Space linkup due today

HOUSTON (AP) — Apollo's astronauts guided their spacecraft toward a linkup today with a Soviet Soyuz vehicle and a warm and symbolic embrace by Americans and Soviets high above the globe.

"We'll hug them like friendly bears," Alexei Leonov, the Soviet commander, said before astronauts and cosmonauts embarked Tuesday on this first international mission of space detente.

U.S. astronauts Thomas Stafford, Vance Brand and Donald Slayton planned five separate engine firings in the final pursuit of Soyuz, which is serving as the target vehicle for the manoeuvrable Apollo.

The flight plan set the hookup for 12:15 p.m. EDT, 140 miles above West Germany.

Leonov's "bear hug" comes about three hours later when he and Stafford, the American commander, meet in a connecting tunnel between the spaceships and Stafford and Slayton then move into Soyuz.

They are to exchange their country's flags and Leonov is to present Stafford with a United Nations flag to carry back to earth.

This and much of the activity during two days of linkup will be televised to earth, giving millions around the world a ringside seat to an event which the five spacemen hope will enhance detente and lead to future co-operative space missions by many countries.

WILL ALL TAKE TURNS

Three more crew exchanges are planned Friday, with Brand, Slayton and Valeri Kubasov, the other Soviet crew member, each having at least one chance to visit the other country's ship. Stafford and Leonov also will make another trip through the connecting tunnel that day.

They will conduct joint medical, metals melting and scientific experiments, share meals and exchange personal gifts before holding a televised news conference Friday.

The two ships will disengage Saturday and then will attempt a second docking, with Soyuz serving as the acting partner. They will then go their separate ways, with Soyuz returning to earth Monday.

Stafford, Brand and Slayton will remain aloft until next Thursday, to conduct additional experiments, mainly in earth observations and astronomy.

When Apollo was launched Tuesday, it started out 4,410 miles behind Soyuz. When the astronauts retired Wednesday night, the gap had been closed to about 1,500 miles.

During the day Wednesday, both astronauts and cosmonauts became spaceage repairmen, using a screwdriver and band-aids.

Brand wielded a screwdriver to help remove a docking mechanism that had lodged in the tunnel that will connect the two spaceships. It was a simple operation that required less than an hour. Had the obstructing mechanism not been removed, the spacemen would not be able to transfer between the crafts.

TACKLE CAMERA PROBLEM

Aboard Soyuz, Leonov and Kubasov wrestled with a cranky television camera which failed shortly after launch. Soviet flight controllers said a camera cable needed to be insulated and Kubasov asked:

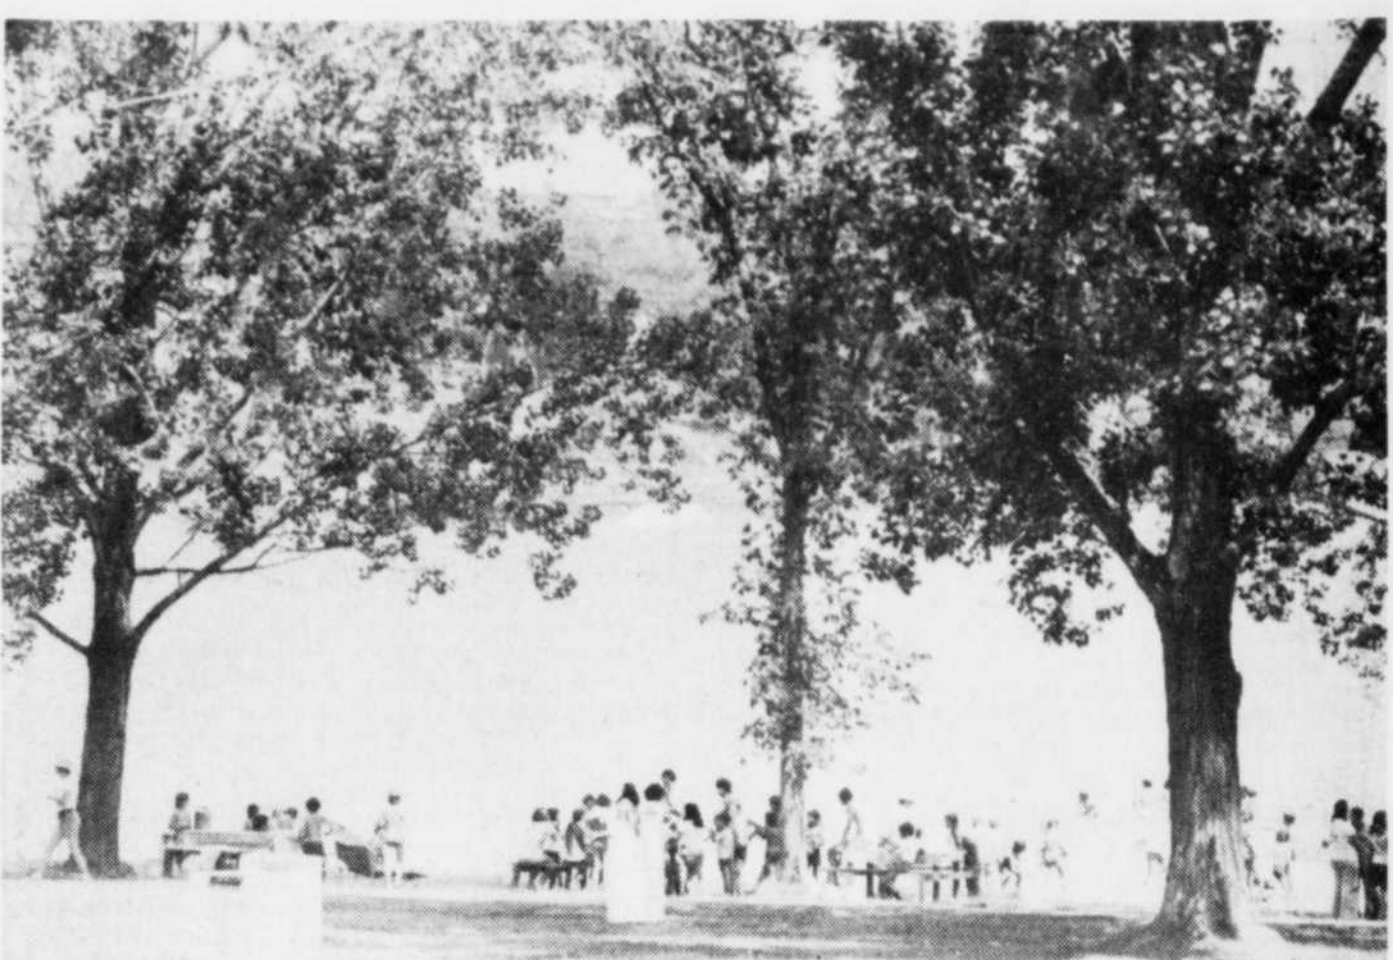

"Can we use band-aids from our medical kit to insulate the end of the cable?"

"Yes, Valeri, you can do it," replied a ground controller. Their inventiveness solved the problem.

Each spaceship beamed television pictures to earth Wednesday, with the cosmonauts demonstrating their life in weightlessness by floating a flashlight and other objects before the camera.

"We have gotten accustomed to it," Leonov reported. "Now it is our home."

Leonov and Kubasov also contacted two comrades in space, the crew of the Soviet space station Salyut 4, and relayed news from home. Pyotr Klimuk and Vitaly Sevastyanov have been aboard the orbiting laboratory since May 26 and are due to return to earth later this month.

Portuguese democracy in doubt

LISBON (AP) — Portugal's leftist military rulers scrapped the remnants of the military-civilian coalition cabinet today after the country's second-largest political party withdrew in protest against the regime's refusal to guarantee democratic government.

A spokesman for the ruling military Revolutionary Council said the new government would not be exclusively military. But he refused to give any hint where the officers might find any civilians other than the Communists and their allies to serve.

Meanwhile, the Communists were mobilizing against a new move to replace the pro-Communist military premier, Gen. Vasco Gonçalves.

Like the Socialists who withdrew from the cabinet last week, the centrist Popular Democratic Party (PPD) went into opposition because the military leaders refused to restore freedom of the press and to make good on promises of parliamentary democracy.

The PPD representatives who resigned were Joaquim Magalhaes Mota, a minister without portfolio; Social Affairs Minister Jorge Sa Borges; Secretary for Health Carlos Macedo and Social Security Secretary Vasco da Graça Moura.

Two independents also submitted their resignations.

They were Minister of Foreign Trade Jose da Silva Lopes and Minister of Overseas Territories Antonio de Almeida Santos.

The only civilians left in the cabinet were from the Communist front, which won only 18 per cent of the vote in the constituent assembly elections in April.

NO CHANGES

The resignations of the civilians made no change in the control of the country since all power is in the hands of the military officers who overthrew the fascist dictatorship last year. But the presence of the Socialist and PPD representatives in the cabinet gave the government's decisions the implied support of a majority of the voters.

The Revolutionary Council announced after an all-night emergency meeting that it had "analysed the present situation of political crisis, which would be overcome by the formation of a new government."

The statement noted the "delicacy" of the situation and appealed to the people for "serenity and civility-mindedness."

The council is split between moderates and radicals, and sources said a new move was under way to oust Premier Gonçalves because he has failed to improve the grave economic situation and has been pushing the country toward a radical socialism that is supported by only a minority of the people.

The moderates were reported to believe they now have enough votes to dismiss Gonçalves though it was not known if they had the support of Gen. Costa Gomes.

The Communist party, preparing to strike back if the premier was voted out, proclaimed a "state of vigilance" against "reactionaries" for its militants in offices, factories and the trade unions.

Several thousand leftist demonstrators supported by tanks from a military unit under leftist influence marched on the parliament buildings Wednesday to demand a "people's government" and the dissolution of the constituent assembly.

To reduce exports

Natural gas shortage predicted

OTTAWA (CP) — Rapidly dwindling natural gas supplies require the government to reduce exports to U.S. markets and to restrain domestic consumption until new frontier supplies are available, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Wednesday.

The federal policy statement, issued with a National Energy Board report predicting widespread gas shortages as early as this winter, brought a quick response from the U.S. state department. An official said the state department considers the proposed cutbacks "a very serious matter."

Still unclear is how soon and by how much exports will be trimmed. That is to be the subject of discussions with the U.S. and with western producer provinces, Mr. Macdonald said.

The United States now takes about one trillion cubic feet a year of natural gas from Canada, about 45 per cent of total domestic production. The NEB report estimates total Canadian reserves at about 60.6 trillion cubic feet.

Mr. Macdonald also said the government wants the provinces to limit their growing natural gas demands and will introduce legislation to give the NEB the power to allocate gas supplies among the provinces.

