 9:30 a.m.; July 19, Sawyerville at 10:30 a.m.; July 26, Birtchton, at 9:30 a.m. Mr. Ball will conduct Communion Service on Aug. 2 at Birtchton at 9:30 and Sawyerville at 11 a.m.

Family honors Hatley Girl on 16th birthday

HATLEY — Mr. and Mrs. Albert Nutbrown entertained several friends of their second daughter, Isabel, on the occasion of her 16th birthday at their home on the Compton Road.

Isabel had attended the Folkmass Service on the common with her father and then had accompanied him to Sherbrooke to get her sister, Judy. On arriving home she was surprised to find several of her school friends gathered to help her celebrate her birthday.

Games were enjoyed also a sing song. Refreshments were served by Mr. and Mrs. Nutbrown and Judy and Heather. Isabel was the recipient of several gifts and cards and currency for which she thanked everyone.

Festival Folkmass held on Hatley Village Common

HATLEY — Approximately 400 people from Hatley and surrounding towns gathered at the village Common on Sunday afternoon, June 21, when a Festival Folkmass was celebrated with the help of the Island City Singers.

The service was in charge of Rev. R. S. Jervis-Read, in charge of the Anglican Parish of Hatley, during Canon H.C. Denton's illness, and the Rev. James Brooks of the Hatley United Church. The Island City Singers under the direction of Donald Patriquin were in charge of the singing.

Nearly 200 partook of the reciprocal communion and the offertory was received by four young boys, Morgan Bowen, David Hartwell, Mitchell Miller and Lyle Roarke.

The Island City Singers arrived from their homes in Montreal around noon and were served dinner under the trees on the common by the Sunday School teachers, prior to the service at 2 p.m.

The service in Hatley brings to an end a year and a half of public performance of the folkmass by the choir and instrumentalists to congregations in all parts of Canada, whom they have reached by the media of television and radio as well as by a large number of personal appearances.

Scotstown's festival is where it's at

SCOTSTOWN FESTIVAL PRINCESSES Record Photo Service

By PRESTON GURD

SCOTSTOWN — Spirits undampened by occasional drizzle, hundreds joined the festivities here yesterday as Scotstown inaugurated its first ever Summer Festival.

Festival organizer Claude Robidas said he was well pleased with the way things went, adding that the turnout was "even better than we had hoped."

Scheduled to run until Sunday night, the festival kicked off yesterday at the English High School with a civic reception where the assorted dignitaries got to know each other over a glass or two of wine.

After a massive Turkey dinner in St. Paul's Church Hall, the seven duchesses, one of whom will be chosen Miss Tourism on Sunday, were paraded before the town folk aboard a fire truck.

Highlight of the evening was an exhibition baseball game that revived memories of grade two scrub ball, in which the CJRS oddballs neatly defeated an ill-assorted collection of aldermen 5-2, after an exhibition that would have caused any devotee of fielding errors to collapse in paroxysms of glee.

Festival-goers got their first look at the exhibitions of paintings and handicrafts in the convent school after the game.

Those with power to spare then headed for the church hall for an arduous session on the dance floor, to the tunes of Les Charades de CJRS.

Today's events are devoted to youth with a wide array of competitions for youngsters. At 5 p.m. an 18 team baseball tournament starts up. It will run all weekend.

At 8:30 tonight, a cast of thousands directed by Mrs. Sheila Gilbert will present the musical comedy Oliver!

On Saturday, the ball games continue until nightfall, when two plays will be presented. Le Procès de Jolot Marcoux and La Cloison. At eleven, another dance will be held on the playground, weather permitting, with the "Jales" of Lake Megantic providing the music.

Sunday sees the saturation point reached for baseball and a gala evening, following a buffet dinner. After a choral presentation, Miss Tourism will be selected, whereupon all will celebrate the result with another dance — psychedelic music and commentary being provided by CKTS' Berle Dewar.

The exhibitions, open all weekend, include offerings from four painters of renown: Reginald Dupuis of Sherbrooke, Mrs. Dawn Strathy of Montreal, Philippe Lapointe of Milan, and Frederic of Scotstown.

To rest your weary legs, head for the one-and-only Scotstown blow-your-mind, multi-colored crash pad and head-rest, created by a quintet of Scotstown youths, and composed of more or less equal parts day-glo paint, broken mirrors, fluorescent light, black-light posters, and some very fine music.

Other features include the Victoria Hunting and Fishing Club exhibit, a St. Jean Baptiste Society recruiting booth, and a fine display of handicrafts.

So head for Scotstown's first annual Summer Festival today and this weekend; you're in for a good time.

Largest peacetime troop move is on LAHR, West Germany (CP) — The most intensive movement of servicemen and their families in Canada's peacetime history is well under way.

By the time it's completed about Oct. 1, an estimated 14,000 people will have returned to Canada from West Germany and nearly double that number will have been involved in moves from one part of West Germany to another.

The shuffle is an outgrowth of Canada's decision last year to halve and reorganize its forces assigned to NATO. It has already been in progress about one month.

More than 6,600 passengers have thus far been assigned seats on aircraft heading back to Canada from this south German base, headquarters of No. 1 Air Division which officially passed out of existence Wednesday.

Other personnel, with their families, are being repatriated to Canada from the area of Soest, 400 miles north of here, headquarters of No. 4 mechanized brigade group which also is about to pass into oblivion.

Others from Soest are being transferred to Lahr, designated headquarters of the new Canadian Forces Europe Organization, combining elements of the old air division and brigade group.

MOVE 40 MILES

Finally, a sizable number of airmen are being moved from Lahr to Baden-Soellingen, 40 miles away, where the remaining three squadrons of CF-104 Starfighters will be based.

Until recently, there were three squadrons of Starfighters both here and at Baden. The six squadrons are being halved as the air division becomes No. 1 Canadian Air Group.

The brigade group, or what's left of it, will be rechristened No. 4 Canadian Mechanized Battle Group.

The total strength of the new combined force will be just under 5,500, compared with 10,000 in the individual formations which it replaces.

Originally it had been planned to move the ground force from Soest during the summer months but at the request of NATO the move was delayed until fall to allow time for a British brigade to take over from the Canadians in NATO's front line.

For those moving to Lahr from north Germany, the most acute concern by far is housing. About half of the approximately 7,000 involved will be moving into government-owned married quarters.

The remainder will have to find accommodation "on the economy," meaning commercially in and around Lahr. The problem is complicated by the fact that some German landlords will not rent accommodation through a government agent without first interviewing the prospective tenant personally. This means a 400-mile scouting journey from Soest to Lahr for the servicemen concerned.

There also are understood to be German proprietors who refuse to lease apartments to Canadians because their other tenants fear they would be too noisy.

New hatreds flare in North Ireland

BELFAST (CP) — Rioting subsided in Northern Ireland but the religious hatred behind it flared anew Thursday with the ejection of Rev. Ian Paisley, symbol of Protestant militancy, from a session of Ulster's parliament.

Paisley, ushered from the Stormont by a sergeant-at-arms after an argument, shouted: "If you would lend me a sword, I would decapitate a few of these people before I leave."

He was ejected for ignoring repeated requests from the Speaker to resume his seat during a heated debate. The length of his suspension will be decided later by the Speaker.

Britain's 11,000-man peace-keeping force appeared to be under new orders to get tougher with rioters.

TO STUDY ARMY ROLE

The army's role in the eruptions was to be assessed by British minister of state for defence, Lord Balneil, flying here for talks with military commanders.

The major flash-point date could be July 13 when the Orangemen hold a massive parade through the tense city to celebrate a military victory over the Catholics at the Battle of the Boyne in 1690.

Northern Ireland Prime Minister James Chichester-Clark said there will be tougher measures and new policies for the troops on the use of their weapons.

The army has already said that civilians carrying guns and throwing "molotov cocktails are liable to be shot.

On the grounds that orders to the troops are confidential an army spokesman declined to say at what stage a soldier would open fire.

QUICKER ARRESTS

An officer on guard in the streets of Belfast Wednesday night said he now is under orders to make arrests at the first sign of trouble.

Heavy British troop reinforcements flown into Northern Ireland since Tuesday are believed to have contributed to keeping the streets of Belfast quiet.

Dr. Horace King, Speaker of the House of Commons in London, promised in the opening session of the new Parliament Thursday to discuss the imprisonment of Bernadette Devlin, the youngest member of Commons.