The intention of domestic conservation measures is to discourage wasteful use of natural gas "so as to enable our obligations to existing U.S. customers to be met to the greatest extent possible," Mr. Macdonald told the Commons.

U.S. WILL SUFFER

Mr. Macdonald told the Commons U.S. buyers likely would suffer more than domestic users because of export cutbacks. He emphasized the export reduction to U.S. markets will not be uniform, but will depend upon availability of alternate energy supplies.

He said that domestic conservation efforts are more likely to affect industrial users capable of switching to such other energy sources as coal. There are no plans to limit household users who rely on natural gas.

But Ottawa may ask the provinces to crack down on natural gas distribution companies negotiating contracts for new household uses, he indicated.

Limiting land ownership topic

SASKATOON (CP) — The federal government is proposing a compromise solution to a growing federal-provincial dispute over whether provincial governments can limit land ownership by non-residents.

In effect, Ottawa would be sharing its exclusive constitutional right to regulate aliens in the country, he said.

In return, provinces would be asked to refrain from placing any ownership restrictions on Canadians outside their borders wishing to buy land in that province.

Mr. Lang said Monday there is no indication yet how the provinces will react to the proposal.

Truce is called in communications field

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government and eight provinces called a temporary truce in their jurisdictional battle in the communications field Wednesday and agreed to pursue limited power-sharing on specific issues.

Except for Quebec and British Columbia, the provinces agreed to sit on an informal council of communications ministers that will focus on specifics. However, Ontario threatened to quit promptly unless it produced favorable prospects for some provincial control, particularly over cable systems.

Agreement on the council came at the end of a two-day closed federal-provincial communications conference, the third in 19 months. The final session took just more than an hour after the ministers spent seven hours meeting Tuesday.

The council will replace the wide-ranging and formal format of the conferences, which have become battlegrounds in the provincial struggle to wrest some jurisdictional powers from the federal government.

Any future discussion of jurisdictional transfer to the provinces would take place in another forum, probably a constitutional conference of first ministers.

Varying interpretations of whether participation in the council meant concession of federal jurisdiction led to B.C. reserving judgment on the council and an outright refusal by Quebec to become involved.

NOT ASKED

Gerard Pelletier, federal minister, had earlier said that participation in such a council would require provincial recognition of the federal authority over communications in general. However, he told reporters Wednesday that provinces had not been asked for such a concession.

Rather it had been agreed only that council discussions would be conducted within the existing jurisdictional framework.

"They won't come (to a council meeting) to try to change the constitution," But B.C. minister Robert Strachan contended that the Mr. Pelletier had told the conference—which was closed to the press and public—that the provinces would be agreeing to federal jurisdiction by participating in such a forum.

Handling of Air Canada's cash lax

TORONTO (CP) — A former Air Canada supervisor says handling of cash at Air Canada's Toronto and Dorval operations is so lax that he purposely took home a bank deposit bag containing $16,689 that had been left lying around at Dorval and didn't return it until it was reported missing—five weeks later.

Paul Dubois said in an interview that he was frustrated at the way complaints about security brought no improvement. Mr. Dubois subsequently was fired by the airline, an action which the Canada Labor Relations Board upheld about a month ago.

However, the board's hearing brought out evidence that part of the reason for his being fired was that Mr. Dubois had come close to organizing the airline supervisors into a union.

He said the only reason he hasn't appealed is because he doesn't have enough money.

Mr. Dubois was a 10-year employee with Air Canada with commendations in his file from Yves Pratte, the president.

The only thing he concedes is "a terrible error in judgment" in making his protest a oneman affair. He said he should have let someone else in on what he was doing but he felt the security situation needed to be brought home to the company.

Vivian Jasmine and Margaret Koenka, who both worked in the cashiers' office at Dorval last year, said anyone could enter the room even though there were deposit bags containing thousands of dollars lying around.

WINDOW INSTALLED
Since the demonstration by Mr. Dubois, a window was put in the cash control room through which those other than cashiers are supposed to conduct business, the women said.

"It didn't make any difference," Mrs. Jasmine said. "They'd reach through it and open the door."

"It's ridiculous, people in and out all the time," Mrs. Koenka said loose bills were blown around by drafts through the door and more than once she found $100 bills in wastepaper baskets.

She also said RCMP at Dorval were supposed to escort her in making a deposit but she rarely could get them to help. Instead, she would wait until her husband came to take her home and he would escort her with bags containing thousands of dollars.

At Toronto Terminal 1, certain people carry large amounts of cash daily to Terminal 2 in an easily identifiable container, Roy Mills, vice-president of the Canadian Air Line Employees Association, said. He said they went unescorted.

Mr. Mills said a specific complaint was made about this practice.

"So they changed it," he said. "Had the cashier go down the back way to the ramp where a supervisor would drive the cashier in a company station wagon to an outside bank."

"Sometimes they had to go to more than one bank to get all the change required."

"It was even less secure. We complained again. So now they're back to the old system. No improvement."

The day began with the market adding to the gains that carried it to a 15-month closing high Tuesday.

Brokers reported some favorable reaction to the Federal Reserve Board's report late Tuesday that industrial production rose in June for the first time in nine months.

The news was taken as the strongest signal to date that the economy was beginning a recovery from the recession. But as the morning wore on it became apparent that the market was meeting with increasing resistance from profit-taking. Shortly after noon, the Dow slipped to the minus side, and the decline picked up momentum after that.

Analysts pointed out that the market had been moving against an undercurrent of profit-taking Monday and Tuesday, when it was able to post only moderate gains despite some encouraging economic news and a heavy trading pace.

Citicorp was the day's most active issue, down ½ at $35¼ in trading marked by several medium-sized blocks.

Getty Oil rose ¼ to $196½ and Allied Chemical was up ½ to $38½. A joint venture of the two companies reported an oil discovery off the Mediterranean coast of Spain.

Higher second-quarter earnings lifted Rubbermaid 2 to $23½ and Sealed Power 1½ to $14.

First Mississippi, which came in with lower quarterly profits, was down 1½ at $14¼.

Gold and silver issues were broadly lower, with ASA, Ltd., slipping 1½ to $44½; Homestake Mining off the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up about three points after the first hour, showed a 9.70 loss at 872.11 by the close.

NYSE volume came to 25.25 million shares, off a bit from Tuesday's total of 28.34 million.

The NYSE's composite common-stock index slid .52 to 50.72, and Standard and Poor's 500-stock index was down 1.00 at 94.61.

Sweetsburg Court

SWEETSBURG WARD (JM) — Judge Guy Genest took two motions for dismissal of charges of hit and run and criminal negligence in the operation of a motor vehicle under deliberation until September 4.

Crown prosecutor Claude Noisieux rested his case in the trial of Burton Macey here Tuesday. Macey is accused on the two counts following an accident on Maple Street, Sutton, July 14, 1973, when Mrs. Veronika Talalajew was struck by a truck driven by the accused. She died approximately two and a half months later at the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal.

Louis Grignon, Mr. Macey's lawyer, argued the crown had not proven beyond all reasonable doubt the accused fled the scene to avoid all criminal or civil responsibilities. He cited the fact the accused had talked to the husband and granddaughter of the victim before leaving the scene, and he effectively returned about an hour after he originally departed the accident. Mr. Grignon cited jurisprudence from Lagarde and Canadian Criminal Cases.

Crown prosecutor Claude Noisieux produced Constable Alain Gagnon, Quebec Police, Cowansville, as his final witness. Mr. Gagnon said he and another agent arrived on the scene at 7:50 p.m. July 14, 1973, and the accused arrived there approximately 40 minutes later.

Mr. Noisieux, in rebuttal, said Mr. Grignon's references to leaving one's name, address, etc., referred to cases where there was only material damage. He then cited article 233 of the criminal code which states a person must render assistance to those injured as the result of an accident.

Mr. Noisieux had tried to have the case postponed as he indicated he had not been able to locate Raymond Gaudreau, Sutton Police chief at the time of the accident. Mr. Grignon pointed out the trial began March 17, and had been delayed to May 14, and the crown had not been able to locate their prime witness. He said this was prejudicial to his client and furthermore it was a heavy financial burden for him to have to subpoena several witnesses for each trial date.

Judge Genest said the accused had been identified this could not refuse his responsibilities, prior to accepting the motions in deliberation.

Gilles Martin, Roxton Pond, pleaded not guilty to a charge of theft of a muffler valued at under $200, in Granby, April 17. His trial was fixed to August 21.

Germain Desranleau, Clarenceville, pleaded not guilty to having fished with a gill net on Missisquoi Bay, November 4, 1974. His trial was set for August 21.

Bench warrants were issued for Sylvain Desautels and Ghislain Gauthier, both of Granby. Desautels failed to appear for arraignment on a charge of breaking and entering, and Gauthier for theft.

Trial in the case of Robert St. Jean was continued to September 2, for the form, when defence attorney Donald Bissonnette informed the court he had attempted to issue subpoenas to three defence witnesses last weekend. However, they were on vacation.

The crown rested its depositions in the charge of attempted armed robbery and complicity after the fact, July 10. St. Jean is accused of attempting to rob the Marina Restaurant, Bondville, April 3, 1974. Two accomplices, Jacques Gagne and Yvon Bellegarde, have pleaded guilty to counts of attempted armed robbery while wearing a disguise.

They were each sentenced to the equivalent of 23 months by Judge Genest earlier this year.

Rejean Carignan, Asbestos, pleaded not guilty to a charge of hit and run at Ste. Anne de LaRoche, February 7, 1975. His trial will be heard August 25.

Sentence in the case of Simon Cabana was continued to September 4. Cabana, of Granby, the object of a bench warrant, pleaded guilty to two counts of obtaining credit by fraudulent means. Crown prosecutor Claude Noisieux suggested the continuation and told Judge Genest the accused had pleaded guilty to similar charges in April when his sentence had been deferred to that date.

"Don't write any more cheques or you'll be behind bars until September 4," said Judge Genest.

A bench warrant issued against Andre St. Martin was revoked. St. Martin, of Cowansville, had failed to appear for preliminary hearing July 10. He told the court he was busy working and had forgotten about it. His hearing was fixed to August 28. St. Martin is charged with hit and run.

Paul-Emile Salois, Gaston Bibeau, Raymond Choquette, and Jean-Paul Mandeville, all of Sorel-Tracy, were found guilty, in default, of hunting with a jack light near Dunkin, October 25, 1974. They were each fined the minimum $300 and costs, in default 30 days, and the weapon and jack light were ordered confiscated. They were allowed two weeks to acquit the fine and costs.