Miss Devlin, 23, is serving a six-month jail term imposed for rioting and inciting to riot in last summer's riots in Londonderry's Bogside area.

In the Catholic Republic of Ireland to the south, transport officials banned all coach tours to the north until July 19. Normally there are 14 coach tours a week.

Clampdown on liquor licences

QUEBEC (CP) — Justice Minister Jerome Choquette told the national assembly Thursday his department will not tolerate attempts at political influencing in the awarding and transferral of Quebec Liquor Board permits.

In reply to a question by Yvon Brochu (Cred.—Richmond), the minister said it was "true that crime and the underworld have infiltrated Montreal nightclubs and possibly those in Quebec City."

One of the special measures taken by Mr. Choquette to prevent political influence was to appoint Albert Tanguay as director of the QLB's investigation service.

The minister said it was his department's duty to study the situation and to clean up Montreal and Quebec City.

NEW CANDIDATE ANNOUNCED — The newly-founded Sherbrooke Party, which will contest the November 10 municipal election against the Civic Action League, last night announced that local plumbing contractor Florian Roy will be its candidate for the South Ward in the upcoming vote. Mr. Roy is the fifth candidate so far on the SP slate, and party leader Marcel Savard said the rest of the candidates will be announced after Labor Day.

Britain to resume arms shipments to South Africa

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Heath disregarded Opposition Labor warnings and served notice Thursday that Britain intends fulfilling "the purposes of the Simonstown Agreement," apparently by cancelling the ban on arms sales to South Africa.

But Heath insisted at the same time that "this in no way means that we condone racist practices" and he promised the House of Commons a full statement after an examination of the controversial issue.

The leader of the new Conservative government spoke after defeated Labor prime minister Harold Wilson had warned on behalf of the Labor opposition that arms sales to the apartheid (racial segregationist) republic would break up the 30-nation Commonwealth.

These exchanges took place at the start of a Commons debate on the speech from the throne opening the first session of the new Parliament.

Earlier Thursday, Foreign Minister Hilgard Muller of South Africa had flown home highly satisfied with what he said had been "a very useful discussion" with Foreign Secretary Sir Alec Douglas-Home on arms and other questions.

Heath told the Commons: "There must also be a recognition that we have vital defence interests in South Africa which we cannot ignore."

Informants said the South African shopping list, involving warships, navy aircraft, a rocket and possibly a radar system, will be submitted through diplomatic channels for Britain's consideration.

Business faces squeeze

As the second half of 1970 gets underway there is the usual talk of business prospects for the balance of the year, and this year the mixture of optimism and pessimism is more pronounced than usual.

Some observers claim that the recent rally in the stock market following its precipitous fall indicates that the worst of the business slowdown is past in the United States and that things will soon pick up in Canada.

But one American industrialist, who has shown uncanny accuracy in his forecasts in the past, is not so sanguine. Paul Codman Cabot, whose predictions about the U.S. economy have turned out to be remarkably accurate, feels there is still more bad news to come. In an interview Mr. Cabot declared:

"I think some of these economists are full of bull with their standard talk about a pickup in the second half (of 1970). I don't see it. I'll bet two to one the second half is going to be worse than the first half for corporate earnings. We see reports for the first quarter with sales up but profits down. Well, what happens when sales go down too? With costs escalating there's got to be a terrible squeeze on profits. Much worse than what we've seen yet."

Company reports indicate that in Canada as in the United States, corporate profits on the whole have been badly cut. There have been a few notable exceptions — banks, for example, whose earnings were up in the first half of fiscal 1970.

However, these are the exceptions. If corporate earnings continue to fall and if wages continue to rise — as they do with every new labor agreement signed — the squeeze for Canada in the next year may be hard indeed.

Mail service stoppages

Following a brief truce over the Dominion Day holiday, a lull decreed by the posties themselves so they would not lose their holiday pay, Canadians may expect a resumption of the rotating strikes which have been playing hob with the postal service.

Just what the postal workers hope to accomplish by these one-day stoppages is uncertain but of one thing, they may be sure — they are not strengthening their cause with the Canadian people.

The public is being frustrated and inconvenienced over the excessive delays in delivering the mail, first class articles often taking a week to be delivered in the same postal area.

A statement by Postmaster General Kierans that the volume of post office business is now back to the 1966 level indicates that the people are finding a partial substitute for what was once regarded as an essential service. Telephone, telegraph and transportation companies are reporting increases in traffic.

Should the trend become firmly established across the country, the reduced volume of business reported by Mr. Kierans should become permanent, resulting in a reduction of staff, estimated at 4,100 as the post office seeks to curb the mounting deficit caused by the scattered stoppages.

Mr. Kierans has indicated the possibility of suspending postal services entirely if the strikes continue, a course of action that may prove best in the long run.

"Good grief! What kind of example are we gonna set — same again, son — for our young . . .?"

THE ART BUCHWALD COLUMN

WASHINGTON — The Democrats won't say it publicly, but they're not too happy about the Republicans stealing the Fourth of July. While the "Honor America Day" celebration in Washington has been advertised as nonpartisan, any professional politician knows that when the American public sees Billy Graham, Bob Hope and Lawrence Welk on the platform, the Nixon Administration will be the only ones enjoying the fireworks.

An official of the Democratic National Committee said, "I can't blame the Republicans for what they've done. The Fourth of July has been around for a long time, and we never thought to do anything with it. All we ever considered it was just a national holiday."

"But if you believe the Republicans stole the Fourth of July, why did the Democrats join the celebration committee?"

"The Republicans sandbagged us . . . They invited us to join and had we refused, it would have looked as if we were spitting on Mom's apple pie. How can any politician in this country come out against the Fourth of July?"

"What makes you think the Republicans will try to cash in on the Fourth of July?"

"Nothing I can put my finger on, but the other day I was up at the Capitol for a flag-raising ceremony and after the U.S. Marine Band played, 'The Star Spangled Banner,' I overheard Congressman Gerry Ford whisper to Sen. Hugh Scott, 'They're playing our song.'"

"It sounds like you did get sandbagged," I said.

"We can't do anything about the Fourth of July any more."

How Republicans stole Christmas

he said sadly. "But what we're starting to worry about is Christmas."

"You don't think the Republicans would steal Christmas?" I said aghast.

"It's in the works already. Bing Crosby and Dr. Norman Vincent Peale have been asked to head the 'Keep Christmas in America' committee, which is supposed to bring Americans together on Christmas morning."

"But it's too cold to hold a rally on the Washington Mall on Christmas morning," I protested.

"This one will be on television. The plan is to have Martha Mitchell and Atty. Gen. Mitchell read from 'A Christmas Carol,' and David Eisenhower has agreed to play Tiny Tim. To make it bipartisan, they've asked the Democrats to supply someone to play Scrooge."

"I can't believe it."

"You can't, huh? Then why has Spiro Agnew been secretly rehearsing 'Silent Night' with the Mormon Tabernacle Choir?"

"I didn't know that."

We also have confirmation that the Walt Disney people are building a huge manger at the winter House in Key Biscayne, where the President is expected to speak."

"The way you describe it, this could even be bigger than 'Honor America Day.'"

"If the Republicans grab both the Fourth of July and Christmas," my informant said, "it's going to be tough for the Democrats to ever come back."

"Isn't there some way you can get the Republicans to give you equal time, if for no other reason than to preserve the two-party system?"

"They've offered us equal time: They said we could have New Year's Day . . . opposite the Rose Bowl Game."

MATTER OF FACT JOSEPH ALSOP

Cambodia

WASHINGTON — The Cambodian venture has crossed rather more than two enemy divisions off the list of worries of the South Vietnamese and American commanders in the lower, more populous half of South Vietnam. An itemized list is worth giving.

ITEM: Two Vietnamese regiments that were threatening both III and IV Corps from the Parrot's Beak base just inside Cambodia, were caught at the very outset by the ARVN attack, and were largely destroyed. They have not since operated as organized units, though isolated parties of their troops undoubtedly survived.

ITEM: Two more regiments that were operating deep inside South Vietnam, in the thinly populated, jungle-covered provinces of Northern III Corps, have now withdrawn across the Cambodian border. These units of the enemy's 5th Division probably had to pull out for want of supply.

ITEM: Two further North Vietnamese regiments that were trying, rather unsuccessfully, to operate in the western delta have also been pulled back, again because of want of supply. Thus the 18-C Regiment, hanging on in the Seven Mountains region of Chau Duc Province, in IV Corps, is the only remaining North Vietnamese unit of regimental size in either III or IV Corps. And it is in very sorry condition.

Order of battle changes always seem tedious, on paper. Yet these are in truth dramatic developments, threatening the deepest kind of trouble for the enemy's whole remaining military-political structure in the richest and most populous part of South Vietnam.

That structure was already gravely weakened before the Cambodian operation. Its need for big unit support was therefore more urgent than ever. But because of the Cambodian operation, it has now been deprived of just about all the big-unit support that it still enjoyed.

Hence the whole structure should be extra-vulnerable to the methodical mopping up operation in III and IV Corps that is the logical sequel to the attack on the Cambodian sanctuaries. One must wait to see what results the mopping up produces, in July and August.

But there is an excellent chance that another very great change will result from the destruction of the huge supply-accumulations in the Cambodian sanctuaries, plus this mopping up that now lies ahead. There is an excellent chance, in fact, that all American ground forces can be withdrawn from III Corps before the end of this year, as happened in IV Corps some time ago.

It is hard to imagine better proof of success than the total Vietnamization of the most sensitive and important part of South Vietnam, III Corps, please remember, has Saigon in the middle of it, and the defense of III Corps used to require the presence of about four U.S. divisions, in addition to the ARVN forces under Gen. Do Cao Tri.

In some sense, of course, what has been taken from Peter is now paying Paul. In other words, the four North Vietnamese regiments which pulled out of III and IV Corps because of the attack on the sanctuaries are now in Cambodia and are making some trouble there.

But with respect to the trouble in Cambodia, a warning is clearly in order. The northeastern corner of Cambodia is the only region the North Vietnamese really control; and even here, a few Cambodian battalions are still holding on, with considerable guts, in the so-called Green Triangle.

Throughout the rest of Cambodia, headline-seeking war is being practiced by Hanoi's High Command, with one eye on the U.S. Senate and the other on the more jittery part of the population of Phnom Penh. Highway One, leading from Saigon to Phnom Penh, has been reported cut half a dozen times, for instance. But mostly, this has amounted to a couple of trees thrown down across the road. The regular ARVN convoys to Phnom Penh have never once been halted or attacked, at least to date.

Outside the northeast corner, moreover, the North Vietnamese forces in Cambodia have never pressed an attack, as yet, when they met with real resistance. And they have never failed to retreat, either, when they were subjected to real pressure by the South Vietnamese or Cambodians. These facts suggest propitious circumstances for the new roles one can eventually expect both ARVN and the Thai forces to play in Cambodia.

As to the famous new supply line into Cambodia that the North Vietnamese are said to have organized, it is three-quarters mythical. To begin with, it is merely an extension of the Laos trails; and the Laos trails will be all but inoperable until the monsoon ends next November.

To go on with, a mere extension of the Laos trails can never replace the sea-borne supplies, brought in through Sihanoukville and other Cambodian coastal towns, that used to meet the enemy's entire needs in all of III and IV Corps. In sum, Hanoi now has some pretty severe headaches, even though we have a few of our own, too.

Mackasey's socialistic plan

The first days after the White Paper on taxation were pleasant for Finance Minister Benson.

Initial wire stories, columns, and solicited comments were usually favorable or, at least, cautious.

The winds of resistance began to stir after several weeks and didn't reach gale force until two months after the unveiling.

I recall this record because of the warm, even generous response there has been in the press, especially editorially, to the Mackasey White Paper on Unemployment Insurance. Will it gradually come under more attack; will a defensive battle and concessions ensue?

Remember that the Mackasey proposals affect just as many people, if not more, than the taxation proposals. Granted, they do not bite as hard on the very high income earners but the implications for middle-income employees (who have not been contributing to unemployment insurance) are remarkably alike some raised by the tax reforms.

For example, a major theme of tax protesters has been that the prudent, frugal, responsible, educated middleclass — "the backbone of Canada" as so many of Mr. Benson's correspondents put it — are going to suffer heavier taxes now on income and later their property and estate transactions.

Well, the Mackasey White Paper proposes that 235,000 teachers and 437,000 civil servants and 50,000 nurses and 110,000 in the armed forces should now contribute to unemployment insurance. There's a large minority, probably a third, of these people who will fall in the $8,000-$15,000 range.

They'll be hit for contributions, totaling each year, $25 from '72 through '74 and then $62 from '75 on. Not much, you say. And tax deductibility for contributions eases the bite. There'll be howls and organized protest.

Mr. Mackasey believes the protest will come from three centres — most strongly from the teachers; secondly, from the professional groups in the civil services, especially those in the provincial services; and thirdly, from the industries with a high seasonal fluctuation such as construction, logging, and sawmilling.

There seem to be three, really imaginative items in the proposals. One, the "experience-rating" of employers, will escalate their contributions if they have a poor record in layoffs. The second bright innovation is the proposal that when unemployment rises above 4 per cent nationally the Government steps in and pays the costs of the plan. This gimmick is extended to regions. When a region's rate is over 4 per cent and exceeds the national rate by more than 1 per cent, as is the case now in the Maritimes and Quebec, then the Federal Government picks up the tab for extra benefits.

The third item has less ingenuity, but it promises the best of all the changes. Applicants for benefits will move through "phases" in the weeks after they lose work and apply for benefits. At least twice in these phases and, hopefully more often, each beneficiary will be interviewed, essentially to help place him in work or to dovetail him into manpower training programs, but also to prevent abuses of the system.

The Mackasey paper is much easier to understand than Benson's. The subject, of course, is not so complicated. The reasoning in support of each aspect of the proposal is simply stated. For example, here are the arguments marshalled to justify bringing teachers, etc., into the plan.

"Technological developments are making the Government take a new perspective regarding the aims and usefulness of unemployment insurance. In the 70s it is fully expected that temporary unemployment will be a possibility for a broader spectrum of the Canadian workforce than ever before.

" . . . economic and psychological insecurity is now facing not only the skilled and semiskilled workers, but also the clerks and professionals. For example: Public servants are finding themselves declared redundant; teachers are discovering in some parts of the country that they are in 'surplus supply.' . . . These groups have been considered to be generally immune from the risks of unemployment. Today, however, it is clear that this is no longer the case. Administrative obstacles have been removed by computerization, and everyone, to a greater extent than ever before, is vulnerable to a temporary interruption of earnings."

If teachers, etc., don't care for these arguments about potential job insecurity, the White Paper appeals more broadly.

"Universality of coverage, which will add 1,160,000 members to the plan, in some respects calls upon the good will and responsibility of more fortunate, better-placed Canadians toward those who, through lack of education and opportunity, are in less secure occupations."

" . . . For those who are working and secure in their jobs, for those who have a car, a house, and the chance to send their children to college, the look of despair on the face of a man without adequate income is unknown.

"It is real, nonetheless. For the 4 million poor of this country, over half of whom are working poor, there is always the spectre of unemployment."

After the twin arguments of insecurity for all and compassion, the paper stresses the merit of the increased stability in the economy which will come from a more thorough, integrated system of benefits, vocational counseling, job-training mobility aids and regional extensions in benefits.

The new plan is much more comprehensive than the old. So much so that I can't forbear from using a dreadful old cliché.

It is more "socialistic" than what it will supersede.

Centre Maria-Goretti — a home away from home

Susan Lacroix displays her duck pin bowling prowess on one of the four lanes, while Maureen and assistant director Father Geoffrons keep score. The girls take turns setting up the pins for each other, and the reporter was told volunteers for the job abound when Susan is playing. It seems the ball is unimpressed with the stylistic launch it receives from her, and generally meanders off into the gutter for want of a better direction in which to travel.

By GERRY FLAHERTY
(Record Staff Reporter)

MONTREAL — It's an imposing five storey structure at the corner of Cote St. Catherine Road and Decelles Avenue in the Cote des Neiges area of Montreal's west end called the Centre Maria-Goretti. And since June 1, it has been home for two former Sherbrooke girls, Maureen and Susan Lacroix.

Established in 1953, the Centre is designed to aid more than 300 young working girls from outside of Montreal while they become adjusted to living in Canada's metropolis.

The apostolic and social organization provides young women between the ages of 18 and 28, with security, services, and advice and direction if required. The Centre Maria-Goretti is owned by the Holy Cross Fathers, and is operated by the Sisters of St. Joan of Arc (Ottawa).