Emilio Robichaud, St. Joachim, pleaded guilty to a charge of impaired driving at South Stukely, June 14. Crown attorney Noisieux told the court it was an oversight the accused had not been charged with recidivism as he had been convicted of similar offences in the District of Bedford in 1973 and 1974. He asked for a fine of $200.

"You're lucky you weren't put away for 90 days," Judge Genest said. He fined the accused $200 and costs, in default 30 days. He was not granted a delay.

Walter Farnham, Massapqua, N.Y., pleaded guilty to a charge of impaired driving in Cowansville, July 11. He was fined $100 and costs, in default 30 days, and was prohibited to drive a motor vehicle in Canada for a period of three months.

Henri Lafrance, R.R. 1, Waterloo, was found guilty, in default, on a count of impaired driving. He was fined $100 and costs, in default one month.

Romuald Thibault, Montreal; Normand Bourgeois, Granby; Henri-Paul Bouffard, Lake Louisa; and William MacGregor, St. Mathias, all pleaded guilty to counts of impaired driving. They were each fined $100 and costs, in default 30 days. Delays of up to 60 days were allowed when requested.

Mrs. Francine Duchesneau Dalpe, Roxton Pond, pleaded not guilty to a charge of impaired driving in the Township of Granby. Her case will be heard August 11.

Denis Raymond, a Venise police officer, pleaded not guilty to a charge of simple assault on the person of Jean Paul Cotnor, in Venise, June 28. His trial will be heard August 25.

Gary Brown, Mansonville, chose jury trial at his arraignment on a charge of assault causing bodily harm on the person of Gerald Dubois in Dunkin. Preliminary hearing was fixed to August 5.

Bench warrants were issued for Jean Pierre Houle and Denise Ansell who failed to appear for arraignment on drug charges.

Stompin' Tom says he'll keep stompin' the country 'til his foot wears out

SHERBROOKE — Stompin' Tom Connors who appeared in the Maurice O'Bready Room at the University of Sherbrooke last night, says although he has established himself as a recording star, he won't give up touring the country until his foot wears out.

Since he usually does about four one night stands a week, it's obvious he feels a definite loyalty to his audience if he prefers constant travelling to the relative comfort and ease of sitting back and watching his record sales pile up.

"It gets a little rough once in a while," he admitted, "but then it's like any job. If you don't feel too good in the morning, the last thing you want to do is go to work. But for the most part, I love it."

With a drawl that establishes him as a definite Maritimer, Tom asserts that he hasn't changed one iota since that time in Timmins when a waiter asked him to play a few numbers and his career was on its way.

"I still have the same friends and the same feelings," he stressed, "and if anyone ever tries to change me, I just walk the other way. I still wear only one pair of pants a day and I still put them on the same way."

He said his career has been referred to as a 20 year overnight success, and he has no illusions about his hard years on the road.

"There were very few good times, those days when I was hitch-hiking across the country. There was very little romantic about it. I often nearly starved and I spent a lot of nights in jail. I can remember going six days straight once without eating."

The six-day fast happened when he was on a stretch of road between Sault Ste-Marie and Hearst, Ontario, "where the trains were going too fast to stop." He said he walked most of the distance with his friend Stevedore Steve, and between them, all they had to eat was a "freshie" — fruit-flavored sugar.

Before he hit it big, he spent a great deal of time trying to convince the music industry that he had something unusual and distinctly Canadian to offer. "I knocked on the doors at studios and publishing houses, but they just gave me the boot."

"I would play free at every jamboree for miles. I've been in every nook and cranny in Canada 'way before I became famous, getting to know people and experiencing what their lives are like. That's how I got the material for my songs."

He explained that he prefers small towns to big cities, because the atmosphere in less-populated areas is better.

"In big cities, everyone thinks you're after something, even if you only ask them the time of day. If you say hello to someone walking down St. Catherine St., for instance, he usually thinks you're some kind of nut, but in small towns, people are friendlier. They don't feel like you're asking for an arm and a leg."

His career started soaring when a waiter in a Timmins bar offered him a few beers if he would play a few songs. Soon, he was packing the place every Friday and Saturday night, until a local DJ spotted him and gave him a 20 minute radio show. Soon, TV jumped on the bandwagon, and the money started pouring in regularly. But the record studios still weren't buying.

"So I started making my own records," Stompin' Tom drawled, "and I would sell them each for a buck a piece and I'd put them on consignment in local five and tens. That was in 1965, when the Beatles were at their peak. But I sold more records than they did in Timmins that year."

Tom's down-home manner and country philosophy makes him one of the best spokesmen for the Canadian people.

Down-to-earth songs tell Canada's story

SHERBROOKE (RH) — Stompin' Tom Connors didn't get that adjective in front of his name for nothing.

The six-foot lanky country and western singer earned every letter of it. His famous foot rarely stopped during last night's concert at the University of Sherbrooke.

The audience, which was pretty evenly divided between French and English Stompin' Tom admirers, really lapped it up. His song, Fleur de Lys, a poignant love story set in Riviere du Loup was a particular hit with the crowd.

Tom is as much a minstrel as he is a country and western star. His songs take you for a ride through the prairies and describe the little people that make Canada what it is. He doesn't hide behind flowery verse and complicated guitar-playing. He is down-to-earth and genuine whether he describes Saturday night in Sudbury or a bar in Prince Edward Island.

He said he feels Quebec is too busy discovering its own talent to really spend time examining performers in other parts of the country, but judging from the reception he received yesterday, his French fans here were enthusiastic about his songs.

His stage presence is magnificent. He didn't put on any of the airs most famous performers seem to thrive on. His audience was with him and part of him every inch of the way.

One could tell, by looking at his admirers that each one was thinking "that could be me up there," and enjoying

Ghosts at the Banquet

Canada's anxiety to crown the inconclusive European Security Conference with a summit jamboree in Helsinki on July 30 is indeed a riddle. The date has been debated for quite a while, especially since the Soviet government's dark warnings that all kinds of unpleasant things might happen if the conference were not concluded with a summit in Helsinki at the end of this month. But why, out of the 35 nations taking part in the conference, it should have been Canada that made the formal proposal for a summit meeting on that date is truly strange.

Was Canada acting on behalf of State Secretary Kissinger, wishing to keep his detente intact? Are we trying to meet Soviet demands and so break the deadlock? Is Helsinki one of the places Prime Minister Trudeau has not yet visited on his recent world travels? There is no rational explanation for this zeal, especially since the Europeans, whose security is being debated, have been rather reluctant to climb yet another summit. Moreover, in view of Canada's parlor contribution to Europe's defence, Ottawa is hardly in a position to tell the Europeans what is good for their security.

Nothing much has been achieved at the conference at which the Russians offered a few token concessions in return for a formal recognition of the Soviet postwar conquests in Europe. Those who expect that the free movement of people and ideas half-promised by the Soviet Union will bring about a stream of tourists from the Ukraine visiting their relatives in Winnipeg or will facilitate Jewish emigration to Israel; or that books by Alexander Solzhenitsyn and Kingsley Amis will be freely on sale in Moscow bookshops, are obviously living in a cloud-cuckoo land.

The best that can be said for the conference is that East and West have agreed to disagree. For the Russians, security means strict control. For the West, it means free consent. When the Soviet foreign minister, Andrei Gromyko, speaks loftily of inviolable sovereignty and non-interference in the domestic affairs of other nations, he is not referring to Czechoslovakia, or Portugal for that matter. (Only a few months ago the Soviet "fraternal delegate" to the national congress of the Italian Communist party held in Rome publicly embraced members of the party presidium after they had fought off a motion from the floor criticizing the Portuguese Communist party.)

The documents, which have been prepared by the conference, gloss over these fundamental differences and are not legally binding. The basic issues have remained unresolved, and, as a NATO official remarked, if the conference served any purpose, it was to teach the Western nations the limits of detente. Whether the Russians have learned from it is another question, one that will hardly find an answer in platitudes, as toasts are raised in Helsinki. There will be numerous ghosts at that banquet, the ghost of Alexander Dubcek and that of the promises by the Soviet Union broken when she sanctioned the Yom Kippur War; the ghost of the Lisbon Socialist paper Republica, closed down by Communist militants; the ghosts of the independent radio stations in Portugal handed over to the Communists; and above all the ominous shadow of the still growing Soviet military might along Europe's borders and in the Atlantic waters. These ghosts will not go away, nor will they be exorcised by honeyed words. They will continue to send shivers down the spines of those who, detente notwithstanding, continue to look down the barrels of Soviet guns.

Huge grain purchase may be due

WASHINGTON (CP) — Recurring reports that the Soviet Union is preparing to make a huge grain purchase from the United States are providing a major morale boost to the troubled multi-billion-dollar U.S. grain export industry.

Last week alone, the price for December wheat delivery jumped on the Chicago market by 60 cents a bushel to $3.78. Corn rose 21 cents to $2.64 for the same month and key November soybean contracts jumped 50 cents to $5.65.

The main buyers, observers say, were domestic millers and bakers foreign importers frightened that a big sale to the Soviet Union will drive prices still higher. President Ford says, however, that no sale will be allowed which would create similar shortages and high food prices to those which followed a controversial export order from the Soviets in 1973.

Nevertheless, from the vast grainfields of the Midwest there was an almost audible sigh of relief. There is a widespread belief that Canada may also be involved in part of the export deal.

In normal years, about 25 per cent of the total U.S. grain harvest is exported to foreigners who pay roughly $10 billion for it. But this year, the giant market has been threatened with an array of serious problems. CHEATING CHARGED

For the most part these have taken the form of allegations by grain purchasers abroad that U.S. suppliers have been shipping them inferior or adulterated grain. Federal agencies are investigating the charges and also looking into alleged bribes of inspectors of grain exports.

And the industry's worries have been compounded by the fact that crops in the U.S. and abroad are more abundant this year than last and the combination of a world recession and better overseas crops have weakened foreign demand for U.S. grain.

Until the latest reports of an anticipated Soviet sale, the prices of some grains had topped by more than 35 per cent from last fall.

This combination of circumstances recently led Turkey to refuse delivery of nearly 17 million bushels of U.S. wheat bought last October at the relatively high price of $5.10 a bushel. At the time of Turkey's cancellation, the spot price for wheat in Kansas City had plunged to roughly $3.32 a bushel.

A number of Italian firms which have bought wheat to make spaghetti now are also reported to be trying to make drastic reductions in their commitments.

INCOMES DROP

Farmers' incomes this year, in the absence of a big export order, are expected to drop to about $21 billion from $27 billion last year, agriculture department spokesmen say.

But there is still some confusion here about what exactly the Soviet Union wants to buy. If it's corn to feed its rapidly-growing livestock herds, it will have to wait until the fall harvest is in because available stocks would not be enough to meet any reasonable demand.