The Centre is not for purposes of rehabilitation, convalescence, or a home for unwed mothers. The girls at the Centre must prove they are in good health and have definite and permanent employment before they are admitted.

For Maureen and Susan Lacroix, the Centre is proving to be an excellent launching pad for an active life in la grande ville. For $8 each per week, they are able to enjoy the privacy of a double room, the companionship of numerous other young women in a similar situation and the facilities of an ultra-modern Centre well located for persons employed in the downtown area.

As Sister Alma, directress, explained to The Record last Sunday, it's the same old song. Girls who are unaccustomed to the metropolitan expanse which is Montreal do not feel they can wisely sign an apartment lease for a year on short notice.

So many questions must be answered. What is the neighbourhood like? Can the suggested rent be afforded? Is it adjacent to a rapid bus or metro line to work? If an apartment has to be shared, is it intelligent to advertise the fact in the classified ads of large urban dailies? Is the particular tourist home as reputable as it might appear at first glance?

These are some of the ponderables which Maureen, 21, and Susan, 19, had to consider after having accepted positions with Domtar effective June 1.

They were fortunate in that their aunt, Mrs. Celestine Gratton, is a long-time resident of the Cote des Neiges area and well aware of the services rendered by the Centre Maria-Goretti to the Montreal Urban Community. They accepted her recommendation and have no regrets to this moment.

Maureen and Susan are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Lacroix, and the family resides at 572 Boisjoli Street. Other children include Joanne, 17, Jill, 14, Michael, 12, and Paul, 7. The family has lived in Sherbrooke for 21 years, according to Celestine Lacroix.

and her husband is employed as a sales representative with the Canadian International Paper Company.

Susan is a secretary with Domtar's purchasing department in Montreal, while Maureen's position entails some secretarial and some public relations activity.

Ten years ago Maureen's department would have been known as "personnel", but with intricate inter-corporate titles in abundance today, it is referred to as "manpower organizational development". Take the first letter to each of the three words and you've got MOD so employees affectionately call members of Maureen's section the MOD SQUAD.

THE CENTRE ITSELF

Under the direction of Sister Alma, the Centre employs six other St. Joan of Arc sisters and a lay staff of 30 persons. Since the institution is owned by the Holy Cross Fathers, two members of that order also serve its residents.

The priests are Father Edmour Geoffrons and Father Potras. Father Geoffrons is undoubtedly concerned with the general operation of the Centre, being its assistant director, but the primary work of the two men involves providing religious services and general counselling for those who feel so inclined.

Although the Centre welcomes those who are of varied religious and ethnic backgrounds, daily Roman Catholic services such as mass and confession are available.

In preparation for the position which she has held for six years, Sister Alma received special training within her order and studied psychology and related subjects at the University of Ottawa.

An amiable person who is as well perfectly bilingual, Sister Alma displayed what can only be described as exuberance when she discussed with The Record the contribution the Centre makes to the urban living habits of so many young women.

All well and good, the reporter thought to himself, but who is footing the bill for all of this? For the Centre has an attractive lounge, a chapel, both English and French television rooms, a sun deck, a tennis court which doubles as a skating rink during the winter months, several lounges, a library, a sewing centre, laundromat facilities on each floor, not to mention the cafeteria where residents may purchase meals at modest prices.

The list of facilities is almost endless. In the lower level of the Centre, there is a snack bar complex which includes ping-pong tables and four bowling alleys. "You can still even get a cup of coffee for 10 cents," Sister Malo said.

"Okay, Sister Malo", I asked, "who is paying for the upkeep of the institution and what type of certification has been issued by either the provincial or municipal government?" She referred me to Father Geoffrons since the Holy Cross Fathers own both the property and the physical assets.

"During the ten year period following the opening of the Centre in 1953, we walked a financial tightrope", Father Geoffrons confessed. "But contributions from our order and numerous friends kept the operation solvent."

"Of late, however, the Centre has been operating at a break-even level so our immediate financial condition is quite bearable," he said.

The Centre receives no monetary assistance from the Federated Appeal of Greater Montreal's social welfare agencies. Yet it is accredited, possessing a permit issued by the City of Montreal.

Intrigued by this imaginatively operated Centre, the reporter quizzed Father Geoffrons as to his order — the Holy Cross Fathers. Basically involved in teaching and missionary activities, the order has been active in both Canada and the United States since the mid-nineteenth century.

Father mentioned, for example, that in Montreal the order has directed the liberal arts College St. Laurent for many years. The College even served as the order's motherhouse, but, since the inception of the CEGEP program, the Holy Cross Fathers are only responsible for its general administration.

"We do have a very active Holy Cross group in the United States", he added quickly. And the reporter, although being of Irish descent, ignored Father Geoffrons' lure. "We operate a university in Indiana," he continued, "you may have heard of it, Notre Dame?"

The Centre Maria-Goretti has nothing to worry about, I thought instinctively, if its owners are of the same order which administers the University of Notre Dame. For it exemplifies all-round ability, academic excellence coupled with the immortal exploits of its "Fighting Irish" football team — the favorite of American citizens ranging from presidents and senators to New York City cab drivers.

And concerning former Sherbrookers Maureen and Susan Lacroix, the Centre is providing a vital sociological bridge from one geographic lifestyle to another.

Even if difficulties might arise due to new positions of employment, they have a veritable home away from home which abounds with new friends and the ever-present option of advice from the likes of Sister Malo and Father Geoffrons to bolster temporarily sagging spirits.

ET residents seem to be taking over the Centre, as Maureen and Susan, left, recall old times with two recent arrivals in the snack-bar - recreation complex.

Women's groups in the news

LENNOXVILLE Q.W.I.
The regular monthly meeting of the Lennoxville Branch QWI was held recently in the town hall club room, with the president, Mrs. Sterling Parker in the chair.

Mr. Cameron Rodgers, of the Galt Regional School was guest speaker, his topic was the several forms of pollution. In fact, the next generation will not be able to lead a good life unless something is done to come to grips with the present situation.

Mr. Rodgers is working on a project with his grades at the school, and he pointed out that Bishop's University is also trying to get the local townsmen involved in this matter.

Consumers may help by not buying goods in non-dispensable material, such as non-returnable glass bottles, cans with aluminum covering, such as beer cans, also, some plastic containers. Watch the phosphate content of the detergents you use, and in using pesticides, make sure there is no DDT present in them. This pollutant is found even in Arctic waters, as it never breaks down, and is the cause of death of many birds and animals.

Look into the disposal of the local sewage, which is mostly dumped raw into the St. Francis, providing the risk of a typhoid epidemic. This very urgent and thoughtful talk was most interesting to both members and visitors.

Two very pretty crocheted mats made by members were chosen to send to the FWIC Convention to help defray expenses. The new programs were given out. Miss Kathleen Alto reported that she and her committee had prepared the tags for the School Fair.

Education: Mrs. Marion Porter read an article on the new Minister of Education Welfare and Health, Mrs. George Povey read an article pointing out that fifty per cent of all diseases were caused by some form of pollution. It was decided to start a travelling apron in aid of the general fund and Mrs. Porter undertook to have it ready for the July meeting. Mrs. Hugh Wallace gave sewing hints and urged for an entry for the Provincial handicraft competition.

Mrs. Lewis Eager gave a full account of the County Meeting Delegates chosen from the Branch to attend the Provincial Convention are Mrs. Lewis Eager and Mrs. Hugh L. Wallace. Members were also told of Hatley Centre's invitation to join them Thursday, June 25th and go by bus for the day to Macdonald College to attend the convention.

At the next meeting, which will be held as usual in the Club Room, members are asked to gather and go to the Grace Christian Home to entertain the inmates to tea and light entertainment.

GEORGE ERIC, 1 year old chosen son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Leith, Irvine, Alberta. Grandson of Mrs. R. Leith, Ottawa, Ontario, and Mr. and Mrs. C. McGillivray, Averb's Cliff, Quebec. Great-grandson of Mrs. G. Wright, Inverness, P.Q.

Alexandra Rebekah Lodge initiates 3 new members

BURY — Alexandra Rebekah Lodge, No. 22, held a special meeting on June 19 for the purpose of initiating three new members, Sister Helen Groom of Canterbury, Sister Genevieve Henderson and Sister Elizabeth Patry, both of Scottown, making a total of 11 new members since September, and one by transfer. After the meeting, lunch was served and a social hour enjoyed.