If it wants wheat for bread there may be further complications since the U.S. winter wheat crop—75 per cent of the total—has shown a protein content less than the 12 per cent usually required by Moscow.

Observers here say the Soviets may well turn to Canada for some high-protein wheat but they note that Canada's wheat crop is only one-third that of the U.S. and more and more of its grain exports have been going to China.

Whatever the outcome of the present reports—and they get stronger daily—they seem to have injected a much-needed shot of optimism into the despondent U.S. grain industry.

Poetry

Who Are My Friends

Lord, in you lies my trust and love, on you rests my dependance
So, tell me Lord, who are my friends?
There are many who claim to be when things go right
But, tell me Lord, where are they when I need them!

Why have people spoiled this life you have given us,
One that once was so pure and honest
Why Lord, do people hurt each other and use each other,
Is Cruelty to remain in us forever?

I have to know Lord, for I too am part of this
I have hurt people when it could have been avoided
I have abandoned people when they needed me
Tell me Lord, has true friendship slipped away with the time.

Is anyone a true friend to everyone,
Or does friendship come and go like the seasons each year.
Lord, I really must know the answer for My life depends on who my true friends really are.

RENFREW, Ont. — With the general election only ten days away, Hon. R.B. Bennett, Conservative leader yesterday returned to Ontario to address a gathering at Perth in the afternoon and a crowd of 5,000 at Renfrew in the evening. Today he moves on to Sarnia and Strathroy, shifting to the battlefield of the campaign from one end of the province to the other.

Premier King's recent speech at Prince Albert drew the fire of Mr. Bennett last night. "Mr. MacKenzie King," he declared, "loudly complained about the pledges which have been given to aid the people of Canada and to advance their interests."

"I say to Mr. MacKenzie King," continued the Conservative leader, "that if he had done his duty by you, all these pledges need not have been given. Does Mr. MacKenzie King expect that I will do what he through nine long years has done — nothing? Does he expect me to sit by with folded hands without doing my utmost to avert the tragedy which through his neglect now faces the business of this country?" The Premier was wrong if he expected all this, said Mr. Bennett, and he could not expect to be re-elected as the head of a Government which had failed.

After summarizing his programme again, Mr. Bennett declared "these pledges I have made, and by them I will stand or fall. They are each one of them for the good of Canada as a whole."

Execution of the Law?

KCIA's U.S. operation probed

WASHINGTON — The Justice Department is quietly investigating charges that the Korean Central Intelligence Agency (KCIA), modeled after our own embattled spy agency, has terrorized Korean exiles in the country, has set up illegal front groups to manipulate U.S. public opinion and has even tried to "buy off" U.S. congressmen.

The charges, based on testimony of a former South Korean official, are summarized in a private letter to Atty Gen Edward Levi from chairman Donald Fraser, D-Minn., of the House International Organizations Subcommittee.

The testimony was given by Dr. Jai Hyon Lee, who was director of information for South Korea in this country in the early 1970s. His statements were confirmed, for the most part, by Donald Ranard, the former director of Korean affairs at the State Department.

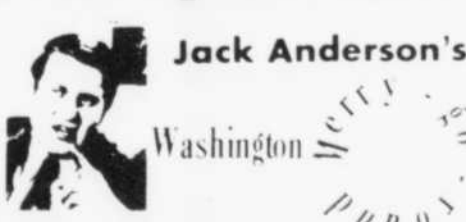

Dr. Lee, now a professor at Western Illinois University, told of a secret meeting in Seoul in March 1973 attended by KCIA agents and subsequent briefings in Washington by the KCIA station chief about "a scheme of clandestine operations."

The secret scheme, according to Lee's testimony, was designed "to mute criticism of (President) Park's totalitarianism and to buy off its supporters in the United States." The "buy off" of congressmen, he alleged, was left to the ambassador to handle.

Lately, the KCIA agents at the embassy in Washington have been more than doubled, Lee swore. "Park's KCIA arm is stretched into the U.S.," he said, "illegally manipulating American institutions and intimidating Korean residents in this country."

Specifically, Lee accused the KCIA of intimidating U.S. businessmen with interests in Korea, financing pro-Park activities in the United States and setting up "front groups" to praise his regime.

Lee charged that the Park government had financed a pro-Park seminar in Kalamazoo, Mich., in 1972 at a Washington symposium in 1973 and another Washington rally last month.

Jack Anderson's

He identified the "front groups" as the Korean newspaper Hankook Shinmoon, the Korean radio-TV broadcasting offices in Washington and various Korean associations in Chicago, Los Angeles, New York City and San Francisco.

But far more sinister, according to Rep. Fraser's letter to the Justice Department, were Lee's charges that the KCIA is intimidating Koreans in this country.

A favorite KCIA technique, alleged Lee, is to silence vocal Koreans in the United States by threatening "their families, relatives and close friends in Korea." This has been quite effective, since every Korean knows the KCIA's efficient brutality.

On the West Coast, said Lee, "KCIA operatives are even extorting money from Korean residents. These Korean residents are so afraid of KCIA reprisal that they do not dare report to the police."

The witness told about a Korean Christian scholar in the United States who allegedly was warned by trans-Pacific phone from Seoul "against an anti-Park statement" at a rally. A KCIA agent showed up at an anti-Park rally, testified Lee, "accompanied by several toughs carrying eggs and bottles of tomato ketchup."

The Justice Department, following up Fraser's letter, is trying to determine whether the KCIA has violated any U.S. laws.

Footnote: A Korean embassy spokesman called the Lee and Ranard charges "all groundless." The KCIA, he said, is not active in the United States; nor were there any Korean "pay-offs" to congressmen, intimidation or regime-supported fronts. "This is outright, malicious slander," the spokesman said.

Indian File: Russell Means, the stormy

American Indian Movement leader, already has several lifetimes of criminal charges pending against him. Now he is charged in South Dakota with conspiracy to commit murder.

But tapes made of the murdered man as he lay dying show he whispered to a deputy sheriff that Means was not even in the tavern bathroom where he was shot. And the sheriff admitted later he asked "leading and suggestive" questions at the hospital to get the victim to loop Means into the case.

The deputy also conceded he failed to show Means' photo to the victim for identification, hold a line-up in the hospital room, take fingerprints at the scene or do routine gunpowder tests to see whether Means fired the fatal shot.

Nixon Hangover: The secrecy that soured the second Nixon administration is becoming a hallmark of the Ford days, at least in some departments.

At the Pentagon, press briefings used to be held five times a week, but now they have dropped off drastically. At Commerce, Secretary Fred Dent had 15 press conferences in 1974. His replacement, Rogers Morton, has all but suspended the practice.

Treasury Secretary William Simon and Agriculture's Earl Butz have also stayed aloof from the give-and-take of regular press conferences.

Washington Whirl: Walter Kennedy, the House minority sergeant at arms, used his official stationery last fall to raise funds for Rep. John McCollister, R-Neb. McCollister won, but the hand that fed him, telling us that Kennedy had "made a mistake" in misusing the sergeant of arms' office for partisan politicking. The Food and Drug Administration's own records show they are softening up on violators of federal health laws. In 1973, the FDA brought 1,350 legal actions against alleged offenders. In 1974, the number dropped to 523, with many court cases replaced by slap-on-the-wrist warning letters.

Opening lead — 4 ♠

By Oswald & James Jacoby

On the opposite end of the bidding spectrum from the sign-off is the game force. When a player makes a game-forcing bid, the partnership is committed to keep bidding until game is reached.

North's two-spade response to the opening heart bid was a game force. South's three-heart reply merely revealed that he held a rebiddable heart suit. It said nothing about how good his hand was.

In the language of bids of that particular partnership, North's jump to four spades conveyed the message that his game-forcing bid was based largely on a solid spade suit and not on too many high cards.

It also said: "Partner, if you have a poorish opening bid I am perfectly satisfied to stop at game."

The bid also solved all South's problems for him. He simply bid a Blackwood four notrump. When North showed the two missing aces, South counted to at least 13 top tricks. He bid the slam in notrump because no one could trump any opening lead. The decision turned out to be a very wise one. East's five hearts would beat a heart grand slam. A heart lead by East would beat a spade grand slam.

SCOTSTOWN — On July 5, a most exciting and enjoyable surprise evening was given to Don and Polly McCuaig on the occasion of their 25th Wedding Anniversary.

The party was given by their children, Paul, Susan and Scot.

The hall was beautifully decorated with daisies and red carnations. Candlesticks lined the windows. The head table was decorated with a bouquet of carnations and shasta daisies.

Mr. David Moore of the Sherbrooke Hussars played pipe music into the hall where approximately 175-200 guests had assembled to offer their congratulations.

After greeting their many old, new and surprise guests, they were again piped to the dining room where a very entertaining program began.

Ian McCuaig was Master of Ceremonies and recalled many humorous stories about the guests of honor, and introduced several speakers. He was formally attired in a swallow tailed coat and top hat (vintage 1872) which he acquired through the courtesy of Don McCuaig's tailor in Toronto.

Agnes Bardsley of Hingham, Mass., read a delightful poem which she composed outlining the various places in which Don and Polly had lived.

Dorothy Bracken of Beausfield, a cousin of Mrs. McCuaig gave a humorous talk about their younger lives in Scotstown.

Peter Goodin represented the Goodin family, recalling some funny happenings of the past 25 years, particularly about Don. Don commented later that there were a few of his stories that he "wished had remained buried."

Paul, Susan and Scot followed with talks about their mom and dad.

Ian McCuaig then introduced Ann Aury and Marilyn Boulanger who presented an oil painting of Scotstown by Gaston Bedard to the honoured couple from the Goodin Family. Ian McCuaig then presented to Polly a plaque with the head of a horse representing the head of the family. He then presented Don with a plaque as his part in the family utilizing the remaining part of the horse.

Don McCuaig responded thanking all involved for a wonderful surprise party and acknowledged surprise out-of-town guests. He honoured his mother-in-law, Mrs. Fred Goodin by saying that he did not inherit a mother-in-law per se but rather a wonderful pal over the past twenty-five years.

He did indicate, however, that with marriage you do inherit many sisters-in-law and brothers-in-law. He commented further that he was blessed with the most attractive sister-in-law ever put on this earth and the most handsome brother-in-law. He ended by saying, "Let them all figure that one out."

Music was provided by Frank Slater of Radio Station CKTS. Mr. Cook MacIver and Bill Ronalds entertained on the piano.

Many congratulatory telegrams were read by Ian McCuaig from Boston, Winnipeg, Toronto, Minneapolis, Montreal, Ottawa, Atlantic, Cincinnati, Clearwater, Florida, Coguit, Coquitlam, B.C., Auckland, New Zealand.

Out-of-town guests were Chris Rutledge, Bill Ronalds, Mr. and Mrs. W.R. Comfort key to leisure wear

By Charles Hix

Men's clothing has become a family affair. Shifts in the American life style, with leisure activity taking up a bigger share of disposable income, have altered buying patterns in menswear. Now, especially, with sunny dog days ahead and with families dogging out of their homes in quest of casual fun, a new peak will be reached in what manufacturers call the "leisure suit," the "easy suit," or any name to describe masculine garb with a decidedly sporty flair.

It doesn't matter if the unemployment figure is eight or nine per cent, the other 91 per cent is making more money and is spending it. The largest single area for disposable income is leisure," says Tom Reichman, senior vice president of Hathaway Outer Wear which makes tailored sportswear for men. "Our sales have grown dramatically. Men used to buy for their wives first, then the children, next for themselves. No more. Men are buying more sportswear as part of the family's life together."

Although Reichman claims that Hathaway is the style and trend leader of the leisure suit market, its $75 to $110 price range is higher than most. The degree of tailoring — full linings, shoulder padding, plus all the touches you'd expect inside a standard suit — is also atypical.

Most leisure easy suits are unconstructed (without linings and other internal tailoring touches) but with extra external details like epaulets and snappy pockets. Semi-constructed outfits, maybe with a partial lining or other workmanship inside the shell, are mid-point between the unconstruction workers and the fully constructed (completely tailored) casual suits which comprise only about 10 per cent of all leisure suits being sold. As more construction is added, up goes the price and possibly the age of the customer.

Leisure easy suits are more an idea, a look, than a defined style. Explains Chips Tolbert, fashion director of the Men's Fashion Association of America, "the names leisure and easy suits really refer to a variety of styles, everything from matching pant and shirt jackets which can be worn inside the pant or out, to safari suits to semi-constructed suits with lapels. Styling details — sporty touches like belts and zippers, contrast stitching — have a lot to do with the sporty look. Fabrics and prices cover a broad spectrum. Although the natural look is the hottest look for summer cool, more than half of all leisure suits are totally synthetic fibers or blends. Cotton is experiencing a new popularity but even with slightly lower cotton prices, since labor costs continue upward, notes an executive with Cotton Incorporated, it's doubtful men will see any lower prices in menswear this season.

The $40 to $50 range is the most popular at Sears Roebuck and Co., says Paul Rogers, Fashion director for Sears' men's stores. He also points out that 90 per cent of leisure suit activity is in three styles — shirt jacket types, safari-influenced, and short like-like numbers. "Leisure suits may be a little overexposed but they will be a continuous influence in men's clothing," states Rogers. "Sears' business is basically in knits. Right where mid-America wants it. The popularity of leisure suits can be attributed to men demanding comfort."

One industry observer estimates that wholesale shipments in the leisure suit category were as high as $1.7 billion last year, although most manufacturers think it unlikely. "The problem with determining the size of the market," a spokesman for Menswear Retailers of America says, "is that leisure suits are made by everybody from pajama companies and shirt makers to manufacturers of high fashion suits."

Because of this gamut, some companies — Eagle Shirt-makers among them — are waving goodbye to leisure suits, saying there's no room left for a fashion statement, only a quick buck.

"Men used to buy for their wives first, then the children, next for the home and, last, for themselves. No more. Men are buying more sportswear as part of the family's life together."

Yves Saint Laurent Men's Clothing Co. doesn't agree. This spring it introduced its first sportswear line including an unconstructed suit which looks a lot like a conventional suit, except for the triple-pleated pockets and the lack of interior tailoring. This leisure suit was the best selling item in the sportswear line, even at $125.

Two Cody award-winning menswear designers — Dumitri of Italy and Bill Kaiserman for Rafael Fashion Ltd. — are also keeping muscle in leisure suit styling, although their garments are fully constructed and costs up to $250.

"I don't like the name 'leisure suit,'" says Kaiserman, "because it sounds gimmicky. These styles really fall into tailored sportswear, which, because of changing life styles, is valid and will stay valid." Proper fit is what is crucial in menswear, not the construction, reports the designer.

Another comforting factor may be that there's no "shape-up" worry. In many cases the loosely hanging shirt jackets can cover up some paunch, which might explain why several companies, like Hathaway Outer Wear, are seeing as much as a third of sales increases in larger sizes.

Hathaway's Reichman believes the size increases mean the average American male is getting larger but this fact is not substantiated. According to Menswear Retailers of America, the average suit size for the American male is the same today as a decade ago — between 40 and 42 regular. Nonetheless, Reichman says each season larger sizes are inching in sales.

Ann Landers

Common law marriage is trap

Dear Ann Landers: I am a woman 33 years of age. My husband is 36. We both love children very much. I had a hysterectomy last year which means I will never be able to bear a child. My husband is in perfect health, very handsome and would make a wonderful father.

We are not wealthy, but we do have some stocks, bonds and a nice savings account. My husband and I would pay a woman $10,000 to have his child, provided she promised to keep it a secret and relinquish all rights. Together, we would select the candidate. She would stay in our home as a "guest" until she became pregnant. The women would then be provided for in a nearby city where she could work, if she chose, but all her living expenses would be paid by us.

When she gave birth, we would pay all bills, take the child from the hospital and buy the woman a ticket to any city in the continental United States with the understanding that she would never return.

Are we crazy to want a child who has the genes of at least one of us? Could it work? Should we run a blind ad in the newspaper? Would you be willing to serve as the intermediary? — Hoping

Dear H.: I would not presume to comment on whether or not you are crazy, but the normal adoption procedure is the course rational people would take. I suppose your wild idea COULD work; in fact, I'm sure it has ... someplace ... at some time. Nothing is so bizarre but that someone has done it.

Don't run any ads. You will be besieged by hundreds of weirdos, oddballs, dingbats and wingy dames.

As for me serving as an "intermediary" — thanks a lot, but no thanks.

Dear Ann Landers: What advice can you give a gal, 28, single, not beautiful, but witty? (Please forgive the bragging.)

To make up for my lack of beauty I find myself trying too hard to be the life of the party. I often feel that I'm pressing to please others. The next day I'm unhappy with myself. Is there any cure for this? — Zelda

Dear Z.: A problem recognized is half solved. Here's a quote from Pete Hamill, a splendid journalist who says it better than I could:

"I realized early that one central reason for my change was that I didn't want to be on anymore. I had spent too many nights entertaining other people — doing number on myself that lead only to sweet, bitter afternoons of remorse. I wanted to live a life — not a performance."

Beautifully said, Pete.

Dear Ann Landers: Why would a man who is "over the hill" (and I mean completely impotent) talk about nothing but sex whenever we are out in company? He doesn't know any clean jokes. Only dirty ones. Of course I am describing my husband.

Sometimes I get so embarrassed I'd like to drop through the floor.

P.S. He doesn't drink. What's the matter with him? — Tomato Face

Dear Face: Talk can be a substitute for performance — and hopefully for the talker, a smoke screen. Sometimes an extremely patient and understanding wife can reverse the situation. I also recommend counseling. +++

A no-nonsense approach to how to deal with life's most difficult and most rewarding arrangement. Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage — What to Expect," will prepare you for better or for worse. Send your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120, enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Fluorocarbon ban rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission said Monday it has rejected a petition which asked for a ban on fluorocarbon propellants in aerosol sprays on the grounds that they threaten to damage the atmosphere.

The commission voted 3 to 2 that there is insufficient evidence to support the Natural Resources Defence Council charge that continued use of Freon in aerosols might result in 100,000 to 300,000 additional cases of skin cancer annually within 25 years in the United States, and up to 1.5 million more cases worldwide.

Commissioner Lawrence Kushner said the majority wanted to wait until the National Academy of Sciences reports next spring on a series of studies dealing with fluorocarbons and the ozone layer, which shields against ultra-violet radiation from the sun.

Kushner said he agreed, however, with the report last month by a federal inter-agency task force which found legitimate cause for serious concern about aerosols and ozone.

The two dissenters, Commissioners Barbara

Franklin and R. David Pittle, said they believe there already is sufficient evidence in hand to begin proceedings so that the agency can act quickly if the alleged hazard is proven.

They said the vote means that the safety commission cannot act on fluorocarbons for at least a year, after completion of economic and environmental impact studies required by federal law.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale Butler, and daughter Sharon of Oshawa, Mr. and Mrs. Germain Delorme and Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Emile Delorme of Granby, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Norris and family. Misses Linda Norris and Wendy Butler of Granby were weekend guests at the same home.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Norris and family attended the christening of the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Badger in Granby.

Mrs. May McLaughlin is spending some time with her daughter, Mrs. M. Graves and Mr. Graves at Ste.

In Ottawa recently environment department officials said it probably will be 1977 before the Canadian government decides whether to ban fluorocarbon propellants. The decision depends on results of a department study, begun last year, into the precise effects of fluorocarbons, including freon, on the ozone layer.

Jim Dryden, head of the environmental contaminants branch, said the department is not certain whether aerosol cans can be banned under the Hazardous Products Act but the proposed environmental contaminants act, currently before Parliament, would allow the ban.

Mr. Dryden said industry is urging that no action be taken until the theory is proved while scientists argue it is up to industry to disprove the theory.

Leonard to cover Canadian Open

Bob Moir, Executive Producer of next year's CBC-TV Olympic coverage, is producer of this year's Canadian Open Golf Tournament coverage and will field a strong team of commentators for the event.

When the Open telecasts begin on Thursday, July 24 (with reports Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights, and live afternoon coverage Saturday and Sunday) Moir's crew will include Ernie Afaganis, Don Wittman, Steve Armitage, Don Chevrier and Bob McDevitt. But, the man who will attract much of the fans' attention is long-time professional, and now Canadian Golf Hall of Fame member, Stan Leonard.

As an expert analyst and color commentator, Stan has no peer in this country. His association with the Open goes back 33 years, to the 1942 tournament at Mississauga. That year the pros gathered together to split a total prize pot of only $5,000. This year's winner will collect eight times that amount, from a total purse of $200,000.

Leonard was low Canadian in the Open on nine different occasions, but failed to win the big prize (as a matter of fact, no Canadian has won the Open since Pat Fletcher, now Club professional at Royal Montreal, turned the trick in 1954).

Stan made his best run at the money in 1946, when he came to the 16th hole at Montreal's Beaconsfield Club leading the field. Unfortunately, his tee shot nestled in against the side of an old stone barn. By the time he chipped back to the fairway, it had cost him a bogey, and probably a chance to go into a playoff with George Fazio and Dick Metz, who tied for the lead.

Stan Leonard played the Royal Montreal course when the Canadian Open was held there in 1950. However, that was at the old Dixie course, prior to the Club's move to the present location on Ile Bizard. That year, he led the Open for the first two days, but finally succumbed to the pressure and wound up in fourth place.