Brother Donald R. Smith, for obtaining at least three new members.
A good quantity of used postage stamps was sent to Sister Gertrude Hovle for the Red Cross. Proceeds from the sale of which help is provided diabetic and speech therapy services, glasses, for less privileged children.
Some of the members have subscribed to the Quebec Odd Fellow's Bulletin, and items from it are read in lodge from time to time.
Sister Grace MacLeod was the delegate to the Rebekah Assembly Sessions held in Sherbrooke and gave a fine report. Each member contributed to the Exchange Table. Four members attended the Sessions, and four attended the joint Church and Memorial Service held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in Sherbrooke the following day.

The Sisters of Alexandra are working with the Brothers of Lewis Lodge, No. 53, of Scottown to make a float for the annual July 1 celebration taking place in Bury.
Sisters Elvira Cathcart, Winifred Dougherty, Clara Atkins and Grace MacLeod, assisted by Mrs. Irene Fisher held a memorial service at the Bury Cemetery for departed members, and placed flowers on their graves. They then divided into groups and placed flowers on members' graves in cemeteries in Gould, Bown, Brookbury and Cookshire.

A cabinet to hold the lodge regalia was made and donated by Mr. Peter Matheson, East Angus, son of Sister Lottie Matheson.
A series of card parties were held in the Legion Hut, and the proceeds were very gratifying.
Three of the members, Sister Grace MacLeod, Brother John Morrison, and Brother Prentice Jacklin are members of the Go-Get-It Club for obtaining new members. Sister MacLeod has also obtained a certificate from the Sovereign Grand Master.

Jolly Twelve enjoys tea, social hour

AYER'S CLIFF — Mrs. Wendall Cass was hostess for the June meeting of the Jolly Twelve Club at her home on the Fairfax Road when 500 was played at three tables. First prize was won by Mrs. John Pierrey, second prize, Mrs. Gwen True and consolation, Mrs. Ruth Waite.
A salad tea was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. K. Kennedy and Mrs. D. Sloggett and a social hour was enjoyed at the tea table.
Guests of the club were Mrs. Clair Libby, Mrs. S. Valliere, Mrs. W. G. Martin and Mrs. Ruth Waite.

Bridal showers

Miss Marie-France Beaudoin of Sherbrooke, on coming to pick up a wedding gift, was surprised to find friends, all former residents of the YWCA, awaiting her at the home of the Misses Pam and Pauline Goodenough, Montreal St., on Thursday evening, June 25.
Miss Pam Goodenough met her at the door and presented her with a corsage of small kitchen utensils.
She was then escorted to the living room which was attractively decorated with a bride and groom, white and blue streamers, wedding bells and umbrellas where the gifts were arranged.

The color scheme was blue and white, which was also used for the shower cake, made and decorated by Mrs. Herbert Lassenba. A delicious lunch was served. The shower was planned by Mrs. Clayton Blair, Mrs. Gordon Cairns and Mrs. Victor Bell, assisted by other ladies of the community.

After opening the assortment of beautiful gifts, the bride to be thanked all those present.
The evening was spent in social chat and reminiscences of "Y" days. Also, a game was played where the questions were pertaining to a wedding and all the answers were names of flowers.

At the end of the evening, a lunch was enjoyed by the guests.
Miss Beaudoin's marriage to Mr. Brian Kyle takes place on Saturday, July 4, 1970.

CLEVELAND — Upwards of 40 friends, neighbors and relatives gathered at the home of Mrs. Murray Lockwood to shower Miss Alma Smith, an August bride-to-be.
Upon entering, Miss Smith was escorted to a decorated chair and presented with a corsage as were Mrs. Ernest Smith, mother of the bride-to-be and Mrs. Landry, Windsor, mother of the prospective groom.

The many lovely gifts were brought in in a decorated basket, which was replenished several times, by Miss Cindy Johnston and Mrs. Murray Lockwood.
After the gifts had been opened and admired Miss Smith expressed her thanks for the delightful surprise and the many gifts.
Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. J. P. Abran and Mrs. A. Patterson of Windsor and Mrs. J. Hawker, Mrs. C. Rodenbrough, Mrs. L. Taylor and Mrs. M. Lockwood.

EAST CLIFTON — The Community Hall was the scene of a miscellaneous shower held on June 19 for Miss Carolyn Dillon, a bride to be. Miss Dillon was met at the door by Mrs. Clayton Blair, who pinned on a MONTREAL (CP) — A team of University of Montreal economists has found that the Quebec economy, though trailing Ontario, is basically sound and is expected to move ahead rapidly in the next five years.

The three-man team has concluded however, that the overall strength of the province's economy will depend directly on the growth of Montreal and the extent to which the city is attuned to innovations outside Quebec.

The team, headed by Prof. Andre Raynaud, made its study of the Quebec economic situation at the request of the federal department of regional economic expansion. Other members were Prof. Benjamin Higgins and Prof. Fernand Martin.

The study was requested last October with the aim of boosting Quebec's economic development. It now is in the hands of the federal government awaiting publication.

Mr. Raynaud said in an interview Thursday the economists concluded that technological innovations will become more important in the future economic development of Quebec, with natural resources no longer being as important as in the past.

The group concentrated its study on finding ways to accelerate Quebec's economic growth. At the same time it examined the part Toronto is playing in the development of Ontario.

—Encouragement of a certain amount of deconcentration from Montreal into satellite cities and building them into centres with populations of at least 100,000 within 10 years.

—Multiplying the impact on the provincial economy of this Montreal-area group by positive growth policies that would integrate other economic centres with the Montreal core.

Health

Mr. Samson said the legislation would still enable private insurance companies to make profits and the health insurance plan would merely amount to "a new form of taxation on the working class."

He said the services covered by the legislation, medical services, eye care and dental work performed in hospitals, were too restricted. He said chiropractic services, other forms of dental care and drugs and medication should also be covered.

Mr. Samson said the health insurance plan should be administered by private insurance companies, with the government paying policy-holders' premiums.

This would be more efficient and less costly and would preserve Quebecers' freedom to receive treatment from the doctors of their choice.

Robberies

of bungling — it was a slight problem in communications.

It worked this way. The pilot, not having a radio with police bands, called his information into the airport. The airport then got on the phone to the Vermont State Police Barracks in Derby.

Derby then called the Sherbrooke dispatcher of the QPP. The Sherbrooke agent radioed his information to the three cars in the Magog area; one car from Cowansville, one from Granby, and one from Coaticook.

In one of these cars was a Magog policeman equipped with a walkie-talkie set. The Magog officer then got in touch with one of the two Magog cars, who in turn transmitted to the other Magog car.

Between the pilot's unfamiliarity with the area and the effects of multiple re-transmissions, if the information was comprehensible at all, it served only as a guide to where the suspect car was at some indefinite earlier time.

Also, no police force seems to share radio bands with any other police force in the area.

There were five different forces trying to cooperate directly (Vermont State Police, FBI, U.S. Border Patrol, QPP and Magog Police) and countless other state, provincial, and local authorities being kept informed.

The case was up to American authorities to handle, as the robbery occurred on their soil, but the bandits' departure into Canada necessitated working through Canadian forces, as American police have no jurisdiction here.

In view of the unavoidable circumstances, it is laudable that the police accomplished what they did.

Police troubles are further compounded by the fact that they have had two other cases come up.

On June 18, bandits held up the Enosburg Falls National Bank, in Enosburg Falls, Vt.

The manager there told The Record yesterday that three armed men entered the bank shortly after 11 a.m. and, while holding the staff and clients at gunpoint, emptied the tellers' cashes and the vault of $97,000. They were pursued toward the border by the Border Patrol and State Police.

Yesterday, another police force was dragged in when the Farmer's National Bank in Fort Covington, N.Y., was held up and an undisclosed amount of cash taken.

Although no force will admit it, the police seem mystified.

Investigation of the matter is in the hands of the FBI, New York State Police, and Vermont State Police, working in cooperation. The investigative group is keeping in close touch with the QPP and the Montreal police Holdup Squad.

There have been no breaks in the case.

A spokesman for the FBI's Albany office told The Record yesterday that while all three are "active, investigative cases, we have turned up nothing new."