The Canadian Open has seen most of the world's great golfers over the years. The list of winners reads like a who's who of the sport. And, Stan Leonard has played with most of them - from Ben Hogan to Gary Player, and most of the greats in between.

The point is, even without a win, there is probably no golfer anywhere who is better equipped to analyse the play and the players in the Canadian Open, than Stan Leonard. His knowledge of the game, the problems and the pressures of the Open is second to none.

Leonard will be working on the late night reports, with Steve Armitage and Bob McDevitt, and will appear on the two live telecasts, Saturday and Sunday at 4 p.m. (EDT) each day.

Canada entered in International Olympics

TORONTO — One hundred and thirty-eight young athletes from across Canada will compete for Canada in the 4th International Special Olympics to be held August 7th-11th at Central Michigan University, Mount Pleasant, Michigan.

In all, over 3,000 mentally retarded athletes will be on hand to compete in the three-day event.

Although the majority of the athletes will come from 50 states, eight countries, including Canada, will also be in attendance. The other countries represented will be Switzerland, France, Belgium, Puerto Rico, El Salvador, Brazil and the Philippines.

The contingent is being organized by Canadian Special Olympics Inc., under the Chairmanship of Harry 'Red' Foster.

Mr. Foster was responsible for bringing the Special Olympics programme to Canada by organizing the national games in 1969, 1971 and acting as Honorary Chairman in 1974.

At this time, athletes from every province have been selected through various provincial organizations for the mentally retarded. These athletes, who will compete for Canada, have been participating in local, regional and provincial games.

In order to create a cohesive team for the International competitions, the Canadian Special Olympics office is organizing an Olympic Training Village at Ridley College near St. Catharines, prior to embarking for Michigan.

Ridley, an independent school, established in 1889, through its President and Board of Governors, has made it all possible by opening the school's doors to the athletes, coaches, chaperones and organizers. All the facilities, including the campus, gymnasiums, hockey cushions, swimming pools and accommodations, have been turned over to the Canadian Special Olympics for the four-day training village.

The Village will start on Saturday, August 2nd, and will continue through Wednesday, August 6th.

The purpose of the Village is to give the athletes an opportunity to meet one another and, most important, to receive training and practice in the various events in which they will be competing at the International Games.

The first day of the Training Village will be familiarization, handing out of uniforms, and general meetings for all coaches and chaperones.

The next day things get underway in earnest, with the athletes receiving training in such events as 50, 220 and 440 yard dashes, swimming, high jump, ball throw, and floor hockey drills for the floor hockey team.

The remaining days will be devoted to training and social events, team photos, a visit and picnic to Niagara Falls, a Team Canada March Past; all part of the Olympic Village.

Although the purpose of the Olympic Village is to prepare for the International Games, there are several other key reasons for such an undertaking.

The clinics, organized for the 50 coaches and chaperones, will provide an excellent opportunity to train and educate these people from across Canada at one time.

"In this way we are helping to pave the way for future Olympics in Canada whether they be on a local, regional, provincial or national level," stated Red Foster.

"It is also a wonderful opportunity for these young athletes to get together, meet new friends and represent their country at their Games," he said.

It is the hope of the organizers that the Olympic Village and the programmes arranged for the four days will help further stimulate grass-roots activity across Canada.

The teams will be outfitted in uniforms in the Canadian colours of red and white.

The highlight of the floor hockey tournament at Michigan, involving 3 teams from Canada and 7 from the United States, will be an all-star game sponsored by the National Hockey League.

These two teams will compete as Team Canada and Team U.S.A.

The Canadian Special

Olympics Inc., is a non-profit, charitable organization designed to develop and create sports, cultural and recreational opportunities for the handicapped.

Working in conjunction with the Harry E. Foster Foundation and the Joseph P. Kennedy Jr. Foundation in the United States, Canadian Special Olympics Inc. has been able to provide opportunities and demonstrate the potential of sport activity for the thousands of mentally retarded across Canada, while bringing the country together in a united programme.

CBC to take to sky to cover Open

Give a television producer sixteen cameras to cover an event, and he is usually happy as can be.

"Not so", says Bob Moir, producer of the 1975 Canadian Open Golf Tournament. "I'm always looking for a way to improve our telecasts, some method of giving the viewers a better look at the proceedings."

So, this year, that's just what Moir has. One of the sixteen cameras that Bob and director Michel Quizoz will be controlling, will shoot the Royal Montreal course from the famous Goodyear blimp. And, with live coverage scheduled for Saturday, July 26 and Sunday, July 27 (4 p.m. EDT start both days), CBC-TV viewers will have an opportunity to share in the gorgeous color of that overall panoramic view.

Bob has planned his television coverage carefully, with cameras strategically placed to follow all the action on the last five, water-dominated holes of the lush Ile Bizard Blue course. And, what a tough five holes they are, with the tees lengthened and the rough grown up to give the pros a real test.

TV coverage starts on the fourteenth hole, where Ernie Afaganis will report the action. The fourteenth is 355 yards of confining fairway, with a par four rating.

Number fifteen is a 430 yard, par four, that ends on rolling green fronted by water. Steve Armitage will call the play from there.

The sixteenth, designated by club professional Pat Fletcher as the toughest hole on the course, has a lake running along the left side from the tee to the severely elevated green. Play-by-play man will be Don Chevrier.

The part-three seventeenth, which Royal Montreal rates as the easiest hole on the course, can be deceptive. It plays at just over 130 yards, but features a small, narrow, elevated green. A pushed shot will bounce off the elevation into the water on the right, while long shots simply roll down the hill beyond the green and come to rest in the long rough beside the eighteenth tee. Bob McDevitt calls the action on this one.

The home hole, lengthened to 460 yards for the Open, is a monstrous par four, with a sharp dogleg left at about the halfway point, and another lateral water hazard skirting the left side on the tee shot. Don Wittman will be reporting from the eighteenth. Color commentary and expert analysis will be supplied, for the second year, by Canadian Golf Hall of Famer Stan Leonard.

At a normal 6,465 yards, the Royal Montreal Blue course, plays to a difficult par 70. But, during the Canadian Open, with the course running closer to 6,700 yards, and the hazards grown up to catch straying shots, par could be an elusive figure, even for the best of the pros.

WHA lacks interest in American youth

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Thayer Tutt, president of the Amateur Hockey Association of the United States (AHAUS), said Tuesday the World Hockey Association lacks interest in the youth of America.

"The WHA has clearly demonstrated it has no interest in American youth other than to benefit from the labors of unpaid volunteers..." said Tutt. "The future of professional hockey depends upon the support and success of the amateur leagues for player development," he said. The WHA had refused to talk with AHAUS and demonstrated it was not interested in "perpetuating amateur hockey in the United States."

NHLPA endorses rule changes, Soviet-NHL series is proposed

TORONTO (CP) — The National Hockey League Players' Association has endorsed proposed rule changes that might speed up games and stiffen sanctions against violent participants.

In final sessions between the players' representatives and league owners Thursday, a recommendation was approved eliminating the position of team alternate captains, meaning only the captain will be able to argue a call with the referee. If the NHL rules committee approves the recommendation, a player will be allowed to dispute a game call only on the invitation of the referee, and that invitation will be extended only to the team captain.

Players and owners also approved a recommendation of immediate and mandatory suspension of any player penalized for attempting to injure another player, pending the usual league inquiry.

Alan Eagleson, executive director of the Players' association, said such suspended players would be reinstated with full pay if the inquiry finds them not at fault.

Also approved was a decision to trim training camp dates in the 1976-77 season to 21 days from the present 23. Exhibition games will be cut to eight from the present 10.

In another matter, Greg Needt's attempts to play in the NHL received brief consideration at the meetings. The players' association supports Needt's bid to play as long as he accepts the risk of injury to his remaining eye.

Earlier, league board of governors rejected use of a helmet designed to protect Needt's good eye. He has been drafted by Buffalo Sabres of the NHL.

League owners at the meeting also proposed a Soviet Union-NHL series for this season, but the players neither accepted nor rejected the owners' proposal pending presentation of further information about the idea.

Occasion marked at church

STANBRIDGE EAST — On Sunday afternoon, June 22, a social hour and tea was held in the Parochial Hall of St. James the Apostle Church, Stanbridge East, to mark the departure of Canon S.T. Willis, and also the reopening of the renovated hall. The program was organized by the Warden, D.L. Rhicard and P.A. Knight, with the assistance of several other members of the Parish. Aside from parishioners, the large attendance included many friends from Stanbridge East and elsewhere, notably several visitors from localities where Canon Willis had served in the past.

Mr. Knight, acting as Master of Ceremonies, opened the proceedings by welcoming those present and noting that the occasion marked the retirement, and departure from the rectory of St. James, of Canon S.T. Willis. He also expressed the regret of the entire community at the departure of Canon Willis' brother, Inglis Willis, who had become a general favorite in the village during the nearly six years of their occupancy of the rectory. He then proceeded with the official reopening of the hall, beginning with a brief outline of developments leading up to the renovation.

A fund had been previously set up from donations in memory of Rev. Wm. Jones, a former rector who died in 1969; this was later augmented by a bequest. The project was finally set in motion by a parishioner who, at the time, wished to remain anonymous. A parish canvass was launched; the response was very gratifying, and included contributions from a number of friends elsewhere. No names were mentioned because persons generally gave according to their means. The sum of several thousand dollars was realized, augmented by donations of material and labour. The work was completed without incurring any debt. A memorial board is yet to be completed, listing the names in whose memory the gifts were made in cases where the donor wished to memorialize a relative or friend.

Finally the M.D. felt it necessary to mention the work of Lyall Rhicard, without whose efforts over a period of many months in supervising and executing the construction, the hall would not have reached its then performed by Rev. Richard Toase, Dunham, Rural Dean of Bedford and Lyall Rhicard, representing the Parishioners of St. James. This duty having been performed, a social interlude was then enjoyed with the serving of wine and gingerale.

Following this interlude, Inglis Willis was presented concluded saying, "Now that the Canon has retired, he may not continue to live his life as a bachelor". This address was responded to by Canon Willis in his usual warm and friendly manner, expressing his regrets at leaving St. James and the many fine people of all denominations in this community and saying that he had enjoyed his stay here fully as much as in any parish during his 40 years in the ministry. He also expressed his pleasure in witnessing the renovation of the hall during the last year of his rectorship, which he likened to a cocoon on his arrival here, but which now had emerged as a full grown butterfly.

In closing he expressed his appreciation of kindness and friendliness of the people here and issued a standing invitation to all of them to visit him and his brother at their home on the banks of the Richelieu River in Lacolle to which they are retiring.