He said there is no evidence as yet that all three robberies were perpetrated by the same group, adding that "we are keeping an open mind to the whole question."

Britain tightens its immigration control

LONDON (AP) — Britain's new Conservative government announced Thursday its intention to tighten controls on non-white immigration from the Commonwealth.

The announcement was made in the speech from the throne opening the new session of Parliament.

Later, Prime Minister Heath told the House of Commons: "There is to be no more permanent large-scale immigration into this country."

He was challenged immediately by former Labor prime minister Harold Wilson, who accused Heath of trying to set up a "new class of citizenship treating Commonwealth citizens from the old and the new 'non-white Commonwealth countries like aliens.'"

He said this "would affect not only the standing of the government but would profoundly affect the relations of all countries within the Commonwealth."

The tighter curbs were promised as police in Bradford told a magistrate's court an international gang with wide financial resources is attempting to smuggle non-white immigrants from the Commonwealth into Britain.

Two Indians appeared before the court charged with conspiring to evade immigration controls. The case was heard following the discovery Wednesday of 40 people from India in a Bradford cellar. They were detained in Leeds jail as illegal immigrants.

Bradford police said Interpol — the international police organization — has been asked to make inquiries in France regarding the 40 men, who travelled through France and West Germany to reach Britain.

Detective Inspector Jack Sutcliffe of Bradford told the court he had found the Indians crammed into a 20-foot-by-10-foot cellar.

"As inquiries progressed during the day, it was obvious that there was a large ring involved in arranging their transfer to the United Kingdom and also a vast amount of money involved," Sutcliffe said.

The court was told that the smuggled Indians began their journey in New Delhi at the end of April. They travelled by air and sea and ended their journey in a yellow cattle truck.

Police in other coastal areas of Britain, including Kent and Sussex in the south, were reported keeping watch on beaches following information that more illegal immigrants were heading for British shores.

Bradford's non-white immigrant community also was discussed at a British Medical Association meeting at Harrogate. General practitioner Maxwell Abrahams said Indian and Pakistani women, with their tradition of being kept in seclusion, became depressed and hysterical and presented a serious mental health problem here.

Danville

Mrs. Jerome Olney, president of the Danville Branch of the Canadian Society is pleased to announce that the sum of $644.48 was turned over to the Branch treasurer, Mr. A. W. Bishop by the chairman of the campaign, Mrs. Ubald Couture. In making the announcement, Mrs. Olney expressed her gratitude to the canvassers who had given so generously of their time to make it possible. She also stressed the generosity of the public response to the appeal. At the same time it was mentioned that since the beginning of January there have been gifts in memorial to the amount of $95, bringing the donations from the town of Danville to well over $700.

During the summer months Mrs. Ernest Frost, Danville telephone at Three Lakes, 879-5105, will appreciate any news being sent to her.

Mr. and Mrs. Ron Coates, North Bay, Ont., were guests of Mrs. Coates' sister, Mrs. Anatole Demers, and Mr. Demers for several days before leaving for a tour of the Gaspé Peninsula.

Weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Olney were Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Sparkes and two children, Pointe Claire, and Mr. and Mrs. Neilson MacKay and son, Kingston, Ont. Other callers at the Olney home were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lockwood of Drummondville.

New British government already in food fight

LONDON (CP) — The new Conservative government may find itself at the centre of an international food struggle with Prime Minister Heath planning to push up import levies on food so that British farmers can get higher prices on the domestic market.

Behind this plan is the theory that if British growers can get fat prices on home production, there will be no need for government deficiency payments.

Canadian authorities here are reported to be concerned over the new scheme, touched on only briefly in the throne speech which mentioned encouraging farm expansion "by changes in the present system of financial support."

Additional information provided later Thursday said the Conservative policy aim is to raise market prices by means of levies on imports so that deficiency payments cease to be necessary. The changes would be spread over a period of years.

now amounting to some 150,000,000 pounds ($375,000,000) a year.

The burden of encouraging British farm production would be switched, in effect, from the public treasury to British housewives and foreign suppliers who may get hit by the import duties.

While Toronto enjoys this favorable position, Montreal has been left somewhat disconnected from the pipeline to the decision-making centres.

However, said Mr. Raynaud, manufacturing will have less of an influence in the next 50 years with managerial, financial and communication centres playing a greater role.

AIDS HOUSEWIVES
The government provides deficiency payments to farmers when their market prices fall below government-guaranteed prices. Under that system, housewives tend to benefit from the relatively low market prices with payments to farmers made up through general taxation.

Foreign suppliers also tend to benefit from competitive market conditions though in recent years Britain has shown increasing tendency to become more restrictive in its imports policy.

Britain produces only about one-half the food it consumes. Heavy imports dig deep into the country's holdings of foreign currencies and tend to unbalance the country's vital foreign trade accounts.

The previous Labor administration set specific goals for domestic expansion in beef, pork, wheat and barley.

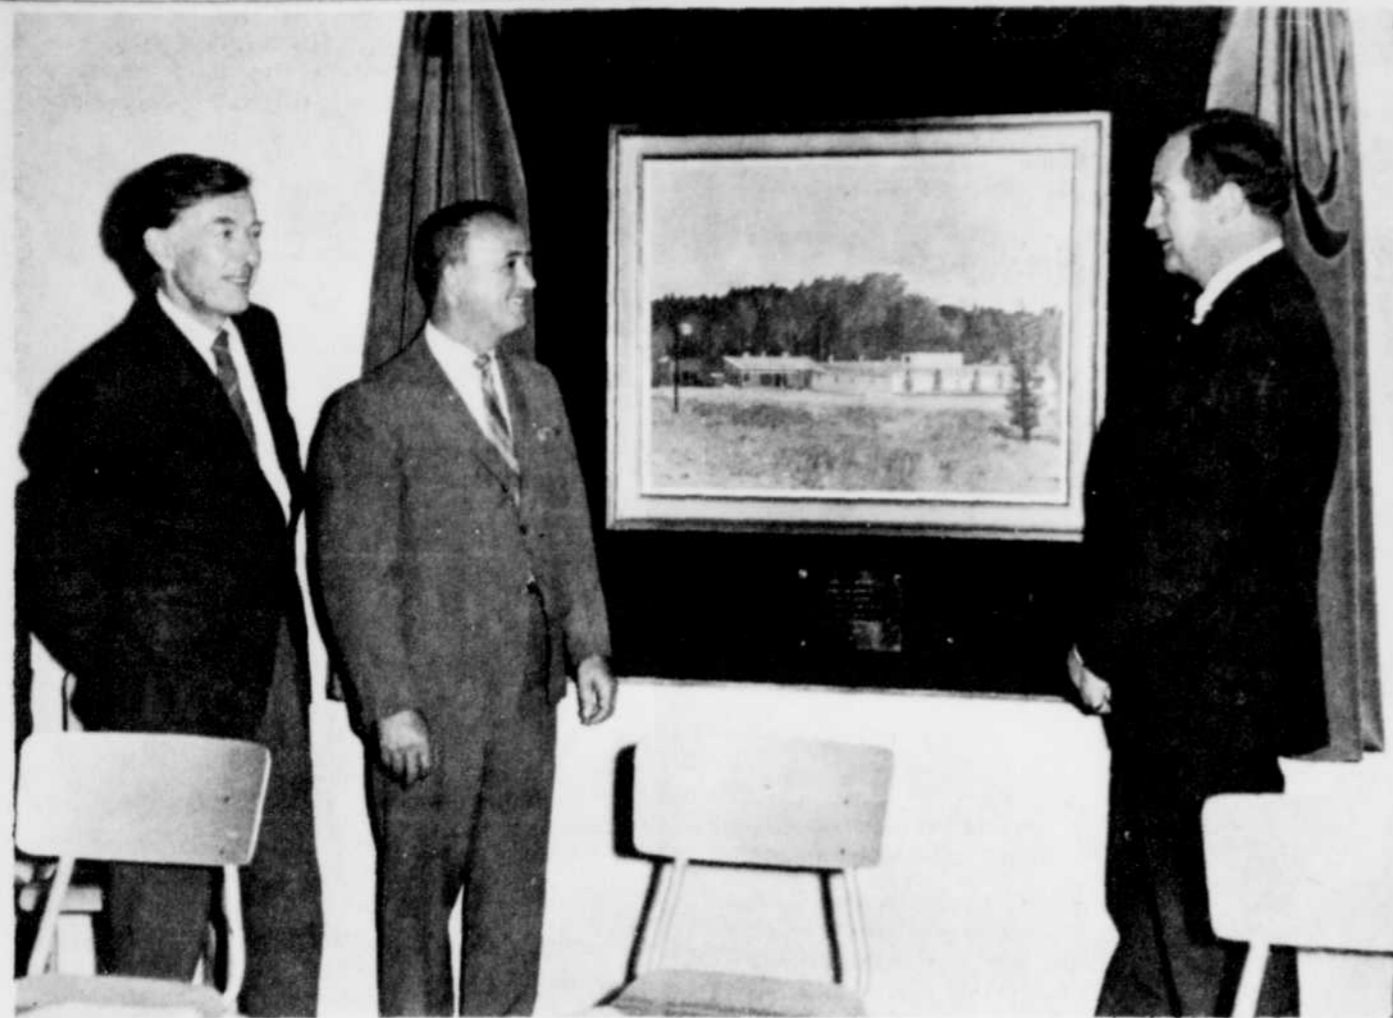

Current aid to farmers comes in a variety of forms. They include fluctuating import levies on grain, fixed tariffs on some other products, guaranteed selling prices on a number of home-grown items and "voluntary" agreements whereby foreign suppliers, such as cheese, restrain shipments to this country.

The team agreed that Montreal is the only city in Quebec capable of becoming a centre of innovation for the province, and that innovation will have to come from the universities and the intellectual and imaginative forces concentrated in the city.

The team found that the small satellite communities surrounding Montreal have not been able to generate the business and commercial activities enjoyed by Toronto.

It laid down five principles to increase Quebec's economic growth. They are:

- Favoring the expansion of Montreal to enable it to become a "polarization" centre for the province.
- Stimulating economic activity in Montreal that would lead to increased development as distinct from ordinary growth.
- Reinforcement of Montreal's position on the Canadian and international markets.

PAINTING AWARDED — A specially-commissioned painting of Chemcell Limited's Coaticook plant was unveiled here today by the company's chairman and president, C. S. Malone. The painting, by noted Canadian artist — and Coaticook resident — Stanley Cosgrove R.C.A., was presented to the plant's employees in recognition of their achievement in winning Chemcell's annual safety contest. It will be permanently displayed in the plant's cafeteria. Seen above from left to right are Stanley Cosgrove, R.C.A., Paul Pelletier, plant manager and C.S. Malone.

Mr. and Mrs. William Mason motored to Toronto to visit their daughter Barbara at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hyland, Longbranch. They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Rodger Mason, daughter Jean and son Perry, who were the weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley McKee of Fruitland, Stoney Creek, Ontario. While there they all visited Niagara Falls and brought home many souvenirs. Another place of interest visited were the Sheridan Nurseries and Hyde Park.

Mrs. Annie Mason spent a few days at the home of her daughter Mrs. Gerald Thomas and her grandchildren in Cowansville.

Vermont Rebekah Assembly president feted at reception

DERBY — The Derby United Church and Fellowship rooms were, on June 20, the scene of a happy occasion when Mrs. Alice Brainard, Derby Line, president of the Rebekah Assembly of Vermont, was honored at a reception by Wide Awake Lodge of Derby.

The event was attended by a large number of Rebekahs and Odd Fellows, her family and a host of friends.

The program took place in the church, where Richmond Hopkins, G.S.G.L. was Master of Ceremonies. He welcomed the large assembly and called upon Rev. Ellen Badger, R. A. Chaplain, to give the invocation.

Mrs. Winnie Halsall, Noble Grand of Wide Awake Lodge, presented Mrs. Brainard with the gift from her lodge of a lovely Rebekah ring, set with three diamonds.

Mrs. Glenna Inglis, president, of D.A.L.A. brought greetings of the Auxiliary of Vermont and Quebec, while Colonel Donald Bell, Department Commander, George Holcoma, Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Vermont, Norman Woodard, Grand Patriarch of Gr. Encampment of Vermont, brought greetings and spoke briefly and all these officers introduced their own officers. The introductions were interspersed with music. Miss Sherry Bly, played for her grandmother, Mrs. Brainard and the assembly on her clarinet, Honey, and I Believe. Another grandchild Brian Goss, played on his flute, The Good Old Summertime; He's Got the Whole World in His Hands; and The March of the Wooden Soldiers. Brian was accompanied on the piano by his mother, Mrs. Glen Goss.

In the absence of Mrs. Jennie Buckland, a reading of Mrs. Buckland's composition was read by Mrs. Olive Christensen of tribute to their Fraternity Sister, Mrs. Brainard. The tribute noted how much Mrs. Brainard was admired as the Lady Bus driver, for she drove the school bus for many years. In 1923 she joined the Wide Awake Rebekah Lodge going through the chairs of office and was in 1935 the Noble Grand of her lodge. For the term of 1952-53 Mrs. Brainard served as District Deputy President and in 1964 was chaplain of the Grand Assembly of Vermont and continued on through to the honor as President of Rebekah Assembly.

There was much more to the tribute of this truly great Christian woman, whose hand has always been extended in help, so that it was only fitting she should choose as her slogan, Lend a Helping Hand.

Under the direction of Mrs. Hugh Buchanan, Hugh Jr., and Carole Buchanan, (daughter and grandchildren) of Mrs. Brainard, Ronald Hill and Bradley Smith sang her chosen hymn, Help Somebody Today, also How Great Thou Art.

Thornton Cleveland, Lennoxville, Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Quebec brought greetings from the Canadian Lodge and Fraternity. Greetings were also given by Richard Middleton, P.G.P. and by Henry Brock, GR High Priest, both of the Grand Lodge of Quebec.

Mrs. Brainard's grandchildren, Dawn, Ricky and Pamela Brainard, sang, Let There be Peace on Earth, and Rock, Rocking Away.

Mr. Hopkins paid tribute to Mrs. Brainard and said her work in all fields testifies to her beliefs, as a mother, a friend and person.

Mrs. Brainard, as she expressed appreciation for the delightful event, said "my heart is full." She outlined her activities for the year, her colors of pink, green and white. She afterwards introduced her family of children and grandchildren present.

Her grandson, on his flute, with his mother at the piano, played Mrs. Brainard's chosen song of her year, The End of a Perfect Day. Rev. Mrs. Badger spoke the benediction, then everyone went to the Fellowship Room.

Mrs. Brainard and her officers formed a receiving line, being very colorful with the women in varied colored evening gowns. Mrs. Brainard had chosen a mauve silk crepe and wore a corsage of flowers.

At the end of the receiving line, all signed the guest book which was in charge of Miss Barbara Musgrove and Miss Marilyn Brainard. Mrs. Annie Rye and Mrs. Mildred Goodall was in charge of the gifts table, which displayed a wide selection of lovely gifts to Mrs. Brainard.

The refreshment table was centered with four cakes, three in the design of the IOOF emblem, three links, one for Friendship, the second Love and the third for Truth, and the fourth was in the design of the open Holy Bible, with Mrs. Brainard's verse chosen for her year, I can do all things in Him who strengthens me. Peace, Harmony, Strength and Prayer are her symbols and these were placed around the hall. Her motto is Others Before Self and her fraternity know all her symbols will be observed and fulfilled to be best of her ability. Seasonal flowers added to the decor in the church and hall.

Mrs. Winnie Halsall presided at the punch bowl with others of her lodge assisting to serve and pour coffee. The refreshments were under the convenship of Mrs. Christensen and the program, Mrs. Frances Sanders.

Among the guests were Mrs. Brainard's family, Mrs. Hugh (Phyllis) Buchanan, and family, Derby; Mrs. Edward (Thelma) Bly and family, East Charleston; Curtis Brainard and family, Derby, Vt.; Mrs. Glen (Jeanette) Goss and family, State College, Pa.; Carlton (Bill) Brainard and family, North Quincy, Mass.; Myron Brainard and family, Derby; A granddaughter, Mrs. Nelson (Lenore Buchanan) Elliott and two daughters, were in Germany, and a grandson, William Bly, in the American Navy at New York, was unable to attend although he had, a few days previously, while on leave, visited her in Derby Line. There were also two of Mrs. Brainard's great-grandchildren at the reception.