Remarks of greeting, good wishes and appreciation were then made by Father Courtemanche of the Roman Catholic Parish of St. Jeanne D'Arc, Stanbridge East, who appreciated very much the friendship that had existed between himself and Canon Willis since his arrival here. He also expressed regrets that he too was retiring and leaving here at about the same time as the Canon. Father Courtemanche, who was a former Bishop in East Africa, is leaving shortly for a return visit to that country before retiring to the Mother House in St. Hyacinthe.

Rev. Keith Eddy of the United Church of Stanbridge East, was unable to be present but his place was ably taken by Bruce Kidd who gave an inspiring talk on the cooperation between the three churches in Stanbridge East and also expressed the regrets of the United Church members at the departure of their good friends the Willis' from the community.

M.C. Paige Knight then thanked the various speakers for their appropriate remarks and concluded by wishing the Canon and Inglis Bon Voyage as well as the wish that they would make many return visits to Stanbridge East.

The ladies of the parish then served delicious refreshments to the capacity filled hall. From comments overheard, the ladies appreciated the use of the modernly equipped and spacious new kitchen and everyone departed in the knowledge that Stanbridge East is a good place to live in.

Jehovah's Witnesses open convention

MONTREAL — A four-day district convention of Jehovah's Witnesses in Montreal, July 17-20, will stress Divine solutions to human problems.

The meeting, expected to attract more than 8,000 delegates, will be held at the Blue Bonnets Raceway. The theme is "Divine Sovereignty".

Bruce Hodge, presiding overseer of the Sherbrooke congregation, discussed the import of the program and stressed the human need of lasting peace and security.

"In recent decades," he said, "more and more talk has centered on the need for a world government of some kind. The problems affecting the human family are principally the same in all nations and yet solution to these problems has eluded us."

Commenting on the overall problem, Hodge said that the basic factor in the inability of men to solve global problems is human selfishness.

Citing the key problems: armaments development and stockpiling, pollution, projected famine due to the worldwide population explosion and economic crisis with inflation, Hodge said they have become a matter of grave concern.

The effect of selfishness, he said, produces such problems to man. "It is not only prevalent in organizations and nations," he continued, "but exists in the very roots of human society."

Hodge stressed that global problems are too difficult for man to cope with.

Hodge said the convention program would be devoted to a full explanation of man's problem — human survival — and explain in detail how it will be achieved.

The highlight of the convention will be the public talk entitled "One World, One Government, Under God's Sovereignty" which will be given at 2 p.m. Sunday, July 20.

LEN O'DONNELL

"POCKET RETIRES"

THE GAME OF HOCKEY has lost one of its best and most outstanding players in the history of the game, in the retirement of Henri "Pocket" Richard.

HIS DECISION To call it quits is a wise one in our estimation as at 39 years of age one is more prone to injuries. Henri has suffered his share of them and one can't blame him for deciding to hang up his skates.

DURING HIS CAREER with the Canadiens I don't think anyone can say that "The Pocket" didn't give his best at all times. He was what one would call a 100 per cent player no matter how the game was going. That was his way of playing the game and the only way he knew.

HE WAS A QUIET, retired type of a person and was never searching for headlines. He let his play speak for him. He was small in stature, for a NHL player, but this never kept him from mixing it when he had to and he could look after himself no matter how big the opposition was.

"ALL GOOD THINGS MUST COME TO AN END" stated the Pocket at the press conference when he announced his retirement. He gave 20 years of his life to the sport and we don't think a hockey fan in the country can, or would, complain about his efforts during his career. He complained that the long plane trips were getting him down and one can understand that with the number of clubs in the NHL, situated from one end of the country to the other coast.

HE WON THE BILL MASTERTON TROPHY awarded annually to the player best exemplifying the qualities of perseverance, sportsmanship and dedication to hockey. It was in 1973-74 and this award speaks highly for one chosen for these special qualities.

DURING HIS CAREER he tallied 358 goals in regular season play along with 688 assists which speaks for itself. He seemed to be at the right spot at the proper time and in front of the net he was deadly. He was a great asset for the Canadiens.

HE WAS OUTSPOKEN and when things didn't go the way he expected he wasn't long in saying so. He had few riffs with his coaches and gave his idea about things on the club.

SAMPOLLOCK, general manager of the Canadiens and coach when the Pocket played junior hockey, stated that the club was going to retire No. 16, the sweater he wore during his playing days. Prior to that Elmer Lach, another centre player of former years, had the same number before The Pocket inherited it.

DON'T BE SURPRISED that within the near future that The Pocket will be named to Hockey's Hall of Fame. He is one, in my opinion, who really deserves it. He has earned the right to have his name on the famous list.

SO POKET ON BEHALF of your supporters over the years, we wish you a very restful and enjoyable retirement. Good Luck for the future.

ASBESTOS GOLF CLUB will be the scene for the Eastern Townships Junior Golf Championship July 30-31. A practice round will be held Tuesday, July 29, prior to the two-day event.

THIS IS AN IMPORTANT tourney as the best 10 will be named to the Quebec Team to take in the Canadian finals at Victoria, B.C., on Aug. 18-19. It is expected that around 150 young club swingers will be on hand and Asbestos has a strong group who will battle it out for the honors. Good luck boys.

PRESIDENT BOB MARTIMBEAULT had his crew of All-Stars of the Quebec Major Junior Baseball League rolling along in high gear as they upset the Montreal All-Stars in the second game of their two-game affair.

COACH MATTY ALSTON has his gang ready for the Montrealers as they posted a 5-3 victory. They lost the opened in Jarry Park 5-0, maybe the locals weren't accustomed to such a large field and were a little nervous.

FRANCOIS BELANGER of Trois-Rivieres won the set of golf clubs donated by Marc Hudon, owner of Hudon Oxygen. A crowd of 1,859 fans turned out for the game and following the game they were presented with the Sport O'Keefe Cup. Good going Bob and congratulations.

PRESIDENT ARMAND DUSSAULT of the Eastern Townships Construction Association has a well-prepared program lined up for their annual golf tournament which will be held at the Sherbrooke Country Club Aug. 6. The men will play 18-holes, starting times from 8.00 till 1.00. The ladies will come in for their share and will play nine-holes.

FOLLOWING THE GAME a buffet will be served, commencing at 7:00 p.m. sharp, says President Armand. So boys get your entries in as soon as possible in order to prepare the draw for the day. Members are asked to contact Fernand Vallieres at 567-6182.

WONDER WHAT BROADWAY JOE will come up with next. He has just signed a 20-year contract for $5 million with an international cosmetics company. He would like to play two more years but it will have to be with the Jets, it seems he isn't interested in leaving his favorite haunts on Broadway. He expects to get a million for the Jets, not bad all around.

SEE WHERE BILL STONEMAN, former star pitcher with the Montreal Expos, has been hired by the Royal Trust to advise professional athletes on the wide range of financial and trust services which could be made available to them with the company. Bill will have to toss some pretty good curves to get his clients interested. Maybe a little tougher than trying to get your man at the plate, Bob.

Eskimos, Alouettes and TiCats complete pre-season with wins

Edmonton Eskimos completed their Canadian Football League pre-season schedule with a perfect record Wednesday night, winning their fourth game 28-27 over Calgary Stampeders.

The Eskimos' 4-0 record stands out in marked contrast to those of others clubs, although British Columbia Lions could come close if they win in the final exhibition game tonight against Winnipeg Blue Bombers. The Lions have two wins, no losses and one tie.

Montreal Alouettes, after a 20-7 win Wednesday night over Toronto Argonauts, wound up with a 2-1-1 mark.

Wednesday's other game saw Hamilton Tiger-Cats score their first victory by a 21-19 margin over Ottawa Roughriders.

Calgary and Toronto finished the exhibition schedule with 2-2 records while Ottawa, Hamilton and Saskatchewan Roughriders were 1-3. Winnipeg, with the one game remaining tonight at Vancouver, is 1-2.

MADE LATE RALLY

Veteran quarterback Tom Wilkinson again displayed his ability to rally the Eskimos when he erased a 13-point Stampeders lead with two touchdown drives in the final two minutes at Calgary.

Wilkinson threw six yards to George McGowan and four yards to Tyrone Walls for the final two touchdowns. Dave Cutler kicked his fourth convert of the game for the winning point.

Bruce Lemmerman started at quarterback for the Eskimos and threw 12 yards to McGowan for one touchdown and then combined with Larry Mayer for a 76-yard pass-and-run touchdown play.

The Stamps made their big charge in the second quarter, scoring three touchdowns and a field goal for a 24-14 lead at the half.

Running back Willie Burden made runs of 12 and eight yards within a minute for the first two Calgary touchdowns and Tom Forzani scored six points on a 34-yard pass from Joe Pisarcik. Cyril McFall kicked two converts, a single and field goals from 37 and 32 yards.

At Montreal, the Argonauts completed their 11th consecutive quarter of play without a touchdown. Their last touchdown came in the first quarter of their second game against Winnipeg and they were shut out in the third game against B.C. Kicker Zenon Andrusyshyn, with two 31-yard field goals and a single in the second quarter, accounted for all the Toronto scoring against the Als.

PASSING ON TARGET

Ironically, the Argo offence sputtered despite quarterback Mike Rae's 20 passes completed in 25 attempts for 205 yards. The Argos offence netted 284 yards to Montreal's 272.

Larry Smith scored for Montreal on a 22-yard run in the first quarter and Johnny Rodgers on an eight-yard plunge in the fourth.

Don Sweet and John Archbold each scored a convert and a field goal for the Als. Sweet's field goal was good from 16 yards in the third quarter and Archbold made Former Montreal star Terry Evanshen scored on a 13-yard pass from rookie Jim McMillan with 15 seconds left at Ottawa to give Hamilton the victory.

Hamilton's other touchdown came on a 32-yard run by Jim Datrie. Ian Suter added field goals from 40 and 22 yards and kicked two converts and a single.

Ottawa's Peter Crepin provided one of the most exciting plays of the game when he intercepted a McMillan pass and returned it 95 yards for the Riders' first touchdown.

Little League prepares for all-star contests

SHERBROOKE (BP) — As the Sherbrooke-Lennoxville-Fleurimont Little League regular season draws to a close this week, final preparations are being made for the regional all-star tournament which begins this weekend.

Separate teams from the Sher-Lenn and Sher-Mont will participate in the District No. 1 regional tournament. The winner of this tournament will advance to the provincial tournament and then try for the Quebec-Maritime and Canadian championships in August.

Three other teams will try for top spot in the regional tournament - South-Centre Association, St-Pascal Kiwanis and Little Burgundy. Two games are slated this weekend for the Sherbrooke Parade Grounds. Saturday, the Sher-Mont stars take on St-Pascal Kiwanis at 2 p.m., while the Sher-Mont representatives will be in Montreal facing South-Centre Association. Sunday, Sher-Mont plays in Sherbrooke against Little Burgundy, if they win on Saturday, or the loser of the Sher-Lenn game on Saturday. Game time will be 2 p.m.