Fraternity and friends attended from Post Mills, Williamstown, Richford, Highgate, Lyndonville, Derby, Saxton River, Northfield, St. Johnsbury, Springfield, Waterbury, Barnet, Vergennes, Bristol, Island Pond, Newport, Derby Line, Beebe, West Burke, Brattleboro, Burlington, Barre, North Springfield, Rutland, Townsend, Ferrisburg, Vt.; Lennoxville, Rock Island, Stanstead, Foster, Que.; Hamilton.

Sherbrooke Record House Plan of the Week

NEW HOUSE DESIGN — In designing this four-bedroom home the architect, RALPH GOLDMAN of Toronto, had children in mind. It is ideally suited to the needs of the larger family.

Children can enter the back door, where there is a clothes closet and wash room, and go to the family room, the playroom in the basement, or upstairs to their bedrooms without crossing any of the principal rooms. The master bedroom is a good size and has its own bathroom. In order to achieve the best natural lighting and to make optimum use of the sun-deck, the front door should face south.

The floor area is 1,762 square feet, exclusive of the garage; the overall external dimensions are 48 feet by 33 feet three inches. Working drawings of this house, known as Design #15, are available at minimum cost from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

Lennoxville Milby course prepares for 3rd annual Bob Bedard Open Saturday

LENNOXVILLE (BH) — A full slate of tournaments is scheduled this weekend at the Lennoxville Milby Golf Club when the third annual Bob Bedard Open will occupy the par-73 course Saturday while the Coogan and ET Mixed Tournament is set for Sunday.

Brian McEwen of Asbestos will not be present to defend the title he won last summer with a two-over 77, therefore paving the way for a bevy of tourney hopefuls.

Over 225 participants covered the 18-hole affair last year and Club captain Cliff Goodwin anticipates a similar number again Saturday.

Only low gross scores will receive prizes and six classes instead of three will be introduced as an innovative measure this year.

No starts will be allowed after 3 p.m. in this O'Keefe sponsored tourney in which Bob Bedard's Davis Cup partner of many years, Francois Godbout will be present.

Johnny Rougeau in title bout against Tor Kamata

SHERBROOKE (BH) — Kamata coming out victorious after both grapplers had squared matters off at one fall apiece.

Rougeau is an experienced and poised wrestler but will have his hands full defending his title against his counterpart who never hesitates to get away with anything illegal if at all possible.

Promoter Claude Genest placed the 230-pound Montrealer in the ring against the 276-pound Japanese bruiser last Saturday much to the excitement of over 3,000 wrestling enthusiasts with from Leningrad against Vic Rossettani of Hamilton, Ontario.

Brawling Danny Lynch, a 280-pounder, who has devastated all opponents in the ring so far at the Sports Palace will face Cowboy Jones of Montreal in the third preliminary encounter.

Promoter Genest explained that although Lynch has been invincible in all his bouts, he could not be considered as a contender for the title yet, until he has proven himself throughout the province. "At that time, I will be the first to give Lynch a solid shot at the title."

Duke of Kent tourney draws ET amateurs

The Duke of Kent Trophy tournament, Quebec City's top annual golf event, has attracted 69 of Montreal's best amateurs as well as 22 from the Ottawa district to the 36th annual competition this coming weekend. They form close to 50 per cent of the field of 192 tournament players which will be completed by participants from the Eastern Townships, the Saguenay area, and local Quebec City competitors.

A 36-hole event, both Saturday and Sunday's rounds will be played for the first time on the new, tighter Quebec course — a par 72.

The draw follows for those playing out of the ET:

8:50 — G. Lefebvre, R. Que., A. Gagnon, Birch, J. L. Boyer, V. Rich, G. Izag, Cowans.
9:06 — S. Letourneau, Lewis, J. Timmons, Cowans, P. Huot, R. Que., R. Archambault, Bel.

Golden Rule Rebekah Lodge marks 62nd anniversary

SUTTON — On June 16, 1970, Golden Rule Rebekah Lodge, No. 20, held its meeting with a large attendance of 75 members, and visitors. Sisters Donna Hey, Noble Grand, and Norma Moynan, vice grand, and their staff of officers, conducted the meeting. It was the 62nd anniversary of Golden Rule also the 50th anniversary for four of its sisters. The Lodge has two charter members, Brothers Robert Hill, Sr., Brockville, Ont., and John McCabe, St. Johns.

Degree captain, sister Hilda Howard, called the four sisters, to the centre of the hall. Sisters Dorothy Stetson, Bernice Russell, Myrtle Vincent and Johanne Prentice, where they were introduced and presented with red rose corsages by the noble grand, Sister Hey.

The grand Lodge officers introduced by sister Nettie Patten, P.N.G., were Sister Isabelle Beattie, P.P., of the R.A. and representative to the I.A.R.A., Sister Beattie was presented with a red rose corsage for her faithfulness to golden rule. Gladys Dawson P.P., Elsie Syberg, P.N.G., and D.D.P. for District No. 2, Sarah Nye, color bearer, D.A.L.A.P., of Vermont Doris Gordon, conductor of R.A., Connie Sherrer outside guardian of R.A. and Bros. Charles Nye, Past grand representative of grand encampment of Vermont, Percy Burnham, grand Senior warden of grand canton of Quebec.

For the good of the order, Sisters Nettie Patten, P.N.G., Hilda Arnett, P.N.G., Hilda Howard, P.N.G., and Bernice Boule, P.N.G., presented Sisters Dorothy Stetson, P.N.G., Myrtle Vincent, Johanne Prentice, P.N.G., and Bernice Russell, P.D.D.P., with gifts from the lodge. Sister Mary Downer sang Bless Be The Tie That Binds, accompanied by Sister Isabelle Beattie, at the piano; Sister Beattie presided at the piano during the meeting. Each of these sisters expressed her thanks to the members of Golden Rule, for the gifts, and corsages, also told of some of the happenings, during the past 50 years. Sister Russell then presented Sisters Stetson, Vincent, and Prentice, with small gifts, in remembrance of their many years work together.

Remarks were given by Sister Nye, Beattie, Syberg, Gordon, Sherrer, Buck, Vaughan, Brothers Nye, Burnham and Meade.

The hall was adorned with several bouquets of flowers. Guests present were from Hygate, Vt., Granby, Cowansville, Dunham, Knowlton, Lennoxville, West Brome and Sutton.

A buffet lunch was served when vases of red carnations and other flowers adorned the table, centered with the anniversary cake in the form of an open Bible, frosted in white, and decorated in pink and green; with a back ground of a blown glass plant, representing a silver dog wood tree in bloom, a gift from Japan to Sister Nettie Patten, Sister Hey and Moynan poured coffee and tea, with other sisters serving.

Abercorn

Mrs. Andrew Speirs and two children, Malcolm and Sally, left June 25 to spend the summer months at Cape Cod, Mass. Mrs. Hollis Wilkins and Mrs. Loren Sherrer are enjoying a trip to Boston, Mass. The two ladies travelled by bus.

Masons hold 114th annual Owl's Head Mountain Climb

STANSTEAD — The 114th annual Owl's Head Mountain Climb and communication of Golden Rule Lodge, No. 5, A. F. & A. M. Stanstead was held on June 20.

There was a record number of 318 members of the Masonic Fraternity to attend the meeting on top of the mountain, they came from points in North America as far apart as British Columbia and Newfoundland in Canada, and Indiana in the United States, England, Scotland, Germany and Australia were also represented.

The Most Worshipful Brother G. Egerton Brown, Grand Master of Masons in Quebec was present marking the first time in many years that a Grand Master in office has made the climb.

The Grand Master of Vermont was ably represented by Most Wor. Bro. Frank Brownell, P.G.M., who has been a frequent and most welcome visitor to these annual gatherings. A total of 16 different Grand lodges were represented.

An excellent barbeque steak dinner was served to the Masons and their families, at the chalet after the meeting, by the Lakeshore Shrine Club of Montreal which brought to a close one of the most successful gatherings ever held on Owl's Head Mountain.

The following day, Sunday, June 21, Golden Rule Lodge served breakfast to over 35 Masons in their lodge hall.

A short divine service was held after the breakfast with the Rt. Wor. Bro. W.S. Richardson, D. G.M. of St. Francis District as guest speaker. Bro. Richardson gave a most interesting talk on the life of King Solomon.

Bro. N. P. Chamberlain, Jr., and his officers of Golden Rule

Lodge were congratulated on the planning and carrying out of such a successful program, making it a memorable weekend in years to come.