Various presentations will be made before the Saturday game here outlining the support the league has received from past Little League members.

LITTLE LEAGUE BUTTONS ON SALE

Sher-Lenn and Sher-Mont players will again be selling Little League buttons in the Sherbrooke area to help support the local league. The four-day campaign begins today in Sherbrooke shopping centres and downtown, with players in uniform selling buttons for 50 cents each. All money collected will be put towards the general operations of the Little League. The fund drive ends Sunday, July 20. Buttons will also be sold at the weekend games. All support will be appreciated.

On the occasion of the regional Little League tournament, the local organizers have dedicated three days to Sherbrooke businesses which have helped out this year. Friday is dedicated to McDonald Restaurant, which during the regular season gave free items to players of the different teams in the league. Saturday is set aside for Fournier Sports and Sunday for Dominion Textile.

Both teams practiced this morning at the Parade Grounds in final preparation for this weekend. Paul Roy, coach of the Expos, will handle the Sher-Lenn squad, while Reginald Bureau of the Pirates will coach the Sher-Mont all-stars.

Grand-Mere hangs on to beat Sherbrooke

POINTE-AUX-TREMBLES (BP) — Three runs by Pointe-aux-Trembles in the first two innings last night set the stage for their 3-2 victory over the Sherbrooke Athletics.

The Als scored their two runs in the fourth inning. Yvon Blackiere was the winning pitcher, while Sherbrooke's Serge Goodhue took the loss. The Jets had five hits and made one error, and while Sherbrooke's hits weren't known, the A's made five miscues in the match.

In Grand-Mere, Shawiniga Jets came very close to skunking the Nationals in the other Quebec Major Junior Baseball League contest. Shawinigan led 4-0 until the bottom of the seventh inning, but the Nats squeezed one run across the plate to save the blanking for a 4-1 final.

Eight hits by the Jets were combined with two mistakes for the victory, while a lone hit by Grand-Mere and four errors contributed to their loss.

Tonight, Sherbrooke plays the Pirates in St. Jean and Trois-Rivieres opposes the Jets in Shawinigan. Both games begin at 8 p.m.

"Strongest Canadian women's team ever assembled"

CALI, Colombia (CP) — The Wendy and Nancy show has moved here for its latest engagement with no one willing to predict which of the Canadian swimmers will finish ahead this time or if either will have enough to catch East Germany's brilliant Birgitte Treiber.

Wendy Cook of Vancouver, at 18 years of age already a travelled veteran, and Nancy Garrapick, the sensational 13-year-old from

Halifax who goes into her first real international meet when the world aquatic championships begin here Saturday, head the strongest

Canadian women's contingent ever assembled.

Coaches Don Talbot of Thunder Bay, Ont., and Deryk Snelling of Vancouver have been waiting since the Canadian championships in May to unleash this women's team against the best from 39 other countries.

"Without a doubt the strongest Canadian women's team ever assembled," Talbot said gleefully. "We should have at least one finalist in every event."

After a week's outdoor training in San Diego to get the swimmers accustomed to both the outdoor pools—all competitions here are outdoors—and the heat, Talbot said he expects the girls to "perform exceptionally well and put swimmers into the finals of events we haven't reached before."

"Nancy has been on a high for a while now," Snelling said of the young girl who set

Olympics. That program calls for medals here, and if production is not forthcoming, "we will have to readjust our thinking."

The pair often mention the high hopes of Becky Smith of Edmonton, Marian Stuart of Pointe Claire, Que., Gail Amundrud of Vancouver and others. But when it comes to gold medal prospects, it is always Wendy Cook and Nancy Garrapick.

"Both girls could be fighting for anything between first and fourth," Snelling speculated.

"Nancy has been on a high for a while now," Snelling said of the young girl who set a 200-metre backstroke world record in April—it was later broken by Treiber—and beat Cook in the Canadian championships. "But I think Wendy is better prepared for here. There's a world of difference in swimming between the age 13 and 18."

LOOK FOR TREND

While the coaches are hoping Garrapick is the forerunner for a whole new wave of youngsters, they are looking to Cook to start a new trend among the veterans.

The former world record holder in the 100-metre backstroke has been Canada's premiere female swimmer since 1973 but, with the arrival of Garrapick, there has been some worry expressed about Cook's desire to remain in competitive swimming.

She is scheduled to get married later this year but Snelling and Talbot are hoping that step will not change her swimming ambitions.

"If Wendy can get married and still make the Olympic team on her performance in a sudden-death trial and not because she's Wendy Cook, it could herald a new age in Canadian swimming," Snelling said.

Coaching system to be initiated

CALI, Colombia (CP) — The second world aquatic championships, which get under way here Saturday, provide the initial test for a new coaching system in Canadian swimming.

Gone, probably forever, is the former practice of sending just one or two coaches to supervise, train and prepare the entire Canadian swimming team. At these championships, there will be no less than nine coaches on hand to work with the 30 swimmers. Four of them will be accredited to participate once the swimming competitions begin next Tuesday.

Opening ceremonies for the championships are Friday with diving and water polo events beginning Saturday. Synchronized swimming begins Tuesday.

Head coaches Deryk Snelling of Vancouver and Don Talbot of Thunder Bay, Ont., head the swimming contingent but have invited seven other coaches to assist in the preparation of the 17 men and 13 women.

"It's an important new step for us," Talbot said. "It will provide the swimmers with more needed personal attention before the meet."

"This time Don and I will control the yardage and such but we will let other coaches handle their swimmers," Snelling said. "It will provide us with a better position from which to evaluate and see if this is the right method to take into the Olympics."

Co-operation, unity and trust are the key words if the program is to succeed and help the swimmers, said

Talbot.

"This system has to work in some form and it's going to take trust to make it successful."

"I think the coaches involved can understand that the other coaches are not here to try and harm their swimmers or steal them away from their own club."

The same system will be used in the Pan-American Games in October and Snelling and Talbot will then make a decision on whether to retain it for the 1976 Olympics.

Lennoxville pool holds 'kiddies night'

LENNOXVILLE (BP) — The second annual Kiddies Night at the Lennoxville Centennial Pool was held last night, with improved participation over last year.

Close to 200 youngsters up to 16 years old took part in one of three categories and any or all of the six different types of games or races.

Musical chairs, held in the wading pool, matching balloons that the kids had with a similar one in the wading pool, a penny find, a wheelbarrow race in the wading pool, a lifejacket race which had contestants work against each other to put a lifejacket on, swim one length of the pool (25 metres) and take it off, inner tube race in which participants back paddles while sitting on a tube, a race where swimmers held a tennis ball on a spoon for a length of the pool without dropping it, a cracker race, in which the swimmers swam with one hand, holding a cracker in the other, for 25 m., ate the cracker and whistled before anyone else, and a balloon relay race, where the events held during the night's activities.

In the seven and under class, Tara Hilton won the musical chairs competition, Mario Brue matched up his balloon first, Irena Pille found the most pennies and Patricia Learned and Jimmy Garfat combined to win the wheelbarrow race.

For youngsters between ages seven and 11, Diane Beaulac copped the lifejacket race, Nancy Bennett took the penny find, and Diane Beaulac also won the inner tube event.

For the biggest kids, ages 11-16, Caroline Learned won the penny find, Kevin Moore took the inner tube race, Lucie Roy won both the tennis ball race and the cracker race, James Murray won the lifejacket race and Lucie Roy, Janet Yeandel, Natasha Roy and Caroline Learned teamed up to win the balloon relay race.

All the winners received prizes, ranging from balloons and yo-yos to kites and records.

Commissioner Kuhn's job still undecided

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn clings tenuously to his job today with the American and National leagues expected to table a final vote on extension of his term of office.

Kuhn came perilously close to being fired Wednesday when four American League clubs opposed his rehiring at baseball's summer meetings. Kuhn, whose seven-year term of office expires Aug. 12, 1976, needs nine of the 12 votes in each league to continue in office.

He had all 12 in the National League but only eight in the American. The opposition was led by Oakland A's owner Charles O. Finley and Baltimore Orioles boss Jerold Hoffberger, both longtime opponents of Kuhn. They apparently convinced New York Yankees and Texas Rangers to join them in opposing Kuhn.

The AL clubs spent six hours discussing the delicate issue Wednesday and then sent word to their National League counterparts of what one owner called, "our straw vote."

That didn't sit too well with the Nationals, where Kuhn's support was reported to be complete. At that point, the NL bosses invited the AL owners into their session for an informal meeting. The single matter to be discussed was Kuhn.

MADE NO PROGRESS
For another hour, the NL, led by influential Walter O'Malley of Los Angeles Dodgers, tried to change the minds of Kuhn's opponents. But the only progress they made was to get the AL owners to agree to table the matter.

At that point, AL president Lee MacPhail and NL president Chub Feeney were dispatched to Kuhn's suite to report what had happened to the commissioner. They told him the leagues wanted to table the matter. At first, the commissioner balked at that step.

"As I understand it, the commissioner said he wanted a vote taken today," said one owner. "Then he changed his mind and said it would be all right to table it."

That left Kuhn's job in something of a limbo status. The tabling could be for two weeks, two months or, as Finley put it, "two minutes."

It seemed certain however, that no final vote would be taken at today's joint meeting. "The National League just doesn't feel the climate is right for one right now," said an AL owner.

Formal votes can only be held at joint meetings and there is enough opposition to an immediate one on Kuhn to assure the commissioner's backers being able to avoid one today.

MAY HAVE TIME

That will give O'Malley and Kuhn's other supporters time to break down the opposition to the commissioner.

Louise Larochelle wins Quebec amateur title, Debbie Savoy runner-up

MONTREAL (CP)—Louise Larochelle of Quebec City successfully defended her Quebec women's amateur golf championship Wednesday when she finished the 54-hole event nine strokes ahead of her nearest opponent.

Miss Larochelle, 22, fired a five-over-par 79 in the final round to give her a nine-over-par 231 for the tournament. She retained the nine-stroke lead she held after the second round despite the fact she began the final 18 with a string of four bogeys on the par-74, 6,165-yard Elm Ridge Country Club course.

Debbie Savoy of La Tuque was runner-up with a 240 total, while Francoise Rousseau of Gaspe was one stroke back.

Francine Larue of St. Hyacinthe was fourth at 242, while two golfers, Michelle Chouinard of L'Assomption and Andree O'Doherty of Lachute, shared fifth spot with 246 scores.

Miss Larochelle put together rounds of 74, 78 and 79 in defence of the title she won for the first time last year.
